Protests Heard From Hawaiians Over Atom Test

HONOLULU (AP)—Hawaiians, who haven't forgotten Pearl Harbor, are protesting the flaring introduction they got to the age of atomic missiles yesterday.

A nuclear warhead was sent streaking an estimated four miles high over Johnston Island shortly after midnight. The giant mushroom cloud of its incandescent explosion was visible here, 700 miles northeast, for as long as 10 minutes.

Thousands saw it. As the mushroom cloud reared itself over the horizon after the initial white flash, it turned a sullen red shot with streaks of blue and green. The cloud rose many thousands of feet higher into the stratosphere.

Calls to the police more than quadrupled as alarmed residents asked if Pearl Harbor had been blasted again.

Hawaii's Gov. William F. Quinn asked again for permission to warn the public when such blasts are impending. Less tactful protests were heard from others.

The explosion of an Army Redstone capable of around 200 miles horizontal range and possibly 100 miles in vertical climb, was perhaps the first test of a missile designed to intercept an intercontinental ballistic missile.

An ICBM, with a speed of 15,000 miles per hour, could travel from Russia in half an hour and destroy a whole city, affording a possible 15 minute warning. But during that 15 minutes an anti-missile missile might destroy it.

Hawaiians had been warned tests were coming. The Atomic Energy Commission had said the surface danger area of nearly 600 miles would remain in effect around Johnston Island for three or four weeks beginning July 25. Last Friday, another warning was issued.

Governor Quinn wrote to the new Pacific commander in chief, Adm. Harry D. Felt, asking permission to warn the public in advance.

Quinn said he had been turned down by Felt's retiring predecessor, Adm. Felix B. Stump, who replied that only the AEC could announce nuclear tests.

Territorial Legislator Daniel K. Inouye accused the military of frightening people unnecessarily. "People actually thought Pearl Harbor had been blown off the map," he said.

Antonio Rania, president of the 25,000 member local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, demanded "an immediate stop to this reckless poisoning of the atmosphere."

Greenville Girl Elected

NANCY HAWKINS HARRIS . . . ECC Summer School Queen

ECC Students Elect Local Girl Queen

Nancy Hawkins Harris, 19-year-old petite brunette of Greenville, was presented as East Carolina College's Miss Summer School of 1958 at a coronation ball last night in Wright Auditorium. The pretty dark-eyed queen was crowned by President Johnny P. Hudson of the ECC Summer Session Student Government Association.

Miss Harris, a junior at East Carolina College, is the daughter of the late A. W. Harris and Mrs. Ruth Harris, 1005 Lawrence Street. The new queen of the summer sessions was presented by Miss Betty Ann Thomas of Sanford, Miss Summer School of 1957, at the intermission of the coronation ball.

She was escorted by Mike Uzzell of Wilson, president of Theta Chi fraternity, which sponsored Miss Harris in the election for choice of the summer school queen from a field of eight contestants.

Miss Harris is a major in grammar grade education with a minor in French. She is acting president of the College YWCA this summer, is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha, foreign language fraternity, and enjoys music as a hobby. She is also a member of the Summer Session SGA.

An only sister, Mrs. George Davis of Wilson, and her mother, Mrs. Harris, were guests at the coronation ball, although the selection of Miss Harris as summer school queen came as a surprise.

Army Sergeant Fatally Wounded In Beirut Fight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A U. S. Army sergeant was fatally shot last night by unknown assailants as his truck was passing through Beirut, an Army spokesman said.

Both an Army team and Lebanese authorities were investigating the shooting, but there was no immediate indication who fired the bullet that struck the sergeant at the base of the throat.

He was the fifth American to die—the first four accidentally—since U. N. troops began landing in Lebanon July 15 at the request of pro-Western President Camille Chamoun. The sergeant's name was withheld until next of kin could be notified.

A Marine who had failed to answer a challenge from a buddy on sentry duty in Lebanon was fatally shot, and another Marine was killed when a companion's .45 caliber automatic was accidentally discharged. One Marine drowned. A U. S. Navy flier was killed in the crash of his fighter plane.

The Army spokesman gave this account of last night's fatal shooting: With two others, the sergeant was traveling east on Beirut's Foudr Street, which leads to the Lebanese security forces headquarters.

About 1,000 yards west of the headquarters shots rang out. The sergeant, sitting in the right front seat, apparently put his head out the window to see where the shots were coming from and a 9 millimeter bullet struck him at the base of the throat.

A Lebanese security force man took the sergeant to a hospital but he was dead on arrival.

His three-quarter-ton truck with trailer was being used to move radio relay station equipment from north Beirut to the airport south of the city. The truck was hit several times, its canvas top pierced, and two tires punctured.

The driver apparently lost his way and picked up the Lebanese security man who was directing the way.

A U. S. Army team was investigating the incident with cooperation of the Lebanese authorities. The name of the sergeant was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

UN Rushes Plans For Summit Meet

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold rushed arrangements today for a top-level U. N. Security Council meeting on the Middle East just in case Soviet Premier Khrushchev picks up his option to attend.

Some delegates were doubtful Hammarskjold could work out the diplomatic housekeeping details by President Eisenhower's target date of Aug. 12. Where it would be was still an open question.

The Council appeared likely to meet about the middle of next week to act on U. S. and British requests for an Aug. 12 summit meeting within the Council.

Tobacco Prices Still Run High

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—Sales at the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets are running more than a million dollars a day higher than a year ago after four days of auctions.

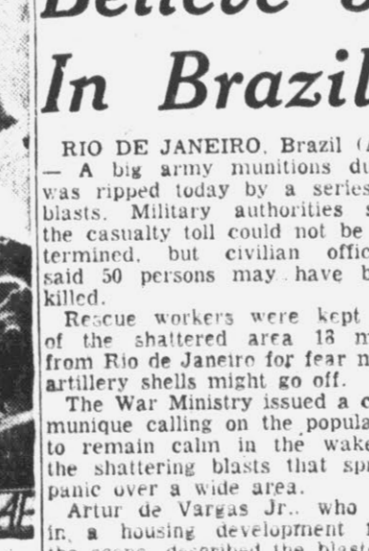

Gross sales for the first three days were 27,482,317 pounds for $15,682,353, an increase of 5,527,954 pounds and $3,990,124 over the like period last year, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported.

Friday sales had not been tabulated but the department said there was little overall change from the day before. Most markets had medium to heavy volume.

The Thursday average price of $57.67 a hundred pounds gross was $2.99 higher than the corresponding day last year. The three day season average of $57.06 was $3.72 higher.

Sellers moved 9,300,606 pounds Thursday for $5,363,656. Fair lemon leaf was unchanged at $64 per hundred, good lemon lugs were up $1 at $66, low lemon primings slipped $4 to $54 and best thin body nondescript was down $2 at $33.

United States Recognizes New Government Of Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today recognized the new revolutionary government of Iraq.

The action came three weeks after the Iraqi government seized power. At that time the United States denounced it as having gained control through brutality and murder.

The State Department announced the recognition was granted after assurances were received from the new regime through U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold that Iraq is bound "by the United Nations Charter and its other international obligations."

Britain had recognized the new government yesterday. Other U. S. Allies had acted previously or were expected to do so promptly.

U. S. recognition was formally accepted when Ambassador Waldemar J. Gallman called at the Foreign Ministry of the Iraq republic and delivered a note.

The note said the United States accepted Iraq's assurances that it would live up to its international obligations and "extended recognition to the government of the Republic of Iraq with the expression of its good wishes."

Today's action had been fore-shadowed by Secretary of State Dulles' statement at a news conference Thursday that the United States would follow the course which its Allies considered "wise and prudent."

The Allied policy had been decided upon at a meeting of the Baghdad Pact powers in London last weekend. Dulles attended the London conference as an observer. The United States is associated with but is not a member of the anti-Communist Middle Eastern alliance.

The Iraqi ruling group seized power July 14. The revolt set off the general Middle East crisis which caused President Eisenhower to dispatch troops to protect the pro-Western government of Lebanon and the British to take similar action in Jordan.

In his statement announcing that Marines were going into Lebanon, Eisenhower denounced the revolutionaries in Iraq as coming to power through murder and assassination and said they had made martyrs out of the country's true ruler. They killed King Faisal and his chief government leaders.

Eisenhower and Dulles quickly dropped this hostile line, however, when it appeared that the United States would have to live with the Baghdad regime whether it wanted to or not. The leaders of the regime also began talking in a friendly fashion.

Users Of Steel Wondering What Comes Up Next

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The street corner, the restaurant, the hotel lobby, the home—individuals from all walks of life are wondering "What next?"

Republic Steel Corp., the nation's third largest producer, announced yesterday it would increase by approximately three per cent prices on its principal carbon and alloy steel products, such items as bars, rods, wire and pipe.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Wheeling Steel Corp., Pittsburgh Steel Co. and Youngstown Sheet and Tube announced they would follow Republic's lead, affecting the price increase Monday.

U. S. Steel Corp., the nation's No. 1 producer, had no comment on Republic's action.

Earlier this week, the industry increased the prices on flat rolled products. Armco Steel Corp. took the lead in this hike.

U. S. Steel, which had usually moved first in establishing prices, was the eighth company to announce it would increase flat rolled products. But yesterday it would not even say Republic's action was under study as it did when Armco first acted.

The types of steel covered in Republic's increase plus the flat rolled products increased earlier amount to about 60 per cent of the industry's total production.

Still not affected by price hikes are several major tonnage items, such as structural steel, heavy plates and stainless steel. These are selling at prices which should increase the price of all steel an average of $6 a ton.

The automotive and appliance industries buy most of the flat rolled steel products. Items covered in yesterday's hikes have a more varied market, including oil industry equipment, building construction and several others.

Some manufacturers and fabricators have indicated they will pass the steel price increase on to their customers.

Meanwhile, the Senate anti-trust subcommittee has voted to start hearings promptly on the steel price increases. The subcommittee also decided to ask President Eisenhower to call on leaders of industry and labor, particularly in the steel industry, to hold the price-wage line against further inflation.

Learning Russian

WASHINGTON (AP)—Courses in Russian will be started in at least seven Roman Catholic parochial schools in the Washington archdiocese next fall. About 400 elementary children already have signed up to learn the language.

Tobacco Farmers Ready For Border Belt Opening

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP)—Farmers in a two-state area began hauling their flue-cured tobacco to market this weekend, preparing for opening of auctions next Tuesday on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt.

Mainly due to unfavorable spring weather and a late start for the crop, the belt's 19 auction centers will be launching the sales season one week later than last year.

Marketing officials, encouraged by price trends on the Georgia-Florida Belt, have predicted an opening day average of between $38 to $40 per 100 pounds. This would be up $4 to $6 over the 1957 opening.

The Federal State Market News Service said weather conditions delayed by two to three weeks transplanting of this year's crop. However, it said harvesting is near completion in some sections and due partly to excessive rains and

Shehab, Salam Meet In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—President-elect Fuad Shehab met today with rebel leader Saeb Salam behind a heavy security cordon in a Beirut residential area.

