

Council Wants Guttering, Curbs In New Subdivisions

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. City councilmen last night took action which eventually could mean all new subdivision opened locally would include curb and gutter on their streets.

The city fathers authorized City Manager Leonard Bloxam and City Attorney Raleigh Lee to draw up a proposed amendment to the subdivision ordinance requiring that curb and gutter be installed.

Find Baked Ham Responsible For Food Poisoning

MARION, N.C. (AP) — The baked ham was the villain. That was the report yesterday from the State Board of Health Laboratory in Raleigh after analysis of a lunch served at Eugene Cross Elementary School Tuesday.

Mass food poisoning swept the school two hours after lunch, sending 202 persons to the hospital with severe stomach cramps and vomiting. The lab reported the ham samples blooming with a bacteria known as hemolytic staphylococcus aureus, often called the golden staphylococcus.

Miss Sharon Wilfong Becomes Bride In Wisconsin Ceremony

RACINE, Wis.—In a ceremony Saturday evening in the Taylor Avenue Church Miss Sharon Pearl Wilfong became the bride of Philip Raymond Walters.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Wilfong of Greenville, N. C., Lakewood Pines, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Raymond Walters and the late Mr. Walters of Frankfort, Indiana.

Nuptial music was presented by Professor Kenneth Bade of Olivet College. The traditional wedding marches were played and Charles Herselbring, of Olivet College, sang "Because" and "Through The Years." The "Wedding Prayer" was sung at the altar.

Dr. Otis Hayes of Olivet College, assisted by the Rev. E. E. Young, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a wedding gown of white re-embroidered tulle over taffeta. The gown was fashioned with a sabbina neckline caught with iridescent sequins and pearls. The bouffant skirt with a tulle duster ruffle had an overskirt of re-embroidered scalloped lace which fell into a train effect.

Wearing a crown of orange blossoms and net petals which was fastened to an imported veil of illusion, the bride carried a bouquet of stephanotis and lilies-of-the-valley centered with a white orchid and satin streamers.

Miss Carol Horner of Watertown, Wis. was maid of honor. She wore a white lace gown over aqua taffeta and matching half hats with circular veils. She carried a white wicker basket filled with pink carnations and ivy.

The bridesmaids, wearing similar dresses and hats, were Miss Norma Barnhill of Greenville and Miss Linda Hansche. They carried pink carnations and ivy in white wicker baskets.

Little Merry Wilfong, sister of the bride, acted as flower girl. Wearing a gown fashioned of white re-embroidered tulle as the bride's, she carried a white basket of pink carnations.

The bride's mother wore a blue lace sheath dress with matching accessories which were complemented by a cymbidium orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a beige silk sheath with contrasting accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Joseph Gennaro was best man. Ushers were Larry Hansche, Robert F. Wilfong, and junior usher Jonathan Wilfong.

The bridal couple left following a reception for a wedding trip to Greenville where a reception will be given Saturday evening at the bride's home in Lakewood Pines.

Following their wedding trip, the couple will reside at 365 1/2 Main Street, Kankakee, Ill., and will continue their studies at Olivet Nazarene College in September.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's aunt and uncle entertained with a reception at their home on Erie Street.

The home was decorated with white gladioli and carnations. The appointed table was covered with white net over green which was centered with a five-branch candelabra. An epergne was filled with white carnations, daisies and lilies-of-the-valley. At each corner of the table was an arrangement of white peonies and carnations.

On the buffet a wedding cake was placed flanked by white candles.

Mrs. Charles Herselbring poured coffee in the dining room while Mrs. Joe Gennaro poured punch at a table decorated with roses and carnations in the den.

Dan Liddell of Olivet College presided at the guest book.

Mrs. Wesley Hodges and Mrs. Veron Nelson, aunts of the bride, cut the wedding cake.

Professor Bade presented organ music during the reception hours.

Wardrobe Care

Tidy housewives might take a tip on clothes care from pretty Marilyn Putnam, wardrobe mistress of a current Broadway hit musical. It is her job to take care of the elaborate costumes of both star and chorus girls. Says she: "After each show I have to see that every costume looks like new. I must clean plumes, flowers and wigs as well as remove makeup stains and lipstick spots from dresses, furs and even the pastel satin dancing shoes.

"I've found an easy way to do it. I simply spray the soiled areas with a new cleaning fluid and gently wipe away the spots. I choose a fluid in a spray can that is non-flammable and contains no carbon-tetrachloride or other toxic ingredients, but leaves a fresh fragrance."

Spot-cleaning clothes before hanging them in the closet, immediately after wearing, is the secret of keeping a wardrobe always fresh, says Marilyn.

Mrs. Hart Hostess To Bridge Clubbers

GRIFTON—Mrs. Conrad Hart was hostess at bridge at her home on Main Street with members of her bridge club and invited players.

Bouquets of snapdragons and other garden flowers decorated the home.

Mrs. Bryan Davis and Mrs. Clifton Jackson received club awards with the guest award going to Mrs. C. L. McClaine.

Others playing were Mesdames Wilbur Murphy, David Parker, Walter Murphy, John Coward, Albert Tyson, Frank Davis, Don Casey, Fred Stinguist, and Miss Ruth E. Smith.

Apple pie with ice cream and coffee was served at the completion of play.

Miss Ann Worsley Enrolls For Class

BEAUFORT—Miss Ann Worsley is one of the students enrolled in a six weeks summer session for advanced biology students at the Woman's College Marine Laboratory.

Dr. Archie Shaftesbury, W. C. professor of Zoology, will direct the session.

Stafford-Haislip Marry In Virginia

DAHLGREN, Va.—On Saturday afternoon Miss Theima Haislip of Dahlgren and Kenyon Stafford of Baton Rouge, La. were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed in the chapel on the base at U. S. Naval Proving Ground, Dahlgren, with U.S.N. Chaplain J. J. Tubbs of Washington, D. C. officiating.

The chapel was decorated with bridal greenery and standards of white roses and Garza mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Stator Haislip of Newport News, Va., wore a ballet-length dress of ice blue organza with matching satin pumps. She wore a short circular bridal veil attached to an ice blue satin band. Her jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The bride's bouquet was a large white orchid which she carried on a prayer book from which fell long white satin streamers.

Miss Virginia Anne Marsh of Dahlgren, the bride's only attendant, wore a harem dress of rose taffeta and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Richard Wheat of Dahlgren was best man for the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of East

Carolina College, Greenville, N. C., and is a sister of Mrs. J. Roy Martin of that city. She has worked for many years at the Naval Ordnance Computation Center, U.S.N.P.G., Dahlgren, Va.

Mr. Stafford is a native of Baton Rouge, La. and is a Lieutenant Commander, U.S.N., Ret.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception for the bridal party, out-of-town guests and friends was held at the Officer's Club.

Bridge Party Fetes Bride-Elect

AYDEN—Mrs. Larry Davis and Mrs. Greg Davis entertained last night at a bridge party honoring Miss Elaine Worthington, bride of June 8.

The honoree wore a mint green party dress and a corsage of pink carnations and baby's breath presented to her by the hostesses upon arrival.

The hostesses and honoree greeted the guests and invited them into the living room where seven tables were set for bridge.

Decorating throughout the home was spring flower arrangements. Of focal interest was an arrangement of roses, gypsophila and larkspur in an unusual epergne.

Lime ice decorated with cherries was served to the guests on arrival after which games of progression bridge were played.

Following the games, the hostesses served bridal cakes and ice cream.

Remembering the honoree, the hostesses presented her with a place setting of her chosen pattern in silver.

High score for the evening was Mrs. Mildred Worthington who was given a pottery vase as a prize.

Auxiliary Honors Children June 12

Saturday was Poppy Day in Greenville.

Besides the members of the American Legion Auxiliary, there were 29 children assisting in the sale of the American Legion poppies.

Jane Jackson and Dickie Atkinson tied for first place in the amount of money turned in and each received a prize of $5.00; Jewel Jackson in second place won a prize of $3.00; and Ann Williams received a prize of $2.00 for third place.

All of the children will be entertained at a matinee party by the American Legion Auxiliary at Pitt Theatre on Thursday, June 12, at one o'clock, and will be given refreshments at Carolina Dairies after the show.

A show suitable for children will be shown on Thursday and for that reason the particular date was chosen by the Pitt Theatre management and members of the Auxiliary.

Barbecue Party Fetes Bride-To-Be

Miss Pauline Bell was honored with a barbecue luncheon Thursday at the home of Mrs. Norman Wilkerson.

Mrs. S. L. Bridgers and Mrs. Wilkerson were hostesses and Mrs. Berlin Grippe assisted in serving.

The honoree wore a navy blue sheath dress and a pink carnation corsage which was given her upon arrival by the hostesses.

Eighteen guests were invited into the den which was decorated with red and yellow floral arrangements. A pink color scheme was carried out in the dining room with pink table cloths.

Miss Bell was presented a silver bowl to conclude the luncheon.

Are Bloomer Girls On Way Back?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Neofeatures Beauty Editor
 Feast your eyes on the feminine pulchritude basking on the beach boys, and be thankful for small favors. A while back the sight could have overwhelmed you. And it could happen again.

If you don't believe it, take a good look at the family album. Those bloomer bathing suit girls cavorting on the beach were Grandma, Aunt Jane, and some other feminine members of the family—fine examples of bathing belles at the turn of the century or in the Twenties. You can bet they were beauties or Grandpas and Uncle Jim would have saved their film.

Time was when one became a lady overnight. Grandma jumped from girlhood into marriage, to avoid that awful fate of being an old maid.

The Sad Old Days
 There were no sleek, well-groomed fillies like our modern teen-agers gracing the beaches. Unmarried girls were considered gawky and they huddled shyly together like nervous coconuts.

It wasn't until much later that girls made the grade in glamor and launched into a regimen of fastidiousness. Then they graduated to marcel or permanent waves when they cut off their pigtails, had beauty parlor facials, manicured their nails, used lipstick and rouge.

Today's teen-ager shows no resemblance to her shaggy counterparts of long ago, who greased their hair instead of washing it. The modern girl washes her hair one or more times a week, keeps it trimmed or wears it pulled back in a clean sweep from her face in a bun or pony tail. Though she wears a headache band, it does not compare to the stringy halos of tattered cloth that graced the heads of the younger set in the Flapper Era. Modern head bands are flowered or of leather, velvet, felt or what have you.

Unglamorous Fast
 The giggle set who first wore the chemise permitted the salt spray only to lick their toes, and the legs they strove so hard to hide from public view had a coat of fuzz as thick as kitten's fur. These days even the schoolgirl has her own razor, maybe an electric one in pink or blue to match her nightie. Her legs are as sleek as a piece of sculpture, summer and winter. She never finds an excuse to escape her grooming chores.

From the top of their shining heads to their manicured toenails, figure-conscious young American moderns lead the world in clean-cut beauty. Let's hope they don't turn in their up-to-date glamor for a 1924 model chassis.

SHADES OF THE PAST—This 1928 suit by de Givenchy may recall Grandma's styles.

Party Honors Bridal Couple

GRIFTON—Miss Theresa Manning and Jesse Wade, whose marriage will take place in July, were honored Tuesday night when Mrs. Helen Wade, Mrs. Charles Wade, and Mrs. M. D. Manning entertained in the high school cafeteria.

