House Appropriations Body Claims Employment Optimism Unfounded

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee said today optimistic estimates of unemployment by some government officials do not jibe with the official administration estimates it received.

30 was 2,225,000 and the official estimate for 1959 is 2,900,000. The official estimate is that the peak of insured unemployment will be about 3 1/2 million in 1959 compared with 3,334,200 in 1958, the committee added.

275 million dollars for soil bank programs, $11,735,000 for air safety programs, 50 million for a new airport in the capital area, 10 million to complete work on the Inter-American Highway, and scores of miscellaneous smaller allotments. All add to funds previously appropriated for the current fiscal year.

The committee approved two million dollars of the three million requested to start a program to control a new plant pest known as "witchweed," discovered several years ago in the Carolinas.

Comfortable And Exotic Offerings In Fall Styles

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Today's women must be prepared to travel in clothes that are appropriate, comfortable and exotic.

Such is the credo of Tina Leser, a travel-happy designer. She delights in journeying to far corners of the earth with her equally globe-minded husband Jim Howley. She brings back fabulous silks, rich brocades and Oriental embroideries to be shaped to the needs and figures of American women.

Winding up a news-packed week of fall fashion showings for 300 visiting fashion editors, the resourceful and romantic Tina shows six major shapes of style for fall and winter, 1958. They are: the dust-ruffle, the Watteau, the trapeze, the harem skirt, the powder puff silhouette and the bifurcated line—the latter consisting of slinky pants and varied tops, in costumes designed for glamor at home or comfort in air travel.

As always, Miss Leser creates an Arabian Nights mood with her rich Oriental fabrics, her Aladdin's lamp color magic, her subtle shading of lines to suggest the romance of ancient Persia. Authentic regional and traditional fashions have fascinated this designer since the time she opened her first salon in Honolulu a couple of decades ago and introduced international travelers to the color and excitement of native Hawaiian beach clothes.

Of major interest among her new shapes of fashion is the dust-ruffle silhouette, used in both dresses and coats and consisting of a straight unfitted sheath ending in a ruffled flounce at the knee-high hemline. This is particularly effective in a simple gray flannel dress buttoned down the front and trimmed in lighter gray piping, and in a bulky coat of brushed mohair in muted tones of pink through orange, faintly plaided.

The Watteau dresses are for gala occasions, have semifitted tops and graceful flaring, dome-shaped skirts. One example is in pale green printed wool challis with a small brown flower motif.

The trapeze silhouette is done in a number of versions, one of the most striking of which is a short evening dress in white flannel embroidered in green and gold, shown with a matching sweater lined in 14-karat gold gauze.

Tina's powder puff silhouette has a puffed back panel floating from the shoulders and caught under at the hemline. Her harem skirts are shown in a number of outfits, including a plaid wool dress in russet tones, worn with a rosy lined and bulky coat of looped mohair.

But perhaps the most history will be made with Miss Leser's new outfit for airplane travel in the space age. It consists of a short jacket and narrow slacks in beautifully tailored checked tweed worn with a color coordinated coat in bulky but lightweight mohair with dashing collar.

Garden-Fresh Tomatoes 'Tops'

RALEIGH—At the top of the vegetable list this week are garden-fresh tomatoes, with plentiful local supplies on all markets. According to John W. Hagen, Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist, the quality is much improved and prices are lower.

Hagen points out that you should watch for lower prices on similar tomatoes, which are still fine quality. Other fresh vegetable supplies are becoming abundant, such as potatoes, cucumbers, green beans, squash, corn and peas. Lettuce and celery continue in good supply and quality at moderate prices.

North Carolina grown peaches, watermelons and cantaloupes top the most plentiful fruit list this week. Hagen says that there are plentiful supplies of both cling and freestone type peaches appearing on the market as the peak of the season approaches.

The Charleston Gray variety of watermelon is the most plentiful this week, says Hagen's report on the food situation. The greener skinned varieties are expected to increase in quantity soon.

Poultry products remain steady in supply and price this week. Adequate numbers of fryers and broilers are on the market at most reasonable prices. Many stores will be featuring "specials" on these, making them extra good choices for outdoor cooking.

There has been no appreciable change in egg prices, Hagen states, but supplies are adequate for present needs.

Choice cuts of beef show slightly lower prices in a relatively stable meat picture as compared to last week. Processed meats continue in good supply particularly frankfurters and wieners as National Hot Dog Month progresses.

Pork prices began to level off after reaching a four year high mark last week, Hagen concludes.

Librarian Announces Available Films

It was announced today by Miss Elizabeth Copeland, librarian, that the following films are available at Sheppard Memorial Library July 21-August 15.

FAMILY OF INDIA (YA), 13 minutes, sound, color. A few days with an average middle-class Hindu family of India. Ram Das tells how his family lives, its shopping, its recreation, its education.

MARRIAGE TODAY (McGraw-Hill), 22 minutes, sound, black and white. Provides dramatic treatment for the ideals and goals of adult love. Two couples are the protagonists—two couples who have made their marriages work through clear analysis of their mutual aims and cooperation in striving to achieve them.

MEDIAVAL CRUSADES (EVP), 27 minutes, sound, color. Discussing briefly the crusades that followed the first conquest, the film dwells on the innovations which the crusades brought to Western Christianity. Through contact with Eastern science, philosophy, and strategy, life at Montbrét and all over Europe changed and widened the horizons of the medieval world.

RHYTHM IN PAINT (EVP), 10 minutes, sound, color. Watercolorist Eliot O'Hara uses his own sketches and various examples from well known works of art to illustrate the principle of rhythm in painting. In the last half of the film, an artist, Margaret Sheppard, paints a watercolor entitled "Two Doves."

SOME PEOPLE STAYED HOME (TCF), 9 minutes, sound, black and white. Shows the machinations of a corrupt political machine to elect its candidate. A ward-heeler recruits tramps to vote in place of negligent citizens who fail to vote, and the machine candidate wins.

SPRING BLOSSOMS (Int. Film Bur.), 18 minutes, sound, color. Spring blooms from Florida to the Pacific Northwest, including many time-lapse pictures of spring wild flowers originally used by Mr. Ott in his lecture series, "Flowers in Action."

Grifton Girls Attending Camp

Wilma Patrick and Frances Davis of Grifton left for Kaunga Camp for Girls at Hendersonville last week. Wilma is serving as a counselor, while Frances is one of the 80 campers.

The theme of this Episcopal Camp is "Stewards in God's World." Under the guidance of the director, Mrs. Willard F. Verdun, the chaplain, the Rev. Cecil Allgood, and the nature counselor, Wallace Goodman, the girls are learning to see new beauty and meaning in the outdoors.

L. B. Tucker of 920 Evans Street is a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Lewis W. Herring, 622 Elm St., has entered Woodard-Herring Hospital in Wilson with a broken ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Waters Jr. and daughter Betsy left this morning for their home in Dallas, Texas after visiting Mr. Waters' mother, Mrs. A. M. Waters, and Mrs. Waters' father, H. L. Pruitt. Waters is the district manager for Lance Incorporated.

Gathered here at Hendersonville are some hundred clery, directors of Christian Education, church school teachers and Woman's Auxiliary educational officers, from 7 states.

Keep Odors Out Of Freezers

RALEIGH—It's a lot easier to keep an odor out of your freezer than to get it out after it gets in.

But some freezer owners are not fortunate enough to escape an unpleasant experience with odors. A new bulletin published by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, called "Know Your Freezer," and some quick advice from Mrs. Floy Garner, Carteret County home demonstration agent, saved the day for the Dennis Goodwin family of Morehead City.

A call for help came to Mrs. Garner one day recently from the Goodwins. It seems that they had been away from home for two weeks and had returned to find their freezer had been accidentally disconnected and the entire contents spoiled. Since both pork and beef had been among the contents, they had just about given up hope of removing the odor—that is, until they read Mrs. Garner's weekly newspaper column telling about the new bulletin.

After calling Mrs. Garner for her advice, and reading the bulletin and following its instructions for odor removal, the latest report from the Goodwins is—odor gone, freezer back in use, everybody happy!

There are several helpful suggestions for keeping odors out of the freezer and what to do to remove odors in one portion of the bulletin written by Miss Nita Orr, Agricultural Extension Service frozen food specialist.

Miss Orr cautions that you: 1. Put your food in containers and packages that let no moisture out and no air in.

2. Keep the freezer as cold as zero degrees or colder.

3. Do not put any package in the freezer that has odor on its outside.

4. If you smoke, do so away from the freezer when it is open.

5. Check your freezer often to see if it's running. If you leave home, have a neighbor make periodic checks. Never pull the master switch when you leave home.

But if food spoils in your freezer, you're in for bad odor trouble, Miss Orr warns. And it takes patience to get rid of odors. Here is the method she recommends for odor removal: Remove the food, disconnect the freezer, and then defrost. Wash the freezer with baking soda and water. Rinse with plain water. (Use cloth or sponge wrung out of water—do not put water loose in the freezer.)

If odor persists (and it will if it's much of an odor) put a 2 per cent ammonia solution in a bowl. Use about one cup full of household ammonia to a gallon of water.

Put the bowl in the freezer and close the freezer lid or door. Let stand overnight (or for several hours). Remove the bowl of ammonia, wash with strong soda water and rinse. Be sure all trace of ammonia odor is out and the freezer is cold before you replace the food.

For additional information on removal of odors from freezers, on care of freezers, and other freezer problems, contact your local home demonstration agent or write to Miss Nita Orr, Extension frozen foods specialist, N. C. State College, Raleigh.

Sarah Baldree Becomes Bride

BLACK CREEK—Miss Sarah Winifred Baldree and Robert Leonard Hunt were married Saturday in the Black Creek Methodist Church with the Rev. Charles W. Wooten officiating.

Mrs. Jack Grantham, organist, presented a program of nuptial music with Jack Humphrey and Mrs. Richard Shackelford, soloists.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. A. T. Baldree of Black Creek and the late Mr. Baldree. The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Robert P. Lane Jr. of Stantonsburg and the late Mr. Howard M. Hunt.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lee Baldree, the bride wore a gown of silk with French chintilly lace over tulle. Attached to a matching lace shell with pearlized orange blossoms was her chapel veil of French illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis with a white gardenia.

