Discovers Guide In Body Radar

By ERIC WAMA
 INNBRUCK, Austria (AP)—A pretty, blonde doctor of philosophy has discovered that blind people "see" obstacles by means of body radar.

To find out, 22-year-old Helga Domes placed a blindfold over her eyes and for a month lived the life of a person without sight.

"I walked through the streets of Innsbruck for four weeks," she says. "I attended an opera performance and went out in the woods."

"I lived in a home for the blind and I learned their way of reading with their fingers."

Helga found herself being guided by what is called "long distance sense," a sort of body radar. She says:

"I allowed myself to be guided by this sense. I could easily hear the sound waves reflected from obstacles. The sense worked by a sort of pressure behind the forehead as I approached an obstacle at about five feet."

"The sound waves were not only caused by noise, but also by air being thrown back from an obstacle, or even by light air movement."

Helga, her sight cut-off by seven layers of felt and motorcyclists' goggles, was a "guinea pig" of the Innsbruck Institute for Experimental Psychology.

To test her reaction, the scientists plastered her face, made face muscles rigid by injections and clamped her nose. But it turned out that all this did not handicap her newly-acquired "long distance sense." However, as soon as her ears were stuffed up, she lost the sense and knocked against the obstacles.

In the first week of the experiment, Helga "recognized" a wall at a distance of half a yard. In the fourth week, she was able to move without hesitation in a forest, her eyes bound up as usual, without knocking against a tree.

The scientists said Helga had proved beyond doubt that "long distance sense" develops in blind people.

Helga also examined the psychological effects of blindness.

She said:

"A blind human being is suspicious. They have to rely on voices to judge people. Afterwards I often found out that I was 'cheated' by some voices. If I heard a high voice, I thought of a tall, thin person. Another time I thought the man I talked to was small, but I found out that he merely had crouched. Sometimes such things are done without purpose but result in arousing perpetual suspicion in a blind person."

"You also become frightened. I was terrified by the noise of small objects falling to the ground or by the barking of dogs. Small, everyday things became huge problems; if I forgot, for instance, to smell the tooth paste before using it, I brushed my teeth with face cream."

"When the experiment was over and I took off the goggles and the felt strip, I was not happy at first. The world appeared strange, colors too piercing and the mountains too high. Only 24 hours afterwards was I happy again to be able to see."

Dressing Is Important In Success Of A Salad

By NADEANE WALKER
 PARIS (AP)—The French couture is ready to push a new "hard sell" policy, to convince everybody that Paris is the only creator of new styles and has no rivals worthy of the name.

For the first time, the French couture will open a press bureau in New York Sept. 1. The new president of the high fashion syndicate, Jacques Heim, 59, who recently succeeded Raymond Barbas of Fatou in the post, will go to New York in mid-September to speak before the New York Fashion Group.

"We want to find new approaches to make the people understand the importance of Paris to fashion," he explains. "Why should buyers waste time going other places instead of coming to the one place in the world where inspiration and creation flourish?"

Meanwhile Paris prepares to show off its latest creations for fall.

First indications are that the revolution-makers are not making any big revolutions this season. The feeling is that there was enough new and drastic fashion the last seasons to give the designers something to chew over for awhile.

Fall Trends
 Most prominent are modified and perhaps more wearable versions of the "baby doll," the "trapeze," and the sack. There is a splinter movement back towards fitted outlines, for one of the newcomers, Serge Matia, has declared himself an enemy of the sack and a friend of natural forms.

Of course the 1953 fall and winter shows must coin some new silhouettes names, and Paris wouldn't be Paris without springing a few surprises.

Skirts are usually a fraction longer for winter wear, but they will remain quite short. On the streets of Paris now you can see skirts of every length, but many young women and those who want to look young are cutting them off just below the knee.

Visa La France
 The new French couture office for America will be headed by Madame Monique de Nervo, an attractive, petite brunette who was formerly press attache for Jean Desse. In discussing the new bureau, Syndicate President Heim says:

"We French came to publicity late, but now we see what it has done for others with perhaps less merit. When a new fashion is created, Paris creates it. I know the American buyers are going to be mad at me for saying this, but it's the truth. All we want is that people should see this truth, which has been ignored."

"America specializes in production, but Paris stimulates the changes that means consumption. Those who try to jeopardize Paris fashion are wrong; they are killing themselves."

Heim points out:

Paris Defends Fashion Crown

For a creamy variation of French dressing, whip together 1/4 cup of the basic dressing and 1/4 cup of mayonnaise. It's ideal for a salad of shredded cabbage and cubes of cheddar cheese.

Garlic French dressing is made by adding a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce and a whole garlic clove to 1/4 cup of the basic dressing. Remove the garlic clove, or if a more definite garlic flavor is desired crush the garlic into the dressing.

A highly spiced flavor can be achieved through the use of curry powder. Simply add 1/4 teaspoon of this powder to 1 cup of the basic dressing.

Honey French dressing teams well with a salad made of shredded cabbage, crushed pineapple, and sliced bananas. Prepare the basic French dressing with lemon juice instead of vinegar, add as much honey as lemon juice, 1 1/2 teaspoons of sugar, and 1/4 teaspoon of grated lemon rind.

"Prices here are steady. Everywhere else they have gone up. We intend to make the buyers' trips to France easier and more profitable than they have been."

"The fashion business is a pyramid, with Paris at the apex. Influences seep down until they influence everybody, right down to the mass market base. Only we have the authority to change the styles."

Girls Sew Their Own School Togs

By DOROTHY ROE
 Associated Press Women's Editor

Every normal girl starts worrying about back-to-school clothes the minute her graduation dress is tucked away. Whether she's facing high school or college, clothes usually are her first concern.

Instead of just worrying about the situation, many smart girls are sewing their own campus clothes these days, starting early enough to get a wardrobe ready by September.

Local sewing center experts advise young seamstresses to select an easy pattern, such as a simple skirt, overblouse and jacket, made in dark cotton. Make the skirt and jacket plain, and dress up the overblouse with bold stripes of machine embroidery.

Here's the easiest way to put decorative striped stitching on a garment and still have the design matching at the seams and darts. Stripe the fabric with machine embroidery first, then cut out. Follow the usual rules for working with striped fabric, and your decorative trim will match perfectly at all construction points.

Such an outfit lends itself to mix-and-match treatment. An extra skirt in a color matching the embroidery on the overblouse, for instance, will add up to a whole new outfit. Or a tuck-in shirt of coordinated color will go with either skirt.

Versatile wardrobe stretchers such as this are the backbone of a back-to-school clothes plan. And if they are made at home the clothing budget can be stretched to include accessories such as shoes and handbags.

