Curb Prices, Or---

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today American business is going to have to curb price increases or consumers are going to rebel.

The President coupled this remark at a news conference with an equally emphatic declaration that labor, too, must use restraint about wage increases.

Eisenhower gave his views when asked if, in the light of recent steel price increases, his administration has any plan to combat inflation.

He did not answer the question directly but said no one should be more concerned about inflation than the working man whose income, he said, steadily lags behind rising costs of living.

Eisenhower said both labor and business must use restraint if this country is to get along without artificial controls.

He said if prices continue to rise the time will come when the American consumer will rebel in a big way and the result will be something the country does not want.

'Sorriest' Weed
Draws Good Price

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prices topped 1957 figures, buying scrambled for low and medium grades, and South Carolina growers voiced a familiar complaint about the loose weed support issue.

These were the highlights yesterday as the North Carolina-South Carolina Border Belt kicked off its flue-cured tobacco auction season.

Initial estimates put average prices at the 19 markets covering the belt at $56 to $60 a hundredweight. On opening day last year, the 8,930,470 pounds sold brought a general average of $54 per hundred.

Averaged $59.47

RALEIGH (AP)—Opening day tobacco sales on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt yesterday totaled 9,648,762 pounds and brought growers an average price of $59.47 per 100 pounds, the Federal-State Market News Service reported today.

State Agriculture Department officials said the average price was believed to be a record-breaking high for opening day on the belt.

On last year's opening day a total of 8,930,470 pounds brought a $54.10 average.

Average price increases by grades ranged from $1 to $10.50 per hundred over 1957. The big gains primarily were among the lower grades of primings, lugs and nondescripts.

Although harvesting in some sections of the belt still is under way, opening day sales generally were heavy.

A good part of the sales, estimated at between 18 and 20 percent, went to the Flue-Cured Station Corp. This covered top quality leaf that buyers ignored.

As for quality, Fred S. Royster, president of the Bright Leaf Warehousemen's Assn., said it was "about as good as expected."

Royster, on hand for the opening at Lumberton, added, "The market in medium and low grades is very satisfactory. Better grades are not as strong as they should be."

The big surprise was the high bidding for the lower grades.

"The sorry tobacco's selling better than the good tobacco," snorted W. C. Canady, a grower from Cumberland County, at the Lumberton auction.

"Look at these sand lugs. This is the sorriest tobacco I had on the floor and it sold for the same price as some of my best stuff—20 cents above its government support price.

"But it's selling good," he added. "They say it's going in the filter cigarettes where the flavor doesn't matter."

Canady's comments were typical of those in other markets where a leaf with a support price of $30 per hundred sold for $60.

Through the South Carolina markets, a tobacco official reported "quite a bit of discussion" about loose tobacco. The Agriculture Department supports loose leaf in the Georgia-Florida belt but has refused to do so on the Carolinas border markets.

Earl Alford, tobacco sales superintendent at Dillon, said South Carolina markets lost growers to Georgia auctions.

A Dillon grower, Frank Ellerbe, said prices in Georgia "for loose tobacco are almost as high as ours. They're not paying us for grading," he added. "We lose a lot of time and weight in cleaning and grading—but we're not getting much price for it."

The following are auction bid averages on a number of U.S. grades, compared to the 1957 opening:

Cutters — Fair lemon $72, up $4; low lemon $69, up $3.
Lugs — Fair lemon $71, up $5; good lemon $69, up $3; fair lemon $66, up $4; good orange 69, up 4; fair orange $66, up $4.
Primings — good lemon $65, up $4; fair lemon $61, up $3; low lemon $54, up $9; good orange $64, up $5; fair orange $58, up 7; low orange $48, up 10.
Nondescript — best thin $35, up $10.50.

Farmer Quoted
As Claiming
'Mercy Killing'

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The Cumberland County sheriff's office today quoted a farmer as saying he killed his wife to end her suffering from arthritis.

"I killed her to put her out of her misery," officers quoted Almond D. Hall, 42, of the Wade community in Cumberland County.

But officers said Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, 52, who was shot in the head Saturday night, had spent that day working in the tobacco fields of the couple's farm.

Sheriff L. L. Guy said Hall previously had said he was visiting relatives in Dunn Saturday and returned home early Sunday to find his wife dead in the living room of their home. She had been shot in the back of the head with a shotgun.

Mrs. Hall was a native of Halifax County, Va.

Convict Wounds Guard, Flees

If Needed, President
Will Join UN Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that he will head the U. S. delegation to the prospective emergency session of the U. N. General Assembly on the Middle East if he finds his personal presence necessary or desirable.

There has been speculation on the part of some officials here that Soviet Premier Khrushchev—having turned down a Security Council summit session—might suddenly decide to attend the General Assembly meeting which he proposed in a letter to Eisenhower yesterday. Most informed officials, however, think Khrushchev actually has no intention of coming.

Eisenhower told a news conference he has no plan at the moment to go to New York for the General Assembly meeting. He also said that he knows of no general intention on the part of other heads of government to go there. But he reminded reporters that each of the 81 national delegations can be headed by the head of government and he said positively that if he finds it necessary or desirable he will participate.

Eisenhower's treatment of the matter had the appearance of a deliberate hint at a possible personal role in the U. N. discussions.

Behind this, it was learned, was White House consideration of the idea of having the President make an opening statement of the reasons for past U. S. action in the Middle East crisis and the prospects for this country's future policies.

Officials were privately pleased that the fight between the Soviet Union and the Western powers will come in the Assembly rather than at a summit conference. Secretary of State Dulles among others was known to fear that a Mideast summit meeting would very likely do more harm than good.

Khrushchev himself could head the Soviet delegation to the emergency Assembly session if he chose. Some officials speculated that he might do so, but most thought he would not. They interpreted a letter he sent Eisenhower yesterday as backing completely away from the whole summit conference idea at this time.

His bewildering switch in policy, the latest in a series of twists and turns over the past three weeks, had officials guessing. Most said that he probably had finally rejected Western proposals for a summit meeting in the 11-nation U. N. Security Council on the insistence of Communist China. He conferred in Peking late last week with Mao Tse-tung and other Red Chinese leaders.

In a 10-page letter to Eisenhower, Khrushchev denounced the Security Council as an instrument of the United States, asserted that Red China should be brought into the U. N. and told Eisenhower that Khrushchev was instructing his ambassador in New York to ask at once for an extraordinary meeting of the General Assembly.

The President gave his reply in a statement last night, saying that "the General Assembly is completely acceptable" to him. Eisenhower added that he was instructing Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to seek Security Council action at once on a United States resolution to put the immediate Middle East problems before the General Assembly.

In New York, the Council was called to meet tomorrow afternoon. U. N. sources expressed confidence the Council would act during the day, which under U. N. rules would clear the way for an Assembly meeting starting Friday.

Pilot Killed In Carrier Takeoff

BEIRUT (AP)—A U. S. fighter pilot was killed Monday when his plane crashed 30 seconds after a catapult takeoff from the carrier Saratoga.

A naval spokesman today identified him as Lt. (jg.) Kenneth Seawright Jr. of the U. S. Naval Reserve.

He is survived by his widow, Betty Ann Seawright of Jackson, Miss., and his father, K. C. Seawright of Albany, Miss.

Seawright was catapulted in a normal launching in an F3H Demon Navy all-weather jet fighter interceptor during regular operations.

The spokesman said a search continued until dawn. He said the body was not recovered.

CHURCHMAN DIES

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A leader in the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 76-year-old Henry Stephen Premier, died here yesterday following a brief illness.

Authorities are pressing their search for a Winterville Negro who assaulted a Greene County Prison Camp guard this morning and escaped near Farmville.

The guard, Richard M. Smith, approximately 47-year-old, was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment shortly after the attack occurred on a rural dirt road near the Pitt-Greene county line. Smith was struck over the eye by a bush ax allegedly thrown by Simmie Lee Moyer, 18-year-old prisoner.

Smith underwent surgery this morning for a deep laceration of the right forehead. According to reports from an attending physician, his condition is considered "good."

The escape was the second in the Pitt-Greene county area during the past 24 hours. Early yesterday afternoon George Dewey Bennett, 25, escaped from a Pitt County road gang in the Haddock's Cross Roads section.

The hunt for Moyer has been centralized in the Farmville area. It has been estimated that more than 50 officers are searching for the escapee, including personnel from prison camps in three divisions and law enforcement representatives from agencies throughout Pitt and Greene Counties.

According to James Langley, superintendent of the Greene County camp, the assault occurred around 9:30. A short time later Smith was found unconscious on the side of the road and immediately transferred to the hospital for surgery. It was first thought that his condition was extremely serious.

Langley stated that Moyer refused to work and cursed Smith and a foreman who went back to the prison camp to request that a truck be set out to pick up the riotous prisoner. Moyer continued to curse, adding that he wasn't going to work nor was he going back to the prison camp.

Later after the foreman left for assistance, Moyer reportedly asked permission to answer a call of nature. When Smith refused his request, he picked up a nearby bush ax and hurled it at him.

The blade, Langley said, struck the unsuspecting guard just above the right eye. He fell to the roadside in a daze, bleeding. Moyer then ran into the underbrush.

Other members of the road gang, all serving sentences on misdemeanor charges, did not attempt to escape but remained with Smith until help arrived.

At the time of the incident the convicts were working on a rural dirt road approximately one mile from the county line and two miles from Farmville. It is thought that Moyer is still in the general area of his escape but he had not been apprehended around 1 o'clock today.

Moyer, whose nickname is "Zorro," was serving 30 days for assault. He was sentenced from the Winterville mayor's court by Burney Tucker last month and would have had only about three weeks to serve before his release.

The conviction was the fourth for the Winterville youth. Previously he had received a two-year sentence for assault with a deadly weapon and 90 days on other convictions including profane and indecent language and simple assault.

Pitt County Escape

Bennett, who escaped from a Pitt County road gang around 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, is considered "extremely" dangerous by prison authorities. He was serving a 40-year sentence for second degree burglary in Gates County and a seven-year sentence for an undisclosed offense, committed in Harnett County. Both offenses occurred last year.

The escape took place in the same vicinity that two other convicts escaped Monday morning.

According to unofficial reports, Bennett ran from a road gang laying a drainage ditch on a rural paved road in front of a dwelling. The convict reportedly ran from the ditch bank, along side the house and into a nearby cornfield.

Neither the guard nor the foreman at the scene have been available for comment. The guard was quoted as saying that Bennett was out of range before he could fire his weapon.

A search was immediately instigated by prison camp personnel who were assisted by the State Highway Patrol and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. Bloodhounds were called in and the search continued on through the night but Bennett was not apprehended.

This morning the search was temporarily abandoned by authorities who are now searching for Moyer in the Farmville area.

The two prisoners who concealed themselves in a squad truck and escaped while a road gang was working on a rural paved road in the same area Monday were apprehended Monday night by prison authorities.

Temperature Hit
89 On Tuesday

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 89 degrees. Lowest last night was 68, and at 8 a.m. today the Utilities Plant thermometer registered 73 degrees.

