Port Of Beirut Occupied By Swelling Marine Force

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines occupied Beirut's port area in force today as their numbers swelled to 3,600 men with the landing of another battalion. The move into the city from the beach area was made in tanks, half-tracks and amphibious vehicles. Weapons and equipment poured from ships offshore. More men were on the way. About 2,000 men occupied the strategic port area. Leaders of Lebanon's rebellion have denounced the American landing, but they have put up no opposition. The Marines' movements indicated they were guarding vital points but would not come into contact with the rebels unless there is a major rebel attack. This strategy would leave the Lebanese security forces free to deal with the rebels. The port area is a stronghold of the Palatine irregulars who have taken up arms for the government. Crowds frequently cheered the Marines. Rebel leaders fighting to topple pro-Western President Camille Chamoun have denounced the Marine landing. But there was no opposition as the Marines swung into the capital. Rebel leader Saed Salam, holed up in the Moslem quarter of Beirut, issued a statement urging Lebanese "to defend your country and safeguard your freedom." An air of tension gripped the city. American civilians were leaving the country in greater numbers. Of about 3,200 Americans in Lebanon, 220 private citizens and 168 dependents of embassy personnel have left since the revolt began 68 days ago. A band of rebels that moved up to the area around The Associated Press office in Beirut withdrew after an hour and a half. The United States, which sent in the Marines at Chamoun's request, described the intervention here as the creation of a beachhead to assure peace and stability in the Middle East. The first Marine unit to enter Beirut was headed by U.S. Ambassador Robert McClintock; Adm. James L. Holloway, commander of the U.S. forces; and Gen. Guad Shehab, commander of the Lebanese army. It included a tank and two troop carriers with 307 men aboard. This column stopped at the U.S. Embassy. Another unit, including a tank and five amphibious troop carriers with 150 men, continued to the port area, presumably to secure it for the landing of supplies and troops. The movement into the capital was halted for an hour when Shehab arrived. He conferred in the road with the U.S. ambassador, the American admiral, and Brig. Gen. Sidney Wade, commander of the 2nd Marine Division. Then the conference moved inside a Lebanese army training school. When the conferees came out they said they had reached agreement on liaison. A jeopod of Lebanese military police took its place at the head of the column and it moved on into town. In front of the house of opposition leader, Hussein Oweini, the column halted abruptly. Lebanese military police fanned out in all directions as if chasing snipers. No shots were fired. The procession continued on through the narrow streets. The second contingent of 1,800 Marines began landing early today from ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet, joining the 1,800-man contingent that arrived here yesterday. Another battalion will arrive shortly, bringing the total to 5,400 men. Offshore 11 ships of the 6th Fleet rode at anchor. LSTs were pulled up to the beach. Equipment rolled off the LSTs and was moved across the sand to higher ground around the airport. Two helicopters ranged back and forth. Tanks, antiaircraft guns, anti-tank guns mounted on endless-belt tractors, self-propelled guns, and transport of all types were rolling ashore. Hundreds of holiday-minded Lebanese came out to the city to watch. The Marines as they came ashore assembled at the airport, five miles south of Beirut. Inside the city tension mounted as rebels seeking to oust pro-Western President Camille Chamoun advanced from behind barricades in the Moslem quarter and took up posts about three blocks forward. They stopped all cars and questioned their occupants. One car, which apparently ran afoul of a rebel post just outside the building in which The Associated Press office is located, crashed into a corner of the building and burned. Heavy shooting flared up around the wreckage. The Lebanese army and police, while officially loyal to Chamoun, have made no determined effort to dislodge the rebels from the Moslem quarter during the 68 days of the rebellion. Activity in Beirut has consisted mainly of frequent exchanges of firing and terrorist bombings to enforce a rebel-called general strike which has been only partly effective. Reliable observers said the landing of the Marines should be considered a precautionary operation. "It is still basically a Lebanese show," one said. "The Marines are sitting on the sidelines in case they are needed." The Marines were being landed from four ships of Transport Amphibious Squadron Two, commanded by Capt. G. C. Peckham of Cresco, Iowa. The new landing followed by a few hours the announcement at Norfolk, Va., that an undisclosed number of Marines were being flown from Cherry Point, N.C., to an "intermediate destination in the Mediterranean" where they will support the landings in Lebanon. The announcement today said that Rear Adm. H. A. Yeager of Salina, Kan., commander of the amphibious group, and Brig. Gen. S. S. Wade of Phoenix, Ariz., commander of the Second Provisional Marine Force, Atlantic, are aboard the amphibious command ship Pococo.

Hammarskjold Opines No International Force Needed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said in effect today that no international military force is needed to stop the flow of outside aid to Lebanese rebels. The secretary general addressed the 11-nation Security Council briefly just before U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge formally called for the establishment of a security force to supplement the U.N. observer group now in Lebanon. Hammarskjold said he had been informed by the observation group that it had successfully completed arrangements for inspection of the entire Lebanese border. "It is my feeling," he added, "that with the result thus achieved, the observation group is fully equipped to play the part envisaged for it in the U.N. total effort, with its general purpose of ensuring against infiltration and smuggling of arms." One of the reasons given by the United States for the landing of American marines and for proposing a new security force was the inability of the U.N. observers to stop the flow of aid from the United Arab Republic to the Lebanese rebels. In his speech this morning, Lodge commended the work of the observer group but said the proposed international force was intended to give it added strength. "We recognize," he said, "that the means available to this organization are insufficient to meet all aspects of the situation. This is particularly true in the light of recent events in Iraq and... efforts to overthrow the lawful government of Jordan."

Force Forming NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Atlantic Fleet formed a fast landing force today to carry additional Marines to the Mediterranean. Troops and helicopters of the Atlantic Fleet Marine Force will be loaded today aboard the aircraft carrier Antietam, an authoritative source said. The carrier will join ships of the Atlantic Amphibious Force. Atlantic Fleet headquarters reportedly moved to organize an additional antisubmarine hunter-killer force as a defense against submarines. Reports said this force would be composed of the carrier Tarawa and a number of Norfolk-based destroyers. The Army's eight Nike Ajax missile batteries in the Hampton Roads area were placed in a status of increased readiness. Col. Minor B. Dodson, USA, Hampton Roads air defense chief, said the degree of readiness ordered by the North American Air Defense Command was classified information.

Congress May Be Kept On Call For Future Emergency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislative leaders may decide to keep Congress on call for any new Middle East emergency that might arise after it completes its regular business next month. Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) forecast adoption of a resolution under which the party leaders of both houses could call members back into an emergency session if President Eisenhower himself did not do so. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic leader, said he hasn't had time yet to consider such a proposal. Neither he nor Bridges would speculate on whether the Lebanon crisis would prolong the present session. But Bridges said it is his understanding Eisenhower does not now plan to ask for additional funds or other legislation. Eisenhower told Congress yesterday in a special message that he dispatched the Marines to save Lebanon from "indirect aggression from without." He said he was acting to protect 2,500 American citizens in the country. He said the initial contingent of 5,000 Marines will be "augmented as required." He promised that U.S. forces "will be withdrawn as rapidly as circumstances permit." Following the course adopted by former President Truman in the Korean War, Eisenhower asked for no formal ratification by Congress of his troop action. He reported it formally to Congress after he had acted. The informal reaction was split, largely along party lines. Most Republicans took the attitude that there was no alternative to the use of armed force, a view seconded by only a scattered number of Democrats. Many Democrats, and some Republicans, were critical of the President's decision. But all, regardless of party, made it clear they would support his action, now that it had been taken. Johnson told the Senate the action was taken "because it was the feeling of the President that there was no alternative." He called for national unity behind Eisenhower. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic leader, was one of the Democrats who protested the use of troops before action could be sought in the U.N. Another Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) said he doesn't believe "the use of troops is any long-term solution to the problems of poverty and Arab nationalism." He said these are responsible for conditions in the Middle East. But Sen. John M. Butler (R-Md) supported the action. "We cannot, we must not evade this challenge," he said. "If it means limited war, we must engage in such a war."

Proffer Plan For Electing A Mayor

The City Council candidate receiving the highest number of votes in municipal elections would automatically become mayor if a special committee recommendation is followed. J. B. Kittrell Jr., chairman of a committee which was appointed by the city council April 10, reported today to Mayor S. Eugene West. However, Kittrell said in the report that the proposal to amend the city charter should come from the City Council and "not become effective until submitted to and approved by a majority of the votes cast in a regular or special election. "The referendum should be held in ample time to make the amendment effective during the next city election if approved by the voters," the report to the mayor stated. The letter pointed out the committee had been appointed "to investigate and get the feeling of the people of Greenville with respect to the manner in which the mayor should be elected. "We recommend that the governing body of the city of Greenville initiate a proposal at one of its regular meetings to amend the present charter so that the candidate for City Council with the highest number of votes in the municipal elections will automatically become mayor. "In the event the person with the highest number of votes does not desire to be mayor and the office becomes vacant for this or any other reason, the council would have the authority to name a successor under the present charter." The report continued: "The committee feels a change of this nature will satisfy the majority of the citizens. It will eliminate the possibility of losing the services of several good leaders which could occur if the mayor's election were held separately. It is a simple change and will cause minimum confusion among the general public. The present charter will remain the same except for the amendment." The committee appointment grew out of a promise that councilmen made to State Rep. Frank M. Wooten following the last city election. They promised the legislator to take some action on the question of election of mayor in time for the next city election. Wooten had received a petition signed by local citizens requesting that he introduce legislation in the assembly changing the method of election of the mayor. The petition was circulated after former mayor W. L. Whedbee was ousted and S. Eugene West named to the position. Presently the city charter provides that five councilmen are to be elected by the people. The councilmen then choose a mayor from among themselves. All councilmen are eligible for the office.

Hodges Predicts Research Triangle To Affect All N. C.

CHARLOTTE (AP) Gov. Hodges predicted today the influence and productive activity of North Carolina's Research Triangle will provide a life for every part of North Carolina, the Southeast and the nation. He told a group of business and industrial leaders interested in the Research Triangle, "You will feel the impact of the triangle and should take every advantage of its existence in your plans for the future." The governor made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon at the City Club here. "The Research Triangle," Hodges said, "is being looked at by international firms with present laboratories outside New York City because the scientists in these areas are not happy and want to live in a better atmosphere."

