President Orders Withdrawal Of Troops At School In Little Rock

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today ordered withdrawal of all federal troops enforcing school integration at Little Rock, Ark.

The President said in a statement that he hopes it will be unnecessary to return the troops at the start of the school year next September.

after outbreaks of violence at the high school when Negro pupils attempted to attend classes. The President said at the time he was acting to preserve the integrity of the District Court's attempt to uphold a 1954 Supreme Court ruling against race segregation in the public schools.

Later, Faubus traveled to Eisenhower's vacation headquarters at Newport, R.I., for a conference. There were indications after that meeting that an agreement on how to handle the situation had been reached.

But if there was such an agreement, it collapsed. The President reportedly was under the impression that the troops Faubus had ordered to the high school would be withdrawn shortly, but that did not happen.

that state and local officials and citizens will assume their full responsibility and duty for seeing that the orders of the federal court are not obstructed.

She said that as far as she knows none of the Negroes plan to attend the summer session at the school. Mrs. Bates declined to comment on the troop withdrawal order.

He replied that he would not project beyond the language of the President's statement. "I think it is quite clear where the responsibility lies," the press secretary said, adding: "We will just have to wait and see."

Although there have been racial incidents at the school since that time, there has been no marked violence and some Negro pupils have continued to attend classes.

Peruvian Students Stone Vice President Of U. S.

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A shower of rocks greeted Vice President Nixon today as he sought to visit San Marcos University's rector and talk to students.

Arriving yesterday on his eighteenth South American tour, Nixon met the most vigorous demonstrations against him so far. Although an ovation greeted his plane from Bolivia, Peruvians in a working class section on his route into the city whistled at him, the equivalent of jeering.

1,000 outside the hotel, about 50 youths chanted "Peru — yes — Nixon — no." Police quietly dispersed them. Communist handbills attacking the visitor also were circulated.

'To Serve', Purpose Of HD Club Work

By Mrs. Wilbur Worthington President, Pitt County HD Council

May 4-10 is National Home Demonstration Club Week, and will be observed by rural women throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska.

One of the main purposes of Home Demonstration Club work is to serve as a link of communication between the homes of the state, state colleges, and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Extension work in Pitt County has been established for many years. The precedent set by the fine Home Agents in our county has been such that the program is accepted as part of the general program for the progress of the people here.

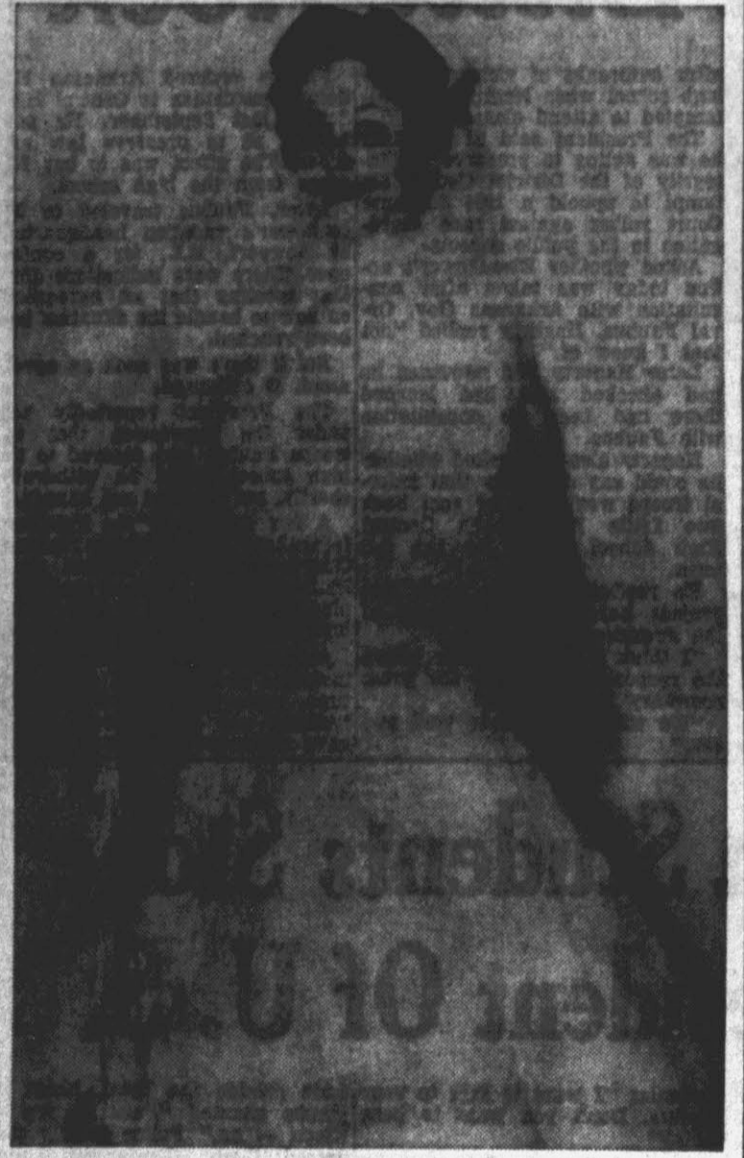

At the present time there are three members of the Home Agents staff—Mrs. Lillie B. Little, home agent, Mrs. Lois J. Freeman, assistant home agent, and Miss Margaret L. Stevens, assistant home agent. Both assistants work with the 4-H as well as the Home Demonstration program.

We sincerely believe that "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World," and that any nation is only as strong as its homes; therefore, we strive to make our homes happy, healthy, and spiritual places, where today's children can develop into useful citizens capable of meeting the problems of our world tomorrow.

Many of our women reported trying to have a more united family since our demonstration on "Faith is a Family Affair" in March.

Each of the 21 clubs meets once a month. After a business period conducted by the president, assisted by the vice president and secretary, one of the Home Agents or a trained club leader gives a demonstration.

As a direct result of these demonstrations it has been estimated that the rural people in Pitt County saved $39,718.50 by growing, canning and freezing fruits and vegetables, and $64,281 was saved by growing, curing ing accessories and the grand-mother of the bridegroom was attired in a beige and white chiffon dress with matching accessories. They both wore white orchid corsages.

For a wedding trip to Western Virginia, the bride wore a navy blue silk dress with a matching jacket and navy and white accessories. At her shoulder was the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride will continue her education at East Carolina College until she joins her husband in England for a two year residence.

Lee is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, Virginia, and is now serving with the U. S. Air Force. He is on a 30-day leave before embarking for England.

Cake Cutting

Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Johnston honored the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting following the wedding rehearsal Saturday at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Miss Jo Anna Rooke was complimented with a white carnation corsage to complete her blue Spring dress by the hostess and host who also remembered the bridegroom-elect with a boutonniere.

The appointed table was covered with a pink cloth featuring matching fringe trim and centered with an all-white arrangement of Dutch Iris, feverfew, and pink Wegeelis which was flanked by burning pink tapers.

To carry out the pink color scheme a candelabra holding burning pink tapers was placed on the piano accompanied by Spring flowers.

The mantel was decorated with a massive floral arrangement of gladioli, Dutch Iris, feverfew and Wegeelis.

The three-tier cake was trimmed with pink and topped with a miniature bridal couple. After the cutting of the first slice of cake by the couple, Mrs. Rooke, mother of the bride, served the cake.

Punch was poured by Mrs. Billy Sermons. Mints and nuts were also passed. Goodbyes were said to the hostess and host.

Out-of-Town Relatives

Out-of-town relatives here for the Lee-Rooke wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Bob MacKenzie, Mrs. Charlie Roberson, Mrs. S. M. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cox, Miss Julia Jones, Mr. Doug Brochie, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lee, Miss Jane Lee, Miss Cindy Lee, Mrs. Granville Lillie, Mrs. B. G. We the members of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Pitt County believe that home-making is the most important profession any woman can be engaged in. Through our Home Demonstration work, and with the assistance of our capable agents, we keep well informed on all the latest scientific facts and methods concerning the problems of home-making in the various fields of nutrition, health, housing, clothing, financial planning, recreation, education, youth work and community development; as developed through research by the Extension Staff at State College.

Mommies Always Come In Handy

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

What are mommies for? Ever occur to you, Mom? Probably. But a way to find out might be to ask your offspring.

Take 8-year-old Jon Provost, for instance, harum-scarum movie and TV personality. Do you know what he thinks Mommies are for? His answers are probably typical.

"Mommies are for everything you need," he says, summing up the subject in a nutshell. "They buy you a million toys, maybe give you money for your birthday, a motor boat for Christmas, maybe even a present on New Year's Day."

And what should boys do for Mommies, Jon?

"Maybe buy them something for Mother's Day," he muses—"earrings, dress, shoes, a hat, maybe."

Then, laughing, he reflects that what he really bought Mom last time was a box of chocolates "which I ate all up myself."

Mommies come in handy for Sunday School money, too, if you don't want to take it out of your bank, he says.

"I have $10 in my bank," says the pixie who stars with Lassie on TV. "If I was nice I guess I'd give all my money to the church, but I don't. I only give them 15 cents on Sunday."

Daddies are good for something, too, in this young man's book.

"Daddies are good for taking you to horror movies like Frankenstein that your mother doesn't want you to see. Afterwards they buy you ice cream because they want it, too, and you may get three double layers. And they may take you to a toy shop for a present."

Jon made his screen debut at the age of 2, played the son of

Bing Crosby and Grace Kelly in "Country Girls," and recently made a movie in Japan called "Escapade in Japan."

He became pals with an 8-year-old Japanese girl, but shyly he says:

"Girls? I don't know what I think of them," wrinkling up his nose and frowning. "But I understood everything she said — and we had a lot of fun playing together."

Other friends? What are they for?

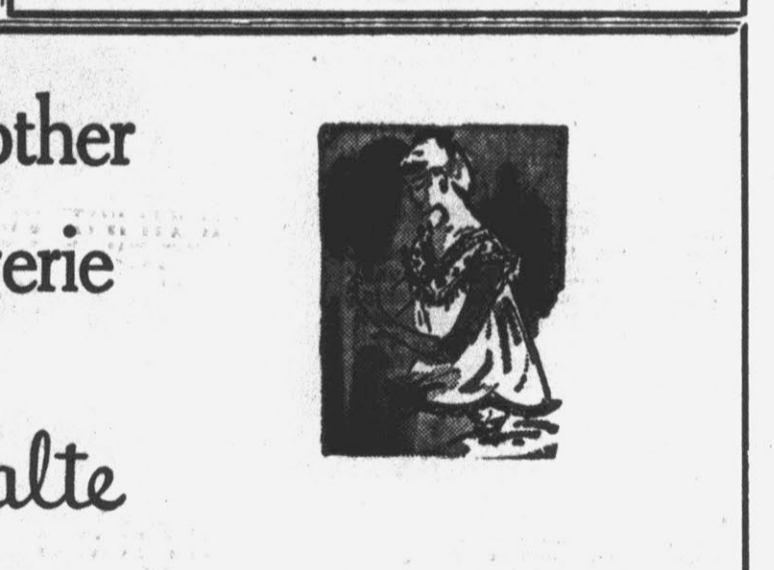

Friends Are For Fun

"Oh, to play games with you, I guess, nice games, like cowboys and Indians," says Jon. "They play with you in your tree house if you let them, and maybe you let them play with your dogs like my boxer, King, and my dachshund, Schultzie, named after the girl on TV with Bob Cummings. Schultzie is going to have a lot of puppies."

Must Register To Keep The Right

The right of a citizen to cast a ballot in free elections is one of the fundamental aspects of democratic government.

It is a right every citizen cherishes. Yet many citizens carelessly toss away this cherished privilege because they do not take sufficient interest in election procedures to see that they are properly registered and qualified to cast a ballot.

Registration books of Pitt County are now open for unregistered voters to place their names on the voting rolls of the county. For the next two Saturdays registration books will be at the polling place in each of the county's 25 precincts for the sole purpose of giving unregistered citizens an opportunity to register.

Those whose names are not on the county's registration books by sundown on May 17 will not be eligible to vote in the forthcoming Democratic Primary.

