CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Jeering mobs of students spat on Vice President Nixon today and grabbed at Mrs. Nixon before police, using tear gas, drove them away. It was the most hostile reception the Nixons had received in their South American tour.

South America, arrived here amid rumors that he was to be the victim of an assassination attempt. Venezuelan authorities in advance of his arrival had discounted these reports and given assurance that Nixon would be well-guarded.

Tarboro's Flood Is Receding Faster Than Expected; Heavy Damage Seen

TARBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Tar River was receding faster than expected in the Tarboro area today. But its retreat was marked by evidence of extensive damage to the mud-caked homes of the Princeville community.

Matthewson said he saw at least four houses knocked off their brick and cement block foundations, and, he said, water also tore porches loose from other homes.

The Weather Bureau said the crest of nearly 30 feet on the Tar at Tarboro yesterday was only four feet shy of the record depth reached in 1919. It was three feet above the last serious flooding in September, 1945.

Lowlands In Pitt Inundated By Swollen Tar; Waters Still Rise

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer. Old Tar River, rolling through Eastern North Carolina with unaccustomed bigness, made swamp lands out of more Pitt County low ground last night.

The river rose eight inches between 4 p.m. yesterday and 10 a.m. today to push its flood-level reading to 19 feet, seven inches at the Greenville Utilities Commission's power plant. It is expected to continue rising slowly throughout the remainder of today, but local government officials are looking for an early crest to the flood.

The Tar was reported at 30 feet at Tarboro yesterday afternoon, more than 11 feet over its banks. In Pitt, the river has already chased an estimated 30 families out of their homes in the Meadowbrook section of North Greenville, but Bloxam said there was not much water above the floors in any of the evacuated houses and that flood waters had not reached the floors in most of them.

Bloxam's outlook was echoed by other local government officials, Civil Defense personnel and Red Cross workers who met this morning to plot emergency plans if the river continues to swell. Opinions expressed at the meeting pointed to a feeling that the flood situation will remain "minor" and will not develop into anything more serious than it is now.

Husband's Headache Saves Many Retailers

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor

The sack dress may be a headache to husbands, but it has been a lifesaver to retailers across the country, a survey of buyers and dress manufacturers reveals.

Furthermore, New York manufacturers in all price brackets will have few conventional wasteline dresses in their fall collections.

Even the most conservative say the new fall silhouettes will be about 90 per cent some variation of the chemise, the trapeze or the shift.

Meanwhile, consumer surveys across the country bring back almost identical replies: most men dislike the chemise to the point of violence.

Resistance to the new unfitted styles is stronger in the higher priced lines. As one buyer explained: "A man doesn't object too much if his wife spends $15 or $20 on a dress he doesn't like. But if the dress is going to cost $200, he hits the roof."

Abe Schrader, manufacturer of medium-priced dresses and costumes, reports: "If it hadn't been for the chemise and trapeze, our spring orders would have been away off. As it is, we're selling them like hotcakes."

Adele Simpson, designer-manufacturer whose dresses and suits retail at from $70 to $200, says: "There will be no normal wasteline dresses in my collection for fall. I've just returned from a trip to stores around the country, where I talked with customers in the dress departments, and I found that a surprising number of large women love the unfitted silhouette. They have found that if they normally take a size 18 in a fitted dress, they can wear a size 16 chemise—it makes them feel slim and glamorous."

Mrs. Kittrell To Be Chairman Of Local Campaign

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell of Greenville has been named chairman of the local campaign for the statewide Annie Kiser Bost Scholarship Fund, according to Mrs. P. McCain of McCain and Wilson, the North Carolina chairman.

A $50,000 endowment is being raised in the state to underwrite a scholarship in the University of North Carolina School of Social Work at Chapel Hill. The scholarship will be named for Mrs. Bost, who was for years State Commissioner of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Bost, the widow of North Carolina newspaperman Tom Bost, lives in Raleigh. The scholarship to be established at Chapel Hill is a tribute to her service in the cause of public welfare in the state.

Mrs. Kittrell announced that the Annie Kiser Bost Scholarship will be awarded annually to a person employed in social work in North Carolina, with preference given to a person employed in public welfare, and consideration being given to a graduate of Woman's College of the University from which Mrs. Bost was graduated.

Mrs. Everett Has Clubbers For Cards

ROBERSONVILLE—When Mrs. Walter Ellis Everett entertained Our Bridge Club Wednesday evening at her home near Robersonville, the rooms were decorated with azaleas and giant pansies.

Cold drinks and cheese crackers were passed during the games. After several progressions Mrs. Jarvis Whitfield was awarded high score prize and Mrs. Garland Warren won the second prize.

The hostess served pineapple cake and hot coffee after the gifts were opened.

Thursday Bridge
BETHEL—Mrs. Frances Rowlette was hostess to her bridge club Thursday afternoon with five members and three visitors present for the game.

Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville city schools, addressing honor students at the dinner, challenged them to "preach the gospel of scholarship" and to encourage people to believe that "the people who think are the people that count."

"We ought to prepare to live in a scientific world," he said. In future, he stated, we will live in a world based on skill, hard work, and brain power.

"In our schools," he continued, "the Phi Beta Kappa, the egghead, the eager beaver, is going to find a place of increasing respect. The time has come when people in the home are recognizing more and more the need for scholarship and are encouraging young people toward better achievement."

He urged East Carolina's honor students, most of whom will become teachers, to encourage respect for the student who applies himself to his work and makes the best use of his talents.

"The Russians," he said, "encourage learning by force. In our democracy, we should arouse a desire to out-learn them."

Vice President Leo W. Jenkins, dean of instruction at the college, presiding at the dinner, noted the fact that at present "It is fashionable to honor our bright people."

"The Honors Dinner," he said, held for the first time last spring, was instituted and, according to plans, will be continued from year to year in recognition of those who have achieved outstanding records in academic work."

A program of vocal music was presented by Miss Dottie Jo James of Wilmington and George Knight of Rocky Mount, with Miss Carolyn Hinton of Zebulon as accompanist.

Guests of the occasion included David J. Whitchard Jr., editor of the Greenville Daily Reflector; heads of departments of instruction at the college; and members of the East Carolina administrative staff.

Student Art Exhibit On View

The Department of Art of East Carolina College announces the second annual student exhibition, which will be on view in the Joyner Library on the campus for the remainder of this week.

The exhibition was arranged under the direction of William Persick of the art faculty. The work features problems typical of the numerous classes taught during the past year on campus. On exhibition is work in watercolor and oil painting; wood cuts and linoleum cuts; ceramics; sculpture; textile design and weaving; commercial design; crafts; and design for the home.

Among works now being shown are several which have been of special interest as selected by the art faculty for the permanent collection of the college. This is student work which the art staff feels is superior in quality and which calls for special citation.

Among the pieces selected are oil paintings by Nancy Lilly of Miami, Fla., and by Tom Mims of Henderson, William Holley of Wilmington had two of his pieces of work selected for the permanent collection. One is a sculpture in plaster and the other a small relief sculpture in fired clay.

Ann Hughes of Pollockville is represented in the permanent collection by an ink drawing; and Janet Hill of Elizabeth City, Sydna Cash of Winston-Salem and Daryl Bateman of Durham by ceramic bowls.

During the year each senior is responsible for a senior exhibition of his work. While this work does not appear in the annual student show, work of the quality expected for the permanent collection is retained for that purpose. Among the students who have had their work retained during the year are Lettie De Loach of Conway and Walter Joseph Stell, III, of Greenville.

Dr. Wellington B. Gray, director of the department of art, stated as the exhibition began that he is well pleased with the increasing emphasis on quality of work being produced and congratulated the faculty and students alike for the tremendous strides made during the present school year.

Homemaker Has Famous Name

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures Beauty Editor

There must be an advantage in having a celebrity's name, says 17-year-old Mary Martin, "because nobody ever seems to forget you."

The Tyler town, Miss., belle who just won a national college homemaker contest and a $5,000 college scholarship that goes with it, says she's sure, however, that "it didn't influence the judges."

Lovely, slim, green-eyed Mary had to wait until she was a senior at New Zion High School before she could enter the contest but

"We live too far away from each other to congregate after school at dance, record or nibble sessions, as young people up North can do. Most of my friends live on farms as I do."

