Tar River Virtually Laps At Back Doors Of Some Greenville Dwellings

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

Usually meandering Tar River was being eyed today by those living in low lands along its south banks, as four houses were reported evacuated.

For the river has exceeded its narrow banks and crossed uninhabited low lands for perhaps half a mile at Greenville to virtually lap at the rear doors of dwellings in North Greenville. There is no danger to the main section of the city.

This morning the United States Weather Bureau in Raleigh reported the stream stood at the 18.18 ft. level in Greenville and it was rising.

Already this morning the river was nearly two feet higher than the 16.67 feet recorded yesterday.

And the end is not in sight. The Weather Bureau official said the level is expected to rise to 22 feet by Wednesday or Thursday. If so, the flood would probably equal that of 1940 when the waters of the Tar crossed N. Greene St. and flooded houses and business in the north section of the city.

That year the river rose over the 22 foot mark and parts of N. Greene St., then the only highway into Greenville from the north, were under approximately three feet of water.

Boaters were able to paddle up and down the highway at that time and boats were the only way to cross to what was then known as the Flemings Cross Roads area.

The highest water mark since that time came in 1945 when high winds held back water for a few days and the river level reached 19.2 feet.

But the all-time high water mark, as far as records show, came in 1919 when the river level moved to the 24.05 foot mark. That year, too, the Bethel Highway was flooded.

Highway Department officials said this morning they don't expect the city to be cut off from the north if N. Greene St. floods.

The new Memorial Drive bridge was opened last year and highway officials said they expect the fill to be high enough to remain above the rising waters.

The Belvoir-Falkland bridge and fill over the Tar is also expected to remain above the flooding river as is the new draw span at Grimesland.

However, the Highway Department said there have been some reports of flooding on county roads in Pitt.

Conotee Creek in the Belvoir section has risen above its banks and a couple of county roads in that area have been closed.

Contentnea Creek in St. John's section is over its banks and has closed secondary roads in that section.

No Disaster Program City Manager Leonard Bloxam said no disaster program is planned at this time.

Most of the houses in the North Meadowbrook area appear safe at present, Bloxam said, although rising waters have reached four houses there.

Water is over the floors of the four dwellings and the families have moved out taking some of their belongings and stacking some on beds.

Utilities Weather Station readings showed the rise of the river is slowing today. The nearly two-foot rise from yesterday to today came rapidly but the rate of river level increase was considerably slower today.

At Grimesland, it was reported that all dwellings today were safe from the rising waters.

There was some question locally whether the river level would reach that forecast by the Raleigh U. S. Weather Bureau office.

City Manager Bloxam said he had been in contact with Rocky Mount and Tarboro this morning concerning the flood situation. Rocky Mount officials said waters are receding there and in Tarboro the river was expected to crest around one o'clock today. The water level stood at 29 feet in Tarboro this morning and officials said they doubted it would reach the 30-foot mark before cresting.

The U. S. Weather Bureau had forecast 32 feet for Tarboro. Bloxam said it takes approximately 48 hours for waters to travel from Rocky Mount to Greenville.

On the basis of the information he obtained from the two cities, Bloxam said he felt the river would crest here around midnight tonight.

Lowlands Near Tarboro Flooded; 1,000 People Flee

TARBORO, N. C. (AP) — Swirling flood waters of the Tar River crested today after driving upwards of 1,000 persons from their homes.

Officials estimated it would be about three days before the river would recede sufficiently for the refugees to return to their homes.

Treacherous waters about nine miles upstream from Tarboro claimed the life of a Negro farm laborer, Chances Barnes, 36, of Leggett. Barnes was wading in a flooded field yesterday afternoon and drowned when he fell into a deep canal hidden from his view by the muddy water.

Mayor Clarence W. Wickham, who made a tour of the Princeville area, a Negro community across the river from Tarboro, said damage in the stricken area would be extensive and the area would be confronted with a serious health problem when the river subsides.

The Weather Bureau at the Raleigh-Durham Airport reported at mid-morning that the Tar, swollen by heavy rains last week, was cresting at a depth of about 29 1/4 feet, more than 10 feet above bankful.

Mayor Wickham reported that additional families, who refused to leave their homes yesterday, had changed their minds and were being brought out of the flooded area today.

He estimated that 140 of 150 families in the Princeville area had been evacuated as well as about 15 families from a low-lying section of Tarboro proper. He estimated between 800 and 900 persons were involved at Princeville and between 50 and 60 in Tarboro.

A majority of those evacuated went to stay with families and friends in the country. The mayor said the Red Cross was caring for 150 persons.

The flooding was the most serious the area has experienced since 1940, the mayor said, and it is much worse than the 1945 flood.

The weather, third graf, lead 73 In addition to the flooded families, Edgecombe County Agent Joe Powell said at least 1,200 acres of farmland along the river's banks between Rocky Mount and Tarboro were under water.

Gov. Hodges ordered two officers and 40 men of the Tarboro National Guard unit to active duty yesterday. The flood victims also have been receiving around-the-clock aid from volunteer Red Cross workers.

Tarboro Mayor Clarence W. Wickham said, "I think the flooding is passed the danger mark. The Red Cross will continue to house the victims and help with the rehabilitation when the flood waters subside."

He said the county Health Department began inoculating the flooded families against typhoid this morning.

"It's going to be a tremendous health problem when the river goes down. Most of the families have individual wells and outdoor privies," the mayor said.

The National Guard continued to man field kitchens set up in the stricken area and the Red Cross continued to provide food for the displaced persons at Fattilo High School, Tarboro's Negro school.

The evacuated persons were taken originally to the Princeville Grammar School, but were moved to Pattilo when the muddy waters threatened there at about 9 o'clock last night.

U.S. Highways 158 and 64 remained closed. They were covered by about three and a half feet of water this morning.

County Agent Powell said most of the submerged farm land was used for corn, soybeans or pasture. He said it was too early to hazard a damage estimate, but said those farmers who had planted their crops would have to replant.

The river's depth was recorded at 29.14 feet this morning and it was expected to reach a crest of 30 feet in a matter of hours. The bankful stage at Tarboro is 19 feet.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made to evacuate residents of Happersville, a low-lying suburb of Kingston on the Neuse River, later this week.

The Weather Bureau forecast at a depth of around 21 feet, seven above bankful, around Saturday.

Mrs. W. E. Cutler, Home Service secretary for the Red Cross at Kingston, said "some families down there will have to come out when the river gets that high."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures through Saturday will run near or a little below normal with little day to day change. Average high and low in the coastal plains, 79-56 degrees. Rainfall averaging one-half to three-quarter inches occurring mostly tonight and Tuesday and again Friday and Saturday.

Three People Die In Two Weekend Pitt Accidents

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's 1958 fatality record swelled to five as a result of two accidents on its highways during the weekend in which two men and a woman perished.

A mother of 11 children was killed instantly in a near-head-on collision on the Bethel-Greenville highway early Mother's Day morning. The victim has been identified as Niece Ann Bunn, 40-year-old Negro woman of Bethel Rt. 1. William Nathaniel Brown, 26-year-old Negro of Bethel, was also killed in the accident.

Early Saturday night James Edward Taylor, 32, of Greenville Rt. 5, suffered fatal injuries when struck by a loaded hog truck while crossing the highway at Pactolus.

The Bunn woman was riding in the right front seat of a 1950 car being operated by her husband, Oliver Bunn, 44, according to officers. Bunn sustained a broken left arm and left leg, lacerations of the left knee, fractured ribs and lacerations of the mouth. An attending physician describes his condition as "serious but not critical."

Two other occupants of the Bunn vehicle also received injuries according to reports from State Highway Patrolman Bill Whitehurst who investigated the accident. They were identified as Nina Hopkins, 38-year-old Negro woman of Bethel Rt. 1, who suffered a sprained ankle and facial lacerations and Fernando Newsome, 37-year-old Negro of Stokes Rt. 1, head injuries. Newsome was treated at the Bethel Clinic and released while the Hopkins woman was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Brown was reported to be the only occupant of the 1964 model car involved in the fatal mishap.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported that Brown died as a result of a broken neck. The woman died from head injuries. Both were killed instantly, Tyson stated.

The accident occurred at the intersection of U. S. 13 and N. C. 33 approximately one mile south of Bethel. It was reported at 12:30 a.m. yesterday.

Patrolman Whitehurst states that Bunn, traveling south on U.S. 13, was preparing to make a left turn on N.C. 33 when the mishap took place. Brown, he noted, was moving north on U.S. 1, at an estimated speed of between 50 and 55 miles an hour. There were no skid marks at the scene situated on a straight stretch of road.

Whitehurst reported this morning that charges are pending further investigation. He was assisted in his initial investigation by Pfc. Howard R. Winslow of Greenville and Pfc. W. K. Chapman of Bethel, both members of the State Highway Patrol.

Sheriff Tyson said an inquest will be held but the date will be determined by Pitt Coroner Griffin H. House with whom he plans to confer this week.

First Pedestrian Fatality Taylor's death was the first pedestrian fatality in Pitt County this year.

The Pactolus resident was instantly killed when struck by a truck, owned by the Washington Hog Market and operated by Kenneth Gordon Mace Jr. of Lillington on N.C. 30. Mace was not charged by investigating officer W. K. Chapman of the State Highway Patrol.

Patrolman Chapman quoted Mace and two witnesses as saying Taylor ran across the highway in a "zig-zag" manner directly into the path of the oncoming truck. The victim died as a result of head and internal injuries, being crushed under the wheels of the heavily-loaded truck.

The accident took place around 7:30 p.m. Sheriff Tyson stated today that an inquiry will be held in connection with the death. Beirut Rioters Sack And Burn Second U.S. Library

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rioters sacked and burned the U. S. Information Agency library in Beirut today. It was the second USIA library fired in the past three days.

Rioters, stirred up by foes of Lebanon's pro-Western government, burned the USIA library, many books and furniture Saturday in the north coast city of Tripoli.

In Beirut, a mob smashed through police guarding the USIA library, hurled more than 1,000 books and furniture into the street and set the pile ablaze. Then the rioters set fire to the inside of the library.

Earlier, one person had been reported killed in brief, sporadic shooting which police quickly quelled. The capital's transportation system was at a standstill and only a few shops defied warnings that they had better close.

More shooting broke out in Tripoli. In the south, Sidon and the biblical port of Tyre were closed. Disturbances were reported in mountain villages.

Americans in Beirut were told to stay off the streets and to keep their children home from school. Reinforced security forces were stationed at strategic spots throughout the city. Strong patrols were moving continuously through the streets.

