White Sauce Useful

RALEIGH—Call it useful, versatile or thrifty, call it the good cook's standby for many plain and fancy dishes, call it basic, call it nutritious . . . you'll be right on all counts if you're referring to white sauce, according to Jo Earp, nutritionist for the N. C. Agr. cultural Extension Service.

One of the special advantages of this widely used sauce is that it helps get more milk into family meals. White sauce is basic for cream soups and creamed vegetables, meat, poultry, eggs or fish. It's basic for many scalloped dishes, souffles, casseroles and croquettes. It's thrifty because it's an inexpensive and appetizing way to extend food—make food "go farther," or to combine several leftovers in one attractive dish.

White sauce also is the basis of other popular sauces — cheese sauce, egg sauce, pimiento sauce, or vanilla sauce for puddings or other desserts.

To save time in making this useful sauce, Miss Earp suggests making up a basic mix to store in your refrigerator. A mix of nonfat dry milk, flour, salt, and butter or margarine has been tested by the Institute of Home Economics and found a time saver for school lunch cooks and home

Noted Dancer Says Ballet Best Reducer

By RAY SHAW

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Bothered about that extra weight here and there?

If you're a woman, Mme. Alexandra Danilova, one of the world's top prima ballerinas, suggests that you take up ballet. If not, get out in the yard and do some gardening.

The classical ballet movements, in the dancer's opinion, "are the best exercise for a woman's body." She says she believes every ballet theater should have special classes for women who want to keep slender, if not to learn the ballet.

"A woman may go to the studio once a week, but she must also do her exercises daily. Every woman who really looks well, exercises. It is boring, but one must do it."

"Very seldom is a woman born a goddess—and she can always improve herself."

Mme. Danilova, although retired from the stage, retains her 110-pound weight and a firm, young figure with long, slender legs.

She started dancing in Russia when she was eight, was a member of the Ballet Russe de Monte Durham. Wearing a navy and green cotton print with white accessories and using the orchid from her prayer book, the bride and bridegroom left for wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va. and Asheville where the bridegroom will be ordained as a Baptist minister in the Asheville First Baptist Church June 18.

The couple will reside at 720 15th Street, Durham, following their wedding trip.

Reception Mrs. J. J. Carroll, Mrs. Coley Stanley, Mrs. John Cheek and Mrs. Tyree Buck were hostesses at a reception following the wedding at the bride's home for the bridal couple and out-of-town guests.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Helen Vogler, Mrs. and Mrs. Clifford T. Norman, Mrs. W. C. Allred, the Rev. and Mrs. Paul M. Reese, Miss Sara Reese, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Myers, Miss Jeannie Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Rose, Mr. and Mrs. George Lanning, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garrison and Mrs. James Campbell, all of Winston-Salem.

Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Hensley, Mrs. W. R. Hensley of Asheville, the Rev. and Mrs. Jeffrey Melvin, Miss Louise Garrards, Mrs. Melbert Smith, and Miss Carol Smith, all of Durham; Mrs. W. H. Laughlinhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Peele of Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Summers, Mrs. Wallace W. Summers, Mrs. Shirley Summers of Gibsonville; Mr. and Mrs. Graham Anderson of Charlotte; and Mr. and Mrs. James Webster of Leaksville.

Wedding Breakfast The Hensley-Carroll wedding party and out-of-town guests were honored at a wedding breakfast Saturday by Mrs. Ronald Carroll, Mrs. Warren Carroll, and Miss Trilby Smith.

Of focal interest were arrangements of white flowers in green epergnes.

FALKLAND—Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Wooten entertained the Forrest Wooten bridal party and out-of-town guests and close friends at their home immediately following the rehearsal on Saturday evening. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Wooten and Miss Wooten and Mr. Forrest.

The home was decorated throughout with pink and white summer flowers and lighted white tapers tied with pink ribbon and white feverfew and roses in epergnes.

On one end of the table was a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Punch was served from the opposite side end of the table to approximately 60 guests. Salted nuts, mints, cheese straws and sandwiches were also served.

The dining room mantel was centered with an arrangement of white feverfew, gladioli, larkspur and baby's breath. On each end were three branch silver candelabras with white burning tapers tied with pink ribbon and with ivy entwined through them.

An arrangement of magnolias was placed on a marble top table in the hall and roses and feverfew throughout the home.

Children Enjoy Bathing Privacy

Even a two-year-old can take his own bath, without mother's butting in. Child-experts advise mothers to encourage independence, even at this early age. Turn on the bath water, make sure that it's the right temperature, and lay a non-skid mat on the bottom of the tub. Put soap, a washcloth, and a clean bath towel within easy reach.

Lend a helping hand as your toddler climbs into the tub. Then GO OUT OF THE BATHROOM and let Junior enjoy his own bath. Be sure, of course, to stay nearby and to peek frequently. Just let him feel that he's lathering up by himself. He'll enjoy it more—and this psychology goes for sister, too.

Carlito from 1938 to 1951, and inherited the title of "Madame" at the death of the famous Anna Pavlova.

Mme. Danilova joined the staff of the American Ballet Theatre in New York, and is spending several weeks here at the theatre's branch school.

She believes that every woman should garden—plant flowers, weed and cut grass, because—"These exercises are very good for the stomach."

The pert ballerina admires the American home with all its conveniences. But these mean less physical exercise, she says, and more chance of gaining weight.

A housewife must remain attractive to her husband, or lose him, Madame Danilova believes. Says she: "Love is like an orchid and needs care. If one side doesn't care—it disappears."

June Dairy Month is being observed in a big way in SURRY County, according to Assistant Home Agent Tennielean Hill.

Four-H members are helping by giving dairy foods demonstrations at home demonstration clubs and civic organizations, while 4-H girls can be seen in uniform operating milk dispensers on Mount Airy streets on Saturdays. These energetic 4-H'ers are also helping stage a miking contest in Elkin and Mount Airy.

Annabel T. Powers, CHATHAM assistant home agent, reports that 4-H club members are showing a great deal of interest in learning how to arrange flowers for their homes and churches, and how to select the best containers and condition the flowers. Pittsboro young 4-H club members, after seeing a demonstration, wanted the left-over flowers so they could "show our teacher what we have learned."

Fifteen COLUMBUS County home demonstration club members certainly feel they know just about everything about first aid—all as a result of earning certificates for the Red Cross First Aid course taught by Home Agent Earline Gibson. Proud of their accomplishments, these women are: Mrs. Eula Jane Fowler Lewis, Mrs. Edwanda W. Cartrette, Mrs. Ruby Wright, Mrs. Hilda Wright, Mrs. Daisy Hewett, Mrs. Mona C. Wright, Mrs. Gracie Watts, Mrs. Retha Adams, Mrs. Marguerite Shaw, Mrs. Ruby Norris, Mrs. Nellie Watts, Mrs. Muriel Norris, Mrs. Belle Norris, and Mrs. Ressie Norris.

Small Boats Bill Heading For Fray

Congressman Herbert Bonner of the First Congressional district has won the latest round of the locked-horns battle between him and his neighboring Congressman Graham Barden of New Bern over the matter of licensing of small boats.

Bonner's bill, bottled up by the House Rules Committee at Barden's request, has now cleared that committee and will go to the floor of the House where Barden has vowed to fight it tooth and nail.

After an exhaustive study last year by the House Fisheries and Merchant Marine Committee of the boating situation in the United States, Rep. Bonner introduced a bill which would require the licensing of all boats under 16 feet in length powered by a motor larger than five horsepower. Existing regulations already require the licensing of larger power boats.