Salam, the commander of rebels in the Beirut area, and a spokesman for insurgents all over Lebanon, came from Beirut headquarters in the Basta Muslim quarter for the first time since the rebellion began May 10.

Witnesses said a crowd cheered Salam as he entered the home of relatives for the meeting. Shehab arrived a few minutes later.

Salam demanded after Shehab was elected Thursday to become president Sept. 24 that pro-Western President Camille Chamoun step down immediately to make way for Shehab, the nonpolitical commander of the Lebanese army.

Shehab has not used his army against the rebels in more than limited holding actions and reportedly has had numerous contacts with rebel leaders during the 83-day revolution.

U. S. Ambassador Robert McClintock said he is optimistic about the end of the rebellion. He said news conference questions whether American troops can withdraw.

The ambassador recalled Secretary of State Dulles' statement Thursday that U. S. forces would leave when a duly constituted Lebanese government asks them to.

"Of course, we could pull out unilaterally, but I don't foresee that," the ambassador said.

Adm. James L. Holloway, who also participated in a news conference, denied that there was any political significance in the arrival of more U. S. forces. He said he understood tanks also are on the way but declined to comment.

Lebanese ministers still loyal to Chamoun tried to hold together Premier Sami Solh's cabinet after the finance minister quit.

With more U. S. troops on the way to reinforce the almost 12,000 already in Lebanon, this nation which has been grappling with crisis since May 10 faced another one within the pro-Western government that invited the Americans.

Solh's cabinet was reported split on the election Thursday of Gen. Fuad Shehab to succeed Chamoun (Sept. 24) and some Parliament deputies demanded that Solh resign then. But Chamoun said he would stand out his term and his friends tried to get Solh to stick by the outgoing President.

The friends reportedly got Solh at least to delay any resignation. If he quits, Chamoun would be

Army Says Shots Not Involved In GI's Death

FT. JACKSON, S. C. (AP)—Medical booster shots had nothing to do with the death of an Army recruit who collapsed from heat prostration here this week, say hospital authorities at this Army post.

They said last night that an autopsy showed Pvt. Hobart L. Brinsmade Jr., 21, of Bronxville, N. Y., died Thursday of a heat stroke, with meningococcus as a contributory cause.

Hospital authorities said the autopsy on Brinsmade showed that meningococcus, the bacteria that causes a form of spinal meningitis, was present in the blood stream prior to immunization Brinsmade received upon entry into the service.

Another recruit, Pvt. Darris L. Drake of Baltimore, Md., who also collapsed, was flown to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington yesterday. Doctors said Drake was considerably improved.

Brinsmade's father said the youth died after getting booster shots for typhoid fever and then having to march 3 1/2 hours under a hot sun.

This was disputed by an Army spokesman, who said that the longest march Brinsmade's unit was required to make Wednesday was "from the company area to the dispensary, a distance of approximately six blocks."

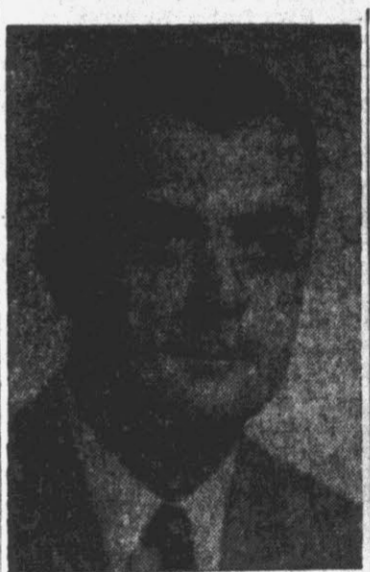

First Lt. Alan J. Owens, Brinsmade's company commander, said his unit that day received training of the type which does not require physical exercise to any degree, such as lectures, conferences and demonstrations.

The spokesman said Brinsmade collapsed on the march back to the mess hall. He remained unconscious until he died the next day.

To save the recruits from discomfort from the heat, an official order has been issued to curtail strenuous training activity during the hottest hours of the day.

Recruits took a four-hour recess from outdoor training at noon yesterday as temperatures remained near 100 degrees.

Spectacular Three-Day Meet Opens August 7 For Mormons

By TOM HENSHAW
Associated Press Religion Writer

One of the largest and most spectacular of all religious pageants opens its 17th three-day season next Thursday on a sacred hillside a few miles south of Palmyra, N. Y.

It's called "America's Witness for Christ" and it depicts the events which led up to the founding of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, whose members are called Mormons.

The Hill Cumorah is to Jews-Mormons what Mt. Sinai is to Jews-Mormons believe that it was there 131 years ago that Joseph Smith, guided by the Angel Moroni, found the golden Book of Mormon.

Right now, some 350 volunteer Mormons are busy learning parts, setting up the five major and 20 secondary stages, laying the wiring for lights and stereophonic sound system and other chores.

The acting, directed by Dr. Harold I. Hansen, chairman of the Department of Speech and Dramatic Art at Brigham Young University, is done in pantomime. The principal speaking roles are taped.

Everything about the pageant is big, including the music (on tape) of the 10,724-pipe organ from the Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and the 500 gallons of water used as spray with colored lights to create the illusion of visions.

Last year some 100,000 persons, less than 5 per cent of them Mormons, viewed the spectacle during its three-night run. About the same number is expected this year.

Non-Mormons attending the pageant will see some familiar scenes like the crucifixion of Jesus Christ—but most of the scenes will include events not generally known outside the Mormon Church.

For instance, there's the prophet Nephi prophesying the birth and death of Christ, Samuel the Lamanite warning his people of evil and the angel Moroni instructing Joseph Smith on the Book of Mormon.

The Beginning

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Introducing A 1958 Deb

In A Sorority

MISS GRAYSON WALDROP . . . looks through a scrapbook containing clippings about the excitement and parties which a deb goes through prior to the social event. (Photo by Peggy Smith)

(This is the third in a series of articles concerning the 1958 Pitt County debutantes.)

By PEGGY SMITH
During the past school year young petite deb, Miss Grayson Waldrop, attended Duke University.

"Feeling that a woman can be a better mother who has acquired patience." Is the basis for her major, Primary Education. Among her many college activities, she is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority.

How does a sorority help a young girl in college? "I think they are good to have because they try to enlarge its members' cultural interests. One must enter 'rush week' with an open mind and not set her heart on one special sorority," she stated.

"A sorority helps in community affairs such as in the children's hospital ward."

Brown eyes and hair coupled with a pleasing personality describe this deb who is looking forward to meeting people from all over the Tarheel state, especially some of her Duke classmates who will be making their debut also in September.

Miss Nelson Blount, a last season debutante, is Grayson's "big sister" at college. She is continuing to hold that title during the summer by giving her hints and ideas about the forthcoming event through her scrapbook.

Having an advantage on the other Pitt County deb, Miss Waldrop will leave a week prior to the ball enabling her to attend parties to be held in Raleigh. She will be staying with a state deb, Miss Pickett Murray.

During the gala weekend her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop, and her marshals, Dewitt McCotter of New Bern, who will act as chief escort, Jimmy Long and Billy Wooten, will stay at the Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel.

When Grayson attends the presentation ball, she will be wearing an Italian taffeta gown trimmed with lace and iridescent sequins which will cover lace inserts on the bouffant skirt. The back featuring panels of ruffles will add a touch of graciousness to the gown.

With more shopping to do, Grayson says, "I hope to have a forest green dress to wear the second night."

Not only will this summer end with an unforgettable event but it began with one also for the debutante.

Immediately upon arrival from school, she packed her bags and left for a tour of the West Coast.

Were the people different from those living in this state? "The majority of the population live a life of pretense and at a very rapid pace," she noted.

"It was beautiful and a trip I'll never forget, but I certainly was glad to be back to our little town."

Scholarship Winners Named Last Week

From the mountains to the sea, winners of scholarships in music were spotlighted in North Carolina this past weekend.

From Transylvania Music Camp at Brevard to East Carolina Music Camp at Greenville, young musicians were featured in concerts, recognized at banquets, appeared on a TV program.

Leading the many winners (they totaled 34) of Federation scholarships, donated by National and State Federations and local Music Clubs, was the state's first winner of the Hinda Honigman National Transylvania Scholarship, Miss Linda Speck, violist, of Raleigh.

Presented by Mrs. C. B. Jefferson, president of the North Carolina Federation, Miss Speck, accompanied by Mrs. Emerson Head, played two numbers, Ernst's Rondo and the Andante from Handel's concerto in E Minor, for the Recognition Luncheon during Federation Week at Brevard.

Allan Swift Tops As Liquid Lead Pencil

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP)—Allan Swift thinks he probably turned in the greatest television performance in his life when he was a liquid lead pencil.

But he admits that as a cup of instant coffee he was also pretty hot stuff.

In recent months Swift has been extremely busy as a three-way lamp, a glass of beer, a pack of cigarettes and an assortment of human beings, ranging from old and female to child and male.

Some of his more delicate assignments recently, he says, have been to do the talking for tennis champion Pancho Gonzalez, golf champ Cary Middlecoff and bowling champ Don Carter. The lads were doing cigarette testimonials for TV commercials but their voices weren't quite right for their jobs.

Swift, a former standup comedian of the night club and vaudeville circuits, is the voice on some 400 commercials. He says his income is higher than "the hottest television performer in the business." The gross exceeded $200,000 last year with the vogue for animation continuing, he expects to do better this year.

"I'm a pretty good mimic," he confesses, "but I think the trick to doing voices lies in a sensitive ear."

Over the years, he says, he has assembled quite a number of tools with which to construct a wide range of voices.

"You start with a child's voice," he explains. "It is light, with a breathiness and tendency to over-articulate. In adolescence, its tone goes down, cracks a bit, with some breathiness. The young man's is lower, with an even mixture of sloppiness of articulation. In old age, the overarticulation starts again — this time to compensate for a loss of breath."

Along with these basic ingredients, Swift mixes in, as needed, a raspy, foggy, strained, nasal or sinus quality.

"Then there are accents to complete the equipment he says. "I think rural accent is the most interesting. Somebody told me once that hollow Jimmy Stewart type of rural talk was because old folks used to get store bought teeth which didn't quite fit and held them in place with their tongues. Their children picked up the speech trick — so Jimmy Stewart speaks today as if he were holding a pair of false teeth in place, tongue against palate."

Swift thinks he's solved the perennial problem of the actor. As long as he can talk, he can eat.

"I'd drop the whole thing like a hot potato if I had a chance for a good role in a Broadway play," he admits.

Miss Gilbert, Mr. Cherry Marry In Sunday Ceremony

In a ceremony Sunday afternoon in Parker's Chapel F. W. B. Church, Miss Verda Joyce Gilbert became the bride of Glenn Franklin Cherry.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Verda S. Gilbert and the late Cleveland D. Gilbert Sr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cherry of Stokes.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Roscoe Barnhill, pianist, and Elbert Bennett, vocalist. Bennett sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Because." The Parker's Chapel Choir sang "The Lord's Prayer" for the benediction. The Traditional Wedding Marches were used throughout the ceremony.

