First News On Fall Fashions: 'Relaxed Look' Is Setting Pace

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—New York's garment district took on the characteristics of a record day at the stock exchange today as buyers from all sections of the country jammed the showrooms of 7th Avenue, nervously awaiting the unveiling of new fall fashions. While the great chemise controversy still raged from coast to coast, the dilemma facing the nation's buyers was: Will women heed their husbands' protest against the sack, or will they defy them and buy the new clothes anyway? First news from the embattled fashion front is that manufacturer-ers have provided a few alternatives to the sack for fall. The first dress and suit collections to open continue the "relaxed look" which camouflages the waistline, but offer a choice of several silhouettes. The most important appears to be the high-waisted Empire look, with the belt just below the bustline, the skirt falling loose and free. The next is the bloused silhouette, with belt or band somewhere around the hips. Indications on the first day of the openings is that the woman of fashion may wear her belt almost anywhere next fall except at the normal waistline. Some of the more extreme fashions show a belt about six inches above the knees, often with a flared or pleated flounce below. The few fitted, full-skirted styles shown are principally for late-day or evening wear. Some canny evening dress designers show a transparent lace or chiffon chemise or loose coat over a carefully fitted slip, thus bowing to the new mode while preserving due attention to the lines of the feminine figure. Skirts are barely below the knees in costume for all occasions, except for full-length bill gowns. Despite the general air of apprehension, both buyers and manufacturers are generally sanguine in their outlook for fall business, feeling that any fashion is good as long as it's talked about.

Health Rules Important In Summertime

By DOROTHY V. WHIFFLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

Time was when summer was a fearful time for mothers of young babies. Death rates were high during the hot weather season. There used to be an old fear that the "second summer" in a child's life was the most dangerous of all.

The big difference between now and times past is our knowledge of bacteria and sanitation. It was bacteria in the food that caused the greatest trouble. Food spoils easily in warm weather and babies who were fed contaminated food developed diarrhea. In those old days we didn't know how to treat diarrhea and all too often the disease proved fatal to the little patients.

Baby Foods Nowadays there are a multitude of safe prepared baby foods, and everyone has a refrigerator so that food in the home doesn't spoil any more quickly in summer than in winter.

The first summer a baby was on the breast in the old days and the danger of the second summer was the unpasteurized milk and other unprotected food he was fed. The chief danger to our children of today with respect to food in the summer is in the meals eaten on picnics and away from home.

Food spoils in 1958 just as it did in 1888. When you go on a picnic, be careful what you feed your children. A delicious potato salad kept warm for three or four hours can cause severe food poisoning. The same thing is true of a meatloaf.

For picnics take food in unopened cans—that's always safe. Or else take raw food that you cook over a campfire. Watch the milk you give your children. It's better to skip the milk on a picnic meal rather than give the youngsters milk that has been warm half the day. Or you can take along some cans of evaporated milk and a little chocolate syrup. The chocolate disguises the canned flavor and the children will drink the special treat with gusto.

Milk Precautions For the baby never, never carry milk warmed, on a picnic or anywhere else. If you take a feeding with you away from home for your baby, keep it cold in a thermos and warm it up at feeding time. You wouldn't think of warming the 2 p.m. feeding at 10 a.m. if you were staying home. Don't do it away from home. Aside from food the next most important thing to watch for summer health is the question of chilling. When it's hot children run and play and get wet and sweaty. Then even a little breeze chills them as it dries the perspiration. Watch out that sweaters and shirts go back on when they stop playing. In the early part of the summer watch out for overdoses of sunshine. Let the children get tanned gradually. A nasty case of sunburn is no fun. Teach your children to recognize poison ivy and to stay away from it.

'Miss Greenville' To Get Red Carpet Welcome In Miami, Fla.

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

At 10:30 a.m. tomorrow Miss Betty Lane Evans will board a plane at the Raleigh-Durham airport to mark the beginning of an all-expense four-day trip to Miami, Fla.

As winner of the "Miss Greenville" pageant, Betty Lane will be presented this trip along with a host of other gifts designated for the city's top beauty.

All she could say about the trip was "I'm thrilled to death about it all and I'm especially looking forward to the airplane trip, which will be my first."

A Red Carpet Welcome

When Betty Lane and her mother, Mrs. Amos Evans, arrive in Miami at 3 p.m., they will be greeted with a red carpet welcome.

During her vacation, pictures will often be taken to record the many activities planned and a luncheon and dinner party have been arranged where this attractive young lady and her mother will be honored.

While staying at the Fontainebleau Hotel, Betty Lane will be treated like royalty, according to Bob Lee, Jaycee in charge of the trip. He noted that the hotel is located on the ocean front and Betty Lane will not only be able to enjoy the ocean facilities, but the hotel's pool as well.

The dinner party and luncheon are being arranged by Harold Gardner, publicity director for the Fontainebleau Hotel, and the hotel manager.

Tentative plans call for the luncheon to be held on the hotel lawn and the dinner in the club. Betty Lane, who wants to get a good suntan and rest up after exams just completed at J. H. Ross High School, mentioned that she also plans to visit relatives in Miami.

For her plane trip, the dark-eyed 18-year-old has selected a pale blue sheath dress with a short jacket. Her biggest worry now is if she will be able to pass the airplane's luggage limit with the big overnight and medium-size suitcases she is packing with clothes suitable for everything from swimming to "nights on the town."

After a whirlwind three full days vacation in the Florida resort town, Betty Lane and Mrs. Evans will board a plane Sunday at 1 p.m. which will bring them to the Raleigh-Durham Airport around 6 p.m.

Build Your Own Trellis Planter

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newfeatures Writer

If you like plants but can't quite keep them under control, consider making a trellis planter. There are several advantages to the planter: (1) it will offer your plants a leaning post to encourage growth and (2) keep them in a neat arrangement. It may be an ideal screen for the summer fireplace, or an addition to a window sill, picture window or porch.

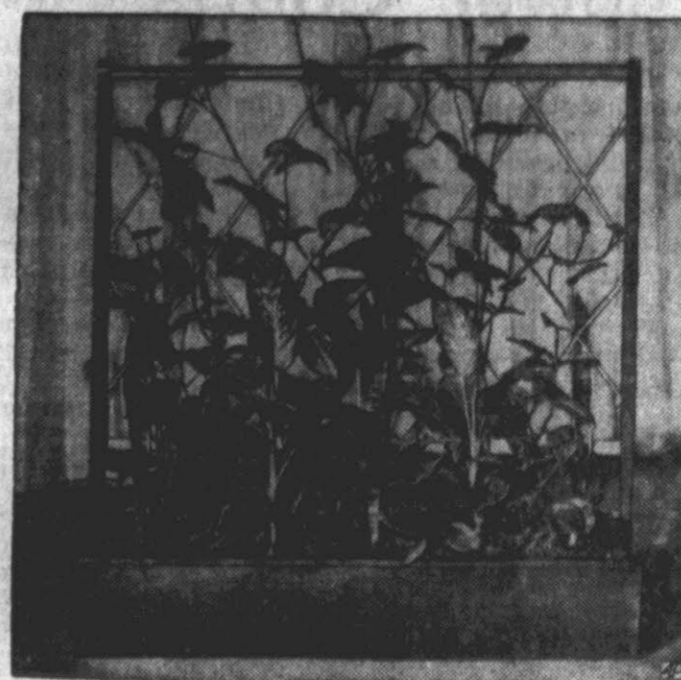

Start with a wooden flower box, the required length for the area you wish to decorate, making frame and planter of redwood, fir, pine or what have you. If it is to be used indoors, give the box several coats of thinned shellac or paint it.

After the box area is set, make uprights for the side of the box, depending on the height you want, using a frame of 1 by 3 inch wood, and joining it by a bar across the top, placing eyelets about 6 inches apart across the bar.

Place the eyelets the same distance apart on the length of one side of the box. Rope or nylon clotheslines may be laced in an X design along the flower box from the top row of eyelets to the row along the rim of the box. You may open the eyelets with pliers for easier lacing.

Line the box with tinfol and set the plants in it right in their own clay pots, adding more soil to conceal the plants.

A pretty arrangement may combine variegated ivy that climbs up

Dr. William Howard Carter, Head Consul of the 340 Woodmen of the World camps in North Carolina, will come to Greenville Friday at 2:15 p.m. for the purpose of instituting a Women of Woodcraft Court No. 1115.