Selwyn Lloyd Is Flying To U.S.

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd is flying to Washington tonight for conferences. He is reported to be taking word that Britain stands ready to land forces in Jordan as soon as King Hussein asks for military help. In the House of Commons today Lloyd said he had been invited to Washington by Secretary of State Dulles and would go in order "to keep in the closest touch with the U.S. government." Then, using a phrase that President Eisenhower had emphasized yesterday, he said events that led to the Baghdad revolt were part of a sustained campaign of indirect aggression. The aim, he said, is to overthrow established regimes and orders in the small, independent nations of the Middle East. As for Jordan, qualified informants in London said the government almost certainly will respond affirmatively if its young king, Hussein, asks for help. Up to this afternoon he had not done so, but Jordan had sounded out the British as to whether air and land forces would be available if needed.

Camp Lejeune Marines Are Flying Out Today

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Combat-ready Marines, tough and eager, continued to leave here today for the Middle East to back up Marines who already have landed in Lebanon. The first contingent of troops began the long flight last night. Others left at irregular intervals throughout the night. The Cherry Point Marine Base public information office said the airlifts were to continue this afternoon. But the PIO still was unable to say the number of men, their specific destinations and the number of Marine Flying Boxcars carrying the men of the 2nd Marine Division based at nearby Camp Lejeune. Other units of the 2nd Marine Division landed at Lebanon yesterday in a surprise move. The Defense Department in Washington would only say they were bound "for an intermediate destination in the Mediterranean area where they will be in support of the 6th Fleet landings in Lebanon." The airlift began last night after a general alert for all personnel, units and ships of the Atlantic Fleet, which is headquartered at Norfolk, Va. Increased activity was reported at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base near Norfolk. Earlier yesterday, the Defense Department said a movement of troop carrier planes from Donaldson Air Force Base, S.C., to an undisclosed European destination had been completed "at this time." At Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., an Air Force spokesman said a composite force of the Tactical Air Command was deploying overseas. He declined to say whether any TAC planes at Shaw were taking part.

Bids Opened On Six Classrooms

Low bids totalling $66,487 for construction of six classrooms at Winterville School were opened yesterday by the Pitt County Board of Education. The bids include $52,102 from Kirby Hawkins of Kinston for general construction contract, $3,250 from O'Neal Electric Company of Washington for the electrical contract, $8,400 from Henry Baker of Wilson for the heating contract, and $2,735 from Cauley-Pitt of Kinston for the plumbing contract. Final approval of the bids will be made after consultations between architects and members of the Winterville District Committee regarding proposed alternate construction plans. The Board of Education authorized the district committee to make "necessary changes" in the plans. The construction will be financed by loans made to the district committee by the State Literary Loan Fund.

Seven American Servicemen Are Freed By Rebels

GUANTANAMO, Cuba (AP) — Cuban rebels have finally started releasing the rest of the North American servicemen they kidnapped. Seven U.S. servicemen were freed yesterday and others of the 22 still held were expected to be returned today. The seven bearded men released were in good condition and high spirits as they stepped from two helicopters at the U.S. Navy base on Guantanamo Bay. All said Fidel Castro's men treated them well during their three weeks in the rebels' jungle camps. The returnees said they understood four or five more servicemen would be freed each day. They had been scheduled to start coming out of the east Cuban mountains Monday but apparently bad weather delayed transporting them to the pickup point.

Assignments Of Pitt Pupils Are Made By Board

Pupil assignments for the 1958-59 school year were made yesterday by the Pitt County Board of Education. The assignments will remain open ten days after publication of an official notice of the board's action. During that period, persons requesting reassignment will be able to present their requests to the board. The action is required by state school laws. Superintendent D. H. Conley said today the county's schools are expecting more than 13,000 students for the 1958-59 school year. Last year's enrollment was 12,903 with an average daily attendance of 11,564.

Tar Heel Farms Seem Assured Of Heavy Harvest

RALEIGH (AP) — Flourishing crops in the field are promising a bountiful harvest for Tar Heel farmers. While growers face the hazards of weather from now until harvest the State Crop Reporting Service said yesterday that the majority of crops are in good conditions as of last week. Apples and peaches, both reported as good to very good, are coming off the trees in commercial sections. However, the apple harvest is only about 10 per cent complete, and in the main peach territory, about 25 per cent of the crop has been picked. Coastal plains tobacco harvesting is moving rapidly, and a start has been made in the Piedmont. Some producers in the Border Belt area have made two to three leaf cuttings. Cotton farmers reported a good crop, with boll weevil infestation very low. The heaviest attacks have been confined to the extreme southeast.

U.S. Communist Opposes Action

NEW YORK (AP) — Eugene Dennis, national secretary of the Communist party, has told President Eisenhower that his dispatch of troops to Lebanon was "an act of aggressive imperialistic intervention." In a telegram to the President yesterday, signed on behalf of the National Committee of the Communist party, Dennis called for immediate withdrawal of the U.S. forces.

The $1.50 tax rate is based on an assessed valuation of $3,369,436. According to Town Clerk A. W. Sawyer this new budget exceeds the 1957-58 budget by approximately $2,000. In other action at the Board's meeting Policeman Marion Dail submitted his letter of resignation. Dail had been affiliated with the local police department since January. The Board accepted the resignation but did not fill the vacancy. Other business was routine. Clerk Sawyer was authorized to pay monthly bills.

Proposes To Move Larkins Up Notch

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges today confirmed reports of changes he will recommend in the state Democratic party at a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee here July 25. Hodges told his news conference he will recommend that John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton, present party chairman, be elected as national committeeman to replace U. S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan who is resigning. He also will recommend that former Congressman Woodrow Jones of Rutherfordton be elected state chairman to succeed Larkins. Hodges expressed hope that the executive committee would accept his recommendations, and said he was confident the changes "will be made with friendliness and enthusiasm." The governor said Larkins deserves this promotion. He predicted Jones will do an outstanding job. Hodges added Jones is from the western county of Rutherford and knows the problems of the Democratic party in that "important area." Hodges said he also will recommend to the executive committee the nomination of Jordan as senator and Malcolm B. Seawell as state attorney general. Jordan was appointed by Hodges a few months ago to succeed the late Sen. W. Kerr Scott. Seawell was appointed to replace George Patton, who stepped down to campaign for superior court judge. Hodges read a statement from Larkins in which he said he was pleased at the governor's recommendations in the Democratic party changes. Larkins said that when Jordan was named senator he suggested to Gov. Hodges that in the event the national committeeman post became vacant, "I would like to be considered for that honor."

The double ring rite was heard by the Rev. Ralph E. Epps pastor of the church. Miss Betty Jo Gaskins, organist and Mrs. Courtney Patrick, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta, fashioned with long fitted bodice and scalloped portrait neckline. The bouffant skirt featured handkerchief effect lace skirts and many tiers of tulle ruffles. Her shoulder tip veil of illusion was attached to a bandeau embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a white bible topped with a white orchid showered with satin ribbons.

The maid of honor, aunt of the bride, Miss Joyce Dennis of Greenville wore a ballerina-length gown of blossom pink and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Wade, sister of the bride. They wore gowns fashioned after that of the honor attendant in French blue and carried old fashioned bouquets of deep pink roses and baby's breath.

Flower girls were sisters of the bride, Barbara and Delois Manning, and Connie Jarman, cousin of the bride groom. They wore white organza dresses and carried baskets of rose petals. Little Ricky Lane Manning, brother of the bride carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Charles Lester Wade, was his brother's best man. Ushers were Steve Cox, Jackie Rose and Carlton Albritton.

The home was decorated with white gladioli, gardenias and roses. The brides table was covered with a pink satin cloth covered with a net ruffle attached with pink satin ribbon over skirt. The two-tiered cake decorated with pink and white topped with a miniature bride and groom was placed at one end of the table and the punch bowl at the other. After the first slice of cake was cut by the bridal couple, Mrs. Heber Wade completed the serving. Punch was poured by Mrs. Ralph Epps. Mints, nuts were also served.

HEAL YOUR HEELS
If your heels tend to get cracked and calloused, here's the ideal way to cure them fast. Scrub them vigorously with a stiff complexion brush and thick soap lather to dislodge the dead cuticle.

Then apply a good emollient and tie on a pair of the new little heel-caps, made of pink embossed cotton with soft white flannel linings. They fit like gloves and tie the cream work while you sleep—without smearing your bed linens. And they can be laundered daily in soap or detergent suds to wash away the oily cream.

Designer Offers New Silhouette

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—The "Dancing Nymph" silhouette is Cell Chapman's latest contribution to the field of feminine skulduggery after dark.

Shown in both cocktail and long evening gowns, it is based on a slender sheath, with cocoon-shaped puffed panels caught under at hipline or hemline, for highly dramatic effect.

The glamor designer follows the season's trend to Empire waistlines, but puts her heart into such man-traps as a long, slender, white brocade vening sheath with long, tight sleeves, a revealing neckline and a platinum fox border at the hemline.

No matter what the prevailing silhouette, Mrs. Chapman never obscures the basic lines of the feminine figure—perhaps one reason why she is the U.S. male's favorite designer. This season she uses a device called the "masked sheath" to bow to the Empire line and still reveal a trim waistline.

This type of dress has bands or seaming beneath the high, rounded bustline, with filmy, transparent floating skirt over a fitted slip. This gives movement and airiness to the silhouette, but does not hide the lines of the body beneath it all.

The "Diamond Horseshoe" silhouette is another favorite in the Chapman collection, being a long, slender sheath with flaring cut-away hemline, to give ankle room. Jewels, beads, sequins and fringe lend opulent notes to the lineup, which has plenty of gresses with fitted bodices and full skirts to please girls who still believe in the impact of a slender, natural waistline, well displayed. There also are frankly fitted floor-length sheaths, usually with long, light sleeves, in fabulous brocades, satins and jeweled effects, designed to dramatize feminine curves.

"After all," says Cell, "a woman is still a woman, so why not admit it?"

The Time Of Waiting Is Not Over

The tensions began Monday when news of the Iraq military coup began to be absorbed.