One Dead, Seven Injured As Auto And Truck Crash

BOWDEN, N.C. (AP) — One young person was killed and seven others injured here last night when an automobile collided with an oil tanker and the truck flipped over, knocking supports from under a house porch.

Definite identification of the dead person still was being sought. The Highway Patrol said burning kerosene was spilled down U.S. 117 which runs through the town, and that fire departments in Raison, Mount Olive, and Warsaw were called to keep the blaze from reaching stores and homes.

The injured included: Robert James King Jr., 17, of Wallace, in critical condition; transferred from Sampson County Hospital in Clinton to Rex Hospital in Raleigh.

George Stout, 17, of Wallace, in critical condition with leg fracture and severe lacerations.

Richard Slaughter Taylor, 18, of Goldsboro, in critical condition with broken leg and possible internal injuries.

Alice Kay Whaley, 16, of Wallace, lacerations and possible jaw fracture.

Patricia Tanner, 18, of Wallace, leg smashed and severe head lacerations.

Albert Daniel Frink, 15, of Southport, held at Sampson Hospital for observation.

Larry Frederick, 8, Negro, held for observation; hurt when porch pillars knocked down.

Driver of the car carrying the young people, who had been to a dance at Faison, was not immediately identified.

The truck driver, identified as J. W. Crumpler of Goldsboro, escaped with minor injuries.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

RICHMOND, Va.—We've been hearing a lot about the shrine devoted to the memory of Edgar Allan Poe, who lived here for several years, and have been wanting to see it. It's called the Edgar Allan Poe House, so we asked directions of an obliging Richmonder, requesting the way to the Poe House. After quite a long ride we pulled up in front of a large building, which we discovered was the City Home—in our language, the Poorhouse. So we scored a zero on our first attempt—maybe we will have better luck next time.

Editorial

The New York Times, a northern newspaper, has what we think is a very fine tribute to the Southern tradition on its editorial page of last Sunday. It concerns Paul Green's new outdoor drama—now running successfully at Virginia Beach—called "The Confederacy," which depicts Lee's life in Virginia after the Union victory.

Here's how the Times summarizes the play's meaning: "In defeat Lee fulfilled one of the great roles in American history, turning his face to the future and asking his followers to do likewise. In time the bitterness faded and Lee and his lesson in character took their place on a stage that is bright nearly a century later."

Conant's Report

James B. Conant, former president of Harvard College, has just about completed his work on a report on the state of the nation's high schools. He's been working on it for quite some time and it's due to come out in published form in February. In a preview at Columbia last week, he set forth twelve suggestions to improve the schools. They include such drastic measures as closing all high schools which have graduating classes of less than 100 and consolidating them, providing tremendously increased foreign language programs for all students, getting more girls to take math and science courses, and using different marking scales for able and less able students. We think Dr. Conant has some fine suggestions—but all of them are not going to sit well with a large number of people. But they're only suggestions. Whether they're followed or not remains to be seen—but at least somebody had the courage to make them.

Carolina Triumph

"Only in America," a collection of pieces published in The Carolina Israelite, edited and written by Harry Golden of Charlotte, N.C., has received national recognition in two important mediums, The Saturday Review and the Times Book Review. Just published, the book should do well, since it got a very cordial nod from reviewers in both places. In our own travels we've been surprised by the fact that The Israelite is almost completely unknown outside of Tarheelia. Maybe "Only in America" will spread its fame a little wider, and that of the author of the "Vertical Segregation" plan—one of the best solutions to the segregation problem we've heard yet.

Today's Review

We're honored to present the comments of a practicing physician and specialist on internal medicine, Dr. Edwin Monroe, concerning a recent book that has caused considerable controversy because it's about a possible cure for cancer—certainly "a matter of life or death."

A MATTER OF LIFE OR DEATH, By Herbert Bailey, New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1958.

In attempting to reveal to the public the story of Krebiozen, Mr. Bailey has fallen far short of his declared goal of presenting unbiased factual reporting. Krebiozen was the subject of an extensive investigation by the American Medical Association and the appropriate branch of the Federal Government—the Food and Drug Administration. Both of these organizations found no evidence to support the use of Krebiozen as a "cancer cure." In this book Mr. Bailey follows the development of Krebiozen by its discoverer, a Dr. Stevan Durovic, and the attempts made by Dr. Durovic and his supporters to obtain licenses for the manufacture and sale of this drug. "A Matter of Life or Death" is also the story of Dr. Andrew Ivy's loss of stature as a recognized medical researcher and the loss of his position as vice-president of the University of Illinois. This was due apparently to his support of Krebiozen. Mr. Bailey presents many quotations from committee hearings on this drug and numerous case reports of patients who were treated with it. In doing so, he neglects to describe those patients who did not respond to the drug.

Instead of objectively reporting the facts concerning Krebiozen and its backers, the author sentimentalizes the plight of the Durovics and Dr. Ivy, while launching into tirade after tirade against the A.M.A. He would have done a better service to Krebiozen had he not been so obviously biased and emotional.

Suspect Admiral Took Own Life

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Navy is investigating the death of Rear Adm. Lynne C. Quiggle, who told his wife "You'd be better off a widow" just before his disappearance at sea.

Quiggle, 52, vanished from the liner President Cleveland Wednesday about 800 miles off San Francisco. He apparently jumped overboard in a fit of depression, Commodore H. D. Ehmman, the liner's master, told newsmen after the ship docked here yesterday.

A Navy board of investigation, headed by Rear Adm. John Q. Owsley, started a formal inquiry. The admiral and his wife were returning from his tour of duty as deputy chief of staff on the joint staff of the commander of U.S. forces in Japan. He had been ordered to San Diego to become commander of Amphibious Group 1, Pacific Fleet.

Mrs. Quiggle, the former Ann Griffin of Washington, D.C., said her husband had left their cabin early in the morning saying "You would be better off a widow" after kissing her.

She reported his disappearance and the ship was searched. Mrs. Quiggle said she had reason to believe her husband, who had been nervous and tense, may have jumped from the ship.

Stuck Together, Even In Death

MARS, Pa. (AP)—"They were just like all kids... excited about one thing one time and another thing another time... all three were blond-haired and stuck together all the time."

This was Mrs. Herbert Brooks' comment after her three grandchildren, William, 8; Rhonda, 7; and Michael 6, drowned yesterday in a pond near their home.

Her three grandchildren, William, 8; Rhonda, 7; and Michael 6, drowned yesterday in a pond near their home.

The children's mother, Mrs. William Brooks, told firemen the children were wading when one of them apparently fell into deeper water, dragging the others down. She said they always held hands while wading.

Edmond ("according to Hoyle") Hoyle, who wrote the first book on card games back in 1742, lived to the age of 97.

