DeGaulle Moving To Subdue His Own Extremists

PARIS (AP)— Premier Charles de Gaulle called Jacques Soustelle on the carpet today in another show of his determination not to let the colonists in Algeria dictate how he runs France.

Soustelle is the political front man for the insurgent movement of army officers and French settlers who banded together in committees of public safety to keep Algeria under French control. De Gaulle wants the Moslem majority to have a full voice in running France's North African territory.

The committees inspired and directed wild demonstrations in Algeria which hoisted De Gaulle to power. But he is now trying to make them take the same vacation from politics he ordered for the National Assembly.

The premier called Soustelle back from Algiers after the military-civilian committee there demanded that De Gaulle kick party politicians out of his cabinet and delay the Algerian municipal elections he promised about a month.

De Gaulle's first response was a biting telegram to Gen Raoul Salan, his civil and military chief in Algeria who had associated himself with the insurgent committee's demands. The premier told Salan to keep out of politics and criticized him for getting mixed up in "the regrettable and intemperate incident caused by the preemptory motion of the committee."

He added that the committee's only right and role was to express the opinion of its members.

De Gaulle's telegram was obviously aimed also at paratroop Gen. Jacques Massu, who took over leadership of the French insurgents in Algeria after they defied Paris May 13.

Soustelle, who eluded police surveillance at his Paris home and slipped through to Algeria May 16, is generally regarded as the real mastermind behind the movement although he holds no post on any of the committees.

He worked closely with De Gaulle during World War II and was the leader of his supporters in the National Assembly, but rumors have circulated for months that De Gaulle has soured on his disciple.

Many extremists on the committees were miffed that De Gaulle failed to give Soustelle a top Cabinet post. They got madder at De Gaulle's plans to hold municipal elections.

The vote would undercut the influence of the self-appointed committees which have sprung up all over Algeria. Many committeemen would probably be blocked from legal political power if De Gaulle keeps his promise and gives the nine million moslems equal voting rights with the one million colonists.

Many, in fact, could not even be candidates under last year's election law, which restricts local candidacies to persons born in Algeria.

UN Observers Are Ordered In Lebanon

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. truce officials were ordered into Lebanon on the double today to guard its borders against intruders from President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The Security Council sent the watchdog team in answer to a Lebanese complaint that the U.A.R. is sending arms and men to rebels seeking to overthrow President Camille Chamoun's pro-Western government. The U.A.R. denies the charge.

The Council yesterday ordered Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to organize an observation group and rush it into position to seal Lebanon's borders with the Syrian province of the U.A.R.

Hammarskjold turned to the U.N. truce chief in Palestine to borrow some observers temporarily. The first group of these officers who have been trying to keep peace along Israel's borders were due in Beirut from Jerusalem today.

Hammarskjold worked to set up a more permanent organization of both civilian and military observers for the Lebanese assignment. He was expected to appoint a three-man directing board from Norway, India and Ecuador with a Norwegian general in charge of the assistant military observers.

The projected size of the full organization was not known but Hammarskjold was understood to have sent out recruiting calls to a number of nations. He conferred last night with key U.N. delegates including U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Britain's Sir Pierson Dixon, U.A.R. Ambassador Omar Loutfi and Foreign Minister Charles Malik of Lebanon.

U.N. diplomats were generally optimistic that the watchdog group would ease tension between Lebanon and the U.A.R. But some were frankly worried about prospects for re-establishing friendly relations between the Middle Eastern neighbors.

One of the biggest battles in the 34-day rebellion ended yesterday with rebel chieftain Kamal Jumblatt claiming victory over government forces supported by jet fighter attacks. Jumblatt claimed capture of two mountain villages just 12 miles southeast of Beirut.

The U.S. delegation reportedly felt the Security Council had reaffirmed its position in world affairs. This was the first time in several years that the Council has been able to agree on direct action in an international dispute.

UAW Conducting A Strike Vote

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union, which has insisted it does not want an auto strike, disclosed today that it is conducting a strike vote among 100,000 Ford Motor Co. production employes.

The announcement by Ken Bannon, national director of the UAW Ford Department, came less than 48 hours after two Chrysler plants in the Detroit area asked permission of the International UAW to hold a similar vote.

Bannon emphasized that "there is no immediate threat of a strike at Ford. We are just setting up the machinery in case we need it."

He said a similar strike vote was held just before the last contract was agreed upon in 1955.

Bannon said two locals have reported results, both overwhelmingly approving strike action if necessary. These were Local 551 at Chicago which voted 1,445 to 6 and Local 325 at St. Louis which voted 1,186 to 56.

At Chrysler, UAW President Walter Reuther assumed personal command of the union bargaining team.

Dulles Schedules Mission To Paris

WASHINGTON (AP)— A flying trip by Secretary of State Dulles to confer with Premier Charles de Gaulle in Paris next month is planned primarily as a two-way fact finding mission.

Officials said today the meeting will give Dulles an opportunity to learn at first hand De Gaulle's views on a whole range of problems from the continuing crisis in North Africa to the possible summit conference.

It also will give De Gaulle a chance to find out what kind of United States cooperation and support he can expect in carrying through his program.

The State Department said yesterday that Dulles would fly to Paris on July 5 and be back here in time to go with President Eisenhower on a visit to Ottawa three days later.

His meeting with De Gaulle will take place against a background of worry about France's role in the western alliance under De Gaulle's leadership.

Possibly one of the most difficult problems which De Gaulle will face is that of cooperation between France and the United States in the field of atomic weapons development. France has been reported at the point of producing nuclear weapons for test purposes and De Gaulle is believed to be determined to make his country the world's fourth atomic power—along with the United States, Russia and Britain.

He may confront Dulles with a strong request for information sharing between France and the United States to the same extent that this country is able to share its atomic weapons secrets with Britain under legislation now pending in Congress.

There has been considerable opposition at the Capitol to providing France with U.S. weapons know-how, because of possibile security problems and of the long record of instability in the French government.

Another problem is to work out an allied policy on suspension of nuclear tests following the present U.S. series of experimental explosions in the Pacific.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is understood to have made it clear once again during his talks with President Eisenhower this week that if Britain is to halt its own testing, it must get information already developed in U.S. tests.

Sugg Is Elected Head Of Tobacco Warehouse Body

TARBORO — Greenville warehouseman Harding Sugg was elected president of the Eastern North Carolina Warehouse Association at a meeting of the organization here yesterday.

The group also elected W. L. Whedbee, sales supervisor for the Greenville market, as its secretary-treasurer.

Named vice-president was John T. Jenkins of Kinston.

A Farmville tobacconist and a Robersonville man were elected to the organization's five-man board of governors.

John H. Fountain of Farmville and Mayo Little of Robersonville were named to that board. Other members are: Graham Knott, Kinston; H. H. Harris, Wilson; J. B. Fenner, Rocky Mount. The president and vice-president also serve on the Board of Governors.

Higher tobacco prices were predicted by Fred Royster, managing director of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association, who spoke to the group yesterday.

He called attention to the fact that the government is committed to support prices to allow a yearly average of $54.20 per hundred pounds for all tobacco sales. It is the highest support price ever.

Royster said there has been a substantial reduction in tobacco surpluses during the past year. That included stocks in the hands of dealers, manufacturers and Stabilization Corp.

The group called for an earlier opening of the Eastern Belt sales this year to shorten the length of time between the opening of South Carolina markets and Eastern Carolina markets.

Joe Eagles of Wilson was elected the group's representative to the Bright Belt sales committee.

A resolution of respect for the late J. E. Winslow of Greenville was included among those passed by the organization's members.

R. E. Rogers of Greenville was named as Greenville's representative on the organization's board of directors.

Short On Funds, But War On Grasshoppers Is Begun

DENVER (AP) — Colorado launched an attack against grasshopper hordes today, but Gov. Steve McNichols warned the action can be only a limited one unless large-scale federal aid is thrown into the fight.

The funds are needed, he said, to protect the 110-million-dollar wheat crop ripening on the high plains of eastern Colorado and for the hay crop needed to carry cattle through next winter.

Turned down by the White House yesterday in an effort to have the region declared a disaster area eligible for civil defense funds, McNichols said he will appeal to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for part of 14 million dollars available for emergencies under the agricultural conservation program.

He termed the action "a last hope" and said he understood the department "is turning thumbs down already."

McNichols announced he will ask the Legislature, when it meets Monday in emergency session, to appropriate up to a million and a half dollars for the struggle with the hoppers. This apparently would wipe out the surplus in the state's general fund.

Paul W. Swisher, state agriculture commissioner, reported the hopper infestation now covers more than 10 million acres in 21 counties.

The commissioner estimated four million acres are in crops, mainly wheat. The remainder is rangeland.

Federal money is available, if matched on a dollar-for-dollar basis by the state and by the landowner, the aerial spraying of rangeland but none is available for cropland, Swisher said.

The state agriculture department announced the start of a range spraying program, with five two-engine planes flying out of Cheyenne Wells, in east-central Colorado. It said nearly 500,000 acres will be covered in this cooperative venture at a cost of about 60 cents an acre.

Chief Highway Engineer Mark U. Watrous reported his department will begin spraying roadside weeds along 18,000 miles of roads in eastern Colorado tomorrow, using 25 pieces of spraying machinery.

Unless federal aid is obtained, McNichols said, the state will have to concentrate its efforts on spraying the roadsides and fence rows between fields—where grasshoppers are heaviest. This would leave protection of the vast grain fields to the owners themselves.

The governor appealed to all landowners to use whatever resources they can muster to eradicate the hoppers.

"I'm certainly not going to let a hundred and ten million dollar wheat crop go to the bad," he promised.

Begin Work On Seaplane Base

HERTFORD, N.C. (AP) — —Construction of the nation's first jet seaplane base begins at Harvey's Point near here today.

The 20-million-dollar U.S. Navy installation at the point where the Perquimans River meets Albemarle Sound in northeastern North Carolina is to be completed by early 1960 to accommodate huge jet flying boats.

Auto Inspection Drive Gets Underway Today

Greenville car owners are turning out in sizable numbers for the countywide 10-point safety check that began this morning.

Unofficial reports from neighboring towns indicate that the traffic has been slow but several of the automobile dealers and garage owners stated they felt things would pick up this afternoon and tomorrow.

The safety inspection is being sponsored by the Pitt County Safety Council in cooperation with the Pitt County Automobile Dealers Association. It is scheduled to run for two weeks until June 27.

One local dealer reported this morning that he had already inspected between 45 and 50 automobiles and trucks. All passed, he said, with the exception of three or four and those were repaired on the spot.

A service manager for another local dealer stated that between 20 to 25 cars had been inspected this morning. Several other dealers and garages reported inspecting at least a dozen vehicles.

Traffic has been extremely light in Grifton and Ayden thus far today. One dealer reported checking four vehicles while another did not set up his inspection until this afternoon.

Only one vehicle was inspected in Grifton before noon today. Response in Farmville has also been light.

Mike Kachmer Auto Garage has been added to the list of new car dealers and approved garages participating in the program.

Check Up Discloses Court Irregularities

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An accountant's check of the records today turned up alleged irregularities by the clerk of Recorder's Court, including the quashing of drunk driving and other charges without the knowledge of the judge.

The audit began after Police Lt. Allen White, clerk of the court for the last 13 years, was transferred to other duties last month. The investigation began after Police Chief Frank N. Littlejohn reported to City Manager Henry Yancey that irregularities existed.

The audit also showed:

From July 5, 1957, to May 15, 1958, Capt. L. W. Henkel, who is in charge of the Traffic Division, cashed checks totalling $26,523 from the Recorder's Court cash fund. Some of these checks bounced, but have been made good. There is no recorded cash unaccounted for in any of the funds of the clerk's office.

Some $30,000 worth of bond money, posted mostly by professional bondsmen, has become forfeited in the court, but no effort was made to collect it. Efforts are being made since the investigation began.

The audit also showed that the records were juggled for a time to cover an unreported collection of $200 cash in August of 1956. The amount later was made good with the deposit of $200 more than daily receipts.

Littlejohn said he expected formal charges to grow out of the investigation. The City Council has decided to call principals before it later and decide whether legal charges or merely reprimands are in order.

Littlejohn and Yancey had an argument yesterday over the police chief's charge that the city manager had ordered that the audit not be made public for a couple of days to give Judge Basil A. Boyd a chance to start housecleaning in Recorder's Court.

Yancey asked that Littlejohn retract the statement, but the chief refused, although he did offer an apology to Yancey.

B47 Stratojet Missing; Four Men Aboard

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — A B47 Stratojet bomber with four men aboard was missing today in this northern New York area.

An extensive air search was under way.

The six-engine plane was enroute from Hunter Air Force Base, near Savannah, Ga., to Loring AFB, Maine. It was one of a training flight of three planes.

Because of weather conditions over Maine, the flight was diverted to Plattsburgh AFB.

Two flights in the flight landed safely at Plattsburgh. The base was in radio and radar contact with the third at 12:30 a.m., when it was in a pattern for landing.

Auto Crash Kills Members Of 3 Generations

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Three persons, representing three generations of the same family were killed near here last night in the collision of a car and a dump truck.

Highway Patrolman F. W. Humphrey quoted an eye-witness as saying the auto failed to yield the right of way to the truck and was hit broadside.

The mishap occurred 12 miles south of Wilson on Highway 581.

Killed were Mrs. Rachel Pender Hershfield, 37, of New Breamen, Ohio; her 9-year-old son, Ronnie, and her mother, Mrs. Troy Pender of Richmond, Va.

Senate Inserts Labor Bill Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—By a vote of 86-0, the Senate wrote into its labor bill today additional powers for the secretary of labor to force union compliance with its terms.

Lack of such powers was one of the criticisms of the bill voiced earlier this week by Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

An amendment putting them in was offered by Sen. John S. Cooper (R-Ky), and was accepted by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), chief sponsor of the measure.

Kennedy said he would have been glad to put it in while the bill was in the Labor Committee if the administration had pushed it there.

The amendment would give the secretary subpoena powers to compel testimony of witnesses and the production of books and records in enforcing sections dealing with union elections, trusteeships, and financial reporting by unions, union officers and employers.

Kennedy said the comments by Mitchell in a statement Monday denouncing the bill as weak and ineffectual were "unfortunate because they have sought to confuse rather than clarify; introduced partisanship where it had been minimized; and jeopardized rather than enhanced the possibilities for favorable congressional action on legislation this year."

WELL MATCHED

DETROIT (AP) — Restaurant owner Martin Eichelbaum ordered 10,000 books of matches, but the match company delivered him 125,000 books instead. Eichelbaum claims there was a mistake in the order but a common pleas jury says the mistake was his and has ordered him to pay for the matches. Eichelbaum figures he has about a 25-year supply of book matches.

Fire Wipes Out Family Of Five

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — A garage apartment fire wiped out a U.S. airman's family of five early today.

Dead are Barbara Chapman, 27, wife of Sgt. W. E. Chapman; three small daughters and a son—Karen, 5; Sharen, 4; Billy, 2; and Susan, 11 months.

Chapman is stationed in Germany. Officials at Turner Air Force Base at once began arrangements to fly him here.

Governor Begins Trip Home From Europe Friday

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's number one tourist will soon be heading for home.

The end of a European tour will come for Gov. Luther Hodges in London tomorrow evening, when he will board a plane for New York.

The Tar Heel governor is due to arrive at Raleigh-Durham Airport shortly after noon Saturday. He'll return to his Capitol office Monday morning. Before getting back to state business, there'll be a weekend family reunion at the executive mansion.

Hodges was accompanied on the nearly three weeks of touring Europe by his daughter, Mrs. D. M. Bernard Jr. of Anacortes, Wash., while her three children remained here with Mrs. Hodges.

Flag Day Ceremony Is Opened To Public

Flag Day will be observed by the local Elks Lodge No. 1645 with special ceremonies, W. H. Watson, chairman of the Flag Day committee, announced today.

Watson said the public is invited to attend the ceremonies. They will be held on the lawn in front of the lodge building located on W. Sixth St. near the hospital.

The program will consist of a "short ritual program commemorating the founding of our flag and what it symbolizes to our nation."

Officers of the lodge will conduct the special ritual and Watson will make an address during the program.

Flag Day is a special project of the Elks and ceremonies are conducted annually by the local lodge.

During the day similar ceremonies will be conducted at all other lodges throughout the nation.

J. G. Proctor, exalted ruler of the local lodge, asked all citizens to join in observance of Flag Day in a display of unity against the growing menace of communist aggression.

He urged all patriotic citizens to display the flag at their homes and business establishments on Flag Day in cooperation with the Elks' "Show Your Colors" program celebrating the 181st anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777.

"Khrushchev has promised 'to bury' us, and communist forces are working hard, at home and abroad, to carry out that promise," Exalted Ruler Proctor said. "Old Glory is the symbol of freedom that Khrushchev and his fellow tyrants in the Kremlin will destroy if we let them. Let us strengthen our faith in our way of life, and our determination to defend it by honoring our Flag on its birthday."

Elks lodges throughout the nation have been paying tribute on Flag Day since 1907.

Fund Trustees Turn Over More Than $1,100

Trustees of the "Gayle Briley Fund" have turned over more than $1,100 to the parents of the eight-year-old Greenville child who died May 16 after nine months of a illness which completely baffled doctors throughout the nation.

Ralph Tucker, one of three trustees for the fund, said a check for $1,100.36 was presented yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. J. Erastus Briley. The money will be used to defray medical expenses of the child who was a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital for two months.

Tucker also said the trustees, who are himself, Noah T. Hardee and Hugh Hardee Jr., would continue to accept contributions to the fund.

"Any further contributions to the fund will be handled in the same manner previous contributions have been handled," Tucker said. "We will turn it over to the parents as soon as it comes to us."