It was a shocking surprise to even the proverbial man-in-the-street who recognized in it a situation pregnant with more gloomy tidings.

As the hours passed, analysts began pinpointing the possibilities . . . linking one aspect to another . . . filling out the overall picture of stresses and strains in the Middle East. The outlook was not a happy one.

Meanwhile, urgent sessions were underway. The National Security Council huddled, and the President sent a quick summons to congressional leaders. It was a time for decision.

Embattled Lebanon was asking for United States intervention, tiny Jordan was marked long ago for absorption by the super-Arab nationalist, Nasser; the paw of the Russian bear could be seen pulling strings behind the scenes.

It was a night of vigil and of weighing the choice of words and action.

Tuesday morning's wire reports shattered a period of waiting with the announcement a number of "unidentified ships" had dropped anchor off Beirut; an

Good Show By Scot Gathering

By LYNN NISBET
CLANSMEN — The Scottish Clansmen who gathered at Grandfather Mountain Sunday for their third annual convocation and games were an entirely different breed from the clansmen who cover themselves with bed sheets and prattle at night.

The Scots were dressed in garb unusual for everyday wear hereabouts, but instead of being ashamed of it they were very proud of their kilts and tamms and were very careful to see that the tartan was authentic for their family.

The night before the Eiseola Lodge the visiting Scots gave some of the ancient dances and songs, and during the afternoon at MacRae Meadows on the slopes of Grandfather, there were exhibitions of group dancing, bag pipe parades, and old Scottish games. The main feature was the civic-religious service, with Rev. S.M. Lindsay, D.D., native Scot now pastor of a large church in Palm Beach, preaching the sermon, and Sir Leslie Knox Munro, president of the United Nations, delivering an inspiring address for world peace.

Among the honor guests were Governor Luther Hodges and Senator Everett Jordan.

It was too late in the season for spring color, too early for the splendors of autumn, but what nature lacked in providing beauty and variety was made up by the costumes of participants and thousands of the visitors.

It was a good show for the spectators, a fine experience for the descendants of Scot ancestors to the seventh or eighth generation to renew acquaintance with each other and with old traditions. It was more than that. An event that brings to North Carolina the highest ranking political or governmental official in the world is an asset of tremendous value to the state.

UNIQUE — There is a very unusual class of school kids at Western Carolina College at Cullowhee this summer. It may be unique in America.

The class is composed of 29 fifth-graders. The lowest IQ rating is 150 and the range goes up to 193. The children were selected from 110 nominees from public schools throughout the state with minimum IQ rating of 140. Of the original number 38 were found to exceed 150 IQ and there were further screened to obtain the 29 admitted.

There is a similar class in New York for regular school term and perhaps two or three others in private schools. This is believed to be the only summer class in a public school.

The class was organized by Dr. Killian, head of the education department at Western Carolina. The object is enrichment of the minds of the kids rather than advancing them in grades at their home schools—although several of the pupils grades between the first and have jumped one or more grades between the first and fifth.

The children pay their way—room, board and tuition. Two or three were awarded tuition scholarships, but pay all other expenses.

More attention has been given in recent years to the retarded or sub-standard children, very little to the extra bright. The special class at Cullowhee is a sort of laboratory experiment which is being watched as an aid to developing special curricula for extra high IQ children.

Standard curricula and textbooks are designed for the normal child. Experiments are being conducted to determine just how much the brilliant kids are being held back by the general standard, and how much the normal child may be slowed down by having below-average classmates.

PROBLEM — Distinction between "laboratory schools" operated on campus by teacher training colleges and "practice teaching" in regular public schools is sometimes fine, but it is very real to the people involved.

Laboratory schools are units in the county public school system, although located on college property and to some degree under college direction. Under classroom there to observe the regular teachers and study methods. In the senior year the embryo teachers go out on their own into off-campus schools and have responsibility for the teaching.

At Greensboro, Cullowhee and Boone, the laboratory schools are inadequate. Renovation or replacement of facilities will run into big money. Should that money come from the State general fund allocation to the college, or from the county school building fund? The advisory budget commission and the local boards of county commissioners and education are giving thought to that question. Quite naturally, each group wants to put as much of the burden as possible on the other.

Apparently there is a sort of understanding, but so far as your reporter can learn no binding agreement, that to the extent the college needs the facilities for teacher training the State will provide them. When the expansion is deemed necessary simply to take care of increased enrollment or other normal development in the local school system, the county will furnish the money. Difficulty in accurately determining responsibility is illustrated by the fact that Woman's College at Greensboro and Western Carolina at Cullowhee have approximately the same enrollment in teacher training courses. Curry school at Greensboro has about 300 students from first through 12th grade, while the school at Cullowhee has 690. Both colleges show need for improved facilities in their laboratory schools.

announcement that was quickly followed by news American Marines had landed in Lebanon.

Sentence by sentence, paragraph by paragraph the story of decision and action unfolded.

People kept an ear tuned to nearby radios and television sets, newspaper editors watched their teletypes . . . sorting dispatches . . . waiting.

Forefront in the minds of most was the question: "Another Korea?" And there could be no answer because the answer remained in the hands of a sworn enemy who could say one thing and do another, and frequently did.

So the words of Soviet Ambassador Arkady A. Sobolev, that the U.S. action could "plunge the world into the abyss of a new world war" was shrugged off. What would matter would be action, that was all that counted; and in the minds of many frustrated Americans it was some bit of relief that Uncle Sam had at last stopped sitting on his hands and done something . . . anything . . . rather than let his fortunes be decided by others.

Still, the time for waiting was not over. There were many hours, more likely days, of waiting for countermoves by the forces whose "wires were crossed" by decisions and actions Made in the U. S. A.

Reminder: That Polio Virus Isn't Sleeping

With two new cases of polio reported in the county it's plain for all to see the virus is far from dead . . . it isn't even sleeping.

Anybody who had the notion infantile paralysis was no longer a threat, that it had been "beaten" by the famed Salk vaccine, should be now aware the reverse is true.

All the vaccine in the world can do no good unless it is used.

Both of the Pitt County children had received their first inoculations of the vaccine; a fact which may prove of inestimable value in the weeks, months and years ahead.

But how many children . . . yes, and even adults . . . in the county remain unprotected?

The polio virus isn't sleeping, but there remain a lot of people who would appear to be.

Pitt County's Health Department is still conducting clinics at which Salk shots are given, on Monday and Wednesday afternoons in Greenville and on Monday and Thursday afternoons in Farmville.

We hope the unhappy reminder of two tiny polio victims will not go unheeded.

Right-To-Work Bills Rising Up

By JAMES B. SIBBISON
WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders are alarmed over the rash of "right-to-work" movements that have broken out in a number of states. They profess to fear these more than any pending labor legislation in Congress.

Sponsors of these movements have been gathering signatures on petitions in six states in the hope of putting their proposal on the November ballots. A seventh, Kansas, acted through its Legislature. What they want is to outlaw the union shop.

Wherever such a proposal is approved, a new employe would no longer be obliged to join a union — as he is now in a union shop plant. Eighteen states, mostly Southern, already have such laws.

Right-to-work proponents, usually Chambers of Commerce and conservative farm groups, say if they ask is that every worker have the freedom to say whether he wants to belong to a union. Top union leaders see it otherwise. Given this choice, they say, many employes would refuse to join in order to avoid paying dues while still enjoying the pay raises and work conditions negotiated by the union.

A petition campaign to put a right-to-work referendum up to the voters in the fall failed in Montana. Results in Colorado and Idaho await a check of the validity and numbers of signatures obtained.

But union leaders are fairly certain the proposal will be offered voters in Ohio, Washington, Kansas and California.

Of these four, easily the most important politically are California and Ohio. Both have big industry and heavy union representation. Both will have key races in the fall.

Surprisingly, the issue is being treated in exactly opposite fashion by Republican senators running for office in those states.

In California, Sen. William F. Knowland has made right-to-work a principal plank in his efforts to become the next governor. He is frankly for it, in a manner not unlike the aggressive campaign fought successfully by Sen. Robert A. Taft in Ohio in 1950.

On the other hand, John W. Bricker, running for his third term as Ohio's Republican senator, has been trying to soft-pedal the issue.

Bricker's views on labor are similar to those of Taft and Knowland. Nevertheless, he and Ohio's GOP governor, C. William O'Neill, are trying to prevent the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and others from further circulation of right-to-work petitions, which can be filed until Aug. 5.

One GOP source says privately the Republicans in Ohio fear that a right-to-work proposal would only rouse unions to get out a massive vote on election day—to the disadvantage of GOP candidates.

This strategy would appear to be a reversal of Taft's open fight with labor leaders in 1950. But Bricker told a reporter this is not so. He said right-to-work is a strictly state matter that should not be permitted to confuse issues in a year for statewide candidates.

Both sides in the fight believe, for different reasons, that a number of union members will vote for right-to-work.

Proponents say many workers want it because of dislike for "union bosses." Union leaders fear some members will favor it under the misapprehension that "right to work" in a period of unemployment, guarantees them a job.

Flavor All Its Own

By HAL BOYLE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — What makes the Midwesterner different?

There's no doubt he is.

Coming from the East to the Midwest you are aware of a difference in the people who dwell in the great heartland of America. But it takes you some time to puzzle out what that difference is.

Here are a few things you may observe:

The Midwesterner seems to get as much done as anybody else, but he never seems to be in a great hurry about it. He feels that every day is long enough for the work that has to be done in it.

The Midwesterner loves to talk, but he prefers small talk to big talk. He seems to have an innate understanding of the fact that time has a way of punishing braggarts.

The Midwesterner doesn't believe much in hysteria. The periodic panics and alarms that sweep people in coastal areas, rarely touch him. He still retains a kind of wonderful 19th century feeling of security in both himself and his section of the country.

The Midwesterner has a wry sense of humor based on a sound set of normal values. To him nothing is funnier than anyone or anything that lets itself get out of perspective, or, as he puts it, "too big for its britches."

The Midwesterner is self-confident in peace and makes a good soldier in wartime because he learns early to adjust to life, not as he might want it, but what it is. He knows each winter probably will be long and cold, and each summer long and hot.

