Award Contract For Building 2

New Classrooms At Bruce School

Pitt Board Of Education Also Sets July 15 For Opening Winterville Bids

Personal and building problems were major items of business handled yesterday by the Pitt County Board of Education in its regular monthly meeting.

Chief among building problems disposed of was awarding of a contract for construction of two classrooms at Bruce Elementary School to Dunn Building Supply Company of Greenville. Dunn's bid of $10,400 for the general construction work was low among three bids received on an informal basis by the board.

Costs of heating, wiring, installation of shelving for the school library and architect's fees are expected to make total cost of the project about $12,500, according to Superintendent D. H. Conley. The project is to be started "immediately," Conley said, and county school officials hope to have the rooms available when the school opens for the 1958-1959 school year.

In addition to Dunn's bid, other bids were entered by East Carolina Construction Company of Grifton. The Dunn firm asked $10,900 for the work and Grifton Builders' bid was $13,965. East Carolina Construction Company was principal contractor for the main building at the school which was opened in May.

The board also set 2 p.m., July 15, as the time for opening of formal bids for a six classroom addition at Winterville School.

Other property issues handled by the board included authorization for a member of the Ayden District School Committee to work out details concerning an easement across the campus of South Ayden School, and authorization for County Attorney W. W. Speight to offer for sale a piece of school property no longer in use.

T. G. Worthington of Ayden was directed to work with Ayden town officials in completing a sewer line easement across the South Ayden School campus. Request for the easement was made by Ayden officials.

The school property which is to be advertised for sale is the old Harper-Pleasant Plains School which was discontinued about three years ago. Sale of the property is expected to be held in October.

Personnel issues which were disposed of included approval of a group of teacher contracts; formal election of school treasurers, janitors and maids; and selection of school bus drivers.

School treasurers named by the board included Dorothy Hardy, Belvoir-Falkland; Mrs. K. Phillips, Falkland; Mrs. Corrine Manning Heath, Bethel; Betty S. Warren, Stokes; Mrs. Martha Alcorn, Packtown; Mrs. Clara Carr, Grimesland; Barbara Sutton McLawhorn, Chicod; Mrs. Hazel Rumbley, Grifton; Mrs. Guyla Clark, Ayden; Mrs. Elizabeth Kite, Winterville; Jean S. Porter, Arthur; Beatrice P. Aycock, Farmville; and Mrs. Geneva Phillips, Fountain.

Also, Mrs. Thelma G. Grant, Sallie Branch; Miss M. M. Allen, Bethel Union; Mrs. Learline K. Simpson, Stokes Elementary; Mrs. D. A. Bove, Cherry Lane; Mrs. Margaret R. King, Pitt County Training School; Mrs. Martha J. Moore, Grifton Elementary; J. J. Brown, South Ayden; Miss Mae D. Odell, Ricks, Robinson Union; Mrs. Ruth Hilda Gregory, Had- dock; Miss Orsella Hargrove, Nichols; Mrs. Bessie M. Chance, H. B. Sugg School; and Mrs. Ellen Blount Gorham, North Fountain.

School bus drivers who were selected will operate the county's 131 buses throughout the year. The total number of drivers is three more than last year.

Average Support Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today the 1958 crop of flue-cured tobacco will be supported at rates averaging 54.6 cents a pound.

This compared with last year's average of 50.8 cents.

The rate is designed to reflect 90 per cent of the parity price of this type tobacco as of July 1.

Formal announcement of the rates by various grades is expected to be made by the department late this week or early next.

June Employment And Jobless Data See Sharp Rise

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government reported today that employment rose to 64,981,000 and unemployment to 5,437,000 in June as a flood of job-hunting students hit the labor market.

The jobless rise of 533,000 from May sent the unemployed total to a peak for any month since before World War II—a 17-year high. Employment, soared by 920,000 over May.

The data were reported in the regular monthly survey of the Commerce and Labor Departments.

Probably the most important feature of the report was that manufacturing industries, worst hit by the recession, shared in the job rise for the first time after a year and a half of steady decline. This, coupled with a sharp rise of six tenths of an hour in the average factory work week, represented solid gains on the recession front.

A smaller factory work week increase had been registered in May. The May-June increase in work hours, aggregating nearly an hour, is the largest two-month gain in a dozen years. The factory work week had risen to 39.2 hours in June, which is still eight tenths of an hour off last year. The increased work hours

Warn Solons Of Loss By Default

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The administration told Congress today that unless it restores a House cut of 325 million dollars in monies for overseas economic development loans, the United States "could lose the cold war by default."

Under secretary of State C. Douglas Dillon suggested, in effect, that Congress might consider scrapping the fund entirely if it refuses the 625 million dollars President Eisenhower asked for the Development Loan Fund.

"This reduction raises a question not merely as to the scale of Fund operations," he told the Senate Appropriations Committee, "but as to whether there should be a fund at all."

"It would deprive the fund of any real prospect of achieving the purpose which congress intended the fund to fulfill."

Dillon spoke at a closed session of the committee as the administration opened its fight to restore total cuts of 397 1/2 million dollars the House has made below authorized spending previously approved by Congress in the recently-enacted Foreign Aid Bill. That authorization bill sets ceilings for foreign aid. The pending bill will provide the actual money.

Although Dillon was questioned privately, the committee made public his opening statement.

As the appropriations committee began hearings on the money bill, Senate Democrats divided on the question of whether to override the House cuts.

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala) called for Senate increases to bring the total near the $3,675,000,000 ceiling fixed in the authorization bill. But Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-NM) said that if an expected move develops within the committee to reduce the amount even below the House-approved total, he will support it.

And Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) said in a separate interview that if the committee does not make further reductions, he will be ready with fund-cutting amendments when the bill comes up for full Senate consideration.

Sen. William F. Knowland of California, Senate Republican said that whether the Senate adds anything to the House figures will depend on how strong a case is made by administration witnesses.

Tentative Rate Nearly Official

Pitt County's tentative 1958-1959 tax rate and budget will become official tomorrow night unless the Board of County Commissioners gets a complaint about them before then.

The $1.08 tax rate and the $1,502,650.30 budget were tentatively approved last Wednesday by the commissioners. Final approval cannot be given until tomorrow night, however, because of provisions of North Carolina General Statutes which require the issues to remain open for 20 days after advertising. The 20-day period will expire tomorrow.

No complaints about the tax rate or the budget were received by the board at its meeting yesterday.

Goldfine Gets One Day Of Rest After Uproar; Prober Is Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) The Harris subcommittee granted Bernard Goldfine a one-day postponement in testimony today but warned, "We are going to expect cooperation."

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), chairman of the subcommittee investigating the gift-giving Goldfine's relations with federal officials, gave this reply to a request from Goldfine's attorneys for a postponement.

Attorney Roger Robb said his Boston millionaire client came to Washington Sunday to prepare to answer committee interrogators again but had gone into a state of physical and mental exhaustion after a chain of spectacular events yesterday.

Robb told the subcommittee at 10 a.m. when Goldfine himself was supposed to have returned to the witness stand—that the discovery of a hidden microphone near a hotel suite occupied by Goldfine aides and theft of some of Goldfine's papers yesterday had left Goldfine with little sleep and given him no time to bone up on committee questioning.

"He has every expectation that he will be able to appear before the committee tomorrow and answer these questions," Robb said. In the aftermath of the microphone incident, the subcommittee fired its chief investigator, Baron I. Shacklette, who had rigged electronic recording equipment in

Air Force Reveals Soviet Jets Shot Down U.S. Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force said today two Soviet jet fighters shot down the American transport plane which crashed-landed in Soviet Armenia June 27.

Five of the nine airmen parachuted. Four others rode the burning plane to the crash landing.

The Air Force said the Red fighters made another firing attack on the crippled transport as it was heading in for its landing. The nine men were released by Soviet authorities to American officials yesterday, returning to their home station at Tehran.

The Soviet version of the incident was that the USAF transport was compelled to land after it had flown into Soviet territory and that the plane burned on the ground.

Today's Air Force announcement said the American fliers reported they were intercepted by the MIGs and set afire at 3,000 feet altitude.

"A combination of extensive thunderstorms, instrument flight conditions and unreported high winds had caused inadvertent crossing of the Soviet frontier," the statement said.

"Five crew members were forced to parachute to safety," the Air Force announcement said. "The remaining four attempted to make an emergency landing at a crude strip 75 miles east-southeast of Lake Sevan. With five parachutes in the air and the aircraft in flames, the MIGs made another firing pass on the crippled plane while it was on its final approach for a forced landing."

The burning plane exploded on the ground. The four crew members who rode it down were able to reach safely.

All members of the crew are suffering from extreme fatigue and exhaustion, the Air Force said. In addition, Airman Peter N. Sabo, suffered second-degree burns.

Soviet release of the fliers left nine other American military men in Communist hands in Europe. The Soviet East Germans are holding eight Army officers and a sergeant who got lost in a helicopter June 7 and ran out of gas over East Germany.

A U.S. expression of regret that the plane flew over Soviet territory was believed to have softened the Soviet attitude as Thompson negotiated for the men's release.

Some Headway In Investigating Suspected Arson

Several persons have been questioned but no arrests have been made by local police in connection with the two fires early yesterday morning.

Police Chief Gibbs stated this morning that a full-scale investigation is being conducted and some headway is being made. SBI Agent Clyde Pentress of Washington is assisting local authorities.

Shortly after the two fires were reported, firemen and police officers found evidence indicating that both were set. Rags and old clothing, with the scent of some type of inflammable liquid, were found in a rooming house at the corner of 14th and Clark Streets and on the back porch of another residence two doors down on 14th Street.

Damage was heavy in three rooms in the two-story boarding house. Minor damage was reported in the second fire.

In addition officers found a container full of clothing, soaked in an unidentified inflammable liquid on the back porch of a third house near the scene of the fires on Clark Street.

