Former RAF Man Admits He Sent A-Bombing Note

LONDON (AP)—A jobless farm worker who was discharged by the Royal Air Force for mental instability said today he signed his name and address to a letter saying a U. S. pilot would drop an A-bomb near England.

British Foreign Office, Soviet officials said it was "probably a hoax" but didn't mention knowing the writer's name and address.

A small-town British reporter tracked down the letter writer yesterday. He was William Stanley Whales, 34, of Ipswich, who hasn't been near a warplane for almost a year.

When police questioned Whales today, he denied any political motive but said he only wanted to attract attention to his grievances against the British government.

Pitt Sees Slow And Orderly 4th

Life moved at a slow and orderly pace for most of Pitt County yesterday.

For one thing, it was the Fourth of July, a legal holiday for most county residents. For another, the day was a hot one, one of the hottest of the year.

Law enforcement officers throughout the county said that although highway traffic was heavy throughout the day, there were no major accidents or tie-ups.

Most business houses in the county were closed for the holiday, were government offices and buildings. The business firms, with the exception of banking houses, reopened this morning, however.

Hard Luck Laid To The Propellor

TOKYO (AP)—Actor John Calvert's hard-luck yacht Trepidant broke down on its highly publicized voyage through the East China Sea last month because it was equipped with an oversized propeller.

National Education Association Plans Study School Integration

CLEVELAND (AP)—Despite strong Southern opposition, it appeared certain today that the powerful and far-flung National Education Assn. is going to take a long, hard look at public school integration.

The NEA, with some 616,000 members in all the 48 states and the U. S. territories, was asked yesterday to make such a survey and report its findings and recommendations at the next annual convention.

A bit of parliamentary maneuvering by the Georgia delegation kept the motion from reaching a vote yesterday afternoon. However, another bit of the same sort of maneuvering in last night's final session appeared to clear the way for just that sort of thing.

Here's the way it went: Walter Ludwig, a school teacher from Mamaroneck, N.Y., called for the survey in a proposal made at the end of the afternoon session.

Police let him go home without bringing any charges against him. Whales told newsmen he wrote Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik three letters. One was the threat to drop an A-bomb, another protested his failure to get a gratuity after the RAF discharged him and the third complained that the government had requisitioned his father's farm, Whales said.

The Soviet Embassy, in a formal statement this afternoon, said the original anonymous letter signed "W" was shown to a British Foreign Office official. The statement denied receipt of a letter from Whales. The Soviet statement said: "As is already known from the press, the original of the anonymous letter signed with one letter, "W" which was received by the Embassy July 1, was shown on July 3 by Mr. Roschin of the Embassy to Mr. Brimelow of the Northern Department of the Foreign Office.

Mr. Brimelow also was given photographic copies of the letter and of the envelope. No other letters on this matter have been received by the Embassy.

The reports published July 5 in certain British newspapers alleging that the Embassy had received similar letters from a certain British ex-airman, William Stanley Whales, have no grounds whatsoever and are imaginary.

Moscow Radio said earlier in an English-language broadcast that U. S. pressure might force the British government to declare the letter a forgery even if it proved genuine.

In a written confession given to the Ipswich reporter, Whales accused the Russians of altering the meaning of the publicized letter by omissions.

Whales said he wrote it to gain attention to his grievances against the RAF but the Soviet Embassy deleted those grievances before giving copies of the letter to the British Foreign Office and the press. The letter as made public seemed to come from a U.S. airman who planned to drop an atomic bomb in the North Sea near Britain and then fly on to Russia to seek asylum. Maybe a few people would be killed, but Russia's peace campaign would get some support, the published letter said.

The letter was postmarked last Saturday at Ipswich, 68 miles northeast of London. The Soviet Embassy said it was received Tuesday and made public Thursday — two days the letter said a bomb might be dropped.

The British Foreign Office said it suspected a hoax. The Russians conceded this publicly also. Scotland Yard was put on the case. It was reporter Stuart Weston of the British Press Association who cracked the mystery. He figured the letter writer was someone with a grievance, not an American.

Thinking over possibilities, Weston hit on Whales as the most likely. He asked Whales to drop or admit before three witnesses. Grammar and spelling errors in the admission tallied with those in the letter.

Holiday Traffic Deaths On Their Way To Record Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Traffic deaths during the 78-hour holiday period which began at 6 p. m. Thursday.

Most of the traffic passing through the county yesterday was bound for beaches or other recreation areas where the heat was not so intense as in the county itself. Highest temperatures reported by the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station on the Tar River was 95.

Prospects were good for an equally high reading today. Last night's low temperature was only 75 and the 5 a. m. reading of 83 marked the first step in a steady upward climb of the heat.

Most business houses in the county were closed for the holiday, were government offices and buildings. The business firms, with the exception of banking houses, reopened this morning, however.

driving conditions Friday night. Some 45 million cars were expected to roll up 12 billion miles on the nation's highways, according to an NSC estimate for the holiday period from 6 p. m. local time Thursday to Sunday midnight.

The record low July Fourth three-day toll since World War II was 255 deaths in 1947.

Still Comb Ocean For Five Missing Airmen

HONOLULU (AP)—Planes and ships combed the mid-Pacific 600 miles southwest of here today for five men still missing after the crash of an Air Force C124 Globemaster with nine men aboard early yesterday.

Three men were picked up in apparently good condition after nearly 12 hours in the water, and one body was recovered shortly after noon.

The body was not immediately identified, but the names of four of the five missing men were released by the Air Force.

Those rescued were the plane's commander, Capt. Jonathan W. Brown, of Travis Air Force Base, Calif., where the big plane was based; the flight engineer, T.Sgt. James M. Phillips, of Vacaville, Calif.; and the second flight engineer, S.Sgt. C. van Derre of San Rafael, Calif.

Three of the crewmen still missing were identified as Lt. Gerald J. Bona, Vacaville, the navigator; Airman 1.C. Charles E. Entreklin, Atlantic City, N.J., loadmaster; and S.Sgt. Thomas Pasco, Fairfield, Calif.

One crewman remained unidentified because his family could not be located in the Travis AFB area.

One of two couriers who joined the Tokyo-bound flight in Honolulu, was identified as Capt. Charles Spears, whose wife, Elsie, lives in Honolulu and whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Spears, live in Ironton, Ohio. The other was identified only as a Navy chief petty officer.

The three survivors aboard the carrier Boxer told investigating officers that two of their comrades died in the sea prior to the arrival of help.

The survivors said they knew nothing of the fate of the others except that shortly after the crash they heard a voice cry out and saw a flashing light briefly at a distance, but they couldn't make contact again.

Early yesterday morning the big 1.7 million dollar plane radioed it had a runaway engine, could not feather the prop, was losing oil and asked permission to land at tiny Johnston Island 200 miles ahead. It was not heard from again.

The Associated Press made a survey of traffic fatalities during a non-holiday weekend for a comparison with the current holiday period. It covered the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. June 19 to midnight Sunday, June 22. It showed 339 traffic fatalities, 118 drownings and 63 deaths from miscellaneous accidents — an overall total of 520.

The crash killed three brothers and their companion: Roger William Boone, 20, Benjamin Baggett Boone, 14, Johnnie Taylor Boone, 18, all of Spring Hope, and Neddie A. Taylor, 23, of Raleigh. Coroner Carter cleared truck driver Paul Outlaw of Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Barbara Jean Murphy, a 19-year-old bride from Cleveland, Tenn., died when her husband's car hit a tree near Smoketown. Charlie Howell, 50, Negro, of Rt. 1, Morven, was killed near Morven when the car in which he was riding struck a tree and overturned.

