Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) called the committee into emergency session to weigh the fate of Shacklette. He said the bugging had not been authorized.

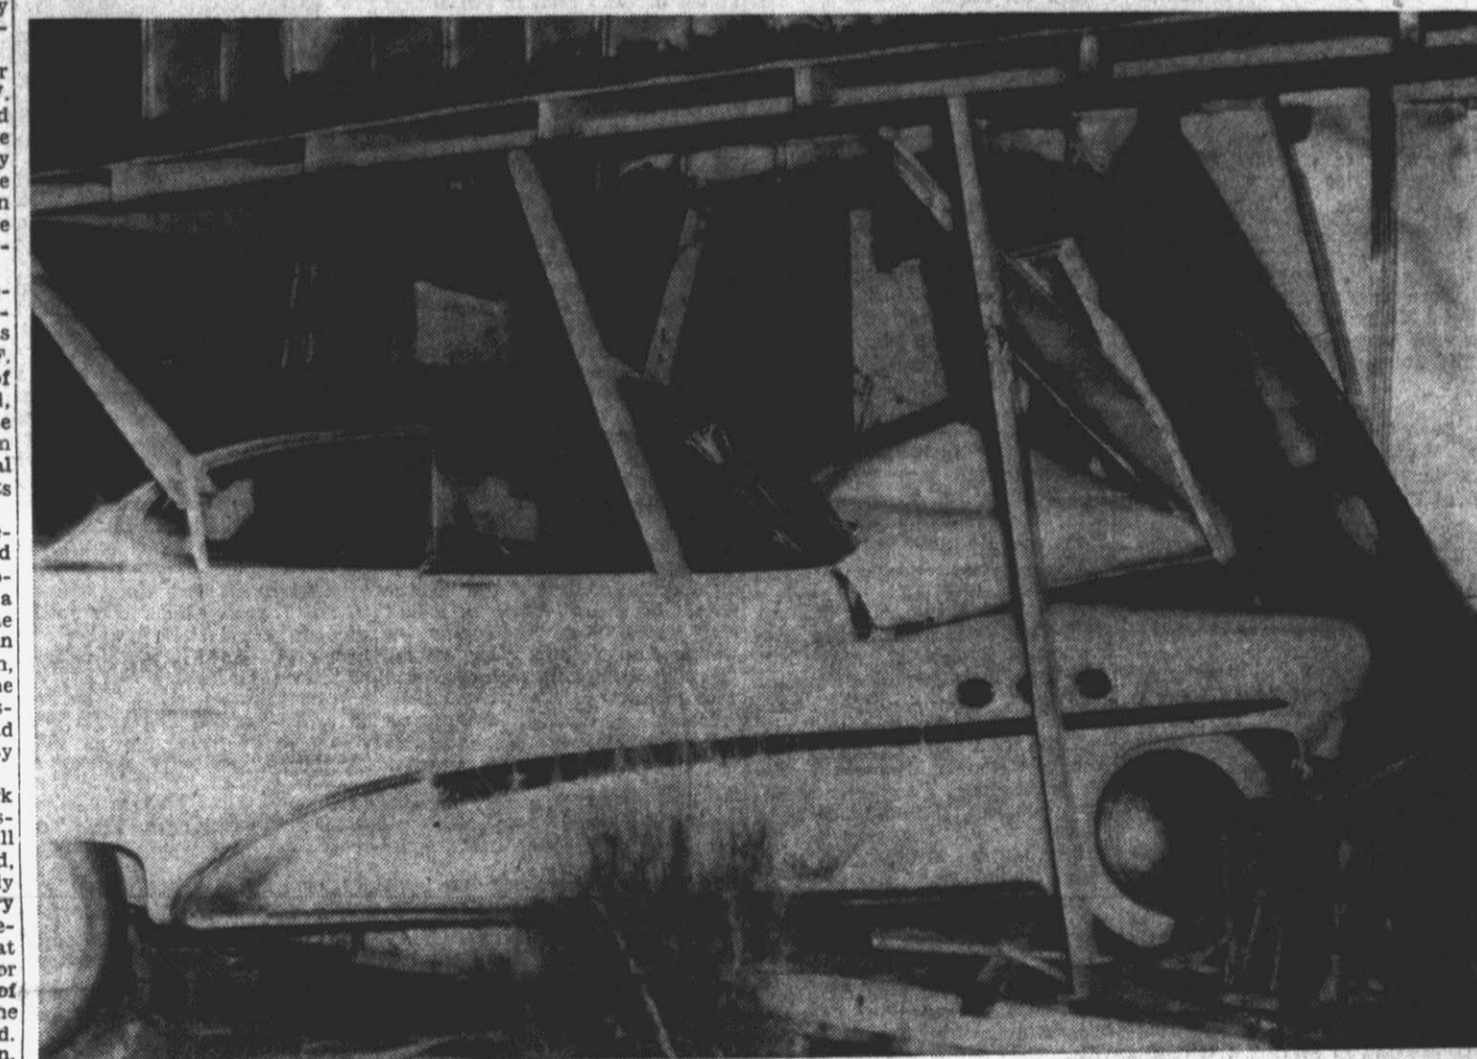

Shacklette said he tuned in his hi-fi set on the Sheraton-Carlton suite of Jack Lotto, Goldfine's new publicity man. He said Harris told him to find out, as he put it, who was tapping telephone lines of subcommittee members.

Pitt Share In Hospital Addition Less Than Thought

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer. Pitt County Commissioners learned today that a proposed 701 bed addition for Pitt Memorial Hospital will cost the county approximately $250,000 less than they thought it would.

however, that the county proceeded with its plans to ask for $750,000 in bond funds with the stipulation that the board does not issue any more of the amount than is necessary to complete the project.

Pitt ABC Sales For Last Fiscal Year Saw Slump

Pitt County residents who buy their drinking liquor in the county's nine-unit system of Alcoholic Beverage Control stores didn't spend as much money in the last fiscal year as they did the year before.

Time elements were behind recommendations from Moye, Ward and Speight that the county proceed with its plans to call for a vote on $750,000 in bonds. The election calendar has already been put into effect and operation.

shortly after midnight. The wreck in 1956 was only a few minutes after midnight and the one Sunday morning took place at 1:20 a.m.

However, in the wreck two years ago, the convertible involved overturned spilling its occupants on the ground. This time the auto remained upright.

ABC Board Chairman J. W. Joyner of Farmville reported to county commissioners today that sales in the nine-stores for the 1957-58 fiscal year were $85,996.35 below sales for the previous year.

Plans for the election were approved by commissioners on June 2. Final approval of the bond resolution was given this morning and details concerning the election will proceed as originally scheduled.

Police Suspect Arson In Early Morning Fires

By EVERETTE PARKER, Reflector Staff Writer. Police suspect arson in connection with two early morning fires here today.

Both fires were reported almost simultaneously in the same neighborhood. Damage was relatively heavy in a rooming house located at the corner of 14th and Clark streets.

Fire damage was heavy in the three rooms. The other seven rooms in the house received only minor smoke damage, Chief Gardner reports.

The fire was discovered by a neighbor who called the Williams women. At the time she and her sister were asleep, officers said.

Slight increases in receipts during the months of May and June were responsible for the deficit not being any more than it was, Joyner said. He reported June sales of $90,035.30, an increase of $3,588.55 over last year's sales for the same month.

In other actions this morning, commissioners referred three claims against the Dog Fund for further study, granted a free peddler's license, approved depositories for county tax funds and approved a pair of jury lists.

Things didn't turn out quite so badly this time, however, although five persons were injured in the Sunday morning accident only one of the five was admitted to the hospital.

Both fires were reported almost simultaneously in the same neighborhood. Damage was relatively heavy in a rooming house located at the corner of 14th and Clark streets.

A short time later firemen were called on to put out flames in the back porch of Tiny Williams' residence at 504 14th Street. The Negro woman's house is located two doors down from the rooming house.

Upon investigation, firemen found trash and clothing soaked, they said, in some type of inflammable liquid. (Continued on Page Ten)

Only one of the county's stores showed an increase in receipts for the 12 months period. That was Store Number 5, on Greenville's Dickinson Avenue, where $7,879.80 more was taken in during 1957-1958 than in 1956-1957.

In the accident two years ago, one person was killed and three injured, two critically. Police identified the driver of the car involved in last night's wreck as James Thomas Tyson, 25-year-old Negro of 1004 Mack St.

Russia Announces Nine U.S. Airmen Have Been Freed

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said the nine-man crew of a U.S. Air Force transport plane forced down in Soviet Armenia June 27 was freed on the Soviet-Iranian frontier today.

Mary M. Holman, overseas; parents: Mr. and Mrs. James A. Holman, Vivian, La. Airman Earl H. Reamer; parents: Mr. and Mrs. Byron von Reamer, St. Louis Park, Minn. Airman Peter N. Sabo; parents: Mr. and Mrs. John Sabo, Chicago, Ill.

The broadcast said the airmen were handed over to a U.S. military representative at the town of Astara.

This plane, a C118 transport, was forced to land by Soviet fighter craft. According to the Soviet announcement made the same day the plane burned on the ground—whether because of fighter action or because its crew wished to keep it out of Soviet hands was not made clear.

The U.S.S.R. officially protested the flight over Soviet territory as a frontier violation. The United States replied that there had been no such intention and that the transport became lost because of a navigational error in bad weather.

The quadruplet daughters were born to Mrs. Gerald Hanse, 26, wife of a Mankato schoolteacher. Two of the babies, Christine and Deborah, died Saturday night. The babies weighed about two pounds each and were 2 1/2 months premature.

The U.S.S.R. announced on June 28 that the C118 military transport had been caught by Soviet fighters inside the Soviet Armenian border and forced to land.

Attendants at Immanuel Hospital said Penelope died at 5:42 a.m. They said the surviving infant, Rebecca, remained in satisfactory condition.

The U.S. Embassy in Moscow had since been negotiating for return of the men.

British Airman Tells Story Of German Plot

LONDON (AP)—A leading British airman says the late Ernst Heinkel told him Germany is plotting a third world war against the Western Allies—this time with the Soviet Union on the German side.

Bennett quoted Heinkel as saying the salient features were as follows: German aircraft designers and other technicians would go to the Soviet Union voluntarily and work their way into key posts.

Proceeds from the legal sales of alcoholic beverages in the ABC stores are used to operate the system, support law enforcement activities and in the county's General Fund expenditures. About $129,000 from the sales went into the county's General Fund during the past fiscal year.

German would pretend to accept defeat and collaborate with the Western Allies until it could build up a new army and air force.

With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE
(Items this week on: Martin, Burke, Pitt, Union, and Franklin Counties)

MARTIN CURB MARKET OPENS
One of the newest home demonstration curb markets has opened in Martin County according to Home Agent Helen L. Hoskins. Opening day in May saw 38 sellers exhibiting their produce.

Mrs. Hoskins reports that the public has been highly complimentary about the neat appearance of the sellers in their white uniforms as well as the appeal of the fresh vegetables.

One home demonstration club member has been so interested in the market that she used her daughter's bicycle to go from house to house reminding her neighbors about the market.

"This seems like an excellent way for the town people to get better acquainted with home demonstration club women and what they're doing," emphasizes Mrs. Hoskins.

INTEREST IN BOLIVIA
Burke County home demonstration club members have a special spot in their hearts for Bolivia. And all because once upon a time an International Farm Youth Exchange student from Bolivia visited in their county.

Home Agent Mrs. Evelyn W. Watson says that one club adopted Bolivia for their special interest country and follows it closely in the news and the part it plays in the United Nations. When a Bolivian homemaker moved to their community, they immediately adopted her, too.

So it seemed fitting that Burke County represented Bolivia in the recent United Nations-Citizenship Day as part of National Home Demonstration Week. They moved Bolivia's flag and one of their club women wore a typical costume.

Mrs. Watson says that this interest in a single country has been the cause of Burke County's home demonstration club interest in additional concentrated study on the United Nations and international relations.

EXTRA FILLS BASIC NEED
It's often hard to determine the things that are basic and those that are the extras of life, says Mrs. Lilla E. Little, Pitt County home demonstration agent. "Many times," she says, "the extras fill a very basic need. And such is the case with our county's arts and crafts program."

For a long time now, Pitt home demonstration women have been asking for help in arts and crafts, so Mrs. Albert Bell, county arts and crafts leader, has done a wonderful job in supplying ideas and assuming leadership for workshops.

Mrs. Bell has conducted a workshop for her own club members, where she taught aluminum tray etching and Swedish embroidery. She has also conducted a similar workshop for the Fountain Junior Woman's Club.

To prepare herself to do the best possible job of teaching arts and crafts to interested club women, Mrs. Bell has just completed a course at East Carolina College. Because she is interested in such a variety of crafts, she has turned her garage into a hobby shop.

Mrs. Little commends her by saying, "Mrs. Bell is certainly satisfying the desires and needs of many other women in the county by teaching them the various crafts for hobbies as well as money-making projects. In addition, she's having a wonderful time herself."

MADE THE MOST OF THE SITUATION
Sometimes the greatest test of ingenuity comes when an unfortunate incident occurs. At least, that's what happened to one Union County family, reports Anna Lee P. Howey, assistant home agent.

Have you ever heard of dealing with a situation this way? The John Murray family, Monroe, R-5, raise Angus cows. A few weeks ago, one of them died. Since the veterinarian said the meat was good, they skinned, cooked, and canned it in the form of beef mush for their two beautiful German police dogs.