Mrs. John Tarpley of Hampton, Va., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of green chintilly lace over taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow-centered white daisies.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Thornton of Norman, Okla., cousin of the bridegroom, Miss Sue Glover of Raleigh, Miss Janet Agnew of Spartanburg, S. C., and Mrs. W. E. Reese of Rocky Mount. Their gowns were like that of the matron of honor and they carried matching bouquets of daisies.

The junior bridesmaids, all cousins of the bride, were Miss Frankie Lamm of Greenville, Miss Phyllis Lamm of Raleigh, Miss Sharon Scott of Chapel Hill and Miss Rose Woodard of Newport News, Va. They wore yellow organdy gowns and carried bouquets of daisies.

Miss Ann Smith of Wilson was flower girl. Bob Hunt and Keith Hunt, twin cousins of the bridegroom, were ring bearers.

Best man was Robert P. Lane Jr. of Stantonsburg.

Ed Lane of Snow Hill, Gene Edmondson of Durham, Tommy Davis of Goldsboro, cousin of the bridegroom, and Sonny Smith of Ayden, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Mrs. Hunt was graduated from Woman's College. Mr. Hunt was graduated from East Carolina College. He is serving with the U. S. armed forces. The couple will be at home in Wilson.

September Bride Feted At Shower

Miss Jo Ann Padley of Ayden was the guest of honor at a bride shower on Tuesday night with Mrs. Fred Cargile and Mrs. J. L. Padley, Jr., of Ayden as co-hostesses in the home of Mrs. Cargile, East Wright Road.

Mixed colors of gladioli were used in the living room and a white gladioli carriage was presented Miss Padley by the hostesses. She also received 25 gifts from guests that were present.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Ruth Baker Girl of Pleasant Garden, Mrs. J. W. Carson and Mrs. L. G. Ford of Bethel, grandmother and great-grandmother of the bride-elect.

Miss Padley's marriage to Lynn Madley Hunt of Pleasant Garden will take place September 14 in the Methodist Church in Ayden.

30 Years Ago Today

July 18, 1928

At a meeting held Thursday afternoon the following officers were elected as officials of the Pitt County Chapter American Red Cross executive committee: Mrs. J. L. Hassell, chairman; Mrs. Thomas McGee, secretary. The Red Cross work has lagged behind considerably, due to the fact that there have been no active officials, but with these ladies in charge there will be a change and the organization hopes to devote itself to some specialized charity restricting its service along the particular line decided upon. It is believed from the discussion that orthopaedic work for children in schools will fill a great need, and always the dependents of the ex-soldier is the first charge of the Red Cross.

Crisis Is Providing Test Of Atlantic Fleet's Readiness

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — This week's events in the Middle East are providing a test of the Atlantic Fleet's state of readiness. Part of the test was applied Tuesday when the fleet — composed of more than 200,000 officers and men, 500 ships and 150 aircraft squadrons — was ordered to be ready to move on four hours notice. This order was issued hours after U.S. Marines, piled ashore in Lebanon. Fleet headquarters canceled all leaves and directed all personnel to return to their units. The fleet Marine force was ordered to ready its air-ground task force for "such duties as may be required." The fleet's anti-submarine forces were ordered to increase their vigilance. Tuesday night and Wednesday combat troops were airlifted from Cherry Point, N.C., to the Mediterranean as reinforcements for Marines already in Lebanon. Wednesday afternoon more Marines poured into Norfolk from bases in North Carolina. They came in helicopters, which landed directly on the flight deck of the carrier Antietam; they came in buses, trucks, jeeps. They boarded carriers and transports at Norfolk. Others boarded transports at Morehead City, N.C. The supercarrier Forrestal arrived in Norfolk Thursday. Her arrival sharpened speculation that a fast task force, which would include the Forrestal and the Antietam, was being formed for deployment to the Mediterranean. Readiness was the top item on the agenda of conferences held Thursday by the fleet's commander in chief, Adm. Jerauld Wright, with his commanders. The preceding day Wright, with readiness on his mind, paid unannounced visits aboard several warships at the Norfolk Naval Base. One of Wright's staff officers says the admiral is "a quiet guy who gets things done while inspiring other people to think they did it. He has the ability to be on top of many things at once without being a shouter or a table pounder." Wright has said the Atlantic Fleet last year reached its highest peak of combat readiness since World War II. He attributed this to the introduction of new ships, weapons and operational techniques. This three-way program, he said, included new and faster aircraft, atomic weapon delivery techniques, which form basic training for all combat aircraft squadrons, and training at all levels in the use of guided missiles and nuclear weapons. And, Wright said, the fleet attained this high degree of readiness in atomic capabilities without sacrificing its flexibility "in being prepared to meet the varying demands of the brush fire incidents of a cold war. "But no matter how modern our ships and weapons may be," the admiral said, "they are only as effective as the personnel who control them. Full credit for the achievements of the Atlantic Fleet during the past year should go to the fine young men who man our ships, submarines and aircraft...

whose loyalty, knowledge and skill are indispensable elements in the fulfillment of our primary mission, the defense of these United States."

One Entry 'Too Young' For Event

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Fifty foreign beauties flew into town for the Miss Universe contest — and before you could say "swimsuit," there it was: the contest's first crisis. Miss Costa Rica read the registration rules, sighed sadly and confessed to the pageant director: "I'm not old enough." The other 49 girls — chattering and giggling merrily — went to their rooms to be fitted into swimsuits. Dark-eyed Eugenia Maria Valverde explained she won't be 18 until Oct. 8, 1958. Registration rules say she had to turn 18 July 1 to be eligible. "Eugenia Valverde is one of the most honest girls I've ever met," said contest director Oscar Meinhardt. "She will remain here during the pageant as our guest, representing Costa Rica. "But she cannot be judged for Miss Universe." Miss Valverde rushed off to get fitted for her suit. The rest of the 80 girls expected for the contest are due today.

Only Small Part Of U.S. Power In Middle East

By ELTON C. FAY AP Military Affairs Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, playing by ear its military moves in the Middle East, so far has committed only a tiny fraction of its total available troop strength to the area.

The proportion for the Air Force was only a little larger. But the show of Navy air-sea power has mounted to imposing proportions and branched out to include not only operations in Lebanon but a 50-plane sortie over Jordan—"to let it be known the planes were there," a Defense Department spokesman explained. In the area—ashore in Lebanon, waiting to go ashore from amphibious ships off the coast or poised at a base in southern Turkey—was a total of about 7,800 ground forces. Of these, approximately 6,230 were Marines on the scene or en route there for purposes of replacement. Total strength of the Marine Corps is about 190,000.

The Army so far has committed one airborne battle group of about 1,600 men. Total Army strength is about 900,000. The Air Force has put a composite striking force in position at a base in Turkey. A striking force is composed of about 100 assorted types of aircraft. The composite force is an element of the Tactical Air Command. In that command alone there are about 3,000 combat aircraft. This does not include the aircraft of other Air Force organizations, such as the Strategic Air Command, which flies almost 2,500 heavy and medium bombers and tanker aircraft or the several thousand planes of the Air Defense Command.

The Navy, by last night, had 44 ships standing along the Lebanese coast—carriers, cruisers, destroyers, amphibious ships and landing craft. This is only a part of the 900 combatant vessels of the Navy. The course being followed by the United States is to put in only the minimum number of troops needed for the situation as it now stands, but to be ready to hurry reinforcements into Lebanon if needed. Aside from this tactical plan for a localized situation is the obvious desire of the Defense Department to keep the great proportion of its manpower and arms in reserve for possible new threats or actual limited war elsewhere in the world.

By BRYAN HANSLIP RALEIGH (AP) — Taxes, always a choice topic for lawmakers, may get more than customary attention in the 1959 Legislature. Reports from three study commissions will give the legislators plenty to think about in the field of taxation, aside from tax problems which likely will arise from economic conditions. Financing of public schools, the dollar squeeze on cities, and state tax laws in general are under study by three commissions set up by the 1957 General Assembly. After months of research, the study groups now are boiling down statistics and other information to reach final conclusions. Some time this fall, reports with findings and recommendations will be turned over to Gov. Hodges. Copies of the reports will be mailed to each member of the Legislature for their study before the convening in February. Gov. Hodges has suggested a series of briefings may be held to get lawmakers acquainted with various study commission reports. Among the big ones will be those dealing with phases of taxation.

For example, proposals by a tax study group kept the spotlight during much of the 1957 session. One of its ideas which was written into law after much debate was a new income tax formula for corporations, designed to boost industrial development. To continue the job of reviewing the state's tax laws, the study commission was extended for two years. Former State Sen. Joe Egan, of Wilson is chairman of the nine-member group.

The failure of one suggestion by the old tax study group led to creation of the Municipal Government Study Commission. Lawmakers threw out proposals for new taxing powers for cities and towns.

It was a keen disappointment for municipalities, which claim they are suffering from mushrooming demands for services and limited power to levy taxes. To possibly lighten the blow, the Legislature ordered an investigation of the problem and left further action up to the 1959 session. State Rep. Joseph M. Hunt Jr.,

On his earlier stops in Panama and Honduras the special envoy met with verbal attacks on U.S. policies but nothing like the violence that greeted him in the Visayas. Observers thought the Communist might be avoiding hostile demonstrations because the attacks on Nixon were widely denounced in Latin America.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Since Sunday, Mrs. C. V. Sbarbaro had heard a cat meowing. Wednesday she located it, 30 feet up a eucalyptus tree. She got the gas and electric company to send a 30-foot ladder. The cat promptly moved to a limb 50 feet up. She enlisted Gary Taylor, 17, a neighbor. He reached the limb the cat was on, but couldn't get down. She called the telephone company, which sent a 50-foot ladder. A lineman stuffed the cat in a thick paper bag and climbed down the ladder with Gary. The lineman gave the bag with the cat in it to Mrs. Sbarbaro. The cat clawed its way out, bit Mrs. Sbarbaro on the hand, and disappeared.

meeting will be held with municipal representatives in Chapel Hill on July 22. The North Carolina League of Municipalities has offered its tentative recommendations. It will have more definite suggestions for the study commission after a series of discussions among its members. Early in their studies, both the school finance and the tax revision groups threw open the doors for anyone who wanted to be heard. They also gathered opinions and suggestions from state and local officials in the schools and tax fields. Resolutions which created the municipal government and school finance study groups fixed a deadline of Nov. 15 for their reports to be submitted to Gov. Hodges. There is no deadline for the tax revision group, but its report is expected to be in before the end of the year.