No precipitation during the 24-hour period.

Tar River at Greenville today was 6 ft., 9 in. level, above normal as a result of upstate rains during the weekend.

Reject One
Plat For Subdivision

Planning-zoning commissioners last night approved the opening of a new street, accepted the final plat of one sub-division and rejected another final plat.

The street which is to be opened is the eastern end of Deck St. The short thoroughfare is located in the south Pitt St. area.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam told the commissioners that residents have no way out of the south Greenville area except to return to 16th St. by way of Pitt St.

Owners of the property were asking permission to open Deck St. from the point where it presently ends, across an undeveloped area to Evans St. Ext., Bloxam said.

The property owners, W. C. Clark and H. L. Elks, have agreed to pay the cost of the work.

Commissioners approved the plan on condition that no lots be sold along the new street until a plat is submitted to the Planning-Zoning Commission for approval.

That is in accordance with the zoning regulations.

The commission's recommendations on the matter must go to the City Council for final approval.

A final plat of Englewood Addition No. 2 was returned to the commission last night for approval.

The developers, Blount and Taft, had made changes in the eastern end of the development in accordance with the commission's earlier recommendations. The plat was accepted by the group.

Englewood lies between 14th St. and Greenville Blvd. and the eastern edge of the new section was in an area about midway between the Elm St. and the Greenville Blvd. crossings of the Norfolk and Southern Railroad.

The commissioners had asked that some of the lots on the eastern edge be left off until plans could be made for a thorough street in the area to cross the railroad at that point.

Such a street might eventually lead from Greenville Blvd. to Fifth St.

Commissioners took a dubious look at a 60-foot right-of-way left for First St. in a final plat of Wilson Acres Ext. No. 4.

The area lies in East Greenville south of Third St. and east of Elm St.

Commission Chairman Frank Little pointed out that the city's major street plan calls for 100-foot right-of-way for First St. from Greene St. to the intersection of U. S. 264-U. S. 264-A.

The overall plan calls for an eventual belt-line of major streets within the city.

Commission Member Jack Wallace noted that the preliminary plat on which the addition is based is out of date anyway.

He pointed to the ordinances (Continued on Page 12)

Bank Officials Continue Study
Bids For New Office Building

Officials of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company today continued their study of bids for construction contracts for a new three-story home office for the 17-unit banking system.

Bids for the project, a stone-and-brick, semi-fireproof structure to be constructed on the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets, were opened yesterday. Low bidder for the general contract was Jones Brothers and Company of Wilson with a price of $408,318. Second-low was P. S. West Construction Company of Greenville with a bid of $412,986 and third-low was Dunn Building Supply Company of Greenville with a bid of $417,776.

No contracts will be awarded for the project, according to Guaranty President J. Herbert Waldrop, until bank officials have completed a study of alternate proposals with representatives of firms which are handling architectural and engineering planning. The bank has 35 days in which to accept or reject bids which were presented yesterday.

The new building will replace present headquarters facilities of the bank which are now located on Evans Street. The structure, which will be of a modernistic design, will include 21,000 square feet of floor space, with Commercial Department facilities on the first floor; Trust Department, Auditing and Bookkeeping Department, and employees' lounges on the second floor; and a directors' room and a "community room" on the third floor. The community room, according to bank personnel, will be available for meetings of organizations in the Greenville area.

According to present plans of bank officials, the Evans Street location of Guaranty Bank will become a branch office, which will give the company five branches in Greenville plus offices in 13 other Eastern North Carolina towns and communities. The State Banking Commission has already given its permission for the system to operate a branch facility at the Evans Street office.

Assisting bank officials in their study of bids opened yesterday are representatives of Krueger, Incorporated, of Atlanta, general supervisor of the project, and Norris and Company, also of Atlanta, which is handling architectural and engineering details.

The new headquarters location for the bank will be on what is now a municipal parking lot opposite Greenville's City Hall. The new building will include some parking facilities for customers, plus a drive-in banking window.

Waldrop, discussing the project this morning, said, "We have received a contract and we will not do so until final decisions are made on alternate proposals included in the bids."

"We feel, however, that the new building is needed to handle present banking activities of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, and, also, to handle anticipated and proposed growth of the bank in line with the anticipated and proposed growth of Eastern North Carolina. It is, we believe, a major step forward in keeping pace with Eastern North Carolina's economic advancement, and an indication of our faith in this area's industrial and agricultural growth."

Bids offered yesterday are for the general contract and do not include bids on fixtures, a vault or land, according to Waldrop.

The proposed structure will be completely air-conditioned and will utilize electric heat pumps for heating. When it is completed, the building will be one of the largest in North Carolina to have the electric heat pumps which are used in place of conventional furnaces, according to a representative of the architectural firm.

Historical Society Hears Frank Wooten

Frank M. Wooten Jr., an attorney of Greenville and a member of the House of Representatives from Pitt County and Greenville at the Historical Society meeting recently.

He stated that Pitt County was formed in 1760 and named for William Pitt. In 1786 commissioners were appointed to build a courthouse, prison, pillory, and stocks on the lands of John Hardee on the Washington Highway.

A tax of two shillings was levied for two years to pay for these buildings, said Wooten, and in 1771 the county had grown to such importance that a permanent town and good courthouse were wanted.

Richard Evans, a member of the Assembly, introduced a bill for a town on his lands which was passed in December. The town was named Martinborough in honor of Governor Josiah Martin, but was changed later to Greenville honoring Nathaniel Greene.

In 1789 William Blount got a bill through legislature for a new courthouse which was burned in 1858.

Important events were the incorporation of Pitt Academy and the opening of the plank road between Greenville and Raleigh by way of Marlboro and Wilson.

Wooten noted that the arrival of stagecoaches was always an event with many people on hand to see them arrive.

The Gazette, edited by John Brown, was the first newspaper in Greenville. The Express was established in 1877 by L. Thomas and Company. It continued in publication until December 31, 1881 when it was purchased by brothers J. R. Whichard and David Jordan Whichard who had worked for Thomas on the Express. On January 13, 1882 the name of the paper was changed to The Eastern Reflector under the ownership of the Whichard brothers. In 1885 J. R. Whichard moved from Pitt County to engage in the newspaper business elsewhere and David Jordan Whichard became sole owner.

It has been published since 1882 and is now The Daily Reflector under the direction of D. J. Whichard Jr.

In 1889 a railroad from Scotland Neck to Kinston was finished as far as Greenville. Until the railroad bridge was completed the trains stopped on the north side of the river.

Hedgepeth-Lloyd Marry

BELL ARTHUR—Miss Frances Dean Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Lloyd Sr., and Jordan Rex Hedgepeth, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hedgepeth of Farmville, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at the Arthur Christian Church Sunday afternoon with the Rev. Billy R. Bennett officiating.

The vows were spoken at the altar which had seven tiered candelabra with cathedral candles in the background and were interwoven with white gladioli and palm leaves were used at each side of the burning tapers. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Doris Crawley, pianist, and Mrs. Jaxie Kinsaul who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Threefold Amen" as the benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white length gown of baby blue taffeta which was covered with white embroidered organza. Her blue cummerbund extended down the back of her gown to the scalloped hemline. She wore a short stole of white embroidered organza and lace gloves. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a headpiece covered with the traditional orange blossoms and she carried a white Bible covered with lilies-of-the-valley, stephanotis, centered with a hybrid orchid and tied with long white streamers.

Miss Yvonne Rasberry of Bell Arthur served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Dru Hedgepeth, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss LeAnn Newby of Greenville, classmate of the bride.

The honor attendant wore a white length gown of pink taffeta with a matching tiered net skirt and long pink gloves. Wearing a pink headpiece covered with pink flowers, she carried a cascade bouquet of purple asters. The bridesmaids wore blue dresses identical to that of the honor attendant, white gloves and carried nosegays of asters.

Charles Walston of Farmville served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Smith, former classmate of the bridegroom, and Alton Hedgepeth, brother of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lloyd wore a street length dress of gray lace over pink taffeta and white accessories. Her corsage was of purple asters.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blue sheath street length dress with white accessories and an aster corsage.

Reception
Following the ceremony a reception was held in the educational department of the church. Mrs. James Lewis, director of the wedding, greeted guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sr., parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Hedgepeth, parents of the bridegroom, the bride and bridegroom and members of their wedding party.

The table was covered with a pink imported linen cloth centered with an arrangement of mixed flowers. Silver candelabra with pink candles were used.

Orange ice was served from a cut glass punch bowl by Miss Gray Heath, assisted by Mrs. Applene Pruitt, Miss LeAnn Newby, and Miss Dru Hedgepeth assisting, served the three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Guests served themselves mints from a silver bon bon dish.

Guests were registered by Miss Beulah Lloyd, sister of the bride. Following the rehearsal Saturday night, Mrs. D. J. Rasberry and daughter, Yvonne, entertained the Lloyd-Hedgepeth wedding party and close friends at their home.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Rasberry. Miss Yvonne Rasberry served wedding cake and Charles Walston poured lime ice punch. Salted nuts and mints were served buffet style from the cut lace tablecloth.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Rasberry and Mrs. Raymond Webb.

In the receiving line were Miss Sigmon, Mrs. Bryce Sigmon, the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Cruce Palmer of Bernardsville, N. J., and Miss Nancy Wike, bride-elect who shared honors at the party with Miss Sigmon.

Little Miss Elaine Fleming, niece of the hostesses, invited guests into the dining room. Mrs. Frank Kohler of Conshohocken, Pa. served french coffee, while cheese dips, cocktail crackers, assorted trays of sweet breads and sandwiches were served buffet style.

The appointed table was covered with an imported Italian cutwork linen cloth. Mixed summer flowers of day lilies, snapdragons, and roses carried out the pink and green motif.

Summer cut flowers decorated the rest of the home. The hostesses presented Miss Sigmon with china in her chosen pattern and Miss Wike with brass candlesticks.

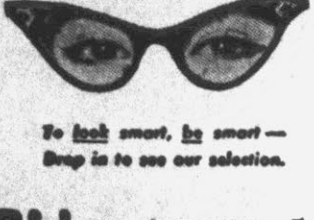

30 Years Ago Today

August 6, 1928

"It looks like there is going to be a pronounced shortage of tobacco in this section of the state as result of the inability of farmers to get their crop from the fields in time," reassured one of the leading growers in Pitt County today. "I have already heard of numbers of farmers losing as much as five barns each from this single cause. This no doubt will have a tendency of bringing about an improvement in the price situation, although this is only a matter of conjecture at this time. This is the first time in years this particular situation has prevailed in Pitt County and the majority are viewing their losses with more than ordinary concern."

Defrosting Freezer Should Be A Cinch

One of the jobs freezer-owners dread most is the defrosting—and according to Nita Orr, Agricultural Extension Service frozen foods specialist, "The less defrosting you need to do the better."

So what must you do to cut down on the number of times you have to defrost the freezer? Miss Orr offers these suggestions:

Open the freezer seldom. That takes good planning. You bought that freezer to use so use it; but plan so you can use it without opening it any more than you have to. Air is more moist in the summer, so that means that the more you open your freezer, the more frost collects in it, especially in the summer.