The general strike spread quickly in Beirut and in Tripoli, the North Lebanon seaport.

Months of mounting political tension erupted over the weekend with the burning of the U.S. Information Agency's library in Tripoli. The rioters destroyed every book and piece of furniture.

Rival political gangs went into action there Saturday. Reports said they stole guns from a shop and turned them on each other. The library was swept up in the rioting which killed at least four persons and injured 30.

The groups said to be involved were the Communists, the small Baath party and the outlawed Syrian Social Nationalist party. The shooting broke out again yesterday, but security police quickly re-established tight control. Patrols moved through the city enforcing a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Antigovernment forces also tossed bombs here in the capital but they caused little damage. Isolated bombings have plagued Beirut for months.

The Tripoli rioting was touched off by a call for a general strike to protest the assassination last Thursday of Nasib Maini, Beirut publisher who opposed President Camille Chamoun and backed the policies of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Nasser's radio stations in Cairo and Damascus meanwhile broadcast appeals for an open rebellion in Lebanon.

Chamoun is known to be seeking another six-year term in September — and he has the votes in Parliament to amend the constitution and stay in power. The president is pro-Western and Christian. His party swamped a generally Moslem, pro-Nasser opposition in the 1957 parliamentary elections.

In Parliament Chamoun's party is acting to appease Nasser. Last week the Cabinet leaders announced they would reject any U.S. aid that had strings attached and demanded 170 million dollars worth of American help for the next six years.

If it doesn't come through, the Cabinet threatened to ask for financial help from some other nation, presumably the Soviet Union.

Drop Candidate From The Slate

CARTHAGE, N. C. (AP) — The first Negro to file for a Moore County public office in 60 years has been dropped from the slate by the Board of Elections.

Officials said Mrs. Ammie Foster filed as a Republic candidate for the County Board of Education, but the books showed she was registered as a Democrat in 1948 and hasn't missed a single primary or general election since. The board returned her filing fee.

Mrs. Foster maintained she was a "lifelong Republican" and denied she had ever registered or voted Democratic.

Pitt Democratic Convention Sticks To County Affairs

UNANIMOUSLY RE-ELECTED . . . Mrs. Curtis Spencer, Gilbert Peel, John G. Clark and Clifton W. Everett.

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Democrats stuck to local business and stayed away from controversial affairs at their biennial convention in the Court House Saturday.

Delegates to the convention elected representatives and alternates to Thursday's state party convention in Raleigh, precinct chairmen re-elected Executive Committee officers, nobody said a word about the late W. Kerr Scott or new Senator B. Everett Jordan, and everybody had a kind word for faithful party members in the county.

John G. Clark, chairman of the Executive Committee for the last dozen years, was returned to office for another two years by unanimous vote of precinct chairmen. Other Executive Committee officers re-elected, also by unanimous vote, are Mrs. Curtis Spencer and Clifton W. Everett, vice-chairmen; Gilbert Peel, secretary; and L. M. Buchanan, treasurer.

A state-wide controversy over Governor Luther Hodges' appointment of Jordan to succeed the late Senator Scott went unmentioned by delegates to Saturday's meeting. County conventions in some areas of the state have adopted resolutions either blasting or praising the Governor's appointment. Chief among the party stalwarts who were publicly thanked for their work was Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, Pitt's State Senator for the past ten years who is not seeking a sixth term in the General Assembly. Dr. Jones was introduced as "an outstanding Democrat who had always given his best for the Democratic Party and good government."

Other delegates to the convention reminded the group of Pitt's overwhelming majority for Democratic candidates in the 1956 elections and heard George Cherry say, "Things would be different in Pitt County and North Carolina if it were not for Pitt's 1956 vote. But, despite that, there were more than 2,500 Republican votes cast in the county in 1956 and we have to get some of those votes for Democrats this year."

In the Executive Committee meeting, a call was issued for more contacts on the precinct level and Chairman Clark was designated to furnish speakers for any precinct rally that might be planned. The precinct chairmen, who are members of the Executive Committee, agreed to consider the idea of more precinct rallies. The Executive Committee also (continued on page 10)

Science Works In Keeping Baby Clean

YOUNG SALT—Everything's shipshape about this modern baby, whose mother enlists modern aids to keep him clean.

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures

It's a problem to keep baby clean. Ask any mother who has the experience of cleaning baby's nails before she takes him visiting, only to find little black borders at his fingertips when she introduces him to her hostess. How does a child pick up so much dirt in so short a time?

The grime goes to legs, arms and face too, and the most fastidious mother may be embarrassed that her child looks neglected. The daily bath helps, but for how long?

One silver lining is clothing that make life easier for Mom.

There are the disposable diapers, now available in pastels, so that the baby who crawls around in diapers may always be clean and fresh in these chuck-easy pants. These are handy, too, for travel, so that the toddler doesn't need to wear soiled diapers for any length of time.

New Techniques

New improvements in washing techniques should keep the little rascal clean, in spite of dirty hands. One new laundry product contains doretex, a hexachlorophene concoction that cleanses and deodorizes as it launders.

The new detergent eliminates the need for soaking or boiling regular diapers, and helps to cut down ammonia formation.

If you plan to block tiny wool garments, cut a frame out of cardboard before you wash the garment. The frame will help speed the drying by absorbing moisture, but be sure the cardboard does not contain dye which may come off on the garment.

It's always a good idea to pre-treat extra soiled areas with extra suds rubbed in with the fingers. Small-try socks really pick up the dirt as toddlers enjoy running around without shoes. Other spots to look for dirt are at the wrists of long-sleeved garments, and at the necks of sweaters and dresses.

Washing Woollens

When washing woollens be sure the water is not too hot. Pour detergent into hot water, swirl it around until it gets sudsy, then add cold water. It should feel neither cold nor hot, more on the tepid side. Newer detergents containing special ingredients may do a good washing job in lukewarm water.

Cotten Portraits Unveiled, Given To College

Portraits of the late Robert Randolph Cotten and of his wife, the late Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotten, of Cottendale in Pitt County, were unveiled Saturday in a ceremony in Cotten Hall at East Carolina College. The residence hall, used as a dormitory for freshman women, is named in honor of Mrs. Cotten.

The portraits, the work of Mrs. Georgia P. Hearne of Greenville, were presented to the college by the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cotten, Mrs. Sallie Cotten Wiggin of Winchester, Mass., and Mrs. Elba Cotten Wesson of Tucson, Arizona.

The program for the unveiling of the portraits brought to Cotten Hall parlor a group of approximately 200 members and friends of the Cotten family, representatives of the college faculty and administrative staff, and students now living in Cotten Hall.

Dean of Women Ruth White of East Carolina, acting as hostess for the college, presented members of the Cotten family who were present for the ceremony.

Jane Fuller of Greenville, soprano, student of music at East Carolina, sang "God Bless This House," as the program opened. George Johnson of Oxford was her accompanist.

Mrs. Lyman Cotten of Chapel Hill presented the portraits to the college. "The Cotten name," she said, "is one of the earliest in North Carolina. John Cotten of Bertie, who moved from Virginia to North Carolina in 1719, is the founder of the family in this state." She sketched the lives and services of Mr. and Mrs. Cotten.

Both Robert Randolph Cotten and Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotten were distinguished leaders in North Carolina. Cotten served in the Confederate Army for four years and then in Reconstruction times began "the long hard fight for existence."

"He entered the mercantile business in Wilson and later became a prominent banker and planter. He acquired Southwood in Pitt County, a plantation of 1,000 acres, and later the land on which he established his home. Cottendale in Pitt County. In the North Carolina General Assembly, he served several times in the House and the Senate and became noted for his work in prison reform.

"Mrs. Cotten was born in Virginia, but made her home in North Carolina during most of her life. A forceful leader among women both in and out of state, she was 'mother' of women's clubs in North Carolina, a vital force in the Congress of Mothers, and one of the founders of the Roanoke Island Association.

"As an author she wrote 'The White Doe,' based on the Virginia Dare legend.

"The Sallie Southall Cotten Loan Fund, established by women's clubs of the state in her honor, has enabled many young women to obtain an education. Buildings at both East Carolina College and the Women's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, bear her name," said Mrs. Cotten.

Vice President F. D. Dunean of East Carolina accepted the portraits for the college. He eulogized Cotten as a leader in political, civic, and church activities and Mrs. Cotten as the "most beloved woman who ever lived in North Carolina . . . a lady of charm with a keen sense of civic responsibility."

The portraits were unveiled by Mrs. Thomas B. Battle of Rocky Mount, great-great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cotten, and Miss Sallie Cotten Hale of Plainfield, N. J., their great granddaughter. The Rev. John Drake of St. Paul's Episcopal Church gave the benediction.

Roselyn Waters Feted At Shower

Miss Roselyn Waters, June bride-elect, was honored at a shower on Saturday night at the home of the hostesses, Mrs. J. H. Mobley and Misses Peggy and Betty Jean Mobley of Winterville.

Miss Waters' blue sheath dress was complimented with a corsage of red roses upon her arrival. Her mother, Mrs. Wiley Waters, was presented with a white rose corsage.

The guests were invited into the living room decorated with spring flowers. The mantel arrangement bore a miniature bride and bridegroom banked by white rock roses and flanked with single burning tapers.

Appropriate love songs were sung by the guests after which novelty games were played.

Mrs. Mobley directed the guests into the dining room to an appointed table covered with a white lace tablecloth and centered with an arrangement of red roses and a crystal candelabra holding burning tapers.

Miss Alice Waters, sister of the bride, poured punch and guests helped themselves to ham biscuits, cranberry freeze and other dainties. Assisting in the serving were Miss Blanche Dudley and Miss Mary Virginia Langston.

Miss Waters was showered with gifts from the guests.

Goodbyes were said by the honoree and the hostesses.

Miss Waters will marry the Rev. Ralph Lee Norwood Jr. of Bedford, Va. on June 7.

Spring Styles Get Fur Trim

Fur tinted all corners of the rainbow adds a new note to some of this spring's suits, coats and dresses.

A number of designers are using trimmings of Southwest African Persian lamb, dyed to match or contrast, on their newest outfits. There is, for instance, a jacket of gold-colored leather with a collar of gold-dyed lamb, worn with a matching skirt and blouse of wool jersey.

A cashmere sweater becomes a creation with the addition of a sailor collar and matching belt of dyed lamb. A blonde satin evening jacket looks more elegant than mink with a border of matching Persian lamb.