Jasper Turner, 54, of Portsmouth, Va., drowned in the Chowan River near Winton when he fell from a motorboat. His young son, Alton, also fell into the water but was rescued by David Maddrey who dived 15 feet to snatch the boy's limp body.

Dewey Lee Gibbs, 12, of Rt. 3, Guilford College, drowned in a little pond of a neighbor. He slipped while wading.

A man told the lifeguard at Lake Silver near Raleigh that he thought he had stepped on a body. The lifeguard found Sammy Alfred, 13, of Zebulon, drowned in shallow water.

Police said a Negro couple at Rocky Mount, Wiley and Lillian Bottoms, died in a murder-suicide killing. Police said Wiley killed his wife and then himself while three children watched.

Cedric Shepard, 40, Negro, of New Bern, was stabbed to death in what police called a "drunken brawl." Officers charged Hardie Brock, Negro, of Trenton, with the killing.

Daniel Jonsson, 80, was found shot to death in the bedroom of his Charlotte home. Police said there were several bullet holes in his back.

No Retaliation For Expulsions CAIRO (AP)—A United Arab Republic spokesman was quoted today as saying there will be no retaliation for Lebanon's expulsion of six U.A.R. diplomats and an Egyptian teacher.

The pro-Western Lebanese government yesterday ordered the seven out of the country within 48 hours on charges of inciting the Lebanese to revolt and paying money to foment revolution.

Large Meteor

Possibly the largest meteor ever recorded in North Carolina was spotted over Pitt County early this morning.

Around 1:15 a. m. FBI ABC officers radioed in to the Greenville Police Station that they saw a ball of fire pass overhead. One officer described the object as appearing to be about 24 inches in diameter and having a long, bright stream of light.

Further radio reports identified the ball of fire to be a meteor. It was seen as far south as South Carolina. Wilmington authorities also spotted the meteor and reported it apparently fell well out into the ocean.

Death Takes No Holiday In N. C. During Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS At least 14 persons had died violently in North Carolina as the long Fourth of July holiday weekend entered its second day.

Willie G. Collins, 21, Negro, died when a speeding car overturned on a rural paved road six miles south of Hertford. The driver of the car, Gene A. Morgan, 21, also Negro, was charged with manslaughter and speeding under existing traffic conditions, the State Highway Patrol said.

Coroner W. W. Carter said a car carrying four young men drove out from a restaurant-filling station into the path of a truck near Weldon.

The crash killed three brothers and their companion: Roger William Boone, 20, Benjamin Baggett Boone, 14, Johnnie Taylor Boone, 18, all of Spring Hope, and Neddie A. Taylor, 23, of Raleigh. Coroner Carter cleared truck driver Paul Outlaw of Miami, Fla.

One Child Dies, 20 Injured In Explosion Of Fireworks Plant

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A fireworks plant on the eastern edge of Portland blew up in a shower of fire and debris early today. A child was killed, and at least 20 were injured.

Firemen took the body of a small girl from the wreckage of a house near the explosion. They were investigating reports two other persons may have been in the house. The names were not available.

Providence Hospital said it had admitted 18 with injuries. The hospital staff was too busy to provide more information immediately.

Firemen were looking also for a watchman reported to be in the plant.

The Signal Fireworks storage plant—two buildings 100 feet long—blew up with a thunderous roar that awakened most of the city at 1:45 a. m.

Ex-Patrolman Confesses Slaying, An Innocent Man To Escape Death Sentence

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP)—For the first time in nearly two years the shadow of the electric chair no longer darkens the life of a slim, mild-mannered South Carolina house painter and father of seven children.

James Fulton Foster, 40, of Greer, S.C., is still in jail at Jefferson, but now he can count the days until his release.

Authorities say it will be perhaps 10 days before legal technicalities are cleared up.

The door to freedom was opened for him yesterday when Charles Paul (Rocky) Rothschild, a 33-year-old former Cairo, Ill., patrolman, confessed killing a Jefferson merchant.

Foster twice was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the crime — in September 1956 and again this June. Both times appeals delayed his execution.

Rothschild signed a 2,500-word statement at Columbia, S. C., Atlanta in the first year of a 5-year liquor case sentence.

Alfred Quillian, solicitor general (prosecutor) of the Piedmont Judicial Circuit, said he would seek indictments against Rothschild and Allen at the August term of the county grand jury.

Foster appeared dazed when brought into a news conference at which Rothschild's confession was announced.

"I don't know what to say. I'm dumbfounded," he said as he grasped the hands of Sheriff John B. Brooks of Jackson County, attorney and other well wishers.

James Horace Wood, one of Foster's attorneys, said the first real break came when a safe-cracker in the Atlanta safe company mentioned several times that he had killed a man in Jefferson.

While Wood followed this lead, Foster continued to maintain he was innocent. During his trial he said he and a companion were drinking beer at an establishment several miles from the Drake home shortly before the slaying. He had been working at nearby Gainesville as a house painter.

The state's star witness was Mrs. Drake who was beaten by the slayer who attempted to telephone for help. She identified Foster. The defense contended Mrs. Drake was confused and made an honest mistake.

In his confession, Rothschild said he was partially disguised by a woman's silk stocking drawn over his face.

Mrs. Drake was not available for comment.

At the Foster home at Greer, Mrs. Foster described the scene of joy that followed word of her husband's approaching freedom.

"The children started jumping up and down and laughing," Mrs. Foster related. "They wanted to clean up the house. They kept saying, 'Daddy is coming home.' For herself, Mrs. Foster said simply, "It was the happiest time of my life."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A minister who feared a second nervous breakdown was found hanged yesterday in the tower of his downtown church.

One body of Dr. Carl Neath Kopf, 56, was suspended from a 50-foot length of clothes line. A wrapper torn from the rope bore the words "God forgive me." The district coroner, after an examination, issued a certificate of suicide.

Dr. Kopf had been minister since 1947 of the First Congregational Church in the heart of the city's shopping district. It was the church Calvin Coolidge had attended as president.

Dulles, DeGaulle In Private Talks

PARIS (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Premier Charles de Gaulle finished a preliminary discussion on a wide range of problems today. They then set up a private talk with no aides present.

The first session lasted nearly three hours, ending just before lunch.

French spokesmen said Dulles had opened the meeting by conveying President Eisenhower's "best personal regards" to De Gaulle.

Philip Farley, U. S. specialist on atomic energy and disarmament, was not present, although the question of furnishing France with American technical information on atomic weapons is high on the list of problems to be studied.

Informed quarters said De Gaulle and Dulles had reviewed a list of topics without examining any one of them in detail.

Strategic problems, both in Europe and the Middle East—nuclear weapons, and general policy matters were among the questions French Foreign Ministry officials said would be discussed. In arranging the private talk, to begin late in the afternoon, De Gaulle was following the procedure he began last week when British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan came to Paris. They dismissed their aides and talked alone for more than an hour.

U. S. Ambassador Amory Houghton, embassy Minister Cecil Lyon, and two State Department specialists on European affairs, sat in with Dulles this morning.

Seated on the opposite side of the table were de Gaulle's assistants, Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville; Foreign Office Secretary General Louis Joxe; the ambassador to Washington, Herve Alphand; and two Foreign Office counselors.

Mrs. Dulles, Mrs. Houghton, Mrs. Lyon and Mrs. de Gaulle joined their husbands when the two delegations went in to lunch.

De Gaulle stepped out personally to greet Dulles with a warm handshake on his arrival for the talks, and the luncheon with the wives was a gesture of further cordiality.

The diplomat and the soldier had no fixed agenda for their meeting but informed sources said both men probably had uppermost in their minds the question of how soon France might test a home-made atomic bomb.