The check presented to the Brileys yesterday represented proceeds from a May 17 bread sale throughout the county and, also, contributions mailed to the fund through Greenville Post Office Box 367. It did not include any donations which were made directly to members of the family according to Tucker.

Parents of Gayle this morning made public "thank-you" comments to persons who have assisted them since the child became ill last September.

They said, "Please accept our thanks for all the wonderful things you did for us during our daughter's illness. We want to thank the doctors and nurses for all they did. We sincerely appreciate everything, the cards, flowers, telephone calls, visits, trays of food, Easter baskets, and personal contributions to our daughter.

"Through your kindness, she was made happier than you will ever know, but more than anything we appreciate your prayers because we know without them we could not have endured her long illness. The concern of you all will never be forgotten.

"We wish it were possible to thank everyone in person. All the favors you did will remain with us and never be forgotten."

Mr. and Mrs. Briley also expressed "especial appreciation" to the Eastern Pines Men's Club, organizers of the "Gayle Briley Fund." They said the check which was given them yesterday by the fund trustees "will help us with our expenses which have been going on since last September."

Gayle had been a student at Fullilove School prior to her illness last Fall. After an early series of operations, she was placed in a private school but was withdrawn in February when she entered Duke Hospital. She was transferred to Pitt Memorial 11 days after entering Duke.

Her illness was described as similar to soft-tissue tumors, but an exact diagnosis was never made although several specialists were consulted and specimen of growths on her body were examined by 25 leading laboratories in the United States.

The child's situation first came to public attention April 28, after a story in The Daily Reflector. Since that time, it has received wide-spread notice and local doctors have been informed that specimen of the growths will be sent to several European laboratories for study.

Elm Street Park Scene of Fish Fry

Under the direction of Robert L. Ramey, the St. James Methodist Church's Youth Fellowship sponsored a fish fry last night at Elm Street Park.

Plates filled with french fried corn meal cakes, fish and slaw with ice tea were served to approximately 115 persons attending.

Proceeds from the supper will be used to retire a church bond which amounts to $500.

The MYF'ers plan to sponsor another money-making project July 9. The work project will be a homemade ice cream supper which will be held at the St. James Methodist Church on Forest Drive.

In the summer, as in winter, the fellowship puts "Christ Above All"——their motto.

The MYF'ers have been washing cars to add to their goal for the church.

Members of the Youth Fellowship range in age from 12-23.

In the recent election of officers for the fellowship, Roy Carawan was elected president with Charles Cox Jr. outgoing president.

Miss Connie Midyette with Ramey assist the group. R. Connor Merritt is superintendent of the youth division of the St. James Methodist Church.

With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE

There's been no doubt in the minds of onlookers what has been the main interest in home demonstration during recent weeks in ASHE County. According to Jane B. Davidson, home demonstration agent, three craft classes have been held on copper tooling, with many club women planning to sell some of their attractive items this summer. "They seem so thrilled with their accomplishments," Mrs. Davidson says. . . . Things are not always what they seem—or so they say—and Mrs. A. W. Bunch, home demonstration club member in SCOTLAND County, has a perfect example of this. When she attended a recent workshop on refinishing furniture, she discovered that the old black chest she had bought for five dollars actually was made of fine quality cherry. "I bought it thinking there was nothing of real value under the paint, and I was amazed to find beautiful cherry," Mrs. Bunch marveled. Laura B. Wright, home agent, values the 16 pieces of furniture refinished at the workshop at around $450 to $500. . . . Slipcovering has attracted attention and interest among club women in HOKE County, says Home Agent Josephine Hall. And Mrs. Clifford Bostic, member of the Arabia home demonstration club, has been partly responsible for this. She gave a demonstration on slipcovering to a group of club women—she was well qualified after having worked in a slipcover department in a local store. She has provided just the spark of interest the women needed. . . . Home demonstration club women in IREDELL County have plans for something new this summer, according to reports from Mrs. Nancy I. Myers, home agent. Working with Mrs. Nancy Davis, county librarian, club women are sponsoring story hours for children. Both feel that this will give the bookmobile a chance to reach more children with books for summer reading. . . .There's at least one 4-H club member who's sewing her way to 4-H club week, according to Eval M. Andrews, Negro home agent in JONES County. Nancy Grady, a senior 4-H'er, is making sure she'll be ready financially. She says, "I hope to have enough money to cover my expenses by sewing for neighbors, family members and others."

Miss Ada Ward of Washington, D. C. is visiting relatives in Grimesland.

Mrs. L. H. Bowling, Mrs. A. J. Moore and Miss Estelle Greene spent today with Mrs. James Hackney in Washington.

Mrs. W. R. Jones entertained the auxiliary of the American Legion yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. L. H. Bowling presided. A report from the poppy sale was made. The proceeds from the sale this year were $200. Tempting refreshments were served by Master George Gower, Misses Ada Jones, Mary Emma Gaskins, Mittie and Mrs. S. N. Graham.

Druidian Club Holds Workshop

The Druidian Garden Club held its first in a series of summer workshops at the home of Mrs. Joe Miller, with Mrs. Arthur Miller as co-hostess, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Joe Miller demonstrated the elementary stages of flower arranging to the open-air seminar in the informal sylvan setting of her garden.

"The arrangement of flowers offers far more than a pattern employing flowers and foliage neatly distributed in an appropriate container," she said. "Not only is it a form of relaxation, but reawakens an awareness of nature upon us."

Using lengths of wooden dowels, Mrs. Miller illustrated the forms and shapes of arrangements, while pointing out that, although color has frequently been the major consideration, form should be the primary interest.

After the demonstration club members made arrangements using the shapes and compositions suggested in the lecture.

The hostesses served a frozen fruit salad and cakes to the members after the workshop period.

Special guest for the afternoon was Mrs. Charles W. Crone.

Avoid The Father's Day Blues

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

What's the matter with Dad? He has those Father's Day blues.

He's trying to think how to discourage the family from their annual last-minute shopping spree, which ends up with an unwanted avalanche of unsuitable merchandise which he will be expected to wear, use and pretend to like.

He's dismally contemplating a day when everyone will be unnaturally thoughtful, and he'll be served breakfast in bed before he has a chance to brush his teeth.

He's wondering how he can get out of the usual festive gathering of the clans, when all his more unattractive relatives will be invited to help him celebrate His Day, when his sons will stand around uncomfortably in their Sunday suits, his daughters will put on an act of adoring fealty, and his wife will insist on waiting on him hand foot, making him feel like an invalid aged 102.

Once a Year

He wishes they would all just act natural for once, and let him go fishing. He wishes they wouldn't feel that one day of saintly behavior will make up for a year of ignoring or brow-beating Dad. He wishes most of all that it weren't such an obvious effort to be nice to the head of the family.

What he'd like is just to spend the day puttering around in his old clothes, with the children being their normal selves, and himself not expected to show appreciation for a batch of wild sports shirts and shrieking neckties that he wouldn't be caught dead in.

Dad's Plea

Here are his suggestions for a perfect Father's Day:

1. Let him sleep as long as he likes on the big morning, and have breakfast when he wants it.

2. Instead of putting on a show of one-day solicitude, let Junior keep up with his chores the rest of the year. He might mow the lawn on Saturday, so Dad won't have to do it on Sunday.

3. Daughter could add to his peace of mind by showing a little filial respect on other days as well as this, and by surrendering the telephone from time to time.

4. His wife might present him with a signed resolution to refrain from nagging.

5. The rest of the family could allow him to watch baseball and the fights on television, even if it interered with their favorite programs — at least half of the time.

6. Let him have his favorite roast beef and apple pie for dinner, and don't feel hurt if he falls asleep after it.

7. Keep his socks darned and the buttons sewed on his shirts. This is a chore daughter could share with Mom, for a change.

8. If he wants to spend the day playing golf or going fishing, all by himself, don't make him feel like a monster and a cad.

9. If he's late for dinner occasionally, or takes a night out for bowling or poker, don't jump to the conclusion that he's out with a blonde.

10. Don't waste money on thoughtless gifts he doesn't want or need.

The majority of fathers, a recent survey reveals, would rather have normal consideration and respect the other 364 days of the year than be deluged with gifts and unnatural behavior on the 365th day.

As to gifts — they prefer a gift certificate that they can spend themselves.

Reciprocal Trade Means A Lot

It is no more logical for the United States to attempt to live in a status of economic isolation from the rest of the world than it is for this nation to attempt to divorce itself from the rest of the world militarily, politically or socially.

The tragic lessons of isolationism were learned in the fateful days between World Wars I and II. The United States paid dearly for following policies of isolation with its sacrifices in both wars.

Realism now demands that we not allow ourselves to be led back down any hazardous road of isolation.

For 24 years now the United States has entered into reciprocal trade agreements with other nations of the world. Through these agreements this nation has created wealth for itself and its industries, and at the same time has cultivated many staunch friends which have stood this nation in good stead in time of peril.

In recent years international trade has become an increasingly important weapon in the cold war between freedom and communism. If this weapon is to continue to be used on the side of freedom, the United States must continue its reciprocal trade pacts. Otherwise it will forfeit to the communist sphere many nations which are now in the Western bloc and certainly nations which now are committed to neither of the international camps.

Though reciprocal trade agreements entered into by the United States may have hurt some individual businesses, the merit of the agreements in terms of economic advancement to this nation's general business far overshadows the shortcomings.

In order to have the output of its great productive energy absorbed, the United States must look to some extent to foreign markets. In order to compete in these markets it must offer advantages to other countries in return for the favors it receives.

Reciprocal trade agreements have meant literally millions of dollars to tobacco farmers in Eastern North Carolina over a period of years. The same is true in countless other cases where agricultural or manufactured items flowing into international trade have created jobs, payrolls and income in the United States.

For this nation to revert now to economic isolationism by revoking its long standing reciprocal trade laws is unthinkable.

It would be like cutting off our nose to spite our face.

The net result would be a weakening rather than a strengthening of our national economy. At the same time we would be thrusting into the arms of communism many nations who are struggling to achieve stability in a world of free nations.

When No Rule Covers A Point

By LYNN NISBET

COMMON SENSE — When there isn't a statute covering a particular situation the boards of elections must resort to the use of common sense. It happens more often than not that common sense solution of problems is fairer than legalistic solution could be. Some of the major difficulties arise over technicalities in detailed statutes, which would not arise if there were no specific law on the subject.

For example, there is no date set in the law books for the meeting of the State Board of Elections to canvass returns from the primary. The board very sensibly meets as soon as all the county returns have been received. Such a meeting was held in Raleigh Tuesday.

There is no statutory provision covering tie votes in a primary. There is no law authorizing a recount of ballots unless there is reason to believe that a recount would materially change the result. In absence of any law authorizing or specifically prohibiting a recount, the State Board of Elections applied common sense to situations in Cabarrus and Robeson counties.

Two candidates for the House of Representatives came out even in the Cabarrus board of elections count. Two candidates for judge of the Lumberton recorder's court also came up with tie votes when the Robeson board counted them. In both instances the county elections chairmen asked the State Board for instances the county elections chairmen asked the State Board for instructions as to procedure. There was no appeal in the formal legal meaning of the term. The State Board authorized—it had no power to order—a recount of all the ballots cast for all candidates for the offices involved.

Experience has proven that a recount will almost certainly discover some errors or discrepancies in the first report. The tie may be broken. If there is still a tie, further steps will be necessary.

BEAUFORT — The town of Beaufort has just discovered that its more than 200 years of history is interesting to a lot of people outside the community. A guided tour of some of the old homes and historic sites was scheduled for June 18, under sponsorship of the Woman's Club. Advance notice of that tour stimulated interest and requests came from folks attending conventions in the area for tours before June 18. Five or six have already been held.

The "tourists"—most of whom are from up-state Carolina—discover harmonious contrast between the old and the new. Most striking instance of this is the view one gets from the street of a century-old house with a television antenna seen through the spectral fingers of a long-dead cedar leaning from direction of prevailing winds.

Graydon Paul, the "official guide" for the tours, points out the Hammock House, built around Revolutionary War times, and believed to be one of the first prefabricated homes in the state. All the timbers and the boards of sturdy white oak were cut to size in England, shipped to America and erected on the site where the house still stands in excellent condition.

Another house was an old store back in sailing ship days. Paul tells a story about one merchant boxing up a cargo of sugar in unctred pine boxes, only to find a few weeks later that the whole shipment had to be thrown into the ocean because turpentine from the new wood permeated the sugar. He said if his grandmother had been there she would not have tolerated scuttling the cargo, because she made him take sugar and turpentine for colds during his boyhood.

He showed another residence that was an early court house at Beaufort, and pointed out the site of the first jail. There is an interesting little jail story.

One of the county commissioners back around 1740 sought a new jail house, on the grounds that a better building would attract a higher class clientele. The new jail was built and is still in use—but it wasn't built until 200 years after it was authorized, and Paul says he sees very little improvement in the class of clients.

Old cemeteries always attract the historians. Beaufort has a classic. Captain Otway Burns, commander of a ship in the War of 1812, is buried there. His grave is topped by a cannon from his ship. (Interesting side note: The town of Burnsville, courthouse seat of the mountain county of Yancey, was named for Otway Burns and a statue of him is on the courthouse square.)

In the Beaufort cemetery also is buried a Mrs. Chadwick, native of Beaufort who married in Wilmington, and whose family cared for a Chinese stowaway lad named Snug, educated him at Trinity College (Duke University) and who was the father of Madame Kai Shek. In the old cemetery also are two unusual graves. Just how much is authentic history and how much is legend perhaps cannot be proven in detail. It appears certain that one man was buried, at his request, standing up—the grave being four feet wide and eight feet deep instead of the usual other way; and one man, also at his own request, was buried in a cask of rum.

Sure, this is a very sketchy account of what can be seen in Beaufort and of the old cemetery. Facts about names and dates could be given. It will be a lot more interesting for readers of this article to get details on the ground. A visit to Beaufort will pay dividends to anybody interested in the early history of North Carolina.

Those Vacant Lots Call For Attention

Summer is here according to the thermometer if not by the calendar.

The hot days, warm nights and an occasional shower thrown in to break the monotony constitute the kind of weather that makes everything grow by leaps and bounds.

On the farms the corn, tobacco, cotton and other crops are coming into their own. They seem to get taller each day and look stronger. In the towns the putt-putt of lawn mowers is heard with increasing frequency as home-owners try to keep pace with their grass.

The growing weather is also much in evidence on empty lots where weeds that a few weeks ago were ankle high now come to one's shoulders. These unkept vacant lost become the eye-sores of the otherwise pleasing sight of growing, early summer weather.

In Greenville property owners have been reminded of their responsibility to keep lots cleared of high weeds during summer months. They have been reminded that such places became ideal breeding grounds for mosquitoes and other insects that mar the pleasant summer months.

Throughout Pitt County property owners should give particular attention to these vacant lots at this time of year. Grown up in weeds they detract from the appearance of any community. They also become the source of pesky insects.

Summer in any community in Pitt will be much more pleasant without vacant lots grown up in weeds.

Moving, Along Then---Wham!

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union on ending nuclear tests now looks a long way off. Things were moving along slowly, but moving, and then — wham.

The wham was supplied by Secretary of State Dulles. He suddenly threw Red China into the picture and, for good measure, the Sahara Desert. Both raise new problems in reaching an agreement. The way Dulles did it was startling.

President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are in the process of agreeing to have their technical experts — scientists — meet to discuss ways of policing a ban on nuclear testing to prevent cheating.

If the scientists could agree, that would be just a first step. There'd still have to be formal agreements between governments. All this would take time, to be sure.

Sitting in on the technical talks would be the United States, the U.S.S.R. and Britain — the only three powers which have nuclear weapons and have tested them — plus France, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

But shortly after Eisenhower's latest letter to Khrushchev on the subject was released Tuesday, Dulles said some of Red China would have to be included in any inspection system against nuclear tests.

Dulles indicated American technical experts had advised him detection stations in Red China must be part of a policing system to prevent Soviet cheating. He spoke of the possibility the Soviet Union might run tests on her Asiatic neighbors territory. This is where the problem starts.

This country officially doesn't even recognize the existence of the Red Chinese government. This is a fiction, of course, and one for which this country has been criticized.

Red China is not known to have nuclear weapons. Therefore, it might reasonably be expected to object to inspection posts within its borders. So a whole new problem was tossed by Dulles into any attempt at ending nuclear tests.

It's possible Red China might agree — but certainly not in a hurry — if it were given official world recognition by admittance to membership in the United Nations. This country has insisted on keeping Red China out of the U.N.

Such a move would open the way to getting Red China the recognition it wants and to getting this country off a hook with its allies. For example, this way:

If Congress were persuaded the only way to get an end to nuclear testing would be to let Red China into the U.N., perhaps American opposition might stop. All this couldn't be done tomorrow.

Meanwhile, there's the question of inspection in the Sahara Desert, which is in French territory. It would be the likely place for the French to hold nuclear tests, if they had nuclear weapons. So far as is known, they don't.

But they want them. There's grave doubt the French would agree to a ban on nuclear testing before they have time to develop nuclear weapons and try them out.

To do otherwise would be to leave only the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain with tried and true nuclear weapons. That's an almost impossible position for the French, who consider themselves a major world power.

THEY MAKE EVERY DAY BETTER

Above me, as I write, is a gallery of photographs.

The very top row begins with the young friend who had the best influence upon me fifty years ago. Next to him is a business man who early taught me to face reality whether I wanted to or not. Then there is the physician who has looked after my health for a number of years. Next to him is a friend who gave me much good advice and steered me clear of many mistakes early in my career. Then comes my lawyer. He often calls me by phone and in peremptory tones says, "You can't do this. Now I'm telling you." Below him on the next row is the gentle face of a former writing colleague. Next comes a man, still living at 92, who is still publishing a book every year, and whose chief joy is making life happy for many of his younger friends.