During the past two years—since the last general election—many new people have moved into Pitt County. In order to be eligible to vote in the forthcoming Democratic Primary they will have to get their names on the books during the current registration period.

There are also many people who have reached voting age since the last registration period. They too will have to register before the registration period closes if they expect to vote on May 31. It should be remembered that any person who will reach the age of 21 on or before November 4 is eligible to register now and vote in the Democratic primary.

In addition to these two groups of people, there are many residents of Pitt County who moved from one precinct to another since the last time they went to the polls. These people too will have to register in their new voting precinct if they expect to vote on May 31.

The Reflector urges every person of voting age to make sure he is properly registered before the current registration period ends on May 17.

The right to vote carries with it the responsibility to participate in government through the election of officials. Only by making sure he is properly registered can a citizen exercise his right to vote.

A Ray Of Sunshine In N.C. Revenue Picture

After previous gloomy predictions about North Carolina's tax picture for the current fiscal year, the latest report from Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie should bring a ray of sunshine into the lives of officials and citizens alike.

According to Currie, general fund collections may, after all, approximate for this fiscal year the estimates made by the 1957 General Assembly. That's encouraging news after the March report in which Currie told the governor it was conceivable general fund collections could fall 4½ million dollars short of the estimates.

In addition to the fact that collections are higher than anticipated a few months ago, it is encouraging to note that the number of individuals paying income taxes in the state is more than 7,000 higher than what it was a year ago. That would suggest one of three things, or maybe a combination of the three.

1. A number of people who in previous years did not earn sufficient money to require payment of state income taxes had sufficient earnings last year to require tax payment;
 2. New people are moving into the Tar Heel State and are paying taxes;
 3. The State Department of Revenue is tightening down on its income tax collections.
- Whatever the reason, the result means that an additional 7,000 new people are helping the rest of taxpayers share the financial burden of supporting the state government.
- That in itself is a comforting thing to know.

To The Editor

The twenty-fourth annual Camporee of the Boy Scouts of the East Carolina Council is over. A new record was established for the number of Scouts and Scouters in attendance. By every standard the Camporee was a huge success.

No operation of such magnitude ever can be termed successful without wholehearted and unselfish cooperation. The willing and untiring efforts of literally hundreds of local citizens made these three days memorable ones for the over three thousand participants. The untold hours of planning and physical preparation of the program and grounds were evident to all. To my knowledge, not a single person, firm, or organization refused any legitimate request and many volunteered services and materials beyond those asked.

Sincerely yours,

Can We Afford A Defense Cut?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is one of the most gruesome questions in the cold war: Could this country, now in recession, afford a big cut in defense spending even if it could reach a disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union tomorrow?

Over the past five years this country has spent around 200 billion dollars for defense, a rate of 40 billions a year.

And this year President Eisenhower is asking for another 40 billions. That means a lot of jobs for workers and a lot of money for American business.

Eisenhower didn't ask this direct question in two talks Tuesday to the Republican members of Congress and to an Advertising Council Conference.

But he raised it obliquely by asking what would happen if the foreign aid program alone — for which he's asking about four billions — were stopped or deeply cut.

The foreign aid program, more recently called mutual security, has cost 60 billions since World War II.

It includes arms and military equipment for Allies, plus economic help for them and other friendly countries. On this foreign aid alone Eisenhower said: "I remind everyone that 80 cents out of every dollar that we spend for mutual aid does not go to foreign lands. It goes to work right here at home. That means hundreds of thousands of jobs for American workers."

It means large outlays for American machinery, iron and steel, farm goods, chemicals and motor vehicles.

Then pointing out mutual aid helps American security besides helping the economic development of the non-Communist world, he said: "Now, stating these same results, in a converse way, and in the form of a question:

People Never Seen

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Characters we've heard about but never expect to meet:

Statesmen who would rather be right than president.

A cab driver who thought everybody in City Hall was honest.

A parrot that could actually say, "Polly wants a cracker."

A woman who could go on a diet without bragging.

A man who could go on the wagon without bragging.

A smoker who could give up cigarettes and chewing his fingernails at the same time.

A traffic cop who, before handing you a ticket, actually said, "Where's the fire?" They usually say, "And where do you think you're going?"

The little man who wasn't there.

Anyone who ever knew a simple way to attract a waiter's attention.

A girl who could blow smoke through her nose and still look sophisticated.

An author who ever thought a publisher had done right by his book.

Wife too proud to go through her husband's pockets, particularly on a night when he has returned home after playing paper.

A husband too honorable to peek at his wife's diary.

A politician who ever gave a constituent a free cigar — or anything else.

An unselfish cat that leaped into the water to save its drowning master.

A goldfish that really looked as if it wanted privacy.

Anyone who honestly felt his life began at 40.

Anyone who gave a blood transfusion without the feeling he was an unused hero.

Anyone who never had a sick day in his life.

A circus elephant that was afraid of a mouse.

A wife who really enjoyed doing the dishes.

A candidate who means it from the heart when he says, "I don't care who you vote for, as long as you vote."

A big spender who steps up to the bar and announces, "Drinks for the house — on me."

A woman who would admit she had a normal size foot that could be fitted with a normal size shoe.

Anyone besides Lucy Monroe who could sing all the stanzas of "The Star Spangled Banner" without resorting to humming.

A Boy Scout who ever helped an old man across the street.

A Madison Ave. executive who really says things like, "Let's follow it up the trail a while and see what it eats."

A newspaperman who wore his hat on the back of his head — or cussed out his city editor to his face.

A private detective who leaped into a cab and shouted to the driver, "Follow that car—there's a five-spot in it for you if you don't lose him."

A doctor who, after losing a patient in surgery, said, "Well, you can't win 'em all."

A columnist who would admit his job was easier than working for a living.

Not Too Much To Do

By DON SCHLIENZ

Brace yourself: the month of May marks the formal opening of a long range educational program to "Keep North Carolina Beautiful."

And, if this thought has been overlooked: the State Highway Patrol is also stressing an anti-litterbug education drive with North Carolina's anti-litter law (which provides fines up to $50 for litterbugging) to back them up.

It does seem a little odd that litterbugs have the main target of this educational deal because from childhood people are driven into an attitude of neatness.

The old refrain "pick up your toys" and "pick up your clothes" and "pick up your books" starts early.

From there, it advances to such things as "don't leave that paper out in the yard" and "take the grass" and a host of other "pick up this and that's". You'd think that with so much cultivation the habit of picking up and cleaning up would grow . . . and you'd think wrong.

Anyway, the State is making it easier for John and Jane Doe to avoid scattering trash over scenic vistas and along the roadways. Hundreds of new roadside containers have been installed by the Highway Department; and business firms and organizations are making litterbags available to motorists.

And scores of cities are pushing clean-up and beautification campaigns. From Manteo (which has a new town ordinance against throwing trash on its streets) westward to Asheville, there are campaigns now going on.

The operation is anything but haphazard. "Keep North Carolina Beautiful" even maintains a Post Office box in Raleigh (No. 2719) from whence applicants can receive project guides and listings of dealers from whom litterbags can be purchased in quantity.

None of this beautification effort came about overnight, but it'll take a lot of promoting to reach the people who can do it the most good. And it isn't something that can be accomplished by one big splash, but rather by reminders that are not so infrequent as to be lost nor reminders so frequent as to be obnoxious.

"Make North Carolina the most beautiful State in the Nation" urges Governor Hodges.

Well, we don't really have far to go nor a great deal to do . . . mostly it's just a case of doing it.

A MIRACLE RELIGION

What is a miracle? People have a wide variety of opinions on this subject. Many say that a miracle defies explanation. Others claim that a miracle is simply the working of natural laws in combinations other than those we are used to, or perhaps, the working of natural laws we may not yet have discovered.

The Bible seems to indicate that a miracle is definitely tied up with spiritual powers, quite different from those powers we call natural, or physical. These spiritual forces operate in a realm both beyond our sight and beyond our ken. In other words, there is a vast order of reality which we designate by the term "spiritual," and this order operates at intense activity all about us, although we are not aware of what is going on. But once in a while, at the command of God (who, the Bible tells us, is Himself a Spirit), this unseen spiritual world, with its powers, quite unlike the physical powers with which we are familiar, is brought to bear upon an earthly situation. Perhaps this power is brought to bear on a sick body, or upon a deranged mind. Thereupon the sick and imperfect situation of this world, being touched by the perfection of the spiritual world, is restored to normal.

No matter how we explain miracles, they have occurred throughout history and are occurring today. Christianity is a miracle religion.

2. A deficit automatically results in recovery and inflation. "Commonly overlooked is the fact that a deficit may have no immediate effect of this kind and may only result in additional stimulation and inflation when such effects are no longer wanted."

3. A limited government stimulus — say, a spending program or tax cut of $5 billion — will result in a new upswing. "Actually, $5 billion is just $5 billion. A public works program of that amount serves as a substitute for approximately the same amount of private construction; if anything, the secondary and subsequent effects will be less because it cannot be regarded as a component of long-term growth. An equivalent tax cut would be bound to produce an even smaller offset, since not all the funds left with the tax payers would be spent. Neither of these actions could compensate for the projected $7 billion decline in business capital outlays."

CRITICIZES OLD CLICHE

4. The economy behaves like an inefficient old pump. "If the pump is primed with a little water, it becomes operative, suggesting that a temporary stimulus will turn the economy up. This analogy is entirely inappropriate. The forces that move the economy do not become inefficient during a decline. Business is making its usual vigorous response . . . and activity will not come back up again until the underlying difficulties are corrected."

5. Maintaining the over-all level of purchasing power in the hands of the public will solve the problem. "This fallacious view persists despite an economic commonplace which emphasizes the importance of the gap between purchasing power and purchases; current receipts may be hoarded in various ways, for example, by being used for debt reduction. But even if income and purchases could be held stable at a high level, the result would not be stability in business investment at a high level. The latter requires growth in demand, not mere stability."

Dr. Bassie adds that these facts do not mean that the government should not attempt to cure the recession, even incurring substantial deficits if necessary. But merely to attempt unrestricted compensatory action, he holds, would endanger the system with another kind of instability.

"It is in approaching the peak of prosperity that control must eventually be established," he writes. "After all forms of private investment have progressed far beyond the needs of growth, it is too late."

The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that diesel fuel sold for use as a weed killer is not subject to the retailers tax on special fuels.

At the same time, it held that gasoline used in the planting, cultivation, caring for and cutting of trees, where such operations are not incidental to farming, is not considered to be gasoline used "on a farm for farming purposes."

AYDEN — On Sunday, The Rev. Walter B. Nobles of Winterville celebrated his 92nd birthday when his family honored him with a picnic dinner which was served in the Winterville Community Building.

A son, W. Herman Nobles, paid a tribute to his father and welcomed the guests after which The Rev. R. B. Crawford, Free Will Baptist minister of Greenville, gave the invocation.

The honor guest, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Nobles, became a licensed minister of the Free Will Baptist Church at the age of 27 and was ordained into the ministry at 35. At present he is pastoring the Saint Delight Church in Greene County.

The Rev. Nobles was made a Master Mason in the Ayden Masonic Lodge No. 498 in 1901, and is now a member of the Greenville Lodge No. 284 where he was recently honored.

He has four children, Mrs. E. C. Hines, Sr., and Miss Bessie Nobles of Winterville, H. Herman Nobles and R. B. Nobles of Greenville, 22 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren and 4 great-great-grandchildren.

Feed Child With Persuasion

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor Children are funny, just like grown-ups. They have definite likes and dislikes, and we be to any mother who tries to force or who over-urges at mealtimes.

When you want to feed your child a new food, it's much better to use gentle persuasion than to do battle. Introduce an unfamiliar food a teaspoon at a time if you want your child to enjoy the new acquaintance. You can gradually feed more of the food until a reasonable amount of it is welcomed.