Persistent reports from reliable quarters say France will set off an A-bomb soon in the Sahara. This would admit the nation to the "Atomic Club" now composed of the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Gen. de Gaulle was expected to ask for U. S. help on nuclear development. But with U. S. laws in mind an American spokesman commented, "We haven't got much to offer."

"We want to find out what they want and make a complete survey with them of the world situation," the spokesman said. "The French have been letting it be known unofficially that they want a lot of secrets but we haven't heard anything on the record."

"The MacMahon act is as far as we can go, anyway," the spokesman added.

In the MacMahon act, Congress barred sharing of nuclear secrets with American allies. It has recently been modified to permit some secret exchanges with Britain.

NEW BETHEL GYMNASIUM—Construction is nearing completion on a new $120,000 gymnasium for Bethel High School. Work on the structure was begun during the past school year and is expected to be completed before the opening of the 1958-1959 school year. W. G. Dunn of Greenville is contractor for the gymnasium which incorporates use of laminated wood trusses to make the building interior fireproof. (Reflector Staff Photo)

VISION The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his community's sake, (3) For the sake of his country and action, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily. We can get our perspective back into sharp, clear focus through the Church. We can recapture and strengthen our love for God. If you haven't noticed, lately, how many miracles take place in your daily life, start going to Church. You'll soon see.

Haar-Lloyd Marry In Afternoon

Mrs. Frederick Hubbard Haar

In a Saturday afternoon ceremony, Miss Alma Jane Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis Lloyd of Keswick Country Club, Keswick, Va., and Frederick Hubbard Haar, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Behrend Haar of Greenville, N. C., were united in marriage at the First Baptist Church in Charlotteville.

Dr. E. Cowen Ellis was the officiating clergyman. Arrangements of white gladioli, palms, and candelabra decorated the church.

A program of wedding music was presented by Tommy Warburton, organist, and Miss Mary B. Herr, soloist, who sang "Because" and "At Dawning."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Chantilly lace, featuring a scalloped neckline trimmed with seed pearls. The gown was designed with a princess-line effect and long pointed sleeves. With the gown extending into a chapel-length train, she wore a fingertip veil of imported French illusion attached to a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade of stephanotis with a white orchid placed in the center.

Miss Barbara Gouldman of Fredericksburg was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nell Green of Raleigh, N. C., Miss Judith Williams of Towanda, Pa., Miss Jean Lee Anderson, Mrs. Carolyn Herring and Miss Nancy Pogleman.

Their gowns were of blue or-gandy over taffeta with cummer-bunds of blue-toned taffeta, with large butterfly bows at the back. They wore matching picture hats trimmed with satin ribbons and flowers. Wearing white short gloves, they carried white baskets with pink daisies and white baby's breath.

The bride's mother wore an aqua lace sheath dress accented with a bow at the back and matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Wearing a blue lace with champagne accessories, the bridegroom's mother wore a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

Richard Venable Haar of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Charles Watson of Greenville, Richard Scales of Richmond, Va., John D. Lloyd Jr., Quinter J. Herring and Robert Pence.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's parents honoring the couple at the Country Club in Keswick.

For a wedding trip the bride wore a cocoa brown silk shantung dress with matching accessories. As a corsage, she wore the orchid lifted from her cascade bouquet. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Haar will make their home with the bride's parents until September.

The bride attended Mary Washington College and the bridegroom is a graduate of Hampton Sydney.

Life on a Mississippi showboat has much in common with life in a television studio, says small, red haired Kathy Nolan, who is well acquainted with both.

Kathy's professional career began at the age of 13 months, aboard the showboat Goldenrod, which plied the Mississippi from Cincinnati to New Orleans.

From then until the age of 17, Kathy played the full range of parts in such tried-and-true thrillers as "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," "East Lynne," and "Lure of the City," living aboard the boat much of the time with her parents, Stephen and Terry Ellsworth, and her big sister, Nancy.

"We did from five to ten shows in two weeks and there never was much time to rehearse," says Kathy. "So learning one script a week for television is a breeze."

"One of my first jobs after I came to New York was with a road company of 'Captain Kidd's Return,'" she says. "The cast of six traveled in a station wagon with the scenery strapped on top, and when we got to a town we were playing we had to put up our own seats and press our own costumes. That sort of thing makes you rugged—and you have to be rugged to take the television pace."

Kathy's main job now is with a weekly TV show, "The Real McCoy's," in which she is co-starred with Walter Brennan. Previously she has had featured roles in a number of radio and television shows, including the role of Wendy in "Peter Pan," which starred Mary Martin.

"When you play on a showboat, the audience talks back to you, and you talk back to them. They cheer the hero and hiss the villain, and sometimes they try to warn the actors about what's coming," says 24-year-old Kathy.

"For instance, in a play where the villain is lurking behind a tree, the audience may shout 'Look Out!' when the heroine comes onstage. Then she says in an aside to them, 'I'm not supposed to know he's there—and goes on with the show. It's all live, it's human and it's fun.'"

Kathy is going back this summer to play a one-night stand in "Lure of the City" aboard the Goldenrod, now anchored at St. Louis. Says she:

"I can't wait to go back. It will be such a thrill to do the old part once again. And see the wonderful old showboat, and all my friends, including Capt. Billy Menke. Besides 'Lure of the City' has always been my very favorite play."

Today's Menu

This main dish improves after a stay in the refrigerator.

MORE BEANS THAN MEAT
Ingredients: 1 pound (2 cups) red kidney beans, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 pound lean chuck beef (cubed), 2 medium-sized onions (chopped), 1 green pepper (chopped), 2 cloves garlic (crushed), 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, salt, pepper, chili powder, sugar, ground cumin (if desired).

Method: Soak and cook beans (without salt) according to standard directions; reserve bean cooking liquid. Melt fat in large skillet or Dutch oven; add beef, onion, green pepper and garlic; brown fast. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper, chili powder, sugar, cumin (if used) to taste. Simmer, covered, until beef is tender—about 1 hour. Add drained beans and 1½ cups bean liquid or part water. Add more seasonings, if needed. Simmer ½ hour, uncovered and stirring gently several times. Refrigerate overnight and reheat slowly, adding a little stock or water if necessary. Makes 6 to 8 servings. (We like at least 3 tablespoons chili powder added to the meat and beans for a somewhat "hot" flavor.)

Make Child Laundry Bag

Little things can encourage a child to be neat and put her things away. A gay laundry bag, for instance, can teach her to put soiled clothes where they belong, so that her mother doesn't have to waste time on washday searching her room for things that need washing.

Here is an idea for a laundry bag that looks like a dress, easy to make from left-over fabric. Just be sure the fabric is washable, advise local sewing center experts.

To make the laundry bag, simply cut two dress-shaped pieces, with short sleeves and round neckline. A good size for the bag is 26 inches long, 16 inches across the body of the bag and 20 inches from sleeve-tip to sleeve-tip across the shoulder line.

Slit and hem the front opening. Attach a small band collar and bow-tie at the neckline. To disguise its bulge as the laundry piles up, add a small gathered apron. Finish sleeves with bias binding.

Many mothers make these laundry bags to match the fabrics in the room, using material left over from curtains and bedspread. Additional fabric left over from a decorating project may be utilized for garment bags and shoe bags.

THIS IS REALLY A BAG—This laundry bag looks like a dress, hence, on a baby's dresser, it's a real beauty.

Maybe Larger Plates Are In Order

Up at the other end of North Carolina the Asheville Citizen has come up with the editorial suggestion that North Carolina, "a beautiful and distinctive state", do something to get itself out of the rut of its "unimaginative" yellow and black auto license plates.