The houses belong to Milo Smith, local businessman.

in for propagandizing the public. Goldfine, 67, held the witness stand for two days last week in Harris' subcommittee inquiry into alleged federal favoritism to Goldfine because of Goldfine's friendship with President Eisenhower's top aide Sherman Adams. The Boston textile and real estate millionaire returned Sunday night promising to tell the congressmen, at last, about $777,000 worth of uncashed checks. Then the fireworks began.

Goldfine aides caught the subcommittee's top investigator Baron I. Shacklette eavesdropping from an adjacent hotel room early yesterday morning. Shacklette was found with a microphone and recording machine.

The congressmen grilled their own investigator most of the afternoon behind closed doors, then unanimously accepted his resignation from the $16,300-a-year post. The subcommittee strongly condemns this eavesdropping which occurred without its knowledge, Harris declared.

But the legislators hinted someone had trapped Shacklette into being indiscreet. They demanded an inquiry by the Justice Department, the FBI and the Washington, D.C., police.

YAK-A-THON CONTESTANT MRS. ALTON CLAPP... Passed The 24-Hour Mark This Morning

Other Contestants Await Turns 'To Get In A Word'

Mrs. Alton Clapp, first contestant in a local version of North Carolina's "talk-a-thon" fad, blithely worded her way this morning into her second full day of talking.

She and five other contestants in the talking session, officially termed a "yak-a-thon" by sponsors, are aiming at $750 in prizes being offered by Appliance Mart of Greenville. The second contestant, Mrs. Chester Walsh of Greenville, is scheduled to begin talking when Mrs. Clapp gives up and Mrs. Barbara Lynn Manning of Ayden will follow Mrs. Walsh.

Three other contestants are scheduled to participate but their names have not been announced. They will begin their rounds, in order, after Mrs. Manning is through.

The yak-a-thon is similar to those which have swept the state in recent weeks, except that local contestants don't have to worry about setting any new world's records. Officials at the sponsoring firm say all they are interested in is determining a Pitt County champion.

Miss Sue Huron, a June graduate of Duquesne University, holds the present record of 92 hours. She set the mark on June 24 in Fayetteville, where the talking fad had its beginning in North Carolina.

Mrs. Clapp's monologue, as will those of other contestants, will be limited to talking. Contest rules prohibit reading, although contestants are permitted to talk from notes. Participants are allowed to sit, stand, lounge or walk, as long as they continue talking while doing so. Rest periods of two-and-a-half minutes each hour are allowed by the contest rules. Other than during the rest period, contestants must talk continuously, even during meal times, and are not permitted to accumulate rest time.

Mrs. Clapp began her performance at 10:44 a.m. yesterday and large crowds stood in front of the Evans Street store throughout most of the day. Appliance Mart sales manager B. F. Carraway said this morning that some on-lookers were present through last night.

In addition to the on-lookers, the store is providing judges who stay with each contestant throughout their talking times. The store will remain open on a 24-hour basis until all contestants have completed their performances.

At stake in the contest are an 11-cubic-foot refrigerator, a 21-inch television set, a hi-fi set, a side-radio and a wrist watch. Each of the contestants will be awarded a wrist watch regardless of the outcome.

A chair for use by contestants, has been placed near the front of the store and a microphone has been connected with outside amplifiers.

President And Sec. Dulles Greeted By Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles arrived in Ottawa for a fence-mending visit today for a fence-mending visit.

The President's plane, the Columbine III, landed at 9:55 a.m. after a two-hour flight from Washington. The skies were overcast.

Gov. Vincent Massey, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and top Canadian officials were on hand to greet the presidential party.

The President's visit, to smooth out irritations which have been disturbing the traditional friendship between the two great North American nations, was his first to this capital in five years, and his fourth to Canada.

The party included Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Dulles smoothly to a stop and a battery of artillery fired a 21-gun salute. About 1,000 spectators, including schoolchildren, cheered and waved flags.

Wearing a gray suit and gray felt hat, the President stepped out arm-in-arm with Mrs. Eisenhower into the limousine. Together they walked slowly down the ramp to the red carpet where the governor was waiting. Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker greeted them.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a black figured dress with white hat. Mrs. Dulles was dressed in black.

The President stood at attention as a regimental band in red coats and blue trousers played the Star Spangled Banner.

He then inspected the 100-man guard of honor from the Royal Canadian Regiment.

In conferences with Canadian Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, who invited him to make the trip, Eisenhower will explore economic and international issues.

The aim is closer understanding and some assurance that no insurmountable troubles divide the two nations.

There has been a growing resentment in Canada against the United States and its policies—a feeling that the neighbor to the south ignores Canadian problems or treats them in a casual, off-hand manner.

There have been some rumblings in the United States that Canada is shirking on providing manpower for Western defense.

Many Canadians, for their part, complain that the United States is too much inclined to say "no" to the Soviet Union and to decline to negotiate with the Soviets.

Mainly, Canada is concerned about economic issues. It worries a bit about its trade deficit with the United States, heavy American investments dominating numerous Canadian industries, import duties on Canadian oil, U.S. sales of wheat abroad, the American boycott on trade with Red China, and the threat of higher tariffs on zinc and lead.

In the United States, the Northwest is disturbed over possibility of Canadian diversion of Columbia River waters.

If Diefenbaker has his way, one unprecedented step to combat all sorts of friction will emerge from the conferences. The Prime Minister wants to set up a joint Canadian-American parliamentary committee to tackle the problem.

Eisenhower will stay three days in the Canadian capital, Secretary of State Dulles and his Canadian counterpart Sidney E. Smith will sit in on at least part of the talks. So will other officials.

School Board Meeting Tonight

Raid Still, Arrest Two, Before Liquor Run Off

VANCEBORO—ATU agents assisted by Pitt County ABC officers raided a still near here yesterday before a run of illicit liquor was ever made and arrested alleged operators in the process.

Pitt Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward said Jim Nobles, 45, and Arthur Williams, 32, both of the Vanceboro area, were arrested by the officers around 7 o'clock this morning after the new distillery had been under observation all last night.

The two men attempted to run when the officers came upon them but they were captured after a short chase, Ward said.

Both were charged with possession of an unregistered distillery and mash and each will be given a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Matilda Turner in New Bern this afternoon.

The Pitt County officer said the group watched the still all night until the two men came upon the scene this morning. The officers moved in as the pair began firing up the still's boiler.

The unit was located about 1.5 miles west of Vanceboro near N.C. highway 43 in Craven County.

Officers confiscated a 1950 sedan which had been parked near the scene of the distillery.

They destroyed the 130-gallon copper still.

There was also 200-gallon preheated unit with the outfit, a 300 gallon cooler box with copper condensers, a 310-gallon mash box and three 395-gallon mash boxes.

Officers found nine cases of half-gallon fruit jars waiting for the booze which was never run. They dumped 395 gallons of mash which had been prepared for the run.

ATU Agents Charles Rickerson and Jim Saunders participated in the raid. From Pitt County, officers participating in addition to Ward were H. B. Lilley, James Ross and Walter Taylor.

Women Have Stake In Keeping Gov't Truly Representative

ATLANTA, Ga.—"No one has more at stake in the keeping of our government truly representative of all the people than our nation's women, nor is anyone better able to keep it free and sound."

This quote from a recent address by Charles R. Sligh, Executive Vice President of the National Association of Manufacturers, explains why the NAM is urging more women to get into politics. "The enlarged experience of modern women has fitted them for the contribution of thoughts and attitudes that are vitally a part of our national life," Sligh said.

In his speech entitled "Let's Keep Our Republic," before a convention of several thousand club women, Sligh urged them to take advantage of the opportunities to influence the course of government. "In this country, there are three million more women voters than men," Sligh said. "But your votes are valueless unless you cast them at the polls. . . . The indifference of the ordinary citizen to his government is one of the most baffling facts of present-day life."

The NAM spokesman pointed out: "Women constitute almost a third of the nation's working force, and thus have an interest in the welfare of the thousands of individual and corporate enterprises that provide jobs by supplying the goods and services our people need. . . . And women are bringing up the new generations of Americans upon whose shoulders will fall the responsibilities of government and business in years to come."

"Women, who own so large a share of the wealth of the country, and who manage nearly all the family budgets, have a direct interest in economical government.

We believe that women, in their concern for their families, will want to examine the Federal tax system. It is devised so that the harder a person works the less of his additional earnings he is permitted to keep." The speaker advised the audience, in learning more about taxes, to face the question of "why is it that in our traditional land of opportunity, today there is a penalty for hard work, a punishment for success?" Another important issue of the day on which women should bring their influence to bear concerns federal grant-in-aid. Sligh said, "I would urge that your political groups look into the matter of federal grants-in-aid, which now amounts to more than $5 billion a year of the national budget."

Crumbled macaroons may be added, along with fruit, to Bavarian cream.

Captain Carl B. Wilson, U. S. Army, arrived yesterday from Honolulu, Hawaii, to visit relatives.

New Velvet For Sports

COMO, Italy (AP)—An Italian fashion house has transformed velvet from a dainty, feminine, evening-wear fabric into a rugged tomboy, at home on the grouse moors or the 18th tee.

The "relax" velvet introduced by the house of Legler is crease-resistant, stain and water-repellent, doesn't absorb dust and you can wash it yourself.

Woven in jewel tones, some plain, others patterned with roses, tulips, candy drops and numerous other designs, the fabric was displayed to fashion writers and buyers from all parts of the world at an open-air fashion show on the banks of Lake Como in this northern Italian town.

The show featured top Italian designers including Fabiani, Enzo Capucci, Carosa, and Livoli. They concentrated on next year's clothes using dash and originality.

All favor the sack line. Occasionally a waisted number slipped in, but it was cunningly designed to look like a sack above and below the middle. But there are sacks and sacks, and with their versatility, the Italians showed how fetching they could look.