Not only will this be North Carolina's Head Consul's first fraternal visit to Greenville, but the Greenville Court of the Women of Woodcraft will be one of the first instituted in North Carolina, since the W. O. W. began writing girls and women into the Fraternity on March 1 of this year.

The institutional ceremonies and installation of newly-elected officers of the Women of Woodcraft Court No. 1115 will be held in the Woman's Club.

Since the W.O.W. began accepting women and girls into the fraternal Society, an average of 100 per day have been written since March 1 of this year in the 44 states and the District of Columbia in which the fraternal Society operates.

To start the ball rolling toward more effective 4-H Club work in WASHINGTON County, Home Agent Frances M. Darden says that two 4-H community clubs have been organized in the Roper section. Home-makers in BURKE County have been wanting information on use and care of pressure canners—and after they got it they realized they needed to know where they could get them checked for safety measures. Assistant Home Agent Cloise Williams indicates that some canners have been used 12 to 16 years and have never been checked. They all report the men were most cooperative and the council plans to use the money to pay expenses for delegates on the U. N. Study Tour, Farm Home Week and craft workshops. . . . The seventh grades at White Rock school in MADISON County are taking an active interest in gardening this spring, says Assistant Home Agent Marie H. Buckner. They have requested a special class on "Raising Our Own Vegetables and Fruits." As a result of their health classes and the special class on gardening, many of them are planning to assist their families in gardening. "Never have I seen a more interested group of children—so many questions!" Mrs. Buckner said.

Keep Attention On Lower Courts

As North Carolinians continue to consider proposed reforms for the state's court system, they should not allow one popular proposal to overshadow the merits of other proposals that have been made concerning the courts.

The matter of appointing rather than electing judges of the state's Supreme Court and Superior Courts is pretty much a dead duck now. The adverse public reaction to the proposal, together with the opposition expressed from the governor's office, rules out any real chance the proposal might have had of being written into law.

It would be a mistake for North Carolina to continue to dwell on this matter rather than giving its consideration to other phases of revamping the state's court system.

The justice of the peace system and the county courts system are of paramount importance in this matter of streamlining the state's courts. Unless and until the state gets around to improving its system of lower courts, there is little hope that major steps can be taken to improve the higher courts of North Carolina.

If North Carolina is to continue to have JP courts the system should be completely renovated with fees abolished and salaries provided for judges. There should be more adequate supervision of JP courts, greater uniformity in their jurisdiction and more attention given to the qualifications of individuals who hold the office of Justice of the Peace.

Data About The Second Primary

By LYNN NISBET
SECOND PRIMARIES — A little known and seldom used provision of the election laws with respect to second primaries is that while responsibility for calling the run-off primary rests upon the second highest candidate, the top man has the right to decline and cede the nomination to the challenger. Oldtimers around capitol square could not recall an instance when the high man for a State office stepped down, but there has been a number of such instances in county races.

The statutes declare that nomination shall be by majority vote, but in event no aspirant gets a clear majority a second primary may be held four weeks later, in which only the two highest can participate. The second primary will not be held unless the second man files a request in writing within five days after results of the first primary have been certified.

Then there is this clause: "Provided, that if either of such two shall withdraw and decline to run and shall file notice to that effect with the appropriate board of elections, such board shall declare the other aspirant nominated."

County boards of elections met on Tuesday, June 3, to canvass returns. In most instances a results were certified then, which gives county candidates until Monday night to ask for a second primary. (The five day limit excludes Sunday.)

The State board of elections will meet in Raleigh on Tuesday, June 17, to canvass returns for State and district offices. Second highest candidates will have until Monday night, June 23, to ask for a run-off. That will leave only four days for campaigning. In most instances candidates will make up their minds earlier and get into a campaign this week.

PRECEDENT — There are historic instances of second primary calls winning in the run-off. Perhaps the biggest upset was when Thad Eure ran 64,000 votes behind Stacey Wade for Secretary of State in 1936, then won the second primary by 41,000. That same year Wilkins P. Horton trailed Paul Grady for Lieutenant Governor by 24,000 and won the nomination in the run-off by 9,000.

Kerr Scott ran 9,000 behind Charles M. Johnson for Governor in the first 1948 primary, and won the second by 35,000. And in 1950 Willis Smith ran 47,000 behind Frank P. Graham for the Senate, and won the run-off primary by 20,000.

There is also precedent for the runner-up yielding the nomination to the high man without asking a second primary. That happened in 1940 when W.P. Horton, who had mopped up in a run-off for Lieutenant Governor four years earlier, declined to call a second primary and J.M. Broughton was nominated for Governor by less than one-third of the primary votes. Again in 1952 Roy Rowe declined to call for a second chance against Luther Hodges for Lieutenant Governor. Hodges was declared the nominee, was elected—and two years later moved into the Governor's office upon the death of Governor William Umstead. It should be remembered that in the 1936, 1948 and 1950 primaries there was intense feeling. Voters were influenced as much by emotionalism as by reason. That factor was not involved in the 1940 and 1952 contests. It is present only in a few isolated local races this year, and there is no statewide contest. Saturday's primary was largely on policy and personal popularity. Run-offs, if called, will be on same basis in most instances.

LAST CHANCE — There is no provision for more than two nominating primaries. The law is specific on how to evaluate votes in races where more than two candidates are involved for more than one office—such as county commissioner or legislator. It is assumed that where only two candidates seek one office, one or the other will get a majority of the votes. The statutes are silent on what the procedure will be in case of a tie.

The statutes authorize gambling in event of a tie vote for municipal office. The equal aspirants are authorized by law to match coins or draw straws, or have a kid draw one name out of a hat, or otherwise gamble for the position. Presumably the same course would be followed if two candidates got the same number of votes in a primary.

One wage suggests that it would save a lot of money and time and trouble if the candidates would just match coins or draw for the places at the start. Since the choice of the people is limited to the candidates who have paid a filing fee to enter the primary, which means that a great many citizens cannot vote for the man or woman they really want for the office; and with the law giving the two highest men the right to decide whether a second primary will be held—why not just let the candidates match coins in an elimination process to begin with?

That calls to mind the suggestion of a New Yorker some years ago. He was asked what he thought of a legalized lottery plan to raise revenue. "I am all for it," he said. "Furthermore, I think the tax collector ought to offer to match every taxpayer double-or-nothing for his tax bill. The law of averages would take care of the State, and the taxpayer would feel he had some chance—which he doesn't have now."

The system of county and local courts should also be uniform throughout the state, eliminating the broad range of jurisdiction which now exists among these courts and providing a more rigid scope within which these courts can operate.

If North Carolina continues to focus its attention on the question of appointing rather than electing judges it might well overlook the urgently needed reforms in its lower courts.

Perhaps there are some people who hope that very thing will happen. Many people would prefer that the JP system and the conglomeration of county and local courts now in operation in North Carolina not be disturbed.

If the state is to improve its court system, however, it might begin with its lower courts. It must not allow its attention to be distracted by other items pertaining to the courts until it resolves the many problems which now exist in connection with our lower courts. For the next six months the study commission should concentrate on these lower courts and have specific recommendations ready for the 1959 General Assembly.

Crisis In France Did Not End With DeGaulle

Now that Charles DeGaulle has come to power in France the rest of the Western bloc can only watch, wait, and hope for the best.

DeGaulle, who deplores politics and also has voiced his distaste for dictatorship, is not likely to have smooth sailing in his new post as premier of France. Neither is France likely to have smooth sailing for a while. And when France is in hot water, so are her staunchest allies, the United States and Great Britain.

Though DeGaulle was brought to power in a desperate effort to avert a civil war in France, it is almost impossible to say he has the full support of any one group in or out of the French government. His expressed dislike for dictatorship has led some of his supporters on the extreme right to be uneasy about his plans for France. They are likewise concerned about his plans for Algeria. To the left of the political middle-line there are those who have misgivings about the new constitution DeGaulle is empowered to write strengthening the executive branch of government.

What happens in France is of utmost importance to the rest of the free world. Also of utmost importance to the West is what happens in North Africa where DeGaulle's action might well determine whether this important area remains friendly to the West, or turns to Communism.

The crisis in France did not end when DeGaulle came to power. It is not likely to end for many months. And as long as France continues in a state of crisis, other Western nations may expect rough sailing in international affairs.

