Goldfine Claims Gifts By Adams Surpassed His

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine denied today there was anything out of line in his gift-studded relationship with presidential aide Sherman Adams.

His hospitality and gifts to Adams, President Eisenhower's principal assistant, were not intended and did not result in special favors from government agencies for his business interests, Goldfine said.

Goldfine came before a House investigating committee with a long prepared statement denying any wrongdoing and hurrying a charge that embraced many Congress members that:

Eastern Tobacco Belt Auctions Tentatively Scheduled Open August 21

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (AP) — The Bright Belt Warehouse Assn. today set July 20 for the opening date of the flue-cured tobacco auction market in the Georgia-Florida Belt.

The opening dates for most South Carolina tobacco markets won't be set until next Monday, R. H. Askins, president of the S.C. Tobacco Warehouse Assn., said.

market of some 250 million pounds will have been overlooked at a possible slight price decline.

Richardson said, "There is no scientific proof that tobacco or cigarettes are a cause of cancer." The former South Carolina congressman acknowledged that foreign competition may be a problem, but said the cold war must be settled.

Canning Means Family Independence

MOTHER, DAUGHTER WORK TOGETHER . . . during the canning and freezing of vegetables and fruits' season.

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Woman's Writer
During this season of the year the farm woman can easily be said to be independent—indeed, that is, in preparing her daily meals.

The reason? Pitt County farm women have a wealth of farm produce just for the asking. For the past several weeks the farm family has had meals of fresh beans, corn, tomatoes, and fruits of all kinds.

At this time of year the farm wife realizes she must preserve as many vegetables and fruits when they are at their prime for the winter months to come.

Mrs. Ichabod Allen of near Farmville preserves vegetables and fruits both by canning and freezing.

Mrs. Allen cans most any variety of vegetables such as snap beans, tomatoes or tomato juice, while certain varieties are not as good frozen. Although she cans some vegetables she leans toward the freezing method. As she explained, "There's no hot stove to stand over and the freezing method is simple and much easier."

Even though freezing is easier there's still good points about canning. Her family likes some vegetables such as snap beans canned better than frozen.

Her yearly quota of canning yields up to 300 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

Six weeks during the year the Allen family gets fresh vegetables directly from the garden. Therefore, that leaves 44 weeks for which Mrs. Allen plans to have at least a vegetable a day.

Since her family enjoys snap beans canned, she cans 44 quarts, a few at the time, which enables her family to have this vegetable one time a week during the year.

Canning Method

Picking, for example, snap beans in the morning when they are at their tenderest, Mrs. Allen then cleans the beans and uses the blanching method.

This method is a process of dipping the beans in boiling water until they are completely heated. "Blanching gives the beans their true color," she said.

Using a pressure cooker, she packs the beans into hot jars with enough liquid to cover the vegetable leaving one-half inch head space. With the pressure cooker up to 10 lbs. she processes the produce for 45 minutes.

Freezing Method

Freezing a vegetable is faster and not so involved, stated Mrs. Allen. "You pick your beans just as in the process of canning. Then the beans have to be snapped and put into chilled water, instead of boiling as in canning. Placing the beans in containers after they are thoroughly chilled, they are ready for the freezer," she commented.

She added, "The majority of fruits may be frozen except blueberries which should be canned."

Surprise Birthday Party Given Daughter

Mrs. Donald Estman honored her daughter, Laverne, last night with a surprise birthday party at her home on Warren Street.

Guests arrived wearing informal attire and were invited into the various appointed rooms for dancing.

Next time you have leftover meat from a veal roast, cut it in silvers or cubes and use it in a salad with cooked or raw peas and carrots and salad greens. Or mix the veal with diced apple and celery and salad dressing.

Later in the evening Miss Estman opened and displayed her array of gifts.

Among the guests attending was Jimmy Kelly of Ohio, a cousin of the honoree.

Snadragons and pink roses predominated the summer flowers which decorated the home. Fruit punch was served by Miss Betsy Whedbee while cake and salted nuts were served buffet style.

HONEY GLAZED SMOKED PORK SHOULDER
Ingredients: One smoked boneless pork shoulder butt (about 1 3-4 pounds), whole cloves, 3 tablespoons honey, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-4 teaspoon ground ginger.

Method: Remove stocknet wrapping from butt and place in kettle. Cover with cold water; place over high heat until water begins to boil; simmer 45 minutes per pound—until tender when cooking fork inserted in center turns easily. Drain; insert whole cloves, about 1 inch apart, over entire surface of butt. Place on small oven-heat-resistant glass platter or other shallow baking pan. Mix together the honey, mustard and ground ginger; spread over butt. Place in slow (325 degrees) oven about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Anniversary For Ike And Mamie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three generations of the Eisenhower family went on a Potomac River cruise last night to celebrate the 42nd wedding anniversary of the President and his wife.

The 3 hour and 40 minute ride was aboard the 90-foot presidential cabin cruiser Barbara Anne, named for one of President Eisenhower's granddaughters.

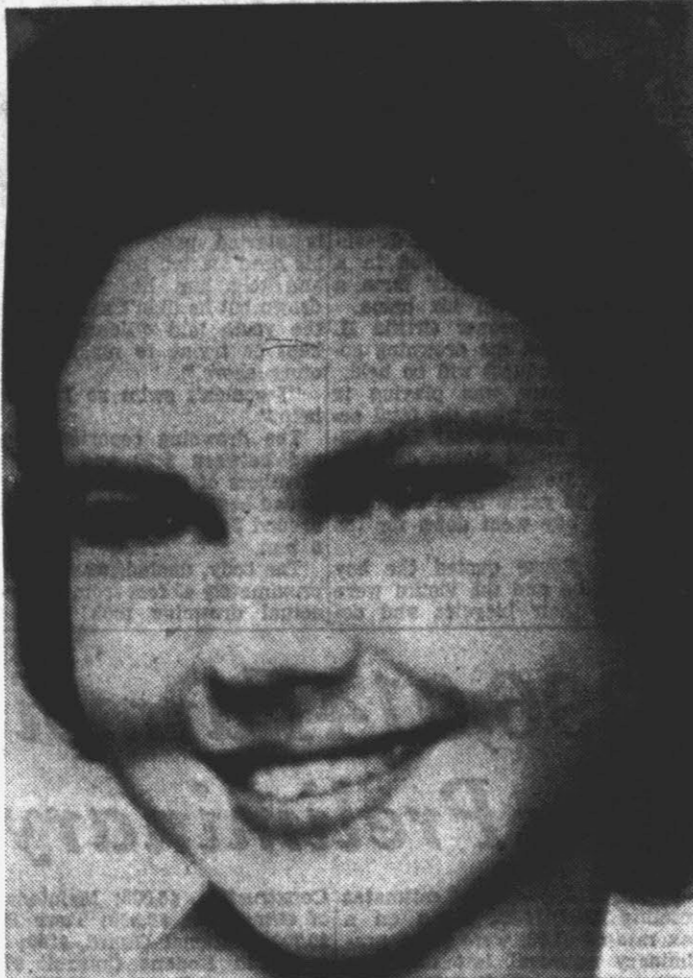

The President and the First Lady slipped away from Washington's hot weather, together with their son and daughter-in-law, Army Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and their four children.

In addition to Barbara Anne, 9, the youngsters are David, 10, Susan, 6, and Mary Jean, 2.

Madison Avenue Ad Techniques Help Hike Tobacco Sale Abroad

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—A unit of the U.S. tobacco industry has been exporting Madison Avenue techniques of cigarette salesmanship to such foreign countries as Japan, France and Thailand.

The result has been measurably successful, says A. C. Edwards, chairman of the board of directors of Tobacco Associates, Inc.

Edwards reported Tuesday on the raising of the gray flannel curtain to the rest of the world in an address to the 14th annual convention of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn.

He related how two key members of the sales staff of the Japanese tobacco monopoly were given a two-weeks training course in a big New York advertising firm two years ago.

The result: "The manufacture and consumption of one popular brand of cigarettes in Japan increased from 7 billion in 1956 to 10 billion in 1957. This is an increase of 43 per cent," he said.

Tobacco Associates, financed largely by the growers, is a major promotional firm of the leaf industry. The Bright Belt group is composed of tobacco warehousemen from the Carolinas, Virginia, Florida and Georgia. Their three-day convention ends tomorrow.