Even sports outfits have a semi-sack look. For the golf course there's a sack suit of mustard-yellow velvet. Designer Enzo has produced a two-piece outfit comprising a comfortable gathered skirt topped by a loose back-button jacket.

There are two dramatic cocktail numbers in printed velvet. One by Fabiani, of black and yellow sunflowers on a white background, features the semi-trapeze line falling from a wide neckline. The other by Antonelli, in white velvet dotted with colored candy drops, has a chemise top caught in a wide band under the bust. Soft folds follow through the band rounding off the dress with a harem skirt caught tightly at the knees.

Guest Speaker At Belvoir H D Club

Miss Margaret Stevens, assistant home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on various insects and pests when the Belvoir HD Club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. M. Manning.

Reports were given by Mrs. D. M. Hollowell, food and nutrition leader, Mrs. Clarence Barnhill on Safety, and Mrs. C. D. Clark on Freezing Vegetables.

During the business session Mrs. Barnhill, president, stated that all the committees would meet July 8 at the home of Mrs. R. T. Clark to arrange and plan a Progress Program book and to discuss a fair booth for the fall.

R. D. Jefferson Given Dinner

FOUNTAIN—R. D. Jefferson was recently honored at a surprise birthday dinner given by Mrs. C. L. Owens, Mrs. M. D. Yelverton and Mrs. J. L. Dosier, his postal co-workers, on the lawn of the Yelverton home.

The dinner was served buffet style and the guest of honor's table was centered with a decorated birthday cake which was topped with a miniature mail box and automobile, emphasizing his career as rural mail carrier. Other guests were seated at auxiliary tables.

Jefferson was presented with a copy of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible by the hostesses.

Those present for the occasion included Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Jef-erson and sons, Rev. and Mrs. P. M. Cory and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jefferson and daughters, Mrs. J. W. Jefferson, Mrs. F. L. Eagles, Miss Lucille Yelverton, Mrs. Eloise Bushman and children, J. L. Dosier, Dr. Roderick Harris and daughter of Farmville, Miss Jane Garvey of Winston-Salem and Trip Merces of Walsenburg; Rev. and Mrs. John D. Davis and children of Jefferson and children, and Mrs. Fountain.

Various Pest Topic At Meet

Red Oak Home Demonstration Club is setting aside July 19 as a special day to rid the homes and surroundings of various pests.

This is an outgrowth of the timely demonstration given at the July meeting by Mrs. Lillie Little, home demonstration agent, entitled "The Uninvited Guest."

Mrs. Little included in her presentation specific materials used to effectively control the following types of pests: food infesting, fabric destroying, wood destroying, man infesting.

Mrs. Louella Stancil reported on Farm and Home Week, making a comparison of the program 25 years ago with the 1958 program. She pointed out the strides that women of rural North Carolina have made and emphasized the perfection that was evidenced in this year's program.

Mrs. Joe Joyner gave tips on safety in the home and Mrs. B. L. Tyson reported on the Rural Progress Program. Mrs. Thurston Wynn gave a community service report.

A devotional suited to this season of the year was presented by Mrs. Charles Jackson. In conclusion Miss Joyce Jackson, accompanied by Mrs. B. L. Tyson, rendered a musical selection.

Mrs. Don Presser and Mrs. Keith Duncan, hostesses, invited the groups to the buffet table from which iced drinks, sandwiches and cookies were served.

Miss Owens Party Honoree

FOUNTAIN—Angie Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Turner Owens of Fountain, Route 1, celebrated her ninth birthday Saturday afternoon with a party at the home of her parents.

After playing outdoor games, Mrs. Owens, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Tyson and Mrs. Kathryn Warren, served the guests a weiner roast supper.

One Good Word Falling To Mis-Use

By its recent abuses, the word "negotiate" appears about ready to fall into the limbo of ill repute. It already has a hollow sound, and a few more instances of mis-use, as displayed in recent weeks, and "negotiate" will come to be defined as frustration and idle chatter.

Take for instance the Castro kidnappings in Cuba. In that case the rebels seize a handful of Americans and a few Canadians. Ostensibly the abducted men were to be shown evidence the Cuban government was getting support from the United States. But instead of merely turning the men loose after their minor ordeal, there had to be negotiations.

Why? What was there to negotiate? All that was involved was the releasing of innocent bystanders, and some effort to see they came to no harm.

But the "we-must-negotiate" idea prevailed, as though to provide reason for existence of some underchiefs.

Then, nine American Army men are being detained in East Germany. Not even the East Germans can explain why there must be negotiations about the men who found themselves aground behind the Iron Curtain.

No trial. No sentencing. Properly speaking, they can't even be called prisoners; but they are hostages in a gambit to squeeze some kind of recognition for a puppet government.

Negotiate? They're so anxious to negotiate that

System Divided By Components

By LYNN NISBET UNIVERSITY — Officially and technically the Consolidated University of North Carolina has three components: The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; State College of Agriculture and Engineering of the University of North Carolina at Raleigh; and Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Actually there are four components — maybe the listing should be five — because the Division of Health Affairs at Chapel Hill is in many ways a separate entity from the academic university. The central Agriculture Experiment Station at State College also operates under a separate budget. Health Affairs and the Experiment Station both get substantial Federal aid for operations and some for facilities.

The advisory budget commission visited all units of the University last week, except some extension activities throughout the State. On this trip only capital improvements were considered. The operation budgets will come later. President William C. Friday attended all the hearings, but presentations were made by the resident vice-presidents at State, Dr. W. B. Aycock at Chapel Hill and Dr. Gordon Blackwell at Woman's College.

All these administrative officers are relatively young men in years and experience on their jobs. All of them grew up with the University after consolidation and are not handicapped by prejudice acquired when the boards were under separate boards of trustees. A gratifying result of this is a fine spirit of teamwork. Little jealousies which were so obvious eight or ten years ago are entirely absent now. For the first time in the 12 years your reporter has made the budget tour there was evidence that the University is a consolidated organization.

HEALTH AFFAIRS — The Division of Health Affairs, under direction of Dr. Henry T. Clark, Jr., takes from 35 to 40 per cent of the total Chapel Hill budget, both for operation and physical facilities. It is built around the school of medicine and the big teaching hospital with its nursing school, and a psychiatric school closely related to the mental hospital system. It includes the schools of dentistry and pharmacy housed in their own buildings, and one of the half dozen best schools of public health in the country.

Physically connected is the headquarters unit of the State tuberculosis hospital system, administered by a separate board of trustees but closely affiliated in teaching and treatment courses with the University.

Of the $12,141,000 requested for the cost of quarters and subsistence for nine healthy men for an indefinite period hasn't even entered the picture.

These two affairs reek of immaturity and irresponsibility in the simplest fields of human relations.

As a general thing, hostages are more of a burden than a blessing. But logic seems to have flown out the window.

Add these petty irritations to futile negotiations of the past between East and West, and that word means less and less.

We'll just have to find something else to take its place.

A Real Bargain In The Addition To Hospital

Most of us are inclined to look at "bargains" with a slight reservation.

We lean toward the belief that a "bargain" is such only when the offered product has a real and tangible value and usefulness at a cost below its actual worth. Otherwise, the proposition is simply one on which the price has been reduced with no other changes in overall values.

In view of that way of thinking, we believe Pitt County is being offered a genuine bargain in the proposal to build a new wing on Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The project, which has a rated value of $1,500,000 can be completed at a cost of about a half-million dollars to the county. Considering the hospital's growing need for space, that is as cheap a price as anyone could hope to pay.

The proposition was made more attractive than ever yesterday with the announcement that federal participation in the project would obligate the county to only one-third of the cost, rather than half the cost as originally announced. The difference is an estimated $250,000, which will come from federal Hill-Burton Act funds if county voters will approve local participation in a bond election September 27.

Without the local participation the project of course, will never be started. We don't believe the county can afford to let that happen.

Just Marking Time By Talk?

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — One of our troubles is that we can't see through Premier Khrushchev's head. He extends a friendly hand one minute, a fist the next. But we don't know what he has up his sleeve.

A great many Americans have tried to analyze the meaning of the recent on-again-off-again Soviet tactics. But this writer hasn't seen or heard of one explanation yet that looks fool-proof.

It's possible the Soviets' sudden reversals in recent months — from nice to nasty to nice — are the product of simple bumbling and stumbling in foreign policy or of internal Communist party conflicts hidden from sight.

It's also possible the Soviets don't care much what they do or say from month to month so long as they keep a couple of balls in the air, make propaganda, and keep stalling on disarmament or finding ways to prevent surprise attacks. What Khrushchev has in mind for 3, or 5, or 10 years from now for the United States is something we can only guess at. And in this contest guessing carries a chilly feeling.

For, through all the shifting gears of the Kremlin one gruesome thought persists: Is Khrushchev stalling until he feels strong enough to wipe us out with a surprise attack? That's possible too.

It's almost certain neither side is going to talk seriously about disarmament, and for various reasons. One is enough: so long as both are heavily armed each has a measure of safety from attack by the other.

But how much safety from surprise attack each has is something only the top men on both sides know. I would seem to be

Talent Still Sought

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — If you have a good three-act play collecting dust in your trunk, now is the time to take it out and storm Broadway.

But it has to be good. "The theater today is wide open," said Audrey Wood, one of the nation's top theatrical agents. "There's a tremendous need for new talent. If you have any kind of talent at all, it sticks out — it cries out to be helped."

But a play has to be good to succeed now. There is room only for quality now. Miss Wood, who looks like a perky, blue-eyed, auburn-haired visiting schoolteacher, is little known to the playgoing public. But she is a real power in the theater. She has helped put between 80 and 100 plays on the boards here, including some of the most famous of the last generation.

