Red Ink Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government said today the national budget was in the red by $2,813,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year last June 30.

Secretary of the Treasury Anderson and Budget Director Maurice H. Stans made the announcement in a joint statement based on preliminary reports still subject to revision.

The deficit was recorded after two fiscal years in which the government's budget books were in the black.

As recently as last January, President Eisenhower estimated the budget for the 1958 fiscal year ended June 30 would be in the red by only 400 million dollars.

Receipts during the fiscal year totaled $69,100,000, down nearly two billion dollars from fiscal 1957. The drop was caused largely by the recession slump in earnings of businesses and individuals.

Budget spending during the 12 months total $71,900,000,000, an increase of 2 1/2 billion dollars over the previous fiscal year.

Spending was boosted by post-Sputnik emphasis on defense, recessions programs and later outlays under the farm price support program.

For the new fiscal year which began July 1, officials are estimating a budget deficit of 10 to 12 billion dollars.

ECC Requests Presented Today

Requests for capital improvements valued at $5,505,000 were presented this afternoon by East Carolina College officials to members of North Carolina's Advisory Budget Commission.

Commission members were on the campus as a part of their tour of state-supported institutions and heard the requests outlined by Dr. John D. Messick, president of ECC.

Major items cited by Dr. Messick include new dormitories for men and women, a gymnasium, an elementary school building, increased outdoor athletic facilities and additions to six existing buildings.

Most expensive of the proposed projects, according to Dr. Messick's report, is the dormitory for 629 men, which is estimated at $1,355,000. The new gymnasium, which would have a seating capacity of about 6,000, would involve expenditure of about $1,199,000.

Other projects and their anticipated costs include: Street lighting to new dormitory sites on the South campus, $10,000.

Addition to heating plant, $139,200.

Improvements to campus electrical system, $100,000.

Addition to the Student Union (Wright Building), $73,000.

Renovation of North Cafeteria, $135,200.

Dormitory for 304 women, $760,000.

Addition to the Infirmary, $78,800.

Addition to Joyner Library, $303,000.

Addition to Graham Building, $96,600.

Addition to Flanagan Building, $234,000.

Outdoor athletic facilities, $235,000; and

Elementary school building, $336,000.

In addition to the requests for capital improvements, Dr. Messick told the commission that the college is requesting $2,148,191 for 1959-1960 maintenance and operations, and $2,299,552 for 1960-1961 maintenance and operation.

The maintenance and operation budget requests include figures for "status quo" operations and also figures for proposed program expansions and improvements.

For 1959-1960, the college estimated its continuance-at-the-present-level budget needs at $1,523,322. Proposed improvements and expansion would cost an additional $624,869.

For 1960-1961, the continuance budget needs were estimated at $1,643,605 and expansion needs at $655,947.

The maintenance and operation break-downs as presented by Dr. Messick are required by state Budget Bureau regulations.

In explaining capital improvements requests, Dr. Messick said additions to existing buildings would permit the college to shift some departmental areas to provide more adequate facilities and instruction areas. Construction of a new elementary school building would permit the college to utilize the present Wahl-Coates School building for departmental instruction.

Outdoor athletic facilities included in the requests include a new football stadium, tennis courts and an intramural athletics field.

The new gymnasium would provide facilities which would supplement present health and physical education facilities.

Commission members came to East Carolina after spending the morning on the campus of Elizabeth City Teachers College. They are to visit the Eastern Carolina Industrial Training School for Boys at Rocky Mount this evening.

Keep Close By

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The carrier Antietam, loaded with 1,900 Marines and aircraft, has left Norfolk and is engaged in local operations off the Virginia capes with the carriers Forrestal and Randolph, Atlantic Fleet headquarters reported today.

"They are expected to return in a couple of days," a fleet spokesman said. He declined to give additional information.

Word that the carriers are expected to return to Norfolk "in a couple of days" indicated the three-carrier force is not scheduled for immediate deployment to the Mediterranean.

Such deployment had been indicated last week when more than a score of Marine assault helicopters flew here from North Carolina and landed on the Antietam, and the Marine troops poured into Norfolk from North Carolina on trucks and buses.

Training School Has 3 Requests

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Superintendent W. D. Clark said he would lay three major requests for Eastern Carolina Training School before the advisory budget commission at its session here late today.

Clark listed them as: (1) a 3000 capacity milking barn with equipment, estimated cost $20,500; (2) a storage barn estimated to cost $5,700; and (3) two staff houses estimated to cost $23,000.

The school, established in 1923 for delinquent boys, has about 120 inmates whose ages range from six to 18.

Further Study Of Highway 11 Expansion Ahead

Plans to expand N.C. 11 to four lanes between Greenville's West End Circle and the South 11 Drive Theater are headed for further study by State Highway Commission and U.S. Bureau of Public Roads officials.

Highway Commission Information Officer Sam Beard said this morning the further study will result from a public hearing held here Friday.

The hearing, Beard said, provided state and federal highway officials with "local views" of the proposal.

As it is now planned, Beard said the project will provide a 68-foot, four-lane, direct-access roadway along the route. The expanded road will have a 16-foot grass median between North and South lines plus storm sewers, curbs, gutters and sidewalks for the portion of the route within Greenville's city limits.

The present two-lane road, which is 20 feet wide, serves about 4,000 vehicles daily. Beard said the present roadway's centerline would become the centerline of the new road. If final approval is given to the project.

Although Friday hearing turned up some concern over a four-lane highway becoming "a speedway," Beard said this morning that present plans call for the speed limit to remain the same if the project is completed.

"We are not trying to build a speedway," Beard said. "We simply want something to carry traffic which uses the highway now and traffic which we anticipate will come. With a 4,000-vehicles-daily count, the present roadway is always experiencing some clogging."

Complaints about cutting into residential plots were also registered at the meeting, but Beard said the commission does not anticipate going beyond a 100-foot right-of-way "which the commission already has." He said the only additional right-of-way commission anticipates having to purchase "may be additional land at intersections."

Although some plans for the project have been drawn, Beard said it is "still in the preliminary study stage". A recording of Friday's public hearing will be made available to the full commission and to the Bureau of Public Roads, which will help finance the work.

Estimated cost of the project is $414,000, a portion of which will be paid from funds appropriated by Congress as a recession combating measure. To utilize federal funds, however, the State Highway Commission must have the project under contract by December 31, 1959.

The project is one of two approved for Pitt County under the federal appropriation. The other is an improvements project on U. S. 1 near Bethel.

Big 3 Offer Summit Talk Terms

'Atomic Capabilities' In U. S. Middle East Force

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The United States brought the menacing words "atomic capability" into the Middle Eastern crisis today.

A U. S. spokesman said all ground, air and sea combat units have atomic capability. He specifically avoided saying whether the 6,300 Marines here have atomic warheads in Lebanon.

U. S. Marines joined Lebanese army patrols which could bring them in contact with rebels, many of them pro-Nasser.

These developments came as President Nasser of the Syrian-Egyptian United Arab Republic and Soviet Premier Khrushchev weighed results of their latest diplomatic moves.

Nasser, it was reported by Cairo news agencies, met with the rich ruler Sheikh of Kuwait in Damascus yesterday. Kuwait, a British protectorate, is on the Persian Gulf close to Iraq, and supplies half of Britain's oil. It is the leading oil producer in the Middle East.

Khrushchev proposed over the weekend a five-power summit conference to talk over the Middle East crisis.

The United States also took steps to inform Lebanese of the reasons for the presence of American troops in Lebanon.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman said a million leaflets in Arabic were dropped from one end of Lebanon to the other, and assured the Lebanese the Americans would leave as soon as the United Nations has taken measures assuring the independence of Lebanon.

Two Sabre Jets and a marauder bomber which swept over Beirut dropping the leaflets caused a flurry of excitement.

A Navy spokesman disclosed at a U. S. Embassy briefing that U. S. forces have come equipped with the necessary weapons to use atomic power.

"All combat units, including ground, air and sea have atomic capability," he said.

"Any further discussion is a matter of security," he added.

He did not say the Marines had brought atomic warheads, but the implication seemed clear. The Marines have landed four 8-inch howitzers which are capable of shooting an atomic shell about 11 miles.

The adding of Marines to Lebanese army patrols was described by U. S. briefing officers as an effort to improve liaison with Lebanese army forces in an effort to halt sniping at aircraft and Marine guards.

At least six military transports have been hit. No injuries have resulted. The flight path into Beirut airport takes planes over rebel territory.

A U. S. Embassy spokesman denied Cairo's charges that a U. A. R. commercial airliner was fired on by U. S. forces and made to turn back from Beirut.

The fire was from the same insurgent forces who have been shooting at U. S. Air Force transports," an information officer said.

A Marine lost two fingers and a thumb of his left hand at Beirut's airport today by an explosion in his cook fire. The Marines started an investigation as to whether rebels had planted a bomb.

Kids selling pop have tagged after the Marines in droves, and one left a bottle Saturday which exploded. It had been filled with gasoline and equipped with a time bomb. It did no damage.

Jordan has made a complete diplomatic break with Nasser's U. A. R. The Foreign Ministry in Amman announced the break at the same time King Hussein's government received a 12 1/2-million-dollar shot in the arm from the United States to aid it over economic hurdles in the present crisis.

Nasser had returned to Cairo after a diplomatic expedition that took him to Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union and Syria.

Middle Eastern Crisis Eyed As Political Factor

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ominous shadow of the Middle East crisis threatened today to blot out other issues and force some major revisions in congressional campaign strategy.

Campaign leaders were watching public reaction to President Eisenhower's decision to send troops into Lebanon. There was no certainty in either camp about the immediate or long-range political effect.

But one thing stood out in their reports from grass-roots canvassers: If American troops are still in Lebanon on election day, Middle East developments are likely to have more effect on voting results than any other single issue.

While GOP National Chairman Meade Aizern has contended Eisenhower's troop decision has "won wide acclaim," a Republican campaign strategist who didn't want his name used said his survey showed very mixed reaction.