But that has its advantages, too, because sitting around a soda store could make you fat, grins Mary, who claims to be a hearty eater but doesn't have that corn fed look. She has the slim lines of a fashion model, a beautiful complexion and lustrous eyes.

"I don't have time to gain weight," she says. "I help my father on the farm with the chickens and cows. I'm pivot on our basketball team. I am a 4-H girl. I pick berries, walk in the woods, and across the fields. Even the daily walk down to the mail box is quite a hike."

She likes every vegetable from carrots to turnip greens, drinks lots of milk, eats all meats, fish, oysters, and, of course, fried chicken. She adores corn bread sticks.

Mary plans to study home economics at college, but she doesn't plan to work after marriage, unless she finds a man who can't support her.

Her biggest thrill, next to winning the prize, was seeing Maurice Chevalier perform at the Waldorf, and hitting the jackpot of seeing him do an impromptu duet with Mariene Dietrich, who was in the audience.

"They were the first celebrities I'd seen close up. They're wonderful. Miss Dietrich is beautiful," says shining-eyed Mary.

One of 49 finalists brought to New York for the award-winning dinner, Mary had no idea she had won until the announcements were made. She has one sister, Frances, 15. Her father and mother, Bird and Clara, are teachers in the school she attends, where she is scheduled to give the valedictory speech on her return.

Silk has fine draping quality and is also crease resistant because of its natural resiliency.

MARY MARTIN

"After four years of waiting, I knew I'd have a chance if I did get the opportunity, and I knew exactly what I wanted to say in the homemaker questionnaire."

Her specialty is cooking. "I've been doing it since I was 11," she says, "and pies and cakes are my forte."

Devil's Food cake is her claim to fame at home. "It's my father's favorite recipe," she says. But her young friends seldom get a chance to sample that or her other culinary achievements, and the young men of Mississippi may never know what they missed.

Mrs. Gray Has Ex Libris Club

ROBERSONVILLE—The Ex Libris Club met Tuesday evening with nine members present at the home of Mrs. Martha Dell Gray which was decorated with arrangements of iris and vases of roses.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Gray, president, and a routine business session followed. Due to illness in the family, Mrs. Clinton House was unable to give the program as scheduled.

Books were exchanged, then a social hour was held. The hostess served ice cream soda, chocolate layer cake and salted peanuts.

The last meeting of the year will be held on May 19 at the home of Mrs. Edgar Johnson.

More, Better Ports Development

North Carolina and its new ports director are headed toward a period in which the development of the state's two deep-water ports will have an increasing impact upon the economy of the whole state.

Once long ago one of the important outlets for world trade on the Atlantic Coast, North Carolina for decades neglected the potential it had in deep-water ports. In recent years it has realized the necessity of developing its ports. It has invested millions of dollars in order to provide facilities and develop water commerce. And it is making progress with its ports.

One of the most obvious needs of North Carolina's ports is that of developing a greater variety of cargo handled through the ports. So long as the ports rely on one or two principal commodities to provide the bulk of its cargo they will be much in the same position as farmers who rely on one or two cash crops to provide their income.

In the development of its deep-water ports, North Carolina must have the cooperation of manufacturing and business firms within its own boundaries. It must also develop traffic from other states.

Sooner or later the state must also develop small inland feeder ports. Without developing inland water traffic and inland port facilities, the state cannot reasonably hope for its deep-water ports to reach their potential.

While the state is now in a position to invest an appreciable amount of money in inland port facilities, it should place more emphasis upon the development of such facilities, by private interests or local governments. Through the State Ports Authority greater aid should be provided local communities in planning and developing river transportation and river port facilities.

May Abandon Welcome Signs

CASUALTY — The project sponsored by the Travel Council of North Carolina to erect handsome welcome signs and landscape the entrances of main highways into the state may become a casualty of the hard winter. Governor Hodges some weeks ago tentatively promised $50,000 from highway surplus funds at his disposal for this year.

The extremely severe weather during the past winter, followed by heavy rains in the spring, did millions of dollars damage to highways. Inclement weather and hard-to-travel roads, plus the general economic recession, cut down travel and consequently revenue from gas taxes.

Committed with declining revenue at the same time demands for maintenance have exceeded all expectations, some highway officials are questioning the wisdom of using any substantial part of the money for beautification instead of construction and repair of roads.

One man explained it this way: Hospital and medical care insurance have come to be regarded as necessities for the average family. But if a man is sick and needs to go to the hospital right now, and has less than enough money for the immediate hospital bill, it doesn't make much sense to spend it for insurance against future needs.

Neither the Travel Council nor the highway folks have abandoned the project. It is likely that it will be deferred or undertaken on a less pretentious scale.

SOLID — Sam Wilhite, southeastern regional representative of the Democratic National Committee, spent a day or two in North Carolina after visiting half a dozen other States. He is confident that this year and in 1960 the term "Solid South" can again be applied to the whole area.

There are some hotly contested primary campaigns in several States, but little chance that enemies will carry over into the general election. He found that some congressional districts might re-elect Republicans, but sees no prospect for any Southern State to turn in sizeable votes for a Republican President two years from now.

Wilhite said he had talked with men working in the Western States in comparative capacity to his work hereabouts, and they are enthusiastic about Democratic prospects. Farmers in all areas are unhappy and disturbed. Prices of beef cattle and hogs have been rising, but dairy pro-

The sooner North Carolina begins to develop an effective system of inland port facilities, the sooner it will expand in tonnage and variety of commodities the cargo handled through its deep-water ports.

All Of A Sudden, Three More Highway Deaths

Three tragic traffic fatalities in Pitt County during the past week-end is a grim reminder that death still stalks our highways.

Until Saturday Pitt County had suffered only two traffic fatalities during 1958. Then in a matter of hours three more lives were snuffed out.

The serious traffic accidents in Pitt in recent days should serve as a warning to local motorists that one can't take too many precautions on the highway. At the least expected moment tragedy may be lurking at the next curve, the next intersection, or on the next straight stretch of highway.

If They Let The Trade Act Die

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — What happens if Congress ignores President Eisenhower's request to continue the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act and lets it die? Not much — for awhile, anyway.

For example: Eisenhower couldn't then agree to lower any more tariffs on goods imported from abroad. But all the present agreements with 43 countries—under which various tariffs have been lowered — would stand unchanged.

Bit by bit, over a period of time, he might be pushed into raising tariffs, thus beginning the wreckage of all the good will built up over 24 years. There would be a diminishing confidence abroad in American trade policies.

But Eisenhower might actually prefer to see the act die this year — in the hope of getting it renewed next year — than to have Congress extend it for a year but put in changes that would start ripping trade agreements apart in a hurry.

This is the background: The Smoot-Hawley tariff law which Congress passed in 1930 not only raised American tariffs to the highest point in history but — since other countries retaliated — contributed to the depression here and abroad in the 1930s.

To get world trade going again Congress in 1934 passed the Reciprocal Trade Act. It gave the President authority to lower tariffs on certain goods imported from other countries if they agreed to lower their tariffs on certain items imported from us.

In these agreements there was an escape clause which either side could use.

For example: If an American manufacturer felt he was being injured because a tariff had been lowered on some particular import which competed in the American market he could appeal to the United States Tariff Commission.

The commission would hold hearings, make an investigation, and perhaps recommend to the President that he use the escape clause to raise the tariff on an import which, in agreement with another country, he had lowered.

Under the act the President was free to suit himself: raise the tariff or reject the commission's recommendations and let the tariff stand untouched.

That brings us up to now. The Trade Act never was permanent law. Over 24 years it has been repeatedly renewed by Congress for a specified period of time. Otherwise it would have died.

It will die automatically June 30 unless Congress renews it. Eisenhower asked for it to be extended five more years. As explained, if it dies, present agreements remain unchanged. The escape clause remains unchanged, too.

If the law dies a manufacturer can appeal to the Tariff Commission. It can recommend to Eisenhower that an agreed-on tariff be raised. He'd still be free to raise it or let it stand as is. But he couldn't lower any more tariffs.

This is a recession year. A number of businesses complain that some imports — whose tariffs are now part of agreements with other countries — are hurting them. So the Trade Act has many foes inside and outside Congress.

If the act dies, there will be increasing pressure on Eisenhower to use the escape clause to raise tariffs. If he does so, other countries will retaliate by using the escape clause to raise tariffs against us.