The study of public school financing followed the recommendation of Gov. Hodges, who said better ways must be found for state and local governments to share mounting school costs. The nine-member group, with State Sen. O. Arthur Kirkman of High Point as chairman, was instructed to look for the "most just and acceptable methods" of financing schools. To prevent overlapping and the possibility of conflicting recommendations, the three study groups concerned with tax matters have kept in close touch. They also have maintained contact with a commission studying the state constitution with an eye for possible revisions, in the event any constitutional tax provisions might be involved. A look at work of the Municipal Government Study Commission shows how a study commission tackles its job. The first step is research among the people directly concerned, in this case city managers and mayors of cities and towns. As it does for most of the commissions, the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill handled research for the municipal study. Comprehensive questionnaires were sent to 22 municipalities, ranging from the state's largest city to the crossroads hamlet. To supplement this detailed survey, 300 shorter questionnaires went to other Tar Heel cities and towns. The institute's staff and commission members have thrashed over this harvest of information. Before reaching conclusions, a

UN Police Force Could Be Answer

When the "big guys" start glaring at each other in the United Nations it often seems the great majority of small powers prefer to do nothing, say little, and stay out of the way.

One way to do it is by adopting the "plague on both your houses" attitude, unless, of course, they are directly involved in the issue at hand.

The result too frequently delineates the difference between a world body that can make its effectiveness felt and a world body that can only be helpless witnesses of unhappy history.

If, instead of asking for the United States and Great Britain to send some help into Lebanon and Jordan, the injured parties could have the United Nations to send its own police units... today's crisis would not have arisen.

There's a great deal to be said for a United Nations police force.

First, there's the size: it would not need the hundreds of thousands of men a national army requires. A soldier wearing the UN insignia and uniform could stop the attack of a company; for what government, what army would risk the stigma of going to battle against the United Nations?

A little force of something over 5,000 men assigned to United Nations duty has been keeping the peace between Israel and Egypt for more than a year. The soldiers come from such countries as Colombia, Sweden, Brazil, Yugoslavia, India, and so on. Only a few from each country, but their success has been a bright spot in an otherwise difficult situation.

Had such a force been standing by, it's a pretty safe bet that both Lebanon and Jordan might have preferred turning to the United Nations for guardianship.

The idea of a police force for the UN has been raised on several occasions and its need generally recognized. The biggest obstacle has always been the cost; for contrary to general belief, the UN operates on a relatively modest budget. Even the small force maintained along the Egypt-Israel border has been a costly burden to the international organization.

Nor are the small countries willing for big powers to foot the bill, for fear of becoming mere mercenaries of their paymasters.

Someday a solution to all this may emerge. But for now, the United States and its allies are forced to make the best of a bad situation.

They'll Go Along With Governor

By LYNN NISBET

DEMOCRATS — There is no doubt that the Democratic Executive Committee at its meeting next Friday will go along with Governor Hodges' nominations for governmental and party officials. Everett Jordan will be placed on the ballot on the ballot this fall for United States Senator and Malcolm Seawell for Attorney General. Every indication is the committee will take this action with enthusiasm, in belief that the two men will strengthen the ticket.

Earlier rumors of dissent at the Jordan nomination seem to have been completely refuted. Already on the job by executive appointment Senator Jordan and Attorney General Seawell have fast gained the confidence of the people.

The proposed shuffle of top party officials also will be approved by the committee without open dissent. Governor Hodges told newsmen at his latest conference with them that he would ask the committee to name Woodrow Jones of Rutherford as State chairman, replacing John C. Larkins Jr., and would ask that Larkins be nominated for membership on the National Democratic Committee in place of Senator Jordan, who is resigning. (The State committee cannot fill that vacancy, but there has not been an instance when the national group failed to go along with state recommendations. In fact, the practice has been for the nominee to take over the duties before the formality of his election by the full national committee.)

The Governor made no mention of the vice chairmanship. It is assumed he will propose and the committee will continue Mrs. John T. (Mary Laurens) Richardson in that post. Under party rules the chairman appoints the secretary, a post now held by Herman A. Moore of Charlotte.

SMART — Consensus of active party workers who have commented on these changes is that Governor Hodges has played very smart politics. In obtaining the resignation of Jordan as national committeeman he eliminated one of the objections to his nomination for the Senate. In proposing the promotion of Larkins to the national committee he avoided the fight which had threatened if rumored plans to boot Larkins out of the organization had materialized.

PUZZLED — While commending the smartness of the whole move, some of the practical politicians are puzzled by the denouement. It is generally believed that Governor Hodges is interested in national affairs, and probably has ambition to seek the vice presidency or a cabinet post. In that event, he would need a very staunch personal friend and political ally on the national committee.

There can be no question about the ancestral Democratic of the new chairman, Woodrow Wilson Jones, born in 1914, was named for the great Democratic Pres-

One Giant Step After Another In Missiles

Yesterday's firing of the mighty Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile and subsequent recovery of its nose cone is worthy of note, but comprises only one small aspect of the picture of an effort only vaguely appreciated by most of us.

Something of the complexity of firing a ballistics missile may be realized on reading that more than 200 measurements, involving the recording of 200,000 data points, are made during a test flight.

Or another item, "a turbopump feeds fuel to a rocket engine at a rate that would empty a railroad tank car in two minutes."

And when one reads that research and development expenditures by both government and industry for technical requirements of aircraft, missiles and space craft increased from $758 million in 1953 to $2.1 billion in 1956... and presumably still rising at a fabulous rate... then it begins to sink in. Those big missiles represent a fantastically huge amount of money, study, effort and experimentation.

Thursday's nose cone recovery marked the second such success in that particular effort. The nose cone survived its fiery dive through the atmosphere at 10,000 miles per hour. It is no small feat, and yet we are prone to accept it matter-of-factly because it is dwarfed by the giant step after giant step of rocket advances.

This is truly a fantastic time.

No Restraint On Wages, Prices

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP)— Both wages and prices are continuing to spiral upward despite the recession and despite President Eisenhower's call for moderation.

Government data show that business and labor are paying little or no attention to the President's plea for restraint as b. h. prices and wages climb to new record levels practically every month.

The government itself is largely ignoring its own advice. Pay raises amounting to about 1 1/2 billion dollars a year have recently been put into effect for government workers. Eisenhower said they couldn't be helped.

There is some hint the wage-price inflationary spiral may be slowing down. Consumer prices hit another peak in May, the latest report, but the rise from April was only a tenth of 1 percent, the smallest monthly increase in many months.

New government and private surveys on wage trends for the first half of 1958 show in general that labor unions are negotiating pay boosts of about the same amount as this time last year.

The Labor Department, in a report on first-quarter wage trends this year, said, "there was no evidence of any general reduction in the size of wage increases as compared with corresponding quarters of the past few years."

Experts of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said while second-quarter 1958 wage gain results still are being tabulated they seem to be running about the same, with some cases of increases slightly less than last year.

Fringe benefits gains, such as vacations, health-welfare and pension improvements, are continuing along a bit under the 1957 climb.

Most new negotiated wage settlements are running around the 10-cent per hour raises of last year. There has been some decline in wage gains in manufac-

Giving Devil His Due

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—This is a tribute to fat-fighting fat!

Everybody in this country has been overpraising muscle — and low-rating fat — for a long time.

Isn't it about time now—since we give even the devil his due—that someone said few kind words for fat?

Fat doesn't spell weakness. It spells power. What is the mightiest creature in the sea? The whale. And what is the whale? He is a mountain of blubber, nature's floating oil tank. But he rules the deep.

What creature on earth would willingly tangle with the elephant or the bear? Yet they both love to get so fat they waddle when they walk.

When you get right down to it, fat has a lot of virtues entirely lacking in muscle.

What makes you nervous and jumpy? What keeps you tense? Your nerves and muscles. But good old fat never gets excited. It is calm and soothing. It keeps telling you, "Take it easy. What's the hurry?" Fat is the voice of common sense.

Fat is faithful. Fat is loyal. It will stick to you through thick and thin. After 40 you can't depend on your muscles much. Muscles are only the fair-weather friends of your youth. But you can still count on your good old fat. It won't desert you.

Fat is unselfish; muscle isn't. Fat will cheerfully feed and nourish a starving muscle in bad times. But muscles have no sense of gratitude. All they do in good times is groan to your fat. "Why do I have to carry you around? You're nothing but a dead weight."

When people want to look brave they take a deep breath and flex their muscles. This is nonsense. They should take a deep breath and flex their fat. For fat is far braver than muscle.

In some situations your cowardly muscles seem to turn to water. But as any dieter knows, fat won't run off from anything—at least of its own volition. Fat is a born fighter.

Anyone who has ever tried to get rid of fat learns this quickly. My own experience is typical.

Six months ago my doctor told me: "Your weight is up to 210 pounds. Some 30 pounds of it is fat. The other 180 pounds is bone and muscle. Get rid of the fat."

The solution seemed simple. Just starve the fat by dieting and wear it away by exercise. After all the odds seemed hopelessly in favor of the bone and muscle. They outweighed the fat 6 to 1.