According to Mrs. Murray, the dogs can hardly wait for mealtime—they seem to realize what a treat they're getting. "Although it's expensive dog food," says Mrs. Murray, "it was the most economical way we could handle the situation. At least the meat wasn't a total loss."

CONSERVED ENOUGH FOOD
To help your family eat better there's nothing like producing and conserving enough food for your family for the non-productive months of the year.

And according to Winnifred Y. Wiggins, Franklin assistant home agent, the Albert Coppedge family did just that.

Mrs. Coppedge says she never got around to making an accurate count of the more than 800 quarts of food she canned last year, but she did say that she practically fed her family through the winter on it. In addition they had their own pork and potatoes.

The came so near to having enough food without buying any at all during the winter and early spring that all Mrs. Coppedge had to buy was one pound dry beans, one pound dry peas, and enough cabbage and Irish potatoes for three meals in April. She was justly proud of the savings she made and as she says, "We ate better than usual, too!"

Corn oil may be used in salad dressings, chifon cakes, muffins and pancakes. It is a refined product made from a certain variety of corn.

Tony Curtis Firm Believer That Clothes Make The Man

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There's an old argument about when women dress for—the men in their lives or to impress other women," says actor Tony Curtis. "But I don't think there can be any argument about whom men dress for. Each man dresses for himself. He has some idea of the kind of person he thinks he is or wants to be and he dresses to fit. If his wife likes it, okay, that's fine; if she doesn't, that's just too bad."

Curtis, a blue-eyed, dark-haired movie star who has been drawing both teen-agers' squeals and critical raves, admits that for him one of the great joys of acquiring film gold is that he can indulge freely his sartorial fancies.

"I've got lots of clothes," he says. "And I think clothes are a lot of fun. They do something for me."

"I've got clothes for all sorts of things. I've got a race track suit—it's a light green plaid, cut a little wide and a little extreme. When I wear it I feel just right for going to the races. I've got a poker playing suit: comfortable soft-material slacks that won't bunch or bind even if I'm sitting down at a poker table for eight hours, soft-collared shirt and rolled sleeves. I feel lucky and happy in it."

Takeoff point for Curtis' opinions was a magazine article by an elegant, clothes-confident New York businessman who set down a number of do's and tabus for the would-be well-dressed.

Some of the male plumage arbitrarily banished from the realm of good taste by the writer included pastel shades, two-toned shoes, perforated hats, pseudo-Italian sports shirts, city suits of pale blue, green and—particularly—brown, maroon, summerbuds (black remains okay for summer), white shirts for daytime wear, flamboyant neckties, hats (except straw) with flat crowns, moccasins in the city and tartan jackets anywhere.

Curtis disagrees violently with the tabus.

"I think clothes do make the man," he insists. "I think a suit can make you feel better—or worse. And I think your clothes should both fit the occasion and your mood."

Curtis spends time, thought and money on his wardrobe. (He also places where guys sell their clothes when they've gotten too fat for them. There's nothing that says a trench coat should be new—it's better when it looks used."

Curtis, lean and muscular, confesses that he likes his clothes fitted so closely that "you can see the man in the suit."

Whatever you do, says Curtis, don't let anyone—fashion arbiters or even tailors—talk you into buying clothes you aren't sure about. "For a man, clothes aren't just something to cover you up, any more than they are for a woman," he insists. "They are a pleasure, and they are supposed to do something for you. So if you like loud colors and they make you feel happy, wear them. If you hate tuxedos, don't wear them. If you want to look like a Wall Street man, dress like one. But express yourself in your clothes."

"You give me $150, and I can get a complete outfit," he said, "right here in New York. I know 30 small tailor shops (my father used to be a tailor) where you can get a good custom tailored suit for $80 or $90. I can get you a custom-made shirt, even, for $8 or $10. And I can get a good trench coat from one of these

On Friday afternoon at her home on James Street, Mrs. P. W. Pickelsimer charmingly entertained at bridge, honoring her house guests, Mrs. E. H. Bragg and Miss Mary E. Bragg of Bloloxi, Miss. The rooms where the six tables were placed for bridge were attractively decorated with salmon and red gladioli. Mrs. Guy Evans making high score was given a tray cloth. Low score prize, a deck of cards, went to Mrs. Leon Rives. Misses Mittie and Laura Smith assisted in serving a delicious ice course with salted nuts.

Homemakers Prefer Orange Juice

If you could have only one kind of fruit—or juice—for a month, which would you choose?

Oranges—if you agree with the majority of the Nation's homemakers. The question was put to homemakers in the spring of 1957 in a U. S. Department of Agriculture market-research survey, and oranges won by a wide margin. Health considerations counted most in the vote, according to the homemakers, many of whom specifically mentioned vitamin value. Other important reasons: Appetizing flavor, "good for children," and refreshing.

Fresh citrus fruit is used in almost every U. S. household in the course of a year, survey figures show. This holds for all age and income groups, all parts of the country, cities, and rural areas, families with and without children. All but 2 per cent of the women interviewed said they had used fresh oranges, grapefruit, lemons or limes during the year; in addition, two-thirds had used frozen and canned citrus products. Many also reported using frozen ades and ready-to-serve orange juice.

In the early spring season when the survey was made the citrus products in most frequent use were fresh oranges, frozen orange juice concentrate and fresh grapefruit, but homemakers also mentioned frequent use of fresh lemons, canned citrus juice, ready-to-serve orange juice, and frozen grapefruit juice. The citrus products that homemakers use mainly in warm weather are the concentrated ades, fresh limes, and frozen lemon juice.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSBERG

Today's column is for those few of you who decided to forego the privilege of getting yourself fried—and possibly your neck broken—on the holiday highways, and instead are comfortably settled in your backyard reading the Reflector. We just got back from our annual trek to the North—before the rush, to avoid traffic. The traffic got there first, though. Even before the 4th it was terrible. The moral: Stay off the highway if you can. If you can't—well, good luck, anyway.

Union Hero
While up in Boston we learned a lot about General Joseph Hooker, who fought in the Civil War on the Union side and whose statue now stands in front of the Massachusetts State House. State Legislator Charles Iannello claimed recently that Hooker was a phony and that his statue ought to be removed, and replaced by one of Christopher Columbus. According to Iannello, Hooker was fired by Lincoln because he was such a disgrace to the Army.

"He was going around with a young Boston lady," the legislator said, "and he jilted her. Then they put up that statue so that Hooker was looking right into her boudoir window for years. Gen. Hooker himself died drunk—of course, that could happen to anyone. Too many hookers for Hooker." Anyway, that's how they treat their generals up North—down here, you wouldn't find anyone talking about a Confederate general like that—no matter how many hookers he had!

Scholarships, Anyone?
For any of you who might be wondering how to pay rocketing tuition costs at college this fall, the Lovejoy-Jones College Scholarship Guide, published by Simon & Schuster, is the place to look. It lists all the odd, out-of-the-way places where you can get scholarships if certain conditions are met. For example, Harvard has a full tuition scholarship for anyone whose name is Murphy. If you're a farmer's daughter you can get one at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and if you're the son or daughter of a fisherman you can get one at Tufts, in Medford, Mass. Pembroke, a girls' college in Providence, R. I., has a grant for a "non-smoking, upright and needy girl"—which covers a lot. And if you have "Yankee ingenuity" you're eligible for a scholarship at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, up in Mass. If you look hard enough, you're bound to find something, so never lose hope.

Today's Preview
We gave a book called "The Southern Wild," by former actress Ruth Chatterton, to Mrs. Dora Fountain to review. It's just been published, with quite a bit of fanfare. However, Mrs. Fountain is not enthusiastic so far, and this is what she has to say about it: Dame Ruth Chatterton in her "Southern Wild" Has the perspicacity of a very small child. I have progressed so far to page 183 It was tough going as you will see. The author is appealing on screen and stage. Why this effort to be a sage? She writes of the south in this current year. And I wonder if she has ever been here? Or is she confusing the here and now With Margaret Mitchell and Her know how? Although I will probably finish the book I doubt if it changes my present outlook. Sensationalism, tripe, phony situations throughout Are all that this misguided book is about!

Today's Review
Mrs. Mary Goodman of the English Department at E.O.C. reviews a recent selection of The Literary Guild.

"A Summer Place," Sloan Wilson. New York: Simon and Schuster, 1958. Lives of three young people—Sylvia, Ken, and Bart—become strangely interwoven during annual visits to Pine Island, Maine, "a summer place." Sylvia, the sophisticated daughter of nouveau riches, spurns the love of Ken, whom she calls a beast, and marries Bart, who is socially more acceptable. Ironically, as the years pass, Ken becomes wealthy; and Bart falls in business.

With their two children Bart and Sylvia return to the island and operate the inn. Ken, his wife Helen, and daughter Molly spend the summer there as paying guests. Sylvia and Ken renew an old love affair.

After painful divorce proceedings, Sylvia and Ken marry and maintain a winter home in Florida and a summer home in Connecticut. During a visit with them in Florida, John, Sylvia's son, seduces Molly, Ken's daughter. Then in middle age, Ken is about to become a great moralist. Realizing that Molly, his daughter, is like him and that John, her lover, is Sylvia's son, he secures for them the blessing of all four parents and finances their marriage.

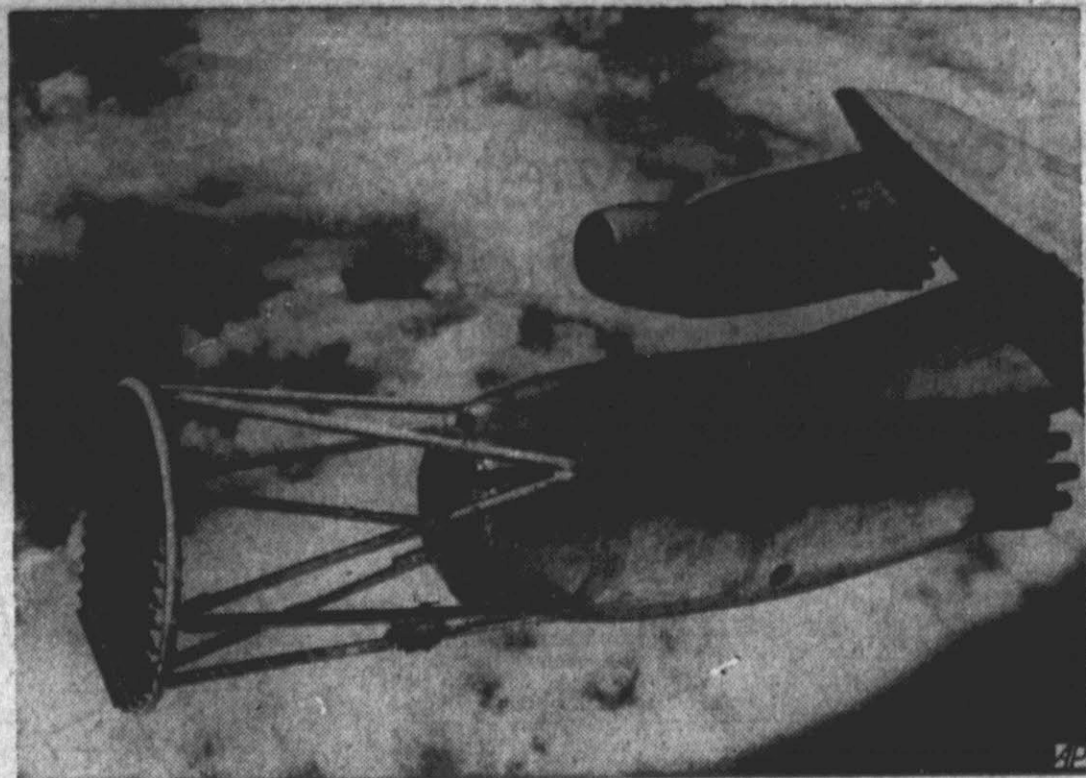

Covering two generations, the story is held together by unity of place—Pine Island. There the sins of the fathers—seduction, alcoholism, and suicide—are visited on the sons.

Sloan Wilson, also author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," is a good narrator. The reader finds it difficult to put the book aside. Descriptions of sun-silvered driftwood, scent of pine, call of gulls, and roar of wind are superb.

At best, this book is good light reading for adults. Mr. Sloan subtly and gently recommends empathy in matters of human weakness.

School Religious Program Experiment Now Planned

OMAHA (AP)—Next fall suburban Westside High School will give another trial to a compromise religious program falling somewhere in between "released time" and no official public school recognition whatever of religion.

Under the "released time" formula, schools frequently allow students to spend one hour of school time a week studying religion at classes held by Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic organizations off the school premises.

Development of the procedure has been studded with friction in and out of courts, with opposition based on claims it encroaches on the traditional separation of church and state.

Since a Supreme Court decision in 1952 upholding it, however, the method has become increasingly popular, with an estimated 3½ million pupils taking part. Much of the program's growth has occurred in the Eastern states.

The compromise system at Westside has cleared the way for some religious training for its students and at the same time won praise for firmly maintaining separation of church and state.

It works this way: Wednesday is "church day" at Westside, a rambling school in a rapidly growing Omaha area. There are services in nearby churches before classes and Westside teachers are asked to keep Wednesday evenings free of activity. They are also asked to keep Thursdays free of tests that would require Wednesday night study.