Remember there are ways of getting around preschoolers' food dislikes. When an egg is rejected

"as is," egg-enriched soup, custard or eggnog may be enjoyed. Temperature is important in serving food. Most young children do not like food that is cold or hot; they prefer a midway temperature. When you first introduce solid foods to your baby, have the temperature close to the one he enjoys in liquid foods.

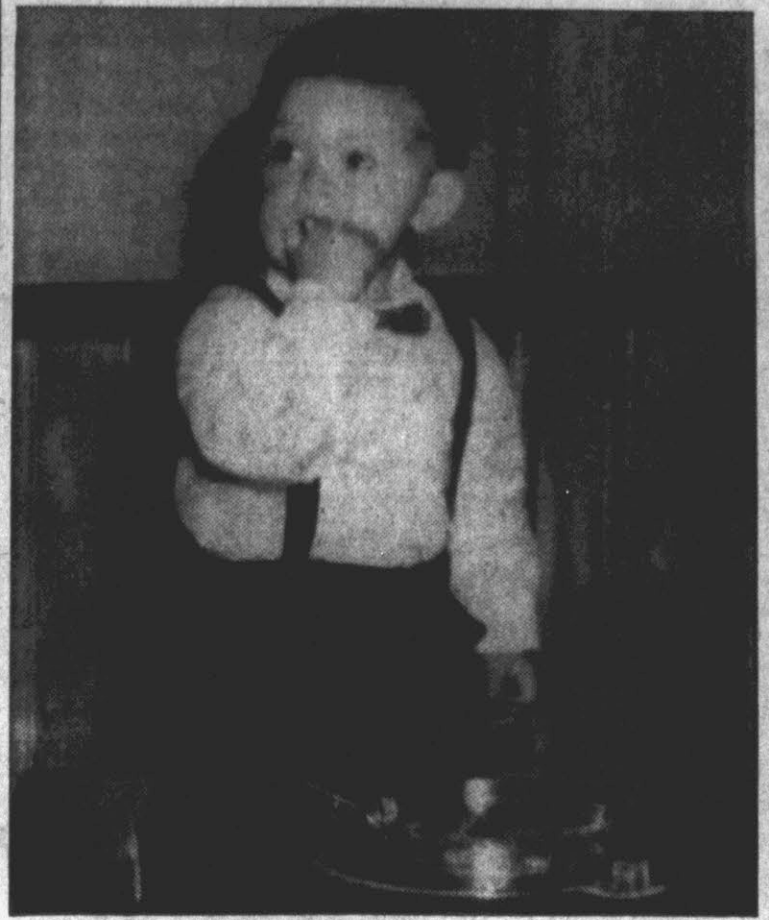

Children also like the familiar when it comes to eating utensils and seating arrangements. A little girl may acquire a real affection for a bowl, spoon, plate or cup. If she does, don't try to change the accessory of which she's grown fond until she's ready to give it up. When a child is old enough to eat at the family table, he'll usually cling to a particular seating place.

Children differ in their ways of eating. Some of them like portions of food in distinct places on their plate; others welcome a jumble of foods. My nephew, when he was small, adored chopped beets mashed with cream cheese. We never could see the charms of this particular combination, but he and a small girl friend ate it delightedly and endlessly. Many of the new strained baby and junior foods combine meat, vegetables and cereal.

Once upon a time doctors who realized the value of high-protein foods, used to advise mothers to scrape beef and liver to serve to their children. Nowadays ready-prepared meats for babies are widely available. Introduce them when your doctor advises you to do so. New cereals for babies also have high protein content; one of these—derived from oats, wheat, soy beans and yeast—has both valuable protein and pleasant flavor.

And one last tip. Guide your child, when you can, to a quiet play activity just before meals. He'll benefit from this—and so will you!

GROWN-UP IN MINIATURE—Like grown-ups, Frank Landing Jr. has definite likes and dislikes. But he loves to eat—especially with his own special bowl and spoon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Landing of Warren Street. (Reflector Photo by Anne Singleton)

Mrs. Milton V. Clarke, 1101 Colonial Avenue, won the prize for the youngest mother present. Charles Hudson, 123 N. Eastern St., was the youngest father present.

Oldest mother present was Mrs. J. D. Swain, 212 W. Fifth St. Oldest father was Mr. J. O. Baker, 102 Contentnea St.

N.C. Finds Holes In Fallout Defense

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina needs to lighten its defenses against the deadly radioactive fall out which would accompany nuclear bombings.

This was the big lesson learned from a mock enemy attack staged to test Civil Defense forces, Gen. Edward F. Griffin reported last night.

Griffin, state Civil Defense director, said the exercises demonstrated that North Carolina "could be self-sustaining with food, clothing and lodging until outside help could be secured" in the event bombs fell on Tar Heel cities.

However, the test pointed out sharply the need for adequate shelters to protect against fallout, and the necessity for "much more radiological detective equipment and thousands of citizens trained to use it," he added.

Other needs revealed by the massive test exercises were supplies of whole blood units stored at strategic points and increased stocks of medical supplies, Griffin said.

The two-day test, part of nationwide "Operation Alert 1958," ended last night. Griffin praised the cooperation of local Civil Defense units and state departments and federal agencies. Nearly 300 radio amateur operators contributed their full time services to the test, he added.

The Durham area, Greensboro-High Point, Winston-Salem and Charlotte supposedly were hit by nuclear bombs during the exercise. State Civil Defense headquarters said actual raids of this magnitude would have left an estimated 30,492 dead, 636,000 persons displaced, 76,035 injured by the direct hits, and another 231,000 injured by radioactive fallout.

Need Substitute For Frog Jump

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—They stared intently at the frog. The frog, its bulging lids half lowered, looked sleepy and unconcerned.

"No question about it," said Dr. Dante L. Alvasio yesterday. "That frog is pregnant."

This was anything but good news to Eror W. Lander, former Swedish army corporal. He brought the frog—Roll—all the way from Stockholm to this onetime gold rush mining camp 110 miles east of San Francisco. Roll is Sweden's entry in the international frog jump here May 15-18.

"What can we do?" Lander asked anxiously.

"Well, in this delicate condition there isn't much we can do," said Dr. Alvasio, medical officer of the Calaveras County Fair. "We could induce ovulation with an injection from the pituitary gland of another frog."

Ovulation means laying eggs. A frog can lay about 5,000.

"But would it be in time?"

"It would take about a week. As it is, we can't with certainty predict just when this frog will ovulate—maybe before the jump, maybe after."

So Lander went to Turlock, Calif., in the San Joaquin Valley to seek a possible substitute for Roll. Qualifying jumps in the 32nd Jumping Frog Jubilee begin a week from today—and Roll may be happily laying her eggs then.

Lander, a former member of the United Nations force that controlled the Gaza Strip in the Middle East, is seeking help from Frank McNeff of Turlock, an Irish Swede and frog fancier.

Meanwhile, Dr. Alvasio prescribed mild exercise and a diet of hamburger, cooked brown, for the expectant Roll.

The international jubilee is held annually to commemorate Mark Twain's famous story, "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County." His story concerned two slickers from New York's Bowery who fed buckshot to the champion jumping frog of Angels Camp—and how they cleaned out the town's bewhiskered gamblers.

Lander's frog seems to have an equally weighty problem.

Tammany Hall Chiefs Ready To Drop Rep. Powell From Ticket

NEW YORK (AP)—Tammany Hall district leaders in Harlem are about ready to drop Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. from the Democratic ticket this year.

But the Negro congressman declares, "I am definitely in the race to the finish."

Powell, seeking his eighth two-year term in congress, added that he had been aware of the efforts to dump him.

Six of the seven Democratic leaders in Powell's congressional district are reported to have agreed on giving him the skids.

The leaders scheduled a meeting today with Carmine G. DeSapio, leader of Tammany Hall, the Manhattan Democratic organization. The purpose was to pick a candidate to oppose Powell in the party's Aug. 12 primary election.

Many Democratic leaders have been gunning for Powell since he actively supported President Eisenhower in the 1956 campaign because of the segregation issue.

Manhattan Borough President Hulan E. Jack, a Negro and one of the Tammany Hall district leaders involved in Powell's political future, told newsmen last night that he is not in favor of renominating Powell.

Jack, whose post is the highest in the city ever held by a Negro, said: "Mr. Powell's behavior has not been in the best interests of the Democratic party."

At the time Powell threw his support to Eisenhower in 1956, his federal income tax returns were under investigation by a U. S. grand jury here. The investigation also included allegations of salary kickbacks by members of his Washington staff. Two of his congressional aides were convicted in 1956 of income tax evasion.

A few months after the 1956 election, government attorneys in the case stopped calling witnesses before the grand jury. This situation lasted for 14 months.

In recent weeks there were published reports that Washington pressure caused the investigation to be dropped. There also were reports that the grand jury was threatening to "run away" and retain its own counsel. The investigation suddenly was resumed.

U. S. Atty. Paul W. Phillips, who is in charge of the case, said the government had been handling it in a normal manner. He also denied any pressure from Washington to drop it.

Buried Alive By Cave-In; Lives

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A sewer wall caved in on Hank Washington yesterday and buried him under four feet of dirt. Rescuers dug him out unharmed 20 minutes later.

The husky, 45-year-old Negro was rushed to a hospital but released after an examination. A hospital spokesman said he suffered no injuries whatsoever.

Washington was attempting to shore up the 19-foot-deep cut when one of its walls toppled over on him.

"I jumped back when I heard the cave...It caught me and I tried to give myself protection.

"All I could do was make an airpocket for me—I held my hand up in front of my face and my knee up and one hand was over my nostrils," he said.

The 6-1, 200-pound Washington said he never lost consciousness. But he added: "It was 40 years to me. I could hear them digging. I could hear them talking and that made me feel good.

"I always breathed. I know I believe in God, because that's the only thing that saved me. God had them working."

Washington later dashed out to buy box seats and take his rescuers to a baseball game here tonight.

Police Holding Boy With Dream

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who said he dreamed police chased and killed him surrendered to officers yesterday.

State Patrolman Floyd McKinzie said the youth walked into the station. "Where can I give myself up?" he asked, and blurted out the story of his dream last night.

McKinzie said the youth identified himself as John Finis Conard of Terre Haute, Ind., and said he was a parole violator. He was held for investigation at Sebastian County Jail.

Reporter Plays Hobo 3 Hours To Learn Generosity Is Still With Us

By BILL WILLIAMS
Gastonia Gazette Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press
GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — For three hours, I was a hobo.

I wore ragged clothes and a two-day beard. A soiled, unblocked hat rode heavily on my ears.

I wanted the answer to a question: Are humans still human? I found the answer and much more.

In this day, when the horn of plenty is still full for most of us, seldom do we see a hobo come walking down the street, stop and look warily at a house, then enter the yard to knock on the door and ask for food. That belonged to the depression, when a constant stream of wayfarers filed past the back door for handouts of bread or any other sustenance of life.

The day is gone — except for a few unfortunate stragglers.

I park my car around the corner and walk back up the road. Dogs look at me warily and bare their teeth. My coat is too large and my pants too small. The hat releases atop by head like a balloon filled with water. My beard and my unkempt appearance are accented by dirt smeared across my face. My glasses are in my pocket.

This is a new experience, and a qualm runs through my system as I walk slowly up the first sidewalk. It is a large, brick house, and the layers of dark shrubs leave me with the feeling that eyes are watching as I walk.

The doorbell rings inside, and immediately my feet feel the vibration of someone walking, and

I never hear them until they open the door and they look out with an expression as if to say, "Well, what in the world do you want?"

It's the maid of the house and I tell her I'm just passing through town and would she kindly give me something to eat. She tries to brush me off by saying they don't have a thing but I follow immediately with a sad note asking for a piece of bread or some crackers or anything. That's the key, and she says to wait a minute. She'll see what she can do. Four minutes later, she returns with a ham sandwich and a lot of crackers. I take them and bless her for her kindness, and in a minute I am gone.

The next stop was a mile away and, like the rest, this house was selected with no forethought. I simply parked my car where a hill, a corner, or a curve provided a blind, walked back up the road, and knocked on a door until I found someone at home. I worked my way back until food was in my hands. Then, I went back to the car and moved on to another location.