A color note of pink and white was carried out in the decorations throughout the room. Snapperguns, baby's breath and candles were used.

Party games were directed by Mrs. Charles Wade during the evening.

Upon arrival the honoree was presented a white carnation corsage by the hostesses to compliment her flower print sheath dress.

Individual bridal cakes, nuts and mints were served to the guests with the punch being poured by Miss Billy Mofding.

An array of gifts from the assembled 80 guests were presented to the guests of honor.

Dairy Products To Keep Steady Prices

RALEIGH—June is nationally known as Dairy Month, since it's the time when milk production reaches its seasonal peak and is one of the cheapest foods in terms of food value. According to John W. Hagen, Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist, dairy products remain fairly steady in price the year around.

Fryers and broilers remain unchanged in price from last week, even though the demand was good for barely adequate supplies. Hagen pointed out in his report on the week's food situation. Eggs dropped slightly in price on all sizes.

Consumers will see many more vegetables in coming weeks at better prices and quality. Big supplies of snap beans and squash

Life Teachings Of Jesus Taught

BETHEL—The theme for the entire Bible School conducted in the Sunday School Department of the Methodist Church May 26-30 was centered around the life and teachings of Jesus.

In the Beginners Department, the average daily attendance was 18 with six teachers and other workers daily. The course of study used was "Children Learn From Jesus."

The course of study, "Jesus Went About Doing Good," was used in the Primary Department. The average attendance was 26 and daily workers, seven.

An offering was given to be sent to missions for use in translating Bible stories in different languages for children.

Bible School Holds Exercises

GRIFTON—On Sunday night the closing exercises of the Vacation Bible School at the Grifton Methodist Church were held with a short program.

Mrs. W. E. Rasberry directed the program and Mrs. Milton Hart and Mrs. Courtney Patrick presented the music.

After the program, open house was held in the new educational building. Parents and friends visited the various classrooms.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a yellow cloth. A bouquet of daisies, feverfew, pansies and sweetpeas flanked by tall green candles decorated the table.

Mrs. Rasberry poured punch with Mrs. Courtney Patrick, Mrs. George C. Sugg and Mrs. Cecil Cobb assisting.

Guests were greeted by the school superintendent and Mrs. J. M. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. George Lehman directed them to the assembly room.

Goodbyes were said by the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Epps.

Mrs. Baldree Entertains

AYDEN—On Friday evening Mrs. L. G. Baldree was hostess when she entertained at four tables of bridge at her home on N. Lee Street.

During the game feed drinks with salted nuts were served while at the end of the progressions a sweet course was served by the hostess.

Mrs. May J. Eura, high scorer, was given TV socks and Mrs. W. T. Everett received lingerie for runner-up. The consolation prize, a combination juicer and measuring pitcher, went to Mrs. James W. Everett, also the floating prize, an ash tray.

Guests included Mesdames Eura, Everett, S. M. Edwards, W. P. Shelton, J. L. Tingle, Wilbur Dunn, C. Y. Griffin, Allen Johnson, Emerson Worthington, J. D. Tripp, Dalton Gardner, Sam Pierce, Marvin Baldree, H. T. Worthington and L. L. Kittrell.

Bible School Has Average Attendance

BETHEL—Mrs. Paul Millinder, the director of the Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Bible School, reports that last week's Bible School average attendance was 36 pupils with six teachers and helping.

Refreshments were served daily by the women of the church.

The Bible School staff, the pupils and the pastor, the Rev. W. D. Morton, express themselves as being grateful for help given to make this a success.

A program on Saturday night, followed by a social hour, closed the school.

Ever Tried A Peanut Butter Pie?

When the temperature soars... when the early mornings are still and hot, that's your cue to keep menus simple. However, attractively served foods are particularly important on these days, to lure lagging appetites—especially of the young folks.

So here's something simple but "new and different"—a Peanut Butter Pudding Pie. This is an excellent dessert for topping off a warm weather supper menu; and it's also an ideal refreshment to serve on porch or terrace along with a pitcher of cold milk, when teenagers collect there on a warm afternoon. You may be sure they will love the peanut butter flavor and will profit from eating this healthful milk dessert.

As for you, you'll appreciate the fact that you can make and bake the crumb crust early in the day, or—if you have a freezer—several days in advance; while the peanut butter filling is made in a jiffy with an instant pudding mix.

Peanut Butter Pie
 2 cups cold milk
 1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
 1 package instant pudding mix (any flavor)
 1 Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust (8-inch)

Pour milk into mixing bowl. Add peanut butter and pudding mix and beat slowly just until well mixed, about 1 minute. Pour immediately into a cooled baked 8-inch Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust. Chill in refrigerator for 1 hour.

Vanilla Wafer Crumb Crust
 1 cup fine vanilla wafer crumbs
 1 tablespoon sugar
 3 tablespoons softened butter

Combine crumbs and sugar. Add softened butter and mix well. Press firmly with back of spoon on bottom and sides of 8-inch pie pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 5 to 8 minutes and cool before filling.

Decorate with whirls of whipped cream, and, if desired, chopped peanuts.

Simply Stated, But No Easy Issue

Budget talk has become the center of attention in government at all levels as the beginning of another fiscal year rapidly approaches.

Budget talk, government spending and taxes also have become the center of conversation of many groups of citizens as they observe as closely as possible the budget consideration of government bodies.

The situation this year is different from that of other years only in that the average citizen has a greater concern for the rising cost of government and the accompanying rising tax rate than he has in many years.

Most officials whose responsibility it is to fix government budgets are keenly aware of the situation. Departmental budget requests for the coming fiscal year have gone up in almost every instance, reflecting the continuing increased cost of government. The taxpayers are demanding with more insistence than in many years that the line be held against another round of tax increases.

That's the situation in Washington. That's the situation in Raleigh. And that's the situation in Pitt County and in municipal governments throughout this county.

It boils down to a matter which may be stated in simple terms. Yet it is a matter which there is no simple solution in today's public atmosphere.

Taxpayers for the most part want the services of their various levels of government to remain at their present high level. In some instances they are demanding new services or expansion of government services already being rendered. Under no circumstances do they want the calibre of government services at any level to deteriorate.

At the same time the public expects officials to get the job done at no additional cost to the taxpayer. And keenly aware of public opinion, officials are seeking to meet both demands.

Whether officials can succeed in continuing the present calibre of government services without increasing taxes is a moot question. On the surface at least the odds appear to be against such an outcome.

Certainly officials should scrutinize every budget item before them for consideration. They should squeeze every ounce of fat out of budget requests and trim every non-essential expenditure.

When that is done if the anticipated revenues are not sufficient to meet the anticipated expenditures, the officials and taxpayers jointly must face the crucial question of whether to cut out essential services or provide additional tax revenues to pay for the services.

Statesmen Can't Do It By Themselves

It doesn't take a John Foster Dulles, a Dean Acheson or a President Truman or a President Eisenhower to build good will and understanding for the United States in countries on the other side of the world.

To be sure such men are essential to bringing about a better understanding in other countries of the United States, its people and its principles.

More often than not, however, little people of the United States can make a much greater impression on the little people of other nations than can men in high position. If enough little people in the United States create good will and understanding with little people of other nations, we need not fear for future understanding between nations.

Several months ago pupils in two third grades at Elmhurst School in Greenville collected clothing which they sent to youngsters in a school in South Korea. A few days ago a note was received from the principal of the school in which he expressed appreciation for the clothing.

The note said in part: "You sent us our mostly needed clothing for the pupils of our school. How happy they are with those clothes. It is very hard to express in words. I am very confident that many strong and healthy children will grow up in those clothes, and make a great contribution toward our mankind."

In terms of dollars, those clothes sent to South Korean children by children of Greenville cannot be compared with the millions of dollars worth of aid given by the United States to South Korea. But in the minds of those South Korean children, the gifts from American school children probably made a much greater impression than all the things Uncle Sam has sent to South Korea.

Soviet Opening A Deadly Game

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — "You wanna play?"

That's the essence of Nikita Khrushchev's latest letter to President Eisenhower, proposing a big American-Soviet trade program and Soviet purchase of machinery from this country.

Play or not, fat and reasonably happy land is in for it. The United States faces a war with the Soviet Union — a trade war, not shooting — which could be deadly when it really gets rolling.

The Soviets will use trade, plus aid, not for profit but for political penetration. The Soviets, although they've made astonishing scientific and industrial progress, still lag behind this country in total industrial production.

Particularly in consumer goods. Before they can really start a giant export trade program with the world — not just the United States — they will have to satisfy consumer demands of their own people.

First reaction in this government to Premier Khrushchev's proposal has been negative, particularly to his request for extensive credit.

But, with or without American help, a nation which has surpassed us in missile development will find a way to get the machinery it needs to satisfy its own people's wants and have plenty left over for some exporting.

Only last April Khrushchev vowed war against the West with consumer goods. He said: "Wars mean killing people. Why should we want war when we have other means — I mean consumer goods."

The more the Soviets raise the

Gadget Fails Impress

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — The scene is a future war. The American infantry is attacking.

Suddenly one platoon breaks away from the advancing line and zooms rapidly forward like a swarm of angry bees.

They take one hill, two hills, three hills — as the startled enemy panics and flees.

Later the whole platoon is called before the beaming general who says: "There has never been an exploit to match this in the entire annals of warfare. It's fantastic. I am proud of you men, and I'm recommending every one of you for the Medal of Honor."

The members of the platoon look uneasily at one another. Finally an honest private blurts out: "Aw, hell, general we ain't no heroes. We just set our rear rocket motors too high and could not stop. If we hadn't run out of fuel, we'd still be going."

This little fantasy could come true if a new portable rocket developed by an ex-Army technical sergeant works out. Strapped to the rear of a Doughboy it holds promise of turning him into a combination racehorse and antelope.

"He can run faster, can jump across rivers, scale walls and cliffs, jump extraordinary heights — and not be tired when he gets there," said Alexander H. Bohr, the inventor.

The rocket, details of which are still secret, doesn't quite enable a soldier to fly, apparently, but does give him the exhilarating feeling he's a human cricket.

Several infantry veterans I discussed the rocket with were on the skeptical side.

"They're always thinking up ways to get a dogface into battle faster," said one. "What the dogface himself wants is a way to get him out of battle altogether — and for this, there's no better gadget than a general peace."

"If this rocket thing really makes it easier to get about," said a second, "it'll take it at least two generations to filter up to the front lines. And even then the rear area boys will keep all the latest models for their own conveniences."

"One thing you do have to admit," remarked a third. "It sure is a hell of a handy instrument for going AWOL in a hurry."

"No, it won't," said a fourth. "The Military Police will have rockets with double motors."

A fifth veteran observed: "Well, the fly-boys have engines to go along with them. This rocket idea might not be so bad if they assign a technician to every dogface — to carry his pack and fix his motor. Lots of times in the last war I could have used a valet."

The Army, of course, is testing dozens of ideas to make it easier for the dogface to do his task in battle.

But no old infantryman ever believes anyone will ever make his job comfortable. Throughout history he knows the problem of the dogface has always been the same.

The picture is always the same — a scattered group of men with a thousand-yard stare in their tired eyes stumbling up a forlorn hill to root out a dug-in enemy.