I call them my rogues gallery. What a crowd of fine, personable people, true friends and as full of ability as they are and were, of kindly impulses. Yes, and on another wall is a dear friend of my youth, now gone, a minister friend who worked too hard and is now in early retirement, an experienced publisher who helped me greatly in the early days of my writing, a naval officer who has held some of the highest positions the country has to offer, a close buddy who died tragically twenty years ago, a young minister hard at work in a suburban church.

My "rogues." God bless them.

Glamor Is Now Gone?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Who took the glamor out of show business?

"The stars themselves," said Vivian Blaine firmly.

"They did it by letting down the bars of their privacy and inviting the world into their homes. Of course, a star has to have a home life, or his existence is pretty vacuous.

"But I doubt that show business has been enhanced by allowing the public to come behind the scenes and see what makes a star tick in every aspect of his life.

"What show business needs is a little more mystery."

Miss Blaine, who provides some of the more uproarious laughs in the hit Broadway musical, "Say Darling," also thinks many stars are getting entirely too folksy in their attire.

"Movie stars, male or female, make a big mistake in going around sloppily dressed," she remarked. "The fans look at them and ask, 'This is glamor?'

"I don't say you have to be glittering all the time, but you certainly should be neat and well-groomed."

"Viv" feels the American housewife, as well as stars of stage, screen and television, could do with a bit more sprucing up.

"Women should dress up more — even if the only one who sees them during the day is the grocer," she said. "There is such a thing as self-respect and self-discipline.

"You can't let yourself go. If you let one thing go, everything can go."

Everyone, she believes, does well to create at least some auta of mystery, and to retain some area of personal privacy.

"Show business today has become everybody's business," continued the sprightly blonde singer, frowning. "While fans are flattered to think they are in the real know, they also miss something—the chance to idolize and realize. If there is no mystery left, there is nothing to idealize."

How can the old glamor of the entertainment world be restored?

"I doubt if much can be done now," said Vivian frankly. "It would be a long and subtle process.

"You can't do it any more by having a star hide behind a well. That would only make Mr. and Mrs. American Public break out laughing.

"They have tried to bring back the glamor bit, as in the case of Marilyn Monroe. But how? I'll bet the bust, waist, and hip measurements of Greta Garbo and Pola Negri weren't widely published. Their glamor was based on a sense of mystery."

Miss Blaine, Newark, N.J., lass who started her career as a dance band singer at 14, would like to change some of the glamor surrounding herself. It is the glamor she won by portraying "Miss Adelaide," the eternal blonde fiancee in "Guys and Dolls."

"In five years, I played the role about 2,000 times," she recalled.

"The character became like a rope around my neck.

"It typed me. I have been closely identified with musicals and comedy, and if I wind up with them I won't be unhappy. But I also like to play a heavy role now and then.

"Only in that way can you prove to yourself you have areas within you that you hope are there. It also helps you stay alive—both to the public and to yourself."

Opinions In Brief

"The idea that youthful offenders mostly come from the wrong side of the tracks is just fancy. One organization after long study came up with a final conclusion that will make a lot of folks 'howl.' Where the blame? On the homes; the churches; the schools—in short, on adults with whom youth comes in contact. 'Failed on the job' is the verdict."—Whitefish, Mont., Pilot.

The Man Who Came To Stay!

By EVERETTE PARKER

Awakened With That Bill

(Editor's Note: This could be the last Column written in the Daily Reflector by Everette Parker who may have to resign under pressure or sent to a mental institution.)

I can't explain it so I just use the heat as an excuse.

How was I to know. If only I could recall time and blot out this thing from the annals of time. Now it's too late.

Fate can weave such strange patterns.

My story:

Tuesday afternoon I left the office around 12:30 for an appointment with State Highway Patrolman J.B. Surles. Since I was on company business naturally I drove one of the company's car belonging to Dave H.

When I arrived I found Patrolman Surles at home but waiting for dinner, so I waited with him and ate a couple of sandwiches too.

Getting ready to leave for a trip out in the county, I decided to leave Dave's car in the back yard of the Surles residence. This I did.

We went on our merry way and finally completed the business at hand. Arriving back in Greenville I got off at the newspaper office, attended a staff meeting, wrote a couple of stories and left for the day.

Yesterday started just like any other day. I got out of bed, ate breakfast and drove to work. The sun was shining and there was not a cloud in sight.

Oh, life was so wonderful as I remember it now. What more could a man ask for?

I came in, sat down at my desk and then it happened. The black cloud crept over the horizen and rain fell on only me.

Suddenly I felt a familiar hand on my shoulder and around I turned. There stand with a piece of paper in his hand and a slight smile on his face was Dave H.

"Good morning", he said.

"Good morning", I replied.

"I have something for you", he stated.

"Good", I commented.

He handed me the piece of paper. I took it in my hand, looked at it and then it happened. My beautiful world tumbled.

The piece of paper was a bill and it read:

One 1950 Chevrolet, at trade-in value, $600; one taxi fare from Cotanche Street to Forest Hills, 75 cents; one taxi fare from Forest Hills to Cotanche Street, 75 cents; telephone calls attempting to locate auto, $3.27; and one pair of shoes worn out looking for car, $18.98.

It all came to me just like a "bolt out of the blue". I had forgotten one little thing the afternoon before. . .to bring the car back to the office.

There I stood with red face, little or no expression and very little if nothing to say.

"Little" Dave was quick to explain that he had waited around for his car to return until 6 p.m. Besides that he had to catch a ride home and spent a considerable length of time "searching".

He finally found the "missing" car in Patrolman Surles' backyard about 6:30 p.m.

All I could say is: I knew I had forgotten something.

Other Editors Saying--- No Credit For Commies

(Henderson Dispatch)

News from Washington is that reaction in responsible government circles is decidedly against grating a credit to Soviet Russia for buying machinery in this country. But at best that might be taken with a grain of salt, or several grains. There is a difference, but not too much at that, in extending assistance to communist satellite states like Poland and Hungary and in giving a lift to Russia proper. And there is at this time a hassle in Congress over granting the President authority to allocate huge sums of so-called foreign aid to those Iron Curtain stooge governments.

Trading in non-defense goods is one thing, and even that should not be condoned. But allowing Russia to buy goods here on credit is quite a horse of another color.

Chances are the Kremlin would take our products, promise to pay and then thumb its nose at us and refuse to meet its obligations as they mature. During World War II billions of dollars worth of war materials were furnished the Reds under the lend-lease program, with the understanding that a settlement would be made after hostilities ceased. But Moscow not only has refused to pay anything on principal, but not even the interest, nor to return the property lend-leased in the emergency.

Nor is that all. Dozens of ships were "loaned" the Russians during and after the war. Never has there been a concrete offer to buy or to return them, despite demands from Washington that a settlement be made. Russia defiantly keeps and continues to use the vessels.

In the face of this sort of conduct, Khrushchev has the gall to ask for the "sale" of American merchandise to him on credit. Is any one in Washington so stupid or so ignorant as not to be able to see through that proposal? Actually, it would not be too surprising if a suggestion should come up from somewhere in the administration that the deallbe consummated. In other words, strain a point to strengthen the Russian economy and thus hand a confessed rival and a potential enemy a club with which to maul us over the head.

Aid to Russian satellites is of a similar character. It is too evident to be funny that assistance given Poland, Hungary or any of the others would to that extent lighten the burden upon the Kremlin in easing the hardships and privations of these stooge people.

How silly indeed can we become in this country in the policy of giving away the American substance, in continuing heavy tax impositions upon the people to help avowed or potential enemies, and thus making it simpler for them to conspire for our complete undoing?

Credit accounts for Communists, as well as other economic dealings with them, ought to be turned thumbs are in no sense of the word friendly, and are conniving with all their might to weaken our economy and wreck our government. One of the amazing aspects of this country's international dealings is that there is so much blindness in Washington that responsible authorities cannot see through these tricks hatched in Moscow.

Tax Economies Are Not Told

By ELMER ROESSNER

Is our government cheating us? Is Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson part of a plot to rook us? Is Internal Revenue Commissioner Russell C. Harrington hornswoggling us?

It looks like it.

At hand is an advertisement by one of the most reputable tax advisory services in America. It is addressed to senior executives and company owners, offering to tell them how they can net $5,000 to $10,000 more in cash by savings on Federal income taxes this year.

Here are some of the offers:

"A simple rule to follow so that income from investments can be taxed to another family member in a lower bracket."

"How to turn over to a member of your family property you own and use in business and then lease it back. This not only shifts income but gives you a rent deduction."

WHY NOT UNCLE SAM?

That's not all; there are other gimmicks. But details are given only with a $19.50 tax course.

Why should citizens have to pay sums like that to private firms to learn legitimate ways to reduce taxes? The government issues a 25-cent booklet telling how to fill out income tax forms — and goodness knows they need explaining. Why then shouldn't it issue an inexpensive number of "How to make income from investments taxable to another member of the family in the lower bracket"? Or on "How to escape taxes by turning business property over to a member of the family and leasing it back?" If a tax-service client gets that information, why shouldn't you?

These are pertinent questions, because it is generally known that the material of the tax service in question is checking for accuracy by the Internal Revenue Service before publication. If the IRS can certify those formulas for a tax firm, why can't it do the same for the public?

These are pertinent questions, because it is generally known that the material of the tax service in question is checked for accuracy by the Internal Revenue Service before publication. If the IRS can certify those formulas for a tax firm, why can't it do the same for the public?

MORE SUGGESTIONS

Why shouldn't the IRS publish a booklet on "How a man with a son in college who costs him, say $2,500 a year, can provide income directly to the son and save more than $2,500 in taxes"?

Or on: "How income-producing property sold to another member of the family shifts income and gives a big new depreciation advantage as well"?

Or on: "Simple arrangements to transfer income to minor children"?

Or on: "How employing members of your family in your business gives them income and gives the business a deduction for their salaries"?

Or on: "How to borrow money you need from a member of your family to split income with him. You get the interest deduction; he gets the interest"?

Fantastic? Not at all. Those are exactly the facts offered by this tax service. In fact, there are many more, all presumably legal and checked by the IRS.

The IRS can reply that those devices can be known to anyone who reads the Revenue Code and the IRS rulings on it.

But did you know these things from the material available to you from the government? If you did, you are smarter than most tax-paying bunnies. And unless the government lays these facts on the line, it is blackmailing taxpayers into paying fees to tax service firms.

FRANCE TAKES LICKING IN GLACE FRUITS

France, it seems, has other problems. Exports of glace fruits, mostly cherries, declined 7 per cent in 1957, according to the Foreign Agricultural Service. Great Britain is the biggest customer for French candied fruits. It uses them in plum puddings.

Half Of Him Paralyzed But Feels Only One 'Slight Handicap' In Life

By BESSIE CULPEPPER
Elizabeth City Daily Advance
Written for The Associated Press

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (A)—Wesley Cullipher says that he has only "one slight handicap and that is the inability to go up and down steps."

"And," he says, "who wants to go up and down steps? It might give you heart trouble."

Last Sunday Cullipher was named commander of the North Carolina Veterans of Foreign Wars, an organization of 20,000 men.

The handsome veteran hasn't taken a step since Feb. 19, 1945, shortly before the end of World War II. He was serving with the 315th Infantry, 94th Division at the Siegfried Line when he heard the deadly shell coming, threw himself to the ground, and took a piece of shrapnel in his back, severing a vertebra.

He bears no scars that show, no tell-tale marks, only the inability to move the lower half of the body for the remainder of his life—an ever lasting fight to be as other men and live a normal life and as he says "without being able to go up and down steps."

Cullipher was discharged March 31, 1946 with total disability. But he didn't leave the hospital until October of 1947. While in the hospital he studied accounting and now runs a bookkeeping business for several small firms.

He has been active in the Veterans of Foreign Wars since returning to his home town. He has served as commander of the local post and also the district. For several years he has been North Carolina chairman for the VFW Orphans Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich. He was State Buddy Poppy chairman in 1956-57.

He served as head of the Pasquotank County Civil Defense until one of his many operations forced his resignation. He says he doesn't recall just how many operations he has undergone because there have been so many but he just doesn't seem to want to talk about them. . . Just incidentals in his daily routine.

He has served in the Ground Observer Corps since his return to Elizabeth City and as senior vice commander of the State Department of the VFW for the last year. At this job for his favorite organization he has traveled over 25,000 miles in one year, doing all of his own driving in his automobile equipped with hand controls.

Now 34, he is from a family of moderate means. He graduated from high school in 1941 with no great ambition because the state of the world was such that every young man knew what he would be doing for the next few years. There was no pressing need to decide what vocation to follow. Uncle Sam decided.

A short while after he completed his basic training he found himself aboard ship bound for the European theatre. He was with a heavy machine gun squadron and when he was injured, they were fighting to regain a gap in the line that had been lost and won five times. That day was the last victory and, according to Cullipher, his buddies rode right on to Berlin and "had a ball for six months." He said this with a grin, happy for his friends who had earned such an excursion.

The wounded man was sent from one evacuation hospital to another until he reached Paris where he was the third paraphelegic they had ever treated, or had as apatient, for actually the treatment for such a case was unknown. Figures show that in World War I only 5 per cent of men wounded in this manner ever returned home. In World War II, 95 per cent of them made it back. There are now 2,500 of them in the United States.

He was flown back to the States in May of 1946 and sent from a New York Hospital to Lawson General Hospital in Atlanta, Ga., where he remained until Christmas. He went home for the holidays, still flat on his back.

From Atlanta he was transferred to McGuire Veterans Hospital in Richmond, Va., which at that time was an Army hospital. There the big fight for a normal life began. The fight for the body was under control, now the struggle for the soul must begin.

He was led from the very first to believe that he would be able to walk again.

The making of a normal life is a gradual process after such a shock. It doesn't just happen, it takes days, weeks, months and years of working and the help of many. There psychologists, psychiatrists and any number of others who assisted in the battle along with the friends and in Cullipher's case, a wife. For in October of 1947 he and his childhood sweetheart, Miss Marjorie Meads were married upon his release from the hospital.

Asked what the deciding factor was in putting up such a fight for normal life as opposed to giving up under such a tremendous handicap, Cullipher answered that it was "being taken back into the community, being associated with men who accepted my problems and then made me one with them."

Mystery Behind Airman's Bible

WACO, Tex. (AP)—A worn Bible that belonged to a Texas flier killed in action 15 years ago is on its way to his mother by a strange route that probably never will be explained.

The mystery: who carried T.Sgt Bill J. Wheeler's Bible for six months before it was found by a German housewife?

The pocket Bible was found in a ragged U.S. flight jacket in the garden of the suburban home of Mrs. Theodor Hillebrand at Dortmund, Germany, Aug. 12, 1943. An American bomber had just crashed nearby in flames.

She kept the Bible, a violation of Nazi orders. Sgt. Wheeler's signature was inside the Bible.

But Sgt. Wheeler had been killed in action over Germany six months before the Bible fell into the garden.

"I wanted to keep that Bible," said Mrs. Hillebrand, "and one day return it to its rightful owner."

But few American soldiers came to Dortmund after the war ended.

Recently Army Specialist 3.C. Denos G. Pappas of Ogden, Utah, visited Dortmund. Mrs. Hillerbrand went to him with the Bible. Pappas took it to his unit chaplain, Capt. Ben Price of Paris, Tex.

From Germany, the book was sent to the 12th Air Force headquarters here. The sergeant's mother, Mrs. F. W. Wheeler of Easterly, Tex., says she recalls the Bible.

The Bible will be officially turned over to Mrs. Wheeler by Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarthy, commander of the 12th Air Force, in ceremonies here next Wednesday.

Snakes Hunted By Hiking Club

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — If you like rattlesnakes, you'll love the Union County Hiking club. It hunts them, with wooden prongs.

Led by Robert Gasser, a chemist, the club hopes to catch several snakes for mounting purposes. Last year's only rattler was caught by a teen-age boy.

In six high schools and 44 grade schools in France, classes are now maintained for children of U.S. Army personnel.

Shed No Pounds By Bicycling

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dud Wieder, 19-year-old Dartmouth College premedical student, didn't shed a pound by pedaling a bicycle almost 700 miles from the Hanover, N.H., campus to his home in Suburban Bay Village.

He arrived home last night, glad he had undertaken the week-long trip, but just plain tired. He wouldn't do it again, he added. Why did he do it?

"I wanted time to think," he said. "There were final exams, and now the summer is starting." Economy also may have entered into the matter. Cost of the trip: $28.

In British industry the time lost in strikes is about a tenth of that lost through industrial accidents and about a hundredth of that lost through illness.

Arabs Of The Casbah Don't Talk Crisis To Strangers

By RELMAN MORIN

ALGIERS (AP)—An Arab woman, shrinking into the deep shadows of her dank little room, gestures impatiently.

"Go away," she says. "No, I don't want a cigarette. No, I won't talk to you. Just go away."

In a hole-in-the-wall shop, Mohammed Mikiri, the merchant, starts to answer a question.

"De Gaulle? Well, in my opinion—"

He breaks off abruptly. Two red-hatted French Zouaves, carrying tommyguns, come down the narrow alleyway, heavy boots clattering on the ancient cobblestones.

"As I was saying," says Mohammed Mikiri, smoothly changing the subject, "business is slow. So many people buying on credit."

Even after the Zouaves have passed, he says no more.

Doors slam shut as you approach. A Moslem woman pulls her veil up to the level of her dark eyes. You decide not to talk to a fruit vendor. His son was killed here last week.

This is the Casbah.

The Algiers Casbah, locale for romantic movies and scene of countless love stories, is a place of fear and festering hatred now.

