Declines To Stay His Own Order

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — U. S. Dist. Judge Harry J. Lemley today denied a motion to stay his own order of Saturday which suspended integration in Little Rock schools for 2 1/2 years. The judge said that to grant a stay would keep the racial situation at Central High School intolerable because too much time would be consumed in processing a Negro attorney's appeal of his order...

Wiley Branton, attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, who made the motion, said he planned to telephone the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis to ask for instructions on appealing the integration suspension order. He already had filed a notice of appeal here. "I don't know at this point exactly how this is going to be handled," Branton told a reporter. "I may have to go to the chief circuit judge's home..."

He said nothing about appealing today's rejection for a stay. The Little Rock School Board opposed Branton's motion for a stay on ground it would be in the interest of the Negro pupils, only, not the public. Lemley, in a written opinion, which was issued after a brief recess of the hearing, said: "To grant this motion and stay the enforcement of our judgment would to a large extent nullify our order in the cause since it will in all probability take months to carry the case through the Court of Appeals and the U. S. Supreme Court..."

"And in the meantime, the situation at Central High School, which we have found to be intolerable from an educational standpoint, would continue," he said. A. F. House of Little Rock appeared for the school board. Oral arguments took only six minutes. The courtroom was nearly filled with spectators. Branton was the only Negro attorney present. A stay by any of the courts, Branton said, would mean that the racial situation at Central High would be just as it was when the 1957-58 school year ended.

Requests from the Welfare Department for administration aid to the Blind, Aid to Dependent Children, Aid to Permanently and Totally Disabled, and Old Age Assistance are up from this year's appropriation of $147,011.25 to $186,146.12, a 26.6 per cent increase. Other fund requests in the proposed budget are not up as much percentage-wise, but all of them seek increases. The General Fund requests are up $550,612.50 to $352,688.50. County bonds coming due during the next fiscal year amount to $4,135,000. Outside Poor and Relief is up from $51,435 to $57,535. The Health Department has asked for $3,710 more, from $102,994 to $106,704 and the Mental Health Service request is up $3,210 from $34,195 to $37,405...

The other fund in the budget, the School Fund, is up only $1,000 but it is still the largest single item among the budget's ten funds. Requests for the 1958-1959 School Fund total $536,832.53, including Current Expense requests of $365,268.08 and Capital Outlay requests of $171,564.45. General Fund requests include those from 19 county departments and agencies, plus a group of "miscellaneous" appropriations. Departmental requests within the General Fund, with 1957-1958 appropriations in parentheses, include: County Commissioners, 6.078 (same); administrative costs, $37,219 ($39,769); County Auditor, $17,865 ($18,155); Elections, $4,606 ($4,278); Tax Department, $45,355 ($43,910); County Buildings, $29,245 ($27,900); Clerk of Court, $26,870 ($25,770); County Court, $6,150 ($5,825); Superior Court, $22,625 (same); Sheriff's Department, $43,276.50 ($42,776.50); Coroner, $3,595 ($3,445); County Jail, $3,305 ($3,280); Register of Deeds, $22,300 ($22,240); Forest Fire Protection, $5,324 (same); Farm Demonstration Agent (Negro), $7,530 ($6,123); Farm Demonstration Agent (White), $15,736 ($14,951); Home Demonstration Agent (White), $9,776 (same); Home Demonstration Agent (Negro), $4,426 ($4,066); Veterans' Service Officer, $3,126 ($3,190); Miscellaneous items: Sheppard Memorial Library, $18,850 ($16,000); miscellaneous contributions, $1,500 (same); Tax refunds, $250 ($100); Tax releases, $125 ($100); Emergency appropriations, $6,500 ($6,373.60); air conditioning, $200 (same); vehicles, $3,000 (same); Farmville Armory, $7,500 (same); accounting equipment, $7,300 (none)...

Some of the requests have already been reviewed by the commissioners, but no final decisions have been made on eventual appropriations. The board will resume its consideration of budget requests Thursday night.

Two At Large In 6-Man Break-Out

LINCOLNTON, N. C. (AP) — Prison officials identified their search in Lincoln County for two convicts who remained at large after a brazen bolt for freedom Saturday night. The pair were among six felons who used horseshoes to pummel an escape hole in a fence at the Lincoln County prison unit. Two were recaptured shortly after they fled Saturday night and two others were apprehended yesterday afternoon. Originally the prison reported that seven men took part in the escape, but later changed the count to six. Officials said seven men failed to answer a roll call taken after the escape, but one of the men, James H. Lamb, was in a segregation unit. Assistant Prisons Director Robert A. Allen said he was not sure whether the remaining two fugitives left the Lincoln area. Objects of the search were Delbert Baker, 21, of Lincolnton, and Donald W. Morgan, 21, of Chesnee, S. C. Recaptured yesterday afternoon by prison officials only a mile and a half from the camp were John Jackson Darnell, 25, of Jefferson, and Joe Thomas Fitch, 28, of Landrum, S. C. Joseph D. Brooks, 20, of Newton and Herman Westmoreland, 24, of Gastonia, were recaptured two miles from the escape scene late Saturday night. A guard, Paul Heavner, was fired for custodial negligence, and Camp Sgt. H. J. Schrum was suspended for 15 days in connection with the escape, Allen said.

Russians Attack German Embassy

By HOWARD K. MILKS MOSCOW (AP) — More than 1,000 banner-waving demonstrators attacked the West German Embassy with stones, sticks, and ink bottles today in retaliation for an assault on the Soviet Embassy in Bonn last week. U. S. newsmen including this correspondent, were roughed up several times as they attempted to take pictures. The demonstrators marched toward the embassy from several directions. They seemed well organized. Suddenly they started throwing stones and bricks, smashing glass windows by the dozen. They came a barrage of ink bottles that splattered bright blue ink on the grey embassy walls. Some of the bottles sailed through broken windows and crashed onto the floor inside. The crowd was in a vicious mood. EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C. Temperatures will average four to six degrees below normal with moderate rainfall Tuesday through Saturday. Normal night and low temperatures for coastal plains, 88-68 degrees. Somewhat warmer Tuesday and Wednesday, otherwise moderately cool. Rain or showers occurring in parts of the state on most days.

Summer, But A Blanket In Order

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The calendar says it's summer, but North Carolina dug out an extra blanket or two last night. Scattered weekend showers brought with them some of the coolest weather in weeks. Continued showers were expected today and tomorrow, with a slightly warmer trend tomorrow. It was a snappy 44 atop Grandfather Mountain this morning after a Sunday high of only 55.

which he was riding overturned and tumbled down a 40-foot bank in Asheville. Thomas Good Jr., 16, of Mooresville, was fatally injured when an automobile in which he was riding spun out of control on a curve just east of Mooresville and overturned. A Florida woman, Adelaide Germain of Bradenton, was killed in the collision of a car and a tractor trailer on U. S. 301 near Smithfield. A head-on collision at Spring Lake caused the death of 17-year-old Joanne Shook of Fayetteville. Albert Austin Parker, 17, of Erwin, was killed when the car in which he was riding hit a bridge abutment near Dunn. A similar accident in Rowan County claimed the life of 20-year-old Bobby Treece of Rt. 2, Albemarle. A freak accident at Durham claimed the life of Caludius Parks Jones Jr., 17. He was flying a model airplane, using a wire to guide it, when the plane struck a power line. The power line was knocked down and the wire he was using to guide the plane reportedly fell across it. A two-car collision near Garner Sunday claimed the lives of both drivers. Wake County Coroner Marshall Bennett identified the victims as James David Daughtry, 22, of Goldsboro, and Cecil Wilburn Kornegay, 25, of Raleigh. A Butner man was killed when he walked into the path of an oncoming vehicle in Butner. He was Locke M. Neville, 48.

Miss Janet Best Becomes Bride

In a ceremony Saturday afternoon in the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Miss Janet Lee Best became the bride of Richard Edward York.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Best of Goldsboro and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brantley Speight, with whom she has made her home for the past several years. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charles York of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Sue Crawford of Long Island. "The Trumpet Voluntary" and the "Traditional Wedding Marches" were used throughout the ceremony. Mrs. Irving Lee Smith Jr. of Robersonville sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Benediction." The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison as the bride and groom knelt at the altar for the benediction prayer.

The Rev. W. M. Howard Jr. officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, J. Brantley Speight, wore a full length wedding gown of silk bombazine with Rose Point lace. The bodice was designed with princess lines featuring a portrait neckline with Rose Point lace long sheath sleeves extending over the hands in calla points, accented with pearl trim. The full bell skirt was highlighted in center back with a butterfly bustle. A lace panel flowed from the pointed bodice and terminated into a chapel train.

Her veil of pure silk bridal illusion was draped from a matching silk and lace crown sprinkled with leaf-drop pearls. The bride's only ornament was a necklace featuring a small gold heart, centered with a tiny pearl, a gift of the groom. She carried a prayer book topped with a purple throat orchid showered with Stephanotis.

Miss Peggy Bradley of Lenoir was maid of honor. She wore a white lace over spring leaf taffeta sheath dress with a scoop neckline giving cap sleeve effect featuring multiple taffeta midriff folds with large back center bow and streamers to hemline. A matching half hat with nose tip circular veil completed the costume. She carried a bouquet of white mums and gypsophelia.

Bridesmaids were Miss Rachel Speight, cousin of the bride of Winterville, and Mrs. William H. Cherry Jr. of High Point. They wore identical dresses, hats, and carried similar bouquets as the maid of honor.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Speight, wore a beige lace sheath dress with matching accessories which was complimented by a corsage of pink rose buds. The bridegroom's mother wore ice blue lace styled along princess lines with fullness in back with matching accessories. She wore a white rose corsage.

Harry Spillman of Durham was best man.

Ushers were Martin Casey of Goldsboro, William H. Cherry Jr. of High Point, H. L. Ford Jr. of Portsmouth, Va., and Richard Sweet of Durham.

The bride received her A. B. degree in Religious Education from Greensboro College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Duke University in Electrical Engineering. He is on the staff of Technical Writing Division of Western Electrical Company of Winston-Salem.

which the couple will reside at the Arcadia Apartments, Route 8, Lexington.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Raynor and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Galloway presided at the church doors directing guests to the Speight country home where a reception honoring the bride and groom and the wedding party was held.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. Brantley Speight, and Miss Rachel Speight entertained at a reception at their country home near Winterville.

The home was decorated throughout with arrangements of summer flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bisette of Grifton greeted guests and presented them to the receiving line composed of the bride and bridegroom and the wedding party.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell Speight of Winterville received at the living room door.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weeks directed guests to the dining room. The appointed table was covered with a white organza lace trimmed cloth over yellow featuring a large silver candelabra cascaded with yellow carnations and white gypsophelia. The wedding cake centered the refreshment table. It was cut by the bride and groom and served to the wedding party.