Set Up Herself As Private Eye

LONDON (AP) — Middle-aged Matilda Higgins doffed her housewife's apron and set up as a private eye when somebody stole her husband's car.

She cracked the case before professional sleuths had time to reach for a magnifying glass.

It took her just half an hour to track down the car, abandoned not far from the Higgins' suburban home. A quick check showed the spare wheel was missing, along with the tools and seat covers.

For the next few days Matilda prowled the neighborhood, picking up gossip. After a while she heard dealer John Yerby had some seat covers for sale.

Matilda recognized them right off. She offered to buy them and asked Yerby to come to her house to pick up the cash.

The police were there when Yerby arrived.

He was jailed for two years yesterday protesting someone had sold him the covers without mentioning they had been stolen.

"I suppose I was quite a Sherlock Holmes," reflected Matilda. "But it was elementary once I was on the trail."

Housewife Hit By Stray Bullet

RATON, N.M. (AP)—Mrs. Raymond Salazar was cutting weeds in her yard and felt something sting her arm.

She swatted at it and felt a jump jump under the skin.

A neighbor dug out a 22 bullet. Police said the bullet was fired from a considerable distance and was almost spent when it struck her. She heard no shot.

Executed On His 33rd Birthday

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Former Airman Jimmy Shaver was executed in the electric chair here today—his 33rd birthday.

His only birthday gift was a bouquet of flowers given to him yesterday by an aunt, Mrs. Elaine Tyer. With the flowers was a note: "May this be a small ray of sunshine to you on your birthday."

The execution of Shaver, convicted of the rape-slaying of Chere Jo Horton, 3, near a San Jacinto tavern in 1954, had been delayed several times by reprieves.

The last was issued after a former jailmate, Donald Summers, confessed to slaying the girl. Earlier this week, the State Board of Pardons and Paroles said a lie detector test showed Summers was not the slayer.

Shaver was calm and smiling when led into the death chamber at state prison. He thanked the guards for the treatment shown him. The switch was thrown at 12:03 a. m. and he was pronounced dead at 12:05.

Combine Wedding And A Ballgame

NEDERLAND, Tex. (AP)—Three months ago Jeanette Pickens and Lance Van Zandt of Port Neches, Tex., set their wedding for 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Van Zandt learned only yesterday that his Babe Ruth League baseball team would play in the state tournament at San Antonio at the same hour and asked his bride-elect: "How are you going to like coaching third base Friday night?"

The couple quickly decided to take their vows at 2:30 p.m. and fly to San Antonio for the baseball game. The bride's going-away outfit will include a baseball cap for the third base coaching job.

Any Other Old Buildings Unneeded?

If the old man-bites-dog adage about what makes news has any truth to it, there must be important news in the fact that this week the Advisory Budget Commission was offered a building instead of being asked for a new one by one of North Carolina's institutions.

It happened when the Commission visited the Eastern North Carolina TB Sanatorium in Wilson. The hospital's medical director informed the Commission the institution needed no new buildings or renovations. It had no request for permanent improvements during the coming biennium. On top of that, the director offered the Commission a 125-bed hospital wing which was constructed in 1943, is in excellent condition, and is no longer needed by the Sanatorium.

If the facility could be moved to some other state institution which is asking for additional buildings, it would be fine. But that is out of the question. It does seem a shame to leave the facility unused in a time when the state needs so many new permanent facilities for its institutions.

According to reports, several state agencies have looked at the unused wing at the Sanatorium, but none has found a use for it. We can't help but wonder if there are other unused state-owned facilities throughout North Carolina which might be utilized.

While the Advisory Budget Commission is making its bi-annual rounds to hear requests for state

Institution Has Growing Pains

By LYNN NISBET
GROWING PAINS—East Carolina College at Greenville is suffering more from growing pains than any other institution visited by the advisory budget commission this year. Figures presented at the hearing showed that while the average growth in enrollment of all institutions of higher education in North Carolina has been 65 percent since 1941, the increase of ECC has been 144 percent.

Individual enrollment for the past school year was 3,867. That is expected to go to 4,650 for the 1960-61 session, and to 6,000 by 1965. Result of this boom in students has been to outpace some of the relatively new buildings. The library and gymnasium, for example, neither more than six years old, are already inadequate. The State has invested about ten and a half million dollars in the college plant since 1945. Requests for permanent improvements filed this year aggregate $5,517,000.

East Carolina claims several distinctions. Only about five percent of the student body comes from outside the state, and 75 percent is from east of Raleigh. Of the 761 graduates this year, 512 or almost exactly two-thirds, received BS degrees in education and qualified for A-certificates as teachers. The disappointing feature is that a large majority of the teachers took courses for secondary school rather than elementary teaching—where the need is greater.

(President J.D. Messick reminded the budget folks that there are some areas in high schools where the teacher shortage is just as acute as in the elementary grades). Suggestion was made that in apportioning teaching scholarships the State Board of Education should give priority rating to applicants in the areas where the shortage is most marked.

VANCY—There is an empty spot between the correctional training schools for juvenile delinquents and the state prison for hardened criminals. Although the boys and girls committed by domestic relations courts to the correctional schools mostly are rated as non-criminal delinquents, some of them have committed serious crimes. W.D. Clark, superintendent of the Eastern Carolina Training School at Rocky Mount, reported that there were several automobile stealers among the 15 boys who walked off from his place during the past weekend. In fact, three of them state cars before they were apprehended in Raleigh.

The correctional school folks do not like to intermingle these boys with the younger element whose main offense was nothing more than running away from home, refusing to go to school or other evidences of delinquency without conscious criminal intent. There is admitted need for closer detention of the criminal funds, it would be wise for some agency of the executive branch of the state government to take a careful look at facilities which are not now being used. It might well be that with a little shifting around such facilities could be put to use in lieu of building new facilities for some state agencies.

If some practical solution were worked out, it could save the state a considerable sum in its capital outlay for the coming biennium, and this savings could be passed on to the taxpayers.

North Carolina's agencies and institutions need a good many new facilities, but good judgment demands that we also make maximum use of the facilities the state already owns.

Now Dignity Requires Some Air-Conditioning

The dignity of the court has been affronted. This time by no less a force than Old Mother Nature who sends hot summer days to harass lawyers, jurors, court officials, defendants and even spectators . . . but most of all to harass the judge in his recently-acquired long black robe.

When it was decided that Superior Court judges would wear the black robes while they were on the bench, the innovation was heralded as a measure to uphold and improve the dignity of the court.

Now, it seems, the black robes are not sufficient to insure the dignity of the court. For the hot summer months there must also be air conditioning in the courtrooms in Eastern North Carolina.

Over in Hertford County the other day Superior Court Judge William J. Bundy of Greenville took his seat in the stifling courtroom. Upon learning it was not air conditioned, he urged the new Grand Jury of Hertford County to recommend to the County Commissioners that the courtroom be air conditioned.