So it was on Normandy 14 years ago today — behind the beach stood the first of a thousand hills. And so, the oldtimers believe, it always will be for the infantry as long as there are wars.

Ankle Pads

By ALVIN TAYLOR Boy With Grandparents

There's a little seven months old boy in Winterville who has more grandparents than most folks have friends.

He's Tony Ray Lynn son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lynn, Jr. and he has seven living grandmothers and six living grandfathers.

Mrs. Hersel Bowen of Rt. 1, Winterville submitted the list. It was of interest to her because she is one of the grand parents.

The list of grandparents reads like this: Mr. and Mrs. Hersel L. Bowen, Winterville; the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Lynn, Sr., Littlefield.

Great grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Pete Gaydo, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lynn, Durham; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bowen, Greenville; Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Taylor, Rocky Mount.

Finally the child has a great-grandmother living. She is Mrs. Emma Smith of Durham.

Talk about troubles! Mrs. Fred J. Forbes of 113 E. Ninth St. kept hearing noises within a boxed in section at the end of her bath tub.

Fearing there were snakes or rats within she called a neighbor to investigate.

The neighbor pulled the top off the tub section and peered within. Peering right back was a big cat. With all the attention the cat disappeared but the noises continued.

So then Mrs. Forbes called in a handy man who discovered the real cause of the trouble. The cat had had kittens in the boxed-in section.

The handy man and neighbors tried to catch the young kittens but they wouldn't be captured. Every time any of the would-be rescuers grabbed for them they ran behind the tub and out of reach.

Mrs. Forbes decided drastic action was needed and she called a plumber.

The plumber figured the only way to get the kittens was to cut holes through the floor. That created problems, too, however. Every time a hole was cut the kittens just moved out of reach.

What happened to the kittens? The game was over. Mrs. Forbes turned them over to the plumber and he took them off. Their fate at this writing is unknown.

Other Editors Saying --- Commencement Themes

(Greensboro Daily News) Commencement addresses this year seem to be unusually serious, sober and soul-searching.

Such an approach is in keeping with the times. Jobs for graduates are more difficult to attain. Due to the recession and perhaps other factors there is less need for new personnel; and employers have become more choosy.

Russia's scientific attainment, climaxed by its Sputnik triumph, has left the American public disappointed, depressed and deluded. There is a spirit of earnest inquiry. Where lies the blame for our lost prestige, leadership and strength? With this question it is natural that our educational system is being closely examined on all levels. Are the public schools, the universities and colleges doing what they should do? What has happened to mental discipline? Have we fallen behind in curricular revision? What about the output of our schools, our homes, our social system, our way of living?

Against the background of this public arousal, in which educators themselves are sharing, it is interesting to note what commencement speakers are emphasizing. A cross-section of their thinking is evident in our midst. At Guilford College Undersecretary of Commerce Walter Williams stressed the international situation, the threats which face this country, especially from Russian competition, and the need for a dedicated, courageous and educated citizenry to meet and solve them.

At A. and T. College Ambassador Daniel A. Chapman of Chattanooga cited the rise of nationalism in the new and have-not countries, the continuing fight for freedom and the qualities which offer hope in this fight. Education he placed to the forefront. At Greensboro College Dr. Leon F. Sensabaugh, dean of Washington and Lee University, took cognizance of the new demands made upon education and urged that the liberal arts be not victimized by a "crash program" in the sciences. The same sense of values was stressed by Dr. Alvin C. Eulich, vice president and director of the Fund for the Advancement of Education, in his Bennett College commencement address.

At Wake Forest Dr. Kenneth Irving Brown, executive director of the Danforth Foundation, asserted that "American education, aided and abetted by two warm-hearted parents and sentimental alumni, has gone soft." At Duke Charles S. Rhyne, native North Carolinian and president of the American Bar Association, saw world law as the only preventative of man's atomic extinction. Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, spoke in a vein of hope, yet urgency, at Chapel Hill. His appeal too was to education: "America's cultural ambassadors in the fields of music, art and letters are doing much more than our political leaders to create all over the world a good impression of the people of the United States."

America is thinking of its destiny. And, if commencement addresses circa 1958 drive any one point home, that point is the new challenge to education and a survival which is wrapped up on its meeting. The pattern of these addresses offers basis for faith, hope and confidence. Soul-searching and stern realities have superseded namby-pambyness.

This went on until the little fellows were in a corner.

But did the battle end there? Nope. The cats simply ran up between the walls.

Finally the plumber introduced smoke into the cat-and-plumber game. He forced smoke within the wall and the little kittens came out.

The game was over. What happened to the kittens? Mrs. Forbes turned them over to the plumber and he took them off. Their fate at this writing is unknown.

Jordan Learns Ropes In Senate

By LYNN NISBET

JORDAN — Sen. Everett Jordan, newest member of the United States Senate, has been called to the chair to preside over several sessions of the Senate. When first asked to take the gavel he demurred, and pleaded that he didn't know what to do or how to do it. "That's what I want you to learn," replied Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson. "You will learn Senate procedure, get acquainted with the members and their peculiar habits more quickly that way." Sen. Jordan says it isn't unusual for just one other Senator to be in the chamber — and that lone member will be speaking up a storm to an audience of empty seats.

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS — The requirement that candidates for office file preliminary and final accounts of contributions received and expenditures made applies to second primaries as well as to the first. Preliminary reports due ten days before the election will be due for the runoff on June 18. Final accounting must be made for the first primary on or before June 20, and a final report on the second voting on July 18. For all offices for which the people of only one county vote reports must be filed with the Clerk of Superior Court. For all district and State offices voted upon in more than one county the reports are due at the Secretary of State's office. It becomes the duty of the secretary or clerk to report failure to receive accounts immediately to the attorney general or solicitor.

The law requires detailed listing of all contributions, with names and addresses of contributors, and of all expenditures stating the purpose, the name and address of the person or firm to whom paid. Very few candidates comply with the provision, and enforcement has always been lax.

TIE-VOTES — The unusual number of tie-votes in the recent primary has sent the staff of the Attorney General to re-reading the law books and searching old files for precedent. The law books didn't afford much help, and current rulings are based mainly on opinions expressed by former Attorneys General.

The official canvass showed a tie for two candidates for the Legislature in Cabarrus county, for two county commissioners in Onslow and several township offices throughout the state.

The statutes do not provide for solution of a primary tie. There is somewhat inadequate provision in general elections. The law is very specific with respect to municipal elections. The issue is decided by lot.

The statute dealing with general elections says that "if two or more candidates have the greatest number of votes, shall have an equal number the County Board of Elections shall determine which shall be elected." It doesn't say how the determination shall be made. The decision might be reached by flipping a coin or by arbitrary declaration by the board that one of the candidates had been elected.

Application of the master rule that primaries shall be conducted in accordance with general election laws, suggests that breaking a tie in the primary would be handled the same way as in the general election. It would seem to be entirely up to the county board.

During an informal and unofficial conversation Attorney General Malcolm Seawell expressed doubt that the board of elections could, on its own motion and without protest filed by a candidate, order a recount of all the votes cast.

PRECEDENT — There is precedent for settlement by lottery, besides the law governing municipal elections. It is recalled that when the contest between W. O. Burgin and C. B. Deane for congress in the 8th district 20 years ago was not settled until time was running out for the printing of ballots for the generale election, lottery was adopted as a last resort. Burgin's name went on the ballot, although the official count of second primary votes had given Dean a lead of 23 — 19,182 to 19,159. Burgin was elected and served until he died eight years later, and then Deane was elected and served for 10 years.

In 1954 the judicial district executive committee composed of three members from Franklin and three from Wake deadlocked over nomination of a successor to Judge W. C. Harris. The Franklin members were adamant for Hill Yarborough, the Wake group for William Bickett. After tedious hours of fruitless discussion and balloting, the committee called in the newly-named chairman of the State Democratic committee, John D. Larkins, Jr. The two names were put in a box and Larkins drew one. It was Bickett. He was declared the nominee, was elected and last week was re-elected for a full 8-year term as resident judge of the new 10th district comprising only Wake county.

Attorney General Seawell recalls that some years ago in his home county of Roanoke there was a primary tie vote for a township constable. The county board of elections decided upon a lottery — and let the Republican member draw out the name. "Whether because the Democrats thought he would be fairer, or because they figured he just didn't give a damn, I've never been quite sure," said the general.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BEST OF ALL TIMES
 We have had occasion to remind ourselves many times, in this column and through it, that we live in a spiritual universe and that satisfactory life consists in being "in gear," "in tune" — whatever you want to call earnest and continuous cooperation. In fact, as the writer of this column, I can say that the most important statement ever made in the many thousands of articles that have appeared, is the statement that we are in a spiritual universe and must accommodate ourselves to that reality. This is basic to everything else said.

Of certain things we can be absolutely sure. One is that we continue to exist to the end of time. God does not make personalities to destroy them. We are part of a living universe as well as of a spiritual universe, and although the forms of life change, life never ceases. If our lives ever cease, then we can be sure that everything else in the universe will cease also. Does this seem reasonable?

The picture seems to be that we as spiritual beings are part of a living universe. In this universe we must live forever. Therefore, we must learn how to live. If we do not learn on this planet, then we shall have to learn somewhere else, but only God knows where that somewhere is.

So we might as well get busy now learning to live — to get in gear, in tune with the universe. Eventually we'll have to learn. Now is the best of all times.

Hardship Of Compulsive Worker

Every once in a while a compulsive worker is found among his employees. A compulsive worker is a person under great psychological pressure to work, to complete quotas, to finish every pending task, to produce.

There are many causes for this compulsion. Often it arises from a sense of insecurity or inadequacy. A person not quite sure he can fill a job may work furiously to prove he can. The physically handicapped are frequently pointed out as safer and more diligent workers than others. Psychologists say this is usually to prove their abilities to themselves, more than to their bosses.

CHILDHOOD IMPACTS
 There are many other possible reasons for compulsive workers. Sometimes a person is striving to copy an industrious father, mother or other person who influenced them in childhood years.

Sometimes it's a contrary influence: a person may work hard because he secretly hates a lazy father or an indolent mother. A person who insists on turning in 60 minutes of work for every hour of pay may seem like a gem in this era of the coffee-break, the fringe-benefit and the goof-off.

But, alas, they are frequently no bargain.

Fellow workers no less than employers usually fail to understand the neuroses behind the compulsion. They usually resent the compulsive worker, and regard him as a threat to their own security. A few wily ones unload their own work on the odd-ball.

FEARED AND HATED
 A typical compulsive worker may be tolerated for a short time in a department; everyone understands a new hand must strive a little harder to gain a place. After that, rest is not built up. Usually one worker is delegated to advise the newcomer to slow down. If this fails, a social boycott typically follows. The newcomer is not invited to join the others' lunch; he is never addressed by his first name. Then rumors are deliberately circulated: the newcomer is a spy for the bosses; he was put in to show the others up.

