30 Years Ago Today

June 2, 1928

W. L. Whedbee, young attorney of this city, won out for judgeship of Pitt County Court in the Democratic primary.

Hot weather and the swimming season are with us. With no safe and suitable place for Greenville children to enjoy the great summer sport of swimming, we are wondering if in this year, like former ones, the out-of-the-way and unprotected creek and river swimming holes will again take their toll of young lives. It is to be hoped that not many more years will pass before we begin to give some serious and definite consideration to a public park with suitable playgrounds, swimming and pool for children.

Voter Approval Is Just First Step

Approval of a county-wide industrial development tax by the voters of Pitt County Saturday affords this county a new and important tool to be used in furthering its economic development.

To be sure, the tax was approved in a close—very close—vote. It squeaked by with a majority of only 34 votes in the unofficial returns report by the county's 25 precincts. There were 9,050 Pitt County voters who expressed an opinion on the tax when they went to the polls Saturday. Of these voters 4,542 voted in favor of the tax and 4,508 voted against the tax.

Under provisions of the special legislation which authorized the referendum on this development tax levy, the County Board of Commissioners now have the authority to levy the special tax and to appoint a county-wide Industrial Development Commission to carry out a development program for Pitt County.

After the election returns are officially certified tomorrow, the County Commissioners should as soon as practicable take steps to appoint the 17 citizens of the county who will make up the development commission. This group in turn should as rapidly as possible begin to map out for the county a program that will spur our economic development.

There is much work to be done before such a program can actually get into operation. Even after members of the industrial commission are appointed, it will probably take several months before the commission can start its actual operations. It would be unwise for Pitt County to lose any time in undertaking this new program.

Every day delay between now and the time when the program actually gets into operation postpones by that much time when Pitt County will begin to enjoy the fruits of development which will come from the program.

The new industrial tax of up to three cents per $100 valuation will not be large enough to place a burden on any taxpayer of Pitt County. The anticipated revenue of $17,000 to $20,000 annually from the special tax will represent an average of slightly less than $1 per year for each taxpayer in Pitt County.

In return for this investment, the development program should repay the people of Pitt County many times in new jobs, the development of new payrolls, new farm income and increasing the per capita income of the people of Pitt County.

Premature, But A Good Outcome

JUDGES—The furor occasioned by premature publicity about a tentative segment of the Spencer Bell committee of the State Bar Association's appointment of judges has accomplished one good thing. It has centered public attention on the function and status of judges and the courts. The discussion over the question of appointing judges has sent many citizens to check on the constitution, laws and practices with respect to the operation of the much-vaunted system of checks and balances represented in the Legislative, executive and judicial branches of government.

The three branches theoretically are equal in prestige and have co-ordinate obligations to the people. Study of the record discloses that in some instances the legislative, which is closest to the people, has undoubtedly encroached upon executive and judicial prerogatives. Just as certainly the executive branch has in some instances, often with statutory consent, taken over some of the duties of the legislative division. The use of restrictive laws of questionable constitutionality the legislative section has unduly invaded judicial areas. By use of appointive and budget influence, the executive has infringed upon the judicial powers of the judiciary and the legislature.

In the exercise of its proper function in determining the constitutionality of legislation, the executive and executive administration, the judiciary has often been accused of usurping both legislative and executive authority. (That is particularly true of Federal courts, but the charge has been made against State courts as well. Legislation by State courts has come in cases where the judges go behind and beyond the language of the statutes and purport to say what was the "legislative intent.")

FAVORED—Under provisions of the North Carolina constitution and General Statutes occupants of the Supreme and Superior Court benches enjoy some very special privileges. They are elected for longer terms than other officials. Members of the General Assembly and the House of Representatives in Congress are elected for two year terms. The Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General and members of the Council of State are elected for four years at a time—and the Governor and Lieutenant Governor are limited to one elective term. United States Senators are elected for six years and are eligible for reelection without limit. Supreme and Superior Court judges are elected for eight years at a time, with no limit on tenure.

Judges also have more liberal retirement benefits than any other officials, and are not required to contribute anything to their retirement funds. There is constitutional provision that the salaries of judges cannot be diminished during their term of office, but can be increased. For all other constitutional elective officers the salary is open at time of taking the oath—cannot be diminished or increased.

The freezing of minimum compensation without restriction as to maximum for judges stems from conditions centuries ago in England. There were times when the King sought to control judges by threats to cut off their income. To offset that the British Parliament decreed that no judge's compensation could be reduced. The 16th century Britons apparently did not consider the influence impact of promises to raise pay of judges in return for favorable decisions.

Fact is, whatever may be the historic base, that the compensation of a Governor or a Superintendent of Public Instruction, or any other constitutional officer, cannot be changed during his term—up or down. Compensation of judges can be upped, but not downed.

EXPERIENCE—North Carolina is one of the few States in which judges are elected by the people. Most States have provision for appointment by the elective or the Supreme Court, with or without legislative confirmation, or for election by the Legislature. The record shows that although North Carolina elects judges by popular vote, preponderant majority of the judges first went into office by appointment.

Theorists can prove conclusively that judges should not be subjected to the rigors of a party primary and popular election process. The arguments are irrefutable—except for the experience record. That record is that the elective judiciary of North Carolina stacks up way above the judiciary of other States and the record further shows that the only "trouble" North Carolina has had with judges has been with appointed rather than elected jurists.

The people may have elected some judges of mediocre competence, but the average ability of elected judges has been high. No judge chosen by the people in a free election since the present State Constitution was adopted 90 years ago has been impeached or asked to resign. That cannot be said of appointed judges.

There are good arguments supporting the contention that judges should not be subjected to primary political campaigns, but instead should be chosen by a selective process involving only lawyers and the Governor. The 100-year record is that judges chosen by the people—even at expenses of having them participate in undignified primary campaigns—have measured up more nearly to the standards set by the lawyer than have the judges who were appointed.

Rural Firemen Face Problems Of Traffic

A volunteer fireman with one of Pitt's rural fire departments declared the other day, "I wish we could do something about all the people who rush to a fire in the county when an alarm comes in."

The fire departments which answer calls in rural areas, he said, are often handicapped by traffic just as city firemen are. On dirt roads they often lose valuable minutes because of heavy clouds of dust kicked up by automobiles ahead of the fire trucks. When they get to the scene of the fire they are sometimes delayed by cars parked along rural roads.

In fighting a fire in the rural area, a few minutes' delay often means the difference between saving a dwelling and near-by buildings, and losing several buildings.

The rural firefighter has time working against him. There is normally a longer delay in reaching the scene of a fire in rural areas than is the case in a town. There is also the problem of water in fighting a rural fire. When these handicaps are made more severe by heavy traffic racing to the scene in front of the fire truck, the rural fireman works against mounting odds.

In town or in the country, traffic is a problem the firemen has to cope with before he can begin his work of fighting the fire. The more cooperation he gets from the public in the traffic problem, the better he can do his primary job of putting out fires with minimum property losses.

President On The Economy

By RALPH ROBEY

Seldom have so many top Administration officials expressed opinions on the business outlook as in the past few days. At the top of the list was President Eisenhower. Others have been Vice President Nixon, the Secretary of Commerce, the Defense Secretary, and the Secretary of Labor.

The President, Vice President, and Secretary Weeks spoke at the Economic Mobilization Conference in New York City last week. Of most interest on an over-all basis was the President's comments.

To appraise Mr. Eisenhower's opinion it is necessary to bear in mind that he opened with the comment that "For some months now, we in the Government have spent a large part of our waking hours in debating proposals for private citizens on what the Government could do about the business downturn." He then pointed out that it was a "welcome turning of the tables" to suggest to businessmen what they could do to help recovery.

His general viewpoint was expressed in these words: "Reports from the country strongly indicate that the economic decline of recent months is slowing down. Not all our economic troubles are over by any means. But there is a change in the picture. The Government is now in a position to make a change for the better, I have no doubt." He further said: "One salient fact should be clear. We can never pep-talk our way to prosperity."

In his advice to business the most pointed comment was: "The American people believe in good wages, both in private and public employment. Good wages are the reward effort and build markets. But the American people are going to be looking over the shoulders of those sitting at every bargaining table to see whether the price of settlement and subsequent price decisions are consistent with a stable dollar, or whether they mean another dismal sequence of ever-rising costs and prices." This is especially pertinent in view of the automobile wage negotiations, now going on, and in view of the fact that on the basis of present evidence it appears wages will increase about as much this year as they did in 1957.