"What we are doing is being sure that there is one day a week that students will have a chance to attend their own religious activities if they want to," Supt. C. L. Retelsdorf explains. "We are being very careful that we are not participating in what the churches do with that time."

Executive secretary Sol Littman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith feels "school authorities are to be congratulated for the scrupulousness with which they maintain separation of church and state."

However, there is no Jewish program to make special use of the time cleared for religious use. The Rev. Robert Hupp of Christ the King Catholic Church, about a block away, originally had asked school authorities for released time. School authorities turned down the request. Later, meeting with a group of ministers, they agreed on the present plan.

A relatively few Catholic youngsters are taking advantage of a 7:45 a.m. communion service on Wednesdays. Better attended, reports Father Hupp, is an evening discussion session aimed primarily at providing religious instruction. He says attendance has been around 65 or 70.

At Westside Community Church, next door to the high school, several Protestant churches rotate the responsibility of offering a 7:45 a.m. Wednesday morning religious service.

The Congregationalist minister of the church, the Rev. Roger Manners, reports attendance has been light at this inter-denominational service.

Robot Can Match Some Functions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy announced today the partial development of an electronic robot it says will be able to match some of the functions of the human brain.

It calls the robot a Perceptron. At least another year will be required to complete the first full pilot model, the Navy said, but its principle and concept already have been demonstrated successfully by using a large electronic computer.

When it is fully developed, the machine is expected to be able to perceive, recognize and identify its surroundings without any human training or control. It differs from the ordinary computer in that it does not have to be fed facts and figures in advance.

Among the potential uses to which such a robot eventually may be put, the announcement said, are these:

- New-type automatic landing systems and automatic pilots for aircraft.
- Automatic reading of the printed or written word.
- Responding to verbal commands.
- Automatic language translation, either in written or vocal form.
- Automatic unearthing of scientific and other information buried in library books.
- And even rapid-fire recognition of musical compositions, with all the accuracy of a music critic.

The Navy says the new system closely parallels, by electronic means, the "selective recognition or 'similarity' functions of man's mind."

It would operate in much the same way that the human eye and certain brain areas work together to provide the human function of recognition.

Dr. Frank Rosenblatt, research psychologist at the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Inc., working under a contract with the Office of Naval Research, came up with the Perceptron concept.

Old Capone-Era Hoods Called Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the prohibition-era Capone gang will figure in a Senate investigation of alleged mobster control of Chicago's restaurant industry.

The Senate Rackets Committee will open hearings on the matter tomorrow. The hearings are expected to last about two weeks.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) announced: "We plan to take a close look at the way racketeers and hoodlums, including members of the old Capone mob in Chicago, muscled into the restaurant industry in that town through close ties with labor unions and management associations."

"We hope to present a revealing picture of the extent to which racketeers were able to control and operate this industry through fear, intimidation and shake-downs."

McClellan said the investigation will go into whether collusive agreements were signed between the Chicago Restaurant Assn., certain independent restaurants in Chicago and certain unions.

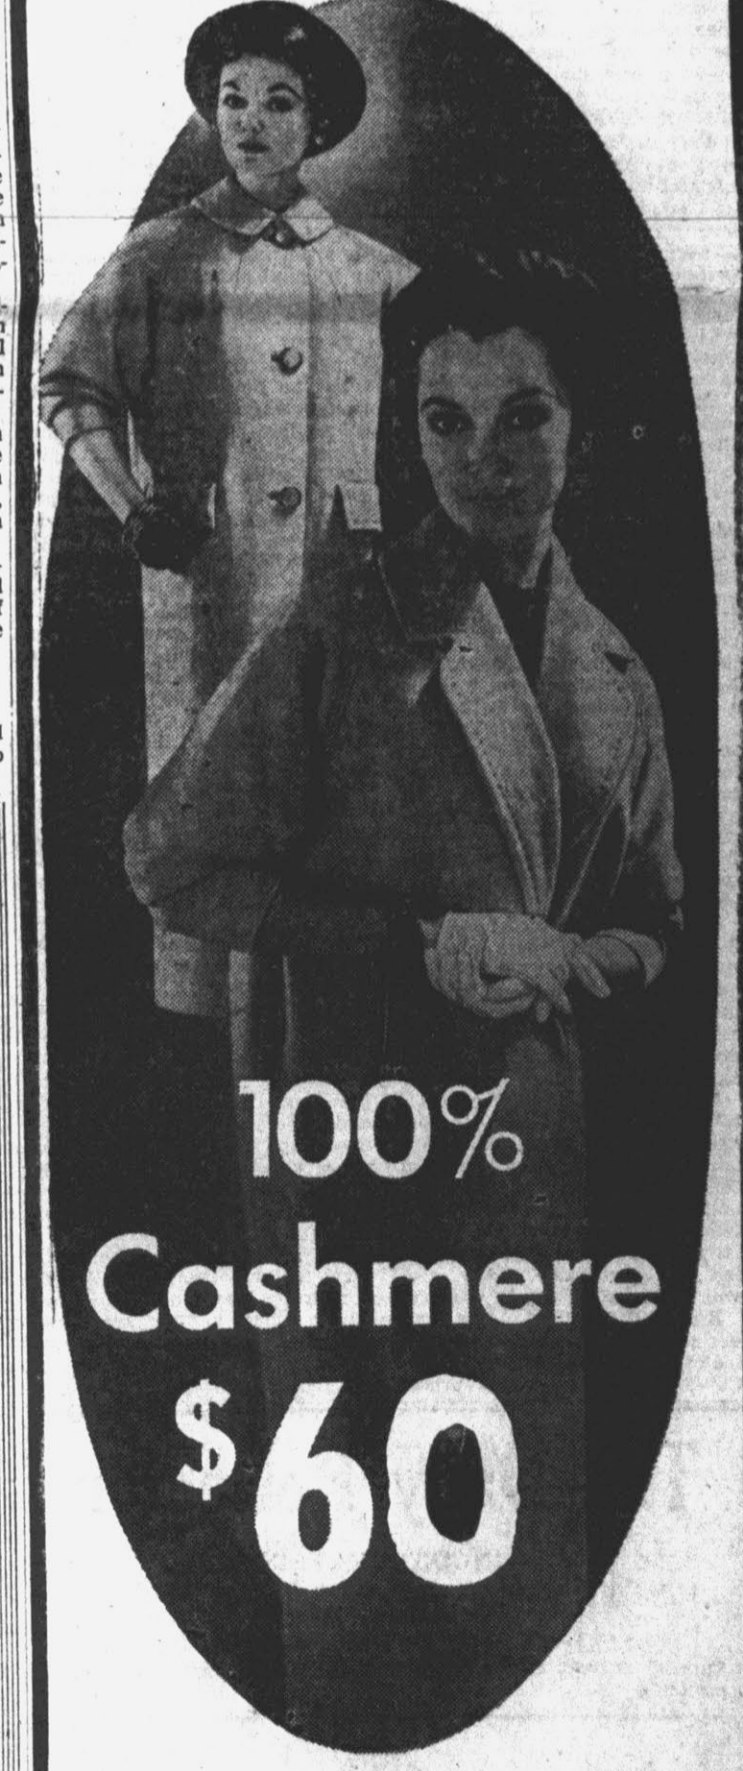

Among witnesses under subpoena are Tony Accardo and Paul (The Walter) Ricca, both of whom belonged to the gang once headed by Al Capone.

$750,000 Can Be Hardly Irrelevant

When a wealthy man who has been in trouble with federal regulatory agencies has $750,000 in checks unaccounted for that may have been given to government workers, it is anything but irrelevant to an inquiry into possible wrong-doing on the part of officials.

Bernard Goldfine has acknowledged before House investigators that he has presented many checks in the form of Christmas presents to government workers in Washington over a period of years. Subsequently the White House has announced that since 1950 a woman worker assigned to the President's appointment secretary has received a check from Goldfine each Christmas.

From the testimony so far presented in the Goldfine case, one is led to the conclusion that Goldfine's cultivation of government employees was not limited to governors, the special assistant to the President and perhaps other high officials. It covered a broad field of higher-ups and office workers in various government offices.

The testimony further indicates the practice is not one which just started, but one which has been going on for a number of years.

It leads to these questions which are of utmost importance to the American people:

1. How much, of any, favoritism have these checks brought Goldfine from various persons in high places and low places in various government offices?
2. Are there other wealthy businessmen or businesswomen who have followed a similar practice of befriending government employees at various levels with the presentation of special gifts from time to time?
3. How widespread is the practice, and how has

Budgeteers See More In Butner

By LYNN NISBET
BUTNER — The average North Carolinian thinks of Butner as the site of a World War II camp, including a huge hospital which the Federal government "gave" to North Carolina, and which has become a major unit in the State system of mental hospitals. That is the beginning of a fantastic story, but it is by no means the whole story.

The army base hospital which was "bought" by North Carolina ten years ago for one dollar has been converted into a modern institution for the treatment of mental illness. The institution now houses about 1700 patients, and its ultimate capacity will be 2200 to 2300.

When the advisory budget commission visited Butner on its biennial tour it was given a look at "before and after" renovation of the old wards, and of some ultra-modern facilities for treatment of mental diseases. There are some custodial care patients, but at Butner to greater degree than at other units in the system emphasis is on treatment and cure.

The budget group also found that while the hospital is the nucleus of the community, Butner is becoming a tremendously important center for many phases of State service to its citizens.

When the hospital was bought for one dollar, there was also bought some 13,700 acres of land and a modern water system for $1,500,000. Since then there has been spent on hospital renovations approximately $5 million. Another $4 million went to build a training school for mental defectives, as contrasted with mentally ill, and a million or more for a pre-conditioning center for the blind, an alcoholics rehabilitation unit, and an honor grade prison camp for youthful first offenders. The N. C. National Guard has a large warehouse on the land.

Besides these social service State operations, there are numerous industries which have been established on land sold by the State, and an extensive forestry program which is paying dividends in managed of timber and pulpwood.

Budgetary items of the hospital will be treated in a composite story later along with other units at Raleigh, Morganton and Goldsboro. The training school, under control of the State Hospitals Board, is one of three similar units. The others are at Kinston and Goldsboro. They also will be treated in one later story.

REHABILITATION — The budget folks did not visit the alcoholics unit or the Umstead Youth Center, the honor grade prison camp named for John Umstead, chairman of the hospitals board and originator of the idea. Both are different from the usual type of institutions with the same general purpose.

Admission to the alcoholics center is purely voluntary, and those who come are treated like folks and not like drunks.

The 95 boys at the Youth Center were selected by prison authorities as worthy of trust and susceptible to rehabilitation. Judges have no authority to sentence offenders to the Youth Center, although some have sought to do so. The boys do a lot of work around the hospital, on the farm and in the forests. It is believed they "pay their way" the question was raised whether they should be counted as expense liabilities in figuring per capita costs of all Butner inmates. That is one phase of the overall problem of how much credit should be given for services rendered by hospital patients and training school "students" at other institutions.

BLIND — The conditioning center for the blind is unique. It is the only institution in the United States devoted exclusively to the purpose of teaching adults who have lost their sight how to adjust themselves to their new status. The center accepts nobody under 16, and only in rare instances does it accept students who are congenitally blind.

The institution has capacity of 64 divided into groups of 16 white men, 16 white women, 16 colored men and 16 colored women. That is why they may be at times fewer than 64 — there are 57 now — and the place still be "full."

Miss Helen Cutting, the director, and her staff have one objective — to teach newly blind persons how to earn a living, and most important of all to restore their self confidence. There are classes in typing, weaving, pottery and machine shop work. The accident ratio in the machine shop is less than the average despite the fact operators of saws and lathes cannot see what they are doing.

The budget group ate lunch in the cafeteria with the students and were amazed when told that many of the folks who were using knives and forks as delicately and skillfully as anybody, could not tell whether it was daylight or dark.

The Federal government almost matches the State's $45,000 a year for operating the center. Lions Clubs in the area and other organizations contribute liberally in special equipment and entertainment facilities.

it affected the official relationship between the government and those who have presented the gifts?

Obviously the committee which began the investigation of Goldfine's gifts to Presidential Aide Sherman Adams has opened a broad new field for inquiry from these latest developments in the Goldfine case. These developments cannot be ignored. They should be followed through by investigators in an effort to ascertain just how much gift-giving is going on between government officials and employees, and persons high up the economic ladder.

The situation as it now stands suggests a whole new set of rules and regulations concerning the acceptance of gifts by government workers should be established. Or in lieu of such a step, there should at least be a clarification of the present regulations covering such situations and a stricter enforcement of provisions which would prevent individuals from purchasing favoritism from government employees at the expense of the American public.

With each passing day that much-talked-about clean hounds tooth of 1952 appears more tarnished.

Sometimes We See Democracy Asleep

Time and again the people of North Carolina are confronted with striking examples of democracy asleep.

One of the more recent examples occurred in the city of Burlington, a bustling, progressive industrial community in Piedmont North Carolina. One would normally think that citizens of such a community would take more than average interest in local government affairs. One would also assume when an important matter is placed before the voters of such a community for decision a large percentage of people would go to the polls to express an opinion.

That was not the case in Burlington recently when a four million dollar bond issue for improvement of water and sewer facilities was at stake.

Burlington has an estimated 18,000 eligible voters. Of that number only 1,074 voters, or less than six percent of those eligible, went to the polls to express an opinion on the bond issue.

Is that an example of democracy at work? Or is it an example of democracy asleep?