For 17 years Miss Wood and her husband, Bill Liebman, ran their own theatrical talent agency. Four years ago they sold out to the Music Corp. of America, which promptly found out it needed Miss Wood to handle the talent it had acquired.

Broadway gossip is that MCA paid half a million dollars for the Liebman agency, and still pays Miss Wood about $1,000 a week for her services. She represents such playwrights as Tennessee Williams, William Inge, Robert Anderson, Carson McCullers, Garson Kanin, and Dorothy and Dubose Hayward.

Among other theater celebrities she serves as agent are Shirley Booth, Leslie Caron, Iobhan McKenna, Michael Redgrave and Ben Gazzara. Her greatest joy is to take a young unknown playwright and help guide him to the maturity of his powers, as she did with Williams.

"The relation between a writer and his representative is as intimate as marriage," she remarked. "Each must believe completely in the other's honesty, endeavor and integrity. It is a day-by-day devotional work that is impossible without mutual respect and trust."

Miss Wood said that the chief art of her job consists in getting "the right play to the right producers at the right moment."

"Very often a writer doesn't come in with a play. He comes in with two-thirds of a play. You have to have valid critical ability, and he has to be willing to listen to your suggestions," she says.

"If an established playwright comes to me, I still have to tell him, 'I've got to be able to talk to him as if you were just a new boy from Pubisque.'"

Wood has been notably successful in creating personal loyalty to her among some of the world's most temperamental types.

"The ideal way to handle a writer is to be there when he needs you — and not be there when he doesn't need you," she said.

"Most of the playwrights are men. They have pride, and must feel they are standing on their own two feet, making most of their own decisions. It is very important, particularly when they are young, that they get a personal adulation they can only give themselves. They must feel they've whipped that big world all by themselves."

"And yet," she smiled, "you must be that still small voice they listen to when they need to. A good agent should be faceless."

One of the great needs of the theater today, she believes, is some way to endow talented young playwrights — to keep them afloat during the struggling period when they are mastering their craft.

"A real writer isn't ruined by help," she said firmly. "In all my years in the theater I've never seen any young writer given that much money."

You'd Think The World Would Learn

Fields Of Blueberries

A name and address hastily scribbled on a juice-stained bit of paper . . . happy memories of blueberry pie still warm from the oven . . . the sight of 28 canned pints of blueberries secreted in a closet . . . all serve to underscore the peak of their season which is now largely behind us.

Actually, my participation in this blueberry season was by proxy; the delegate-in-attendance of course, was the Missus; and her activities in this department were always out of the way by the time I came home from the office, so who could ask for more?

She struck it rich two days last week at a farm near Bridgeton where low, marshy ground provided a setting for at least three good-sized berry fields. The one she visited was maybe two-to-three acres in size.

These berry fields were cultivated, in proper rows and regularly pruned. No undergrowth much bending involved, as the bushes stood almost head-high; and you can judge for yourself the easy pickings when on one trip a party of five women and two knee-high enthusiasts harvested a bushel of the fruit in about an hour and a half, to say nothing of what they ate in the process.

The lady of the farm, a Mrs. Naomi Smith, said the "big blues" were not quite ready on that day but the regulars were rarin' to go. Maybe 18 pickers were on the job, getting berries for the market.

And, she said, because the field had mixed rows of the "big blues" and regular berries, it would all be cleared out with a bulldozer at the end of the season . . . and replanted (Thank goodness!) Mrs. Smith said it took about three years of growth for the bushes to reach their present stage of development.

So the blueberry operation seems like a major occupation on that farm, which is a little bit remarkable for Eastern Carolina where tobacco and corn hold center-stage.

Thinking about it over the weekend, it seemed to me there is a lot of such low land unsuited to basic commodities which could be used for something like blueberries . . . but, if it got out of hand and everybody got into the act there'd be an awful lot of blue-stained blueberry eaters around, and a color-blind Purple People Eater would be eating his way up and down the countryside.

Sobering thought; Isn't it?

Other Editors Saying --- Statistics And Smoking

(Wilson Times) The linking of cancer to cigarette smoking is of special concern to this tobacco land. Reams have been written on the subject, there is much conjecture, but nothing discovered to definitely attribute the cause of cancer to cigarette smoking.

The basis for linking smoking with cancer has been established through statistical reports. Now scientists are attacking the validity of statistical reports because of the other associations as to cause of death from lung cancer.

The discussion was renewed because of the Hammond-Horn and Doll-Hill statistical studies in England. These scientists say that statistical association between smoking rates and death or disease rates might be expected to appear, simply from the many in which the studies are made.

Dr. Joseph Berkson, head of Biometry and Medical statistics at the world-famed Mayo clinic expressed doubt over the statistical studies and backs up his position. He is a member of the American Cancer Society's committee that sponsored the Hammond-Horn study so he felt a responsibility to make a careful study of the evidence.

Dr. Berkson says the statistical link is not "so sound or convincing as has widely been assumed. My own conclusions are quite different from those who claim that this provides proof that smoking is an important cause of lung cancer."

Sir Ronald Fisher the father of modern statistics shares Dr. Berkson's views. This eminent scientist, professor of genetics at Cambridge University, England, asserts that statistics do not prove that smoking causes lung cancer and noted that "overconfidence" in statistical reports has blocked scientists from other important lines of research.

Sir Fisher makes a wise observation when he says, "I question efforts to plant fear in the minds of perhaps a hundred million smokers — to plant it with the aid of all the means of modern publicity backed by public money, without knowing for certain that they have anything to be afraid of in the particular habit against which the propaganda is directed."

This is sound advice. Everyone wants to know the cause of every type of cancer. Money will continue to be spent by the tobacco industry to further the discovery of the cause and cure. And the tobacco industry is making a great contribution to society through its research division.

Smoking is like eating or anything else, done in moderation it cannot harm you. In fact there is no direct proof to date to link cigarette smoking to lung cancer.

Opinions In Brief

"Human ingenuity for getting around laws and picking up a shady dollar is practically without limit and public treasury is a temptation into which some citizens are easily led. But it does seem we should be able to devise some reasonably safe system which won't bar the skills the Government so badly needs." — Memphis Press-Scimitar.

"I simply believe that no one can ever lose by buying America in any way they want to buy it — with their time, with their effort, with their dedication in public service, with their money — any way. America is the concept that must guide all of us and give to each of us a feeling of tremendous confidence." — President Eisenhower.

Why Do Some Companies Grow

By ELMER ROESSNER While lucky may sometimes be a factor, there are usually sounder reasons why some companies expand and others stand still, according to a study by Stanford Research Institute.

The Institute sought answers to the question of differences in company growth — a difference that has long puzzled stockholders, investors, employees and executives themselves.

The Institute took a group of 210 "gifted" companies with exceptional growth histories between 1939 and 1949, and a group of 169 firms whose performance was well below the average in that decade. Then it analyzed the performance of each group during the 1949-1956 period.

Rigid formulas were not developed, as had been expected. But the study succeeded in identifying certain characteristics and practices of each group.

POINTS TO WATCH The conclusions, presented at an American Management Association conference on "Planning ahead for profits," disclosed five major points of difference. As summarized by Harwood F. Merrill, A.M.A. vice president, they are:

1. Progressive companies characteristically have organized programs to seek and promote new business opportunities.

They invest significant portions of their earnings in market development, new product development and acquisition planning. The key word, according to the Stanford analysis, is "organized."

2. Growth companies have an affinity for growth products.

Seventy-five per cent of the 210 growth companies were operating in industries with high rates of growth. This would simply raise the old chicken-or-egg question were it not that the same companies showed a marked willingness to shift from declining fields to those of high growth potential. Less than 1 per cent stayed in markets with low growth rates.

SOUND, COURAGEOUS 3. Expanding companies are building on a hard core of successful past operations.

4. They have courageous and energetic management, willing to take carefully considered risks.

5. Luck is always an imponderable, but well managed companies are prepared to capitalize on the breaks they get.

While the Stanford study concerned only large corporations, observation may indicate that the same criteria apply to small operations. Here's an example almost everyone has seen.

All over the country small grocery stores have fallen before the competition of big supermarkets. Yet in almost every neighborhood there is a small store that converted into a "superette," offering self-service, shaved prices and wide assortments. This brought survival and, in many instances, growth as well.

HORIZONTAL VS. VERTICAL DISPLAYS IN FURNITURE

Horizontal assortment displays, rather than vertical assortment, are being tested by many furniture and home furnishings stores. The idea is not new, but it is getting new refinements.

Vertical assortment consists in displaying like goods together. This means grouping straight chairs in one place, lamps in another. Horizontal assortment consists in displaying related items together. This does not necessarily mean showing completely furnished rooms, but does include the display of a group of lamps that go well with each of a group of chairs.

These horizontal displays work two ways: They suggest additional purchases and, if properly done, guard buyers against buying items that clash with one another. Shoppers who fumble in their unguided efforts at interior decorating are one of the chief sources of complaint and returns in the furniture field.

Crazy Hats Are Newest Beach Fad

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures
This is the year when it's fashionable to keep your head covered when you are basking in the sun, even if you are the no-hat type in winter. Hot sun can burn your hair as well as your skin and a hat, no matter how fanciful, provides a practical protector. In fact, there is a trend to the crazy hat, one that is enlivened with such weird things as trout files or vegetables.
A pretty, packable hat of terry cloth may be made easily, and does lend a charming note to a beach costume. You may use a towel for it, and if you have some extra towels make a matching poncho. Cut the towel for your terry hat to 25 inches long on one side, 39 inches on the opposite side and 14 inches on either of the two other sides. This is shaped sort of like a lamp shade when you are finished. Hem it all around and sew fancy hooks and eyes to the four corners. Now, hook the two short sides around your head in front, pick up the other two corners, run them in opposite directions and hook them in back.