The second house brought the same response as the first: nothing in the house, sorry. It also brought the bread-and-crackers spiel from me and this time a quarter from the mistress of the house. I sacked the quarter, gave the woman a sad eye, and went on my way.

It was at the next house where a touch of benevolence squeezed my heart and made it weep.

The knock on the door brought an old man in overalls and a hat that might have been a relative of mine. The man had kind eyes, and questioning look and I thought "The Lord was in no hurry when he stirred kindness into this man."

When he heard my tale, he asked if I'd like to come in. I told him no, that I'd just take a piece of bread or a cracker and be on my way. What he brought back was not only an abundance of food but a portion of love as well.

"We're just settin' down to dinner," he said, "you better come on in and eat with us."

Again, I refused and accepted the big cup of steaming black coffee that he offered. In his other hand was a paper bag full of food. I told him I'd just sit down on the steps and eat. He said that would be all right.

The coffee was delicious. The sweet potatoes were still warm. The pound cake was excellent. The biscuits were fine. I finished off what I could, drank the coffee, and set the cup on the porch. I began to see why hoboes are hoboes.

I knocked on more than two dozen doors. More than a dozen opened to me. I figured that the other houses were empty.

One lady came to the door and appeared to be shocked at first. When I told her I was hungry, she thought for a moment and then said, "Come around to the back door."

I waited only a short while before she returned with two sandwiches of livermush, cookies, marshmallows, and candy wrapped in a napkin.

Of course, I couldn't eat half the food I was getting, so I stored it in the car and made room for more. Frankly, though, I ate some thing from every offering, and was grateful for it.

The next house was less fruitful. The lady told me that she hadn't a thing in the house but that her neighbor next door was preparing a hot lunch and she'd be glad to feed me.

I left her and went immediately next door, but you can imagine my surprise when I found that she never cooked lunch and, in fact, had nothing in the house. I thought then that I'd run to the car and get something for these two good neighbors, but a sneaky dog that stayed just around the corner (with only his eyes peering out, a ligator fashion) shot that idea in the head.

There were other houses and other stories. One woman was sick and hadn't had anything to eat all day. One man said his wife was away but, upon hearing my bread-and-crackers plea, told me to wait a moment and soon returned with a thick slab of livermush between two pieces of bread, a banana, cookies, large piece of fruit cake, bread, and a soft drink. I drank, ate some of the fruit cake, and began to wonder about indignation.

At this point, I feel I should apologize to one very kind lady who offered me food. Trying to provoke all types of reaction, I resorted to falsehood. I told one woman that I thought her livermush sandwich was spoiled and that I really couldn't eat it. I handed it to her and walked away. The look on her face was really heartbreaking when she said that she was sure it was not spoiled, and, in fact, was very good when she ate it at lunch. I, too, thought the sandwich good, although I must admit that it didn't taste as good as some of those other sandwiches I had eaten an hour or so before.

After several other visits and much more food (including three other livermush sandwiches), I was weary of the game and tired of carrying so much food in my own personal breadbasket. I moved the uneaten food (two large bagfuls) into one corner of the front seat of the car and headed home.

There was enough food for a small picnic, and I am sure that the two fellows walking the railroad tracks near Trenton Street, to whom I gave it, had a wonderful time selecting the best.

I went on home from there and, after much persuasion, finally humored my dog into allowing me passage through my own front door.

After the experiment, I have come to these conclusions:

(1) Humans are pretty darn human after all.

(2) A fellow's knuckles get mighty sore after so much knocking.

(3) The people of Gastonia eat a heckuva lot of livermush.

Police Pick Up Horseless Zorro

CHICAGO (AP)—He was wearing a mask and a sombrero and running down State Street near the Loop last night, pausing briefly to take a quick look in every doorway.

Naturally, police driving along in two patrol wagons halted and investigated.

"Where do you think you're going?" asked Patrolmen John Doyle and Leo Stanko.

"I'm looking for my black horse," was the reply from the fellow in the mask.

Stanko turned to Doyle and said: "This mysterious fellow's obviously just in from the West, and we'd better take him to the station for questioning."

At nearby Central Station, the captured one identified himself only as Zorro, a television character whose sombrero and mask are among his traditions. The cops didn't believe him. They knew he was only 4.

"My daddy promised me a black horse and I went out to look for him," the boy said as police sought to learn his identity.

An hour later, police cracked the case. Eugene Bezroukoff, a salesman, came to the station with his wife and three other sons, 7 to 1 years old, to reclaim his 4-year-old son Ronald.

Bezroukoff explained: He was visiting a friend in a Loop novelty shop when Ronald put on the Zorro hat and mask and ran out into the street. He ran after him but Ronald disappeared in the crowd.

As the family left the station, Doyle slipped Ronald a quarter and told him: "Here, sonny, you can start saving for that horse."

"I'll get him yet," cried Ronald, galloping into the street.

Find It Difficult To Shatter Krupp

ESSEN, Germany (AP)—The Western Allies who once charted the breakup of the vast Krupp empire are finding the 147-year-old dynasty as durable as the steel it produces.

Smashed to near ruin by Allied bombers in World War II, and postwar dismantling for reparations, the house of Krupp rose from the rubble to employ some 90,000 workers and do a business of nearly 800 million dollars a year.

Now the Western Big Three, pressed by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, have agreed to re-examine their trust-busting plans for Krupp and other German industrial barons.

Head of this huge iron, coal and steel complex in the heart of the Ruhr is quiet, reserved 50-year-old Alfried Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, great-great-grandson of the company's founder.

Valued as a war criminal in 1945, Krupp was released seven years ago and returned to his 200-room properties. Krupp experts question the legality of the agreement.

To complete his comeback, Krupp plans to take over Bouchemer Verein, big Ruhr company which makes the steel castings he has lacked since wartime bombers flattened one third of his plants.

Purchase of Bochumer would make Krupp once again owner of steel-making facilities extending from mine to finished product. It would restore the heart and balance of the Krupp empire.

Pop Filled In At The Baby Shower

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Mrs. Glen Curry decided to go ahead with the baby shower for Mr. Charles Heinen even though the stork arrived a day before the time set for the party.

Standing in for the guest of honor or was the father, who kept the women amused trying on the presents. "I had already ordered my cakes and ice cream and my friends told me I was silly not to go ahead with the shower," Mrs. Curry explained. The party was a complete success.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

When nervous, knuckle-cracking Barclay Fisher materializes in the private detective agency of Cool & Lam, the agency's partners experience widely divergent sensations. Bertha Cool sees money ahead; Donald Lam, trouble. They're both right.

Fisher, a devoted family man, fears he was indiscreet at a business convention in San Francisco. The reason he doesn't know for sure is that there was so much champagne. Fisher had reached the state of blissful unremembering. Next morning, he woke up in a strange apartment (presumably that of Miss Lois Marlow) and went home with a nagging conscience.

It was two weeks after the incident that Fisher brought Cool & Lam an ominous letter indicative of blackmail. It was sent by a man named George Cadott. Fisher is fearful of his wife Minerva's finding out more than he himself knows about his blackout.

Donald Lam is telling the story . . .

CHAPTER 3

"How old's your child?" I asked Barclay Fisher.

"Eighteen months."

"How long have you been married?"

"Just a little over a year."

"Whoa! Back up," I said. "Are you getting your dates mixed, or is my calendar wrong?"

"No, Mr. Lam," he said. "It's a long story. You see, the child is the child of Minerva's half-sister. Minerva took it to raise. That's one of the things that is so wonderful about Minerva. She's always doing things to help people. Her half-sister's husband died before the baby was born. Then shortly after the baby was born, the half-sister knew she didn't have long to live. She wrote Minerva. Minerva did everything. Then, when the half-sister died, Minerva went back to Arizona, buried her, and brought the child back with her."

"This was before your marriage?"

"About two months after we were married."

"All right," I said. "Suppose the worst comes to the worst. Suppose Minerva sues for divorce. How's the property? Separate or community?"

"I . . . I have to see a lawyer. I am investing my wife's money. That is, she pays me a salary and a percentage of the profits, but the money came from her half-sister's estate."

"It seems that the half-sister had some investments and among them were some Texas oil property. The wells came in just before the half-sister's death. Minerva turned everything into cash. She realized thirty thousand dollars. She turned it over to me for investment. At the time she did so, I was overextended financially. Since that time everything has skyrocketed in value. My own investments have done well, and Minerva's money is over two hundred and fifty thousand dollars now."

"After taxes?"

"Well, no. But it will be on a capital gains basis, most of it. I invested in some uranium claims and they proved to be very rich."

"How much salary does your wife pay you?"

"It has, of course, gone up as the value of her holdings has increased. I now get ten thousand dollars a year and ten per cent of the profits."

"When do you get the 10 per cent?"

"We haven't discussed that point. It was simply fixed at 10 per cent of the profits; that is, whenever we realized the profits. You understand, much of this right now is a paper profit."

I said, "I'll have to go to San Francisco. I'll try and beat them to the punch. I don't know what I'm going to get into. I may need money. I'll need police co-operation."

"No publicity! No publicity!" he said. "Remember, I can't afford the slightest publicity. Not even the faintest breath of scandal. Minerva must never know."

I said, "It's going to cost you money and I guarantee nothing."

"How much money?" he asked.

I said, "If I get this thing cleaned up so it isn't going to bother you any more, it's going to make a big nick in your salary. I may have to buy a little co-operation."

"That's quite all right, Mr. Lam. That's quite all right! — Don't you think you should both go? In dealing with a woman . . . well, Mrs. Cool—"

Bertha shook her head emphatically, said, "Don't underestimate Donald. He's pint-size, but he's brainy and he knows his way around. If anybody can get you out of this, he's the one who can do it. It's like he told you, it's going to cost money."

"I expected that," Fisher said. Bertha looked at me and nodded, all smiles. "I'll make out the receipt, Donald. You'd better start getting your plane reservations to San Francisco."

My friend in the Motor Vehicle department took my long-distance call and promised to have the information for me by the time I arrived in San Francisco. I called him from the airport and learned that Lois Marlow had an operator's license, that she was twenty-seven years old, and that she was living at the Wisteria Apartments.

The Wisteria Apartments was a typical San Francisco apartment house, five stories high, with a narrow front, a locked street door with a directory, punch buttons, and speaking tubes on the side.

I found Lois Marlow in 329, pressed the button, and waited.

A moment later the buzzer announced that the catch on the street door was being thrown back and I was free to come in.

Apparently Lois was democratic. She didn't ask for names. You pressed her bell, she pressed the door buzzer.

A fifteen-watt globe furnished inadequate illumination for the inside of an elevator which had been recently redecorated with red plush and gilt paint. I pressed a button for the third floor. The elevator mechanism slowly closed the door, then the cage started rattling upward.

At the third floor, I disembarked and found 329. I pressed a mother-of-pearl button to the right of the door.

The woman who opened the door was remarkably easy on the eyes and knew it. She was blonde, with that smooth complexion which is so characteristic of women who live in San Francisco. She had large, direct, gray eyes and she stood in the doorway looking me up one side and down the other, trying to place me.

"Do I know you?" she asked with a smile that showed two dimples.

"You do now," I told her. "I'm afraid you've got the wrong apartment, the wrong apartment house, the wrong party, and the wrong idea," she said, but she kept the door open and the dimples still showed.

"May I come in and explain my business?" I asked.

"No," she said, and kept smiling.

"All right," I told her. "I'll explain it standing here in the hall. My name's Donald Lam. I'm a friend of Mr. Fisher. Does that mean anything to you?"

"Not a thing."

"Barclay Fisher?"

"She shook her head.

"Do you remember the motorboat convention, outboard motors

"Oh, wait a minute," she said. "What did you say his name was?"

"Fisher. Barclay Fisher."

There was a slight reminiscent softening of the eyes. "And what about Barclay Fisher?"

"Do you," I asked, "know a man named George Cadott?"

"Oh, no! Wait!" she cried.

She stood to one side and held the door open.

Cocktail Party Gains Converts

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — That great American folk custom, the cocktail party, is gaining converts in Europe.