It is indeed cause for concern when such a small percentage of the citizens are willing to discharge their responsibility for making decisions which are up to the residents of a community.

No community can be more progressive than its citizenry. And no government, local, state or national, can be better than the people want to make it through their participating at the grass roots level in the operation of their government.

When the citizens of any community sit back placidly and leave their citizenship responsibility to others they are risking rapid deterioration in the calibre of their government.

Near Verge Of Price Stability

By RALPH ROBEY

Prices of consumer goods are topping out. The index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics for May showed an increase of only one tenth of one percentage point, or from 123.5 to 123.6. If that's not the actual high of this move, it should be close to it.

This has been a long move. The last month that the index revealed a decline was in August 1956, and in only two months since has the index held steady with a preceding month. These were in October and December of 1957.

The persistence of the rise has been disturbing. It is widely believed prices should decline during a recession. The record shows, however, that this is more likely in wholesale prices than consumer prices, and that consumer prices almost always have a strong tendency to lag behind business trends.

There have been three principal factors behind the recent rise. First was the introduction of most 1958 new automobile models in one month. This meant that suddenly all discount prices were eliminated, a situation usually spread over at least two months.

Second, this spring has been extraordinarily bad from the point of fruits and vegetables, resulting in a sharp hike in prices for these commodities.

Third, there has been an almost continuous increase in the cost of services. This has been the trend for many months, and probably will persist for some time into the future. These include such costs as medical care and other so-called personal services.

The index uses 1947-49 as equal to 100. In other words, an index of 123.6 simply means consumer prices are 23.6 per cent above 1947-49. The increase of the past twelve months has been 3.3 per cent. Of course this index does not measure, nor attempt to measure, the cost of living of the public at large. It is designed to indicate the cost of an urban worker of moderate income.

In spite of the persistence of the upward trend there are good reasons for believing that we are either at or very close to the peak.

Food prices, which are the most important single category in the index, showed no change in the month ending the middle of May — the period to which the above figure refers. Further, in view of the recent sharp increases in food supplies, it is expected that prices will go no higher and actually are almost certain to show a moderate decline in coming months. Even meat is expected to ease off in price before too long as a result of increased marketings.

Apparel prices have shown a slight weakness for some time and there is no basis for anticipating a material change in this trend.

Rising charges, which include furnishing, have been showing a slight upward movement for many months, and this probably will be continued. The same is true of service charges. Private medical plans, such as the Blue Cross, have found it necessary to increase their charges, and doctor's fees tend to ease up.

The transportation segment probably will show a further rise. The price of used cars recently advanced. Gasoline wars are less likely with that industry getting in better condition, and with the introduction of 1959 automobile models the current discount on 1958 models will be eliminated in the index.

The aggregate effect of these changes will depend partly upon the extent of the price movements and partly upon the weights assigned to the various categories. This means, in actuality, that a decline in food prices may be sufficient to offset rises elsewhere.

There is ample basis for hoping that this will prove to be true. However, one is not justified in being completely dogmatic about it because wages still are rising, and in most instances this results in production-costs increase.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

END OF THE COMMANDMENT In the second epistle of Peter one finds a list of Christian virtues, and the order in which these virtues are placed is most significant. The chief of the apostles tells Christian followers (II Peter 1: 5-7) that their salvation begins with diligence. Then to diligence is added faith, and to faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge self control, and to self control patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness love.

So here is the order through which the human soul passes in its pilgrimage from bondage to freedom. We begin with the plain homely virtue of diligence. Any one who believes we can relax and sink down into the benefits of Christian salvation is wrong. The person who wants to benefit spiritually must do something to gain these benefits. His spiritual pilgrimage begins with diligence; then goes on to self control, patience, godliness, and brotherly kindness. But the end of this experience is love — love for God and love for man.

The test of true religion is whether or not it brings us to love. It may bear all kinds of fruit, but unless it bears that fruit it is not true and sound. Furthermore, it is wrong. The end of the commandment is love.

Gold In Soviet Tactics

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — As I have already expressed myself in these columns, I do not expect any shooting war to be started by Russia, and probably no chemical war. I do expect an intensified economic war and believe we are now in such an economic war, started by Russia some months ago. One of the weapons Russia will use is Gold.

Although over 50 per cent of the free world's annual production of gold comes from South Africa, Russia is now reported to be producing five hundred million dollars' worth a year, and has on hand eight billion dollars' worth to use as a weapon against us. This gold could be a real factor in breaking commodity prices and prolonging our business depression.

Probably Russia has in mind establishing a gold ruble which would have a constant value in foreign trade all over the world. This could make a great impression on both our allies and the backward nations. It should be an important weapon for Russia in the economic war in which we are now engaged. It seems, however, that as the next step in making a Russian ruble universal for trade, Russia must agree to the British insistence on mutual freedom of travel and communications and cease radio-jamming anything related to business or finance.

VALUE OF THE DOLLAR

Previous to 1934 the American dollar was based on gold at a price of $20.67 per ounce. Under the Roosevelt Administration, the price was increased and the dollar devalued. It is said that Mr. Macmillan and President Eisenhower discussed the problem at their recent conference. They agreed that it should also be discussed with friendly nations; but this might cause them to become frightened and lead them to withdraw gold from the United States, which American investors do not want done.

Interfering with the price of gold would certainly cause more inflation. Many people think inflation is a bullish argument in the stock market; but it may not be so. If foreign nations withdraw very much gold, the bearish factors could offset the bullish.

THE TRUE STATISTICS

Since 1950 Europe has increased its gold holdings to $8 billion, some from mining and purchasing in the open market and some by withdrawals from other countries. This especially applies to West Germany, the Netherlands, and Belgium. The latter country has also benefited from its large uranium holdings in Africa. During the last few months, our gold supply has been reduced $1 1/2 billion. At this rate we would lose over $3 1/2 billion's worth during 1958.

A statistical analysis of this loss shows that it has been due to a change in our foreign trade situation. Up until recently, our exports exceeded our imports, and our stock of gold increased. Now this tide has turned and our imports of raw materials and manufactured goods exceed our exports.

WHAT ABOUT GOLD SHARES?

Naturally, there has been an increase in the price of gold shares which are traded largely on the London Stock Exchange and in Toronto. There are two reasons for this increase: (1) When business is in a recession, as at present, the cost of mining gold decreases. Since the price of gold after it is mined does not decline, this increases the profits of good gold mines. These profits have not been very satisfactory during the past few years and the prices of gold shares have been abnormally low. (2) The current talk about devaluation of the dollar has also been a factor, but this is a very speculative factor.

It seems to me, however, that readers are justified in holding a few good gold stocks — not for profits, but for security. While I see reason why many stocks should decline in the next year, I see no reason why many good gold stocks should sell lower than they did a year ago.

It is illegal for American investors to store any raw gold in safe deposit boxes in the United States or its possessions. I am, however, seeking a government ruling as to whether or not investors may store such gold in other nations. When I receive a copy of said ruling, I will freely send it to any reader on request.

lower bracket, but that the Treasury does not offer that information.

"You add that the IRS does answer specific questions on request."

"All right. Why doesn't the IRS check material prepared for publication if requested? Why doesn't the IRS tell people how to have income from investments taxed to another member of the family in a lower bracket? 3. Why doesn't the Treasury tell me and other taxpayers slob how to escape taxes instead of leaving us to the tax services?"

QUIETING NERVES

To a department store: "The enclosed dun is inexcusable since you have sent neither a statement nor a bill since my last sizable payment of a month ago."

"Earlier this year my wife was forced to wait out an embarrassing huddle over whether she should be allowed credit for a small item, although our indebtedness was small."

"You seem to be getting nervous over charge accounts. I'll do my best to keep you from talking to yourself. Send me a final bill and close my account."

To an insurance company: "You have credited me for premium payments through the week of February 16, 1958 instead of February 16, 1959."

"If you will look at the receipt book you will see that is the fourth time payments have been dated back a year since March, 1953."

"This is a hell of a way to run an insurance company."

"Lovingly yours."

As can be seen, each letter was sent in a spirit of kind helpfulness and were closed, "fraternally."

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That for 28 per cent of the country's estimated 39 million married couples, both husband and wife have jobs outside the home. The tired business woman may soon outnumber the tired business man.

That this is the century of the common dog as well as the common man. America's pooch population has leaped 44 per cent in the last decade.

That the Romans were the first people to use silver widely as money.

That U. S. insect pests nullify the labor of at least one million workers a year.

That music is really getting specialized. The owner of the Meramec Caverns at Stanton, Mo., has hired Dr. Sigmund Spaeth to make selections of "music to be listened to in a cave."

That a survey showed 15 million American women are overweight. The rest just think they are.

That when fur tycoon Milton Herman asked his young niece how she enjoyed seeing her first movie she replied: "It's okay, but it doesn't give you time to run to the kitchen for a cookie."

That no ship is "launched on Friday" because of a sailor superstition to do so would bring bad luck.

That this is the newest definition of a witch: "A flying sorceress."

That the Hotel Edison here has been forced to abandon its experiment of having the waitresses wear sack dress uniforms. Both the waitresses and the patrons complained.

That Dr. Carlton Fredericks, the nutritionist, says licorice is an excellent natural substitute for tranquilizer pills.

That a new fad has cropped up in the college set — eating lighted cigarettes. Well, anyway they're cheaper than goldfish.

That a recent study showed the average Harvard freshman is half an inch taller than the average Yale freshman. But then Yale has never been the same since it lost Frank Merriwell.

That bandleader Sammy Kaye during his career has given away 250,000 souvenir batons. So-o-o, wouldn't you know, he is being honored by the National Lumber Manufacturers Assn.

That, according to the Fisherman's Magazine, a fish has such a poorly developed nervous system it feels no great pain when hooked.

That some 40 million American women today are said to make all or part of their clothing. If this is so, where are they hiding?

That Mamie Eisenhower, a good hand at canasta, now prefers a faster-playing version of the game called Bolivia.

That an elephant is happier when traveling by air if a hen is perched on its head. But the average man would rather have a chick on his arm.

That litterbug motorists tossed about 100,000 tons of debris on the nation's highway over the

That Wyoming has a town named Dull Center. And New Mexico has one called Stinging Lake.

That a hummingbird's heart beats 615 times a minute.

That seven out of every 100 U. S. school children have below normal hearing.

That it was Ralph Waldo Emerson who observed: "That time, like all times, is a very good one — if we, but knew what to do with it."

Herford County Herald)

Bob Mason, one of the more literary of the toilers for journalistic editorial pages — he now works out of Norfolk for the big morning daily there — once wrote a piece about legislators who get so caught up in things of the moment they forget the long run of history.

Acting in what they think at the moment is great wisdom and statesmanship, they do things which 100 years from now will make their names joking bywords in the history texts. Mason was mainly talking about legislators which at the time were thinking up all sorts of labor, grotesque laws about the public schools — how to convert them to private and all that.

But his comment applies equally to the 20 members of the U. S. Senate who fought statehood for Alaska down to the final vote. This number included North Carolina Senator Sam Ervin.

Fifty years from now, folks reading the history books will have a hard time figuring out exactly why these 20 fought down to the wire against the formation of a state. They fought this battle in the name of "state's rights."

They made labored speeches about "state's rights" in support of their contention that it would be dangerous for the far northern province to become a "sovereign" state.

Get it? Here are men who say they are "state's righters," but they are against letting this place become a state. They think it will be dangerous. In the name of "state's rights," they are against granting any state's rights to the province of Alaska. They argued that the federal government owned too would mean that Alaska as a state would be too much under control of the federal government. They didn't seem to realize that while they are representatives of "sovereign states," they are agents of the federal government of the United States. They are members of the United States Senate, an arm of the United States government. Thus, by fighting Alaska statehood, they were using the massive strength of the federal government to deny state's rights to an area that wanted desperately to enjoy the same state's rights that these men said they were defending by denying state's rights to the people of Alaska.

What a silly business.

SPEDDY TRIAL IS DUE EVERY MAN (Raleigh Times)

One of the rights of free men is that of the right of a speedy, fair trial.

A Philadelphia man and his wife have been in jail here since May 22 awaiting trial on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen car. They may be tried the middle of this month if they'll waive jury trial. Otherwise they'll have to wait until the fall term of Federal court.

There is nothing speedy about such treatment. It is true that the judge for this district is sick. But, his illness should not be permitted to work a hardship on people who are awaiting trial. These people may be the most guilty people ever to sit idly in jail here. Or they may be the most innocent people ever to be locked up here. The only way that question can be answered is in a trial.

And, that trial should be given at once.

Other Editors Saying --- Silly Senatorial Business

Herford County Herald)

Bob Mason, one of the more literary of the toilers for journalistic editorial pages — he now works out of Norfolk for the big morning daily there — once wrote a piece about legislators who get so caught up in things of the moment they forget the long run of history.

Acting in what they think at the moment is great wisdom and statesmanship, they do things which 100 years from now will make their names joking bywords in the history texts. Mason was mainly talking about legislators which at the time were thinking up all sorts of labor, grotesque laws about the public schools — how to convert them to private and all that.

But his comment applies equally to the 20 members of the U. S. Senate who fought statehood for Alaska down to the final vote. This number included North Carolina Senator Sam Ervin.