Edwards said radio, television, newspapers and magazines are used "in much the same manner as they are used in the U.S." in the overseas salesmanship invasion.

"They advertise the brand of cigarette manufactured in these foreign countries which contain U.S. leaf," he explained.

Edwards said an advertising program was started in France last February, and an agreement was reached a month ago to undertake a program in Thailand.

The North Carolina leaf man reported startlingly successful results in France. He said a particular brand composed of 65 per cent American tobacco scored almost 50 per cent in sales. From 21 million cigarettes in March of last year to 30 million last March, just a month after the program was launched.

A similar advertising program for Burma is being plotted, Edwards disclosed.

"Everybody seems to be pleased with the results we are getting," said Edwards.

On the domestic scene, he reported that use of flue-cured tobacco has turned upward for the first time since the 1952-53 market year.

He pointed out that domestic consumption hit a peak of 828 million pounds in 1952-53, then slipped to 705 million pounds last year.

But for the ending market year, U.S. manufacturers used some 715 million pounds, or 10 million pounds more than last year, he reported.

They Learned Much On The Iowa Farm Tour

On the 1958 Farm Opportunities and Marketing Caravan from this area were, first row, left to right, M. Edmund Aycock, Assistant Vice President, and Manager, Agricultural Department, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Raleigh; Jack Kelley, In Charge Animal Husbandry, North Carolina State College, Raleigh; F. C. Darden, Farmville; Charles B. Quinerly, Farmville; and Eric Whitchard, State Bank and Trust Company, Greenville. Second row, left to right, John T. Walston, Farmer, Farmville; John E. King, Farmer, Farmville; W. A. Allen, President, The Bank of Farmville, Farmville; B. M. Lewis, Farmer, Farmville; Ben Lang, Lang Feed and Seed Company, Farmville; H. D. Moye, Farmville.

If North Carolina is to increase its farm income, what steps should it take?

To find out, some 150 North Carolina bankers and farm leaders spent last week in Iowa, the nation's No. 1 state in farm income. Flying from Raleigh and Winston-Salem in chartered airplanes, they boarded four buses in Des Moines and spent three days on a 600-mile tour of the state's best farming regions.

They were on the 1958 Farm Opportunities and Marketing Caravan, sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in cooperation with N. C. State College and the N. C. Department of Agriculture. In charge were Wayne A. Corpening, M. Edmund Aycock, Henry M. Simons and O. J. Howell Jr. of Wachovia's Agricultural Department.

What did the group learn? Here are some typical observations:

The fertile black soil of Iowa is practically all cultivated. There is very little wasteland, and particularly it was noticeable that Iowa's farm from fence to fence.

Farming in Iowa is much more mechanized than it is in North Carolina and other southeastern states. Far more tractors are in use and more mechanical equipment is utilized for planting, cultivating and harvesting crops.

Similarly, Iowa farmers utilize their labor with greater efficiency than is the practice in the Southeast. Most farms there run from 240 to 320 acres, with the smallest running 160 acres. Mechanization has considerably reduced labor needs, and in recent years emigration to the cities and to other states has been considerable.

The touring Tarheels were also struck by the dependence of Iowa agriculture on corn. Practically every farm featured a sizeable acreage of corn which was used primarily to feed cattle, hogs, feeder lambs, poultry and dairy animals. It appeared that as corn goes, so goes Iowa.

An intensification of effort toward top production efficiency marks Iowa's farming today on all sides. A large number of farm operators in Iowa have college educations, and as a result, it was noted, Iowa farms show signs of better farm management and better use of machinery than in other farming areas of the country.

With hogs at 24 cents a pound, cattle at 30 cents a pound and corn selling for $1.15 and more a bushel, there has been no recession in Iowa farm income. With the state's overall dependence on agriculture, civic leaders in the state's largest cities also reported that only in a few isolated lines had the recession been felt in the state.

Practically all of the Iowa farms visited by the Caravan indicated they had a line of credit with their local banks. Statistics show that 96 per cent of the farm credit in Iowa is supplied by banks, which shows what community bankers can do to meet the large responsibilities they have to the agricultural economy.

The consensus of the traveling group was that the Iowa bankers' fine example in extending farm credit was a real inspiration that the North Carolina bankers would take back home and use to serve their farm customers better. Bankers predicted more use of intermediate credit to finance farm operations not only in Iowa but also in North Carolina and other sections of the country.

The dependence of Iowa farmers on Iowa State College for their know-how was related at practically every farm the group visited. It was apparent that the Iowa farmers look to Iowa State as North Carolina farmers look to N. C. State College.

Iowa State College, under the leadership of its North Carolina-born president, Dr. James H. Hilton, in addition to its extensive research in farm production, marketing and management problems, has recently established a program which is studying the adjustments that agriculture will be facing in the years ahead. Robert K. Buck, a young state and national agricultural leader whose farm is located near Des Moines, proposed a similar program for North Carolina in order that agriculture in the future will be able to meet the demands that the growing American population will place upon it.

At the conclusion of the tour Atwell Alexander, poultry farmer of Stony Point and a member of the N. C. State Board of Agriculture, invited farmers and bankers of Iowa to visit North Carolina and inspect the progress this state has made in recent years in rural and agricultural development. His invitation was accepted by Dr. Hilton, and there was considerable interest expressed by the numerous Iowans visited to come to North Carolina on a similar tour.

Rubber Workers Get Wage Boost

CLEVELAND (AP)—An 8-cent hourly pay raise for 33,000 rubber workers is the heart of an agreement reached here last night between the union and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the B. F. Goodrich Co.

It averted a strike threatened for midnight last night. The agreement came less than an hour before the deadline.

The pay raise, effective with the June 30 pay period, brings the average Goodyear hourly straight-time wage to $2.60. The Goodrich rate now will be $2.59.

The United Rubber Workers, represented by International President L. S. Buckmaster, agreed with the companies to put off further negotiations on pensions and insurance improvements until the full two-year contract expires next April 15.

"We believe the settlement compensates for the cost-of-living increases that have taken place during the year," Buckmaster said.

The wage agreement must be ratified by the majority of local unions.

The settlement is expected to provide the pattern for URW contracts covering almost 100,000 workers.

Poet Ezra Pound Sails For Italy

NEW YORK (AP)—Poet Ezra Pound and his wife were en route to Italy today on the Italian liner Cristoforo Colombo.

Pound, 72, plans to live in northern Italy with his daughter, Mary, the wife of Prince Boris de Rachevitz, an Egyptologist.

After an early boarding yesterday, Pound kept to himself in his cabin. He declined to talk with reporters.

Pound was released last April 21 from a Washington, D.C., mental hospital, where he spent 13 years.

The poet had been accused of treason because of pro-Fascist broadcasts he made from Italy in World War II. He won dismissal of the treason charge on a psychiatric finding that he would never be competent to stand trial.

While in Iowa the North Carolinians observed widely recognized beef cattle and dairy farming operations, one of the nation's top swine breeding farms and the farm of one of the nation's top prize winners in show cattle competition and inspected the Blount City Livestock Yards, the world's third largest livestock exchange.

Chicken and turkey production and other farming operations tied into a grain economy also came under the inspecting eye of the North Carolinians, and on the final day of the tour they visited the experimental farms operated by the Iowa State College Farm Extension Service at Ames.

Can North Carolina farmers meet this Iowa competition? Even though the Tarheels were greatly impressed with the advantages Iowans have, they returned home well aware that they, too, have advantages—a longer growing season, more rainfall, access to markets, etc.

The Southeast has already displaced the Midwest as the leader in poultry production and is making considerable inroads into the hog market. However, both Iowans and North Carolinians expressed confidence that, with the growing American population, there is room for continued expansion by both states in their livestock economies.

So Much Is Changed By Statehood

The flag you fly on July 4th will be out of date a year from now.

So will the text books on the United States that point out to youngsters that this great nation is composed of 48 states.

Texas will no longer be able to boast that it is the largest state of the Union. New Mexico and Arizona will no longer be looked upon as the babies of the states.

Admission of Alaska as a state will mean more changes than most Americans realize. The states will no longer be continuous. The road will be opened for greater efforts on the part of Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Guam for admission as states in the Union.

One of the United States will be located just 55 miles from Russian Siberia.