The proposed legislation would provide the Coast Guard with at least some control over the operation of the rapidly increasing number of small pleasure boats in use. It would make a major contribution to water safety and at the same time would work no hardship on anyone.

In the past few years, as was pointed out in the investigation by Rep. Bonner's committee, the number of small boats in use has grown fantastically. Manufacturers of boating and marine equipment were quick to point out to the committee the need for licensing and regulating the use of these craft. Representatives of boating organizations and clubs were also in favor of greater safety measures.

The need for Rep. Bonner's bill is apparent. It is likewise apparent that unless some steps are taken the number of water tragedies will jump by leaps and bounds.

Rep. Bonner's bill is a sound approach to the situation. The bill merits the support of members of the House and the Senate in order that it may be written into law.

Prison Camp Escapes Become Growing Issue

Events of the past few months indicate that North Carolina officials should waste no time in taking a good look at the state's system of prison farms with an eye to reducing the number of escapes.

A rash of escapes by convicts has plagued the prisons system. A number of guards have been suspended and others have been fired because of the escapes of convicts. Countless hours have been spent by prison officials and law enforcement officers in tracking down the number of escapes, many of whom are still at large.

The unusually large number of escapes from the state's prison farms poses a serious question. What is happening to the guard system?

Has morale among prison guards reached a level where some guards don't tend to their jobs as they should?

Are prisoners finding it easier to induce guards to let them escape?

Have changes in the system of operations made it easier for prisoners to slip away?

Certainly there must be some reason behind the rash of successful escape attempts. Whatever it is, it may well apply to prison farms throughout the state because the rash of escapes has not been confined to any one prison farm or any one general area.

The state's top prison officials should come up with an answer, and soon. Otherwise an already serious situation could become critical.

New Vocational School Project

By LYNN NISBET
VOCATIONAL — The public school system is launching a new program in vocational education this fall. J. Warren Smith, director of vocational education, and Wade Martin, his chief assistant, are very happy about the progress in establishing the Industrial Educational Centers authorized by the 1957 General Assembly. That is the official designation of the units more commonly known as area technical vocational training schools.

The Legislature appropriated half a million dollars to be used in establishing centers in communities which could show need for them and willingness to cooperate. It also provided for the State Board of Education to allocate funds for their operation. Forty-three communities made application for the schools. The State Board of Education analyzed the data submitted and decided that 18 should be approved. The Budget Bureau authorized establishment of seven—this authorization based on the showing that the communities already have or will provide necessary buildings.

In nearly every instance participation is by both city and county school administrative units, and in some cases neighboring counties are joining in the program. The schools will be located in population centers, and will be administered by the local administrative unit. The seven authorized centers are: Rockingham county and Leaksville; Guilford-Greensboro-High Point; Alamance-Burlington; Durham-Durham; Wilson-Wilson; Wayne-Goldsboro and New Hanover county.

The 11 board approved, but not budget authorized, are: Buncombe-Asheville; Catawba-Newton-Hickory; Gaston-Gastonia-Cherryville; Mecklenburg-Chapel Hill; Forsyth-Winston-Salem; Davidson-Lexington-Thomasville; Randolph-Asheboro; Lee-Sanford; Cumberland-Lenoirville; Wake-Raleigh and Fayette-Kinross.

OPERATION — The building at Leaksville is ready for occupancy and a large part of the equipment has been installed. It is expected that this center will open with the fall school term in September. The Guilford project will get into partial operation before Christmas. The schools at Burlington, Durham, Wilson, Goldsboro and Wilmington will be activated as rapidly as buildings and equipment are ready, all of them expected to be in operation before the end of 1959.

Timing for the other 11 approved units will depend upon availability of buildings and perhaps upon further legislative appropriation. Their fate may depend to some extent upon the success of the first centers to be operated.

The idea of area or regional technical education centers is not new, although it is just coming into acceptance by North Carolina. A number of other states have had the program for a long time. North Carolina is profiting from their experiences. Conclusions reached from visiting other states and studying procedures have convinced Dr. Smith and his associates that the best plan is for the State to pay the bill for instruction and to have large supervision over the curricula, for the community to pay for buildings and physical equipment, and for local public school units to have major responsibility for administration. In other words, to operate these industrial education centers just like the public school system.

ADAPTABLE — While these industrial educational centers will be an integral part of the public school system, under supervision of the State Board of Education and the Department of Public Instruction, the courses of study will be very flexible and adapted to the needs of the area served by each center.

The curriculum in the Guilford center, for example, will include courses for electronic, furniture and hosiery workers, which might not be needed at Wilmington where the courses would be for other items. Furthermore, the student bodies will not be limited to high school pupils or persons located in population centers, and will be administered by the local administrative unit. The seven authorized centers are: Rockingham county and Leaksville; Guilford-Greensboro-High Point; Alamance-Burlington; Durham-Durham; Wilson-Wilson; Wayne-Goldsboro and New Hanover county.

Trend Aganist Conservatives

By RALPH ROBNEY

It is still too early for definite forecasts on the outcome of next November's elections, but there is almost endless discussion about the political prospects. Consensus at present is that, unless something is done, Conservativeism is on the verge of the worst defeats in many years.

Note that we say "Conservative," not Republicans or Democrats. The reason for this terminology is that some of the best Conservatives are Democrats, and some of the more extreme so-called liberals are Republicans.

Among reasons for this pessimism on the Conservative outlook, first place probably must be given to the recession. Among the New-Fair Dealers no opportunity is missing to blame the current business downturn upon the Eisenhower Administration. The "liberal" Republicans are not quite so outspoken in this regard, but many of them have little good to say for the Administration, and especially for the manner in which it handled the problems arising from the recession.

The same song is being sung by many others. Leon Keyserling, President Truman's Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Robert Nathan, of the Americans for Democratic Action, are two cases in point. Many labor leaders, of whom Walter Reuther is one example, are joining in the refrain. Apparently a substantial proportion of the people are working on the Administration did not cause the recession. Neither did the Federal Reserve Board, which frequently is charged with having brought on the downturn by its money policy. And neither can be justly criticized for having failed to try to meet the problem.

The fact is that the Eisenhower Administration did not cause the recession. Neither did the Federal Reserve Board, which frequently is charged with having brought on the downturn by its money policy. And neither can be justly criticized for having failed to try to meet the problem. The fact is that the Eisenhower Administration did not cause the recession. Neither did the Federal Reserve Board, which frequently is charged with having brought on the downturn by its money policy. And neither can be justly criticized for having failed to try to meet the problem.

A second reason for the Conservative pessimism is that labor leaders, the job, although the Democratic National Committee does a great victory and are working the highways and byways to assure it. On the other hand, the more conservative element is inclined to take it easy and there has been a considerable number of Conservative members in the Congress who have announced they will not run for re-election. The reasons given for these withdrawals have ranged over a wide area, but in quite a few cases it is believed the real reason is a conviction that the trend toward conservatism is so strong they would have little or no chance of re-election.

A third reason is along the same line. It is the belief, widely held, that the trend is definitely away from conservatism and no one who does not support the liberal program has a chance here on. There is no real basis for this belief, but it is exerting an enormous influence on current thinking.

A fourth reason is the recent primary in California. It had been widely recognized that Knowland would not have an easy walk-away in that election, but it had not been expected that the Democrats would show anything like the strength they did. Certainly there are various explanations for the Democratic showing. Among them, however, do not change the result. Neither do they provide too much ground for hope in the November election.