But if the law dies he can still reject the increases and in another year — particularly if the recession recedes — can go back and ask with better hope of success that the law be renewed again.

The act's enemies might do the whole trade program more damage by renewing it this year with crippling changes. That might include a provision giving Eisenhower no choice but to raise tariffs if the Tariff Commission recommended the action to protect an injured American industry.

Found His Net, And Fish

Police Lt. Tommy Gladson decided to go net fishing the other day just as the river had begun to rise.

He set his nets at the Memorial Drive bridge. But alas, the swiftly moving waters pulled the net loose and it sailed down the river.

Tommy thought the net lost forever but decided he would look for it anyway. Surprisingly it caught at the ABC trestle. The officer retrieved it there practically undamaged.

"It took about $1.50 to patch the holes," he said. Oh yes, there were several fish in it, too.

People in the path of the flood Tar in North Meadowbrook came under the watchful eye of Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson and Police Chief S. G. Gibbs Sunday night.

The residences of the area who had watched the river rise for the past several days went to bed and to sleep as usual.

However, the waters continued to rise through the night and gradually got up around four houses in the area.

The sheriff and the chief made checks in the low area during the night and when the water reached the houses they began waking up occupants.

Those within the dwellings moved out everything they could. The rest they stacked on beds and placed in other high places. By yesterday the water was above the floors of the dwellings.

However, the five did not know until the very last minute just who had won.

They waited back stage as Alvin Taylor reported.

bridge called first Jane Carter as third place winner. Next he announced Carole McDaniel in second place.

Finally he announced pretty Betty Lane Evans as winner of the pageant and as he did a Miss Greenville banner was pinned upon her.

Thus she was wearing the banner as she walked on the stage, but Miss Evans did not learn she had won until the audience did.

She shed tears of joy on hearing the announcement.

Other Editors Saying --- Over-All Perspective

(Rocky Mount Telegram) H. Rowan Gaither, the man who as chairman of the Security Resources Panel of the President's Science Advisory Committee issued a report late in 1957 pessimistically comparing the relative strength of the United States and Russia, has issued further warnings to the American people.

In an address to alumni of the California Institute of Technology, Gaither said he does not wish to be a prophet of gloom, but that realistic appraisals of the growing Communist bloc potential indicate the U. S. may lose its industrial leadership among the nations of the world in the next 15 to 30 years.

"America must view its strengths and weaknesses in the time perspective of the remaining years of the twentieth century," he said, "in the social perspective of what we want America to be, in the politico-military perspective of the external threats to our values and principles, and in the humanitarian perspective of our acknowledged responsibilities to mankind everywhere.

"In this total perspective, I am alarmed. In this total perspective, the relative strength of the United States is not adequate to these historic responsibilities."

Gaither's concern relates to the long-range effect of Russia's industrial buildup. He is concerned over the fact that Russia is currently graduating 500 engineers per billion dollars of gross national product, while this country graduates 60. He is concerned over the fact that the Soviet Union, although it has an industrial foundation equal to only two-fifths that of the United States, "maintains a thoroughly modernized and menacing military establishment and prosecutes an increasing program of foreign economic subversion and inflation."

With all of its backward areas, lower living standards and ill paid workers, the Soviet machine has already placed the U. S. on the defensive. What will happen when the USSR reaches its full potential is what concerns Gaither.

"There is time to repair this situation and to build our relative strength," he adds, "if we act decisively and act now. The United States is the world's most powerful nation today. If we act now it will remain the most powerful nation in the future."

Propaganda warfare is the most urgent void to be filled in Washington. Time and again the Russians have made great gains in world opinion by unwarranted attacks based on the most trivial of subjects. These attacks have been successful because they have been absorbed — not vehemently rejected and counter-punched, as they should have been — by Washington.

To turn the other cheek may make good fiction, but it is the worst possible way to handle a bully. It is not lack of propaganda material which has prevented the U. S. from waging a successful cold war campaign against the Kremlin. Soviet submarines have, for a year or more, been patrolling the East Coast of the United States — many of them off the Florida missile-test coastline.

The U. S. has not demanded the immediate recall of all Soviet submarines, as it should have done, with the alternative of having them sunk. But the Russians attempted to make propaganda about American planes flying over Alaska, although the planes never approach the Soviet boundaries.

Propaganda may have evolved into a dirty word because of the way in which it has been misused by would-be world conquerors, but it is the only weapon the free world has — short of all-out war — to keep the bear on the leash.

Door-To-Door Selling Effective

By ELMER ROESSNER
Maybe it's true that most salesmen just aren't trying. President Eisenhower has said that increases in consumer buying can end the recession, but survey after survey has shown that auto and other salesmen don't appear to be trying very hard. Newsweek reporters wandered through auto showrooms and few salesmen even asked them what sort of car they were interested in. A New York newspaper sent a team of reporters to auto and furniture salesrooms and they were seldom asked to buy. In many places salespersons were too busy gassing among themselves to talk to shoppers.

But among the door-to-door companies, whose salesmen sell or starve, sales are holding up well and in many cases are higher than a year ago.

RECESSION? SAYS WHO?
The biggest of the 3,000 companies in the field, Fuller Brush, reports that sales so far this year are running ahead of the same period last year.

"Furthermore, we expect the rise to continue throughout 1958," said Wallace E. Campbell, spokesman for the company.

"Our sales are running ahead of last year," said Earl Lifshy, public relations director for Electrolux. "We have not been adversely affected by the recession."

Incidentally, Electrolux moved up into the big time in the depression of the Thirties. The company was founded in 1924 and was just swinging into stride when the depression hit. It determined to push ahead. It was able to recruit some of the best and perhaps hungriest salesmen in the country and built up sales and reputation to the point where it is now said to sell more vacuum cleaners than even the giant appliance companies.

E. GER, BELL-PUSHING GIRLS
Avon, the other in the "big three" in door-to-door selling, also reports that sales so far this year are ahead of the same time last year. It sells mostly cosmetics.

"Many of our representatives are married women," said Miss Anna J. Figsby, director of company relations. "When their husbands are threatened with layoffs, or husbands lose their jobs, these women redouble their sales efforts. The fact that our sales are rising shows that hard-sell can get results even in times like these."

On the other hand, Edward L. Sard, executive director, says that sales of members of the National House to House Instalment Companies were down 6 per cent in the first four months of the year.

"Ours is a special problem," he said, "because we sell installment goods only. These call for longer commitments than such items as brushes or perfumes."

"The decline has been caused largely by the drop in sales in the auto centers and other areas of unemployment. In the rest of the country, most sales are quite satisfactory. However, the slow-up in collections is quite general."

SALESMEN AVAILABLE
Most of the house-to-house companies reported that more and better salesmen were available these days. Fuller Brush said that an advertisement may attract five times as many responses as it would have a few months ago. Electrolux, on the other hand, said that some men are reluctant to give up the security of unemployment benefits for the uncertainty of commission work. But, Mr. Lifshy hastened to add, his good salesmen earn far more than they used to at salaried jobs.

Most of the salesmen working for the 3,000 house-to-house firms are paid commissions, sweetened with bonuses and prizes. Some get drawing accounts and some others get salaries and commissions. However, the commission rate for this last group is usually lower than those paid sellers on straight commissions.

Officers Are Named By Student Council

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland Reporter
Next year's Belvoir-Falkland High School Student Council officers were elected last week by BFHS students.

James Joyner was named president of the council and will serve with vice-president Linda Smith, secretary Betty Harrell and treasurer Betty Thomas. In addition to the elected officers, Barbara Parker was selected by English teachers to serve as reporter for the Student Council and the school next year.

While the campaign was being conducted, halls of the school were decorated with posters and on election day each of the candidates made a campaign speech.

Members of the Senior Class were honored at a weller roast on May 2 by members of the Freshman Class. The party, held at the Falkland Community Center, included horseshoes, badminton and dancing.

Initiation for new members of the Monogram Club was held Monday and Tuesday of last week.

Girls who were initiated wore balloon dresses, men's shoes and new hair styles. A few of the boys who were also accepted for membership in the club were mistaken for girls when they appeared in skirts and lipstick. In addition to the requirements for weird dressing, each of initiates had a specific task to complete.