In West Germany, the missionary work has been done largely by the American diplomats and military men.

They had social obligations and frequently discharged them by inviting German officials and others to massive cocktail parties.

Some Germans liked the idea and tried it on friends.

Examining the custom, the Munich newspaper Merkur said: "The cocktail party has become a world fashion simply because it has proved to be a sure fire way of getting the Anglo-Saxon rulers of the world to talk."

The Merkur then gave a brief rundown on how to act at a cocktail party: "It is impossible to arrive too late at a cocktail party. The guests who are most respected are those who arrive when at least half of the other guests have already left."

Rene Pleven Lines Up Cabinet And Straddles Algerian Issue

By GODFREY ANDERSON
PARIS (AP) — Rene Pleven completed his slate for a new French Cabinet today with a delicate political balancing act on France's most delicate problem — the war in Algeria.

The 57-year-old moderate politician, who has served as premier twice before, will ask the National Assembly tomorrow to approve his right-of-center slate as France's 25th postwar governing cabinet.

Sixteen hours of painful parliamentary horse-trading went into the list of ministers. The main battle raged a round Pleven's choice for minister of defense, who directs the Algerian war.

Pleven finally settled on Andre Morice, leader of a rightist splinter group who has been demanding a tougher fight against the Algerian rebels.

When Morice served as defense minister in the Bourges-Maunoury Cabinet last summer, he inaugurated a policy of "hot pursuit" of the rebels, even into neighboring Tunisia. In line with this, French planes bombed a Tunisian border village in February and touched off a series of diplomatic events which led to the fall of Felix Gaillard's Cabinet April 16.

Morice's appointment is a concession to the conservatives who tossed out Gaillard. But it may face trouble from liberal groups in Parliament who are urging a more conciliatory tone toward the rebels.

To replace Socialist Robert Lacoste, resident minister for Algeria for more than two years, Pleven named another conservative, Andre Mutter. Mutter was expected to continue Lacoste's policy of vigorous prosecution of the war coupled with slight and gradual political reforms. Lacoste had to drop out because the Socialists boycotted Cabinet participation although they will vote to install Pleven.

Pleven will be his own foreign minister.

Wayward Money Finally Returned

CLINTON, Okla. (AP) — W.B. Burks lost a money sack containing $21.90 but he got it back after it was passed around for a while.

Mrs. A. D. Barton found the sack on the street and turned it over to Harry Sullivan, parking meter attendant. He gave it to Police Chief Garland Hanks, who took it to the newspaper office to ask that a story be printed about the money.

Before the story could get into print, Burks reported the loss to the police and he got his money back.

Queen Matilda of Flanders, the wife of William the Conqueror, spent most of her time weaving tapestry. One of her celebrated tapestries is now displayed in the Cathedral of Bayeaux.

Few Churchmen Oppose Reaching Into Space

By GEORGE CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

... And God said unto them: replenish the earth and subdue it; and have dominion...

He Held A Gun; They All Jumped

PITTSBURG, Calif. (AP)—The outgoing patients of Community Hospital were waiting in the lobby to depart.

In burst Virdo E. Franklin, 55, with a wild look in his eye and a gun in his hand.

"Jump," he commanded. And the people jumped. Some out of windows, some behind doors, some under counters. Some jumped to attention as commanded.

Franklin held up a sign painted in red, white and blue. It said "Murdered my wife. They stole her heart and two backbone joints."

Mrs. Myrna McClure stuck by her switchboard. Mrs. Anne Chase, a receptionist, slid down behind the counter and whispered to the switchboard operator for a line.

She called police. Chief Sal P. Jimmo and three officers arrived in a flash. They faced Franklin's gun.

The chief talked for 45 minutes in the face of the pistol. Franklin finally agreed to put up his gun if the chief would call Gov. Goodwin Knight in Sacramento and get back his wife's heart and backbone joints.

They put Franklin in psychiatric ward of the County Seat Hospital at Martinez. His wife died March 26 of bronchial pneumonia.

over every living thing that moveth on the earth."

These words, the original assignment given to humanity in Genesis 1:28, didn't include outer space in man's province of rule. But now he's reaching into that sector. Is he overstepping his bounds?

Not in any geographical sense, said the Very Rev. Msgr. Charles Walsh, of the Roman Catholic Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. "The Book of Genesis is not that literalistic."

This seems to be the general religious view, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, although there is some opinion to the contrary.

Unlike bygone ages when new scientific strides sometimes stirred church protests, no such wide repercussions have come from space flight projects.

However, some biblical experts do question it on ethical grounds—or from direct Scripture as set forth in Genesis.

"We have been given the right to master the forces of the earth," said Dr. Abraham Heschel, one of Judaism's foremost scholars. "We were not given the right to master the forces of other planets."

He voiced doubt that space navigation might reflect an "expansion of that right bestowed by God on this generation," adding: "To judge from the way men have used their power over the earth, one doubts whether this generation has even proved worthy of possessing the right to exploit the earth."

Most religious leaders, however, have raised no theological objections to space exploration so far as physical boundaries are concerned.

The Rev. Dr. Robert Brown, of the interdenominational Union of Theological Seminaries, noted that while the Genesis verse does not specifically include space in man's realm of activity, it also does not exclude it.

"Only if you draw a negative implication from a positive command do you get into any difficulty," he said. "And if you did that all the way through the Bible, you'd rule out a big part of the 20th century."

Both he and Msgr. Walsh suggested the term "earth," in the Old Testament setting, referred to the whole created order.

"The Book of Genesis was written back at the dawn of history to convey a supernatural truth in terms people could understand," Msgr. Walsh said. "It must be interpreted in the context of the time and place in which it was written."

Some theologians, however, question the ethical basis for man's leap into space, and the motives.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Terrien, a noted Old Testament scholar, said that in a sense the step is a "manifestation of man's craving for unlimited power, for self-sufficiency in the universe, to be like God."

That, he noted, was the mistake of Adam.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel Day Williams, a Protestant theologian at Union, said there was an ethical "question of how much of our resources should be used for space exploration when there are so many hungry people in the world."

"The danger is that fascination with space technology will drain off more resources than it should until human society is in better shape. It's so incredibly expensive. It could involve a new kind of exploitation."

In certain ways, however, some religious leaders believe space exploration may even kindle greater faith.

Said Dr. Robert Gordis, of Jewish Theological Seminary: "If the ancients saw God's glory pervading the earth, how much greater should be man's reverence when horizons wider than ever dreamed he sees God's manifestations on in the past."

Change In Spending Habits Has Businessmen Worried

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The change in the spending habits of a lot of Americans has many businessmen worried today. Their worry is backed up in many instances by a drop in sales and in profits.

A swing one way or the other in spending and saving habits is nothing new. They doubtless will change again. But several new factors have entered the scene and only some of them can be laid to the recession itself.

Most of them don't involve any lack of confidence in the nation's economy at all.

Government figures show that Americans are still spending heavily. Consumer outlay for consumption in the early months of this year is put at an annual rate of 281 billion dollars and that is more than four billion dollars higher than in the like 1957 period.

Latest figures of the Securities and Exchange Commission are for the year 1957, showing that Americans socked away in one form or another almost 16 1/2 billion dollars, the highest amount for any year since World War II. Their total holdings less debt gives them a net equity of a record 141 1/2 billion dollars.

Various forms of savings—bank accounts, savings and loan associations, insurance sales—indicate that savings are still mounting.

But the SEC includes as savings the payment of debt. The figures show that for some time now Americans have been paying off old debts at a greater rate than they have been taking on new ones. Since debt items usually cover such big things as homes, autos and household appliances, the industries supplying these are among those hurt most by the slump.

The many service industries, and most of the soft goods industries, are doing as well as ever. Some expect to do even better this year.

Item: Travel. Advance sales and bookings indicate more Americans than ever are going to Europe this year. Item: Utilities. Power running the household gadget.

gets is flowing at a rate to give most companies higher sales. Item: Cameras. Sales of these and other things that strike the American fancy, like phonograph records, are higher this year.

Item: Food. Grocers report there's no letup in the purchases of the choicest meat cuts and the convenience foods, prepared or packaged.

Some of the savings are being earmarked for future spending and not for scare hoarding at all. Many Americans increased the size of their families during the 1940s. These children are making their painful way through the schools headed for college.

It could be possible that some persons aren't buying a new car this year because Junior is studying for college entrance exams. And going to college gets steadily more expensive, as family budget makers are well aware.

Others may have gone without some big expenditure on durable goods to make that trip to Europe.

And most persons have higher prices to pay on what they do buy, and many have larger families to feed, clothe, school, and send to the doctor and dentist.

Lack of confidence? More likely other things and more expensive things to spend on—and in an unfortunate number of cases less income to spend.

Lots Of Junk In Beautifying Yard

ENID, Okla. (AP)—Charles Klein of Enid says there's lots of junk around his house, but that doesn't make it a junkyard. For years Klein has been using things other people throw away to "prettify up" his place.

For instance he used beer bottles laid in concrete for a wall enclosing his yard. And broken pieces of china provide designs for his sidewalks. An auto horn and other bits of "trash" will go into the big moose Klein is getting ready to erect in his yard for sight-seeing youngsters in the neighborhood.

Brown Looking For No. 5 Now

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Joe Brown, a thunderous puncher who won't let the other guy do any of it, looked toward the fifth defense of his world's lightweight championship today—but could only intimate who his opponent would be.

Joe, the skinny little guy from Houston, whipped young Ralph Dupas of New Orleans last night. He knocked him down three times in the eighth round to register a technical knockout. He has knocked out three other challengers in 16 months.

Brown predicted he would knock out Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., sooner than he did Dupas. Lane is the logical man to fight Brown next. He and Dupas had to agree to negotiate for a fight with Lane before they could get together here.

Lou Viscusi, manager of Brown, was noncommittal. "I didn't see the fight and haven't talked to Joe. I've been busy counting money. I honestly can't say anything about future plans right now."

The fight—Houston's first world's championship affair—drew an all-time record gate for Texas. An estimated 11,000 fans paid $68,740.

Brown will get over $36,000 while Dupas will receive better than $18,000. The net was $60,614.60, which is added to $30,000 in radio and television receipts.

Brown's defense was a thing of beauty. Dupas landed only one real hard blow all night. Brown never started using his right until the fourth round. From then on he was using his one-two repeatedly and late in the seventh round it was this combination, with the right rocking Dupas like a sledgehammer, that started the 22-year-old New Orleans hopeful on the way out.

The next round Brown was on him all the way. He actually knocked Dupas out the first time he floored him. Dupas was counted out by the counter for the knockdown, but Referee Jimmy Webb stopped at nine and ordered Brown, who had come up to the fallen Dupas, back to his corner. Brown refused and Dupas arose after the 16-count to resume the fight.

It was a forlorn gesture. Brown's striking left hook knocked Dupas down for a seventh count and when Ralph arose unsteadily to his feet, Brown hammered him again. This time he took an eight-count. As he arose Webb hurried across the ring and stopped the fight at 2:21 of the eighth round.

Both weighed 134 pounds. The combination of veteran slugging power, fearless young pitching and a gamble here and there has the Chicago Cubs on top in the National League race.

The Cubs have had heroics aplenty in piling up 12 victories in their first 19 games. One day it's the booming bat of Walt Moryn, the next it's Ernie Banks or Lee Walls or Dale Long or Bobby Thomson.

Rookie pitchers have been coming through in fine fashion. In fact, the Cub ace of 1957—Dick Drott and Moe Drabowsky—have contributed very little.

Glenn Hobbie, a 22-year-old rookie right-hander, and Thomson, the 34-year-old who authored the home run which was heard around the world in 1951 when the Giants defeated Brooklyn in a pennant playoff, jumped into the heroes' circle yesterday in a 4-0 victory over Cincinnati.

Hobbie twirled a four-hitter—the first shutout in his four-year professional career—and Thomson hit a first-inning, three-run homer into a 20 m.p.h. wind.