A final reason needs to be mentioned. American business managers as a whole are on the conservative side. Over the past two or three years they have become more and more disturbed by the policies being followed in Washington. The concern may not have been justified, but it has been real.

Does this mean that the Conservative cause is lost and that it is inevitable that the next Congress be more to the left than the present one? Not necessarily. At present those taking the affirmative side of this question appear to have the better of the argument. But it still is a fairly long time until November, and if the believers in the conservative point of view get out and work in politics as labor leaders are working, there is no reason for the complexion of the next Congress to shift further to the left. Money will not do the job, although that is essential, and business firms, under the law, cannot do the job. This is a task for individuals, thousands and thousands of them. There is plenty to do, and plenty who know what needs to be done. The outcome will depend upon whether there is enough determination to keep this nation on a path which is sound politically, economically, and ideologically.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE IS JUST NATURALLY HAPPY

A man remarks casually in conversation that he neither drank, smoked, nor gambled. "Heavens above," cried a listener, "how do you manage to get any satisfaction out of life?" And the reply was, "I live it." It is one of the most incredible facts that many people fail to see that life has all sorts of joys and satisfactions as part of its built-in equipment. We don't have to lug in a lot of outside things to make life happy. Life is just a shock-full of potential happiness. To be sure, it is in the potential state; it is up to us to actualize it. But all the possibilities are there. The truly happy people are those who realize ize this and spend their time living life to its utter fullness and so finding it a thrilling experience.

For instance, the natural world round about us is full of wonders which not only gladden the eye, but give a real thrill to body and mind. Daily contacts with people can be — with all their disappointments — a source of continual comfort and joy. The truly successful designer person is the very rare exception.

When it comes to the rearing of a family and the continual interest they arouse in their development and outreach, then we behold earthly joys at their highest — yes, at their highest, even though the joy may be thickly interlarded with trials and grief.

Bigger Public Debts

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — There is now much talk about tax cuts. Some say they are overdue, regardless of recession. Certainly, the time has come to give small business more attention.

DEFICIT FINANCING NOW MEANS CONFISCATION LATER — so many governmental expenses constantly mounting, whether for national defense, for domestic welfare, or for various economic subsidies, "something's gotta give." We are sure that so long as we are in an arms race with Russia, the "giving" will not be in the vast expenditures for Explorers and Vanguarders for atomic submarines. I also fear that any party which advocates belt-tightening in domestic welfare measures could not be placed in office in the next election.

The above means deficit financing and borrowing from the future which, if ever paid, will be tantamount to a tax cut. It is repudiate the borrowings, as was done when we went off the gold standard in 1932. This would surely lead to further inflation — clipping the currency and reducing the purchasing power of the dollar.

IMPORTANCE OF A JUST BALANCE

Various adjustments will be made in the attempt to restore a fair balance between vital economic segments. In this connection, the organized movement to keep government out of small competitive businesses in existence has been gathering momentum for 50 years, after a period of great overconcentration in big business even to the point of monopoly.

When the economic machinery goes into a tailspin, unemployment, inflation, and depression are the large industries. The small businesses, especially the 95 per cent of firms which employ 20 or fewer people, operate on a minimum of workers and therefore cannot lay them off in times of recession.

PRaise FOR THE FEDERATION

The lack of concerted action, until recently, by organized small business (such as the National Federation of Independent Business) in the fight against inequities and discriminations to get into our tax structures. Among the shackles placed on new small business are the privileges and subsidies given to large-scale business by the government. These include research grants for defense work. Machine tools for all businesses, this artificial advantage to big business, also works to the disadvantage of smaller competitors. With their research now such a vital medium of all business, this artificial advantage to big business, also works to the disadvantage of smaller competitors. With their research now such a vital medium of all business, this artificial advantage to big business, also works to the disadvantage of smaller competitors.

OPPOSES ACROSS-THE-BOARD CUTS

Tax allowances for depletion and accelerated depreciation of material resources favor the large concerns. But no allowances are made for the depletion of human resources suffered by small owner-operators such as 14-hour-a-day storekeepers and their families. Large concerns receive fast write-offs on new machinery and equipment. A final reason needs to be mentioned. American business managers as a whole are on the conservative side. Over the past two or three years they have become more and more disturbed by the policies being followed in Washington. The concern may not have been justified, but it has been real.

Money will not do the job, although that is essential, and business firms, under the law, cannot do the job. This is a task for individuals, thousands and thousands of them. There is plenty to do, and plenty who know what needs to be done. The outcome will depend upon whether there is enough determination to keep this nation on a path which is sound politically, economically, and ideologically.

Does this mean that the Conservative cause is lost and that it is inevitable that the next Congress be more to the left than the present one? Not necessarily. At present those taking the affirmative side of this question appear to have the better of the argument. But it still is a fairly long time until November, and if the believers in the conservative point of view get out and work in politics as labor leaders are working, there is no reason for the complexion of the next Congress to shift further to the left. Lions, Pepsi-Cola First-Half Little League Champs

Second Half Play Begins Today At Elm St. Park

Minor Leagues Open Season Play Today

NORTH STATE LEAGUE
Lions	8
Jaycees	5

VFW	2
TAR HEEL LEAGUE
Pepsi-Cola	7
Elks	5
Exchange	4
Moose	2

On Little League Foundation Day at Elm Street Park, Saturday, the Pepsi-Cola defeated the Elks 6-3 and the Jaycees dumped the VFW 7-2 in a doubleheader.

The twin bill finished the first half of season play for both the North State and Tar Heel circuits. The above standings are the final statistics for the half season. The Lions topped their loop title with an undisputed 8-1 mark and the Pepsi-Cola dominated the Tar Heel loop with a 7-2 mark.

Recreation Department Official W. C. James has released the schedule for the 1958 Minor League season's first ball games.

This morning, the Giants and the Braves were to battle at 10:00 in the National League, to open the 1958 season officially. This afternoon, in American League play, the Yankees will face the Indians at 3:00.

Tomorrow morning at 10:00, the Cubs and the Dodgers will tangle and tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 the Tigers will clash with the Athletics.

All the games will be played at the Small Fry Field, located behind the Little League Field at Elm Street Park. No admission will be charged.

The Minor League teams are newly-formed, a program for boys between the ages of seven and 11.

The program is a sort of training ground for boys who hope to play Little League baseball later. On several occasions, Little League teams have had to reach down into the Minor Leagues for a boy when a Little League team member has had to move away or stop playing for some other reason.

James and some assistants will work with the Minor League program at Elm Street, both in practice and in ball games. James plans to have two ball games every day and plans to let each team play at least twice a week.

Ed Riddick, working with the Recreation Department, is working with boys of the same age at Guy Smith Stadium each morning in order to establish the same kind of league for that area of Greenville. The Guy Smith Minor League program should begin ball games within the next three weeks if enough interested boys turn out for practice. Riddick began work there this morning.

The Elks garnered all their runs in the first inning on Cain's homerun with two men on base. The Pepsi-Cola team which downed the second-place Elks 6-3, Frank Harper did the pitching chores and copped the mound victory. Maloney was the losing hurler.

The VFW picked up one run in the third inning and Calloway homered in the sixth to give them run no. two.

Daniels started on the mound for the losers and was relieved in the third by Johnston. It was Daniels' loss.