A Southeastern School Assemblies program, "Jungle Wonders," was presented for the student body on May 8. Included in the program were three talented dogs, several monkeys and birds. The trainer of the animals also related the history of various animals and explained how they were trained.

Eighth grade students at Belvoir and Falkland elementary schools were guests of the high school on Eighth Grade Day Friday. Purpose of the all-day program was to acquaint the eighth graders with high school activities.

President Dorothy Harris of the sponsoring Student Government Association and Principal E. N. Warren welcomed the students to the program. New SGA officers were introduced and presidents of clubs at BFHS explained aims and purposes of their groups.

During a recess period, the visiting students were served ice cream and were guests at a social hour. After lunch, the eighth graders organized a baseball game.

Chaperones for the Senior Trip to New York were hosts Friday at a hayride and weller roast for members of the class. The Seniors were taken by a hay-filled truck to a park near Vanceboro for the weller roast.

Expects Backing For Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor Mitchell was expected to endorse today a House-passed bill to extend unemployment compensation benefits for idle workers whose rights are exhausted before next April 1.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said in advance of Mitchell's appearance before the Senate Finance Committee he had been assured of strong administration backing for the measure.

"I hope we can complete hearings on it this week and can report it to the Senate without any major changes from the form in which it passed the House," Byrd said in an interview.

The House bill generally followed the lines of President Eisenhower's recommendations. It would authorize an estimated 600 million dollars in loans to states, which would have to repay the money. The measure did not, as Eisenhower proposed, make the proposed extension mandatory on the states.

Five In Family Killed In Wreck

INDIO, Calif. (AP)—Five members of a West Covina, Calif., family were killed in a car-truck collision last night.

The highway patrol said they were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bennett, both about 35, and their three daughters, aged from 6 months to 5 years.

A fourth daughter, Carol Bennett, 7, escaped serious injury. The accident occurred on U.S. Highway 60, about 34 miles east of Indio.

The truck driver, whose name was not learned, was unhurt.

Peron Is Ready, Eager To Return To His Homeland

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Ousted dictator Juan Peron says he is ready and eager to return to Argentina if its Congress will let him.

Peron said last night he will remain in the Dominican Republic until the new Argentine government decides whether he can go home and reorganize his followers in the Peronist party.

"I have no plans for going to Europe or elsewhere," Peron said with a smile in his small white-shuttered suite. "I am waiting here to see what the news from Buenos Aires will be."

The support of Peronists was a big factor in the election of Arturo Frondizi Feb. 23 as Argentina's first elected president since military forces ousted and exiled Peron in September 1955.

Frondizi said Congress would decide on Peron's return. The Argentine Senate is now considering a bill granting political amnesty to many of Peron's followers. The bill is not believed, however, to pardon the ex-dictator and some of his top lieutenants, charged with common crimes.

Peron has been in this little Caribbean dictatorship since leaving Venezuela shortly after dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez was overthrown Jan. 23.

Peron first put up here at the swanky hotel Jaragua but now he is living at the Paz, a bustling tourist favorite because of lower rates. The armed guards he had outside his Jaragua suite are missing now but hotel employees try to steer people away from him.

The barking of four French poodles owned by his secretary, Senorita Isabel Martinez, drove away the suite's location to this compartment. Peron came out glowing with health and looking cheerful and confident.

Friend In Wreck, He's Involved

DETROIT (AP)—A man who was asleep at home at the time of the accident has been sentenced to five years probation for manslaughter in a traffic crash that took two lives.

William Marshall, 33, of suburban River Rouge, loaned his car to Neil McClary, 18, of Lake Orion, Feb. 3 after they spent the day drinking. He then went to bed.

McClary struck a car driven by James Goldiron of Taylor Township. Both died and a Circuit Court jury found Marshall guilty of manslaughter because he loaned the car to McClary while the youth was intoxicated.

Under probation, Marshall must not drink for five years, pay $1,275 to bury Goldiron, not drive for two years, drive only for business the last three years and pay $15 weekly support to Goldiron's three children.

McCONNELLSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Roberts of McConnellsville won't have to listen to that old joke anymore about "one more son and you'll have a baseball team." Their ninth straight son was born at Bethesda Hospital in Zanesville. They have 10 children in all—the first was a girl.

Textile Union Thinks Time Right To Organize In South

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The political and economic climate is not ripe now for launching a full scale organizing drive in the South by the Textile Workers Union of America, one of its top organizers said today.

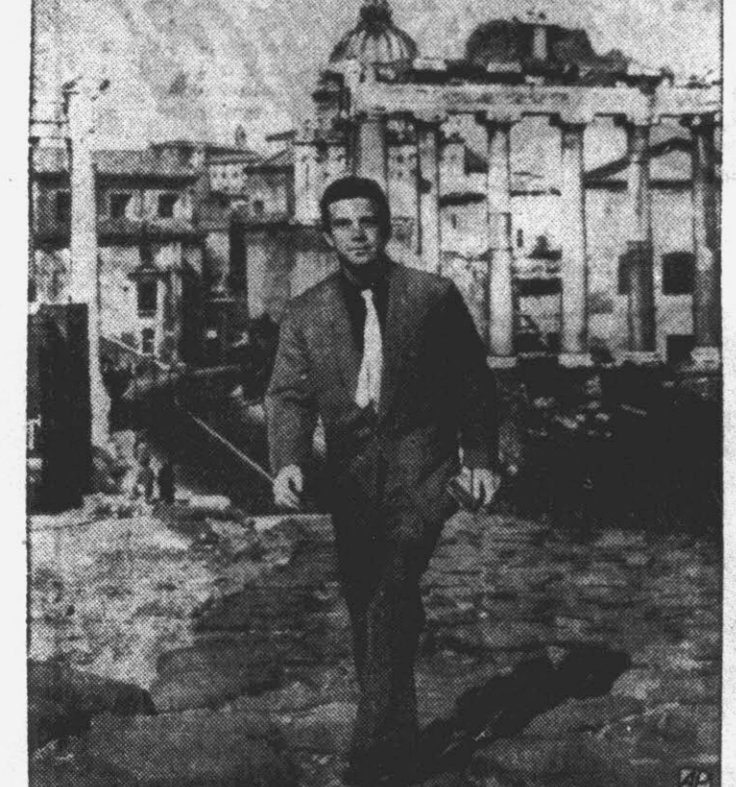

As long as this situation continues, the union is planting seeds "for what we hope will be later sprouting," said Boyd E. Payton, Southern director of the TWUA. The 290,000 member union is holding its convention here.

Of about 500,000 textile workers in the South, about 75,000 are members of the TWUA and another 20,000 are affiliated with United Textile Workers, the bitter rival of TWUA in the organizing field.

Casino Is Moved Without Closing

SPARKS, Nev. (AP)—How do you go about transplanting a gambling casino without closing down?

It's easy, says Dick Graves, who moved his Sparks Nugget across the street to a classy new million-dollar building.

Just before the stroke of midnight Sunday, a band in the old casino sounded Auld Lang Syne. Workers hustled dice tables, slot machines and kitchen and bar equipment across the street.

The customers trooped along. Police closed off the street while the carts of cash rolled across. Missing hardly a throw of the dice or a pull on the slot machine, players were back at their games in the new building within minutes.

Predict A Reorganization Bill Pres. Eisenhower Can Accept

By EDMOND LE BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP)—Three senior Republican members said today they think the House Armed Services Committee will produce a defense reorganization bill President Eisenhower can accept.

"I think so; I certainly hope so," said Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, House Republican whip and senior minority member of the committee.

Reps. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) and William E. Hess (R-Ohio) agreed in separate interviews. Van Zandt said he thinks the committee bill will give Eisenhower "about 75 per cent of what he wants."

The committee starts today reviewing a draft of its own reorganization bill which completely rewrites Eisenhower's proposed legislation.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) said "I don't see why the committee can't finish its work in three or four days." Vinson also said the administration "should be able to go along with the bill the committee will agree on."

Missiles Chief For President's Reorganization

ST. LOUIS (AP)—William M. Holaday, U. S. missiles chief, came out in favor of President Eisenhower's Defense Department reorganization plan last night.

Holaday, who carries the title of director of guided missiles, Department of Defense, said the plan would strengthen the hands of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in effecting a balanced missile program.