For the first time in 46 years the number of the states in the Union is to be changed. Though 20 members of the Senate (including North Carolina's Sen. Sam Ervin) voted against statehood for Alaska, passage of the measure must be regarded as an historic moment in the history of this nation. It is concrete evidence

N. C. Is A True Vacationland

By LYNN NISBET
BEAUTY ALL OVER — The folks who coined the slogan "Variety Vacationland" for North Carolina and promoted the campaign to "See North Carolina" in August knew what they were doing. They were not attempting to sell something they could not deliver. There is variety of facilities for short and long vacations and there are beautiful things to see in every section of the state.

It has been the privilege of your reporter within the past week to visit Mount Mitchell State Park, highest point in Eastern America; Roan Mountain rhododendron gardens, maintained by National Forest Service and the greatest mass of rhododendron in the world; Grandfather Mountain, a privately owned and very popular attraction for tourists.

To get to these mountain top facilities maintained by State, Federal and private enterprise money, it was necessary to travel some 500 miles round trip — mostly by different routes. Because time was running short we even crossed over into Tennessee—but quickly came back—for the Roan visit. Most conspicuous thing on the Tennessee side were the signs welcoming Vice President Nixon to Roan Mountain the weekend before.

Occasion for this trip was the revived plan of the Morganton chamber of commerce to invite a group of newspaper people every year to visit the industrial and scenic attractions of the area. From Morganton the four fanned out to boating on Lake James; golfing at Mimosa Hills Club; a guided tour through Henredon Furniture Company's mammoth plant; a visit to a real estate development at Ginger Cake Acres—from which visitors were assured "The fabulous and mythical 'Brown Mountain Lights' are visible every dark night; a hot picnic lunch on top of Grandfather Mountain, and the Rhododendron Gardens on top of Roan. The Mount Mitchell jaunt and a visit to Daniel Boone's Cave on the way back were special projects for your reporter and Charlie Parker, director of State Advertising.

VARIEITY — Short sleeve shirts without coats were almost too much clothes at Raleigh; summer suits supplemented with sweaters and windbreakers were hardly enough on Grandfather's mile-high bridge—which is almost 100 feet above a mile high. A mid day thunder shower stopped in time for perfect boating late in the afternoon, and an early morning rain—which threatened to continue all day—yielded to brilliant sunshine and ideal light for color pictures before noon.

The trip took us over roads that a pioneer ox-cart would have had trouble in negotiating and over four-lane concrete highways upon which medium priced automobiles (only kind newspaper folks could afford) had to be held down to the speed limit even on 10 per cent up-hill grades.

The Ginger Cake Acres development in the year the forests and fields and pastures are greener than usual—none of the mid-summer searing which sometimes mars the scene. Variegated shades of green and broad acres of ripening grain interspersed with fields of crimson clover prevent monotony. There are thousands of acres of soil bank lands blanketed with snow Queen Anne's Lace. The roadside borders of white daisies and brown eyed susans, millions of unnamed yellow flowering weeds with occasional splashes of wild tiger lilies, rival in beauty the ordered gardens around the homes. Trumpet vines and sumac beginning to color ease the transition of the view from the ground flowers to the high green trees and the cloud-studded azure sky.

The delights of surf bathing and salt water fishing at one end of the state, magnificent panorama and mountain trout casting at the other, are well worth a trip. It is a pity that so many people are in such great hurry to get to them they miss a lot of the beauty between. All of North Carolina is well worth seeing at any season. August is as good time as any for the Travel Council's special promotion as "See North Carolina" month.

velopment has homes built out of old logs salvaged from pioneer cabins, and homes pre-fabricated of plastics and glass. And the most modernistic house in the Acres had an old style wall telephone powered by a wet battery which had to be cranked up by hand to start a conversation—and an intricate system of short and long rings for each subscriber. (Alex Mull, developer of the property, and Vernon Davis, unofficial mayor of Ginger Cake, admitted the signal system was just for publicity effect. Every time a phone rings anybody who isn't busy doing something else—like resting or just looking at the scenery—picks up the receiver and listens in on the conversation.)

There's a long distance telephone on top of Grandfather—the highest commercial telephone east of the Rocky Mountains. And all among these hills, unnumbered centuries old, are ultra-modern radio and television sets. While the picknickers were eating their lunch a beehive-like Navy airplane skimmed across the skyline.

There is no lack of variety and contrast in North Carolina. UNIFORMITY — At the same time there is remarkable uniformity. Climate and people are hospitable. Clothing, dialect and living habits vary between the coast and the mountains. The basic character of the folks is constantly friendly and sincere.

It does not detract from the splendor of coastal azaleas or mountain rhododendron; nor from the solace derived from placid streams above which Spanish moss drapes, or the disturbing grandeur of towering peaks and waterfalls, to note that midstate also has bright color and magnificent scenery.

Because of adequate rains earlier in the year the forests and fields and pastures are greener than usual—none of the mid-summer searing which sometimes mars the scene. Variegated shades of green and broad acres of ripening grain interspersed with fields of crimson clover prevent monotony.

There are thousands of acres of soil bank lands blanketed with snow Queen Anne's Lace. The roadside borders of white daisies and brown eyed susans, millions of unnamed yellow flowering weeds with occasional splashes of wild tiger lilies, rival in beauty the ordered gardens around the homes. Trumpet vines and sumac beginning to color ease the transition of the view from the ground flowers to the high green trees and the cloud-studded azure sky.

The delights of surf bathing and salt water fishing at one end of the state, magnificent panorama and mountain trout casting at the other, are well worth a trip. It is a pity that so many people are in such great hurry to get to them they miss a lot of the beauty between.

All of North Carolina is well worth seeing at any season. August is as good time as any for the Travel Council's special promotion as "See North Carolina" month.

that the United States, though it has reached maturity in international stature, is still a growing, aggressive nation, willing to make such changes as times demand.

Admission of Alaska as a state will present many new problems to the nation and to the people of that sprawling territory. The territory deserves admission to the Union on an equal status with the other 48 states, and the action taken by Congress in providing for Alaska's statehood will prove its merit over the years.

We'll have to change our flag, our text books and our maps. We'll have to become accustomed to 49 states rather than 48. The new state, however, will prove itself worthy of the changes.

Way Now Cleared For Mental Health Wing

With money in hand and bids offered, Pitt County can now begin construction of the long anticipated Mental Health Wing addition to its health center.

Last year the Legislature appropriated $30,000 in state funds for the facility, recognizing the service the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic is rendering a broad area of Eastern North Carolina. Several months ago the Pitt County Commissioners appropriated $10,000 in matching local funds as required to take advantage of the special state appropriation for the building.

Bids for construction of the facility received yesterday were within $40,000 available for the project. Last night the County Commissioners gave their final green light for construction work to begin.

Before the end of this year the county's Mental Health Clinic should be able to occupy its new quarters. It will be better able to handle the work load which is piling up because of demands for its services. And in time the Mental Health Clinic will be able to render greater service to a greater number of people in Pitt and surrounding counties.

When the new Mental Health Wing is completed and dedicated, it will be officially named in honor of the late Dr. Walter C. Humbert who initiated the county's Mental Health Clinic. It will stand as a monument to Pitt County's pioneering efforts in mental health in North Carolina.

Mixup In Cabarrus Is A Lesson For Tarheels

The long count in Cabarrus County is over.

Political newcomer Bedford Black is the county's new representative in the General Assembly succeeding incumbent Eugene T. Bost who has served 10 terms in the house, one of which he served as Speaker.

It took exactly a month for Cabarrus County to straighten out the election trouble which popped up when Black and Bost came up with 5,450 votes each on the initial count after the May 31 Democratic primary. The recount which ended yesterday gave Black a 21-vote majority and the seat in the House.

The situation which has prevailed in Cabarrus County since May 31 points up several things which should be noted by every citizen of the state:

1. The initial tie vote between the two candidates with more than 10,000 ballots cast in the election points up the importance of each vote that is cast. Had the recount confirmed the initial returns in the political race one more vote could have made the difference.

2. With the exception of one box in the county, all of the recounting showed only one or two votes difference between what the candidates had initially and what they had on the recount. The outcome of these boxes pointed up the part human error can play in an election under the old system of counting ballots.

3. One major point of controversy in the matter has been the condition of ballot boxes and the manner in which they were stored after the election. This could have been avoided with a more strict observance of the election regulations on the part of officials.

The issue in the Cabarrus County House race has not been decided. The election is finally over as is the recounting. The lessons learned from the controversy should be kept in mind by the other counties of North Carolina.