Of course the President reviewed what the Administration has done up to date to encourage recovery. That is an old story. The particular point everyone was waiting for was what he would say on taxes. He did not commit himself on this one way or the other. It is still a matter of appraising current developments. Vice President Nixon, however, said he would prefer income tax reform to public works spending, and there is reason to believe this is the view of the President also. This is indicated by the statement of Mr. Eisenhower: "I am determined not to get bogged down in a slow-starting, emergency public works program which would provide a minimum of jobs now and a maximum of budgetary headaches in the years ahead."

Secretary Anderson, who was speaking at the Governors Conference also touched on the problem of taxes. He said certain decisions will be made in the near future and added: "they will not be a matter of party competition but will be reached only after continuing consultation with Congressional leaders. They will have to be made in light of the specifics of our improving economy." The Governor's decision has now been made and the President, in a letter to Vice President Nixon and House Speaker Rayburn, said there should be no general tax cut at this time.

Secretary Weeks talked in terms of the longer outlook. He said we should have a total value of goods and services at the end of the next ten years of $600 billion, as compared with the present $424 billion. Secretary Mitchell, testifying before the House Labor Committee, said we must expect an increase in unemployment figures in coming weeks as students get out of school. He gave no aggregate figure, but the percentage of increase he mentioned would mean unemployment of at least six million. June always is the high month of unemployment for purely seasonal reasons.

Strength For Today

EXTRA DIVIDEND—The people whose one aim in life appears to be that of gaining happiness for themselves are invariably superficial and restless. Life seems to withhold from such people its richest rewards. But should people desire unhappiness for themselves and their loved ones? This of course would indicate a morbid and twisted mind.

What we need to realize is that happiness is a by-product. It is not anything we can get by directly seeking after it. Strange as it may seem happiness comes when our efforts are wholly given to something other than gaining happiness. When we are really making a success out of life, happiness comes as a sort of extra dividend.

Foe Of Sunday Sales

By ROGER JABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass.—There is no one who wants a more prosperous America more than I do. But if the only way to more business is to convert Sunday into just another work day, then America is in worse shape than I have thought!

OUR SUNDAY SALES PROBLEM

People in puritanical New England where only 1 per cent of the supermarkets are open on Sundays are probably unaware that 78 per cent of these markets are open Sundays in the Mountain and Pacific States. In California, stores of all kinds never close. The reason for this is competition for the everlasting sales dollar.

There are a number of causes for the inroads the merchant is making on Sunday: (1) The long-term pattern of business from 9 to 5 gave way to wartime needs when stores in certain manufacturing areas remained open until 10:00 p.m. (2) The mass movement to Suburbia following the war radically changed consumers' buying habits. It was much more convenient to stay at home and shop in Suburbia, especially if the stores there remained open nights. (3) When competition for consumer dollars stiffened, people insist on shortening their Sunday from Saturday afternoon—particularly in those parts of our country where Sunday Blue Laws either are weak or receive only token enforcement.

IS SUNDAY SELLING GOOD FOR MERCHANTS?

That depends on who and where are you! The now famous case of Hess Brothers, Allentown, Pennsylvania's largest department store, points up an answer to this question. Last October, a large discount store, "Two Guys From Harrison, Inc.," began drawing away the Hess sales volume. Hess Brothers finally threatened to keep its doors open on Sunday, too. Hess' threat caused a Pennsylvania district attorney not only to fine the owners of "Two Guys From Harrison, Inc.," but also to fine each of the 100 or so employees of the discount house for violation of 160-year-old Pennsylvania Sunday statute. This is one side of a typical problem confronting many communities today.

Another look, however, reveals that many merchants remaining open on Sundays count on their Sunday sales to make the difference between the week's profit and loss. These merchants argue that Sunday and with changing times must come changing merchandising techniques. In short, Sunday selling, they say, has become a matter of economic survival.

THE CASE AGAINST SUNDAY SELLING

The very fact that so many favor Sunday selling is a reasonably good index of how materialists argue and a lot of times the paths of history are strewn with the wreckage of cultures that neglected their spiritual development. The place for our families on Sunday is in God's House, not in Discount House. Surely in a country where the work week becomes constantly shorter and leisure ever greater, we ought to be able to find a little time for the week for reflection and spiritual regeneration.

Parents, law enforcement officials, educators—all who work with young people are concerned with the many symptoms of maladjustment: juvenile delinquency, divorce, cheating, etc. But, these are indications of a deeper problem: lack of adequate standards and values.

BETTER HOMES NEEDED

We parents need to bring into much sharper focus the standards of right and wrong, and we need a philosophy of life much less centered and a lot more others centered. Dare I say that most of our youth are what our homes have made them? This is where the Church comes in. When, if not in the Church and in the church-oriented home, is the average youth going to develop sound moral and spiritual fibre?

Let's be a businessman. I believe the business community owes more to its constituents than just making it easy for people to buy what they want when they want it. The balance sheet must be scrutinized for spiritual losses that may do far greater harm, in the long run, than the immediate material gains. We may need a "business depression" to bring us to our senses—and perhaps something more serious.

By ELMER ROESSNER

Sometimes it seems as if the greatest strike since the steel walk-out, being staged today by the retail salespeople of America.