He made the remarks to newsmen after a talk to the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences national Midwest meeting on guided missiles.

In his talk, Holaday said it is vital that "all aspects of our national defense problem be placed in their true perspective."

He said he was confident the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles would be ready for use by the end of 1959.

the committee bill and Eisenhower's recommendations are regarded as changes principally in language or in substance.

Eisenhower has set a policy of no compromises on the substance, but Secretary of Defense McElroy told the committee he would not be adamant about language changes. Van Zandt, a member of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee makes it evident that armed forces 15 or so years in the future must have radically different organizations and functions.

Gas Station Is Frequently Hit

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Roger Biddle, who runs a gas station here, has trouble. It started last fall when a new highway intersection was completed in front of his station. Traffic from U. S. 33 and 50 converges there in a "Y."

Four times to date, a car has wound up in Biddle's station, where it has taken his gas pumps to bring it to a halt.

Showdown Vote At Hand In House On Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opponents pushed for heavy cuts in the foreign aid bill today as the House approached a showdown vote on the big overseas assistance program. House leaders seemed confident, however, of staying off any major slippage below a committee-approved $3,603,000,000 aid effort for the year starting July 1. That is $30 million below President Eisenhower's request. Preliminary voting was slated for late afternoon with passage expected tomorrow. Then it would be the Senate's turn to act. Both Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) and Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass.), the Republican leader, arranged for bipartisan pleas to their colleagues to support the program which Eisenhower says is vital for both the free world and America's own security. Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.), acting chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said he was surprised at what he termed the lack of strong opposition during yesterday's opening debate. A key vote was expected to come on a proposal by Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.) to cut 340 million dollars from the $1,640,000,000 the bill carries for arms and aid to 41 allies next year. Bentley said he was not likely to win. He also called for an 85-million-dollar slash in the 185 million provided for general purpose economic aid. Rep. E. Ross Adair (R-Ind.) proposed trimming the 775 million earmarked for economic support of foreign defense programs. Rep. William A. Dawson (R-Utah) offered an amendment to require congressional committees to include their spending of U. S.-owned foreign currencies in their budgets just as they now count dollars. The committees don't have to budget foreign money outlays now. Dawson said this would show taxpayers that congressmen don't really indulge in free-spending junkies. Reps. Morgan and John M. Vorys (R-Ohio) told the House yesterday that anti-American outbursts around the world stem not from a failure of U. S. policy, but from a Soviet drive to enslave free countries. Rep. J. L. Plicher (D-Ga.) called billions of U. S. aid over the years wasted because, he said, America has fewer friends abroad now than it had before. "These neutrals are using us for suckers," Plicher added. The measure would authorize aid totaling $2,959,000,000 to 63 countries. Another 644 million authority is carried over in existing law. A separate appropriations bill — must be voted later.

Policy-Makers Of UAW Confer

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers Union resumes bargaining talks on new contracts with the big three car makers today following a top level parley of UAW policy makers. UAW President Walter P. Reuther met late yesterday with his vice presidents and other officers. The union appeared to be striving for a settlement at GM before the contract expires at midnight May 29. Contracts with Ford and Chrysler run out three days later. GM, Ford and Chrysler are standing pat on offers that would give workers an annual increase of at least 6 cents an hour plus cost of living adjustments over the next two years. The average wage in the auto industry is about $2.40 an hour. The union has put no estimate on the wage and fringe benefit demands it has made on the four car companies but it contends they are not inflationary. GM has estimated the UAW demands, not counting profit sharing, would amount to an increase of 73 cents an hour. Ford estimates the increase at 70 cents. Union leaders have called both estimates fantastic.

Apostle Birds Are Short Three

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—There are only nine apostle birds at the zoo and they seem unhappy, said Dr. K. C. Lint, curator of birds, who brought them from Australia. They apparently get unhappy counting themselves and finding they are three short. Lint said they are called apostle birds because they are usually found in nature in flocks of 12. They are a small bird, also known as gray jumpers, good at keeping down locusts.

Rounding Out Nearly 2 Years Of Preparations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Military officials are rounding out nearly two years of planning for entombment of unknown Americans who fell in World War II and the Korean conflict. On Memorial Day the two unknowns, representing the unidentified dead of each war, will be entombed at Arlington National Cemetery, near the final resting place of the Unknown Soldier of World War I. Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, in charge of arrangements, said yesterday preparations are being made to handle what might possibly be the largest crowd ever to throng the capital. Highlighting the ceremonies on May 30 will be the posthumous presentation of the Medal of Honor to the two unknowns, who may be either soldiers, sailors, Marines, airmen, or Coast Guardsmen. The presentation will be made by President Eisenhower, who in World War II was Supreme Allied Commander in Europe. He will place the medals, highest military decoration conferred by the United States, on the two caskets during services in the cemetery's amphitheater. Eisenhower also will speak briefly. The process of selecting the unknowns for burial at Arlington now is under way. The bodies are due to arrive here on May 27. They then will lie in state in the rotunda of the Capitol. In a briefing by Army and Navy officers, newsmen were told of plans to move the unknowns to Arlington, across the Potomac, along a route lined by troops of all the armed forces. While the cortege is in motion, guns will be fired at one minute intervals, and military planes will pass overhead in salute.

Oscar Levant 'Abhors' Success, But Having It

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Back from amnesia, Oscar Levant has found quick success on television. "Success—I hate that word," mumbled the perverse Oscar, wearing a tweed suit with a sleep in look. But he is a success, thanks to a local TV show on which he interviews egotists and entertainers, plays the piano and rambles about poetry, art and his ills. I saw him at his home at the end of a practice session with Fred Astaire. After Fred left, the super-neurotic Levant talked. About himself, of course. What about a news magazine report that the show had got him off the bottle but on the couch? "That is untrue," he said. "I never was on the bottle. Two years ago, I had a heart attack and the doctor told me I should drink. Drinking a little bored me, so I drank more. But it never was a problem. I don't like drinking, it's for ordinary people. "Psychiatry bores me. I'm not on the couch. I just go to a psychiatrist so he can tell me his problems. I've been in and out of every sanitarium and hospital in Southern California. I had what the doctors called acute apathy. You ought to try it sometime. You just don't give a damn." Despite Oscar's abhorrence of "success," he is having it. There is talk of going on a network with his show. Tonight he guests with Eddie Fisher on NBC. He's talking about movies, and this summer he returns to the concert field, playing a new Shostakovich concerto at the UCLA modern music festival and two concerts at Hollywood Bowl. Oscar is also writing a new book to accompany his earlier one, "A Smattering of Ignorance." This one is aptly titled: "My Bed of Nails."

Convair said no further negotiations were scheduled.

The development came after IAM refused to accept terms of a company offer approved Sunday night by Convair employees in two San Diego, Calif., plants.

The Pomona plant produces Terrier and Tartar missiles for the Navy. Convair's San Diego plants, employing some 31,000 workers, produce the Atlas missile for the Air Force, F102 jet fighters and airline transports.

A company spokesman said he understood the IAM representatives here had tentatively agreed to wage terms and that negotiations broke down during discussions on seniority provisions.

Convair President J. V. Naish said in San Diego that the Pomona facility would continue production. He said any picket interference with employees other than IAM members would be reported to the National Labor Relations Board.

The company's wage offer was a 17 to 27-cent hourly raise. The pay scale under the old contract ranged from $1.29 to $2.75.

Elsewhere in the aircraft and missile industry, two major contracts remain to be negotiated. Talks are still in progress for Douglas Aircraft Co. workers in Long Beach, Calif., Tulsa, Okla., Charlotte, N.C., Santa Monica and El Segundo, Calif.

Also under negotiation is a new contract for Lockheed's missile division, affecting production workers at the company's Van Nuys, Palo Alto and Sunnyvale, Calif., plants.

Not An Accurate Measure Used

CHICAGO (AP) — You have the thermostat set at 70 on a cold day, yet you are chilly. Why?

A maker of automatic indicators says an indoor thermometer isn't an accurate measure of comfort. Engineers say it's because heat travels from a warm surface to a cold one. Heat is drawn from your body by cold indoor surfaces such as windows and walls which react directly to outdoor conditions. The colder they get the more body heat you can lose.

Rain In Plains And Southeast; Dry Elsewhere

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More rain fell across sections of the plains and the Southeast but generally dry weather prevailed in most other parts of the country today.