TERRY TURBAN—Make it yourself with turkish toweling and hooks to cover a wet head on the beach. Handy too when that home permanent wave is setting.

String corks, kindergarten beads or other silly things on a cord, fasten them to curtain or drapery hooks, and attach them into a turban for ear rings.

If you decide to make the little beach coat, sew two matching bath towels together leaving space for your neck.

This terry turban comes in handy too when you give yourself a permanent. Directions usually call for winding a towel around the head, so why not be pretty while your wave is setting. Newer home permanents without lotion simplify the waving process because the waving material is in end papers, no smell or drip. These are developed for the new breezy, casual hairdos, and you can even get one custom made for your particular hair, so your wave is just the way you like it. This prevents too much or too little curl. This process from straight hair to waves takes only a short while, so you can relax on your porch and look pretty while you take your hair beauty treatment.

If you are going to cavort in the sun, do it gracefully. It is incongruous that some girls who spend a great deal of money on their sun outfits, oil themselves to a disenchanting stage or are such avid swimmers that they drown in rats, hair and swim suits dripping wet from early morning until late at night.

Italian Way Found Worthwhile

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

The Italian way of marinating cooked vegetables and serving them cold is worth adopting.

We first came on snap beans prepared this way when we went, years ago, to a small Italian restaurant on New York's East Side. There the owner's whole family cooked and served dinner to paying guests who made reservations to dine at seven or nine o'clock. At both sittings family-style platters came to each table. The meal began with stalks of celery and whole tomatoes, melon, veal in tuna sauce and went on to soup, pasta or risotto. Then came the main course—roast beef or veal with potatoes and a huge bowl of cold marinated snap beans.

When we staggered home after this meal we looked into our Italian cook books and found it common practice to marinate cooked vegetables. As readers of this column know, we've passed along variations of marinated snap beans. Recently we marinated lightly-cooked carrot sticks with equal success. The carrots may be served on a platter of antipasto or be offered with hot or cold roast meat or poultry.

MARINATED CARROTS
Ingredients: 6 large or 8 medium-sized carrots (about 1 1/2-3 pounds without green tops), 1 cup boiling water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup olive oil, 3 tablespoons cider vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, white pepper, 1 small garlic clove, 1 bay leaf, 3 tablespoons minced parsley, extra salt.

Method: Pare carrots; cut into sticks about 3 inches long and 1/2-inch thick. Cook rapidly, covered, in 2-quart (wide bottom) saucepan with boiling water and 1-4 teaspoon salt; turn once and cook until tender but still crisp—about 8 minutes. Drain. Turn carrots into a shallow container. Beat olive oil, vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper together with a fork; add garlic clove (cut in half) and bay leaf (broken into several pieces). Pour over carrots and mix well. Sprinkle with parsley. Refrigerate, covered, overnight. Remove to room temperature shortly before serving. Sprinkle lightly with extra salt if needed. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

North Korean Soldier Staged One-Man Attack

SEOUL (AP)—A North Korean soldier armed with hand grenades and a submachinegun stole through the U. N. portion of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea July 4 and made a one-man attack on a U. N. military police shelter.

had gone outside to investigate a noise shot him. The intruder fell on his own grenade and was killed by its blast.

The U. N. Command said Communist representatives on the joint observer team for the demilitarized zone claimed the incident was instigated by the U. N. Command. The Reds refused to acknowledge the attacker as one of their side or to accept his remains "in spite of a North Korean uniform and other material which pointed to his Communist origin," the communique said.

Airliner Bomb Proves A Hoax

DENVER (AP)—A big airliner with 25 persons aboard made an unscheduled landing here yesterday after an anonymous caller told police in Chicago that a bomb had been planted aboard.

United Air Lines said a thorough search of the Chicago-to-Portland flight turned up nothing unusual. A UAL spokesman termed the bomb call a hoax. The plane continued on after a 2 1/2-hour delay.

Elfrida Finally Met Her Match

NEW YORK (AP)—Elfrida von Nardroff lost $33,000 and one of her two titles last night. The Brooklyn quiz whiz finally was ousted from NECT's Twenty-One after 21 appearances. Robert Leicester, an assistant director of a private high school in New York, beat her 21-10. They were playing for $3,000 a point difference in their scores.

Thus, Leicester's 11-point margin of victory gave him $33,000 and the same amount was subtracted from Miss von Nardroff's previous winnings of $235,500, leaving her with $202,500.

The Brooklyn woman remains the record money winner for a single TV quiz show. Her loss to Leicester drops her total winnings below the $224,000 won by Robert Strom, an 11-year-old Bronx boy, on two different shows.

She missed the first question asked her last night. She correctly named the late Robert Jackson as prosecutor at the Nuremberg World War II war crimes trials and the late Martin Bormann as the Nazi leader tried in absentia at the trials.

But she hesitated between Hermann Goering and Paul Joseph Goebbels as the Nazi leader who cheated justice by committing suicide. Finally, she said Goebbels and was wrong.

Leicester answered two questions correctly to score 21 and Miss von Nardroff answered her second question correctly to score 10 points and limit her losses.

Miss von Nardroff, 32, quit her job as a personnel manager to concentrate on the show. After taxes she will keep about $50,000 of her winnings.

Met Presley And Receives Ticket

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—John King, 19, of Cleburne, Tex., enjoyed a rather expensive handshake yesterday. Elvis Presley, rock 'n' roll singer, now a Ft. Hood, Tex., soldier, was pulled over by Highway Patrolman B. G. Adams and given a speeding ticket. So was King.

Adams said King, who got his handshake while the tickets were being written, was trying to catch Presley, who apparently was trying to outrun King.

Right-To-Work Issue On Ballot

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit closed or union shops in Kansas will be submitted to the voters at the next general election.

The Kansas Supreme Court yesterday ordered that the "right-to-work" issue be placed on the November ballot. The proposal would make it unlawful to require membership or nonmembership in a labor union as a condition of employment.

The court, called upon to rule whether the title of the amendment was misleading, directed that the title be stricken but that the rest of the amendment be printed on the ballot.

Narrowly Escape Injury As Car, Truck Collide

GRIMESLAND—Occupants of a car and a truck narrowly escaped injury when the vehicles collided at the intersection of two roads within the city limits here yesterday afternoon.

Investigating patrolman H. R. Winslow identified the driver of the car involved as Guy Jones Jr., 20-year-old Negro of 53 S. 15th St., Newark 7, N. J.

Operator of the truck was identified as Henry J. Hardee, 34, of Grimesland Rt. 1.

Winslow said Jones has been charged with disregarding a stop sign as a result of the accident.

Jones was quoted as saying his brakes would not hold as he came to the stop sign.

Damage to the truck, which was pulling a trailer, was set at $400. Damage to the auto was estimated by Winslow at $700.

Greenville Named Site Of State Teen-er Tournament

American Loop Favored In Today's Big Ballgame

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer BALTIMORE (AP)—A record big league Baltimore crowd of more than 49,000 was expected to jam-pack Memorial Stadium today for its first look at the underdog National League's in the 25th annual All-Star Game.

Although the Nationals appeared to boast the stronger starting lineup, the Americans were a 14 to 10 favorite to win their second straight and their 15th since the spectacle originated in 1933. There was no game in 1945. The odds-makers based their claim on the American's stouter pitching and a better bench, led by Ted Williams and Yogi Berra.

Showers were forecast for late in the afternoon. The game was scheduled to start at 12 noon (EST).

An added feature was the resumption of the rivalry between last October's World Series managers, Fred Haney of Milwaukee and Casey Stengel of New York. Both wasted no time expressing their determination to pull out all stops in an effort to win.

Haney hurled a couple of early surprises, naming Warren Spahn, his own left-handed ace, to open on the mound for the National League, and selecting Willie Mays, the San Francisco Giants' slugger center fielder, as his leadoff batter. Stengel, who nominated his veteran right-hander, Bob Turley (12-3), to open for the American League, countered with a surprise of his own, announcing Mickey Mantle, the Yankees' strong boy, as the No. 2 hitter.

Stengel named Boston's Jackie Jensen and Kansas City's Bob Cerv his third and fourth hitters.

The selection of the 37-year-old Spahn (10-5) was perhaps the biggest surprise, since the A. L. batting order is packed with right-handed hitters. Leadoff man Nellie Fox of Chicago is the only southpaw swinger, with Mantle batting from either side of the plate.

Haney, in his first All-Star managerial attempt, opined that "a good pitcher doesn't worry about what side of the plate a batter hits from. Also, Spahn is well rested. He hasn't pitched since Friday. Besides, it is a real big ball park, and Spahn likes to work in a big park."

Double-decked Memorial Stadium measures 309 feet down each foul line and 410 feet to center. A total of 1,500 temporary seats won't cut the dimensions.

"I'll probably use three pinch hitters," Haney said. "And I'd like to get them in front of Mays. That's why I put him in the lead-off spot. He's the hottest hitter in our league and I want him to come to bat as often as possible. I'm here to win, not to shuffle players."

Stengel arranged his starting lineup with plans for extensive changes. He'd like to get such sluggers as Williams, Berra and

Al Kaline of Detroit in the game as quickly as possible. "I come here to win me an All-Star game," he snapped, "and to beat the guy which I didn't do in the World Series."

Neither manager revealed his pitching plans after the third inning. Each said it depended upon whether he is ahead or behind.

Durham Wallops Hi-Toms Twice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A double jolt from Durham's Bulls last night cut sharply into the High Point-Thomasville lead in the Carolina League.

Durham pounded out a 13-11 win in the opener of a doubleheader, then swamped the Hi-Toms a second time, 10-6.

Danville and Winston-Salem, in a close race for second place, went 13 innings before Danville squeezed out a 3-2 decision. It left Danville 1 1/2 games behind the Hi-Toms, with Winston-Salem 2 1/2 games back of the leader.