County governments in North Carolina had no say-so in the matter when it was decided that Superior Court judges would wear black robes. But when it comes to air conditioning the seldom-used courtrooms, it's our guess that county governments will not be easily persuaded to abide by the desires of the jurists.

Hertford County, for example, just completed its brand new courthouse a couple of years ago. It is a well appointed structure of which the county is proud . . . and one which, incidentally, set the taxpayers back a pretty penny. The large courtroom reportedly seats 400 to 500 people. It is used for Superior Court terms five or six weeks out of the year . . . mostly during the cooler months. One day a week it is used for a recorder's court session. Like most courtrooms in this part of the state it is idle many more days than it is used.

It seems a little foolish to spend a good bit of money to air condition such a facility.

Ahh . . . but the dignity of the court is at stake! Shucks, let 'em sweat a little.

Big, Eight-Ring Circus Is Likely

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—A summit meeting now in the United Nations may turn into an eight-ring circus. Soviet Premier Khrushchev—after trying unsuccessfully for months to get the United States to a summit meeting on general world problems—proposed such a meeting be held to discuss the Middle East.

In reluctantly agreeing to a summit meeting in the Middle East—provided it was held in the U.N. Security Council—President Eisenhower threw in a couple of words which could open a Pandora's box.

He suggested that other problems vital to peace besides the Middle East could be discussed by the Security Council—and presumably by the heads of government sitting in it. For instance: if Khrushchev was making the United States look bad for sending troops into Lebanon, Eisenhower under the head of "other problems" could do this: the sins of the Soviet Union, including its brutal suppression of the Hungarian revolution. Then Khrushchev could rush in with proposals on disarmament, an end to nuclear testing, or anything else he had in mind.

For months this country had held off on Khrushchev's call for a summit conference on world problems by insisting there must be adequate preparation and agreement before hand on what would be discussed.

But there won't be much time for such preparation or agreement on what's to be discussed—our representative of the Middle East—if the meeting is held within the next few weeks. And for the United States now to try to delay such a meeting very long—after Khrushchev's quick acceptance—would make poor propaganda for this country in the eyes of the rest of the world.

One thing is sure: any initiative this country might have had on a summit meeting—and

MAKING RELIGION WORK
A new religion is always a conquering religion. Christianity, 1700 years ago, conquered the Roman Empire. Islam swept over Asia and Africa 1300 years ago and tried to conquer Europe. Only to be stopped and held at bay by Charles Martel. The Mormons in this country a century ago trekked across the desert west and carved for themselves an empire out of waste land.

What is this religion we have? Does it have any real vitality to it? Can it conquer anything? First, can it conquer us—our complacency, our fears, our tendencies to be indulgent? Then, can it enable us to go forth and conquer the world? If it is a vital religion it can. If it lives up to

A Tiny Hero For TV

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—As if everybody didn't feel small enough already, we will be asked this autumn to look up to a hero only six inches tall.

He is Mel Hunter, star of "World of Giants," a new television series, and a lot of big money is riding on his tiny but muscular frame in one of the top duels of the 1958-59 video season.

CBS is gambling four million dollars that Little Mel will be able to untrick "Wagon Train" as the highly rated program that sets out every Wednesday night from the rival trading post run by Sheriff Bob Sarnoff of NBC.

It is to be a no-holds-barred contest for audience favor between the "fantastic" and the horse opera.

Who is this rash unknown, Mel Hunter, who has risen to challenge the long reign of the Western?

He is the brainchild of John Ziv and Richard Dorso. Mel is a strapping 6-foot secret agent who is exposed to rays from a deadly enemy missile fuel behind the Iron Curtain. His molecular system is affected, and he shrinks until he is only half a foot tall.

Instead of asking waivers on him or peddling him to a circus, Mel's superiors in a government department known only as "The Bureau" decide to keep him on the job as a spy hunter.

The fact they now have a 6-inch agent is, of course, the bureau's top secret. He goes on his missions in a briefcase carried by his buddy, Bill Winters. The brief case has air vents and contains an airplane type seat in which miniature Mel straps himself for comfort.

Because of his small size, everything that happens to Mel is a matter of life or death to him," said Dorso.

"A spilled bottle of glue, a vacuum cleaner, a sudden rainfall that washes him down a sewer—these are terrible perils to him. Two of his biggest fears are a hungry cat and how to get a telephone off the hook so he can call the bureau."

The question naturally arises as to whether Mel is on the payroll of J. Edgar Hoover, whose employment policies—so far as publicly announced—have been somewhat discriminatory toward midgets. Dorso is very clear on this point. The answer is no.

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation screened the series and approved it," Dorso said, "as long as Mel wasn't identified as an FBI agent."

Dorso, a man vaccinated long ago with a Madison Ave. prose needle, believes "the little man" will become the hero of the year to both kids and grownups.

"There is no ceiling to this," he said. "We think it will go right through the roof. We're going for the long ball."

This is going to be the year of the fantastic in television. Oh, there'll be a rash of fantasies—a real rash of them. All kinds of new backgrounds and different heroes—maybe even a two-headed hero from another planet.

"We have all sorts of plans for our little man."

A dreamy look overcame Dorso's face.

"We might even star him in a fantastic Western," he remarked.

How about that? Can't you just see a 6-inch hero on horseback, riding hard and off the rustler's trail? Eagle Pass?

Don't say it can't happen here. It can.

Fresh From The News Beat

My Wilson Hall correspondent absolutely guarantees the following to be true.

It seems some sweet young thing was making use of the intercom system in the women's dorm to call one of the students to the telephone.

There was a pause.

"Jane Doe, take the telephone," came the voice once again.

Another long pause.

"Jane Doe has a phone call."

Still another pause. Obviously Miss Doe was not in the dorm.

Then: "Jane Doe, when you come in will you please call 9999?"

Mayor S. Eugene West and City Manager Leonard Bloxam both feel that the city of Greenville is in considerably better shape than many other North Carolina cities.

The two drew that conclusion after attending special sessions conducted by the governor's Municipal Government Study Commission in Chapel Hill this week.

West, Bloxam and Councilman Wesley Harvey and Lester Turnage attended the meeting which was held Tuesday and Wednesday.

The municipal officials had a chance to talk to representatives of many other towns and cities across the state at the meeting.

The Study Commission is looking into the various financial problems facing municipalities. Greenville, incidentally, was one of 22 cities in the state selected to furnish detailed information on the local government operations.

The report was turned over to the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill which was gathering the information for the commission.

The traffic islands installed at Five Points recently to channel the flow of traffic have really taken a beating.