"I never thought anybody would be able to hit one out in that game," said Manager Bob Schefling. "Most experts give Thomson a lot of credit for Chicago's fast start. It's the first time this club has had a major league center fielder since Andy Pafko," said one coach. "It gives us the strength we need up the middle."

Thomson, pleased about being with the Cubs, thinks the team is not only stronger than last year but will cause trouble all season.

Big Saturday Night Being Planned At Local Stadium

East Carolina College's baseball team is back in Greenville today from their three-day road trip which resulted in three days of rain, rain, rain.

The Bucs—second ranked in the North State Conference—had a pair of games ruined at Appalachian Monday and Tuesday by a minor flood. Over two inches of rain lashed Boone as such a torrential rate that the playing field was washed out and the Appalachian gymnasium had to be evacuated.

Mallory said further, "Right now, though, we'll just have to play them one at a time and hope to get past these two this week. I hope it doesn't rain."

A Big Night Saturday night will be a big one in more than one way. College View Cleaners and Laundry, a local firm, has taken over sponsorship of the Elon night till and has purchased 3,000 tickets to be given away to anyone who asks for them. Fans may pick up the tickets without obligation at any of the College View establishments. They will be on sale at the gate.

Fans from this area are establishing this Saturday night as Jim Mallory Appreciation Night. Coach Mallory and his side Earl Smith will be honored for their contribution to ECC baseball and athletics in this area. Awards will be presented to them just before game time and a sell-out crowd is expected to join in on the show of appreciation. Game time is set for 8:00.

In loop play, the Bucs have had a game with Catawba rained out, along with the three named above.

Lenoir Rhyne With skies still threatening, East Carolina is set to battle Lenoir Rhyne here tomorrow at College Field. Game time is set for 2:30.

It will mark the first time since Mallory has been at ECC that Lenoir Rhyne has scheduled a game with the Bucs. "That means that they're loaded," Mallory has said. The Bears will come to Greenville with a 7-2 record and a hold on third place in the league standings. Elon (9-1) is in first and ECC follows.

Mallory will start Lefty Ben Baker against the Bears. Elon

On Saturday night at Guy Smith Stadium, the Pirates will engage Elon in the top match of the season. It will feature the two top clubs in the league and will probably decide the championship for 1958.

The coach will use Hightlander George Williams on the mound against the Christians and will hold Leonard Lilley and Bruce Shelley in reserve.

Elon defeated ECC earlier in a game at Burlington. It was the Bucs' only defeat of the year in conference action.

Mallory said today that nobody is certain what will be done about the large number of rained-out ball games which have hampered all of the teams in the league. "But, I can tell you this," he said: "If we're in contention for the title—if we can beat Lenoir Rhyne and then Elon Saturday night, we'll play them off sometime. Next week or even the week after that if we have to."

Mallory said further, "Right now, though, we'll just have to play them one at a time and hope to get past these two this week. I hope it doesn't rain."

PITCHING Taylor Phillips, Cubs—Allowed only five hits, blanked Redlegs over last eight while permitting only an infield single after the fifth inning in 5-1 victory.

HITTING

Reno Bertoin, Tigers—hit his first major league grand slam homer for 5-1 victory in first game of two-night doubleheader against Senators and lined an RBI single in 11-4 nightcap defeat.

Stan The Man Is Seven Hits From Magic 3,000

By ED WILKS The Associated Press

Stan (The Man) Musial's magic number is 7. Seven hits and he becomes the eighth major leaguer to total 3,000.

The way he's flying at the moment, batting a cool .529, he should join Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Nap Lajoie, Paul Waner and Cap Anson either Saturday or Sunday while swinging against the Chicago Cubs.

The only question at the moment is: What in the world will the St. Louis Cardinals do when Musial slumps?

They lost their seventh straight, sinking 8½ games behind in the National League basement with a 9-2 licking from the Milwaukee Braves last night. Musial, who has hit in all 17 of the Cards' games this season in a run for his eighth batting crown, drove in both runs and collected three of their five hits off Lew Burdette.

The Braves stayed half a game behind Chicago's ambitious Cubs, who retained first place with a 5-1 victory over Cincinnati. San Francisco moved past Pittsburgh into third by beating the Pirates 8-6. Philadelphia belted Los Angeles 9-3.

Rain restricted American League action to a two-night doubleheader at Washington and the Senators gained a split with Detroit by winning 11-4 after a 5-1 Tiger victory.

The Braves wrapped up a three-game sweep at St. Louis in an explosive six-run first. Bob Hazle was beamed on the first pitch by Larry Jackson after he relieved loser Herin Wehmeier. Hazle, who helped belt the Braves to the 1957 pennant, suffered a concussion.

Henry Aaron drove in three runs and Wes Covington cracked his second homer, with a man on, as Burdette won his third. Lew also had three singles and drove in a run in the Braves' 16-hit fling.

Lefty Taylor Phillips won his first for the Cubs with a five-hitter in his first complete game since Aug. 31, 1956. He gave up the Redleg run in the first on Pete Whisenant's triple and a wild pitch. Brooks Lawrence lost his second.

Bob Friend lost his first in five decisions for the Pirates, giving way in a four-run fourth capped by rookie Bob Schmidt's three-run homer. Al Worthington won his second in relief of Curt Barclay, who gave up successive homers to Bob Skinner, Ted Kluszewski and Frank Thomas in the fifth, tying an often-tied major league record.

Curt Simmons became the first southpaw to beat Los Angeles this season. Carl Furillo homered the Dodger runs across in the third. Stan Lopata's solo homer tied it in the sixth and the Phils then whipped Fred Kipp with three in the seventh. Ted Kazanski's two-run single counted the clincher.

Rose High Is Host To RR Here Tomorrow

Coach Bo Farley's Rose High School baseball team plays host to Roanoke Rapids tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Brookgreen Field.

Merrill Bynum, hefty junior righthander, will get the pitching assignment.

The Phantoms are leading the Northeastern Conference with a 7-1 record.

ACC Tracksters Meet Saturday

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—The fleet of foot and the strong of wind among Atlantic Coast Conference athletes take their turn in the sports spotlight here Friday and Saturday.

The occasion will be the fifth annual ACC track meet, and it will be the farewell appearance one of the brightest track stars of all.

Dave Sime, Duke's champion sprinter from Fair Lawn, N.J., will be entered in the 100 yard dash and the 220. In both events, he holds both conference marks and world records.

The University of Maryland's strong team will be favored to successfully defend its title for the second straight year.

In addition to Sime, individual stars will include Dave Scurlock of North Carolina, a middle distance ace; and Ed Cooke of Maryland and Dave Coates of South Carolina, both ranking top punt artists.

Track experts figure ACC records will be threatened in the 100, 440, 880, two mile, high hurdles, high jump, shot put, pole vault, javelin and mile relay.

Duke officials are hoping for an appearance to match the some 6,000 spectators who turned out in 1956, the last time the event was staged here. At that time, Sime was a sophomore sensation in track circles and a big crowd pleaser.

Four ACC Clubs Playing Today

Four Atlantic Coast Conference baseball squads go to bat today in hopes of heating up a pennant race kept soggy through the week by rain and wet grounds.

League contests pit Wake Forest against North Carolina State at Asheboro, N.C., in a battle to break a fourth-place deadlock, and third-place Duke at second-place North Carolina in an encounter rescheduled from yesterday.

North Carolina, with an 8-2 ACC mark, is counting on a win to keep on the heels of ACC-leader Clemson (10-2), which has a date with Furman of the Southern Conference. Meanwhile, ACC-member Virginia is slated to visit Virginia Tech of the Southern Conference.

Although rain washed out Duke at North Carolina yesterday, the weather at Charleston, S.C., brightened as the Citadel mounted a seventh-inning attack to defeat South Carolina 5-4. South Carolina out-slugged its Southern Conference opponent with 11 safeties, but committed six errors.

Cookie Just Missed Part Of American League Lead

The Associated Press
Cookie Lavagetto just missed marking his first anniversary as manager of the Washington Senators by moving into a share of the American League lead.
On May 7 last year Cookie replaced Chuck Dressen. The Senators were on the tail end of a losing streak that reached 10 games. They were last, 9 1/2 games back.
Now they're second, a game behind the New York Yankees. Except for some great clutch pitching by Detroit's Frank Lary last night, Cookie and the Senators would have swept into a virtual first-place tie.

Lary was tagged for 13 hits and walked five but came up with eight strikeouts and left 14 runners on base as the Tigers ended a three-game slump with a 5-1 victory in the opener of a twin-night pair at Washington. The Senators then socked 15 hits in the nightcap for an 11-4 victory. The rest of the AL scheduled was rained out.

Reno Bertola's first major league grand-slam homer capped a five-run first for the Tigers in the opener against Camilo Pascual, who lost his second. Lary, now 2-2, lost his shutout bid in the ninth, when Eddie Yost opened with his first home run. Gall Harris singled the other Tiger run home.

Road-e-o Event Slated Sunday

More than 20 high school drivers will participate in the county-wide safe driving Road-e-o to be held at the airport Sunday afternoon beginning at 2 p.m.
Chairman of the Jaycee project, Frank Hill said the youthful drivers were chosen to represent various schools in the county by scoring 90 or more points on written examinations given in the schools.
Sunday they will go through various tests of their driving skill and a winner will be chosen by the judges to represent Pitt County in the state Road-e-o in New Bern May 31 and June 1.
Hill said the winner of the Road-e-o Sunday will receive a tank of gas and a wash and grease job. Second place winner is to receive five gallons of gas and a wash and grease job. To the third place winner will go a wash and grease job.
The top winner is also to receive an engraved plaque along with the trip to state finals.
From the state finals the youth to represent North Carolina will go to Washington, D. C. for national finals August 11-14. Scholarships totalling $4,500 will be given winners of the national contest.

Derek Ibotson May Be Finished As A Runner

LONDON (AP)—Is Derek Ibotson, the world's fastest miller, all finished as a miller?
The merry Yorkshireman ran three four-minute miles last year—including the world's fastest—but ended the season in a dull, tired crawl.
He started off the 1958 season even slower.
Now he says: "I'm concentrating on the three mile and 5,000 meter races this year."
Besides running a 3:57.2 mile at the White City track in London last season, a mark not yet recognized because it was a paced mile, Ibotson raced 54 other races—probably a record in itself.
He was told by friends and advisors that 53 races in one year were about twice too many. He was cautioned to stop or risk burning himself out.
By October his once powerful finishing kick had faded into a faint flutter.
In early April he ran a sluggish 4:16.0 mile and a 9:16.0 two miles in Manchester. In Oxford yesterday he finished fourth in a mile run with a time of 4:14.6. His last quarter was very slow.
Ibotson admitted after the world's fastest clocking that he had been paced part of the way by a friend. Pacing is supposed to be against international rules but many track and field officials believe the time eventually will be accepted as a world record.

Three ACC Net Championships To Begin Today

Doubles: 1. Bortner and Bank, North Carolina; 2. Romhilt and Kat; 3. Sumner and Nacim, Clemson; 4. York and Sherry Snyder, Virginia.

Everette-Heugels Battling Today

GREENSBORO — The North State Conference singles championship match between ECC's Maurice Everette and High Point's

MAURICE EVERETTE

State trailed with 15 points while Duke and North Carolina tied for third place with 11 points each.
The big win in the Deacons' first victory in the event's history came on a first-place finish in golf, second places in handball, badminton and table tennis, and third place in volleyball.

ersonville, is top-seeded in the tournament and has won the title for the past two seasons. Heugels, a four-letter man at High Point, has been Everette's chief competitor during the past two seasons.
At the time the match was first rained out on Tuesday, Everette held a 6-2, 2-2 lead.

Wake Forest Is Leading In Big Four Competition

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest has taken over top honors in the 12th annual Big Four Sports Day competition here.
The Deacons shaded defending champion North Carolina State with 15 points in golf, handball, badminton, volleyball and table tennis. All-day rain blotted out softball, tennis and horseshoes play.