Although fur trimmings usually are considered as fall and winter fashions, these new treatments of the soft, light-weight Persian lamb dyed in pastel tints look as springlike as the flowers in May.

Miss Louise Galphin and Mrs. Sally Klingenschmitt greeted the 35 guests and invited them into the living room where the appointed tables were placed.

Floral arrangements of roses, iris, and delphinium were placed throughout. Miss Frances Wahl, on behalf of the group, presented Dr. Turner with a silver sugar bowl and sugar shell.

A lace cloth covered the serving table which was presided over by Miss Annie Mae Murray. A multi-colored spring floral arrangement centered the table.

Miss Lena C. Ellis and Miss Deanie Boone Haskett assisted in serving the two-course dinner.

Goodbyes were said to Dr. Audrey Dempsey and the honoree.

Show Plane Tours Are Big Business

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

"I think it's quite likely," says blonde, breezy Betty Murray, "that I'll be booking reservations for trips to the moon before I quit this travel business."

Meantime, the dynamic Betty is doing nicely on terra firma. She got into the travel business three years ago, when she noted that Broadway shows suffered a business slump in summer, and started organizing "show plane tours" to New York from Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Detroit, Akron, Minneapolis and other inland points. The customer, had three days in New York, saw four hit shows, had lunch at Sardi's and stayed at luxury hotels. The idea was a smash success from the first.

Now Betty has raised her sights and is arranging the same kind of all tours to Europe, South America and other points around the world. So far she has sent four "show planes" to Europe, one to Brazil and this summer is planning to start a round-the-world series.

Says she: "Americans spend more on travel than on anything else except coffee. And when they go places, everybody likes to be a VIP."

VIP treatment is what Betty arranges for her tours. Last summer guests on her European junkets were entertained by the Duke of Bedford, the Lord Mayor of London, Lawrence Olivier, Ingrid Bergman and other celebrities. She comments: "I've found that the most famous people usually are the kindest," she said. "They seem really flattered that tourists want to meet them, and go to all kinds of trouble to entertain them. Even I was surprised when Maurice Chevalier gave a cocktail party for one of the groups in Paris at Maxim's."

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER

Dr. James Garfield, president of the Episcopal Theological School, in Cambridge, Mass., announces that tradition there will be broken by the admission of women students beginning with the 1958-59 academic year. To give selected Episcopal women "the same high standards of educational opportunity as now offered men," the School—which has close relationship with Harvard—will admit women seeking the Bachelor of Divinity degree, and will train them as directors of religious education, teachers of religion, and church administrators. The Episcopal Church, however, does not admit women to its parish ministry.

Selbi Gakuin, a girls' primary and high school in Yokohama, Japan, was established in 1880 by missionaries of the Methodist Protestant Church. Today it is under the auspices of the Woman's Division of Christian Service and enrolls more than 1200 girls in all departments. The largest newspaper Yokohama said recently: "At Selbi Gakuin there can be seen rapid reconstruction following a fire in the spring of 1955 in which the school lost its gymnasium and junior high school building. In June 1957 an elegant and smart building in modern style was completed. In one of the rooms in it there is complete apparatus for baking bread. The supplying of home-baked bread for school lunches was begun in October 1957. Home-baked bread for school lunches is rare in Kanagawa Prefecture. The apparatus for mixing and baking bread which has been in operation since the beginning of the second term, makes 1380 rations of bread for all the pupils and the teachers. One hundred and eighty-five kilograms (407 pounds) of flour is required for one day's supply of bread, and it takes 45 to 50 minutes to bake. This well-baked bread is very popular among the students."

More Than One Phase In The Plan

Mounting opposition to one phase of the preliminary recommendations for revamping North Carolina's court system should not detract from other recommendations which will be made by the special committee studying the problem.

It is generally accepted that North Carolina's system of courts—particularly as the system applies to lower courts—needs standardization which can only come with a drastic overhaul. It is also generally accepted that the people of North Carolina can be better served by a modern system of courts geared to modern judicial needs of the state.

The problem lies in how to achieve these ends.

In recent weeks it has become apparent that the proposal Supreme Court justices and that Superior Court judges be appointed rather than elected is not a popular one. There is every indication that the proposal, if it becomes a part of the recommendation of the special committee on courts, will not be accepted by the legislature.

The fact that one or more proposals of the special committee are not accepted does not mean that all the recommendations concerning North Carolina's system of courts should be disregarded.

Citizens of the Tar Heel state traditionally have shown a great preference for electing their officials. Indeed, in North Carolina a considerably large number of high officials are elected rather than appointed as in other states. From time to time proposals that more officials be appointed rather than elected have met with a cool reception from the people of North Carolina.

Demo Platform Now In Making

By LYNN NISBET
PLATFORM — A tentative draft of a State Democratic platform to be submitted for adoption by the convention Thursday is being prepared by an informal committee headed by Sen. Joe Eagles of Wilson. It has been the practice for many years to have one or two men write a platform, based on suggestions obtained from various State agency heads. That preliminary text is mimeographed and presented to the platform committee named by the convention. The committee approves or makes such changes as it desires and submits a report to the convention—usually late in the afternoon when most of the delegates have gone home.

Usually advance copies of the preliminary draft have been made available to delegates and the public either the day before or early on convention day. Two years ago, when the preliminary draft was prepared by State Treasurer Edwin Gill it was jealously guarded from public eyes until presented to the committee—which was not constituted until after the convention had met at noon and approved nominations by congressional districts. There was considerable protest among rank and file Democrats at this "railroading" procedure.

One result of that protest was revision of the Plan of Organization effective for all years after this, providing for appointment of the platform committee by the State executive committee at its meeting in March, and requirement that suggestions for platform declarations be filed well in advance of the convention date.

UNIMPORTANT — Since this is not a "big election year" and involves no major change in either state or national administrations, the platform is less important and not so controversial. There will be some effort to emphasize items to which Democrats officially "point with pride" or "view with alarm"—favorite clichés in party platforms.

It is a thousand to one bet the platform will condemn the Eisenhower administration for playing havoc with the nation and commend the Democratic Congress for saving the country from going all the way to hell. There will be little argument over general declarations.

The platform also will have to commend the present State administration and the General Assembly. Argument and debate, if any, will be on the degree of commendation for 1957 legislative acts and recommendations.

for 1959 legislation. Undoubtedly the platform committee will be asked to endorse all the re-organization acts, including highways and tax law revisions, of the past Legislature. It probably will be asked to endorse further proposals for changing State government operations.

As it looks from here and now, the 1958 platform of the Democratic party in North Carolina will be one of the most innocuous documents ever promulgated or one of the most controversial of any off-year election convention in many years. At this stage betting odds are about even as to which it will be.

In either even the 1958 convention and platform is just a groundbreaker for the 1960 campaign for President, Governor and full-term United States Senators.

NAME TROUBLE — The name is so prominently familiar in North Carolina nobody hereabouts has any difficulty correctly pronouncing "Seawell." Two generations of Tarheels have known judges and attorneys general and eminent lawyers and political candidates in both major parties by the name of Seawell—pronounced like it was spelled S-U-E-L.

Yankee folks don't accept that pronunciation. Clerks, bell boys and telephone operators at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington the other day insisted upon calling North Carolina's attorney general "Mr. See-well" as if they were bragging on his eyesight. Finally Judge Malcolm quit trying to correct them. "I see what you mean," he said.

GOOD WORD — Governor Hodges used a good word that ought to be more common in describing Senator Estevés Fernandes, the ambassador of Portugal to the United States. The Governor took time out on a recent trip to Washington to call on Ambassador Fernandes and give personal assurance that there was no slight to his people felt or intended in a special act of the North Carolina General Assembly establishing a separate school for descendants of Portuguese in this State. He told newsmen that he had a most delightful visit and that the ambassador is a "very knowledgeable man."

The office dictionary defines the word "knowledgeable" as a colloquialism meaning having knowledge or shrewdness. Roger's thesaurus gives as one of the synonyms the slang word "hep." The Governor of North Carolina got along fine with the Portuguese ambassador when he discovered he was "hep" to conditions in this country.

lina. It is not likely now that Tar Heels will take to the idea of having their judges appointed rather than being elected by the people.

At the same time most voters of the state recognize the need for streamlining the state's system of courts. They are anxious that sound proposals toward this end be put into operation.

It would be a mistake for the Bell Committee on courts to hinge all its recommendations for modernizing the court system on the appointment rather than the election of judges. Other of its preliminary recommendations appear sound and have received a good reception throughout the state. North Carolina can do a great deal toward improving its court system without changing the method by which it selects its judges.

Junior Is Raising An International Query

The free-spending son of Dominican Republic's strong man Trujillo has all but created an international incident between this nation and its small neighbor to the South.

Activities of Lt. Gen Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, Jr., in the United States—his lavish living and his lavish gifts to movie stars—is bound to have its repercussions in Congress and in the Administration.

It is already having its repercussions among the American people.

It has been estimated that young Trujillo is spending something like a million dollars a year during his stay in the United States while he attends the U. S. Army's Command General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. It has also been pointed out that the United States recently granted the Dominican Republic $1,300,000 in aid.

Immediately there comes this question: Is the United States financing the lavish living of the Dominican dictator's son?

If so, how long will this farce continue at the expense of American taxpayers?

If Trujillo can afford to squander a million dollars a year on his son's military education, does the government he heads need a similar amount in aid from the pockets of American taxpayers?

Though this may prove a delicate international situation between the United States and one of its Hemispheric neighbors, the situation demands a thorough investigation by Congress and the administration.

Interpreting Of Jobless Data

By RALPH ROBEY
No economic facts are watched more carefully, both within and without the Government, than those on employment and unemployment. Evidence of this is provided by the fact that the figures for April were issued about two weeks ahead of the normal release date. The official explanation of this, given by Secretary of Commerce Weeks, was that "the estimates were available at an unusually early date." It is suspected, however, that another consideration was that the total of unemployment showed a decline for the first time since last November. Specifically the total dropped from 5.2 million to 5.1 million. Employment rose 600,000 during the month.

These moves — the increase in total employment and the decrease in unemployment — are customary for the period between mid-March and mid-April. The real question, therefore, is whether the changes were as large as they should have been for purely seasonal reasons. And back to the still more fundamental question: How accurate are the figures?

Looking first at the accuracy of the figures, there are two points that need to be made. First, the total is obtained by interviewing some 35,000 families in about 330 centers. This sample is carefully selected and the answers are scientifically weighed. Because of this it is maintained that the figure on unemployment does not have an error, either plus or minus, of more than 120,000. This means that a change of a few thousand should not be considered as significant.