The Asheville Citizen suggests that license plates of the state's colors (red and blue), with the state's motto Ease Quam Videri (to be rather than to seem) and maybe even the state bird (the Cardinal) would be beautiful and distinctive.

Says that mountain newspaper: "They would have eye appeal, attract attention."

We'll have to agree with our far-removed newspaper cousins in Asheville, that North Carolina's license plates could be improved by a little more imaginative design, and perhaps a change of colors.

Many of the hundreds of motor vehicles which carry North Carolina licenses every year travel almost all over the country. A more distinctive license plate would attract attention to the state and help advertise North Carolina.

If we change to the blue and red colors and include the state motto on the licenses, we'll just about have to put the Cardinal on there too. When we use the state bird, we certainly shouldn't leave off the state flower (dogwood).

That immediately leads us to consideration of including the unofficial state tree depicted in the state's most famous, though not officially designated, toast. ("Here's to the land of the long leaf pine...")

And who would consider redesigning North Carolina's license plates without putting a mountain top at one end of the license and a splashing wave at the other? Then too, there should be a little patch of tar on the heel of the license.

Such a design would be distinctive to say the least.

A Transplanted Bit Of America

BERLIN (AP) — In allied-occupied West Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain, transplanted American housewives live in a transplanted bit of the United States.

There are among 50,000 Army, Navy and Air Force wives in West Germany, more than in any other foreign nation. Most live in "little Americas" in which the Army provides housing, shops, clubs and recreational facilities.

It's not a very different life. "We live about the same way here as in the States," says Mrs. Hazel B. Gallagher, 34, of Jersey City, N.J. "You can make your home life be what you want it to be wherever you are."

Mrs. Gallagher lives in West Berlin where her 36-year-old husband, M-Sgt. Frank B. Gallagher, is stationed with the 6th Infantry Regiment, principal combat unit garrisoning the American sector of Berlin.

Spacious Quarters The Gallaghers have three boys and a girl gathered along the path of an 18-year Army career. Patrick, 9, and Michael, 8, were born at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Kathleen, 5, was born in Munich, Germany, and Dennis, 3, in Salzburg, Austria.

They live in quarters furnished by the Army — a spacious semi-detached house with two large living rooms, a dining room, six bedrooms and two utility rooms. It is a well-furnished, well-kept house in a beautiful landscaped quadrangle of Zehlendorf, one of Berlin's best suburbs.

The Army heats the Gallagher home and takes care of repairs, redecoration and garbage collection. "It's much better than we could hope to have on the average in America," says Mrs. Gallagher. "Her only complaint is with that small German kitchen."

Help Comes Cheap The house is somewhat better than the Army-built, strictly utilitarian apartment houses and small homes where most of the enlisted men and junior officers are housed.

Mrs. Gallagher has a German maid to help her, whom she pays $28 a month plus room and board. Sometimes the maid cooks a special German dinner such as wiener schnitzel or gulasch, but usually Mrs. Gallagher does her own American-style cooking.

Most of the shopping is done at the Army Commissary which resembles an American self-service supermarket. American foods, including frozen items, are available. Mrs. Gallagher supplements her commissary buying with German market vegetables when they are cheaper and German pastries and other goods.

The commissary is located in the shopping center with a Post Exchange which resembles a department store, snack bars, post office, American Express bank, dry cleaning, laundry and other shops.

In the liquor shop, the Gallaghers can get tax-free spirits. Scotch, for example, costs only $2.30 for a good brand fifth.

"We do some shopping in the German shops for things like clothes to get a little more variety and sometimes because things are cheaper," says Mrs. Gallagher. "Last winter we bought the children coats in the German shops."

The three older Gallagher children go to the Army's Berlin American School, tuition free. With its American teachers, the school is better on the average than schools in the States.

Limited Contacts There is no special problem here for us in raising our family," Mrs. Gallagher says. "Our children lead natural, average sort of American lives."

The Gallaghers like Berlin folk, but like most Army people their contacts with the German community are limited. The children play with German children living nearby. Wolfgang, 15, and his 13-year-old sister, Katrina, who live with their parents in a single rented room, are frequent visitors.

"Wolfgang came to our Fourth of July picnic," says Mrs. Gallagher. "We gave him his first hot dog. He couldn't figure out what our potato chips were."

"Wolfgang's mother comes to visit me several times a week, sometimes for tea. She speaks a little English and I speak a little German so we can understand each other."

"I think the Germans in Berlin like Americans," Mrs. Gallagher says. "As one girl told me, 'as long as the American families stay in Berlin, we know there is nothing much to worry about.'"

It might even surprise us and be attractive. But with all that, where would we put the numbers?

They Removed One Of The Major Hardships

It shouldn't come as a surprise to the people of flue-cured tobacco producing regions if the tentative opening dates for auction markets on the various belts are altered slightly before August when the big Eastern Belt is scheduled to open.

Such has been the case in a number of previous years.

It is encouraging, however, to note that the Bright Belt Warehouse Association has agreed that regardless of changes in opening dates the spread between opening dates on the various belts will be maintained. This has been a bone of contention for several years. In some cases the spread between market openings has worked a hardship on purchasing companies, warehousemen and farmers alike.

Under the new agreement, if the opening date for one belt is advanced two or three selling days, the opening dates of following markets will be moved up the same number of selling days.

Such a system should relieve the pressure on purchasing companies, warehousemen and farmers alike. It should afford each of these groups additional protection. Certainly it will make for a more harmonious relationship between the markets in the various flue-cured tobacco belts.

Niagra Power Near Reality

By DICK WHALEN

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Think of a hydro-electric plant and you probably picture a gleaming white dam and a huge reservoir.

Most power generating plants do look like that. But not Niagara. Yet when it's finished four years from now, it will be the biggest in the United States and the biggest in the world outside of Russia.

No dam will span the Niagara River and there will be no need for a huge reservoir. The upper Great Lakes provide one of the largest and most stable supplies of water in the world.

Much of this water has been spilling unused over Niagara Falls, captured only in photographs by legions of honeymooners and tourists.

To put it to work making electricity, the Niagara project will draw water from the river two miles above the falls, carry it in tunnels and canals around the falls and pour it down through turbines and back into the river five miles below the falls.

The Lewiston powerhouse, largest single item in the $25 million dollar project, is being built into the side of the gorge.

The New York State Power Authority acquired a license to develop Niagara power last January after a hasty seven years long. Work started in March and will hit a peak next summer.

The Niagara project will be one of three in the world that use an unusual water storage system.

Most of the electricity will be generated at the main powerhouse by the constant flow of water. However, late at night when the demand for electricity is low, huge pumps will be used to fill a reservoir four miles square. During the day the pumps will operate in reverse and the stored water will generate extra electricity to meet peak demand.

The other two plants that use this system are the Sir Adam

Beck No. 2, almost directly across the Niagara River, and a plant near Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The 13 generators at the main Niagara powerhouse and the 12 smaller units at the pump-generator station will have a total installed capacity of 2,190,000 kilowatts. This will be second only to a Russian plant on the Volga at Stalingrad, which is expected to provide 2,300,000 kilowatts next year.

At present, the largest hydro plant in the United States is the Grand Coulee in the State of Washington. It has a capacity of 1,974,000 kilowatts.

The Niagara capacity will boost the generating capacity in New York State by about 25 per cent and make the Niagara region the largest producer of hydro-electric power in the world.

Power officials say homeowners will not notice much of a drop in their electric bills, because the costs of transmission and maintenance form the largest part of the price.

The dispute over who would develop Niagara power started in 1950 after Canada and the United States agreed to divide the water available for power. They made sure enough water would flow over the falls to preserve the scenic beauty. Canada immediately went to work on the Sir Adam Beck plant on her side of the river.