He said that while many voters approved the President's firm action in a dangerous situation, others believed American intervention in the internal affairs of any other nation would be likely to boomerang.

A leading Democrat, who thinks Eisenhower should first have appealed to the United Nations and then sent troops if necessary, said he was advising party colleagues to soft-pedal their criticisms and let voters speak for themselves.

Fresh in the minds of the Democrats is the use of the Republicans made of the Korean War issue in the 1952 presidential election. In speeches, Aizern still stresses the theme that the Eisenhower administration settled the Korean conflict and can be depended on to chart a course that would avoid war.

Democrats reason that even if U. S. troops avoid fighting—and they hope fervently there is none—the American voter will be mighty restive if the weeks stretch into months without a Middle East settlement.

Jordan Breaks Relations With President Nasser

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Jordan widened the breach with President Nasser today, breaking diplomatic relations with his United Arab Republic.

King Hussein's desert state got 12 1/2 million dollars in cash while more U. S. troops poured into neighboring Lebanon.

The American aid to Jordan so far did not include troops. It came as oil-rich Kuwait and Saudi Arabia stood on the edge of the Middle East whirlpool and Nasser continued working to consolidate his gains.

The U. A. R. chief returned to Cairo today after a bustling three-week round of diplomatic talks that took him to Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union and Syria.

Nasser's recognition of the new regime in Iraq touched off the final break with Jordan. King Hussein, the junior partner in Jordan's rest of the money is for whatever economic purpose Hussein's government sees fit.

The oil airlift to Jordan went ahead. A U. S. Embassy spokesman reported that seven American Globemaster planes had made 14 flights, each carrying 25 tons of oil.

Hussein also asked for U. S. troops—and said he expected to get them. But it seemed more likely that the United States at this stage would leave military aid to Hussein to the British.

There are now about 2,000 British paratroopers in Jordan and the Jordan government so far has been able to keep pro-Nasser elements under control.

The oil industry reportedly produced tense relations between the United States and Saudi Arabia, which refused to permit the big tanker planes to fly over Saudi Arabian territory from Bahrain.

The oil reportedly is coming from a U. S. Navy supply ship off Beirut with the planes flying across Israel.

Find Little New In Pact Proposal

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today made public its latest proposals for a nonaggression treaty between the North Atlantic Alliance and the Soviet bloc's Warsaw Pact group. Basically there was little new.

The recommendations included reduction of foreign troops in Germany, a nuclear-free zone in central Europe and aerial surveys to prevent surprise attacks. The new version of the proposals was contained in notes delivered to the big-power Western ambassadors in Moscow last Tuesday.

The Soviets proposed all foreign troops in Germany be cut one-third, or "another agreed fraction." The nuclear-free zone would cover "the immediate vicinity of a line dividing the military groups in Europe." Keeping out atomic weapons would depend only on the promises of those who signed the treaty.

Inspection and control would cover only forces massing for surprise attacks. "The Soviet government favors the idea of aerial surveys within an 800-kilometer (500-mile) zone on either side of the demarcation line between the Warsaw Treaty and NATO countries to prevent surprise attack," the note said.

The West has criticized such an inspection zone before because it includes almost none of the Soviet Union itself.

Other articles in the treaty would provide for East-West economic cooperation, the exchange of raw materials, sharing know-how in the peaceful development of atomic energy and development of contacts in science, technology and culture.

The proposed pact was held out by the Soviet Union as possibly opening prospects for broader disarmament agreements.

Asking $572,500 Of Budget Body

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—Pres. Sidney D. Williams of Elizabeth City State Teachers College today asked the touring Advisory Budget Commission for $572,500 in improvements and repairs at the school.

The major request was $241,000 for a student union building. Other items:

Indoor swimming pool, $135,000; five faculty homes, $70,000; new president's home, $18,500; roads and sidewalks, $2,000; repairs and alterations, $21,000; extension of the athletic field to include a running track, $11,000.

The commission moved on to Greenville from here.

Fire Destroyed 48 Cars In Train

MERRIAM, Kan. (AP)—A railroad tank car derailed and exploded just south of this Kansas City suburb yesterday, igniting a fire that destroyed 48 cars of a 110-car train.

Flaming wreckage was spread along about 500 feet of track. There were no injuries.

Firemen kept the fire from reaching two cars loaded with artillery shells.

Cause of the derailment on the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Line was not known.

PARIS (AP)—The Western Big Three are reported willing to attend a summit meeting in the near future if it is held at the United Nations with government chiefs heading up the diplomatic delegations.

Such a conference would bring together President Eisenhower and Premiers Khrushchev, de Gaulle and Macmillan at either a Security Council or General Assembly meeting in New York.

It would meet the Soviet demand for summit talks, and the West's belief that the U. N., which is now considering the Middle East crisis, should have full opportunity to carry on.

Japs Count On Support For Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Japan counted on Western support today as she went to the U. N. Security Council with a plan to expand operations of the U. N. observer group in Lebanon so U. S. Marines could be withdrawn.

Some diplomats believed the Soviet Union, intent on getting a special session of the General Assembly in which to attack the West, would veto Japan's proposal.

The councils scheduled a mid-afternoon session but there was no indication when a vote would come on the Japanese resolution. If it failed, the Council then could take up U. S. and Soviet resolutions calling for an emergency assembly session on the Middle East Crisis.

The Japanese resolution would ask the U. N. observer group in Lebanon to "develop its activities" aimed at insuring against illegal infiltration of arms and men from the United Arab Republic to the Lebanese rebels.

It also would have the Council ask U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to arrange such additional measures as he may consider necessary to prevent aid from reaching the rebels and to "insure the territorial integrity and political independence of Lebanon" by withdrawal of U. S. forces from Lebanon.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, leaving New York for London late yesterday, told newsmen that Britain would vote for the Japanese resolution. A source close to the Japanese delegation said the United States would too.

The United States in pressing its own resolution to authorize a U. N. emergency force for Lebanon had promised to withdraw its Marines when the U. N. troops took over. The Soviets vetoed the American proposal Friday, and the Council majority voted down a Soviet demand for immediate withdrawal of the American forces from Lebanon and British troops from Jordan.

The new trial is expected to be held in August and all indications are that Foster will be freed for good.

Japanese Ships Decontaminated Of Atomic Dust

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Two small Japanese ships dusted by radioactive winds from the U. S. nuclear test area at Eniwetok were cleared after extensive tests at Rabaul, New Guinea.

Health authorities also cleared five seamen who feared they might have been dangerously contaminated.

The two survey ships, the 773-ton Takuyo and 797-ton Satsuma, were about 500 miles from the atomic test site a week ago when unexpected high winds from Eniwetok swept over them. Geiger counters on the ships jumped to 70 counts per minute, 10 above the minimum danger level.

The crews at once began to scrub down their ships continuously and the captains headed for Rabaul. By the time they reached Rabaul, the Geiger counter had dropped to 29 per minute.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio) said today he favors having Congress go on record to back up President Eisenhower's sending of troops to Lebanon if that can be done without nation-splitting debate.

He said such action, if accomplished, might avoid a repetition of the long argument which followed former President Truman's use of troops in Korea.

Vorys spoke as a fellow senior member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Rep. A. S. J. Carnahan (D-Mo.), laid plans for hearings late this week on a resolution calling for creation of a permanent U. N. police force.

Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D-Pa.), the committee chairman, said in a separate interview that Eisenhower took the only move he could in his momentous decision to dispatch troops at the request of President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon.

"We had a moral commitment

Soviet sources in Paris said reports of such a compromise were being studied in Moscow with sympathy.

The western views were outlined today at a meeting of the North Atlantic Council in Paris.

De Gaulle today welcomed the Soviet offer of a summit meeting of the Middle East, but contended that Khrushchev's tone in making the offer was an obstacle.

The French Premier's position was outlined by Information Minister Jacques Soustelle after a Cabinet meeting which considered France's reply. Earlier, De Gaulle had made a rough draft of the proposed American reply.

The official responses of Britain, France and the United States to the Khrushchev proposal were expected to be sent to Moscow after the meeting of the U. N. Security Council in New York today.

Soustelle said the French did not envision an immediate summit conference. He said such talks must be held in an atmosphere of "flexibility and serenity and that the date, place and participation must still be worked out through diplomatic channels.

He said the tone of the Soviet note proposing the talks stood in the way of such objectivity and serenity. Some matters referred to by Khrushchev contributed nothing toward success of such a conference, he added. Soustelle apparently was referring to remarks on France's troubles in Algeria.

Tastes Freedom After 2 Years

ATLANTA (AP)—James Fulton Foster headed for Florida today, just like any family man on vacation.

But it's more than just a vacation for the South Carolina man who was sentenced to die for a murder another man later confessed.

It is Foster's first real taste of freedom after two years of legal appeals, last-minute stays of execution and jail routine.

Foster, his wife and seven children headed for Daytona Beach where Leo Burschay, a wealthy art dealer, offered them a week's vacation at his expense.

Just two days ago, Foster was granted a new trial at a hearing in Jefferson, Ga., and was allowed to sign his own $500 bond. The new trial was granted after Charles (Rocky) Rothchild confessed to the 1956 killing of Jefferson merchant Charles Drake. Rothchild is serving a five-year burglary conspiracy sentence in South Carolina.

The new trial is expected to be held in August and all indications are that Foster will be freed for good.

Steady Progress By Rep. Shuford

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. George A. Shuford (D-NC) is showing steady progress in his recovery from partial paralysis, his office aides said today.

Shuford joined about 200 other Tar Heels Saturday at the annual picnic of the North Carolina Democratic Club of Washington.

He is continuing therapeutic treatments at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

of the Suez incident when the U. N. set up an emergency police force. Now the United States wants the U. N. to send a police force to Lebanon so American troops can be withdrawn.

The Soviet Union already has vetoed the U. S. proposal in the U. N. Security Council.

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he doesn't think the United States can muster the two-thirds vote of the U. N. General Assembly that would be needed for approval of a U. N. police force for Lebanon.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said he has grave misgivings about the Eisenhower troop move because he feels it raised the ire of the Arab world against the United States.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) on the other hand, favored the U. S. intervention. He said the Soviet Union is trying to shut off Near East oil supplies from the West.