Two Weeks Of Teen-er Ball Brings Peculiar Results In Statistics

Yanks Blanked For First Time In 11 Years

By JOE REICHLER
 The Associated Press

The suddenly snarling Detroit Tigers are the hottest team in the major leagues right now, but they continue to be the enigma of the baseball world.

How can one team be so futile under one manager and so ferocious under another? It's certainly not that Jack Tighe was a bad manager, that Bill Norman, who succeeded Tighe a week ago, has been waving a magic wand.

Still, the figures are there. Under Tighe, the Tigers won 21 of 49 for a 42.9 percentage. With Norman, they've won six of seven, including a spectacular sweep of the four-game series from the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium.

Frank Lary and Jim Bunning did the pitching for Detroit yesterday as the Tigers shut out the American League leaders twice 2-0 and 3-0. Ossie Virgil, Harvey Kuenn and Gail Harris drove in the key runs in the first double shutout the Yankees have suffered in 11 years.

Charlie Maxwell, Virgil and Harris came up with spectacular defensive plays to thwart several Yankee bids.

And the Tigers, in last place a week ago, are now fifth, only two games behind second-place Boston.

Kansas City smacked Boston down in a double-header 17-6 and 4-1. Cleveland took two from Washington 5-3 and 4-2 and Chicago shut out Baltimore twice 3-0 and 4-0.

In the National League, Cincinnati downed the Chicago Cubs 7-0 and 4-2. Milwaukee defeated St. Louis 4-2. San Francisco topped Philadelphia 3-1 and Pittsburgh thrashed Los Angeles 12-1.

Not since Philadelphia's Carl Scheib and Dick Fowler hurled back-to-back shutouts on May 30, 1947, have two pitchers been able to blank the Yankees twice in one game.

Bob Cerv, Hector Lopez and Chico Carrasquel spearheaded the Athletics to their double triumph that moved them to within half a game of the Red Sox. Cerv, league leader in home runs and runs batted in, walloped his 17th homer, three triples and a pair of singles and drove in five runs in five runs to boost his RBI total to 51.

Lopez drove in four runs in the opener and two more in the second game. Carrasquel, obtained Thursday from Cleveland, had seven hits, five in the first game.

Vic Power, traded to Cleveland after the twin bill, hit safely in each game to extend his batting streak to 22 straight games. Duke Maas, traded to the Yankees, went the distance in the nightcap.

The White Sox moved out of last place behind pitchers Jim Wilson and Dick Donovan. Wilson faced a minimum of 27 batters in the opener although he gave up two singles to Baltimore. Donovan allowed seven hits.

Mickey Vernon got five hits in Cleveland's sweep over Washington. The 40-year-old first baseman hit a single, double and fifth homer and drove in two runs in the first game. In the second, Preston Ward, later traded to Kansas City, drove in two runs with a single and a home run.

Bill Topp pitched steady five-hit ball and turned hero at the plate in the 10th inning as he capped a four-bagger to give Western Michigan a 4-3 squeeze over little Lafayette. The loss eliminated Lafayette.

Southern California's southpaw ace Bruce Gardner tossed the first shutout at Arizona in 51 games as the Trojans won handily 4-0. It was Gardner's 12th victory against one defeat this season and eliminated Arizona.

PITCHING: Frank Lary and Jim Bunning, Tigers—Lary hurled a four-hitter and Bunning a five-hitter as the Tigers shut out the New York Yankees 2-0 and 3-0 for a sweep of the four-game series in Yankee Stadium.

Home Builders	4
State Bank	3
College View	1
Guaranty Bank	1

With two weeks of Teen-er League baseball already in the record books, the Home Builders hold the league-leading spot with a 4-1 record, a player of the bottom-place team is leading the circuit with a .467 batting average, and there is one protest game smoldering on the fire, waiting to be cleared up.

After grabbing a 3-0 record off in the first week of play and apparently establishing itself as the team to beat, the State Bank team ran into a protest ball game last week with the College Viewers. The protest was taken to league officials and was decided against the State Bankers. In the game, a miss-call by umpires involved a play that cost College View the ball game. The ruling on the play allowed the game to be tied in the sixth inning and League President H. N. Pelton ordered that the game be finished up at that point this week.

Home Builders grabbed the league lead by winning three ball games in a row this past week. Little Larry Roberts, working both as a starter and relief man, hurled all three victories for Terry Noble's Home Builders.

Batting Leaders
 Only a handful of batters are hitting above the .300 mark at this phase of the season. Bill Neal James, an infielder on the 1-4 Guaranty Bank club, is pacing the loop with a .467 average. He is the only player hitting above the .400 mark.

Jody Blalock's .357 is next best. Ken Allen is hitting .300 and Chappy Bradner is belting the ball at the same clip.

Don Joyner and Leo Starling are hitting at .285 and Jack Foley has a .230 average. Joe Harper and Jackie Conway have .250 marks as does David Boyd. Jimmy Jenkins has a .214 average.

Hitting 200 are Alan McArthur, Wayne Sumrell, Larry Roberts.

College Court Outfit Downs Drexelbrook 4-3

College Court All-Stars defeated the Drexelbrook All-Stars yesterday, 4-3, in an annual "neighborhood" ball game at East Carolina Stadium.

Coach Jim Mallory's College Court group outlasted the Drexelbrook team, with righthander Frank Maye doing the pitching honors. Dale Gidley was the losing hurler.

Danny Cain led the attack for the winners with a homerun and Sonny Bostic clapped out a long triple to aid the cause. Coach Mallory inserted reliever Kenneth Allen in the final two innings and Allen preserved Maye's victory. Maye had a one-run lead when he went out.

Gidley paced his club at the plate, whacking out three hits for three trips to the plate, including a long homerun over the left field wall. Travis Plangan was also an offensive standout, scoring the first Drexelbrook run.

Travis Plangan Sr. coached the losing club.

The "neighborhood" tilt is an annual ball game cooked up by local sports enthusiasts and fathers and is a sort of back-fence rivalry. The teams are made up primarily of boys who play in the regular organized channels of the City's Teen-er League or Little Leagues.

The same two teams will clash again Sunday afternoon at Elm Street Park.

It Took Him 12 Years But He Got His Crown

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
 TULSA (AP)—It took a dozen years of playing professional golf to teach Tommy Bolt the meaning of the old saying about golf being a humbling game. Once he learned that lesson, Bolt, one of the game's most controversial figures, got "what I've always wanted"—the National Open championship.

He won the title on the sweltering Southern Hills course last Saturday by playing the conservative, non-gambling kind of golf that lets the other fellow beat himself. He scored 71-71-69-71—283, three strokes over par.

Bolt likely will turn out to be the most colorful Open champion in recent years.

Bolt is 39, started on the golf tour after serving with the Army in Italy during World War II and won his first tournament in 1951.

Halfway through the tournament Bolt was just one stroke ahead of Gary Player, a 22-year-old pro from South Africa, and two ahead of Frank Stranahan, the Toledo strong man. A half dozen others, including former champion Julius Boros, former amateur champion Charlie Coe, Litter Jimmy Demaree and Hogan still were in the running at that stage.

Player, who had shot the only sub par score of the first two rounds, faded a bit on the third round, then came back to hold second place with a final 287.

Stranahan shot himself out of it with a seven on the last hole in the morning. Litter made his run at Bolt with a third round 67—the best of the tournament—but couldn't hold the pace. He wound up in fourth place at 290 while Hogan took third with a 289.