A year later all the girls switched to Western clothes and so did tens of thousands of other Japanese women.

But, while millions of dollars worth of potential American power cascaded over the falls, advocates of federal, state and private power waged a three-cornered battle to see who would do the job.

Federal power supporters dropped out in 1954. Two years ago, when a disastrous rockslide destroyed the Schoelkopf powerhouse on the Niagara and rates to local industry went soaring, private power advocates and state supporters compromised.

Last August President Eisenhower signed their bill giving New York State the right to build the project.

Officials estimate that the booming demand for electricity will gobble up all the new power from Niagara in three or four years. To help meet the demand, private companies are planning more steam-driven generating plants.

And power engineers, looking farther into the future, are pondering a giant dam across the upper Niagara River that would provide still more water to generate still more electricity.

Japan's Kimono Passes

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP) — It's sad but true: The kimono is vanishing.

Fewer and fewer girls are seen on the streets of Tokyo now wearing the long, lovely figure-hugging garment.

"The kimono is no longer the normal Japanese dress," Mrs. Yoshiko Sugino recently told newsmen.

Mrs. Sugino is an expert. She supervises 700 dressmaking schools throughout Japan with an enrollment of 100,000, exclusively concerned with teaching girls how to sew Western clothes.

"It is not a matter of fashion," she added. "The Japanese mode of life has been changing and now necessitates Western clothes which are more suitable for active work."

"The economy is another reason. During the war, many cities were bombed out and untold quantities of kimono were destroyed. In the post-war days, we simply could not afford to buy new kimono. As the Japanese economy was restored to the pre-war level some well off people began buying expensive kimono — but only on a very limited scale."

Backing up Mrs. Sugino, the Ministry of Education disclosed there are now 4,510 dressmaking schools in Japan, with an enrollment of 474,222 women and 817 men.

"I understand only about 10 per cent of the dressmaking schools are now devoted exclusively to kimono," said Mrs. Sugino. "About 40 years ago the ratio was just the reverse."

One of the biggest factors in the rise of Western clothes is that more and more girls have had to go to work in the post-war years — girls who wouldn't ordinarily have had to seek employment in previous years. These girls find it easier to work in Western clothes.

The same thing applies to school, where there has been a rising enrollment of girls who find Western clothes more comfortable in which to attend classes.

Some sociologists say the demise of the kimono actually began Dec. 17, 1932.

On that day fire broke out on the fourth floor of a department store here. Thirteen persons were killed and 128 injured, the majority of them kimono-clad sales girls.

As is customary with the kimono, the girls wore nothing, or at least very little, underneath.

And when they came climbing down the fire ladders, many became anxious about their appearance and fell to the ground.

Afterwards, the manager ordered all the sales girls to wear underclothes.

A year later all the girls switched to Western clothes and so did tens of thousands of other Japanese women.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HELP ONE ANOTHER The erosion of beaches along the extensive coastline of our country is becoming a great national problem. Beaches are sometimes worn away twenty-five to fifty feet a year. The government and many thousands of property owners have for a generation or more been working together to stop this erosion.

But it has been discovered that no one who builds a little jetty to protect his own beachfront ever gets much accomplished. The man interested in saving only his own beach ends up by not saving it at all. The project has to be carried on much more extensively. People have to combine to help save one another's beaches. The man who tries to go it alone is lost.

Jesus once said that whoever tried to save his own life would lose it, but whoever would lose his life for his (Christ's) and the gospel's would save it. Whoever works just for himself comes out in the end with nothing. Whoever goes further and joins the great project of God for human betterment which we call Christianity, finds every satisfac-

Listen And Be Assured

I love war stories. I love to sit around and listen to guys talk about Germany and France and Korea and about how they won the war and about how tough they were.

Every now and then when I'm feeling bad and depressed about how far ahead of us Russia is and how there might be another war, soon, I always go over to the college and listen to the ex-GI's shoot the bull. By the time I leave I feel better. Because I know that that nobody on earth can beat us. It's humanly impossible.

You get three or four of them together and it always starts the same way.

One guy remembers a sergeant he had in basic. He was about six-foot seven, this sergeant was (I don't think I've ever heard of a sergeant who was smaller than six-foot seven).

"... and this guy was mean. Meanest man I ever saw."

"... -s, 'I had one worse than that' made men out of us."

"Yeah." "I remember one time he kicked me in the face and told me I had to learn to keep my head down. Boy, I learned fast after that."

"Yeah." Another says, "They used to take us out and drop us in the jungle and give us nothing but a little water and our weapons and told us to find our way out."

"Yeah, but you learned, didn't you?"

Another says, "Oh man, Yeah. We got tough. And it paid off when we ran into them gooks."

"On, were you in Korea?"

"Yeah."

"I was in France. We had a lot of trouble with the jerry's."

Another says, "I remember one day a bomb hit and blew my helmet off and when I bent over to get it a bullet went by my head."

The first one says, "That's nothing. Back in the Philippines I had this Jap running straight at me with a hawk knife. And I didn't have no gun."

"What do you?" "I rolled over and clipped him across his shins with my rifle butt and when he hit the ground I stuck him in the throat like a pig."

"Yeah, I did that once." "I shot one in the ear once."

"You ever get wounded?" "Oh, yeah, man. All the time. I got hit here and here and here and here and here."

Another says, "I saw a friend of mine get his arm shot off and pick it up and put it in his pocket and keep right on fighting."

"I did that once," says another.

"Yeah." "Haha. I remember one time we were playing craps in the foxhole one time and this Jap came up and yelled and came jumping in."

"What happened?" "Hahahahaha. I stepped back and let him have it in the guts with my switch-blade."

One guy says, "I never did get in no combat. We played dice though in the latrine down at Fort Jackson."

"Oh, yeah." "I did that once," says another.

"I was down at Fort Benning," says one. "We had it rough."

"Yeah, there was this sergeant down there that was every bit of six-foot nine and he was tough as nails. I remember one day...

Other Editors Saying... How Conserve, Allocate?

(Greensboro Daily News)

Governor Hodges touched upon what must be considered one of North Carolina's major problems — in fact it may be the major problem — when he discussed conservation and wise use of water resources before the annual meeting of the N. C. Association of County Commissioners at Carolina Beach.

Water is an absolute necessity. We must have it to live. The problem becomes particularly acute as our population increases, urban centers grow larger, and industrial and agricultural patterns change.

Greensboro, for instance, faces a situation which is frankly recognized. Only recently voters of the city approved a $12,000,000 bond issue which is going largely to water and sewer system expansion and improvement. But despite this expenditure, those in position to know say that what we are doing will suffice for a relatively few years and that we must be looking ahead to new and larger water sources by a deadline which can be accurately fixed. Greensboro's problem multiplied many times over the state. Health and necessity come first.

But tied in with these primary considerations is the knowledge that availability of water is a basic factor in industrial expansion. At the same time our farmers are going in more and more for irrigation; it is sound insurance and it testifies to the increased know-how which is being applied to Tar Heel agriculture. There exists a common, statewide interest which cannot be minimized.

We were particularly impressed by Governor Hodges' assurance that North Carolina has an "annual supply of water... growing abundant to meet the growing requirements." But there is a serious lack. As the Governor puts it, "we are unfortunate in that we have neither the facilities nor the legal framework to insure the proper distribution of our water."

Fortunately study groups have already devoted considerable and growing attention to these very matters. On the basis of data at hand, the seriousness of the problem has been defined, and recommendations which will get at the weaknesses which the Governor cites will presumably be submitted for legislative action next year.