It smells of death.

French paratroops went through it—in effect with fire and sword—hunting down members of the Moslem revolutionary force that has been fighting for nearly four years to shatter French rule in Algeria. That was last year, and the patrols and barbed wire barricades are still in the Casbah.

The paratroops blew up great chunks of the tawny thick-walled jumble of buildings, killed some people, wounded others, carried still others off to prison.

So the Casbah is quiet now—expect that murders still take place there, whether for personal or political reasons you never know.

Casbah means fort in Arabic.

You can see why the one on the hill in Algiers was an ideal fort for the Moslem rebels.

It is a fantastic maze of twisting alleys and passageways barely wide enough for two persons to pass. They coil into each other like serpents through tunnels and secret doors that pierce the walls of this vast pile of masonry, interconnecting houses and dwelling places. You could travel miles in the Casbah and never be seen.

Hordes of half-naked children, as thick as the swarms of flies, play in the cobbled alleys, slimy with water and refuse. The piteous whine of a blind beggar mingles with the sound of students intoning the words of the Koran, ugly, raddled women beckon from the doorways.

Time stops in the Cashbah.

In 500 years little or nothing changed there — until recently.

Then, when the savage Moslem rebellion flared against France, and ghastly reprisals came in return, the fort became just that.

Today, on the walls you see the French propaganda posters.

"Let's talk together about ourlives," says one. A knife has mutilated this poster.

"The rebel leaders are having a good time with your money," says another. It is ripped in half.

"The whole world knows the rebels are abandoning you," says still another. It is spattered with refuse.

Today nobody in the Casbah will talk about the possibility of a reconciliation between the Moslems and the French. French efforts in that direction, and the words of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, new French premier, appear to have had no impression whatsoever on the people here.

"Things are quiet again," they say. "Life goes on."

And that is all they will tell you.

Entertains HD Club At Home Tuesday

Mrs. Mallison Dupree entertained Paul's Chapel Home Demonstration Club members Tuesday afternoon at her home with a demonstration on making frozen desserts, using an electric refrigerator.

She pointed out the importance of milk in the diet. She said in addition to drinking milk, the healthful fluid may be used to advantage in numerous dishes. The speaker urged the use of more milk in the family meals.

Mrs. Pearlie Best presided. Mrs. Annie Mae Barrett and Mrs. Carrie Jane Barrett joined the Paul's Chapel HD Club. Twelve members attended.

Mrs. Alice Midyette, garden leader, was declared "Outstanding Member of the Month" for her accomplishments in food production and conservation and the number of non-club members she contacted.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Talk about baby pictures and before long the name of Connie Bannister will crop up. She and baby pictures have had a long and pleasant association with the general public.

For some time now, Connie has been flitting around the country explaining to camera groups the Bannister technique in baby photography. Then came requests to talk to women's clubs and even department stores where the audience, mostly women, had general interest, not basically photographic. She evolved, for them, a simplified procedure and a set of six rules towards better baby pictures at home.

Any flash camera will do, she says, even the inexpensive types. She recommends flash because it's the most convenient source of enough light directed wherever you need it. Flash also stops the action of even the liveliest baby. Further, the tiny duration of the light will not bother even the most sensitive of babies.

She also recommends a cloth or plastic diffuser over the reflector. Since you'll be working at very close distances, this is not only a safety precaution but it softens and diffuses the light for better pictures.

With the camera loaded and enough extra film and flashbulbs on hand, here's the Connie Bannister six-point plan of action:

1. Be sure you and your camera are ready. Seems like common sense to know that the camera is in good working order and that you know how to control it before the session starts. Adjustable cameras have to be correctly set for the specific flashbulb you are using. Some cameras require a speed setting of 1-25th; most others take a speed setting of 1-50th or 1-100th of a second. The lens opening is governed by the distance of the flash from the subject. The flash carton gives you a Guide Number. This id divided by the distance in feet for the correct lens opening.

2. Get in close — so close that the baby fills the whole picture. With a focusing camera, that means about 3½ or 4 feet away. Other cameras require a portrait attachment to slip over the lens and the distance must be measured and kept accurate.

3. Keep it plain . . . no fussy hats or frilly clothes, no distracting background and no rumpled bedclothes. Make a simple setting by clearing an area. Put one smooth blanket down and hang another for a background.

4. Get the baby doing something. Action consists of animated expressions as well as gestures with hands or body. Be alert and ready to catch the unexpected. You can't tell a baby what to do generally but you can tease, coax, play and suggest.

5. Make time, take time, shoot lots. If you're impatient and pressed for time, leave picture taking for another time. Best pictures result when the photographer and the subject are relaxed and unhurried. Shoot a lot so you can afford to be selective and discard the misses.

6. Have fun. There are a lot lauihs in playing with babies with a camera in hand. When it's no longer a chore, but a fun-filled romp, you're likely to get the best pictures of your life.

PRETTY BABY, PRETTY BABY——And a happy one, too, if you make picture taking a time for fun, says Connie Bannister. She got this flash shot by putting her hands over her head. The baby mimicked her.

Spring Storms In Central Area

Late spring storms hammered central sections of the country again last night, the most severe in tornado-jittery Kansas.

A rash of tornadoes erupted in south-central Kansas, with heaviest damage reported in Wichita, some 35 miles from El Dorado, which was hit a by a killer twister Tuesday night.

About 25 houses in northeast Wichita were damaged and an undetermined number of persons injured by the tornado. Other twisters were reported near Arkansas City, Newton and Wellington, all in the Wichita area.

Severe thunderstorms were reported during the early morning in sections of Kansas and Missouri. Tornadic winds also ripped into areas of western Nebraska and eastern Colorado.

Showery weather was reported across broad areas of the country.

The surging Wabash River threatened serious flooding in Indiana. At Peru, some 1,000 residents were ordered to leave their homes as water neared the top of a floodwall. Many streams in the north central section of the state overflowed, forcing hundreds of persons from their homes. including 1,500 at Marion, and others at Wabash, Logansport, Delphi and Lafayette.

Rain hit the eastern seaboard from Maine southward to Florida, with falls of about one inch in Danville and Norfolk, Va.

More thundershowers were forecast in the central and southern plains and through the lower and middle Mississippi Valley. Fair to partly cloudy weather was the outlook in most other parts of the country.

Anti-U.S. Film Festival Begun

HONG KONG (AP)—A festival of anti-American films is opening Saturday in Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam.

Hanoi Radio, heard here today, said more than 30 feature movies from Russia, Communist China, Hungary, East Germany and Japan are on the program.

They include: "Still, it's Good to be Alive," from Japan, described as a "dramatic denouncement of the crimes of the U.S. imperialists who dropped atom bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki and continue nuclear tests in the Pacific."

A Russian picture "exposing acts of racial discrimination in the United States."

Respects Law, Fined Himself

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — A $5 check arrived at Municipal Court here with this letter:

Temptation In Hotel Service

HONOLULU (AP) — The First Transpacific Conference on Alcoholism was in session at a local hotel.

Into the session strolled a hotel waiter, pushing a cart of mixed drinks.

"He obviously had the wrong place," commented James A. Pell, an official of the Hawaii Committee on Alcoholism.

Board Members Named In Suit

GREENSBORO (AP)—Two Negro mothers have secured a federal court order to name individual members of the State Board of Education in their suit to end public school segregation in North Carolina.

Terming the state pupil assignment law unconstitutional, the suit is regarded as the first major integration action since the state's school laws were chang[illegible]

U.S. Middle District Judge Edwin M. Stanley yesterday signed an order allowing inclusion of state board individuals in addition to the board as a body.

Mrs. Evelyn McKissick and Mrs. Rachel Richardson filed the action last month, also naming the Durham City Board of Education. The mothers seek injunction to prevent enforcement of the assignment law in Durham and the state.

Attorneys for the Negroes asked to have the board members named individually as necessary parties to the action.

Parties to the suit are these board members:

Lt. Gov. Luther E. Barnhardt, State Supt, of Public Instruction Charles O. Carroll, State Treasurer Edwin Gill, J. A. Pitchett, William D. Herring, Charles O. Jorday, Charles G. Rose Jr., C. W. McCary, O. L. Richardson, R. Barton Hayes, Gerald Cowan, Guy Phillips and H. L. Trigg.

Legionaires In Four-Day Meet

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The vanguard of some 1,500 North Carolina American Legionnaires and guests arrived here today for a four-day convention.

Feature event of the 40th annual meeting are National Commander John A. Gleason Jr.'s addresses on Friday, a downtown parade Saturday and elections of Legion and auxiliary officers Saturday.

Today's activity includes registration and committee meetings.

ONE MORE QUERY

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Information specialists at the Naval Academy thought they had answered every conceivable question about the Navy until a letter came from a young girl who had seen a television show about midshipmen. "Is it true," she asked, "that the Academy laundry puts extra starch in their underwear to make them stand so straight?"

CHAPTER 33

"George Cadott went into hiding," I told Mort Evans. "He took an assumed name and went out to the Roadside Motel in Vallejo. His cousin Caroline Dutton used her key to his apartment, sneaked in and got the evidence she wanted, probably a diary."

"Then what?" Evans asked, his eyelids lowered so he was looking at me through level-lidded, half-closed eyes.

"Now," I said, "I'll tell you what she did with the evidence. She wanted it out of the jurisdiction of the court, out of the way of the police. She took a plane to Reno, went to the parcel checking room at the Riverside Hotel, checked a brief case with all that stuff in it and got a claim check.

"When things began to get pretty sticky tonight, she decided she'd better move the stuff once more. You get in touch with the Riverside Hotel, find out if there isn't a brief case that was checked there. Get the house detective to look in that brief case, see if a diary isn't in it. Then get the Reno police to co-operate. When someone shows up to pick up that brief case with the diary, make a pinch and you'll have everything in the bag."

Evans thought it over and said, "That much I can check with a phone call, Lam. I like that."

"You can check the whole business with phone calls," I said. "Remember, we're in it fifty-fifty for the reward. You get the credit. Think of the headlines: MORTIMER EVANS, SAN FRANCISCO POLICE DETECTIVE, SOLVES THE FAMOUS CROSBY KIDNAPING BY DEDUCTIVE REASONING AND LOGIC."

Evans said, "I'm going out and do some telephoning. I can always pick you up whenever I want you, Lam. You haven't talked yourself out of anything on this. You've just got a recess."

"Go make your calls. I told him.

Evans went out and closed the door behind him.

"Bertha Cool looked at me. "Was that a stall, Donald?" she asked.

"Of course it's a stall," I told her.

Bertha's eyes widened. "You mean you've handed him all that stuff without knowing the first thing — You mean you haven't anything to go on, you haven't—"

I said, "We had to have some sort of stall. I'm in this thing up to my necktie. I've got to get out. I should never have trusted Barclay Fisher from here to first base. I should have known he'd weaken when the going got rough."

"What about this Crosby kidnaping?" Bertha asked. "You almost sold me on that."

"You can figure out how it must have happened," I told her. "Either the baby was killed within a short time after the kidnaping, or someone wanted the baby, and the ransom was just an incidental device to make everyone think it was the work of a professional mob, and that the baby had been killed so as to eliminate the evidence.

"Now take it from there, and you see there's only one way a woman could handle a kidnaping job of that sort. She would have to be someone who had a reputation in the community for being nice and sweet and motherly. She would have to plant the story of a sick relative who had a young child who was about to become an orphan. She'd have to play the thing just the way Minerva Fisher did."

"You have something there," Bertha said.

"I have been giving the matter a lot of thought," I said, "just along general lines, trying to see whether we could parly it into something that would work out for us.

"Then Evans started throwing his weight around and I had to have some sort of a stall that would get us in the clear for a while. I realized that Minerva fit the theoretical description I'd had in my mind and—"

"Look, Donald," Bertha interrupted excitedly, "that stuff is logical as hell! There's just a chance that you hit the nail on the head. Probably it's a one-in-a-thousand shot, but—"

"Make it one in a million, Bertha," I said. "Don't get any ideas. The thing is good enough to sell this guy Evans. That's all. Don't be a sucker and start buying our own bull."

"What about this Reno angle on the papers?" Bertha asked.

I looked at Bertha and winked.

"You little blankety-blank!" Bertha said.

I walked over to the telephone, dialed a number, asked for the city editor's desk, said I had a hot tip on a news story.

The city editor of the daily came on the line. I said, "Never mind who this is, but you've got a story breaking right under you nose that's going to rock the nation."

"All right, what is it?" the man said in a cynical voice that was singularly without enthusiasm.

I said, "Mort Evans on the city detective force has the low-down on the Crosby kidnaping. He's trying to cover his tracks so there will be no premature press disclosure. When he's ready to release the story, the papers will all have it. If you beat the other sheets to it, you can make him promise you a twenty-minute or halfhour break on the story. Don't let him know you had a tip."

I hung up as knuckled pounded on the door. Mort Evans' voice said, "Hey, open up"

I opened the door. Evans came back in. "It sounds fine when I'm with you," he said. "By the time I got to the sidewalk, it sounded like a pipe dream. If it is, I'm going to work you over, but good. If it isn't, you're too brainy a — to be out of my sight. Come on, you're going places."

We went to the office of detectives in San Francisco police headquarters.

No one paid the slightest attention to us.

Evans put through a call to the Riverside Hotel in Reno. He got the house detective on the line and told him what he wanted.

"I'll find out," the house detective said dubiously, "and call you back."

Evans hung up and we sat there for the space of a couple of cigarettes, Evans sizing me up from time to time.

Finally he said, "It's a good idea, even if there isn't anything to it. That's the trouble with it. It sounds too plausible when I sit and look at you."

"The Cadott murder?" I asked.

"The Crosby kidnaping," he said. "That's where the pay-off is."

"Of course," I told him, "you'd have to be absolutely certain. You could get yourself in a terrible mess if you led with your chin before you had the thing all sewed up."

"Are you telling me" he said!. The telephone rang.

"That'll be Reno," he said.

He picked up the receiver and said, "Hello, Evans talking."

He listened for a few seconds, his eyes narrowed. Then he said, "You looked inside?"

He looked at me, and his eyes were slitted so I could see only a glitter behind the narrowed lids. He was looking at me like a snake watching a bird.

Abruptly he said into the telephone, "Sew the thing up. I'm getting a plane and coming up. I want to take a look for myself. If anybody shows up with that claim check, I want him held. I think I'll get there before anybody else does, but let's make certain."

Evans hung up, said, "Okay, mastermind, you're going to Reno with me. So far you're paying off."

Donald Lam is going to find it's easier to talk yourself into trouble than out of it. "Some Slips Don't Show" speeds tomorrow to a conclusion that will surprise you.

Four From Bethel Joined The Navy

Four Bethel men have joined the United States Navy, according to local Navy Recruiter, Ship's Serviceman First Class Robert D. Watson, USN.

They are (left to right) Billie F. Jarrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Jarrell; Sam Bo Rawls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Rawls; Clyde H. Cannon, son of Mr. J. L. Cannon; and Noriell Jones, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Jones, all of Bethel and graduates of Bethel High School.

The four were transferred to the United States Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois, where they will be assigned to the same company, on the buddy plan, for the duration of basic training and subsequently return home on leave together.

Qualifying for training under the Navy's High School Graduate Training Program, Seaman Jarrell and Seaman Recruit Rawls will be assigned to training in Navy Aviation Field, Jones will be trained in the electronic field, and Cannon in the High School General Service Field.

His Clock Turns Time Backward

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Horological expert Alvin J. Lantz is giving clockwatchers here a rough time.

Lantz has rigged up a unique clook. It keeps perfect time except that it runs backward. Inscribed on the clock are the words: "Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight." The quotation is from Elizabeth Aker Allen's famous poem, "Rock Me to Sleep."

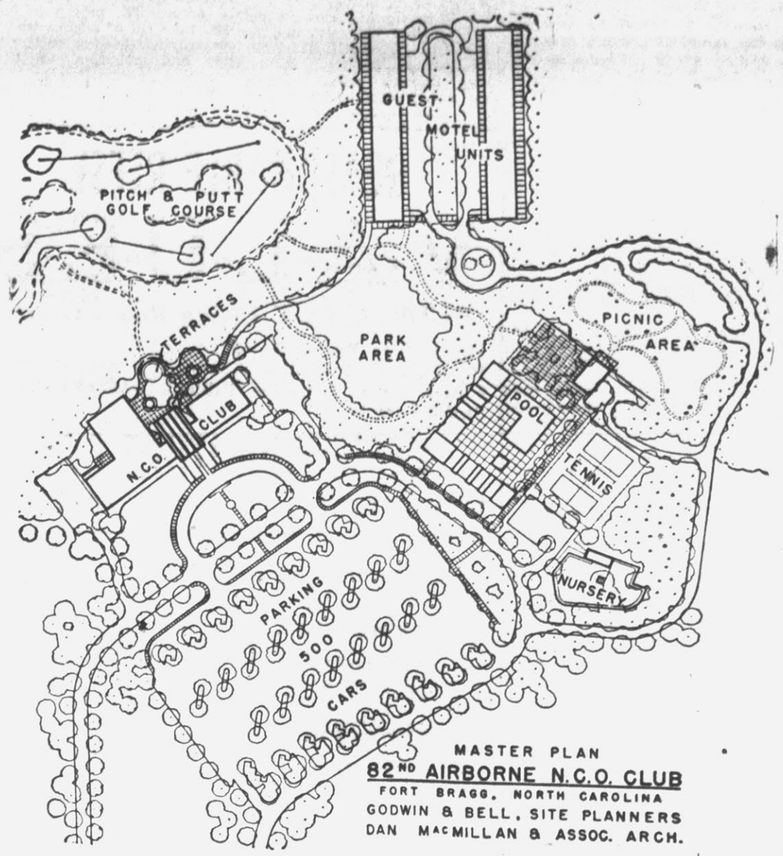
Noncoms Building Club As Re-enlistment Persuader



FORT BRAGG, N.C., (82d Airborne Division) — With Uncle Sam trying to make service life as attractive as possible to reduce costly turnover in the armed forces, non-commissioned officers of the 82d Airborne Division at Fort Bragg are assisting by providing themselves with a million-dollar re-enlistment persuader.