Put the food in good frozen food containers, well closed, or in good frozen food packaging material put on right. "Then," says Miss Orr, "moisture will not leave the food, seep through the package, and settle as frost on the freezer—unless, of course, the food is mishandled and the packaging gets torn or the top comes off a container."

Close the freezer door on a piece of paper. If there's no tension and the paper pulls out or moves, the gasket does not fit. If this is the case then you must do something about it. The freezer may not be level, the door hinges or the latch may need adjusting, or you may need a new gasket.

Sometimes, Miss Orr cautions, black mold forms on and around the door gasket where there is leakage. To remove this, she suggests applying 50 per cent solution of household bleach with a toothbrush, thoroughly rinse with

Khrushchev Has About Wrecked Early Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, principal bellwether in an on-and-off campaign since last December for a summit conference, now appears to have wrecked any chance for an early heads-of-government meeting.

This is the view of Western diplomats in the wake of the Soviet Premier's latest message to President Eisenhower, calling instead for a special meeting of the U. N. General Assembly.

Here is a summary of summit negotiations that began anew after U. S. troops landed in Lebanon in mid-July.

July 19 — Khrushchev accused the United States and Britain of aggression in the Middle East. Pointing to danger of a general war, he called for a five-power summit meeting July 22 at Geneva or elsewhere.

July 22 — Eisenhower, bowing to British insistence, wrote Khrushchev he would accept a summit meeting within the U. N. Security Council if it was generally desired. French Premier de Gaulle accepted the principle of a summit meeting but said it should be outside the United Nations.

July 23 — Khrushchev expressed willingness to attend a U. N. summit gathering—if India and Arab nations also were represented. He suggested July 28 for a starting date.

July 25 — Eisenhower wrote back that July 28 was too early and that the ground rules, including time and place and other nations to be invited, should be arranged by the Security Council itself. He also said the real issue for a summit conference to discuss was the threat to the independence of small Middle East nations—a reference to Soviet efforts to overthrow pro-Western nations.

July 26 — British Prime Minister Macmillan, in a note to Khrushchev, backed Eisenhower's proposal. De Gaulle again called for a meeting outside the United Nations and away from New York.

July 28 — Khrushchev accused Eisenhower and Macmillan of stalling and went back to his original proposal for a five-power conference in Europe, perhaps at Moscow.

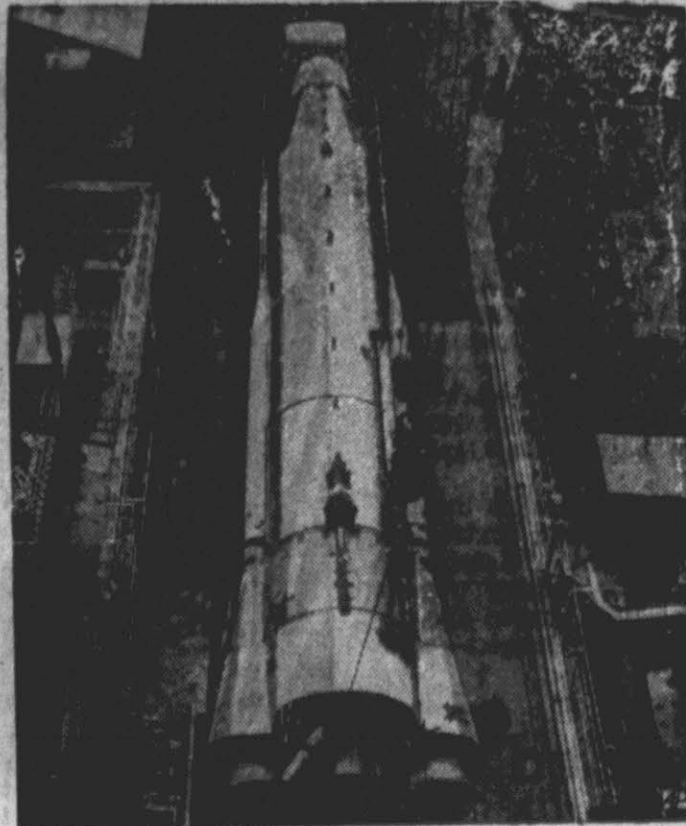

Aug. 1 — Eisenhower replied to Khrushchev, proposing a meeting of the heads of government of the 11-member Security Council to begin about Aug. 12.

Aug. 3 — Khrushchev, turning up at a surprise conference in Peking with Red China leader Mao Tse-tung, issued a joint communique with Mao demanding an immediate summit conference to catch the big powers to discuss problems of the Near East and Middle East.

Aug. 5 — Khrushchev, in a new letter to Eisenhower, rejected a Security Council summit conference and demanded instead an emergency session of the 18-nation U. N. General Assembly. He said he hoped a summit meeting would not be delayed indefinitely but made it clear he wants it outside the U. N.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Heavy pieces of fire-fighting equipment went screaming up route 60 after midnight in response to a phone call that a church was on fire. The sleep-breaking cavalcade was met by an emboldened citizen who said the fire he thought he saw was just a reflection of the moon.

ADDED THRUST — The U.S. Air Force Atlas ICBM is backed into position for erection in firing tower. An added third engine has increased missile's range to over 6,000 miles.

Indictments Are Being Delayed

JACKSON, N.C. (AP) — Bills of indictment in the alleged shortage of Northampton County school funds will not be presented to the current session of the county grand jury.

Solicitor Ernest R. Tyler said yesterday that preparation of the indictments will be delayed until SBI agents have completed an examination of records in the office of County School Supt. N. L. Turner.

Earlier, Tyler had indicated that a number of bills, naming Turner in the alleged funds shortage, would be given the grand jury during the current term of Northampton Superior Court.

The grand jury meets next in November, but county commissioners could order an earlier session. Tyler said he is not certain whether he will request the grand jury to meet before November to receive the bills.

Examination of papers in Turner's office was delayed because SBI agents were denied access to the records. Tyler and attorneys for the superintendent yesterday agreed on the records to be examined, and the agents went to work. The solicitor said he did not know how long the investigation would require.

House Farm Forces Push For Compromise Bill Vote

By R. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disorganized House farm forces rallied for an effort to ram a compromise farm bill through the House today.

It would permit cutting price support levels on cotton, corn and rice but allow planting of more cotton and make changes in programs for the others.

The bill was scheduled for a showdown vote postponed from Monday, when it came to the floor under take-it-or-leave-it procedure requiring a two-thirds vote for passage.

If that fails the bill could be brought up later under more liberal voting procedure, but House leaders have said that is unlikely. They urged passage of the bill so a Senate-House conference can work out final terms.

Although the bill goes far in the direction of lower price supports demanded by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, final action was put over from Monday because of administration Republican opposition.

They have been driving for a vote on provisions of the Senate-passed bill, which Benson has endorsed.

Also lined up against the House bill were Midwestern dairy state members disgruntled because no milk changes are provided, city members suspicious of all farm legislation, and diehard foes of any reduction in government price supports.

When today's vote was scheduled, House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) declared that House failure to pass the bill would mean no farm legislation this session. The Senate bill would lower price support floors to levels favored by Benson.

It Could Be A Rugged Legislature

"If he doesn't get tagged with the Hodges' label he'll make it. His voting record shows he's not any more of a Hodges' man than the other fellow."

That was the reply we received from a legislator when we inquired about chances of the candidates for the top posts in the House and Senate for the 1959 General Assembly.

It should give the people of North Carolina an indication of what they may expect when the legislature convenes in February. Apparently Gov. Hodges is not as popular now with North Carolina's lawmakers as he was in 1955 or at the beginning of the 1957 session of the legislature.

In most instances for Speaker of the House and President pro-tem of the Senate are not committed to any one political faction in the Democratic party. This year, however, it seems the candidates are viewing friendship with Governor Hodges as a liability rather than an asset in considering sufficient votes among their colleagues to get the job they want.

If that is true, it follows that some of the leading legislators on both sides of the campaign fences look for the 1959 membership in the House and Senate to be more anti-Hodges than pro-Hodges.

That of course will spell trouble for the administration program come next year. It will mean that Gov. Hodges will find his unique "third legislature" a tough group to work with. It could mean that the overall program which comes out of the next session of the General Assembly will be more truly a Legislature's program—as opposed to a Governor's program—than has been the case in North Carolina in a good many years.

It could mean too that tighter lines will be drawn between pro-administration and anti-administration forces over proposals which go before the General Assembly.

Economic problems facing North Carolina during the next biennium already pose grave and controversial issues to be resolved by the 1959 General Assembly. Coupled with a strong anti-governor feeling within the legislature, it could make the 1959 session one of the stormiest—and perhaps one of the longest—sessions in several years.

If It's Not Needed, Why Appropriate?

If the money isn't needed, why appropriate it and increase the anticipated federal deficit for the current fiscal year by another half billion dollars?

Congress must now answer that question. President Eisenhower, using his veto power on an appropriations bill for the first time since coming to office in 1953, has sent back to Congress a measure calling for $6.5 billion dollars for 17 federal agencies. According to the President, that's 500 million more than is necessary for a civil service retirement item included in the bill.

Congress must now decide whether to try to override the President's veto with the required two-thirds vote, or trim the appropriations measure down to size to gain Presidential approval for it.

In a year when the government is going to have a whopping deficit of an estimated $12 billion dollars anyway, why appropriate more money than is needed?

Members of Congress, as representatives of the people, should be seeking to reduce unnecessary expenditures rather than creating them. Just because we are heading for a year of big deficit spending there is no reason to throw all caution to the wind. Such a year should call for increased austerity in government appropriations rather than freer appropriating of money that will not be needed.

Maybe the folks back home haven't sufficiently impressed upon their representatives in Washington the necessity for economy in government.

Underneath, A Restive Feeling

By LYNN NISBET

HEALTHY — Reports coming in from over the state indicate that there is not quite such complete harmony in Democratic party circles as a casual look at the surface might lead one to believe.

Experienced observers can read signs of dissatisfaction and restiveness among veteran party workers, which has not reached the point of open protest.

Paradoxically, practical politicians regard this situation as healthy. They see in it a more lively interest, more prospect of activity to change unsatisfactory conditions, as contrasted with apathetic acceptance of decisions made by the party hierarchy. There is evidence that rank and file members of the party are flexing their muscles to resist control by self-constituted "bosses."

Take, for example, the nomination of Dave Hall for Congress in the 12th district last week. When Rep. George Shuford resigned as Democratic nominee for re-election, the group which had long been dominant in district affairs elected Weldon Weir, city manager of Asheville, to succeed him. The big newspapers and news wire services accepted his nomination as virtually assured and published biographic data about the new congressman. When the committee met to make the nomination the little people from the little counties joined forces to elect David M. Hall of Jackson county—first time in history a nominee or member of congress had come from west of Waynesville.

Party leaders in Buncombe, Haywood and Henderson promptly pledged full support to the candidate, and Governor Hodges told newsmen at his latest conference he believed the whole Democratic ticket will be stronger than usual this fall.