Severe thunderstorms struck the southern plains region, with strong gusty winds and heavy rainfall in the Texas Panhandle-South Plains last night. More than five inches of rain flooded a creek running through the downtown district of Clarendon, about 50 miles southeast of Amarillo.

Warm air moving northward from Texas to the Dakotas which collided with the colder air from the Rockies triggered thunderstorms in northern Nebraska and the eastern Dakotas. Wind gusts of more than 50 m.p.h. were reported.

The thunderstorms changed to rain and snow in Montana as cooler air moved in from the Pacific. Snow fell from Mullen Pass through western Montana to Butte. Temperatures were in the 30s, from 20 to 30 degrees lower than yesterday morning.

The wet weather from the plains headed eastward into Minnesota during the night and was expected to spread across the upper Mississippi Valley into the Lake Superior region during the day.

Thundershowers which fell in the eastern Gulf states yesterday diminished and were confined mostly to Florida.

Temperatures climbed to 90 degrees at Grand Forks, N.D., yesterday as warm air from the Gulf of Mexico spread northward through the Mississippi Valley and the plains. Readings in the 60s and 70s were reported during the night as far north as the Canadian border.

Study Confirms Size Not Racial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The average 14-year-old boy of Japanese descent born and raised in California is four inches taller than a Japanese boy bred in the homeland.

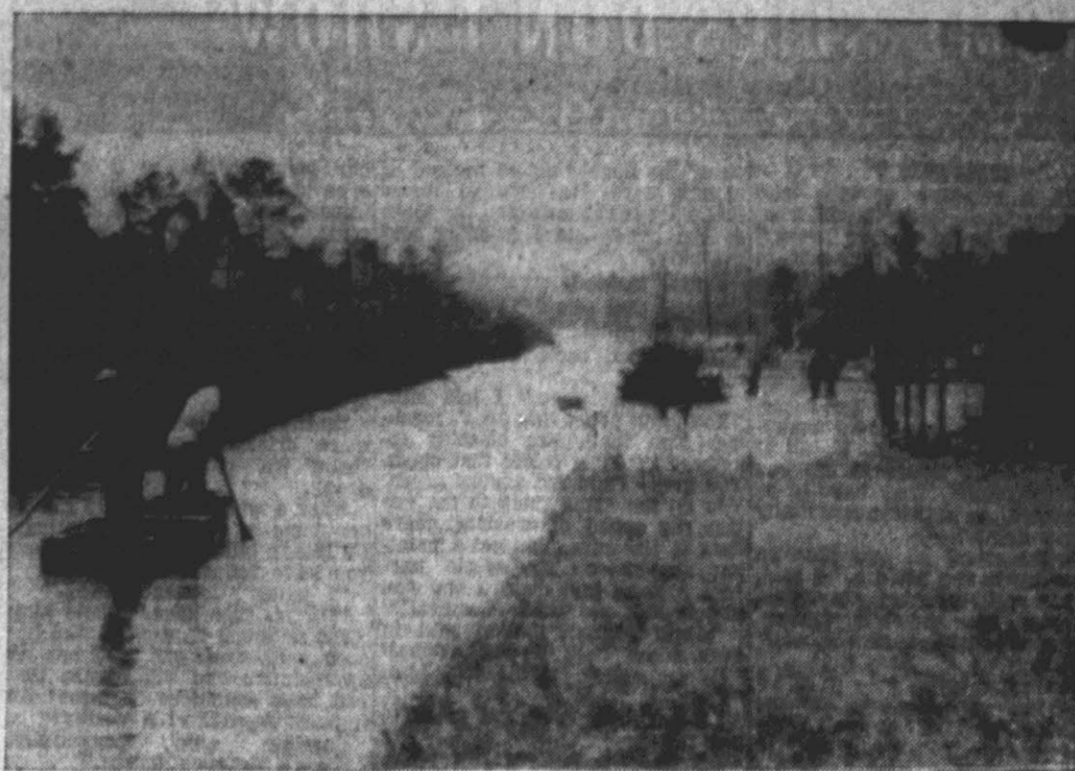

That finding, says Dr. William Walter Greulich of Stanford Medical School, possibly proves that there's no such thing as a hereditarily small race.

The comparison was drawn from a study of Japanese children in America and in Japan. Some 900 youngsters in each country were tested as to stature, weight, sitting height and bone age.

Says Dr. Greulich: "There had been a tendency to attribute the observed retardation in growth, at least in part, to racial differences in the rate at which growth and development proceed."

"Our findings on the American-born Japanese children do not support (this) view." "It seems more probable that the skeletal retardation of the children in Japan results from a less adequate diet and from other environmental conditions."

"These findings . . . indicate the need for caution in interpreting the relatively retarded growth and development of children in less favored parts of the world . . . as a basic genetic difference between them and our children."

Clash Over Powell Case Is Being Heard

NEW YORK (AP)—The clash between a federal prosecutor and a magazine editor over income tax evasion charges against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. led to a grand jury room today.

William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the National Review, a conservative weekly, was subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury.

The jury is investigating the possibility of outside influence in the case which led to the indictment of Powell, Harlem Negro Democratic congressman and clergyman.

Buckley, accusing U. S. Atty. Paul W. Williams of trying to intimidate the National Review, has said he plans to complain to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Last December, the magazine printed a review of the Powell case, then lying dormant so far as grand jury proceedings were concerned. The article criticized the government's delay in pressing the case.

Buckley said he sent copies of his magazine containing the Powell article to members of the grand jury.

Williams, commenting on Buckley's complaint, said: "There is nothing involving freedom of the press here. The press has always been free to publish anything it wanted about the matter. However, freedom of the press does not encompass the sending of personal communications to jurors."

The grand jury investigating Powell's federal income tax affairs reconvened last April 17 after the case had been inactive for 14 months. The grand jury indicted

Through diplomacy and courtesy to the voters of the 5th district, it is long past time for voters of the county to take note of these facts, and help the voters of the 5th district get their desired change in Commissioners that they have so overwhelmingly voted for three times in succession. CHAPTER 7

"It's a pleasure to talk with someone who understands what I'm trying to do in my work," said Horace Dutton. "I want to interpret nature. It's the interpretation that counts."

"Naturally," I said.

"Otherwise," he went on, "you might as well go out with a camera and take colored photographs. I wouldn't give a hoot for a picture that a person could understand just by looking at it. All of the worth-while things in life you can't understand. They have to be interpreted. An artist is essentially an interpreter."

"To the extent he puts his own personality in the picture," I said, "he has really created something. You may not know it, Dutton, but you're starting a new school."

"I am?"

"You are."

"I'd like to have you see the thing I'm working on now," he said.

"I'd love to."

I finished my drink. He opened a closet door, dragging out an easel and a painting. He drew back a cloth from the painting.

It was a strip of canvas with circles of different colors and zig-zag tracks of red and orange darning across the canvas.

I inspected it carefully. It looked like a bunch of colored balloons a vendor would be carrying at a carnival with a violent thunderstorm in the background, the bolts of lightning managing somehow to miss the balloons.

I tried to think of a title. The other painting had been "Sun Over The Sahara." I thought this one should be entitled "Thunderstorm Over A Carnival."

I stepped back to study the effect, then up close to look at the brushwork, then turned my head to one side. Then I cocked my head to the other side.

After a moment I nodded.

Dutton couldn't wait for me to express an opinion. He said, "The title is 'Inspiration.' It shows the white-hot flashes of illumination which dart in between the circles that represent the various thoughts flitting through a man's mind."

I waited a good five seconds before I said anything. I saw him watching me in a fever of suspense.

Then I said one word. "Terrible!"

Dutton's face broke into smiles. He grabbed my hand and pumped it up and down. "By George! Billings, you're a man who can really appreciate art."

I looked at the picture of "Inspiration" for another five seconds, then I turned solemnly to Horace Dutton and said, "I think I've found the man who can do it!"

"Who can do what?"

"Paint the picture that will attract the most attention of any picture painted in modern times."

He looked me over and was a little dubious.

"What's the picture?" he asked at length.

"Conflict," I told him.

His eyes narrowed.

"The trouble with the world today is conflict. Nations are in conflict with other nations. Individuals are in conflict with other individuals. Ideas are in conflict with other ideas. Ideologies come in conflict with other ideologies."