Mrs. H. L. Ford Jr. of Portsmouth, Va., and Mrs. Kermit Tyson of Ayden, alternating, poured punch. They were assisted in serving by Susan High of Lucama, Gretchen Davis of Pollockville, Linda Gardner of Goldsboro, Sue Crawford of Long Island, and Pat Baum of Manteo.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis T. McLawhorn of Winterville presided in the living room. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Davis of Pollockville directed guests to Mr. and Mrs. John Rice of Raleigh, who assisted at the gift room door. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tripp of Ayden and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Langston of Winterville presided in the gift room.

Mrs. Alice Speight, Mrs. Martin Casey of Goldsboro, Walton Broome of Aurora, Billy McMillen of Raleigh greeted guests and assisted at other points throughout the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dewes of Winterville presided at the guest book.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Pate of Goldsboro.

Wedding Breakfast
Saturday morning at the Greenville Golf and Country Club a wedding breakfast honoring Miss Janet Best, Mr. Richard York, out-of-town guests and their wedding party was given by Mr. and Mrs. D. T. McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Langston, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dewes.

Miss Best greeted the guests wearing a yellow embroidered over taffeta sheath dress complimented by a garza mum, gift of the hostesses and hosts. With Miss Best in the receiving line were the hostesses and host, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charles York, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Speight, uncle and aunt of the bride-to-be.

Pale pink and white was used throughout the clubhouse as the color note. Summer flower arrangements were placed on the appointed tables.

Upon arrival Mr. and Mrs. Dewes wearing a yellow embroidered over taffeta sheath dress complimented by a garza mum, gift of the hostesses and hosts. With Miss Best in the receiving line were the hostesses and host, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charles York, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Speight, uncle and aunt of the bride-to-be.

Later a three-course dinner was served to the approximately 50 guests.

Announcement that one of the growers of the Ayden section is putting in a barn of tobacco today for curing should convince the tobacco moguls in session at Old Point that this year's crop will not be a late one and that the earlier opening asked by the people of the east is essential.

Despite the wet and dry flight at the Democratic Convention in Houston, according to Carl Goerch, no one has been heard singing "No Dry I Am." It is noticeable that anti-Smith as well as Smith supporters have plenty to offer, Carl says.

Mrs. Proctor Camp Director

BLOUNT'S CREEK—The camping season at Camp Hardee for Girl Scouts opened on June 16 with 39 girls registering for the first two-week period. Owned and operated by the Pitt County Girl Scout Council, the Camp is being directed this year by Mrs. J. Knott Proctor.

The program at the camp is directed by a staff of 18 persons, including a director, a dietitian, three unit leaders for the three age groups. Activities include arts and crafts, sports and games, swimming, and boating. Campers also participate in activities which enable them to earn badges while at camp.

Greenville girls registered for the current period are: Janie Jackson, Marcia Hadley, Rosalind Averette, Rebecca Forrest, Nancy Ann Walters, Carolyn Armistead, Brenda Mumford, Beverly Caravan, Sue Pierce, Judy Clarke, Judy Ann Dyke, Marianne McGinnon, Martha Sue Atkin, Cindy Foward, Anne Waldrop, Eliza Nobles, Carol Waldrop, Linda Compton, Peggy Phillips and Judy Williams.

Scouts from Winterville attending Camp Hardee are: Patricia Worthington, Ann Speight, Eliza Olive, Sara Olive, Ginny Mumford, Mary Virginia Langston.

Scouts from Williamston, Eden, Washington, Grifton, Kinston and Rocky Mount are also enrolled. There are two more periods scheduled for this season, and the Council has announced that there are vacancies for the last period beginning on July 13.

Social Notes
Miss Helen W. Hawes and Mrs. Clara M. Shackell left Sunday for New York from where they will embark on the Italian liner Augustus June 24 for European and Scandinavian countries as well as England, Scotland and a Mediterranean cruise. One of the highlights of their trip will be the World's Fair at Brussels.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT
The officers and members of Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of the Eastern Star, hereby pay tribute to our sister, Annie T. Stocks, who was called to be with her Heavenly Father on June 12, 1958. In her life of unselfish service for others, she exemplified the sublime virtues of our Order. We loved her well, but God loved her best.

Therefore, be it resolved: First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who, in His infinite wisdom, deeth all things well.

Be it further resolved, That our deepest sympathy be extended to her husband and family in their bereavement.

That we express our grateful appreciation for the privilege of showing our love in performing the graveside service.

That we spread a copy of these Resolutions upon the minutes of our Chapter, a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to the Daily Reflector.

Respectfully submitted,

Eldest Son Has Tough Row To Hoe

By DOROTHY V. WHIFFLE, M.D.
"Ed is the most difficult child in our family. He always has been. He's 15 now. He is forever hurting Sally's feelings and he can't pass by Tom without giving him a punch that more often than not leads to a fight. We can't get him to do a bit of work around the house and his grades aren't very good in school."

What a list of complaints about one boy!

Let's look at what Ed has to say about his family. He has a list of complaints too.

Son's Complaints
"Sally, she's Dad's favorite. Dad thinks she is just about perfect! Why can't I get good grades like Sally? Why can't I be polite like Sally? Why don't I keep my room neat the way Sally does? Nambytinder little ass—Y wouldn't be like her for a million dollars."

"As for Tom, he's a brat. He's always getting into my things and Mom won't do a thing to stop him. He broke one of my best jazz records the other day. I'd told him never to touch them—and all Mom did was to say, 'Accidents will happen.' They expect me to do all the chores—I'm supposed to cut the lawn, wash the car, clean the cellar."

"I'm the eldest, they say, and I should take some responsibility for the home. Maybe I'm the oldest but there's nothing the matter with those other kids, and they don't have to do a thing."

"And something else"—when Ed gets going his abuses at home just pour out of him—"they try to treat me like a baby. 'Where are you going, Ed?' 'Be sure to be back on time.' 'Ed, it's time to go to bed.' 'Ed, wear your rubbers.' It's sickening."

What is the real trouble in Ed's family and what can he do about it? Probably some of the trouble started long ago—too late now to go back and change. But perhaps if there's a bit more understanding on the part of both Ed and his parents of how things come about it will help to improve family relationships now.

Only Child
For the first three years of Ed's life he was an only child and had the undivided attention not only of his parents but of his grandparents as well. Then along came Sally and all of a sudden Ed had to share his most precious possessions (his family) with this intruder. To this day he hasn't gotten over his jealousy of Sally. It hasn't made it any easier for him that his parents hold Sally up as an example of perfection to him. This only increases his resentment against her.

Ed needs to be appreciated at home for what he is. He is a good athlete, crazy about baseball. He is interested in mechanics, wants a car of his own as soon as he's old enough for a driver's license. His father says no teen-ager of his will ever have an old jalopy.

Demonstration Given Clubbers

FALKLAND—June being Dairy Month, new recipes using milk and cream was the topic discussed when the home demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. David Morrill for their June meeting.

Mrs. Morrill, president, opened the meeting with the group singing "America."

During the business period, reports from project leaders were given. In the absence of the dairy leader, Mrs. Anna Little gave a talk on milk and its food value, asking that new dishes be tried with milk and cream.

A book report on "Shiny Angels" by Shirley Jackson was given by Mrs. Julie Lawrence.

Mrs. Gurganus, food and nutrition leader, assisted by Mrs. Ruel Tyer, gave a demonstration on milk and ice cream with toppings.

Instead of the July picnic which was planned, the members' families and friends will attend a fish fry at Mr. and Mrs. David Morrill's cottage at Rest Haven.

Mrs. Julie Lawrence, recreation leader, led the group in a game, "What's Used Every Day Around the House."

Falkland club will have a booth at the fair this fall. The exhibit will be Proper Lighting and Reading. The committee members are Mrs. Julie Lawrence, Mrs. Brown Mayo, Mrs. Levi Wooten, Mrs. Dorothy Beaman and Mrs. Ruel Tyer.

The hostess served homemade ice cream with toppings of pineapple and mint, strawberry, chocolate and nuts, orange and quince jelly. The appointed table was centered with Shasta daisies which were surrounded by iced cake squares, salted nuts and buttered mints.

Tell your youngsters, when they are making caramels, that slowly adding the milk called for in the recipe will help to prevent the mixture from curdling.

Lucky Secretary Does Work In Air

AP Newfeatures
Pretty Pat McKeen figures she is the luckiest secretary in the country.

What with the shortage of good secretaries nowadays, a competent girl can just about write her own ticket. Some demand air-conditioned offices, wall-to-wall carpeting, electric typewriters and unlimited lunch hours.

Some will work only in offices where there are plenty of eligible bachelors. Others choose jobs that offer travel opportunities or contact with glamorous celebrities.

But Pat is one of the few secretaries in the country who does her work a mile up in the air.

This attractive blonde is at present in the midst of a 13,000-mile air tour of the country. Her office is a "flying showcase"—a specially equipped DC-3 plane designed to introduce throughout the country a line of all kinds of sticky stuff—glues and tapes.

When Pat is on duty, usually 10,000 feet in the air, she wears a smart suit of pale blue flannel, similar to that of an airline stewardess. The schedule of the "flying showcase" calls for visits to 38 cities in 41 days. So Pat usually is in a different city each night, and in each she is welcomed by the mayor, often interviewed by the press and invited to appear on radio and television shows.

The tour began in Miami, and is scheduled to make stops in cities northeast, south and west before winding up in Philadelphia.

Pat, the perfect secretary, is having the time of her life.

"But I can't forget my regular duties," says she. "I still have to take dictation and get out letters without a mistake even when we're a mile up in the air."

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT
The officers and members of Greenville Chapter No. 149, Order of the Eastern Star, hereby pay tribute to our sister, Annie T. Stocks, who was called to be with her Heavenly Father on June 12, 1958. In her life of unselfish service for others, she exemplified the sublime virtues of our Order. We loved her well, but God loved her best.

Therefore, be it resolved: First, That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who, in His infinite wisdom, deeth all things well.

Be it further resolved, That our deepest sympathy be extended to her husband and family in their bereavement.

That we express our grateful appreciation for the privilege of showing our love in performing the graveside service.

That we spread a copy of these Resolutions upon the minutes of our Chapter, a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to the Daily Reflector.

Respectfully submitted,

American Revolution Still Holds Imagination: Nixon

ROAN MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—The American Revolution caught the imagination of the world and still holds it today, says Vice President Richard Nixon, and this is a better propaganda weapon for the United States than bemoaning the threat of the Russian Revolution.

Nixon, who was accompanied by his wife on a visit to North Carolina and Tennessee Saturday, was principal speaker at the 12th annual Rhododendron Festival. It was held on top of this 6,000-foot Appalachian peak on the border of the two states.

"Let's talk about the promise of the American Revolution," Nixon counseled. "This promise was independence for nations, freedom for people and economic progress for all."

He declared that "as long as you have poverty, disease and strife in the rest of the world, our peace is threatened," because communism takes advantage of unrest by such conditions.