MECKLENBURG — Two years ago Jack Love staged an open revolt against the faction which had controlled Democratic party affairs in Mecklenburg. The old guard was ousted and a "rebel" organization took control. This year the conservative group recaptured the party organization, but for most part with younger men.

Democrats in Mecklenburg and throughout the 10th congressional district are lining up more solidly behind young Dave Clark for Congress than behind any other candidate since Republican Charles Raper Jones carried the district in 1952. Many people doubt that such united front would have been possible without the shaking up in 1956.

INDEPENDENT — Further evidence of healthy and independent thinking among Democrats is found in the contests for Speaker of the House and President pro-tem of the Senate in the next General Assembly. Long time custom has been for the legislators-elect to ascertain who the Governor and a few others in the top echelon of the party wanted in these positions and to accept their choices without real contest.

For the first time in 20 years heated races are being waged for top offices in both branches of the Legislature. Not since the summer of 1938 has there been as little certainty in this comparable stage about who will be Speaker of the House or No. 2 man in the Senate. (The Lieutenant Governor is the constitutional President of the Senate.)

While Reps. Addison Hewlett of New Hanover and Carl Venters of Onslow are waging strenuous campaigns for Speaker, the contest so far has been on a very high plane of clean politics. There is more evidence of bitterness, in the race between Sens. C.V. Henkel of Iredell and Robert F. Morgan of Cleveland for the Senate post.

Most observers see in these races evidence of healthy rivalry and independent thinking, with nothing likely to happen that will hurt the party or the cause of good government in the state.

DID YOU KNOW? — The American Newspaper Publishers Association has compiled a list of interesting facts.

There are about 50 million households in the United States. Forty-four million of them will receive a daily newspaper or more today, for a total circulation of 58 million papers.

More people travel by automobile than by all other means of conveyance combined. The average passenger automobile travels 9,359 miles a year.

The first "completely equipped" automobile was offered in 1910. But it was not until 1922 that balloon tires were introduced. That same year a few manufacturers first put gasoline gauges on the instrument board.

There are 1,755 daily newspapers in the United States. Last year these papers spent more than $87 million in plant and equipment improvement.

Over 20 million women in the United States have jobs, but a recent survey shows that 90 percent of them find time to read newspapers. Another Gallup survey discovered that more people read the advertising columns than any other section of the newspaper.

Last year it took an estimated 75 million trees to produce the newspaper for advertising space alone. It required more than 100 million trees to provide newspaper for general news, features, society and sports.

More newspapers are purchased each day than bottles of milk, loaves of bread or packs of cigarettes. And, believe it or not, more newspapers are bought each day than the total number of match books given away.

People in the United States spend more than $3 million a day for newspapers. That is more than is collected from all the parking meters in the country.

An Obstacle In Baghdad Accord

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — American treaties with other countries circle the globe but the latest commitment — to the Baghdad Pact — can by itself be a stumbling block to any real settlement in the Middle East.

The United States helped create the Baghdad Pact — which was born in 1955 — but has avoided becoming an outright member. The members were Britain, Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan.

All but Britain lie across the southern Soviet frontier. The purpose was to unite them in a mutual defense agreement against any Soviet attack. It would also serve as a military wall against Soviet invasion of the Middle East.

We supplied arms to the pact countries, but stayed out of actual membership. Then the July revolt in Iraq all but ended that nation's participation. It probably will pull out. This brought the whole arrangement to the edge of disaster.

To avoid collapse of the pact Secretary of State Dulles last week signed an agreement committing the United States to defense of Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. This in effect made the United States a full-fledged partner, although still technically not a member. Thus the wall against the Soviet Union was preserved.

Presumably the United States could move into any one of the pact countries to preserve their pro-Western governments from internal overthrow, or requested States moved into Lebanon upon request.

What will be the effect of American partnership in the pact? It can be stated on excellent authority that the Eisenhower administration feels there will be a good psychological effect, perhaps more important than any practical effect.

This would seem to mean the administration believes the present pact countries, friendly to the West, would, with American partnership, be strengthened against Soviet pressure from without and subversive efforts from within.

But the Arab nations — with the exception of Iraq prior to its July revolt — have been hostile to this military alliance on the northern fringe of the Middle East, sitting just above the Arab world.

And the Soviet Union, of course, was and is violent in its denunciation of such a military alliance on its southern frontier. This can be understood.

It's not hard to imagine the reaction in this country if the Soviet Union had sponsored and then joined — a military alliance of the Latin American countries just south of the United States from Mexico to the Panama Canal.

An agreement between the Soviet Union and the West to ban arms shipments to the Middle East has been mentioned as one way of preserving peace and some stability in that area.

Such an agreement now seems impossible.

Before the Soviet Union agreed to a ban on arms shipments to the Middle East it almost certainly would want the pact countries in the area just south of it — Turkey, Iran and Pakistan — included among the nations which no longer could get arms.

But how can this country, after virtually joining the pact, now do an about-face and, even at the price of getting peace in the Middle East, agree to an arms embargo that applied to its new pact partners?

To avoid collapse of the pact Secretary of State Dulles last week signed an agreement committing the United States to defense of Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. This in effect made the United States a full-fledged partner, although still technically not a member. Thus the wall against the Soviet Union was preserved.

When First Earthling Reaches Mars

By JIMMY ELLIS Can't Argue With Him

The Wee Urchin, who has much to say about many things, unplugged the TV set the other night.

"Let's talk," he said.

"O. K., what are we going to talk about?" I asked.

"Everything," he replied.

I nodded and settled down. He has a tremendous talking capacity.

"Well, how about a for instance," I demanded.

"Well, for instance, the Yankees will win the American League pennant by at least 20 games, if nobody hits any more of Casey Stengel's pitchers in the head."

I couldn't argue with that. I'm a Yankee fan.

"Furthermore, after the big fold-up pulled by the Giants this past weekend, Milwaukee should win the National League pennant by about six games. They'll close fast, because they're like the Yankees. They're real professionals."

"Who's going to win the World Series," I asked.

"The Braves, in six games. I know, you like the Yankees. But, by the time the World Series rolls around the Yankees will have forgotten what it's like to be hungry and the Braves still have the taste of last year's Series on their lips."

"I won't buy that," I argued.

"I don't expect you to," Wee Urchin replied. "You've been a Yankee fan so long you're sentimental about it. Which is funny in a way, because you claim there's no room for sentiment if a team is going to be a big winner in the big leagues. You also claim that the Yankees have become the team they are because they treat baseball as it should be treated, as a business proposition and nothing else."

"That's true, but aren't you forgetting that any sentiment I might have is overbalanced by the power of the Yankees?"

"Nope. Berra is not having a good year. Mantle is having what would be a good year for any other ball player, but he isn't just another ball player. He's the best in the majors, or he should be. Skowron, Howard and this Yankee pitcher can't do it all by themselves."

I didn't want to argue with him, so I dropped the subject.

Wee Urchin sat for a while, studying the pattern My Fair Gwen has draped all over the house while she's making a dress. We don't argue about the pattern being there. We step over and around it.

"I look for N. C. State to surprise everybody again this year

Riders Of The Wagon

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There's nothing that shows up a man more in his true light than going on a diet — or going on the wagon.

At any given moment in America there are perhaps 15 million people involved with the water wagon — 5 million climbing on, 5 million riding precariously atop it, and 5 million falling off.

Sometimes one gets the feeling that the major form of adult exercise in our country is climbing up or driving off that old water wagon. It's a popular way to tone up the muscles & if not the character.

Ability to ride the water wagon gracefully, without losing either one's own balance or boring one's friends, is probably the sternest test of character in our civilization.

Wagon riders tend to fall into generally recognizable types.

Here are a few:

The daily double climbs on every morning at 2 a.m., falls off during the lunch hours, climbs on again at 2 p.m. and falls off again at 5:31 p.m.

The misery sharer pleads with all his friends, "I been on two whole days. Why don't you climb on too? It's lonely up here."

The 100-proof Munchausen, after he has been on the wagon 15 minutes, starts thumping himself on the chest and crying his big lie, "I feel 100 per cent better already."

The friendly noser has given up the taste of it, but can't give up the small bit. So he goes down the bar sniffing the drinks of all his friends, muttering, "terrible stuff, isn't it?"

The profiteer goes to the nearest WCTU organization and asks, "How much will you pay me to serve as a horrible example at your lectures of what drink will do to a man?"

The ancestor-doomed claims it isn't his choice. He's got to drink because that's a hereditary curse. "Going on the wagon runs in my family after 45," he says mournfully. "I can't whip it."

The phony creep insists he went on the wagon only "to help a friend." But since his only friend is himself, everybody knows who he's helping.

The playback artist enjoys the morning after reminding his pals all the stupid things they did and said at the cocktail party the night before. "Used to act that way myself — until I saw the light," he says, trying not to look too much like Zeus on Olympus.

Finally, of course, there is the guy who decides to go on the wagon, but who shuts up about it until he is ready to fall off.

But whoever met one in real life?

"HAVE-NOT" NATION

This country must trade with others, and it must buy as well as sell.

That is the substance of a brief but revealing article in Economic Intelligence. It puts the trade and tariff controversy in perspective—both in its dollar-and-cents aspects, and in its influence on our foreign relations.

Last year our merchandise exports, exclusive of military aid, came to $19½ billion—or almost 6 per cent of the value of all the goods and services we produced. It is estimated that 4,500,000 workers—7 per cent of the whole labor force—are employed in import activities and in producing and servicing exports.

Why do we import? For one thing, if we don't buy from others they can't or won't buy from us. More than that, as Economic Intelligence puts it, "The U.S. is rapidly becoming a 'have-not' nation in many of the basic natural resources . . ." We imported $13 billion worth of goods last year—and about $10 billion consisted of raw materials and semi-processed commodities which are essential to the productive processes of a long list of basic domestic industries. And we must depend upon overseas sources for the majority of the critical and strategic materials used in defense production.—(Industrial News Review)

Other Editors Saying --- Developing Handicraft

(Hertford County Herald)

Hertford County home demonstration club women, so the papers say, had a workshop in basket weaving last week. That, we think, is good news.

On a recent trip to western North Carolina, we dropped into a crafts fair, where skilled people made all sorts of native goods, from jewelry to wood articles. In the western mountains, the production of handicraft is a big industry, and much has been made of this art.

Yet, it is a sad commentary that we asterners, and especially those of the Roanoke-Chowan, have never developed a handicraft strain. Poorest section in the state, we have still let our money elsewhere for even the commonest items. We have had some minor arts, of course. The making of white oak hampers is a handicraft that is practiced by a few scattered folks, mostly country people or old Negro men. At one time, the making of broomstraw brooms was a Negro handicraft which was important in the section.

Of course, handicraft skill must grow out of the very mind and matter of a people's way of life. It is too late for such a strain to develop in the modern-day Roanoke-Chowan. But it is good news that the farm women of the county have an interest in keeping handicraft art alive. In recent years, with our new leisure, handicraft as a hobby has come into its own. We think that Roanoke-Chowanians might profit from at least learning that skill of the hands with native materials is a soul satisfying thing. And it is capable of profitable commercial exploitation.