Confusion That Grew More So

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's plan for extending unemployment pay — his most eye-catching anti-recession move — was born in confusion and is still confused, thanks to help from the Democratic-run Congress which approved it.

Originally, it was supposed to apply to all 48 states. In its finished form probably no more than six states, those heaviest hit by unemployment, will make use of it.

It's possible this new law will prove to be so thoroughly fouled up that Congress — although it doesn't have much time left this year — will want to junk it and do something both clearer and more beneficial.

Before looking at the confusion, this is the background: Each state has its own way of handling unemployment pay, deciding how much a jobless man can draw and for how many weeks. So the payments vary from state to state and the weeks of pay range from 16 to 31. In most states the maximum is 26 weeks.

States tax employers to provide money for unemployment pay in their individual states. The money in all these state funds now totals around eight billion dollars. So the states could increase the amount of unemployment pay and extend the number of weeks.

They could, if they wanted to. But none were doing it during this recession, although many thousands of jobless people were using up all the pay and weeks allowed them.

Eisenhower decided to stick a needle in the states by proposing that the federal government provide money to all states to extend unemployment pay to those jobless workers who had exhausted all the weeks due them.

He called some governors to the White House for a conference on his idea. They came away uncertain about what he had in mind, some think he intended the federal money to be a grant, or gift, and not a loan. They told newsmen they thought their states could accept a grant without trouble. But before they could accept a loan, they said, they thought their state legislatures might have to be called into session to approve.

What Eisenhower had in mind, as it turned out, was a loan, not a grant, with the loan to be paid back after four years. Repayment could come either from available funds or from a higher tax on employers.

He proposed: Congress should vote about 600 million dollars so states could extend by 50 per cent their maximum number of weeks of payment to jobless workers who had used up their rights. For example: A state with a present 26-week maximum could keep on paying a jobless man for another 13 weeks.

This didn't sit too well with some states, since they had enough money in their funds to extend the number of weeks without getting a loan from Uncle Sam. Besides, the thought of eventually boosting the tax on employers to pay back an unneeded loan wasn't too pleasant. One inducement for attracting new industries to a state is a low unemployment pay tax rate.

Some Democrats and Republicans thought the help to the states should be a grant and not a loan. Some wanted permanent legislation by Congress to increase the maximum number of weeks of unemployment pay, and make them uniform.

Out of this mish-mash of ideas came the final bill approved by Congress. It included the original Eisenhower proposal — a loan and a 50 per cent extension in weeks — plus a gimmick added by Congress.

This, instead of forcing states to accept a loan, would leave it up to them to decide whether they wanted it. Since most states have enough money in their funds without going into debt to the government, most are not expected to accept it.

And those who do accept may have to call special sessions of their legislatures or perhaps even amend their constitutions. So what looked impressive, if confused, starting out, now looks not only confused but a fizzle.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

Some weeks ago a group of people assembled at an airport to take a long trip. As they entered the plane, some turned to the right, others to the left. There was a fearful accident within a short time. Those who had gone to the front of the plane were either killed or seriously injured. Those who had gone to the rear were scarcely bruised.

Why? No one, of course, can tell. The tragic circumstance reminds us that in the midst of life we are in death. At the beginning of every harvest season, the human race is said to be within two months of starvation. Certainly, every individual walks through life with the possibility of death never far away.

But this mix up? This matter of some turning one direction and encountering continuance of life, and others turning the other direction and encountering the stark reality of death. What of that?

We have to be satisfied in this life to accept the fact that human destiny is a complicated matter. It is in the hands only of the One who created it. We cannot pass judgment. We can scarcely speculate, for we have nothing upon which to base our speculations.

We can only accept the fact that life is in the hands of the Creator, who is also a merciful Father. He will bring all things out right in the end.

Wear The Lad Down

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Many a would-be June bride won't be this year.

The reason in many cases will be very simple — and her own fault. She will make a basic and human mistake. She will waste her time building up her suitor's ego.

This is all wrong. The best way for her to bring a reluctant bachelor to the point of marriage is not to build him up but to tear him down.

It is doubtful whether more than one out of every five men marry from strength. The rest marry from weaknesses of one kind or another.

In four cases out of five, then, the problem of a marriage-minded girl isn't to make her prospective mate feel strong and superior. It is to make him feel weak, helpless and indecisive — unable to face the terror of daily life alone, with no strong shoulder such as hers to lean upon. He must be made to feel utterly dependent upon her.

How can this be done? How can a girl break down a healthy, freedom-loving bachelor so that he willingly will embrace matrimony as a refuge?

Here are a few off-hand tips:

1. Take him to the beach and let him get sunburned the color of a lobster.
2. Send to his sickbed a gift of roses-embowered in poison ivy leaves.
3. Wine him and dine him and keep him out late until he gets circles under his many little eyes. When he shows signs of collapsing under the pace, let him know that what you'd really like is a home where you could tuck him in bed early every night and let him rest.
4. Once you've got him really worried about his health, have an insurance company mail him a few facts on male mortality, pointing out that husbands live longer and have fewer diseases than bachelors.
5. Lend him money to pay his medical and racetrack debts. Hint that, if you were married, you'd be willing to cancel not only the interest charges but the principal, too.
6. Tell him that you just got a raise and your job is safe, but that at your firm they are laying off the bachelors first and married men last. This will really worry him.
7. Tell him that while he was ill, an Army recruiting sergeant called and wanted to know if he was interested in a fine new career that would enable him to see the world at little or no personal expense.
8. Finally, as a clincher, you wistfully inform him that a handsome new fellow at your office has proposed and that, while you don't love him, still a girl has to think of her future, et cetera, et cetera.

By now completely dependent upon you, broken in body and spirit, the fear-ridden bum of your choice will cave in at once and plead for you to marry him.

Which you cheerfully do. You may be getting a human wreck for a husband — a wreck you made yourself — and your conscience may trouble you a bit. But remember, June marriages are made on earth, not in heaven, and all's fair in love and war.

And after all, you've got the rest of your life to build your new husband back into manhood again.

Abominable Snow Man

Summer Vacation Starts

Summer vacation officially begins today for children in Greenville's city schools.

For most of them, the holidays will be all too short. September will seem to come with a startling quickness and they will be back in their classrooms for another year of work and study.

There was little thought of September, however, in one classroom I visited yesterday. The youngsters there weren't considering more than the prospects of completing their first year of school.

It was refreshing to visit their class and to live again the time I had so long forgotten. I sang songs I had not thought of for many years, and I enjoyed stories and games which passed from my mind a long, long time ago. And I honestly believe I was the most reluctant person in the group when it came time to leave.

I'm already planning to go back next year, because I think, occasionally, I'm really a first grader at heart.

There was another pleasure attached to ending of school. It meant that I can forget about taking pictures of graduating classes for another year. There's a lot of work involved in setting up, organizing and taking pictures of 16 graduating classes—and the finished product doesn't always come out as you want it too. It's worth all the effort, I know, but there is always a big sign of relief when a mammoth project such as that is completed.

I feel as if I'm the world's living authority on taking group pictures of graduating class. I know the feeling isn't a true one, but I have it anyway. And I'll argue with any photographer who wants to dispute the claim.

Getting back to the original thought in all of this — that today is the official beginning of summer holidays for the school children — it might be well for all of us who drive to keep that uppermost in our minds.

There will be children playing on streets who have become accustomed to having deserted in the morning and early afternoon hours. There is, certainly, a necessity for being careful drivers all of the time, but the necessity is even more forceful now.

Schools are crowded, and school officials are becoming more and more concerned with where to put all of them. They don't want to lose any to traffic accidents, however, and I don't believe there are any drivers who want to cut the school population with a careless moment on the city streets or the open highways.

Parents would do equally well to point out to their children the dangers of playing in the streets and on the highways, and it would be a good thing if they would put particular stress on the subject for the next couple of weeks when motorists are liable to be forgetful about school being out.

Other Editors Saying --- Machines Would Help

(Henderson Dispatch)

In more and more cities and counties in North Carolina, authorities are installing voting machines as a means of registering ballots on election day. They are pleased with results of their operation and find it function in satisfactory manner.

We have long wondered if it would be advisable for such facilities to be provided in the larger precincts of Henderson. It seems to us it would not be amiss for some study to be made of the cost and desirability of providing the machines. If the cost were prohibitive, we could forget about the whole idea and no one would be the worse.