U.S. Newsman In Baghdad Says All Is Quiet

Editor's Note—Stan Carter of The Associated Press bureau in Rome reached Baghdad, Iraq, yesterday. He was the first non-Arab reporter to enter the country since the military coup deposed King Faisal II last Monday. Here is his report from the capital of the new revolutionary republic.

By STAN CARTER

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — This ancient capital is peaceful and most of its inhabitants appear enthusiastic about the new republic. Officers involved in the lightning coup which ousted the Iraqi monarchy a week ago today said about 30 persons were killed, including King Faisal II, Crown Prince Abdul Ilah and Premier Nuri Said.

The U.S. Embassy said three Americans are missing and presumed dead. People grinned at soldiers walking through the streets or camped in tracked vehicles. The only troop formations left in the capital have been placed around the radio station, which gave the first news of the coup to the world. An army spokesman denied reports that forces loyal to the old regime were marching from the north on Baghdad. He said there had been no opposition to the new republic since the revolt last Monday and "if you want, we would be glad to take you anywhere to see for yourself."

Two army officers took this reporter on a tour of Baghdad to demonstrate the difference between the palatial homes of the old regime and the houses most people live in. They were cheered by young and old alike. Night clubs, which have been shut down by the curfew are the only businesses not going ahead as usual.

The three Americans listed by the U.S. Embassy as missing are Robert Alcock, an Altadena, Calif., businessman who worked for an oil refinery supplier; George Colley, vice president of the Bachel Co. of San Francisco; and Eugene Burns, Sausalito, Calif., nature writer, director general of the Holy Land Foundation and former Associated Press reporter.

Information Minister Seddik Senhail said the government hopes the Iraq Petroleum Co. will revive plans for a new pipeline across Syria. It was previously prevented from doing so, he said, because Syria refused to deal with the Iraqi monarchy. A government spokesman, asked about Iraq's British-owned oil industry, said the republic's weekend mutual defense agreement with the United Arab Republic increases the assurance that Iraqi oil will continue to flow toward Europe.

Uneconomical In Digging So Deep

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — City Councilman Phil J. Bagley, Jr., looked at the excavation for a new dog pound, already 12 feet deep. "How come?" he asked. Told that it was the site of an old dump which made it necessary to dig deep to get a solid foundation, Bagley said it might be cheaper to find another location. "At the rate they are going," he said, "they will have more money under the ground than above."

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Elvin Jones and Miss Oleva Zahniser of Greenville and Sister Mary DeLellis of Chicago; a nephew, Elvin Ray Jones of Greenville; and a great nephew.

Judge J. C. Rudisill To Be Buried Today

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — The superior court clerk who attended Judge Justus C. Rudisill in life attend him in death today as pallbearers.

The 63-year-old judge died Saturday in a Statesville hospital of a heart attack. It was this heart condition which prompted his retirement from the bench just over a year ago after 13 years service.

Rudisill was a favorite of newspapermen because of his colorful, stern lectures from the bench when provoked.

He was a native of Maiden and a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College and Wake Forest College's Law School.

Gov. J. Melville Broughton appointed Rudisill a special judge in 1944 and he served one year. Gov. Kerr Scott named him a special judge again in 1949 and the next year Rudisill was elected resident judge of the 16th Judicial District. At that time the district included Catawba, Caldwell, Lincoln, Cleveland, Burke and Watauga counties. It is the court clerks of those counties who serve as pallbearers at his funeral in Beth-Eden Lutheran Church. (The district now embraces only Burke, Caldwell and Catawba counties.)

The honorary pallbearers include Newton Mayor Ed Haupt, U.S. Rep. Basil Whitener of Gastonia, judges and solicitors of superior courts and personal friends. The Rev. R. N. Perry, Beth-Eden pastor, was in charge of the late afternoon funeral services, assisted by the Revs. John Pless, Allen T. Brantley and Dr. S. L. Conrad.

Survivors include his widow, the former Olanthe Miller of Salisbury; his father, Robert A. Rudisill; two sons, J. C. Rudisill Jr. and William M. Rudisill of Newton; two brothers and three sisters.

Beaver Making It Hot For Trout

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The beavers are making things hot for the trout, and the Wisconsin Conservation Department is trying to determine what can be done about it.

There are complaints that the dams, built by the beavers slow up the rapid flow of the streams. As a result, the sun heats the standing water, making things too warm for trout life.

Now...To Stand Firm, Or Retreat?

This was the picture: Nasser and his United Arab Republic were going into orbit around Moscow; Arab nationalism was militantly spreading out over the entire Middle East . . . which happens to be the greatest oil supplier of the world.

It was becoming only a matter of days when this oil-rich land would have been subject to the wishes of Nasser and his overlords in the Kremlin.

True, Arabs profess a dislike for Communism; but it was never necessary for them to adopt the hammer and sickle to become willing accomplices to Communist world strategy.

The big nightmare confronting the West lay in the fact Free Europe's oil-fed industry was almost wholly dependent on the Middle East. To have the "spigot" in clutches of unfriendly leadership would pose a way of life like that of living under a Damoclean Sword.

There would be no recourse but to bow to any blackmailer who held that power. Seizure of the Suez Canal was peanuts compared to this.

Even in the United States, cutting off the flow of fuel from those great reservoirs would be a shattering blow.

Faced by the immediate prospect of economic dependence on whims of Russia and its Middle East satrap, the West had little choice but to seize whatever opportunity they could to disrupt the strategy of aggression-by-subversion which was proving too successful.

Tiny Lebanon and Jordan offered this opportunity by asking for protection of their regimes. A small force of American troops and an even smaller force of Britishers were dispatched to the scene. How Moscow could call this "aggression" is beyond us; but for propaganda purposes the term suited their purpose. In point of fact their own plans were sidetracked . . . their timetable disrupted. It was they who were confronted by an unexpected development before which they could only bluster.

No one really expects the sending of American troops into Lebanon to provide a permanent solution to the over-all atmosphere of crisis. Lebanon is not the big issue . . . rather it is only occupying a small tent on the outskirts of the midway where the "feature attraction" is going on. That, of course, is the conflict of interests between the U. S. and Russia.

Voting on proposals made within the United Nations Security Council indicated that despite some qualms, members were inclined toward the Western point of view and distrustful of Soviet Russia and the United Arab Republic. If and when the dispute goes before the General Assembly we are not likely to fare so well; but the West's case can there be put squarely before the only sounding board of world opinion and the chips may fall where they may.

To by-pass the United Nations at this point would further undermine that organization's faltering structure as well as to cast fresh doubts as to United States' and Great Britain's intentions. Because of this, the talk of a hurry-up summit meeting with Premier Khrushchev seems pointless. Whatever his government has to say can be said within the halls of the United Nations, for all to hear. Whatever steps he may wish to take to relieve tensions, he should feel free to take. These can be no bargaining.

The Lebanon affair is one among several clashes of will between the two giants, and unless the unlikely happens, there will be many such clashes until the "final one".

To back away, to display timidity, even to hesitate . . . will only be interpreted by the enemy camp as a sign of weakness and they will press their aggressive tactics even harder.

It is a fearsome thing to stand on the brink of war and look into the abyss whose bottom is filled with the bodies of our beloved, with tangled wreckage of mighty machines and shambles of cities. This is where we stand today . . .

And there is a choice, if you want to call it a "choice".

We can turn back; we can cower; we can accept the inevitable yoke of subservience and forget the monument to God, Liberty and Justice our forebears have built on this shining land called America. We can pay tribute, we can abandon the pride in Individual Man and instead owe our all to the State.

Budget Plight Of Institutions

By LYNN NISBET
SHORT ROPE? — If a man needs 12 biscuits a day to afford sufficient food for full service. He perhaps can get along on eight or ten biscuits. But, if he is in a 50-foot hole and somebody offers a 40-foot rope it's just the same as no help at all.

The foregoing rather crude comparison of plights illustrates many of the differences between the State institutions and the advisory budget commission approach to needs and the extent of State meeting them.

Numerous times on the current budget tour institutions have reported that money appropriated by the 1957 and previous Legislatures had not been spent because it was inadequate to do the desired job. Additional money is being asked to supplement the previous allocations. In a few instances the institutions have apparently convinced the budget folks that the rope was too short and that it would have to be lengthened in order to be of any service at all. In most instances, however, the budget group seems to think that the institution is insisting on a full quota of 12 biscuits when it could get along on eight or ten.

To further illustrate the point, if a prior Legislature had appropriated $100,000 for a new boiler or steam plant, and the boiler could not be bought for less than $125,000, the budget folks are disposed to approve a supplemental allocation. But if an appropriation of half a million dollars had been made for a dormitory and the amount would not provide as many closets or wall mirrors or bath tubs as architect plans called for, the attitude of the budget commission has been to leave off some of these gadgets (?) and provide less luxurious quarters.

ANTICIPATION — At the same time, the budget folks are inclined to approved building for the foreseeable future. They don't take much stock in talk about what the institution will need 10 or 20 years from now. They will go along on planning up to about 1965. It is a bit startling, but true, that 1965 is only four years beyond the period for which the next General Assembly must make current appropriations.

That brings up the question of how far ahead advance planning should go, and whether or not there should be a stop sign or a ceiling on plans for expansion.

Within the eight years of its existence the Division of Health Affairs at the University at Chapel Hill has moved up to about 40 per cent of the total operation there. Within about the same period East Carolina College at Greenville has moved from relative insignificance into a position of rivaling the University in enrollment and quality of curriculum. Other colleges at Boone and Cullowhee are growing from relative insignificance into challenging status of major four year colleges in the whole country. Percentage wise, little Pembroke State College has moved faster than any other higher education unit, having trebled enrollment in three years.