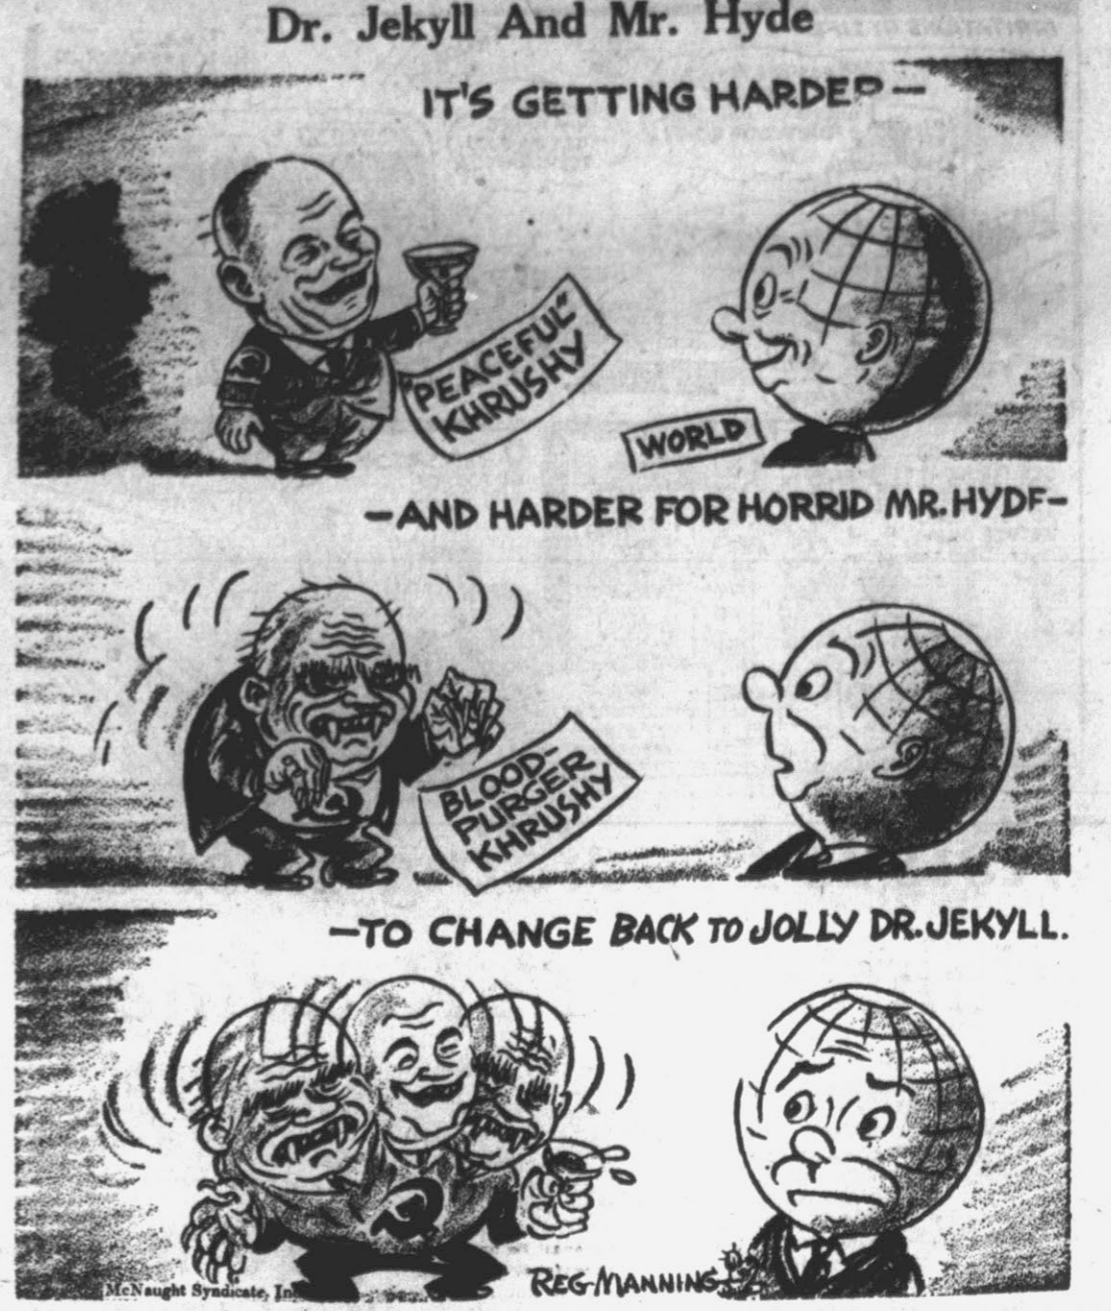

But what happened? The fat wouldn't give up. In the last half-year I must have walked a distance from here to Timbuktu, done enough knee bends to need new joints, eaten hardly enough to keep a hummingbird humming.

The result: I have lost 15 pounds, at least half of which must be muscle. The fat has out-fought my muscles, pound for pound, every step of the way. When I look in the mirror in the morning, there is that same old roll of blubber around the midriff—triumphant as ever.

And haven't you had the same result from dieting?

If you admire a fighter, you have to admire fat. If life is a survival of the fittest, you have to give fat full credit for its stubborn will to survive.

Fat is in some ways a man's best friend, and it should be appreciated more. I think I'll take mine out right now and give it a treat—a nice big meal.

Bearing Up With Smiles

What happens to the Jaycee organization whose entry in the Miss North Carolina pageant comes back a winner?

Well, Greenville Jaycees found out this weekend. Betty Lane Evans, who was chosen Miss Greenville in the spring, copped the Miss North Carolina banner in Charlotte and caught the local Jaycees flat-footed.

It wasn't the local boys didn't have confidence in their candidate. It just that you just never really expect such a thing to happen.

But happen it did and Dr. Sam T. White, who was chairman of the local pageant, was in Charlotte when the winner was announced Saturday night.

He realized he would need assistance as a busy Sunday for North Carolina's top beauty was ahead.

So Dr. White put in a call for help from the other Jaycees in Greenville. He finally reached past club president Bill Taylor who promised him aid would be on the way.

Taylor roused Brooks Beddingfield, this year's first vice president, and the pair began calling other Jaycees for assistance. Finally they arranged for Bob Messner to make the trip to Charlotte with Taylor and the two took off for the western North Carolina city in the wee hours of the morning.

The three spent a busy day in Charlotte assisting the lovely Betty Lane through the fast schedule of the day. They also had to attend meetings during the day to determine the local club's responsibilities for the coming year.

Back in Greenville Beddingfield and other Jaycees had been busy Sunday, too. They arranged the big homecoming for Betty Lane and when she rolled in Sunday night there were hundreds of cheering admirers waiting at the Moose Lodge. She and a motorcycle took her to city hall where hundreds more waited.

There were appropriate ceremonies in which the mayor and other city officials participated and Miss North Carolina had completed her first day.

But the Jaycees were to learn there was a great deal of responsibility which goes along with having a state pageant winner.

The next day an emergency session of the club's board of directors was held and the directors were told of the club's duties for the coming year.

Dr. White, as Miss Greenville Pageant chairman, becomes Betty Lane's business manager, for her year-long reign. As such it will be to him that all requests for appearances and all business matters will come. He will have the final word on such matters.

A special advisory committee was appointed to assist in guiding the young lady's career as Miss North Carolina.

The local club will be responsible for Betty Lane's trip to Atlantic City and her appearance in the Miss America contest. To help with the expenses the Greenville club receives a portion of the gate receipts from the Charlotte pageant.

After the national pageant—provided Betty Lane isn't named Miss America—the club must see that their winner makes it to all her scheduled appearances and, of course, escorts must be provided. The escorts are expected to be plentiful among the club members.

All-in-all quite a bit of responsibility came to the local Jaycees with the Miss North Carolina title.

However, there wasn't any complaining. The big problem was sifting through all the Jaycees who wanted to serve on the Advisory Committee.

Other Editors Saying --- Stronger UN Needed

(Kinston Free Press)

In response to an appeal from President Chamoun of Lebanon President Eisenhower has sent some 5,000 Marines ashore in that Middle Eastern republic. The Arabs have countered with the dispatching of troops to the Syrian border. The Soviet Union has warned it could lead to World War III.

The President acted quickly when he became convinced that freedom was at stake in the Middle East. The rapidity with which he acted, after all the delays in the past, leaves the American people troubled and concerned, lest the action spread into a full-scale conflict.

The appeal from Lebanon would not have been necessary if a strong U.N. police force had been available to act. Now the United Nations Security Council must approve the U.S. Marines' presence in Lebanon, or send units of its own to replace them.

It is far easier to criticize the U.S. State Department for Secretary Dulles' failure to win friends and influence friendly nations in the Middle East than it is to provide realistic solutions to what is the worst crisis since the Suez Canal action in 1956.

To further appease the Reds in the Middle East, and their strong front man, Egyptian Premier Nasser, would have been a dangerous business. Appeasement has not worked in the past and there is no reason to think the current situation arising from the overthrow of the Iraq Gov-

Britons See U. S. Recovering

By ELMER ROESSNER

All of us who sip an ounce of milk or wreck a Cadillac are part of the American economy. Because we are part of it we cannot get a perspective view. That's why it may be helpful to read the opinion of somewhat less interested observers, such as of the editor of "The Purchasing Bulletin" of London.

"Despite the depressed state of United States metals, the bedrock along is now 'bottoming out' proving tough and resistant," says the publication.

"This is the level of consumer spending on durable goods which, according to the latest official review, 'held up very well' during the first four months of the year."

"The chart showing consumer versus investment spending is in effect about as close to a tonic as any business man can get."

THIS MEANS

In other words, the British observers accept the opinion that this is the strangest recession ever and that despite other factors, consumer buying is holding up as if there were no dip.

This comment is doubly significant because purchasing men the world around are necessarily realistic, hard-headed and slightly bearish.

"So far this year," the publication continues, "consumers have clipped their spending by only as much as they did in the previous recession of 1953. It refuses to be depressed below the level of $30 billion, over half the investment level of spending on investment goods. If the latest increase in farm incomes due to higher food prices works normally, it should help this buoyant level of spending still further."

That $30 billion figure is not explained. Retail sales are currently running about $17 billion a month; perhaps the British pundits are referring to something else. However, they are right about the spending level; since the Purchasing Bulletin came out, food prices have risen and total consumer spending has increased for other things as well as food.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT DEFINITIVE WORD Johann Sebastian Bach was not only one of the greatest geniuses that ever lived, he was one of the most noble men. On every one of his compositions he made the same dedication: "To the Glory of God Alone." He lived and died in obscurity compared with the world-wide acclaim he was later to receive. Yet he lived for one reason only — to glorify God. His mind was buried in music, but above this great love he had a greater love — his love for God. He was the favorite of his king. Some of the great musicians of his day knew about him and appreciated his worth. But for the most part he was a simple-living man, devoted to his large family, diligent in his duty as a professional

HIGH-SCHOOL BOY FINDS WAY TO DE-SALT WATER

Some high-schoolers have attracted the attention of missile experts with their experiments with rockets. But Philip Damask, 17, of Palo Alto, Calif., has won the interest of experts in his water desalting experiments.