The Midwesterner, like the Southerner, is instinctively polite — although perhaps in a more informal way. He prefers to take the other fellow at his own estimate as long as possible.

The Midwesterner is automatically friendly to everyone he meets. He enjoys doing small favors. But he can also be a long hater if he feels his friendship is imposed upon.

The Midwesterner is endlessly curious. He likes to hear about how other people live, but he is slow to change his own ways — and won't be stamped into doing so.

The land usually molds and patterns the people who live on it. This is particularly true of the Midwesterner. He is the man in the middle, far from the influences of the seas, and his nature is influenced more by the slow-changing soil than by tidal impacts.

Weather rules his existence from birth, and is always there ready to ruin or enrich him. To a Midwesterner probably the most important things in life are the weather and his home. He's a great weather watcher and a great homebody. No other American takes a deeper pride in his home — or works harder at keeping it up.

To the average Midwesterner a steak sizzling in the barbecue pit in his backyard holds a finer music than any sonata by Beethoven; tomorrow's weather forecast is more meaningful to him than anything Khrushchev may have said yesterday about the international political climate.

The Midwesterner, inhabiting as he does a vast, rolling midland, has a timeless feeling, a sense of eternity that springs only from the land. That is why he can spend 15 minutes on a street corner saying goodnight to a fellow he'll be seeing at 8:30 a.m. the next day.

Come up sunshine or a storm, there is one thing the Midwesterner can't quite understand: Why anyone would possibly want to live anywhere else in the wide world except where he does.

Big Summer In Boating's Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is the biggest summer and the biggest year so far in the booming boating business. The 25,000,000 American water sportsmen are expected to spend more than $2 billion for boats and accessories this year, up $100,000,000 over last year.

In addition, states, cities, clubs and private investors are spending millions more for marinas, waterways, boat yards, waterfront hotels and motels, water service stations and other facilities.

Prosperity generated by Americans' increased enthusiasm for boating is fairly well distributed. Many states without ready access to salt water or navigable lakes have factories turning out equipment for boating enthusiasts.

Example: Last year of 165,000 trailers to haul boats sold many were made in inland factories. This year the total will probably top 175,000, compared with 4,000 back in 1947.

The number of boats on the water now constitutes a serious traffic problem in many areas. Some states are working on laws

He Who Steps On Toes

By JIMMY ELLIS

It Was My Anniversary

Yesterday was a significant day in American history.

U.S. troops moved, by invitation, into a foreign country; the world was threatened by a new shooting war; and Russia was put squarely on the spot in the United Nations. It was a day which might be long remembered in world history.

On a more personal basis, the day also had a great measure of significance for me. It marked the fourth anniversary of my induction into the Army. It was a day which brought back a lot of memories.

Strangely enough, the memories are of things and not of people. Things like riding a bus through the South Carolina countryside after dark, eating a full meal after midnight, trying to make a bunk in a pitch-black tent and being roused from that bunk after two short hours of light sleep.

July 15, 1954, is a day I hope I never forget — and one I hope I'll never have to live through again.

Thoughts of what's going on in the Middle East and what happened four years ago were put completely aside during the past weekend for a visit to Virginia's culture-conscious Tidewater Country.

The visit was similar to a half-dozen we have made, and one which we always enjoy. The enjoyment this time, however, seemed to be doubled because Wee Urchin is finally getting big enough to share some of the

Opinions In Brief

"This is the time of the year when game managers renew their pleas of 'Leave the young of wildlife alone, regardless of whether it is deer, bear or birds.' Interfering with the young of wildlife is both anti-conservation and illegal." —Daily Journal, Antigo, Wis.

pleasures My Fair Gwen and I have, and the enthusiasm she has for each new turn in the road makes everything better.

As an example, neither My Fair Gwen nor I have ever really thought too much of the long ride across the James River Bridge. The bridge is narrow, there is a great deal of traffic and auto drivers have a full-time job staying out of trouble.

Wee Urchin, however, found the big river a fascinating adventure. His expressions of wonder at what he saw made the bridge seem shorter and the rushing traffic less pressing.

I think, perhaps, we'll have to keep him.

Also, over the weekend, we heard the first hint that President Eisenhower might try to solve his office problems by naming his former military aide, General Alfred Gruenther, to succeed Sherman Adams.

General Gruenther, who is now serving as president of the American Red Cross, was a long-time assistant to Eisenhower when Ike was on active military duty. The two men have a great deal of respect for each other, and Gruenther hasn't been accused of accepting any vicuna coats.

Other Editors Saying --- Testing Latins Again

(Henderson Dispatch)

Dr. Milton Eisenhower, college president brother of the chief executive, is in Panama on his first stop in a new bid for the good will of republics of the Southern Hemisphere. The administration thus is making a further attempt to test out the Latin Americans as to their attitude toward the United States. Only developments attendant upon the tour now getting under way will answer as to whether or not there will be added insults such as were heaped upon Vice President Nixon on his recent visit.

There have been some assurances that the situation is better in hand now than at the time of Nixon's tour. And it will be remembered that some advance intimations were given aforesaid of what was in store for the Veep but he continued on his way nevertheless, and with almost black results. A reasonable guess would be that Dr. Milton will not subject himself to repeated indignities of violence. Nor should he. Nor any other American, for that matter.

Every indication at the time of the Nixon trip was that treatment he received was not aimed at him personally but at the United States itself. The current Eisenhower visit should clarify that possibility and should leave little doubt in any minds. It is not the first visit of the present official emissary of the President to the Latin peoples. When he went before he was given appropriate receptions every-where he went. But a lot of water has run under the bridge since those days a few years ago. Popular sentiment apparently has changed.

This visit is designed to assure and reassure the South American governments and their people of the continued good will of the United States. No animosity and no hostility toward them exists here. It must be admitted, to be sure, that they have had not the red carpet treatment accorded those in Europe and Asia, and possibly in a few instances in Africa as well.

This is part of the explanation of slurs and epithets hurled at Nixon. While Eisenhower actually is an official envoy, he is not a high elective personality of the United States. Nor is he as well known. He should, however, gather useful information that can be given authorities in Washington upon his return as to what the actual difficulty is among the Latin peoples. That could form the basis of possible policy reappraisal on the part of the administration.

The United States will make a grave mistake to continue to sidestep or ignore the republics to the south. Already they are being courted by the Communists, and seem not to be able to look behind the scenes to sense the perils that lie hidden for them if they desert a real friend for one whose only purpose is to exploit them politically and ideologically. That's a fact of our relations which too long has been overlooked, and which definitely should be remedied at the earliest practicable time.

Many Plain Citizens Help Chart State Development

(EDITORS NOTE: Ten study commissions are preparing reports for Gov. Hodges and the 1959 Legislature. This is the first of three stories reviewing the work of the commissions.)

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH (AP) — Plain citizens play a role in the law-making process in the work of study commissions, a relatively recent and growing development in North Carolina government.

Nearly 100 Tar Heels are serving on 10 commissions authorized by the last Legislature to study various problems and report to Gov. Hodges and the 1959 Legislature.

Many of them are experts in their fields. Some are laymen, their citizenship their claim to serve. A goodly number are legislators who will go to bat in the House and Senate for adoption of proposals they helped work out.

Both on the state and national level, study commissions have been used for a number of years to prepare the ground for legislative action. It is a method that allows time for research on problem areas, rather than hasty solutions reached in the heat of legislative battle.

Gov. Hodges has shown particular favor for the study commission approach. A number of surveys and investigations have been launched at his suggestion. Major changes in state government during his administration have been born in commission reports. But while a study commission proposes, it is still the Legislature which disposes. Many schemes brought in by commissions have withered under the practical eyes of the lawmakers.

The new crop of commission reports will be reaching the desk of Gov. Hodges this fall. Copies will be mailed to each member of the Legislature which meets in February, allowing time for study and discussion with the home folks.

Hodges has indicated that a series of briefings may be held to acquaint lawmakers with findings and recommendations produced by the commissions.

The range of subjects goes from constitutional revision to motor boat safety.

One that will have particular interest for the Senators and Representatives will come from a commission studying the manner of selecting trustees of the Greater University of North Carolina.

Through the years, the job has been handled by a joint meeting of the House and Senate at each session. The result has been a high quota of legislators among the University trustees.

In some instances, trustees not in the law-making ranks have been bumped off the board despite long or distinguished service.

A five-member commission headed by Robert W. Proctor of Marion has been looking over methods of selection used in other states. They will decide whether a change is needed in the practice.

New regulations governing the licensing of nursing homes and boarding homes in the state may come from another study group. Frank R. Hutton of Greensboro is chairman of the commission, set up to survey boarding homes. In addition to regular members, Chairman Eugene G. Shaw of the Medical Care Commission and Dr.

Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner, serve on the study group.

The growing proportion of older folks in the state's population has focused attention on nursing homes and boarding homes.

Although it will concern itself with the whole field, the study commission will give particular attention to licensing procedures and supervision of the homes. At present, only those caring for persons who receive welfare aid are required to obtain a license from the State Board of Public Welfare. The licensing assures that certain standards are met.

Smallest of the study groups is the three-member commission dealing with operation of motorboats on the state's waters. Wayland Sermons of Washington, is its chairman.

It will develop recommendations to assure safety in operation of the growing number of power boats on Tar Heel waters.

What the commission recommends may hinge on action in Congress on the same question.

Rep. Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, N.C., Democrat from the First District, is engaged in a fight to tighten federal regulations covering operation of small boats.

Largest in membership among the study commissions is a 20-member group studying the cause and control of cancer in North Carolina. Ozmer L. Henry of Lumberton is chairman.

In creating the commission, the 1957 Legislature authorized it to "study the entire problem of cancer, including the matters of research, education and services furnished cancer victims."

Its membership may include all the women serving in the 1959 House. Dr. Rachel Davis, Kinston physician assured of Lenoir County's seat, is commission vice chairman. Mrs. Grace Taylor Roden-bough of Walnut Cove, who will be running in the fall for another term as Stokes County representative, is a member.

Land surveyors will have a stake in the findings of a commission studying the need for a uniform map law in North Carolina. The seven-member group is headed by Henry M. Von Oesen of Wilmington. The resolution which created the commission said the absence of minimum standards for preparing and filing land papers "has led to an increase in defects in land titles and subjected property owners to the possibility of expensive law suits."