"How would you show it in a painting?" he asked wonderingly.

I warmed to the subject. "You know what it sounds like in a gear-shift automobile when a novice gets hold of the gearshift lever? Take a pickup with a compound transmission or an older model car and a man who doesn't understand the double clutch method of shifting gears. He tries to throw the gears into mesh, and the teeth of the gears start grinding and crashing."

Dutton nodded.

"Paint that sound," I said, "and call it 'Conflict.'"

He stepped back and looked at me.

"It can be done," I told him. "You paint gears that aren't meshing. The teeth are clashing together. You use colors that clash. You make vivid red against green. You do the same thing to the eye that the sound of crashing gears does to the ears. You get a painting that rasps the whole nervous system into discord and you title it with one word: 'Conflict!'"

"Great guns!" Dutton said in awed admiration. "It can be done!"

"You can do it," I told him.

"You!"

I thought the guy was going to kiss me.

Caroline, her eyes narrowed, said, "Better find out how much Mr. Billings expects for the idea, Horace."

I looked at her and elevated my chin. "Nothing!" I said. "I'm not a painter. I have ideas. In my humble way I want to make a contribution to art!"

Dutton hugged me. Then he covered his painting of "Inspiration," and hurried it back into the closet.

"I'm going to get at it, Billings. I'm going to get at it tonight! It's the most terrific thing I've ever heard of. I can do it! I can do it!"

Caroline said thoughtfully, "There's George, Horace."

"Who's George?" I asked.

"George Cadott," Caroline said. "He's my cousin. My first cousin. He does some painting, and I know he's been influenced by Horace."

"Yes, I suppose he has," Horace said somewhat dubiously.

"And where could I find George Cadott?" I asked.

"Well," Dutton said, "George is not available at the moment. But I know where I can reach him."

Lana Turner Is Signed For Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Universal-International Studio has answered Lana Turner's question. The actress, whose private life made tragic headlines last month said recently she would like to return to work, "if anybody will have me."

U-I announced yesterday that Miss Turner has signed to star in a re-make of the 1934 hit film, "Imitations of Life."

The announcement had an added significance for Hollywood. The studio has been virtually shut down for months, and trace sources professed to see an economic upturn in U-I's return to production.

Churches Resort To Power Of The Purse In Feud

FEDERALSBURG, Md. (AP)—Unless the bishop gives them a minister of their own, parishioners of two Methodist churches here say they are cutting appropriations for a minister's salary to $2,000.

"The power of appointment is with the few . . . but the power of the purse is still in the pew," according to an old saying the local Methodists have adopted for their fight with Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam.

The bishop has announced intentions of assigning just one minister to serve both Union and Christ Methodist churches, both located in Federalsburg.

Officials of each church maintain they are offering effective programs and are entitled to have their own ministers.

They contend the bishop, in effect, is forcing them into a merger for which they are not ready financially. Union Church has 600 members and Christ Church has a membership in excess of 200.

Light Vote For Nebraska Seen

OMAHA (AP)—Nebraskans vote today in a primary election widely forecast as probably the lightest in many years.

A combination of favorable crop outlook, a dearth of issues, a heavy field of incumbents and prospects of rainy weather portended predictions that no more than 180,000 ballots would be cast.

At stake are a U.S. senatorship, four congressional seats and control of the Nebraska Statehouse, a Republican stronghold for the last 18 years.

Only once since 1940 has a Democrat broken through the GOP ranks. That was in 1948 when Eugene D. O'Sullivan of Omaha won a single term in the House. O'Sullivan is one of three Democrats seeking the Senate nomination this year, to oppose Sen. Roman L. Hruska (R-Nebr.) Hruska has no primary opposition.

And present for the initiation were Dean G. Burke Johnston of Virginia Tech, and Dr. Dabney Lancaster, retired president of Longwood College—her father and grandfather—who also won Phi Beta Kappa keys at Alabama.

Holdups Follow Same Pattern

DETROIT (AP)—A lone gunman, apparently taking a lesson from another robber who twice preceded him, held up Detroit and Northern Savings and Loan Assn.'s Six Mile branch yesterday and got away with $1,105.

Manager Carl L. Avery, 23, of Walled Lake, said the robber was not the man who got $4,000 March 3 and $8,500 April 11 because "that fellow is awaiting trial."

Avery said the gunman handed him a note demanding the cash, pocketed it and walked out.

"He didn't say a word to me," said Avery. "He didn't have to. These robberies are getting to be like clockwork around here."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to back away from recent highs in active trading early this afternoon.

Leading issues were down from fractions to around a point. There were scattered gainers.

Aircrafts were higher but with no particular buying emphasis. Oils, rails, chemicals and copper declined. Stocks were mixed.

Lower-priced automotive stocks, such as American Motors and Studebaker-Packard rose in vigorous dealings, resuming their upward trend.

Pennsylvania Railroad was easy as its president told the annual stockholders' meeting that the current recession is continuing "at an alarming accelerated rate."

Studebaker-Packard, spurred by news that it plans a new economy model car this year, was traded heavily, adding about a point—which amounts to a 20 per cent gain for this stock. This issue and American Motors, which added another fraction in brisk dealings, were resuming yesterday's role as No. 1 and No. 2 on the big board's popularity contest. Continental Motors became affected by the popularity of these minor motor shares and rose a major fraction.

Low's was down about a point for a while, heavy selling but clipped its loss. An adverse development in Federal Court affected the issue.

Merck recouped a fraction from its loss yesterday on news of the antitrust suit against five drug firms but Parke, Davis, also involved, slipped another major fraction.

Boeing, Douglas and United Aircraft were on the upside.

Gulf Oil dropped more than a point, Amerasia a major fraction. Chrysler and Du Pont shined off after early steadiness. Kennecott was off about a point, General Electric a fraction.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 40 cents to $168.70 with the industrials down 70 cents, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities down 10 cents.

Federal Reserve Chairman Sees Some 'Hopeful' Signs

WASHINGTON (AP) — William M. Martin, Federal Reserve Board chairman, told senators today "there are some hopeful indicators" the recession is leveling off but they are not yet conclusive.

"There is this process of leveling off," Martin said at another point. "If we can consolidate our gains it could lead to a substantial spring uprise." But, he said emphatically "that is as far as I would go" toward a forecast now.

Martin expressed these views in testimony to the Senate Housing subcommittee at a public hearing on a dozen different bills dealing with the government's annual multibillion dollar housing activities.

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.), the subcommittee chairman, asked whether Martin sees a leveling off of the business slump.

"I don't think there are any conclusive indicators now," Martin replied, declining to make flat predictions.

The subcommittee is conducting public hearings prior to drafting a huge, many sided bill to provide renewed authority for various government housing programs.

Meanwhile, Sparkman and Sen. Homer Capehart of Indiana, the Housing subcommittee's senior Republican member, backed an administration request to increase from three billion dollars to seven billion dollars the amount of home loans that may be insured by the Federal Housing Administration between now and June 30, 1959.

The request was made to the subcommittee by Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole, who said a spurt in housing construction and increased demands for loan insurance would exhaust FHA's insuring authority by June 10, unless Congress acts quickly.

The housing chief also told the senators the Eisenhower administration wants to boost from three billion to four billion dollars a year its request for FHA loan insurance authority in the four years beginning July 1, 1959.

In other economic developments yesterday:

1. The Commerce Department reported that wage and salary payments declined again in April, but that a sharp increase in unemployment compensation and other government payments boosted total personal income by 600 million dollars over March. This brought personal income to a rate of $342,800,000,000 a year — 4 1/2 billion below the record rate of last August.
2. William U. Underwood, president of the Interstate Conference on Employment Security, said jobless insurance claims probably will top two million a week during much of the year beginning July 1.

Starkweather Letter Says He Killed A Man

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A letter saying Charles Starkweather killed Carl Fugate's stepfather and then Carl kept her mother from killing Charles was read yesterday in the Starkweather murder trial.

The prosecution read the letter although Starkweather is not charged with the stepfather's death. It was signed by Charles and Carl.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Bartlett, Carl's stepfather and mother, and Carl's two year old sister were the second, third and fourth victims in 11 slayings that Starkweather has acknowledged.