On the philosophical plane, why is it that this section never developed a handicraft tradition?

Here are some more scrawled notes from a reporter's notebook, followed with explanations of what he may have been thinking of when he made them:

Boss away. This summer there has been a rash of advertisements saying, "The boss is away and left us in charge. We want to run up a big sales record, so come in and set your own price."

In one ad, a "temporary sales manager" was quoted: "I'm going to sell a certain maple dining room suite this week if I have to get fired and I probably will if the boss finds out the price."

Funny thing, but I always believe the boss is away and has left the employees in full charge. And I believe they will sell anything regardless of cost just to get a big total on the books. As I said, funny thing.

Express banking. Many supermarkets have "express check-out" for people with eight or fewer items. But I've never seen

Opinions In Brief

In this living society there is nothing more moving than the spectacle of men standing for principle—especially in cases in which the principle infringes on personal taste or seems to be against personal interest."—Harlowton (Montana) Times.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

INFLUENCE OF THE PAST

A friend of mine whose erudition in the field of philosophy I greatly admire was conversing one day with a fellow philosopher. "You know," said his friend, "no one can read Plato and be the same. Plato does something to the inside of a man's life." My friend's reply was, "You are right. Because I read Plato years ago, I have never tried to fix a parking ticket."

Is it possible that the long arm of Plato reaches down into the twentieth century and makes a difference in a man's behavior? Yes, it is quite true. So does the influence of Socrates, and Jesus, and St. Paul. So do the thoughts of the good and wise of all ages and of all races. Life

HERE'S A FREE IDEA

Three gloves. Nelle, the wife of humorist H. Allen Smith, wants me to get manufacturers of household gloves to sell them in sets of three, with two for the right hand. She has a box containing 24 left-hand gloves to prove that the right-hand glove always wears out first.

Business is good. There's been an outbreak of label buttons reading, "Business is good." But if I were a panhandler, I'd pass by men who were wearing them.

N. As a stuffy old liberalist, I think of "n" as an ellipsis for "and" and "n" as an ellipsis for "than." So when I see signs saying "Stop 'N Shop" or "Coffee 'N Crumbuns," I always read them as "Stop than Shop" and "Coffee than Crumbuns" and pass on puzzled.

S. P. & MSG

Salt 'n' pepper. For convenience with token lunches, people used to mix salt and pepper in a single shaker or folded paper. Wouldn't that be a good spice shelf item today, perhaps with an added bit of monosodium glutamate?

Educational toys. —There is a marked increase in educational toys for children. When I was a boy I was always resentful when I suspected a grownup was trying to teach me something by pretending to play a game. Specifically, I was subjected for six months to a "game" way of playing piano and I steadfastly refused to learn a single note. Are kids today of more malleable stuff?

Kay Janet Huffaker. If I recall, she is the advertising director of the Iowa Finance Co. who was quoted as saying, "You don't have to tell the prospective customer everything you know; tease him a little bit." At first glance, that seems something less than ethical. On second glance, it doesn't seem any worse than methods used to get husbands.

Ethics. One government agency has adopted a code of ethics, several others are talking about codes, and there is a bill in Congress for a code for Congressmen and government employees.

It's a shocking state of affairs when people on the public payroll have to carry around codes, tablets and reminders to behave themselves. Some day we may see some commissioner with a string tied to his finger reminding him, no doubt, to accept no gift larger than a 12-pound ham.

If anybody sincerely wants a code, there's an old one that, because of little wear, is almost as good as new. It's: "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

CLUBS TRADE MARK TO SYMBOLIZE SALES

The Sales Executives Club of New York may be the first club to have its own trademark. It is being designed by Walter P. Margulies, of the industrial design firm of Lippincott and Margulies. It will be unveiled in the fall.

It will represent something new in design: a symbol that says one thing, sales," he said.

Mothers, Boys Back Banned Scoutmaster

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—A group of Boy Scouts and their mothers spoke up today in defense of Scoutmaster William N. Smith, banned by the Boy Scout organization.

Commented Lee Brown, blind 11 year old:

"I am proud to be a scout, and it was only through the efforts of Mr. Smith that I am."

Lee said the stocky, muscular ex-infantry sergeant took him into Troop 27 after other troops had turned him down.

"He's a great guy and I love to be with him and the troop," Lee said. "He even ordered some scout books in braille for me out of his own pocket."

Smith, a 35-year-old laundry operator, was banned for allegedly conducting camping trips and hikes without proper authorization and disregarding the boys' safety and health.

The World War II veteran, married and the father of a 10-year-old, denied the charges. He said each boy was given a stiffer-than-normal test and only the successful scouts were eligible to go. The trips included a four-day, 200 mile canoe trip on the Connecticut River and a trip to Mt. Washington in New Hampshire in subzero weather.

"God forbid," Smith said, "but if these boys ever have to take care of themselves, they will know how."

Smith, who has been a scout for 23 years, said that before each of the trips he had submitted an outline to the Scout office for approval. He said the outlines were prepared by a committee composed of parents of the scouts.

One of his older scouts, John D. Miceli, 19, said the training by Smith benefitted every member of the troop, now without a charter until the scoutmaster can be replaced.

The regional council of the Boy Scouts scheduled a hearing for Sept. 8 on Smith's ouster.

Numerous protests came from the parents of the 35 members of the troop, and 14 of them gave Smith a vote of confidence yesterday.

Commented Mrs. Joseph Scarpa, mother of a 17-year-old scout:

"Why, there should be more people like Bill, and there would be less trouble in this town, and the world, with young folks."

One Dancer Has Faith In Hollywood Musicals

By BOB THOMAS
AP Motion Picture Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is the musical dead in Hollywood? Cyd Charisse doesn't think so. Usually a calm tomato, she gets het up about those who would bury the tunefilms.

She admits she is on the defensive. The number of musicals has sagged to almost nothing, whereas they once constituted almost a fourth of the Hollywood product. The reasons are many.

"Mainly, it's because musicals are expensive," she admitted.

The five-month strike of film musicians also contributed to the decline. And there is the repeated claim that musicals do not sell overseas, where about half the profits must come in order for the studios to survive.

"I hear that all the time," Cyd said angrily, "and I don't think it's true. The whole thing started because 20th Century-Fox had had luck with a couple of its musicals in Europe. They were 'Carousel' and 'The King and I'."

"But those weren't movie musicals in the strict sense. They were filmed stage plays. There was little dancing, and most of the songs were sung in closeups. Some of the songs were cut in Europe, because they didn't understand them over there."

"But none of my numbers from 'Meet Me in Las Vegas' or 'Silk Stockings' have been cut in Europe, and those pictures have done well over there."

She admitted that movie musicals suffered from the competition of television.

"TV has made dancing less important," she said. "It used to be a real treat to go to the movies and see Fred Astaire dance. But now you see dancing every time you turn on the set. You see lines of girls on the variety shows — even girls dancing around a big box of cleaning powder for commercials."

"But dancing in movies still has its advantage. It's impossible to make dancing really effective on TV. The screen is too small, and the cameras can't move fast enough to get the right angles."

She sees hope on the horizon. A top producer was moaning to her weeks ago that he'd never make another musical, despite her arguments. Recently, he confessed to her that he had several planned.

Has A Citation Even For Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Danny Kaye may have been the main attraction on stage at the Greek Theater, but backstage it was something else again.

The comedian forfeited $5 bail yesterday when he failed to appear in court to answer a citation charging him with smoking backstage at the theater last Thursday.

Fire Inspector John Lansing said he cautioned Kaye against smoking and was told: "You can't do this to me. I'm the star of the show."

To which Lansing said he responded: "I'm the star of my show too, and (handing the citation to Kaye) just present this ticket at the box office."

boys eligible in summer school and then he has to worry about keeping them in class during the fall semester. Duke, I figure, will do what it does, every year: start big, lie one and then lose two or three. Maryland is not the football school it was when Curly Byrd and Jim Tatum were running the show. South Carolina never will be great and Harvey White can't carry Clemson by himself. You forgot Wake Forest and Virginia, incidentally, but that may be just as well. Everybody else has, too.

"N. C. State is loaded. Earle Edwards learned to think big when he was at Michigan State and he hasn't forgotten how to do it. The Wolfpack will do fine, thank you."

I couldn't argue with him and dropped the subject of football. I adopted Wee Urchin's trick of studying his mother's dress pattern.

I looked up, winked and asked, "What do you think about this Evans girl who's going to Atlantic City for the Miss America contest?"

"She'll do fine and I think she'll surprise even herself."

"She's a knock-out, ain't she, Pop?"

I didn't argue.

SOUTH SALT LAKE, Utah (AP) — The box car standing in the nearby railroad yards was labeled "Fireworks." It was smoking. But firemen couldn't break in because it was a government shipment.

They waited 10 minutes before a special agent showed up to open the car yesterday. They doused a small blaze in one wall of the car, then took a closer look at its cargo.

The car contained about eight dozen 500-pound bombs, several boxes of detonators, some small arms ammunition and some nitroglycerin.

Contracts Are Returned By Twenty-Five Teachers

Twenty-five teachers, including seven for new positions, have returned contracts to Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville City Schools.

Rose said today the teachers will be members of city school faculties for the 1958-1959 school year which begins September 3. He said the new positions include one for art, two for high school classes, and four for elementary grades.

According to the superintendent, teachers who have been added for the coming year include:

Junior High School: Mrs. Barbara Franklin, Physical Education; Mrs. Doris B. Ormsby, Latin and Librarian; Mrs. Frances Gwynn, Math and Science; Mrs. Anna H. Carter, seventh grade; Mrs. Edith Holmes, seventh grade; Josephine Brookshire, special education.

Elementary School: Mrs. Joyce C. Costner, fifth grade, and Mrs. Bettie Tyson Forrest, second grade.

Third Street School: Peggy Williams Denton, combination first and second grade; and Miss Trilby Lee Smith, second grade.

Wahl-Coates School: Mrs. Edith Worthington, transfer from Third Street School; and Bobby Lee Sigmon.

School for Trainable Mentally Retarded: Mrs. Lou Joyner Cavendish.

Art and Music: Mrs. Wallace Gray, art; and Mrs. Vivian S. Beach, elementary school music.

C. M. Eppes School: Charles W. Davis, Science; and John B. Smith, Math and Science.

Fleming Street School: Miss Sadie B. Streer, first grade; and Mrs. Dolly B. Barnhill, third grade.

Uncontrollable Boy Is Sent Away

MONTREY, Calif. (AP) — A mother and elderly stepfather who padlocked a 24-pound ball and chain around the neck of her 12-year-old son were freed on probation after testifying the boy was uncontrollable.

William Guthrie, 72 and his wife Myrtle, 45, climaxed their hearing yesterday by testifying her son William Gerald Jones had been expelled from school for holding a knife against a girl's back.