The Rev. W. H. Willis assisted by Rev. Billy Jackson officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Cleveland D. Gilbert Jr., of Raleigh, wore a full length wedding gown of Chantilly lace over bridal satin. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was arranged from a tiara featuring seed pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of carnations, stephanotis, centered with a white hybrid orchid, and tied with long satin streamers.

The vows were spoken beneath a decorated white wedding arch flanked by huge pedestals holding urns of gladioli, carnations and stocks. The bride and groom knelt on a white wrought iron tufted cushioned kneeling bench which was placed at the base of the arch. Palms were used in the background and on either side of the altar, with artistic grouping of seven branch candelabra holding cathedral candles interspersed with baskets of white and pink gladioli, stocks, and shastas.

Mrs. Douglas James was matron of honor. She wore a full length dress of pink lace and chiffon over taffeta. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of blue carnations tied with blue streamers. Her crownless picture hat was of matching taffeta and chiffon and edged with ruffled lace.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. David Gurganus, Mrs. Ruth Cox, sisters of the bride, and Miss Joyce Cherry, sister of the bridegroom. They wore blue dresses made identical to the matron of honor's.

Miss Peggy Davenport served as junior bridesmaid. Miss Donna Kaye Gilbert, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Their dresses were identical to the other attendants'. Master Randy Cherry, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Angeline Haddock, Mrs. Mary Stoneham, and Miss Brinda Harris.

Franklin Williams of Kinston was best man. Ushers were David Gurganus, Jack Cherry, John Cherry, and Douglas James.

The bride's mother was attired in a dress of powder blue lace with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of dusty pink lace with matching accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

Mrs. Glenn Franklin Cherry

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple received in the vestibule of the church, after which they left for a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina. For her trip, the bride wore a powder blue cotton dress with lace bodice with white accessories and the orchid corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Cherry is a graduate of East Carolina College and will be on the LaGrange school faculty for the 1958-59 school term. Mr. Cherry is a graduate of Stokes-Pactolus school and is employed by Swift and Company of Kinston.

Following their wedding trip, the couple will be at home on James Street in LaGrange.

After-Rehearsal Party
Following the rehearsal Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. David Gurganus entertained the Cherry-Gilbert wedding party and close friends at their home in Madison Circle.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. James Buck who presided over the register. The refreshment table was covered with an imported lace cloth centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers of white. Candles decorated the table and mantel and were used decoratively throughout the house.

Mrs. W. H. Willis of Kinston poured punch. After the bridal couple cut the first slice from the three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, Mrs. Ruth Cox, sister of the bride, served cake to the guests. Nuts, mints, and bridal sweets were also served.

Given Tea
Mrs. Mary Stoneham was hostess at a tea at her home Wednesday afternoon honoring Miss Joyce Gilbert, bride-elect. The honoree was presented a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Summer flowers decorated the home. After guests played various games, they were served punch by Mrs. John King and bridal cakes by Mrs. Norman Hopkins. Nuts, mints, small bridal sandwiches and pickles were also served.

The table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a mixed arrangement of white flowers.

30 Years Ago Today

August 2, 1928

President Coolidge fears that many of the post rates will have to be increased to balance the heavy post office department deficit, which has been estimated for the fiscal year 1929. For this contingency he blames Congress to a large extent. As for the reasons underlying the deficit, Mr. Coolidge points to the various bills increasing postal expenditures which he has vetoed in the past five years and which Congress insisted on passing over his objections. At the last session Congress overrode his veto on five measures, one allowing a ten per cent increase in salary to night workers and another allowing Sunday expenses to fourth class postmasters. In 1924 Congress rejected his veto on the general postal pay increase bill, which raised by very large sums the expenditures of the department.

The Kind Of Contest For Summer Days

Up in Flint, Mich. this weekend they are having the kind of contest that seems to us ideal for these hot summer evenings.

No sweat, no exertion, no real effort. Just sit back relax, take out your favorite pipe and start puffing on the contest blend tobacco . . . and the last guy puffing is the winner.

As a matter of fact, the last guy puffing will be declared the world's champion pipe smoker.

There's something about a pipe smoker that seems to just lend him naturally to such a relaxed contest. Whether he does or not, the pipe smoker seems to get more real enjoyment out of his smoking than any other kind of smoker.

The cigarette smoker is forever fidgeting in his pocket for a bag or a match to go with. Once he gets his cigarette lit, he takes one rapid puff after another. Between times he's reaching for the ash tray, brushing fallen ashes off his shirt or rolling his weed around from one finger to the other.

A tried and true cigar smoker is the man who occupies the middleground. He's not as keyed up and jumpy as the cigarette addict. Yet, he's not as relaxed as the pipe guy. The cigar smoker rolls his cheroot from one side of his mouth to the other. Between puffs his jaws work like mad chewing the other end of the cigar. When the last puff of smoke fades away, he's still chewing the cigar or looking for a match to rekindle.

Not so with the pipe smoker. Whoever saw a pipe smoker get in a hurry when he fills his pipe? Whoever saw him take one nervous puff after another from the black stem?

He's methodical, slow-moving and relaxed from start to finish. He fills his pipe slowly and carefully with all the deliberateness of an artist. Even when he brushes the fallen crimps of tobacco from his desk or chair he's unhurried; his movements are effortless. He lights the smelly briar, leans back and savors every easy puff. The fact that he spends more time lighting the pipe than smoking it never seems to bother him. It gives him more time to relax between puffs.

Yep, if we had to enter a contest in this hot, sultry weather, we'd pick a pipe smoker contest on a breezy hill in the shade of a big oak.

Tobacco Price Pattern Continues Encouraging

The first week of sales on the Georgia-Florida tobacco belt bore out the hopes of flue-cured tobacco farmers everywhere that the opening day's sales on that belt were not just a flash-in-the-pan.

Throughout the first week of sales on the southern-most flue-cured tobacco belt prices rose steadily from day to day. The increase in volume of tobacco coming onto auction floors did not depress prices from day to day. The coming week on the Georgia-Florida belt and the opening of markets on the South Carolina and Border belts will give further indications of what Eastern North Carolina growers can expect when the markets open in this area. There may be some adjustments in prices next week, for these are not uncommon after the first week of sales in Georgia. At the same time the condition of the crop in the Border belt and strength with which markets in that belt begin will provide a firmer basis for predictions on Eastern Belt prices two weeks hence.

Eastern North Carolina this year has a quality crop of tobacco if that being grown in Pitt is any indication. If the upward price trend indicated in Georgia continues, the agricultural counties of this area will find themselves considerably better off financially than was the case a year ago.

No Broad Plan To End Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, judging from what Secretary of State Dulles says — will go to a summit meeting without any broad program for settling Middle East problems.

Instead, he indicated at a news conference Thursday, this country's primary goals at such a meeting would be these two:

1. To defend the United States against any charge of Mideast aggression by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

2. To get Khrushchev to agree there must be no indirect aggression in the Mideast.

President Eisenhower in his July 22 letter to Khrushchev explicitly accused the Soviet Union of indirect aggression in the area by supporting subversive forces.

It does not appear far-fetched to conclude from Dulles' statement the summit meeting — if there is one — may turn into a name-calling contest that gets nowhere.

But Dulles said before there can be any hope of political stability in the Mideast — where otherwise Mideast rulers would live under fear of assassination — there must be an end to indirect aggression.

This writer, who has attended a number of Dulles' news conferences, has never seen such a sour reaction from newsmen as they showed after Thursday's meeting. Some expressed the feeling his approach to the summit was negative.

There was no sign he or Eisenhower intended to go to the summit with any broad Mideast program or anything which went beyond seeking protection for the countries of the area from indirect aggression.

He did indicate that any proposals which went beyond that would probably have to be discussed and worked out diplomatically — especially in cases in which the principle infringed on personal taste or seems to be against personal interest.

What happens if Khrushchev walks in, tries to avoid name-calling and blame-throwing, and suggests a broad program? Dulles backed British Prime Minister Macmillan's suggestion of Thursday that a summit meeting begin Aug. 12. But, if it does open then, Dulles won't have much time to prepare either himself or Eisenhower for it. This is why:

He leaves tomorrow for a three-day stay in Brazil and will be back here Aug. 7. That would give him no more than five days to get ready for the summit. Earlier this week he returned from a Baghdad pact meeting in Europe.

Eisenhower's latest letter to Khrushchev made public yesterday — was expected to insist a summit meeting — if there ever is one — be held within the United Nations Security Council.

While Khrushchev from the beginning has proposed that Indian Prime Minister Nehru be included in a summit meeting — even though India is not on the Security Council — Dulles brushed this idea aside.

He said including Nehru might open the door to demands by other countries to be heard and to such an extent that the summit meeting would become unmanageable. But he said Lebanon and Jordan, both presently most deeply involved in Mideast troubles, should be heard.

Khrushchev from the beginning has also proposed that the various Arab countries be heard. Dulles didn't rule out the idea — but didn't approve it either — since he mentioned no countries beyond Lebanon and Jordan.

So the whole business, as from the beginning, is still up in the air. For, after Eisenhower's letter went to Khrushchev yesterday, the Soviet Premier will still have to be heard from.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS COLLIDING WITH A ROMANCE

There was a picture in the newspaper this morning of a bride and groom kissing each other as the minister pronounced them man and wife. It seems that they had first been brought together in a quite violent fashion. Their cars collided. After the crash, the man in the case offered to drive the lady to traffic court where together they might report the accident. The lady's acceptance of a lift started the romance on its way.

They went to Mexico on their honeymoon, and this time no car. They went by plane.

Have you ever had the experience of being ushered into some happy future by a circumstance which was in itself anything but happy? If we could not be directly a result of the increased demand noted above, but of increases in wages. Pay of bricklayers, teamsters, carpenters, electricians, painters, plasterers, plumbers and laborers are all higher than a year ago and this will affect building costs.

More wildcatter. The Middle East situation does not look as if it would lead to cutting off oil supplies from that area. Nevertheless, even the remote possibility enhances the value of United States reserves. Oil companies are increasing their drilling and wildcatters are finding more speculators willing to finance them.

Further inflation. While inflation may have faltered recently in its upward march, it is resuming the cadence. The June 30 Federal deficit, the projected increase in the debt limit, and predicted deficits of $8 to $10 billion in the coming fiscal year are all signs that the government is going to pay out more than it takes in and that is purely inflationary.

RISE IN FROZEN FOODS Costlier frozen foods. Bad crop weather recently has cut the frozen vegetable pack. Spinach, corn, lima bean, green pea, broccoli, cauliflower and sprouts freezings are all smaller than last year, although Northern harvests may increase the pack of the last three. Most fruits are in smaller supplies than a year ago, too.

Mercury rising. In price as well as thermometers that is. Quicksilver prices have been slow recently, after many years of frequent increases. But imports from Spain, the principal supplier, have almost ceased and prices are tending upward. The trade suspects the Spanish government is quietly restricting exports to get better deals.