Trucks and autos, apparently unaware at first that the islands were there, ran up on the asphalt outside walls continually. The result was tire tracks on practically every wall and in some cases the outside walls were practically mashed flat.

Gradually motorists seem to have learned they can't move the islands, however. No new marks have appeared for the last few days.

Other Editors Saying --- Obligations Of The Future

(Henderson Dispatch)

Inclination of the Advisory Budget Commission on its visits to State institutions to stretch dollars as far as possible is a realistic approach to the problem we need, or imaginary needs, at the present time.

The attitude, discovered in some instances, of all or nothing shows a lack of appreciation on the part of institutional administrators of financial difficulties the State may experience in its desire to be as generous as possible with what it has or can afford. There is too much desire to assume that whatever may be asked is a must and will have to be met.

In instances where improvements have been neglected because money available was short of planning, it has been demonstrated that operations did not have to stop as a result of the seeming discrepancy. We are convinced most State agencies could function in acceptable manner without a great deal that has been and is being requested.

It is quite well enough to look into the future as far as possible and to anticipate needs. But there is no sound reason for leaning across the years to provide these things immediately. The future is amply able to take care of itself, perhaps more so than the present. There is no justification whatever of falling into the error of trying to do everything all at once. Taxpayers of the present ought not to be expected to do more than meet urgent current requirements. And we are convinced that these are well below the level of what is being asked of the 1950 Legislature.

One factor in providing permanent improvements is the habit of architects and builders of loading down these projects with all the traffic will bear, both in the planning and in the construction, on the theory that the State is footing the bill and the sky is the limit. No one can say how many millions of dollars has been applied in this manner.

There is the feeling also that institutions ask for much more than they need or even expect, in the thought that what they actually receive will serve the purpose adequately. Budgeteers and legislators should have learned this lesson by now, and refuse to be taken in by grandiose schemes for expansion, and claims that the sky will fall unless these demands are met in full.

Problems of the next Legislature will be big enough and serious enough at best without exaggerations. Those responsible for appropriations should go all the way in trimming off the fat and getting down to bare essentials. Warning already has been sounded in the trend of revenues, and this is indicative of the inability or unwillingness of the public to assume greater obligations in support of the State and the services it provides.

Least of all should funds be made available over and above what is actually required for immediate needs. The future can take care of itself, and should be expected to do so.

A Lebanon-Round Of Price Hikes

By ELMER ROESSNER

We may have a Lebanon round of price rises, similar to increases during the Korean troubles.

At present, there are no indications that the Middle East situation will develop the way the Korean matter did. Nevertheless, affairs in Lebanon, Jordan and other nations in that sector actually did publicize in the Council might be simply spoken words.

There's no reason why they couldn't leave their regular delegates in the Council then and journey to a meeting behind closed doors.

walls, if production is ever slowed down because of lack of materials, or we aren't in a position to bid on a government contract, you are a candidate for unemployment insurance."

END OF INVENTORY LIQUIDATION
So far, there has been no great rush to buy or hoard materials. For almost a year American industry has been trying to reduce its stocks of materials. Manufacturers' inventories totaled $54.2 million in August and were down to $51.5 billion in April. They rose $400,000,000 in May.

Incidentally, when industries reduce inventories, they usually do it by using more materials than they buy. This, consequently, cuts employment in the supplying industries, thereby deepening the recession.

And the reason manufacturers began to cut inventories in the first place was that they believed a recession was starting. That shows how a recession feeds on fear.

And while no large buildup is yet under way, it looks as if the process of reducing inventories will be halted for a while.

PRICES START UP
Meanwhile, buying or hopes of buying is stiffening the prices of nonferrous metals. Copper was the first to do up.

The situation will have a curious effect on legislation in Congress intended to bail out nonferrous mines and refineries. With world tensions high, Congress will be much more ready to enact legislation creating more stockpiles or otherwise subsidizing the industries. On the other hand, with better markets and prospects of higher prices, the industry will be less frantic in its demands for help.

ing prices to cover the July 1 automatic pay rise but, with rising demand, they are likely to take bold action — to put it euphemistically.

Justice in Community Life

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Leviticus 19:11-18; Deuteronomy 15:7-8; Romans 13:8-10; James 1:1-24; 2:1-18.

Thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumbling block before the blind.—Leviticus 19:14. Love and be helpful to those who are afflicted. Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people.—Leviticus 19:16. Idle gossip leads to much mischief in all times. If there is a poor man among your friends, "Open thine hand wide to him, and . . . lend him sufficient for his need."—Deuteronomy 15:7-8. Follow Christ's example in dealing with all men, not favoring the rich and slighting the poor. James 2:1-6. MEMORY VERSE—Romans 13:10.

Justice in Community Life

CHRISTIAN LOVE WILL ALWAYS RESULT IN OUR ACTING HONORABLY AND GENEROUSLY

Scripture—Leviticus 19:11-18; Deuteronomy 15:7-8; Romans 13:8-10; James 1:1-24; 2:1-18.

OUR LESSON is long, so we must be brief in outlining the important points in its teaching. We all, whether young or old, meet with a number of people in our lives, and our attitudes toward them are very important, whether they be rich or poor, healthy or disabled in some way, whether we like or dislike them.

Even in our own fruitful land there are some in want, and in far-off places of the world there are millions. Remember and help them to the best of your means wherever they may be. Do not favor the rich and prosperous, discriminating against the poor. Love all and treat them with courtesy and kindness.

The younger classes might be asked about the different people they meet in a day. Dr. William M. Smith suggests it should be impressed on the pupils that an attitude of love and helpfulness toward all will please God, and is the way in which Christ treated everyone He met.

Be patient with those who suffer from deafness, and be helpful to those who are blind. It is always a heartwarming thing to see people who suffer from loss of sight being lovingly aided by those who can see, as we may almost any day.

"Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the

"Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart." "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself: I am the Lord."—Leviticus 19:17, 18.

MEMORY VERSE

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."—Romans 13:10.

mightily, but in righteousness shall thou judge thy neighbor."—Leviticus 19:15.

love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."—Romans 13:8. Paul, a man of high ideals, evidently believed in paying debts as promptly as possible, but it is always love to others that he stresses most in his epistles.

"Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people."—Leviticus 19:16. How much mischief does idle gossip do in the world in our own time as in those long gone days. Reputations have been ruined by it, and innocent people made most unhappy. Even children may indulge in this bad habit, so the command should be impressed on every one of every age group.

In his epistle, James refers us to Christ our Lord as to our dealings in community justice. If in an assembly one man richly clothed comes, and also "a poor man in vile raiment" do not seat the rich man in a prominent place and leave the poor man standing at the door. Treat both alike with love and courtesy. Thus may you contribute to justice in your community.