Hogan's effort to win the Open for a fifth time again was frustrated, this time by a hand injury suffered in the first round. But his 10th place tie assured him of a chance to try again without qualifying. Dearet gave up after a wretched third round in the sweltering heat and Snead didn't qualify for the last two rounds.

Dick Mayer, the defending champion, finished in a tie for 23rd place at 299. Cary Middlecoff, twice champion and loser to Mayer in a playoff last year, shot an even 300.

comeback in edging Danville. Behind 6-2, the Red Birds started turning the tide in the eighth. In the ninth Winston-Salem loaded the bases with one out. Then Galen Williams scored the winning run on a close play at the plate.

Vince Pignatello pitched Greensboro's win over Wilson and helped his own cause with a two-run homer in the second inning, and a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Games tonight: Durham at Winston-Salem, Burlington at Danville, Raleigh at Hi-Toms and Winston-Salem at Greensboro.

Two Dark Horses Clash For NCAA Championship

OMAHA (AP)—Two dark horses, Holy Cross and Missouri, meet tonight in a battle of the unbeatens in the NCAA world series of college baseball. Both showed power and steady pitching in crushing their opponents last night.

In the other games today, Western Michigan meets Clemson at 2 p.m. (CST) and Southern California plays Colorado State at 6 p.m. Each has a 1-1 record as the tourney enters its third round.

Pitcher Martin (Bo) Toft clouted a 370-foot homer, hit a sacrifice fly and had two infield singles for four RBIs as Missouri crushed Colorado State, 11-2, last night.

Larry Rancourt and Jack Ringo homered to pace a 19-hit attack against for pitchers as Holy Cross hung a 17-4 defeat on Clemson. Holy Cross entered the meet with a meager .233 team batting average.

Holy Cross put the game away in the second, scoring eight runs on two errors, four walks, three singles and Rancourt's 375 foot double.

Bill Topp pitched steady five-hit ball and turned hero at the plate in the 10th inning as he capped a four-bagger to give Western Michigan a 4-3 squeeze over little Lafayette. The loss eliminated Lafayette.

Southern California's southpaw ace Bruce Gardner tossed the first shutout at Arizona in 51 games as the Trojans won handily 4-0. It was Gardner's 12th victory against one defeat this season and eliminated Arizona.

A sound program of forestry makes provision for saplings as well as for mature trees. The economic saplings are the real "growth industries," insuring a healthy future. We must give more encouragement to accentuating the values of individual incentive. America's greatest danger is not from enemies without, but from enemies within. I have in mind too big a bureaucratic government, too big business, and too big labor.

Trainees Struck Down By Heat

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—A Saturday evening march of 110 officer training candidates resulted in five men being taken to the base hospital here suffering with heat prostration. Lt. William Bowdoin, a tactical officer, said the exercise was a normal-paced four-mile hike taking 90 minutes. It was taken in the evening after temperatures had reached 98 degrees during the day. Lt. Bowdoin identified those hospitalized as John W. Crowe, 22, Moscow, Idaho; Wilbert Carter, 23, Sumter, S.C.; Wray A. Jones, 21, Batesville, Ark.; William A. Burden, 22, Hudson, N.H.; and Jack L. Hoaglin, 22, Albion, Mich. All are members of a class of National Guardsmen undergoing officer training at this Army artillery and missile center.

North Carolina nearly three weeks. Hodges plunged immediately into Tar Heel affairs this week-end as he ended his European vacation.

At a news conference three hours after arrival, Hodges said he was encouraged by action of the North Carolina Bar Assn. in approving a study committee's report covering changes in the state's court system. "I hope some good can come out of it," the governor said. He promised to give the report extensive study in the weeks ahead. Attention to preparation of a state budget to submit to the next Legislature also will occupy his time, along with the work of study commissions which will report to the lawmakers. "I plan to cut down on my speeches and spend more time on budget requests, and other commission reports," he explained.

Living Language Died With Chief

SONORA, Calif. (AP)—The Mi-wuk Indian tongue died a living language here Saturday night in the person of William Fuller, hereditary chief of the tribe since 1888. He was 85. But Fuller, son of a white Ohio settler and a Mi-wuk chieftain's daughter, recorded the now-extinct language for a Columbia University study before his death. Fuller was born in 1873 at Bald Rock, Calif., an early Indian village where the town of Twain Harte now stands. His father Albert Fuller was a 49er miner who married Jenita, the Indian princess, and settled down after the gold rush to collect tolls along the Mono Road, which ran between Sonora, Bridgeport and the mining town of Bodie.

U. S. motor vehicles fatalities in the first quarter of 1958 resulted in 11,000 life insurance death claims for an aggregate of 28 million dollars.

His travels in France led him to believe Gen. Charles de Gaulle was the man needed there, Hodges related. He also reported he found Yugoslavia leaning to the west, but uncertain for the future. Despite attention to political situations abroad, Hodges said his trip for the most part was strictly pleasure. He was accompanied by a daughter, Mrs. D. M. Bernard of Anacortes, Wash. A visit with son Luther Hodges Jr., on duty in the Mediterranean with the U.S. Navy, also came during the trip.

Swine Meeting Slated Thursday

A swine meeting will be held at the Pitt County Court House Thursday night at 8 o'clock, Assistant County Agent C.J. Goodman announced today. All farmers interested in the growing of swine are invited to attend. "The Pitt County Livestock Program will be reviewed and plans discussed for the coming months," Goodman said. "The production and marketing of feeder pigs will be discussed. Jack Kelly and Guy Cassell, of the N.C. Extension Service will be present."

Goodman said a representative of Swift and Company will talk to the group about the new Swift plant to be located in Wilson and what it will mean to swine growers. "A good program has been arranged and we feel growers will get the kind of information that will help them make more money in the swine business."