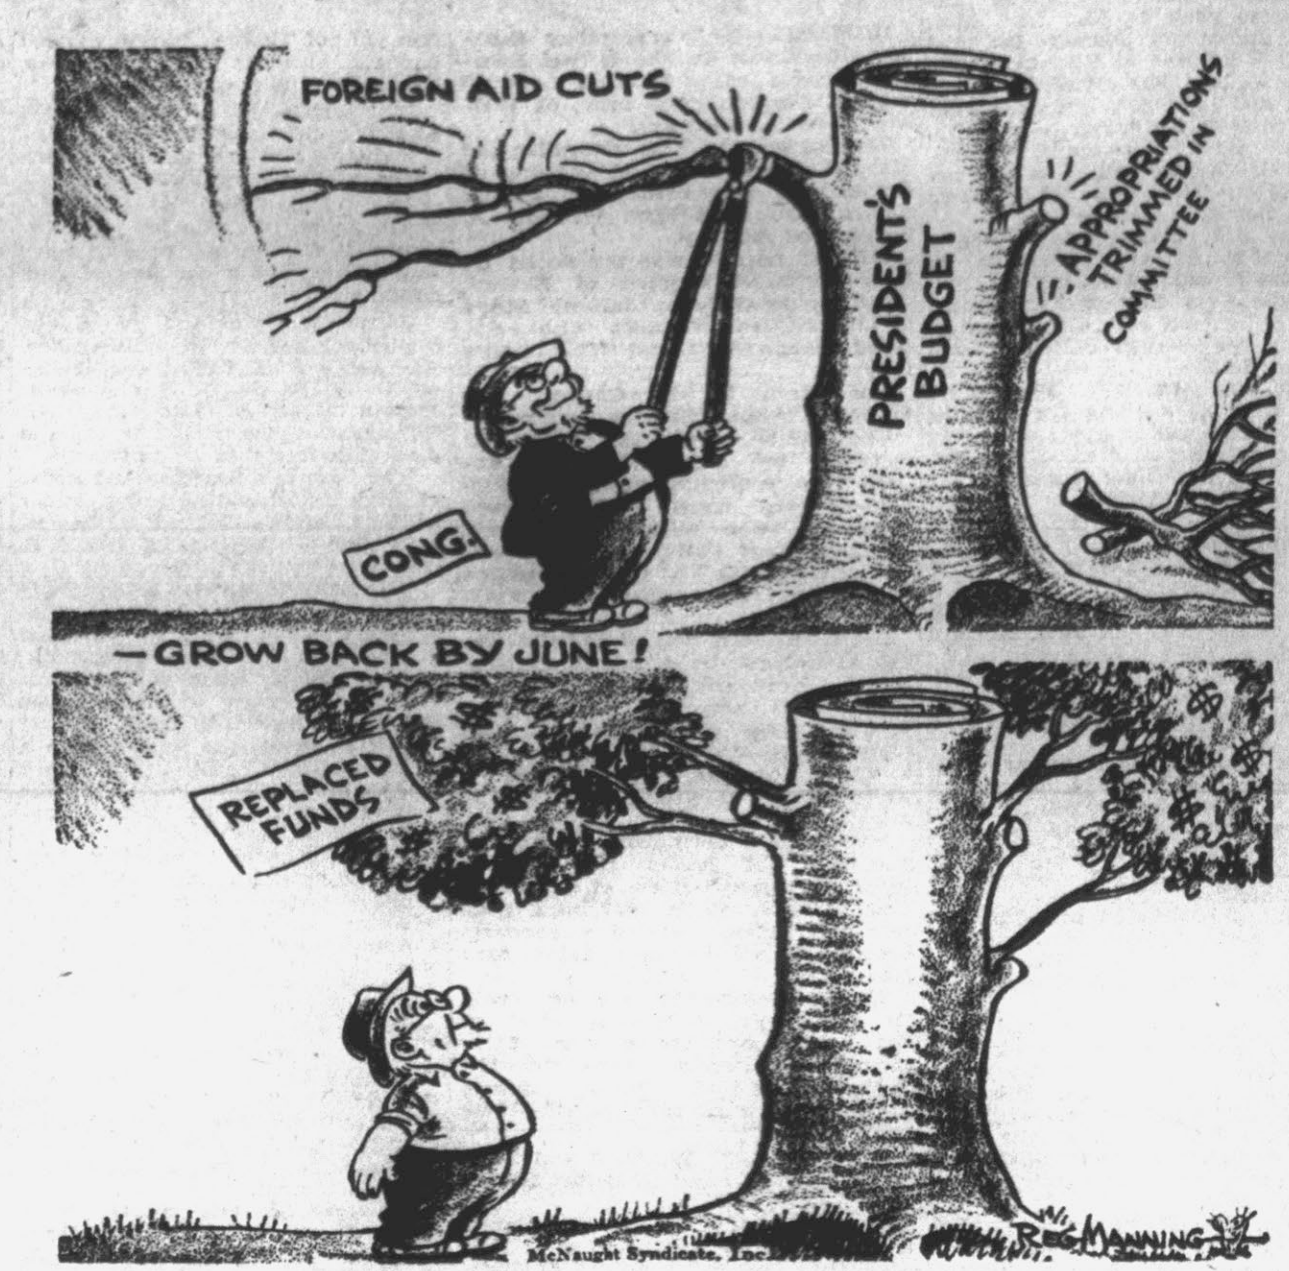

Customers constantly complain that they are unnoticed in stores while knots of salespeople chat, or, once noticed, they get little help in service.

There are, of course, notable exceptions. Every once in a while a shopper is made to feel important by a salesperson who suggests the purchase of a second pair of shoes or a more expensive garment.

At least one department store executive realizes that when there is a strike there are always reasons. Management is usually partly at fault.

Other Editors Saying-- Commercial Atom Power

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

On Monday of this week, President Eisenhower, by remote control from Washington, dedicated the first commercial atomic power plant to be built in this country. The plant actually had been in operation since late last year, while atomic power looks like a dream come true as far as an energy source is concerned, there still has been no great rush to go into the atomic power business.

Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, says there is in this country, "no foreseeable early pressing demand for the production of nuclear power." Inasmuch as we still have a great supply of coal and oil on hand for fuel. This is the reasoning behind the AEC's resistance of Democratic pressures in the Joint Atomic Energy Committee to shift responsibility for power development from private industry back to the AEC.

The chief congressional critic of Strauss, Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.C.), vice chairman of the joint committee, in a full-dress attack of May 5 charged not only that we have "no clear-cut program" for developing full-scale atomic reactors for power, but that this "lapsing program at home has made us incapable of exporting" to have-not European nations "the technology to build atomic power reactors in competition with the British."

Not so, replied Strauss. We are "active in the sponsoring, the development, and the assistance of power programs to build a large number of kilowatts" for overseas nations "within the shortest possible time."

The truth appears to lie somewhere in between. The pressurized water reactor now in operation at Shippingport, Pa., is much less a "private" nuclear power project than is generally understood, for all its advance billing. Research and development costs for the Shippingport project, at latest estimates, ran to $48.9 million, borne by the government. The reactor itself cost $49.5 million, of which the AEC is supplying $40 million, the Westinghouse Electric Corp. $8.5 million, and the Duquesne Light Co. the remainder.

Also, Duquesne Light is building the generating portion of the plant at a cost of $17.5 million. AEC will own the reactor, but Duquesne will operate the completed plant. Under contract, it will pay 8 mills per kilowatt hour of net electricity or AEC for steam generated by the reactor. The plant has a capacity of 68,000 kw, of which 800 kw will be used for its own energy requirements, leaving a net capacity of 60,000 kw. Of the $121.4 million cost, the federal government will have paid almost $100 million.

Sen. Anderson says he has received reliable reports that the U.S. Budget Bureau "has cut back" on research and development program in the forthcoming fiscal 1959 authorization list of projects." Strauss says, for the record, merely that he hopes "the joint committee will find our program an acceptable one."

Last year Co.-gress delivered a blow to the Eisenhower administration's partnership power program, authorizing the reactor development projects unwanted by the AEC. Strauss reportedly has yet to spend the money for the authorized plants.

This public-vs-private development squabble could be a deciding factor in the decision by the AEC. Strauss reportedly has yet to spend the money for the authorized plants.

Management 'Partly To Blame'

He is George W. Dowdy, president of the National Retail Merchants Association and chief executive at Belk Bros., Charlotte, N.C. He told a recent meeting of retailers that: "Selling never was the sole responsibility of salespeople in a store, although it often seems to be. The entire organization has to be involved in the selling act if best results are to be achieved."

"We must stop regarding our salespeople as vending machines."

There are three reasons employees aren't selling, he said. He gave them as:

1. They lack motivation.
 2. They lack intelligent sales training.
 3. They lack effectively presented merchandising information.
- HOW TO PLEASE CUSTOMERS

He said there were five steps to be taken to attract and hold customers and give them the sales service they want. These steps are:

appeal with sufficient fact and logic in merchandising our store to our customers so that we are building our volume while we are preserving the precious intangible of customer satisfaction and a sense of personal well-being," he added.

WANTED BRINGS 1,000 PEOPLE INTO CHAIN
A little want-ad produced surprising volume for a Boston appliance chain. It read: "WANTED: 1,000 used appliances for our reconditioning department. We are prepared to give you the fullest trade-in allowance on your old appliances." In one week, it ad brought 1,800 people in. Many new appliances were sold and the chain finds a good market for reconditioned appliances among people furnishing summer or rental properties and among exporters.

Ercell Webb Captures Greenville Golf Championship

Webb's Hot Streak Topples Massey 9-8

Ercell Webb, former Greenville champion, came through this weekend to whip Molt Massey Jr., 9-8, to top the prize again, for 1958.

Webb and Massey teed-off Saturday afternoon at 1:30 and played the first 18 holes. It was all even for the first 11 holes. Then Webb broke away for a six hole winning streak which was too much for Massey to overcome on Sunday. They closed out the match on the tenth hole Sunday afternoon with Webb taking the 9-8 victory.

Webb disposed of Waldrop, Ken, and Allen in the semi-finals. Massey topped Proctor and Bryan, and won over May by forfeit to reach the championship match.

In first flight play, Ray Masten won out over Boyd, after having defeated Julian, Clark, and Conley.

Lucian Bryan won the second flight title. He topped Duff, Lanier, and Herring to cop the prize.

Taft won the third flight, defeating Pierce in the finals. 1 up. He toppled Haynes and Tipton in the preliminaries.

Edwards took the fourth flight crown by toppling Hill, Jenkins, and Carter down the line.

Honeycutt won the fifth flight by defeating, in order, Saleed, Hancock, and Collier.

Alston's Pep Talk Rocked Bums Into Fighting Mood This Weekend

Boyer Has Hit .431 in Past Two Weeks

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ken Boyer has gone from a .165 problem hitter to the National League's hottest batter in just two weeks. And the reason is a mystery to the much-analyzed St. Louis Cardinal third baseman.

"I'm batting the same as I always have," Boyer said. "The hits are just dropping in now."

"It's a funny game."

It wasn't funny to the San Francisco Giants, who watched Boyer's drives "dropping in" the bleachers for three home runs in two days.