Public arousal and co-operation are the key words. County commissioners can, as the chief executive told them, render a valuable service by studying needs in their respective counties and joining together in devising plans to meet them. Attention must be centered on whole watersheds or river basins and a program worked out to conserve and allocate the resources which we have but which will not suffice and cannot be fully utilized without planning and action on the state level.

What the average North Carolinian has for years and years simply taken for granted, i.e., the easy availability of water, has largely disappeared. Replacement must be centered on whole watersheds or river basins and a program worked out to conserve and allocate the resources which we have but which will not suffice and cannot be fully utilized without planning and action on the state level.

Millions Of Free Minds At Work

By ELMER ROESSNER

An important strength of democracies is often overlooked. In times of economic troubles, many people wish for a leader to show the way out. Many would trade some of their freedoms for such leadership. They become susceptible to totalitarianism.

Hitler and Mussolini rose to power in such circumstances. They might not have flourished if there had been a boom in Germany or prosperity in Italy. It may be noted that West Germany has never been so opposed to totalitarianism as it is in its present boom.

At the start of the great depression in the United States, many clamored for strong leadership. Many would have accepted some form of big brotherism in return for a little more soup and security.

RISE OF REGIMENTATION Totalitarian yearnings on the left swelled the Communist Party to its peak strength; totalitarianism on the right led to the rise of dozens of home-grown Fuehrers. When Franklin D. Roosevelt became president, he recognized this situation. He offered leadership, he offered a measure of big-brotherism and a few of the more pleasant features of statism: social security, contrived employment, spending, spending, spending. He also promoted inflation, managed currency and taxes, taxes, taxes.

However, he did not go all the way. It might have been easy to increase the size of the army on the grounds that it would have made jobs for the unemployed; it would not have been difficult to militarize the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Congress did draw a line. It refused to rearrange the Supreme Court. But up to that point it gave Roosevelt more power than it had given any other man. This is a strong reflection of the fact that there is a tendency toward totalitarianism in times of economic stress.

REDS BETTER OFF? In the current state of economic uneasiness, there is no cry for fascism, no demands for communism.

However, there is some grumbling to the effect that the Russians can move faster and more decisively than we can in political and economic affairs.

The Communist nations have craved economic troubles. They have dumped metals on the world market; they are bidding frantically for Arab and South American trade; they are begging us to do more business with them. In Poland, more than 100,000 workers have been transferred from factory to other employment; there are rumblings of discontent in many Red nations.

The Communist leadership is able to act quickly and decisively. The Russians are increasing the production of consumer goods and are reducing the grab of farm products. These steps may tend to make the people a little less restless. And they have countenanced the killing of Imre Nagy and General Pal Malocet, which is a grim warning against delaying the Slavic will.

THE BIG DIFFERENCE And while Communist nations, no less than free nations, have economic problems, and while they can take quick, decisive steps to deal with them, the democracies still have an advantage.

This advantage lies in the fact that a small group at the top make the decisions in the Communist countries, and that there is no single source of decisions in democracies.

Congress, the White House, the Federal Reserve, the states and local governments try to solve each problem. So do the editors of thousands of newspapers and magazines. So do the men in the plants, their union leaders, heads of civic organizations, clergymen, housewives and everyone else with a voice on a 3-cent stamp.

Therein is our strength. In making economic decisions, totalitarian states have only the brain power of a handful of big brothers. The democratic nations have the creative ingenuity of millions of free minds.

This Part Of Old Greenville Is Dying

A part of the city is dying . . .

It has been dying for the past 15 years. The few clumped blocks and ancient washed streets that make up the section of town referred to as Dog's Head, are passing away. The people who inhabited it, who helped contribute to its legend and atmosphere are passing with it.

Time and progress have moved in slowly and the gradual death of Dog's Head is making marked differences in the face of Greenville. The dingy brick buildings, long decayed by weather and idleness are being removed; the clutter of trash and empty wine bottles that seemed a permanent part of the gutters and back alleys of the section are being taken away; the old men black and white, who sit and smoke and talk and watch the day pass are seeing it change and are changing with it, giving up their squatting places for new construction.

In the past two years new stores have gone up. Streets have been re-worked, parking lots have been installed. New enterprises have sprung up, offering their services to a new group of people, the young, the modern.

The pungent rich smell of tobacco has passed away for the most part, being replaced by the smell of new cars, oil being burned, food being cooked, and the smell of mortar and brick and iron.

The passing of Dog's Head is symbolic in many ways. It is not just the erasure of a part of a city. It is enigmatic of the change in a culture. It is a sign of change in the South. With Dog's Head, many of the South's ways of life, thoughts, traditions, both good and bad, will pass into oblivion and memory.

Dog's Head was symbolic of an Old Greenville, an Old South. Etched in its concrete and brick and tar were faces and feelings that extend back to before the revolutionary war. Etched there were stories that tell of the early beginnings of the tobacco business; The names of great warehousemen and farmers and dealers were embedded there: Rice, Morton, Parrum, Foxhall, Dail, Moore and others.

The stories tell of a young industry caught in the destruction and violence of Civil War and of its emergence into a great world-wide business. They tell of that business and the men who made it and of how they began it right there in the streets of Dog's Head. They tell of the rapid growth of large warehouses in that section of town, and of the flood of farmers and tobacco into Greenville. They tell of how from the streets of Dog's Head the city blossomed and became one of the most progressive in Eastern North Carolina.

The stories tell of other wars, two world wars and the problems they imposed upon the industries and the people who worked and lived in that section. And of how the government used German prisoners of war in the warehouses when labor was non-existent.

They tell of countless fires and depression and of the growth of the tobacco industry. It was this mammoth growth which finally began the slow death of Dog's Head. The warehouses soon became too small to handle the great flux of traffic, the selling time was reduced due to the small space, the sets of buyers grew to five, then came the decrease in acreage. And the growth of the city posed other problems in traffic congestion and little or no parking space for visiting farmers.

Fires raged in the tiny section. At one time, three warehouses were wiped out in three weeks and owners decided that it would be suicide to rebuild in the same area.

Other, larger warehouses began to spring up in the outer edges of Greenville and the traffic of tobacco moved to them because of the increased space, better sales, better facilities. Dog's Head became, almost overnight, a ghost town. The old tobacco men moved away, most of them; A harsher element moved in, intermingling with the rest. The section became a quiet little world of different interests, various levels, showing remnants of both the old fiery tobacco trade and the new idleness, the haunting ideas and tales of an old era and the new chaotic forces of both good and evil.

During the past several years Dog's Head has existed silently. There have been a few active business concerns in its midst, some of them very progressive and successful. But the general atmosphere as a whole has been one of slow decay and darkness.

Now, in just the past two years, progress has moved in with its new stores and offices and establishments, repairing here and re-touching there. No longer is the old term Dog's Head used. It is no longer the same place.

LONELY STREETS, ancient buildings give a haunted effect to that passing part of the city known as Dog's Head. It was from this location, these now-empty streets, that Greenville blossomed into the world's leading tobacco city.

This Is Closest National League Race In Years

By ED WILKS

No doubt about it. This is the closest National League race of modern times.

When the Philadelphia Phillies, suddenly on a come-alive drive, swept yesterday's doubleheader at Milwaukee 5-1 and 4-1, not only was the Braves' first place margin cut to 1 1/2 games, but last place Los Angeles moved within seven games of the top.

San Francisco blew a chance to regain second place from idle St. Louis, losing the second game to Chicago 6-1 after a five-run rally in the ninth had beaten the Cubs 6-5 in the opener. The Phillies, a straggling seventh through June, gained a share of fourth place, 3 1/2 games behind Milwaukee, with the Cincinnati Redlegs, who swept Pittsburgh 4-3 and 8-3.