The Durham Bulls racked up eight runs in the first inning of the opener and piled up a 12-0 lead before the Hi-Toms began scoring in the fourth frame.

The issue was never in doubt in the second game. Durham had a lead of 8-3 after the fifth inning, and the Hi-Toms never managed to come close.

Winston-Salem's score in the first inning gave an edge that was good until Danville tallied in the ninth to knot it at 3-3. It took four more innings to decide the contest for Danville.

Bert Barth's 14th home run of the season in the ninth inning gave Wilson its winning margin. Fred Valentine had a two-run homer to help pace the Tobs' attack.

Left Don Thompson got his ninth win of the season in Greensboro's triumph over Raleigh. Errors gave the three-run homer by Joe Theis in the eighth solved his problems.

Games tonight: Raleigh at Greensboro, Durham at Hi-Toms, Burlington at Wilson, and Winston-Salem at Danville.

A good guess is that Haney will follow with Bob Friend of Philadelphia or Don McMahon of the Braves. Stengel was almost certain to use Billy Pierce, White Sox southpaw star, and his own Ryne Duren, the sensational rookie right-hander who has been averaging a strikeout every two batters in relief.

haired Randy Petri, a lanky Texan from Austin, stays in the groove he could become the youngest player ever to win the National Public Links golf crown.

Petri, 17-year-old son of a stereotypist for the Austin American Statesman, is a corner. Although he has been playing golf only four years, he won the Texas State high school title in 1957 and was runner up this year.

"We can play every day of the year in Austin," he drawled. "I just went out four years ago and started hitting the ball around. I experimented with my shots and my swing and just came by it naturally, I guess."

The Stephen F. Austin High School student fired a 39-34-73 to match par over the 6,866 yardage of the gently rolling Silver Lake course yesterday to be grouped among the first qualifying round leaders.

The field of 150 pay-as-you-play golfers finish their qualifying test today with the 64 low scorers entering match play tomorrow.

The youngest player ever to win the Public Links title was Les Bolstad now golf coach at the University of Minnesota. He was 18 years, 3 months old when he took it in 1926.

Don Essig III of Indianapolis was five months older when he won last year at Hershey, Pa. The Louisiana State University team member is a serious threat to become the first to retain the championship since 1929.

Essig: Frank Schmidt of Dayton, 24-year-old sales representative, and Walt Durdle of Peoria, 25-year-old park district greenskeeper, wheel into the first round lead with 71s.

Grouped at 72 in the race for medalist honors are Jim O'Hern, Bellarmine College student in Louisville; steel inspector Chet Kasper of Chicago Heights, Ill., and Harry Mussatto, Western Illinois golf coach.

C. Allen Ducker of Charleston, S.C., and Aaron Rice of High Point, N.C., each had a 40-37-77 score. James Ward of Jamestown, N.C., had 42-37-79 and Walter All of Charleston, S.C. had 47-39-86.

Tourney Will Be Staged On July 23, 24 Here

It was announced today by Greenville Recreation Department Head Gordon Goodman that the VFW State Teen-er League Tournament will be held in this city July 23, 24.

Goodman told reporters that he received a letter from newly-appointed VFW State Athletic Director James L. Brinson, stating that Greenville has been selected as the site of the tourney by unanimous vote of VFW officials.

The state tourney has been held here for the past two years with what state officials termed "the utmost success."

Brinson, who is taking over the duties held by Carlton Garrett for the past two years, appointed Goodman State Tournament Director. Goodman will work with the local VFW, the local Teen-er League, the local Recreation Department, and the State VFW in connection with the tournament.

Six teams are expected to take part in the two-day affair July 23, 24. The areas represented will be Districts 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, and 8. This cross-section will include the best Teen-er clubs in North Carolina.

Gastonia, which has copped the state title for the past two seasons and has gone to the National finals on one recent occasion, is expected to be the leading representative from the Western part of the state. Greenville, from District 1, is being heralded as the toughest competitor from the East. The two clubs clashed in the finals of the tournament last year.

In 1957, Greenville was the only town in District 1 which sponsored a Teen-er League team. This year, there will be some competition within the area. Washington has inaugurated a three-team league and will undoubtedly field a team to face Greenville in a playoff to determine the District 1 representative.

Though the tournament has not been drawn up completely, Brinson and Goodman have announced that there will be five ball games played. All five games will be played at Guy Smith Stadium. In 1956 when the state tournament was first held here, all the games were played at East Carolina Field; in 1957 they were played at ECC and at Guy Smith. This year the College will house the six teams but all five ball games will take place at Guy Smith Stadium.

Goodman told reporters that the tournament details are being worked out now and that a release will be made as soon as all the arrangements are completed. Greenville's Teen-er League representative to the state tournament—providing they get past Washington—will consist of an All-Star team picked from the four local clubs. The four local clubs are Home Builders, State Bank, Guaranty Bank, and College View.

Didn't Like It So They Didn't Play

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Angered because their manager was fired 14 months ago, the Panama City Flyers of the Class D Alabama-Florida League refused to take the field last night for a scheduled baseball game with Fort Walton Beach.

Their refusal to play automatically bans each one from organized baseball for the rest of his life," declared club President Sam Martin.

Joe Tipton, former catcher for the Carolina Dairy softballers last night 8-5, in an Industrial League ball game at Guy Smith Stadium. A second ball game was forfeited to Quality Oilers because their opponents, Coffman's, were unable to field a team.

The Graniteers punched out eight hits to score their eight runs against the Dairy in the first game. George Phillips and Jerry Phillips (no relation) pulled down two hits each to pace the winning team at the plate. Getting the other baseknocks were Foell, Roebuck, and Conway. For Carolina Dairy, Hall had two and Boyd, B. Tripp, E. Tripp, and Warren had one each.

The winning hurler was Don Gordon. The loser was Bill Altman.

Americans Look Bad In Britain

ST. ANNE'S-ON-SEA, England (AP)—The adoration and respect American golfers built up in Britain during the 1920s and 30s "is being waned by modern Americans who enter British tournaments but do not show up."

"It is bad manners," Gene Sarazen said, "besides being bad for golf. It's like telling somebody you'll come to dinner and at the last minute going off some place else."

"I'm not calling names," Sarazen said, "but some of our boys are great for entering but not starting."

State Bank Pitching, Power Clubs Guaranty Bank, 11-

In Teen-er League play last night behind the three-hit pitching of State Bank pitcher Jeff Fountain, Bank tripped Guaranty Bank, 11-6. Fountain was backed up by his own team's heavy hitting. The State Bankers punched out 10 hits off Guaranty Bank hurler Dave Boyd. Boyd fanned seven and walked six. Fountain fanned 12 and walked six.

Jaycees, VFW In Longest Ballgame

The Jaycees and the VFW tangled yesterday at Elm Street Park in the longest ball game yet played in local Little League history. The ball game went for 12 innings, with the Jaycees finally winning out 5-4.

Alton Clapp (4-5) copped the mound victory for the Jaycees. Christopher, who relieved Johnson in the seventh, was the loser.

Going into the final inning of the regulation game, the sixth inning, the two clubs were tied at 4-4. They battled back and forth for six more frames before the Jaycees could break through for a run.

In the 12th, the Jaycees pulled across a run on a walk, a hit by Flanagan, and an error by the catcher.

The Jaycees piled up four hits. The VFW outfit tallied three hits. Getting the hits for the winners were Sutton, Flanagan, Morton and Clapp. Christopher got two for the losers and Blalock added the third.

Besides MacKay, members of the team include Whitney Reed, Alameda, Calif.; Sam Giammaiva, Houston; Earl Buchholz Jr., St. Louis; and Jack Douglas, Stanford University, Calif.

MacKay, 22, never played before more than 200 people before his selection as a surprise substitute in the Davis Cup Challenge Round last December in Melbourne.

He and Reed, fifth and eighth, respectively, are the lone players in America's top 10 named to the team. Giammaiva is ranked 16th, Buchholz and Douglas unranked. Buchholz, 17, won the junior boys title at Wimbledon last Saturday, but has had no Davis Cup experience. Douglas, runner-up to Peruvian Alex Olmedo for the national college crown, is a complete dark horse.

Omitted, for one reason or another, were the country's top four players—Vic Seixas, Herbie Flam, Dick Savitt and Gil Shea—and also Ham Richardson, who was No. 1 in rankings in 1957.

Some of the players obviously declined. Others were ignored. But the fact remains America still is playing Davis Cup tennis with a second-string lineup.

Soviet Science Delving In Death And Revival Secrets

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet scientists, in an extraordinarily comprehensive way, are "exploring the problems of death and revival," an American doctor recently returned from Moscow said today.

Dr. Jean Henley of Columbia University medical center said she knew of no comparable program in this country.

She said in an interview that the Soviets are carrying on thorough, highly systemized research into the complex bodily changes that occur at death—and seeking means for combating them to restore life.

"They're studying every imaginable thing that happens, from every physiological standpoint," she said. Biochemists, neuro-anatomists, neuro-pathologists and others are all coordinating their skills on the problem, she said.

"They're trying to determine what happens to the cells, the nerves and reflexes at death, the chemical and physical changes occur, and to find the maximum limits of revival," she said.

Dr. Henley, who toured Soviet medical institutions with five other American women scientists, said she watched a Soviet experiment in which a dog, drained of blood and dead for five minutes, was brought back to life.

"It was a very impressive experiment," she said. "But I don't think it was world-shaking." She said she thought similar work has been done in the United States—although three minutes is considered here to be the longest period of death from which normal brain recovery can be expected.

An American Heart Assn. spokesman said he knew of no identical experiments with like results.

Soviet medical reports have told of dogs being revived after being dead up to an hour, through artificial refrigeration. However, Dr. Henley said that in the experiment she witnessed, "no hypothermia (refrigeration) was used."

"The dog's temperature was normal," she said.