A .431 hitter the past two weeks, Boyer blasted a pair of two-run homers to pace the Red Birds to a doubleheader sweep on Memorial Day.

His 12th inning homer the next day gave the Cardinals a 10-9 victory. The Giants salvaged the fourth game yesterday and held Ken to one hit, but he was 8-for-18 in the series with eight runs batted in.

Boyer once was tagged the "reluctant dragon" by former Cardinal General Manager Frank Lane, impatient with Ken's defensive lapses and poor hitting in the first part of last season, after his big 1956 season.

Now his rejuvenation puts General Manager Bing Devine in an 11-10-50 mood. Devine took Boyer off the trading block last November after Lane's departure. Bing classified him as all but untouchable.

When he found the ball on Sunday May 18, he blew a grand slam homer and four singles against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

In two weeks he has hiked his average 112 points to .277. Manager Fred Hutchinson and his happy teammates are convinced he is still on his way.

"If Boyer realizes his potential," Devine said, "he can succeed Stan Musial as the club's highest salaried player."

Boyer is now second only to Musial on the club in runs batted in with 23, tied with Stan at eight homers, and leads the team in runs scored (27).

Maybe Walter O'Malley should let Walter Alston do his Chavez Ravine electioneering. Whatever Alston told the Dodgers behind closed doors the other day must have been a pep talk in the Knute Rockne tradition.

The Dodgers reacted Saturday, after a double defeat Friday, and bombed the Chicago Cubs. Then came Sunday and a two-hit 1-0 shutout by Stan Williams, a 21-year-old rookie.

Although the Dodgers still are 10 games back, Williams had pitched only three innings until Alston gave him the call Sunday. The 6-4 righthander acted like he really belonged. Working in 48-degree weather and a stiff 20-mile wind, Williams allowed only two singles—one by Al Dark in the first and one by loser Dick Drott in the third.

The San Francisco Giants climbed back into first place by snapping the St. Louis Cardinals' four game winning streak, 7-2. After dropping three straight, the Giants backed up Johnny Antonelli with an 11-hit attack.

Bob Friend, Pittsburgh and the rain combined to drop Milwaukee into second place. Friend held the Braves to five hits while the Pirates built up a 5-1 edge. Rain stopped the game three times and finally forced the umpires to call it off after seven innings. It was Friend's eighth victory.

Cincinnati's Bob Purkey won his sixth, 2-1 over Philadelphia in the first game. The two clubs struggled to an 11-11 tie in the second game, finally stopped by the Sunday curfew in the ninth. It goes into the records as a suspended game to be completed at a later date.

In the American League, Andy Carey collected two homers, a double and two singles for five straight hits while Bob Turley won his eighth for the New York Yankees 10-4 at Boston. Kansas City remained 6½ games behind in second place, slugging Cleveland 6-2 behind Ray Herbert, who pitched a 2-0 game for the Red Sox.

The Chicago-Detroit game was washed out with Detroit leading 1-0 in the fourth. The only run of the Dodgers-Cubs game came on Carl Furillo's double, an infield out and Don Zimmer's single. Only 3,674 turned up in chilly weather.

Stan Williams Has Given Bums Some New Talk

CHICAGO (AP)—Stan Williams 21, has given the last-place Los Angeles Dodgers more to talk about than just Chavez Ravine. Williams, a 6-4, 200-pound righthander recalled May 15 from St. Paul, made his major league start yesterday a dazzler by blanking the Chicago Cubs 1-0 with a two-hit job.

In holding the Cubs to their lowest hit production of the season, Stan retired 16 of them in a row from the third into the eighth inning. He yielded only Al Dark's two-out single in the first and losing pitcher Dick Drott's leadoff single in the third, served two walks, fanned three batters and hit another. Not a Cub reached second base.

A 20 m.p.h. wind blowing toward the plate, Williams had the Cubs eating out of his hand, hurling only 94 pitches—low for a Dodger in a nine-inning game this season.

Williams, who works without a windup like Yankee Don Larsen, said afterwards: "I believe the wind really helped me. I'm mainly a fast ball pitcher and with that wind to my back the ball was really sailing. Nervous? No, not until the eighth, anyway. When I have trouble, 9 times out of 10 it comes in the eighth. That is what I got to thinking about after walking Paul Smith (a pinch hitter) with one out in that inning."

"I worked extra careful on Chuck Tanner (another pinch hitter) and I felt much better when he grounded into a double play to end the inning."

"But the best play of the day came when Don (shortstop Zimmerman) tossed me that relay at first base on the double play to end the game."

Turley Hurls Win Over Sox

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press

Casey Stengel can pick his starting pitcher for the July 8 All-Star game at Baltimore without any delay. Bob Turley of his New York Yankees simply is burning up the American League.

Turley boosted his season won-lost record to 8-1 Sunday by throwing a five-hitter at the Boston Red Sox for a 10-4 romp. Using his breaking stuff more than his pet fast ball, Turley struck out 10 and took over the league lead with 53 victims.

It was Turley's eighth complete game in nine starts. Three of the runs scored by Boston came when Jackie Jensen's wind blown pop fly or short left with the bases loaded fell just inside the foul line.

Andy Carey came through with five straight hits. Two homers, a double and two singles helped him add 51 points to his average, which now measures .256.

Kansas City remained 6½ games behind the Yanks by whipping Cleveland 6-2 after scoring five unearned runs on Cal McLish in the first inning. Ray Herbert blanked the Indians with three hits in the first six innings and finished with a six-hitter. All this after Bob Bragan had blasted his Indians as "complacent and indifferent" in a pre-game lecture.

Billy Loes wound up with a $100 fine and an indefinite suspension from Baltimore Manager Paul Richards after he blew up and charged an umpire while Washington was beating the Orioles 5-2.

After Loes chased Ken Aspromonte over homeplate, while trying to tag him on a rundown play in the fifth, the temperamental pitcher slammed the ball to the ground and went after Umpire Larry Napp. Another run scored and a runner took third as the ball rolled away.

The Chicago-Detroit game was postponed because of rain after four innings with Detroit leading 1-0 on Al Kaline's home run.

San Francisco regained the National League lead by downing St. Louis, 7-2, ending the Cards' four-game winning streak, while Pittsburgh defeated Milwaukee 5-1 in a game cut to seven innings by rain. Stan Williams, 21-year-old rookie righthander, held Chicago to two singles while Los Angeles completed a long road trip with a 1-0 victory. Cincinnati edged Philadelphia 2-1 in the first game and the second was tied 1-1 in the ninth when the Sunday curfew became a suspended contest to be completed later.

Morris Set To Defend Title

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Allen Morris of Charlotte, No. 3 in the Southern Lawn Tennis Assn. rankings, defends his title in the second annual Winston-Salem Invitational tennis tournament Thursday through Sunday.

The man he beat to take the inaugural, Bill Umstaedter of Abbeville, S.C., No. 4 in the SLTA is a probable entry.

Only men's singles and doubles were played last year, but women's singles and doubles are on the program this time.

Janie Haynie of Belton, S.C., third-ranked by the SLTA, heads the women's division. Also entered are the Charlotte quartet of Sarah Walters, Julia Ann Holt, Mary Lou Jones and Rosemary Bryant, plus Charlotte Kirk of Vineland and the Winston-Salem contingent of Eve Hine, Eckie Jordan, Mildred Southern and Joan Jones.

Men players include Allen Strand of Greensboro, Sam Daniel of Leaksville, Del Sylvia of Raleigh, Bruce Sylvia of Richmond, Va., Jim Winstead of Charlotte, Malcolm Clark of Southern Pines, Dewey and Lenoir Keesler of Charlotte, John Bremer of Winston-Salem, and Ted Sharples of Chapel Hill.

Teen-er League Baseball Season Opens Tonight

Teen-er League baseball for 1958 opens here tonight unless a threatening rain washes it away.

At 7:30, two of the four clubs in the 1958 Teen-er circuit will square off at Guy Smith Stadium to officially open the season. The two teams have not yet been announced. The four clubs are Home Builders, State Bank, Guaranty Bank, and College View Cleaners and Laundry.

Another game will be played tomorrow night and on Wednesday evening, a benefit supper will be held at the park from 5:00 to 7:00 to open a double header. The supper will be part of the league's means of financing the program this season and a large turnout is expected. On Wednesday night, the first game will begin at 6:30 and the second will begin immediately following the first.