Outside Of Cars, More Buying Is Done On Cuff

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Buying on time is still in style. Because of the trimming down of auto installment debt there's more of a chemise look today. But if you disregard auto credit (and it's still hefty by most standards) you'll find Americans increasing their purchases of other consumer goods on the cuff.
Department stores report a steady climb in the amount of soft goods being sold on short term credit plans.
It's only the big ticket hard goods that take a long time to pay for that find the customers acting shy.
And the American Bankers Assn. reports that debtors are prompter in their payments than they were in the early months of 1958. The Northern Trust Co. of Chicago says that delinquencies and repossessions, although higher than a year ago, haven't reached a stage considered serious. The ABA adds they appear to be receding in many parts of the country. But the American Collectors Assn. finds the delinquent, its particular problem, hard to collect from.
The Federal Reserve Board's latest figures show that at the start of June total installment credit was just under $3 billion dollars, down 600 million dollars from the end of January. During May consumers had taken on $4 billion dollars of new installment debt, but repayments had topped this by 100 million dollars.
The shrinkage was all in auto loans. Outstanding were some 14 1/2 billion dollars of commitments on cars, 183 million dollars less than at the start of May.
But other consumer goods had risen in May by $3 million dollars to $1.8 billion dollars to top year ago figures by $5 million dollars.

Repair and modernization loans and personal loans also rose.
The Chicago banks things installment credit sure to continue to grow.
A Standard Financial Corp. survey of 12,840 customers of 127 department stores throughout the country points up the selectivity of consumers during the recession. It reports that in the last 18 months revolving credit sales of soft goods in these stores exceeded the corresponding month of the previous year.
The average maturity of installment credit for soft goods is seven months, while the average maturity on auto debt is around 31 months.
Merchants and customers answering the survey stressed this time difference in their credit programs under current conditions.
"Consumers can see 7 months ahead," they can't see 31 months ahead," the report concludes. "So they hold back on the long-term obligations."
Only in the case of electric appliances did any of the 127 stores report any easing of credit terms. The aim in that case was traced to efforts of factories to reduce heavy inventories.
In addition to an increase in buying of soft goods on time, sales finance companies report an increase in installment sales of motor boats, house trailers, swimming pools, travel tickets and college tuition payments.
The marked increase in personal savings noted a few months back doesn't dismay the finance companies. They hold that the consumer credit business is based on consumer down payments and reserves. The growing reservoir of consumer savings is regarded as assurance of an upsurge of credit sales when the recession is reversed.

Study Influences Of Facial Appearances

How do a person's looks, especially his facial appearance, influence the opinions that other people form of his personality?
Dr. Thomas M. Stritch, assistant professor of psychology at East Carolina College, and other psychologists with whom he has been associated have been carrying on research for several years to arrive at an answer to the question.
The Atlanta, Ga., Journal and Constitution Magazine presented recently a feature article which in a popular, readable account gives recognition to the investigations. The article is based on a paper which Dr. Stritch read before the Southeastern Psychological Association at a meeting in Atlanta.
Dr. Stritch, a Ph. D. graduate of Emory University in Georgia, came to East Carolina after teaching at Mary Washington in Virginia. He has been a faculty member of the college here since 1955.
"Studies by psychologists have shown repeatedly," according to Dr. Stritch, "that there is no way to judge personality or character accurately on the basis of a person's looks." He believes, nevertheless, that physical appearance does play a role in the formation of impressions of personality and conclusions reached in the course of his work have provided evidence that he is right.
In Dr. Stritch's work with students who were asked to view photographs and to give impressions of the subjects by checking a list of personality traits, there was a significant agreement. People with medium-width faces, light complexions, few horizontal wrinkles, and bright eyes, for example, were described by most viewers as carefree, cheerful, honest and warmhearted.

When people, instead of photographs, have been used in the study of personality impressions, conclusions have been the same — a high correlation of agreement among viewers as to the kind of personalities the person under observation have. Going at the investigation the other way around, Dr. Stritch has given students a written sketch of a person's appearance and asked them to describe the personality of the subject. Again there was a high percentage of agreement.
From pictures of people, scientific evidence shows, no valid judgment of character, intelligence, or personality can be obtained. Yet Dr. Stritch says, most job application blanks still require photographs, which reveal little except the approximate age of the applicant. The study of personality impressions has "some implications," Dr. Stritch thinks, for various types of psychological therapy.
Practically, he believes, judgments of personality is everyday life, particularly at first meetings, are influenced greatly by appearance and are similar to those found in the research work in which he is engaged. Further investigations are called for, he says, with additional study of people as well as of photographs.

Germany Rebuild Passenger Fleet

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — West Germany is moving to re-establish Germany's prewar luxury passenger fleet.
The 29,500-ton Hanseatic, biggest passenger ship since the war to fly the German colors, will leave July 21 on her maiden voyage to New York.
In less than a year, the Hanseatic will be moved to second place by the 30,500-ton Bremen, now also being reconitioned.
The Hanseatic is the former Empress of Scotland, bought by the Hamburg-Atlantic Line from the Canadian Pacific Steamship Co.
The Bremen, due to make her debut next June, is the former Pasteur, bought from France by the North German Lloyd.

Share Marathon Piano Awards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Jack Mayer and Mrs. Noye Person played the piano for 76 hours 46 minutes and 3 seconds before halting the contest on the advice of a doctor yesterday.
Mayer, a supper club entertainer, and Mrs. Person, a former Rocky Mount, N.C., radio entertainer, were the last of six players who started the keyboard marathon Thursday morning.
The players got five-minute breaks every two hours until 1 p.m. Saturday, then 10-minute breaks.
Judges called it a tie and awarded Mrs. Person and Mayer each an $800 piano.

Matinee Theater Sinks After A Losing Battle

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Matinee Theater sank quietly in the Sunday channels of daytime television at June's end, torpedoed by big expenses and small audiences.
Somehow, it had managed to survive almost three years in spite of competition from quiz shows, musical shows and serials. It won wide critical acclaim, but for some time it has been unloved by NBC.
The network claims to have lost three million dollars putting on five hour-long live plays weekly. Its drooping ratings dampened sponsors' eagerness to help pay for the plays — even when they were Shakespeare.
In Matinee Theater's place have come two serials cast in the conventional mold of agony and much cheaper to produce.
Meanwhile, however, Matinee Theater is not beyond salvage. It has developed a hard core of such devoted viewers that Mrs. John Conte, wife of the actor who was host on the show, was moved to organize the non-profit Foundation for the Preservation of Matinee Theater. To date, thousands of viewers have contributed more than $200,000 to get the show back on the air.
"And we would have much more if all our viewers knew about the Foundation," said Mrs. William Black, east coast chairman of the project. "We tried to buy spots on NBC asking viewers to contribute, but they wouldn't give us time."
Whether or not the Foundation is successful, the idea of thousands of women earnestly attempting to keep alive an intelligent, entertaining television show is stimulating and pleasant.
Obviously NBC could not be expected to continue to drop a million dollars a year on a TV show, no matter how widely it was praised or beloved. Apparently it could survive only if moved to TV's public service time — Sunday afternoon — which has become increasingly egghead and increasingly lacking in sponsors.
Mrs. Black, however, thinks sponsors — even soap manufacturers — are missing a good bet.
"After all, thousands of women have demonstrated how much they like the show — and with contributions," she said. "I think the sponsor who gave Matinee Theater back to its public would be such a hero the audience would make sure his product sold. After all, that's what a sponsor wants, isn't it?"

Wed In Jail, And Face New Charge

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The bride 21, and the groom were just married the other day — in the Dallas County Jail.
Newspapers carried their wedding picture and story of a touching jailhouse romance. The bride was radiant in her wedding gown.
Today, police said, they'll file another bad check charge against Frankie Koeppe.
A dress shop employe, seeing the picture, recognized the wedding gown as one for which she was paid with a rubber check.

Cold And Bored Breaking Record

HAMBURG, N. J. (AP)—Take a 19-year-old youth, give him a skin diving outfit, submerge him in 15 feet of water for more than 30 hours, and what does he think about?
He thinks about girl skindivers, that's what.
Bernie Camoli spent 30 hours and 6 minutes submerged in the waters of White Rock Quarry over the weekend.
The water got cold, and Camoli got bored, sleepy and cold before he bobbed to the surface Saturday night.

But yesterday, he plunged back into the quarry waters—briefly—to get a telephone number some girl skindiver left there. He sat on a platform during his protracted stay underwater and that's where she wrote her number.
Camoli, who claims a new skin diving record with this feat, said he played cards and tic-tac-toe with a fellow skin diver to escape boredom.
But his companion, Paul Mische, 29, choked on a piece of meat after 8 1/2 hours and had to come to the surface.
While the sun was out, Camoli read whodunits. He drank warm milk and soup through a baby bottle. Fellow divers brought him bits of meat and cheese.
When the sun went down, he was too cold to read. And it wasn't very pleasant trying to keep warm wrapped in two suits of foam rubber and canvas.
Was his record-breaking stunt worth it?
It'll all be decided when he uses that phone number.

Plans To Run As An Independent

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — J. Bracken Lee, former Republican governor of Utah, says he'll run as an independent in an effort to unseat Sen. Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) in this year's elections.
"I have no use for the present leadership of the Republican party," he said in announcing last night he'll run on a platform that includes a move to repeal the federal income tax.

Delock Shines As B Sox Top Yankees By 10-4 All-Star Pitchers Should Be Well-Rested For Big Contest

Victory Was 7th Straight For Righthander

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

In spring training, Ivan (Ike) Delock was just another name on the Boston Red Sox roster. Manager Mike Higgins had plans for him, but only in relief roles, No. 2 behind Lefty Lee Kieley.

Today, as Higgins takes inventory during the season's half-way turn, he shudders to think where his second place Sox would be without Delock. Ike not only has blossomed into a starting pitcher but he has become the team's biggest winner and the ace of the staff.

The 28-year-old righthander won his seventh game without defeat Sunday as the Red Sox defeated the New York Yankees 10-4. It was Boston's first victory over the American League leaders since April 15 and only the second in eight decisions this season.

The Yankees remained 11 games in front of Boston and Kansas City, tied for second. The A's were beaten by Cleveland 8-5. Detroit nipped Chicago 2-1 and Washington came from behind to shade Baltimore 4-3.

In the National League, Milwaukee retained its first place margin of one game over San Francisco with a 2-0 shutout of Pittsburgh. The Giants made two in a row over St. Louis 5-4. Chicago whipped Los Angeles 6-2 and Philadelphia and Cincinnati split a doubleheader. The Phillies won their seventh straight with a 7-1 opening victory and the Redlegs took the nightcap 11-4.

After limiting the Yankees to four hits through seven innings, Delock was clipped for three more in the eighth, including Mickey Mantle's 21st home run.

Ike received credit for snapping the Yankees' five-game winning streak, however, when Kieley replaced him with two runners on base and one out and retired the next five batters.

Delock, counting his last four decisions in 1957, now owns a string of 11 successive victories.

Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen paced the Red Sox's 13-hit attack against loser Don Larsen and five relievers. Each collected three hits. Williams rapped his 14th home run and Jensen drove in three runs to raise his league leading RBI total to 68. Jackie has hit safely in his last 15 games.

Jim Bunning racked up his fifth straight victory with a six-hit performance for the Tigers against the White Sox. The loser was Cleveland 10th in 13 decisions. Donavan, hit. The Gary Bell hurled a seven-hitter for his third victory in his first complete game in the majors. Ned Garver, who had beaten the Indians three times was the KC loser.

Relief pitcher Dick Hyde assured Washington of its first home victory against Baltimore since May 27, 1957, by retiring three straight Orioles in the ninth. Russ Kemmerer was the winner.

Johnson Should Clobber Russian

PALMYRA, N.J. (AP)—If all goes according to plan, there are going to be a lot of pop-eyed Russians when big Rafer Johnson finishes his decathlon performance in Moscow July 28.

"Rafer should break the world record and clobber that Russian," predicted Johnson's coach, Dickey Drake. "The Russian is good, and it ought to be interesting to watch the two of them but there will be no doubt as to the outcome. Rafer will win."

The Russian Drake referred to is Vasily Kuznetsov—a big, talented and eager. Right now, he has an all-time world record of 8,016 points pending. If Johnson betters it in Moscow, it will never get on the books.

Johnson, a quiet 200-pounder, who is president of UCLA's student body, holds the current listed world record of 7,985 points. If he beats Kuznetsov's standard in Moscow, he'll get a little additional balm because the Russians themselves will have to submit the record.

Same Old Story In The End: Shoemaker Wins

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—It was the same old story in the National Left-handed Golf Tournament today—Harry Shoemaker was still the champion.

The 28-year-old Air Force veteran from Signal Mountain, Tenn., won the 72-hole tournament yesterday by six strokes, finishing with 72-74-76-71—293.

Shoemaker held a two-stroke lead after Saturday's round and coasted in with 33-38 over the 6,621-yard Plantation Golf and Bath Club course.

J. C. Thorpe of Corpus Christi, Tex., finished with 289 and a tie with Jack Gers of Oklahoma City. Thorpe won the sudden-death playoff.

Giants Still Pulling Stunts To Win Games

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

The Giants are still pulling off ninth inning heroics. One of the seasons San Francisco continues to hound Milwaukee, hanging on only one game behind the league leading Braves today.

For the third straight day, the Giants won a game in the ninth inning yesterday scoring the winning run in that frame. With the bases full, two out and the score tied in the last of the ninth, Cardinal relief pitcher Larry Jackson plunked Jimmy Davenport with a pitch, forcing over the winning run.