"They (the Soviets) did have

Basic Decisions On U.S. Economy Said Largely Left To Consumers

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Basic decisions in the U.S. economy rest mainly with the consumer, says an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va.

Dr. Robert F. Black told a class of the Carolinas Bankers Conference yesterday that this is one of the principal differences between this country and communistic and socialistic systems.

More than 200 bank executives and employes from North and South Carolina are enrolled for five days of classwork in the 22nd annual conference, oldest of its kind in the nation.

The state or other centralized agency makes basic economic decisions in communistic and socialistic systems, Dr. Black declared. "In the United States it is mainly the consumer who determines what goods should be produced, by expressing demand in the market, this in turn determines what goods should be produced, for only the producer whose prices are competitive can remain in business," he explained.

A special section on bank auditing and comptrolling will begin tomorrow and continue through Thursday. It will be offered for executives in the management-general program.

Discoverer of radium was Marie Curie, French woman scientist.

Every Dead Algerian Requires An 'Inquiry'

BOUDJIMA, Algeria (AP)—Thousands of French officers in Algeria have been subjected to investigation in the deaths of nationalist rebels killed in the four-year-old rebellion here.

In theory, the French army is fighting a police action. Thus, all rebel deaths must be investigated. To a career officer serving his country and confident of the justice of his cause, such procedure is a nuisance and an insult.

The charges, originated by French judicial authorities, are automatically dismissed after the question "Why was he killed?" is answered by a simple formula, "Acting on orders of my superiors."

Every day, complete files are deposited in French courts

Research Grant For Dr. LeConte

Dr. Joseph LeConte, professor in the science department of East Carolina College, has just been notified that he is the recipient of a $2500 Frederick Gardner Cottrell Grant from Research Corporation of New York City. The grant is to be used for research in chemistry.

Dr. LeConte will carry on his investigation at East Carolina. His work will deal with p-cymene, a waste product in paper making.

A native of Atlanta, Georgia, Dr. LeConte joined the East Carolina faculty in September, 1957. He is a graduate of Emory University in Georgia and holds the doctor's degree in chemistry from the University of North Carolina.

throughout Algeria. Theoretically, there is no war in Algeria. All Moslem rebels are Frenchcitizens.

But everybody knows that the cases are closed as soon as the charges are preferred.

Last month, Maj. Marcel Chivot ordered his unit out on a mopup mission.

The operation resulted in two rebel deaths. The following day, a gray gendarmerie automobile halted near Chivot's command post. Chivot, a veteran of a number of French colonial campaigns, sat quietly through the investigation.

He knew the charges would be dismissed and that he will have to go through many more such investigations. Neither he nor 30,000 other French career officers in Algeria see a quick end to the rebellion.

"In this war we have learned to keep our mouths shut," said an officer on Chivot's staff. "We have learned to stomach all efforts at foreign interference and our domestic bureaucracy."

Correction

Typographical errors in a story in yesterday's edition of The Daily Reflector made it appear that a proposed addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital will have 701 beds.

The story should have noted that the proposed addition will contain room for only 70 beds. The error appeared in a story concerning the coming bond election for the project.

The Daily Reflector regrets the error.

Statistical Link In Smoking And Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Public Health Service says, "It is obvious that heavy smoking is not the sole cause of lung cancer." But the service said last night a new study "adds further to the growing weight of evidence that there is a high degree of statistical association between lung cancer and heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking."

The health service issued the statement in connection with a report made public over the week end that a study of the deaths of 7,382 veterans found a much higher death rate among cigarette smokers than among nonsmokers.

The report, compiled by Dr. Harold F. Dorn, chief statistician of the National Institutes of Health, also said that the lung cancer death rate among regular cigarette smokers was about 10 times that of nonsmokers.

This was challenged by Timothy V. Hartnett, chairman of the Tobacco Industry Research Committee. He said Dorn's study ignored all factors except tobacco smoking and "admittedly included no clinical or laboratory research."

Without directly referring to Hartnett's statement, the health service acknowledged in last night's statement that "lung cancer, of course, also occurs among those who do not smoke."

And it added that "the factors in heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking which may cause lung cancer have not been demonstrated by clinical or laboratory research."

Open Tobacco Market Aug. 5

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP)—The familiar cry of the tobacco auctioneer will ring out this season on Aug. 5 in South Carolina.

The vanguard of the state's multi-million dollar flue-cured, tied and graded leaf crop will go on sale in warehouse towns throughout the lower part of the state on that date.

This was decided last night by the South Carolina Tobacco Warehouse Assn. here. The date is two days before the Aug. 7 opening set by the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn. for the North Carolina-South Carolina Border Belt market. Only the Mullins market in South Carolina is a member of the Bright Belt group.

The leaf in recent years has been about a 100 million dollar crop for the state, although acreage reductions have been followed by smaller total yields.

The Florida-Georgia belt opens July 29, and the Virginia-North Carolina Old Belt starts Sept. 15.

The South Carolina markets agreed to a 5 1/2 hour sales day with maximum basket weight of 300 pounds.

The warehousemen agreed to accept loose leaf and asked the Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corp. to extend price supports to ungraded, loose leaf.

The Mullins warehouse is to meet later to decide on either Aug. 5 or Aug. 7 as its opening date.

Non-Drinker Has A Liquor Problem

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Leonard V. Porter, 72, has a liquor problem.

Ten years ago, just about the time Porter took his last drink, he started collecting unusual liquor decanters—reluctantly. His daughter Mrs. Vivian Andrea sent him the first one, simply because she liked the design. Before Porter knew it, his three sons and friends got in the act, sending him unusual bottles as gifts.

All the bottles were full, and that's the problem. They still are.

Porter, a Kansas City violin maker, is moving into a smaller house which doesn't have storage room for his 56 decanters and uncounted two and three ounce containers.

He can't sell them because he doesn't have a liquor license, and he said, "I can't afford to give this stuff away."

Raftsmen Wants Tow By Trujillo

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—The skipper of the raft Lehi IV has proposed a maritime alliance. He'd like to hook a towline on the luxury yacht of Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr.

Devere Baker, the cocky raftsmen who hopes to drift all the way to Hawaii, suggested yesterday that Trujillo's 350-foot yacht Angelita tow the 12-ton Lehi 50 miles to sea.

At that point, Baker and his crew would try to pick up the proper current to drift to the islands.

Currituck Drag Racers Again Allowed Use Strip

RALEIGH (AP)—Currituck County drag racers can tune up their hot rods again — their racing strip seems safe for another year.

The racing fans were alarmed last month when the State Highway Commission decided not to renew the lease on an abandoned airstrip at Barco used for supervised drag racing. They came to Raleigh yesterday to convince the commission to change its mind.

By a vote of 4 to 3, the highway body agreed to renew the lease to the Eastern Carolina Drivers Assn. for one more year. At the same time, the commission told Highway Director W. F. Babcock to find out whether the airstrip is needed for highway purposes.

The indication was that the matter might be settled by selling the property if it is not needed.

Former State Sen. N. Elton Aylett of Elizabeth City, representing the Drivers Association, argued that the drag strip races have reduced racing and speed-

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Two men were killed and 13 persons hurt when a bus and a truck collided yesterday. The bus smashed into a house after the collision.

Killed were Greyhound driver Anthony Piazza, 44-year-old winner of 13 annual safety awards, and a bystander, George Ortman, 40, of suburban Lemay, where the crash occurred.

All the injured were passengers on the bus. Truck driver Angelo A. MacNuff told police he was about to make a left turn when the bus struck the rear of his truck. The Memphis-bound bus then brushed a parked car, knocked down a tree and careened into the house.

Annual Workshop For Kindergarten Teachers Set August 4-8 At ECC

East Carolina College has announced that its seventh annual workshop for kindergarten teachers will take place on the campus August 4-8. Annie Mae Murray, director of the college kindergarten and a past president of the North Carolina Association for Childhood Education, will head the staff of the workshop.

The program, announced by Miss Murray, has been planned to meet the needs and interests of teachers of kindergartens and of primary grades in the public schools, parents, and professional people whose work deals with early childhood education. Those in attendance may receive two quarter hours of credit or participate in the workshop as auditors. Consultants on the staff of the workshop will include Dr. Ethel Thompson, kindergarten-primary consultant for the National Education Association, Washington, D. C.; Dr. R. M. Fink of the State Department of Health, Raleigh; and James M. Mallory of the department of health and physical education, East Carolina College.

CHAPTER 19
Slade Considine spoke automatically, scarcely knowing what he was saying in his anger. "You are too nice a girl, Beulah, to be given the run around like that. Somebody ought to knock Wynn's block off!"

The girl looked at him for a long moment without speaking, then came around the desk and put her hand on his arm. "Slade," she said softly, "just how did you mean that?"

The cowboy was startled at the changed timbre of her voice. He looked down at her, and was embarrassed at what Beulah Denhart was letting him see in her eyes. Beulah was more than an ordinarily pretty girl. She would make any man a wife he could be proud of. With her it should be easy to forget another girl—a girl with cool, contemptuous dark eyes, but whose lips held the promise of infinite sweetness for the right man.

Slade put his hands on Beulah's arms, bent his head and kissed her. "You're a swell girl, Beulah," he said a little huskily. "One of the prettiest, nicest girls I've ever known!"

It had been a gentle kiss. The kind of a kiss a brother gives a much loved sister. And Beulah Kenhart knew it, but her hands went up to the cowboy's shoulders, and for an instant her eyes speculated with the possibility of making something more of it.

A sound above them yanked Slade Considine out of an embarrassing situation, and landed him into a worse one. Martha Kilgore was coming down the stairs, the little smile on her lips telling them that she had been a witness to the whole scene, or thought she had.

She nodded coolly to Slade, then turned to Beulah. "My grandmother wanted me to see if you had any ice water. She is very tired."