Municipal Judge Ray Baugh said, "You have a real problem. The greatest good that can be accomplished in this case is that the boy be taken from the custody of his parents."

He made the boy a ward of the court and sent him to a mental hospital.

He placed the parents on probation for a 60-day jail sentence. "I hope they do something to make a man out of my boy," said his mother.

He's Friend Of Women Drivers

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The much-maligned woman driver finally has found a friend — a man. Said Floyd Webb of the Automobile Club of Michigan at a driver education institute at the University of Michigan:

Free Spender Is Held As Bandit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A free-spending man who introduced himself as Stan Klaus, but just call me Santa, was arrested with only $198 six hours after the First Western Bank was robbed of $1,281 yesterday.

Police said Stan Klaus — for that is his name — admitted the holdup and explained, "I blew the rest of the money." He was charged with bank robbery.

After leaving the bank, Klaus went into a nearby bar and played Santa, like this: Bought drinks for the house — handed bar tender Ray Nagel $100 to hold for a friend — tipped Nagel $55 — handed Ed Richmond $20.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lana Turner, returning to work for the first time since Johnny Stompanato was stabbed to death by her daughter Cheryl, 14, said:

"I'm terribly nervous. I'm always nervous on the first day ... but I'm especially nervous this time."

The blonde actress, looking slim and glamorous, distributed kisses to her producer, director and cameraman yesterday and then went into rehearsal on the film, "Imitation of Life."

Cheryl was cleared by an inquest jury in the stabbing of her mother's sweetheart.

Over $6 Millions For Local Govts In Mail

RALEIGH (AP) — Checks totaling more than $6 million dollars, have gone out to North Carolina counties, cities and towns as their share of intangibles tax collections.

Although collections of intangibles personal property tax took a dip for the past fiscal year, there was an increase in the amounts for local governments because of a change in the law made by the last legislature.

Allen Paschal, executive secretary of the State Board of Assessment, explained yesterday that in previous years the state kept 20 per cent and distributed 80 per cent to counties and municipalities. The 1957 Legislature provided for the state to deduct only the actual cost of collections and refunds.

Thus, collections for the fiscal year which ended June 30 were down 3.49 per cent from the previous year, but the amount distributed was up 9.36 per cent.

Total collections for the past fiscal year were $6,932,066.46. The amount which counties and cities shared was $6,284,282.19.

The intangibles tax covers bank deposits, stocks, bonds, notes, charge accounts, interest and similar items.

Mecklenburg County and its municipalities received a total of $736,557.44. The shares ranged downward to the $1,872.69 payment for eastern Tyrrell County and its county seat of Columbia.

Some of the larger payments for counties and their major cities, with the total for the county and all cities within it listed first, included:

Buncombe $332,893.22 — county $236,077.88; Asheville $88,532.93.

Durham $218,606.34 — county $112,158.17; Durham city $106,448.17.

Forsyth $495,198.43 — county $229,162.98; Winston-Salem $261,147.84.

Guilford $617,137.06 — county $263,492.84; Greensboro $250,557.65.

Mecklenburg $736,557.44 — county $317,772.98; Charlotte $414,961.73.

New Hanover $374,349.30 — county $185,688.48; Wilmington $188,734.20.

Wake $282,024.42 — county $174,491.33; Raleigh $94,833.53.

As Expected, Symington And Williams Score Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Democratic presidential prospects—Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri—did as expected yesterday and scored easy victories in their state primaries.

The twin triumphs highlighted primary contests in four states. There were no major upsets. The advance favorites generally prevailed in balloting that took place in Kansas and West Virginia as well as Michigan and Missouri.

The 47-year-old Williams beat back his first intraparty challenge in 10 years to win the Democratic nomination for a sixth trip to the governor's mansion. He quickly rolled to a 6-1 margin over William L. Johnson, a radio broadcaster from Ironwood, and held it as the vote total mounted.

Williams' Republican opponent in November will be Paul D. Bagwell, 44, a Michigan State University professor who was unopposed for his party's nomination.

Sen. Charles E. Potter gained GOP renomination without opposition too. He faces the prospect of a general election race with Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart, a Williams running mate who captured the Democratic senatorial nomination. Hart easily turned back a rebel challenge in the primary from Homer Martin, a former United Auto Workers official.

It was strictly no contest in Missouri where Symington, 57, jumped to a runaway lead and buried opponents Lawrence L. Hastings and Lamar W. Dye. Symington, former secretary of the Air Force, gained a second-term nomination by polling more than 300,000 votes. Hastings and Dye had fewer than 40,000.

Symington's November foe will be Miss Hazel Palmer, retiring president of the National Assn. of Business and Professional Women. Miss Palmer, 54-year-old Sedalia attorney, defeated three male opponents to win the GOP nomination.

Former Rep. Jennings Randolph, 56, and Rep. Robert C. Byrd, 40, won Democratic senatorial primaries in West Virginia. Randolph bested former Gov. William C. Marland and two others to win the right to seek the remaining two years of the late Sen. Matthew Neely's term. He will face Sen. John D. Hoblitzell Jr., who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Randolph had the support of state AFL-CIO leaders while Marland was backed by United Mine Workers chief John L. Lewis.

Byrd swamped a pair of foes to gain the Democratic nomination for the six-year senatorial term. His November match will be with Sen. Chapman Revercomb, who had no opposition for Republican renomination.

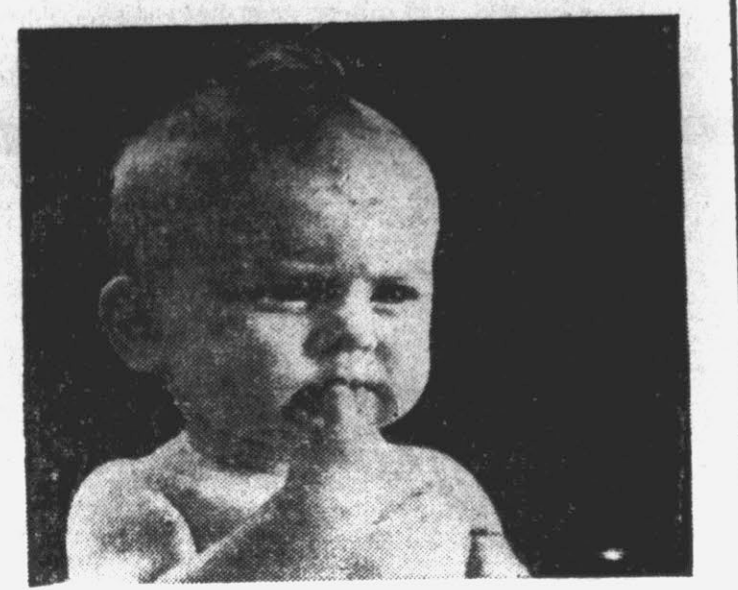

The Kansas nominations were highlighted by the Republican primary for governor, won by Clyde Reed Jr. of Parsons. Reed, 44, newspaper publisher, piled up a better than 3-1 edge over former Gov. Fred Hall. The GOP organization supported Reed, son of a former governor and a man who has never held public office.

Gov. George Docking, the first Democratic governor in Kansas in 20 years, had no opposition in his bid for renomination.

Several House members from Michigan, Missouri, and Kansas had close races, but all either won or were ahead in their renomination bids. They included Representatives Wint Smith (R-Kan),

Third Round Of Play Underway Tonight

In Northeastern Fast-Pitch Play At Local Field

Tonight, in the third round action of the Northeastern District Fast-Pitch Softball tournament, four ball games will be played at Guy Smith Stadium.

Two of the games will be in the winner's bracket and two will be from the loser's bracket—as determined by last night's games.

At 6:45, Carolina Dairies will tangle with Greenville Parts and Metals under the lights. At 8:00, Coffman's Man's Wear will battle the defending champion Roanoke Romances; at 9:15 the Granteries will face the Rocky Mount Pepsi-Cola club; and at 10:30, the winner of the Dairies-Parts and Metals game will play New Bern's Maola.

Last night, before a crowd of approximately 400 people, Coffman's defeated Carolina Dairies, 3-0, behind the sharp pitching of Jessel Curry. Greenville Parts and Metals polished off New Bern's International Paper Company, 22-4, in a wide-open slam-bang ball game. The Maola Greenspots defeated Maola, 10-5.

Tomorrow night, only two ball games are scheduled to take place, as the tournament levels off for the home stretch. The pre-tourney favorites, the Romances, are still in the running and still the most likely crew to reach the final night's play, Saturday night. On Friday night, two more games are scheduled, both between losers.

Saturday night's championship play will see only one game, unless a second contest is necessary.

In last night's first game, Jess Curry made the difference between Coffman's and the Carolina Dairy. Curry hurled three-hit ball in racking up the 3-0 victory for Coffman's. He fanned 12 batters. The losing pitcher was Warren.

Getting the important hits for the winners were Reid, Stanley, Brown, Carrawan, and Davis.

In the second tilt, between Greenville Parts and Metals and the International Paper Company, the locals went wild, chomping up the Paper Company pitcher White for a total of 13 basehits and 22 runs. One homerun was blasted by Odum in the third inning. Getting hits for the winners were Norris, Outland, Flye, Reid, Odum, Ford, Robinson, and Butler.

Pitcher Outland for the P&M club gave up only six hits.

In the final game, the Greenspots punched out a 10-5 victory over Maola, behind the pitching of Salem, Woodard, and Colley. They gave up five runs on six hits.

The winners picked up hits in all but one inning, totaling 16.

Parker Seems Satisfied—For A While

CALIFORNIA, Pa. (AP)—Buddy Parker, a National Football League coach who ranks with baseball's Frank Lane as a trader, appears satisfied with his Pittsburgh Steelers—at least for today.

"I'm very pleased with our progress so far," said the big Texan at the Steelers' training camp in this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

"Besides," he added with a chuckle, "we don't have many draft picks left."

Parker, of course, was referring to the head-spinning number of trades he made, mostly with future draft choices, when he took over the head coaching job in the middle of the training season last year.

Most of his moves paid off, notably trades for Earl Morrall and Billy Wells. Morrall became the No. 1 quarterback and Wells, former Clemson star, the top ground-gainer.

This year Parker gave an undisclosed draft choice for Tank Younger, a 30-year-old veteran of nine seasons with the Los Angeles Rams. Younger may fill the club's need for an experienced fullback, but Parker is also high on rookies Larry Krutko of West Virginia and Ed Sears of Florida.

Quarterback presents no problem. Len Dawson, the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice in 1957, and Jack Kemp saw only limited action last year as Morrall directed the club.

Parker said the team's greatest needs are for an offensive tackle and a good pass receiver to go with Jack McLaughlin who shared 46 aerials for 630 yards last season.

There seems little chance any rookie will break into the Steelers' defensive line, rated near the top the past several years.

The club has a fine crop of rookies but Parker is withholding judgment on many of them until after a heavy scrimmage scheduled Thursday.

Parker would make no predictions but said he is optimistic the club will better its 6-6 record and third place finish in the NFL's Eastern Division last year.