It was Jackson's second straight loss. He got in a jam by walking pitcher Red Worthington with one out. Whitey Lockman singled, Willie Kirkland forced Lockman and Willie Mays drew an intentional pass, filling the bases. Jackson's first pitch to Davenport hit him in the back.

Philadelphia's Phillies extended their winning streak to seven by defeating Cincinnati 7-1, but the Redlegs won the second game of the doubleheader 11-4. The Braves broke their five-game losing streak as Joey Jay hurled a 2-0 shutout against Pittsburgh. Chicago's Cubs, behind the one-hit pitching of Dick Drott and Don Elston, defeated Los Angeles 6-2. The New York Yankees' first place lead in the American League remained 11 games despite their 10-4 defeat by Boston.

Kansas City, tied with the Red Sox in the runner-up spot, dropped an 8-5 decision to Cleveland. Detroit nipped Chicago 2-1 and Washington snapped a tie in the eighth to defeat Baltimore 4-3.

Jay, the Braves' 22-year-old bonus righthander, throttled the Pirates with only four hits for his second victory in five decisions. Was Covington batted in both Milwaukee runs with a single in the fifth and a home run in the seventh, both against Curt Raydon.

In the Cubs' second straight triumph at Los Angeles, Drott won his fourth in ten decisions. He had a no-hitter until Jim Gilliam got the lone Dodger hit, a single with one out in the seventh.

Drott, however, had to be replaced after he forced in a run in the seventh with his eighth hit. Gus Bell rapped four hits and drove in four runs to pace Cincinnati's 15-hit attack in the second game victory after the Phillies had equaled the National League's longest winning streak of the season in the opener. Rookie pitcher Ray Semproch limited the Redlegs to five hits for his 10th triumph as the Phils made it seven in a row in the first game.

Harold Carter Meeting Valdes Wednesday Nite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harold Carter hopes to make another move toward an eventual meeting with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson by hurling over Cuban Valdes in a Wednesday night fight at Spokane, Wash.

The methodical Carter is rated No. 5 contender by the National Boxing Association and No. 9 by Ring.

The 10-rounder will be carried on ABC-television.

Mickey Crawford and Gaspar Ortega, two welterweights with an idea of mixing with Virgil Akins, the new champion, fight Friday at Madison Square Garden in a match that could revise the 147-pound ratings.

Young Crawford has won 22 of 24 pro fights.

The Garden fight will be carried on NBC radio-TV.

Two middleweights who have trouble finding opponents will settle for the obvious—fighting each other—in the Monday feature at St. Nicholas Arena at New York. They are George Benton of Philadelphia and Willie Dockery of Brooklyn.

Benton has a 33-2-1 record and Dockery 23-5-3.

Television (DuMont) will carry the fight in some sections of the country.

George Dunn Jr. of Raleigh won the Winston-Salem race, followed across the finish line, in order, by Pee Wee Jones and Toot Jenkins, both of Winston-Salem, and Turner.

Asheville's Banjo Matthews captured the Charlotte main event. Dink Widhouse of Concord, N.C., was second and Ned Jarrett of Newton, N.C., third.

Youngsters Are Stars In Open

COLUMBIA (AP)—An 11-year-old water sprite from Philadelphia, Pa., and a willow 16-year-old high school senior from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., were the stars of this year's Palmetto Open Southern AAU swimming championships.

The two girls, Barbara Schumacker and Lee Skidmore, shattered five meet records between them as the three-day meet finished here Saturday.

Miss Schumacker, the tiny Philadelphia with the big kick, made record time in the 880-yard women's freestyle and the 220-yard women's backstroke.

The Greensboro, N.C., Swim Assn. won the women's team title for the eighth straight time. The club racked up 211 points to 48 for runnerup Spartanburg County Athletic Club.

The Atlanta Independent Swim Assn., won the men's division with 78 points. Norfolk, a YMCA was second with 47 points.

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP)—For the first time in recent years, the managers of the All-Star baseball teams will have a stable of well-rested starting pitchers.

None of the 15 pitchers (eight in the National and seven in the American) slated for tomorrow's silver anniversary game started Sunday games. A few years back, it seemed everybody on the roster worked on the final day of regular play.

Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees, perennial boss of the Americans, sounded off last year at St. Louis when he learned pitchers he wanted to use weren't available.

Old Case picked three men off his own Yankee staff this year. He was able to see to it that Bob Turley, top man in the majors with 12-3 record, didn't pitch since beating Washington Friday with a three-hitter.

Manager Fred Henny of the Milwaukee Braves, who heads the Nationals, also has been close-mouthed about his pitching selections. However, he learned toward Bob Friend of Pittsburgh. Friend beat Milwaukee Saturday for his 10th victory.

The preponderance of right-handed hitters in the starting lineups, selected by the players' votes, makes it desirable to start a right-handed pitcher on each side.

Stengel, whose Americans are favored 13-10, has Early Wynn of Chicago, Ray Narleski of Cleveland and his own relief man, Ryne Duren, as other right-handers.

For left-handed hitters, he has southpaw Whitey Ford of the Yanks, Billy Pierce of Chicago and Billy O'Dell of Baltimore.

Haney has right-handers Bob Purkey of Cincinnati, who was used briefly in relief yesterday, Larry Jackson of St. Louis, Don McMahon of Milwaukee and Dick Farrell of Philadelphia, in addition to Friend.

Jackson started early in the year but has been used only on relief lately. McMahon and Farrell are relief pitchers. His left-handers are his own Warren Span, Johnny Podres of Los Angeles and Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco.

Stan Musial of St. Louis, playing his 15th All-Star Game, and Bob Skinner of Pittsburgh are the only left-handed batters in the National's starting lineup. Nelson Fox of Chicago and switch-hitting Mickey Mantle of the Yanks are the American lefties against right-handers.

The American League holds a 14-10 edge in the series.

Rocky May Try Interest Women

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Graziano is ready to take on the difficult job of selling boxing to women and teen-agers. It seems too many women make the old man switch channels when the fights come on.

And too many teen-agers prefer rack-and-roll or a horror movie.

The former middleweight champion is part of a new television fight show being peddled to the networks by two psychologists who have a new slant on the business.

"This show is designed for television to capture and hold the general audience not just the fight fan," explained Joseph Smith, a specialist in market research. "Up to now, they merely have staged a fight and turned on the cameras. We think much more can be done to make the fight take on a personal meaning with significance for every watcher."

As part of this new approach, the boxers would be selected for the "human appeal" and "dramatic quality" as well as for action and established following.

Top ranked fighters would be used.

Before the bout, Graziano would describe the style of each fighter and tell what type of bout to expect. Between the rounds and after, it is over, he would explain what certain things happened.

Each boxer would be interviewed for three minutes in his dressing room before the fight. The announcer would try to make the audience, "Live with the fighter...Share the tension...Get to know the boxer as a person."

After the fight, each would tell his own story of what happened in the moment of victory or defeat.

The idea is to make you care whether one wins or loses. To know that a victory means a down payment on a new house for the wife and kids—or perhaps a new flamingo sports car. They want you to like or dislike the participants who would be paid a $5,000 minimum.

Largest Crowd

The largest crowd ever to attend a Coastal Negro Little League ball game witnessed the July 4th All-Star game at South Greenville park Friday night.

The North defeated the South All-Stars 8-7 in a tight contest.

An estimated 300-400 fans were present for the tilt.

Barry Is Skeet Shoot Champion

SPARTANBURG (AP)—A perfect score has given Bill Barry of Summerville his second consecutive all-gauge championship in the 10th Annual Great Cotton States Open Skeet shoot here.

Barry broke 100 consecutive targets yesterday to win.

High over-all champion in the three-day meet was George Young of Parris Island with a score of 292 out of a possible 300. Runner-up was R. P. Newton Jr. of Savannah, with 289.

Margaret McCain of Asheville, N.C., won the women's title with 94 out of 100. The junior women's title went to Sandy Wood of Greensboro, with a sizzling 97 out of 100.

S. W. Heath of Lake City retained his 20-gauge crown during the three-day meet, defeating Rounq in a shoot-off.

Young took the 410 gauge title with a 94.

A smallbore rifle tournament was won by Richard Grimbale, a member of the Fort Eustis, Va., team.

Young, Newton, George Minter of Draper, N.C., and R. B. Trogen of Spartanburg came within one clay pigeon of forcing Barry into a shoot-off. The four held a shoot-off for runner-up honors.

Barry now has broken 225 consecutive birds in a two year reign. He took the extra 25 last year in a shoot-off.

Among class winners was W. D. Parks of Winston-Salem, N.C., with a 98 for the class B title.

Word Is That Washington May Move Ball Club

BALTIMORE (AP)—The recent shifting tides of major league baseball continue to roll today with the Washington Senators taking a sounding on their possible movement.

Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators, will ask the other American League owners how they feel about continuing to play in Washington.

Washington is last in the standings and more important to other operators last in attendance. Visiting teams are paid according to each ticket sold.

One Washington director claimed at the last board meeting that visiting teams barely break expenses. The directors instructed Griffith to ask the ownership in conjunction with the All-Star Game their reaction to a move out of the Nation's Capital.

Minneapolis, Houston, Dallas, and Toronto have been mentioned as likely new homes of the Senators.

Golfers Tee Off In PL Tournament

CHICAGO (AP)—Pay-as-you-play golfers from all walks of life—bartenders, steel workers, firemen and even a former big league outfielder—tee off today in the National Public Links tournament.

The tournament is one of golfing's Joe Doaks, the guys who get up at daybreak and wait their turns at the municipal links—the guys who have to talk their bosses into giving them time off from work to play in the big meet.

The field of 150 will be shooting for 64 qualifying spots for championship match play the first two days. After the 36 hole trials, double rounds of man-to-man action will be Wednesday and Thursday, setting up the 36 holes semifinals Friday leading to the 36-hole windup Saturday.

Danville and Burlington were idle after a Saturday doubleheader, swept by Burlington, 2-0 and 3-2.

Hollis Robertson was credited with the Hi-Toms' win after he relieved started George Horwath in the third inning. The game was tied at 3-3 when the Hi-Toms broke it open with three runs in the sixth.

Outfielder-pitcher Don Brown took the mound for Winston-Salem in the fourth inning. Jim Flanagan took over in the ninth to retire the last two batters after Greensboro had placed two men on base.

Bobby Vea, with a couple of home runs, led Winston-Salem's 12-hit attack on two Greensboro hurlers. Seven runs in the fifth put the game on ice for the Red Birds.

Winners Of Moose Field Day Events

Winners in the Third Annual Moose Club Field Day Affair for local Little Leaguers were Jerry Clark, Elks; Frank Moyer, Elks; Bernie Warren, Lions; David Gordon, Pepsi-Cola; Rickey Webb, Moose; Donny Ross, Moose; Jeff Jenkins, Jaycees; Bill Johnston, Jaycees; Brantley Register, Lions; Kenneth Brown, Exchange; Bill Davenport, Elks; Danny Cain, Elks; Steve Fuller, VFW; and Howard Hadley, Exchange.

The above participated in and won the field events, which included accuracy throws, base-running, and distance running affairs.

The field events were part of a full afternoon's entertainment sponsored by the Moose club on July 4. Also featured were a regulation Little League ball game, a papa's ball game, and a feast for fans and players following the games.

It Was His 1st Tournament Win In 16 Months

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A good memory helped 34-year-old Art Wall Jr. to his first golf tournament victory in 16 months.

The 6-footer from Pocono Manor, Pa., tangled with Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., in a sudden death playoff yesterday after they had tied in the $22,000 Rubber City Open with scores of 269—or 15 under par—for the 72-hole test.

Wall won the playoff with a birdie on the second extra hole of the par-71 Firestone Country Club course.

Wall said: "On the final round my two playing partners, Mike Souchak and Jack Fleck, had putts on that second hole just like the one I had against Dow. I didn't expect to be back that way for a year or so, but I noticed that both Mike and Jack missed their putts about an inch to the left. So I just hit mine straight at the middle of the hole, ignoring what looked like a bend in the green, and the ball went in for the birdie that wrapped it up."

Finsterwald went into the final round four strokes behind and was still three strokes back of Wall with three holes to go. But he birdied each of the last three, clinching his spurt with a 40-foot putt on the 72nd hole to force the playoff.

Adenauer Policy Wins Election Endorsement

By GEORGE BOUTWOOD
 DUSSELDORF, Germany (AP)—An election victory for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats in West Germany's largest state was seen today as an endorsement of his plans to provide the nation's new army with atomic weapons.

The Christian Democrats regained control of the Provincial Parliament of North Rhine-Westphalia yesterday in the first popular test of the nuclear armament program. It has become West Germany's hottest political issue since Adenauer's party won the national elections again almost 10 months ago.

Only the provincial administration of this big industrial and agricultural state was at stake, but the opposition Socialists keyed their campaign to Adenauer's plans to accept the Atlantic Allies' offer of nuclear arms.

The Socialists claimed atomic armament would put West Germany so squarely in the Western camp that all hope of reuniting with Communist East Germany by negotiations would be lost. They raised the specter of atomic warfare, while the Christian Democrats played on fears of communism and hammered home their theme of postwar prosperity.

The Christian Democrats moved from a minority position of 89 seats in the 200-member Provincial Parliament to firm control with 104 seats. The Socialists advanced, but not as far, from 76 to 81 seats.