Philip combined an old coffee-maker, a cooking bowl, an old funnel and copper tubing into a device to de-salt water from San Francisco Bay. His project aroused the interest of scientists working on the same project for the Carrier Corp., and Dr. J.F. Downie Smith, Carrier vice president, visited him and was so impressed with his project that he offered to exchange data with the youth. Dr. Smith said there is a possibility that if Philip continues with his work he may come up with a commercially feasible water-purifying system.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Leviticus 19:32; Proverbs 6:20-23; Mark 10:13-16; Ephesians 5:1-4; 1 Timothy 5:8

The law of Leviticus, written about 1420 B. C., reads: "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the Lord."—Leviticus 19:32.

"My son, keep thy father's commandments, and forsake not the law of thy mother."—Proverbs 6:20. As he goes forth into the world, these commandments help the youth to live righteously.

Pharisees tried to tempt Jesus by asking if a man might lawfully divorce his wife. Christ answered that when God joined a couple, He made them "one flesh," and man should not part them.—Mark 10:8, 9.

Mothers brought their children to Jesus. The Apostles protested. Christ was displeased, and He gathered the little ones into His arms and blessed them.—Mark 10:14, 16.

THE FACTORS WHICH MAKE THE IDEAL HOME WHICH GOD APPROVES

Scripture—Leviticus 19:32; Proverbs 6:20-23; Mark 10:13-16; Ephesians 5:1-4; 1 Timothy 5:8

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THIS LESSON on Justice in the Home could be studied and discussed profitably not only by small children, teenagers, college men and other adults, but by parents, for it has helpful suggestions for all of us on the ways to make our homes ideal places in which to live harmoniously as well as with our fellows outside the home.

The first reference in the scripture assigned to us is Leviticus 19:32, where we read: "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honor the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the Lord."

Many families have older people living with them. If you are one of these, do you see that the children treat them with love and consideration? When you are traveling on bus, train or in your own car, do you see to it that these older persons are made comfortable, seated and at ease? Do you train the children to rise eous and within the law. How sad it is when children do not have this type of training in their homes, and often go astray. The Pharisees came to Jesus, and to tempt Him they asked if it was lawful for a man to put away his wife. Moses allowed a man to divorce his wife, they said. Christ told them that "For the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept."—Mark 10:2, 4, 5. "From the beginning of creation God made them male and female. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife. And they twain shall be one flesh. . . . What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."—Mark 10:6-9.

Divorce is a great problem today. How often children, lacking the guidance of one of their parents through separation, get into trouble with the law.

Once more we have the beautiful story of Christ and the little children. Mothers brought their Red Oak Christian Announcements Red Oak Christian Church and Sunday school sent the following telegram to Miss North Carolina: "Congratulations to our own Betty Lane on the honor you have received for yourself, your family, your church, and your community." We are indeed proud of Betty Lane and wish her all possible success as Miss North Carolina and at Atlantic City! Betty Lane Evans has been a member of Red Oak Christian Church since she was 12 and has served as church organist for two years. She will continue to be at the console of the organ when she is at home. Meantime, her capable assistant, Miss Kathryn Winchester, will play when Betty is away on official trips as Miss North Carolina. This Sunday the Rev. Howard James will preach on "This, I Believe" and the sanctuary choir will use an arrangement of "Are Ye Able" as a communion meditation. Flowers will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. George Haddock. A nursery will be provided during the morning worship hour for preschool children. Red Oak's annual Sunday school and church picnic will be held Sunday at 6:00 p.m. at the Cliffs on the Neuse Park, near Goldsboro. A caravan of cars will leave the church at 2:00 p.m. Others may go later if desired. Boy Scout Troop 396 will meet Wednesday at 8:00 p.m. CMF will meet Thursday at 7:00 p.m. at the Red Oak Community Building. Our hearts were saddened at the passing of one of our members, Mrs. Ora Crawford Allen, on Monday, July 14. We wish to take this opportunity to express heartfelt sympathy to her family.

Teen-er Doubleheader Here Tonight

Last Night's Tilt Postponed At Washington

The first game of the Teen-er League District 1 playoff between Greenville and Washington was rained out last night at Washington.

It was announced this morning that the two clubs will play a doubleheader here tonight at Guy Smith Stadium. The first game will begin at 6:30 and will last five innings. The second game will follow immediately and will be a seven-inning affair.

A spokesman for the District tournament stated today that plans were uncertain as to the third ball game, should it be needed. Original plans called for a game at Washington, a game at Greenville, and the third game to be played at the site which had the largest attendance for the other games.

It is possible that the third game, is called for, will be played at Washington.

Winner of the District playoff series will represent this area of the state in the North Carolina State Teen-er Tournament to be held in Greenville a week from now. The state tournament will include teams from all over the state and will decide North Carolina's representative in the Regionals.

Gastonia has topped the title for the past two seasons and last year reached the National finals before being eliminated. That city is again expected to produce one of the favored teams for the state tourney.

Coach Charlie Bland released his probable starting lineup for the Greenville All-Star club for tonight's ball games. There will be changes, but they are as yet not pinpointed.

The roster is as follows:
 Jeff Fountain, 1b
 Don Joyner, 2b
 Alan McArthur, ss
 Larry Roberts, 3b
 Billy Neal James, lf
 Jack Foley, rf
 Wayne Sumrell, cf
 Jimmy Smith, c

Micro-Midgets To Race Here Saturday Night

It was announced today that the Micro-Midget races are beginning again in Greenville this Saturday night at the Greenville Fairgrounds track.

Cars from Kinston, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Greenville and surrounding areas are expected to participate in the time trials and races there Saturday.

Time trials will start at 7:30 and the races will begin at 8:00.

There will be no admission charged.

Officials of the Micro-Midget Club stated that Saturday night's race will be an attempt to start the race program in Greenville again after a brief absence. If there is enough interest, said the spokesman, "we hope to establish the races here again for the fans of this area."

Finsterward Ready To Take On Hebert Clan

By HUGH FULLERTON JR., HAVERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Dow Finsterward, never known as a pugnacious young man or as an aggressive golfer, is acting as if he's ready to take on the entire Hebert family in a PGA return match. It could turn out to be a lively tussle—but how has to give away a lot of weight.

Finsterward was runner-up last year in the final match play PGA championship. He took a 3 and 2 defeat from Lionel Hebert, a long-hitting 200-pounder, in the final match. And the happiest man in the place when Liney came through in a major championship was his older and more famous brother Jay.

Finsterward didn't exactly have revenge in mind yesterday when he beat out both Lionel and Jay Hebert for the lead in the opening round of the first medal play PGA championship. But it must have given him a rather pleasant feeling.

All Dow would say after yesterday's round was: "It's nice to lead but they don't pay off until Sunday."

Behind Finsterward's 67 and Jay Hebert's 68 over the par-70 Lianerch course were the 69s posted by Lionel Hebert, 1957 Open champion Dick Mayer, Jimmy Demaret, Ted Kroll and Felice Torza, the little guy from Aurora, Ill., who was runner-up in his first PGA championship five years ago.

At 70 were Jackie Burke, the 1956 PGA winner, and Bob Crowley, Massachusetts Open champion from Weston.

Some of the other contenders included Cary Middlecoff, two-time Open champion; Bob Rosburg; Art Wall; and Don Whitl at 71.

Tommy Bolt, the chastened U.S. Open champion, was another stroke back at 72, along with former Open champ Julius Boros, former PGA champ Doug Ford and Ken Venturi.

Sammy Snead, a three-time winner of this title at match play came in at 73 and hardly could be counted out.

Whatever the charm is, Greensboro Patriots don't want to break it.

When the dust of last night's Carolina League action settled, the second place Patriots found themselves with a seven-game winning streak and only one-half game out of first place.

Greensboro sneaked across three unearned runs in the third inning and edged seventh-place Durham 5-4. The Patriots had to best Durham's lefty Dick Day, cracking his personal victory streak at nine.

Meanwhile, at Graham, the Burlington Indians blasted league-leading High Point-Thomasville 10-0.

In other activity Wilson topped Winston-Salem 4-1 and Danville edged Raleigh 5-4. A crowd of 4,802 watched the game at Winston-Salem, and 3,166 looked on at Raleigh—the largest gates of the season at both parks.

Towering Duke Addis, after surviving several doubtful innings, was Greensboro's winning hurler. Most of the scoring came in the first three innings.

Burlington forged to an 8-0 lead in the first three innings and then coasted home behind Steve Hamilton's four hits. Lou Holdener smashed a two-run homer in a four-run third inning.

Wilson's Jack Fisher scattered six Winston-Salem hits and left 12 stranded.

Raleigh gave Danville five unearned runs. Hank Tifentahler received credit for his third victory against no losses, he was replaced in the ninth by Marshall Renfro.

Burdette Again Accused Of Spitballing

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The somewhat tarnished fortunes of the Milwaukee Braves, fighting each day to remain first in the National League, may be on the upswing—the opposition is again tossing spit ball charges at Lew Burdette.

"He throws it all the time," charged Cardinal Manager Fred Hutchinson Thursday after the three-game series with St. Louis and their fourth straight triumph. The decision also kept the Braves a half game in front of San Francisco's Giants.

Burdette claimed the latest victory with a neat three-hit, five-inning relief performance, and Hutchinson continued the discussion of the right-hander's pitching saying: "There's nothing you can do about it. He's got a clean bill of health from the league President (Warren Giles) and the umpires."

"He threw a lot of them today."

The first big protest about Burdette's pitching came from the Dodgers as the Braves took 2 out of 3 in Los Angeles last week.

There was no comment from Burdette, but Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney had a few things to say about his world series hero.

"It's just terrific when a guy comes up to you and says, 'if you want me to crank up in the bullpen, I'm ready.' Burdette did that Wednesday night and he came to me again before today's game. And then they say we don't have any spirit on this ball club."

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer.

If it hadn't been for Herb Score's arm trouble, the Cleveland Indians might, as Manager Joe Gordon contends, be second in the American League race.

As is, if it weren't for a guy with the improbable name of Calvin Coolidge McLish, the Indians would be dead last.

They're seventh now, only two games ahead of Washington. They've won only 7 of their last 15, and McLish was the winning pitcher in 5. And they've won but 3 of their last 10, with McLish, a 32-year-old right-hander who traveled the National League for years, bagging at three.