The Nixons arrived from Washington at Johnson City, Tenn. They took part in a parade in Elizabethton, Tenn., then drove the 30 miles to Roan Mountain. Afterward the party drove to Bakersfield, Spruce Pine, Linville and to Banner Elk, where Nixon spoke briefly at ground-breaking ceremonies for a new $1,600,000 hospital.

The vice president and wife were honored by a reception given at Blowing Rock by J. E. Broyles, North Carolina Republican national committeeman. Then they drove to Hickory and from there flew back to Washington.

Nixon was asked at a news conference for comment on the case of presidential assistant Sherman Adams, accused of accepting expensive presents from an industrialist for whom he did favors in government circles.

"The matter is solely within the jurisdiction of the President," Nixon replied. (Eisenhower has said Adams will stay in his post.) "I think the people can have confidence in the President, both in regard to his judgment of men and the ethical standards he sets."

The party which greeted the Nixons at Johnson City included Tennessee Gov. Frank Clement, Rep. B. Carroll Reece (R-Tenn.) and North Carolina's only Republican congressman, Rep. Charles Raper Jonas, in whose 10th District Roan Mountain is located.

Greensboro (AP)—The city school board will act at a July or August meeting on requests from 19 Negro pupils for assignment next fall to formerly all-white public schools.

Two Negro children have applied for transfer to Greensboro Senior High School, and 11 to elementary schools.

Six others have requested that their first assignment be to a formerly all-white school. But the board will not act on those requests because local school regulations say children who have not previously attended public schools here must go to the school in their district when the term opens. Then they may request transfer.

Larger Leaf Acreage, Higher Prices 'Vital'

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—A tobacco association official said today a "disaster" faces the Southern flue-cured grower unless acreage allocations are increased and the price of leaf is brought within the reach of foreign customers.

Curtis M. Dozier Jr., Richmond, Va., concluding his second term as president of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Assn., addressed the 17th annual meeting of the group here. Beginning its 58th annual convention at the same location was the Tobacco Assn. of the United States.

Dozier said for the first time in history, flue-cured tobacco grown outside of this country has passed United States production and continues to exceed it by a wider margin, "stimulated by our own program of restricted production and high prices."

He urged the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Assn. "to begin at once to campaign to bring these facts to the growers and to the government to the end that the acres allotted for 1959 production will be sufficient to produce enough of the right kind of tobacco to fill the normal requirements of domestic and foreign customers."

His organization held a business session today, as did the Tobacco Assn. of the United States. Subjects up for discussion at the latter meeting included the federal taxation of tobacco—whether or not it is excessive; the gradual loss of the leaf export market to countries whose production costs are lower than those in the South, and whether or not the government's tobacco program is on a sound footing.

President Alec P. Thorpe Jr., Rocky Mount, N.C., was unable to attend the convention. His annual report was read by Vice President J. D. Palmer of Wilson, N.C.

In the report, Thorpe said during the past year there have been developments which "offer a distinct threat to the tobacco industry." His chief concern, as reflected in the report, was that with Soil Bank participation and curtailed acreage, the demand of the domestic market would leave only 225 million pounds of leaf for the export trade.

"This situation might well be disastrous and will undoubtedly cause a drop in the volume of tobacco exports," said Thorpe.

Palmer was reported in line to be elected president of the Tobacco Assn. of the United States.

Many Married, Without Proof

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—There are a lot of people who might have trouble proving they are married.

Clerk of Court Andrew Palo has between 1,000 and 20,000 original marriage certificates that have never been turned over to the owners. Some are as old as 1887, before Montana became a state.

Palo explained that years ago the Clerk of the District Court kept the original marriage certificates on file. Then, in the 1920s, a Montana attorney general ruled that the original licenses be delivered to the owners.

Thick-Tongued? He Didn't Look

ANADARKO, Okla. (AP)—Attorney Chuck Goodwin, quizzing a witness in a district court trial, asked if he noticed if the defendant's tongue was "thick" at the time of the alleged offense.

Methodists Open State Conference

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Bishop Paul N. Garber presided today as the North Carolina Methodist Conference began its 123rd annual session. Advances in the field of education is a major theme.

The 56 eastern counties embraced by the conference were represented among the more than 800 delegates and church leaders gathered at the First Methodist Church of Wilson.

The go-ahead sign for a five million dollar campaign for funds to build new Methodist colleges at Rocky Mount and Fayetteville is expected to be given during the four-day meeting. Plans for the drive are due for discussion Tuesday.

Bishop Edwin Edgar Voigt, resident bishop of the Dakota Area, preached the sermon at this afternoon's opening session as a new class of ministers were admitted into full church connection.

Two other speakers were scheduled to address the conference this evening. Dr. A. Purnell Bailey of Richmond, Va., will bring greetings from the Virginia Conference. Bishop S. K. Mondal, resident bishop of the Delhi India, Area, will deliver the missionary address. He will deliver with Far Eastern missions, particularly in India.

Retired Bishop W. W. Peele of Laurinburg, who preceded Bishop Garber as resident bishop for the Richmond Area, will assist in presiding at the conference. The Richmond Area includes the North Carolina Conference.

The four-day annual meeting will end Thursday with the reading of pastoral appointments.

A special conference session at Fayetteville last November approved plans for the five million dollar campaign for the Rocky Mount and Fayetteville colleges. It will be up for final endorsement.

Another important item of business may be the selection of an Eastern North Carolina town as the site for the conference headquarters building. Methods of strengthening local churches and ways to reach a goal of 50 new churches in the next four years also will be discussed.

Unenthused By Talk, Talk, Talk

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—A stream of words flowed off the vocal chords of Mrs. Edith Fisher today as she entered the stretch drive for a new talking record.

Her immediate aim to continue her unbroken chatter until she would break the 90-hour mark set last Thursday by Raymond White, 36, Fayetteville, N.C., book salesman.

Mrs. Fisher, 29, has said and said and said, among the many thousands of things she has said and said that she hoped to continue an hour beyond the 90-hour record.

She started her gabfest along with two other women last Thursday over radio station WCEC. She became slightly ill Saturday morning, but not enough to cut off the words.

Sunday at 5:08 p.m., she broke the woman's record of 72:05.52 set at Durham, N.C., last Friday.

Another threat to the record looked at Fayetteville again today as Sue Huron, 22, brunette secretary from Pittsburgh, Pa., at 8 a.m., had reached her 68th hour of unbroken talk.

Towing a long mike cord behind her in Fayetteville's WFAI studio, the glib grad of Duquesne University talked "mainly of my past, present and future—there really isn't much more" as a not-too-enthusiastic audience yawned on.

Watched Search For His Body

REED, Ky. (AP)—In true Tom Sawyer fashion, 15-year-old Joe Billy Knott watched State Police and other officers search for his body.

A railroad conductor said he saw the body of a man wearing a yellow shirt lying near a rifle beside the tracks. A search followed.

It wasn't until officers saw Joe Billy standing there in his yellow shirt and carrying a BB rifle that they began to suspect their "dead" man was still alive. As it turned out, he was.

Shortest Speech Earned Applause

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Juvvenile Court Judge Louis H. Jull may have made the shortest speech on record.

After listening to a suggestion that children would refrain from such delinquency as stealing hub caps if they were allowed to shoot off firecrackers, Jull approached the rostrum thoughtfully and said:

"No."
He sat down amid tremendous applause.

Can't Burn Candle At Both Ends

Senate action to abolish World War II federal transportation taxes has jabbed a new needle into proponents of other tax cuts and has left the American people wondering what's going to happen to taxes and the federal budget.

If the measures adopted by the Senate are approved by the House, it will result in a reduction of 487 million dollars in freight tax and 230 million dollars in passenger fare tax. More than that it will probably mean other anti-recession tax cuts, which for a time seemed out of the question, may be pushed through Congress in these closing weeks of the current session.

Proponents of other tax reductions will be working harder than ever to carry their points. It may well be in these next few weeks—with an eye to approaching elections—Congress may reduce existing taxes by several billion dollars.

Few people would object to tax reductions which would provide some relief from the heavy burden. On the other hand, the matter of federal deficit cannot be overlooked.

The administration and congressional leaders already have predicted a deficit of several million dollars during the coming fiscal year even with tax levies the way they are.

For the past few months Congress and the administration have been pushing through proposal after proposal for new federal expenditures to stem the recession. With a broad reduction in taxes on top of these increased federal expenditures, the federal deficit can go nowhere but up.

It boils down to this question: Is a general reduction in taxes wise on the heels of tremendous new appropriations? Would it be carrying the anti-recession pump-priming too far and leading the nation into a new and more costly inflation spiral?

We are anxious to see federal taxes reduced. But what is accomplished if taxes are cut without reducing federal expenditures at the same time in order to have a balanced budget?

When Congress burns the candle at both ends the public is usually left in the middle.

Principles Must Be Kept Above Pettiness

Totalitarian governments, ruled by the whims of an individual or a small group, may be expected to take actions which not only confuse, dismay, but are difficult to understand by people who live under free democratic governments.

Such is the case with Dominican Republic where the Congress has asked its government to pull out of all foreign aid agreements with the United States.

Apparently the breakdown of relations between the United States and Dominican Republic has resulted from the fact that young Rafael Trujillo is not to receive a diploma from the U. S. Army's Command and General Staff School his has been attending. Papa Trujillo, strong man of Dominican Republic, doesn't like it because his playboy son hasn't been awarded something he has not earned.

The son of a dictator gets whatever he wants in his father's domain. Both father and son apparently are bitter because the same is not true where democratic principles apply.

A deterioration of relationships between the United States and Dominican Republic will be a blow to U. S. efforts to establish hemispheric solidarity in the Americas. At the same time the United States cannot be expected to depart from its principles to satisfy one dictator.

A decision by the United States to ignore its principles and bow to the indirect demands of the Dominican dictator would be far more costly in the long run than the risk of losing the friendship of the dictator's government.

Signs Point To A Levelling Out

By RALPH ROBEY
Every day more persons are becoming convinced that the business trend is in the process of leveling out. Many items are cited to support this conviction. For example:

1. Personal income. In May total personal income rose by $1.2 billion. Such income also had risen in April but that rise was solely the result of enlarged transfer payments. Social security, unemployment compensation, and the like. The May increase actually included a rise of $700 million in non-government wages and salaries, the first lift in this category in months. Since Congress just increased the wages and salaries of the military, post office workers, and all classified employees of the federal government, there is reason to believe personal income may show a further rise in coming months.

2. Production. Industrial production in May, as measured by the Federal Reserve Board index (1947=100), increased one percentage point, or from 126 to 127, the first rise in this index since last September. It is notable, too, that there was a two point rise in durable goods manufacturing. This is significant because to a marked extent, this has been a durable goods recession. During the summer months the index may decline again, depending upon whether seasonal correctives are applied. The volume of vacation and other shut-downs we shall have this year.