More premiums. Advance orders to premium suppliers indicate that there will be more premiums offered consumers than in a long while. Many marketing men didn't know consumer sales would hold up so well and ordered premiums to help sales. Now that they are on order, the merchandisers will use them.

FIREPROOF JAPANESE LANTERNS, WITH BUG-SKOOTERS, NO LESS

"Have you noticed the revival of the Japanese lantern?" the Old Promoter asked today. We allowed as how we hadn't.

"They are quite popular among the better-class outdoor parties," he continued. We didn't like the way he stressed "better class" but let it pass. He continued:

"Now here's my idea: People are more conscious about fires than they used to be. So I am thinking about bringing out fireproof Japanese lanterns with bug-scooters. Instead of the ordinary kind. Won't they really bring the garden party back?"

"A sure hit in Exurbia," we mumbled.

Bus Came Close

By KAYS GARY The Charlotte Observer

This will not be much of a column.

But then, except for a merciful God and good brakes there would be no column today, or ever again.

Instead there would have been a large Monday headline — because there were seven of us in the car.

By now the rains would have mingled the mud and the blood and the drainage ditches alongside Highway 53 six miles east of Winston-Salem would not show the difference.

Next month or next year a court would have awarded Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gary, Fallston, N.C., age 63, thousands of dollars for the murder of their only child and their only grandchildren.

And the court would have to find somebody to award other thousands of dollars to for the death of David A. Holmes, his wife, Annie, and their only child, a 16-year-old son.

This would have been difficult. David was brought up in an orphanage. Annie's mother and father are dead.

Beyond this circle it is not much of a family.

In the sum of a man and his meanings this would not have made an eyewink of difference.

In the sum of those in this circle it would have meant the literal end of the world. We mean much to each other.

Bus drivers, I suppose, are the best drivers in the world. Their companies have the statistics to prove it.

But bus drivers, skilled as they are, are human. Humans make mistakes.

For one mistake made by one bus driver at 10:30 p.m. on a rainy Sunday night, I would, given this opportunity, have ripped his gutlet from his throat with both hands.

My round Debble was asleep in the back seat. Smiling, probably. She always does. And I look at her that way and wonder at her dreams.

The in-law Holmeses and their son were back there and Annie, terrified of the highway, anyway, had her glasses off so she would not see. Annie is chicken.

Because of her I was doing only 40 miles per hour. Because of her and because there was soft Brahms music on the radio.

Miss Boo was sitting next to me and the music got the best of her and she was saying: "I am glad I married you."

It was a strange time to say a thing like that for we have been married 15 years now. But then, I guess that is why we have been married 15 years.

My Billy was sitting in the front seat next to the door.

"You said I'd get indigestion. Daddy. I didn't get it. Uncle Julius told me to order the shrimp cocktail. It cost more than my whole dinner yesterday. I betcha. He told me to order the lobster, too. Uncle Julius is sure rich, isn't he, Daddy?"

That's when I saw the lights. We were slowly climbing a hill. The lights were coming up the other side. I dimmed mine.

We were just below the crest when something was suddenly wrong. A reflex told me there was a third light coming at us.

I jammed the brakes, cut to the shoulder.

In the same split second it was above us and on us — a monstrous, motorized, roaring mountain of a bus — passing a tractor-trailer on a curve at the crest of a hill.

Nobody screamed. It happened too fast to scream. A foot, two feet, perhaps even six feet it missed us and roared on into the rainy night on the down-grade at 60 to 70 miles per hour.

In seconds the windshield wipers had cleaned away the blinding cloak of muddy spray.

I barely remember stopping the car at a drive-in. I got out and walked around in the drizzle.

A while later we drove on. At 40 m.p.h. But on every curve and every hill there was that bus. It was there all night. It is there now. It will be there from now on and maybe this is good.

Somewhere I hope there is a driver of a nationally famous bus line who will read this

"I'm glad I married you."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A dog bit a postman here this morning.

NORWAY, TEX.—A rancher told Norway sheriff T.W. Smith that he saw a three-legged rabbit last night, flying about 300 feet overhead on the road to Dallas.

GREENVILLE, N. C.—Local merchant Digby Cummings informed police this morning that he dreamed his house was ransacked last night. He said it must be a premonition.

BUANO, CUBA—Rebel leader Fidel Castro cut his finger peeling an apple last night, while listening to the Jack Benny program on shortwave radio, here.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA Cinema-actor John Goodway was arrested this morning for calling taxi cab companies and sending them to other people's houses at 12:00 at night, last night.

Goodway, a tall, tanned young man of 25, who has starred in such movies as "THE THING and who will remember the car and will see it, too, on every hill and every curve.

Because there is not a bus, or bus line or bus schedule in the entire world worth as much as a single breath of a daughter who still smiles in her sleep, or a son whose uncle might again one day buy him a lobster dinner . . . Or a wife who will say again at some strange time and place:

"I'm glad I married you."

A woman pedestrian looks up and down the street and sees no automobiles approaching near, grabs her little boy's hand, says "Come on, let's hurry," and rushes across the street against the red light.

A man driving an automobile, a small boy in the front seat beside him, slows down slightly at a stop sign, then drives right through the intersection without stopping.

A woman in a station wagon, the back seats full of youngsters, cut across traffic in an illegal left turn without stopping.

A pedestrian pushing an infant stroller jaywalks across a busy downtown thoroughfare. He is accompanied by a woman leading a small boy by the hand.

A young boy boasts about his dad, who "always goes 20 miles an hour" on the highway.

A car occupied by what is obviously a family on a Sunday outing — man, woman, several children — roars out across the yellow line to pass another car on a hill and narrowly misses a collision. The whole family is laughing about it.

A man argues nastily with a traffic policeman giving him a ticket while a small boy in the car observes.

These are not unusual, infrequent instances. They happen every day. You've seen some of them. We've all seen them. Some among us have been guilty parties.

Yet adults raise a big fuss over teenagers who seem to show no respect for traffic laws. Who's to blame — teenagers or adults?

Much of a youngster's education comes from following his elder's example. The example set by a great many adult drivers is dangerous as well as shameful. Until irresponsible adults mend their ways on the public streets and highways, they have little reason to complain about the habits of some of the youthful drivers.

We marvel that many youngsters are law abiding drivers in spite of the bad examples they encounter on all sides. Probably school driving courses, "hotrod" clubs with safety programs, and an inborn sense of fair play have opened the eyes of many young drivers in spite of parental examples.

Moderate Building Boom Foreseen

By ELMER ROESSNER A moderate building boom may be counted on for the rest of 1958.

Housing is coming along. A total of 115,000 new dwelling units was started in June. That's more than 10,000 above any month in 1957.

Other construction is perking up. The total construction put in place in June was about the same in value as in June, 1957.

Issuance of building permits indicates further increases in housing and other construction. The value of permits issued in 217 major cities in June was 29 per cent higher than a year ago, and permits for the first six months of this year set a new half-year record. Permits are a good indicator of construction activity in the months to follow.

OTHER PREDICTIONS Here are more look-aheads in business, based on analyses of developing trends.

Higher building costs. This will not be directly a result of the increased demand noted above, but of increases in wages. Pay of bricklayers, teamsters, carpenters, electricians, painters, plasterers, plumbers and laborers are all higher than a year ago and this will affect building costs.

SCIENCE in the SUN

School and science can be fun, even in the good old summer time. That's the opinion of the youngsters who attend Delaware's summer science day camp. The camp is open to all tenth-graders in all Delaware schools.

The novel four-week course is designed to stimulate further interest in science among promising students and to provide a worthwhile summer activity.

Field trips of scientific interest and visits to research centers enable the campers to get firsthand experience in everything from botany and anthropology to astronomy and atomic energy. Experts in these fields are guest lecturers.

The youngsters never stay too long in one spot. They, for instance, may spend a day at the University of Delaware's marine biology laboratory at Lewes, Del., and then go on for an overnight trip to the Alleghenies in Pennsylvania to see how conservationists tackle their problems.

SURF-EDUCATED. Standing knee deep in water, Dr. Carl W. Schuster, Professor of Biological Sciences, University of Delaware, gives lecture in marine biology.

Students relax aboard the Acartia, the University of Delaware's specially equipped marine biology laboratory, as they head for Delaware Bay.