He won his fifth in a row last night, beating Washington 8-3 with the home run help of Rocky Colavito and Minnie Minoso for an 8-5 record.

The New York Yankees, meanwhile, clipped Detroit 4-2 and stayed 12 games ahead of the second place Boston Red Sox, who best Kansas City 6-2. Baltimore defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-0 on Billy O'Dell's nine-hitter.

In the National League, Milwaukee rallied for an 8-7 victory at St. Louis. Second-place San Francisco came up with yet another ninth-inning spurt to beat Philadelphia 8-7. Cincinnati defeated the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and Los Angeles whipped Pittsburgh 5-3.

The Senators clipped McLish for eight hits, one Roy Sievers' two-run 24th homer that tied it 3-all in the fifth. But Minoso then belted his 13th home run with a man on in the seventh off loser Camilo Pascual, now 5-5.

Colavito drove in four runs with a pair of homers.

Hank Bauer's two-run triple capped a three-run sixth that bagged it for the Yankees. Art Ditmar (5-1) was the winner with Ryne Duren's relief. Billy Hoefi (7-9) lost it, failing to hold a 2-1 edge after Frank Bolling's eighth homer for the Tigers.

The Red Sox won their fourth in a row with a five-run fifth that swept the three-game set from the A's. Frank Malzone's two-run single topped the big fifth as Tom Gorman (2-4) lost his third to the Sox. Tom Brewer won his fourth. O'Dell, the young lefty who saved the AL's All-Star victory in relief, didn't walk a man and gave up nothing but singles while out-dueling Billy Pierce (9-6). Brooks Robinson hit a solo homer for the Birds, who counted the other two on a passed ball and Bob Boyd's sacrifice fly.

Yesterday's Little League play-off ball game between the Jaycees and the Lions to determine the second half winner in the North State League was postponed due to heavy rain. The game will be played today at 5:00.

The clubs are tied for first place in the second half of league play. Earlier, the Lions captured the first half title. Should the Lions win today and snare both half titles they will automatically become the season's champions. Should the Jaycees win, however, a playoff game or series between the two half champs will have to be played.

All of this is coming at an inopportune time for the North State circuit, because the Little League District tournament is set up for Thursday afternoon at Havelock. It is possible that the Jaycees and the Lions could be bickering back and forth almost right up until tournament time. This would, of course, hamper the practice of the North State All-Stars—which has several players on both the Lions and Jaycees.

Probable starters for the two clubs this afternoon, as far as the pitching is concerned, are Alton Clapp for the Jaycees and Robbie Powell for the Lions. These two right-handers have faced each other several times already in regular season play.

Powell has pitched three no-hit performances this year and all three of them have come at the expense of the Jaycees. The two clubs have tangled six times, with the Lions winning five of the six games.

The situation at the end of the season seems to be this: As Coach Bob Starling of the Lions put it, "We seem to have an advantage over the Jaycees when we play them but the Jaycees don't have as much trouble beating the other teams in the league as we do."

Following the local squabble for supremacy of the North State loop, the North State and Tar Heel All-Star teams will journey to Havelock to take part in the District tournament.

The teams are composed of outstanding players from each respective loop.

Last year the Tar Heels copped the District title, then swept through the State tournament, and went to the regionals in Rome, Georgia, before losing out.

The drawings for the Havelock tournament have already been made and Greenville's Tar Heels will have to face Greenville's North Staters in the first round of play on July 24.

Giants Making It A Habit To Win In Last Inning

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

The names are different and some of the finesse may be lacking, but San Francisco has revived those late-inning thrillers that were such a big hit for the Giants in '51 and '54, their last pennant years.

The Giants, hanging in there, half a game behind Milwaukee in the National League race, have won 16 games in the last inning. That's a third of their 47 victories.

On their current home stand, they've won 9 of 12, winning 6 by one run and 5 of those with ninth-inning rallies.

They beat Philadelphia 8-7 with three in the ninth yesterday. Two came in on Orlando Cepeda's double, but the clincher came home on a bases-loaded wild pitch. Milwaukee stayed a wink ahead of the Giants by giving the skidding St. Louis Cardinals another shove, 8-7. Cincinnati side-tracked the third-place Chicago Cubs 3-2. Los Angeles hammered Pittsburgh 5-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees stayed 12

Golfers Getting Set For 44th Carolinas Play

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—Qualifying play today opened the 44th annual Carolinas Golf Assn. Amateur tournament here.

The registration deadline was noon today, but by yesterday 137 golfers had signed up, indicating the largest field in the tournament's history.

Match play begins tomorrow, with two rounds on Sunday, the semifinals Monday and 36-hole finals Tuesday. Dick Chapman of Pinehurst won the 1957 tournament.

Told By Radio He Left Wife

DALLAS (AP)—Col. Robert Collins, commander of James Connally Air Force Base at Waco, was about 60 miles south of Dallas yesterday when his car radio brought him a special announcement: "Col. Collins, your wife is in Dallas at the service station."

He thought she was sleeping in the back of the auto, but she had gotten out while the car was being gassed up.

Coach Jim Mallory was hopping mad when he found out that the San Francisco Giants had snapped up his star sophomore hurler George Williams for reported $10,000, early this week.

"Of course, I'm glad to see George do well for himself. He's a good boy, a hard worker. But it's getting so that these major league scouts show no discretion at all. They've gone hog wild signing up college boys and a lot of times they do the boys more harm than good."

Williams, a 20-year-old righthander from Camden, N. C., came to ECC in 1957 and turned in two good years of mound duty for Mallory as a freshman and sophomore. This summer, the fireball ace posted a 5-0 record in the semi-pro Albemarle League.

Mallory was out of town Tuesday when it was announced that Williams had signed with the Giants.

When the slender Coach returned he had a fistful of complaints: "The thing I dislike about this, is that a scout would sign a boy this late in the season. There are only about five more weeks of play left—and with all the arrangements which have to be made, the boy wouldn't be able to pitch much in that time. When it's that late in the year, I can't understand why they wouldn't let him go back to school and get at least another year of education and college ball."

Mallory said that the reason big league scouts are able to sign up practically anybody they want is "all of us have to work a limited budget. When a scout comes along and dangles a lot of money in front of a boy, of course it's going to be tempting. We just can't just compete."

"Unless a boy is really getting a large sum, he should stay in school. He should stay in school until he's really ready for pro ball. Look at it this way: If a boy stays in school he'll get his college education, he'll probably improve as a player, and he'll get his contract in the end anyway if he's any good. If his playing becomes worse while in school then he wouldn't have lasted with the pros anyway."

The most disappointing aspect of it, from the Coaches' standpoint, is the loss of a player after having worked with him for a year or two getting him ready. We spent two years with George," said Mallory, "and he was just at the point to where he was going to be a real help to us. It's bad to work with a kid, bring him along and make him a part of your team, and then lose him."

Mallory has coached at Elon and East Carolina and has compiled one of the winningest records in the state. He closed the matter like this: "I've been losing them for 12 years now. My philosophy is this you can't afford to worry about losing them. You'd go crazy if you did."

The loss of Williams makes Mallory's task at ECC tougher for the coming 1959 season. Only one of his four star '58 hurlers will return. He lost Leonard Lilley and Bruce Shelley by graduation and Williams via the bonus route. Only Ben Baker will be back. Also gone will be Jerry Stewart and Bucky Reep from his infield via graduation and catcher Marion Talton through scholastic troubles.

Rare Irishman In Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Irish fighters are few and far between these days. No John L. Sullivan, as a four-round prelim boy and Mickey Walker or Jimmy McLarnin in the lot. Perhaps the best to come along in recent years is Bobby Scanlon, a handsome young lightweight who fights his first main event in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Scanlon, only 22, never has lost a radio and television coverage.

Wynn Thomason's heart turned cold. "You leave Martha out of this!" he said sharply to Tony Miller. "She didn't see anything, did she?"

Tony gave him a contemptuous glance. "She's got that branding iron. Jim Ned found it and gave it to her to take back home."
Wynn swore and blocked the trail when Tony tried to pass him. "Wait a minute," he said quietly, "with enough authority that the other man looked at him in surprise. "I don't want to hurt Martha and I don't think we'll need it. If she takes that iron home, Mrs. Kilgore will figure that we are using the Valle after all. She may send somebody up here to look us over. But she knows she hasn't been losing calves because she hasn't got any. And I reckon finding Jim Ned's body will stop them for a while. We ought to have a day or two—but we won't take chances."

"I'll go on up. You stay down here and keep guard. Keep your ears open. If you hear anybody coming, give a signal and come fast! I'll start a forest fire across the mouth of the Valle so nobody can get through and find them calves. Whoever comes, we'll make out the fire started accidentally and we're fighting it. But don't let's do any more killings, Tony!"

He stopped, then added deliberately. "Unless it's Slade Considine, let him through—so I can take care of him."
He was rewarded by the first flash of respect he had seen in Tony's eyes in weeks.
They rode together up the canyon another quarter-mile, then, where there was a narrow break in the rugged canyon wall on the right side, Tony dismounted, handed the reins of his pony to Wynn.

He pointed to a high, rocky peak a hundred feet above them. "I'll climb up there and keep an eye on what's going on down below."
Wynn had gone scarcely a dozen yards farther up the trail when a low whistle from Tony brought him round in the saddle. Halfway up the sharp canyon wall, Tony was motioning him to come back. He started to turn the horses, but by means of pantomime Tony made him understand that he was to dismount, turn the horses loose, and send them up the canyon.

Tony came half way back down to the trail to meet him. "Our new Forest Ranger, and the girl just found the body," he called in a low voice.
For a moment Wynn's heartbeats quickened sickeningly. He climbed up beside Tony, and together they crouched down behind a huge jutting rock with a sun-sight notch in the top that gave them a peephole through which to view what went on down the canyon.
By that time Slade had started to load Jim Ned's body on his horse.
"Looks like we passed inspection," Tony chuckled.
Wynn gave him a hard look. "It does," he agreed. "But I'd almost rather have been caught myself than had Jim Ned Wheeler killed."

Tony gave him back hard look for hard look. "Well, I don't aim to get caught and don't you aim to get caught and don't you forget it! Don't you forget either that you are in this as deep as me. You're the one that's got a couple dozen calves hid up in the Valle waiting for them to wear so you can slap a T Anchor on them. If it once occurred to old lady Kilgore to get suspicious, she might find out your cows have been having triplets."