In union shops, if this fails, the newcomer may be called before a union committee and warned or punished. In unorganized shops and offices, the punishment can be more cruel. His work is lost or spoiled; slight errors are reported to supervisors. Rumors become more vicious; he (or she) is described as a sexual deviate; others refuse to work with him because of imaginary body odors or other defects. Foremen and supervisors often join in harassment. They don't want trouble-makers around no matter how much work they do.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT
 It is almost impossible to explain a compulsive work neurosis to a staff. The explanation would not be believed, or else it would be taken as an indication that the person was insane.

When a compulsive worker is discovered, the best step is to transfer him to noncompetitive or one-of-a-kind jobs. He rarely makes good as a supervisor in the department in which he works; too much resentment may carry over. Sometimes he can be used as a pinch hitter, working with teams that are behind on quotas, or put into special situations that admittedly call for unusual work habits. But in most cases, it pays to find a special niche for him.

But let's not fire him.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Susscher

Scripture—Joshua 4: 11-16-23; 23; 24.

The children of Israel were able to cross over the Jordan river on dry ground as the Lord rolled back the water. Joshua then chose 12 men to each carry a large stone across to make a memorial for the miracle.

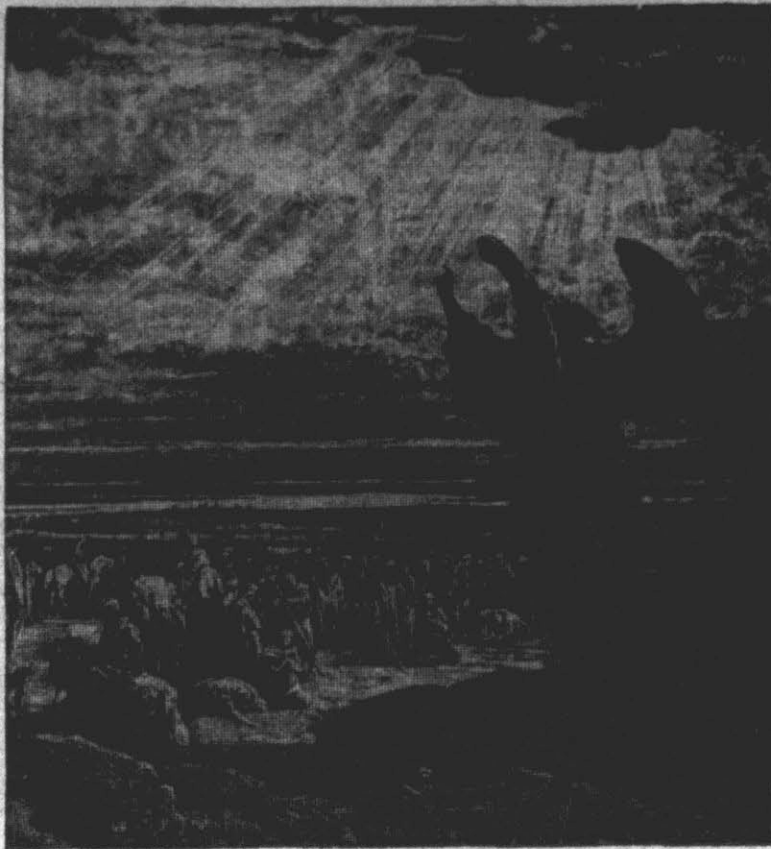

After the people had crossed over the Jordan river, the priests bearing the ark started across. Joshua commanded the priests with the ark to come out of the river bed, and the waters then "returned to their place."

After long years of peace in the promised land, Joshua became old and stricken. He called all the leaders of the people together and warned them to be true to Jehovah or they would be punished.

After his warning to his people to be true to their God, Joshua died, being 110 years old. He was buried in the border of the land which was his inheritance.

MEMORY VERSE—Joshua 24:23.

THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL CROSS THE JORDAN INTO CANAAN

Scripture—Joshua 4: 11-16-23; 23; 24.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. "OUR LESSON begins with the crossing of the Jordan river, and concludes with the death and burial of Joshua, covering a period of 25 years of war-filled history."—Dr. Wilbur M. Smith. As the Lord rolled back the waters of the Red sea to allow the Israelites to escape the Egyptians, so He rolled back the waters of the Jordan river for them to cross into the promised land of Canaan. The priests had carried the Ark of the Covenant over safely, and then Joshua said: "Take you 12 men out of the people, out of every tribe a man, and command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, 12 stones, and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night."—Joshua 4:2-3.

the hills, and all the south country, and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same." Joshua made war a long time on the kings of these lands, conquering with the Lord's help. "So Joshua took the whole land, according to all that the Lord said unto Moses; and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel according to their divisions by their tribes. And the land rested from war."—Joshua 11:23. Joshua, grown old and feeble, called all the elders of the people together and warned them that unless they were true to God, they would not prosper. Then he called all his people together to hear his warning, and the people said, "We will serve the Lord." "So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem. And Joshua wrote MEMORY VERSE "Put away the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the Lord God."—Joshua 24:23.

It was done, and Joshua set up these stones as a memorial of the safe crossing of the river, so that when their descendants asked why the stones were set there, they would be told that it was done because of the crossing of their ancestors over the Jordan on dry land.

It is thought that probably each stone was as large as a chosen man could carry on his shoulder, and the 12 stones were set up in Gilgal, located between the Jordan river and Jericho. Twelve stones were also set up in the midst of the Jordan river, where the feet of the priests had trod.

In chapter 11 we are given a summary of the wars of the children of Israel with the tribes that inhabited the land that the Lord had promised should be theirs. Marching armed into the land, the Israelites under Joshua conquered, "took all that land, based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. these words into the book of the law. "And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the Lord, died, being 110 years old, and was buried "in the border of his inheritance."—Joshua 25-26, 29-30. Wars and rumors of wars still plague the world. Will the time ever come when all nations shall "rest from war" as did the Israelites after their conquest?

The children of Israel often violated their covenant in later times. Do we of this generation obey the Lord who has given us so many blessings? Those who do have peace in their souls. Let us, too, put away strange gods of selfishness, intolerance and crime. If we do we may live lovingly, pleasing to our Father who is in Heaven, and loved by many on earth, whether we be child, man or woman.

Decided To Show Cultural Streak

FALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Guess who's running a close second to rock 'n' roll singer Johnny Mathis as to determine whose records will be played for four hours over radio station KGO San Francisco, on June 14? Enrico Caruso! There's a reason: Stanford students decided to prove there's a cultural streak in the young generation. So they mailed 2,000 cards voting for Caruso.

Attacks Archaic Ballot Counting

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California's ballot counting system is archaic and should be overhauled, says Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. "It is pitiful that in a mechanized age, days must go by before the public knows the outcome of an election," said Jordan. He singled out Los Angeles County, where only half the ballots had been counted 36 hours after the polls closed. Voters there and in most of California, hand mark their ballots.

In 1952 the U. S. National Park Service sent 40 cuttings from the cherry trees in Washington, D.C., back to Japan because so many Tokyo trees had been cut for firewood during the war.

Agronomy Seniors Visit County On Tour Of State

AT SPEIGHT'S SEED FARM—A North Carolina State College Agronomy class of 19 students visited Pitt County yesterday to observe the Speight Seed Farm and Fred Webb's G. E. Grainery as part of a six-day tour throughout the state. Above, Charlie Davis, corn-breeder and partner at Speight's Farm, discusses some of the farm's experiments with members of the class. (Reflector photo by Bill Arnold) class of 18 rising seniors from North Carolina State College's Agronomy department visited Pitt County yesterday on the opening of a six-day tour through the state. The group's tour is part of their studies as students of Field Crops Soils at State. The tour is an annual project for the agronomy class, designed to offer the seniors a first-hand experience with various farms and enterprises in their area of study.

The tour will take them from Morehead City and Atlantic Beach to the Blue Ridge Parkway, Mt. Mitchell Park, for visits with all of the state's notable points of interest to the class. Yesterday, the 19-man unit visited Speight's Seed Farm near Winterville and Fred Webb's G. E. Grain Mill in Greenville. In charge of the group were Dr. W. M. Lewis and Dr. H. C. Folks.

Speight's Seed Farm is one of the three major farms of its kind in the state. It deals experimentally with Tobacco, Corn, and soybeans on a large scale, under the supervision of Brantley Speight and Charlie Davis. The G. E. Grain Mill is one of the most modern and also one of the biggest of its kind in Eastern North Carolina. The group studied the operation of the mill, all its facets of use.

Working with the class were members of the Pitt County Agent's Office, Sam Weeks, Bob King, and Claude Goodman. Following their trip to Webb's Grainery, the class returned to Speight's Farm for a feast. They left shortly afterwards for Morehead City.

More Women Get Into The Talking Act

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Plenty of time, plenty to say, an audience that can't talk back — and a record to shoot at. That's what Mrs. Verna York, 24, had today when she started talking at 2 a.m. in a marathon talking contest here that has seen a new record set by each of the three preceding contestants — all women.

The newest record for non-stop talking was set early today by Mrs. Arthur Capps, 38-year-old mother of two. She stopped talking at 1:07 a.m. after chattering for 29 hours, 12 minutes and 43 seconds. Prior to that, Mrs. J. D. McCauley, 40, a grandmother, had talked for 28 hours, 44 minutes and 14 seconds, and Mrs. Lois Grant, 27, secretary, for 27 1/2 hours.

In The Race For YDC President

DURHAM (AP) — Arthur Vann, 36-year-old Durham lawyer, is in the running for presidency of the North Carolina Young Democrats Clubs. He announced his candidacy yesterday for the post, which will be filled at the YDC state convention in October. The Durham County YDC, which Vann has served as president, gave him its endorsement. Louis C. Allen Jr. of Burlington, also an attorney, announced his candidacy for the presidency a few weeks ago.

Announce Loan For Apartments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Community Facilities Administration announced a two million dollar loan yesterday to the University of North Carolina, to finance construction of 31 two-story apartment buildings. The buildings will include from four to eight apartments each, a total of 204 apartments. The announcement said 23 per cent of the university's student body, or 1,621 students, is married.

Private School Planning Largely In Theory Stage

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Most planning for private education of Virginia children whose public schools may be closed because of integration is in the theory stage. Of five localities faced with court-ordered desegregation, only in Prince Edward County do citizens appear ready now to try to run private schools for white children. If similar, well advanced plans exist elsewhere, they are a secret. There have been no reports of planning for private education of Negro students. The date has not been set for desegregation of Prince Edward County schools. But Arlington County, just across the Potomac River from Washington, and Charlottesville, 50 miles west of Richmond, have been told to desegregate in the fall. The port cities of Norfolk and Newport News will find out shortly if they are in the same boat. Virginia law calls for the immediate closing of an integrated school. "I know—we all know—that some Negroes will try to enter white schools in September," said Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. this week. "We'll face that situation when it arises." Almond hinted that citizens in areas where public schools are threatened with integration should begin planning to use state tuition grants for educating children in non-sectarian private schools. Such schools, however, could handle only a fraction of the public school students. Gov. Almond said yesterday public school facilities cannot be leased to private groups for segregated education. He pointed to a ruling made earlier by a federal judge that Virginia cannot lease Seashore State Park for private, segregated operation. The state shut down the park several years ago because of a desegregation lawsuit. Could the public schools be leased to private groups for integrated schooling? The governor wouldn't comment on this.