Two things can be said in favor of the mechanical devices. One is almost instantaneous reporting of results of an election. The other would be the accuracy in the tabulation, since the machines are said to be virtually foolproof in operation. Another consideration would be the time saved on election night and the extra day's time for those workers.

Whether the speed of announcing results would alone justify the cost might be debatable. Perhaps many would prefer to accept the delay, the extra expense and the long hours in lieu of the cost. But there is always a popular clamor on election night for returns from the voting.

It would not be necessary to use the machines in the smaller precincts. Last Saturday night, for instance, the rural districts, which are smaller than those in town, were the first to turn in their tabulation. Nearly all of them were before any of those in Henderson. It was near midnight before seven of the eight districts in town completed their count, and the eighth one was around one o'clock.

American life and activity is geared to speed—for better or for worse. People are impatient to learn what they want to know. This is true particularly of elections. The voting machine would solve that problem.

For those who wonder how some of the large communities are so speedy determining the results of their balloting, it can be said that in many instances this is at least an answer. Those without these facilities are much later in finishing tabulations.

In one city about twice or a little more the size of Henderson, the daily newspaper announced in advance it would issue an election extra Saturday night covering the county and carrying the vote for all candidates in all districts. That would have been impossible here before early Sunday morning. Perhaps it doesn't make any difference either way. For our part, in particular we are not itching to publish an extra edition for this purpose. But this is illustrative of the popular demand for information and the means of getting it to the people with a minimum of delay.

We would not burn the bridges in advocating voting machines without learning something of the cost. But if an investigation should prove the plan practical, it probably would be a good thing.

Opinions In Brief

"Experience is a very good school, but the fees are usually pretty high. — Lock Haven (Pa.)

"Again we wonder why Kansas (the cyclone state) takes all her cyclones elsewhere to let them loose. In the past week or so, Kansas has had her cyclones in Illinois, Texas and Alabama, and none at home. What's in a name?" — Mankato (Kans) Jewell County Record.

"The present plans for tax reduction have not been accompanied by any inclination to curtail spending. Quite the reverse has been true—wild spending proposals have flooded the Congress. Several hundred such bills, including one to raise Congressional retirement benefits, have been offered and more than a thousand tax cut measures await action." — Columbia (S.C.) State.

"If any country was as dominated in its dress, its slang, its theater, its habits by the Russians as Britain has become by the Americans, we should not hesitate to describe it as a Soviet satellite." — The London Dispatch.

"Apparently some of the most dangerous places in peace time will be among the safest places in event of nuclear war: deep underground in a mine, way down about the South Pole, or circling around earth in a space ship with satellites and empty rockets casings." — Lumberton Robertsonian.

"Mr. Bigge, you charged off your convention costs as a business expense. Is your business drinking?"

EVERYBODY'S ENTRAPPED
Bobbiebobok. There's a 212-word sentence in income tax instructions, and no one could say the same thing more clearly or briefly. In fact, few people can understand it.

This dramatizes a neat trick in writing laws: frame them so that practically everyone must violate them. Then officials can pick and choose whom they wish to harass, fine and imprison. Many cities use this same trick, especially in traffic and disturbing-the-peace laws.

Cancer cure. The discovery of a cancer cure could mean a 10 to 15 per cent annual increase in the sales volume of ethical drug manufacturers, publicly states the National Securities & Research Corp. Okay, researchers, redouble efforts! Now you have a real incentive: to make money for investors.

"Genderizing." Sheaffer says that "genderizing" of writing instruments — that is, making both masculine and feminine models — is booming sales. What a world of opportunity genderizing offers all business! There can be masculine and feminine television sets, canned beans, toothpastes, peanut brittle, instant coffee, bouillon, stock issues, automobiles. Maybe we can genderize our way out of the recession.

A ROSY WAY TO SHOW GARBAGE DISPOSER
A Pennsylvania store is using an unusual promotion to sell a gas garbage disposer. It is advertising an offer to trade rose bushes for bags of garbage. When people come in for the war, their garbage is immediately put in the disposer and burned. Thus the efficiency and odorlessness of the disposer is convincingly demonstrated.

The workshop in elementary school music, scheduled for June 16-27, is sponsored by East Carolina College and the Follett Company, nationally known publishers of music. Classes will meet daily from 3 to 5:30 p.m., in an air-conditioned room. Beatrice Chauncey of the East Carolina music faculty will be instructor.

Those completing requirements will receive three quarter hours of credit on the senior-graduate level. Auditors may attend without charge.

The course of study will include singing, music reading, rhythms, dancing, simple rhythmic and accompanying instruments, music books, and records.

Dr. Wolfe will participate in the workshop June 23-24. He is one of the editors of "Together We Sing," a music book series published by Follett for use in elementary and junior high schools. He has taught at Iowa State Teachers College and headed the department of music at Eastern Illinois State Teachers College.

Miss Wyle will act as instructor and consultant June 25. Before joining the Follett staff, she was teacher and supervisor of music in Elgin, Illinois. Miss Jewell will give special work in rhythms and dancing June 19-20.

The workshop has been planned for classroom teachers, music teachers, principals, supervisors, parents, and others interested in music for children from the kindergarten through the junior high school.

Shaky French Franc Is Due For Drastic Cure

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — One of Gen. de Gaulle's first tasks will be to try to bolster the shaky franc.

French officials say that in international payments to settle foreign trade, France is near bankruptcy. Its participation in the European Common Market with five other nations is at stake.

At home the franc's problem is that old familiar one — the rising cost of living which steadily erodes its value.

That the U.S. dollar doesn't buy as much now as in 1947 is no news to Americans. But for Frenchmen the depreciation of money has been much worse.

In a study of what's happened in the last 10 years to the buying power of the currency of 24 countries, economists of the First National City Bank of New York measure the depreciation of money by the rise in the official cost of living or consumer price index.

The rates of depreciation vary widely year by year but the economists have compounded them and average them out to give an annual rate.

Taking the French franc's market value at an arbitrary 100 in 1947, they find that by the end of 1957 it was worth 56, or a decline of 44 per cent a year.

By comparison, the U.S. dollar, if valued at 100 in 1947, had dropped to 80, for an annual decline of 2.2 per cent.

Switzerland has the best record. But even its currency's value went down by 1.2 per cent a year and now stands at 89 on the bank's index.

Next best were Germany and Venezuela, each with an annual decline of 1.5 per cent.

The United States is fourth, followed by India with 2.3 per cent drop, Belgium 2.6 per cent, Italy 3 per cent, and Canada 3.5 per cent.

Although Canada's dollar now commands a premium over the U.S. dollar in foreign exchange, its depreciation measured by the Canadian cost of living brought it from the index figure of 100 in 1947 to 70 at the end of 1957.

Fourteenth down on the list is the United Kingdom. Britain's fight against inflation has been losing over the 10 years at an annual rate of 4.7 per cent and its currency now stands at 62 on the index.

Four South American countries have been hardest hit of the 24. Chile stands at the bottom of the list, its currency depreciating at an annual rate of 25.5 per cent, bringing it down on the index from 100 in 1947 to 5 as last year ended.

Argentina's annual loss was 16.5 per cent and Brazil's 12.1 per cent. Peru's money dropped to 37 in the 10 years, an annual loss of 9.5 per cent.

Brazil is particularly hard hit at the present time, with a threatening financial crisis.

But France's problem, if less drastic over the years, is real enough right now. At home, De Gaulle's problem will be to try to curb further wage and price rises. Abroad, it will be to seek some way out of the international payments crisis.

American businessmen note that this may very well stymie the European Common Market, supposed to get under way at the end of the year.

France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg are scheduled to start a slow move toward removal of all trade and travel barriers between themselves. With France currently unable to meet its financial obligations in foreign trade, the whole scheme could be delayed.

Climbs On Ledge To Prevent Man From Big Jump

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City's 300-pound mayor clambered out on a 25th-floor ledge of the City Hall and helped prevent a man from jumping off the ledge yesterday.

Mayor H. Roe Bartle diverted the attention of E. J. Lamar Fairbanks and police and firemen grabbed the man.

Fairbanks, 40-year-old father of six, later told police he only wanted to preach to the crowd below.

A part-time postal worker and dental student, Fairbanks put this question to Bartle when the mayor appeared on the ledge: "Mr. Mayor, will you stop smoking to keep me from jumping?"