Chicago Cubs May Get Last Laugh With Rush

CHICAGO (AP)—The last laugh on the Bob Rush deal may belong to the surprising Chicago Cubs.
Last winter, when the Cubs let veteran pitcher Rush, plus a couple of kickers, go to the Milwaukee Braves for pitcher Taylor Phillips and catcher Sammy Taylor, the baseball realm was astounded.
But yesterday Phillips, with Taylor as batterymate, hurled a five-hit, 5-1 victory over Cincinnati for his first complete game since September 1956.
It was Phillips' first triumph for the pace-setting Cubs and indicated the 24-year-old lefty may be a big wheel on Manager Bob Schefling's "youth movement" mound staff.
Schefling has been convinced right along that all Phillips needed to be a frontline pitcher was more work than he was able to get on the crowded staff of the world champion Milwaukee Braves. Phillips hurled only 73 innings last season for a 3-2 record after a brilliant start with the Braves in 1956. The Braves called Phillips up from Wichita in mid-1956 and the lefty completed 6 of 12 starting assignments for a 5-3 record and 2.25 ERA.

"We had great minor league reports on Phillips," Schefling said. "Now he is getting regular work and it's bound to have a good effect on his mental attitude and pitching sharpness."
"We finally convinced Phillips he should pitch in a game like he does in warmups."

Little To Be Gained Sending Man Into Space

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—What would be gained by sending a man into space? Very little, aside from prestige, Dr. Lee A. DuBridge said yesterday. The president of California Institute of Technology told a Red Cross luncheon that a satellite passenger would be "an unmitigated nuisance." "As long as you are measuring things like some cosmic rays, magnetic fields, gravity effects, radio transmission effects, astronomical effects, etc., automatic instruments are necessary anyway, and the human being is quite an unnecessary encumbrance," he said. "Two hundred pounds of scientific instruments could record more data... do not require all the comforts of home and would cause no broken hearts if they did not come back alive."

Girl Crawls Two Miles With A Broken Back

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—For two miles Mary Morris, her back broken in two places, pulled herself with bleeding hands toward the shelter of home. Her trip to life took four hours. While hiking alone on a rugged mountain trail, Mary fell 20 feet into a creek bed and her back snapped at two places near the waistline. Her calls for help were answered only by echoes. She started pulling herself toward her home. Four hours later she reached safety, and today she is recuperating in a Juneau hospital. The 16-year-old daughter of Juneau boatbuilder Lee Morris is encased in a cast. "The fractures were one of those freak things that happen sometimes," her doctor said. "The spinal cord wasn't crushed, or there would have been immediate paralysis."

Cites Evidence Moral Behavior Breaking Down

ST. LOUIS (AP)—There is evidence everywhere that moral behavior is breaking down in our land." The Rev. Dr. W. Vernon Middleton, general secretary of the Methodist Church Division of National Missions, made that statement to a convention of Methodist women last night. Dr. Middleton, of Philadelphia, told the Assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service crime seems to be rampant, and that persons who live in suburbia cannot assume that crime is confined to the cities. "It affects the moral tone of all our communities," he said. Dr. Middleton said, "The real seeds of crime are sown in the early years of a child's life." He advocated the teaching of moral and a social responsibility in schools.

ON THE HOUSE

AP Newsfeatures

KNOTTY PINE paneling is a flexible decorative product. It has many faces and finishes. It can be modern or traditional, and it can run the gamut of colors.

A number of new finishes and effects now make it suitable for many types of interior decoration in nearly all rooms of a house.

Two factors are important for best results. The desired effect should be considered beforehand, and the features of the room in which paneling is to be installed should be studied.

Experiment with colors on a piece of waste wood before starting a paneling job. Each piece of paneling should be colored prior to its installation on the wall. This eliminates streaks left by running paint avoids raw corners or edges where brushes will not reach after the paneling is in place.

Also store the wood on the site for about 10 days, separating each board with sticks, to allow air to circulate freely around each piece of paneling. This permits the lumber to adjust to the atmospheric conditions of the room.

Sanding is Important

IMPORTANT to the final finish is sanding. Each piece should be sanded carefully to remove all superficial marks, dirt and rough spots before color is applied.

Care in finishing at each step will pay dividends in the beauty and durability of the job.

If a room does not have good natural illumination, lighter woods should be used. For well lighted rooms, darker woods may be used. Lighter woods in the western pine group include ponderosa pine, Idaho white pine and sugar pine. Other light woods include white fir, lodgepole pine and Engelmann spruce. Rich, darker effects can be achieved with inland red cedar, incense cedar or larch.

In experimenting with waste wood, allow the stain or paint to dry. Then look at it in the light it will receive when the paneling is in place. Keep one thing in mind—when the room is paneled, the finish will appear slightly darker. The paint or stain to be used should be brushed liberally right onto the wood, using long strokes with the grain. Then, with a soft cloth, wipe it off. The length of time the pigment remains on the wood before wiping will determine the depth of color.

To enrich the effect of knots, some expert wood finishers prefer to buff the knots lightly with steel wool after wiping off the paint or stain.

Tricks From the Experts

ANOTHER TRICK used by experts is to dust powdered color over the natural tiny pockets found around knots. Gold or aluminum dust will highlight the varied shapes of knots. Bright reds and blues, dusted in deftly but lightly, also will accent knots. Actual dabs of paint also may be applied but they should be wiped off quickly.

Use of more than one color permits alternate methods of application. Harmonious colors may be applied in alternate vertical strokes, wiping down the grain while it is still wet. The wipe-down action blends the edges of the colors, resulting in ripples of alternating colors in a pleasant gradation.

Two colors, one on top of another, also may be used. For a driftwood finish, each piece is coated first with a dull green stain which is wiped off evenly at once. After it has dried, the paneling is painted with a neutral gray, and the gray is wiped off more thoroughly at the edges than in the center.

An uneven gradation is achieved. The green shows through more at the edges than in the center. Because the grain is visible, the paneling has the appearance of mossy driftwood.

Other color recipes include mixing equal parts of chrome green and chrome yellow in oil with a mineral spirits thinner. Brush the mixture on the wood, then wipe it off. After the desired color is obtained, let the paneling dry thoroughly. Then finish it as desired, with clear varnish, shellac, lacquer or wax.

Acheson Against Summit Parley

DURHAM, N. H. (AP)—Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today a summit conference now would be unnecessary, undesirable and dangerous.

In any event, he said, President Eisenhower should stay away from future international meetings with the Soviets.

If high-level talks are necessary, he said, "the President should have another representative."

Past summit meetings have ended in frustrating failures, diplomatic disaster or political comedy, Acheson said in an address prepared for a student audience at the University of New Hampshire.

The Geneva summit meeting in 1955 "was not merely a failure, it was a fraud," said Acheson. "It brought relaxation to the West just when the need was for endurance."

Acheson said "the world situation is too fluid" to permit any settlements now. "Furthermore, the conference at the summit is an instrumentality by which the Russians plainly believe they can speed the disintegration of the Western position without incurring risk. It offers the unique opportunity to carry on the cold war in the name of peace..."

He said the President—and the secretary of state—should not be personally involved in "political warfare" surrounding such sessions.

"The makers of ultimate decisions must be insulated a little from the negotiators themselves. They must remain detached," he said.

Anger Is Costly Behind A Wheel

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—It cost Orrin Stofflet Jr., 33, plenty recently when he purposely rammed a parked car belonging to his ex-wife's boy friend.

Total cost for fines and damages to Stofflet's car: $250 plus almost enough points for suspension of his driver's license.

Damage to boy friend's car: $10.

ALEC THE ARTIST—Paints and palette are the props for Alec Guinness during filming of "The Horse's Mouth" in London. He also wrote the script based on Joyce Cary's novel.

Financial Aid To Future Doctors Urged At Meet

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — "No American boy or girl should be denied the privilege of being a doctor for lack of financial help." With this as his theme, Dr. Lenox D. Baker of Durham called on the North Carolina Medical Society yesterday to work up a program to recruit promising Tar Heel high school students into the profession.

Dr. Baker, the society's president, said such talent must not be allowed to drift by default into other professions or industry.

He urged a program including adequate financial aid as the society ended its 104th annual session here.

In other closing events, the State Board of Health passed a resolution supporting compulsory anti-polio vaccination as advised by the society Monday for children aged two months to six years.

The society also heard a report on complaints from doctors concerning the State Industrial Commission and the Blue Cross and Blue Shield medical plans.

Elected to the Hospital Care Assn. were Dr. Willard Goley of Graham for one year; Dr. Alfred T. Hamilton of Raleigh, two years; Dr. Charles T. Wilkinson

Minority Report Calls For Cut In Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A minority report urging drastic cuts in President Eisenhower's foreign aid program says, "These tax dollars have purchased neither friends nor the desired security."

The statement was filed by four members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee dissenting from the group's 22-5 vote approving a $3,803,000,000 aid measure.

The majority headed by Committee Chairman Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa) said a drastic aid cut would lose the cold war for America.

Signing the minority report were Republican Representatives Mar guerite Stitt Church (Ill), E. Ross Adair (Ind) and Alvin M. Bentley (Mich) and Democratic Rep. J. L. Pilcher (Ga). The name of the fifth "no" voter was not given.

The minority said the United States has poured nearly 49 billion dollars worth of aid abroad since 1945 without a payoff in world peace and security or understanding of America.

This year's committee cut of 339 million dollars below the amount Eisenhower requested is far less than slashes voted in many other years, the dissenters said.

The report hit particularly at what it said was loss of congressional control over the program and at "massive amounts of assistance to those who are either neutral or who lean toward the Soviet Union."

It cited shipments of nylon stockings to Korea and band instruments to Turkey under military aid programs as examples of waste uncovered in the overseas assistance effort.

"The only recourse left to the Congress," the minority said, "is to reduce drastically appropriations and thereby compel the executive branch to re-evaluate its programs and to eliminate those which are overfunded."

SHE SAVED UP — A widow paid St. Paul's Hospital $100 for care her husband received 18 years ago, telling Sister Mary Helen, hospital supervisor, she had been saving money since then to make the payment.

Understanding Is Teaching Secret

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — A minister-turned-science teacher attributes his classroom success to his religious — not scientific — training.

Edwin H. Cooper, named New Jersey's outstanding science teacher of the year, said his training in religious therapy enabled him to better understand his students and their personal problems.

House Expected Act Soon On New Military Pay Bill

Chimp's Art Is Ruled Not 'Art'

BALTIMORE (AP)—A U. S. Customs appraiser, saying he just had to draw a line somewhere, classified a dozen abstracts by Congo, the chimpanzee from London, as not being art and therefore subject to import duty.

pay" of $50, $100 or $150 a month. The bill also contains a 6 per cent cost of living increase in retirement pay now going to some 300,000 officers and enlisted men.

The compromise differs from the original senate bill in only one respect: it would permit a boost in retirement benefits for three and four star generals and admirals already on the retired list. This would cost about $400,000.

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—John Ashbrook, national chairman of the Young Republican club and state representative from Licking County, has a personal knowledge of the power of a write-in vote.

Lady Docker Has New 'Enemies'

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Rich, fun-loving Lady North Docker today faced the possibility of being deprived of another Mediterranean playground.

A Naples penal court has summoned the 52-year-old British playgirl to trial May 17. It was charged that 21 months ago on the Capri dock she talked like a drunken dockhand to a harbor policeman who prevented a taxi in which she was riding from driving up to the Docker yacht.

The cutup wife of wealthy Sir Bernard Docker was accused of insulting the policeman and showing "annoying drunkenness" in public on Aug. 26, 1956. Why the case is coming to trial now was not explained by court officials but such delays are not unusual in crowded Italian courts.

BY STAGE COACH? NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Jerome Hirschberg, who received two air mail postcards from Texas, is wondering whether they came by plane or on the prevailing winds.

Pueblo Indians live in 18 scattered villages in New Mexico.

Bandleader Is Told 'Pay Up'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Buddy Cole's divorced wife says their teen-age daughters need lessons in dancing, singing, modeling and horseback riding and a judge says to pay for them.