Adenauer's party actually lost 5 per cent of the popular vote from its high point in the state in last September's general elections. The Socialists gained almost 6 per cent from last year's low of 33.5 per cent. The Christian Democrats polled 50.5 per cent.

The principal loser was the Free Democrat party, which dropped from 27 seats to 15. The Free Democrats joined with the Christian Democrats in a coalition government in 1954 but suddenly switched two years ago and allowed the Socialists to take over.

Two splinter groups, the neo-Nazi German Reich party and the Catholic Center party, lost their seats entirely by polling less than 5 per cent of the popular vote. The Communists have been outlawed for two years.

This was the popular vote (with percentages of the vote in the 1954 state election in parentheses): Christian Democrats 4,011,122 or 50.5 per cent (41.3 per cent in 1954); Socialists 3,115,934 or 39.2 per cent (34.5); Free Democrats 556,274 or 7.1 per cent (11.5). The Center party polled 83,733; the German party 125,044; the German Reich party 43,890; and the German Union 176.

Cemetery Scene Of Town Reunion

WHAT WAS ONCE GARNETTSTOWN, Ky. (AP)—"I guess it is a little unique to have a reunion in a cemetery," H. D. Higbee said.

"But it's about the only time we ever get to see each other," Higbee, a 51-year-old iron shop worker at Louisville, and about 150 other folks who once lived in the small village of Garnettstown got together yesterday at the burial grounds for their annual reunion.

The government bought their land in 1940 and made it part of the Ft. Knox military reservation. The 10-acre cemetery is the only land they retained.

What do people talk about in a cemetery?

Old friends, old times, those who have passed on and the future generation, says Higbee.

Like some of the others present, he said he thought back to his boyhood days.

He also shared the surprise of meeting a family which hadn't been heard from since Garnettstown disappeared.

Just recently the family read about the reunion in a newspaper and decided to attend.

Some of the reunion is taken up by business. There's the matter of a fund to keep the cemetery in shape.

Everyone contributes as the need arises.

There's also the matter of reading the list of people who purchase new lots every year — the people who want to be buried in their family lots.

"Some of the older ones are dying off each year," Higbee says.

Six Persons Die In 2-Car Crash

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Two cars collided near here yesterday during a thundershower, killing six persons. Two others were injured critically.

Dead are Aaron Leitwein, 66; his wife Daina, 64; their son, Harry Leitwein, 45; and his son Dean, 13, all of Springfield; and Howard Bigelow, 48, and his son David, 13, Kansas City.

The injured are Bigelow's other son Tommy, 9, and Mrs. Harry Leitwein, 43.

Took Their Pool Away From Boys

DETROIT (AP)—John Steinmetz Jr., 4, and his brother Gary, 3, and two other youngsters were filling up a plastic swimming pool in the Steinmetz back yard so they could cool off.

A man in a pickup truck was driving down the alley and saw the children. He stopped his truck, jumped over a fence, grabbed the pool, threw it in his truck and took off. Police are searching for the man.

Jail Can Be Happy Place For A Reunited Family

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP)—Jail was a happy place today for Mr. and Mrs. James Fulton Foster and five of their seven children. They were together again under the same roof for the first time in two years.

During those two years Foster twice was sentenced to die in the electric chair in the slaying of a Jefferson merchant. His wife Irene struggled to keep the family going at Greer, S. C., by working in a shirt factory.

Then, on Friday, word came that a former Cairo, Ill., policeman had signed a statement in the South Carolina penitentiary admitting the slaying of Charlie Drake, 60, during a robbery attempt.

Last night Irene and James held a reunion on the jailhouse lawn. They hugged and kissed and cried in each other's arms, heedless of about 100 persons who had waited many hours to see them together.

After that Irene, 38, said: "We're going to stay here until we can take him back."

Her slim, mild-mannered husband, a 40-year-old house painter, didn't say anything. He knew legal technicalities might delay his release a week or two.

At this point, Sheriff John Brooks invited Mrs. Foster and the five children to stay at the jail, a large rambling house in this small town some 79 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Foster thinks he would like to do a bit of preaching when he gets home. "I think I can support my family by painting," he said, "but my free time will be devoted to others."

NOT BY GUNS ALONE

By E.M. Barker

CHAPTER 18

"You moved over here to the walking K or have you taken to doing all your riding before sunset?" Slade considered before Wynn Thomson.

A faint smile spread over Wynn's good-looking face. He hesitated and Rachel Kilgore answered for him.

"I don't know as it is any of your business, young man, but that sounded like an insinuating question. Wynn stayed at my house last night. Considering the ungodly hour he brought Martha home from the dance, and the fact that he had a lame horse, I couldn't see the sense in him riding another seven miles."

"Thank you, Mrs. Kilgore," Slade grinned at her.

He found, somewhat to his own surprise, that he was beginning to rather like this tart-tongued, forthright-speaking old lady. Perhaps she was a trouble maker but she was an honest one — if there could be such a thing.

Martha was looking at him with the cool, withdrawn look people sometimes save for not very interesting strangers. There was in her face none of the warmth he had imagined he had seen there for one magic moment on Rachel Kilgore's porch the day before.

It occurred to him that sometime he would tell her why he had not gone to the dance, but now seemed hardly the time or the place. Seeing her cool gaze slide off his face, he couldn't believe it had really made any difference to her anyhow.

Jim Ned Wheeler's dry voice broke the silence. "I hope you can say as much for your friend Frenchy's whereabouts last night."

"You don't hope any such thing, Jim Ned," Rachel cut in sharply. "That lousy sheepman killed this bull, and I hope Slade's got sense enough not to try to stick up for him."

"Frenchy wasn't out of his cabin last night — not until seven o'clock this morning, when I called him out to look at his horse. Somebody borrowed the bay last night and nearly rode the lungs out of him."

Frenchy had nothing to do with it.

Rachel Kilgore's sharp black eyes were boring into him like gimlets. "So that's your story, eh?"

"That's my story — and it's the truth!" Slade said flatly. He pulled out tobacco and papers and slowly rolled a smoke.

"As an officer of the law it is your duty to arrest a man on a citizen's sworn complaint, isn't it?"

Slade shook his head. "You've got me confused with the sheriff, ma'am — the sheriff you elected last fall. It isn't my duty to arrest Frenchy Quebedeaux on a lousy framed-up charge like this. I won't do it!"

Martha's clear voice suddenly broke in. "Perhaps he has his reasons for being afraid to arrest Frenchy — again!" she said sweetly. "I hear he tried it yesterday and some of Frenchy's friends objected!"

As the girl's meaning sank home, the wave of anger that rose up in the cowboy felt like a hot collar around his throat. From the others he had expected obstinacy and opposition. From them it was understandable. But to have this sweet-faced, clear-eyed girl believe anything that was told her somehow cut deep.

He swallowed once, searching in his mind for something that would hurt her as he had been hurt.

"I see that you have something of your grandmother's tongue and disposition after all, Miss Kilgore," he said politely.

The girl caught her breath. Her face turned pink, and her little chin went up. "Thank you," she said sweetly.

Rachel Kilgore eyed them with malicious amusement. She turned to Wynn Thomson and chuckled.

"Why don't you climb his frame for that, Wynn?" she demanded.

"That was meant to be an insult," Wynn looked at her uncertainly.

He had never quite got over his small-boy awe of the old lady, and could never figure out in time a suitable answer for her acid banter. "Why—" he began hesitantly.

"I'm going back to the house," Martha interrupted him abruptly.

Rachel Kilgore threw out a restraining arm. "Just a minute, my dear." She turned to Slade again. "I am going to town this afternoon," she said calmly, "and swear out a warrant for your arrest — and Frenchy Quebedeaux's."

Frenchy butchered one of Wynn's calves yesterday, and it will be obvious to any cattleman jury that he had a hand in killing this bull, too. As for you — everybody present heard you claim yesterday that you had authority to kill any of my livestock you found off my range. I am going to give you a chance to prove that in court."

She smiled tranquilly. "Then I shall see if your friend, Captain Catlin — I believe he is due in Barrancas today — is ready to call off the war. I think he will understand at least that we here in the Chupaderos mean business!"

Slade reined his horse about. "You have a mighty big job ahead of you, ma'am," he said impudently. "You may get me, but Uncle Sam's got a heap of other men. He will be sending Forest Rangers in here long after you and I are both gone!"

There didn't seem to be anybody in the lobby of the hotel, so Slade let the screen door slam. Beulah Denhart's red head popped up suddenly from behind the desk. Her sleeves were pushed way above her elbows and her hands dripped soapsuds.

"Well, gee whiz!" she exclaimed, and then laughed. "Hello, Slade! If this don't beat the dickens! There hasn't been a soul inside the hotel for a week, and then the first day I decide to do a little house cleaning everybody decides to pop in!"

Slade grinned as he crossed over to the desk. "Who's this everybody you're talking about? Is Captain Catlin in?"

She shook her head. "He was supposed to be, but the Albuquerque train is late today. It won't be in until four. She was bent over, struggling with the safety glass she had used to fasten the front hem of her dress up to her knees while she scrubbed the floor.

Slade leaned an elbow on the desk and grinned down at her bent head. "What's the matter, Beulah? Don't you know that nothing looks purtier to a cowboy than a girl with soap on her hands or flour on her nose? Besides, you'll have to get over being embarrassed at getting caught scrubbing a floor if you aim to make a good rancher's wife."

The girl straightened with a shrug, and laid her hands out flat on the desk. "I reckon I don't have to worry about that any more," she said dryly.

Slade looked down at her ringless left hand and then back up to her face. "Why, Beulah! You don't mean you and Wynn have busted up, do you?"

She shrugged and smiled ruefully. "You know Wynn! He met another girl that knocked him for a loop — so he wanted his ring back. At least he was honest about it. I'll have to give him credit for that." She chuckled dryly. "I hope she never knows I wore it a year before she got it."

A kiss and a kiss can produce embarrassment for even the most cool-headed man. There's good reason to continue "Not By Guns Alone" here tomorrow.

Claims He's 115, And Still Works

SAN JUAN, Tex. (AP)—A wiry little rancher and retired canal inspector who lives in a shack about four miles southeast of this little Rio Grande Valley town little rounds up 23 cows and milks five of them.

This wouldn't be so unusual except Jacinto Mata says he is 115 years old.

Mata doesn't have an official record of his birth. But he has outlived two wives and 14 of 17 children.

And what does he do for his long life? "Plenty of good food and lots of tequila," he said in Spanish with a chuckle.

When asked what food he likes best, he replied with another laugh: "Tequila."

Mata said he was born in the Mexican state of Guanajuato and came to Texas in 1909. He said he once had papers that would prove he was 115 but lost them.

He said he worked as a "panal rider"—riding along canals to inspect them—for 41 years before retiring a few years ago.

A spokesman for the Hidalgo County Water and Improvement District said the present water association took over from Louisiana-Rio Grande Canal Co. in the early 1920s and Mata came along with the equipment.

"I have had a wonderful, happy life and have never been in trouble," Mata told a news man through an interpreter.

The friendly little man lives with a daughter. Another daughter lives at nearby Pharr and a son lives in Michigan.

He has five dogs and a horse which he uses to help round up the cattle. Five of the cows belong to him and the others belong to neighbors in the area.

Families Of 4 Children Are Growing Vogue

OTTAWA, Ont. (AP)—The four-child family is becoming common in Canada. This is in contrast with the 1930s when a two-child family was the vogue.

Latest available figures show Canada has 28.7 births every year for every 1,000 of population against 24.9 in the United States.

Really large families are on the wane, but the middle-size family is taking up the slack.

Canada's edge over the United States comes partly because Canadian women continue to bear children into mature years.

In 1934, there were 232.4 births in the United States for every 1,000 married women aged 20-24, and 114.7 in the 30-34 age group.

The comparable figures for Canada in 1935 were 222 among women aged 20-24, slightly lower than the American figure, but 158.2 among the 30-34 group.

Abandoned Barbering For Commercial Fishing

By WADE LUCAS ENGLERD. — When Harry J. Jarvis took off a day back in 1944 from his job of cutting hair and shaving people in a Belhaven barbershop and made $40 the first time he went shrimping, he developed a "fever."

every day since that time, but he apparently has done well with his processing plant here. Now 50 and somewhat of a chain cigar smoker, he is a stocky fellow. He is also an optimist — in fact, he appears to be somewhat of an incurable optimist.

appears to be a great scarcity of shrimp in Pamlico Sound, the creeks, and rivers along the North Carolina coast. "I know that cold weather last February killed a lot of the brown spotted shrimp," said Jarvis. "I know I am not getting many shrimp and none of the other shrimpers are, either."