A cigar smoker, Bartle hesitated about answering. While Fairbanks was putting the heat on the mayor, the rescuers slipped up and grabbed him.

State Bank Takes 4-2 Victory Over College View In Opener

Sammy Pugh Is Winning Pitcher In Teen-er Tilt

Teen-er League baseball began here last night at Guy Smith Stadium with the State Bank taking a 4-2 victory over College View in seven innings.

Only a handful of spectators turned out to see the opening game of the 1958 season which was played in a chilly breeze.

Sammy Pugh, tiny lefthander, earned mound duties for the State Bankers and hurled all seven innings to get credit for the 4-2 win. He struck out only three batters and walked only three but allowed only four hits, one in the first, one in the third, and a pair in the seventh.

His opponent on the hill was veteran College View moundman Malcolm Griffith, who came through with a fine three-hitter but still lost the game. Griffith, who demonstrated a strong talent for no-hitters last year, got off to a good start despite the loss last night. He fanned nine batters and walked only two.

Errors made the difference last night. College View committed five costly errors, three of them in the final inning. State Bank picked up two runs in the fourth inning on a hit by Alan McArthur, another by Jimmy Smith, and an error. Then, in the final inning, Smith got another hit, Conway got on an error, and Ange got on an error, and two of them scored on an error by the CV first baseman.

The College View runs were scored in the fifth and seventh innings. In the fifth, Allen walked and later scored on an error. In the seventh Stocks got on a hit and later scored.

Leading hitter for both sides as far as statistics go was Catcher Jimmy Smith of the State Bank club. He got two singles for four trips to the plate. McArthur's single was the only other State Bank hit on the books. For College View, Bradner, Jenkins, Griffith, and Stocks got singles.

Double Header
Tonight, the league opens wide with a special benefit dinner from 5:00 to 7:00 and a doubleheader featuring all four clubs, Home Builders, Guaranty Bank, State Bank and College View.

The first game of the doubleheader will get underway at 6:30. A large turnout is expected to attend the dinner and games.

Milwaukee Recovers, Gets Back Into National Lead

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Braves have rediscovered the home run, slammung back into the National League by walloping 12 in their last four games.

The champs belted five, their best one-game total of the year, and made them good for all but one of their runs in a 7-4 decision at San Francisco last night. The Giants were shoved back into second place, .010 percentage points behind.
Wes Covington and Hank Aaron each hit a pair. Covington's second haul hauled the Braves from behind in the eighth inning and Aaron's second clinched it in the ninth.
There were at least two home runs in every NL game yesterday — except at Los Angeles. That cozy-corner in the Coliseum gave up just one, a sliced shot by Duke Snider, as Cincinnati used a bunch of walks for an 8-3 victory over the Dodgers.
St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 8-4 on two-run homers by Stan Musial and Joe Cunningham, and the Chicago Cubs clobbered Philadelphia 12-4 with Ernie Banks hitting his 14th homer, tops in the NL.
In the American League, the New York Yankees belted Chicago 13-0 on Johnny Kucks, two-hitter. Washington swept a two-night pair from Kansas City 5-4 and 10-9. Boston beat Cleveland 7-3, and Baltimore defeated Detroit 2-0 on Arnie Portocarrero's six-hitter.

The Braves, who set a team record and led the NL in homers (19) for the first time since 1900 when they won the pennant last season, had been averaging less than one a game before the current spurt. Covington, with four in the last four games, hit his first in a two-run fourth that gave the Braves a 2-2 tie, matching Ray Jablonski's two-run homer in the Giants' third inning.
Aaron and Felix Mantilla hit consecutive homers for a 4-2 lead in the fifth, but starter Lew Burdette and reliever Gene Conley blew the bulge.
Unbeaten Don McMahon won his fifth in relief, but needed Ernie Johnson's help when the Giants scored with one out in the ninth on Willie Mays' triple and an infield out. The Giants had 11 hits. The Braves had a dozen, 10 off starter Ruben Gomez, who lost his fourth.
Cunningham's second home run of the season junked a 4-all tie against losing reliever Curt Raymond (0-2) in the fourth for the Cardinals. Musial slugged his 390th in the majors, ninth this year, in the sixth. He drove in three runs. Larry Jackson won his fourth although allowing 10 hits, including home runs by Bob Skinner and Bill Mazeroski.
The Redlegs had nine walks, five of them in a six-run third off loser Sandy Koufax, who didn't allow a hit while giving up five runs. Don Hoak's three-run double was the only hit in the big

Dodgers Holding Slim Edge In Ravine Vote

By CHARLES MAHER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dodgers held a slim lead today in voting to determine whether they will be permitted to build a glamorous new stadium in Chavez Ravine.
The last returns announced before counting was interrupted early today put the Dodgers ahead 47,471 votes to 43,453.
Dodger President Walter O'Malley met with newsmen today and said: "What can I say? It's just too close to say anything."
City Councilman Patrick McGee, one of the leaders of opposition to the stadium deal, said: "It's too soon to tell. But I'm satisfied. The issue has been submitted to the people. And that's what we wanted."
The outlying districts are already showing a leading margin for the "no" side. And this may offset the small margin the downtown districts showed in the early counting.
The extraordinary local interest in the Chavez Ravine issue was noted by O'Malley.
"I was intrigued," he said, "in the interest in the referendum as indicated by the headlines in the Los Angeles newspapers. The senatorial and gubernatorial elections were secondary."
The unusual voter turnout was held largely responsible for the sluggish rate at which returns were being announced. Veteran newsmen said they could not recall when election results were so slow.
It would take a simple majority for the Dodgers to win the Chavez

Ravine property, located just a mile from the Civic Center.
The deal submitted to the voters as Proposition B, would convey some 300 acres of Chavez Ravine property to the ball club in exchange for Dodger-owned Wrigley Field, a former Coast League park.
The Dodgers would spend up to 12 million dollars on a new four-tiered stadium seating about 52,000. They also would construct a 40-acre public recreation park in the ravine at a cost of up to $500,000 and would maintain it at a cost of $60,000 a year for 20 years.
The city would spend up to two million dollars grading the ravine site for the team and the county would invest $2,740,000 on access roads.
The whole deal was approved by the City Council last fall by a vote of 10-4. But opponents launched a referendum campaign and came up with more than enough signatures to have the matter referred to the electorate.
The Dodgers, meanwhile, have been playing in the Coliseum.
Opponents of the Chavez Ravine contract contended throughout the campaign that they were not trying to strangle baseball. They said they were trying to bail the city out of a poor deal.

Yesterday's play in the Little Leagues at Elm Street Park featured victories by the Lions in the North State League and the Exchange club in the Tar Heel loop.
The Lions solidified their first-place position in the North State by chalking up a 3-2 win over the bottom-ranked Kiwanians. The Exchange club toppled the Moose by the same 3-2 score in the other circuit.

The result of yesterday's games are pointed in the Tar Heel league, while they didn't actually change anything in the North State. The Exchange's triumph dropped the defending champion Moose into bottom place with a 2-4 mark and gives the Exchange a jump into third and a good chance to climb. The No. 2 team, the Elks, has a 2-2 mark and a single loss on the part of the Elks would tie the two clubs for second position.

In the other loop, the Lions only added to their already heavy 5-1 record and the Kiwanians did the same thing to their 1-5 mark.

Taylor hurried the win for the Lions, giving up three hits to the Kiwanis team, striking out six and walked six. He was relieved in the bottom of the fifth by Reid Kennedy and the reliever finished out the game. Taylor, however, got credit for the victory.

Vic Henderson hurled for the losers. He struck out six, walked two, gave up four hits.
All of the hits in the game were singles. Nichols, of the Kiwanis, got more than anyone else, two.

Hadley pitched for the Exchange club and received credit for the 3-2 win over the Moose in the other game. He allowed only four hits. The losing hurler was Cavendish.

The Exchange picked up two runs in the first inning and another in the sixth, while the Moose managed only two in the initial frame.
The Moose threatened several other times but couldn't push any runs across.

Hadley, besides grabbing the mound win, was the leading hitter for both teams with three hits, a double and two singles. Bostic, Taylor, Summerlin, Stubbs, and Gray also got hits for the winners.
Kell and Webb got two hits each for the losers.