Algerians Plan Freedom Fight

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Algerian rebel leaders, contemptuous of Premier de Gaulle's plan to make their people Frenchmen instead of independent Algerians, are going to ask the U.N. General Assembly again to back their fight for freedom. Mohammed Yazid, spokesman at the United Nations for the National Liberation Front (FLN), said the only prospect for the rebels is to continue "a war we are sure to win in the end." He said the war would spread to all North Africa and De Gaulle would be responsible for the bloodshed. Yazid's promise of continued and spreading war echoed a communique from the Cairo headquarters of the FLN, spearhead of the 43-month-old rebellion. By joining the French extremists fighting the Algerian demand for independence, said the communique, De Gaulle "closes the door to any possibility of a negotiated solution based on the independence of Algeria." Yazid announced he would call for a meeting of the 28 Asian-African U.N. delegates next week to start drafting a request that the Assembly take up the Algerian issue at its session next fall.

Churchmen Meet At Greensboro

GREENSBORO (AP) — About 210 ministers, as well as delegates from 120 churches, were expected to attend the 43rd annual conference of the Western North Carolina Pentecostal Holiness Church, which opened at the church's assembly grounds near here today. Applicants for ordination and for licensing for the ministry were to be examined today by the conference Board of Examiners. Bishop J. A. Synan of Hopewell, Va., was to preside. The meeting ends Monday.

Auspicious Beginning

HONOLULU (AP) — As part of a traffic safety campaign, highway authorities erected wooden white crosses at spots where accidents had occurred. The first day the crosses were put up, a motorist slammed into one of them and broke it. A giant white pine discovered near Newald, Wis., stands 140 feet tall, has a circumference of 16 feet, eight inches, and a crown spread of 48 feet.

Some Tempted Read Too Much In Business Figures

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Evaluating the new business statistics may be harder than usual this month. The temptation will be to read too much into them. Business leaders already are split on the meaning of the old figures. And the new flood this week and next—on unemployment, industrial output, personal incomes—may shed less light than previously hoped. Those who say they already can see the dawn of a new day will stress such things as the decline in unemployment between mid-April and mid-May, ignoring the fact that joblessness usually does drop then, be times good or bad. Those who say it's too early to tell about the recession's course yet will emphasize the expected rise in unemployment this month.

ignoring the fact that it usually does rise when the schools let out a horde of new jobseekers. Stockholders attending annual meetings have had a wide variety of forecasts to ponder. These range from flat statements by corporate executives that business is better and the outlook brighter to warnings that while there are glimmers here and there, signs of economic strength are insufficient yet to warrant an, real optimism. Bankers and their economists also are inclined to read the tea leaves differently. In its June survey, the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says: "Signs of leveling out are no longer faint and sketchy. Rather, they have become quite numerous and are beginning to fall into an impressive pattern." In its June letter, the First National City Bank of New York says: "The business reports in May have included signs of betterment, which have improved business sentiment even though they supply no proof that a real turning point in the recession has been reached." The bank warns against placing too much emphasis on developments in May and June, and particularly against getting too elated over the rise in steel output since this in part represents replenishing skimpier inventories by steel users anticipating a price rise in July.

The Guaranty Trust also warns against believing there will be no more declines in some sectors of the economy, noting that "the summer period is always characterized by substantial seasonal swings, which are difficult to allow for." And the National City hedges its stand by saying, "It is quite possible that this summer's flurry of plant shutdowns, inventory reductions and increased unemployment will mark the climax of the decline." There is also a difference of opinion on what to do about the slump in the replies of corporate and bank executives to an inquiry by Chairman Harry Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee. In the 14 replies which he released, 13 upheld his view that across-the-board tax cutting isn't needed now. But 10 said basic reform of the tax structure to provide greater business incentive is needed for long-term growth and stability. Many supported some excise tax cutting and several said individual tax rates might have to be clipped if the slump deepens. And none seems to have set a definite date for the start of a business upturn.

For more than two-thirds of a century... for 68 years... Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society has been protecting thousands of American homes, contributing to the welfare of thousands of American families, both financially and fraternally. As June 6, 1958 marks Woodmen's 68th Anniversary, it also marks the first anniversary in which women members can join the celebration. To observe this milestone of progress, meetings throughout the nation are highlighting the chartering and installation of officers of women's courts in Woodmen's new "Women of Woodcraft" program. Already the world's financially strongest fraternal benefit society, Woodmen's strength increases with each passing year.

Elks Tied For First After 7-6 Thursday Victory

Game Goes 10 Innings Before Winning Score

Scoreboard for Elks vs Moose game: Elks 4, Moose 2.

A stubborn Elks Tar Heel team in a two-game blaze of glory managed to work their way into the top position in the league...

Wednesday, the Elks clubbed the Pepsi-Cola team 5-1 to set up the circumstances for the tie and capped it off with yesterday's 7-6 win over the Moose.

Reluctant to turn over a victory to the climbing Elks, the Moose carried the game to 10 innings—four more than regulation. At the end of the regular six, the game was tied at 6-6. Clark scored for the Elks after having reached first on an error to break the game open.

Davenport pitched for the Elks for the first nine innings and was relieved by Whichard in that frame. The victory belongs to Whichard. Hurling for the losers were Keel and Ross. It was Ross' loss, since he came in in the seventh.

Lean Texan May Be First To Set 100 Dash Mark

SANGER, Calif. (AP) — A lean Texan, who runs like a jackrabbit, may be ready to scoot the world's first 100-yard dash in less than 9.3 seconds here tomorrow night. Eddie Southern worked out on the Sanger High School Stadium track this week in preparation for tomorrow's Central California AAU track and field meet.

Home Builders Defeat CV Team

Home Builders rallied for a big sixth inning last night at Guy Smith Stadium to dump the College Viewers 8-6 in Teen-er League baseball.

The victory was the first in two games for Home Builders, and lowered the College View record to 1-2.

Slate Bank, with a 2-0 mark, remains on top in this first week of play, having defeated College View and Home Builders.

Last night, the HB club turned in a big seven-run sixth inning to overwhelm the College Viewers.

Before that inning, the score was tied 3-3. Afterwards, the College Viewers picked up three more runs in the seventh but they weren't enough to offset the lead built up by their opponents.

Ed Smoot pitched for the winners and turned in a one-hit performance, limiting the College View team to only a single in the third inning. Smoot fanned seven batters, walked six and had 13 bases stolen from under him, however the CV club couldn't convert those stolen bases into enough runs to beat his pitching.

Buck and Harper hurled for the losers with Harper coming in in the seventh. It was Buck's loss. He fanned six and walked only one. But he was clubbed for nine hits by the Home Builders.

College View scored first in the third inning. Joyner and Walden got on base and came around on Malcolm Griffith's single and an error. Home Builders came back in the bottom of the same inning to rack up three runs and grab the lead. Starling, Joyner, and Roberts tallied on two errors and a hit by Jack Foley.

In the sixth, Griffith scored on three errors to tie the game at 3-3. Then the bottom fell out. Jody Blalock blasted a homerun to lead off the inning and Foley followed with a single. Smoot got on on a fielder's choice. Ward walked. Owens got on another fielder's choice. Starling, Joyner, got on on an error and Roberts singled. In the midst of all this, the Home Builders brought in seven runs and broke the game wide open.

In the seventh, the College View club got three more runs with Harper, Jenkins and Griffith scoring, but it was too late.

STANDINGS: Slate Bank 2, Home Builders 1, College View 1, Guaranty Bank 0.

Scene From Last Year's Pinewood Derby Festival

Pinewood Derby Today

Today the Third Annual Pinewood Derby will be sponsored by the Pitt District of the Boy Scouts at Elm Street Park from 6:45 to 8:00 p.m.

Approximately 200 cub scouts and parents are expected to be on hand for the affair. A county-wide Cub Scouts-Parents picnic will be held from 5:30 to 6:45 previous to the Derby race.

The Derby itself is a modified miniature race, featuring homemade racers made by the Cubs themselves, according to a certain required scale, cost, and form. The racers are launched automatically from a long ramp track at the park and a winner is soon derived at by elimination.

Trophies, ribbons are presented to the eventual winners. Jim Mallory, Camping and Activities chairman, stated yesterday that the purpose of the event is to give the father and son project of the Cubs more active and closer relationship. The fathers of the Cubs will help their sons during the evening.

Those in charge of the events this evening will be Jim Mallory, race supervisor; J. Knott Proctor Jr., starting line official; Roger Collins, repair station official; Noel Lee Jr., Dr. Francis Fyfe, finish line official; Bill Forbes, registrar; W. C. Eagles, official greeter; Bill Taylor, announcer; Carl Knott, physical arrangements.

There will be a winner's cup presented to the winner and also a cup for the runner-up. Ribbons will be presented to all who participate.

STOCKTON, Calif. — Ross Pappilla, 121½, Stockton, outpointed Joey Augustin, 120½, Los Angeles, 10.

Terry Broke His Slump In A Big Way Last Night: The Kansas City right-hander who had lost five straight won his third 2-0 last night at Washington as Woody Held's two-run homer scrapped a duel with Camilo Pascual. He was the first victory since April 26 for Terry.

The league-leading New York Yankees split a double-header with Chicago. The White Sox won the second game 3-2 after losing 12-5. Boston defeated Cleveland 5-3, and Detroit defeated Baltimore 6-3.

Wednesday Was A Good Day For Bobby Thomas, Unknown Until Victory

By EVERETTE PARKER: Fourteen-year-old Bobby Thomas stepped up to the tee. Crack—the small white ball went sailing long down the middle of the fairway.

As he walked off the tee a spectator in the background turned to comment to a friend seated next to him on the bench. "You know," he said, "that youngster has been playing golf for only nine years and look what he can do. I know a whole lot of good golfers who have been playing 20 years that can't hit a ball that straight."

His friend nodded. The local youngster, despite his height, weight and years-old status, has come of age in golfing circles. He made a trip to Wilson Wednesday afternoon and returned with a trophy that is proof positive.

The trophy signified that this boy, who doesn't even look his age, was the best golfer in a field of 60 men who competed for the East Carolina Golf Association's annual championship.

In scoring the victory he topped such formidable foes as Art Ruffin Jr. of Wilson who is an established amateur in this state, Ed Justa, a Rocky Mount youngster with a smooth swing, and long-hitting Larry Beck of Kinston, former national junior golfing champion. Ruffin was favored to win the one-day 36-hole event on his own home grounds with both Justa and Beck expected to be his chief challengers for the title.

Thomas made the trip to Wilson virtually unknown by many of the golfers who were vying for the EGCA title. All of these golfers, including tournament officials and many spectators, knew him well before the sun set on the beautiful sun-kissed fairways of the Wilson Golf and Country Club course.

After firing a sizzling five-under-par 67 during the morning round to take a commanding three-stroke lead at the half-way mark, Thomas drew a sizable gallery of spectators for the afternoon round.

At the end of nine holes of the second 18, he was in 33 three under par. On the back side he skidded to three over, finishing the afternoon round with an even par 72.

Justa, who rallied during the afternoon round to catch Thomas on the 13th hole which he double-bogeyed, lost a possible chance for victory or a tie when he hooked his tee shot out-of-bounds on the 17th hole. Despite the two-stroke penalty he finished one under for the afternoon round. His scores were 70-71, three under par for the long Wilson course which played better than 6,700 yards for the tournament.