"Barring serious injuries, we're going to be right up there," said Parker. Even, he might have added, if the club has to trade draft choices for the next several years.

JAMES SPEIGHT . . . being primed for All-America honors

Boone Smiling At 1958 Season

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Jack Boone is looking forward to the 1958 football season with a smile on his face.

He did the same thing last year, but the smile was a nervous one. This year, the old worry is gone. As someone in the East Carolina Athletic Department glibly commented: "There's only one way to go from here—up."

Last season Coach Boone's footballers struggled through one of the most dismal seasons East Carolina ever had. His Buc won only one ball game the whole season—and that victory came in the last two minutes of the last ball game of the year against Presbyterian.

The only bright spot in that dismal season was a 165-pound All-Conference seatback named James Speight who did three-fourths of the Pirates' scoring and earned himself a flock of honors, including a berth on an NAIA "All" team.

This year Coach Boone will have Speight back. Sportswriters and coaches from other cities and teams who watched the Greenville halfback run last year, have already labeled Speight a potential All-America; one North State coach commented last year that "if that boy were with Duke or Carolina he'd have been an All-America selection." Boone has made the statement that Speight may be the best back in the state this season.

But Speight alone isn't enough to make the forthright Boone smile this particular un-nervous smile. There are other reasons; among them is the fact that "I think we'll be able to start the season this year without a freshman in the lineup." Last year, due to lack of depth, Boone's first team was speckled with green, inexperienced backs and linemen. Adding to the Portsmouth native's grin is the fact that he has seven All-Star performers coming into the fold.

Boone has secured seven of the most-sought-after prep-school riders on the East Coast, including one junior college All-America guard, a high school All-America halfback, an All-Southern guard, and four All-State boys.

Experienced Depth
"Our biggest asset this year,"

Boone says, "is that we will have a little depth. Most of our club is made up of sophomores and juniors who have seen action. That, of course, looks good for us now. And it will look even better next year, provided we can hold onto the boys we have."

Boone's biggest trouble in the past several years has been keeping his boys in school. Unlike many schools, East Carolina has a stiff scholastic code and many athletes have been unable to meet it. Boone has lost close to 40 football players in the last two seasons for one reason or another.

A quick run-through of Boone's material will give an indication of the team's depth and experience.

ENDS—A pair of juniors, Howard Beal and Bill Cain have the inside track at this position. David Thomas, a junior transfer from Wingate, and Charlie Vaughn, a sophomore, give depth. Joe King, an All-Stater from Fayetteville, will also offer depth and strength.

TACKLES—Charlie Cooke and Ed Emory, sophomore and junior respectively, are probable starters. Perry Pearson and Gary Pierce, both vets from 1957, will be back, along with Earl Sweet, a 220-pound All-State, All-Southern performer from Norfolk.

GUARDS—Wayne Davis, a sophomore, and Jim Gordon, a transfer from Wingate, are the insiders. Gordon was a Junior College All-America at Wingate in '57. Dallas Hollingsworth, an All-Stater at Clinton last year, will also be with the club. John Cutler, 195-pounder from Kinston, will add depth.

CENTERS—At center, Lynn Barnett, a 200-pound junior, will be the team's co-captain and will get the starting nod. Behind him will be Henry Vansant, sophomore, and two freshmen: Tony Yelovitch from Pennsylvania, and Louis Smith, returning from the service.

QUARTERBACKS—Ralph Zehring, 165-pound junior will probably start. George Turner and Stuart Holland, both sophomores, will also play. Jerry Carpenter, a transfer from Wingate, will add potential. Boone also secured Nicky Hilgert, All-State halfback from Elizabeth City.

Turley Defeats Orioles Again, By 4-1 Margin

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

You have to hand it to that fellow Bob Turley. When he starts something he finishes it. The New York Yankee ace, top winner in the majors with his 17-4 record, has completed 16 of 22 starts.

If Baltimore never sees Turley again it will be much too soon. The Orioles have scored only one run against their former teammate in 36 innings.

Turley's latest effort was a seven-hitter against the Orioles last night for a 4-1 victory.

Mickey Mantle slammed his 30th home run off loser Connie Johnson with two men on in the third. The blow tied him with Boston's Jackie Jensen for the American League homer lead.

The feeble Orioles suffered their ninth straight defeat, tying the Detroit Tigers for the longest losing streak of the year. The Tigers, now improved, had a six-game winning string snapped by Cleveland 6-1 when Cal McLish pitched the Indians into fourth place. He scattered seven hits to make his record 11-6.

Billy Monbouquette, a 21-year-old rookie from Medford, Mass., beat Washington 7-1 for his first major league victory for Boston. Ted Williams playfully eluded a fan in the outfield until the police caught up with the intruder in the seventh. Jimmy Piersall's three-run homer was the big blow off loser Camilo Pascual.

Chicago jumped on loser Bob Grim for five runs in the third inning and hung on for a 5-4 edge over Kansas City with some neat relief work by Turk Lown.

In the National League, Milwaukee regained a five-game edge by downing Pittsburgh 6-1 in a night game after the second-place San Francisco Giants lost to Chicago 10-9 in a 10-inning day game. Cincinnati rallied in the ninth to nip the Phillies 6-5. St. Louis enjoyed its biggest hitting day of the year with 21 hits in a 13-3 romp over Los Angeles.

With 49 games to play in almost eight weeks, Turley appears to have a good shot at a 25-win season for the Yanks. His best record was 17-13, in 1955. A walk, Gene Woodling's single and an infield out produced the Oriole run in the first.

Cleveland scored all its runs off George Susce in the first three innings. Two came on Mickey Vernon's homer. Charlie Maxwell led off the Detroit fifth with a homer for the lone run off McLish.

Monbouquette, brought up from the Minneapolis farm about four weeks ago, finally got some solid hitting and steady defense from the Red Sox. Among the batting beats was an acrobatic double by Don Buddin, who eluded a tag at second and then performed a swan dive from the shortstop side of the bag.

Lown put down a Kansas City crisis in the fifth and blanked the A's the rest of the way to earn the victory.

Ruben Amaro, St. Louis Cardinal infielder, was brought up from Rochester this season. He had batted but 200 in 92 games. He is a native of Mexico.

erans, led by Charlie Bishop, Lee Atkinson, Bobby Perry, Glenn Bass, Walker Hanford, and Eddie Draughn will lead the position. A pair of freshmen, All-State Tommy Matthews and Donald King, All-State and All-America (high school) from Buffalo, N.Y., will round out the lineup.

PULLBACKS—James Speight will hold down the lead role here, at 170 pounds. Behind him will be David Rogers, 195-pound sophomore, Vernon Davis, Randall Holmes, and Melvin Rife.

West Trims East By 67-59 Score

GREENSBORO (AP)—Speed

accuracy and height in the form of Gene Compton and Wally Unger provided the West with just enough margin last night to even the State High School All-Star basketball series at five-all with the East.

The Western squad wasn't sure of its 67-59 victory until the final moments of the game, although it never was passed after the first quarter.

The West's scoring ability started telling in the last minute of the opening quarter when it broke a 13-13 deadlock. The score was 24-13 before the East could pump in another basket.

By halftime, the Westerners held a comfortable 34-27 lead. The East managed to narrow the gap within two points midway of the final period but then Compton led a closing spurt of baskets to wrap up the game.

Compton, a 6-6 center from Mebane, was top point-maker with 18.

Unger, from Valley Springs, was right behind him with 16, followed by Arthur Whisman of Hillsboro with 14.

Also playing a strong game for Coach Sam Moir of Mount Airy was Yogi Polet of Hendersonville, who dropped in 10 points.

Pacing the East for Coach Bo Farley of Greenville were Ronnie White of Wilmington, who bucketed 10 of his 14 points in the first half; and John Key and Jimmy Whitfield of Durham, who got 12 points each.

Although both squads got about the same number of shooting opportunities, the West hit 24 of 65 from the field for a 35.4 accuracy percentage. The East had a 33.2 accuracy figure.

GREENSBORO (AP)—Football, as taught by the University of Miami's Andy Gustafson, became the center of attention today at the annual North Carolina Coaching Clinic.

The clinic's basketball phase was rounded out last night in the State All-Star High School basketball game, won by the West 67-59.

Earlier, the high school coaches heard a series of lectures by Adolph Rupp, basketball coach of Kentucky's national champions. Lecturing along with Gustafson will be several of his assistants, including Bob Black, son of Army Coach Earl Black.

Meanwhile, drills continued in preparation for the all-star football game Friday night.

Burdette's Magic Cooled Of Pirates

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

All it took was a little dose of Lew Burdette magic to cool off the Pittsburgh Pirates as National League pennant contenders.

Although the Milwaukee right-hander allowed 10 hits, he maintained his old spell over the Pirates in a 6-1 victory last night that restored the Braves' five-game lead over San Francisco.

The Giants lost to the Cubs 10-9 in the 10th as Ernie Banks' single chased home an unearned run at the expense of Johnny Antonelli.

Cincinnati rallied for three runs in the last of the ninth to top Philadelphia 6-5. Frank Robinson knocked in the tying and winning runs with a two-run double off Dick Farrell. Jack Sanford gave way to Farrell in the ninth with two on and the Phils leading 5-3.

St. Louis broke out of its batting slump with 21 hits in a 13-3 romp over Los Angeles.

Bob Turley, the majors' top winner, capped No. 17 for the New York Yankees, a 4-1 verdict over Baltimore. The Red Sox beat Washington 7-1. Jim Piersall hit a three-run homer. Cleveland downed Detroit 6-1.

Wally Mays, who had three hits for a .341 average, singled during the five-run seventh inning before Cepeda's 21st homer. The Giants tied it in the ninth on a wild pitch by winner Glen Hobbie only to lose on an error by Danny O'Connell, a walk and Banks' single.

When Sanford left the game in Cincinnati, the Phils had two on with none out. Farrell retired the first two men he faced but Crowe slammed a single off his glove for one run and Robinson hit a 1-2 pitch into center field. Joe Nixhall was the winner on relief.

Billy Muffett went all the way in the steaming heat of an August afternoon in St. Louis, holding the Dodgers to seven hits. Danny McDevitt was chased with his fourth defeat.

Nasser Is Riding Wave, But Running Into Headaches And New Misgivings

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Gamal Abdel Nasser has head-scratching moments. The Arab East's noisy turmoil gives the impression that the United Arab Republic President is riding the crest of an all-encompassing wave. Nasser may devoutly wish that was so. But there are shoals ahead.

In the bustling northern cities of what now is Nasser's Syrian province there was dancing in the streets at the news of the July 14 coup in Iraq.

Did that please Nasser? Not altogether. In his July 23 Cairo speech Nasser went out of his way to be sharply critical of northern Syria.

Here was the rub: The Iraqi coup was a revolution by nationalists—perhaps even extreme nationalists. But was it wholly a Nasser revolution? The man who led it, Brig. Gen. Abdul Karim Kassem, by his own account had plotted revolt against Premier Nuri Said's rule ever

Boys Betting On A $450 Rocket

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Eighteen Tulsa teen-agers hope to shoot into space-age history with a $450 rocket.