The commission was instructed to determine whether a uniform map law, setting out minimum standards, is required to meet the situation.

August Chosen 'See N.C.' Month

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges has proclaimed August as "See North Carolina" month.

The observance, sponsored by the North Carolina Travel Council, is to acquaint Tar Heels with the state's coast-to-mountain vacationlands and to stimulate travel within the state.

The governor will open the special month Aug. 1 by receiving at his press conference that day costumed representatives of various North Carolina locales.

Libraries and local businesses will feature North Carolina travel displays during the month, and more than 350 libraries will serve as information centers.

Robert R. Garvey Jr. of Winston-Salem, is the Travel Council's "See North Carolina" chairman. The 58 officers and directors of the council are ex-officio members of his committee.

In his proclamation, the governor called attention to North Carolina's rapidly growing tourist industry and the Travel Council's program to "make available through all media of information facts about our state that will enable our citizens to know about and enjoy to the fullest extent their unequalled attractions in variety vacationland, not only in August but throughout the year."

Indians See 13th Case Of Polio

BROWNING, Mont. (AP) — A 13th polio victim was reported today as new health measures were begun to halt an epidemic of the disease in the Blackfeet Indian reservation.

All the polio cases have been diagnosed within the past 13 days. Nine of them are paralytic. A 3-year-old girl died of the disease Saturday.

Doctors have given the first of a series of three Salk vaccine inoculations to more than 3,000 reservation inhabitants and townspeople here. Indian Health Service officials ordered a massive community cleanup and DDT spraying program this week.

Brands Alcohol As Biggest Issue

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Its moderator says the Southern Presbyterian Church should challenge Negro leaders to meet their responsibilities.

Philip F. Howerton of Charlotte told leaders of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina yesterday that "second class citizenship need not be a result of racial status," adding:

"Their leaders should be told that they must demand of their people a greater pride of accomplishment, not a shame of their race."

Howerton asserted alcoholism, not race relations, was the most important issue facing the church.

He spoke at the opening synod session at Davidson College before more than 500 elders and ministers.

The meeting approved a recommendation to individual churches to reimburse their ministers for some $1,100 they spend yearly in ministry expenses.

The recommendation, based on a layman's study, is to be effective in three years.

The session also installed the Rev. Kelsey Regan of Durham as the new synod moderator, succeeding Dr. Marshall S. Woodson of Flora Macdonald College.

Picked as moderator - nominee for 1959 was the Rev. Dr. Chester Alexander of Burlington's First Presbyterian Church.

Howerton asserted alcoholism leads to "more unhappiness, more ill health, more frustration, more loss of interest in the church, family, and business than any other one factor in our American life."

He urged the synod to take positive action in alcoholism problems as well as marriage and divorce, stewardship and evangelism, and in evangelizing the Negroes.

Howerton said each church should match its domestic spending with contributions to missions or other benevolent causes. He said the church had fallen down in evangelizing the Negroes.

President May Win Point In Reciprocal Trade Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate opens floor debate on a battered reciprocal trade extension bill today with strong prospects of eliminating a provision that would restrict President Eisenhower's powers.

Proponents conceded the Senate probably would not reverse all changes made by the Finance Committee against the wishes of the President.

The President has called the bill one of the cornerstone measures of his 1958 legislative program.

The House passed it overwhelmingly in a form that met his wishes. It granted a five-year extension of the 24-year-old law, the longest ever voted, and gave him new power to cut tariffs 25 per cent.

The Senate Finance Committee made four changes strongly opposed by the administration.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif) and Byrd are teaming up to try to eliminate the one most objectionable to the administration.

This provision, adopted 8-7 in committee over Byrd's opposition sharply curtails the powers of the President in handling escape clause cases under the trade act.

These cases involve an appeal by an industry to the Tariff Commission for relief from damage it claims from foreign imports. The commission can recommend higher duties or import quotas, if it upholds the claim, but the President now does not have to follow the finding and often does not do so.

The House, in a section acceptable to Eisenhower, provided that a presidential rejection of a Tariff Commission recommendation could be overruled by a two-thirds vote of both branches of Congress.

The Senate committee changed this to provide that the commission's decision would stand unless a majority of both branches voted to uphold the President. The provision stated also that, in case of a tie on the six-member commission, the finding of the three who voted for relief should be considered the majority recommendation.

Backers of the President on this issue said the votes were available to knock this out and return to the House language.

But there appeared less likelihood that the Senate would change the three other finance committee amendments opposed by the President. They would:

1. Cut the extension period to three years and reduce new tariff-cutting power to 15 per cent.
2. Permit cuts of no more than 5 per cent in each year.
3. Greatly broadening the national security section of the act to permit many new industries to seek relief from foreign competition.

More than half the adult Americans can swim.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government figures show June brought further recovery for the nation's economy.

Industrial production rose, new housing starts increased, nonagricultural employment made advances and personal income was up.

The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial activity showed a production rise for the second straight month after dropping for eight months. The rise for June was two points to 130 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

The recession low of 126 was reached last April. The index record is 147 set in December 1947.

The Commerce Department reported personal income rose in June to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $351,800,000, a figure just 300 million dollars below the record set last August. The 1958 low of $346,400,000 was set in February.

The Commerce Department said the June rise reflected increases in wage and salary payments. Government Social Security and unemployment benefit payments declined for the first time since February.

The Automobile Club of New York reports that 55 per cent of vehicle-miles driven in U. S. are connected with earning a livelihood and 13 per cent with shopping.

Last year's Tar Heel All-Stars topped the North Carolina state title and went to the regionals at Rome, Georgia, where they were eliminated. Only one of last year's All-Stars, Frank Harper, is a repeater on the 1958 squad.

The two teams will begin drill on Monday right away after today's final Little League regular-season games. They will journey to Havelock on July 24, 25, 26 for the district tournament which will include teams from Fort Bragg, Havelock, Tarboro, Beaufort, Morehead City.

The pairings for the tournament have been drawn and the Tar Heels will play the North State club in the first round of play on the 24th. The winning team will then face Morehead City in the semi-finals on the 25th. Should a Greenville team win that one, they will face either Fort Bragg, Tarboro, Havelock, or Beaufort for the title on the 26th.

The winner of the district tournament will come to Greenville next to participate in the State tournament, which will be held August 1 and 2.

Barry McKay Leads Group In 4th Round

CHICAGO (AP)—Top-seeded Barry McKay, the power-serving Davis Cupper, led a host of rated performers today into the fourth round of the 49th annual National Clay Court Tennis Tournament.

The 22-year-old Dayton, Ohio, skooker, one of America's best Davis Cup betters, encountered some trouble in blasting out two victors yesterday in suburban River Forest.

Coming from Davis Cup zone play in Canada, McKay had some difficulty from 15-year-old Bobby Siska of San Francisco before winning the second round match, 6-3, 6-4.

Then he turned back Gay Messick of Western Springs, Ill., by a 5-1 score.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzan, seeking another title to go with the crown he captured in 1954, lost only two games in taking decisions from Mike Gordon and Parker Hall Jr., both of Chicago.

Other top-rated players joining McKay in the fourth round were Whitney Reed, Alameda, Calif., 6-1, 6-0 winner over Walter Sampson Jr., Chicago; Sammy Gianniniva, Houston, who shelved William Ball, Waterloo, Iowa, 6-0, 6-2; and Mike Green, Miami Beach, who moved past Robert Delgado, Los Angeles, 6-1, 0-5.

Alejandro Olmedo of Los Angeles defeated Steve Cox of Chicago 6-0, 6-1 and David Harum, Coral Gables, blanked Jerry Budzick, Gary, Ind., in straight sets, to most second-round victories.

With Or Without Bolt, Tourney Should Be Good

HAVERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—With or without Tommy Bolt, the first PGA championship conducted at stroke play figures to be a whopping success when it gets underway tomorrow at the Llanerch Country Club.
There's about $100,000 in the till already from advance ticket sales and program advertising officials and PGA officials are looking for this tournament to set the pattern that will make the PGA championship at least equal in importance to the National Open.

The big question on the eve of the tournament wasn't who will win and what score will it take, but will Bolt get the chance to become the first player in 10 years and the third in all time to win the two major American titles in the same year. Only two players, Gene Sarazen in 1922 and Ben Hogan in 1948, have won the Open and PGA championships in the same year.

Tommy talked himself into trouble at a couple of Long Island tournaments last month. He was scheduled for a hearing yesterday on charges that he had violated a probation imposed last January for other peccadilloes. He didn't show up and after a few embarrassing delays it was found he hadn't been properly notified. The hearing was reset for 6 p.m. EDT today.

This year's stroke play, 72-hole tournament, the first of its kind after 39 years of deciding the title by head-to-head matches, is strictly an experiment.

The defending champion, Liney Hebert, who won at match play last year, said he thought a good roller had a better chance of winning over the 72-hole medal route.

TUESDAY'S STARS
HITTING: Hank Aaron, Braves — Drove in three runs with a pair of homers and a sacrifice fly in 4-1 victory over the Cardinals.
PITCHING: Mike McCormick, Giants — Truman Cleveland, Senators — McCormick buckled down when the going got rough, giving up nine hits in a 1-0 victory over the Phillies. Cleveland struck out seven and blanked the Indians on one hit in 6 1-3 innings of relief for 3-4 victory.

Bad-Tempered Bolt May Be Bumped Again

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
HAVERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Are they going to lower the boom on trigger-tempered Tommy Bolt?

This question took priority over the usual pretournament gripes about the course and weather today as the country's top professionals tuned up for the National PGA Golf Championship, opening tomorrow.

Bolt, on probation since last January and hit with a $500 fine for bad conduct, has been called on the carpet of the Professional Golfers Assn. Executive Committee tonight to plead his case.

If he can't convince the 15-member committee that he deserves another chance, he likely is to be barred from PGA-sponsored competition for from a few months to a year or more.

Most observers, however, expected the on-again off-again club thrower to get no more than a severe dressing down and a warning.

Bolt is the National Open champion. Recent publicity has made him perhaps the biggest drawing card in the game. It is figured the

Carr's Homer Beats Hi-Toms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bill Carr blasted the three-run homer as Greensboro won 4-1 over High Point-Thomasville in the Carolina League last night.