Should these institutions be encouraged or permitted to go ahead with expansion unlimited, or should ceilings be applied and other institutions on the pattern of community colleges and technical schools be established to take care of the increasing demand for education above high school level? Public and private education administrators and budget-makers are giving serious thought to that multi-million dollar question. The conclusions upon which they base recommendations will have a lot to do with the pattern of progress of education in North Carolina.

POTPOURRI — Twenty years ago when the University at Chapel Hill had less than 4,000 students there were 50 tennis courts. Now the enrollment is more than 7,000 and there are only 23 courts—six of which are reserved for exclusive use of the varsity teams. What happened to the other courts? Somebody built dormitories on them. . . . Land is getting scarce at college campuses, so dormitories are going up—both ways. Planners are talking in terms of 10 and 12 story dorms, with room rentals rates also pyramiding. . . .

Pre-mixed mortar is not nearly so good as the old lime and cement product mixed on the job according to Frank Turner, head of the property division and chief engineer for the Department of Administration. But contractors don't like to bother with mixing their own. One result is weaker walls requiring waterproof treatment. . . .

While most tax supported schools are striving to increase enrollment, and boasting of twice as many students in ten years as now, Dr. Dale Gramley, president of Salem College is thinking in terms of freezing enrollment at about 550. The college added 40 last year, 50 more this year and plans to admit about 50 additional next year—and stop, for awhile at least. A small student body with opportunity for personalized attention is much better than bigness, said Dr. Gramley.

Oliver Rowe, who presented the case for Charlotte College to the budget commission, was most unorthodox in his approach. "It might be," he said, "that we will request transfer of some of the funds set out here for gymnasium and other recreational facilities to classrooms and libraries." Most places the student union, gymnasium and swimming pool rated top priority.

Favorable Turn In Employment

By RALPH ROBEY
Because of the large number of persons getting out of school and seeking jobs, June normally is the month when unemployment reaches its high point of the year. This year, as usual, the influx into the labor force took place. But, if June proves to be the 1958 high point in terms of unemployment it is the most favorable news in a long time.

The figures for June, which relate to the middle of the month, have recently been released. They show an increase of about 1.5 million in the labor force. Some 920,000 of this increase found jobs, and 533,000 were added to the ranks of the unemployed.

This brought the unemployment total to 5.4 million. It may be difficult to understand why an increase in unemployment can be considered favorable. The reason is the increase was less than normal for June. For those out of work and unable to find jobs, this is small solace. But for the economic system as a whole it still is good news. It had been feared, and anticipated, that the June figure might reach 6 million. Falling short of that by 600,000 is definitely good news. In percentage terms the present figure is 6.3 percent of the labor force, as compared with 7.2 percent a month earlier.

The over-all totals, however, do not tell a whole story by any means. For the first time since the recession started last August there was an increase in manufacturing employment. The growth was not large, and leaves the total well below a year earlier, but the change of direction is noteworthy. Further, the increase was in both durable and nondurable goods manufacturing. Of the decline in employment from a year ago almost two-thirds has been in durable goods manufacturing. It is especially encouraging to have this segment of the economy start to move upward. Of course it is too early to assume that we shall have continuous improvement from here on, but such a turn for the better adds weight to the thesis that at least we are beginning to bottom out, and that is a primary essential step for an upturn.

Equally important with the growth of employment was an increase in the average work-week of factory production workers. As of last August that stood at 40 hours. It then started a decline which, with few exceptions, carried it to 38.3 hours in April. It went up to 39.2 hours in May and in June was 39.2 hours, or approximately one hour above its low of two months earlier.

This is significant because a lengthening of the work-week is usually a forerunner of a growth in employment. This is because employers as a class are inclined to add to the number of hours they have their employees work before adding to the number of workers. The increase in the length of the work-week, in other words, would appear to indicate that employment should continue to grow.

Average hourly earnings in manufacturing remained constant. The result was that weekly wages rose to slightly above $83.00. This is the highest figure ever attained in manufacturing, but it must be remembered it is only an average, and many individual workers have a higher weekly earnings figure.

How does all of this fit into thinking on the business trend? Within the Administration it is taken as good news of high order. For example, Secretary of Commerce Weeks said that he thinks there has been a definite turn for the better in sentiment among businessmen and consumers, and that he is "more optimistic." His specific prediction is for only slight changes during the summer vacation period and then a fall upturn. Some other Administration members believe the turn already has taken place.

My own appraisal is somewhat more reserved. These employment data are strong evidence that the business trend is bottoming out, and it is difficult to believe that we shall have

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
KEEPING THE LAWN MOWED
Nothing thickens the growth of a lawn so much as frequent mowing. The reason for this is that the more a lawn is mowed, the more do the roots put forth effort to grow and make up for the loss of growth which has come about as the result of the mowing. An unmowed lawn becomes thin and patchy. The grass grows up in long, slender blades or stalks. Clipped down regularly, the lawn thickens up, the mat becomes established, the root system is replenished.

The same thing happens in human life. The more we are opposed, the more does every power within us rise up to overwhelm obstacles and to compensate for anything we may have lost. People who have their own way all through life are characterized by thin, straggly, anemic, unattractive personalities. The people who really count are the people who have had to stand up against something. Circumstances have tried to mow them down, but the mere mowing process went on, the more definitely did the root system of their lives become established. Just as it takes frequent mowing to make a beautiful lawn, so it takes the arresting, frustrating experiences of life to make our latent powers develop.

Births Affect Future

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — For the first time since 1950, our birth rate is declining. Perhaps this is due to the current recession. Or perhaps it is because of a small downturn in the number of women in the 18-to-34 age group. I look for a further near-term drop in the birth rate and do not visualize a new baby boom for several years.

PAY HEED TO THE ECONOMIC FACTOR
Some population experts anticipate a new wave of births in the early 1960's. They base their forecasts chiefly on the fact that the number of women in the 18-to-34 age group (which breeds the most children) will soon increase rapidly as the war and early postwar babies reach maturity. But the fact that there will be more women of child-bearing age does not necessarily mean they will bear more children.

Years ago, the demographers, or population experts, were consistently on the low side in their forecasts. Many of my readers remember that we were told in the thirties that the U. S. population had just about reached its peak. Then came World War II and an economic boom, which encouraged a record increase in the birth rate. This was at a time when we were making great strides in prolonging the life span. Again the demographers missed the boat, with forecasts too low. Now their predictions appear too high! They are too eager to make simple projections of recent trends without taking into account economic, social, and psychological factors which determine fertility response.

TREND TOWARD LATER MARRIAGES

During the first quarter of 1958, marriages were down about 10 per cent below the number a year earlier. To me this indicates a trend toward later marriages. Assuming the present recession extends into 1960 and possibly beyond, barring war—then this trend toward later marriages will continue and could mean further cutbacks in our birth rate.

For this reason, I predict that the next baby boom will not really get going until the late 1960's and that it will extend well into the 1970's. I assume, of course, that today's depressed economy will have rebounded to new highs in the mid- or late-1960's. My forecast is that twenty years from now our annual birth rate will be in the neighborhood of 7,000,000—up some 60 per cent from this year's estimate of 4,250,000.

LONG-TERM EFFECT ON BUSINESS

There is no doubt, in my mind, about the impact on business of a new heavy wave of births. It could be tremendous! But before any such baby boom gets rolling, American business faces some hard years of greatly intensified competition and continued high costs. Business should pay more attention to young adults, as this group—the fathers and mothers of tomorrow—will expand rapidly over the next ten years.

However, population growth by itself cannot provide the environment that will assure our meeting the needs of a bigger population. We have ample proof of this in the examples of China and India. A larger population has greater needs, but it takes favorable economic conditions to stimulate the demand which guarantees a broadened market. If business confidence should be weakened by further sniping at the incentives which have made our free enterprise system excel, it will take more than another baby boom to set things right again.

POPULATION SHIFTS

Even though the great population shifts of the early postwar period have largely subsided, there are still many more people moving each year than was the case before World War II. I look for continued good growth in Florida, California, and other Far Western and Southwestern states. In addition, I forecast gradual, though steady, growth in that area which is the very heartland of the nation—the "Magic Circle." With its center at Eureka, Kansas, the Magic Circle extends in a radius of 400 miles to include six Midwestern states — Iowa,

Other Editors Saying --- To Comply With Law

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Smithfield is not dragging its feet about plans for a sewage disposal plant to stop that city's pollution of Neuse River. Smithfield knows better. For it was Smithfield who years ago brought suit in court to make Raleigh quit dumping raw sewage in the Neuse. The nasty practice was endangering the lives of Smithfield citizens, the suit said. The court agreed. Raleigh was ordered to build a sewage disposal plant. It did.

Smithfield in adopting a budget for the new year set aside $12,500 for a disposal plant. Of course that is only a small fraction of the total probable cost. But it is a starter. It is a starter that shows good faith. The town fathers hope to add to that sum from year to year. If this can be done when the deadline for cleaning up our river comes in two years, or earlier, Smithfield can show she is doing what she should.

The project will be no bigger for Smithfield than one will be for Goldsboro. It will be a matter of proportion. Engineers estimate that for Smithfield a plant adequate to the needs of the town for some years will run into the neighborhood of $500,000. One for Goldsboro will cost several times that.

Engineers are about ready to give to Smithfield preliminary estimates on a plant. A site has been one problem. The town of Smithfield owned land on which it was expected that the disposal plant would be located. But engineers have found that this site is too low. In the last flood the site was covered by high water. Unless a way could be found to prevent flooding the site would not do for a disposal plant.

Selma is also going ahead with details for a plant to serve its need. It has employed engineers to make preliminary studies and has begun to make inquiry in Washington as to Federal aid for the project. This is wise. Applications for Federal aid now are so numerous and so large that a town must get its application in several years in advance of getting approval.

A law passed by the legislature is hard and fast in ordering that dumping of deleterious human and industrial waste into the Neuse must stop. The State Stream Sanitation Commission expects to classify the river this Fall or early Winter.

Towns which make their preliminary preparations now will be ready when the deadline comes. Nothing is accomplished by postponing the inevitable.

More Look-Aheads In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more business look-aheads, based on analysis of developing trends, spiced with a few advance tips.