Good Season

Those in charge of the league this season have indicated that Greenville may have one of the finest circuits in the State in 1958. Others have gone far enough as to predict an even greater future for this city's loop during the coming season. Last year Greenville's All-Stars were runners-up to Gastonia in the State playoffs. Gastonia went on to win the regional and divisional, only to get eliminated in the national playoffs.

This year Greenville has many veterans returning to all four clubs, plus a host of seasoned stars from 1957's State Champion Little League teams here.

Adding to the streamlining of the league are the actions of several new coaches—some with good records to their credit in other programs of baseball.

The coaches for this season will be as follows:

For College View—Carlton (Sonny) James.

For State Bank—Charlie Bland and Billy Dunn.

For Guaranty Bank—Billy Brady and Milton Reece.

For Home Builders—Terry Nobles.

Murphy Still Trying Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Minority stockholder H. Gabriel Murphy, still bidding a fabulous $605 a share, has made another effort to increase his holdings in the Washington Senators.

Murphy, renewing his criticism of the baseball club's management, confirmed today that he has offered $605 for each of nearly 1,000 shares formerly owned by a sister-in-law of the late Clark Griffith.

Griffith, whose heirs control the American League team, was for many years head of the Senators until he died in 1955.

"My purpose is very simple," Murphy said. "It is to buy additional stock so there will be a change in the control of the management."

Murphy, a Washington insurance man and former treasurer of the club, now owns a little more than 40 per cent of the outstanding stock.

Mad Scramble Began Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The annual scramble—and a mad one it is—for the 144 qualifying spots in the U.S. Open Golf championship took place at 28 courses scattered across the country today.

When the returns of the 36-hole qualifiers are tabulated, about one out of 15 hopefuls will have made the big event which is scheduled for Tulsa, Okla., June 12-14.

A record entry of 2,150 golfers are in the running. The championship is among 162 players, but 17 are exempt because of their past records and one already has qualified. So that leaves just 144 spots open.

Ted Makalema of Honolulu fired a 72-75-147 last Monday in winning the Hawaiian section against 14 opponents.

The days of all the former champions sitting back and qualifying automatically are gone, and as of last year, only the last five victors get in without going through the preliminary round.

That group includes Dick Mayer, the defending champion; Cary Middlecoff, Jack Fleck, Ed Furgol and Ben Hogan.

The previous year's 10 low scorers (excluding the exempt champs) also get a free ticket into the tournament. That list includes Julius Boros, Jimmy Demaret, Walter Burkemo, Ken Venturi, Fred Hawkins, Sam Snead, Roberto De Vicenzo, Chick Harbert, Billy Maxwell and Billy Joe Patton.

Lionel Hebert, the PGA champion, and Hillman Robbins, the U.S. Amateur titleholder, also are exempt.

Four Clubs In NCAA Tourney

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—Four college baseball teams open a double elimination NCAA District 3 tournament here Thursday night. The winner advances to the college World Series opening June 13 at Omaha, Neb.

Florida State, winner of the district title last year, meets George Washington in the 6 p.m. opener. Clemson meets Florida at 8:30.

The losers meet in the first Friday night game, with the first round winners playing the Friday nightcap. Action continues each night until only one team has escaped two losses.

Florida State brings the best record into the tournament. The Seminoles have won 20 and lost 5, taking their last 12 games. For the third year in a row they are the at-large team in the district play.

George Washington, winner of the Southern Conference title 1956-57, tied Richmond for this year's honors and had an overall 12-6 record.

Clemson won the Atlantic Coast Conference title in a playoff with North Carolina. The Tigers won 17 of 22, 3.

Pepsi And Jaycee Teams Run Wild Over Opponents

Saturday afternoon play at Little League stadium on Elm Street was wild, with the Pepsi-Cola and the Jaycees taking lopsided victories from the Moose and Kiwanis, respectively.

Pepsi-Cola's Frank Harper pitched a terrific one-hitter to topple the Moose 14-0 in Tar Heel League play, notching another triumph for the league-leading Pepsi team. He pitched to 20 men, struck out 10, walked one. Only two batters reached first base against him, one on a walk and the other on an error.

Daily Gidley smashed a home run with two men on base and also contributed three singles to the victory. He was the leading batter for both clubs. Allen and Combs also hit well for the winners, getting two for four. The Pepsi club had 12 hits.

In the other game, the Jaycees walloped the bottom-placed Kiwanis team 16-4 in a North State tilt. John Flanagan pitched four-hit ball for the winners and also slammed out a grand slam home run to pace the hitters. Vincent also helped with three for four.

Ray Ward was the losing hurler.

Three Educators To Make Homes In Florida

By MARTHA PIERCE
Three educators with a combined background of 72 years of teaching are leaving Greenville Tuesday to make their home in Dune-din, Florida.

Dr. and Mrs. Parnell Picklesimer, who came to Greenville 25 years ago, are retiring from the teaching profession.

Dr. Picklesimer says, "I'm going to sit in my rocking chair and fish when I get to Florida." Mrs. Picklesimer, or Mrs. "Pick," as she is known by students and friends, feels that she will have her hands full seeing that Dr. "Pick" gets his proper rest, keeping house and traveling.

Miss Frances Lamb, who makes her home with the "Picks," will be teaching in Dune-din-Highlands High School.

Mrs. "Pick" has taught in both high schools and colleges. Her first teaching job in North Carolina was in New Hanover High School in Wilmington, N.C. She also taught in Peace College.

"It has been my experience that high school students are wider awake and ask more questions than college students," says Mrs. "Pick." "College students just sit and listen."

History, Latin, English, Math, physical education, all commercial courses, dramatics, dancing, physics, chemistry, and biology are courses that Mrs. "Pick" has taught at some time in her life.

"I had rather teach chemistry than eat when I'm hungry," she declares. "Mrs. 'Pick' did her preparatory school work at Northfield School for Girls in East Northfield, Mass. She received her Bachelor of Science and Masters degree from George Peabody College for Teachers, and did graduate work at Vanderbilt University."

Dr. and Mrs. Picklesimer met at Berea College where Dr. "Pick" did his prep schooling and three years of college and where Mrs. "Pick" went one year. Mrs. "Pick" recalls making this comment to a friend about Dr. "Pick" which proves that a woman can change her mind: "What a perfectly fine fellow to have such a perfectly awful name. I certainly wouldn't give up my good Cunningham for that."

"My pet peeve is flourine in drinking water," discloses Mrs. "Pick." "I don't believe in making guinea pigs out of the people in the United States." A versatile person who also counts calories, she says that her hobby is declaring her husband.

Mrs. Pick can claim to be one of the few people who has refused to shake hands with a president. When her uncle took her to meet Teddy Roosevelt, instead of shaking hands with him, she clasped her hands behind her back and with the calm assurance of a four-year-old said, "I'm a Democrat."

Working with young people has been one of Mrs. "Pick's" largest time investments. She has been the college student worker at St. Paul's Episcopal Church for 11 years.

"I think that the students at Junius H. Rose High are as well-bred as any that I have ever seen. I love the high school and I don't know what I am going to do without it," she declares.

"As for satisfaction in teaching, I have never been sorry that I became a teacher — except when the dollar was short," adds Mrs. "Pick."

The fact that this year's "Tau" is the second year book that has been dedicated to Mrs. "Pick" proves that young people like her as well as she likes them.

Dr. "Pick" began his teaching career in his home state of Kentucky when he was only 17 years old. He received his Bachelor of Science, Masters, and Doctor of Philosophy degrees at George Peabody and was later supervisor of rural schools in Kentucky.

During a period of three years he was principal of a high school in Alabama, a community service worker in New York, and he worked for DuPont in Wisconsin.

In 1926 he succeeded the late Herbert E. Austin as Chairman of the Geography Department of East Carolina College. Since that time, under the guidance of Dr. "Pick," the geography department has grown to be the largest in any teachers college in the United States, and the third largest among more than 1,200 colleges and universities.

A score or more articles written by Dr. "Pick" has been published in professional geography journals. He is a member of the American Association of Geography, Phi Delta Kappa, Pi Gamma Nu, and Kappa Delta Pi.