Beck, the 1957 USGA National Junior Champion, finished the morning round even with par but ran into trouble on the front nine of the second 18. On the backside he registered an excellent 33 despite a double-bogey to finish third with a 72-70-142.

John Montgomery, also of Greenville, won the third flight championship by posting an 80. With a 14 handicap he had a low score of 68 for the round.

Winning the tournament, according to Thomas, was "the biggest thrill of my life."

He said, "I felt I had an excellent chance of winning after the morning round if I could play the second 18 holes in even par."

This he did despite mounting pressure from Justa and Beck who were actually the only two golfers in contention at the 27-hole mark.

"The course," Thomas said, "was in excellent condition and played relatively easy. Those greens were good too."

He explained he was having some trouble with a hook off the tee. His fairway woods, long and short irons, more than compensated for the lack of distance or unfavorable lies. For the 36 holes, he had 18 one-putt greens, nine each round.

Thomas figured the putt he rammed home from 18 feet out on the 12th hole of the afternoon round for a birdie three. On the 18th green of the morning round he dropped a 20-foot putt for a birdie two.

All in all Wednesday was a good day for Robert Warren Thomas.

O'Malley Still Erect But He Isn't Through

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter O'Malley is still erect after the latest effort to yank the Southern California welcome mat from under his Dodgers. But his equilibrium may be submitted to still further tests.

City voters decided in a referendum election Tuesday to let O'Malley build a luxurious new stadium for his ball club in Chavez Ravine, a mile from the heart of downtown.

Latest returns today show 176,605 votes for and 159,028 against. This is with 2,350 precincts of 4,519 reported. The trend is not expected to change.

The results mean O'Malley may get his athletes out of their makeshift playground at Memorial Coliseum sometime during the 1959 season—if.

If the chubby baseball impresario from Brooklyn can vault a few more hurdles.

There are several lawsuits on file now. They all challenge the legality of the deal permitting the Dodgers to set up shop in Chavez Ravine.

Sport Slants by Pap

John E. McAuliffe is a colorful member of last-ditch-dishwashing breed of gentlemen known as patrons of sports. Now, you just don't walk up to the man and call him a "patron," because he considers himself a sponsor... or better still, a participant. He has his own way of participating, such as sponsoring the Triangle Round Robin golf tournament and putting up $12,000 in prize money for the top proctees. He paid $43,000 last fall to add to his racing stable which he resumed in 1955 after a lapse of 14 years, and he still retains much of the golfing form that earned him Metropolitan amateur golf championships a few years back.

All these activities keep me young and interested," says McAuliffe. And he doesn't use the word "activities" loosely. Take the Round Robin which is being held at the Tedesco Country Club, Marblehead,

Sonja Henie On The Ice Again; Has Big Plans

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You'd think that Sonja Henie would want to hang up her skates forever. Yet she's on the ice again. In fact, she has been up at 6 in the morning to skim over the rink at the Pan Pacific Auditorium for three hours. "It was the only time I could get the ice," she explained. The auditorium was on a 24-hour schedule, with one ice show appearing there and two others rehearsing.

Why all this activity on Sonja's part? She's leaving for Europe to film a 90-minute TV spectacular that might be the start of a series. "We planned to make the first one in Paris," she said. "But the political situation is so upset that we changed it to London. I think it's better location anyway. Bob Hope just made a picture about Paris and there have been many others."
Sonja's plan is to go to Brussels, where she has an ice show appearing at the World's Fair. She'll rehearse the musical numbers there, then transport the company to London to film them. Afterwards, the story part of the spec will be shot around London. "If the show is a success, we'll do others in various other big cities of the world," she said. "The films will be made in color, so there is the possibility of showing them in theaters too."

Handicaped, But A Valedictorian

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—A 21-year-old honors student from Washington, D. C., mounts the platform at Washington and Lee University today to deliver the valedictory.
For John Monk Larson it will be more than just the final bright touch on an outstanding college career. It will also be the high point in a 13-year battle against polio.

When I marveled at her early-morning practice sessions, she replied that they're not unusual with her.
"I always take at least two months to get into shape for an appearance," she said. "I would not appear if I wasn't in top condition. The public expects to see you at your best, and I won't disappoint them."

And, says Larson, had it not been for his handicap, he might not have done so well in college. Outside interests would have encroached on the time he devoted to studies, he says.
Larson was stricken in 1945. He lost the use of both arms but had some control of his right hand.

Eighteen Named To Honor Roll

FARMVILLE—Eighteen Farmville High School students have been named to the school's Honor Roll for the year, Principal Sam D. Bundy announced today.
Each of the students had to receive maximum grades on all subjects in order to qualify for the honor. They are Senior George Cannon; Junior Richard Dunn; Sophomores Rod Williams and Caroline Lewis; and Freshmen Westley Ange, Junior Cannon, Johnny Mewborn, J. J. Monk III, Ben Moore, Eddie Thomas, Billy Walker, Gina Allen, Donnie Caraway, Noel Lang, Eva Mae Lewis, Monty Pickett, Sandra Smith and Sara Smith.

Only one concession was allowed him by his professors. Since he could write only with difficulty, he was given additional time while taking quizzes and in handing in reports.
To graduate "with exceeding honors in political science," Larson by hand wrote a 160-page thesis on "democratic leadership and consent—a revitalization."
This summer Larson will be tutored in French and German and next year will attend the Yale University graduate school on a scholarship. He hopes to continue his work toward a Ph.D. and eventually teach.

Young Saudi Arabians Are Straining Over Old Codes

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst
JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Prayer time...
All a young Bedouin newly trained for a technical job is forcefully busy. He feels the rap of a baton on his shoulders and looks around to see one of the Mutaween.
All must drop whatever he is doing, and pray.
All like many of his brethren is becoming heartily sick of the Mutaween.
The Mutaween are known to the Bedouin as "the Society for the Ordering of Good Deeds and the Reasoning Against Bad Deeds." They are the workers of a puritanical sect of Mohammedanism called Wahabism. Westerners shorten the title to "committee for Enforcement of Public Morality."
In this land ruled by Koranic law, the Mutaween roam the streets seeing that people pray at prayer times. They watch to see that the Bedouin wears his tagiyah, a round skull cap. A cap with a peak is forbidden, for the peak would prevent a man's head from touching the ground as he kneels on his prayer rug and faces toward Mecca.
Eventually the Mutaween will pass away in the developing Saudi social revolution. Right now its members are salaried, but there is reason to believe Crown Prince Faisal, who has recently taken the reins of government, is intent upon getting rid of the organization gradually. The salaries are getting smaller and smaller.

The Mutaween see to it that women do not go about without long heavy veils covering their faces. They see to it that men do not shave too completely. They watch for all abominations under the strict tribal code of Wahabism, a sort of reformation in reverse instituted by the Saudi house years ago as a purification of Mohammedanism.
This code prevents Saudis from mixing socially with Europeans. It prevents women from appearing unveiled at any social function, however private. It limits women to the home, and their studies to the teachings of the Koran, Islam's Bible.
But the laws are being violated. There is a black market in liquor. Saudi women appear unveiled at social functions, when they are sure they are safe. A Saudi and his wife will accept an invitation to a foreigner's home when they are sure no other Saudis — particularly bachelors — are present, or at least only their closest friends.
Saudi women send their servant girls into the Suk — Jiddah's market place — to buy cascades of pretty European clothing for use on such rare occasions, or just for parading their charms before their husbands in private. Punishments can be terrible. The crime rate in Jiddah and other towns is low, with good reason. For a first offense, a petty thief can be taken to a town square where, publicly, one of his hands is chopped off. A second offense can cost him the other hand. A third — if he still can manage to steal — can cost a foot.

A woman taken in adultery faces a terrible fate. If the charge is proved by three witnesses, she is taken to a public square. A truckload of stones, about the size of baseballs, is dumped there. Police throw the first stones at the kneeling woman, then invite or prod the crowd to join. It takes about half an hour to stone a woman to death. But convictions are infrequent. No Saudi man wants to admit he has been betrayed by his women.
Revolt against such things is rising to the surface among the tiny group of educated people. Saudi Arabia is emerging into the modern world.
There is a fever of eagerness among the unlettered Bedouin to educate their children. Soon even girls will be sent to schools — perhaps next year, 1978 in the Islamic calendar — although coeducation surely is years away. Saudi children soon may be allowed to mix with foreign children.
A new generation is rising.

Claims 'Double Cross' In Foreign Aid Voting

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) today attributed to a State Department "double cross" the one-vote defeat of a proposal to permit use of foreign aid funds for Red satellite nations.

He contended the department endorsed and helped to write the proposal as part of the foreign aid bill, but backed down when President Eisenhower decided to ask the authority under separate legislation.

The Senate, after stormy debate voted 43-42 last night to remove the proposed new authority from the $3,712,900,000 foreign aid bill.

It hopes to complete action on the measure by tonight.

Twenty-six Republicans in Democratic ranks joined in rejecting the idea. Twenty-seven Democrats and 15 Republicans voted for it.

The proposal would specifically have authorized the President to provide economic or financial assistance to any country except the Soviet Union, Red China and Communist North Korea, if he found such assistance to be in the national interest. It was designed to help Communist satellites relax the control of Moscow.

The Foreign Relations Committee wrote the provision into the bill in the form of an amendment by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass). The vote to remove it was on motion of Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland of California.

It was Knowland who reported, after a White House conference, that Eisenhower favored separate legislation rather than inclusion of the proposal in the foreign aid bill.

Humphrey told reporters the "rug was pulled out from supporters of the Kennedy proposal." But he said he did not think Democrats would retaliate by voting heavy cuts in the program when Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) brings up amendments proposing cuts totaling $45 million dollars.

Expected Offer Electronic Brain

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government, through the National Science Foundation, likely will provide the University of North Carolina a half-million-dollar electronic brain.

The Senate Appropriations Committee restored $10,000,000 in foundation funds yesterday in which is to pay for electronic brains for universities. The money had been cut out by the House. Money for the UNC computer had been requested both by President Frank Graham.

Gas Pedal Stuck, Car Over Cliff

ROLLING HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The gas pedal of Mrs. Sarah Van Renterghen's car stuck when she started the sedan in a garage. The car crashed through the end of the garage, knocked over a tree and plunged over a 400-foot cliff.

Neighbors found Mrs. Renterghen, 63, climbing up the cliff. She was treated for bruises and scratches. The car was demolished.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

A much less spectacular reaction to America by foreigners than Mr. Nixon's unhappy reception in Ecuador has been the impression made by American musicians in Russia. Where diplomats and high officials—whom musicians and artists succeed—fail, musicians and artists succeed. And this weekend sees the movie version of one of the most famous novels written about World War II coming to the local cinema, "The Young Lions," by Irwin Shaw.

Today's Review We give you our comments on a new book about one of England's most famous queens—who came to the throne just 121 years ago this month.

VICTORIA AND ALBERT. By Evelyn Anthony. New York: Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 1958. Literary Guild Edition.

A recent choice of the Literary Guild, VICTORIA AND ALBERT is a novel based on history that is different from most modern historical novels in two ways: it sticks closely to history and it hasn't got a sexy heroine. The talented English author of the book is a girl who takes her facts and her research seriously, and she has told a fine story. But she's left Queen Victoria's sex life the private matter it always was. Consequently, the book will never become a best seller, which perhaps is just as well.