Wynn managed a grin. It was thin, but it would pass. Now as not the time for a showdown with Tony. "Hell—said almost, didn't I? If it had been me that met Jim Ned probably I would have killed him—the same as you did."

Tony gave him a long, hard look, then clapped him on the back. "All right, pal. Now you're talking sense."
Wynn held out his hand. "No hard feelings, Tony?"

Tony took the hand and shook it vigorously, but it was nothing more than a temporary armed truce, and both men knew it.
Wynn took a squint through his lookout post and suddenly drew back. "Martha's going back alone and Slade's coming up this way afoot!"

Tony stooped and peered through the gap in the rock, then a wide, buck-toothed, vicious grin spread over his face. "Well, now—ain't this just dandy!"
Why caught his elbow as he made a move as if to start down the trail again. "Hold it!" His voice was quiet, but his eyes were blazing with excitement. "Let the girl get out of gunshot hearing. Let Slade go on up to the Valle. We'll close in on him from behind."

Tony chuckled and nodded. "Then maybe Catlin will make me Ranger, eh?"
"I'm counting on that," Wynn said grimly.

As he walked fast up the Escabrosa Canyon, Slade Considine had the familiar helpless feeling of any cowboy afoot in a big country. He knew that Wynn was likely to have a lookout posted somewhere on the trail, and although it had been years since he had been up this way, he remembered the break in the canyon walls and knew it was the only likely place for a guard to be waiting.

There was no way to get up the canyon without making a plain target for at least a half-mile. But he was figuring the same way Wynn had. Wynn wouldn't want to face a charge of out-and-out murder. It seemed that he was willing to kill to keep folks out of the Valle, but he would try to make another death appear accidental, too. He wouldn't want Martha to hear another gunshot.
Nevertheless he was gambling a lot on a hunch and he couldn't help the cold-chill feeling that raced up and down his back as he heard the break in the wall.
From fifty yards suddenly widened to form the valley, through the willows and alders lining the trail, he could see a couple of saddled horses grazing in the edge of an aspens grove. With a sudden tightening of his stomach muscles he guessed that his hunch had been right. Their riders had sent them on ahead while they waited below. Here a sudden slight bend in the trail protected him from the rear momentarily. He stretched his legs and sprinted for the mouth of the Valle. There he was within plain sight of the little log cabin squatted out near the middle of the Valle.

He ran toward the nearest evergreen thick enough to conceal a man's body, bending his course a little to keep under cover of the fringe of aspens.
Suddenly from behind him a sixgun spat, and a bullet whistled off a dead branch above him. Instinctively he ducked and sweated a little. The sixgun spat again, and his hat jumped forward and settled down over his eyes as if a hand had tilted it there. He slid round behind a double-trunked aspen, shoved his hat back, and didn't bother to pick it up when it dropped to the ground. He tossed a quick shot back at two figures ducking through the aspens toward him.

Both men halted, brought up their guns and fired. . . .

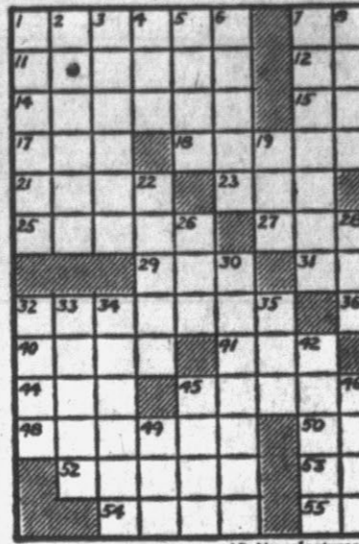

Looking ahead to tomorrow's chapter: "His shirt was already soaked with blood, and he could feel its sticky warmth oozing down his leg. . . ."

Hitched A Ride, Now Lies Dead

BORDENTOWN, N. J. (AP)—Everybody knew little Eddie O'Neil Rodgers, the crippled kid who humped about on crutches swinging his braced legs before him.
He'd been shining shoes since he was able, a little hunchbacked 13-year-old hopping here and there in search of customers.
Hurrying, hurrying on his tortured way, he would raise his thumb for rides.
"I guess Eddie used to cover 20 square miles," said State Trooper Joseph Rogalski. "We knew he loved to hitchhike, but we sort of—you might say—didn't molest him."
Eddie hitched a ride last night with Airman John W. Souders Jr. of Philadelphia. Eddie was a favorite of servicemen at nearby Ft. Dix and McGuire Air Force base.
At Hedding, Souders car spun out of control and off the side of the road. A utility pole sheared off the top. The two were pitched out.
Souders was in serious condition at Ft. Dix Hospital.
Eddie lay crumpled beside the smashed auto. He was dead of head injuries.
Beside him lay his splintered crutches.
To meet America's growing needs, our current building rate of 1.2 million will probably have to double by 1975.

INDIAN JAMBOREE

PROCESSIONAL. The Stony Indians, in native costumes, arrive at Banff for their four-day celebration.

NOBLE REDMAN. With spear in hand, a chief of the tribe, Sitting Eagle, presents a handsome figure at the Banff festivities.

Outside their tents, four Indian chiefs entertain their white guest, Claude Brewster, at their council meeting on the Indian grounds at Banff.

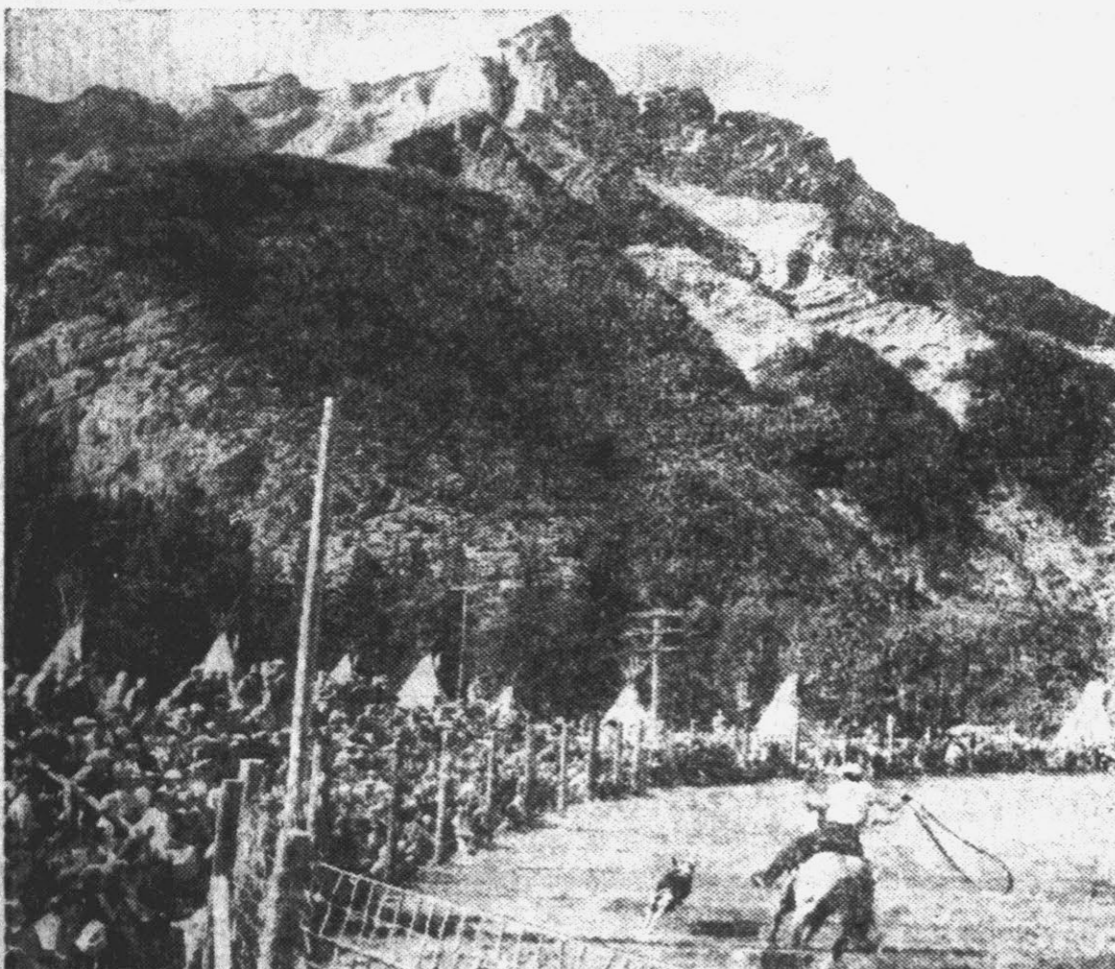

Long before summer rolls around, the Stony Indians of Canada get ready to put on their big spectacle of the year, the "Indian Days" celebration at Banff. Held each summer since 1894, it's one of Canada's big outdoor shows.

Every Stony Indian—chief, brave, squaw and even papoose—participates. It's a grand cavalcade as the redmen, decked out in beads, buckskins, feathered headdress and fine shawls, set out from their reservation and head over winding trails for Banff. Some travel on ponies and others on foot.

Once they pitch their tents on a plain close to Banff, the celebration begins, with horse-racing, bronco-busting, roping contests, bow-and-arrow competitions and other sports in which the Indians excel, with tribal dances and the singing of traditional songs. While this is going on the squaws decorate their tepee village, and the white visitors get their first glimpse of real Indian village life. The festivities go on for four full days.

Walking Buffalo, aged warrior and former chief, is happy participant.

Mountains form a scenic backdrop for the "Indian Days" rodeo. An Indian, riding bareback, thrills the spectators with his horsemanship.

In ceremonial dress, a Stony Indian performs the hoop dance, a feature of the Banff festivities.

Papoose clings to mother, a bit startled by all the goings-on.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gains by industrials kept the stock market ahead moderately in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Leading stocks were ahead from fractions to about a point.

Oils, steels and aircrafts did well. Their best early gains were clipped back sharply, however.

Some of the heaviest trading of the year occurred in the first half hour when the ticker tape fell behind transactions for a period of 18 minutes. The pace slackened and prices drifted below their highs.

While international oils did well, Gulf Oil halted its early gain of about 2 points. Standard Oil (New Jersey), Texas Co. and Royal Dutch kept gains of about a point.