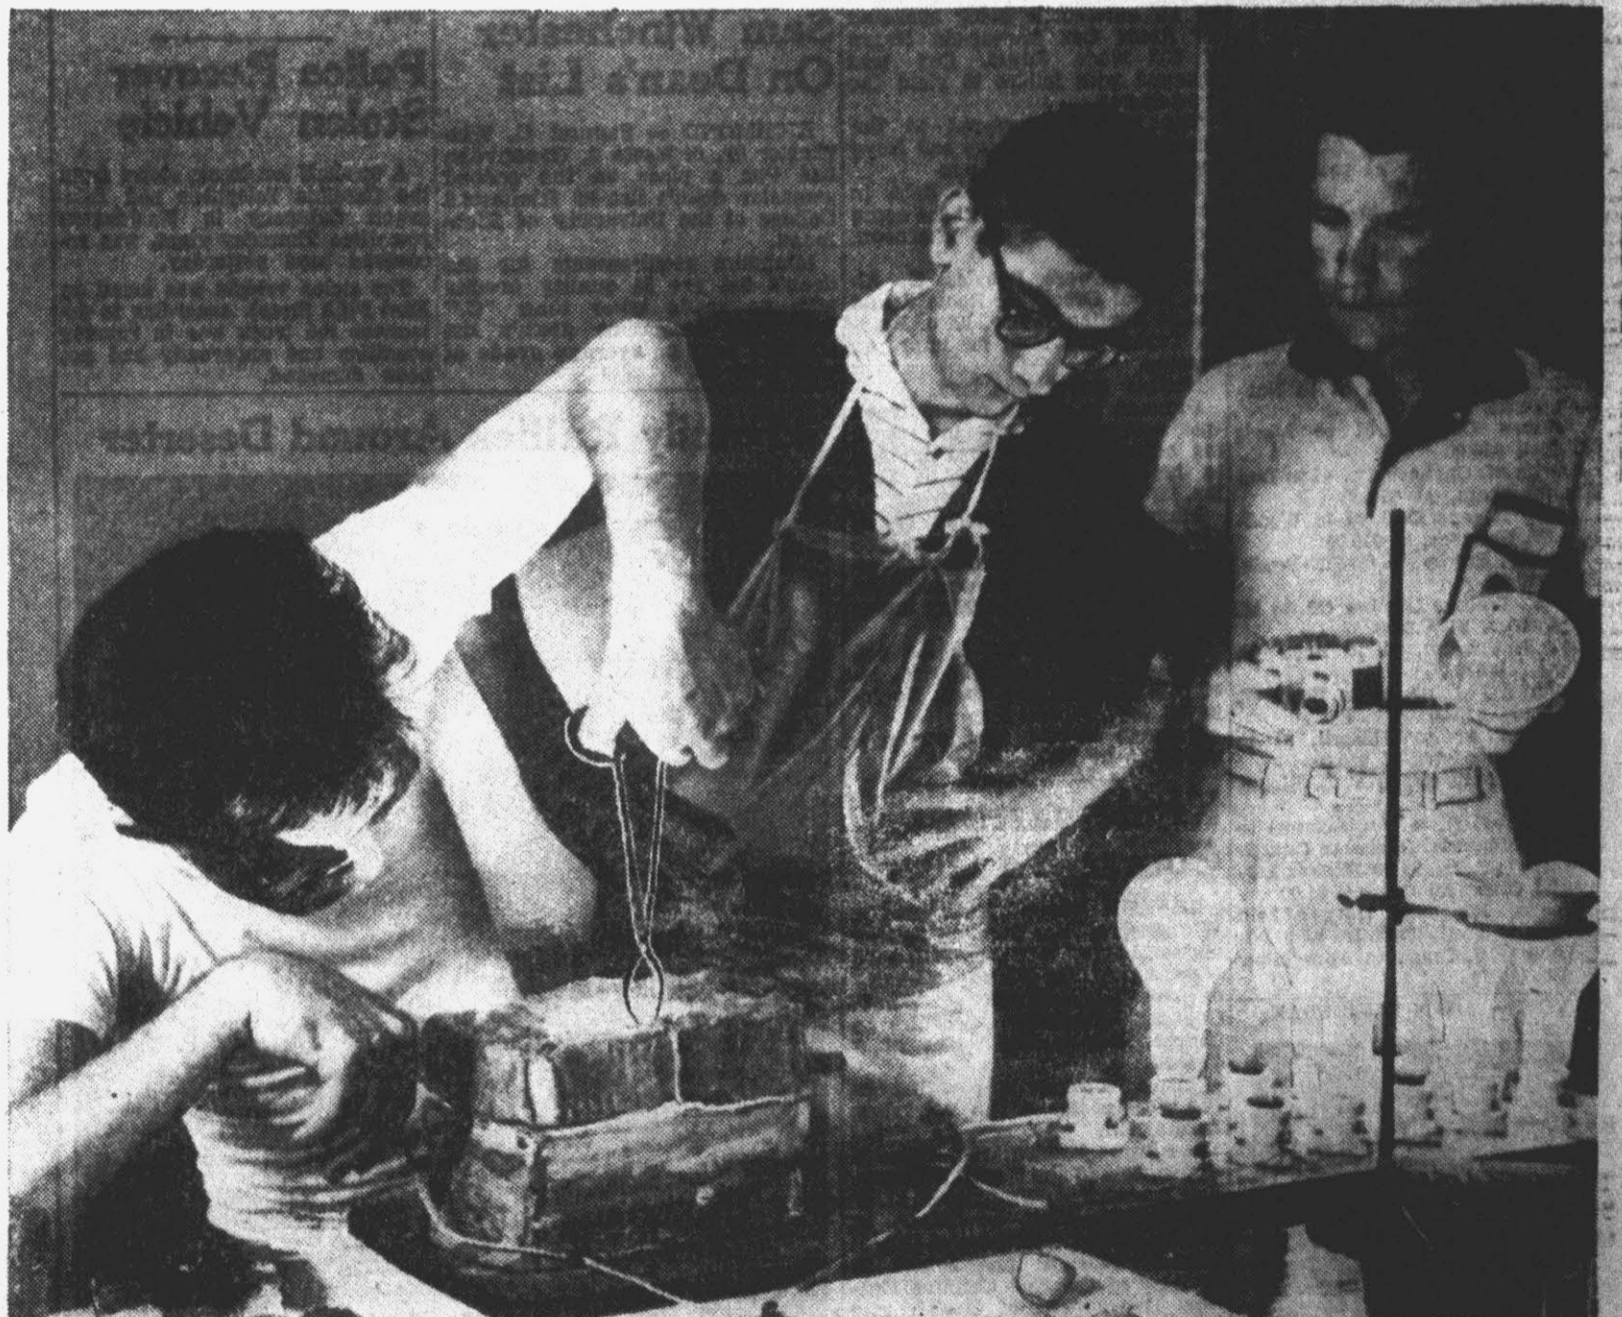

On field trip to Lewes, Del., students collect animal and plant specimens from sunken barge.

A drag-net is hauled aboard the Acartia. The net has a very fine mesh so that small fish and other tiny marine specimens can be collected.

Dr. Ruth Cornell, center, director of camp, helps students identify fish brought up in trawl. Specimens are taken to laboratory for further study.

In laboratory, camper carries out carbon arc experiment while another records its progress with camera.

32 Per Cent Profit Drop Noted In First Half Year

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Profits of nearly four out of five corporations took it on the chin in the first half of the year for a knock-down of 32 per cent.

The U. S. Treasury will suffer a tax loss of roughly similar percentage in collecting from corporate incomes.

But business entered the second half of the year on the upbeat. Hopes are high that earnings will rise now and erase part of 1935's losses.

The Treasury shares this hope. Its new estimates of total collections show it expects its share of gross corporate earnings to top the first six months.

So far 376 corporations have reported six-month earnings. Of these 417 show declines from the first half of 1935, some sharp ones.

And 39 of them operated at a net loss, compared with 16 in that year ago. The Treasury not only will lose on collections from the 39, but these companies will have tax losses to offset future earnings when making up income returns.

But a sizable number of the 376 show that profits turned upward significantly in the April-May-June quarter. Many others feel that the low point has been reached. In the January-February

March quarter earnings of 590 corporations were off 33 per cent from the previous year.

The first-half decline of 32.1 per cent this year compares with a 4.5 per cent gain of the 1937 first half over 1936, a 5.8 per cent rise of the 1936 first half over 1935, and 1935's jump of 34.7 per cent over 1934.

Most of the companies reporting declines in profits this year also show drops in production and sales as the recession trimmed demand for their products. But some show sales gains and profit losses. Almost all the companies complain of rising operating costs squeezing their profit margins.

A handful of industries have higher profits this year than last. Tobacco, drugs, foods, airlines and utilities are in this lucky class.

Hardest hit in the profit slide are the railroads. Only one of the 38 to report so far shows a gain and 10 of them are using red ink.

For the group as a whole the decline is 71 per cent.

The auto industry and its suppliers suffer the second greatest drop, off 57 per cent as a group, with six reporting net losses. But this industry pins its hopes on the forthcoming new models which it thinks will help it regain much of the lost ground.

Boy, 11, Misses Serious Injury

Danny K. Singleton, 11, narrowly escaped serious injury when his bicycle was struck by a car yesterday morning on N. C. 11 South, just outside the city limits.

The youngster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Singleton, suffered multiple bruises and a laceration of the chest wall. Following treatment at Pitt Memorial Hospital, he was released. His condition this morning was described as "good."

Pfc. Howard Winslow of the State Highway Patrol has identified the driver of the car to be Donald F. Wendover of Red Hook, New York. Wendover was not charged.

According to Patrolman Winslow the youngster ran into the path of the oncoming automobile while playing with several other boys at a nearby service station. The victim was quoted as saying the other boys were spraying water on him and that he rode out into the highway while trying to avoid the spray.

Winslow stated witnesses said one car swerved and missed the boy but the second car could not stop in time to avoid the accident.

The free of the impact threw Singleton off his bicycle onto the shoulder of the highway. Winslow estimated the speed of the car to be approximately 15 miles an hour at the point of impact.

TV Star Of 'Cheyenne' Missed Being A Texan

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Pinch-hitting in the "Cheyenne" league is a handsome broad-shouldered fellow named Ty Hardin who feels cheated that he missed by six months being a native Texan.

"My dad was working in New York City when I was born there," laments Ty. "But he returned to his home in Texas six months later, and I grew up and went to school there. And I'm mighty proud of it, too."

Ty is bubbling for the recalcitrant Clint Walker, who walked out of the "Cheyenne" TV series in a money dispute. Ty is introduced in the first show of the new series as Bronco Layne, who returns to town after the Civil War to find himself considered a traitor. He wins the folks over in the end, of course.

The idea is to keep Bronco as another main character in the series, much as Jim Garner and Jack Kelly alternate as the Maverick brothers. When and if Clint returns, he'll re-assume the role of Cheyenne, playing some chapters with Ty and some alone. If he doesn't come back, Ty will have to carry the load himself.

Warner Brothers couldn't have found a more willing actor. "I'm happy," Ty beamed. "Clint and I are two different people. I'm always happy—been that way all my life. If I don't like what I'm doing, I get along to something else."

"That's the way it'll be with my acting career. If I don't like it, I'll just go right back to the engineering department at Douglas."

That's where he came from. A football player and engineering student at Texas A. & M., he came west to take a job with the research and development department of Douglas Aircraft Co.

Hunting for a prop gun to carry to a Halloween party, Ty figured he could find one at the Paramount Studio, so he dropped in. Instead of a gun, they gave him a contract and a job in "Space Children."

When Clint Walker pulled his walkout, Warner Brothers was looking around for a replacement. Ty and bought out his contract from Paramount.

Organized Chistendom Blamed For World's Ills

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 190,000 Jehovah's Witnesses adopted without visible dissent yesterday a resolution blaming the world's ills on organized Christianity.

"The clergy of Christendom," the resolution said, "stands as the most reprehensible and delinquent class on earth."

A loud chorus of "Ayes" greeted the resolution when it was read to the Witnesses, at Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds.

There were 194,418 Witnesses in the ball parks or gathered in nearby streets for the sixth day of their international assembly. A crowd in excess of 200,000 is expected for the convention's finale tomorrow.

The resolution said religious leaders had erred in encouraging the people to follow man-made schemes for peace. The clergy "turned their backs on Jesus Christ," the resolution added, in seeking support for the League of Nations and the United Nations.

"All the blind people who follow these blind religious leaders will suffer execution with them at God's hands" when the present world ends, the resolution added.

The Witnesses believe the world will end at the battle of Armageddon. Then, say the Witnesses, good will conquer evil and the Witnesses will inherit a new world of peace and everlasting life.

The resolution was read by Nathan H. Knorr, president of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, the movement's legal name.

In introducing Knorr, Fred W. Franz, vice president of the society, said of the resolution.

"Without any double-talk or hesitation, we declare the root cause of all the crime, delinquency, hatred, strife, prejudice,

Bulldog Catches Agent At Work

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Mountain storytellers often like to tell of a revenue agent getting a charge of backshot in his breeches. For Joe Fowler, Alcoholic and Tobacco Tax Unit investigator, the attack came in the usual place, but from an unexpected source.

Fowler said that he was with Asheville ABC agents and deputies of Sheriff Laurence E. Brown yesterday when they raided a two-man still in the Big Cove section of Buncombe County.

Fowler was handcuffing one of the men when a bulldog ripped into the seat of his pants. The animal made off when Fowler turned to defend himself, but Fowler lost some measure of a lawman's dignity along with generous scraps of his trousers.

The two men—Arnold Brookshire Wilson, 51, and his brother, James Monroe Wilson, 37, were jailed in lieu of $500 bonds after their hearing on charges of violating the federal liquor revenue laws.