Designed for family use and offering a country club type of atmosphere, the 82d's star attraction is an impressive NCO club being paid for by the famed "All Americans" themselves. The Department of the Army has granted a $500,000 loan to help finance the project and this will be paid back in quarterly installments from operating proceeds. The remainder of the available capital came from operating profits of the old clubs. Some 2,000 members and their families will pay modest fees for use of the attractive new facilities.

Few civilians can afford the kind of club membership men of the 82d are making available to themselves as a result of their own initiative and cooperative efforts. Within its walls the club proper will include 27,800 square feet of floor space. Its kitchen will serve two dining rooms with 500 meals an hour. Its main bar will seat 150 persons and a giant ballroom opens by means of sliding doors to a dance pavilon. Dan McMillian and Associates, Fayetteville architects, included also a barber shop, men's recreation room and a children's lounge.

Feeling that the club site offered real opportunities for over-all site planning, McMillian suggested that the 82d call in Godwin and Bell, Raleigh landscape architects, to collaborate on a master plan for enhancing the club's beauty and usefullness. The master plan calls for an "L" shaped 82 by 86-foot swimming pool surrounded by cabanas for 300 guests, golf and tennis facilities, a nusery area for the small fry, parking for 500 cars and a guest motel. Trees and shrubs are to be blended with paths, benches and picnic areas to give relaxing and restful surroundings. The master plan is arranged so that maximum use is made of interesting views from the club's three terrace areas.

Construction began in January of this year and is scheduled to be completed in October.

Gives Demonstration On Frozen Desserts

At a meeting Monday afternoon of the Simpson Home Demonstration Club at the home of Miss Z. Gatlin, with Mrs. R. A.. Moore presiding, a six months' report by all of the members showed that Mrs. Moore received top honors.

Special recognition was given club members on the way they have kept home and farm records.

Home Demonstration Agent Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart gave a demonstration on frozen desserts and using evaporated milk. She also pointed out how dry milk powder may be used in making a lemon custard. She emphasized the importance of using more milk in the family meals.

Miss Z. Gatlin is secretary and reporter for the Simpson club.

Long-Postponed State Projects Given Attention

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH — The State of North Carolina through the Department of Administration and related agencies is making a long-delayed start on two big projects.

One is inventory of all real property owned by the State and its agencies, departments and institutions. It is believed that the State owns land in each of the 100 counties, in tracts ranging from a few square feet to thousands of acres. For a lot of the land there is no record of ownership. That is especially true of the marsh, swamp, stream-lake bottoms and certain "made land" title to which is vested in the State Board of Education.

Numerous deeds have been made by the State, and by others to the State, in the names of Governors or trustees or department heads as agents. To compile an accurate list will require the checking of records in clerks of court and registers of deeds office in 100 courthouses. In cases where there are no records, effort will be made to establish lines by negotiation with adjacent owners based on personal knowledge of oldtimers.

The State Bar Association has named a committee to work with the Property Control Division in making up the inventory.

The other big project is a capitol annex or legislative office building. The Council of State, the Department of Administration and the legislative committee on government reorganization are cooperating in studies of location, plans and other preliminary phases. A public hearing has been set for the Highway Auditorium at 2:30 Wednesday, June 25, at which all persons interested will have an opportunity to express their ideas.

Need for more adequate facilities for the General Assembly has been obvious for a long time. Nearly 20 years ago the late Benton Blalock, representative of Anson county, was urging the Legislature to do something about cramped quarters. Many plans have been proposed. Several of them contemplated adding to the present capitol building, with only a few internal modernizations—such as steam heat, electric lights, a slow-moving elevator. Suggestion has been seriously made to go underground for two or three floor levels beneath capitol square.

Assurance has been given by the joint committees studying the project that the old capitol building will not be changed. Present idea favors a new building either across Edenton street from the capitol between Halifax and Wilmington streets, or on the recently acquired Raney lot across Salisbury street from the capitol.

Wherever located the plan is to afford adequate assembly halls for House and Senate sessions, committee and conference rooms, facilities for press, radio and television. Perhaps also permanent offices for some of the State departments now housed in the capitol.

Rep. Thomas J. White of Lenoir, chairman of the special sommittee, announcing the public hearing on June 25 said: "We feel that such facilities for the legislators are long overdue, but before formulating even any tentative recommendations we want to be sure that the opportunity has been provided for everyone to express his views."

Woodrow Wilson, who was born in Virginia, became Governor of New Jersey before he became U.S. president.

New National Spelling Champion Has Emerged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jolitta Schlehuber of Topeka, Kan., today won the national spelling bee by correctly spelling "syllepsis."

Jolitta defeated Terry Madeira, 13, Elizabethtown, Pa., who stumbled on the word "propylaeum." She misspelled it "propileum."

Under the rules of the bee, Jolitta first had to spell correctly "propylaeum" and then go on and correctly spell another word, which she did. Had she failed Terry would have been given another chance.

The word which won Jolitta $1,000 in cash, a trophy cup and $100 for a weekend visit to New York City was defined as an adjective which goes before another word and agrees with that word in number.

The contest ended in the 29th round. It started yesterday morning.

Terry won $500 for her second-place finish. Stanley A. Schmidt, 14, Cincinnati, won the third prize of $250.

The next five prizes were $100 each and the next 10 prizes were $50 each. The other 50 finalists, who made up the original field of 68, each won $25. All contestants were presented gold medals.

Stanley Schmidt lost out in the 26th round on the word "canalic-ulus." He slipped in an unneeded "o" in the last syllable.

Helen Currie, 12, Charlotte, N.C. missed by one letter the spelling of empiricism. She used a "y" for the first "i".

Roger W. Lewis Jr., 14, Greensboro, N.C., who finished 14th in the national finals two years ago, dropped out when he spelled "ridotto" with an "a" in place of the first "o" in the 16th round.

Thirteen states and the District of Columbia were represented by the survivors of 11 rounds on the opening day. In addition, an American boy from Norway, Thomas Patrick Whitaker, won his way to today's rounds.

Four of the 20 finalists were in last year's contest which ended in a tie between Dana Bennett of Denver and Sandra Owen of Canton, Ohio. The four repeaters still in the running were Stanley A. Schmidt, 14, Cincinnati; Richard P. Hire, 13, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Jolitta Schlehuber, 14, McPherson, Kan.; and Roger W. Lewis Jr., 14, Greensboro, N.C.

The difficult words brought several narrow escapes.

Billy Don Lane, 14, of Turkey, Tex., pondered long before spelling tussle correctly in the first round. He went on to the 11th before he lost out by dropping a "p" in rapport.

In the same round, repeater Lewis had the judges looking hard for his spelling of quiddity. He spelled it with one "d", although the judges said the preferred spelling is two d's.

Robert Crossley, 12, of Center Square, Pa., was eliminated temporarily on his spelling of missile. The judges ruled there was some confusion in defining the word and he was given another chance. He remained in the running for today's finals.

First prize is $1,000 in cash plus a bonus award of $100 for a weekend in New York and a trophy.

Helen Currie, 12, of Charlotte, N.C., was one of the 20 still in the running.

Brian Taylor, 13, of Lexington, S.C., was the 17th to drop out, missing on soporific.

Lawyers Advised To Drop Proposal

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Tar Heel lawyers were advised today to abandon a proposal under which North Carolina judges would be appointed instead of elected.

The advice came from North Carolina's Chief Justice J. Wallace Winborne in a speech prepared for delivery at the 60th annual meeting of the North Carolina Bar Assn. which convened here yesterday.

A plan under which Supreme Court justices afd superior court judges in North Carolina would be appointed by the governor from lists furnished by the state's Judicial Council has been tentatively proposed by a subcommittee of a committee studying ways of improving the administration of justice.

Winborne told the lawyers that approval of this "Missouri plan" of selecting judges seems improbable at this time in view of the opposition it has aroused.

Because of this opposition, Winborne said, "I seriously doubt the wisdom of submitting any proposal for the adoption of such plan at the forthcoming session of the General Assembly." He said insistence on the proposal might jeopardise the chances of other proposals being advanced by the committee on improving and expediting the administration of justice.

The committee's recommendations are to be considered by the bar association tomorrow morning. Winborne told the lawyers he hoped they would approve and commend the committee's work "with the understanding that such approval is without prejudice to the rights of individual members of the association to express their views with respect to any particular piece of implementing legislation."

If the Missouri Plan were to be adopted, Winborne said he could see some justification for having laymen on the Judicial Council, but if it is not to be given the job of helping in the selection of judges he could see no reason for placing laymen on the council.

To improve North Carolina's lower court system, Winborne said there should be "uniformity or jurisdiction, uniformity of procedure and uniformity of court costs throughout the state." He urged that the Supreme Court be given the power to make rules for practice and procedure before the courts and called for an over-all supervision of the administrative affairs of the courts.

At last night's opening session, the bar association members heard W. W. Taylor of Warrenton, retiring president, give his report. The meeting will end Saturday.

Grateful Heart Is Unburdened

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — Surgeons mended the faulty heart of Mrs. Mary Wisneski six years ago. But it was still torn by a debt of gratitude.

During the six years since the operation, Mrs. Wisnieski had been embarrassed by her inability to pay for her treatment. Dr. Nicholas Antonius, medical director of St. Michael's Hospital, even had to scold her for staying away from his office when she needed post-operative care.

The operation, after 14 years of care, had put her back on her feet and allowed her to take a full time job.

Yesterday, Mrs. Wisneski unburdened her heart of its debt. She presented Dr. Antonius and the hospital with a check for $10,000—part of the $140,000 top prize she got in March's Irish's Sweepstakes.

Missile Can Be A Test Target

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP)—The Army has bought a new missile that can simulate supersonic attackers from the stratosphere.

It is the Kingfisher, a 38-foot long test target to be flown over antiaircraft batteries at White Sands, N. M.

The contract for 7½ million dollars worth of Kingfishers has been awarded to Lockheed Missile Systems Division at Van Nuys, Calif.

Each missile is recoverable and may be used numerous times.

Marilyn Almost Upstaged A Star

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Lynn Fontanne, one of the first ladies of the American theater, almost got upstaged last night by a star from another world—Marilyn Monroe. Miss Monroe got the oohs and ahs, but Miss Fontanne got the applause.

Clad in a backless orange dress and trailing a mink stole from one shoulder so it almost swept the floor, the blonde screen actress diverted between-the-acts chatter to herself as she traipsed back to her seat during the first intermission of "The Visit," which stars Miss Fontanne and her husband, Alfred Lunt.

Several patrons at the rear of the orchestra rented binoculars so they could get a better look at Miss Monroe. Others stood in their seats during the next intermission to catch a glimpse of her in the third row next to her husband, playwright Arthur Miller. Some inched down the side aisle while the curtain was down.

When it went up again, attention quickly went back to the stage, and the play won the audience's enthusiastic applause. After the final curtain Miss Monroe and her husband went backstage for a courtesy call on the Lunts.

Letter Never Did Reach 'Heven'

ELIZABETH, N. J. (AP)—The letter, written in a childish scrawl was addressed "To God in Heven." It read:

"Dear God.

"I know you are busy, but please will you make mommy well again.

"Daddy says that you may take mommy to Heven to (be) with you.

"I love you but I want my mommy to stay here with me.

"You can have any of my toys. Daddy needs mommy two.

"I will say my prayers every day."

Postmaster William Runyon opened the letter yesterday. There was no signature.

UNGUIDED EPISTLE

Final Honor Roll At Rose High Included 53 Pupils

Approximately ten per cent of Junius H. Rose High School's total enrollment won places on the school's final Honor Roll, Principal O. E. Dowd announced today.

Fifty-three students won places, 12 of them by making maximum grades on all subjects. The other 40 made 1's or 2's on all subjects.

The group of students making all 1's included three members of the Senior Class which graduated June 3. They are Margaret Ann Harrell, Judy Ferris and Mary Ann Bryant. Eleven other Seniors made 1's and 2's, including Naomi Gibbs, Anne Parkinson, Rebecca Highsmith, Sandra Phillips, JoAnne Parks, Godfrey Oakley, Rhett Everett, Iona Jones, Jane Bass and Bob Bilbro.

Other students who made 1's on all subjects are (ninth grade) Ben White, Melinda Coleman, Kay Kennedy and Sara Collier Webb; (tenth grade) Vickie Avery, Jeanette Taylor, Brenda Harris and Anne Prince; and (eleventh grade) Catherine Moore.

Students making 1's and 2's in the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades include:

Ninth grade: Ricky Harrington, Craig Worthington, Mary Louise Berry, Nell Davis, Virginia Melton, Judy Preissle, Jean Tracey, Ruth Clark, Barbara Allen, Linda Gaskins, Marie Gibbs, Pat Burganus and Emily Stancill.

Tenth grade: Barbara McRoy, Clark Brewer, Lois Tunnell, Frances Cozart, Alice Walters, Goldis Starling, Charles Taft and Ann Briley.

Eleventh grade: Dot Davis, Ann Evans, Betsy Whedbee, Kathryn Oakes, Pat Barlow, Billy Brown, Joe Moye, Gene Davenport and Sandra Thompson.

Rode Horseback 25 Years Ago

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Mrs. Virginia B. Scott, Roanoke's 1958 "Business and Professional Woman of the Year," says the first year she taught school the children came in covered wagons and she rode a horse.

"I loved every minute of it," she said. But, lest she appear an ancient, she said this was only 25 years ago at Grassy Creek school in the North Carolina mountains.

The first Swedish settlement in America was made in 1638 on the lower Delaware River where the city of Wilmington is now situated.

Marge And Gower Say U.S. Dancing Is 'Sick'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Serious dancing in America is sick and can take some lessons from the Russians.

Who says so? Marge and Gower Champion.

Many Americans who have seen the Moiseyev dance company on its current tour have wondered: "Why don't we have something like that?"

The impact of these gifted Soviet dancers can scarcely be measured. Many are predicting that their advent to these shores will have as profound an effect on American dance as the original Ballet Russe. Or more so.

Still stimulated by seeing the Moiseyev troupe, I sounded out Marge and Gower Champion. They, after all, are the foremost exponents of the dance in this country today. Both are schooled in the classics. Gower is a noted choreographer.

"The Moiseyev company was fantastic," Gower agreed. "I don't think this country has seen anything like it.

"It's a crying shame that we don't have something to match the Russians. After all, Moiseyev has only taken the traditional Russian dances, routined them superbly and trained magnificent dancers to do them.

"There's no reason we couldn't do the same. Our dance heritage is just as rich, if not more so. We have Indian dances, the square dance, the Mexican-style dances of California, the whole New Orleans tradition of jazz."

"And our dancers are as good as theirs," Marge added. "We have hundreds of dancers who are awaiting recognition. We have acrobats and tumblers who can do the same leaps and spins and can be taught enough dancing."

The couple deems Russian dancing notable for its vigor and masculinity. American dancing, they feel, has become feminized and sick.

"There's no reason it should be sick," Gower declared. "We've got enough rugged young men to do the dancing. But the tradition has been toward the classical ballet or limp-wristed kind of dancing, even in the modern dances.

"American dancing needs to become masculine."

They think the whole trend could be changed by a movement like the Moiseyev in the Soviet Union or the Sadlers Wells in England.

United By Golf, Divided By Golf

RENO (AP)—Barbara Romack and Edward Porter went their separate golfing ways today, divorced because their interest in golf was too divergent.

She is the former women's national amateur champion and he is a golf instructor at Indian Wells Calif., and at Denver.

Miss Romack, whose maiden name was restored by the divorce decree, told District Judge John Sexton that golf, which brought them together, caused their divorce.

They were married at Carmel, Calif., on April 7, 1957.

Yesterday's games in the Little League at Elm Street Park were wild ones individually but mode little impressions on the league standings.

The Kiwanis club defeated the Jaycees in something of an upset, 6-5, but the Jaycees still maintained their second position behind the Lions in the North State loop.

The league-leading Pepsi-Cola team went on a tirade and walloped the last-place Moose 21-1 in the other game. This game didn't change the standings any either, but helped solidify the Pepsi team in top position.

The Kiwanis team ganged up against Jaycee hurlers Flanagan and Clapp and outhit the Jaycees. They picked up runs in the first, second, third, sixth and seventh innings. The Jaycees got their runs in the fourth and sixth frames.

Winning pitcher was Wilkerson. He relieved starter Ward.

In the other ball game, the Pepsi-Cola team, loaded with hitting power, blasted off for three homeruns and a whole raft of hits to swamp the Moose, 21-1. Gidley, Harper and Carter cracked four-baggers for three of their team's 15 hits. They piled up scores in the first, second, third, fourth and fifth innings to demolish the Moose. The lone Moose run came in the third frame.

Pepsi pitchers were Cannon and Wade. It was Cannon's win although he was relieved in the second.

Losing pitcher was Ross.

Foundation Day

Saturday will be Little League Foundation Day at Elm Street Park and throughout the nation. Around 4,500 Little Leagues will join forces throughout the United States on that day to pay tribute to the founding of the program.

The annual Flag Day observance by local leagues is expected to result in the world-wide spectacle of more than 150,000 boys representing 9,000 teams who will engage in the 4,500 games. Total attendance of parents and fans will range between 600,000 and one million.

In addition to games to be played in the United States, Little Leaguers in Canada, Europe, Latin-America and the Pacific areas will take part in games to help the Little League Foundation Drive.

The Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to perpetuating Little League baseball, making it a self-supporting and providing instruments and facilities for improved leadership, training and practical aids to meet the growing demands of the program.

Once each year on the occasion of Foundation Day, local leagues are invited to participate in fund-raising by pledging the donations of games on that day to the Foundation.

Here, Saturday, a doubleheader will be played and it will serve to finish up the first half of play in the North State and Tar Heel circuits.

Audience Boos Giardello's Win Decision

WASHINGTON (AP)—Giardello and Washington society have met, but odds are steep that they'll never really be chummy.

Joey, the Philadelphia middleweight, made his bow before the capital's elite on the Shoreham Hotel terrace last night. Franz Szuzina, the Germany weightlifter who now fights for a living, appeared with Joey.

After 10 rounds of fist throwing Giardello had won his 77th victory and his third decision over Szuzina.

The black tie and evening gown audience booed the verdict as judges Harry Volkman (99-92) and Charley Buck (97-94) voted for Giardello and referee Charley Reynolds viewed it as a standoff (92-92). The Associated Press agreed with the judges (93-93).

For many of the 850 socialites, diplomats, Congress members and government officials, the nationally televised charity match between the two 160-pounders was their first exposure to the gentlemanly art of self-defense.

They liked stocky Franz as the underdog and for the way he charged into Giardello with a persistent right that sometimes stopped Joey short.

But Giardello, who ranks just behind Carmen Basilio for Ray Robinson's title, was busy with his quick left and generally too effective for Szuzina.

Franz cut Giardello under the left eye in the first round but Joey was never in any jeopardy. Giardelli opened a slight cut on Szuzina's forehead in a bristling 10th.

Lack of noise was one of the things that didn't suit Giardello.

"They held themselves back," he said afterward. "It wasn't like a real fight. It was just different."

Big Brothers of America really won it big, acquiring an estimated $20,000 from the benefit affair.

All-Stars, Graniteers To Battle Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night at Guy Smith Stadium, the Graniteers will battle a group of Industrial Softball League All-Stars in the loop's Annual All-Star trials at 7:30.

The Graniteers, winners of the first half of Industrial Circuit Softball play with an unblemished record of eight wins and no losses, earned the privilege of clashing with the All-Stars by copping that half-season title.

The ball game is an annual affair which features outstanding ball players from the other four teams in the league matching blows with the halftime champions.

The All-Stars are chosen by the coaches of the other four teams. This year's squad will be composed of the following: Tom Boyd, Brownie Tripp, Jerry Warren and Bob Dash of Carolina Dairy; Haywood Outland, Doug Morgan, D. Manning, Bob Howell of Greenville Parts and Metal; Merrill Bynum and Randy Bass of Quality Oil; Hewey Stanley and Bobby Reid of Coffman's. Coaches for the All-Star club will be C. W. Wall of Quality Oil and Bill Ford of Greenville P&M. The club's manager will be Pete Carroway of Carolina Dairy.

The Graniteer roster, headed by Manager Bobby Conway, is as follows: Ralph Heidenreich, Dan Gordan, Johnnie Foell, Harold Ingram, Ike Riddick, George Phillips, Mack Roebuck, Aubrey Harrison, Hugh Hardee, Jerry Phillips, Harry Archer, John Conway, Tommy Lupton, and Wallace Conway.

Dan Gordan, regular hurler for the Graniteers who has pitched every one of the team's eight victories, will undoubtedly pitch against the All-Stars tomorrow night. Hurler for the All-Star group has not yet been decided.

At 7:30, a set of contests will be held to open the evening's activity, featuring prizes for base running, infield throwing, outfield throwing, pitcher throwing, and free spectator prizes will also be awarded.

The ball game will begin immediately following the prize contests.

Home Builders Take 18-4 Win Over G. Bankers

| STANDINGS | | |

| State Bank | 4 | 0 |
| Home Builders | 3 | 1 |
| College View | 1 | 3 |
| Guaranty Bank | 0 | 4 |

The Home Builders improved their status in the Greenville Teener League standings last night by dumping the bottom-place Guaranty Bank, 18-4, at Guy Smith Stadium.

Home Builders players teed-off for three long homeruns in aiding the cause and racked up a total of nine hits in blasting Guaranty Bank pitchers Boyd, Cates, and Bloxam.

Smoot started for the winners on the mound and pitched until the top of the third when Roberts relieved him. Between them, they gave up only two hits to the GB team.

Smoot struck out four and Roberts fanned seven. Between them they walked seven. Between the three of them, Boyd, Cates and Bloxam fanned six, walked 10.

Guaranty Bank drew first blood and scored in the opening inning on a double by Cates and a single by Billy Neal James. The Home Builders came back in the second with a homerun by Jack Foley with one man on base.

In the third inning, the GB team tallied their other three runs and that was all for them.

In the fourth, five walks and a single by Collins accounted for five Home Builders runs.

In the fifth, Jack Foley whammed out another homerun with another man on base to add two more runs.

A homer by Roberts in the seventh started another HB dally that ended with the team picking up nine runs.

Getting the hits for the winners last night were Starling, Joyner, Roberts, Blalock, Foley, and Allen. Cates and James got their team's only hits in that first inning.

Last night's game was a make-up affair of an earlier rained-out ball game.

Everette Favored Win Home Town Net Tournament

ROBERSONVILLE—East Carolina tennis star Maurice Everette will be top-seeded and favored to cop high honors in his hometown Robersonville Invitational Tournament, beginning tomorrow.

Everette, who led the Pirates to a North State Conference championship this year as well as winning his second straight North State Singles championship, is expected to take the singles crown at Robersonville. In the three years that the Invitational tourney has been in existence, Everette has walked away with all three singles titles.

Everette and Fred Ruben of Rocky Mount are top-seeded in the doubles event.

The seedings are as follows for both singles and doubles for the tourney: Singles—Everette, No. 1; Fred Rubens of Rocky Mount, No. 2; John Allen Farbour of Goldsboro, No. 3; Jim Bailey of Elm City, No. 4. Doubles—Everette and Ruben, No. 1; Bailey and Farfour, No. 2; Walter Conner and J. W. Browning of Rich Square, No. 3; Dick Daughtridge and Jesse Joyner of Rocky Mount, No. 4.

First and second round singles matches will be played tomorrow. Third round, quarterfinals, and semifinals in singles are scheduled for Saturday, with play beginning at 9 a.m. Finals in both singles and doubles will be Sunday.

Trophies will be awarded by A. O. Robinson Co., H and H Gas Co., and the Robersonville Jaycees, who are sponsoring the tournament.

MEN'S SINGLES

First Round (Friday)

Maurice Everette, Robersonville, bye; Alex McKeller, Jackson, vs. Dunn, Ayden, 2 p.m.; Andy Warren, Robersonville, bye; Tom Norfleet, Roxobel, bye; Lewis Bunch, Robersonville, bye; Jimmy Silverthorne, Washington, bye; Kelly Abeyounis, Bethel, vs Jimmy Bailey, Elm City, 3 p.m.

Fred Ruben, Rocky Mount, bye; Cuthrell, Ayden, vs. Elton Robinson, Robersonville, 1 p.m.; Bill Warren, Robersonville, bye; Glenn Merritt, Ayden, vs. Larry Windley, Washington, 1 p.m.; Sherwood Robinson, Robersonville, vs. Walter Conner, Rich Square, 4 p.m.; J. W. Browning, Rich Square, vs. John Allen Farbour, Goldsboro, 3 p.m.

WEDNESDAY'S STARS

HITTING: Frank Thomas, Pirates — Celebrated his 29th birthday with seven runs batted in and two home runs, one a grand-slam, while gaining the National League homer (19) and RBI (57) leads in 14-6 victory over the Giants.

Steinbeck's

Willing Worker . . . . . by Pap'

Willingness to work and intelligence—virtues much appreciated by coaches when found in athletes—are the outstanding traits of Ed Moran who already owns Penn State records for the mile and half-mile and has the potential to lower both marks before he is through.

"If all runners worked as hard as Moran," says Penn State coach, Chick Werner, "records would fall in every meet. He's first on the track for practice sessions, and among the last to leave. If we call for three 300-yard sprints for speed practice, Ed wants to run five.

"In a meet, we often ask him to run the 880, mile and a leg on the mile relay, and he turns in top performances in all three events. He enters additional events just to pick up a point or two insure a team victory. He always wants the team to win. His modesty over his own accomplishments is completely genuine. When a teammate seeks to compliment him on his running, Moran skillfully diverts the conversation to another member of the team. He's the bellcow, the fellow who helps develop his teammates more quickly by his example in training and racing."

The Penn State 880-yard record which Moran erased with his 1:50.2 effort was set 34 years ago by Schuyler Enck. Gerry Karver held the mile record for 10 years until Moran raced the distance in 4:10.5 against Pitt this spring. Actually, he seldom runs for a record. He simply runs fast enough to win. If that takes a record-breaking performance, all well and good.

Neither Coach Werner nor Moran know what his best distance may prove to be. With maturity, he could develop into a great distance runner. In any event, he'll be going all out.

Boros Began Rolling Today In 58th National Tournament

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The Boros bandwagon began rolling today as play started in the 58th National Open golf championship at sun-scorched Southern Hills but the one guy who wouldn't get on it was Julius Boros.

Boros hasn't done anything sensational during the practice rounds over the rolling 6,907-yard layout. But suddenly a lot of people looked at the records and decided that the big fellow who won the title at Dallas in 1952 under the same sort of weather conditions is a contender to be feared as much as Ben Hogan.

Boros chuckles at the suggestion that he doesn't mind the heat. "I can sweat as much as anybody," he said, "but I usually play as well on long courses as short ones."

That's the big difference. Southern Hills is a course that requires long shots and accurate ones. A player who strays off the fairways is due for trouble even though the bermuda grass rough was cut down to a four-inch depth for the tournament.

Golfers who have played with the 218-pound slugger from Southern Pines, N. C., during the past few days say Boros has been shooting some of the finest golf of his career and has the kind of game that is just suited to the Southern Hills course.

About a half dozen players in the 162-man field scheduled to start play today were rated even with Boros.

There's Ben Hogan, who is shooting for an unprecedented fifth National Open; long hitting Cary Middlecoff, who has taken the title twice and lost a playoff last year to Dick Mayer; and a flock of former winners with Mayer at the head of the list.

Boros broke into the list of favorites because of his unusual record in championship tournaments. No other player, except possibly Middlecoff, has such a record for consistence in the Open.

A local odds-maker listed Boros as a 15-1 favorite after shooting a subpar 69 in practice yesterday. Par for Southern Hills is 35-35—70 and very few players have broken if this week. Second choices were Middlecoff, Arnold Palmer, the Masters champion, and bulky Billy Casper, who won a couple of tournaments this year but had to drop off the pro tour recently when his game went sour.

The big problem, according to one player, is building up enough endurance to play 18 holes. The searing Oklahoma sun has sent the temperature into the 90s every day this week.

SPEEDY REFLECTS — The life of a hurdler is not an easy one when a rain-soaked track adds to normal hazards of timber-topping during AAU meet on New York's Randall's Island.

Nancy Wright Sets Out To Match Pace

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — Mickey Wright sets out today to match the consistent one-over-par pace she feels will win the $12,000 Round Robin Women's Invitation golf tournament.

The tall Californian, conceded the favorite by most of her 15 rivals, says steadiness is the key to mastery of this unusual 90-hole mixture of medal and match play.

Tedesco's 6,174 yard, par 73 layout—tailored to Mickey's power—is only a few miles from Peabody where the newly-crowned LPGA champion bauled into prominence. In the 1954 Women's Open she finished an impressive third as an amateur.

Norman Talks Tigers To Double Header Victory

By ED WILKS

Bill Norman had a pretty simple plan for arousing the Detroit Tigers in his managerial debut. "This is too good a club to be last," he told 'em. So they went out and jumped clear of the American League cellar by sweeping a doubleheader at Boston, where they hadn't won since last year.

The Tigers came alive with 13 hits in each half of the afternoon-night pair. Frank Lary ended the Red Sox' winning string at six with a five-hit shutout, 7-0. Then Billy Marin hit two home runs in one game for the first time in the majors for a 9-3 success last night.

The first place New York Yankees upped their lead to 9½ games again, using hits and breaks for a 10-2 and 2-1 sweep over second place Kansas City. Don Larsen won his ninth in a row over two seasons in the opener and once-beaten Bob Turley became the first to win 10 in the majors in the nightcap.

Washington plunked the Chicago White Sox into the cellar, 5-2; and Baltimore rapped Cleveland 7-4.

Lary gave up only one extra-base hit and allowed but one runner as far as third while gain a 6-5 record with his first shutout since last August. It was the second by the Tiger staff this year. The young right-hander also drove in three runs.

Jim Bunning (3-5) struck out 12 but walked eight and needed relief after going 8 2-3 innings in the nightcap. Martin tagged his fourth and fifth homers as the Tigers took a 6-1 lead in three innings against Murray Wall.

Frank Malzone had six of Boston's 13 hits for the day, including three doubles. He was 4-for-4 in the second game.

Brooks Robinson drove in three runs with two singles for the Orioles, who bagged it with five runs in the fourth. Milt Pappas won his third but tired and left after six innings. Dick Tomanek (2-3) was the loser.

Dodgers Finally Beginning To Look Like The Old Bums

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Those Dodgers at last look like Dodgers. A batter gets tossed out of the game for jawin' at the plate, a runner scores from second on a two-run sacrifice fly and Don Drysdale, their young ace, finally has a complete game victory to go with eight defeats.

Except for being in last place, things are almost normal.

Drysdale, the 21-year-old right-hander, went all the way for a 7-4 victory over the Phils last night, giving up nine hits, but striking out six and allowing only two earned runs.

Milwaukee, meanwhile, regained the National League lead as the Braves ended their longest losing streak since 1956 at 5 games with a 10-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs. San Francisco slipped to second, .005 percentage points behind, as the Pittsburgh Pirates breezed in on Frank Thomas' seven runs batted in for a 14-6 victory and the Giants' fourth loss in a row.

The St. Louis Cardinals took third, three games behind, with a 3-2, 12-inning victory over Cincinnati.

A four-run third inning did the job for Drysdale, now 3-8, and the Dodgers, once more just a half-game behind the seventh place Phillies. The two-run sacrifice fly was a 420-foot smack by Carl Furillo with the bases loaded. Richie Ashburn took it over his shoulder in center field, but by the time he got back within sight of the plate, Peewee Reese was across it after a dash from second base.

Gil Hodges then smacked his ninth homer, capping the inning and handing the defeat to reliever Jim Hearn.

Randy Jackson scored ahead of Hodges, getting a walk that loaded the bases when he stepped in for Charlie Neal, who was tossed out for arguing a 2-1 pitch. He was the first Dodger to be ejected in Los Angeles, and Johnny Podres became No. 2 seconds later for his bellowing from the bench.

Ken Boyer's leadoff 11th homer won it for the Cards in the 12th, ending a four-inning shutout relief duel between winner Morrie Martin (2-1) and Redleg Hal Jeffcoat (3-3). Frank Robinson drove in both Redleg runs, one with his fourth homer for a 2-2 tie in the seventh.

Thomas celebrated his 29th birthday by taking the home run lead with a pair, one a grand-slam, and also gaining the RBI lead. His second homer, No. 19, was his second bases-loaded shot in the majors, both off the Giants (the first was April 23, 1953), and gave the Pirates a 10-2 lead in the second inning. Vern Law won his sixth with relief help while Ruben Gomez (5-5) lost it.

The Braves blew a 5-0 lead, but nailed it with three in the seventh off losing reliever Don Elston (6-4). Unbeaten Ernie Johnson won his third in relief. Joe Adcock hit his sixth grandslam homer in the Braves' first. Andy Pafko drove in three runs for Milwaukee, singling home the tie breaker in the seventh.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

FOUR BEDROOMS ARE POSSIBLE in this story and a half house with a full basement. The fourth bedroom can be placed on the ground floor level in the area set aside for a multi-use room. There are 1,196 sq. ft. in the habitable area. The plan, HA40-D, is by Architect M.G. Dixon, 530 Highland Ave., Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

ON THE HOUSE

Insulation is like happiness — no home should be without it.

Properly installed, good insulation makes a house cooler in the summer and warner in the winter, and saves money both in heating and air conditioning bills.

So if you're house hunting, anywhere in the country, don't forget to ask about insulation.

With the house-hunting season now reaching its peak, here are some questions to ask about insulation and some hints from heating-cooling experts on what to look for during your inspection tour:

1. What areas of a house should be insulated? All outside walls should be insulated; also all ceilings with unheated areas above them, such as ceilings under an attic.

If there is no basement, there should be insulation in floors over a crawl space or around the edge of a concrete slab. Insulation should form a blanket around the living areas of a house in order to keep heat inside during the winter and out during the summer.

2. How do you check the installation of insulating material? In a finished house, it's almost impossible to check installation in walls, but you can check the kind of job by looking in the attic. Here you'll be able to inspect the thickness of insulating materials, and flaws in the job.

If there is a crawl space under the house, crawl in and take a look at the insulation in the underside of the floors. If the house has a finished attic, inspect the areas behind the partitions extending from the floor to the roof line.

3. How can you be sure the insulation is complete? Look for gaps and holes in the insulation. Heat escapes through gaps and holes during the winter like air escapes from a punctured tire, and it pours in just as fast during the summer.

Odd-shaped and small spaces should be fully insulated, and the insulating material should be bought snugly up to all electrical boxes, wiring cables, pipes, and studs and joists.