The victory snipped a game from the Hi-Toms' lead, and kept the Yankees in a tight race with Winston-Salem for second place.

The Red Birds, meanwhile, edged Raleigh 3-2 as Rollie Pasaro won his ninth game against a single loss. Both Winston-Salem and Greensboro are 2 1/2 games behind the first place Hi-Toms.

Burlington squeaked out a 2-1 decision over third-place Danville. Bob Allen got the win, although he needed relief in the ninth.

Durham trounced Wilson 12-7 with a barrage of four homers including three in the first inning, good for six runs.

Carr unleashed his homer in the third with two on. The marking stood up and Rudy Serrett registered his eighth win against six losses.

Raleigh managed a 2-2 tie with Winston-Salem in the eighth, but the Red Birds went back ahead when Bob White scored on a passed ball.

Joe Sparks homer in the ninth was the only score for Danville. Burlington had bunched three hits in the third inning for one score, then added another in the sixth.

The schedule tonight: Burlington at Danville, Durham at Winston, Hi-Toms at Greensboro, and Raleigh at Winston-Salem.

Roberts Is A Big Winner But He Has His Troubles

They Think He's Worth $85,000

By ALAN CLINE
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Mike McCormick cost the Giants an $85,000 bonus two years ago but his teammates and opponents agree he was worth every penny of it.

The swift-pitching 19-year-old lefty is the National League's leading percentage pitcher with a 7-1 record. He got his seventh last night, a 1-0 masterpiece for San Francisco over the Philadelphia Phillies and Robin Roberts.

"He had good stuff, that rascal," said Roberts, a 10-year major leaguer who had a two-hitter going until he was lifted in the eighth for a pinch hitter, McCormick allowed nine blows.

"The kid learned so fast," commented Frank Shellenback, head of the Giants' minor league pitching personnel. "He's 100 per cent improved over his spring training performance." Shellenback said he was most pleased about the way Mike got himself out of trouble.

He had two men on in the sixth but got Ed Bouchee to pop out to end the inning. In the eighth, he loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. Rip Repulski, the Phils cleanup man, was up and Manager Bill Rigney walked to the mound. He stayed with his youngster and Repulski fled out.

In the ninth, with one out, Willie Jones and Eddie Kazanski singled. Carl Sawatski ended the game by grounding into a double play.

"Mike was blazing the ball, whistling it," Rigney said, "and his control was perfect. He only walked one man. I was really happy to see him get Repulski. He's a guy who really hits left-handers."

The Giants got their run, enough to keep them in second place half a game behind Milwaukee, on two walks, a double and a costly error by third baseman Willie Jones in the seventh.

McCormick, from San Gabriel, Calif., said he was throwing fast balls for the most part and was nervous only once — when those bases were loaded. He had nothing but sympathy for Roberts. "That error," Mike said, "it was tough luck."

Jaycees 5 2
VFW 4 4

Tar Heel League
Pepsi-Cola 8 1
Elks 4 4
Exchange 2 5
Moose 1 8

In Little League play yesterday at Elm Street Park, a doubleheader took place—with one game being played in the Tar Heel and another being played in the North State loop.

The Jaycees knocked off the Kiwanis 8-0 in the North State game, behind the pitching of Alton Clapp. Clapp pitched a one-hitter, while his team tapped Kiwanis hurlers Ward and Hardee for five hits.

In the other ball game, Pepsi-Cola's Billy Cannon tossed a victory over the Elks, 5-1. The Pepsi team got four hits, while the losers got four also. The loss was chalked up against Clark.

A doubleheader today will end the season for both loops. The Jaycees and VFW will clash and the Moose will battle the Exchange.

In the American League, Detroit walloped New York 12-5 with Frank Lary beating the Yankees for the fifth time. Second-place Boston defeated Kansas City 5-2 on Jackie Jensen's 27th home run.

Baltimore beat the Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 12 innings, and Washington beat Cleveland 5-4.

In the National League, Milwaukee retained a half-game lead by beating St. Louis 4-1. Second-place San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 1-0. Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 6-2 in the only other game scheduled.

Lary had a string of 27 shutouts over the Yankees until a two-run seventh, and finally gave way in a two-run eighth, when Mickey Mantle hit his 24th home run. Lary now is 9-8 for the season.

Gail Harris, who hit two triples, drove in four runs for the Tigers, while Al Kaline and Charlie Maxwell each brought home three. Kaline tripled with the bases loaded as Detroit built a 6-0 lead against rookie Zach Monroe (1-1) in two innings.

Jensen, the major league home run leader, hit his one-season high with a three-run shot in the first inning of loser Ray Herbert (3-5). Frank Sullivan won his eighth, but needed relief.

Gus Triandos hit a solo 17th homer and counted the clincher with a bases-loaded, two-out single in the 12th for the Orioles against reliever Turk Lown (0-2). Arnie Portocarrero (8-5) went all the way, giving up seven hits and blanking the White Sox on one hit for nine innings after a two-run first.

Roy Sievers' 21st home run broke up a tie for the Senators in the seventh off Gary Bell (3-3). Herb Score made his first start since April 30 for the Indians, and trailed 4-0 when he left in the second. Tex Clevenger (5-8) won it in blanking the Tribe on one hit in 6 1-3 innings of relief, retiring the last 14 in order.

WASHINGTON (AP) Commissioner Ford Frick told senators today that baseball desperately needs the power to curb TV-radio broadcasts of its games. Otherwise he said, the sport faces destruction.

Frick pictured major league telecasts into minor league territory as a "major contributing cause" of the minors' rapid decline in popularity.

He said the majors and minors depend on each other to stay in existence.

But he cautioned that without a binding TV-radio rule some clubs may "deviate from the desired line" and continue to beam their games into minor league cities regardless of the consequences.

Frick testified before the Senate Antitrust subcommittee which is weighing House-passed legislation to grant pro baseball, football, basketball and hockey broad exemptions from Antitrust Laws.

In appealing for self regulation by baseball of its broadcasting activity, Frick touched on what may be the sorest point with Senators who have expressed fear the House bill sets a bad precedent for easing antitrust law restrictions.

Four Candidates Seek Post Cuba's President

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Four men who want to be president of Cuba are starting to beat the bushes for votes in the elections scheduled Nov. 3.

The climate for campaigning isn't good. Sporadic rebel bombings, sabotage, killings and the guerrilla war in Oriente province still go on.

Constitutional guarantees are suspended and a state of emergency is being enforced. This means press, radio and television are heavily censored. Police can raid homes, arrest Cubans without a warrant, toss them into jail indefinitely and never say why.

Public assemblies are barred. The government has virtually unlimited authority to take whatever action it deems necessary to maintain order and crush "subversive movements."

But the government is determined that nothing will stop the elections.

The Supreme Electoral Council, established to arrange the November voting, is permitting candidates to address public assemblies whenever such authorization is requested.

This is the lineup of candidates: Former Premier Andres Rivero Aguerro, 53-year-old lawyer and historian, has the personal support of President Batista and four parties backing Batista's government.

Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin is 76 and was president from 1944 to 1948. He is the choice of the Cuban Revolutionary Autentico party.

Carlos Marquez Sterling, backed by the Free People's party, is a shrewd, 58-year-old lawyer who served as president of Cuba's Constituent Assembly in 1940.

Alberto Salas Amaro, 43, is a long-time journalist and nominee of the Union Cubana party.

Outside of the Cubans actively working in the parties, little interest has been demonstrated. Probably most Cubans think the election already is in the bag for Rivero Aguerro, Batista's candidate.

Batista has promised the elections will be fair and honest. Cubans who try to be impartial say Rivero Aguerro is virtually certain to be elected president because his opposition is divided.

All four candidates are plugging the general theme of work, peace and progress.

Telephone Expansion Project Is Started

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has started work on a $160,000 expansion program in the Greenville central office on Dickinson Avenue to furnish improved and additional service for subscribers here.

Installation of equipment now underway will also provide for conversion of the exchange to a new nationwide numbering plan later this year, according to Frank Harrington, local manager for the company.

Space for the equipment now being installed was made available by construction of a new telephone building on Fifth Street in 1957 allowing removal of long distance equipment from the Dickinson Avenue building.

Switching facilities are being installed at the central office for 1,000 new lines. This work will enable the company to offer telephone service to many new applicants and to furnish higher grades of service to existing subscribers.

Harrington noted that the growth of Greenville and the surrounding area is reflected in the tremendous increase in the number of telephones in the area.

He said that when the company purchased the Greenville exchange in 1926 there were 1,225 telephones in operation. Twenty years later 2,820 telephones were serving subscribers here. By 1953—just five years ago—the number had risen to 5,325, and today the company serves Greenville via more than 7,700 telephones.

The expansion program here is a part of the company's continuing effort to provide efficient, modern communications for Eastern North Carolina.

Jumped Again... For Last Time

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Last Saturday, police rescued Mrs. Ida Lowe, 68, from the Missouri River after she had clung to a log and floated for 90 minutes. She told officers she jumped from a bridge in an effort to kill herself, then changed her mind. She was taken to General Hospital for observation.

Last night Mrs. Lowe was killed in a plunge from the fourth floor of the hospital. Police said she jumped.

After Long Tour, No Shore Leave

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Crewmen were called back to the carrier USS Philippine Sea hours after the vessel arrived from six months duty in the western Pacific.

Police and sheriff's officers helped get the word to the crew. The Navy said the sailors were recalled as an extra security precaution due to the international situation.

Later, the antisubmarine carrier departed for its home port, Long Beach, Calif., 100 miles north.

Attacker Said To Have Confessed He Cut Victim 'Til Breathing Stopped

RALEIGH (AP) — A Raleigh police officer has testified that Matthew Phillip Bass admitted he raped and slashed a white office worker in the building where Bass was a janitor.

Bass, 48-year-old Negro, is on trial for his life in Wake County Superior Court. More state witnesses were to be heard today as the trial entered its third day.

The chief witness yesterday was Mrs. Sarah K. Mahler, who related to the jury of white men how she was beaten, raped, slashed with a pocket knife and left for dead.

Judge Malcolm Paul cleared the courtroom of spectators while the 35-year-old mother of three children gave her testimony.