He is on trial for the shooting of Robert Jensen, 17, near Benning, Neb., last January. Jensen was killed as police hunted Starkweather, 19, and Carl, 14, the day after the Bartlett's were found dead.

The letter, taken from Starkweather after his capture in Wyoming, told how he came to visit Carl, bringing his rifle in hopes of a hunting trip with Bartlett. He was "happy and full of jokes." His mood changed to anger at an order by Mrs. Bartlett to leave. He replied sarcastically. That angered Bartlett and brought on a fight, the letter said, ending with Charles shooting Bartlett.

The letter related "at this moment was so mad that she had (picture of a knife drawn here) and was going to cut him (Starkweather)."

"She knot (knocked) the gun from Chuck's hands. Chuck just stood there saying he was sorry he didn't want to do it. I got Chuck's gun and stop my mom from killing Chuck."

"Betty Jean (the child was yelling so loud I hit her with the gun about 10 times. She would not stop. Chuck had (again a picture of a knife) he let it go. It stopped somewhere near her head."

Mrs. Bartlett was shot to death. The letter did not say who fired that shot. The child died of head wounds.

The defense has pleaded Starkweather innocent by reason of insanity, a move counsel said Charles opposed.

Suspicious Over Soviet Attitude On Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans to ask Soviet Premier Khrushchev to spell out the exact conditions he has in mind for technical disarmament talks he reports he is ready to begin.

With Khrushchev agreeing to the talks he once rejected, President Eisenhower was reported anxious to begin the discussions quickly—perhaps late this month—if Khrushchev gives him a satisfactory answer.

But informed authorities said, Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles both want Khrushchev to explain what he meant when he said such talks "should be completed in the shortest term, agreed upon before hand."

Khrushchev attached this condition in a letter to Eisenhower Saturday in which he unexpectedly agreed to the White House demand for such technical talks. They would deal with means of detecting violations of an agreement to halt nuclear weapons tests.

Khrushchev in agreeing, however, expressed what he called "serious doubts" that such talks were necessary.

This Khrushchev attitude, plus the puzzlement over the deadline the Soviet leader apparently wants to impose, accounted for the cautious welcome Eisenhower and Dulles gave to the new twist in Soviet policy.

Dulles, returning yesterday after a 10-day European trip, described Khrushchev's letter as representing "a little progress." He met afterward with Eisenhower at the White House to discuss the development and report on the Atlantic Pact conference in Copenhagen which charted new Western defense moves.

The State Department began consulting allied governments to learn their views on how to handle the newest pre-summit maneuver.

U.S. disarmament specialists were clearly suspicious of Khrushchev's deadline. They said the problem of acceptable controls, including inspection, has proved so difficult in the past it would be virtually impossible to agree quickly.

The Soviet view, reiterated by Khrushchev, is that both sides have enough detection devices to determine precisely whether anyone violates any pledge to halt testing atomic-hydrogen bombs.

The American view is that each side's detection network is not enough, and that monitoring stations on each other's territory may be needed to make absolutely sure no one is cheating.

Some authorities suspected Khrushchev would demand a short, quick conference of the kind which would insure failure, thus bolstering his argument that disarmament can be tackled successfully only at a summit meeting.

Picking Jury To Try Young Ahoskie Boy

WINDSOR, N.C. (AP) — The state and the defense began questioning prospective jurors today in the first step in the murder trial of Jan Rivers Hackett.

The jurors selected to sit in Bertie County Superior Court will weigh the fate of the Ahoskie youth on a charge of murder in the shotgun death of 16-year-old Delores Newsome.

Hackett, 17, and a student leader at Ahoskie High School, entered a plea of not guilty because of temporary insanity when he was arraigned yesterday. A special venire of 100 Bertie citizens was ordered by Judge Chester Morris.

Solicitor Ernest R. Tyler has said he will seek a first degree murder conviction, which would require the death penalty unless the jury recommended life imprisonment.

Young Hackett and Miss Newsome were high school classmates and had dated, although they were not considered sweethearts. Members of their families, accompanied by their ministers, were in the crowded courtroom.

A motive has not been established for the slaying on a lonely road between Windsor and Ahoskie last Feb. 12.

Doctors have expressed the opinion that Hackett, son of a State Highway Patrol sergeant, was suffering from a split personality at the time of the shooting.

After a 60-day observation period at State Hospital in Raleigh, he was judged capable of standing trial.

Hackett had picked up the girl in his family's car near the Ahoskie High School, only an hour or so before the slaying. Several hours after the shooting, the youth surrendered to police at Wilson, about 40 miles away.

Robersonville Band In Parade At Washington

ROBERSONVILLE — On Saturday the Robersonville High School Band participated in the largest parade ever held in Washington, D. C.

The R. H. S. students headed the 4th division of the seven divisions in the parade consisting of 30,000 marchers and 75 bands.

Two chartered buses left the school grounds Friday morning with Durwood Bray and Wiley Burrus Roberson accompanying the juniors and seniors while Mrs. Jesse Bunting and Mrs. Julian Speller chaperoned the freshmen and sophomores.

Mr. and Mrs. David Grimes Jr. drove their cars and carried the uniforms.

After the boys and girls were assigned to their rooms, a sight-seeing tour started and was concluded Sunday afternoon by a visit to Mt. Vernon.

The members of the band and the people of Robersonville raised $1,500 to give the pupils an all-expense paid trip.

A few young people who had a perfect attendance record extending over the last several years did not want to miss Sunday school. Mayo Little Jr., a student at the Episcopal Seminary, Alexandria, Va., consented to go to Washington to teach the group from his hometown.

Mrs. Lena Everett Dies In Richmond

AYDEN — Mrs. Lena Keel Everett, native of Martin County, died early Monday at Johnston-Willis Hospital in Richmond, Va., following critical illness.

Funeral services will be held at Vincent's Funeral Home, West Point, Va., Wednesday at 10 a.m. by the Rev. Jack Eby, rector of West Point Episcopal Church. Burial will be in the Robersonville cemetery, with the Rev. Wilbur Wallace, Christian minister of Robersonville, officiating at graveside rites.

Mrs. Everett was the daughter of the late Marcellus and Letha Keel Everett of Robersonville. She worked for the Weekly Herald in Robersonville before she went to West Point 27 years ago. She was a public accountant.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. W. W. Salisbury of Ayden and Mrs. C. M. Spitzer of Bayside, Va.; and two brothers, William T. Everett and J. W. Everett of Ayden.

The three largest cities in Germany are Berlin, Hamburg and Munich.

Did Zsa Zsa Get Coat For Introducing Kim?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Did Zsa Zsa Gabor get a costly fur coat from Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr. for introducing him to Kim Novak? She has the coat — and Trujillo, son of the strong man of the Dominican Republic, admits he gave it to her. But he didn't say why.

"I introduced Kim to him," Zsa Zsa told a reporter, "and I arranged for him to take her to several parties."

"He is my dearest friend and very grateful."

Trujillo, recuperating in a rented mansion in Beverly Hills following surgery, yesterday added further confusion to the matter. He wouldn't come to the phone. But he told his secretary to tell a newswoman that the coat wasn't chinchilla, as earlier reported.

It was mink, said the secretary. He said it didn't cost the $17,000 price quoted for it.

Blonde actress Kim Novak said Trujillo left a sports car with her — a sleek $8,400 model — but said she thought it was a loan. A studio spokesman said she insists she isn't keeping it.

Kim and Trujillo have been seen together frequently in Hollywood since Easter. Trujillo, head of his country's air force, came to the United States to attend the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

He left there on medical leave and underwent an operation at a hospital here for adenoids and a sinus condition.

Trujillo, recuperating in a rented mansion in Beverly Hills following surgery, yesterday added further confusion to the matter. He wouldn't come to the phone. But he told his secretary to tell a newswoman that the coat wasn't chinchilla, as earlier reported.

It was mink, said the secretary. He said it didn't cost the $17,000 price quoted for it.

Blonde actress Kim Novak said Trujillo left a sports car with her — a sleek $8,400 model — but said she thought it was a loan. A studio spokesman said she insists she isn't keeping it.

Kim and Trujillo have been seen together frequently in Hollywood since Easter. Trujillo, head of his country's air force, came to the United States to attend the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

He left there on medical leave and underwent an operation at a hospital here for adenoids and a sinus condition.