Lovesick Airman To Face Charges

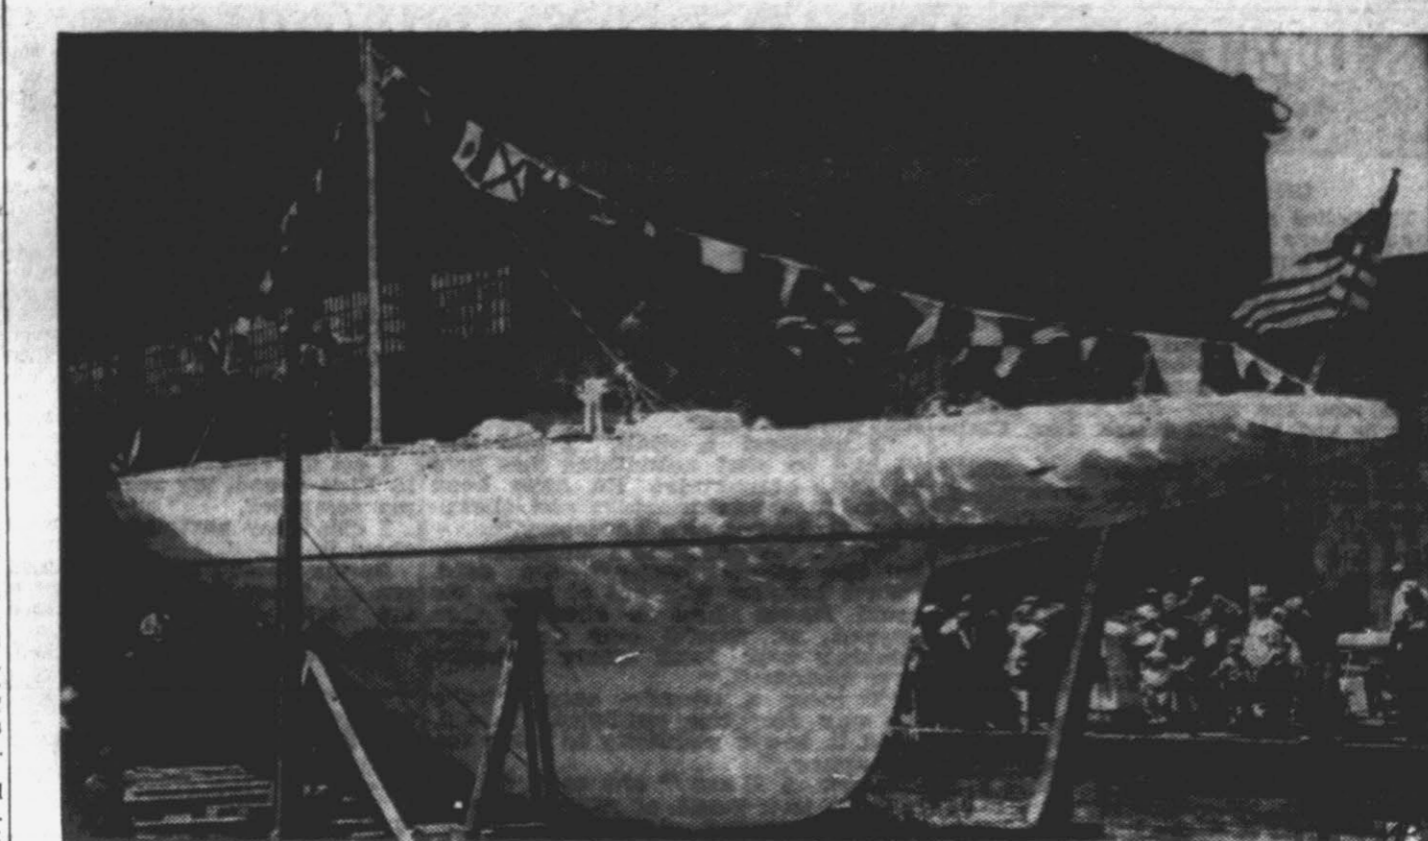

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Donald Keeton, the lovesick airman who wrote a suicide note and then took off in an airplane, will be returned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., to face AWOL charges. The 19-year-old youth, object of a wide aerial search, was taken into custody at his mother's home in Dallas Saturday. He had abandoned the rented plane on a farm in east Texas. He was confined to the Carswell AFB hospital here for observation. The flight was touched off after Keeton, stationed at Keesler AFB, had been jilted by his girl friend Lynn Bowling, 17, of Dallas. "I never contemplated suicide," Keeton said. "That was just a ruse."

Charlotte Man Elected New Legion Commander

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The American Legion has elected as its state commander a Charlotte Presbyterian minister who also manufactures yardsticks and is head of the Charlotte Entertainment Bureau. Nor do the talents of the Rev. Shelton Hutchison of the Smallwood Presbyterian Church stop there. He has a rock collection gathered on world tours which he uses for lectures on Christianity. He collects buttons and musical instruments and can play every one of his dozens of instruments, from a pipe organ to a one-inch horn. He designed his home heating plant — made from old refrigerator coils — and has a fully-equipped blacksmith shop and home workshop. Hutchison, World War II overseas veteran who was a former chaplain of the legion, was elected state commander at the Asheville convention over the weekend. Another Charlotte resident, Miss Hazel Adams, became historian, the first woman elected to a Legion post in some 30 years. She was a sergeant in the WACs in World War II, and is secretary-cashier

Election Victories Come Harder For Unions Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor unions are having a much harder time than they used to in winning bargaining elections. One big reason for this seems to be that many of the elections now are being held in small shops where the workers have closer ties with their employers. Another reason may be the disclosure by the Senate Rackets Committee of corruption and abuses in some unions. A survey of National Labor Relations Board election results shows that 60 per cent of the bargaining elections this year. By comparison, unions won nearly 95 per cent of such elections in 1937. Moreover, these figures show that about 58 per cent of the workers participating in bargaining elections are voting for union representation. This is a record low, with the rate trending downward. In 1937, about 87 per cent of the workers voting cast "yes" ballots. Currently, fewer than 200,000 workers a year belong to units winning bargaining rights. This is about 5 per cent of those voting in NLRB elections. In 1950, the total was about 75,000 workers, or 85 per cent of those voting. The NLRB says that 49 per cent of all its elections held in the most recent 12-month period involved fewer than 30 workers in each unit. Most of the big factory worker units were organized in the late 1930s and 1940s.

Actress Speaks At Commencement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Irene Dunne won plaudits in a university performance. But it wasn't a college play. The actress delivered the 46th annual commencement address yesterday at Loyola University of Los Angeles. She was the first woman to do so since the university opened its doors in 1911. She told the graduates their inexperience was their greatest liability in "a tumultuous world where you are about to seek careers." Miss Dunne, appointed by President Eisenhower last year as an alternate delegate to the United Nations, also became the second woman to be awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by Loyola. The first was Mme. Chiang Kai-shek during World War II.

Boy Is Killed By Boiling Pool

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—A 6-year-old boy's curious inspection of a steaming pool of water near Old Faithful geyser led to death. Danny Lewis, 6, of Austin, Minn., lost his balance and fell into the natural formation Friday. He died yesterday of second and third degree burns over his entire body. Danny had been fishing with his father William Lewis at a creek stream nearby. The father pulled him from the boiling pool, one of several thousand in the park.

Three Answers, But Unsatisfied

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Carl Lullen, 37-year-old widower from Sligo, Ky., recently advertised in newspapers for a wife. He got only three answers and none suited him, mainly because the women who answered were too old. But, undaunted, Lullen says he'll keep trying because he needs a wife "to housekeep for me and my two kids."

Joins Drive To Limit Trade Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) today joined Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) in a drive to limit to three years the extension of the reciprocal trade law. Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said in an interview he will not go along with a House-passed five-year extension which President Eisenhower has asked Congress to approve. "The present Republican administration will be in power another 2 1/2 years," Bridges said. "Nobody knows what will happen in the 1960 elections and I see no reason for taking any chances and extending this authority for five years."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said Saturday Eisenhower wants the five-year extension voted by the House, and will continue to work for passage of the bill in that form. He apparently will need strong support from Democrats. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas already has announced support of the five-year extension. Bridges said that while he believes extension of the authority may be limited to three years, he doubts that critics will be successful in efforts to open wider the escape clauses under which tariffs can be kept high to prevent injury to domestic industries.

As approved by the House, the bill would provide optional methods for tariff regulation by which the President could cut rates by as much as 10 per cent in any year's period but not more than 25 per cent over five years. Any rate now more than half the value of a product could be reduced to 50 per cent.