Next Witness Unpredictable

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Waiting for Bernard Goldfine to testify is like waiting for the launching of a satellite: the results of both are unpredictable.

This fast-talking, gift-giving millionaire friend of presidential assistant Sherman Adams is due to testify today before a House subcommittee looking into his relations with Adams and with government regulatory agencies. Washington, long used to having spectacular individuals appear before committees, has a special air of expectancy about Boston businessman Goldfine.

He talks rapidly and volubly, and seems to throw around expensive gifts and favors to men in political office or positions of political power.

Time magazine last month quoted him as saying that when someone like him has problems: "Who do you go to? Why, you go to your congressman or your senator or to your governor, not to some schmoe."

The Washington Post in a special story from Boston Sunday — outlining the efforts of Goldfine's lawyers to drill him for his appearance here — gave a pretty clear impression he's a hard man to handle, even by his own lawyers.

One of them was quoted as saying: "He will make a terrible witness. He's hard of hearing and he doesn't answer questions well. He's not good with words."

It is constitutionally impossible for him to give a simple answer. You can't tell what will happen when he gets on the stand.

Even Goldfine's actions appear unpredictable. He had a date with his lawyers at noon, the Post said, and showed up at 6 p.m. The next night he didn't show up at all.

Adams has said he let Goldfine pay hotel bills for him, amounting to more than $2,000, and before the same subcommittee said he had received vicuna cloth for a coat and the loan of an expensive Oriental rug from Goldfine.

Adams described all this as part of a personal and friendly relationship extending back for years. Goldfine, who came to this country a poor immigrant, seems from other testimony before the subcommittee to have spread a lot of money and a lot of favors in a lot of places.

For example: Gov. Lane Dwinell, a former political associate of Adams, says Goldfine gave a suit of clothes to every governor in the nation at the 1955 Governor's Conference.

And John Fox, former publisher of the now defunct Boston Post, said he borrowed $400,000 from Goldfine. Goldfine even sent a bolt of cloth to President Eisenhower whose press secretary, James Hagerly, said Eisenhower gave it away.

The subcommittee subpoenaed Goldfine's companies' records, going back to 1925, and any records of money he spent on state or federal employes going back to 1950. What isn't known yet is whether — or how — the subcommittee will try to dig into Goldfine's income tax returns to see:

1. Whether the money he spent on gifts for political figures like Adams were considered by him to be just friendly gifts, as Adams says he considered them, or

2. Whether Goldfine actually considered them business expenses and so deducted them from his income tax returns.

Peace Formula In Gout

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk scrawls of a Pavement Plato: There is one simple recipe for world peace that has never been tried. That is, to give the leading statesmen of every nation the gout.

I think it's worth a try. The theory that an epidemic of gout among the great men of our time might lead to a war-free world isn't as idle as it sounds. There is some pretty solid reasoning behind it.

There is a bond between victims of the gout like unto no other bond in the world. It is stronger than the bonds of love, passion, matrimony, friendship, patriotism, or the desire for wealth.

Gout unites mankind as the common cold divides it. No enemy is possible between two men once each finds the other has gout. An invisible tie binds them indissolubly. They are knit forever by the knowledge they have survived a suffering beyond the ken of lesser men struck down by paltrier ailments.

War between statesmen who are afflicted with gout is inconceivable. Men who have known Armageddon in their big toe are not interested in fighting each other on battlefields. They'd rather meet in peace and discuss remedies. They have a vast and natural respect for one another.

They realize that anybody can get pneumonia, the dullest clod can come down with mumps, but it takes a guy with class to get gout.

Many an ignorant, loud, jealous because he cannot acquire gout himself, laughs loudly at this most aristocratic of diseases. He decries it as a penalty for loose living. But he knows in his heart he could live like a bum on the Bowery for 1,000 years and never get gout himself. He does not have the character.

The truth is that gout, like money, is largely inherited. It runs in families. But what families! They have been the cream of every civilization. Anyone who looks up his family tree and can't find a few cases of gout among the limbs would do well to keep quiet about his ancestry.

It may be, here and there, that someone, somehow did get gout as a price for galloping down the primrose path.

But, as the Encyclopaedia Britannica sagely points out, the disease affects also persons "who observe the strictest temperance in living. And whose only excesses are in the direction of overwork, either physical or intellectual."

Naturally, this is the kind of gout that runs in families. Well, anyway, in my family.

Gout is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, of human diseases. There are two theories as to its origin.

One is that it is one of the penalties Adam paid for eating the forbidden fruit of knowledge.

The other theory is that Zeus originally decreed woman alone should suffer the pangs of childbirth. His wife, Juno, objected: "Honey, you're not being fair. You should divide pain equally between the sexes. If you're going to be a god, act like one!"

And to keep peace in his household on Olympus, Zeus said:

"Okay, I'll give me the gout. That'll make them even."

Strength For Today

By EARL I. DOUGLASS
HARDEST OF ALL PROBLEMS Do you have grave problems to solve?

Be glad, for it is by the solving of problems that we grow. But it must be acknowledged that there is a difference in problems. Financial problems are hard to solve. Family problems are even harder. But the most burdensome of all problems are the moral and spiritual problems.

An elderly man said to me some time ago, "I have a lot of problems confronting me, but thank God I have no problems of a moral or spiritual nature." And well he may thank God, for problems of this sort are not only overwhelmingly serious but so difficult of solution that many people find health and mind breaking down under such burdens.

So the thing for us to remember is to try to keep the moral and spiritual aspects of our lives wholesome, straightened out, balanced, and unburdened. It is within our power to do this. Particularly is it in the power of young people to avoid situations which will cause them later to confront moral and spiritual problems of dreadful significance.

There are some problems we cannot avoid, but problems such as this we can avoid. Happy that man who can come to the end of his life and declare that, although he has many problems to confront, he has no moral or spiritual problems.

Here are some more random jottings from your reporter's notebook followed by what he may have been thinking of at the time he made them:

"Associates." Many successful companies have "and associates" as part of their title, such as Carl Byoir & Associates. But whenever I see a new company with that filip, such as Wunderbar von Garfinkle and Associates, I always suspect the associates consist of a messenger and a secretary who wasn't paid last week.

Skunk. Now that we have a recession, some companies have revived the old gag of sending a skunk or a goat to the branch or division with the lowest sales record; the animal must be carried for until the section gets out of the hole. The idea of getting people to work harder by humiliating them would get little scientific support. I think the idea stinks worse than any skunk.

Every Private Utility A 'TVA'

By JIMMY ELLIS

Notes On The TV Scene

Television, like everything else, has its good moments and its sorry moments.

It will have few moments, however, to match those of Sunday night when Russia's Moliseyev Dance Company overflowed the Ed Sullivan Show. It was an hour of genuine entertainment, and a welcome relief from the usual mess of boring Sunday evening variety hours.

The television debut of the most faultless shows ever to appear through the medium, at least so far as the performers were concerned. All of the dancers looked as if they thoroughly enjoyed what they were doing, the girls were attractive and the men looked like men.

Perhaps Sullivan (and the networks) will realize that such shows can be tremendous contributions to television and will have more like it in the future.

Speaking of television, it might be appropriate to relate a local incident which occurred Monday night.

A Local Television Personality wheeled his car into a gas station and ordered five gallons of gas. While the attendant was at the pump, the Big Man got out of the car, walked hurriedly into the station, selected a pint of ice cream and started back to his car.

The attendant looked up from the pump and inquired, "Want me to check the oil?" "Not tonight," was the reply. "Do it when I have more time. I want to get home in time to watch 'Twenty-One'."

Twenty-One is NBC's Big Money quiz show which appears on Channel 7, chief competitor for Greenville's Channel 9.

And speaking of Twenty-One, many viewers of the program are beginning to wonder if Elfrida Von Nordroff isn't feeling the pressure on her.

The attractive Duke graduate has won $23,500 but could possibly lose $63,000 next week when she and her opponent answer questions worth $3,000 a point. There were a couple of times during Monday's show when Miss Von Nordroff looked as if she were really hurting for answers.

One also gets the impression that Miss Von Nordroff will be supremely happy when she finally blows a question and can go home to count what's left of her money. (Perhaps mention of her in this column will do the trick. Mention of two previous big winners, Herb Stempel and Charles Van Doren, came shortly before they lost after several weeks on the show.)