4. How much insulation should there be? If the house has electric heating or a central air conditioning system, a six-inch thickness of mineral wool is recommended in ceilings. There should be a minimum thickness of three inches in walls and a two-inch thickness in floors over unheated areas such as a crawl space.

If the house has a conventional heating system and no air conditioning, there should be at least four inches of insulating material in the ceilings, three inches in the walls, and two inches in floors over unheated areas. Floors above a heated basement and ceilings below an occupied second floor should not be insulated.

5. Is the space over the ceiling insulation ventilated? Ceiling insulation is more effective if the space between the roof and the surface of the insulation is ventilated.

Look for louvers in the gable ends of the roof or in the top of the roof. Also look for vents or louvers under the eaves.

6. Is the vapor barrier intact and continuous? A vapor barrier keeps moisture out of insulated spaces, and insulation should be installed with the vapor barrier toward the side of walls, ceilings and floors heated during winter months.

There should be no unpatched tears in the vapor barrier and it should be fitted carefully around all openings and over odd-shaped spaces.

7. Is the insulation tightly installed? If batts and blankets are used, check for tightness. In walls, the batts or blankets should be stapled to studs with the staples no more than six inches apart.

The insulating material also should fit tightly against studs, joists, or rafthers so that air infiltration will be minimized. If mineral wool was used as the insulating material and blown into the attick floor, it should have an even depth of at least four inches with no gaps.

Suzy's Frank Talk Astounds Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I've been in love seriously only once. I fell in love with him when I fell in love with Paris."

These words, spoken when Suzy Parker was film-making here, shed some light on her secret marriage to French journalist Count Pierre de la Salle.

In New York last night, de la Salle, through an attorney, issued a statement saying they are happily married, and have been since 1955. He said "it was Hollywood press agents who suggested that it be kept secret so that it might advance her career."

Miss Parker registered at a St. Augustine, Fla., hospital as "Mrs. Pierre la Salle" after an accident in which her father was killed. She had suffered fractures of both arms. The count, visiting her there, said at first they were not married.

Miss Parker in Hollywood had described her Paris lover as "a Frenchman and unmarried."

"I still love Paris more than any other city," she said. "But I find it difficult to love as such, because when two people love each other, they have a tendency to destroy each other.

"I think you can love a man more when you aren't married to him. I've seen the little things that were precious become the big things that destroy. I doubt if I shall ever marry."

Such frank talk astounded Hollywood. But despite the clucking of tongues, Suzy wouldn't be silenced. She commented airly that Hollywood impressed her as a beautiful kindergarten where people have "such pretty houses, such pretty cars, such simple aims in life."

Drive and independence come naturally to Suzy, born in San Antonio to a long-time Texas family. She boasted that her grandmother was a deputy sheriff who could flick a cigarette ash with a bullet at 20 paces.

Reared in Pomona Springs, Fla. she followed her famous sister, Dorian Leigh, into New York modeling. But she hated the tedious work and went to Europe as a photographer. She returned to modeling only when broke — when the Treasury Department cracked down on her. She had refused to pay income taxes while abroad because "taxation without representation is tyranny."

Suzy who is 25, has strong views. Such as:

Drinking—"I believe the senses were created to be enjoyed, and drinking dulls them."

Smoking—"Most women smoke to give them something to do with their hands.

Suzy Parker—"I talk too much for most men."

Politically Charged Debate Open In Senate Today On Involved Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today opens a politically charged debate on the most comprehensive labor bill to reach it since the Taft-Hartley Act became law in 1947.

It is designed to curb some labor union abuses and also give organized labor some of the things it wants. But it was under fire from both sides.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) expressed hope the bill could be passed by tomorrow night.

Other senators thought it would take longer. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), one of a group of Republicans planning to offer a series of stringent amendments to the bill, said there would be "long drawn out discussion" on each one.

An interesting sidelight to the debate was the test it posed for Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), principal author of the measure and a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960.

It is the first major piece of legislation to be handled on the floor by Kennedy, except for a much less significant employe pension and welfare fund control bill passed in April.

Kennedy conceded in advance that his bill would not satisfy the extremes on the labor issue — he said no measure could do that.

The sponsors' hope of beating off more restrictive floor amendments appeared to rest on two points:

1. Whether Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) would continue the support of the Kennedy bill he voiced last week and persuade most of the Southern Democratic senators to go along with him. McClellan is chairman of the Rackets Investigating Committee whose hearings touched off much of the demand for labor reform legislation.

2. Whether Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY), a co-author of the Kennedy bill, could carry with him the 10 or 12 GOP senators who frequently follow his lead on labor matters.

Emphasizing political aspects of the battle, the Democratic Advisory Council put out a statement last night accusing the Republican party and big business of conducting an extraordinary and continuous battle on labor's fundamental rights. It added:

"The Democratic party will resist . . . efforts to take retribution on the whole labor movement because of the sins of a few."

The bill as sent to the floor would write into law a union democracy code including secret elections and term limits for officers and would require full public financial reporting by unions with more than 200 members and $25,000 of annual income.

It also would repeal or modify several Taft-Hartley sections long assailed by labor. These changes would eliminate non-Communist affidavits by union officers, permit pre-hire agreements in the construction industry and allow strikers who have been replaced to vote in bargaining elections.

The bill goes somewhat further than George Meany, AFL-CIO president, recommended in his testimony to Kennedy's Labor subcommittee.

On the other side Sens. Goldwater, Knowland (R-Calif) and others have prepared amendments to provide still more federal regulation of unions. Secretary of Labor Mitchell contends some provisions of the pending bill would weaken, rather than strengthen, some provisions of present law.

Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich), a former union official who criticizes the bill as too stringent, told a reporter he believed "it may never come to a vote."

"So many amendments will be offered we may reach an impasse," he said. "Some people will settle for nothing less than declaring unions illegal."

Kennedy and Ives said before debate began they would accept some changes in the bill to meet specific objections made by Mitchell.

But Kennedy defended the measure as a strong bill, one that would meet all of the interim recommendations of the McClellan committee.

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), who said he would take a middle-of-the-road position on the bill, drafted amendments to take care of some of Mitchell's objections.

Birds Block Use Of Their Garage

DETROIT (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gilland have a garage at their suburban Bloomfield Township home, but they can't put their car in it.

A pair of killdeer birds have set up house on the Gilland's gravel driveway. The female bird has scratched out a nest in the middle of the drive and laid four eggs in it. When the female has to leave for food the male takes over the egg-watching chores.

The eggs are expected to take a month before they hatch.

Only the female mosquitoes carry malaria fever from man to man.

Only 3 Complete Games In String

NEW YORK (AP) Don Larsen, the big "perfect game" right-hander of the New York Yankee pitching staff, has the longert winning streak in the majors with nine — but he has only three complete games in the string.

He won his fifth of the season, but went only 6 2-3 innings yesterday as the Yankees won the first game of a doubleheader with Kansas City 12-2. Larsen, passing .500 (45-44) for the first time in his six seasons in the majors, hasn't lost since Aug. 5, 1957, in regular season play. He was 1-1 in last fall's World Series.

Farm Home Hit By Flaming Jet

PONCA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A flaming Air Force jet training plane hurtled out of a rainstorm into an isolated farm home last night, killing two persons and possibly a third.

Authorities at the scene five miles northeast of Ponca City said the body of Mrs. Cora Harman was thrown from the house by the explosion. Bits of flesh in the area indicated there may have been two men in the craft.

Air Force investigators said the plane might have been from Vance AFB, Enid, Okla. A partially burned officer's identification card bore the name of the Vance base.

Mrs. Harman's husband, Dick, was in the farm yard driving his pickup truck into the garage when the T33 slammed into a corner of the four-room frame house about 10 p.m.

Barham Van Organ said he was driving with his wife along a nearby road when the plane crashed.

"It was on fire and it seemed to come right over our heads," he said. "We drove to the house and saw a man in a pickup truck. He was suffering from shock and we got him out."

Another witness, Bill Clark, who lives a quarter mile south of the Harman farm, said the plane appeared to have come down at an 80-degree angle. He said it looked as though it was falling apart about 100 feet above the ground.

Two unopened parachutes were found in a field. Wreckage was strewn over a six-acre area.

Charge Man In Double Slaying

MORGANTON (AP) — A 30-year - old Morganton man was charged yesterday with murder in the shotgun slayings of Robert L. Epley, 40, and Ambers L. Buff, 52.

Burke County Sheriff Ray A. sigmon said Ray Duckworth would be held in jail without bond until a date is set for a preliminary hearing.

Police say Duckworth told them he shot the men after they threatened to kill him. Their bodies were found in front of Duckworth's home Sunday night after a drinking party.

Found Momento Of Earlier Days

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — A street repair crew here found a memento of earlier days. It's a livery stable check, made of copper and about the size of a silver dollar.

A local historian says these checks were usually in threes. When a person left a horse and buggy at a livery stable, one tag was fastened to the horse's harness, another to the buggy, and the third given to the customer, just as in modern parking lots.

ECC Choral Workshop Has 250 Participants

A choral workshop in progress at East Carolina College this week under the direction of Dr. Lara Hoggard has brought to the campus a group of 250 patricipants. Attending are teachers of music and high school and college students from North Carolina, South Carolina, West Virginia and Alabama.

As director of music at the Indian Springs school near Birmingham, Alabama, Dr. Hoggard has won an international reputation as teacher and choir director.

A rehearsal by the choral group organized here this week will be open to the public and will take place Friday, June 13, at 1:30 in Music Hall.

The workshop is the sixth annual choral event to be sponsored in this state by the North Carolina Music Educators Association and to be staged with Dr. Hoggard as director. For the past three years the workshop has been held at East Carolina College.

Students attending the workshop this summer were carefully selected, as attendance was limited. Three daily sessions given opportunity to members of the chorus for performance under an experienced director and to teachers for study and discussion of choral materials and techniques.

Dr. Hoggard has organized over the past three years at the Indian Springs school a boys' choir which has become internationally famous. Last week this group of 72 boys sang before 10,000 people from 100 countries who were present in Dallas, Texas, for a meeting of Rotary International. The choir has received invitations to sing in Vienna and at the Brussels Fair, and to tour Europe.

Trooper's Help Brought In $5

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — State Police received a letter, postmarked Kittery, Me., which began: "I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the state trooper who so courageously assisted me on Highway 60 out of Huntington on Feb. 20."

The letter, containing no other details of the incident, was signed, "Uncle Joe Santa — J.W.B." Enclosed was a $5 bill for the "Santa Claus Fund." Because the State Police Department has no such fund, the money was deposited in the State Police Disability and Retirement Fund.

TRAVELING PORPOISE

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) —Milton Santina brought a live 325-pound, 7½-foot porpoise by station wagon from Marathon, Fla., and deposited it in an aquarium here claiming it was the longest car trip ever made by a porpoise—25½ hours and 1,026 miles.

POLICEMAN MOBBED — Provincial police constable George Dougherty is set upon by some 50 youths a few seconds after he told them to move on on a London, Ont., Canada, street. # Plastics Industry Sees Rising Sales In Future

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The plastics industry busily raiding markets once served by metals and other materials thinks some new plastics and new uses will assure it another year of rising sales.

The Society of the Plastics Industry, after a survey of leading makers of molds and tools, reports today that 1958 sales so far are either keeping pace with 1957 or exceeding last year's figures by as much as 40 per cent in some companies.

Another segment of the industry, plastic pipe, which has seen sales boom from 500,000 pounds in 1947 to 58 million pounds in 1957, predicts it will sell 60 million pounds this year for around 50 million dollars.

SPI credits much of the gain in plastic sales to the last two years of research and production progress, which are now bearing fruit.

But part of the gain in use of plastics has been sparked outside the industry of late by manufacturers seeking ways in the recession to cut costs, both of materials and of production processes, and to bolster retail sales by redesigning old products or introducing new ones.

Plastic pipe makers have found a big field in the irrigated sections of the West, in water lines around the farm or home, including the new boom in swimming pools, and in some industrial processes where corrosion can be a big cost factor.

This pipe costs about as much as metal ones but salesmen say it's much easier and less expensive to install.

Here is what some mold manufacturers say about new demand for both new and old products:

General American Transportation Co., Chicago: "New business booked in February was a new high for the month, and, most important, largely for end applications in industries we were not supplying two years ago."

Capac Industries, Capac, Mich.: "Increased demand from the automotive industry for molded housings for heaters and duct couplings, and heavy demand for plastic packaging and special heavy wall plastic products."

General Industries, Elyria, Ohio "We are molding plastic parts for a greater number of different industries and in fields we never thought would be the substantial users of plastics they are."

Erie Resistor, Erie, Pa.: "New processes for metalizing plastic are winning important acceptance in appliance and automotive fields."

Columbia Engineering, Newark, N. J.: "First quarter output was 40 per cent above last year and dollar volume was up 75 per cent."

Shaw Industries, Franklin, Pa.: "Sales are up 10 per cent and a spurt of new orders is being received."

Newark Die Co., Newark, N.J. "We have a larger amount of government work for the missile program this year and a considerable pickup in civilian merchandise inquiries."

Standard Tool, Leominster, Mass.: "New plastic materials and new designs will stimulate the mold business."

A. L. Hyde Co., Grenloch, N.J.: "New designs capable of molding highly complex parts at lower cost is increasing dollar volume."

Victory Manufacturing, Chicago "One national company has turned to mold plastics for five products formerly made in steel."

Norton Laboratories, Lockport, N. Y., and Boonton Molding Co., Boonton, N. J., both report customers asking for help in cutting costs and a great deal of customer interest in redesigning products.

Communicate, Or Perish—He Says

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Philosopher Orbert Tanner of the University of Utah says Americans must communicate with Russia or perish.

"Our only chance to avoid annihilation is to let Russia know us—to bring them to the United States by the thousands to see our way of life and know us," Dr. Tanner says. The Utah educator visited Russia last year and said he was allowed to see everything he wished except military structures.

Little Wind For A Dust Storm

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Dust Storms can be created with winds of only 15 miles an hour, two researchers report.

Frank E. Adley and Wallace E. Gill, of the General Electric Co. in Richland, Wash., said dust clouds ranged from 400,000 particles per cubic foot of air at a 2 mile an hour wind to about 24 million particles in a 16 mile an hour wind.

Results of their tests were reported to a recent meeting of the industrial health conference.

Find Monument To Pioneer Past

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Wreckers clearing buildings for the new Richard Bong Air Force jet bomber base found a monument to the past.

Workers ripped the sides off an old frame building to find that the structure was really an ancient cabin made of hand-hewn oak logs.

The Kenosha County board approved a motion to preserve the cabin as a monument to the pioneer past.

HAIR-RAISING VACATION

Used To Carry $1 Million In Bag

SAN ANSELMO, Calif. (AP)—Gambler George W. Lewis used to go around looking for action with a million dollars in a black bag.

His forte was lightning calculation of the odds at Midwest racé tracks. He could pick winners too.

He built up a fortune and a palatial home here that cost him $150,000. Furnishing cost $50,000 more.

But, as often happens, the odds turned against him. He forgot to pay the government his income tax from 1942 to 1948.

It was at his trial that he testified about the black bag with the million in it.

Internal revenue agents figured the tax bill at $1,341,280. Lewis spent 10 months in prison two years ago for income tax evasion. But the time in prison did not satisfy the government bill.

Lewis has been ordered to pay up.

Free of prison and now 68 he sat in his 26-by-44-foot living room looking at the $20,000 carpet covering the floor. He made a rapid calculation. Interest on what he owes the government has brought his debt to above the $1,700,000 mark in 10 years.

"It figures," he said, "Interest at $200 a day."

He paused.

"Make that $220 a day," he said.

The government is going to sell his big home June 26 at auction. They notified Lewis and his wife yesterday to get out June 25.

The old-time gambler can get only a little bit of work now and then at California race tracks.

He and his wife are looking for a small apartment in nearby San Rafael.

"You've got to take things as good as you can," he mused, looking at his $2,500 television set. "If you let it get you down, you're dead."

Normal Medical Philosophy To Be Abandoned

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The American Society of X-Ray Technicians was told yesterday that an A-bomb attack, or other mass disaster, must change physician's normal medical philosophy.

The speaker was Dr. Paul North of Dallas.

"With enormous numbers of casualties, those with minor injuries would get No. 1 priority. . . . We would have to give first attention to those with minor injuries, who could be helped quickly and put back into the community to help others," he said.

Dr. North said second priority should go to people whose lives can be saved or a long illness averted, by quick emergency measures.

Last to be treated, he said, would be persons with extensive burns, or head injuries requiring long operations and careful nursing, or open chest wounds requiring surgery.

Three Cases Head For Superior Court Trial

Three cases cleared this week from the docket of Pitt County Recorder's Court will be heard in Superior Court.

Two of the cases went to the higher court on appeal and the other was transferred so that a jury might hear evidence. The notice of appeal was entered by John Braxton, 42-year-old Negro of Route 2, Greenville, after he was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (a pistol), possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Judge Dink James ordered Braxton to serve six months in jail, after finding the Negro man guilty of the charges which were consolidated for the trial. Braxton's notice of appeal was allowed under $600 bond set by Judge James.

The case transferred to Superior Court for a jury trial is one in which Isabelle Barnhill Gurganus of Route 3, Bethel, is charged with speeding.

Three defendants in other speeding cases were ordered to pay court costs and surrender their driver's licenses for ten days. They are Darrel Wayne Hurst, Ayden, who was also charged with improper use of a dealer's license; Robert Wayne Joyner, Route 2, Farmville; and Durwood Tyson Little, Route 2, Farmville.

Eugene Arnold Swindell of Washington, N. C. was ordered to pay $25 and costs, and his driver's license was suspended for six months after he pleaded guilty to speeding 85 miles-per-hour.