Dinah Lists Problems Facing A TV Singer

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the more interesting problems of singing on television is in trying to turn up tunes that tell a tale. For a singer must interpret lyrics and lyrics must tell a story to hold an audience. At year's end, in reviewing the songs of the preceding 12 months, it wasn't easy to find enough representation of which to be proud. Now, I'm not knocking rhythm and blues. I'm not knocking anything I can sing. But I can't stand muddy arrangements or senseless lyrics, and there have been many. We have always been faced with this basic problem, finding the right material, for records as well as for radio. The advent of television has added another dimension. The tune must be telegraphic. Listen to the lyrics of "Fascination" or "Around the World in 30 Days." The meaningful words written to those haunting melodies give you the material from which to fashion many splendid things. There is no medium like television to tell the world you're bored. This is why we fondle a good song, one with which we can wall or have fun, prance, dance, or just stand still and let the mood envelop us. Can you imagine doing that with some of the tunes now on the air? For the song writer, television is a showcase to display his merchandise in the best possible manner before as many as 50 or 60 million people in one evening. Is there any wonder that his have been made overnight? "Let Me Go, Lover," and so many others er songs had a hearing one night and were on their way to hitdom the next morning. However, everything good carries within itself the seed of its self-destruction. Over - exposure has killed many a tune long before the end of its natural life. The vitamin B1 hypo that is TV has so accelerated its growth that a tune sometimes can no longer last. The television singer has yet another problem. Not how does she sing; how does it look? As the new generation would never accept the most glorious voice of the opera company's heaviest soprano singing "Juliet," so would they turn the dial away from a baby-face singing bawdy blues. Whatever she does with her voice, the TV singer must be sure to place the proper face behind it. It would seem, then, a never-ending problem. It isn't really. When the prospects seem dim, the horizon out of reach and the wave of un - singable songs boundless, I find solace in two admonitions, truths to which I cling. I tell myself: "To thine own self be true." And if that doesn't work, I say, "Don't worry." Works every time.

SOME SLIPS DON'T SHOW

By S. A. FAIR (Eric Stanley Gardner)

CHAPTER 36

The police stenographer at Reno headquarters typed out the confession in quadruplicate, and Horace Dutton signed it.

All of this had taken time. Mort Evans had hurried things as much as possible. He'd had coffee, sandwiches and more coffee sent up.

Dutton waived extradition.

We took the guy on the plane with us and started back for California.

We got off the ground a little after ten o'clock in the morning. It was a beautiful day.

Dutton, everything off his mind, slept like a baby.

Evans dozed off from time to time, but would jump awake nervously and from time to time would let his fingers explore the inner pocket of his coat where he had the signed statement by Dutton.

My stock was way down below par, despite the fact that he'd solved the Cadott murder case. The guy would hardly grunt when I spoke to him.

The air was a little bumpy over the High Sierras. We walloped around for a while, were shaken up a bit, then found ourselves winging out way over the valley, past Mount Diablo, over Oakland, across the bay, and the pilot contacted the tower in San Francisco for landing instructions.

We landed, and the pilot taxied on in and stopped at the hangar.

The pilot shut the engines off, and a mess of people came swarming out to meet the plane.

"What the hell!" Evans said.

He'd solved the Cadott murder, but there was too much excitement for that. Evans was enough of a veteran to realize something had broken loose.

There was so much confusion it was, for a moment, difficult to figure out exactly what had happened.

Everybody was asking questions at once, flashbulbs were popping, rival reporters were elbowing each other around, all of them yelling questions at Evans.

No one paid much attention to the handcuffed prisoner Evans was bringing back from Reno with him.

We finally got the thing straightened out. Evans' theory had been carried on the wire services and had received nationwide attention. It was so thoroughly logical, and the fact that he was leaving by plane for an "undisclosed destination" had started people talking everywhere.

When the story broke in the newspapers, setting forth the "San Francisco theory of the case," two citizens in Davenport, Iowa, reading their papers, had suddenly realized that their philanthropic neighbor with the little orphan child should be investigated. They had telephoned the FBI. The FBI had gone out with pictures and other identification of the kidnaped baby, and it was all over. The neighbor had caved in as soon as she was questioned.

Mort Evans and the chief had their pictures taken side by side. It was announced that they worked the situation out with a cold logic based on their experience in handling so many investigations.

It was announced that the wealthy parents of the kidnaped child, completely overjoyed, had decided to bestow a handsome reward on the chief of police and Detective Evans.

Bertha Cool read the papers, then crumpled them and threw them to the floor of the sitting room in the hotel suite.

"Damn your brains!" she said. "How long had you been mulling this thing around in that dome of yours?"

"Several days?"

"And you went and spilled it to that detective?"

"It took a murder case to pave the way for the publicity," I said. "and it took publicity to solve the kidnaping."

"Donald Lam," she said. "I believe in the back of your mind you did have some cockeyed idea that Minerva Fisher was the kidnaper."

"Why not?" I asked. "She rubs me the wrong way."

Bertha thought that over for a while, then said, "Donald, let's get out of town while the getting's good. They could still get you for not reporting that corpse."

"They could," I said, "but they won't. The last thing they want at the moment is to have me interviewed by any newspaper people."

Bertha picked up the telephone, said, "I want the transportation desk. Get me two tickets to Los Angeles on the first airplane out of here."

"Are you planning on taking our client with you?" I asked.

"Not him," Bertha said. "We'll get him turned loose and he can go back with his wife. If I have to listen to that guy crack his knuckles once more, I'll go nuts."

"Better make it one ticket," I said. "I've got a date with a blonde."

As far as Bertha was concerned, the case ended two days later when Barclay Fisher popped his knuckles in the office for the last time and cheerfully left a check. He shook hands with both of us and cried a bit when he left the place.

Minerva Fisher didn't show up. We never saw her again. She didn't approve of us.

For me, the case had its real end when I ran across an item in a newspaper, reporting a statewide exhibition of modern art.

First prize, the article said, had gone to Horace Dutton, a San Francisco artist whose painting entitled "Conflict" had been unanimously adjudged the best example of modern art.

The painting, everyone agreed, had had terrific impact. According to the artist, it was a visual representation of the clashing of gears and was emphasized by colors which clashed, as well as the symbolism of revolving gears which didn't mesh.

The painting had been exhibited in an octagonal frame, another innovation of Horace Dutton, whose pictures were framed in an unconventional manner, the framing carrying out the general motif of the painting.

The paper went on to state that Dutton, it would be remembered, had gone through an emotional experience which he insisted had broadened his outlook and had matured his technique. He had been arrested for the murder of his wife's cousin, George Cadott. However, at the trial Dutton had insisted he acted in self-defense, and the jurors had believed him. He had been found not guilty after eight hours of deliberation.

I cut the clipping and handed it to Elsie Brand, my secretary, for my scrapbook.

I didn't say anything to Bertha about it.

Bertha doesn't appreciate modern art. There are many forms of art Bertha doesn't fully appreciate.

But she loves to cash checks.

Too Surprised By His 'Guest'

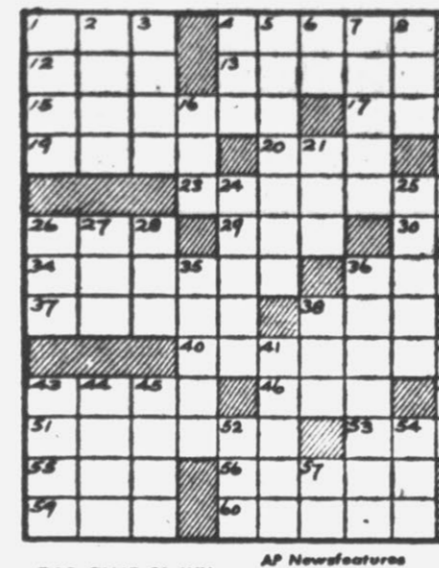

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Chan Wing Gao, opening the small restaurant he operates, was greeted by a man who apparently had been asleep on the floor behind the counter.