Second, and this is important from the viewpoint of the total, a change in the definition of who is unemployed was made the first of last year. Up to that time, anyone who was laid-off, but had work that he would be recalled within thirty days, was counted as employed. Starting in January, 1957, such individuals were counted as unemployed. This change in the definition of unemployment necessarily adds to the total. No matter how good business is there are always some workers who are in the status of being temporarily laid-off. How many of these there depends partly upon the general level of business and partly upon whether the trend of business is up or down. Currently it is believed that the total is about 25,000 larger than it would be under the old definition. The meaning of this, from the viewpoint of interpreting the figures, is that the total of today, and actually since January of last year, is not comparable with earlier data. One needs to be extremely careful, therefore, in saying that we have more or less unemployment than we did in the two earlier post-war recessions.

Now as to the question of whether the changes in April were as large as purely seasonal factors would indicate, it may be said that the decline of unemployment was substantially less than the normal seasonal. The month of highest unemployment is normally June, because of students getting out of college and looking for work. January is the season's highest month of the year. There normally is a slight decline in February, a somewhat larger drop in March, and a quite sharp decline—close to ten per cent — in April. Last year the decline in unemployment in April was 192,000, and this year it was 370,000. This year the drop was 78,000.

Another interesting question is: How much unemployment is normal? There is no agreement on this. Some students maintain that this so-called fractional unemployment should total not more than three per cent of the civilian labor force; others insist that the correct figure is five per cent. The April figure is some 7 1/2 per cent of our current labor force, and no one maintains that is either good or desirable.

Taking the picture as a whole, therefore, and making every reasonable allowance for the change in the definition of unemployment, this April report is not too encouraging. Certainly it cannot be interpreted as indicating that the employment trend has reversed.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE NEIGHBORHOOD PEST
The lonely child is the child that often gets into trouble. He is unhappy. He is filled with the feeling that he's not as good as the other guys, else he would have plenty of boys to play with. Furthermore, he is frustrated, he becomes ingrown, he hides his feelings even from himself. Psychologists find that often, in future years, these pent-up feelings, these suppressed emotions, burst into violent behavior. Even more often, they produce an adult who can never get himself adjusted to people and to the world. His life takes on patterns which bring him to old age restless, unhappy, at odds with himself and with those about him.

The child not to worry about is the mischievous little devil who's always under everybody's feet and in everybody's hair. He may be hard to take, but he's on the way to a maturity that will be characterized by wholesomeness, filled with much laughter, hedged about with many jobs. And if this community pest escapes being murdered by the neighbors, he will see the day when those provoked neighbors will join with the community in calling this wholesome adult a first-class citizen. The mama's boy is the child to worry about. The prisons are full of such. But not the neighborhood pest. He lives to hear his former detractors call him blessed.

Threat To The System

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — It is not my custom to discuss strikes. Now, however, Mr. Reuther's asking that the negotiations be postponed until the tooling time comes truly arouses one's anger. This is a Soviet-type threat. Everyone should rise up against it.

WHAT LABOR SEEKS
In this year of poor sales and profits in the auto industry, the UAW is boldly asking for a general wage increase equivalent to about 11 cents an hour. It also seeks a considerable broadening of the present pension plan, expanded hospitalization and insurance benefits, as well as more money for skilled workers.

In addition to all these requests, the Union is demanding that the Big Three—General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler—adopt a type of profit-sharing plan. This seems to me a very poor time to make such an expensive and far-reaching demand, and I predict that the auto makers will refuse to go along with it.

LIKELIHOOD OF A STRIKE
Many observers believe that the current negotiations will result in a stalemate and finally in a strike. They contend that automobile industry management are in a better position to stand firm against the more unreasonable demands of labor than they have been in recent years. I do not share this view about a strike of any length, and here is why:
The UAW treasury has already been hard hit because so many members are working only part time or are not working at all because of plant slowdowns and shutdowns. Only recently the UAW—in order to ease its financial position—was obliged to cut salaries of some employees. Although so far as is known, Mr. Reuther has not yet backed down on any of his 1958 demands, I forecast that in the end he will be obliged to compromise and a strike should be averted. But if by chance a strike should be called, I believe it will be a short one.

WHAT THE WORKERS MAY GET
It is interesting to note that the Supplementary Unemployment Benefits plan now in force in the auto industry—and which the Union seeks to expand—was originated by management (Ford) and not by labor. I expect that benefits under this SUB plan will be increased as a result of the present negotiations. Other so-called "fringe" benefits may also be increased, but only fractionally.
Provision for a wage increase of the size asked for by labor seems impossible. Perhaps management and labor will reach a satisfactory compromise on this issue. Possibly this will take the form of a sliding-scale increase or decrease tied up with sales volume or profits.

LABOR-SAVING MACHINERY
In all this discussion of negotiations between management and workers in this vital industry, I am afraid we are losing sight of one important fact: Labor's fortunes are still dependent on supply and demand. In recent years, management has shown more respect for the workingman and his place in our economy. As a result there is usually less wrangling in labor negotiations than was the case some years back. But management will not sit idly by forever and make concession after concession to labor, if labor does not do its part by boosting productivity and upgrading quality. Unwise acts by labor unions tend only to stiffen the attitude of management and to hasten and increase demand for labor-saving devices. Automation will become more universal during the next ten years. There will be vast changes in our labor situation during the next generation or two, changes calling for a series of adjustments on the part of both management and workers.

WHAT MANAGEMENT CAN DO
The agreements finally reached by the UAW and the large auto companies will undoubtedly have an eventual impact on the spread of automation.
And yet what will she do in a

Graveyard Of Peace Ships

By HAL BOYLE

The Almost-Five Stage

NEW YORK (AP)—She breaks into the room, glowing with the health of almost-five. No energy higher. Or she sags into the room, like something pushed into our family light from outer dark. At almost five—her own age and the hour—she has 10 o'clock shadow.

She melts upon the doorstep, worn out human butter, yells for the bathroom, then, later, at the entrance to her bedroom pleads against the indignity of a night that seals a day.

As a father I never am quite sure whether she has been trained by Dracula or whether she is Dracula. Are all children like this? Other parents say yes. I still wonder.

The bread I earn by my sweat to bring home to make her stronger she often leaves by her plate. But to her I am the boy who may have gum in his pockets when he arrives at twilight. This is a hero?

It is one of the great titanic struggles of my life to deal with this thing, this spawn of time, this one-hearted, two-legged, half-shelled egg, this creature that weeps and laughs and cries and plots and is my daughter.

It is called and answers to the name of Tracy. It was optimistically labeled at baptism Margaret Tracy Ann Kathleen Boyle. In play it refers to itself as Susan. In wistful moments it says, "I'm Margaret." This is the name of its paternal grand-mother.

Ask a kiss from it, and you get none. Insist you won't take any, and get a wet face.

It must be around four feet or so tall, weighs about 50 pounds, unless you lift it. Then it is eight feet tall and weighs 1,617,312 1/2 pounds.

It is also known by other aliases. A favorite is Cinderella, in which disguise, when asked to pick up its clothing, it has a set answer, plaintive but genteel, "Well, I can't be everywhere."

One who knows her wonders whether this isn't an understatement. In dealing with a child of this size a grownup has only two worries—what she is up to if you can see her, what she might be up to if you can't see her.

By almost-five you feel you can put some faith in her. You feel she has a sense of caution and won't do these things: Taste medicine, stand in a window, step into the street.

And yet what will she do in a single day? She will hold medicine to her mouth and ask, "Shall I?" She'll climb to the window. She'll run to the street and hold a foot over the pavement or maybe even put it down. But all before your eye.

You know she's daring you and herself. You know she's exploring your authority and why. Again you tell her the reasons for the rules, and you put a hardness and a softness into your voice. You tell her that if she ever breaks these few rules she'll hurt herself and that if she hurts herself she'll hurt you. By this slender string of faith all your discipline hangs on if you aren't there—that the child will follow the rules you made not so much from fear of hurting itself but you, the home of love.

Confidence is a hard thing to put in any human being at any age, and it's always a matter of timing—when and to whom. But you have to.

Other Editors Saying --- Always Outsiders

(Washington Daily News)
"He wasn't born here in Beaufort county; he's an outsider."

Those words are heard ever so often, particularly by this editor who was born in Northampton county, grew up in Wilson county, and who has lived in Beaufort county almost nine years now. All these counties belong to Eastern North Carolina.

There seems to be many people who would make a distinct difference between a person born here and one not born here. Sometimes some differences of opinion will arise, and those on one side will say "that outsider is talking again." Those words are said often without regard to merits of any proposal.

But they are often used effectively to kill some idea because such prejudice seems to find a willing audience.

There are some rather pertinent observations which can be made regarding the abuse which "outsiders" sometimes have to face. If we took all the people not born here and sent them away, we'd find most of the ministers leaving, most of the doctors, most of the manufacturing leaders, many of our leading businessmen, many of our civic leaders, school teachers and administrators. Added to these will be hundreds of other people who have come here to live and work and make homes.

It is a fact that if all the "outsiders" ever stood together, they would make quite a large group.

The truth is that most of these "outsiders" certainly want to be accepted as citizens without regard to where they were born or how long they have been here, or what position they hold, what church they attend, or club they join. More than most people realize, those who have come to our area want to feel the warmth and neighborliness which go with friendships, whether that friendship is of long or short standing.

Some of the people now living in our community who were not born here are making tremendous contributions to a better community. They are wholeheartedly supporting our schools and churches. They are leading figures in community development. They enjoy giving out with their energies and enthusiasms toward the goal of making this a better area in which to live.

Those who often place the mark of "outsider" upon those not born here are often using the weapon of prejudice to kill ideas and ideals which might stand us in good stead the years ahead. Instead of killing with prejudice, we need to think in terms of embracing with open minds.

The place of one's birth should have nothing to do whatsoever with his usefulness as a citizen. This is home to one who lives here, regardless of where fate happened to allow him to be born. And where one's home is there his heart is also.

Those who were born here could do a lot to make the "outsiders" become "insiders." Progress demands that we not think in terms of place of birth but rather in terms of activity in life. One is living here in this area is useful, productive, and worthwhile, why worry about where he was born?

Those who are switching from butter to olive and corn oils for frying, and many other appear to be changing from butter to margarine for use on bread, vegetables and other foods. Olive oil sales appear to be at a new high.

The switch has been so large that companies dealing in the heavier fats are reported to be considering a half-million-dollar campaign, to convince the public that their products are beneficial.