Ports Authority Hears Proposals To Hike Traffic

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — The State Ports Authority has received proposals for coordinating and attracting export and import traffic through Wilmington and Morehead City. In an authority meeting here yesterday, spokesmen for tobacco, lumber, furniture and other interests suggested that they and the ports would be helped by timing the movement of their products so that more vessels would be willing to dock at the ports. The authority was told that small import consignments, for example, often arrive via ports outside North Carolina whereas coordinated loads would come direct to the state. The authority adopted a resolution asking cooperation of Alcoholic Beverage Control officials in seeking the liquor import traffic now passing through Northern ports. John Goyk of Danville, Va., traffic manager for the tobacco firm of Dirlbell Bros., said the availability of steamship service and warehousing facilities were of prime importance to tobacco exporters. He recommended expansion of storage facilities at the two ports and said he was informed of a new 90,000-square-foot warehouse under construction at Morehead City already was over-committed. Also speaking at the meeting were Tom Bruce of Carolina-Farnsworth Inc. and Fletcher Wall of the Pat Brown Lumber Co. of High Point.

Wagon Train Stardom Is Accompanied By Ulcers

By WARD BOND NEW YORK (AP)—There's no denying that the life of men like Maj. Seth Adams, the wagonmaster I portray in television's "Wagon Train" series, was a rugged one. But in all the books I've read about frontier life, I haven't yet run across a wagonmaster who got ulcers because of his work. Unfortunately, I can't say the same for the man who pretends to lead that existence once a week on TV. After 30 years as a supporting player in motion pictures, they decided I should enter television with star billing. And what happened? Two months later I developed an ulcer. The troubles we encountered in getting our wagon train from Independence, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif., would have shaken the toughest of last century's wagonmasters. For one thing, we spent almost a full year making the trip which our real-life counterparts covered in half that time. And the problems of logistics, personnel and time topped anything that was dreamed of 95 years ago. The show's production office had to consider and solve — for the purposes of the story — all the difficulties that faced the wagon trains of that day. This was the easy part. Because then came the problem of finding good scripts. When the series was begun, in May 1957, there wasn't a single script which could be adapted to our format. Each of the 39 stories presented during the season was written especially for Wagon Train. The newness of the format, that is, featuring Robert Horton and myself in alternating episodes, with each story built around a name guest star, required not only unusual stories, but a special style of writing. At least half of every Wagon Train episode was shot on location. Most of them were filmed in the vicinity of Thousand Oaks, Calif., about 40 miles from Hollywood. Others were made at more distant sites, with three filmed in the desert near Tucson, Ariz. Every day's shooting on location created tremendous problems. First, there was the risk of bad weather. Sites had to be selected for each scene that resembled terrain the wagon train was supposed to be passing through. Then the exact amount of equipment, horses, other livestock, props, costumes and the thousand and one thing necessary to film a picture had to be ordered and transported each morning to the shooting site. The personnel necessary for a day's shooting on location ranged from 90 to 130. Special provision had to be made each day for transporting and feeding the entire company. Now that I've gotten this off my chest, I'll get ready for another season. Because regardless of the work and worry, I've never experienced a more exciting and self-satisfying year in my life.

Peace Is Their Work, Says Ike To Annapolis Grads

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — President Eisenhower today told United States Naval Academy graduates their overriding goal in this nuclear age must be prevention of war and promotion of world peace. But he said too that a just peace can be won only from a position of strength — and that the armed services "have become, indeed, great shields to guard the peace." In sounding that note, Eisenhower also plugged for his controversial defense reorganization program without mentioning it specifically. He told the 900 academy graduates — being commissioned as ensigns in the Navy or second lieutenants in the Air Force or Marine Corps — to keep up to date on the principles of effective military management. Then he added: "Obsolescence in military management and organization can be as dangerous to our nation as obsolescence in weaponry."

Washington for this third visit to the Naval Academy since he took office in 1953. This was the first time he has attended graduation ceremonies here. Among ways of helping their careers, Eisenhower suggested that the graduates develop a healthy and lively sense of humor. He said the capacity of free people to accept their mistakes in good humor — to experience setbacks without fear or resentment — adds vitality to their characteristic searching for truth and knowledge and for higher standards of excellence. "A Communist is not permitted the adventures of this kind of searching," the President said. He also advised the graduates they should:

- 1. Keep abreast of developments in their chosen profession. He said adherence to obsolete viewpoints is a liability to the nation.
- 2. Make a habit of reflecting seriously upon the unfolding world drama to "help you along the road to responsible leadership for peace."
- 3. Develop a genuine proficiency in a foreign language as a means of improving human understanding throughout the world.
- 4. Strive for a deeper understanding of the nature of man, of the economic and political systems of nations, and of cultural heritages of all societies.
- 4. Become effective leaders in the moral and spiritual realm of life — particularly in the light of the threat of communism and militant and aggressive atheism.

Recovered $150 In All-Day Hunt

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—It took an all-day hunt through 5,000 pounds of refuse, but the Rohde family finally recovered $150. Unable to get to the bank, Mrs. N. W. Rohde wrapped the money in tissue paper and put it in a clothes hamper. Daughter Mary Jo found it and dumped it in a trash basket. The city picked up the trash. Fortunately, the trash truck was sent to a city garage for repairs still loaded with the trash. Advised of this, the Rohde clan manned rakes and went to work. Mary Jo found the money, all bills, still wrapped in the tissue.

One Leg Of His Flight On Ground

ALPHARETTA, Ga. (AP) — C. G. Dutcher of Winnetka, Ill., made one leg of his flight to Florida on the ground. Flying his light plane to West Palm Beach, where his wife is, he ran out of gas. He landed in a corn field, got some gas from a filling station, then taxied down a highway about 10 miles to a baseball field, which provided enough room for him to take off.

Retirement Talk Was Premature HOLLYWOOD (AP) — An announcement of Bing Crosby's plans to retire was apparently premature — by about five years. The Groaner's agent said yesterday that Bing has signed a five-year television deal with the American Broadcasting Co. It calls for two live, 90-minute spectacles a year. Terms weren't announced. Latest report that Crosby was retiring came from a national magazine.

Can Forget Old Deportation Fear

OMAHA (AP)—Harry Lee, 72-year-old Chinese cook, can forget his worries about being deported. James A. Glasgow, acting Omaha District director of immigration, gives that assurance to Lee, who entered this country as a stowaway in 1918 and has lived in many cities since then. The Chinese cook now lives in retirement in Davenport, Iowa. The government checking old records, had instructed Lee to produce affidavits that he had not left the country since 1924. He said he could not get them. The immigration official said Lee may achieve the status of a permanent resident through registry proceedings to create a record of lawful entry that does not now exist. Lee registered with the New York Chinese consulate some 24 years ago.

Road Projects

RALEIGH (AP)—The biggest batch of road work in history, totaling 13 million dollars, faces the State Highway Commission when it meets in Charlotte Monday. Low bids on the whopping list of 18 projects were tallied by the commission yesterday. It found the total ran far above the 8 1/2 million set in March, 1957, as the previous monthly record. Two relocation jobs on the interstate system are among the projects for 144 miles of road improvements in 15 counties. The largest of these is for 14 miles of grading and structures in the relocation of U.S. 70 in McDowell County. Low bids for the job totaled $3,399,445.01. Grading and surfacing of 14 1/2 miles of relocation of U. S. 301 in Cumberland County, the other interstate project, drew a low bid of $1,623,837.70.

CHAPTER 25

"George Cadot wrote his innermost thoughts in his diary," I said to Lois Marlow. "Shortly after the honeymoon, you found out about it and used to make a habit of reading George's diary. You got quite a kick out of it. You particularly liked to see yourself through his eyes as he described you to his diary. It was nice reading about what a wonderful, gorgeous creature you were."

"Donald!" said Lois, her eyes startled. "How did you know that?"

"Then," I said, "after you had been married a year or two, and a good deal of the glamour had been worn off and you saw George as a very ordinary, very everyday person. George's grandfather died, and George inherited some money."

"Shortly after that, George became absolutely impossible. He started brooding, worrying, and then that self-righteous complex of his built up to a point where there was no living with him. You stood it for about six months, then you decided to walk out."

"You were a little afraid George might try to keep you from getting a divorce. You and George had temperaments which were absolutely incompatible. You wanted gaiety and adventure. George was leading a grim sort of existence. I wouldn't be too surprised if there hadn't been another man or two in your life, and George was suspicious about it. That could have made trouble in the divorce court, in case there was a contest."