Elfrida's tremendous winning streak also makes a television viewer wonder how much of the Monday night audience has switched from CBS and ABC shows.

No doubt, CBS TV will be glad to see her lose so they can claim some of their lost viewers.

Other Editors Saying --- Our Mysterious Govmt

(Rocky Mount Telegram) Our federal government often acts in mysterious ways. Business tycoons who owe big money in back taxes are left off the hook, or eased down gently. Men like former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis get allowed to get so far behind in income tax payments that they will never make enough money to pay up.

And then comes the kind of case that makes you wonder about the consistency of some of our federal policies. One of the latest of such incidents concerns the Noble County farmer in Indiana who had to stand by the other day and watch federal marshals attach his two farm tractors, leaving him powerless to work his land.

The farmer's crime was that of having planted 16 acres of wheat in excess of his allotment in 1954. His case has been taken to court, and he was fined $394. The federal officers moved in and attached his farming equipment to satisfy the fine and court judgment.

Apparently the economy of our country is getting worse so we thought. Things are now so bad that the federal government is hard-up enough to take away a small farmer's means of livelihood for an act that could have easily been a mistake. Taking the man's tractors makes the government seem small enough in itself; the fact that federal agents also impounded his bank account of a mere nine dollars makes some of our Washington policies appear even cheaper.

There have been tax cases in the past when big businessmen were given every opportunity to pay off back taxes, such advantages as yearly payments being granted. The government, after watching Joe Louis get impossibly over his head in income tax debts, has simply given up on collecting from him; even though Louis now makes every nice living.

In the case of this small farmer, however, the very means by which he might have made the money to pay the fine were taken from him. Evidently he was in pretty poor financial condition, for a nine-dollar bank account does not indicate much in the way of wealth. Perhaps the government feels better, now that it has two additional tractors and nine dollars more.

It seems quite odd that our government would deal such a blow to a wheat farmer, especially at a time when the wheat farms in the midwest are being devoured by an invasion of grass hoppers. At the same time, it also might seem odd that the federal government recently ignored a request from the wheat farmers for aid in fighting the hopper plague.

But ours is a government that burns tons of surplus crops while some Americans go hungry, and pays out billions of dollars in foreign aid while a record number of its own people are unemployed.

Perhaps the case of the Indiana farmer is not so strange after all; just difficult to understand.

Some Random Notes Interpreted

usually enough handy money a quarter of a century ago. With today's prices, a man should never be with less than $4.95 in change and this much wears out pockets mighty fast.

PYRAMIDING TAXES Taxes on taxes. Among the most unreasonable of taxes are those that are taxes on other taxes. Sales taxes are often taxes on excise taxes as well as on the price of goods. The price of luggage, for example, is increased by 10 per cent by a Federal excise tax, yet many cities and states tax that 10 per cent as well as the base in their sales levies. Taxes on gross business receipts are often levied on receipts that include taxes.

Opportunity. Why doesn't someone bring out packets of wood ashes and plastic flies so that kitchen-cooked meats can be made to resemble cook-out foods?

Bargains. There's something curious about the feminine mind. The average woman will ignore a 10-cent price cut on a can of scouring powder, but will go to a lot of trouble cutting out a coupon and hassling with a storekeeper to get the benefit of a coupon good for 6 cents off on the product.

N.C. Survival Plans Being Distributed To Counties

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Survival Plan Project enters its fourth and final phase today as representatives of the State Survival Planning staff engage in a 90-day program of work with governing authorities and Civil Defense officials in the 93 "Reception and Care" counties throughout the state, State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin disclosed. Every effort will be made by these representatives to render assistance to the local officials and the interested citizens of each county in establishment of local Survival Plans, he stated.

Operational Survival Plans, prepared by a special staff under supervision of the State Civil Defense Agency, were officially accepted by Governor Luther H. Hodges in a brief ceremony at the Capitol last Thursday. Volumes presented by Griffin and accepted by the governor include the overall State Survival Plan, individual Survival Plans for the Target areas of Guilford, Wake, Mecklenburg, Durham, Forsyth, Buncombe and New Hanover Counties, plus one Prototype County Plan for reception and care areas.

Overall cost of the project is approximately $200,000.00, paid by Federal Civil Defense Administration under terms of a contract between that agency and the State of North Carolina. Initial research and surveys were conducted during the summer of 1956. Preliminary Operational Plans were briefed for the Governor, other state officials and target city officials in December, 1957. The Operational Plans, finalized and published since January 1, 1958 were described by the Federal Civil Defense Administration Survival Plan Staff of the southeastern region as the most complete, most practical and operational prepared by any state in the region.

In presenting the completed project to the Governor, General Griffin stated:

"These plans are practical, based upon the utilization of already existing facilities and services within our government structure at all levels.

"They are realistic, based upon assumptions issued by Federal authorities and updated as required by the changing international situation. Federal assumptions are developed in accord with the latest available intelligence pertaining to the capabilities of the enemies of the free world.

"Our North Carolina plans are the kind of plans that we must have and establish, not only in the interest of our best security if attack comes, but as a possible deterrent to enemy aggression.

"Survival plans envision the full use of government at all levels, expanded by capable volunteers trained to assist in governmental and humane action for the protection of our people in time of great emergency.

"The State Plan documents the vital installations, supplies, equipment and other resource data needed for our survival as a State under emergency conditions. It further contains the location of these necessities, how they are to be procured, how they are to be used and by whom.

Copies of the overall State Plan, with maps, will be deposited with the Clerk of Superior Court, and the County Civil Defense Director of each County.

Individual Survival Plans for "critical target" and "target" areas are already distributed to officials in the respective counties. The Prototype Plan will be delivered personally, by representatives of the State Survival Plan staff, to governing and Civil Defense officials of each of the 93 counties which are requested to adapt them to fit the local needs. Funds amounting to $18,500.00 are earmarked for this final phase of the project. Certain portions of some "reception" counties, located adjacent to target counties are included in the Target area, and will require special coordination.

County Commissioners of each county have been advised by Governor Hodges of the projected visit from the Survival staff representatives, requesting their cooperation in expediting the preparation of local Survival Plans.

The State Civil Defense Director has requested all County Civil Defense Directors to cooperate with the Survival staff in arranging for them to meet with all Civil Defense officials within the county, County Commissioners, municipal officials and other persons interested in survival planning.

"Our plans are only the beginning of our homefront preparedness," Griffin stated, "the plans must be kept up-to-date if they are to keep pace with the many constant changes in enemy tactics and scientific development.

"Training exercises must be held for key personnel in all facets of survival, that they may become thoroughly familiar with the job that must be done under disaster conditions.

"No defense, military or civil, could be devised while bombs are falling. We must not only plan, we must train for and perfect the best defense we can to complement the defense that our armed forces train constantly to perfect.

"From time immemorial, survival for man has been an individual chore. If our citizens are to survive nuclear attack — which we sincerely trust never comes — realistic survival preparation must be made in every home, in every neighborhood, in every town, in every city and in every county — as well as by the state and the federal government," he concluded.

Governor Hodges pointed out, in accepting the plans, that survival is a "grim reality in this uncertain world today."

"We in North Carolina," he said "must do everything that we can to protect our people and our resources. I strongly urge all public officials and all our citizens to study these plans and adapt them at the local level without delay."

Police Officer's Trial On July 14

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The case against Lloyd W. Henkel, suspended traffic police captain, will be heard July 14 by the City Civil Service Commission. Police Chief Frank N. Littlejohn has asked that Henkel be permanently dismissed.

The chief filed a long, detailed bill of charges against Henkel, whom he suspended last month.

The bill of particulars listed (1) willful disobedience of rules or orders, (2) conduct unbecoming a police officer, (3) neglect in paying his just debts, and (4) conduct subversive of good order and the discipline of the police force.

Littlejohn named several alleged incidents to support each charge.

Henkel was suspended after it was disclosed he had cashed about $26,000 of his personal checks from funds in the office of the City Recorder's Court clerk. Some of the checks bounced, but all were made good, and Henkel explained that the sum of the checks was so high because some were written to cover other bad checks.

Police Lt. Allen M. White, who was clerk of the court, also was suspended and subsequently resigned. The Mecklenburg Superior Court grand jury is investigating the court's affairs.

Henkel made it clear he does not intend to step down. He and his attorney sent a letter to Littlejohn, with a copy to the Civil Service Commission, asking an opportunity to present a defense to the charges.