And now, just as everybody has prescribed for himself, Dr. Margaret J. Albrink and Dr. Evelyn B. Man, of Yale University Medical School, have reported to Association of American Physicians that another fatty substance, triglycerides, seems to be more closely associated with heart ailments than cholesterol.

This theory is new and needs further testing. Meanwhile, many in the food industry are wondering and worrying whether their products contain or cause triglycerides—and what will happen to sales.

Sale Of Margarine Tops Butter

So many farm areas originally politically opposed to margarine changed their minds. Congress, once bowing to pressure to restrict and tax margarine, was under pressure to cut taxes and let makers color it the same color that the dairy industry colors butter.

It did. Yellow margarine won considerable social acceptance. Guests could scarcely tell it from butter, if at all, and the old stigmatizing campaign was over. And people in the oil-crushing industries and stockholders in the big food corporations, all of whom went merge, acted as if the spread was divine.

The rise in the price of other foods contributed somewhat to sales of cheaper margarine. Unemployment may have had a minor effect last year and may be having more right now.

DREADFUL CHOLESTEROL
But one of the most important, though little noticed, reasons was the rise in public fear of cholesterol, a substance believed to accumulate on the walls of blood vessels, leading to circulatory disease. Some cholesterol seems to be needed by the body, but too much may cause heart attacks or strokes.

Nixon Taking His Liberty Message To The Workers

By STANFORD BRADSHAW

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Shrugging off Communist hecklers, Vice President Nixon prepared to carry his liberty message direct to Colombia's workers today as crowds continued their enthusiastic welcome.

Police kept a tight rein on Colombia's 5,000-member Communist party, which obviously was determined to create as much of a disturbance as possible. Authorities arrested at least 12 demonstrators yesterday after police dispersed some 200 jeering, hooded students in a crowd of 2,000 and another group of about 80 youths in the crowd of 1,000 which watched Nixon put a wreath on the statue of Simon Bolivar.

Generally, however, the Colombian crowds were friendly or enthusiastic. Communist-led students reportedly had planned to pelt Nixon with coffee beans and rotten fruit, but the best they managed was to chant anti-U.S. slogans while a military band played the Star Spangled Banner. Mounted police with drawn sabers scattered the troublemakers.

Cleveland Housewife New 'Mrs. America'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)

Mrs. Helen Giesse, a slender, 34-year-old housewife from Cleveland, Ohio, today started a series of personal appearances as "Mrs. America, 1958."

Mrs. Giesse, brown-haired, hazel-eyed mother of three, was chosen Saturday night in competition with women from the 48 states and District of Columbia. Judging was based on domestic skills, grooming, cultural accomplishments, poise and attractiveness.

Mrs. Giesse's husband, William, served the customary breakfast in bed yesterday, then flew to Cleveland where he is an advertising executive. "I was not surprised," said Giesse, 38.

Mrs. Giesse said she never entered a contest before and only went into this one at the urging of her sister, Mrs. Mary Jo Barkley of Chargin Falls, herself a finalist twice in the Ohio contest.

Boy Confesses To Killing Child

EAST HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Police said today a 13-year-old boy has admitted slaying 6-year-old Cathy Palumbo last night.

The boy— not identified because of his age—had sexually assaulted the girl, police said. Cathy's bruised body, her face and head battered with a rock, was found in swampy woods near her home.

The boy was picked up at his home last night, a few hours after two boys found Cathy's body at the base of two boulders. He told police he and Cathy had been playing in the woods. Police said they found bloody clothing in the boy's home.

The area where the girl was found is thickly wooded. It is not far from Long Island Sound.

The boy was taken to a detention home in New Haven. No criminal charges were placed against him immediately.

The girl was identified as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Palumbo of East Haven.

Zsa Zsa Admits Chinchilla Gift NEW YORK (AP)—On second thought, says Zsa Zsa Gabor, L.G. Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., son of the Dominican Republic dictator, did pay for her $17,000 chinchilla cat.

Miss Gabor had flatly denied a first report that the coat was a gift from the 29-year-old Trujillo. "It was a present from me to me," she first said. "From Zsa Zsa to Zsa to Zsa."

She said yesterday that Trujillo had paid for the coat as a sort of thank-you gift for giving a party in his honor in Los Angeles some weeks ago.

Miss Gabor said she had mentioned to Trujillo that she was getting a chinchilla cat. Trujillo, she said, picked up the tab without telling her.

"I couldn't be more surprised," exclaimed the thrice-married actress. Mrs. Gabor described Trujillo, married and the father of six, as a very generous man . . . very nice and polite.

Her mother, Jolie Gabor, admitted she wasn't surprised by the gift. "So what do you expect— for him to send flowers to a girl like Zsa Zsa?" she asked.

She closed the weekend it was disclosed that the dictator's son had bought a $5,000 foreign car for Miss Gabor and an $8,400 model for actress Kim Novak.

Trujillo dated the actresses while on medical leave from the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College at Leavenworth, Kan. He will be graduated May 20.

Elon Bats ECC Off Conference Perch With 11-2 Win

Buc Errors And Lack Of Hitting Cost Them Game

East Carolina held the North State Conference baseball lead for one day last week and then surrendered it back to defending champion Elon Saturday night at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Elon club drummed the Buc 11-2 to snatch back the lead by one game.

East Carolina took over the top slot in the standings by defeating Lenoir Rhyne 2-1 here Friday afternoon, while Elon was getting whipped 5-4 at Atlantic Christian. That moved EC's mark to 8-1 and put Elon at 9-2.

The Saturday night victory by Elon pushes the Christian record to 10-2 now, and leaves ECC in second place again with an 8-2.

With four rained-out ball games still lurking around behind the picture, East Carolina seems certain to continue playing ball for at least another week until the definite champion is decided. Elon also has three rained-out tilts to play.

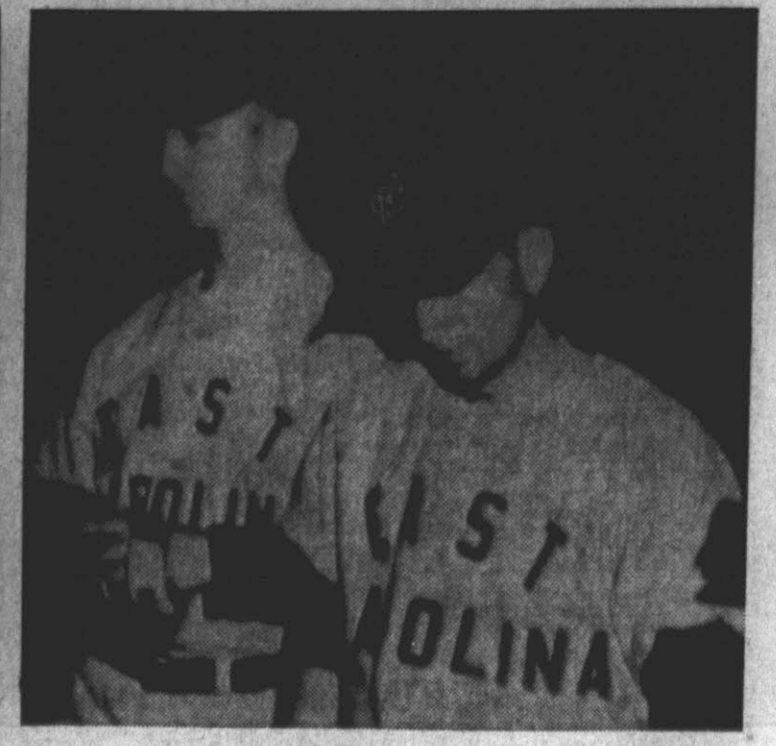

Saturday night, before an almost-full house, the Pirates started off in roaring form. Leadoff batter Jerry Stewart cracked out a long double to begin play. The Buc then proceeded to load up the bases, but Elon hurler Willie managed to retire the side without any damage done.

After that, East Carolina didn't threaten substantially until the final inning, when the Pirates managed to push across two runs—their only ones of the game.

In the meantime, Elon tagged onto two big innings—the fifth and sixth—to rain in a batch of runs and make the game somewhat lopsided, scorewise. The Christians collected a majority of their nine hits during the two aforementioned innings and also capitalized on DOWNHEARTED—ECC hurler George Williams and teammate Bill Altman were caught by the photographer at Saturday night's tilt, showing their disappointment. The Buc's dropped an 11-2 decision to Elon and lost the league lead at the same time.

ECC Tracksters Win North State Title

Maryland Wins ACC Track Championship

DURHAM (AP)—There's an unfulfilled ambition for Dave Sime, who blazed out of Atlantic Coast Conference competition with a triple victory in the annual track meet.

The rangy Duke senior from Fair Lawn, N.J., is aiming for 9.2 seconds on the 100-yard dash.

"That's my four-minute mile," said Sime, who came to Duke to play baseball and became a sprinting sensation.

His time in the 100 was 9.5 seconds in the fifth annual ACC track meet here Saturday. It was enough for victory, and it tied the conference record he set in 1955.

Sime also picked off the 220-yard dash and the javelin events and was voted the meet's outstanding performer.

Maryland's powerful club wrapped up the team title for the third straight year. The Terps finished with 72½ points, far ahead of runner-up Duke with 44.

Six conference records fell.

Wayne Bishop of North Carolina posted a record mark of 9:19.9 for the two-mile, improving on the 9:25.3 set by Mike Shea of North Carolina State in 1956.

The high jump mark was broken by Tom Tait of Maryland. He swept over the bar at 6 feet 5½ inches, three inches better than the record held by George Hogan of Maryland.

South Carolina's Don Goodroe ran the 120-yard high hurdles in :14.3, one-tenth of a second better than his own ACC record set last year.

The Duke mile relay team set a record 3:17.0 time. Maryland held the old record of 3:19.7, set in 1956.

The qualifying preliminaries saw Sime toss the javelin 212 feet 10 inches for a new ACC record, and Ed Cooke of Maryland improved his own shot put record with a heave of 54 feet 2 inches.

Following Maryland and Duke in the team totals were North Carolina 37, South Carolina 24, Clemson 23, Virginia 22½, North Carolina State 2, and Wake Forest 0.

Softball League Opening Tonight

Greenville's Industrial Softball League opens tonight at Guy Smith Stadium and the loop will flash a New Look.

Two new teams have been added to the old league, making a total of five clubs. Besides the old standby teams of Greenville Parts and Metal, the Graniters, and Carolina Dairy, the league has taken on a pair of rookies in Coffman Men's Wear and the Quality Eastern Oil Company teams.

Several rule changes have also come into effect which promises to throw the league wide open and usher in a brand new faster brand of ball.