Five Norfolk Negroes Arrested For Shoplifting

Five Norfolk Negroes, two men and three women have been arrested and charged with larceny in connection with shoplifting merchandise from Brody's and Belk-Tyler's Department stores here.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs has identified the five to be Charles E. Moore, 20; Clearance Mills, 26; Shirley Mills 23; LaRose Melving, 19; and Marion Gibbs. Each is being charged on two counts of larceny.

They are presently being held in city jail. Bond has been set at $300 each pending trial in City Recorder's Court Monday morning.

The five defendants were apprehended near Elizabeth City early last night by the State Highway Patrol and returned to Greenville. Employees of both Brody's and Belk-Tyler's have identified each one as having been in their store yesterday.

Early yesterday afternoon a clerk in one of the stores became suspicious and followed the group to their car. The clerk informed police that he saw a sizable quantity of merchandise in the car and tried to stop the strangers but to no avail.

He said he called for help and that he and a college student, Lacy Bell, chased the car to the corner of Third Street and Woodlawn Avenue. There he stated, passengers in the car being pursued, threw the merchandise out into the street.

Little was identified as the owner and driver of the getaway car. The clerk took down the license number and reported the incident to police. A state-wide alarm was

Youthful Interest Becomes Outstanding Hobby

FAMILY ENJOYS BEAUTY TOO . . . although they do not understand all the things which are done in preparing a plant before blooming time.

By PEGGY SMITH

From the time he was a small boy Claude Kidd of 1410 Overlook Drive has taken an interest in plants and flowers.

This interest has grown into an outstanding hobby.

He enjoys working with all types of flowers and plants. "The ultimate thing in planting is to have flowers all year round," stated Kidd who earns his living as an insurance adjuster.

How can you have blooms throughout the year?

"A moss rose or Portulaca plant is what I consider a hot weather plant that could be used as a low border. During the fall I plant pansies, jonquils, iris, and dwarf chrysanthemum. Some types of mums are frost resistant and last through the winter and are the first blooms of spring," he answered.

Kidd was an Agronomy major in college. Agronomy is a science dealing with plants and soil.

This study has enabled him to try a few experiments in cross-pollinating. "In cross-pollinating a plant with another, one must use the same variety. Iris, for instance, are divided into many varieties. This year I've tried two types of iris and I just can't wait to see the outcome."

"All the new plants—resulting from cross-pollination—which I have experimented with have never become a new breed. What I mean by a breed is that the plant can't reproduce without re-planting."

Among his collection of 25 varieties are daisies, double hollyhock and mums.

"One of which I am especially proud is a plant sent to me from Germany called an unicorn. The plant has an unusual seed pod which can be used in a dried arrangement," Kidd commented.

In his triangular paradise of blossoms, shrubs are sprinkled throughout.

He noted, "When one needs shrubbery in a hurry the castor bean plant is the answer."

"A fundamental in gardening is a soil bank. In other words, most soil can give us what we give it," he said.

If the soil is fertilized properly there will be good results. Too many plants in a small area is not good because each plant takes a lot of moisture out of the soil, according to Kidd.

He added, "Covering plants with leaves or sawdust will aid in preventing weed growth."

Tommy and Henry, the two Kidd children, help their father in the garden, but mother "enjoys them from the kitchen window."

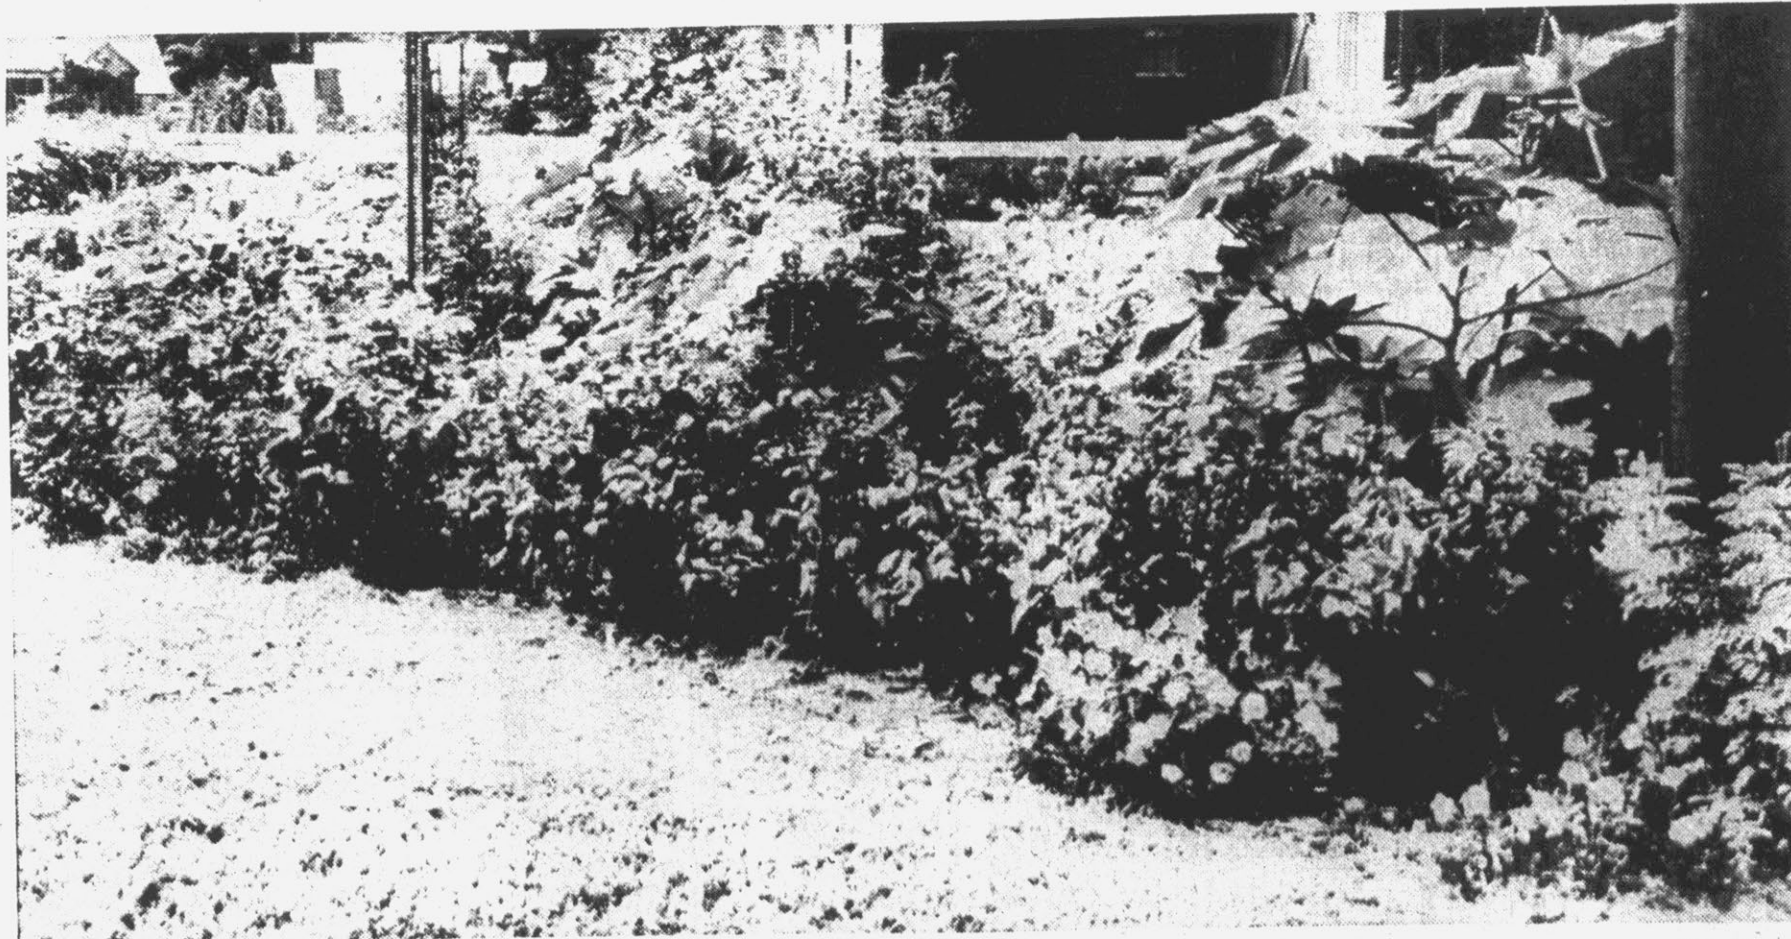

Kidd not only takes an interest in plant and flower life but in producing his own vegetable garden.

"In a 60 x 60 x 30 triangle lot I have combined flowers and enough vegetables for my family." Corn, peas, snap beans, lima beans, okra and many other types of produce can be found in his backyard.

During his spare time he enjoys preserving his home-grown produce.

KEEPS WATCH OVER PLANTS . . . for pests and insects in order to allow flowers to bloom properly.

ARRAY OF BLOSSOMS . . . can be seen in a triangular lot in the Kidd backyard. There are 25 different varieties of plants in the garden.

I LIKE THEM ALL . . . is the sentiment of little Jimmy Wilson, a neighbor, who comes over to admire the flowers quite frequently. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wilson.

Cleveland's Biggest Asset May Be Pilot Joe Gordon

By JOE REICHLER

Fast-shuffing Frank Lane virtually dealt himself a new Cleveland team this year but the most important Indian acquisition appears to be Joe Gordon, the manager.

The Indians swept a twin bill from Boston 7-1 and 3-1 last night. The double triumph extended the Tribe's longest winning streak of the season to six. It also boosted the club into a third place deadlock with Chicago and Baltimore, only a half game behind the second place Red Sox.

That's quite a tribute to Gordon who, more than a month ago, took over a badly disorganized team that had dropped 36 of its 67 games. Since then the Indians have won 19 while losing only 16. No American League team, other than the Yankees, has done as well.

Outfielder Rocky Colavito, the guy they were to convert into a pitcher, socked a two-run homer in each game to produce the biggest fireworks for the Tribe. Minnie Minoso slammed a three-run homer in the first to help Cal McLish post his 10th victory. Colavito's 23rd homer in the nightcap, came in the seventh with one on to snap a 1-1 tie. Rookie Hal Woodeshick won from Dave Sisler, who permitted only two hits.

The New York Yankees blanked Chicago 7-0. Detroit defeated Baltimore 3-1 and Washington rapped Kansas City 10-4.

In the National League, Milwaukee topped San Francisco 4-2. Los Angeles walloped Cincinnati 6-2. Philadelphia whipped Chicago 3-1 and Pittsburgh shut out St. Louis 2-0.

Bob Turley pitched a five-hit shutout and Bill Skowron drove in four Yankee runs with a home run, double and single as Chicago's Billy Pierce suffered his eighth defeat. It was Turley's fifth shutout and 18th victory. He has lost four. Pierce has won 10.