The facts of Victoria's relationship with her husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, have always been pretty well known. Back in 1921 Lytton Strachey wrote a biography of Queen Victoria which brought together much of the research material, such as letters and journals, to provide a full and interesting account. Miss Anthony has not added very much to it, and in fact has borrowed a great many details from Strachey.

This particular version of Victoria's life is devoted completely to the years of her marriage, which began soon after she became Queen and ended with Albert's comparatively early death. The picture of her overwhelming love for the reluctant German prince is very vividly shown and so are the detailed delineations of the characters of the royal couple. Victoria comes through as the fairly heartless despot that she was, with only one weakness—Albert—and her consort emerges as a well-meaning prig with some serious ideas, many of which were beneficial to England.

For an accurate picture of what life was like—from the outside—for Victoria and her husband, this is a good source. For adventure, action and sex it is not. But for these things you would look elsewhere than in the life of Queen Victoria.

Hasty Speaks At Bethel Rotary

BETHEL—J. L. Gurganus had as his guest at the Rotary Club Tuesday night Walter Hasty, Jr., Manager of Pitt County ASC office.

Winifred P. Thigpen introduced Hasty as speaker for the occasion. His talk was on the functioning of the ASC. He stated the farmer has to carry out his part of the program by complying with the regulations of the ASC.

Hasty is visiting all civic organizations throughout the county to promote a better understanding of the Agricultural Soil Conservation.

Custody Of Dog Was Big Issue

CINCINNATI (AP)—When Kermit Boothby, 50, and his wife, Irene, also 50, appeared in Domestic Relations Court here the principal issue in their divorce case was who would retain custody of their dog Bimbo, a 3½ pound Chihuahua.

Boothby and his wife both wept. Boothby claimed his wife didn't love Bimbo. Mrs. Boothby claimed she once nursed Bimbo back to health when he was sick.

Judge Carl Rich suggested that since Boothby bought the dog he be allowed to keep it but buy another for Mrs. Boothby.

Boothby rushed out and purchased a half-brother to Bimbo from a pet shop. Judge Rich then granted Mrs. Boothby her divorce. She had charged neglect.

Lost A Customer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals lost a customer for last night's game. Louis Scher, 75, was nearing the Busch Stadium ticket office when he was hit on the left hip by a ball knocked out of the park in pre-game batting practice. He was treated for minor cuts at a hospital.

Eight Swimmers Closed A Beach

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Eight Negroes swim at the all-white municipal beach yesterday and minutes after they left, the swimming area was ordered closed.

City Manager Ross Windom said the beach would remain closed until city council decides what it wants to do about the properties.

Signs were posted and guards stationed in the beach area which adjoins the city's long municipal pier jutting into Tampa Bay. Also a part of the swimming area is the spa pool.

The Negroes walked to the pool, demanded entrance and were granted admittance. They dressed in the locker room used for pool bathers but did not use the pool itself. Instead, they walked onto the beach.

"There was nothing else I could do," said John Gough, manager of the spa.

There was no disorder. A police captain stood by while the Negroes were on the beach.

The U. S. Supreme court ordered the city's swimming facilities integrated in a decision stemming from a case originating in this city.

Since that time there has been talk the pool and beach area either would be sold or leased to private operators.

Wins TB Ass'n $100 Study Grant

Mary E. Hawkins, a seventh grade teacher at Pitt County Training School, has been named 1958 winner of a $100 study grant made by the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association.

Miss Hawkins will enroll Monday at North Carolina College in Durham to begin work on three courses which will qualify her as a coordinator of the Tuberculosis Association's health education workshops. The workshops are held each Spring in the county's Negro schools.

While in Durham, Miss Hawkins will be enrolled in three courses, "Health of the School Child," "Organization and Administration of the School Health Program." She will receive graduate credit for the courses.

Miss Hawkins is a graduate of North Carolina College and teaches seventh grade and biology at Pitt County Training School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leatha Hawkins of near Grimesland.

Earns Isolation Cell After Effort To Enter Miss. U.

Editor's Note — Associated Press staffer Douglas Starr and two staff members of the Jackson (Miss.) Daily News were the only newsmen to contact Negro Prof. Glenn King after he was jailed for trying to enter the all-white University of Mississippi. They managed to enter the building undetected and taped an interview. Shortly afterwards, state police barred anyone from seeing King, who tried to become the first Negro to enter a white school in Mississippi.

By DOUGLAS STARR JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Negro Prof. Glenn King earned an isolated jail cell today for his efforts to cross the state's rigid racial lines. He said his attempt to enter the University of Mississippi is ended.

The 37-year-old former faculty member at the all-Negro Alcorn A&M (Miss.) College was whisked away by state highway patrolmen yesterday when he tried to enter the summer session at the university.

His whereabouts were top secret until late last night. The Associated Press learned he was being held in a tiny cell on the top floor of the state highway patrol headquarters here and held an exclusive tape-recorded interview.

The interview came only an hour before the highway patrol threw a cordon of troopers around the building and refused anyone access to the tall, Georgia-born King.

"I just want to get out of here," King said in the interview tape recorded by Norman Bergama of the Jackson Daily News.

"I don't know what they're going to do," King told his interviewers. "I would like to get out. I wouldn't bother it any more. I would leave it alone."

But state authorities may not leave King alone. They indicated he would be examined by physicians. Chancery Clerk J.B. Howell of Oxford, who filed a lunacy warrant against King, said, "If they conclude his mind is a little off, they will send him to Whitfield (state hospital) for psychiatric examination."

King was taken from a line of students waiting to register for summer school at the University at Oxford and was told "that if I came back on the campus I would be arrested."

King said university registrar Robert Ellis told him the situation on registering was "just about hopeless." He said he asked that his application forms be returned, but was refused, and said he wanted to return to the waiting line.

"When I sought to leave the room they forced me out another entrance," King continued. He said he was carried to a waiting car.

King said he was not mistreated and Gov. J.P. Coleman, who ordered troopers to the campus to preserve the peace, said, "All of his legal rights will be fully preserved."

Guided Missile Flown Overland

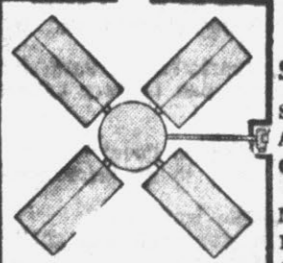

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—A Regulus II guided missile has been tested for the first time over a new inland route to eastern Nevada.

The swept-wing supersonic missile was launched seaward yesterday from the U.S. Naval Test Center here. Then, guided by two jet chase planes, the Regulus turned and flew more than 450 miles to Antelope Dry Lake near the Utah border.

The needle-nose missile, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead, is intended for use from submarines and cruisers.

CHAPTER 28

At the end of the dinner, Lois Marlow pushed away the empty ice-cream dish and looked at me across the table.

"You bother me, Mister Donald Lam."

"How?" I asked.

"You give me the impression of always holding something back."

"Perhaps it's professional reticence."

"Perhaps. Perhaps it's something else. Tell me, Donald, do you always have an ace up your sleeve?"

"No."

"You act like it."

"I have to."

Her eyes searched mine. "Donald, what do you think of me?"

"Why?"

"Because I want to know."

"You're nice."

"Are you just saying that, or do you really feel it?"

"I really feel it."

"You get around a lot, Donald. You see a lot of the world. What do you think of girls like me?"

"I've told you."

"No, you've told me what you think of me, but I want to know how you feel about girls like me."

"In what way?"

"What's the use of beating around the bush? I want to live my life, not sit on some isolated island and watch life flow by while I continue to get older. You're spending life, whether you realize it or not. You have only so much coiled, and it can't be saved."

"I've told you about me. I like gaiety, I like lights, I like laughter. I like companionship, I like men who are attractive. I want contacts, excitement, variety. The idea of settling down to one big sinkful of constantly dirty dishes bores me to death."

"You're living the type of life you want?"

"Yes — in a way."

"In other words you aren't in love?"

"What makes you say that?"

"If you were in love, you'd want to be with some one man. You wouldn't want any other men in your life. You'd want to wait on him, to work for him, to cook for him, to sew for him, to face the same old sink, full of the same old dirty dishes."

"Do you think so?"

"Well," I told her, "it's the conventional thing to say, anyway."

She laughed.

"You are, at the moment, living the sort of life you want," I said.

"Why worry about it?"

"It's the thought of the future."

"What about it?"

"The lack of security. The — Donald, what's going to happen when I begin to get less attractive, when I begin to get a little dumpy and lose my figure, when men no longer find me desirable?"

"Men will always find you desirable, as long as you remain desirable."

"That's one of those darned cryptic remarks you have to figure out."

"What's your definition of security?" I asked.

"I don't know."

"Marriage?" I asked.

"I don't think so. I . . . I just wonder sometimes . . . There isn't any real security in marriage."

You have a husband, and you put the best years of your life to washing dirty dishes and mending and losing your figure, and then some blonde babe comes along, and the first thing you know, your husband tells you he wants his freedom — his freedom! Where does that leave you?"

"Go on," I said, "get it off your chest."

"I'm worried sick about what I did, Donald. I'm trying to keep from thinking about it."

"All right, then, talk about sex."

She looked at me and laughed. "How do you feel about sex, Donald?"

"Fine. Doesn't everybody?"

"Donald, you have your tongue in your cheek all the time you're talking with me. Your mind is a million miles away. Why can't you be like other men and . . . well, keep me on the defensive . . . take my mind off myself?"

"You don't think I'm giving my mind its proper exercise?"

"You're playing mental chess," she said, "and I'm a pawn. You're getting ready to move me around, and somehow I have the feeling that if the proper situation arose, I'd be expendable."

"I told you that I was representing my client; that my client was Barclay Fisher."

"And you have to be loyal to him?"

"Yes."

"What would I have to do for you — to pay you — to make you also loyal to me?"

"That type of client loyalty isn't divisible. I have to protect the interests of Barclay Fisher."

She studied me for a moment. "Donald, I'm warning you. I'm going to involve you."

"How?"

"With me."

"So you'll be all tied up with me and . . . and have to work for me, too. I need your brains. I need your experience."

"Barclay Fisher has the first call."

"I think," she told me, "you're in for quite an experience. Come on, let's get out of here."

I paid for the dinner. I picked up my hat at the hat-check counter and surreptitiously ran my fingers around the inside of the hat brim. The claim check was still there.

"Where do we go?" I asked.

"Someplace where I can talk with you."

"Your apartment?" I suggested.

"Wouldn't that be very dangerous?"

"Yes."

"Then why go there?"

"You have to go there sometimes."

"Sometime isn't now."

"Where else would you go?"

"Places."

"If you didn't think the police were looking for you, would you go to your apartment?"

"Yes."

"If the police are looking for you, would you want them to find you in some of the other places?"

"They might not find me."

"And again they might."

I summoned a cab, helped her in.

"The Wisteria Apartments," I told the driver.

She sighed. "You're so darned sure of yourself."

"And you don't like that?" I asked her.