"Good morning, amigo," said the stranger, and walked casually out of the restaurant.

By the time Gao recovered from the surprise the visitor was out of sight — and so was $150 from the cash register.

Bus Falls Over Embankment; Six Hospitalized

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — A Greyhound bus spun out of control in a rainstorm, plunged down an embankment and tipped over on its side yesterday.

Six persons remained hospitalized today but were reported in good condition. Fourteen others were treated at the hospital and dismissed.

The accident occurred on busy four-lane U.S. 41 about five miles south of Marietta.

The bus was on the way to Cincinnati from Jacksonville, Fla.

Police quoted driver Floyd A. Jones, 46, as saying the bus was going down a hill in blinding rain when he applied the brakes and the right front wheel locked. The bus spun around, went down a 25-foot embankment and toppled over about 35 feet from the highway.

Officers said the accident was unavoidable and that no charges will be made.

Too Many Apply For Bear Hunt

BOYD, Tex. (AP) — The big Wise County bear hunt was called off yesterday because too many amateur bear hunters turned up.

The search was started after residents reported sighting a mother bear and two cubs, believed to have strayed from a carnival.

Chief of Police Lee Cockrell called in professional hunter Virgil Goodman of Fort Worth to track down the animals. When they started out at dawn they were joined by more than 30 amateur bear hunters.

"Everybody seems to think they are big game hunters around here," Cockrell complained.

"Some of them even brought pickups filled with bounds."

Driver Training Classes Begin At High School

Driver training classes for students at Junius H. Rose High School began this morning.

Twenty-four students reported for the first meeting which included short talks by Rose High School Principal O. E. Dowd, instructor Robert E. Youngblood, State Highway Patrolman J. B. Surles and insurance agent Bill Ellington. Classroom phases of the instruction will be held each morning, Monday through Friday, from 8:30 through 10:30 until each student has completed 30 hours of classwork.

In addition to the classroom phase, the program will include six hours of actual driving and 18 hours of observation by each student. The complete course is expected to take about a month. Students who complete the course will be given certificates of completion by the school for the State Department of Public Instruction. In addition, they will be issued Learner's Driving Permits by the State Department of Motor Vehicles for use during the course.

The vehicle to be used by students enrolled in the program is a 1958 Ford sedan furnished by Jenkins Motor Company of Greenville. The car will have dual controls and other safety features, including padded interiors and safety belts.

School officials said this morning that there is room for several additional students in the course, but interested persons should register tomorrow morning. Minimum age for students is 14 years, six months, according to action of the 1957 General Assembly which authorized the training and provided for funds through an additional $1 charge on state license plates.

DeGaulle Returns To Continuing Problems

PARIS (AP) — Premier de Gaulle returned from a country still pelted high with North African problems.

De Gaulle's designated representative in North Africa, Gen. Raoul Salan, officially took over the resident minister's office in the Algiers government headquarters building today. But informed sources said De Gaulle was planning a second trip to Algeria within the next month to tighten his authority there.

The Premier designated Salan civil and military governor during his trip two weeks ago. De Gaulle's presence in Algeria put the lid on the army and right-wingers who staged the May 13 revolt against the Paris regime but the Premier's authority over the dissidents is still questionable.

The aim of the second Algeria trip would be to tighten his control over the army in the Algerian countryside.

De Gaulle's new civilian aide to Salan, Rene Brouillet, arrived in Algiers and started to work. Brouillet is the first official of the Paris government to have been accepted in Algeria since the May 13 rebellion.

Algeria's two neighbors, Morocco and Tunisia, were also posing problems for the 67-year-old Premier.

President Habib Bourguiba met in Tunis with Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafout. Officially they met to sign a friendship treaty. But the political leader of the Algerian nationalist rebel, Ferhat Abbas, also headed for Tunis, to be available to discuss the nationalist war against the French in Algeria.

In Morocco, the French were negotiating the withdrawal of some of their soldiers — which Tunisia also wants. The French Embassy in Rabat said that by the middle of July some 5,000 French troops will have left Morocco but that about 25,000 would remain.

The war in Algeria continued with no sign of a letup.

Another Hub Cap Marking Project Announced Here

Jaycees will be marking hub caps at all local Texas stations from 2 to 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Dick Greene, chairman of the project announced this morning.

There is no charge for the service.

It is the second afternoon that the hub cap marking project has been conducted.

"Motorists are strongly urged to participate in this program as it is felt this is one of the best cures for petty theft," Greene said this morning.

"In order to get as many hub caps marked as possible all motorists are urged to drop by the service stations Wednesday afternoon and take advantage of this free service."

The operation only takes five to ten minutes, he pointed out.

A vibrating pencil will be used by the Jaycees to write the auto license number and the year on the hub caps.

The marking doesn't deface the cap and should discourage theft by provide identification if the hub caps are stolen.

Greene urged all car owners to "join in making this a successful campaign."

Dissatisfied Senators Try Reshape Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators dissatisfied with a bill to curb labor abuses pushed ahead today with last-ditch efforts to reshape it more to their liking.

As a wrangling Senate headed into a fourth day of debate on the measure, Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said he hoped to finish action on it tonight under an agreement limiting debate.

But a sheaf of amendments remains to be disposed of many of them highly controversial.

Awaiting action first was an amendment by Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich) to let union members recover any dues money used for political purposes or other non-union activities they oppose.

"It's a violation of a worker's rights to appropriate hard-earned dues money for political slush funds," Potter said in arguing for his amendment. Sens. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz) and Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb) agreed.

However, Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) said Potter's amendment "is as absurd and as completely without justification" as any yet offered.

Morse denounced it as "a union-busting amendment" and said it would "play into the hands of the type of employer who employs the stooge and spy."

Despite all the argument that has swirled about the bill, its basic provisions remain intact.

It is designed to help drive racketeers out of the labor movement and give rank and file members more control over union affairs.

It also would make a number of changes in the 1947 Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act, including some long sought by labor leaders.

While a number of revisions have been made to meet criticisms of Secretary of Labor Mitchell, every major amendment offered by spokesmen for the Eisenhower administration has gone down in defeat.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland of California also lost out Saturday in an effort to provide that 20 per cent of a union's members could force secret balloting on recalling union officers and on changing union constitutions and by-laws.

Knowland's amendment, which he contended was needed to strengthen union democracy provisions of the bill, was defeated 52-31.

However, the Senate later adopted an amendment of Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC) providing for the recall of local union officers at any time by majority vote of the members.

Ervin's amendment also revised a section of the bill requiring periodic elections of union officers by secret ballot. It would set the minimum term for officials of local unions at three years instead of four and for officials of international unions at four years instead of five.

Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn) also won adoption by voice vote of an amendment prohibiting unions from lending more than $1,500 to any officer or member.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned irregular in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses of key stocks went from fractions to about a point.

The market's latest drive into new high ground for 1955 tumbled on profit taking. The list was slightly higher at the start and some sizable blocks were traded. Prices were trimmed and an increasing number of losers appeared.

Rails held a fairly good edge to the upside. Coppers, chemicals and aircrafts broke up an early pattern of gains although some remained well ahead. Tobaccos and selected issues performed well. Steels were mixed. Motors leaned to the upside.

Brokers saw the market in another consolidation phase following its vigorous drive to a new 1955 peak on Friday.

Korvette was a feature, rising 2 1/2 to 15 on a big block of 17,000 shares and retaining most of this gain in brick dealing later. A recommendation by an advisory service boosted this stock.