Generosity toward the poor is stressed. If among your friends there be some in want, the children of Israel were told, "Open thine hand wide to him, and lend him sufficient for his need."—Deuteronomy 15:7, 8. The poor have always with us, as Jesus Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. ## Teen-er League Title Game Rained Out

Game Resumed This Morning At 9:30

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

The Whiteville-Lenoir baseball game that was to determine the winner of the State VFW Teen-er League tournament yesterday afternoon was halted after 9 1/2 innings of play by darkness and rain. The score was 2-2.

The game was resumed this morning at 9:30 at Guy Smith Stadium at that 10th inning situation, to be played to a finish. The winner will be the North Carolina State Champion.

Yesterday was a hectic one for the two clubs and the fans who turned out to witness the title ball game at Guy Smith Stadium. Originally scheduled to begin at 3:30, the game was delayed for about half an hour due to rains.

Accident

After play got underway, Lenoir starting pitcher, lefthander Larry Triplett broke his arm on the mound in a freak accident. Triplett had pitched to three men and was in the process of hurling to his fourth one when the accident occurred. He released a pitch which went wildly to the left of the plate. He then stumbled off the mound, grasping his arm. After some delay he was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and it was announced later that his arm was broken.

Bruce Winkler relieved him on the mound.

Lenoir Lead

Lenoir grabbed an early 1-0 lead in the second inning and held it until the fifth. By that time, it had begun to rain again and darkness had set in.

In the fifth, Winkler walked three straight batters and allowed the tying run to come across on a wild pitch. Leon Foytack, Whiteville lefthander, then singled sharply to score his club's second run of the afternoon.

In the next inning, Whiteville pitcher Norwood Long got into trouble and Steve Sumlin scored on a squeeze play by Jim Cooke, tying the game again 2-2.

Cloudburst

Thus, at the end of the regulation seven innings, it was a deadlocked game. They continued to play until the 10th when a cloudburst halted the action. From the fifth inning on, the game was played with the stadium lights on, and in intermittent rain.

Tournament Director Gordon Goodman announced that the game would be resumed today at the point at which it was halted yesterday.

Long went the full 9 1/2 innings for Whiteville on the mound and his catcher was Willis Council. Triplett started for Lenoir, was relieved in the first by Winkler, and Jackie Keller came on in the fifth. Keller was in at the time the game was halted. Joe Gibbs was catching.

The results of this morning's continuation of the game will be posted on the front page of the Daily Reflector. The sports page will go to press before the contest is finished.

Lenoir ..... 010 001 000 -2

Greenville captured third place and the consolation prize by defeating Lincolnton 9-3 yesterday morning. Alan McArthur and Jimmy Jenkins led an eight-hit Greenville attack which backed up Larry Robert's three-hit pitching victory. McArthur had three singles for four trips to the plate and Jenkins had two singles in four trips.

Resting Easily

Larry Triplett, 14-year-old pitcher for Lenoir's Teen-er League team, who broke his arm yesterday in the championship playoff game at Guy Smith Stadium, is reportedly "resting easily" this morning.

Triplett is at Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was rushed from the ball park yesterday by the Greenville Emergency Squad, following his freak accident.

Triplett's arm snapped while he was pitching. He commented that "it felt like somebody hit me on the arm." Both coaches said they heard the youngster's arm pop from their positions on the sidelines.

The boy's condition is not considered dangerous this morning.

FREAK ACCIDENT . . . Larry Triplett lies sprawled near the pitcher's mound in the first inning of yesterday's title game, having broken his throwing arm in a freak accident. He broke his arm in a delivery. The 14-year-old Lenoir lefthander was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital immediately.

RAIN . . . Yesterday's Teen-er League title game was haunted by rain before it began and was finally halted in the 10th inning due to more rain. This Whiteville player is wet and disgusted.

Aren't The Cards Dead After All?

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Is that really just a two-team race in the National League. Or aren't those St. Louis Cardinals dead after all?

While there's hardly any daylight from third to seventh in the race behind Milwaukee and San Francisco, the Cardinals appear to be the only club capable of a serious challenge, even with two months to go.

Trouble is, the Cardinals, just off their second seven-game slump of the season, still have to prove they're breathing. They've won four of their last six, and trail the skidding third-place Chicago Cubs by only half a game, but they're still fourth, 6 1/2 games back.

Sad Sam Jones, seldom given much support, made the Cards look like winners yesterday, shutting out the Braves 4-0 with a four-hitter.

It was Sam's fourth consecutive victory, but he just managed to beat .500 with an 8-7 record. The Cards have averaged less than three runs in his defeats, have averaged less than four in the games he's won.

Despite a split in four games with the Cardinals, the Braves retained first place by a half game since second-place San Francisco was rained out at Philadelphia. The Cubs lost their fifth straight 4-3 at Cincinnati. Pittsburgh whipped Los Angeles 5-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees took their largest lead yet, 13 1/2 games, with a 10-7 victory at Detroit. Second-place Boston was rained out at Kansas City. Baltimore beat the Chicago White Sox 7-3, and Cleveland defeated Washington 6-1.

The Cardinals got rid of 12-game winner Warren Spahn, who has whipped them 50 times in his career, with two runs after two were out in the first inning. Consecutive singles by Stan Musial, Ken Boyer, Del Ennis and Gene Freese counted the pair and brought on Bob Rush, who gave up two more in the fifth.

The slipping Cubs, only 2 1/2 games behind a week ago, blew a 3-2 lead when Ed Bailey rapped a two-run homer, his seventh, off losing reliever Bill Henry (2-1).

The Pirates, just 100 1/2 ahead of Cincinnati, regained a 13-7 season edge over Los Angeles. A four-run fourth, triggered by rookie Dick Stuart's two-run fifth homer, did it.

HIS OVERSIGHT

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bookkeeper Schmutzel Schuller, 51, who has filed more than 50 city income tax returns for customers, was convicted in Municipal Court on a charge of failing to file a return for himself. He said he hadn't had time because he was "so busy making out returns for customers." He was fined $100.

Class Pairing At Linville

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A classic pairing — the defending champion against the medalist — was the setup today as the Linville Golf Club's invitation tournament reached the finals.

Mrs. W. B. Cocke of Charlotte, seeking to retain her title, was paired against Beville Nabers of St. Petersburg, Fla., the medalist. The match was set for 18 holes.

Mrs. Cocke turned back Clara Mosack, also from Charlotte, 2 and 1, in semifinals yesterday.

Duren Finally Beaned In Detroit Thursday

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ryne Duren, the New York Yankees' ace reliever, finally has been plunked.

A pitch by Paul Foytack felled the controversial rookie, frequently accused of throwing at batters, in the Yanks' 10-7 victory at Detroit yesterday. He apparently wasn't seriously injured—just a bruised and cut left cheek—but he'll stay in a hospital for several days for observation.