"Anyway, you decided you wanted a little protection, so when you left, you stole George's diary—the one that covered the period of time just prior to his grandfather's death."

Her face had gone white now. She was watching me with eyes that seemed to be as big as the opening of the cocktail glass she was holding in her hand.

"Donald," she said, "who told you all that stuff?"

"I told it to myself," I said. "George's diary told all about the events leading up to his grandfather's death and carried on for about six months afterward with a lot of talk about making the world a better place in which to live, and then, for the rest of the year, there wasn't an entry."

"That could only mean one thing. George didn't have the diary any more, therefore he couldn't write in it. You got your divorce in Reno about six months after George's grandfather died. It doesn't take much of a detective to put two and two together and know that you took the diary when you left."

"How... how do you know all this, Donald?"

"When I'm working on a case, I like to know what's happening."

"But Donald, the police are fighting you, or rather you're fighting the police. They aren't confiding in you."

"They don't have to."

She made circles with the base of the cocktail glass on the table. Her lips twitched.

"I said, 'George lost his diary six months after his grandfather's death. It's a pretty good bet he never saw it again. Yet it was found in his apartment. Question! How did it get in his apartment?'"

"Well, how did it?"

"There's only one way," I said. "You put it there."

"I put it there?"

"That's right, you put it there."

"Donald, you're crazy. You—Why would I have put it there?"

"Because you were tired of having the guy mess up your life," I said. "and you wanted the police to find it. You knew that someone was going to search his apartment, so you took the diary you had stolen, and had held in your possession for four years, and put it where the police would find it."

"Not the police," she said. "You! I wanted you to find it."

"Why?"

"Because I was tired of having him act as my perpetual chaperon. I'm a big girl now. I know what I want and I'm entitled to live my own life. I've been married, and there's no reason on earth why I should order my life to suit the whims of an ex-husband who has become a moral crusader."

"Then why didn't you kick him out on his ear?" I asked. "Why not just tell him to go roll his hoop? Why go to all that trouble?"

She made more circles with the cocktail glass. "He was giving me money," she said.

"His conscience bothered him. He was my husband. I had been his wife. He'd sworn to love and cherish and all that stuff."

"I looked at her shrewdly. "And there was a little blackmail on the side?"

"No, Donald, no. Absolutely. He never knew I had that diary. He never knew that I suspected anything about his grandfather's death until—"

"Until what?" I asked.

"Until after you called on me, and I found out that he'd written that perfectly horrible letter. Then I knew I had to do something."

"All right, what did you do?"

She said, "I was in a panic. At the very time you were talking to me, George was right down the hallway visiting Caroline and Horace Dutton. I was terribly afraid you might find out there he was, that you might know of the distinctive sports car he was driving and—"

"I evidently overlooked a bet there," I said. "Go on, what happened?"

"Well, I got rid of you and then I went down to the Duttons and told George I had to see him right then."

"He came along?" I asked.

"Like a lamb," she said. "And what did you tell him?"

"I told him plenty. I told him I knew about the letter he'd written. I told him that if he thought I was going to stand for that kind of stuff, he was absolutely nuts."

"Then what?"

"Then he began to tell me what he was doing was for my own good and all of that, and I got mad and told him he couldn't put himself up on such a pedestal. I called him a murderer."

"Then what happened?"

"He tried to deny it, but he started to come apart at the seams."

"Did you tell him you had the diary?"

"No, certainly not. He didn't know what had become of the diary. He never did know. He thought he had lost it."

"Go on," I said. "How did you handle it?"

"I told him that you were a very, very clever detective, that he'd stuck his neck out writing those letters, that he was going to prison for extortion and blackmail and sending threatening letters when he got to town, the authorities would start investigating his grandfather's death and everything about it."

"That bothered him?"

"That scared the pants off him. He turned green."

Lois is going to give Donald a start. "Sure," I mentioned Caroline," she tells him, "She was in on it. She probably was the one that did the job." A new chapter of the story will appear tomorrow.

Rooster Died In Expensive Fire

SAN MATEO, Calif. — Gary Lawson, 3, and Billy Miller, 4, wanted to give Gary's pet rooster Cock-a-doodle-doo a drink.

They tipped over a can of gasoline.

A heater pilot light ignited the fumes.

The flash attracted Mrs. Barbara Lawson, who was across the street.

As she rushed home, Billy burst out shouting "Gary's trying to save his rooster. . . There's a fire!"

Then Gary ran out and sobbed in his mother's arms: "I tried to save Cock-a-doodle-doo."

He clutched a single feather.

The rooster died in the fire, which caused $10,000 damage.

Success Linked To Hospitality

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Hodges' private secretary said today the success of North Carolina's tourist industry depends on the waitress, desk clerk, bellboy and gas station attendant.

With the governor on vacation in Europe, Ed Rankin took over speech-making duties and addressed the second Host School sponsored by the State Travel Council.

He called on Tar Heel tourist traders to make hospitality the trademark of the state. This, he said, will not only help individual businesses, but will aid the entire state financially.

Stock And Market Reports

WALL STREET
NEW YORK AP—The stock market nudged ahead for narrow gains in active trading early this afternoon.
 Gains of most leading stocks were fractional. There were scattered losers.
 Some of the leading steels, aircrafts, chemicals and oils made limited gains. Motors, nonferrous metals and rails were mixed. Airlines and rubbers were off a bit.
 The market was higher at the start and the ticker tape was late very briefly in the opening wave of transactions. A certain amount of profit taking was apparent after three straight sessions of average highs for 1958.
 A feature was B. T. Babbitt, maker of soaps and detergents, which signed a contract with the New York City Transit Authority for a promotional deal by which coupons for Babbitt products will be accepted for subway and bus fares.
 Babbitt hit a new high at the opening, rising 1/4 to 9 on a block of 8,400 shares. It widened its gains in later dealings.
 Despite comment in Iron Age, a national metalworking weekly, that the rise in steel demand was only a "flash in the pan" due to hedge buying to avoid a price boost, fractional gains were made by U. S. Steel and Bethlehem. Youngstown Sheet was off slightly.
 Lorillard dropped about a point as American Tobacco advertised the new filter of its Hit Parade cigarette. American Tobacco rose a fraction.
 Pipe Aircraft jumped 2 1/2 to 21 1/2 on a big block of 7,000 shares. Standard Packaging was active and up a fraction.
 Chrysler rose a little following news that the Pentagon has authorized the firm to set up a production line for its Jupiter missile at Warren, Mich. Other motors performed indifferently. General Motors eased. Ford and American Motors were steady. Continental Motors dropped a fraction. American Telephone was traded heavily and was unchanged.
 The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 30 cents to $172.20 with the industrials up 60 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities up 10 cents.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)
 Hog markets steady to 25 lower. Khrushchev Seeking More U. S. Trade

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States began looking into the possibility of increased trade with the Soviet Union today on the basis of a direct bid from Premier Khrushchev to President Eisenhower.
 The issue of Western trade policy toward the Soviet Union seems likely to come up in top-level U.S.-German and U.S.-British policy talks in the next few days.
 President Theodore Heuss of West Germany and Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano began a visit today with Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will hold two days of conferences here beginning Monday.
 The latest Khrushchev letter possibly was timed with those meetings in mind. The State Department announced only that "the subject matter concerns trade relations between Russia and the United States."
 But it was learned that Khrushchev put before the President his announced desire to obtain large amounts of equipment for increasing Soviet industrial capacity for manufacture of synthetic materials and plastics.
 Officials said that Khrushchev probably would have no difficulty in buying in this or other Western industrial countries any machinery not barred from trade with the Soviet Union. But the Allies maintain a list of goods denied to Soviet commerce because, in the view of Western governments, they would increase Soviet military strength.
 The definition of what industrial equipment would contribute to Soviet war potential, however, is a controversial problem among the Western powers. And Khrushchev's letter coupled with a long-time Moscow campaign against the strategic trade control system may very well stir the controversy afresh.