For the past 12 years he has served as secretary of the local Elks Club, and he is a vestryman of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

"Dr. 'Pick' has a dry humor that rolls on all the time," comments Miss Lamb. In Smith Elan's new novel, Kentucky Through Thick and Thin, one of the characters is Parnell Picklesimer. Dr. "Pick" became associated with Elan when he was in charge of rural schools in Kentucky.

"Miss Lamb's chief diversion is reading travel literature," comments Dr. "Pick." "She's ready to go anywhere, any time."

Dr. "Pick," Mrs. "Pick," and Miss Lam became acquainted with more than geography in their wide travels. They have traveled in all 48 states of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cuba, and two years ago toured 14 European countries.

Miss Lamb is a native of Hertford, N.C. and received her Bachelor of Arts, and Masters degrees from East Carolina College. She did further graduate work at the University of North Carolina.

For the past 15 years Miss Lamb has taught history and sociology and economics in Greenville High School. She has taught history and geography in the E.C.C. summer school for nine years. Miss Lamb is a member of the Delta Kappa Gamma honorary teachers sorority and was adviser to the Student Council for 13 years.

During the time that Miss Lamb served as adviser to the S.C.A., it was repeatedly chosen as the outstanding council in the Eastern District which covered 14 states.

"In chaperoning students to out-of-state activities, everyone, even the bell boys, commented that they had never seen as well behaved a group as those from G.H.S.," she said.

Miss Lamb has been a member of the Danforth Foundation Commission for promoting better home conditions in the middle Atlantic states for the past two years. "I love the students with whom I have worked and I have enjoyed living in Greenville and knowing the people. I know that we are going to miss the people of Greenville most of all," Miss Lamb stated.

Mediators Prepare For Strike Action

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Federal mediators are preparing to intervene in a weekend strike that has halted distribution of this city's two major newspapers, the Inquirer and the Bulletin.

Two unions are now on strike with no settlement in sight. They are Teamsters Local 628, which distributes the papers, and the American Newspaper Guild, representing editorial and clerical workers, which struck the Inquirer early yesterday.

The Teamsters strike also includes the nearby Camden Courier-Post, the major afternoon newspaper in southern New Jersey.

Meanwhile, people turned to radio and television for the news or came to the Inquirer and Bulletin buildings, where limited editions were sold in the lobby.

Or they bought the Daily News, the city's smallest and only other paper. The Guild contract at the News, an afternoon tabloid owned by the Inquirer, also has expired. No strike has been called but negotiators so far have been unable to agree on a new contract.

Robert Donahoe, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service here, said plans were being made to meet separately and then jointly with the disputants. The joint meeting was tentatively scheduled for Wednesday.

With the Guild out, the Inquirer was unable to publish a Sunday edition, but supervisory personnel managed to put out a 12-page Monday morning paper without advertising. It sold out in the lobby. The number of copies printed was not announced.

The news departments of the Bulletin and Courier-Post are not unionized and both papers planned afternoon editions to be sold over the counter.

The Bulletin said it printed 45,000 Sunday papers. All were sold. Combined normal Sunday circulation of the Inquirer and Bulletin is 1,884,000. Daily circulation is 1,420,000. The Daily News, with no Sunday edition, has a circulation of 190,000.

The Teamsters are seeking a $10 weekly wage increase. Pre-strike base pay was $94.50. The newspapers have offered an $8.50 increase.

Besides wages, a major stumbling block has been contract language concerning delivery of papers through picket lines. The union wants the right to honor what it terms "legally authorized and sanctioned" picket lines.

A joint publisher's statement said such a clause could shut down the papers "over an issue not related to the contract."

The Guild has asked a one-year contract with a hike in the top newsman's minimum from $137 to $148. It also wants the work week cut from 37 1/2 to 35 hours, more pension money and a general weekly wage increase of $4 to $7.

The Inquirer said it offered increases ranging up to $5 weekly, more liberal vacations, a hike in

This Time, No Degree For Dog

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Although he has a degree from Baylor and the required hours in law school classes at Vanderbilt, Pic the dog marched across the stage at Vanderbilt graduation exercises without getting a diploma.

Pic didn't mind. He just wagged his tail and scratched his ear while his master, Jim Elston of Laredo, Tex., accepted his law degree last night.

Elston has been blind since 1947. Pic is his Seeing Eye dog, a German shepherd.

Elston graduated from Baylor in 1955 and Baylor gave diplomas to both man and dog.

Elston studied by having others read to him. His examination questions were recorded on tape and he wrote the answers on a typewriter.

TABLES TURNED TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A woman trying to fool her son into eating all of his dinner, phoned police headquarters and told the boy she was talking to the Easter Bunny. Top Jailbreaker Is Loose Again

LONDON (AP) — Britain has one of the master jailbreakers of the century — or some of Europe's finest jailbreakers.

Alfred Quicksilver Alf Hinds, 41, escaped for the third time in 30 months yesterday, plunging Scotland Yard into a massive manhunt and filling the newspapers with banner headlines.

"Escaper extraordinary," said one paper. "The modern Houdini does it again," said another. "Quicksilver Alf for the third time," said still another.

The Daily Express said a serious row was brewing in official circles about the apparent ease with which persons known to be escape-minded break out of English jails.

Alfred Hinds is no average jailbreaker. He says he does it to draw attention to his innocence. Sentenced to 12 years for his part in a daring London robbery, Hinds broke out of Nottingham jail in 1955 and remained free for 248 days.

During his months of freedom, he flooded members of Parliament, the newspapers and television stations with well-written letters protesting his innocence.

Audaciously, he made a tape recording of a plea for a new trial and sent it to Britain's commercial television network. The TV officials played it back in a dramatized program.

Hinds was nabbed, living in Ireland. In London's heavily guarded Law Court he was brought to trial last year on a technical question dealing with one of his many appeals.

Walking down a narrow dark corridor of the bastille-like building, Hinds pushed his guards into a cloak room, locked the door, and dashed to freedom.

Five hours later he was caught trying to board a plane for Ireland. Yesterday afternoon he and another prisoner broke out of Chelmsford prison near London.

They were exercising in the prison yard, guarded by a skeleton staff of guards because it was Sunday.

Unseen, they scrambled atop a shed, jumped to a low wall, scratched their way to a higher wall, ran along this, jumped to the ground and fled through a cemetery to a waiting car.

Scotland Yard does not seem to have a clue.

His TV Set Is In Police Hands

ATLANTA (AP) — Eugene Williams is happy to have his television set in storage at police headquarters.

He reported the theft of the 21-inch set from his home Saturday. Detectives located it at a store where it had been sold for $20. They returned it to Williams.

The same thing happened again yesterday. Neighbors told police they saw the same burglar take the set a second time.

Detectives found it at another store where it had been sold for $30. They are holding it as evidence until the persistent burglar is caught.

Tax Methods And School Aid Are Big Iowa Issues

DES MOINES (AP) — Tax methods and school aid were the major issues as Iowans voted in a primary election today.

Republicans and Democrats were selecting their choices to run next fall for governor, eight congressional seats and other state offices. Neither of Iowa's two Republican U. S. senators has to run for re-election this year.

Secretary of State Melvin D. Synhorst estimated a vote of 310,000 and Democratic State Chairman Jake More forecast heavy balloting, spurred by an unusually large slate of congressional candidates.

Political observers were watching the election for an answer to this question: Can the Democrats hold their gains of 1956, when they elected an Iowa governor for the first time in 20 years and cracked the solid Republican congressional delegation?

Democratic Gov. Herschel Loveless, who has no primary opposition, has generally steered clear of the campaign controversies except to answer when Republicans hurled criticism at him.

The Republican governorship contest has produced most of the fireworks as the two candidates, Dr. William G. Murray, an Iowa State College professor, and Lt. Gov. William H. Nicholas have clashed over tax philosophy.

Murray, making his first try for public office, has proposed raising the sales tax from two to three cent and using the extra money to help pay the costs of local school districts.

Nicholas opposes any tax increases and says the Republicans can't beat Loveless in November on a three per cent sales tax program. He also declared the "King-makers" are out to get him. This stems from the endorsement of Murray by six former GOP state chairmen.

Both have aimed barbs at Loveless for vetoing bills to provide new buildings at state educational institutions. They say Loveless failed to keep a promise to call a special session to re-enact some of these bills.