3. Housing starts. Private home-building activity in May increased on an annual basis, to above one million starts for the first time since last January. The trend of these figures is interesting. In January there were 1,020,000 starts, in February the number dropped to 890,000, in March to 800,000, in April it rose to 950,000, and in May it was 1,010,000. It appears, therefore, that those who have been maintaining we shall have at least a million starts in 1958 will prove correct.

4. Unemployment. In May unemployment fell by 200,000 to a total of 4.9 million. This was greater than the normal seasonal decline. The figure refers to May 1958. The June figure will be higher because of the large number of persons coming out of school and looking for work. As a result of the good showing for May, however, there is reason to anticipate the June figure will hold below 6 million. Employment, of course, has been going up. The only weak spot is in manufacturing. That, as yet, has not begun to rise.

5. Retail sales. Consumers continue to buy at a high rate. May sales were at the April level, or about 3 per cent above the recession low earlier in the year. If one eliminates higher priced durables and automobiles, the total is favorable with that of pre-recession totals.

6. Steel production. For weeks the output of steel has been increasing. At its low, production was less than half of capacity. It is now close to two-thirds of capacity. This reflects an increase of orders, which in turn is partly the result of low inventories, and partly in anticipation of an increase in steel prices when wages go up July 1. The current level of production, therefore, may not be maintained for the remainder of the year, but there is no reason to assume that output will drop to a new low.

7. Stock market. Business profits are down sharply from last year, but the stock market recently has been making new highs for 1958. Of course this is of primary importance to those owning stocks which advance. There are unfavorable factors, too, but it is to be expected. The unfavorable factors must not be permitted to out-shine the growing number of encouraging signs.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
IT APPEARS TO HAVE BEEN GENUINE
A prominent writer died recently in a New York hospital. He had written books in which he scoffed at religion. Much that he wrote was characterized by a worldliness and sensuality which transgressed the standards of good taste.

As he entered the hospital on what proved to be his last illness, he was asked as a routine question what religion he professed. He smiled and replied, "None at all. I am a confirmed sceptic."

His death notice some months later contained a remarkable statement. This man during his time in the hospital came in contact with a group of unusually religious people. In fact, it was a branch of the Christian church which in former times he would have derided as a superstition and sterile ritualism. But he made the discovery that there was on the part of this humble group of worshippers a devotion to truth and a grasp of reality which he had never enjoyed.

He submitted. Many will say that as he confronted death he grew afraid and was willing to accept practically any faith which gave some assurance of salvation. But it appeared in the case of this man to have been something vastly greater than that. He really seemed to have "got religion." It was almost a death-bed confession, but it appeared to have been genuine.

A Clash Is Still Ahead

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — I have long felt that there would be a "shooting" war some day between Russia, representing Communism, and the United States, representing Free Enterprise. Nevertheless, each year in my Annual Forecast I have taken the position that a shooting war would not take place during the following twelve months. I now feel that no shooting war between the United States and Russia will take place during the Eisenhower Administration.

If a shooting war with Russia occurs, it must be started by Russia. Because of our retaliatory power I now feel that Russia would hesitate to attack us directly. For some "brush war," such as the Korean War, may occur in the Middle East. Such a conflict may occur in South America, though the critical region now seems to be the oil-rich Middle East. Nasser, an able and ambitious man, seems determined to make Egypt the hub of a great oil empire, with Russia as an ally. Should he provoke a conflict, the great oil interests of the United States, Great Britain, and other nations might push us into the fight, while Egypt pulls Russia in.

WHAT A CHEMICAL WAR MEANS

Most people now visualize a so-called atomic war. I feel that the more likely is the possibility of an equally dangerous chemical war. This may occur through various means, such as poisonous gases or bacteriological attacks. Russian publicists are centering on the advances in spudniks, missiles, and atomic weapons may well be a cover for more serious work on chemical warfare.

In addition to the closeness in the field of atomic energy in nuclear weapons, there is another logical reason for a chemical or bacteriological attack. Russia would probably be more interested in destroying the people in our large cities, leaving industrial equipment, resources, and communication and transportation systems intact. An atomic attack, on the other hand, would destroy the people and leave masses of useless rubble.

OUTLOOK FOR ECONOMIC WARFARE

I am now greatly concerned over another possible Russian tactic, namely, stepped-up economic warfare against the United States and her allies accompanied by more intensive propaganda. In fact, Russia may already be largely responsible for our business recession and the slump in business activity. Sales of other commodity prices. Steel prices have withstood the cut-backs in output to fifty per cent of capacity. Russia's supply of this and other commodities is increasing. Moreover, we must carefully watch their currently high outflow of gold from the United States. A certain use of gold could take the place of gas, germ, or atomic attacks.

Thus, Russia's rapidly advancing technical knowledge could cause severe industrial competition. She has accelerated her program to expand trade with the "free world" Free World Nations. "Gadgets and gimmicks" such as subsidies and tariffs could temporarily cushion us against such competition, but these may further arouse Russian enmity and make things worse. If left alone, this recession could run its course by 1960. But an economic war started by Russia would cause more unemployment and business slump. Moreover, it could inevitably lead to drastic inflation and may even drive our dollar to twenty-five cents.

PROJECTING AGAINST ANY FORM OF WORLD WAR III

I strongly advise all readers to work for sound economics in their own lives, in business, and in the Government. Young people in the Central West should stay here and not crowd into the big cities, especially along seacoasts. Investments should be widely diversified among the smaller well-run industrial companies, and among commodities having large reserves of natural resources underground. Chain stores with wide geographical and product diversification are particularly desirable as a

Balding? He Has Answer

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Keep this under your hat, fellows, but if you're going bald, Louis Feder may have just the thing for you.

It's "the air-conditioned hairpiece," which weighs less than an ounce and is guaranteed to be hurricane proof.

"It's so light it breathes... absolutely no feeling on the head," said Ben Kaplan, executive voice president of the House of Louis Feder. "And please don't refer to it as a wig or toupee. Those terms are anathema in our industry. It is a hairpiece."

Feder, a pioneer human scalp roofer since he emigrated here from Austria half a century ago, started the industry with a new crew cut model hairpiece several years ago. Sales zoomed 700 per cent as baldies rushed to get an ivy league look. The new air-conditioned special, Feder feels, may be his ultimate masterpiece. It is held firmly to the scalp by two small patches of tape, one fore, one aft.

"The wind can't get up under it and blow it off," explained Kaplan, a former Air Force major. He added:

"I flight tested it myself on the deck of a ship during a violent storm, which was darn near a hurricane. Later I also tested it by diving headlong into the highest ocean breakers I could find."

In both tests, he said, the air-conditioned hairpiece clung to him with the loyalty of a poor relative. "Television comedians are always making jokes about hairpieces falling off," he said. "If they don't, I've been wearing one for eight years, and mine has never fallen off."

Kaplan can put on his hairpiece and peel it off in 33 seconds. He doesn't know whether this is a record, as there have been no international contests in this field.

Surveys have shown 8 of 10 American men are affected to some extent by baldness. Approximately 250,000 males now wear hairpieces.

"They range in age from 3 to 93," Kaplan said. "Many people have the idea that only professional entertainers wear hairpieces. Actually, I doubt if one in a thousand is a performer."

"They come from all fields. They include ministers, salesmen, business executives, students—even a stepladder. Most of them aren't older men, either. About 75 per cent of our customers are under 35."

"One of the nice things about the hairpiece industry is that it seems recession-proof. In bad times many men feel it is essential for them to find work if they look younger. Some men who have lost their jobs use part of their unemployment benefits to invest in a hairpiece."

Hairpieces for men far antedate fashions for women. "They were first worn, so far as we can find, by Egyptian Pharaohs, more than 5,000 years ago," Kaplan said. "George Washington wore a hairpiece. So did our next three Presidents."

His most unusual client was a man who made his living being fired-out of a circus cannon. "Certainly he wore his hairpiece while performing his act," said Kaplan. "Why not?"

And the most unusual request his firm has had?

"Well," said Kaplan, "there was that fellow who wanted us to make him a hairpiece to wear on his chest."

Other Editors Saying --- Justice And Logic

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
The Eastern Carolina Warehousemen's Association is petitioning for opening of the Eastern Carolina Tobacco belt closer to the opening of the South Carolina and Border Belt opening.

There is justice to the warehousemen. There is justice to the farmer, and there is justice to the whole business economy of the Eastern Belt area in this petition.

Facts are falling together in such fashion that those determining assignment of grades and buyers may find it possible to grant the petition, in part at least.

Last year the Eastern Belt opened 16 days after the Border Belt. Two years ago the Eastern Belt opened 21 days after the Border Belt.

During both years there was a great percentage of the tobacco of Eastern North Carolina that was ready to go to market. Though it is uneconomical in that transportation costs are increased, many farmers in the Eastern Belt trucked tobacco the long, costly miles to sell on the Border Belt before the Eastern Belt opened. They needed money. The tobacco was ready. So they had to cut their net profit by assuming the extra costs of uneconomical travel.

The farmer who holds his transportation and time costs in selling his crop to the least possible total is increasing his net income. Miles to market and time consumed in such travel and selling are items which he can control.

The Eastern Warehousemen in their petition for bringing opening dates of the two belts closer together say that this should be possible in the season now not too far away. Buyers and graders move from the Georgia-Florida Belt to the Eastern Belt. The overall production in that southern area will be short this year.

We are told that in addition to the reduction of acreage under the quota system, that 26 per cent of authorized acreage this year was placed in the soil bank. This statement sheds light on a report a Goldsboro man brought after a visit to agricultural areas of Georgia some weeks ago. He said that a major dislocation of business operations in strictly farm sections of that state is being caused because so much land had been put in the soil bank.

The Eastern Carolina Warehousemen deserve the support of all in their efforts to correct a situation that is uneconomical, unfair and illogical.

Quote

"Actually, all of the enterprises and consumers of the country would benefit in one way or another from repeal of the excise tax on transportation. It is an inflationary, pyramiding tax. It is also the kind of tax which can be justified only in a truly critical emergency such as war. Finally, repeal would be a shot in the arm to the whole economy—and that is certainly needed now."—Industrial News Review.

Major Southern Industry Hurt

By THURMAN SENSING
A major Southern industry was sandbagged recently when the U. S. House of Representatives voted to lower international trade duties.

The seriousness of the threat posed by Japanese textile exports is inadequately understood. There aren't any tariff walls to prevent the Japanese turning loose a torrent of cheap textiles. The U. S. government has abandoned protection of the nation's fourth largest industry. Only voluntary quotas imposed by the Japanese themselves restrict the flow of textiles into this country. And the hand-writing is on the wall. The Japanese are determined to raise the quotas. Higher quotas mean that more textile mills in Southern states will close their doors.

Textile manufacturing is the principal industry of both Carolinas in particular. In North Carolina more than half the people employed in manufacturing are in the textile mills. A total of 227,200 North Carolinians out of a manufacturing labor force of 453,000 persons are employed in textile mills in the Tar Heel State. The allied apparel this happen. Detroit and other Northern manufacturing centers might come to understand the troubles facing textiles areas in the South.