Girl Steps Into History As First In N. Carolina

GREENSBORO AP—A petite, poised, 18-year-old girl will cross the stage at Greensboro Senior High School tonight, take her diploma and step into history as the first Negro to graduate from an integrated North Carolina public high school.
 Josephine Ophelia Boyd one year ago this month was the first Negro student in Greensboro to apply for reassignment from an all-Negro school to an all-white school.
 "I had no idea I would be accepted but I had wanted to go ever since seventh grade. I'd always heard it couldn't be done. I wanted to do what couldn't be done," she said in an interview with The Greensboro Record yesterday.
 Last September she was one of 12 Negro youngsters to enter previously all-white state schools—six in Greensboro, five in Charlotte and one in Winston-Salem. None of the others graduated this year.
 Was she frightened as the lone Negro in a student body of 1,900? "Yes and no. I was frightened the first day but two or three weeks later it was like going to any other school. There were very few unpleasant instances and I thank God for it."
 "The students were very nice in some ways and not in others. A few people were unkind as could be expected in any group. It was the most valuable year of my life."
 Jo plans to study psychology. Previously, Jo had participated in integrated YWCA groups, church groups and NAACP youth groups. Her mother, Mrs. Cora Boyd, is a NAACP member.
 "I found that if you don't pay any attention to people they soon get tired of being silly," she added.
 Jo came from Dudley, Greensboro's all-Negro high school, with excellent grades. According to Senior High records, she made the honor roll five times, regular honor roll four times and special honor roll once. The sixth honor roll has not been compiled.
 To look the College Board exams and has been accepted at Clark University in Worcester, Mass. She will attend Clark unless she gets a scholarship at Mount Holyoke College.

Misgivings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans viewed with some misgivings today the entry of James A. Farley into the New York senatorial scramble.
 Farley, the old pro of the first two elections of Franklin D. Roosevelt, announced in New York yesterday he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Senate.
 Twice the Democratic national chairman, he retired from active politics in 1944.
 This projected return to politics of the genial former postmaster general complicated an already involved situation in his own party. It gave no cheer to Republicans seeking agreement on a candidate to succeed retiring GOP Sen. Irving M. Ives.
 Nominees of both parties will be chosen at conventions late in August.

Khrushchev Hits Titoism Again In Bitter Speech

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev has accused Yugoslavia of planting a Trojan horse in the Communist camp through President Tito's theories of independent communism.
 In his first public criticism of the Yugoslav party's policy, Khrushchev said in Bulgaria yesterday the only true brand of communism is that of the Soviet Union. He said Moscow agrees with all the criticism heaped on Belgrade recently by Communist nations led by Red China.
 The Soviet party will not put up with "distortions of ideological issues," Khrushchev told the Bulgarian Communist party congress in Sofia. But he added, "Should we fall in developing party cooperation, we shall develop and maintain normal interstate relations with Yugoslavia."
 The Premier's speech, reported by Moscow radio, followed by a week the Soviet Union's five-year postponement of 25 million dollars in industrial credits promised to Yugoslavia.
 Khrushchev lashed out at Western aid to Tito.
 "Why are the imperialist bosses, who are anxious to wipe the Socialist states off the face of the earth and put down the communist movement, at the same time financing one of the Socialist countries, giving her easy loans and free soap?" he asked.
 "No one will ever believe that there are two kinds of socialism in the world—one which world reaction furiously hates and the other which is agreeable to imperialists and to which they are giving their help and support."
 The Soviet Union tried to be friendly with Yugoslavia after the death in 1953 of Stalin, who had read Tito out of the fold, Khrushchev said. But the Yugoslav leaders proved "unable to discard their fallacious positions," he declared.

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—The Cabarrus County Elections Board was to decide today on undertaking a recount in last Saturday's Democratic primary for state representative as asked by Kannapolis lawyer Bedford W. Black.
 An official canvass yesterday disclosed Black was tied at 5,450 votes with former U.S. Speaker of the House E. T. Bost Jr. of Concord. Black asked for recounts in three of the 31 county boxes.
 The other county House seat went to Dwight Guinn with 6,241 votes.

Defended Wife But Lost Anyhow

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A 225-pound man, injured seriously in a fight with his wife when she hit him with the family car, went to bat for the little woman in court yesterday.
 John Albert Green Sr.'s efforts were successful, but he got the worst of it anyway.
 He told the judge his tiny wife "didn't mean to hit me very hard" with the car. The judge dismissed charges of assault and battery against Mrs. Green.
 But Green, whose drinking admittedly led to the spat, was fined $50 for public drunkenness.

Decision On Reducing Army Is Before House

WASHINGTON (AP) The House faced a decision today on whether to take "a calculated risk" and cut the strength of the Army from 900,000 to 870,000 men during the year starting July 1.
 The administration favors the cut.
 At issue is an amendment that would add 99 million dollars to a bill appropriating $38,310,561,000 to run the Defense Department during the 1958-59 fiscal year.
 The big money bill, as sent to the House by its Appropriations Committee, provides among other things for an 870,000-man Army June 30, 1959. That is what the administration recommended. It is 30,000 less than projected strength at the end of this month and 127,000 below actual strength last June 30.
 The amendment to block the cut is sponsored by Rep. Robert L. Sikes (D-Fla.), who claimed enough backing to give him a 50-50 chance to win.
 Sikes, voicing concern over what he called continued cuts in Army strength since the Korean War ended, said: "These cuts constitute a vital deficiency in our national defense posture. The calculated risk of a further reduction to 870,000 men for the Army is too great to accept. It was not proposed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff but was dictated by purely fiscal considerations."
 Sikes argued the Soviet Union has military strength in excess of four million men, including an army of 2 1/2 million.
 Sikes is a member of the Defense Appropriations subcommittee, whose chairman, Rep. George Mahon (D-Tex.), opposes the amendment.
 Mahon noted that the committee's recommendations provide for increases in the strength of the Marine Corps, the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve and for a regular Army equipped with the most modern weapons.
 There is no known controversy over the committee's manpower proposals for a 630,000-man Navy, 200,000 Marines, and Air Force personnel of 850,000 by June 30, 1959, for a total strength of 2,550,000 men.

Successful Firing Of Atlas Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force continued collecting telemetry data today on the successful performance of its latest Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.
 The huge missile, this nation's only intercontinental weapon to reach the test stage, roared into the late afternoon sun yesterday on what appeared to be a beautiful start.
 Analysis of the shoot will help Atlas technicians prepare for the first intercontinental-range flight which is expected within the next two months.
 The success of yesterday's launching came after a series of disappointments which were climaxed last Thursday when a firing was halted at the last split second because of minor technical difficulties.
 It was the first Atlas launching in two months. The rocket seemed to behave perfectly.
 The test, eighth in the series, reportedly covered a limited range of 600 miles. The Atlas was built to travel more than 6,000 miles, but it hasn't come close to that distance to date.
 Air Force officials and representatives of Convair Astronautics developers of the missile, say that besides its intercontinental capability the Atlas may be used for lunar shots, trips to planets and satellite attempts involving a payload of 1,000 pounds or more.

Full Production Set For Jupiter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army's Jupiter missile, staging a dramatic comeback from an order that almost sent it to the ashcan, is headed for large-scale production.
 The Pentagon said it has authorized the creation of a complete production line for Jupiter missiles at the Chrysler Corp.'s Warren, Mich., plant.
 The decision, giving a new lease on life to the big intermediate range ballistic missile, is believed to stem from the latest firing of a Jupiter May 18 at Cape Canaveral, Fla.
 The Army said that shot attained complete success in firing a full-size nose cone through the atmosphere and delivering it intact onto a target area 1,000 miles away.
 A Defense Department official said the Jupiter now will be turned out in volume at both the Chrysler plant and the Army's Redstone Arsenal in Alabama, where the 1,600-mile-range missile was developed.
 Late last year the Pentagon ordered the Jupiter program dropped. But the Defense Department decided later the Army should continue development and production.
 The Air Force has been pushing for exclusive production of its own IRBM, the Thor. The Pentagon official, who asked that his name not be used, made it apparent there will have to be a decision ultimately on whether to go ahead with one or the other or both.

Jurors Warned 'Of The Worst'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five men and seven women have been warned of the worst—and impaled as a jury to try Mickey Cohen.
 Cohen was charged with assault after federal narcotics officer Howard W. Chappell claimed the little ex-convict slugged him March 26 in an argument in Chappell's office.
 Prospective jurors were asked by the prosecution yesterday if they would be prejudiced because government witnesses would have to quote "lewd and obscene phrases and words Cohen used in his assault on Chappell."
 Cohen's attorneys asked them if they would be prejudiced against Cohen because of his reputation.