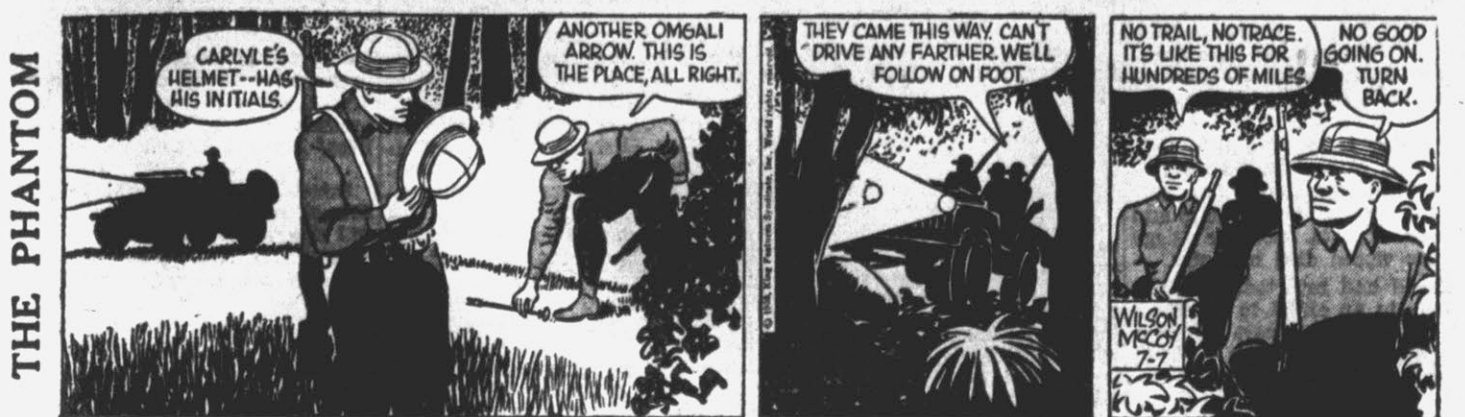

waters the shrimp inhabit will be ready for taking. "I have good reason to believe what I am talking about," he added. "I know that when the moon changes around the middle of July the summer kind of shrimp will show up."

going on." He likes to recall how a certain commercial fisherman scoffed at the small boat Jarvis used when he went into the business of commercial fishing. "That fellow poked a lot of fun at me, but I showed him what a man can do by not being afraid to get down and work along with his own employees," he added.

Operating all year, Jarvis also makes a fish meal, which he says has a high protein content and which he exports into several states through a Philadelphia broker.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged further into new high ground for 1958 in fairly active trading early this afternoon. Leading stocks rose from fractionally to about a point.

The market was generally higher at the start. Some sizable blocks were traded following the three-day July 4 weekend. Prices improved slightly as the session wore on.

Tobacco stocks were jolted at the start by advance publication over the weekend of a new health survey on cigarette smoking. Their losses were moderate, however, as the group was discounting the report last week prior publication. Lorillard bounced back strongly from its loss and showed a net gain of about 2 points. Other tobaccos were mixed.

Liggett & Myers trimmed an early loss and was fractionally lower. American Tobacco and U. S. Tobacco were about unchanged.

Alaska Juneau continued active and was firm following its gains of the past two sessions as the most heavily traded stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Union Oil of California resumed its rebound from recent news of a dividend cut and was up a sizable fraction.

Among the better gainers were Caterpillar, Allied Chemical, United Air Lines, Paramount and Phillips, all up about a point. Zenith and a bit more than that.

U. S. Steel was up a good fraction and other major steelmakers were firm as the question of a price increase for steel continued in abeyance.

Chrysler, General Motors and Ford rose fractionally, giving the automotive group an upside bulge. Royal Dutch was a little higher but Texas Co. and Standard Oil (New Jersey) were about unchanged.

Anaconda was off fractionally and Kennecott eased. Phelps Dodge picked up a fraction as the price situation in the copper industry remained uneven.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $175.80 with the industrials ahead 50 cents. The rails and utilities were unchanged.

Young Brothers Held Responsible For Costly Blaze

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Police say three brothers—aged 7, 8 and 9—were responsible for a million-dollar fire here over the weekend.

The fire burned out the block-long Comfort Coal & Lumber Co. yard, destroyed or damaged eight cafes and blistered four houses and a gas station Saturday night.

The boys were picked up yesterday and released in the custody of their parents after questioning.

Police Lt. Owen Toole of the Youth Division said the brothers admitted setting the fire.

He quoted the boys as saying they were on their way to a store with some empty soda bottles when they found a partially filled book of matches.

The 8-year-old ignited a piece of paper. His 7-year-old brother told Toole he thought he had stamped the small fire out, so the youngsters left the paper and proceeded to the store.

They saw the fire on their way home.

Survivors Of Pacific Crash Tell Of Fighting Off Sharks

HONOLULU (AP) — Three survivors of the C124 Air Force transport plane which went down early Friday in mid-Pacific returned here last night to tell of fighting off a school of sharks before they were rescued.

Nine were aboard the plane. One body was recovered and five others are missing and presumed drowned.

Returning here on the aircraft carrier Boxer, which picked up the three survivors 200 miles northeast of Johnston Island, Capt. Jonathan W. Brown, the plane's commander, told news: "One of the sharks got a good hold on me and was shaking me."

"We were pounding the water and yelling and thrashing and kicking around. I was beating on the shark's head with my fist. He finally let go. There were several of them around and they swam away."

He said they apparently were put off somewhat by shark repellent from the men's lifejackets and by all the noise.

Returning with Brown were T. Sgt. James M. Phillips, Vacaville, Calif., and S. Sgt. James P. Vanderee, San Rafael, Calif. Both were navigators on the big craft, which was on a flight from Travis Air Force Base in California to Tokyo with a crew of seven plus two military couriers picked up in Hawaii. Brown, who comes from Sioux City, Iowa, lives at Travis AFB, northeast of San Francisco.

Brown, Phillips and Vanderee all had minor cuts, gasoline burns and stains from shark repellent. Brown had a minor shark bite on his left shoulder.

They were taken to the Army's Tripler General Hospital for treatment.

Brown said the big Globemaster ditched 200 miles this side of Johnston Island after the No. 3 engine began backing and threw its propeller through the fuselage, cutting off all electric power and communications and crippling all controls except the rudder and elevator. He set her down at 120 knots but the right wing dipped and the plane broke up into sections.

"It went under immediately. I came up through a hole right above me," Brown said.

Vanderee said he had gone to the rear of the plane to help other crew members and the two couriers into their lifejackets when the ship hit the water. He said he tried three times to get out of his seat but each time was washed back by the waves. His shoulder was dislocated.

Special Events Included In Second Summer Term

East Carolina College will present during the second term of the 1958 Summer Session a series of workshops and special courses planned with attention to the needs of the public school teacher.

The travel study tour in geography, July 15-August 6, will be directed by Dr. Robert E. Cramer, professor of geography at East Carolina. Thirty-six students will travel by air-conditioned bus through New England, the Maritime Provinces of Canada, the Gaspe Peninsula, the St. Lawrence Lowlands, and the area near Lake Ontario.

The Music Camp, an annual event on the campus for the past five years, will be directed by Dr. Kenneth N. Outhbert of the department of music, the program to be offered July 13-27.

Enrollment for the first term of the 1958 summer school topped all previous records. A large enrollment is expected for the second term.

Workshops to be featured this summer and their directors, all members of the East Carolina faculty, are: Literature for Children, July 10-22, Dr. Ruth Medlin of the education department; Family Life Skills, July 10-23, Dr. George Douglas of the social studies department; Visual Aids, July 26-August 8, Mrs. Marguerite Crenshaw of the department of library science; Dramatic Arts, July 28-August 8, Dr. J. A. Withey of the English department; and Kindergarten, August 4-8, Annie Mae Murray.

Holiday Traffic Toll Held Down

Cautious driving by millions of homebound motorists across the nation held the July 4 weekend holiday traffic toll well below the preholiday estimate of 410.

Although late reports are expected to boost the death toll, it appeared that the final count would be below the record toll forecast by the National Safety Council for a three-day July 4 holiday.

Fatal highway mishaps got off to a fast start but tapered off commencing Saturday afternoon after early reports had indicated the holiday would end with a new record of traffic deaths.

The Safety Council attributed the lower death toll to energetic traffic enforcement and the shock of the skyrocketing death toll during the early hours of the holiday.

Beauty Pageant Due This Week

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A swarm of the state's most eye-catching and talented girls compete here this week for the Miss North Carolina title, a ticket to the Miss America beauty pageant, and $3,000 in scholarships.

The four-day 1958 Miss North Carolina pageant starts Wednesday and heads toward the Saturday night coronation of a successor to Elaine Herndon of Durham, the 1957 choice.

The winner receives $1,250 in scholarship funds, a wardrobe for the Labor Day week pageant at Atlantic City, N.H., a trip to New York and a week's vacation at Newhead City.

Four runner-ups also will be picked at the final judging in Owens Auditorium.

Prizes include scholarships by Wingate, Elon, Pfeiffer and Brevard colleges, and trophies, gift certificates, and dinners by Charlotte stores. State and local Pepsi-Cola bottlers are donating $3,000 in scholarships and the Charlotte Junior Chamber of Commerce will award $100 to "Miss Congeniality."

Attended Annual Civitan Session

Billy Cox and Robert Taft of Greenville have returned from Wildacres, Elton, Switzerland, site of the annual Civitan Youth Conference on Human Relations.

Cox and Taft were representatives of the Greenville Civitan Club at the conference which was aimed at developing among young people attitudes of understanding, mutual respect and goodwill toward people of different religions, nationalities and races. Other delegates were sponsored by Civitan Clubs throughout North Carolina.

Soviet Embassy Hanging On To Original Letter

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Embassy so far has failed to turn over the original letter purporting to be from a U.S. pilot threatening to drop nuclear bomb near the British Isles.

Receipt of the letter, regarded by U.S. and British officials as a hoax, was announced by the Soviet Embassy last Thursday.

A Foreign Office spokesman said today the Soviets showed the British the original but handed over only a photostatic copy. British security police asked for the original last Friday so that they could study paper, ink and handwriting in an attempt to identify the author.

William Stanley Whales, a former Royal Air Force bandsman, admitted yesterday he lied when he confessed that he wrote the letter.

British officials privately took the view the letter actually was written and posted to the Soviet Embassy from Ipswich, but that in the official view it was entirely a hoax.

Comb Mountains For 2 Escapees

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A search was on today in mountainous Henderson County for two of three long term prisoners who sawed their way out of the county's prison unit Saturday night.

One of the three, all Negroes, was picked up by sheriff's officers shortly after the escape.

Asst. State Prisons Director R. A. Allen said two guards, Norman Frye and Howard Nix, were suspended without pay for minor custodial negligence in connection with the escape.

The U. S. leads the world in production of coal, iron, oil, and silver. Russia ranks second in each of these products.

Adjournment In Early August Is Congress' Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shooting for early August adjournment, congressional leaders mapped out a heavy work docket today as Congress returned from its last prolonged 1958 holiday.

Target date for adjournment is Aug. 9, and prospects are bright that it won't be missed.

Senate leaders posted five bills for action this week. They deal with atomic energy construction, public works appropriations, housing, agriculture and minerals development.

The House faces an even more ambitious program, dealing with military construction, small business, marketing facilities, science scholarships, atomic energy construction, relief for depressed areas, construction of community facilities and small boat safety.

Chances are neither branch will clean up such a heavy program in one week.

There still are some controversial measures in the offing.

The Senate hasn't acted on House-passed bills to provide reorganization of the Defense Department, extension of the reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, and miscellaneous appropriations including financing of the foreign aid program. All must be considered before adjournment.

The list of "must" House bills includes measures to boost Social Security benefits, to provide pensions for former presidents, to regulate union pension and welfare funds, and to authorize and finance a big military construction program.

A Senate-passed bill for general labor law revision currently is not on the program for House action but may be put there in the closing days of the session.

Americans for Democratic Action renewed its call for a tax cut of at least eight billion dollars a year, and for more spending programs to provide a boost for the economy. But there appeared little likelihood either would be voted.

The ADA, which describes itself as a nonpartisan organization, issued a statement signed by a group of economists, educators and labor leaders. Without further government efforts, it said, production levels of 1957 will not be equaled again before 1960. It added that a "long period of underemployment and underproduction... lies ahead."

flammable liquid. This has been verified by police.

Later officers found a container of clothing, soaked in kerosene or some other inflammable liquid, on the back porch of another nearby building. The house was occupied by Zenorie Sneed, Negro woman of 1312 Clark Street and is located two houses down from the first fire.

No evidence could be found that would indicate an attempt had been made to set fire to the clothing, Gibbs said. Officers speculated that the party or parties involved might possibly have been scared away from the scene after the other two fires were started although a definite connection has not been established as yet.

Jessie Ruth Jackson, Negro woman who lives at 1310 Clark Street, the former investigating officers said, "something strange" happened at her house sometime last night. She said someone removed a large wash tub from her yard and placed it up against her back door.

Nothing was found in the tub and no reason could be given for the move by police.

Firemen fought the fire at the rooming house for one hour and 17 minutes, from 4:07 until 5:20 a.m. They were called back to the building later in the morning when the flames rekindled. No appreciable damage as reported at that time.

Little Harm In Trash Bin Fire

A trash fire burned the rear door of a Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. storage building on Dickinson Ave. Saturday afternoon but failed to break into the building.

A box alarm was sounded around 2:45 p.m. Trucks from the main fire station and the West End Sub-station answered the call.

The fire was in a trash bin at the back of the structure. The flames generated enough heat to crack window panes in the door. Considerable smoke hung within the building but damage was not expected to be major.

At 5:30 Saturday afternoon firemen were called to the home of Dawson Nethercutt, himself a fireman, when an electric stove shorted.

At 8 o'clock Saturday night a truck was dispatched to the home of Mrs. L. C. Skinner at 803 E. Fifth St. when a wicker basket near an electric popcorn popper caught fire.

The fire was extinguished before the fire truck arrived. A wall was slightly smoked.