A total of 227,200 North Carolinians out of a manufacturing labor force of 453,000 persons are employed in textile mills in the Tar Heel State. The allied apparel industry gives employment to 22,900.

The picture is darkening steadily because of unfair foreign competition. In February 1951, some 1,355,000 persons were working in the textile industry in the United States. In the last few years more than 700 textile mills have gone out of business. Many Southern textile mills have been forced to cut their work week, with a resulting loss in wages to employes and profits to employers.

No American industry can compete with Japanese industry that pays its workers a tiny fraction of the wages employes in this country. The South needs to tell the story of what is happening to its great textile industry. The nation should be informed as to how a great American interest is being lost to foreign competition. Southern leaders should never cease to point out that the health of the nation's economy is affected by the health of the South's textile industry.

Northern and Western congressmen should be reminded again and again that the Southern dollar industry buys millions of dollars of equipment from textile machinery plants in their states. This great industry also buys over $800 million worth of chemicals and $30 million worth of other products each year. The bulk of these purchases is made in states outside the South.

The welfare of thousands of textile workers in Southern states and the investments of stockholders in the South and throughout the nation are at stake in this country's international trade laws. Harm done to one the bases of American strength, is this country. Congress should be made to realize that no grant of power should be given to the Executive Department that places the welfare of Americans in jeopardy in order to promote the objectives of a bankrupt foreign policy. To win Japan's friendship at the expense of ruining a major American industry is self-defeating. True, Japan must trade. But the interests of citizens in the textile states should be put ahead of the interests of any foreign power.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP, Newsfeatures

There's a great dividing line between the camera fans who take pictures for pleasure and those who try to turn it into a profit. As a hobby, it can be fun; as a business, it can be a headache, especially to those at the boundary line. Yet it seems so easy to make pictures pay off when friends and relatives rave about some good pictures or your come up with a lucky snap.

If you can plan in advance and come up with "lucky" snaps and good pictures consistently, then it is time to investigate the possibilities of a photo career. It can be a part time career until you find out for yourself whether a photographer's life is for you.

One of the latest guides to a photo career has some straight-from-the-shoulder advice by the editor of a Sunday magazine syndicate, "Secrets of Successful Free Lancing" by Donald Fettel is book number 59 in the Modern Camera Guide Series (Greenberg, N.Y.). The mark of the professional photographer is that he knows how to get fresh ideas for saleable picture stories; he knows how to carry them out photographically and he does it with a minimum waste of time. Finally, he knows where to take his pictures to bring him a profitable return.

Fettel stresses that the beginner must learn to think photographically along creative lines, avoid the photo clichés, in order to get started. He believes that the first thing to forget is the art type of pictures that look good on salon walls but will never sell. You must think of pictures that will appeal to some editor or publication on a cash basis.

I may as well say that I disagree with author Fettel on this point. I think photographers should take pictures that appeal to them at any time, whether they are likely to be sold or not.

But Fettel argues that there are two types of photographers: those who get paid for their pictures and those who have an expensive hobby.

I go along with the author in his warning against overdoing "natural light" photography. If pictures are to be sold, they must be reproduced in all sorts of publications by various printing processes. A picture with good, strong lighting, instead of shadowy subtleties, will have a strong point in its favor when shown to editors.

Starting photographers must develop creative picture ideas from their experiences, their environment and from their reading. But they must subject their ideas to self-criticism and reject the impractical time wasters.

Start an idea file by saving newspaper and magazine items that even remotely suggest a picture story. The feature sections of newspapers are especially productive of ideas which you must recognize. For instance you should grab an item telling of a local college lab where miniature loaves of bread are baked to test new wheat strains. Or suppose a story describes a school in Washington (founded by the children of Russian diplomatic personnel). This should suggest a catchy title for a picture story, "The Little Red Schoolhouse," and would be worth trying to get.

To translate your ideas into pictures, you should seek the help of those people who would benefit from the publication of the story or pictures. Press agents, publicity outfits, trade associations, colleges, government agencies, among others, are likely to prove cooperative if they or their clients are in the picture at all. Many pictures are enhanced by can't afford to hire models, you can often contact local school cheer leaders, charm or modeling school students or amateur theater groups.

Selling pictures, the author feels, is best left in the hands of qualified picture agents or agencies. Otherwise it becomes a time-consuming job by mail provided the photographer knows all the available or potential markets for each type of picture, which isn't likely. Today, the top picture agencies are rather selective themselves and have become specialized.

Most agencies will appraise photographers' offerings and will take them on if they think they have potential commercial value.

Greenville Reservists Are Training At Fort Jackson

Summer training activities are underway at Fort Jackson, S.C., for the officers and enlisted men of the Greenville detachment of the 3015th Reception Station. The duties of the local unit are under the supervision of Major Gordon B. Berry of Greenville.

The work of the 3015th U.S. Army Reserve is primarily that of personnel administration. This work includes such jobs as attending to Headquarters and Troop Command. Also the Greenville unit handles Medical, Finance, and Records Processing as well as attending to personal affairs, classification and testing of the new Army recruit.

During the two weeks period of training for the unit the summer work is broken down into two main phases of activity. They are practical on the job training and range firing and other related activities.

The first day here is a day of orientation and welcome by the local commanding officers of Fort Jackson. After a brief message of greeting from Brigadier General William R. Woodward, Deputy Commanding General of Fort Jackson, the unit was assigned to its various job requirements.

In the practical on the job training the men from Greenville and surrounding towns are working right alongside regular Army men, and doing the same type of work that they are engaged in. For instance, in the Medical section the Greenville men are actually helping to vaccinate recruits and assist the medical officers in their work of examining enlistees.

In Record Processing all records of the recruits are double-checked for accuracy and put together. This is where the soldier's permanent records really begin. And in Finance initial pay records are opened or begun and initial allowances and partial payments are made to the men.

Personal affairs are important to the recruit and such things as allotments have to be made out. Also Form W-2's must be filled out, as well as Form 93's which have Emergency Data information which might be needed.

Major Berry is the Executive Officer for the 3015th while in Easttern North Carolina and also while here at summer camp. Working with him is First Lieutenant Marvin V. Horton, Jr., of Tarboro, who is the Adjutant. The First Sergeant for the entire 3015th while here at camp is Master Sgt. Ernest S. Spain, Jr.

Lt. Col. George S. Dewey of Goldsboro is Commanding Officer of the whole 3015th Reception Station with his Headquarters in Greenville.

The second week of summer encampment will include such activities as Range firing with the Carbine Cal. 30 rifle, and taking the U.S. Army Proficiency tests which all new men must take. However, this year for the personnel from the 3015th who have qualified in firing and also in the Proficiency tests, they will continue their on the job training.

Saturday morning, the 28th of June, final clean-up will be done and inspection will be made of men and barracks preparatory to the final departure. The men will receive their pay also on Saturday for the two weeks of training and will begin to get ready for the trip back home to Greenville to return to their former civilian occupations.

Last Rites For John Kerr, Sr. Slated Tuesday

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — John H. Kerr Sr., who spent 30 years in Congress and gave his name to a huge hydro-electric project, will be buried here tomorrow.

Kerr died Saturday night at the age of 85. He had been in poor health for two years, and suffered a stroke of pneumonia last week.

The Rev. John Link, assisted by the Rev. Howard Hartzell, will conduct funeral services at the Kerr home at 11 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery here.

Although he was born in Yanceyville, Kerr spent most of his life in Warrenton. He began the practice of law here in 1899, and served as Warrenton mayor before becoming a superior court solicitor.

Kerr served as a superior court judge from 1916 until his election to Congress in 1923, and retained the title of judge among his friends until his death. In Congress, he became ranking member of the powerful Appropriations Committee and was influential in securing funds for construction of a hydro-electric dam on the Roanoke River at Buggs Island. ## Wofford Board Picks President

SPARTANBURG (AP) — Wofford College's new president, Charles F. Marsh, will assume his duties Sept. 1.

Marsh, presently dean of William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Va., was elected president at a special meeting of the Wofford Board of Trustees here Saturday.

Marsh received his bachelor of arts degree from Lawrence College in 1925. He received masters and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Illinois.

He taught at American University in Washington before joining the William and Mary faculty in 1930 as professor of economics and business administration.

Dean Philip S. Covington will continue as acting president of Wofford until Sept. 1.

Fierce-Faced, But Shy Rhinos Near Extinction

VANISHING SPECIES—A pair of white rhinoceros balefully eye the camera. The massive beasts, reportedly shy and peace-loving, are in danger of becoming extinct.

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP) — The white hunter's thirst for trophies — coupled with the demands of African and Chinese sorcerers — is driving one more massive African animal to the verge of extinction.

According to even the most optimistic estimates, there are only about 1,800 white rhinoceros left on the vast African continent. The British East Africa Fauna Conference has sent a desperate appeal to the Belgian, South African and Sudanese governments to take all appropriate measures to protect what remains of the white rhinoceros. It recommended the creation of reserves and severe controls on poaching.

For centuries the two-horned African rhinoceros have been prizes of witchdoctors. Their horns, ground to powder, supposed to cure dozens of diseases. Although the horns are the only part of the beast desired, he must be killed to get at them.

The horns sell at extravagantly high prices on the ports along the Indian Ocean, from where they are smuggled to the Far East.

Despite their frightening appearance, rhinos are shy and usually flee from humans. They are short sighted and have a very poor sense of smell. Specialists say they are inoffensive, although occasionally an incontinent hunter is killed after getting too close to a wounded animal.

What is commonly known as the white rhinoceros in fact is not white at all, but rather slate-colored.

The word "white" results from a language error. The Boers, when they saw the animal in South Africa, called it "wilde mond" which, literally, means "big mouth." The British later called it rhinoceros, a mixture of Greek words, and added "white" to differentiate it from other species. This "wilde" eventually turned into "white."

Naturalists have strong hopes that drastic measures will save what remains of the "big mouths."

A similar call for protection was made some 20 years ago in the Cameroons with the cousin of the white rhinoceros — the black rhinoceros. (The latter, of course, is no more black than the "big mouth" is white, but is rather brownish.)

At the time there were only about 30 black rhinoceros left in the Cameroons. Total protection of the animals was decreed and the family is now estimated to include some 200 members.

Discordant Note In Singing Brawl

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A singing contest sponsored by the City Recreation Department ended in discord.

Three members of one quintet were sentenced to the City Workhouse, one put on probation and another turned over to juvenile authorities. According to testimony, they demanded another singing group throw the contest.

When the other group won anyway, a brawl started.

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Mrs. Williams S. Cook explained to police that she isn't running a restaurant. A man broke into her house and ordered her to cook him a meal. He paid her $8 after eating the ham and eggs she prepared. Police later arrested the man for investigation of house breaking.