She swayed over against me, let her head rest on my shoulder. "I love it, Donald," she said dreamily. "Perhaps underneath you're worried and uncertain, but you always have such an air of finality, of being so completely sure of yourself and of what you're going to do."

She raised her chin and breathed. "Why don't you kiss me, Donald?"

"Because I want to think."

"All right. Go ahead and think," she said. "That's what I want you to do. When you quit thinking, kiss me."

We rode in silence to the Wisteria Apartments.

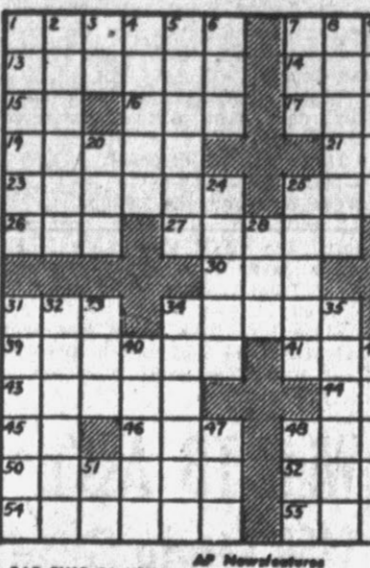

Two women have something to fight about — and do, with Donald as spectator. Continue his story here tomorrow.

Railroad Cutting Pullman Rates

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Southern Railroad is cutting fares again—this time for the benefit of Pullman passengers.

Most other railroads have given up on passenger business. They have discontinued and combined trains or abandoned service on most branches and even on main lines. Buses and airplanes have taken much of the business.

"Our passenger operations are important to us," said W.N. Deramus, the peppery 70-year-old who has been head of the Kansas City Southern since 1940. He once said he hoped to get coach fares down to a cent a mile.

The new fare deal will permit passengers to use Pullmans on regular coach tickets. Estimated saving: 29 per cent.

On the 561-mile run from Kansas City to Shreveport, La., the present first-class round-trip ticket for Pullman travel is $38.95. The round-trip coach fare is $27.85.

Pullman passengers still must pay the Pullman Co. space charges.

C.H. Taylor, the railroad's advertising manager, said he believes the Kansas City Southern is the first to offer the saving to Pullman passengers over its entire system.

The Kansas City Southern was the first railroad to introduce the family fare plan now used by most railroads.

Claims Savings On Tax Filings

SEATTLE (AP) — Uncle Sam's Delk said: "In the 1955 filing period, 14,600,000 individuals sought Internal Revenue Service help in making out their returns. For the 1958 period, the figure dropped to 11 million."

Three years ago, he added, the service spent an estimated $6,800,000 in assigning 12,000 employees to help taxpayers. This year, he said, only 7,300 employees were needed for the job and costs fell to less than three million dollars.

The educational program has included books, pamphlets, publicity and the assistance of lawyers and accountants in telling in simple language how to file tax returns.

Reuther Moves To Limit Incidents, Avert Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers president, moved swiftly today to make certain that incidents involving workers at General Motors and Chrysler yesterday did not disrupt the uneasy truce in auto industry contract negotiations.

shift. Chrysler's dispute resulted from company action in handing out brief suspensions to some UAW stewards and committeemen in Chrysler plants across the country. Chrysler denied UAW charges that it was trying to provoke workers into a strike. The company said the only ones disciplined were those who had flatly refused to go to work.

WALL STREET
NEW YORK (AP) — Selected industrials moved forward in an erratic stock market early this afternoon to push the general price level toward another new high for the year. Trading was fairly active.

Leading rails, after some initial follow-through from their pacemaking role of yesterday, backed away and showed little change. Key stocks gained narrowly, the range of their advances kept generally within a point. Small losses and unchanged prices were scattered through the list.

Gyrations of some stocks between gains and losses indicated considerable switching. Oils, aircrafts, motors and steels were mostly higher. Rubbers and motion picture stocks also showed plus signs. Chemicals, base metals and tobaccos were irregular. Market background included the report of the House-Senate Economic Committee which said the nation's economy might not get back on its feet until late 1950. Meanwhile, auto assemblies were estimated at a higher rate.

The lower-priced motor shares, Studebaker - Packard and American Motors, once again were being given a play. Studebaker - Packard jumped 1/4 to 6 on a block of 6,000 shares. American added a fraction.

Lorillard continued to recover, adding about a point, but the price jiggled between a greater and lesser gain. Meanwhile, American Tobacco, which had a good rise recently on news of its new filter tip cigarette, dropped a major fraction.

Brunswick - Balke added a fraction to its 1 1/4 rise of yesterday. Rayonier continued active and fractionally higher on rumors it had a new yarn of interest to the tire industry.

General Dynamics had a spurt of activity and gained about a point. Wall Street talk was that the firm would need no new financing.

Gains of about a point were made by Sinclair, Texas Co. and Zenith. Du Pont's price fluttered uncertainly, erasing a 1-point gain. Anaconda, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Illinois Central took small losses.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 40 cents to $172.70 with the industrials up 60 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities up 10 cents.

League Unable To Solve Dispute

BENGASI, Libya (AP) — The Arab League announced today its failure to solve the angry dispute between Lebanon and the United Arab Republic after Lebanon rejected a compromise.

A resolution turned down by the Lebanese would have sent a fact-finding mission to Lebanon to study charges that President Nasser's U.A.R. was behind attempts to overthrow pro-Western President Camille Chamoun.

The resolution appealed to the Lebanese people to halt disturbances, urged all Arab states to avoid action which would lead to friction between them, and asked Lebanon to withdraw its complaint against the U.A.R. in the United Nations.

The issue thus is tossed back to the U.N. Security Council, which had marked time in New York while the league met.

The Lebanese said they rejected the resolution because it asked no concession from the U.A.R. while asking Lebanon to withdraw its U.N. complaint.

When Lebanon announced its rejection, the Iraq and Jordan delegations declared the resolution could not be considered approved.

A league spokesman said that meant the official result of the meeting was no decision.

Already Knew Of $300 Robbery

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Paul Salee heard a police broadcast by short-wave radio that his daughter, Mrs. Marie Coleman, had been robbed. He rushed to telephone his wife the news.

Mrs. Salee already knew. She and her daughter were talking on the telephone when a man entered the loan office where Mrs. Coleman works and demanded the money.

The bandit took $300 and left his rifle.

School Bus Road-e-o Winners
Russell Rogerson, Driver Safety Representative for Pitt and Greene counties, presented the winners of District Five's annual Road-e-o held in Winterville recently.

Gayla Faye Letchworth of Snow Hill was presented a $100 scholarship by Dan M. Paul, managing director of the North Carolina Store Council, Miss Letchworth, representing the Snow Hill High School, placed first in the girls' division.

The winner of the boy's division, Wesley Earl Smith of Ayden Rt. 1, received a $100 scholarship donated by the Hackney Brothers Body Company of Wilson. B. L. Davis, superintendent of Greene County schools, made the presentation.

Rogerson informed the Council that the Smith and Miss Letchworth will compete in the state finals at Chapel Hill, June 16 and 17.

Presiding over his last meeting, Buchanan thanked members of the Council for their cooperation during the past year. "We have, in my opinion, made great strides during the past two years and I am sure that this presidency will continue in the years to come."

The Council voted to suspend its July and August meeting. Its next meeting will be held September 4.

House Goes Along In Voting No Tax Cuts Says Railroads Are On Brink Of Major Disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — A number of leading businessmen have given qualified backing to tax cutting as an anti-recession measure.

But even as their views were made public yesterday, the House voted to continue present tax rates on corporation income and certain items such as automobiles, cigarettes, whisky, beer and wine.

Although many House members would like to cut taxes this election year, they went along with the decision of their leaders and the Eisenhower administration against any reduction at this session. The main reason: prospective big budget deficits.

The Senate is expected to follow the same course, although efforts probably will be made there to gain tax relief for the ailing automobile and rail industries.

The business leaders, responding to a questionnaire from the Senate Finance Committee, were by no means enthusiastic about the idea of tax reduction.

Most of the 14 men polled by the committee favored caution in employing government action to bring about an economic upturn. There were expressions of concern that such action might spur inflation.

Nine of the business leaders voiced support for the tax-cutting idea in varying degrees. Several said such a move should be considered if the recession deepens. A few called for repeal or modification of transportation levies.

In general, tax reduction was preferred over public works.

In a separate study, the staff of the Senate-House Economic Committee said that since its last analysis in February "economic activity has continued to decline and there are as yet few signs of an early upturn."

It said that even on the basis of optimistic assumptions, unemployment in the first three months of 1953 might total between 5 million and 5 1/2 million, with a less rapid recovery possibly bringing joblessness to as many as seven million persons.

Production Credit Ass'n Reports Made At Meet

North Carolina farmers have approximately $4 million invested in capital stock of the 27 production credit associations which serve the State according to Alton Gardner, president of the Greenville Production Credit Association.

Gardner attended the recent PCA Directors' Conference which was held at the Morehead-Biltmore Hotel, Morehead City. Others attending were Arch Flanagan; W.F. Weikert, Jr.; Claude K. Grantham; E. W. Fleming; and F.L. Little, General Manager of the association.

Reports made at the conference show that the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia, of which the Greenville PCA is a stockholder, had as of March 31, 1953, a total net worth of nearly $14 million.

The consolidated report of the 27 PCAs showed a total net worth of over $8 million.

For the year 1952, the North Carolina PCAs made 22,283 loans for a total of more than $47 million.

The conference at Morehead City was the "kick off" for the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary celebration of PCAs which will run from July 1, 1953 to June 30, 1959. Since their organization in 1933 and 1934, North Carolina PCAs have advanced cash to their farmer members in the amount of approximately $419 million.

Dr. C. E. Bishop, head of the Department of Agriculture Economics, North Carolina State College, in an address to the group, informed us that agriculture is making rapid adjustments in North Carolina.

Civitan Installs New Officers

New officers of the Greenville Civitan Club were installed last night by Simon Jesse of Goldsboro, district vice-president of the North Carolina Civitan Club.

Officers installed are: president, George A. Douglas; vice-president, Jack Morgan; secretary, Leon Singleton; and treasurer, Randolph Fleming. Outgoing president John Ray Hardy was given a rising vote of thanks by club members for his work during the past year.

Announcement was made last night that the club will continue to sponsor the Rose High School band as its major project. It was also announced that two outstanding seniors at Rose High School had been selected to attend the Civitan Summer Camp, "Wild Acres," at Little Switzerland.

In addition to President Hardy, other outgoing officers are Vice-President C. E. Williams, Secretary Joe Dudley and Treasurer Jim Rogers.

Given Probation For Embezzling

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — An attractive housewife has been placed on probation after pleading guilty to a charge of embezzling $8,000 from a chemical firm where she formerly worked as a bookkeeper.

Judge Malcolm Paul sentenced Mrs. Bernice Frances Daniels, 38, to 3 to 5 years in prison, but he suspended the prison term and placed her on probation for five years. The judge was told that restitution of the money would be made.

She was accused of embezzling the money from State Chemical Corp. of Greenville when it was located in Rocky Mount.

MINOR FIRE LOSS

Only minor damage was reported by firemen called to extinguish flames in the home of J. N. LeConte, 120 Woodlawn Avenue, this morning.

A short circuit was blamed for the occurrence.