Duren's mates call him Mr. Magoo. Casey Stengel calls him "my blind man."

The rest of the American League calls the big right-hander with the thick specs less humorous things. They say he zeroes in before rifling his high, hard and inside stuff. Duren denies he deliberately throws at anyone. He's hit two.

The pitch from Foytack, who also throws hard, came on a two-strike, no-ball count in the ninth, after the Tigers had blown a 5-0 lead. Duren had worked two innings of perfect relief, dunking slugger Al Kaline with his first pitch.

Detroit Tigers Sign Five Boys

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers today signed five players to 1959 minor league contracts.

Sent to Birmingham of the class AA Southern Assn. was shortstop Harold Trapp, who batted .350 last season at Notre Dame. First baseman Bob McCutley of Providence, R.I., and Grant DePuy of Blairsville, N.J., were inked to class A pacts.

Pitcher Bob Collison of Opelousas, La., where he pitched four no-hitters, was signed to a class B contract with Durham, N.C.

Pitcher Manuel Axile of Seconk, Mass., goes to the class D Valdosta, Ga., club next season.

Team To Battle Morehead Today

HAVELOCK—Greenville's Tar Heel Little League All-Stars advanced to the second round of the District Tournament here yesterday by defeating their North State League partners, 4-0.

Billy Cannon, former Pepsi-Cola hurler, pitched a no-hitter for the Tar Heels to claim credit for the win. Cannon—who delivered a no-hitter during regular-season play earlier—fanned nine batters and walked four in the triumph.

Cannon's pitching foe was Robbie Powell, Powell was tabbed for five hits. He fanned six and walked one.

Thus, today, the Tar Heels return here to play Morehead City at 4:00 in the semifinals. Winner of today's ball game will have a berth in Saturday's championship contest.

Two More

Two other no-hit ball games were pitched yesterday in the tournament. Havelock defeated Fort Bragg 2-1, and Tarboro defeated Beaufort 4-1 in no-hitters.

In today's game, Havelock will battle Tarboro at 2:00 in the first game of the second round play. The Greenville-Morehead City contest will follow at 4:00.

Scoring

While Cannon was keeping the North State All-Stars in a batting funk, his teammates were chalking up the winning runs. Up until the fourth inning, however, it was strictly a hurling duel between Robbie Powell and Cannon, with neither team doing much offensively.

In the fourth, Tar Heel Catcher Dale Gidley tabbed Powell for a basehit. He then moved to second when Tommy Smith lined a ball to the second baseman. The ball caromed off the foot of the second baseman and out into left field. Gidley came all the way around to tally the first run.

Gidley again figured in the Tar Heel scoring in the fifth inning. First-baseman Jim Maloney got a single off Powell and Cannon got on an error. Gidley came to the plate and unloaded a long double which scored both Maloney and Cannon. Wade Summerlin then bounced a single off Powell to score Gidley. That made it 4-0. Coaching the Tar Heels are Neely James, Tom Money, and Tommy Lupton.

A Repeat?

This year's play in the district tournament is shaping up in much the same way that it did last season, with a few differences. Last year, the Tar Heels also capped their first District ball game and then went on to take the district title to earn a berth in the state tourney at Fort Bragg.

They trumpeted their way through that tournament, defeating Charlotte in the finals to capture the North Carolina championship. They then traveled to Rome, Georgia, to get in on the Regionals. They were beaten there.

Of course, it's early for predictions. But yesterday's Tar Heel win was impressive and an even better showing than the 1957 Tar Heel's first win in district play.

Tar Heel coaches have a stable of hurlers, among which are some of Greenville's top-notch mounds-men. One of them will have to face Morehead City this afternoon. The coaches have made no announcement about that as yet, however. It is suspected that Frank Harper or Frank Moyer will get the nod.

Harper was Cannon's teammate on the Pepsi-Cola club this season and also a member of the no-hitter circle. Moyer, an Elk during regular season, is another of the no-hit wonders.

It is probable that the infield and outfield will remain the same with not more than one or two changes.

After 2 Years, Two City Police Court Clears Queries Unanswered

By FRANCIS STILLEY
 NEW YORK (AP)—After two years, two major questions still hover above the sunken hulk of the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria.

One of them is: Who is to blame for the fearful collision with the Swedish motorship Stockholm off the coast of Massachusetts two years ago tonight? Months of court hearings failed to settle the issue. It probably never will be.

The second question may or may not be answered in the years to come: Can the Andrea Doria be salvaged or resurrected from the depths of the Atlantic?

Meanwhile, one major task made necessary by the crash is all but ended. For more than a year attorneys for insurance companies have been busy settling death, injury and cargo claims.

Claimants will receive a total of about six million dollars. They originally asked about 116 million. Only a few claims remain to be settled.

Foreign underwriters also have paid the Italian line some $4 million for the loss of the Andrea Doria, and the Swedish-American line received a $million for repairs to the smashed bow of the Stockholm.

The largest death settlement went to the four small children of a prominent, well-to-do couple who perished in the sinking. It was for $175,000. The figure was predicated on the education and style of living the children normally could have expected the parents to provide until they reached adulthood.

It was at 11:09 p. m. on July 25, 1956, that the two great liners came together in a busy ship lane some 45 miles south of Nantucket Island, Mass. The extra-strong ice-cutter prow of the Stockholm thundered into the fore part of the Andrea Doria and pierced far inside the ship.

In the next hours an amazing sea rescue took place as the Andrea Doria slowly sank. Ships converged at high speed from all directions and by morning all but 45 of the Doria's 1,706 passengers and crew had been removed. The death toll finally was established at 50-45 on the Doria

CHAPTER 34

Frenchy Quebedeaux had a simple, direct mind. When he saw something that needed doing he didn't waste time asking why or talking about it. When Beulah outlined the situation, he just plunged into action.

He and Bacho had seen the flames lighting up the southern sky long before they reached the vena. They had passed three riders, saddled horses coming down the trail, their reins dragging, snorting wildly with fright at the fire behind them. Frenchy had pushed past them, and spurred his bay at an awkward, tortuous lunge up the hill, but Bacho had taken time to turn his flashlight on each horse as it passed him and read the brands: two T Anchors and a Walking K.

Almost at the Gap, Frenchy's horse ploughed to a sudden, jarring stop, with a roller-nosed snort. Frenchy swore and spurred him hard. The gentle old bay reared and threatened to come unseated.

Bacho, close behind him, said quietly: "Hold it a minute, Frenchy let's see what scared him!"

He snapped on the flashlight, splayed the trail with light for thirty feet ahead. It flared on the body of a man.

Frenchy swore softly, "Well, by gonyes!" he said, sounding pleased. "Tony Miller!"

Bacho got off and walked ahead of Frenchy's horse.