More mergers. The recession has not slowed down the rate of business mergers and there are indications that it will increase over the next few months.

The big reason is that many companies that have successfully weathered the downturn are now looking over competitors who haven't, and are ready to offer terms for consolidation.

LESS EXPENSIVE MEAT. Sleigh declines in beef and pork prices are likely—unless the government steps up buying for the Armed Forces. Slaughter of hogs and steers has been running ahead of expectations, tending to force prices down.

HIGHER COST OF SUDS. Costlier beer. Raises won from New York brewers—beer truck drivers now get better than $130 a week before overtime—are causing brewery workers to smash their lips in anticipation of similar boosts. This is bound to be reflected in beer prices.

Cheaper color TV. The electronics industry is talking about a color television tube that will cost very little more than present black-and-white tube. This would swell demand for color sets, boom the electronics industry and help to lead the economy to new highs.

Massive campaigns. Unprecedented promotional drives will burst upon consumers this fall. Intercompany rivalry is being dropped as firms unite in campaigns to get people to buy, buy, buy.

Wool growers and manufacturers are getting together on a $500,000 drive to promote American-made woollens and worsteds.

Furniture manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are planning to spend twice that amount to increase the public's desire for better-furnished homes.

The electric housewares industry, through the Edison Electric Institute, will turn the switch on November 15 to urge "Give Better Electrically." A secondary slogan: "Electric Gifts Keep on Giving." Almost every daily and weekly newspaper and many consumer magazines will be used; the budget has not been announced but it may top that of the furniture industry.

TEXTILE OUTLOOK GOOD. Mild apparel boom. Most textile mills are operating near capacity; some didn't close down for the July 4 week as usual. This is a sure indication that orders are up and that's an indication that merchants expect good fall and winter sales.

A Dun & Bradstreet survey shows no serious signs of over-stocking by retailers, which would put them in a healthy buying position.

In recent weeks, buying of worsted yarns, print cloths and some cotton gray cloths has shown unexpected strength.

PROMOTER FINDS PENNIES BUT BREAKS HIS GLASSES. "I just don't know!" the Old Promoter sighed.

"Sure you know!" we said. "What is it?"

"I don't know why some manufacturer doesn't bring out sports and dress shirts with pockets that will hold eyeglasses. I have broken two pair this year when they popped out when I stooped to pick up two pennies. A painter I know saw his glasses flop into a can of pink paint. What do men with glasses need are shirts with deep pockets and button or snap."

There it is, shirt manufacturers. Take it away!

Officials Ready For Teen-er League Tourney

Participating Teams Have Not Been Named

Preparations are now underway for the 1958 Teen-er League State baseball tournament to be held here on July 23 and 24.

Tournament Director Gordon Goodman, of the Greenville Recreation Department, has announced that the two-day affair will be held at Guy Smith Stadium, with all games being played at that site. The teams participating will be housed at East Carolina College.

As of this morning, the teams who will take part in the State tournament have not been named. Playoffs throughout the state during the past week to determine the district champions have not been completed and results have not all come in.

Goodman stated Saturday that the teams involved should notify him by late Monday and will be announced at that time.

Greenville, which faced Washington in a playoff to determine the District 1 representative, is the only definite entrant to the State tourney as yet. The locals trampled Washington 7-1, 15-0 in two out of three games to earn the berth.

As soon as the teams become definite pairings will be made for the tournament.

This will mark the third season in a row that the VFW Teen-er League State Tournament has been held in Greenville. During the past two years, Gastonia walked off with the state prizes, and last year they went all the way to the National finals before being defeated. VFW officials have shown a great satisfaction at the success of the tournaments here.

Nicely-Balanced Halves Of Draw Make 2nd Round

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—Two nicely-balanced halves of the draw made up today's second round in the Carolinas Golf Assn. amateur tournament. The third round, or quarterfinals, was scheduled for late this afternoon. Thirty-six hole finals are set for Wednesday.

Medalist Dave Smith of Gastonia set out against Bob Turnbull of Hickory in his second round test. Dave was six under par in yesterday's first round and 6 conquest of Horace Ervin of Kinston. Dave won the 1955 tournament, 3.

Also in the upper half of the second round were these matches: Teddy Garrison, Morganton, vs. Tommy Helms, Morganton; Billy Joe Patton, Morganton, vs. Gabby Bryant Jr., Raleigh; Ben Goodes, Redville, vs. Herbert Scarborough, Raleigh.

Patton, 1957 winner, was three under par over the 6,800-yard, par 72 Catawba Country Club course as he spanked Larry Beck of Kinston, 1957 USGA junior champion, 4 and 3.

Ed Gravely, accomplished Rocky Mount veteran, met Sut Alexander Jr. of Charlotte in the opening match of the lower half.

The only South Carolinian of the 16 remaining in contention, Dillard Trayham of Greenville, the 1956 champion, drew dangerous Bill Harvey of Greensboro.

Gene Lookbill of Charlotte was paired against Art Ruffin of Wilson, runnerup last year to Dick Chapman of Pinehurst who is not defending.

Another Charlotte ace, Bill Williamson, national collegiate runnerup several years ago, went against Charlie Smith of Gastonia.

Dow Finsterwald Doesn't Feel He's A Good Golfer

By HUGH FULLERTON JR., Associated Press Sports Writer
HAVERTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Dow Finsterwald, a thoughtful and articulate young golf champion, doesn't think he's a great golfer or even an unusually good one.

As a result, he doesn't let it get him down when he finishes second or even lower in a tournament. He's probably the most relaxed player on the pro circuit. "It feels very strange to be first," he said after winning the 40th Professional Golfers Assn. championship with four superb rounds of 67-72-70-67—276 over the highly trapped Lanerch Country Club course.

"I don't feel that I played less conservatively. I feel as if I played much the same as I've always done."

Although he had every reason to go all out when he and Sammy Snead hooked up in a final-round duel, he insisted it wasn't boldness or gambling that won.

Close observers thought otherwise. To them Finsterwald appeared to be hitting out boldly, going for the greens and trying to sink every putt while Snead turned cautious.

Finsterwald, a 28-year-old graduate of Ohio University who has been on the pro circuit since 1951, was the runner-up to Lionel Hebert in the match play PGA Championship last year. Since then friends have been telling him he could have won with more boldness and have urged him to take a few chances.

He went into the fourth round, two strokes behind Snead and one behind Bill Casper.

He spotted Snead another stroke on the second hole, caught him at the seventh—and finished the tough front nine with a 31—best score of the tournament.

He picked up four strokes against both Snead and Casper on that nine.

Casper parred the short 12th hole and Finsterwald's tee shot landed in tall, clinging rough. He played a beautiful shot out and par 3 while Snead three-putted for a four.

On the next hole Snead missed two short putts after a shot from a trap hit the pin and took a double bogey 6.

Casper took second with a 278 total—the only man besides Finsterwald to break par for 72 holes at Lanerch—while Snead placed third with an even par 280. Jackie Burke, the 1956 PGA champ, came in fourth with 281, then there was a big gap to the 285s posted by National Open champion Tommy Bolt, Julius Boros and Jay Hebert. The defending champion, Lionel Hebert, wound up 15 strokes behind at 291.

The victory added $5,500 to Dow's bulging bankroll. He has won more than $35,000 in each of the past two years, with only one tournament victory in each season. So far this year he has collected about $20,000.

Kinston Youth Wins Soap Box Derby Honors

KINSTON—George Gaskins, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Gaskins of Kinston, rolled his sleek red soap box derby racer in the 1958 championship here Sunday afternoon.

For George, it was the end of 4 years of waiting. The rising sophomore at Granger High School was driving in his fourth consecutive race. And in each previous race he had come close, finishing second last year, fourth the previous year, and third in his first try.

His brother Donald won the race in 1954.

Dennis Randall Robbins, of Kinston Rt. 4, won the class B Division in racing Gaskins in a best two of three series for the championship. Gaskins posted the winning time of 30.2 seconds.

There was a turnout of about 2,500 for the race.

In the first heat, Larry Dunn sponsored by Dunn Building Supply, defeated Eugene Bryan of Mt. Olive with a winning time of 31.2 seconds. Cliff Fleming, sponsored by White Construction Company, won over George Rockman of Wilson, with a time of 30.6. Both of these boys were in the Class A division, ages 13-15.

Roy Johnson, sponsored by Bright Leaf Motors, won over Tommy Perry of Greenville, sponsored by Cox Armature Works; his winning time was 31.2 seconds.

In the second heat, Class B division, Johnson was eliminated by Ronald Bachelor of Richlands. In the Class A division, Dunn was eliminated by Butch Ricks of New Bern. Fleming was eliminated by William Farmer of Wilson.

A Grifton boy, Robert Triplett, finished fourth in the race, and won the sportsmanship trophy. Dan Warren of Snow Hill finished third.

Dodgers Out Of Cellar For 1st Time Since May
By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chavez Ravine may still be a dream but the Dodgers have won one fight. For the first time since May 12, Los Angeles is out of last place. By one skinny percentage point.

Los Angeles and Pittsburgh are tied for sixth and Cincinnati is last, thanks to the percentage table. Each is nine games behind league-leading San Francisco.

Johnny Podres won his ninth in 10 Coliseum starts, shutting out Philadelphia 6-0 on four hits yesterday.

The Giants routed Bob Friend with five runs in the first inning and went on to down Pittsburgh 7-3, protecting their half-game lead over Milwaukee.

Milwaukee scored two in the ninth for a 4-2 victory over Chicago. The first set 6-3 by charging the net and overpowering Bartzen. Gammalva then began spending more and more time at the baseline. But he learned that few men in the nation can outvolley Bartzen on clay.

Perfectly intermixing drop shots and sideline placements, the second-seeded Texan won the next three 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Gammalva teamed with Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, top-seeded singles player who was beaten by Sammy in the quarterfinals, to whip Bartzen and Chicago's Grant Golden for the doubles title 6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 3-6, 6-0.

Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, seeking an unprecedented third singles title to go with those she won in 1951 and 1955, administered the first lesson in the 48th annual tournament in suburban River Forest. Her pupil was Karol Fageros of Miami.

The 33-year-old Forest Hills, N.Y., veteran showed Miss Fageros how to overcome a hampering injury by varying one's game. Miss Fageros played her usual running defensive game, and the top-seeded star, nursing a pulled tendon in her playing arm, adopted similar tactics.

Mrs. Knode retreated to the baseline and offered soft, tantalizing lob shots to the golden panties girl, who either netted them or erred by setting up point-winning ground strokes. The younger player tired first, and Mrs. Knode won 6-3, 6-8, 6-2.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, left-handed Dallas baseline specialist, gave the second lesson.

Bartzen, who won the singles title in 1951, picked up another by showing Sam Gammalva he should never change his style to that of his opponent when his opponent has been using the style successfully on clay courts for a couple decades.

The 23-year-old Houston slugger took the first set 6-3 by charging the net and overpowering Bartzen. Gammalva then began spending more and more time at the baseline. But he learned that few men in the nation can outvolley Bartzen on clay.

Perfectly intermixing drop shots and sideline placements, the second-seeded Texan won the next three 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Jim Bunning Hurls No-Hit Win Over Boston Sunday

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Jim Bunning shelved the home run ball for the strikeout pitch, he was on the way back to his brilliant 1957 form.

Detroit's 20-game winner of a year ago pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Boston's slugsters at Fenway Park yesterday. Six weeks ago he couldn't get anybody out.

In his first 11 games Bunning allowed 11 homers. Then he went on his strikeout spree.

He fanned 12 Red Sox June 11, 14 New York Yankees June 20, 10 Yankees July 16 and 12 Red Sox in his no-hitter. His total of 106 strikeouts puts him ahead of New York's Bob Turley for the American League lead.

Despite Bunning's magic, Detroit lost ground in the chase of the Yankees as did every other club. The Tigers won behind Bunning 3-0 but lost the second game to Boston 5-4 as Ike Delock ran his amazing won-lost record to 19-0 and 12-0 over a two-year span.

Yogi Berra hit a two-run homer as the Yanks took two from Kansas City 3-1 and 8-0. As a result, New York leads the league by 11 games.

Roy Siever's ninth-inning homer in the second game aroused Washington fans to ruc around the bases with him, celebrating a 5-4 victory over Chicago. Dick Donovan's five-hit pitching gave the White Sox a 4-2 opening game decision.

Joe Ginsberg came through with a single with the bases loaded in the 10th inning for Baltimore's 3-0 edge over Cleveland. After Bob Boyd opened the 10th with a triple, Cleveland's walked Gene Woodling and Bob Nieman intentionally but Ginsberg crossed up the strategy with his winning hit. Arnold Portocarrero won his fifth straight, finishing up with 7 1-3 hitless innings.

In the National, San Francisco ran its winning streak to six with a 7-3 romp over Pittsburgh, clinging to a half-game lead. Warren Sahn won his 12th for Milwaukee, 4-2 over the Chicago Cubs.

Los Angeles finally escaped from the cellar with a 6-0 victory over Philadelphia on Johnny Podres' four-hitter. St. Louis dumped Cincinnati into last place as Sam

Jones struck out 13 on the way to a 3-1 decision.

The big excitement was in Boston, where Bunning snapped a six-game Red Sox winning streak. He walked two and hit one. He faced only 30 batters.

Berra played right field for the Yanks in both games as he returned to the lineup after a layoff due to a hand injury. His homer scored Enos Slaughter, who had singled for his fourth hit. Jerry Lumpe's three-run homer made it easy for Ford, who gave up only five hits in winning his 12th.

Siever's big blow at Washington came off Early Wynn, who had just come out of the bullpen. Billy Goodman had four hits in the doubleheader to take over the batting lead at .337.

He defeated the Boston Red Sox 3-0 Sunday in the first game of a doubleheader. He walked Gene Stephens twice and hit Jackie Jensen with a pitch.

But it was Williams, 1957 American League batting champion, who haunted Bunning's thoughts as he neared his goal.

"The big thing I had on my mind going out for the last inning was that I didn't want to walk anybody," Bunning said. "My thought was to show the pitcher anyone on—so Williams could come up and hit a homer."

Williams had beaten Detroit with a two-run, 12th inning blast the previous afternoon.

Bunning struck out Stephens on an inside corner delivery, then fanned Ted Lepcio on a slow, high curve and there were two down in the ninth.

He had struck out 12. Next: Williams.

The first pitch was wide. "Then I threw him a slider," Bunning recounted. "When the ball sailed into right field I knew it wasn't hit that good."

Al Kalline grabbed it and the 26-year-old, 6-3 Kentuckian was mobbed by teammates.

Allie Reynolds on that Sept. 28, 1951, got Williams to pop to catcher Yogi Berra twice. Yogi dropped the first and held the other.

Bunning said he was after the no-hitter from the sixth inning on and while his teammates refused to defy tradition by mentioning it, Jim let them know he knew.

At the end of the eighth inning, Bunning said to Coach Tommy Henrich:

"Well, I've got to get three more."

Henrich said he didn't want to jinx the no-hitter so he replied "Okay, Jim, we'll go out and get you three more—runners."

Bunning Worried About Williams

Greensboro In First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Greensboro's slugging Yankees pounding out 14 hits including four homers, rapped Raleigh 12-3 yesterday to take over first place in the Carolina League.

In other games, Winston-Salem took third place, beating Danville 7-5, and Burlington nipped Wilson 4-3. Durham at High Point-Thomaspville was washed out.

A grand slam homer by Elvie Flint in a seven-run eighth inning was the highlight of the Greensboro-Raleigh contest. Buddy Nidifer, Jim Johnston and John Malangone added the other four baggers, all with none on.

Lefty Rudy Serrett went all the way for Greensboro, giving up eight hits.

Winston-Salem grabbed the lead with three first inning tallies and was never headed. Pitcher Rod Passaro went the distance for his 10th victory against one loss.

Pinchhitter Gene Elliot slammed the three-run four-bagger in the seventh to give Burlington its triumph. The victory enabled Burlington to pull even with Durham in sixth place, both teams are 10 1/2 games behind the leaders.

Linz Taylor Sets Four New AAU Swim Records

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—The Greensboro women's swimming team, winner for nine straight years now in the Carolinas AAU championships, may have no new worlds to conquer. But if blonde Linz Taylor of Pompano Beach, Fla. were to challenge it single-handed, she might give the Greensboro team something to think about.

While Greensboro was running away with the women's team championship and Columbia, S.C., was eking out a victory in men's competition here during the weekend, Miss Taylor broke four Carolinas AAU records by handy margins.

She won the 100-meter freestyle in 1:11.9, the 400-meter freestyle in 5:32.9, the 100-meter butterfly in 1:20.8 and the 400-meter individual medley in 6:17.6.

The records, however, do not count, since Miss Taylor does not swim for a Carolinas team. The same rule held when Lee Skidmore, formerly of Columbia but now of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., won the 200-meter butterfly in 3:13.1. But second-place Penny Taliaferro of Greensboro finished in 3:18.0 which still was good enough to beat the old record by more than 4 seconds.

Greensboro had 148 points in the women's competition. Pompano Beach, 117. Ft. Lauderdale, 17. High Point 11, Columbia 6, Asheville 5 and Norfolk, Va., 4.

Columbia finished with 79 points in men's competition. Greensboro with 77. Ft. Lee, Va. 57, High Point 25, Raleigh AA 24, Statesville 23, unattached 14. Ft. Bragg 9, Norfolk 4, Asheville 3 and Charlotte 0.

There were several double winners in the two-day championships. Lee Skidmore also won the freestyle relay in 11:23.1, a new record. And Pompano Beach's Egan, Murray, Taylor and Ewing swam the 400-meter medley relay in 5:34.2, also an unofficial new record.

NOTHING TO IT — Brian McGovern, 14 months old, has no trouble with the barbells at preview of new toys in New York. And no wonder. The barbell "weights" are plastic.

Master Strategists Teach Foes A Lesson

By JERRY UDWIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Two master tennis strategists gave their opponents a few lessons yesterday in winning the National Clay Court singles championships.

Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, seeking an unprecedented third singles title to go with those she won in 1951 and 1955, administered the first lesson in the 48th annual tournament in suburban River Forest. Her pupil was Karol Fageros of Miami.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, left-handed Dallas baseline specialist, gave the second lesson.

Bartzen, who won the singles title in 1951, picked up another by showing Sam Gammalva he should never change his style to that of his opponent when his opponent has been using the style successfully on clay courts for a couple decades.

The 23-year-old Houston slugger took the first set 6-3 by charging the net and overpowering Bartzen. Gammalva then began spending more and more time at the baseline. But he learned that few men in the nation can outvolley Bartzen on clay.

Student Moral Standards Changing, Say Researchers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A survey of today's college students discloses they show less disapproval of immoral acts connected with sex than any of their predecessors of the past three decades.

The study just completed by two psychiatric researchers at Ohio State University here shows, for instance, that:

A man's desertion of a woman, which students of the past 30 years ranked high among the "top 10 sins" of our time, has now been relegated to last place on that list.

Today's students, while still condemning premarital sex relations and adultery, do so less strongly than their predecessors.

However, divorce for incompatibility, where no children are involved, was acceptable to many students of 1929 and 1939, yet it is meeting with growing rejection today.

Similarly, disbelief in God was never strongly condemned by the surveyed students of previous decades. What disapproval there was reached a low in 1939, but is now rising.

"Perhaps the most important finding of this study," said its co-directors, Dr. Salomon Rettig and Dr. Benjamin Pasamanick, "is the great lack of stability of many moral values" and their apparent change with economic and political changes.

They note that 1939 students represent the parents of today's undergraduates—yet the responses of both groups differ.

"Either parents aren't getting across their values to their children or the parents have changed too," said Dr. Pasamanick.

The two researchers are interested too in the conflicting moral judgments represented in the student replies.