The league is affiliated with the Amateur Softball Association of America and is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department.

The new rule changes state that all players must be residents of Pitt County (the area was smaller, restricted to Greenville last year) and that no college students will be allowed to participate unless they have established residence in this county and listed taxes as of January 1, 1958.

The teams clashing tonight at Guy Smith will be the Greenville P&M vs the champion Graniters in the first game, and the Carolina Dairy vs Coffman's immediately following.

On May 14, one game will be held: Coffman's vs Greenville P&M.

On May 16, the Graniters will face Quality Eastern Oil and Greenville P&M will play Carolina Dairy.

Games are slated to begin at 7:00.

HIGH POINT—East Carolina's Hart, High Point 5, Clifton Buck, Jessel Curry, a sophomore from Portsmouth, Va., romped over individual competition in the 1958 North State Conference championship track meet here Saturday to pace the Pirates to a sweeping victory.

ECC compiled a total of 90.35 points to keep the title it won in 1957. Next in line was Elon with only 46.7. Catawba was third with 38.0. High Point had 32.2, Guilford and Atlantic Christian poled 8.85 each.

Curry, seeing his first season with the Pirate cindermen, copied four first places and one second to tally 24 of the Buc's points. Going into the meet, the sneaky transfer from the University of Kentucky had racked up 95 points against competition and was the leading point man on the East Carolina squad. His total Saturday moved his mass points to a blazing 119, the best figure in ECC track in a long, long time.

He won first place in the 100 yard dash, the low hurdles, high hurdles, and broad jump and finished second in the javelin toss, his distance of 22 feet, four inches in the broad jump was a new conference record.

Two other East Carolina boys broke North State records during the meet—a feat that is becoming almost expected when ECC enters the conference meet. Eddie Dennis set a new standard in the javelin of 179 feet, four inches. Teammate Dennis O'Brien established a new pole vault at 11 feet, one and a half inches.

During the past three years the meet has been held, ECC boys have broken records in each meet. Last year, Foster Morse and Jim Henderson were the big record smashers.

Other outstanding performances were recorded by East Carolina's Jim Speight, Bobby Maynard, Royer Bullock, Morse, Charles Bishop, Cliff Buck, Frank Freeman, Randall Holmes, Bob Patterson, The Mile Relay team of Patterson, Pond, Bishop and Edwards also collected a first.

JESSEL CURRY... a soph

Mallory Discusses Rained-Out Games

ECC Coach Jim Mallory said this morning that arrangements are under way to schedule the four rained-out North State Conference ballgames next week.

"We definitely can't play them before our exams are finished this week, he said. "Our boys have used up all their cuts and cannot miss classes now, so it looks like we'll just have to finish playing after school closes."

All four games are away tilts. Word is being waited upon from Appalachian concerning the possibility of playing a double header at Boone, next Saturday.

If that can be arranged, the Buc's will try to schedule games with Catawba and Guilford on the swing back toward Greenville on Monday and Tuesday.

"We just hope they'll play us," Mallory said.

At present, the league is in a uproar. Elon, the league-leader at 10-2, also has four games to play with Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba, Appalachian and Atlantic Christian.

Another bug in the ointment: Coach Mallory pointed out, "Elon plays two more games in conference than we do—not because we wanted it that way but because Guilford and Lenoir Rhyne agreed to play us only once. Therefore, if we win all four of ours and Elon wins all four of its games, they would beat us on percentage: they'd have a 14-2 and we'd have a 12-2."

As of right now, nothing is definite concerning the rain-out tilts except that "We intend to play 'em all, if they'll play us."

Stan And Mates Celebrate

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A party honoring Stan Musial's 3,000th hit turned out to be the celebration of a four-game winning streak by the St. Louis Cardinals.

"It's a good celebration either way," Stan the Man said in the dressing room. Musial made a dramatic run at the 3,000th milestone with five hits in a double-header sweep over the Chicago Cubs.

He is now only two hits shy and expects to get them today or tomorrow at Chicago. Musial had three straight hits in the second game before going out his last two times up.

"It's great to be winning again," said Musial, now batting an incredible .494. "We've started to get some breaks and the pitching and hitting is looking better."

The party at the restaurant of Musial and his business partner, Julius (Biggie) Garagnani, was set up before the four-game series with the Cubs. Musial then needed seven hits, but that seemed to be a large order even for a seven-time batting champion.

Some 350 of Musial's friends attended the party and the guests included U. S. Senator Stuart Symington, Missouri Governor James T. Blair, and St. Louis Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

Stan went hitless the first two games of the series, after hitting safely the first 17 games this season, but he announced the party was on, whether he made it before the home fans or not.

Stan admitted he bit at bad balls his last two times at bat.

"Maybe I was trying to crowd something into four games that it took me 15 years to accomplish," he said.

The Cubs made the pitches too wide to reach in walking Musial his last two times up in the first game. The crowd of 23,416 booted lustily.

The 37-year-old Cardinal star will occupy a unique place in the record books when he does reach the 3,000 hit mark.

Clemson Taking No Chances Now

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clemson, taking no chances with its first place 11-2 Atlantic Coast Conference baseball record, planned to start ace pitcher Harold Stowe today in a makeup game with third-place Duke.

Stowe, a left-handed, 170-pound junior from Gastonia, N.C., has an amazing 10-1 record for the season. He's one of the main reasons Clemson has an edge on second-place North Carolina (10-2) in the close race for the conference title.

Except for today's makeup of a game rained out May 2, Clemson has ended its season. North Carolina plays at Maryland today and closes the season Thursday against Wake Forest.

The Tar Heels responded to Clemson's title-race pressure Saturday with a 15-7 victory over Virginia. In Saturday's only other game involving ACC teams, Maryland defeated Wake Forest 11-6.

Congregation Supports Powell In His Fight For Re-Election

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (D-N.Y.), under indictment on charges of federal income tax evasion, has the support of leaders of his Harlem congregation. Powell, pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church for 20 years, did not appear yesterday to deliver two scheduled sermons. His followers jammed the Harlem church. At the end of the noon service the ministers, board of deacons, board of trustees, women's committee, men's committee and the staff of the church passed a resolution affirming their full support of the Negro minister. Powell has shunned public appearances since a federal grand jury indicted him last Thursday on three counts of income tax violations. If convicted on all counts he would face a possible maximum penalty of 30 years in prison and $30,000 in fines. The congressman's troubles have been compounded by Democratic party moves to refuse him renomination. Powell reportedly is planning a full slate of candidates if Tammany Hall drops him. An overflow crowd of more than 3,000 appeared for each service yesterday at his Negro church, which has one of the largest Protestant congregations in the country.

Among those attending were Powell's stepmother, Mrs. Inez Powell, and his 11-year-old son, Adam Clayton (Skipper) Powell III. Powell's wife, pianist Hazel Scott, is in Paris, where she has remained for most of the last three years. Meanwhile, an investigation seems likely into why government counsel delayed 14 months in presenting material on Powell's tax

Has First Class Seat For Girth

NEW YORK (AP) — An air tourist's girth gained him a first-class seat yesterday on a flight to Europe. Just before an Israeli Airline plane was preparing to take off for London from Idlewild Airport, the plane's purser reported a passenger in the tourist section was so large he was unable to fasten his safety belt. It was decided to move the passenger — a man whose name and weight were not disclosed — to a first-class seat where safety belts are a few inches longer. The plane took off, all passengers securely fastened.

affairs to the grand jury. Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) said yesterday a public explanation of the delay is called for. Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-NY) chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has asked for a White House probe of reports that U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers ordered the Powell case dropped while he was a deputy attorney general. The government last Friday launched a probe of possible outside influences in Powell's indictment.

Another Nuclear Test In Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. scientists set off another nuclear test explosion yesterday in the mid-Pacific. It was at least the second blast in the current series. A joint announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department said yesterday's nuclear test detonation took place at the Bikini Atoll. The announcement provided no other details. Last Wednesday, the AEC confirmed a congressman's report of a nuclear test explosion on April 28. AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss told a National Press Club luncheon last Thursday that official announcements will be made whenever there are nuclear tests "of any significant nature as they occur" during the test series. There was no indication in yesterday's announcement of what was significant about the blast it reported. The government has said the current series is being conducted to further development of weapons for defense against missiles and aircraft and to try to reduce further the radioactive fallout from nuclear weapons.

Time Is Near For Some Kind Of Tax Decisions

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — The time is near when Congress must fish or cut bait in the muddled tax waters. Business taxes passed as a Korean War emergency expire in seven weeks. And in the next few days more official figures on the extent and trend of the slump will be at hand, figures for which the Administration said it was waiting before making up its mind. The deadline on the corporate income tax and the excises on such things as autos, cigarettes and freight and passenger transportation — plus the clearer view of the recession — could force a decision on tax cuts one way or the other in Congress.

Those who expect tax cuts argue that relief for business, if granted could hardly be unaccompanied by relief for individuals, especially in an election year. Those opposing any tax cuts now fear that a greater federal deficit and higher debt total would set off more inflation. Business hopes for tax relief now are highest on two fronts: Some lowering of the excise taxes on goods and services hit by the slump, and a change in the rules on depreciation allowance which might spur more buying of equipment and expansion of plants. The corporate income tax is set to drop at the end of June from the present 52 per cent to 47 per cent, unless Congress acts. Few businessmen doubt that will be done. But some hope for a compromise — say 50 per cent of gross earnings going to the U.S. Treasury. The biggest fight, however, is for an excise tax cut. Industry's side of the argument is that this could revive sales of some floundering durable goods, and perhaps help the ailing railroads.

The battle for depreciation relief takes two forms: One proposal is to inspire building of new plants and ordering of new equipment by cutting the time a company can write off its depreciation for tax purposes. The other is for general revision of depreciation rules. Business argues that existing plants and equipment also shouldn't have to be written off at their original value, but at more realistic replacement values, which are in most cases much higher.

Individuals hoping for some relief, too, from the high personal income tax rates see a chance to get on the bandwagon if business gets any part of what it's asking. They argue that lowering personal taxes would give most people more money to spend in the retail markets and would give some people more money to channel into investments, particularly into risk capital by which industry goes into new ventures to the future good of the whole economy.

Then there are those who hold that recession or no recession taxes are just too high. They say that even in good times taxes stifle business and hamstring consumers and that lower rates would spur economic activity that higher corporate gross earnings and higher individual incomes might bring more into the U. S. Treasury in the long run, even at the lower tax rates. The debate between those wanting tax cuts to fight recession and those fearing a deficit and inflation as the greater evils has been on and off during the spring months. It seems sure to build up to a climax before June is very old.