Patrolman B. G. Parker, who arrested Bass shortly after the attack last June 12, said the muscular Negro first denied raping the woman, but later admitted it under questioning by detectives.

Parker said Bass told officers: "I cut her until she stopped breathing."

Herman Taylor, Negro lawyer named by the court to defend Bass, asked Mrs. Mahler under cross examination if she had screamed at the time of the attack.

"No, I was praying out loud," she answered.

To Solicitor Lester V. Chalmers Jr., she added "I was bleeding and he had threatened my life."

A hawk-bill pocket knife was identified by Murdis Estes, another Negro janitor at the building where Bass was employed, as one which belonged to Bass. It was the same weapon which Mrs. Mahler had testified was similar to the one used by her attacker.

Estes said fellow janitors missed Bass for a brief period the afternoon of the attack. Soon after, he continued, Mrs. Mahler staggered out of the elevator on the building's first floor, bloody and begging for help.

Parker told of arresting Bass after two searches of the building. Bass did not come from his hiding place in the air conditioning room.

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP)—Thirteen years ago this morning, a small group of scientists sworn to secrecy watched the first atomic bomb explode into a mushroom cloud on the New Mexico desert.

At 5:30 a.m., the bomb obliterated the tower on which it was placed and glazed a large saucer of surrounding sand.

Officials explained the far-felt jolt as the explosion of an ammunition magazine, until, three weeks later, President Truman told of the dropping of an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

Then came to light what had been going on at the secret city of Los Alamos, in the mountains of northern New Mexico, where the bomb was born.

'Code' Forbids Beards, Slacks

BELFLOWER, Calif. (AP)—A girl in slacks or a bearded boy won't stand a chance at Belflower's high schools next semester. Beards and slacks just don't pass the Code.

The Code is a policy adopted by the school board in this Los Angeles suburb to tell the town's teen-agers how they're supposed to act at school.

Each student will get a copy of the Code. It classifies misbehavior in three degrees: unacceptable, serious and extreme.

Beards and slacks are unacceptable. So are beach wear, "hot rod jackets" and trousers too low at the hips, for the boys; and open-back or low-front dresses, sheer blouses and flamboyant hair tints for the girls.

Serious offenses include truancy, fighting, gambling, defying authority, profanity and destroying school property. Extreme offenses are obscene language, striking a teacher, setting fires, bringing lethal weapons to classes, use of narcotics or alcoholic beverages.

Unacceptable misbehaviors may earn only citations. Other penalties are suspension from school for the balance of the semester and expulsion.

Dr. Norman Wampler, superintendent of schools, explaining the Code to a reporter, emphasized that "we feel that our kids are no worse than any others." He added: "We feel that high school youngsters need to know exactly what is expected of them with respect to behavior, dress and application to studies, and the punishments they may expect if they fail to comply."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Raleigh Segregation Case Decision In August

RALEIGH (AP) — A decision may come soon after Aug. 8 in Raleigh's school segregation case. Federal Judge Edwin Stanley set the date for final arguments yesterday after hearing testimony in the suit seeking admission of a 15-year-old Negro youth to a white Raleigh high school. The jurist indicated that the question to be answered was whether the Raleigh School Board used race as a factor in rejecting the application of Joseph Hiram Holt Jr. to enter a white school. Following the hearing, Judge Stanley called for lawyers to file briefs in the case Aug. 1, with reply briefs due Aug. 7. The judge is expected to give his decision soon after oral arguments on Aug. 8. However, it is likely the case will go to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals regardless of Judge Stanley's decision. Attorneys for Holt and for the Raleigh School Board questioned seven witnesses, including young Holt, Raleigh Mayor W. G. Eades, and two school board members. Judge Stanley said it was not necessary that lawyers for Holt show that race was the sole factor in the school board's rejection of Holt's request for transfer. "This whole line of (segregation) cases says that as long as school boards assign students without regard to race, they may use other factors treating both races alike. But when race becomes a factor, that's what our courts condemn," the judge explained. Two school board members testified under questioning by Samuel Mitchell, attorney for Holt.

that race was at least partially considered in dealing with Holt's application. In addition to the race factor, Judge Stanley said it must be determined whether the youth exhausted administrative remedies under the state's pupil assignment plan before appealing to federal court. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, lawyer for the school board, argued that the Holts did not act in good faith when they failed to appear at a school board hearing on the application. Asst. Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody filed a brief for the state in the case, urging that the state courts be allowed to rule on administrative procedure under the pupil assignment law.

Owes It All To An Older Sister

WRAP YOUR SANDWICH? NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot used 240,000 feet—almost 44 miles—of waxed paper in printing a bakery's advertisement on the same type waxed paper in which the bread is wrapped. The paper alone cost $3,326.40.

CONNERSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Sarah Riley refused to take all the credit for attending school for 12 years without missing a single day of class. "I owe it all to my older sister," she said. "She brought all the childhood diseases home to me, so there was nothing left for me to have after I started to school."

Peacetime Action For U.S. Marines Is Familiar Story

By TOM HENSHAW NEW YORK (AP)—A bunch of Marines landing in Lebanon has created quite an international ruckus. Not too long ago, the same operation would hardly have raised an eyebrow. The peacetime U. S. Corps of Marines has landed, fought—and suffered casualties—so many times and on so many shores that it's easy to lose count. Thirty-odd years ago Marines were so common in the Latin American states of Nicaragua, Haiti and the Dominican Republic that knowledge of the Spanish language was almost a prerequisite to enlistment. And, scarcely a century ago, China and the rest of the Far East seems to have been fairly crawling with fighting, sweating and cursing peacetime Leathernecks. The American habit of calling on the Marines doesn't appear to have started at any one precise time. Marines were landing "on the shores of Tripoli" (as their song goes) in the unofficial war against the Barbary pirates in 1804. They were back for a repeat performance in Algiers in 1815. Leathernecks stormed into the Sumatran jungles in 1832, chasing pirates who killed several American sailors. They fought a pitched battle with the buccaneers and even burned the sizable town of Quallah Battoo. There was hardly any comment even in the local papers when they taught lessons to natives in the Philippines and Samoa in 1838 and 1839. The natives had a habit of killing American traders and seafarers. In the middle of the last century, American clipper ships carried on a man-sized trade with the Far East. Trade brought the protection of the U.S. Navy. And the U.S. Navy brought its Marines. As early in 1854, and possibly earlier, the Corps was in Shanghai battling the troops of the Imperial Chinese Army itself to protect the small foreign colony. The home team was runner-up in the engagement. Two years later, a small detachment of Marines cut its way through a 5,000-man Chinese army, taking forts from the coast to Canton, to demand an apology for an insult to the American flag. The Leathernecks were fighting for unheralded but deadly police action in Korea 80 years before the most recent unpleasanties in that unhappy land. It started when the Koreans burned a stranded American vessel and chopped up its crew. The Marines stormed ashore, captured a supposedly impressive fort called the Citadel and extracted a promise to be good. Highpoint of Marine peacetime action in the Orient came during the Boxer Rebellion in 1900 when anti-foreign feeling ran high. U.S. Marines and German soldiers stood back to back in the heroic defense of Peking's foreign compound. Marines and Russian soldiers spearheaded the international column that lifted the siege of the enclave. The Marines' peacetime activities are probably best known in Latin America where, in an earlier era, nearly every revolt produced a Marine landing to protect American lives and property and, sometimes, to back a favored cause. They landed in Haiti on July 9, 1915 to effect a "quick" settlement of the island republic's century-old political chaos. The last Marine didn't leave until Aug. 15, 1934. Marine landings were standard procedure in Nicaragua between 1910 and 1933 and in the Dominican Republic from 1912 to 1924. They brought order to Cuba between 1906 and 1909. They were in Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1914. There's no counting the number of times they returned to the beaches of Panama in time of revolt to protect a vital railroad across the isthmus. There was no Panama Canal or Canal Zone in those days.

Mother Returns To Find 3 Tots Shot, No Husband

TROY, Pa. (AP) A mother found her three young daughters shot to death last night and her husband missing from their farm home near the New York state border. —Mrs. Margaret Pelton, 23, said she had returned to the house after a visit and had found Connie, 2, slumped in her stroller, seemingly asleep. Concerned that the child was up so late, she called out to her husband Paul, 19. There was no answer. She suddenly realized Connie was shot. She ran into the bedroom. Patricia, 3, was on the bed. Pauline, 5 months, was in a basket. The children were dead. Mrs. Pelton said later she ran out to the garage where her father Carlton Brion, 45, had just parked the car. She yelled hysterically: "We got to get help quick. The children are dead." Brion had driven his daughter to Troy Community Hospital earlier in the evening for a visit with Pauline's twin brother Paul, who was critically ill from an asthma attack. They had been gone about four hours. Their home is just outside Troy, which is about 25 miles south of Elmira, N. Y. A wide police search was on for Pelton, but Coroner Gerald Vickery said there was not much to indicate he did the shooting, beside the facts he was missing and so was his .22-caliber rifle. Police said the children had been shot with a .22. Patricia in the head, and Pauline and Connie in the stomach. Mrs. Pelton told a newsman that her husband, a slender 6-footer, had been a cheerful, devoted man during their four years of marriage and was very fond of his four children. Pelton, who recently was laid off at a women's stocking factory, had just bought the children new clothing. Mrs. Pelton said she said she had put the children to bed and just before she left for the hospital her husband had said: "You stay at the hospital as long as you want to and I will watch the children." He had given her a dollar for a snack at a restaurant during the trip. Handling of machinery is top cause for most fatal accidents on American farms. Second cause for fatalities in the rural areas is drowning.

Social Security Boost Is Nearer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An increase in old age Social Security benefits, together with a hike in the payroll tax, moved today toward approval by the House Ways and Means Committee. It would mean an addition of 10 per cent, or a minimum of $5, to present Social Security pension checks under proposals now reportedly favored by committee members. The boost appeared certain to get quick approval by House and Senate. It would be in line with an election-year pattern that has produced fatter pension checks for the old folks every two years since 1952. Benefits now are financed by a payroll tax of 4 1/2 per cent, with each worker and his employer contributing 2 per cent, on the worker's annual pay up to $4,200 a year. Committee proposals would increase the tax to 2 1/2 per cent for worker and employer and the taxable wage base to $4,800. This would mean that $120 instead of $94.50 would be withheld each year from paychecks of workers earning $4,800 or more. The practice of voting election-year increases in Social Security benefits has been frowned upon by the Eisenhower administration. Secretary of Welfare Folsom opposed increases this year, contending any change should be limited to a form of cost-of-living additions.