The Cardinals and Dodgers were idle, because of a previous booking in the Coliseum at Los Angeles.

While the NL race tightened, New York packed away one of the largest July 4 leads ever in the American League. The Yankees are 10 1/2 games ahead after sweeping Washington 2-1 and 13-2. Second place Kansas City won two 6-5 and 4-3. Boston split with Baltimore, winning 5-1, then losing 5-3. Cleveland whipped Detroit 6-1, but the Tigers took the nightcap 3-1.

A crowd of 23,706, largest of the day, saw right-hander Jack Sanford (6-6) blank the Braves on five hits while handing 10-game winner Warren Spahn his fifth defeat.

The Giants, shut out for six innings by Johnny Briggs, capped their winning ninth in the opener on a two-run single by Willie Mays. The Cubs chased Johnny Antonelli in the nightcap first with three runs that handed the southpaw ace an 8-7 record. Dave Hillman won his first with a five-hitter.

The Redlegs, scoring just one run in 32 innings, went to work on a 3-0 Pirate lead with Ed Bailey's two-run homer in the third inning of the opener. The loser was Ron Kline (7-9). Kansas City castoff Alex Kellner won his first in the NL, blanking the Cubs on four hits after relieving Don Newcombe in the third.

Vern Law (7-6) was the loser, while Bob Purkey won his ninth.

Guaranty Bank and College View clashed on July 4th in a Teen-er League Doubleheader at Guy Smith Stadium—with all the fireworks that might have been expected.

At the windup of the night's play, Teen-er fans had seen a no-hit ballgame, a protested ballgame, with Guaranty Bank sweeping both victories.

In the first ballgame, Kenneth Joyner tossed a no-hit ballgame for College View and lost a 3-2 decision. Dave Boyd handled the mound duties for the Bankers and gave up five hits but won anyway.

In the second tilt, which began at 9:00, Guaranty Bank won by an 11-6 score but College View protested a decision in the second inning—so that game will apparently go on ice for a while.

The Guaranty Bankers wrapped up three runs in the sixth inning of the first tilt last night to overcome a two-run CV rally in the third and cap the contest 3-2. College View backed up hurler Kenney Joyner until that sixth inning. In the third, Moyer walked and Malcolm Griffith punched out a single. Jenkins and Joyner added singles and another man walked to account for the College View scores.

They had a 2-0 lead and seemed headed for the victory. In the sixth, however, Joyner got himself into trouble. Moments later, Joyner hit Billy Neal James, putting two on. He walked Boyd next, loading the bases. Then he walked two more. In the meantime, the catcher committed another error and allowed a third score. It was 3-2.

Dave Boyd was the winning pitcher. He fanned five, walked six and gave up five basehits. Joyner struck out six and walked six in delivering his no-hitter.

Then, in the second inning, the Guaranty Bank went score crazy in the second ballgame, whipping up runs in the first, second, third, and fourth innings to tally a total of 11. They nosed out the College Viewers again 11-6. The game was protested, though.

Guaranty Bank drew first blood, pulling across one run in the first inning when Frank Purkey singled and came in on a single by Kenney Cox.

Then, in the second inning, the protested decision occurred. College View was on the offensive. They started off with three successive singles by Malcolm Griffith, Joe Harper and Denney Hardee. Billy Stocks was the next batter, he hit an infield fly and was called out automatically. Then, the Guaranty Bank second baseman tossed the ball to second and the umpire signaled Hardee out on a force-out. Harper had advanced to third during the play and Griffith had scored.

College View Coach Sonny James protested the force-out decision. His club picked up a total of four runs during the inning and grabbed the lead anyway.

In the bottom half of that inning, Guaranty Bank came back to tally three runs, tying the game at 4-4. They picked up the runs on three walks, two errors, a wild pitch and some stolen bases.

Fireball Roberts Cops Raleigh Speed Event

Today Was A Dream Day At British Open

RALEIGH (AP)—Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., pocketed $3,800 first place money yesterday as he roared to victory in the annual July 4th auto race at the Raleigh Speedway.

It was Roberts' second win in the event since it was started here in 1935. Finishing two laps back in the 250-mile event over a one-mile oval was Buck Baker of Spartanburg. Speedy Thompson of Charlotte was third.

Roberts, driving a 1937 Chevrolet hardtop, had an average speed of 73.693 miles per hour. By winning, he received 700 points toward the NASCAR championship. Roberts set a track record here in 1936 when he won the race with an average speed of 79.32 miles per hour.

An estimated 15,000 fans saw Roberts move into the lead for keeps on the 194th lap. Baker, driving a 1938 Chevrolet hardtop, won $2,325. Thompson, in a 1937 Chevrolet hardtop, received $1,575.

Minor mishaps caused the caution flag to go out eight times. Fifty-five cars started and 32 finished.

Cotton Owens of Spartanburg, S.C., who turned in a record qualifying time Thursday, was forced out of action on the 78th lap when his crankshaft pulley broke.

Other finishers in the top 10 were: Lee Petty, Randleman, 1937 Oldsmobile hardtop, $1,075; Shorty Rollins, Corpus Christi, Tex., 1938 Ford hardtop, $850; Bob Welborn, Greensboro, 1937 Chevrolet convertible, $700; Rex White, Silver Spring, Md., 1937 Chevrolet hardtop, $625; Possum Jones, Mango, Fla., 1938 Chevrolet convertible, $575; Eddie Pagan, Lynnwood, Calif., 1938 Ford hardtop, $455; and Jim Paschal, High Point, 1937 Chevrolet convertible, $425.

FRIDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jack Sanford, Phillies—Blanked the Braves on five hits, 4-0, as Phillies extended their longest winning streak of the season to five games after winning the opener 5-1.

Bob Cerv, Athletics—Out of lineup because of injuries, but delivered pinch-hit, two-run homer, his 22nd, that hauled A's from behind for first game victory in 6-5, 4-3 sweep against White Sox.

Isn't Worried About Records

PALMYRA, N.J. (AP)—Rafer Johnson, who currently is engaged in an unwilling battle with Russia's Vassili Kuznetsov, said today that he's not worrying about breaking world decathlon records.

"Right now," he said, "I'm in the middle of winning the national championship. If I happen to break the world record along with it, that's fine. But I'm certainly not worrying about it."

Here's why: Rafer, a towering, soft-spoken lad who is president of UCLA's student body, holds the listed world decathlon record with 7,985 points. But Kuznetsov piled up 8,016 points in a Russian meet a couple of months ago.

If Johnson doesn't top that mark today, it probably will be accepted as a world record when the international Amateur Athletic Federation meets to ratify record applications next month.

"The heat bothers me a little," said Johnson. "I'm not used to it on the Coast. Also, my bad leg has been bothering me a little. But that's not unusual. It bothers me every time I compete."

Rubber City Open Convinces Furgol He Should Quit

Things Don't Look So Good For Milwaukee

By FRITZ HOWELL

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The utter contempt goldfom's professionals are showing for par in the Rubber City Open has convinced one of the most gallant campaigners of them all—ailing-armed Ed Furgol—that the time has come for him to quit the tournament trail.

As the 60 play-for-pay survivors swung today into the third round of the $22,000 tourney 45 were under par. The field was 159 strokes under the card.

Pacing the 10 remaining amateurs was 18-year-old Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, with a 133 total, nine strokes below regulation for Firestone Country Club's well-trapped and tree-dotted 6,620 yards.