Three Weeks To Go On Contracts

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry's Big Three and the United Auto Workers Union resume contract negotiations today with three weeks to go before present agreements expire.

Negotiators were expected to discuss a proposal for arbitration suggested Saturday by UAW President Walter P. Reuther. It received a cold shoulder in first management reaction. Reuther made his offer in a letter to Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn). Copies went to General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Asking binding, impartial arbitration on economic demands, Reuther said the total amount to be awarded would not require a price increase in cars. He proposed separate five-member arbitration panels be named for each company. "This is another one of Mr. Reuther's publicity maneuvers in which he says in effects 'heads I win, tails you lose,'" said Louis G. Seaton, General Motors vice president in charge of personnel.

Crashing Plane Damages 2 Cars

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A crashing Navy jet, the ninth to fall in the area in the last 15 months, did slight damage to two parked cars and a rooftop and narrowly missed two restaurants yesterday. The pilot, Lt. Derek Wilson, 26, Los Altos, bailed out without injury. His F8U-1 Crusader went out of control as it approached for a landing at Moffett Naval Air Station, the Navy said. The jet skinned a tent and a hamburger stand and crashed in flames 100 feet from a restaurant filled with Mothers Day customers, eight miles west of San Jose.

Boy Accidentally Kills His Father

ONTONAGON, Mich. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy accidentally shot his father to death yesterday on a family target practice outing. Frank Stork, 47, Ontonagon father of four children, was killed by a revolver bullet. Sheriff Mike Livingston said Stork gave his son, Jerry, the gun to hold while he changed a target and suddenly it fired. Stork, a pulp mill worker, had taken his wife and daughter Susie, 9, and Jerry out for target practice a half mile west of town.

Tito Warned To Toe Soviet Line

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev has reportedly warned independence-minded President Tito to toe the Kremlin line lest he undermine the solidarity of the Communist world. Sources close to the Soviet Embassy said Russian Ambassador Ivan Zamchevsky relayed the warning in a letter to Tito when he returned from Moscow Saturday. He brought word the Soviet government had postponed indefinitely President Klement Voroshilov's visit to Yugoslavia. The Soviet premier was said to have told Tito communism's solidarity depended on Yugoslavia's standing hereafter openly with the Moscow bloc. Zamchevsky had reported to Moscow on the Yugoslav party congress at Ljubljana last month at which Tito and his ministers spelled out their independence. Tito's stand touched off a flurry of rebukes from Russia, Red China and Czechoslovakia. Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, hinted that Russian economic aid to Yugoslavia might be stopped unless Tito gets into step. Pravda ran a blast yesterday from the newspaper Voice, organ of little Albania, longtime foe of Yugoslavia. The article accused the Yugoslav Communists of revisionism and pro-imperialism. It charged Tito and his lieutenants with anti-Marxist and anti-Leninist crimes. Reports that Voroshilov's visit would be called off had circulated for days as the split between Tito and the Kremlin widened. The Yugoslav went ahead with plans to receive the Soviet leader until the last minute.

Father Lost To Death In Dash Across Country

DALLAS (AP) — An airliner bringing Navy Cmdr. Leonard Robinson from Boston set down at Fort Worth yesterday at 2:55 p. m. His son, Leonard Jr., 14, died at almost the same minute in a Dallas hospital, 25 miles away. He was shot in the head accidentally Saturday while bird hunting with two youthful companions near Waxahachie. The father, assigned to the aircraft carrier Wasp, had started a cross-country dash in hope of arriving before the boy died. Another son, Jimmy, 8, is at Boston's Children's Hospital to await surgery for a tumor behind his eyes. The boys' mother died of a brain hemorrhage two years ago, and Robinson has remarried. Leonard Jr. was staying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McElroy, at Waxahachie.

Competition For Eskimo Dogs

SWAN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — The word "mush" may soon be on the way out of the Eskimo's dictionary. Idaho snowplanes are replacing yapping dog teams for transportation in Alaska. Swan Valley Rancher H. L. Weise, a part-time designer, already has sent three snow skimmers to Arctic regions and is preparing more. Besides being more comfortable, snow planes don't eat meat. There are Washington Townships in six New Jersey counties and a Washington borough in another.

Comedian Red Skelton's Son Loses To Leukemia

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton and his wife, Georgia, today found some solace in the belief that the international publicity on their son's valiant but losing fight with leukemia may help future victims of the cancer-like disease of the blood. "I want the thousands of people who have written us that they prayed for Richard during his illness to have faith that God will answer their prayers," said Skelton.

The 9-year-old boy died Saturday night after a 18-month fight with the disease. Only blood transfusions had kept the child alive in recent weeks. A final brain hemorrhage sent the boy into a coma that lasted an hour. He awoke briefly and whispered: "I can't see. Everything is fuzzy."

A doctor turned off the light in the UCLA Medical Center room five minutes later and told the parents that the boy had died. It was a moment the Skeltons had dreaded for more than a year. When it came, they were too stunned to move. Mrs. Skelton said she and Red sat quietly weeping beside the boy's frail body for a half-hour. His father knew earlier in the day that Richard had little longer to live. "He and I watched 'Mighty Mouse' on television in the morning and then leaped through the Sears-Roebuck catalogues, Red said. He wanted a tent and a camping outfit for his birthday (May 20). He picked a Mother's Day blanket for his mother, too." The funeral will be held tomorrow at Forest Lawn's Church of the Reconciliation at 2 p. m. Richard will be buried in the Forest Lawn Mausoleum's Sanctuary of Prayer. The rites will be Protestant, a family friend said.

Entombed with him will be a crucifix blessed only Saturday by Pope Pius XII. Last year the Skelton family had a private audience with the Pope. "It was a highlight of the boy's life," Skelton told a reporter. On Saturday the boy asked his father if he could get a crucifix blessed by the Pope. It arrived after the boy's death.

The Skeltons are not Catholics but both Richard and Valentina, 11, attended parochial school at St. Martin of Tours Roman Catholic church. The boy was unusually religious. His room was filled with religious statues and pictures. The funeral comes on the day Red's show is seen on the CBS-TV network. He told an associate to notify the network and the sponsors he did not want even a filmed show on the air that day. "People understand how I feel," he said.

Texas YDC Raps State Assembly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Young Democrats rebuked the state Legislature yesterday in an obvious reference to recently adopted segregation laws. A resolution approved at the convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of Texas censured what it called attempts to "illegally circumvent the Constitution of the United States as interpreted by the Supreme Court." In the resolution the Young Democrats also urged "economic equality for all races."

Reopened, But A Smelly Project

WASHBURN, Wis. (AP) — Hanson's Tip Top Cafe is back in business, but it took a crew of city workmen, a fire hose and a shotgun to get the front doors open. The men used the hose and gun to get rid of a family of seven skunks that had made its winter home under the floor of a vacant store next door to the restaurant.

CHAPTER 6

"By George! I think I have it," I told the art dealer. "Try holding your thumb and forefinger and getting the thing in a circle—the picture I mean."

He tried it. "Yes, yes," he said with cautious enthusiasm. "It works, doesn't it?"

"It certainly does," he agreed. He was afraid to ask what it was that worked.

"A circular purple frame," I said. "Purple on the perimeter with a gilt strip on the inside."

"Circular!" he exclaimed.

"Certainly," I said in my most condescending manner. "I'm quite certain the artist didn't approve of a rectangular frame on this. The whole motif of the picture is circular, the circular sun, the circular halo of bright orange—why, that's what I've been telling you all along. That's why I was making a circle of my thumb and finger. I thought you said you understood."

"I did, I did," he said hastily. "I—Well, I was thinking in technical terms of the difficulty of getting a wooden circular frame. I see your point, of course. The purple around the outside to rest the eye, the gilt rim on the inside to carry out the effect of the glare."

"Exactly!" I told him. "I want to talk with the artist about this."

"Well," he said dubiously, "of course if you're going to buy the painting, I could—"

"But certainly!" I interrupted. "You don't think I'd take up your time, making all these suggestions and then bother the artist in a matter of this sort if I didn't intend to buy the painting. I'd buy it just as an investment, if nothing else. Someday that artist is going to be famous."

I took out my wallet, opened the side containing the expense money, and counted out three twenty dollar bills.

"Where can I contact the artist?" I asked.

"I believe I could arrange an appointment for you."

"Fine! How long will it take?"

"Well, of course I'd have to get him, and—"

"He has a telephone?"

"Yes."

"Why not give him a ring?"

"Tell him that a customer wants to talk with him about his painting. I'd like very much to have the artist supervise the framing. It will be necessary to crop a little in the corners, of course, and I'd want to have the artist's approval before I did that."

"But the painting is yours, Mr. . . ."

"Billings," I said. "Donald Billings."

"The painting is yours. You can do what you want with it."

"Not with a work of art," I said. "A man can buy the right to possess a painting, to hold it, to look at it, to hang it in his home, but he certainly has no right to deface or destroy it, to cut or crop. I would want the artist's permission."

The dealer said, "I'm quite certain that when I tell Mr. Dutton you have paid fifty-seven dollars for his painting 'Sun Over the Sahara,' he won't care if you put it through the meat chopper."

Suddenly the dealer realized he had gone too far. He said, "Ha, ha! That, of course, is a joke, you understand. I'll get Mr. Dutton right away."

The dealer didn't let me hear the conversation. He plunged into a private office, but came out within about three minutes. His face all wreathed in smiles.

"Mr. Horace Dutton," he said, "lives in Apartment 316 at the Wisteria Apartments. He was most interested when I told him your reactions to the painting. He would like very much to talk with you hour and a half."

"Fine!" I said with dignity. "Now if you'll wrap up the painting, please, and give me a receipt, I'll be on my way."

"We can deliver the painting to—"

"No, thank you. I'm in a hurry. I want to have the artist look at this right away. I may have to leave town."

I got the painting and the receipt. A taxi took me to the Wisteria Apartments. I hoped I would not run into Lois Marlow in the elevator or in the corridor. It was a chance I had to take.

I went to the third floor and pressed the button on 316. The door was flung open. The man on the threshold looked at the wrapped package under my left arm.

"Mr. Donald Billings?" he asked.

I nodded my head with dignity. "You're Dutton?"

"I'm glad to know you," he said. "I'm glad to know you." He pumped my hand up and down. "It's a real pleasure to meet someone who understands art, someone who has positive ideas, original ideas. Come in, come in! This is indeed a pleasure. Mr. Billings, this is my wife, Caroline. Mr. Billings is the one who bought the painting, dear. Do sit down, Mr. Billings. Let me have your hat. Put the painting over here. Now for a drink. What will you have?"