Alleged irregularities in Recorder's Court include improper dismissal of charges in several cases; and delinquency in the paying up of forfeited bonds.

Doubts Abducted Men In Danger

GUANTANAMO, Cuba (AP) — Rear Adm. F. B. Ellis of Salisbury, N. C., commander of the U. S. Navy base here, says he doubts any harm will come to the 27 sailors and Marines kidnaped from a Navy bus last Friday.

Ellis said yesterday, "I don't make any deals," when asked if Cuban rebels might approach him with an offer to return the men in exchange for recognition.

Ellis added the U. S. State Department was handling the matter, in addition to seeking the return of 10 Americans abducted last Thursday in another rebel-infested area.

The admiral said he heard rumors that 27 men were being held in the mountains of eastern Cuba and believed their seizure was planned and executed with care.

SINGER RECOVERING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Singer Roberta Linn is getting along quite well, say doctors at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where she has been confined for two weeks with a serious respiratory infection. The 27-year-old singer, Lawrence Welk's first Champagne Lady, may be able to leave the hospital at the end of this week, it was reported last night.

Moye Hurls No-Hitter Against Exchange Club

Only Exchange Run Scored On Stolen Base

Frank Moye tossed a no-hitter yesterday at Little League Park to hand his Elks club a 4-1 victory over the Exchange and boost their mark to 3-1 in the Tar Heel circuit.

Moye and his mates tallied twice in the fourth and twice in the fifth innings to account for their scoring, while a walk and three stolen bases in the second inning accounted for the Exchange score.

Moye fanned nine batters, walked five and didn't allow a single hit. His opponent on the mound was Jimmy Medlin, who was clubbed for seven baseknocks by the Elks.

Yesterday's victory for the Elks showed them more solidly in second place in their loop. Pepsi-Cola still commands top spot with an unblemished 4-0 record. The Exchange club's 1-4 mark is only a little better than the Moose club's 0-3 bottom-place mark.

Getting hits for the Elks were Smith (2), Clark (2), Moye, Gaskins, and Mullen, Clark got the only extra-base hit, a double in the fifth.

The lineups for both teams included the below: Exchange—Bostic, Taylor, Medlin, Surrill, Boone, Hadley, Brown, Elks, Stubbs and Gray; Elks—Green, Smith, Clark, Maloney, Cain, Moye, Whichard, Gaskins, Gray, Fleming, and Mullen.

Charlotte Boxer Wants Archie

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Waban Thomas of Charlotte now holds his eighth victory in 10 professional bouts and is itching for a shot at old Archie Moore—a man who has knocked out more than 120 opponents in a career fruits in recent years.

Thomas won a split, 10-round decision here last night from Ollie Wilson of Hartford, Conn. Each weighed 195 pounds.

Moore reportedly has agreed tentatively to fight here in September, but no opponent has been lined up. Sources said if Thomas can win another one in good form before September he might be the one to face the light heavyweight champion.

Judge Cliff Gordon scored it 97-96. Referee Marion Diehl, 98-97, both for Thomas. Judge Ralph Adkins made it 98-98.

Chief sources of world supply of diamonds are India, South America and South Africa.

World-Famous Romancos Play Twin Bill Here

Big Bat Boys Looking Good For Boston

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's been Mantle and Berra for the New York Yankees; Kaline and Kuenn for Detroit. But Boston has the Boom-Boom boys of the moment, with Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen crashing nine homers and driving in 20 runs between them in the Red Sox last five games.

The Big Guy and Jensen, who is closing in on his best slugging season in the majors after taking the American League home run lead with 14 in June, each smacked two-run shots that powered the Red Sox to a 10-5 victory over Washington last night.

It was Jensen's 24th of the year, two shy of his 1955 high of 26, and fifth in four games for a total of 11 RBI. Williams, the most enduring 39-year-old since Jack Benny went square and turned 40, hammered his 12th home run, added two singles and picked up a third RBI as the Red Sox won their third in a row with a 4-1 record.

That put third place Boston within nine games of the leading Yankees, who split a two-night pair at Baltimore, winning 2-1 after a 7-5 loss. Kansas City stayed a half game ahead of Boston with a 5-1 victory at Detroit. Chicago defeated Cleveland 5-4 in 11 innings after the Indians had chased White Sox ace Billy Pierce.

In the National League, Milwaukee retained a 3½-game lead, beating Cleveland 1-0 on Lew Burdette's eight-hitter while Los Angeles knocked off second place St. Louis 9-3 and the Chicago Cubs whipped third place San Francisco 9-5. Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-2.

Williams, the defending AL bat champ, batted past 300 for the first time this season, hitting .306, while walloping his 400-foot homer in a three-run third inning against loser Hal Griggs (3-5). Jensen smacked his in a three-run sixth off Chuck Stobbs for his 1,100th hit in nine major league seasons.

Reformed reliever Ike Delock won his 10th in a row, sixth of the year, with an eight-hitter, one Norm Zauchin's eighth homer.

Bad Boy Billy Loes, who had lost seven straight, won his first in relief when Baltimore overhauled a Yankee lead with five in the fifth. Billy Gardner's three-run triple capped it against losing reliever Duke Maas (4-7). Don Larsen (7-1) homered for 1-1 tie, then won the nightcap on Mickey Mantle's 16th home run, second of the night, in the eighth inning off Jack Harshman (6-7). Gene Woodling, 5-for-8 in the pads, homered for the Birds.

Bob Cerv's 21st home run got the A's started and they clinched Ned Garver's eighth victory, first in a month, in the sixth on two-run singles by Hector Lopez and Harry Chitt. Frank Lary lost his sixth. Garver allowed only five hits, three by Ozzie Virgil, and lost his shutout in the eighth on Bob Hazle's first AL home run.

Sherm Lollar, whose three-run homer gave Chicago a 4-0 lead in the sixth, singled home the winner off losing reliever Mudcat Grant (6-5). Pierce, who had a near-perfect game Friday, stretched his shutout string to 33

The world-famous Roanoke Rapids Romancos softball team will be in Greenville Saturday night to battle the Carolina Dairy in a twin bill at Guy Smith Stadium.

The first game will begin at 7:30, with the second contest following immediately. There will be 50 cents admission to cover the cost of the game, according to the acting manager Brownie Tripp of the Dairy.

Earlier this season, the clubs tangled at Roanoke Rapids and the Romancos took both games, 4-1 and 5-1. During the past several seasons, it has become almost an annual expected thing for the two clubs to play home-and-away games with each other in this fashion. A large following has been built up in both Greenville and Roanoke Rapids just for these games.

At one time the world's champion softball team, the Romancos are perhaps the winningest club in the State in softball. They are constant threats to the state title and have won it numerous times. One of their former pitchers, Russell Duberry, is considered one of the greatest hurlers in modern softball. Duberry once pitched a 25-inning ball game and won 1-0, giving up only one hit. He has since retired.

Tripp has announced his probable starting lineup for the twin bill Saturday night. Bill Altman is expected to pitch in the opening ball game and Leroy Sasser will catch. Tripp will be at first, Tom Boyd at second, Bob Daah at shortstop, Mitchell White at third, Earl Tripp, Mat Hall and Bill Ford in the outfield. Jerry Warren will probably pitch the second game, with Doug Morgan behind the plate.

Ed Bouchee To Start Against Braves Thursday

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ed Bouchee, Philadelphia Phillies first baseman who was restored to baseball by Commissioner Ford Frick, joins his teammates here today.

He will start against the Braves in Milwaukee tomorrow. The four-game Milwaukee series may prove the testing ground for Bouchee's comeback in the game he says will provide the best therapy of all.

"This was a medical case," Philadelphia Manager Mike Smith said. "Bouchee is evidently cured and we are happy to have him back. I'll start him at first base Thursday at Milwaukee. He has been working out regularly in Philadelphia and probably will give our club a lift."

Under indefinite suspension since he pleaded guilty to a morals charge in Spokane, Wash., Feb. 20, the 25-year-old Bouchee was given another chance when Frick, at a news conference in New York, announced the reinstatement.

"It was the only decision I could live with," Frick said. "I have made an exhaustive study of all the evidence, and I am convinced that Bouchee is completely cured. All the doctors and the probation officer who have been assigned to this case have recommended his return to baseball. I am assuring sole and complete responsibility."