Fighting Turk's First Question

HONOLULU (AP) — Sergeant Karpaz Demirkon, a Turkish soldier serving in Korea, was flown to Honolulu on his way to his homeland for medical treatment. When he was admitted to Tripler Army hospital here, a reporter for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, George Choullian, was pressed into service to speak in Turkish to Demirkon. The Turkish soldier's first question: "Is there a PX here?"

ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS—The lad would seem to be, and so would the photographer. This ingenious new slant on the old theme of June graduation by Graphic House illustrates "Secrets of Successful Free Lancing" by Donald Fettel.

'Paladin' Approves Good Westerns For TV Fare

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer of this column is the star of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

By RICHARD BOONE

NEW YORK (AP) — A little more than a year ago, a certain observation was made in a screening room on Madison Avenue. CBS and advertising executives were viewing the pilot episode of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

In the darkness, someone said: "Say, that damn doctor can really ride a horse."

That Madison Avenue observer was seeing me for the first time as Paladin — a gentlemanly sort of rogue, circa Old West, 1870's. Until then he knew me from TV for the most part as Dr. Styer.

Well, an actor is always looking for a change of pace. The meatier the role, the better the actor's feast. Having been with Paladin for over a year, I feel right at home with him and the show. I've never had so much fun.

As for that Madison Avenue observer's surprise at seeing me on a horse—well, Boone and horses have been on neighborly terms for a long time. I've ridden them as a boy working summers in Montana, and they have carried me across landscapes through a score of western feature pictures.

In fact, one of the requirements I have for actors in a dramatic group I conduct is that they learn to ride a horse. Where is an actor in Hollywood today, if he can't swing aboard Old Paint?

Getting back to HGWT. People often ask, now that the show is a success, how long the series will run. This is a tough question that I wouldn't try to answer. There are so many unknown factors in the run of any show on television. Well, they then ask — How long will TV westerns be popular? This brings to mind the Indian chief who asked Gen. Phil Sheridan for a cannon.

"Why — so you can kill more soldiers?" demanded Sheridan. "No," said the chief. "Use cannon to kill cowboys. Kill soldiers with a club."

As far as I'm concerned, I hope it's just as hard to kill off TV's westerns. The good ones, that is. There's just something about cowboys and good western stories that make good entertainment.

Mamas Battle Wednesday Night

This Wednesday night at Guy Smith Stadium will be MAMA'S NIGHT for the Teen-er League, featuring a ball game between two teams of mamas.

The womenfolk will choose sides and battle it out in a "regulation" ball game with normal rules and in the normal fashion according to reports from Teen-er officials. One official however looked at it from a realistic angle: "I don't know how much ball playing they'll do, but you can bet they'll have a good time out there."

Admission of 25c will be charged for the ball game and all the receipts from the game will go into the Teen-er League organization. The league for boys between the ages of 13-15 is a self-financed program and money must be raised by the league itself. Since there is no charge for regular Teen-er league ball games, the parents and officials support the league by presenting dinners and such features as Wednesday night's ball game.

A large number of mothers have already joined the projects, among them, Mrs. Terry Nobles, Mrs. J. Harper, Mrs. Fred Gauve, Mrs. Bruce Hemby, Mrs. Beverly Joyner, Mrs. Lee W. Hardee, Mrs. E. B. Aycock, Mrs. H. N. Pelton, Mrs. D. Johnson, Mrs. Leftwick, Mrs. Boyd Cox, Mrs. P. K. Andersen, Mrs. Dot Foley, Mrs. W. C. James.

Many others have also signed the roster.

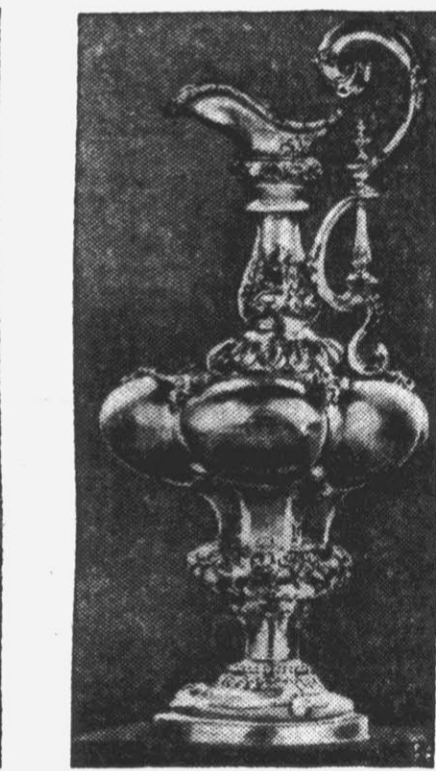

Game time is set for 7:30. There will be plenty of seats, refreshments, laughs, and maybe some baseball.

AMERICA'S CUP

America's Cup ABC For Brand New Generation

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

This generation hardly knows the meaning of America's Cup. Those of 25 and under might think it a $100,000 horse race, an old shaving mug or a breakfast cereal.

Yet it is the unique sporting event of the year. It's a race between 12-meter yachts costing six figures to build. And only well-to-do persons with ocean-going vessels or airplanes will get to see the actual race.

When a group of yachtsmen formed the New York Yacht Club in 1844 little did they realize that the cradle of international yacht racing was taking shape.

In 1851, club members built a 101-foot schooner, the America. She was sailed to England and in a race around the Isle of Wight turned back the English ship Aurora. The trophy was called the Hundred-Guinea Cup.

Subsequently, the cup was deeded to the New York Yacht Club and it became known as The American's Cup. It was regarded as a perpetual challenge cup for friendly relations between foreign nations.

Ever since 1870, when the second race was held, English or Canadian sportsmen have been attempting to wrest the foreign-made bauble. But United States yachts and sailors always proved superior.

The last race in this historic series were held in 1937 when Harold S. Vanderbilt's one-million dollar Ranger (130 feet over-all) won four straight races over T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II. After 21 years of silence the British have won the cup.

The ultimate race — the 17th in the series — will pit Sceptre against America's 12-meter champion Sept. 20 off Newport, R.I. But before that the Americans have much work ahead. There will be a series of three trials to determine which of four American yachts will have the honor of defending. Preliminary trials are July 12-19, observation trials Aug. 16-23 and final trials Sept. 1-13. All trials will be held off Newport. The American defender must be named by Sept. 13.

Our yachts, each hoping to defend, are the veteran campaigner Vim, Weatherly, Easterner and Columbia.

The Vim, built in 1939 by Olin Stephens for Vanderbilt, is a 12-meter that meets specifications of design and has been refurbished to cut down weight. She is owned by John N. Matthews of Oyster Bay, N. Y., a retired terminal and stevedoring man. Her crew will include the veteran skipper Gus Mossbacher, Jr., Dick Matthews, 27, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Donald Matthews, 24, of Rye, N. Y. She is approximately 70 feet overall and will carry a crew of 10 or 11.

The Weatherly, owned by Henry D. Mercer of Rumson, N. J., and two business associates, Cornelius Walsh and Arnold D. Frese, has been fitted with aluminum deck screws to save weight. It was built in Stamford, Conn., over the winter and will be skippered by Arthur Knapp Jr., of Larchmont, N. Y. Mercer plans to watch the trials from his 110-foot diesel yacht Bluejacket.

The Easterner is owned by Chandler Hovey of Boston and this 30-ton yacht is a family affair in that Bus Hovey will be the helmsman with brother Charles as alternate. Son-in-law Sherman Moss will be navigator. Philip Rhoads is the designer.

The Columbia was the last American boat named. Originally Henry Sears of New York was going to call her the Swift. It was designed by Olin Stevens and built at City Island, N. Y. It is known as the Sears-synclade boat and its backers include Gerard B. Lambert, William T. Moore, James A. Farrell Jr. and A. Howard Fuller. Briggs Cunningham, of sports car and sailing fame, will be her skipper.

The British challenger Sceptre has had many weeks of intensive sailing but by the time the American trials are over veteran skipper feel the hallowed America's Cup will still be in a glass case near Times Square come October.

When Sal Maglie Said He'd 'Show 'Em' He Was Serious

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press

Sal Maglie wasn't kidding when he said "I'll show 'em." The 41-year-old right-hander was peeved when the New York Yankees shunted him to St. Louis June 14 to make room for a 39-year-old man (Virgil Trucks).

When he left the Yankees, he told reporters, "I still think I can take a turn. I'm peeved. I'll show 'em."

Freddie Hutchinson, Sal's new boss with the Cardinals, shared Maglie's sentiments. He gave The Barber a starting chance Sunday against Milwaukee and was rewarded with a 2-1 victory over the league-leaders.

Hutch probably was well aware of the fact that pennants and Maglie go hand in hand. The Giants, then in New York, won with him in 1954, Brooklyn won with him in 1956 and last year he joined the Yankees in time to celebrate another championship. The only time he missed in the last four years was at Cleveland in 1955.

Maglie showed signs of weariness in the sixth and seventh so Hutch sent up Irv Noren to bat for him in the eighth inning. Larry Jackson, a work-horse both on relief and starting, retired the last six Braves in row.

The defeat cut the Braves' National League lead to 1 1/2 games as San Francisco outlasted the Phillies 5-4 in 14 innings on a homer by Willie Kirkland. The Giants also led their second game 1-0 when it was suspended in the sixth by the Sunday curfew. It will be completed later.

As a result of the Sunday action there is practically a triple heat for third place with Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Pittsburgh each 3 1/2 games behind the Braves and separated by only one percentage point.

Cincinnati split with Chicago winning the first on Gus Bell's grand slam homer 6-2. The Cubs staged a three-run rally in the ninth to take the second game 8-6.

Steve Bilko and Johnny Klippstein, two recently acquired Los Pittsburgh 4-1 and 3-2. Klippstein's relief work saved the first game in which two singles by Dick Gray played a prominent part. Bilko's 10th inning pinch single scored Joe Pignatano from Angeles Dodgers, helped the cellar team win a doubleheader from second base for the second decision.

In the American League, the New York Yankees finally rose up and smashed down their tormentors from Detroit 15-0 after losing seven straight to the Tigers. Don Larsen cooled off Detroit with two singles for his second shutout. Kansas City remained 8 1/2 behind the Yanks by edging Boston 2-1 on a game saving catch by Hector Lopez who then singled to drive in the winning run. Cleveland took two from Washington 4-2 and 1-0 with Minnie Minofo hitting a home run in each game. Baltimore pulled out of the cellar by Billy O'Dell's six-hit job against Chicago 2-0.

Yankee Hurler Holds Tigers To Two Hits

DETROIT (AP) — Everything is anticlimactic for Don Larsen. Try as he does the New York Yankee righthander undoubtedly never will repeat that game in 1956.

That was the memorable day he pitched the first perfect game in World Series history.

He came pretty close to pitching another no-hitter yesterday. The Detroit Tigers collected only two singles off the no-windup pitcher as he blanked them 15-0.

It was his third shutout of the season.

"No, I don't think it was my best since the no-hitter," Larsen said. "I've had better stuff in other games."