"Gin and tonic," I told him. He poured three drinks.

Dutton was a wiry man with burning eyes and an intense drive about him. His motions were jerky. His talk was jerky. His wife was different. She was a woman who would get one idea and play that idea through to the end. Her husband was like a nervous terrier chasing ground squirrels in a big field. He'd dig at one hole for a while, then dash off to dig at another. Not Caroline. She's sit and watch and wait and pounce, and when she pounced, she'd have what she wanted.

She was somewhere around thirty, and had a good figure, but there was a grim purpose in her face that kept her from being beautiful.

Dutton gave me the drink.

He said, "I understand you have an idea for the framing of the picture."

I put down my glass, got up and went to the picture. With hands that were almost reverent, I removed the paper, placed the picture upon an easel, stood off and looked at it. I put my thumb and forefinger together in a circle, and regarded the picture gravely.

After a moment, Dutton did the same.

"The motif of the picture is circular," said "The circular sun, the circular orange-yellow aura, the streaks all radiating from the center."

"Symbolic of sunlight," Dutton said.

"Of course," I told him. "The picture should have a circular frame."

"By George, Billings! You're right!"

"I wanted your permission," I said. "I want to cover the smallest possible part of the painting, but I want a circular frame."

"You're right! You're absolutely right!"

"It's a daring concept," I told him. "It has originality. It has force. It has impact. It has terrific character!"

He was going along with me. This promised to be easy.

High Finance Is Not Very Simple

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Back in 1936 the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company purchased a huge heavy-duty engine lathe for $6,600. In 20 years it was depreciated on the books in the amount of $6,300 and this amount set aside for replacement.

It was sold for $3,700, making $10,000 available for replacement. The new lathe cost $36,000 and $26,000 had to be taken from profits after taxes. Taxes amounted to 54 per cent of earned profit and, therefore, $7,000 had to be earned in profits. The company figures it required $807,000 in new business to make enough to buy the new lathe.

Good Reason To Abandon Caution

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Municipal Traffic Judge Bob Last said there was no doubt the man before him was guilty of unsafe driving but added that there was "a pretty good incentive."

The defendant said he drove his automobile off a 12-foot bluff onto railroad tracks while speeding away from two unknown attackers who threw hot grease in his face when he visited his girl friend's house. The charge was dismissed.

Mirrors are invaluable in many professions. Dentists, aircraft inspectors and many other scientists would find their techniques considerably slowed without the aid of mirrors.

NEW YORK (AP)—Selected stocks were in demand as the stock market was mixed in active trading early this afternoon.

Most key stocks showed fractional changes. Wider moves were made by a few issues.

The market backed away from its latest 1958 high and was generally lower in early trading. Improvement set in before mid-day, leaving the general pattern irregular.

American Motors continued to race ahead as investors looked kindly on reports of expanding production and sales of its Rambler car. It looked as if this stock would be the most active list for the fourth straight session.

Studebaker-Packard took a share of the limelight as the firm planned to emulate American Motors by putting out a new economy model car.

Overall background for the market included an upturn in retail sales, a rise in housing starts for April and a decline in the number of workers drawing unemployment benefits.

American Motors rose 1/4 at 13 1/2 on an opener of 9,000 shares, in-

Price Fixing Conspiracy On Polio Vaccine Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Rogers today announced the indictment of five big drug companies on charges of antitrust violations in the sale of polio vaccine to federal, state and local governments.

He said the indictment was returned by a federal grand jury at Trenton, N. J.

The firms were named as: Eli Lilly & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; Kansas Laboratories, Inc., Kansas City, Mo.; American Home Products Corp., New York City; Merck & Co., Rahway, N.J.; and Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit, Mich.

The companies were described as the sole producers of polio vaccine in this country from the time the success of the Salk formula was announced in April 1955.

They were accused of conspiring to fix prices and eliminate competition in sales of the vaccine.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Victor R. Hansen, in charge of the antitrust division, said in a statement: "A substantial victory over the disease of polio was won when the success of Salk vaccine was announced in 1955. In the distribution and sale of this vaccine which is so vital to safeguard the health of the nation, we must be ever alert to insure that there is no collusion among producers to raise or maintain prices at artificial levels.

"The indictment returned today charges that vaccine producers have combined to submit uniform bids to public agencies, to adopt noncompetitive terms and conditions of sale, and to establish uniform pricing methods. Price-fixing activities involving such a significant industry and such substantial sales require criminal action by the department."

Truck Hits School Bus; Man Killed

PAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An industrial laundry truck ripped into the side of a school bus loaded with Alabama ninth graders Sunday, killing an adult accompanying them on a holiday trip.

The dead man was Ralph Reed, 27, editor of the weekly Arab, Ala., Tribune. His wife, sponsor of the ninth grade class at the Union Grove, Ala., junior high school, was injured.

The 38 children, their principal and his wife, and the bus driver, also were listed with injuries ranging from critical to minor. Six children and two adults remained in hospitals overnight.

The truck driver, Marvin Ellis Burns, 31, Florence, Ala., listed in serious condition at a local hospital, was charged with drunk driving and manslaughter.

"I saw it was going to happen," said the bus driver, Silas Graves Berry, 54, Rt. 1, Guntersville, Ala. "I didn't have time to do anything but give the wheel a little cut. If I hadn't done that we would have hit head on."

The principal, Wayland Cooley, 40, said he was sitting on the right front seat when he saw the truck.

"I just had time to grab a rail and brace myself. Reed was sitting right across the aisle asleep. He had his head on a pillow against the window. He never knew what happened."

The two vehicles collided in front of the home of a Negro farmer, Clarence Dixon, about a mile north of the Alabama line.

Dixon was awakened by the early morning crash and ran out to the bus.

"I forced the door from the outside and somebody inside the bus helped. All those children were screaming and hollering and bleeding."

Cooley later went back to Dixon's house to thank him for his assistance.

The hospital here was soon overflowing with the injured. Extra emergency rooms were set up and five doctors were hastily summoned.

authorized transfer of a $93 balance in the Sam Rayburn Dinner treasury. The money was left in the Rayburn Dinner Fund last fall after Chairman Clark had paid to the regular county party presented $13,000 to the national Democratic Party treasury.

In electing their delegates to the state party convention, precinct representatives named most of their 88 delegates, and no delegates-at-large. The at-large delegates were passed over this year, because of the Executive Committee's feeling that "delegates should come from the precincts where the votes are cast."

Five of the county's 25 precincts—Arthur, Belvoir, Child No. 3, Falkland and Grimesland No. 2—were not represented at the county convention and their delegates to the state convention will be named later this week. They are expected to be named, Clark said, prior to Thursday morning when state convention delegates from the First Congressional District will meet in Raleigh's Wake Theater at 10 a.m. to name district party officials.

Delegates and alternates who were named and precincts they will represent include:

Ayden (9): delegates Bill Stroud, W. C. Cannon, J. D. Cannon, Joe H. Whitaker, Jack Quinerly, R. G. Jackson, R. H. Worthington, R. H. McLawhorn and Corey Stokes; alternates Mrs. J. P. Sumrell, W. N. C. Republican Candidate Named

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The Republican candidate for the late U.S. Sen. W. Kerr Scott's seat says he's starting out in June to "go all over the state and knock on as many doors as I can."

Richard C. Clarke Jr., 43, an insurance executive from Hendersonville, was named as a candidate Saturday by Mrs. Louis G. Rogers of Charlotte and J. E. Broyles of Lenoir of the national GOP committee.

Clarke's name will be presented for official action when the GOP State Executive committee meets May 24 in Gastonia. The committee asked Mrs. Rogers and Broyles to make a selection.

Wins County Road-e-o Event Sunday

SAFE DRIVING ROAD-E-O . . . Jaycee President Bill Taylor, winner Lendy C. Edwards, Chairman Frank Hill.

Grimesland Senior Named Top Pitt Teen-Age Driver

A Grimesland High School senior who wants to be a dentist is Pitt County's best teen-age driver.

Lendy C. Edwards, 17, was named winner of the Safe Driving Road-e-o held at the airport here yesterday afternoon.

The teen-ager, who plans to enter East Carolina College next fall to take a pre-dental course, received a big kiss from his girl after he was announced as winner over eight other contestants.

Chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored project, Frank Hill, presented a plaque to the Road-e-o winner and certificates to the other participants in the contest.

Both the second and third place winners also came from the Grimesland school and all are seniors there.

Rufus Eugene Buck was named second place winner and last year's top winner, Curtis Lane Wagener, was named to third place.

Each of the contestants had been among those who took written examinations in the various county schools as a preliminary to yesterday's Road-e-o. A high score was required on the written exams to qualify.

Anderson won the Road-e-o by performing best four complicated driving feats. First the contestants were required to drive the straight line course. They had to keep the car wheels within rubber balls set up with a minimum clearance.

Next came the serpentine course in which they weaved the cars among the barrels set up on the airport runways.

Third in the series of driving tests was the curve and offset in which contestants rounded a curve and then moved into an offset area several feet to their left without knocking over building barrels.

Finally they demonstrated their ability at parallel parking.

Jaycee Bill Laughinghouse secured the cars from local auto dealers for the contest and John Blankenship set up the course at the airport, Hill said.

Other contestants in the Road-e-o included: Joe Anderson, Jr. and Charlie M. Dickens of Epes High School; Franklin Steinbeck and William Sutton of Rose High School and Robert Stokes of Pitt County Training School in Grimesland.

Two Accidents On City Streets

An auto operated by a local woman crashed into a parked automobile on Harding St. around 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

The vehicle was operated by Mrs. Betty Mills Dixon of 2536 Sunset Ave. according to police. Her car collided with a parked car belonging to Clarence Monk of 408 Harding St., officers reported.

Damage to Mrs. Dixon's vehicle was set at $400 and to Monk's car at $75.

Mrs. Dixon told officers she swerved her vehicle to avoid hitting a boy on a bicycle.

At 12:45 Saturday afternoon two cars were involved in a collision at 13th and Washington Sts. Drivers were identified as Preston Peterson, Negro, of 1405 Clarke St. and Mrs. Bessie Barefoot of 108 E. Eighth St.

Mrs. Barefoot was injured in the collision, officers stated. Damage to her car was set at $150 and damage to Peterson's vehicle was estimated at $200.

Peterson was charged with failing to yield the right-of-way.