Republicans are seeking to unseat Rep. Marvin Coad, Iowa's lone Democrat in Congress, in the 6th District. Three Republicans are seeking nomination to oppose Coad.

Pat Boone Says Teaching Still His Big Dream

By PAT BOONE
NEW YORK (AP) — When you get a television show of your own, as it happened to me this year, there's a question refrain that comes with it: "How's it doing?" meaning, What's the rating?

In my case there was a second refrain that went with the first, like a Siamese twin: "Why do you do it?" Meaning, Why with all the load of rehearsing and performing the weekly show, making recordings, personal appearances, filming and the rest, did you decide to continue at Columbia University until you got your degree?

What good will a college degree do you or your show? Or maybe it's just a publicity stunt?

You don't make the Dean's list by just showing up at class with a bright smile. Man, I just don't dig that college degree business. What'll it do for you? Man, right now, you've got it made.

I've tried answering, explaining. And sometimes I think I've made my point. But I'm not sure. So I just have to go on doing my days in the way that feels right for me and my family—a wife and four daughters.

I know what they mean when they say, "You've got it made." But I don't believe I've got it made by things outside me—by name or fame or ratings or possessions or even a college degree. Finally, you only "have it made" by what you are, by what you have in you.

Long before I found I could make my way as a singer, I wanted to teach. Working with youngsters was my ambition when I started at North Texas State College. It still is. Maybe someday I'll be able to do it directly in the classroom. Right now, in every way I can — through the show, through talks with youth groups, through correspondence.

Doing this is a responsibility. Just as being a father is a responsibility. Just as being a citizen. To handle these responsibilities and to handle them maturely, I need to know as much as I can learn and keep on learning. College is one of the preparations I can make to meet this constant responsibility.

CHAPTER 24

Mortimer Evans went back staggering from my blow. I rolled over to my hands and knees.

"Get a lawyer, Fisher," I pleaded. "Don't say a word. Don't answer a question. Get a lawyer. You—"

A human avalanche struck me. Something knocked the wind out of me, either a foot or a fist crashed into my ribs. Lights went pinwheeling around in a circle. Someone opened the apartment door, and I went out into the corridor, head first.

The door banged behind me and I heard a bolt shooting into place. Mortimer Evans was left in there with Barclay Fisher.

My hat was in there. I hoped Mortimer Evans wouldn't look in the sweatband.

I sat on the carpeted floor of the hallway for ten or fifteen seconds, trying to get my breath and waiting for things to quit spinning around.

Finally I managed to get to my feet.

Only the fact that Mortimer Evans had wanted to go to work on Barclay Fisher had saved me from a first-class beating.

I knew it was no use to try and get back into that apartment. I hoped that Fisher had sense enough to follow my advice to keep his mouth shut and get a lawyer.

I went downstairs, took a taxi back to my hotel, went up to my room, sat down and started thinking.

Two things were certain. One of them was that Barclay Fisher was in one obscene mess.

The second was that the breaks had come against me, and I was in one sweet mess, myself. If Mortimer Evans looked in the sweatband of my hat and found that claim check for the brief case in Reno, redeemed the check and found George Cadott's diary, I was sunk without a trace.

The phone rang while I was trying to think my way out of the situation.

It was Bertha Cool calling long distance.

"Hello, Donald," she said. "Did Minerva get there?"

"Minerva arrived."

"Well?" Bertha asked.

I said, "Minerva is the quiet, steady sort. Barclay Fisher came up here, surreptitiously rented a car and drove out to the Roadside Motel where George Cadott's body was found. He lied to his wife he liked to the police and he's now about to be charged with first-degree murder."

"And you?" Bertha asked.

"If the police get the evidence they're apt to get," I said. "They'll name me as an accomplice and probably take my license away."

"Pry me for an oyster," Bertha exclaimed. "You get that brain of yours working, Donald Lam, and think some way out of the situation I'm coming up. Wait for me."

"Where the blankety-blank did you think I was going?" I asked. "If I'm not in the hotel, I'll be in jail."

Bertha didn't bother with words. She slammed down the telephone.

I sat there in the hotel room for some fifteen minutes, trying to put together the bits of the human jigsaw puzzle.

If Barclay Fisher had killed George Cadott, I didn't want to be dragged down into the mess with him.

If Barclay Fisher had not killed George Cadott, I wanted to protect him. He was our client and he paid us money and he was going to pay us more.

I was skating on thin ice. If the police found out about the diary, about the fact that I had picked up Cadott's keys from the room in the motel, my name would be mud. I'd be in so deep I could never crawl out.

Therefore, it was up to me to see there were certain things the police didn't find out.

My side hurt where Evans had kicked me. I probed gently with my finger tips to try and determine if a rib had been broken. I couldn't tell for sure.

My jaw hurt where he had poked me, and I knew the jaw wasn't broken.

When I got up out of the chair, I was sore and stiff. It took me a minute to get my tortured muscles co-operating.

Up on Market Street there were a bunch of shooting galleries, penny arcades, and boob traps.

I took a taxi and told the cab to wait.

I found a duplicate-key-making machine in one of the arcades.

I bought some blanks and went to work.

I made two duplicates of the key to George Cadott's apartment.

After that I started making all sorts of keys.

It was lots of fun. I'd take any old blank and put any design on it I wanted. It was a key that, as far as I knew, would fit no door in the world.

It was fun. It was creative key-making: like composing music or painting.

When I had two sets of half a dozen keys, I went to a nearby drugstore, stopped at the notion counter and bought a couple of leather key containers. I put one of the duplicate Cadott apartment keys in each of the containers, then filled the rest of them up with keys that I had created just for the fun of making them.

I took the leather key containers out to the sidewalk, dropped them in the gutter, stepped on them, slid them around a bit, picked them up, cleaned them off and put them in my pocket.

I went back to the hotel.

The clerk said there had been a phone call for me, and the party had said she would call again within fifteen minutes. It was a woman calling.

I went to my room, put some hot towels on my sore jaw, and waited.

The phone rang.

It was Lois Marlow's voice on the line. "Hello, Donald," she said. "How do you feel?"

"Lousy."

"You went away and left your hat."

"I was thrown out and left my hat."

She laughed a throaty laugh and said, "Always a stickler for accuracy. How would you like your hat back?"

"I'd like that."

"I'm fool-loose and fancy-free."

"Where are you? At your apartment?"

"Heavens, no! That apartment is too centrally located to suit me."

"What happened to your guests?"

"They left under escort."

"My hat there?"

"No, it isn't. I have it."

"And where are you?"

"I'm sitting demurely and properly in a lounge reserved for ladies who are waiting for escorts, at the very swank restaurant which is exactly one block down the street from your hotel. It's called the Golden Fleece, and—"

I know where it is. I've seen it.

"Coming down?" she asked.

"I'll be right there," I said and hung up.

I put one of the duplicate key containers in my pocket. I carefully wrapped the other one in underwear and put it down in the very bottom of my traveling bag.

I took the elevator down, turned my key in at the desk, told the clerk to tell anyone who called I might not be in until late.

There's a question of Donald's that Lois thinks she's going to 'ave answering. Just wait till you read the next installment here tomorrow.

Railroad Tank Car Explosion Shatters Town

MOUNT PULASKI, Ill. (AP)—The shattering explosion of a railroad tank car spread devastation through this town of 1,500 persons yesterday, leaving some 1,900 temporarily homeless.

Two railroad crewmen were killed and one was injured seriously in the violent blast. More than a score of persons were injured by flying glass and debris. None were reported in serious condition.

Damage was estimated by town and civil defense officials at a million dollars. Officials said a survey indicated two thirds of the town's 400 homes were damaged and not immediately habitable.

State police ordered the town evacuated after the tank car filled with a petroleum product exploded and flames threatened two other tank cars filled with liquid chemicals. The cause of the blast was not immediately determined.

The tank car was one of a cars on an Illinois Central Railroad freight train which was switching in the yards. After the fire was put out, some 500 residents whose homes were not too seriously damaged were permitted to remain in town.

National Guardsmen were ordered into the town, in central Illinois about 30 miles northeast of Springfield, to aid in the clean-up and to prevent looting.

Several nearby communities, some 20 miles away, were reported shaken by the blast and residents in Springfield said they heard the explosion.

The explosion tore a crater about 35 feet across and 30 feet deep where the tank car had been. Chunks of steel, some weighing several tons, were hurled a quarter of a mile.