Art Wall Jr., the quiet 34-year-old, 6-footer from Pocono Manor, Pa., was out front with rounds of 65 and 67 for 132. That's 10 under par, but gave him only a stroke edge over Nicklaus, recent Trans-Mississippi winner; National Open king Tommy Bolt, Al Balding from Canada and Frank Phillips, the Australian champion from Sydney.

Another shot back at 134 were Charles Sifford of Philadelphia, four-time national Negro champion; Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N. Y.; Wesley Ellis Jr. of Ridgewood, N. J.; and 1935 National Open champion Jack Fleck of Rochester, Mich. Sifford fired the tourney's best round, a 64, to get into the thick of the fight yesterday.

Wasn't In Top Shape But

COLUMBIA (AP)—"Lee isn't in top shape but she had a fair night out there."

The comment was made last night by Earl Skidmore after his 16-year-old daughter, Lee, set a new national AAU women's junior record for the 220-yard butterfly breaststroke in the Palmetto Southern swimming and diving championships.

The willowy Miss Skidmore went the distance in 3:12.3. The old mark of 3:18.5 was held by Virginia Smithers of Cranston, R. I.

Lee, a senior at Pinecrest Preparatory School in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., said:

"My kick gave out after the first lap and I had to pull harder with my arms and shoulders."

The Greensboro, N. C. women's team was certain of successfully defending its championship. Through two days of competition, the Greensboro squad had 100 points to only 25 for second place Spartanburg.

In the men's division, the Atlanta Independent Swim Assn. was ahead going into today's final action. The Atlanta swimmers had 45 points to 30 for Norfolk, Va., and 25 for Spartanburg.

Information On Coming Title Bout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown said today his office has turned information over to the State Athletic Commission that warranted a hearing on the proposition of the coming Floyd Patterson fight Aug. 18 in Los Angeles.

"We're not suggesting that there is anything wrong, but we do have some information we have given to the State Athletic Commission for an investigation," Brown said.

"There will be a hearing," he continued. "It will cover the question of whether Mr. (Al) Weill actually has any interest in the fight itself."

The commission turned down an application by Weill for a license Burlington, Wilson at Durham, and awarded Greensboro at Winston-Salem, and Hi-Toms at Raleigh.

Biggest Lead Since 1939

Some Independence Day in the American League! Those overlord New York Yankees lead by 10 1/2 games — and no club has had a bigger July 4 bulge since guess who led by 11 1/2 in 1939.

The Yankees, sweeping the three-game set and winning their fourth straight game, twice cracked the last place Senators at Washington.

Bob Turley won his 12th with a three-hitter in the 2-1 opener, and Art Ditmar, pitching his first complete game for the Yankees, won the nightcap with a four-hitter 13-2.

Second place Kansas City swiped two at Chicago, beating the White Sox 6-5 and 4-3. Boston and Baltimore split, the Red Sox winning 5-1, the Orioles 5-3. Cleveland topped Detroit 6-1, but the Tigers took the nightcap 3-1.

In the National League, Philadelphia swept a pair at Milwaukee, 5-1 and 4-0, and cut the Braves' lead to 1 1/2 games over idle St. Louis. Third place San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 6-5, then lost 6-1. Cincinnati took two from Pittsburgh, 4-3 and 8-3.

Hi-Toms Used Hitting Power

High Point-Thomasville used a batting power yesterday and last night to illustrate why it is riding atop the Carolina League.

The hard-hitting Hi-Toms swept a doubleheader from Winston-Salem, edging the Red Birds 9-8, in 14 innings at Thomasville in the afternoon, and taking a 6-0 decision last night at Winston-Salem behind the effective nine-hit pitching of lefty John Anderson.

Salt Of The Earth Is Iraq's Curse

BAGHDAD (AP) - The salt of the earth is one of Iraq's biggest perils. Ever since pre-Biblical days, the flat plains of southern Iraq have been plagued by salt which forms in the soil and destroys its fertility.

use its oil revenues to reclaim salinated land and prevent further salting in the future. This is a formidable job, but unless it succeeds Iraq's entire billion-dollar irrigation program is imperiled. The development board says millions of tons of salt must be removed from the soil of southern Iraq to gain maximum fertility.

pleted, increases productivity fourfold. "We know the ancient Babylonians had the same problem, and yet they overcame it," a board official said. "If we can just unlock their secret, our troubles may be over."

APPETTITES IN ORBIT FREMONT, Ohio (AP)—Consumption of rice and hamburger balls rose 100 per cent in the cafeteria of nearby Helena school after their menu listings were changed from "porcupines" to "spatniks," it was reported by the school cook, Mrs. Fred Fisher.

Three Recorder's Court Cases To Go To Juries

Superior Court juries are scheduled to hear three cases called this week in Pitt County Recorder's Court.

Two of the cases will go to the higher court on appeals and the third was transferred at the defendant's request. All involve traffic violations.

Willie Hardy Jr., Negro, 1004 Travers Lane, Greenville, gave notice of appeal after receiving a 90-day jail sentence on charges of speeding and driving without an operator's license. Louis Artis Smith, Negro, 300-B Boyd Avenue, Greenville, appealed a 90-day suspended sentence handed down after being found guilty of driving under the influence and failing to yield a right-of-way.

Smith's sentence was suspended on condition he pay $100 and costs, plus surrendering his driver's license for 12 months. Hardy's appeal bond was set at $500 and Smith's appeal bond was set at $300 by Judge Dink James.

The case which was transferred for jury trial involves William McKenzie Moore of Raleigh, charged with speeding and littering the highways.

Three defendants in speeding actions were ordered to pay costs and surrender their driver's licenses for ten days. They are Johnny Ray Phillips, Negro, Ayden; Lorraine Wynn Whitehurst, Stokes; and William H. Stambaugh, Cherry Point.

Lucius Fender Wheeler of Chapel Hill, who pleaded guilty in absentia to speeding, was ordered to pay $25, costs deducted, and surrender his driver's license for ten days. Similar sentences were ordered for Benjamin ...

Other speeding cases which were cleared from the docket included: Bill Harris, Route 5, Greenville, also charged with improper brakes and improper use of a dealer's license, costs and driver's license suspended for 15 days; Randall R. Stirewalt, Cherry Point, also charged with no operator's license, 20 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs, and on further condition the defendant does not operate a motor vehicle on the public highways for 30 days; and Oliver Newby, no address listed, no pros.

Other cases involving traffic violations and judgments handed down included: Richard C. Lewis, no address listed, driving under the influence, not guilty; Emel Rainey Suttentfield, Leaksville, driving under the influence, plea of guilty in absentia, $125, costs deducted, driver's license revoked 12 months.

Willie Frank Streeter, Negro, 1400 West Fifth Street, Greenville, driving under the influence, 90 days suspended upon payment of $100 and costs, driver's license revoked for 12 months; John Odell Hardison, Kingston, driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving, 90 days suspended.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the famous Walt Disney feature-length film, in color by Technicolor, has returned triumphantly to the screen as one of the great motion pictures of all time.

The plot, adapted from "Grimm's Fairy Tales," deals with the wonderful adventures of Princess Snow White, rival in beauty to the wicked Queen, who seeks her death, but who is foiled by the intervention of the Seven Dwarfs, aided by the animal and bird denizens of the forest.

The entrancing figures that flit across the screen are visually pulsing with life, each radiating a distinctly magnetic personality. You find yourself awayed by gales of laughter, touched by tender paths, reacting to sharply accented dramatic thrills. And through it all runs the scenic beauty of that delicately colorful atmosphere which represents the acme of Disney creative art.

The antics of the beloved dwarf Dopey and his companions, and the eight imperishable song numbers are welcomed back by an appreciative public.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" Starts Thursday, July 10 At The Pitt Theatre.