The court yesterday also awarded increased living expenses of $360 a month for the two girls, Christine, 14, and Cathleen, 13. The former wife, Yvonne King of the singing King Sisters, had asked that support payments be increased from the present $200 to $500 a month.

The Coles divorced in 1953 and each is now remarried. Her present husband is another bandleader, Del Courtney of San Francisco. Cole is musical director for Bing Crosby and Rosemary Clooney.

JUDGE'S SOLUTION LOS ANGELES (AP)—Life with John E. Silvia was a problem without a solution, says Mrs. John E. Silvia. When she agreed with him he got mad. When she disagreed, he got mad. And when she didn't say anything he got mad.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mixed prices prevailed in the stock market early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active. Fivotal issues showed gains or losses of small fractions mostly. There was an occasional move of a point or so. Motor shares were narrowly higher and utilities were firm. Leading rails were unchanged on average. Aircrafts were lower. Coppers and chemicals were irregular. Most oils showed minus signs.

The market was holding its ground well after yesterday's slight dip on profit taking in the wake of a five-day rise to successive new highs for the year. No particular selling pressure was apparent. The economic background included a rise in scrap prices at Chicago the first since February; a slight drop in new claims for unemployment insurance; and a report by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York that declines in consumer prices are due.

The rise in Chicago scrap prices did nothing immediately for the major steelmakers. Bethlehem was about unchanged. U.S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Republic Steel were fractionally lower. Amrads was the best of the leading oil issues, rising well over a point. Gulf Oil and Royal Dutch were a bit lower. Standard Oil (New Jersey) eased.

Phelps Dodge was up slightly. Anaconda was firm. Kennecott fell a major fraction. American Motors continued active and was firm. Ford and General Motors edged ahead. Chrysler was steady. Lorillard resumed its climb, adding a good fraction. Babbitt traded about unchanged after rising ¼ on a big opening block of 3,000 shares. Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Union Carbide, Du Pont, American Cyanamid and Southern Railway took losses. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 10 cents to $169.30 with the industrials off 30 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities up 10 cents.

Still No Answer As To Why The Stars Twinkle

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—An ages-old mystery of the heavens that stumped the savemen turned out just as puzzling to two stratosphere-kimicking space scientists. Astronomer Alfred Mikessell said his stargazing from a balloon at 40,000 feet did not reveal why stars twinkle.

Mikessell, 44, went up with Navy Cmdr. Malcolm Ross to find out at what levels of the atmosphere the stars stop twinkling. In order to do it he needed a steady fix with his telescope.

But the small fibreglass basket in which he and Ross were perched spun constantly and made precise observation difficult.

At 40,000 feet he found the stars shine steadily. This had been discovered before. What Mikessell hoped to find was the exact altitude at which the earth's atmosphere makes starlight seem to twinkle.

Astronomers generally agree that the twinkling is the result of turbulence in the earth's atmosphere. Mikessell says finding out the specific cause would help scientists predict the speed and direction of winds in the upper reaches of the atmosphere.

Mikessell and Ross brought their balloon down near Dubuque yesterday after a 11-hour flight from northern Minnesota.

Among other things they learned man could survive at temperatures of 75 degrees below zero which prevailed during their 1½ hours at 40,000 feet.

The ascent provided the first test of a technique which may be used to measure the physical reactions of men circling the earth in satellites.

Information was radioed back to the ground and relayed to Washington for analysis. The balloonists suffered no ill effects from the flight, although instruments recorded a change in the heartbeat of one for a few minutes. This may have been caused when a mechanical breathing device was turned on.

Pilots Taking Survival Course

PT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—In dense, isolated forests at Camp MacCall 200 Navy and Air Force pilots are being trained by experts of the 77th Special Forces Group. Airborne, on how to sustain life if forced down behind enemy lines.

The exercise started yesterday and will continue for a month. It is Exercise Tenderfoot. The 77th is the unconventional warfare unit of the U.S. Army Special Warfare center.

Under the eyes of seasoned Special Forces operators every pilot plays the game for keeps. He knows it may some day mean the difference between life and death.

After the 30-day Tenderfoot course of lectures and practical application, pilots are expected to be able to survive in the roughest kind of area. They are briefed on the long, rugged treks which lie ahead; the day and night forced marches in the swampy areas of MacCall and the necessity of speed to reach fool-proof concealment areas ahead of enemy patrols.

Probe Shooting By Schoolboy Of Store Customer

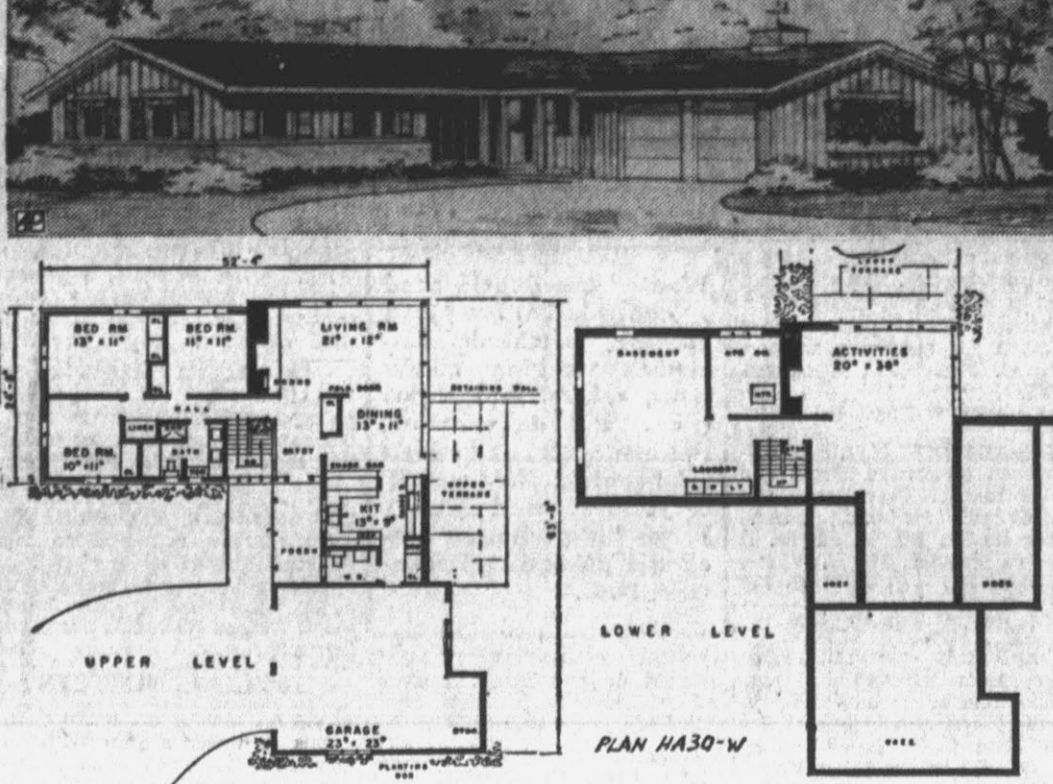

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)—Investigation continued today into a high school boy's shooting of a threatening customer in his stepfather's store.

Richmond County police reported Bobby Stubbs, 17, as admitting the pistol slaying of Henry Ragsdale, 37, of East Rockingham. Stubbs said Ragsdale was advancing with a knife when he fired.

Funeral services for Ragsdale, father of two daughters, were planned today with burial in St. Paul Church Cemetery. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Rosa Lee Ragsdale.

Police quoted Stubbs as saying Ragsdale entered Hollie Smith's store and started an argument, refusing to leave when Stubbs asked and then drawing a knife. Ragsdale was shot twice. No charges were placed against Stubbs, who was released in his stepfather's custody.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS MODERN RANCH HOUSE is designed in the shape of an "L." It is an excellent plan for an inside or corner lot, its dimensions, including the two-car attached garage, are 60 by 63 feet 9 inches. It has 2,174 square feet excluding the front porch and the garage and storage areas. The main level has a living room, three bedrooms, kitchen, dining room and 1 1/2 baths. The basement level has space for a recreation room, laundry and heating plant. The plan, HA30-W, is by Architect Clifford N. Wright, 16310 Grand River Ave., Detroit 27, Mich.

Rains End As River Crests Begin Move Downstream

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Torrential rains that shot rivers and streams of central and eastern North Carolina swirling out of their banks ended last night and a bright sun cheered residents of the water soaked areas today.

The Weather Bureau reported that rivers which flooded lowlands Tuesday and Wednesday, blocking many rural roads and some highways, had passed their crests and were beginning to recede on their upper portions.

However, they were still rising in their middle and lower portions as the crests moved downstream.

At least one person was believed to have drowned as a result of the floods.

In Anson County, Citizens and officers were searching for a 40-year-old farmer who was feared drowned in a swollen creek near Wadesboro. Fordham Meggs, assistant manager of a dairy farm, was last seen Tuesday night when he set out to remove a tractor from the vicinity of a swollen stream.

The Weather Bureau said that additional showers were expected in the southwestern section of the state by late tomorrow, and there was a possibility of occasional rain throughout the state Saturday. However, it said no large amount of rainfall are presently indicated.

The Tar River at Lonsburg crested late yesterday and was falling slowly today. Employees of a milling company there began putting equipment back into the building. It had been removed yesterday to prevent water damage.

Although water was receding, a number of rural roads in the area north and east of Raleigh were still closed as a result of the high water. Also still closed was N.C. highway 195 just east of Margaretsville in Northampton County near the Virginia state line. W. N. Sprull of Ahoskie, division highway engineer, said sections of the road there had been washed out but that it likely would be opened to one-way traffic during the day.

LAWTON, Okla. (AP)—Two North Carolina men charged with murder in the March 31 shooting of Mrs. Reggie Zimmerman of Lawton yesterday asked to be tried together.

James Spence, 29, and Eddie Oxendine, 26, made the request to District Judge Luther Eubanks at arraignment. Eubanks' criminal court term will begin May 19.

Air Force Claims Record Regained

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force today officially claimed record to prevent injury to crewmen. The wings measure only 7½ feet from the fuselage to the tips while the body of the lance-shaped plane is 54½ feet long.

The Starfighter is the lightest weight jet combat plane in the U.S. Air Force fleet.

The first experimental model was flown in 1954 with a less powerful engine. The Starfighter was developed as a superspeed interceptor for one-man operation, but it can be modified to hold a two-man crew.

An experimental rocket plane has gone higher than the Starfighter flew but the feats are not comparable. The rocket craft was launched from a mother plane high in the air, while the Starfighter took off from the ground.

An official of the National Aeronautics Assn. was at the Palmdale field of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to check instruments sealed in the Starfighter's cockpit. The presence of the official was required to determine the achievement of an official record.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffing Democratic appeals for concessions, the Eisenhower administration refused to budge today on the President's embattled reciprocal trade program.

The administration's firm stand against modifying the trade plan raised serious doubts over its fate in Congress. However, talk persisted of a possible compromise.

Faced with mounting congressional pressures for a return to high tariff protectionist trade policies, House leaders called in administration spokesmen to find a saving compromise.

But after an hour-long conference with House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, Secretary of the Interior Weeks reported "no agreement on anything."

"We sent up a bill we believe in . . . and we still want the bill," he announced.

Asked if that meant it was the President's bill or nothing, Weeks replied only that this was an iffy question.

Although Weeks gave no indication of yielding, both Rayburn and House Republican leader Joseph Martin of Massachusetts indicated a compromise is possible.

Rayburn, veteran of nearly a quarter century of battles in support of reciprocal world trade, announced grimly: "We're going to get a bill. We've got to get a bill."

But he also acknowledged that chances for the President's program "didn't show up too well" in a poll of the 232 House Democrats. Reports indicated little more than a third of them would back the program as it is. Strong Republican opposition also has become apparent.

Martin reported, "The administration is standing on its original bill, but it doesn't look like we can get the bill through."

Then he added, "There might be a compromise."

The President wants a five-year extension of the 24-year-old New Deal Trade Agreements Act, and additional authority to lower tariffs another 25 per cent in negotiating trade agreements abroad.

Opposition has developed within both parties against further import tariff concessions competitive with American industry.