A little over three months after the offense, Bouchee was placed on three years probation by a Judge in Spokane. A psychiatrist testified that he suffered from compulsive exhibitionism, a n aberration resulting from emotional illness. His offense was indecent exposure involving two young girls.

Bouchee has been working out at Connie Mack Stadium in Philadelphia, since June 4 after undergoing psychiatric treatment for three months at the Institute for Living in Hartford, Conn.

"I'll be happy to be back with the boys," Bouchee said upon hearing the news. "No one can know how happy."

TUESDAY'S STARS

Bobby Thomas Ranked In Jaycee State Tournament

HENDERSONVILLE (AP)—Fred Blackmon of Highlands put together rounds of 71-73 for a lead in the seventh annual North Carolina Jaycee Junior golf tournament at the Hendersonville Country Club Tuesday.

But the story on a sunny day, with the temperature in the high 80s, was the collapse of 16-year-old Archie Clark Jr., of Fayetteville, who held a comfortable lead after 17 holes.

The husky Clark lost his touch completely on the last eight holes where he went 12 strokes over par and finished with an 80 to go with an opening round 69 for a 149 total and fifth place.

Trailing Blackmon by one stroke was lanky Ken Folkes of Concord, who posted rounds of 74-71 for 145. A stroke back of Folkes was Salisbury's Bill Moser, 72-74-146.

Don Hedrick of Lexington, recent winner of the Carolinas Junior Golf Tournament, was in fourth place at 147 with rounds of 75 and 72. Clark trailed Hedrick by a stroke and Johnny Leach of Troy came in with 73-75-148, good for sixth place.

The final 18 holes of the 54-hole tournament is being played today. The top four finishers will receive expense-paid trips to the International Jaycees Tournament at Tucson, Ariz., next month.

U.S. To Send Six After Curtis Cup

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States will send six Curtis Cup novices after the coveted women's golfing trophy now held by England.

Steadying the youngsters will be Polly Riley and Barbara Romack, a pair of veterans in the competition. Miss Riley, from Fort Worth, Tex., will be playing on her sixth team. Miss Romack, from Sacramento, Calif., will make her third Curtis appearance.

The matches, held every two years, will be played Aug. 8-9 at Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, Mass.

The newcomers on the team announced yesterday by the U.S. Golf Assn. are: Jo Anne Gunerson of Kirkland, Wash., the national amateur champion; Meriam Bailey of Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa; Barbara McIntire of Lake Park, Fla.; Anne Quast of Marysville, Wash.; and Anne Richardson of Columbus, Ohio.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—For the second consecutive year, the Wimbledon Tennis Tournament goes into the men's semifinals with the entire U.S. delegation sitting on the sidelines.

And for the first time since the end of World War II, the United States has failed to place at least two entries in the semifinal round of the women's division.

Defending champion and the heavy favorite, Althea Gibson of New York, is the lone remaining Yank in this tournament that once was dominated by the Americans.

In the men's division, there remain three Australians, Ashley Cooper, Neale Fraser and Mervyn Rose, and one Dane, Kurt Nielsen. Besides Miss Gibson in the women's division, there are two Britons, Ann Haydon and Angela Mortimer, and one Hungarian, Mrs. Suzy Kormoczy.

The semis lines up like this: Rose vs. Cooper, Nielsen vs. Fraser, Gibson vs. Haydon, Mortimer vs. Kormoczy.

Barry MacKay, who dropped a 6-2, 6-4 decision to left-hander Rose yesterday—his own doubles partner—took his reversal in good grace, and refused to use his blistered racket hand as an alibi. "You have got to lose to learn," he observed. "I have no excuses for my performance. Rose played too well for me, that's all. My blistered hand was fine and it didn't cramp my style at all."

He was the only American who even advanced as far as the men's quarter-finals.

Mrs. Margaret du Pont of Wilmington, Del., who won the title back in 1947, and pint-sized Mimi Arnold, both were knocked out in the quarter-finals.

refresh without filling

THE GLORIOUS Fourth falls in mid-week this year — but that won't faze today's Americans. Active, slender, fit for fun, they'll live every minute of the holiday.

Their up-to-date taste for the lighter, less filling foods is one big reason why these wonderful, modern people look and feel the way they do.

Today's Pepsi-Cola, reduced in calories, goes right along with this wholesome trend in diet. Never heavy, never too sweet, Pepsi-Cola is the modern, light refreshment.

Refresh without filling. Take Pepsi on your holiday picnics — and keep plenty on ice to welcome you home.

NOT BY GUNS ALONE

CHAPTER 14

A quick search of the sheep sheds and barn had netted no trace of the carcass, and now Slade Considine was faced with the necessity of again abusing Frenchy's hospitality. It was a job he hated to do, for in spite of the innate sheepman-cowman prejudice, he liked Frenchy Quebec.

When he threw open the door and saw that the fancy bedroom was just as Frenchy had left it last night, his first feeling was one of relief. Then as his eyes swept around the room he noticed that one edge of the rug was wrinkled as if it had been hurriedly thrown back in place, and on one of the big yellowish tan flowers was a dark spot that shouldn't have been there. He bent over and examined it closer and saw two other spots, spaced about the width of a man's hand, as if bloody fingers had pulled it back in place.

Slade threw back the rug and saw the trap door under it. He opened upward, swinging easily on well-oiled hinges, like everything else on the place bearing witness to Frenchy's painstaking workmanship.

The air from below was cold and damp. Slade struck a match, cupped his hand around it and started down the concrete steps.

The cellar was small, not more than six or seven feet square and barely deep enough to clear the cowboy's head when he stood straight. Against one concrete wall were sturdy shelves neatly stacked with canned fruit. A half-dozen lumpy gunny sacks in one corner Slade judged probably held root vegetables from Frenchy's last year's garden. And from the heavy rafters overhead hung a couple of cured hams, half a sheep, and the quartered meat of a freshly butchered calf.

Slade struck another match and kicked at the fresh red hide in the corner until he could see Wynn Thomason's T Anchor brand. Then he turned and went back up the stairs.

He had found what he had expected. He had solved at least a part of the mystery of the rustling in the Chupaderos — but somehow he didn't feel very well satisfied about it. He kept remembering the gentleness that was under Frenchy's rough exterior, the streak of almost womanish sentimentality that somehow didn't fit in very well with this kind of sneaking crookedness.

He added the sway-backed bay, but before he mounted his own little sorrel again he fingered the gun at his hip, saw that it was riding high where it could come out easy and quick. Slade didn't pretend to be a gunman. He had worn a gun almost constantly since he was fifteen but he had never pointed it at a human being in his life. But he knew how to use it, and remembering Frenchy's violent, sudden temper, he thought he was likely to need it. Frenchy probably would be the kind to submit lamely to arrest.

But about that he was mistaken. When Slade got down to the little vegs, Frenchy, sweating and swearing, was just coming back from a rock-throwing chase of a big, brindled bull. Bacho, a foolish, vacant grin on his face, was sitting by the edge of the creek, under a big cottonwood tree. His clothes were sopping wet, he was shivering, and half talking to himself. Frenchy threw a furious look in his direction, and swore again. "Some day I feel somebody! If I know who gave Bacho that whiskey, I feel him now!" He flung out a hamlike arm, pointing down to the huddled, bleating sheep. "That bull make fight weeth Shep an' keel two my sheep — while Bacho he sees there an' geegele!"

He strode over to the little herder, grabbed him by the back of his collar, and threw him in the creek again. Bacho slid into the water sitting down. He stayed there a moment, then started to get up. A foot slipped on a rock and he sat down again. He grunted with pain, but this time he bent over and deliberately stuck his face in the water.

Frenchy watched him. The next time Bacho staggered to his feet, the big sheepman reached out an arm and helped him to the bank, then sat him down with a jolt that ought to have made him sore for a week.

Bachos shivered when the breeze struck his wet clothes. He sputtered water from his nose and mouth, wiped it off his face and hair. Frenchy's treatment had been rough, but it was also effective.

In a few minutes Bacho stood up. "All right, Frenchy, I'll bring the sheep in. I'm sober now."

He still staggered when he tried to walk, and his eyes were dull, but his voice sounded sensible. Slade turned to Frenchy. "I hate to have to do this, Frenchy. But you're under arrest. You'll have to go in to Barrancas with me."

The Frenchman swung his big head round, and his heavy brows drew together across his nose. "Arrest? Me? What for?" he rumbled.

Bachos's head jerked up as if he had been hit across the back of the neck. "Now what the—?"