"Dead, I think," he said a minute later. Then as Frenchy got off and joined him: "You go on up, Frenchy. I'll tie the horse and mule. We don't want to have to walk home."

Frenchy grunted and walked on ahead, looming almost grotesquely huge against the flare of the fire.

When Bacho reached the vena a strange sight met his eyes. The fire had not quite crept down to the gap yet, and at its edge Wynn Thomson, in boots and underwear, was frantically beating at it with his water-soaked shirt and pants.

Frenchy, apparently without asking questions, had taken off his own levis and was dousing them in the shallow creek. Bacho hesitated a moment, not quite so ready for instant action. His smoke-stung eyes studied the fire: at some places burned down to red-hot beds of coals, at others still a leaping wall of flame. He shook his head, knowing that even Frenchy's Herculean strength could never fight its way through that.

At that instant Wynn stepped back and came staggering down to the narrow creek. His hair was singed off close to his head, his face and hands and shoulders smoked to the color of burnt grass. He threw himself down in the tiny creek and rolled over and over, letting the icy water soak over his burned body.

Bacho squatted by the creek's edge. "Martha Kilgore go in there?" he asked.

Wynn dragged himself out of the creek. He rubbed his hand over his forehead and nodded. "It's no use! We can't get through to her. There's nothing we can do!"

Bacho was thinking. He could go back to that break in the canyon wall. There a man could climb out and circle around the top of the cliffs that walled in the Valle. From the looks of the fire there might still be spots by the cliff it hadn't yet reached. But even if Slade and Martha were still alive and could be located, it would take at least three lasso ropes to reach down to them. There was a rope of sorts on Bacho's saddle, a rope of sorts on his own — but it wouldn't be enough by at least twenty, maybe thirty feet.

Then, suddenly, Bacho was listening to Wynn again.

"There's a way out," he was saying dully, "but they will never find it. It's through that old beaver pool back of the house."

Bacho leaned over and caught Wynn by the shoulders. "What about that pool?"

Wynn shook his head. "They will never find it. They will try to climb the cliff and break their necks."

Bacho shook him. "You fool, stop wasting time! What about that pool?"

"Why, it's deeper than it looks. Over on the west bank there's a big rock. You can dive clear under it, and come up in a little cave that's walled off from the creek. When there was beavers there, they used to use it for a lodge. I found it one day when—"

Bacho jerked Wynn to his feet. "I don't care how you found it, but we're jolly well going to see that they find it! Come on!"

Martha and Slade paused in their futile effort to tear out and drag away dead alders leaning directly over the pool long enough to watch the cabin roof flare into flame. Even back here at the pool the heat was terrific, the smoke smothering.

Martha suddenly let the armload of dry branches she was carrying fall to the ground, as from up on the cliff directly overhead there came to her ears the faint, staccato bark of a pistol.

"Slade! Did you hear that?" He nodded.

The girl whipped out his sixgun and fired three rapid shots in answer. Slade laid a hand on her arm. "Better save a couple of those. We may need them — later."

The girl's face whitened. Mutely she nodded her understanding, but hope was blazing again in her eyes and even though he knew the odds were still against them, Slade felt a stir of it too.

"Do you suppose they've got enough rope to reach clear down to here?"

He laid an arm across her shoulders. "It looks like somebody is going to try something." He raised an arm and pointed. "Look! There's a man coming over the edge!"

The man was coming slowly, working his way where there were finger and toe holds, sliding on the rope when there weren't. Now he was low enough the glare of the light from the fire showed him plainly.

"It's Bacho!" cried Martha. With fascinated eyes they watched the small, agile figure work his way down, now swinging dizzily out in the air on the rope for a straight drop of fifteen feet, then stopped for a brief pause along some narrow ledge where there was room for a precarious foothold.

A draught of wind blew sparks all around them. One lighted on Martha's hair. Slade doused water over her head, then turned his eyes back to the figure on the wall. Bacho was three-fourths of the way down now, resting on a narrow shelf. He was slowly turning his back to the wall. Now he seemed to be working with the rope around his waist.

Martha gave a sudden little scream and put her hands over her face. "Slade! He's going to jump!"

Slade had realized at the same instant that the little man had come to the end of the rope. He raised his voice in a sudden yell. "Don't jump, Bacho! You'll be killed!" He leaped across the narrow creek above the pool and ran closer to the cliff.

Bacho raised his hand in a de-bonair wave. The next instant his body came hurtling through the air. He crashed through the top of a fifteen-foot aspen. There was a heavy rustling sound as he brushed into a clump of straggly scrub oak. A shower of loosened dirt and pebbles came rolling down after him. Then there was silence.

Got Their Man; Mistook Motive

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Two Norfolk policemen who desire to remain anonymous admit this one. Cruising in a police car, they saw a man dash out of a door with money in his hand, run across the street and through a parking lot and duck behind some automobiles. They gave chase and collared him near a restaurant.

"Lemme go," the man said, explaining that he was running because he had only 30 minutes for lunch.

The wound in Slade's side was bringing up a fever, speeding his pulse far above normal. . . . Tomorrow the story reaches a stirring climax.

Leading issues rose from fractions to about 2 points.

The market was higher from the start and trading was so heavy that the ticker tape fell behind transactions for a period of nine minutes. There was some paring of gains when dealers and investors renewed firmness came into the market.

American Motors, which topped the most-active list yesterday on news of its sharp boost in earnings, was the feature again today, advancing a point to a new high before trimming its gain to a sizable fraction.

Chemicals, Steels, motors, rubbers, aircrafts, electronics and airlines rose. Utilities and rails were a bit ahead in average.

American Motors took opening block honors with one of 35,000 shares followed by blocks of 7,500 and 10,000 shares.

Chrysler also was active, opening on 5,000 shares, and keeping a major fractional gain following news that it had greatly reduced its first quarter loss and was paying another 25-cent dividend.

Chance - Vought, which more than doubled its year ago six months earnings, spurred more than a point. International Nickel advanced its copper price in Canada and rose about a point.

Du Pont and Goodrich were ahead about 2 apiece. Gains of more than a point were posted for Air Reduction and International Paper. Ahead about a point were Ford, Caterpillar, Douglas Aircraft and Smith-Kline-French.

Fruehauf Trailer rose 1/4 to 12 1/2 on a block of 10,000 shares and widened its gain fractionally.

General Motors and Studebaker-Packard were about unchanged. Gulf Oil eased and Standard Oil (New Jersey) dropped a fraction. American Telephone rose a fraction to a new '58 high then traded about unchanged.

Western Union hit a new high and was up a good fraction following yesterday's 1-point rise as sixth most active stock.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 60 cents to $182.10 with the industrials up $1.10, the rails up 20 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.