Socony - Mobile was ahead a sizeable fraction. Amerasia, western hemisphere producer, rose about a point.

Lorillard's record-breaking quarterly earnings were apparently well-discounted. The stock was off a fraction.

Youngstown Sheet and Lukens Steel erased much of their early gains of around a point each. U.S. Steel was firm. Bethlehem and Republic Steel were up fractionally.

Union Carbide, which rose 2 5/8 yesterday on a forecast of improved earnings, took a fractional loss. Allied Chemical, Du Pont, International Paper, Southern Pacific and American Telephone were other small losers.

Goodrich and Caterpillar held gains of about a point apiece.

General Motors, Goodyear, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, General Dynamics, Radio Corp., Kaiser Aluminum, Johns-Manville and Chesapeake & Ohio advanced fractionally.

Anaconda and Kennecott were steady. Phelps Dodge eased. International Nickel gained a good fraction.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks at noon was up 40 cents at $17.40, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Baghdad Coup Accomplished In 7 Hours

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took seven hours last Bastille Day for the Baghdad rebels to seize and secure power over Iraq. And then, for the rest of the day, the mobs took over.

That was the picture of the Middle East's latest July 14, as shown in a chronology based on the best available publishable information here. Officials informed on the situation assembled the pieces, some admittedly sketchy, this way:

Baghdad was sleeping. It was 5 a.m. and the first faint rays of another sun were just beginning to appear. Swiftly and silently, Brig. Gen. Abdel Karim al-Kasbi led his 20th Brigade into the unsuspecting city.

Whispered orders. Detachments dropped off at the railroad, at the bridges, at the telegraph office, at main street junctures, at the post office, at Baghdad radio. Quietly, efficiently, the troops took over without firing their rifles and machine guns.

More whispered orders. This time, names of those to be arrested. Other detachments going around to the specified addresses, knocking and arresting, with orders to shoot if resisted.

In an hour the secrecy, locked in the hearts of fewer than two dozen men for two months, was no longer necessary. It was 6 a.m. The first phase of a classic coup was over. Baghdad radio blared the city awake with the news: "Citizens of Baghdad, the monarch is dead, the republic is here!"

And then, the names of 15 men, mostly young army officers. The 12-man Cabinet, headed by Kassem as premier, and the three-man Sovereign Council, the new strategic-making super-cabinet, topped by Lt. Gen. Najib el-Rubai.

A detachment, led by two officers, went to the royal palace. By now, a mob was gathering, mystified, curious, excited. With the mob trailing, the soldiers forced their way into the palace.

They were brought up short by the sight of their young King. The 22-year-old Faisal, a pistol strapped to his side, stood beside his 46-year-old uncle Abdul Ilah, crown prince and ex-regent. With them, rifles drawn, were two members of the palace guard. They were ordered to surrender. Abdul Ilah, also armed, was disdainful. He and Faisal had arisen early to fly to Ankara, Turkey, for a Baghdad Pact meeting — not to be arrested. He ordered his guards to shoot. The soldiers fired first and the guards fell dead. Abdul Ilah went for his pistol. Another fusillade and both he and Faisal crumpled to the floor.

The King was dead. But the prince might have been still alive. The mob surged forward, kept a respectful distance from the King but seized the prince.

Abdul Ilah, a meticulous man who liked pink shirts with gray pinstriped suits and hated crowds, was dragged through the streets of Baghdad behind a jeep. His body was hung on a building so all could see he was dead. The King's body was exhibited later, probably on a marble slab.

But the big prize was not away. Premier Nuri Said, "the Old Fox," caught wind of the coup and fled to the suburbs. Angered, the military junta slapped a $28,000 price on his head. It was not until two days later that he was found, disguised as an old woman with a black scarf covering his face. He shot it out and fell dead. His body, too, was hung in display.

Nuri's reported lament to President Eisenhower in Washington last fall comes back now with protest. "I am a strong man," he told Eisenhower, "but I am 70 years old and there is no one to succeed me."

Ironically, too, Nuri apparently sealed his own doom. Only last week he supplied Kassem's brigade with ammunition to march on Jordan. There it was to help Faisal's cousin King Hussein keep order after the June 22 smashing of a similar coup with the arrest of 60 Jordanian army officers. Su Kassem marched on Baghdad in stead of Amman.

It was 8 a.m. Baghdad radio was pumping out news of the coup. Mobs demonstrated outside public buildings, the U.S. Embassy, the U.S. Information Library. More army units were reported pledging support of the rebels — on the plains in the mountains, outside Baghdad.

A fire broke out at the British Embassy. A British colonel was killed or maimed. The rebels blamed the fire on the British. They said the British were trying to burn secret documents and the fire got out of hand.

By noon, things had simmered down. Soldiers were everywhere and Baghdad radio was still rolling out the word, with appeals for public cooperation. All of Nuri's Cabinet were either dead, in jail or hiding out. There was no organized resistance. The coup had succeeded, after weeks of secret hatching outside Iraq — reportedly in Jidda and Mecca, Saudi Arabia, and Bern, Switzerland.

The mobs, possibly joined now by Communist agitators, spent the afternoon venting their spleen against real or imagined ills suffered under the old regime. About 8 p.m. a mob laid siege to the new Baghdad Hotel, to root out royalists there. Two Americans were killed, probably because they just happened to get in the way.

Armed Forces Will Have Full Support: Sen. Russell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said today that Congress will support the U. S. armed forces with authority and money in the Middle East crisis, wherever they are.

He said the Senate Armed Services Committee, of which he is chairman, will stand by to await developments and to consult at any time with the top defense command.

Russell told a reporter he thinks it would be unwise to reduce any of the armed forces below existing levels, as if contemplated in budget requests now before a Defense Appropriations subcommittee.

Russell said that when Congress winds up its work, it should be subject to recall by its leaders, so it could act in any unexpected emergency.

Senate May Ignore States Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appeared unlikely today to act on a House-passed bill to protect state laws which parallel federal enactments.

The House passed the bill 241-155.

Eastland declined to predict its prospects in the Senate.

The House measure provides that federal laws shall not nullify state laws on the same subject unless there is a direct and irreconcilable conflict between them or unless acts passed by Congress expressly say so.

The bill had its origin in a Supreme Court decision overturning the state court conviction of Steve Nelson, a Pennsylvania Communist leader.

The court ruled that Congress, by passing the Smith Act and other anti-Communist legislation, had pre-empted the field of prosecuting seditious cases. The effect was to invalidate all state sedition laws and indirectly to lay open to question state laws in other fields in which Congress has acted.

Opponents protested that the bill would offer an open invitation to state legislatures to enact laws removing the teeth from federal statutes dealing with civil rights, labor, railroads and agriculture.

Both the Justice and the Labor departments have opposed it.

But supporters of the bill, ignoring predictions that it would be vetoed by President Eisenhower, argued it was necessary to prevent the Supreme Court from invalidating state laws contrary to the intent of Congress.

Earlier this year the Senate Judiciary Committee approved by a 10-5 vote a bill of Senators John M. Butler (R-Md.) and William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) to curb the Supreme Court's review powers and to overcome the effects of some of its decisions in Communist cases. This complicates action on the new House-passed bill.

Senate Leaders Push For Reciprocal Trade Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders pushed for passage of the reciprocal trade extension bill today, first they expected to knock out a key provision curbing President Eisenhower's powers.

The chances of getting a final vote by tonight appeared to rest largely with Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.), a longtime foe of the trade program.

The decisive vote was to come on an amendment offered by the two Senate leaders and four other senators. It would strike from the bill a provision inserted in the Finance Committee by Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.).

Sewage Disposal Plant Inspected

Members of the Utilities Commission and Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam journeyed to Lexington yesterday to inspect a sewage disposal plant in that city.

The commissioners took a look at an activated sludge plant, a type which has been recommended for Greenville by Bloxam.

Bloxam said the group was met at Lexington by C. C. Tilly of the Freeman engineering firm, which has engineered plans for Greenville's proposed plant.

Lexington's city manager and the city's superintendent of sewage disposal plant met the local group.

Next week the commissioners are planning to take a trip to Washington, N.C. where they will inspect a trickle filter type plant.

Plans have been drawn for a local sewage disposal plant and land has been obtained in an area near Greenwood cemetery.

The commission has established a sinking fund to provide funds for the plant's construction.

Jack Whichard Named To Post At Press Meet

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Jack Whichard of the Greenville Reflector was named secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina Associated Dailies in a business meeting here this morning.

C. M. (Mike) Ogle of the Hendersonville Times-News was elected chairman of the group.

Lyle Edwards of the Gastonia Gazette was elected vice-chairman.

The group voted to continue annual press awards but agreed to reduce from three to two the number of entries per individual. Editorial writers fall in a separate category and are not affected by this ruling.

The Associated Non - Dailies elected William O. Barrett of the Belmont Banner, president; James Gray of the Sylva Herald, vice president; and Roy Parker Jr. of Parker Brothers Newspapers, Asheville, secretary-treasurer.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. Willie Buck

Mrs. Eva Williams Buck, 62, wife of Willie Buck of near Winterville, died Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock at Memorial General Hospital in Kinston following three days of illness.

Funeral services will be held at Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church Saturday at 4 p.m. by the Rev. Floyd Cherry, a former pastor, assisted by the Rev. Clifton Rice, pastor. Burial will be in the Ayden cemetery. The body will be taken from the home to the church one hour before the service.

Delay Decision On Leaf Acreage

RALEIGH (AP) — The Board of Directors of the State Farm Bureau agreed today that a decision should not be made at this time on flue-cured tobacco acreage allotments for 1959.

At least two groups have been reported as seeking increases in acreage for 1959.

The board adopted a resolution of its Tobacco Committee which stated, "This matter should be decided only after the 1958 production has been determined and a careful review made of stocks on hand and disappearance at the end of the marketing season."

The committee, headed by Call Hicks of Walsenburg, took a firm stand in reiterating its position to keep supply in line with demand with 90 per cent price supports.

Hicks said enough tobacco is on hand to meet normal demands for two years and nine months.

The board endorsed the action of the Secretary of Agriculture in declining to extend the sale of loose leaf tobacco to markets other than those on the Georgia-Florida belt.

The board also planned to discuss farm legislation pending in Congress.