Then as Beulah turned toward the kitchen, Martha smiled and shook her head. "Don't go, please. I don't want to interrupt you. Just tell me where it is and I'll get it."

Beulah hesitated, then said briefly: "There's a pitcher in the icebox. The kitchen's straight behind the dining room—the door on the right."

"Thank you."

When the other girl had gone Beulah looked at the cowboy, a wise, rueful smile on her lips. "You too!" she murmured. "And I sure ripped the wagon sheet for you that time!"

Slade flushed. "Did it show as plain as that?" he asked.

The girl shook her head. "Not to her." She looked anxious. "Slade, you don't think I staged that little scene on purpose, do you? I meant to tell you they were up there—honest I did. They are waiting to see Captain Catlin, too, and I just plumb forgot to mention it."

"Of course I know you didn't do it on purpose."

The girl's eyes darkened.

"Well—don't sound so darned sure of it!" she snapped. "Maybe I would have if I had thought of it—or if I had known how you felt. I am tired of being good old honest, square-shooting Beulah! The kind of a girl men slap on the shoulder!" She frowned over to the long mirror that hung along one wall. She preened in front of it, arched her neck and eyes herself as critically as if she were judging another woman's jelly at a county fair, while Slade watched her uncomfortably.

"The trouble with me," she said through her teeth, half to herself, "is that I'm too much like my name. Pretty enough maybe, but solid and dependable, too. The kind of girl that would make some man a good wife, but that couldn't keep him from turning and whistling every time a girl like Martha Kilgore passed."

"I don't mind," she took a long breath, and made an obvious effort to get hold of herself, and when she turned and came back across the room she was the girl Slade had known for years—the girl with the wise, mocking, half-cynical smile always on her lips.

"Sorry I treated you to a scene, Slade. Forget it, will you? And don't feel sorry for me. I've lived with lonesomeness so long I'd feel sorta lonesome without it." Suddenly she cocked her head back toward the kitchen door, and her smile deepened. "That girl's taking a long time to get a pitcher of water. I bet she is waiting for you to leave. Take my word for it, cowboy, that's a good sign. If you've already made that much impression—and if you will take my advice—you'll just let her worry a bit. Here's Captain Catlin now. You want to go right on up with him or shall I tell Mrs. Kilgore he's here first?"

Memory of the past day's happenings came rushing back to Slade. "I'll see him first," he said grimly, "while I'm still out of jail!"

"Thank you."

Captain Catlin came in briskly. "Good evening, Miss Denhart. Hello, Slade."

The girl handed him a key. "No. 12 this time, Captain. It's all ready for you."

"Thank you, Slade. If we go up there to talk, we're not so liable to be interrupted."

As the two men went up the stairs Martha Kilgore came out of the kitchen. She looked accusingly at the other girl. "My grandmother told you she wanted to see Captain Catlin as soon as he came in!"

Beulah Denhart smiled back at her blandly. "Slade's business is official. I figured it was probably more important."

Martha smiled. "That depends on whose team you are playing on," she said.

Beulah Denhart eyed her levelly for a moment, then took a deep breath. She had said she was tired of being honest, dependable old Beulah, but she wasn't. She had a core of decency that demanded a fair deal for those she liked, even at the risk of being thought a meddler.

"Slade Considine is a grand guy," she said offhandedly. "He is a better friend than enemy."

Martha Kilgore's back stiffened, and her cheeks took on a suddenly higher color. "I could see you thought that," she said.

Beulah grinned ruefully. "No, that was just a consolation kiss—because he felt sorry for me. You see—I was engaged to another man—to Wynn Thomason. Wynn saw another girl he liked better and asked for his ring back."

Martha came over to the desk. She set the pitcher of water down, then looked up and met the red-haired girl's level eyes. "I'm very sorry. Are you telling me this because—"

Beulah shook her head. "No. Not that. I don't want him back. I wouldn't want to try to hold any man who didn't really love me. And I think I never really cared enough either. I'm telling you because some day you are going to start adding up, and I want you to be sure you have the right figures to start with."

Martha Kilgore took a long breath. "Perhaps—I see what you mean," she said softly. "I think we ought to get better acquainted, Beulah. Why don't you come out to the ranch sometime and see me?" She put out her hand.

Beulah hesitated, then took it. "I'll do that some day," she smiled. "But just because we are friends, don't get the idea I'm not still a competitor—as long as I've got a chance! And I don't mean with Wynn!"

Slade wondered just how much real toughness was behind Tony's surly tongue. Now was his chance to find out... the story continues tomorrow.

New Jersey was the only northern state not to abolish slavery before 1850. It had 236 negroes in bondage that year.

Important: All Tobacco Growers --- Harvesting Ripe Tobacco

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Tobacco Division, in grading all tobacco for 1958, is modifying and adding several new grades covering immature, or tobacco that is not fully ripe. The grades for immature tobacco will carry much less support prices, as compared with fully ripe matured tobacco.

Also please note from address of president of one of our largest cigarette companies at the annual meeting of stockholders of the Flue-cured Tobacco Corporation in Raleigh, N. C., on June 27, 1958:

"As to the types or varieties of tobacco in which our company is primarily interested, we do not recommend any specific variety. We are, as we have always been, interested in ripe, fully-matured tobacco, of good flavor and burning quality."

NEW YORK (AP) — A few issues made some fairly wide moves in an otherwise narrowly mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active, falling off from a brisker pace in early dealings.

Changes of most leading stocks were fractional. Movements of 1 or 2 points were made by special issues.

Industrials were a bit lower overall while rails were up a little, helped by a rise of nearly 2 points in Atlantic Coast Line. The gain was trimmed to a point-plus later. Illinois Central was ahead a sizable fraction and a miscellany of other rails rose slightly.

New York Central eased following another dividend omission.

Oils, steels and aircrafts were generally lower. Douglas Aircraft dropped more than a point on news it is laying off 5,000 workers.

Serve, which has had a rise recently on news it was negotiating to acquire Hydril Co. of Los Angeles, was hit by selling today as word came the negotiations were postponed. It fell 2 1/2 to 7 1/2 on a delayed opening block of 35,000 shares but trimmed about a point from the loss in later dealings.

Lorillard advanced 1 1/2 on its opening block but erased most of this later. Reichhold Chemical, which gyrated yesterday as the most active stock, was ahead about a point at one time but canceled the rise.

Du Pont dropped more than a point. Fractional losses were taken by U.S. Steel, Chrysler, United Aircraft, American Telephone and Kennecott. Alaska-Juneau dropped a sizable fraction. Gainers included International Nickel, Paramount and Boeing.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $176.10 with the industrials down 40 cents, the rails up 70 cents and the utilities unchanged.

New Pitt Patrolman Is Veteran In Service

SGT. WHITFIELD WELCOMES CPL. MARTIN TO NEW ASSIGNMENT . . . but new patrolman has a problem! (Reflector Photo)

By EVERETTE PARKER

Corporal Titus M. Martin, who replaces Sergeant Carl E. Whitfield at the State Highway Patrol's Troop A headquarters, is a man with a problem.

His problem—finding a place to live.

Cpl. Martin was transferred here last week. Since that time he has been diligently looking for lodging space for his family of five without having much luck. At the present time his wife and three children are in Dunn waiting for the head of the family to "come through" with a house.

"To date the 'new' patrolman is right where he was to start with—like in the 'cold.' 'Sure would like to find something soon,' he said this morning. 'Sorta miss my folks.'"

Martin, a native of Martin County, has been with the State Highway Patrol since March 1, 1942. He comes here from Dunn where he was stationed for five months.

His promotion to corporal became effective February 1, 1953. Prior to being stationed in Dunn Martin served with the patrol in Tarboro and spent eight years in Beaufort County.

He graduated from the Jamesville schools and attended the University of Florida for three years. His wife is the former Rachel Carson of Jamesville. The couple have three children.

Martin, 42, is a Third Degree Mason, a member of the Kiwanis Club and affiliated with the Methodist Church.

Grim Khrushchev In East Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived today for a visit to East Berlin and called for a harder fight against plans of West Germany to equip its army with nuclear and rocket weapons.

With a grim, brooding look, the Soviet Premier stood bareheaded before the East German railroad station at a welcoming ceremony. He declared Communist East Germany must take the lead in the battle against atom and rocket weapons arming by West Germany.

East Germany, he said, was steadily gaining in international prestige.

Khrushchev heads a six-man delegation from Moscow to the East German Communist party congress. It opens Thursday and continues to July 16.

He received a cool welcome. East German officials, and organized delegations were on hand to cheer. But there was only scattered handclapping from others in the crowd.

During his stay here he is expected to give the East German party bosses the latest Kremlin line.

Khrushchev probably also will unleash a new attack on Yugoslav President Tito for Tito's refusal to accept Moscow's dictation.

The East German regime in turn was reported looking for Khrushchev for advice on facing the international flurry whipped up by the prolonged imprisonment of nine U.S. Army men who strayed behind the Iron Curtain in a helicopter June 7.

Otto Winzer, deputy foreign minister for the satellite state, admitted Saturday that Soviet advice had been sought.

The East Germans have been demanding that the United States sign a formal agreement to recover the prisoners. Washington refuses, contending that would imply diplomatic recognition of a regime which it considers unrepresentative of the people.

Found A Bonus In Traffic Arrest

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police found they had a bonus yesterday after booking a motorist on several violations.

A fingerprint check showed they had nabbed Fulton Russell Pigford, 28, who escaped from a prison camp near Waynesville last September while serving a seven-year term for auto larceny.

Pigford gave a false name following his arrest on charges of drunk driving, hit-and-run driving and having no driver's license. Later he admitted his correct identity.

Pigford, no stranger here, was sentenced to Charlotte in 1956 to a 3-5 year term for forgery. Pigford later escaped, stole a car and when recaptured drew the larceny term.