"The least we can do is point them out," they said, "and make people think about them."

Their findings were drawn from anonymous responses to a 50-item questionnaire by nearly 500 undergraduates — 204 men and 285 women.

Student ratings of moral acts or specified situations, in degree of "rightness or wrongness," were then compared with studies of three previous decades at other Midwestern schools.

Students of all the decades surveyed, with the exception of a 1939 study, regarded kidnapping and hit-and-run driving, respectively, as the two worst moral sins.

Showing the most consistent increase in moral condemnation over the period are suicide and a doctor allowing a badly deformed baby to die.

The scientists see this as a growing value for the sanctity of individual life.

Politicking Isn't Always A Fight

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—It isn't all fighting in Oklahoma politics — even between Tulsa County Attorney J. Howard Edmondson and Midwest City developer W. P. Bill Atkinson, candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Edmondson returned home from an Oklahoma City campaign visit carrying a filmed interview an Oklahoma City television station made with Atkinson.

Edmondson, at the request of an Atkinson campaign worker, personally carried the film to Tulsa so it would not be lost or damaged.

Building Figures In State Go Up

RALEIGH — Building permits totaling $92,535,397 were issued in 30 North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population during the first half of this year, the State Department of Labor reported today.

The six-month total was 33.5 per cent higher than the $69,277,151 in permits issued in the same period last year, said State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane.

Permits totaled $15,408,466 in June for a 47 per cent increase over the $10,467,541 figure for June, 1957, Commissioner Crane said.

June 1958 permits were reported as follows: Albemarle $140,400, Asheville $259,469, Burlington $463,606, Charlotte $3,083,415, Concord $97,200, Durham, $1,835,035, Elizabeth City $350, Fayetteville $397,788, Gastonia $332,100, Goldsboro $142,200, Greensboro $3,222,678, Greenville $176,547, Henderson $17,800, Hickory $197,810, High Point $1,100,389, Kinston $128,002, Lexington $97,725, Monroe $60,000, New Bern $62,675, Raleigh $1,438,841, Reidsville $38,000, Rocky Mount $313,773, Salisbury $205,800, Sanford $55,000, Shelby $58,100, Statesville $118,815, Thomasville $94,555, Wilmington $125,475, Wilson $210,090, Winston-Salem $943,808.

Total reported for the first half of 1958 for Greenville was $2,680,205.

For U.S. Marines, It Is 'No Sweat' In Lebanon

By BEM PRICE
BEIRUT (AP) — For the U.S. Marines the Lebanese situation is "strictly no sweat."

By and large they are hot, bored — and puzzled.

Most have only a vague idea why they are here.

Perhaps the best summation of the Marines' attitude came from Platoon Sgt. Clarence Kelly of Carlisle, Pa. "Saipan, Iwo Jima and Korea—and now this," he observed with the resigned shrug of a man to whom the fates have not been kind.

Where else are the front lines marked with a rope across a street?

All over Beirut you can find people picnicking, swimming or just sitting and gossiping. The only truly busy people are the marines. Like combatwise veterans, many of them are working like mad, improving positions as if they expected an attack almost any minute.

They probably are the best behaved Marines in history. To date not one has been embroiled in a fracas with a civilian. The fact that some units have not been paid lately may have something to do with this.

Wherever the Marines are, they usually are surrounded by children, some well dressed, some quite ragged.

For the youngsters there is the universal attraction of candy.

In the dock area it is not unusual to find a dozen kids trailing after two or three self-conscious, grinning Marines.

The worst enemy the Americans have encountered so far has been the mosquitoes.

Cpl. Kenneth B. Tucker, Melrose, Mass., insists he saw one fly by carrying an 81mm. mortar tube.

"If we can catch a few and train them, we'll use them for sentries," he said.

But it's still the most luxurious war the Marines have ever attended. They even have ice delivered to outposts to cool drinking water.

The men themselves admit they never had it so good.

Stole Plane, Boy Injured In Crash

DENVER (AP)—A 14-year-old boy who police said stole a $17,000 light plane from busy Stapleton Airfield was seriously injured last night when the craft crashed two miles from the airport.

Stephen Oakford was taken to Denver General Hospital with a broken arm and internal injuries.

Patrolman Lee Harold said the boy walked boldly to the airport parking ramp where private planes are moored, selected a near-new four-passenger Cessna, and took off.

Harold said Stephen kept the plane aloft for about 10 minutes. He said the plane wavered over an outdoor theater where hundreds of persons were attending a movie. It barely missed the top of the movie screen.

The plane finally crashed into power lines. The boy was thrown clear.

There was no fire.

Officers said as far as they could determine, Stephen never before had been in an airplane. He is the son of a roofing firm vice president.

New International Court System Urged In Cologne

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — The president of the American Bar Assn. appealed today for a new international system of courts so nations can go to law—instead of to war—to settle quarrels.

Charles S. Rhyne of Washington, D. C., spoke at the opening of the seventh biennial conference of the International Bar Assn. More than 100 lawyers attended the gathering of 500-plus delegates from 42 countries who assembled in the 500-year-old Gull House.

Rhyne pointed out that the basic principles of law were common throughout history and were internationally accepted but thus far had been applied mainly within national borders. The world community has only one court, the International Court of Justice at The Hague, "the most unused instrument for peace in the world today," he said.

"The world needs a new international system of courts to apply the rule of law in deciding disputes between nations so as to eliminate resort to war as the ultimate mechanism for settlement of international disputes," he said.

"Peace is the dominant desire of mankind," he continued. "There now exists a state of mind among the peoples of the world immediately receptive to progress in this field."

"When the people of the world are fully cognizant of the potential back of the idea of going to court instead of to war they will demand and we will get that system."

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H.*

Striking Guards Are Replaced

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Civil service guards flown in from New Mexico have replaced striking security personnel at three Nevada installations of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The 105 regular guards left their posts at noon yesterday in a wage dispute and set up picket lines at AEC installations in Las Vegas, Tonopah and Mercury.

Forty-two civil service guards from Los Alamos, N.M., replaced them.

The Independent Guard Assn. of Nevada has been asking a 17½-cent hourly wage increase, plus 2.4 cents in fringe benefits. Federal Services, Inc., the company which hires the guards, has offered a 7½-cent boost.

The present hourly scale ranges from $1.82 to $2.42.

CHAPTER 35

Beulah Denhart was not used to riding. She had arrived at the Elkgrove ranch a little past noon, sore and tired, after a ten-mile ride.

But she wasn't thinking of her aching muscles now. She hadn't thought about them when Rachel Kilgore had picked out a tall bay for her to ride. She had simply thrown her saddle on him, climbed aboard, grabbed the horn with one hand and dug in her spurs.

She didn't stop to think, either, why it was that after she got down into the foothills she made the turn that would take her to Frenchy Quebedeau's place instead of directly in to Barrancas for the sheriff. All she was aware of was a feeling that Frenchy was the strongest person she knew, the most likely to be able and willing to do what she asked.

It was dusk when she got to the sheep ranch. Bacho was bringing the sheep into shelter, and smoke curling from the chimney told her Frenchy was home.

She pulled up and slid out of the saddle. The door was closed but she opened it and went in without stopping to knock.

Frenchy turned as she opened the door. An incredulous look as of a man seeing visions swept over his face.

Beulah's eyes swept around the room. "Slade isn't back yet?"

Frenchy shook his head, seemingly still not able to find his voice.

Beulah looked at him, standing there so big and solid and dependable. Suddenly she ran across the room toward him. Her breath came out of her throat in convulsive gasps. Frenchy's arms went around her gently.

After a moment she drew back, wiping her eyes on the back of her hand like a tearful child.

"Frenchy—you've got to help—but I don't know how!"

"But of course!" he said simply. "Anythings!"

Beulah smiled at him wanly.

"Frenchy, you're a swell person. I guess I should have gone to Sheriff Duffus—but he is so slow-moving—and he and Wynn are such good friends."

"Wynn?" Frenchy asked sharply. "Why you come to me about them?"

Beulah tried to start at the beginning and tell him everything as clearly as Martha had told it to her, but when she finished he was shaking his head. His straight black brows met in a puzzled frown over the high bridge of his nose.

"Wheech man ees eet you are wanting to help?" he asked sharply.

Beulah's eyes widened in surprise. "Why, Slade, of course. Don't you understand? He has gone over to the Valle Medio. Wynn—or Tony—has already killed one man today. They will surely kill Slade, too. Wynn hates Slade. He always has, and now this Forest Service business had turned him into a crazy man."

She put up a hand and brushed the thick red hair back from her forehead. "Two months ago if anybody had tried to tell me anything I would ever turn Wynn into a killer. I would have laughed in his face."

Behind them the door opened. Bacho stood for a surprised moment, seeing how close they were together, seeing the look that was on big Frenchy's face.

He started to back out and close the door, but Frenchy stopped him. "Wait, Bacho! We need you!"

Beulah looked up intently at Frenchy. "Do you want to send him to Barrancas after the sheriff? He can take my horse. I know he will make better time than I could."

Frenchy shook his head. "We don't need the sheriff. I take Bacho up to the Valle Medio with me. He got more sense than ten shepherds!"

Beulah looked a little doubtful about that, but she didn't protest.

From a nail on the wall Frenchy took down the cartridge belt and gun that he seldom wore and strapped it around his hips. He shrugged his broad shoulders into a leather coat.

Suddenly realizing that she was penetrating him into the same danger that threatened Slade Considine, Beulah caught at his sleeve as he started for the door. "Frenchy—I—I—" she foundered helplessly, then caught her breath and started again. "Please—be careful! I—I wouldn't want you to be hurt, too!"

Frenchy's dark eyes deepened and softened. Then with a quick movement he put his hands on her shoulders, bent his head and kissed her lightly on the forehead. "I be careful," he promised. "I be putty darn careful. I want to come back now!"

It had been an awkward caress, and yet there was something so almost reverent about it, and a tone so tender in his voice, that it penetrated even the girl's fear for Slade Considine.