The Yankees, only team in the league playing better than .500 ball, now lead by 1 1/2 games and threaten to better the flag winning record of 19% set by their 1936 predecessors.

First baseman Gail Harris, and pitcher Herb Moford, a pair of National League castoffs, combined their talents to lead Detroit to victory over Baltimore. Harris drove in all three runs with a home run and sacrifice fly. Moford permitted five hits for his second triumph.

Jim Lemon smashed two home runs and Roy Sievers hit one, his 27th, as the last place Senators collected 17 hits against four Kansas City pitchers. The loss, charged to rookie Bob Davis, dropped the Athletics into seventh place, one percentage point behind Detroit.

Softball Tilts Played Tonight

The Greenville Graniteers and Rocky Mount's Pepsi-Cola will play a softball doubleheader tonight at Guy Smith Stadium. The first ballgame will begin at 7 P.M.

Both teams will participate in next week's North-eastern District Fast-Pitch Softball tournament, which will be held here. The tournament will be a five-day affair with an average of four ballgames per night.

Nine teams will participate in the tournament. The Graniteers will be the highest-ranked Greenville team to enter the tournament. They captured both halves of the regular-season title in city play and secured the Season Championship here.

Miceli Thought He Was Robbed

By BOB POWELL

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — "We was robbed" is heard in boxing as much as punches are seen thrown.

But coming from a fighter who won only three rounds, it bears study.

Joe Miceli, veteran ringman from New York City, thought he got a bad deal here last night when he lost a 10-round unanimous decision to Yama Bahama of the British West Indies.

Miceli based his argument on that fact that Bahama went into a bear-hugging routine in the first round after two knockdowns.

"He should have been disqualified in the first round," Miceli shouted in his noisy dressing room. "The referee was a big guy, but he couldn't tear that guy off me." The 29-year-old left-handed hooker said.

Miceli sent Bahama to a foggy island with a crushing left uppercut in the first punch of the fight. Bahama grabbed and tackled his man around the ring. Again, Miceli caught the glassy-eyed Bahama in the first and the routine took an encore — this time with referee Joe Palmer an added starter.

The best Miceli could do after that was crash to the floor in the eighth round and flail away with his favorite looping left hand.

After weathering the early knockdowns, Bahama centered his attack on Miceli's midsection. The pace began to show on the tiring Miceli and his timing was slowed to the point where he was measuring his opponent. At these states, Bahama was crossing Miceli's left with rights to the head.

Referee Palmer, who scored it 7-2-1 in favor of Bahama, said after the fight he had no intention of ending it because of Bahama's holding tactics. "You have to give something like that a lot of thought," he said.

Judge Dick Fazio scored it 7-3 for Bahama, and Judge Howard McCarth gave it to Bahama 6-3-1. The AP card scored it 7-2-1, Bahama.

It was unranked Miceli's 30th defeat against 62 wins and four draws. Bahama, 25, ninth in the middleweight ratings, notched his 52nd of 80. Both fighters weighed 153.

Yanks Reigned Only One Day, Lost To Durham

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A one-day reign as Carolina League leader ended for Greensboro last night as Durham knocked off the Yanks 7-3.

High Point — Thomasville squeaked past Burlington 9-8 and edged into first place by one percentage point ahead of Greensboro.

Danville, in third place, continued to challenge the two top-runners. An 11-2 triumph over Raleigh placed Danville just 2 1/2 games behind the Hi-Toms and Greensboro.

Winston-Salem, fourth, romped to a 13-3 win over Wilson. The Red Birds got 15 hits off four Wilson pitchers. Bob White's three-run homer in the third gave Winston-Salem the lead for keeps.

Into Rodriguez and Jim Tolison contributed home runs to Durham's assault against Greensboro. Dave Justice, winning his second game of the season, limited the Yanks to seven scattered hits.

The Hi-Toms snatched their victory in the final inning. Burlington was ahead, 8-2 when the Hi-Toms came to bat in the ninth frame. A seven-run surge, climaxed by Lou Garvin's three-run homer, saved the day.

It was a 16-hit attack by Danville that smothered Raleigh. A 5-run outburst in the 8th was the clincher. The Caps got their runs in the seventh on a home run by Doyle Dennis with one mate aboard.

Games tonight: Wilson at Burlington, Greensboro at Raleigh, Danville at Winston-Salem, and Hi-Toms at Durham.

US Team Has Slight Lead

WARSAW — (AP) — Charlie Dumas, the kid with the kangaroo legs, and Glenn Davis, the high-hopping hurdler, today had taken large steps toward reaffirming American track prowess.

Dumas, University of Southern California junior who holds the world high jump record at 7 feet, 1/2-inch, has been having trouble getting above the 6-9 level. He was a disappointment in the U.S.-Russia track meet a week ago, finishing third.

But Dumas, who has shirked orthodox training methods, re-deemed himself yesterday against Poland's finest athletes, winning his specialty with a 6-1 jump and clinching the first day lead for the U.S. men's contingent.

The U.S. went into today's concluding events with a 63-54 lead in the men's division and a slim, but unexpected 26-25 margin in the women's section. The Poles are scoring this international high as two dual meets, instead of lumping the points together as the Russians did.

Equally at home as a hurdler or as a middle distance runner, Davis will be trying today for his sixth victory in the space of seven days.

Davis came close to a world record performance in winning the 400 meters yesterday with a 45.3 clocking.

Umstaedter And Morris Leading

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Defending champion Bill Umstaedter of Abbeville, S.C., and top-seeded Allen Morris of Charlotte led the way today into men's singles semifinals of the fifth annual Carolina Open tennis tournament.

Umstaedter faced Allen Strand of Greensboro and Morris was matched against Larry Caton of Pensacola, Fla.

Beansie Frampton of Charleston, S.C., No. 1 seed in junior boys singles, was to play Benny Varn of Charleston today in a semifinals match, while Jack Hepling of Asheville faced Keith Stoneman.

Lenoir Wins In Teen-er Tourney

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Jim Watson pitched a three-hitter and his teammates walloped opposition pitching for 10 runs as Lenoir defeated Greenville, Tenn., 10-2 here yesterday for the regional Teen-er League baseball championship.

Lenoir will now play in the national Teen-er tournament starting Aug. 10 at Hershey, Pa.

Roberts May Be First To Get 300 Victories

Robin Roberts, with 200 victories already in the bag, may become the first truly modern National League pitcher to win 300 lifetime games.

Although Early Wynn of the Chicago White Sox, with 244 victories, and Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, with 237, are far ahead of him, the still-brilliant Philadelphia right-hander appears to have the best chance to join the elite dozen who have reached the charmed circle.

Roberts has the advantage of youth. He is only 31 to Wynn's 38 and Spahn's 37. Barring injury to his arm, Robble should have his 300 when he reaches the age category of the only two active pitchers with more victories than he has.

Roberts thinks he has a good chance to do it. "If I can keep pitching the way I have," he said after his three-hit 3-1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs last night, "I might make it. My arm really feels fine now. I'm throwing with that easy motion."

Roberts lost his bid for a shutout when Dale Long connected for a home run. The Phils snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth on singles by Harry Anderson and Ed Bouchee and Chico Fernandez' triple off loser Dave Hillman.

The Braves increased their National League lead to two games over San Francisco, defeating the Giants 4-2. Pittsburgh handed St. Louis its fourth straight defeat with a 2-0 shutout. Los Angeles rallied for five runs in the ninth to crush Cincinnati 6-2.

The New York Yankees soared to their biggest lead of the season — 16 1/2 games — shutting out Chicago 7-0 while Cleveland was sweeping a doubleheader from Boston 7-1 and 3-1. Detroit downed Baltimore 3-1 and Washington drubbed Kansas City 10-4.

Relief pitcher Don McMahon threw a called third strike past Willie Mays with the tying runs on second and third to save Lew Burdette's 10th straight over the Giants.

Mike McCormick lost his third in 11 decisions for the Giants. Three games remain in the series, which closes Sunday with a doubleheader.

Five Dodgers singles, off four Redleg pitchers, produced five runs that enabled Los Angeles to overcome a 2-1 deficit in the ninth. Brooks Lawrence, who relieved starter Harvey Haddix in the eighth, was the loser. Johnny Kilpinstein, former Cincinnati, was the winner.

Ronnie Kline pitched the Pittsburgh shutout against St. Louis, a fourth straight victory and 11th of the season. Rookie Bob Mabe was the loser.

All-Stars Are Drilling Now

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The care hot summer days, but 74 football and basketball stars are practicing here for next week's EastWest all-star high school games.

Workouts twice daily are scheduled for all squads until the games are held—next Wednesday for the cage teams, Friday for the footballers. The annual games are window dressing for the week-long Coaches Clinic which begins at Woman's College on Monday.

All of the players picked by the East and West coaches showed up yesterday before the sunset deadline.

Bo Farley of Greenville is Eastern basketball coach, while Sam Mott of Mount Airy coaches the Westerners. In football, for the East it's Bill Billings of Edenton and George Cushwa of Roxboro; for the West, Boyd Allen of Canton and Lee Stone of Asheboro.

Three Homers Hit In Friday Action; Title Game Today

By BILLY ARNOLD

Nevin-Derita and Forest City battled this afternoon at 3:00 at Elm Street Park for the North Carolina State Little League championship.

The two District champs earned berths in the finals by whipping their opponents in yesterday's opening round of play here.

Forest City downed Hickory, 3-1, in the first ball game; Nevin-Derita edged Tarboro 3-0 in the second.

An estimated 700-800 people jammed into the park to witness the ball games. One tournament official told reporters that "I wouldn't be surprised if almost 1,000 people showed up for the games at one time or another, although there were not that many at any one time."

Winner of this afternoon's contest will be the State Champion and will journey to Lebanon, Tennessee, next week for the Southern Regional tournament. From there, the winner will go to Louisville, Kentucky, for semi-final tournament play. Williamsport, Pennsylvania, is the next stop and the world series for Little League.

Home Runs

Yesterday's play was sparked by sharp hitting and stingy pitching by all four clubs. Forest City's victory over Hickory was brought about by a pair of home runs in successive innings and Nevin-Derita also clobbered a four-bagger in the second game.

Pitching was also sharp and the highest number of hits given up during the afternoon was the six-hit total which Forest City acquired against Hickory. Hickory had only four. Nevin-Derita picked up three and Tarboro had four.

In the first contest, Forest City came from behind to capture their 3-1 victory. Hickory picked up one run in the first inning when Bob Cook walked and scored on a single by David Hager.

In the fourth inning, Forest City's Gerald Robbins walked and Jimmy Bradley cracked a long home run over the right-center-field wall to make the score 2-1.

In the next frame, Forest City first baseman Joe Phillips teed-off for a tremendous blast that almost cleared the flagpole in centerfield. The bases were empty and the score moved to 3-1.

Jimmy Hutchins, a lanky red-head, hurled all six innings for Forest City and struck out eight batters while giving up four hits. Louis Page was the loser.