Elijah Braxton of Route 5, Greenville, pleaded guilty to speeding with a truck and was ordered to pay costs. A similar charge, plus a charge of driving on the wrong side of the road, against Joe Frank Barrett of Rt. 2, Greenville, resulted in an order for Barrett to pay costs and surrender his driver's license for 15 days.

Nol pros with leave was taken by Solicitor James C. Lanier Jr. in each of four other cases involving motor vehicle law violations. Defendants in the cases are Fred Daniels, Negro, Side Street, Greenville, no operator's license; Homer R. Randolpr, Fort Bragg, speeding; Cecil Edward Bradshaw, 820 East Fourth Street, speeding; and Joe Reginal Wilson, 106-A "B" Street, Greenville, speeding, and careless and reckless driving.

Lena May Sutton, Route 1, Falson, entered a plea of guilty in absentia to a charge of speeding and was ordered to pay $25, costs deducted, and surrender her driver's license for ten days.

Verdicts of not guilty were returned by Judge James in each of three charges of issuing worthless checks against Carl Blount, a Negro laborer of Farmville.

In one of two larceny cases heard, James Highsmith, Negro, Route 5, Greenville, was given six months in jail, suspended upon payment of court costs and $45 for the use and benefit of John Garris Jr., prosecuting witness. Highsmith was charged with larceny of mule feed and gasoline.

In the other larceny case heard, Tom Lyons, a Negro of Route 2, Greenville, entered a plea of guilty to public drunkeness. When the plea was accepted, Judge James ordered Lyons to pay court costs.

Airmen Assisting Flood-Fighters

PERU, Ind. (AP)—Airmen from Bunker Hill AFB manned a thin line of workers today in a battle to save the homes of a thousand Peru residents from the raging Wabash River.

The river lapped at the second tier of a narrow three-tier wall of sandbags on top of the flood-wall protecting the south side section of the city.

It leveled off soon after midnight, just over 23 feet.

The river was falling at the city of Wabash, 14 miles upstream, and the tributary Mississinewa, pouring its flood into the Wabash just above Peru, was falling at Marion.

The south side of Peru was a ghost town, its thousand residents evacuated to emergency quarters across the river. It was empty except for a few police and the airmen sandbagging weak spots in the flood wall.

Water trickled through the wall and the sandbag barrier and wells up in yards and in the streets behind the wall.

Emergency quarters for the evacuees were set up in the Baptist, Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian churches and the Peru High School gymnasium.

On the north side, water covered the tracks in the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad yards, including the main line from Chicago to Cincinnati. Trains ran at reduced speed.

Serious flooding was threatened as far downstream as Terre Haute as the runoff from three days of cloudbursts in central Indiana poured down from the tributaries. Dozens of families were driven from their homes in river cities.

Music Director

James H. Parnell has been named Director of Music at St. James Methodist Church.

An assistant professor in the Music Department of East Carolina College, Parnell holds degrees from Florida State University and Cleveland Institute of Music. He joined the East Caroina faculty in 1956. Parnell replaces Robert Gibbons, St. James Director of Music since 1953, who left this week.

Brighter Side To His Arrests

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — County Attorney J. Howard Edmondson is accustomed to letters from irate citizens but he got the surprise of his life when he read a letter from the wife of a traffic offender.

The wife thanked officials for arresting her husband and noted it was the "cheapest insurance I have that my husband will return home safely." She added that every traffic ticket reminds her truck-driver husband "he has been flirting with death."

Railways in India consume about one-third of the coal produced in that country.

Leg Amputated So He Could Sit

DUNSMUIR, Calif. (AP)—Tony Welch, 19, who was awarded $206,804 damages from the Dunsmuir High School District for a 1955 football injury, has had his right leg amputated, his father Cecil Welch said today.

Tony was injured in a game with Enterprise High School of Redding, Calif. The father, a railroad conductor, said Tony wanted the leg amputated so he could sit up in a wheel chair. He said the leg was paralyzed in such a position his son couldn't sit.

Army's Missile Nears Activating

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Army was a step closer to activating the nations first ballistic missile today after the latest apparently successful launching of a Redstone rocket.

The 63-foot Redstone, the most highly developed ballistic weapon in the U.S. arsenal, roared into space last night.

The Army says the Redstone has undergone more successful tests than any other large missile. This is the rocket that the Army hopes will be deployed in the field in the very near future—possibly late next month.

Designed as a highly mobile field artillery weapon, the Redstone has a range of about 250 miles. It can be moved quickly over great distances and fired in the field in a relatively short time.

Specially trained troops from the Armys 40th Field Artillery Missile group fired the missile for the first time May 17. The Army announced then that the accomplishment marked the beginning of the missiles operational phase.

A modified version of the Redstone played a key role in launching two Explorer satellites into orbit as the first stage vehicle for the Jupiter-C rocket.

SLIGHT OVERDRIVE

MONROE, Wis. (AP) — Voting was so light in the spring election that one rural resident dropped into the polls and stayed almost all afternoon chatting with members of the election board. When he finally left it was discovered he had forgotten to cast his vote.

'Maverick' Star Feels Humor In The Old West

Editor's Note—The author of this column is the star of ABC-TV's Maverick program.

By JAMES GARNER

NEW YORK (AP) — When I pause to think of the rich vein of humor the Maverick scripters have tapped to make the series a superior TV product, I'm amazed that most Western historians treated the post-Civil War period like a wake.

We'd been led to believe that 1870 frontiersmen generally had an almost fanatical aversion to any type of humor other than a practical joke. Our silent screen Westerns reflected this mistaken premise; so the kids grew up with the idea that Tom Mix, Bill Hart and Hoot Gibson were nurtured on undistilled sour mash.

Our producer, Roy Huggins, a Phi Beta Kappa with enviable writing credits and considerable skill as a researcher, couldn't go along with the theory. Asked at the outset for a terse slogan for the series, he said: "An adult Western—with humor."

With that thought as a starting point, the writing craft was combed for dramatic writers gifted with humor—in distinction to comedy writers noted for building joke routines.

Actors? Well, all I can say is that I'm horribly miscast as Bret and Jack Kelly is a misfit as Bart if they were looking for performers to deliver the melancholy subtleties of psychological drama. We ain't the types.

It would be grossly unfair to any writer for me to take a hunk of his dialogue out of context to illustrate his over-all skill as a humorist, but instances do come sharply to mind to show, generally, the line of thought that bears fruit after Huggins has given a Maverick assignment to a writer.

As I write this, we're putting the finishing touches on a Maverick dubbed "The Day they Hanged Bret Maverick," and I hasten to add that the title doesn't denote the demise of the series. Quite the opposite: It'll probably be the opening show for the new fall series over an expanded ABC-TV network of stations.

I'd be drawn and quartered if I gave away the plot of "Hanged," but I can assure you that the script by Douglas Heyes is well-larded with sardonic humor. In one of the early shots, Maverick, the card expert, awaiting his execution in a moldy cell, is calmly cheating at solitaire. That's what you might term a "twist." I'm sure our 1870 frontier ancestors resorted to off-beat or shaggy dog humor. It was the historians who took themselves seriously.

Opposes 'Stunts' In Space Study

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The head of the California Institue of Technology says he opposes stunts such as splashing red paint on the moon.

Dr. Lee A. DuBridge told the American Rocket Society last night: "If the hue and cry for getting a man in space soon should prevail, then the potential effort available for important scientific programs would be lessened.

I would hope that the first man who loses his life in space exploration will lose it on a purposeful mission rather than on a stunt flight.

We can get more knowledge for our limited supply of dollars if we keep our heads, and if we keep the control of the program in the hands of American scientists."

Daily Visits To Grave Ordered

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—Challon Robertson, 22, failed to yield the right of way May 4 at a local intersection and his car collided with another, killing 3 year-old Debbie Waggoner.

For the next 30 days Robertson must daily visit Debbie's grave, where Police Justice William Roach said he "should do some mighty serious considering."

The alternative for the farm worker was 30 days in jail.

BIKE FAN

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—El Estes, 43, isn't worried about the problem of keeping up two automobiles. He leaves the family car with his wife and rides a bicycle 10 miles to work every day—and the 20 miles of pedling is good exercise. Estes, YMCA membership secretary, says he also enjoys the scenery more than when riding in the car.

Eggs — Prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte slightly higher, large 38; prices paid producers on graded out basis: Asheville steady, A large 34 to 36, mostly 36.

NEW YORK (AP) — A flurry of oils helped improve the tone of a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Gains and losses of key stocks went from fractions to about a point.

Rails backed away slightly from their solid gains of yesterday as Wall Streeters commented that aid to the industry voted by the Senate fell short of what the carriers say they need.

Coppers also backed away from their recent advance on the administration's stockpile proposal and the higher prices for the red metal.

Steels, aircrafts, some chemicals and tobaccos did better than they did early in the session. The market opened higher but soon turned sluggish and irregular. Turnover increased as prices firmed.

Kern County Land added more than a point to its 2⅜ rise of yesterday. Gulf Oil and Texas Co. also moved forward a point or better. Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Royal Dutch added sizable fractions.

Pennecott and Anaconda dropped fractions. American Smelting was steady. International Nickel edged ahead.

Small losses were taken by Illinois Central, Santa Fe and Baltimore & Ohio. Chesapeake & Ohio got narrowly on the plus side.

Lorillard's string of gains broke as the stock dropped more than a point in apparent profit taking. U. S. Tobacco advanced a point or so. American Tobacco was up a major fraction.

Boeing was up about a point. Douglas Aircraft was firm.

General Motors slipped ⅛ at 38 on a large 13,000-share block. Chrysler and Ford were steady. American Motors rose a little.

Republic Steel eaked out a small gain. Bethlehem and U.S. Steel were firm.

American Telephone, Radio Corp. and United Air Lines were small gainers.

Just Now Serve Prison Sentence

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A girl whose free-giving sales career foundered on an embezzlement conviction here last year will have to serve the sentence for it.

Judge Will J. Pless of Mecklenburg Superior Court revoked the suspension of 18-year-old Dixie Craver's one-to-two-year sentence yesterday upon notification that a Cabarrus County court convicted her Monday of drunkenness.

Miss Craver had been charged with giving away department store merchandise while employed here.

Big Farm Home Week Concluded

RALEIGH (AP) — The annual Farm Home Week at North Carolina State College came to a close today with Home Demonstration Federation Day.

Principal speakers were Mrs. V. I. Hockaday, 1st vice president of the Home Demonstration Federation, and President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

The final event of the week-long program was a tea at the governor's mansion.

Leadership achievement awards were presenteed last night to 12 outstanding home demonstration club women. They were: Mrs. Wade H. Lee, Anson County; Mrs. Worth Rich, Pender; Mrs. Theta Barnard, Clay; Mrs. Paul Robinson, Haywood; Mrs. C. F. McIntyre, Nash; Mrs. Woodrow Taylor, Lenoir, Mrs. Joe Chaney, Union; Mrs. Stewart Shuford, Caldwell; Mrs. J. P. Morgan, Currituck; Mrs. Johnny Meadowsp Onslow; Mrs. D. L. Zicafosse, Person; and Mrs. H. D. Robertson, Forsyth.

Approximately 900 rural Tar Heel women who attended yesterday's session were told that push button housecleaning is a thing of the future.

Alvis S. Proctor of the public relations department of the Du Pont company also said, "It's even predicted that a whisk of air will clean and dry the fishes in three minutes."

Radiation, Aging Links Sought

DURHAM (AP) — Is there a firm connection between effects produced by radiation and by normal aging processes?

Fifteen scientists meet here today to discuss this question under sponsorship of the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Inconference also will discuss the value of experimental radiation of animals as a research tool to study aging.

Sputnik III Rocket Is To Be Visible In State

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Timetable data for visible passages of the rocket carrier Sputnik III for the next few days was released last night by the Smithsonian astrophysical observatory.

Scientists said the Soviet moon is traveling in a south-southwest to north-northwest direction about 130 miles high in its morning passages.

The schedule (all times Estern Daylight)

Friday, June 13 — First passage crossing the East Coast from central Florida to New Jersey at 5:09 a.m. disappearing over southern New Jersey three minutes later.

Second passage — Southwest New Mexico at 6:53 a.m. to northeast Colorado in two minutes.

Saturday, June 14 — First passage southern Arkansas at 5:35 a.m. to southern Michigan in three minutes.

Second passage — Los Angeles area at 7:20 a.m. to northern Utah in two minutes.

Sunday, June 15—First passage off Cape Hatteras at 4:16 a.m. to Eastport, Maine, area in three minutes, cutting off Cape Cod about 4:17 a.m.

Second passage—Oklahoma Panhandle at 6:01 a.m. to Southern Minnesota in three minutes.

Third passage—Off central California coast at 7:46 a.m. to central Oregon in three minutes.

Monday, June 16 — First passage west central West Virginia at 4:42 a.m. to northern New England states two minutes later.

Second passage — Western Colorado at 6:27 a.m. to northern South Dakota in two minutes.

Scientists said the rocket carrier should be visible about 250 miles on either side of its path.

Reciprocal Trade Bill Is Hitting Snag In Knowland

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's House-passed reciprocal trade agreements program hit a snag in the Senate Republican leadership today.

In the face of a lop-sided 317-98 House vote yesterday to continue presidential control over tariffs for five years, Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) announced he will back a move to reduce the extension to three years. The House rejected a two-year limit.

However, Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, said that while he reserves the right to support other amendments to the House bill he believes the Senate eventually will pass a measure "generally satisfactory" to Eisenhower.

The bill would give Eisenhower authority to reduce U.S. tariffs on imports as much as 25 per cent over the five-year period in return for similar concessions by other countries on U.S. exports.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, traditionally a supporter of the trade program, said the House bill will be given top priority in the Senate.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) asked the Senate Finance Committee to set hearings, probably beginning next week.

While most interested senators regarded the House measure as a boundary beyond which the Senate would not go in permitting tariff reductions, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) said he will try to reduce the amount which tariffs could be raised under the bill in cases where imports are found to be adversely affecting locally produced merchandise.

Sens. Edward Martin (R - Pa) and John J. Williams (R - Del), members of the Finance Committee, said they are not happy about it but will go along with the five-year extension. Martin forecast committee action to "tighten up some of the provisions of the bill to prevent ruinous competition with U.S. industries."

Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R - Maine) said he will offer amendments to provide for import quotas on some items. Sen. Edward J. Thye (R-Minn) promised "complete support" for the program. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R - Mass) predicted passage of a "satisfactory" bill.

Nearly 1,250 Attend Bible Schools

MUSIC PERIOD FOR NURSERY DEPARTMENT STUDENTS... At Greenville Free Will Baptist Church Vacation Bible School

Nearly 1,250 Greenville youngsters, out of their public school classrooms for less than two weeks, are still involved in learning situations — as participants in Vacation Bible Schools in ten local churches.

The learning process for them essentially the same, but study material emphasis has shifted from the three R's to Bible topics. Their whole course of study during the one- and two-week periods when the schools operate are grouped around study themes from the Bible.

Largest of the Bible School groups is at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church where nearly 200 children have been meeting daily since Monday. They will complete their work tomorrow morning and commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the church. Mrs. Bill Taylor is director of the school which has five departments ranging from nursery to junior high school.

Smallest group is at St. Paul's Episcopal Church were an average of 45 children attend daily classes. Miss Carolyn Clapp is director of the school, first to be held at the church in several years. The students, who range from kindergarten through sixth grade, will complete their week of study tomorrow.

Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church has divided its school into morning and evening sessions to accomodate the 120 students enrolled. Many of the older children (seventh, eighth and ninth graders) who attend the evening sessions assist adult teachers in the morning classes for students who are at least four years old and up to 13 or 14. Mrs. L. C. Powell, Jr., and Mrs. D. B. Shackleford are co-directors of the school.

Six days of Bible study at Arlington Street Baptist Church will be concluded tomorrow by 102 students. Mrs. Carolyn Howard is director of the school which is divided into five departments, the same number set up for Memorial Baptist Church where Mrs. Claude S. Kidd is director of activities for 155 children. Memorial Baptist's program will be completed Sunday evening at 7:30 with commencement exercises for the participants.

The Rev. Irby Jackson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, is director of that church's Bible School which has four departments for 123 children. Study at Immanuel will be completed tomorrow morning, as will that at St. James Methodist Church where 119 children and 24 adult teachers have been participating in classes supervised by Mrs. Edna Quinn. St. James' group will have a picnic at noon tomorrow and promotion exercises tomorrow night.

Bible Schools at the First Presbyterian Church, Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and Grace Free Will Baptist Church are slated to continue into next week. The Presbyterian school will be completed Wednesday for 125 participants who are working in four departments under supervision of Mrs. Dink James. Jarvis Memorial's school will continue through the week for 100 children in three departments who are being directed by the church's Director of Religious Education, Nancy White.

About 160 children have been attending classes which opened Monday at Grace Free Will Baptist Church. Mrs. Samuel Johnson is director of the group which has been divided into nine classes.

In addition to the Greenville churches, many churches in the county's other towns and rural areas are conducting the study courses.

Boys Staters To Hold Elections

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — High school youths attending the annual Boys' State here will nominate state officials tonight at a mock state convention.

On todays program were speeches by federal and state criminal investigators and other state officials.

Included were Walter F. Anderson, director of the State Bureau of Investigation; M. P. Chiles, special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office; J. Melville Broughton, chairman of the State Highway Commission; and Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer.

The 371 youngsters were told yesterday North Carolina is not ready for integration.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll made the remark during a question and answer session.

He also said the public school system touches more people more often than any other state agency.

Regarding television classes, Dr. Carroll said, "TV helps enrich and strengthen but I doubt that it can substitute for regular teaching."

Othe speakers were assistant director Ed Kirk of the State Conservaion and Development Deparment, and Dr. Ellen Winston, state commissioner of public welfare.