CHAPTER 25

"You were going to tell me why Jim Ned Wheeler went up the Escabrosa Canyon trail," Slade considered prodded Martha Kilgore's memory.

The girl hesitated a moment before speaking. "Jim Ned told me Wynn had claimed for years that he hasn't used the Valle Medio. But the trail up there is good and there are lots of fresh tracks on it. About a mile up above where this trail takes off, Jim Ned found a 'branding iron.'"

"A T Anchor iron?" Slade asked.

"Your spurs. I'm going to ride fast." The girl nodded, catching something of his spirit of grim haste. Slade smiled at her briefly, then swung his horse about and up the trail.

He had expected to have to ride far up Escabrosa Creek, perhaps even to the Valle Medio, but not much more than half a mile before the first deep bend in the trail they found Jim Ned's body. He was lying on his back, his arms and legs spread-eagled in four directions. His horse was nowhere in sight.

Martha, coming a dozen feet behind, did not see him until Slade had swung down from his saddle. Then with a little cry of horror she jumped off her horse.

Slade nodded to the anguished question in her eyes. "He's dead, Martha."

His fingers went gently over the limp body. Both legs seemed to be broken and one wrist, and there was a queer, concave spot on his left side over his heart that indicated a number of broken ribs. His clothes were covered with dirt, and his face was a mangled mass of blood and grime and bruises, but although he felt him over carefully, Slade could find no sign of any deeper wound.

Up on the trail a dozen yards a shotgun gleamed in the sun. Slade picked it up and broke it open. There was an empty shell in the cylinder.

Martha watched him, her eyes asking the questions she didn't seem able to find voice for.

"Looks like his horse may have spooked at something and thrown him," Slade came back and stood over the body. He pointed to the right boot, the only part of the clothing on the entire body that was clean of dirt and cuts. Across the ankle was a wide rubbed spot, but the grain of the leather hadn't been broken. "His boot must have hung in the stirrup, and the horse dragged him to death. You can see where something has been dragged along the trail."

"He—he wasn't shot?"

Slade shook his head. "There is no gun wound on him. And there has been bullet fired from his own gun. That is probably the one you heard."

He was watching her face closely to see if any look of doubt crossed her face. When it didn't, he went on gravely:

"Martha, I'm going to put him on my horse. Then, if you won't be afraid, I would like you to take him home. I want to scout around here afoot for while and see if I can find what happened to Jim Ned's horse to be sure he isn't in trouble. Then if I don't find him I will go on down to Frenchy's, get a horse and ride in and report to the sheriff."

Martha was still too dazed by her first encounter with sudden and violent death to offer him the opportunity.

Without quite knowing why, Martha felt fear clutch at her heart. "Slade was afraid maybe he had hurt himself, and was tripped somewhere. Then he was going to town and report to the sheriff."

The old lady shook her head again, and looked at her granddaughter with black, glittering witch's eyes. "It didn't happen that way at all, Martha. Jim Ned wasn't dragged by any boot hung in the stirrup. He was murdered!"

"I think I'd better mosey up that way and see what's going on," Slade said a bit too casually.

Martha wasn't fooled. When he started up the hill toward his horse, she ran down to the bay, gathered the reins and swung into the saddle. This time she wasn't going to be left out.

Slade headed her off as she started up the trail. "Martha, this is no place for you. Go on back!"

She shook her head stubbornly. "I won't be in the way," she promised. "Besides—I don't know the way home."

"Give your horse his head. He'll take you home."

"She shook her head stubbornly and set her chin in a way that was faintly reminiscent of her grandmother. "We're wasting time."

Slade gave up the argument because he couldn't see that there was anything else he could do. He eyed the bay. "That horse can keep up. If he starts lagging, use position he had been dreading. "I'll do whatever you say, Slade. But you will come out to the house and talk to Granny tonight, won't you? I think she'll want to see you."

The cowboy hesitated. "All right. If I can make it."

Late afternoon sunlight slanted through the wide windows of the living room in the big old Walking K ranch house. It touched to coppery flame Beulah Denhart's head, and even brought a youthful glister to Rachel Kilgore's grey-sprinkled black hair, as both women bent over the chess board between them.

So intent were they that they failed to see Martha stop at the back rack. Only when she opened the door and stepped inside did they raise their heads.

Beulah smiled at her. "Hello, Martha. I'll bet you didn't expect me to take up your invitation so quick, did you?"

Martha's answering smile was mechanical. "I am glad you're here, Beulah." She crossed the room to her grandmother's side, and dropped a hand on her shoulder. "Granny, I've got some bad news for you."

The old lady's ivory cheeks turned a shade paler. "Straight from the shoulder," she said quietly. "Where is Jim Ned?"

"There was an accident," Martha said slowly. "Jim Ned is dead."

Rachel Kilgore looked all at once tiny and old and tired. She stood up. "Where is he?"

"Outside. Is he here—or Julio—to help us bring him in?" Rachel shook her head. "They aren't back yet. Beulah, will you call Mary? We women can manage by ourselves."

She blew her nose. "What happened, Martha?" she asked harshly.

By the time Martha had finished telling her the old lady was slowly shaking her head. "Where is Slade now?"

"He was going to look for Jim Ned's horse. He—"

Without quite knowing why, Martha felt fear clutch at her heart. "Slade was afraid maybe he had hurt himself, and was tripped somewhere. Then he was going to town and report to the sheriff."

The old lady shook her head again, and looked at her granddaughter with black, glittering witch's eyes. "It didn't happen that way at all, Martha. Jim Ned wasn't dragged by any boot hung in the stirrup. He was murdered!"

"I want to win especially because of what happened in the contest last year," Miss Vogts said.

Mary Leona Gage, then Miss Maryland, was selected as Miss United States. But the title was taken away and she was disqualified from the ensuing Miss Universe competition because she was married.

Miss Vogts has been a neurosurgical nurse at University of Maryland Hospital here for the past three months. She says she enjoys nursing, but believes she also could handle modeling assignments.

Her 37½-24½-36½ measurements tend to bear this out.

Two Killed By Lightning Bolt

GREENUP, Ill. (AP) — A motorist in trouble and a man who had stopped to help were killed yesterday by lightning.

The automobile of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Livingston of Los Angeles ran off U.S. 40 during a rainstorm and became mired.

Two traveling salesmen stopped to assist them.

Mrs. Livingston, 36, and one of the salesmen, Glenn Franklin Hartman, 33, New Carlisle, Ind., were killed by the bolt. The Livingston's daughter, Jeannette, 4, was seriously burned. All were standing on the shoulder of the highway.

Livingston and the other salesman, who were trying to extricate the Livingston car, escaped injury.

Married, Ships Out Hour Later

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — A Navy man was married at 2 a.m. today and about an hour later was en route back to his ship without his bride.

The unusual hour for the wedding and the hasty return to duty was in compliance with the alert of the U.S. fleets because of the crisis in Lebanon.

Francis A. Theroux, 20, of Pawtucket, and Ethel Barker, also 20 and of Pawtucket, were to have been married at 9 a.m. today.

Because Theroux was hastily summoned to duty from a furlough, he got special permission from the Most Rev. Russell J. McViney, Catholic bishop of Providence, for a 2 a.m. wedding at St. Teresa's Church.

At 3:45 a.m., Theroux boarded a train alone to return to his ship, the USS Salute docked at Charleston, S.C.

Secretly Burying Liquor And Wine

ST. LOUIS (AP) — More than 1,400 bottles of liquor and wine, caught in a warehouse flood recently, will get a private burial at a secret location next week.

Some of the labels were washed away. It's illegal to replace them so the Pure Food and Drug Administration, fearful that the goods may have been contaminated, obtained a court order authorizing destruction of the spirits.

A bulldozer operator, equipped with a gas mask so the fumes won't bother him, will smash the bottles before the burial.

"I'd rather not say where we are going to bury it," said Roy Kiergan, a deputy federal marshal. "We want this to be a private funeral without too many

'Miss' Maryland Now Certified

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carrying an affidavit swearing that she never has been married, Patricia Marie Vogts leaves today "to right the wrong done Maryland" in last year's Miss Universe contest.

Miss Vogts, an eye-appealing 22-year-old nurse, will appear as Miss Maryland in the annual Miss United States beauty pageant opening Saturday at Long Beach, Calif.

Stress Pensions In Auto Parleys

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers are stressing pensions in its current negotiations with the car makers on new contracts.
 This was disclosed by Ken Bannon, director of the union's Ford Department.
 Bannon said union negotiators again brought up the question of pension improvements in all-day sessions with Ford yesterday.
 The union is demanding cost-of-living allowances for retired workers on pensions and also changes in the pension plan to encourage retirement of employees at age 60.
 The union also wants a voice in how Ford, General Motors and Chrysler pension funds, totaling nearly a billion dollars, are invested.
 The union reported no progress towards wage settlements in negotiations with all three companies. Further sessions were scheduled today.

Atomic Plant Is Nearer Reality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction of an atomic energy plant at Parr Shoals, S.C., was a step nearer a reality today.
 An Atomic Energy Commission-sponsored bill which included in its appropriations the Parr Shoals project was approved by the Senate yesterday and now only needs President Eisenhower's signature to become law.
 The measure authorizes more than 15 million dollars of federal funds for research and development work at the Parr Shoals reactor.
 This does not include funds for actual construction of the reactor, amounting to about three times this amount.
 Funds for this purpose will be supplied by utility companies of the Carolinas and Virginia.

Gives Reasons For Tag Colors

 The question was raised recently on some editorial pages in the state as to why North Carolina motorists shouldn't have license plates in the official state colors, red and white.

 He cited a 12 million dollar industrial atomic testing reactor as one of the important newcomers. It will be built along Blewett Falls Lake on the Pee Dee River, and will be the second largest installation of its kind in the nation.