Larsen seems to pitch his best when the going is toughest. Before today, the Tigers had whipped the Yankees seven straight times. Casey Stengel barred his clubhouse doors after Saturday's 1-0 loss and gave his rumbuling league leaders a stern chewing out.

It must have worked. The Yankees worked over and over with six runs in the first inning and gave Larsen more working margin than he needed.

Shared Honors In Atlanta Show

ATLANTA (AP)—Horses from Oklahoma and Atlanta shared top honors in the 15th annual Greater Atlanta Shrine horse show over the weekend.

Rythum Queen, owned by Emmett Darby of Oklahoma City, won the $1,000 walking horse championship stake Saturday night.

Lady Carrigan, owned by Miss Jolie Richardson of Atlanta, placed to victory in the $1,000 five-gaited championship stake.

The Hunting Grand Championship went to Silverminer, the Chinquapin Farm entry from Tryon, N.C. tutored by Betty Reynolds. Silverminer cleared three first place hurdles and one second place obstacle for a cumulative score of 18.

Veteran H. R. Belew of Jacksonville, Tenn., guided Cricket over all barriers to capture the $500 Green Hunter Stake. Babs, owned by Block House Farms of Tryon, N.C., and ridden by Mrs. O. C. Carmichael Jr., was second.

Sam Brannon of Greenwood, S. C., drove C. Y. Thomason's Society's Crown Jewel to the Junior Fine Harness championship. Society Acclaim, owned and driven by Jack Boyd of Simpsonville, S.C., was runnerup.

Ted Kroll Takes Lead From Bolt

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — It has been two years since Ted Kroll reaped the biggest payoff in the history of golf but the compact little veteran is back knocking on the victory door again.

He carried a two-stroke lead into today's final round of the $52,000 Flint Open.

Tommy Bolt, the fellow 39-year-old Kroll instead in yesterday's third round, said he was glad to be out of the lead.

Consistency paid off for Kroll, whose $72,000-plus earnings two years ago stand as the highest money for one golfer in a single year.

"I'm hitting the ball better than I have in two years," he said. "I'd like to hit this well the rest of my life and I'd be happy."

Kroll seized the lead from Bolt with a 2-under-par 69, while Bolt again matched par with a 72.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Pep, the old pro from Hartford, Conn. will try to strengthen his claims for another shot at the featherweight title he held so long when he meets Pat McCoy of Ireland today at New Bedford, Mass.

Willy Williams has won 28 of his last 29 and hopes to boost himself into a title match with Hogan (Kid) Bassey, the current 126-pound ranked in mid-September at Boston.

Prepare To Pick All-Star Team

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP)—Ballots have been prepared for Carolina League players and managers to select the league's all-star team for the game scheduled the night of July 4.

The all-star squad will play the team which leads the league after games of July 4, and the first place team will be host for the all-star tilt.

Denison Coach To Join Amen

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Coach Paul Amen of Wake Forest has selected Kenneth W. Meyer, backfield assistant at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, to join his football coaching staff.

Amen said Saturday he hopes within a few days to fill the other two positions vacated by the recent resignations of Ken Wable and Gene Gibson who took coaching jobs at other schools.

Meyer, a Denison graduate, was backfield assistant there for the past six years. During that time the team won 35 games, lost 15 and tied five.

Team Picked To Meet Russians

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The United States has named a topnotch track and field team to face Russian speed and brawn in an international meet at Moscow next month.

Amateur Athletic Union officials and track coaches selected a team of olympic caliber at a lengthy meeting yesterday.

The team will leave for Russia July 20.

Selections also were made for other touring U.S. teams. Some trips overlap so that in some cases athletes have been named to more than one.

A team which will tour Switzerland includes Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem, N.C. Teachers.

CHAPTER 6

"Maybe I'll have a chance to see Mrs. Kilson's beautiful granddaughter tonight," Wynn said to Beulah Denhart. "The old lady's all heated up over this Forest Reserve business. She wants all us ranchers in the Chupaderos to meet to talk it over. Even sent word to old Nick Considine to come. She asked me to let them meet at my place because she knew Nick wouldn't come to the Walking K."

The front door banged and Beulah got to her feet and went into the lobby.

"Why, Bache!" she said, surprise and some displeasure in her voice as she eyed the ragged, dirty figure.

Behind her, through the open sitting-room door, she heard Wynn Thomason's boots hit the floor. The man she had called Bache looked at the girl through bleary eyes and tried to smile.

"Wynn!" he said thickly. "I'm merely in search of my ol' fren', Wynn."

The girl looked at him with more pity than anger. Bache shortened from borracho, meaning drunkard, to what the West calls a remittance man. His high-born English family, embarrassed by the lavish crop of wild oats he insisted on sowing, had shipped him to America years ago to get rid of him. For a long time they had sent him a small monthly allowance to live on, but it had been some years now since the checks had stopped coming, and Bache had drifted from one job to another, finally ending up as Frenchy Quebedeaux's shepherd. He was a friendly, talkative, interesting man when sober, but his crazy love of liquor made him completely undependable. Most folks couldn't understand how the short-tempered, taciturn Frenchman had put up with him as long as he had.

"Wynn!" he repeated. "You seen Wynn?"

The cowboy in the doorway behind Beulah swore. He crowded his way past the girl and grasped Bache by the arm. "Bache! You know you've got no business coming in here! Get out!"

The little shepherd grinned up at him foolishly. "My ol' pal, Wynn! I says to myself—fin' my fren' Wynn. He'll buy me a drink."

The cowboy's thin, dark face flushed.

"Wynn and I are pals!" Bache confided to the girl. "We got secrets! I'll tell you—"

Wynn Thomason's grasp wasn't gentle. He seized the ragged coat collar, yanked Bache around, and half shoved, half carried him across the room. He swung the door open, then with his right fist clipped the little herder a blow behind the ear that sent him sprawling into the street.

Coming down the stairway inside the hotel, Slade Considine was just in time to see the finish. So too was Frenchy Quebedeaux, who had just made a round of the saloons in search of his shepherd. Now he took one look at Bache, saw him begin to stir, and knew he wasn't badly hurt.

Frenchy was big, and burly, and tough. He came charging into the hotel like a bull seeing red. Wynn Thomason, half-way across the room toward the desk, turned in surprise.

"You skunk! You snake on the grass!" Frenchy bellowed. "You heet Bache when hee's drunk — by gones, I heet you! I theenk I like to keel you!"

Frenchy rushed in. His big right arm grabbed Wynn in the stomach. Surprised by the complete suddenness of the attack, Wynn didn't even try to dodge. He sat down, holding a hand over his stomach, his head bent low, while he gasped to get breath. Frenchy danced around him, brandishing his fists, bellowing French swear words, begging him to get up. The cowboy raised his head, rubbed his forehead with the back of his fist as if to clear the mist from his eyes.

Then with the suddenness of a cat springing on a mouse, his right hand went for the gun at his hip. Slade Considine jumped forward and looked at it just as he squeezed the trigger. The bullet nicked off a tip of horn from a mounted deer head over the fireplace. Then Slade tackled the big Frenchman from the rear as with a squeal of rage, Frenchy lunged forward as if he intended to finish the fight in a rolling rough and tumble on the floor.

Beulah Denhart picked up the sixgun and tucked it into the pocket of her dress. "That's enough, all of you!" she said crisply. "This hotel is no place for a brawl!"

The big Frenchman stopped struggling in Slade Considine's grasp. He looked at the girl and took off his hat. There was sudden contrition on his big, good-looking face. "Pardon, ma'moiselle! I am essorry I lose my tamper!"

The girl smiled at him. "Sure, Frenchy! But don't hold this against Wynn. He didn't understand. He was afraid Bache was bothering me."

Frenchy twisted his hat in his big hands. "Sure, t'eng, ma'moiselle! But you mus' never be afraid of Bache! When hee's drunk hee's crazy, hee's foolish, but hee's never bad! He won't hurt you!"

"I know that, Frenchy," the girl said quietly. She stopped, put an arm under Wynn Thomason's shoulder and helped him to his

New Labels Applied To What's Happening Now

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—New labels for what's happening to use today crop up fast. And old terms for a slack in business activity are cast off as too harsh or upsetting.

Bottoming out is the most popular of today's catch-all phrases — leveling off having been the euphemism used last year when the boom fizzled.

Grandfather may have talked about a panic — which today's unpleasantness certainly isn't — and Father lived intimately with a depression — which by strict definition this one isn't either.

Today's is called a saucer-like recession, although some prefer breather before the next sprint and others think it shouldn't be mentioned by any name, especially when it's their own sales are queasy.

Rolling readjustment was good enough right after the war. And inventory adjustment did for broader dips in the economy, such as the two before this one.

Total employment, wage-price spirals, jobless pay, built in cushions and escalators — all are part of the postwar jargon of management, labor, economists and consumers.

Economists see fine shades of meaning in all these terms. But most citizens just know that business is brisk or slow, jobs easy or hard to find. Just as they associate inflation with only one thing — higher prices for what they buy, no matter what may have caused it.

The old-fashioned panic usually started with bank failures and loud bursting of stock market balloons. There's nothing like that today.

A depression — according to the dictionary of economics by Harold S. Sloan and Arnold J. Zurcher — is "a period of low business activity when prices are low, purchasing power sharply curtailed, and unemployment high." The current dip has a long way to slip before getting into that class, in spite of the distressing total of the jobsless.

A recession is defined as "a mild tapering off of economic activity, not sufficient to mark a major phase of a business cycle." Many economists tag today's state of business with that handle, although they concede that only some businesses are affected and in large sections of the nation you can scarcely find a trace of an over-all slowdown.

And that state of affairs is what a few years back was called a rolling readjustment, meaning that only part of the economy was down at any one time while others were zooming along waiting their turn.

This time the slump — another catch phrase used because it takes up less type space than recession — is too wide spread through the durable goods industries and too deep to be dismissed as rolling.

So the saucer recession has come into vogue. Economists looking at past economic dips noted that after a fairly steep decline the economy, before starting up again, spent quite a bit of time on the floor of the valley (it's on a plateau when it's stopped dead after a climb). The likeness to a saucer came in handy.

Some now vary this by opining that this bottoming out might be on a spongy bottom, remembering that saucers often can be wet and messy. This means the optimists hope that for some time now we'll have only minor ups and downs until the other side of the saucer or valley is reached.

By then we're likely to have an entirely new set of terms.

Village Smithy Still At Work

ROCHELLE, Ill. (AP) — Although the need for horseshoes has all but vanished, the village smithy still plies his trade.

Einar Schooning, who learned the blacksmith trade in Denmark before coming here in 1922 to join his brother, William, in the shop across from city hall, still uses the old forge which is nearly 60 years old.

Right now is Schooning's busy season — what with plow shares, farm machinery, lawn mowers and making handwrought iron work.

Hay Utilized As Freedom Stair

CALHOUN, Ky. (AP) — Hugh Nance's cow didn't jump over the moon. But she did fall into the cellar.

The cow, Bossy, wandered into the wash house. The floor gave way.