Both clubs threatened several times, moving men to third base and then losing the attack. Hickory had nine men stranded on the bases and Forest City left six.

Second Game

Nevin-Derita and Tarboro battled for three complete innings before a score was made. In the fourth stanza, a hit by Nevin-Derita's Oscar Fincher and two Tarboro errors allow a pair of runs across.

Then, in the sixth, Fincher cracked a home run with the bases empty to push the score to 3-0. It ended that way. Fincher got all three of his club's base hits for the game.

The winning pitcher was Buddy Skinner. He gave up four hits. The loser was Digit Laughridge.

A Year Ago, Roberts Worried About Arm

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Robin Roberts, with major league victory No. 200 tucked safely away, today considered the possibility of winning 300. A year ago, he was wondering if he ever would pitch winning baseball again for the Philadelphia Phillies.

"If I keep pitching the way I have," he said last night, "I might make it. My arm really feels fine now. I'm throwing with that easy motion."

Roberts, 31, normally quiet and modest, virtually used up his word-quota for the season after winning six and allowing the Chicago Cubs three hits for a 3-1 victory, his 200th in 11 years. It was the righthander's 11th victory against nine defeats. Last year Roberts won 10, lost 22. He dropped 16 of his last 20 decisions.

He is the 59th major league pitcher to reach 200 victories and if he enjoys the success of Warren Spahn of Milwaukee and Early Wynn of Chicago's White Sox, he may come close to 300. Both Spahn and Wynn are the only active major league pitchers with more than 200 victories.

Since their 31st birthdays, Spahn, 37, has won 117 games and Wynn, 38, has won 123.

"I had a fast ball and a hook and it was enough," said Roberts last night. "I never felt faster. One extra day's rest helped me a lot."

Manager Eddie Sawyer delayed Roberts' start a day to insure rest for his hurler, who has won six of his last seven decisions.

Roberts' one error against Chicago was a "fast ball, a little too high." Dale Long belted it out of the park for the Cubs' lone run.

Postpone Action Until Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro sports operators, after striking out in Congress, were in the same spot today as the old Brooklyn fans who could only wait as the Dodgers flopped at the finish: "Wait till next year."

The Senate Antimonopoly Subcommittee yesterday put off till 1959 action on the antitrust exemptions for which baseball, football, basketball and hockey have campaigned the last two years.

By a 4-2 vote, the group headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) tabled a House-passed bill to re-leave professional team sports of exemptions dealing with players and territorial or TV-radio rights. The effect was to kill the legislation for this session of Congress which is expected to wind up in about two weeks.

Kefauver said the complicated matter deserved more extensive study.

CHAPTER 5

Colin Campbell left the court-house and strode toward the rig that awaited him, grinning suddenly at the sight of the middle-aged boy sitting standing patient between the shafts of the trap. The sedan dusty was not his notion of a proper horse. Still, he furnished a wholly proper means of transportation for the judge of Denbury court.

As soon as they were out of Denbury on the River Road, Colin wrapped the reins around the whipstock and let dusty start on his own. Every morning that court was in session dusty took him there and every night returned him to his father's home. He knew both his duty and the road and he could be trusted. Submerged in his own thoughts, Colin sat up straight and looked about him only when they came to the first view of Quail Wings.

Built well back from the river, with shining glazed windows and huge stone chimneys, the house had an appearance of great age. Yet it was far from ancient. Colin's paternal grandfather, forced to leave the Tidewater because wasteful agriculture had ruined his plantation, had copied the house he left behind and modified it only as the more rugged western climate demanded. The house at Tidewater had, in turn, been a copy of the ancestral home in England. Nearing it, Colin felt the warmth that always flooded him at the sight of this beloved home.

Of his own accord, dusty swung into the drive lined with poplars and broke into a phlegmatic trot as Colin leaped from the trap. Dusty would go on to the stables where one of the boys would take care of him. Admitted into the house by William, the doorman, Colin made his way down to the study which in recent years had become a refuge for his father.

In his mid-seventies, Ralph Campbell looked with haughty disdain upon the effete younger generation. He could be declared loudly and often, ride better, shoot straighter, dance longer and more gracefully, and drink more whiskey than either of his sons or, for that matter, anyone else's. There was no foundation whatever for the first three statements, but there was no question whatever about the latter boast. Colin knocked on the closed door and heard his father say, "Who is it?"

"Colin."

"Come in, boy."

Colin entered softly, partly out of respect for his father and partly because the room always impressed him. Book shelves were filled with titles ranging from the Meditations of Marcus Aurelius in Latin to the latest treatise on crop and animal husbandry. One wall was given solely to the portrait of Edith Campbell, and as always happened when he entered the study, Colin's eyes sought his dead mother's image.

That she had been lovely was obvious; no artist could have put such beauty down on canvas if it had not been present for him to capture. Her blonde hair was piled high on her head with a stray ringlet, probably the artist's touch, curled demurely about her right ear. Her features were delicate, almost fragile, but with a marked inner strength. Her eyes were gentle, but they held depth and perception. This portrait and his father's rare references were all that Colin knew of his mother. She had died when he was a few months old.

Colin turned to face his father, who, as usual, sat behind the desk. Ralph Campbell's face, though flushed and aged now, mirrored what he had been when young. His hair was iron-grey, but it had been very dark. He was bushy-browed, firm of jaw, proud, intelligent and stubborn. Colin noted the half-empty bottle and the partially filled glass on the desk, but, though he was sure that excess in both food and drink had a direct connection with his father's ill health, he said nothing. Nobody had ever made this proud old man do anything he didn't feel like doing and nobody was going to start now.

"I'm glad you're here, Colin." Ralph Campbell tapped a folded paper on the desk. "I've just had a letter from Macklyn. He had resigned his commission and is coming home with Bessie and the children before Christmas."

Colin was stunned. Macklyn, his senior by a dozen years, held a colonel's rank in the United States Army and had devoted himself to a military career as wholeheartedly as Colin had embraced the law. "Resigned? Why?" he said.

"As a loyal Southerner, he will not serve under the command of Abraham Lincoln," his father answered. Colin thought that Julius Caesar might have referred to some barbaric Gallic chieftain in the same contemptuous tone. "Why else?"

"I think he's being very foolish," Colin said firmly.

"Foolish?" the elder Campbell bristled. "Foolish, when these scallywag Yankees are plotting in every evil way to humble the South and reduce her to servitude? Do you believe a Campbell should continue to serve an army that will be hurled against the South when those money-mad schemers think the time is ripe?"

"Be reasonable, Father. The South is not without its money-mad schemers, some of whom see succession as the perfect way to wiggle out of their debts up north."

Ralph Campbell ignored this remark. "The South has conceded all she can and retain honor. These blasted Yankees need to be taught their places."

Colin sighed. They had been over this same ground many times before, and Ralph Campbell had not yielded an inch. He would not yield now, and further argument would solve nothing. But Colin decided firmly that he wouldn't yield either.

His father looked at him searchingly. "Well?"

"What do you expect me to say?"

"Where do you stand?"

"You know very well — not with war."

"But if war comes?"

"If war comes — I don't know," Colin said slowly. "I don't know."

Ralph Campbell sat in silence. Colin had never before admitted the possibility that his devotion to the Union, his belief that slavery should be abolished, his conviction that the South must eventually build its economy on free labor were stronger than his love for his family, his region, his slave. The time for argument had ended.

"You think I am unreasonable," Ralph Campbell said quietly. "I think you are without feeling. If events continue as they have been going, there won't be room for both of us at Quail Wings."

Father and son gazed at each other across the desk. "You are asking me to take a stand on a situation that may never arise," Colin said finally. "I hope to God it doesn't."

The father gave way. "I hope not," he muttered; lowering his eyes.

Colin rose and left the room. Colin was in no mood to patch up a lover's quarrel as he rode his favorite stallion, Robin, through the autumn twilight to Jeannie Dare's. His thoughts were on his father's words. "There won't be room for both of us at Quail Wings."

PICTURE TALK

By CHARLES BISSETTE

EVEN THE HERMITS KNOW

A funny little guy walked into the store. "I'm a hermit," he said. "I've been meditating on an idea that'll make us both famous."

"So?" I asked.

He leaned over the counter. "Ever hear of Kodacolor?"

"Oh, you are really out of it, hermit," I said. "Who hasn't heard that Kodacolor is a wide-latitude film for picture-taking under natural or artificial light conditions?" (I tried to confuse him.)

"Well," he said, "I got myself a 35mm camera a couple of years ago. Only one thing wrong with it. Can't use Kodacolor film. Seems you got to own a roll-film camera to use Kodacolor."

"Let me get this straight," I said. "Is it your idea to have Kodak make Kodacolor film for 35mm cameras?"

"That's it," he said, jumping up and down. "We'll be famous!"

"I'm really sorry, hermit," I said, reaching for a roll of the new Kodacolor 135 film. "It's just been introduced."

I thought he was going to cry. Then he started twirling his beard and throwing gold dust all over the counter. "Give me a case of that stuff," he said. "I'm going back to the hills."

"To meditate?" I called after him.

"No, you dang fool," he said. "To take pictures."

Crash Rate Of Military Planes Is Declining For Third Year

By VERN HAUGHLAND

WASHINGTON (AP)—The rate of military plane accidents is declining for the third straight year, but Uncle Sam continues to pay a heavy toll in lives and dollars, Defense Department statistics show that in the first seven months of 1955 there were 1,204 major accidents of military aircraft. Deaths totaled 673.

In the corresponding period of 1957, there were 1,302 accidents, and 642 deaths. In 1956, 1,379 accidents and 690 deaths.

In the last five years more than 6,000 servicemen have been killed and 11,000 injured in 21,000 accidents.

Of these, the Air Force accounted for 8,270 accidents and 3,158 deaths, and the Navy for 8,848 accidents and 2,093 deaths.

The Navy and Air Force define a major accident as one in which a plane is lost, or is damaged so badly it cannot be repaired. The Army, which has far fewer aircraft, lists as major any accident in which a plane or helicopter is destroyed or damaged to the degree that a major part must be replaced.

Thus far this year the Air Force has reported 314 major accidents at a cost of 435 lives. The Navy has had 614 major accidents and 211 deaths. The Army total is 176 crashes, 27 deaths.

The Navy accident total is high, compared to that of the Air Force, because its aircraft operate to a great degree from the decks of fast-moving carriers.

The Air Force death toll is comparatively high because many of its planes are transports, cargo craft and bombers with multiple crew members.

The Air Force major aircraft accident rate has dropped from 506 for each 100,000 hours of flying in 1922 to 44 in 1947, 20 in 1954, 17 in 1955, 15 in 1956 and an all time low of 13.6 in 1957.

In 1947 fewer than a third of the planes involved in accidents were destroyed. The jet age brought great increases in speeds, and today almost 55 per cent of wreck-

As Deloatch put the pack back in his pocket, the youth told him he had dropped something. The officer stooped over, the youth struck him on the left hip and ran. With him went Deloatch's wallet and $130.