"For butchering a T Anchor calf. I just found it in your cellar."

Frenchy hunched up his shoulders and struck his chin forward, like a turtle poking his head out of his shell. "You find a calf — in my cellar?" he repeated incredulously. He took a step forward and Slade Considine's hand dropped down near the gun at his hip and stayed there.

"I found the kill up in the hills," he said quietly. "You weren't very smart, Frenchy. Anybody could have tracked that big-footed bay of yours right to your front door, with the carcass dropping blood with every step. Somehow I had you figured for a smarter woodsman than that, Frenchy."

"He jolly well is," Bacho said, his voice still a little thick. "We'll let the Justice of the Peace settle that!"

In Frenchy Quebecaux's dark eyes a brief anger had flamed then died away, leaving a look that Slade Considine didn't like. It was a look compounded of about equal parts of reproach, cold contempt and something like disgust. The Frenchman took a step towards Slade, then his eyes dropped to the gun at the cowboy's hip and he stopped, shrugging his shoulders. "I been gone from the house all day," he said quietly. "I don't even ride the beeg bay today. I turn him a-loose in the pasture!"

"I'm sorry, Frenchy," Slade said, and meant it. Frenchy's simple statement had half-way convinced him that the damning weight of evidence against him was somehow false — but only half-way.

The Frenchman shrugged. "You say essorry — but no! You theek thees because I am sheepman, an' you don't like sheeps." Bacho laid his hand on the big Frenchman's arm. "Don't worry, Frenchy. They will never convict you. I'll find out who is trying to frame you." Frenchy shook the hand off his arm. "All I wan' you to do es stay sober — and watch the sheeps!" Again his eyes measured speculatively the distance between himself and Slade, then the gun at the cowboy's finger-tips. "Okay," he said. "I go."

"The next instant a gun barrel laid forcefully along the side of Slade's head crumpled him with a soft, grunting sigh. . . . A new chapter of suspense will appear tomorrow."

Check Labels On 'Rosy' Potatoes

RALEIGH (AP) — If the potatoes look extra rosy next time you're grocery shopping, check for a label saying they are artificially colored.

If there is no such sign, and if the color comes off on your hand, get in touch with Dr. E. W. Constable, head of the State Agriculture Department's Chemistry Division.

Dr. Constable said yesterday he has received complaints from some housewives of red dye from potatoes staining their hands and cooking utensils.

The sale of dyed potatoes — without labels clearly stating they are artificially colored is illegal, Dr. Constable reminded. Examples should be brought to his attention, he added.

Annual Kiwanis Picnic On July 4

The Greenville Kiwanis Club will have its annual picnic for the members and their wives and children Friday (Fourth of July) afternoon at Kiwanis Park. President J. D. McGlohon has announced.

The Kiwanis "Choo-Choo" train will be in operation free for Kiwanians' children and the "wading pool" will be available. A picnic supper will be served free.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved irregularly early this afternoon as trading slackened to a moderate pace.
 Leading issues showed gains or losses running from fractions to about a point.
 The mixed tone prevailed since the opening as the market found the going tough. Prices bumped close to the 1953 peak reached in mid-June.
 Aircrafts, steels and rubbers showed mixed signs. Selected gainers appeared among oils, nonferrous metals and utilities. Losses showed among these groups and others.
 Trading in Humble Oil was suspended temporarily on the American Stock Exchange following news that Standard Oil (New Jersey) was contemplating making an offer of about five shares of Jersey for four shares of Humble. The latter rose 2 1/4 points in a rush of buying. Meanwhile, Jersey dropped more than a point.
 Union Oil of California eased at the start in a further reaction to its dividend cut then steadied and showed a small net gain. American Viscose was up a good fraction despite yesterday's halved dividend.
 Alaska Junea continued active and fractionally higher. Thompson products was firm after an early gain on news of a merger.
 Reichhold Chemical continued to rise on favorable Wall Street opinion, adding about 2. Goodrich was another 2-point gainer. Polaroid advanced more than a point.
 Most coppers were higher, spurred by the Phelps Dodge price boost and word of another rise at the custom smelter level. Phelps Dodge rose a good fraction. Kennecott, Magna and Revere were up around a point each.
 Aircrafts were helped by a succession of defense contracts. United Aircraft added about a point and Douglas more than that.
 U.S. Gypsum was down about a point. Smaller losses were taken by Chrysler, International Harvester, American Smelting, Union Carbide, American Tobacco, General Electric, Illinois Central and Ohio Oil.
 The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 20 cents to $175.00 with the industrials off 10 cents, the rails down 20 cents and the utilities off 10 cents.

English Teachers Talk Problems Dump Site Trade Deal Runs Into An Obstacle

Approximately fifty teachers of English from public schools and colleges in Eastern and Piedmont North Carolina met at East Carolina College Tuesday to discuss some of their problems as instructors. The program included consideration of methods and techniques, with emphasis on teaching by television, and an illustrated lecture on "Beowulf."

C. W. Phillips, director of the North Carolina In-School TV Experiment, gave highlights of the experiment of teaching approximately 10,000 junior and senior high school students through television programs during the past year.

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners were advised last night they can't legally trade the town's dump site for another piece of land without advertising the municipal property for public sale.

Commissioners had proposed to trade the 10.5 acres dump area in Old Contentines Park to Jennie Harper for $5,000 and 7.5 acres of cleared land west of the Town's Sewerage disposal plant. The trade was proposed to permit the town to establish a land-fill disposal area for garbage and trash.

Under terms of the proposal, the town would transfer title to the present dump area to Harper for the cash and cleared land, plus an option to purchase up to 15 acres of adjacent woodland at $100 per acre within the next 30 years. The change would eliminate the open garbage disposal area which the town has operated for the past 30 years.

The agreement would also have permitted the town to retain a permanent easement for sewer lines crossing the present dump area. The town would also have been permitted to complete housing and sale of any crops which might be on the property now.

Although Mayor Charles S. Edwards said the town will "definitely switch to the land-fill method," no action on advertising the property for sale was taken last night. Action was deferred due to the absence of Commissioner Frank K. Allen, chairman of the board's Sanitation Committee.

Commissioners had requested a month ago to investigate possibilities of switching to the land-fill method. Citizens who made the request pointed out that residential areas in sections of the town near the dump area have expanded in the past few years and plans are being made for further development of property near the site.

Switching to the land-fill method will require the town to purchase a crawler-type tractor with a shovel attachment.

Last Rites Set For Bobby Ray Branch

Bobby Ray Branch, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Branch, was drowned about 2:30 Tuesday afternoon while wading on the Herman Garris farm near his home in the Bell Fork community. The accident occurred when he got into deep water.

Funeral services will be held at Hollywood Presbyterian Church Thursday at 2:30 p.m. by the pastor, the Rev. George Nichols. Burial will be in the Greenwood Cemetery.

The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the church one hour before the service.

Bobby spent his life in the Bell Fork community of Pitt County and was a fourth grade student at the Winterville School. He was a member of the Sunday school of Hollywood Church.

Surviving are his parents; two brothers, Bruce Branch of the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Limestone, Maine, and Linwood Branch of the home; two sisters, Geraldine and Shirley Ann Branch, both of the home; and his grandmother, Mrs. R. H. McGowan of Bell Fork.

Delay In Report Of Stolen Coat

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Arthur Broce reported to Sheriff C. A. Jenkins this sultry week that his overcoat had been stolen from his home.

Furthermore, said Broce, there were two $20 bills in the coat.

When was it stolen? Shortly before last Christmas.

Broce didn't explain his delay in reporting the theft.

Correction

In yesterday's Daily Reflector report of the death and funeral of David Leon Herring, La-Grange merchant who died at a Fayetteville hospital Tuesday, it was erroneously stated that he was a brother of Luther Herring of Greenville, instead of Lewis W. Herring, 622 Elm Street, Greenville.

Funeral service for James Bennett will be held Friday at 3 p.m. at English Chapel F.W.B. Church. The Rev. Hemby will officiate. Burial will be in the King cemetery. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lenora Bennett; one daughter, Miss Barbara Bennett; one son, James Alton Bennett of the home; one brother, Ben Frank Bennett of Greenville; one sister, Mrs. Ella Ruffin, of Grimesland.

The body will be taken from Phillips Bros. Funeral Home Thursday afternoon to the home 1315 Mills Street in Greenville.