Nance tossed bales of hay into the cellar and arranged them in stairlike fashion up to the hole. Bossy climbed the hay-stairs to freedom.

Pigeon's Life Is Unsafe In Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A pigeon's life isn't all fun in Tucson.

A policeman heard a couple of gun shots and saw two pigeons fall to the sidewalk. Then another blast and another pigeon tumbled on one of the city's busiest intersections.

The policeman found Duane Jackson, a bank employe, perched on a ninth floor window ledge with a rifle.

Jackson told the officer he shot at pigeons every morning. He produced a letter signed by Mayor Don Hummel giving the necessary authorization. The officer left. Jackson returned to his hunting.

Candidate Stirs Prison Interest

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — The entry of D.A. Bricker, former head of the FBI in Oklahoma, into the governor's race as a Democrat stirred interest at the state prison here.

The penitentiary newspaper, The Eye Opener, commented his candidacy "will be greeted with much serious thought here."

Advises Indians Stress Schooling

FORT HALL, Idaho (AP) — Gov. Robert Smylie of Idaho has advised reservation Indians that it is their responsibility to see that Indian children get an education.

"As our country grows and technical advances are made, the need for an education will be greater and greater," Smylie told a meeting of Indians at this Southern Idaho reservation.

Road Damage Has Intensive Survey

CAROLINA BEACH, N.C. (AP) — An intensive survey is in progress to find ways to build roads better able to stand the blows of weather, Highway Director W. F. Babcock announced today.

A heavy toll of damage from last winter's severe freezes and drenching rains prompted the study, Babcock said in a speech prepared for delivery to the North Carolina Assn. of County Commissioners.

Won't Identify Suspected Killer

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — The widow of a slain Georgia merchant will not say whether Charles (Rocky) Rothschild is the man who shot and killed her husband June 19, 1956, Georgia authorities said today.

A party of engineers has been dispatched to mountain counties, where almost one million dollars has been spent to repair weather damage, to begin the survey, the highway official reported.

James F. Foster, 40, Greer, S. C., house painter, has a stay of execution for the death of Charles Drake, 60, the merchant, in a robbery attempt.

"Later, members of this research party will move into the east, and it is hoped, a continuing research project will be set up to make certain we are providing 'all weather' roads of as permanent a nature as is economically and technically feasible," Babcock explained.

Pitt Sees Series Of Weekend Auto Mishaps

Two Dead, 19 In Wreck Injured

Jimmy Charles Mills, 18, of Greenville Route 3, was charged with failure to yield the right of way as a result of a two-car collision at the intersection of Third and Cotanche streets late last night.

Other weekend accidents: Neither driver was charged in a collision at the corner of Third and Summit streets Saturday morning.

Damage to the front end of Mills' vehicle was estimated at approximately $750. Police reported that Barnhill's car was a total loss. The accident occurred at 11:15 p.m.

Combined damage to both cars was reported to be $250.

Robert Bernard, 67-year-old Negro of 606 Clark Street, was charged by police following their investigation of a collision on Clark Street late Saturday afternoon.

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — One person was killed, another was injured fatally, and 19 were hurt yesterday when the truck in which they were riding plunged down an embankment.

Police said the driver, Wallace Fisher, 40, of Rt. 1, Stanley, fell asleep at the wheel. Raymond Williams, 21, of Rt. 1, Stanley, was killed instantly and his mother, Mrs. Essie Williams, died later in a Charlotte hospital.

The other passengers, mostly children, were not hurt seriously, although they were thrown from the truck when it left the road. The accident occurred about two miles west of Gastonia on U.S. 29-74. The truck was returning from Clarksville, Ga., where the children of three interrelated families had been visiting relatives for a week.

The injured were Fisher, Cohen Williams, 48, whose wife and son were killed; another married son, Willie Williams, 27, and his wife, Leona, 26, and six other Williams children; Mrs. Leona Ailer, 34-year-old widow of McAdenville, and her six children: Jake Howard, 10, of Easley, S.C., and Jack Bryson, 19, of Rt. 1, Stanley.

NEW YORK (AP) — Industrials took losses as the stock market declined in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks dropped from fractions to about a point.

Steels, motors, chemicals, oils and nonferrous metals were mainly in the downside. Rails were narrowly mixed. Utilities edged off irregularly.

Airlines managed to present a string of small plus signs as earnings for the industry were reported improved.

American Motors was actively traded and down around a point in continued reaction to the news that financier Louis Wolfson had decided to unload his large holdings.

Some tobaccos and other selected issues bucked the lower trend. Gains of about a point were made by Lorillard, Goodyear and Standard Packaging.

Some American tobacco, Boeing and Schenley made fractional gains.

United Air Lines and Pan American World Airways made small advances. American Air Lines and Eastern Air Lines were firm.

U.S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet were down about a point each while Republic Steel and Bethlehem lost fractions.

The major automotive stocks showed little change but an easing tone was shown by General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and Studebaker-Packard.

A loss of about a point by Anacosta and a good sized fraction by Phelps Dodge highlighted the metals section. Homestake was off a little. Kennecott, International Nickel and American Smelting showed scant change.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) dropped about a point. Texaco and Royal Dutch held their losses to fractions.

Douglas Aircraft dropped a point or more. United Aircraft backed off slightly. Caterpillar was down about a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 70 cents to $173.10 with the industrials down $1.30, the rails down 10 cents and the utilities down 20 cents.

Claims Another 'Accessible' Party For T.S. Eliot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morgan Moulder (D-Mo) suggested today that House investigators call Gerald D. Morgan, President Eisenhower's special counsel, saying: "From what I hear, Mr. Morgan is more of a front man than Mr. Adams."

Moulder said in an interview he understands Morgan is more accessible than Sherman Adams to persons seeking help from the White House. Moulder did not go into detail.

A House subcommittee, of which Moulder is a member, resumes hearings tomorrow on contracts admittedly made by Adams. Eisenhower's top assistant, with two regulatory agencies on behalf of Bernard Goldfine, a millionaire Boston industrialist.

Adams, the center of a growing political storm, acknowledged accepting hotel hospitality and gifts from Goldfine, who said is an old friend. Although conceding he was imprudent, Adams has denied seeking or getting any favored treatment for Goldfine, who was having troubles with the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

There was no sign Eisenhower has changed his stated intention to retain Adams, whom he has described as a man of honest and integrity.

NEW YORK (AP) — "To meet Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Eliot," the card says.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus Jr., "request the pleasure . . . cocktails 5 to 7 . . . RSVP."

I RSVP. Who would miss a cocktail party for the Nobel prize winner who wrote "The Cocktail Party?"

The maid downstairs takes you, hat and up you go out of quiet into bedlam.

Here are publishers, authors, critics, their friends and acquaintances, teachers, wives, husbands. There is a tremendous buzz-buzz-buzz and he said and she said: "We got back from Europe yesterday."

"You read her new one?"

"Fill that up for you sir?"

"Is there any other poet really?"

"I should remember your name but I don't."

Farrar, Straus & Cudahy, Eliot's publisher, is represented by Straus; the kind and busy hostess, herself an author, the Cudahy and the Farrar, editor Robert Firoux and publicity director Lynn Caine.

The New York Times, led by Sunday editor Lester Markel, an author himself, has turned out in force. The Herald Tribune and the World-Telegram & Sun are represented, and among the wives are two stand-ins for husbands on Time and The New Yorker magazines. There are authors unattached to papers: Jean Stafford, Mary McCarthy, poet, Marianne Moore, James Johnson Sweeney (director of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation museum) and Virilia Peterson, currently a radio speaker. Publishing houses New Directions and Viking, the Book-of-the-Month Club, the Ford Foundation, Harper's Bazaar and Publishers' Weekly have sent spokesmen.

Besides all the people you know without being introduced, there are many nameless others, bearded and bald, all dressed up or very informal, loudly talking in the middle of things or bashful in a corner, never missing a passing waiter or never touching a drop.

How does Eliot behave at his own party? You find the visiting

Atlantic Flier Feared Missing

PARIS (AP) — The European sponsors of Max Conrad's nonstop flight across the Atlantic in a light plane reported today he had not contacted any control point for several hours.

The 55-year-old grandfather from Winona, Minn., radioed the tower at Dublin's Shannon Airport that he was 75 miles west of Bordeaux, France, at 4:07 a.m. Some time later he was reported over Portugal.

Jonas Aircraft & Arms Co., European sponsors of the flight from New York, said at noon that subsequent to Max Conrad had flown over the Mediterranean island of Elba were wrong. The company said the signals over Elba were from another plane.

State License Penalties Due

Penalties will be due on State Privilege licenses July 1 for the year June 1, 1958, to May 31, 1959, according to E. R. Carraway, state deputy tax collector for this area.

Carraway said penalties will be five per cent per month for each delinquent month. He added that applications for licenses should be filed immediately in order to avoid penalties.

Applications for licenses should be mailed to the North Carolina Department of Revenue in Raleigh, Carraway added.

No Follies For The Councilmen

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Richmond City Council has refused to participate in a ballet 31, 1959, according to E. R. Carraway, state deputy tax collector for this area.

A woman's club asked each member to dance in a comic ballet. Most of the city fathers agreed it would be comic all right. Most also found they had conflicting engagements. As a group they agreed they were not quite in shape for ballet dancing.

Propose Reform For Education

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two- year study concludes that a full-scale reform movement is needed to raise American education standards to the needs of modern times.

A report by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund Inc., called last night for immediate and far-reaching changes in the nation's educational system—not just more money.

The report echoed oft-repeated statements that American schools are overcrowded, understaffed and ill-equipped. It said the basic problem is one of providing more money but that other things must be done too.

The report suggested these steps:

1. Testing and guidance procedures must be strengthened to push along more talented students who may be held back by average or slow groups.
2. Some educational problems "gravely affecting the national interest" may require a helping hand from the federal government.
3. National leaders must grasp the scope of the job that lies ahead.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Kate Blackwell of Winston-Salem and Sheila Saper of Greensboro will represent the North Carolina Girls' State at sessions of the Girls' National in Washington, D.C., next month.

Miss Blackwell was governor of the 19th Tar Heel Girls' State, which closed here Saturday.

Funeral services for Airman 1-c Karl B. White, 23, who was killed in an automobile accident near Greensboro, N.C., last week, will be held at Sweet Hope Church Wednesday at 2 p.m. Burial will be in the church cemetery. The Rev. Leroy Perkins will officiate.

Mr. White enlisted in the Air Force in November, 1954, after graduation from the County Training School in 1953. He was stationed at Dannelson Airfield, S. C. He also attended Sweet Hope Elementary School. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. White; three sisters, Mrs. Mae Bell Morris and Mrs. Bernice Green of the home, and Mrs. Lulu White of Toledo, Ohio; five brothers, James T. White of Greenville, Letha and Veldon White of the home, Eddie White of Washington, D.C., Ohio, and Airman 1-c Zeno White, Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto Rico.