She looked up at him with wide eyes, and what she saw in his dark, good-looking face brought a sudden, almost intolerable ache to her throat. She knew so well what it meant to love someone who didn't love in return. A wave of red came up into her white cheeks.

"Gooh, Frenchy!" she breathed. "I—I never even suspected—"

He patted her shoulder. "Mais non!" he said a little roughly. "I never tol' you, did I?"

He went out the door. Bacho, who had been slower getting into his coat, lingered a moment. "If you want to wait here till we get back there's a bedroom back there." He nodded toward the closed door in the back wall of the long room.

"Thanks, Bacho," the girl said. Bacho looked at her intently. "Frenchy built that room a year ago for a girl he wanted to marry," he said quietly.

"What happened to the girl?" Beulah asked, as if she already knew the answer.

"She got herself engaged to somebody else. Frenchy was jolly well cut up about it at first. He shut up that room and hasn't allowed anybody to set foot in there since."

"Thank you for telling me, Bacho," Beulah said in a voice filled with wonder.

Tony Miller was panting as he looked down on Slade Considine's unconscious figure—not from exertion but from sudden, violent excitement—the excitement that always came to him with the feeling of power over another human being.

He had hated Slade Considine since he had first come to the Chupaderos. Hated him because he was heir to the big 143 ranch; hated him and savagely envied the good looks and easy charm that would have made Slade popular even if he had been penniless; hated him most of all because Slade had treated him with amused contempt, as if he thought his tough guy pose was all bluff.

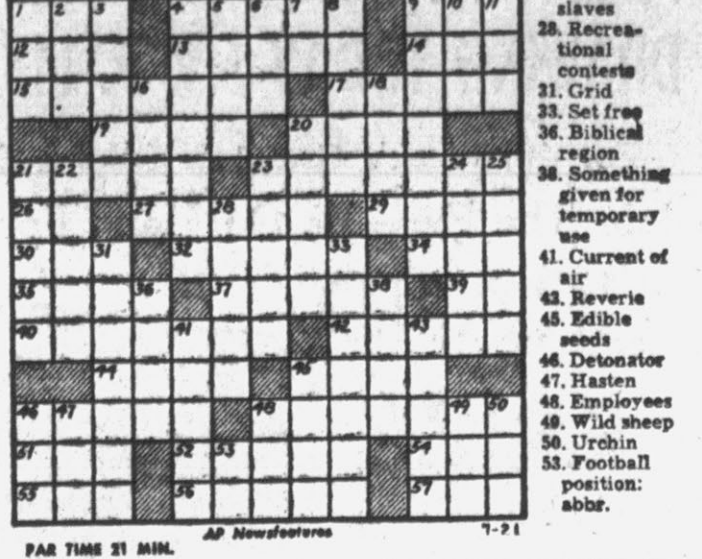

Neither Tony nor Wynn had suffered anything more serious than shallow flesh wounds from Slade's two hits. But now Tony was glad that Wynn was unconscious. Wynn was a weakling. He wanted Slade dead, but he would never have stood for the way Tony was going to do it.

Tragedy Marred Nothing Else To Do An Exciting Day But Throw Stones

BALTIMORE (AP) — The day promised to be an exciting one for little Gregory Prevas.

He and his father James Prevas got up early and drove from their home in Aberdeen, Md., to Baltimore for the big game between the Orioles and the Cleveland Indians.

The father and the 8-year-old boy arrived at Memorial Stadium before noon to watch the pre-game batting practice.

Suddenly the father slumped in his seat. Ushers hurried forward and carried the 57-year-old man to the stadium first-aid room.

A park policeman led Gregory to meet some of the Orioles.

Paul Richards, Orioles manager, gave him a catcher's mitt. Whitey Diakin, clubhouse custodian, handed the boy a bat and a baseball. Gregory managed a smile.

Would he like to have the Orioles autograph the baseball? He nodded his approval. Everyone in the clubhouse shook his hand and patted him on the back.

Someone asked him what position he played. "Oh, I play almost all of them," he replied. "I like baseball."

Then he walked across the dug-out runway where he met Joe Paparella, veteran American League umpire. "Well, how are you, young fellow?" Paparella asked.

"I'm all right," said Gregory. "But my daddy just died."

STONES CORNER, Mo. (AP)—When they can't think of anything else to do, some of the teenagers in these parts like to drive out to the Helm place and throw rocks.

It's a pretty tempting setup. There's an old quarry nearby which provides plenty of ammunition, and the Helms' tarpaper-covered house makes a good target. Besides, if the Helms are home they'll usually add zest to the sport by throwing back.

The Helms are Juanita, 60, and her husband, Arthur, 29. Alvin Kincaid, 36, Juanita's son by a previous marriage, lives with them. They raise pigs and farm a few acres, and Kincaid does odd jobs.

"It's a popular sport among a certain class of kids throughout the area to rock the Helm house," a police officer said. "It's been going on for years, but the problem is catching the ringleaders. Some of them live in Kansas (one mile away), and I think some of them even come up here from Oklahoma (six miles away)."

Nevertheless, the law doesn't give up easily and has taken action that may tend to discourage the rocking.

Five youths have been arrested and will appear in court Wednesday on peace disturbance charges. Two others are sought.

The five in custody are Johnny Robert Stephens, 18, of Carl Junction, Mo.; and Keith Larimore, 17; Basil Leroy Jacobson, 21; Billy Lewis Bacon, 18; and Ronald Lee Raymond, 17; all of Joplin, Mo.

The Helms? Well, they've been known to chuck rocks at passing automobiles. One night a while ago they were doing that and a fist-sized rock went through the windshield of one car. The automobile turned out to be occupied by a deputy sheriff. The Helms spent a little time in jail.

Chimps Drank Up Costly Perfume

OCEAN PARK, Calif. (AP) — Two chimpanzees, Rob Roy and Tonga, escaped from their cages at the new Pacific Ocean Park pier yesterday and downed a gallon of My Sin perfume worth $2,300.

The perfume — 65 per cent alcohol — was on hand to scent the waters of Neptune's Fountain at the entrance to the pier.

The two male chimps couldn't be found but their owner wasn't too worried.

Auto Workers Resume Parleys

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union resumed contract talks today on an accelerated basis.

Full-day bargaining sessions were set at both General Motors and Ford with the companies and the union striving to make progress in their protracted negotiations.

Chrysler and the UAW do not meet until tomorrow. Full-day talks are indicated there also.

The UAW has been without contracts with the big three of the car industry for eight weeks. Previous contracts expired over the Memorial Day weekend.

Two Prospective Lawmen Rejected

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sheriff L. C. Boles has turned down an offer of help from two prospective lawmen. They wrote him: "We are starting a police station and we need your permission to put people in our jail."

The two jailers are 13 and 10. Sheriff Boles thanked them for their interest and promised to send a deputy to show how they can be of help but said he's happy with his present jail system.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels and oils were in the fore as the stock market advanced briskly early this afternoon.

Leading issues were up from fractions to a point or so. Some selected issues made wider gains.

Once again the market was pushing into new high ground for the year. Some chemicals, rails, aircrafts, rubbers and nonferrous metals joined in the rise but there was a scattering of losses.

The market's rise was substantial on average but prices were by no means running away.

With the nation's defense needs emphasized by the middle east crisis, U.S. Steel, Lukens and Republic Steel rose more than a point each. Youngstown Sheet added about 2.

Union Carbide, which makes about 15 per cent of its annual sales to the steel industry, advanced well over 3 points. The stock also continued to be spurred by the firm's record last week of excellent earnings this year.

Gulf Oil was ahead better than 2 points or a while but pared its gain to a point or so. Silliar gains were made by such international oils as Texas Co., Royal Dutch and Getty. Among the domestic oils, Amersola rose about a point and Sinclair a fraction.

Chrysler stood out in the automotive group, holding a gain of about a point. General Motors added a fraction and Ford was steady. Goodrich advanced about 2 points and U.S. Rubber about a point.

Curtiss-Wright and Boeing were fractional gainers in a mixed aircraft section. Anasconda was firm but American Smelting and Kennecott took small losses. Kaiser Aluminum and International Nickel added fractions.

Lorillard resumed its uptrend, advancing more than a point. Fyco's rails rose on average. Southern Pacific was up about a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.00 at $179.10 with the industrials up $1.80, the rails up 90 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Satellite World Still Throbs With Protests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS crisis.

The Communist world throbbed with one message today: Americans go home. But the rest of the world observed with cooler tempers the presence of U.S. and British troops in the Middle East.

The Red Chinese Peiping daily said: "Eisenhower goes beyond Hitler and Tojo in calling the armed struggle of the Lebanese people and the Iraqi revolution 'indirect aggression' in an attempt to justify the naked aggression of American imperialism against Lebanon."

About 1,000 Red Chinese demonstrated on the Chinese border with Hong Kong against both the United States and Britain. The Hong Kong government reported. Demonstrators shouted Communist slogans, but there were no reported incidents.

In Seoul, Communists left their calling cards—small wallet-sized leaflets and British Army camps, the U.S. Embassy, and the U. N. Command headquarters. Printed on the cards were slogans: American imperialists, go home. In the Soviet Union's East European satellite, the Communist propaganda machine has been running at full speed for the past four days. Mass demonstrations have been staged in Albania, Bulgaria and Romania. The governments of these countries have demanded withdrawal of U.S. and British forces from Lebanon and Jordan.

The governor cited the statistics in a speech prepared for delivery to a joint luncheon meeting of the Conservation and Development Board and the State Parks Authority.

He said the state's payroll was increased by $202,154,500 as a result of 617 new industrial plants and 709 plant expansions effected between July 1, 1954, and July 1 this year.

King Hussein Obviously In Deep Troubles Today

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Young King Hussein is obviously in deep trouble despite the crash program of military and economic aid from the United States and Britain.

Developments in Iraq have hit Jordan hard.

Already the eastern part of the country has lost much of its communication with the Palestinian side of the Jordan River, a hotbed of support for U.A.R. President Nasser. There is a good chance that much blood will be spilled here before long.