The shock of the wave shattered windows and tore off doors, porches and sidings of homes and other buildings throughout the town.

Hundreds of residents, fearing a second blast, drove to Lincoln 10 miles away. Food and shelter were provided at Central High School and a 200-bed emergency civil defense hospital unit. Other evacuees went to farms outside Mount Pulaski or to other nearby communities.

Harassed Arab Gov'ts Unsure They Want Fight

BENGASI, Libya (AP)—Six Council. Lebanese Delegate harassed Arab countries are considering Lebanon's complaint against the United Arab Republic as a possible weapon to force President Nasser to tone down the U. A. R. propaganda campaign throughout the Arab world.

But not all of them are sure they want to take on Nasser. This arose as Lebanon went before the Arab League yesterday to present her charges that the U. A. R. has been stirring up anti-government riots that have killed nearly 300 persons in the tiny nation.

The league plans another closed meeting on the complaint tomorrow.

"Lebanon happens to be the most recent victim but we all know our turn may come," one delegate told a newsmen. "We may as well lay down the law to the Egyptians now and demand they call off this kind of thing."

Lebanon could force some kind of showdown by insisting on an open debate in the U. N. Security Council. Lebanese Delegate Beshir Awar told the league his government is asking the Council for a second postponement of debate on the complaint, scheduled for tomorrow.

Awar added that if the league comes up with a solution Lebanon may drop its complaint in the U. N. against the U. A. R.

Informants said Awar presented evidence to show that insurgents in Lebanon got arms from the U. A. R. Nasser's representative denied the charge.

Awar also was reported to have produced documents naming Syrian army officers fighting with the insurgents and outlining Syrian instructions to Lebanese terrorists.

PIPELINE LEAK IS BLAMED IN BLAST

BIG SPRING, Tex. (AP)—Gas leaking from a pipeline was blamed for an explosion and fire which killed three fishermen and destroyed two cars on a west Texas oil lease yesterday.

Highway patrolmen said someone apparently struck a match or started one of the cars and set off the blast. The cars were parked in a depression.

Stock And Market Reports

WALL STREET (AP) — Steel shares were strong as the stock market penetrated new high ground for 1958 in fairly heavy trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to around 2 points.

Expectations that steel industry operations would show the sharp rise of the year helped steel stocks make sizable gains.

Aircraft, coppers and some rubbers also did well as industrial stocks led the way for a general advance. Rails and utilities were up modestly.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks reached a new closing high for the year on Thursday and made further upward strides. The Dow-Jones industrial average at mid-day was above its previous closing high for 1958.

Gains of about 2 points were made by U. S. Steel, Goodyear and Douglas Aircraft.

Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet rose well over a point apiece. Bethlehem was up a major fraction.

Up better than a point were International Nickel, Gulf Oil and Du Pont.

About a point to the good were Goodrich, Anaconda, Kennecott, Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric and Royal Dutch.

Polard continued to lose ground following its recent big rise

Three Trapped Underneath Boat

GRAFTON, Ill. (AP) — What began as a peaceful day of boating on the Mississippi River turned into a harrowing three hours of captivity in a capsized boat for a mother and two of her sons yesterday.

Mrs. Marcus C. Bauer, 37, Ronald, 15, and Michael, 10, were trapped in the cabin of the 32-foot cruiser, overturned by a gust of wind. They kept above water by clinging to the cabin walls.

They were saved by two men who swam to the boat, cut a hole in the bottom and pulled them to safety.

Greenville Rescue Squad Helps Hunt For Body

WASHINGTON, N.C. — A Norfolk man, home on vacation disappeared in the waters of the Pamlico at Whitchard's Beach yesterday afternoon as his family watched from the shore.

He was identified as Thurmond Hall, 25.

The Greenville Rescue Squad was called to Washington to assist in searching for the body of the missing man around 7:15 last night.

Squad members said those at the scene told them Hall apparently fell from his boat around 5:30 yesterday afternoon.

Those at the scene said Hall left the shore in a small boat. Later his father saw the boat spinning some distance from the shore. Hall's father called attention to it and rescuers set out in other boats in an attempt to save the man.

Record Enrollment Looms For Summer Term At ECC

East Carolina College opened its 1958 summer school this morning with indications of an enrollment topping that of similar periods in past years. Registration for late arrivals will continue through Thursday, June 5, at 4:30 p.m.

Registrar Orval L. Phillips stated this morning that no official count of the number of students present on the campus will be available until records are completed following the close of enrollment Thursday afternoon.

Also included in the summer program of the college are a series of courses to be taught at Wilmington and extension classes offered at Camp Lejeune and at the Marine Air Station in Edenton.

Class work in sixteen departments of instruction are scheduled to begin here tomorrow morning at 8 a.m. In addition to regular classes, fifteen clinics and workshops covering a wide area of interest in education, and seven one-day conferences are expected to bring a large number of teachers, school officials, and others to the campus during the summer session.

In the meantime the small boat had headed off at full throttle. It beached itself on the river's bank with the motor still running. Two life preservers were found unused within.

Rescue squad members said they were told the missing man's father collapsed and had to be taken to a hospital for treatment. Other members of the young man's family were also at the scene.

Police Push Probe Into Sunday Break-In Series

Police are pushing their investigation of a series of break-ins and attempted break-ins here early yesterday morning.

According to Police Chief S.G. Gibbs two homes were entered sometime during the night and attempts were made to enter two other residences. "We are doing everything in our power to apprehend the individual or individuals involved", he declared.

One of the break-ins and the two attempts were made in less than two hours, Chief Gibbs noted. No time could be given in one breaking and entering since the occupants of the house were not awakened he stated.

All four incidents occurred in one centralized location, one investigating officer explained.

Approximately $30 in cash was taken from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Whorton of 110 South Harding Street. The money was taken from two pocketbooks taken from the couple's bedroom.

Entrance to the house was made through a kitchen window. The screen to the window was found cut shortly after the robbery was discovered.

Whorton explained that the intruder entered his bedroom while he and his wife were asleep and took his billfold and his wife's pocketbook. Both were found later outside of the house by police.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S.J. Waters of 407 East Ninth Street was also entered, Gibbs reported. Nothing was reported missing.

Mrs. Waters told police that she heard a commotion in her home and called out causing someone to run out the door. A pair of trousers in a nearby room were searched, she stated.

The home was entered through an enclosed screen porch. Officers reported finding a punctured screen near a door locked earlier in the night. The vandal, they surmised, tore the screen and opened the door from the inside.

A short time later an attempt was made to enter the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Adams of 403 East 14th Street.

Mrs. Adams told police she heard someone outside the house tampering with a window screen, turned on the light and called her husband. She said she saw someone running away from the house in a light shirt but could not make any further identification.

Police were also called to the home of Mrs. Ro. Harris of 207 East Ninth Street who stated she heard someone trying to enter her kitchen.

Mrs. Harris, who was alone at the time, was quoted as saying she was awakened by strange noises and called her neighbors for help.

Upon investigating police found the screen to her kitchen door was cut. No entrance was made.

NEW BERN — A Pitt County youth was named third place winner in the state Safe Driving Road-e-o held here yesterday.

Lendy Carroll Edwards of Grimesland received a plaque designating him as one of the winners in the state contest.

First place went to John Wesley Packer of Clinton. He will represent North Carolina in the national Road-e-o. Winner of second place was George L. Barrier of Kannapolis.

The 64 entrants from all over the state participated in road tests and took written examinations. Total points scored in the tests determined the winners.

Also entered in the Road-e-o from Pitt County was Walter Glenn Heath of Ayden. He, along with other entrants, received a Winged Golden Trophy as a participant in the state finals.

Edwards and Heath earned the right to participate in the state Road-e-o after winning in Road-e-os sponsored by the Ayden and Greenville Jaycees.

Doughnut Sale Slated Thursday

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 7032 and the Ladies Auxiliary are planning to join forces Thursday from 5 to 9 p.m. to canvass the homes in the city for the sale of doughnuts for a worthy cause.

Proceeds of the sale will be used for support of a Little League baseball team. Post Commander John Cassick said the post hopes to realize a goodly sum from the doughnut canvass.

France, which has the highest birthrate in Western Europe, had a population increase of 434,700 in 1957.