The boys are putting the final touches on a 22-foot, 300-pound rocket they believe will carry the first nongovernment satellite into orbit.

If the test run is successful Sunday, the boys will seek permission to fire the rocket later this month at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M.

"We are almost certain it will reach 40 miles and put the satellite into orbit," said Clifford Ramsey, 18, president of the Tulsa Experimental Rocket Research Assn.

But Ramsey added: "We don't expect it to stay up very long." Possibly Iraq's affiliation with since 1934, 18 years before he ever heard of Nasser. Those who supported the revolt owed Nasser little if anything for its success. Indeed, its suddenness seemed to have caught Nasser by surprise.

Naturally, Nasser pictured the Iraqi revolt as a personal triumph. He had to do that. And the Iraqi regime for its part would capitalize on the support it could demand from Nasser. Yet the U. A. R. President must have had some serious misgivings about the future.

That dancing in the streets in Syria did not mean the celebrants were pro-Nasser; it could even have meant the reverse. Many Syrians after passionately pursuing total union with Egypt suddenly found themselves restive under Nasser's rule. There had been well-founded reports of anti-Nasser manifestations in northern Syria, whose practical businessmen chafed at what they considered the U. A. R.'s economic madnesses.

The northern Syrians showed only that they were pro-Iraq. A cherished dream seemed within their grasp: union with Iraq.

This could mean trouble for Nasser. Iraq has great oil and mineral wealth. She has an oil-financed economic development program well under way. Syria's economy remains sound. Politically, Syria is far more sophisticated than Egypt. And Egypt has little but Nasser.

Syria and Iraq together in the U. A. R. surely would overbalance the Egyptians and eventually dominate the union.

What does this mean to the West? For one thing, it offers some assurance that, barring grotesque Western blunders, oil will continue flowing from the Persian Gulf and through Iraq Petroleum Co. pipelines. There are good reasons for expecting this.

Nasser probably will want to move slowly with regard to Iraq. Possibly Iraq's affiliation with

Egypt will stop short of full union. It may join the U. A. S. (United Arab States of the U. A. R. and Yemen.)

The U. A. R. President has condemned foreign exploitation of Arab resources. But oil is no good to Arabs until it gets to markets. Iraq cannot extract it or market it. Egypt cannot help them do it. Neither is likely to invite Communist bloc help in this respect.

The reasons are manifest. The Iraqis will continue to want the Western foreign exchange, with all it means, from their oil production. They are aware, too, that Western Europe can do without Iraqi oil if necessary, so long as Kuwait's vast production potential is available. So nationalization of Iraq's oil-producing facilities might prove a boomerang.

But one of Nasser's major goals has been to get his hands on some of the oil revenues from the "have-not" countries for the benefit of "have-not" Egypt. How does he hasten this without bringing Iraq into the U. A. R. and endangering Egypt's pre-eminence in the union?

Nasser has other troubles too. The momentum his movement gained by events of the past three months will be lost if he stands still now. But can he afford another major explosion under his auspices?

Nasser has enemies in his own country. He is less popular with Egypt's literate population than he is outside. Egypt's economy is in a sorry mess which has required her to pay a bonus on the Egyptian pound in foreign transactions. On the political side, many of Nasser's own supporters fear communism and dread further involvement with the Soviet bloc.

Equally important, many Arabs clearly were shocked by realization that recent events could make the Middle East the cockpit of World War III.

Nasser can ill afford new explosions now. But neither can he afford to halt his violent propaganda, even now pouring into psychotic little Jordan. Probably only the arrival of British troops saved the life of King Hussein, and their departure surely would mean a new blowoff.

A Soviet aim is to keep the Middle East in turmoil and off balance. If Nasser tries to profit from Soviet aims, he may build up forces which eventually will destroy him. If he does not attempt to profit from Soviet purposes, he risks losing the momentum he has created and the support of the more impatient nationalists of Jordan and the Saudi peninsula.

Nasser's dilemmas may point a course. Western diplomacy could attempt to understand the paradoxes of the Arab East. It could seize the opportunity to give the more moderate nationalists something tangible to grasp in the way of support for their reasonable aspirations.

TOMORROW: Some diplomatic facts of life.

Live TV Producer Wants Industry Create Its Own

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Herbert Brodtkin is a tall, lean, sandy-haired man of 45 who looks as if he earned his living out of doors. Rancher? Forest ranger?

To the contrary, Brodtkin belongs to an almost extinct species: he is a producer of live TV drama. With Fred Coe and John Houseman he composes a new triumvirate which will guide the destinies of Playhouse 90 (CBS-TV) through another season.

A year ago all three were rooted New Yorkers who determinedly resisted the idea of working in Hollywood. Facing up to the economic facts of life and the westward course of television, however, all will work in Hollywood.

With a long career as a producer of live television in New York, Brodtkin quit Studio One last season rather than follow it to Hollywood, where it will shortly be interred as another live drama series that died. But he is enthusiastic about the prospects of the 15 or 20 live dramas he will produce for Playhouse 90 on the West Coast.

"Any weekly drama series is good," he says, "if it's very good every third or fourth week. The biggest problem a producer faces is having enough time to prepare scripts. There's plenty of material, but you have to have time to prepare it."

The problem of time, nearly everyone agrees, was the insurmountable problem of Martin Manulis, the talented producer of Playhouse 90 for two years. The quality of the weekly 90-minute dramatic series declined last season because, in the opinion of many viewers, production was simply too heavy a burden for one man to bear.

Of the 20 productions on which Brodtkin currently is engaged, all but one are being originally written for television.

"It's always a temptation to adapt a novel because a good story already exists," said Brodtkin. "That's the easy way. But I believe television should create its own."

Now A Witness Is Key Suspect

BALTIMORE (AP)—Last June, Mrs. Katherine B. Sprinkle, 50, stood by as a customer during a $135 loan company holdup. Police described her as only a witness.

Now police have decided that Mrs. Sprinkle planned the whole thing. She was held in $5,000 bail on assault and robbery charges.

Officers said she induced Mrs. Annie Lee Shell, 39, Negro, to carry out the robbery while Mrs. Sprinkle posed as a customer. Mrs. Shell also was charged.

Author Opposes Three Reprints

NEW YORK (AP) — Ernest Hemingway is trying to block Esquire magazine from reprinting three of his Spanish Civil War short stories.

The stories appeared in the magazine in late 1938 and early 1939. At the time, Hemingway favored the Soviet-backed Loyalists in their losing struggle against the Franco forces.

Some characters in the stories speak in favor of the Loyalist cause.

"The passage of time can affect the writings of authors either favorably or unfavorably," Hemingway said yesterday as he began court action to prevent reprinting.

"Illustrative is the change in attitude of people to writings of men during the time Russia was our ally to the present attitude of people to such men and their writings now that Russia is perhaps our greatest enemy."

The action to restrain republication was filed in State Supreme Court.

Papers in the Hemingway suit said the stories, "The Denunciation," "The Butterfly and the Tank" and "Night Before Battle" are scheduled for publication in book form in the fall in "The Armchair Esquire."

Hemingway argued that the magazine had permission only for the original publication. To reprint the stories, he said, would do more than violate his property rights — it would also result in "great injury and irreparable damage to the plaintiff."

DULLES IN RIO—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, left, is greeted by Brazil's foreign minister, Francisco Negro de Lima, on his arrival in Rio de Janeiro. An honor guard stands in background as part of ceremonies as he arrived for an official visit. Enroute to reception he was driven by headquarters building of the leftist National Students Union where a banner reading "Go Home Dulles" appeared across the front of the building and boos were heard. However there was no violence. (AP Wirephoto)

Dry Soil Conditions In Some Areas Reported

RALEIGH (AP)—Reports of dry soil conditions began to come in from some Tar Heel farmers last week, clouding an otherwise optimistic picture of crop prospects.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said today high temperatures and lack of sufficient rainfall were rapidly depleting soil moisture and threatening to interfere with crop development.

The service said most crops, developing and growing exceptionally well, have been made tender by unusually favorable moisture supplies during most of the growing season.

The report added, however, "For the state as a whole, most crops continued to show promise of unusually good yields, but there were some indications of slight deterioration in prospect as a result of high temperatures and lack of adequate rainfall in local areas."

In general, crops have not begun to suffer as a result of the drying soils.

Tobacco was reported to be in generally good condition throughout the state except in some northern Piedmont areas where there have been local shortages of moisture during the season. The alarm hasn't been sounded even in those areas, and the crop still offers promise of comparatively high yields assuming favorable moisture conditions prevail during the rest of the season, the service reported.

Although cotton acreages have been heavily reduced as a result of being placed in the soil bank, growing crops for the state as a whole were reported in good to very good condition.

Peanuts and corn continued to make good progress. Good corn yields, the service said, were virtually assured.

The report added, "Perhaps during no other season have corn prospects been more universally good throughout the state than at the present time."

Auto Workers Favoring Strike

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers today virtually completed tabulation of strike authorization votes at Big Three plants.

It showed 212,768 voting in favor of strike action if necessary to back up the union's goals in current bargaining talks with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. The vote against was given as 15,191.

Since June 1, some 400,000 UAW members have been working without contracts at Big Three plants. UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock, in charge of negotiations with GM, reported yesterday a final tabulation at the UAW's 120 GM units showed 115,973 voting for a strike and 10,410 against.

GM normally employs between 325,000 and 350,000 hourly workers. The union said returns from 52 out of 55 Ford locals showed 56,235 votes for a strike and 2,533 against.

The vote at 37 of 38 Chrysler locals was given as 40,580 in favor and 2,248 against.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther has called a meeting of the union's 25-man executive board in Detroit Friday to consider possible strike action.

Georgia-Florida Belt Prices Up

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—A high daily average price has been set by Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco and indications are the price will continue to climb despite heavy volume.

An upward trend of $1 to $3 held for all groups Tuesday except cutters which were at previous levels. The U.S. Department of Agriculture said that general quality and prices were higher with much tobacco selling for $63 to $66 per hundred pounds and some best going as high as $67 to $69.

A majority of the markets were blocked by the heavy volume. Under rules limiting the number of baskets to be sold and the length of selling hours, sales had to be halted before the floors were cleared of offerings.

For the season, more than two million pounds more had been sold through Monday than for the same period last season. The comparative figures are 47,021,545 this year compared with 44,823,511 for the first five days in 1957.

The average price per hundred pounds this season has been $58.17, up more than three dollars from the $54.96 average last year. The auction bid averages per 100 pounds Tuesday showed good lemon leaf at $66, fair orange leaf $65, low orange up $2 to $64; fair lemon lugs up $3 to $64; good lemon primings up $1 to $65, fair lemon up 2 to $63; and best thin nondescript up $2 to $40.

Marines Due To Return Today

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—Approximately 6,000 Camp Lejeune Marines are scheduled to disembark here today after three weeks of maneuvers in the Caribbean area.

Some 1,600 other Marines who participated in the exercise were returned yesterday. They were aboard 35 ships of an Atlantic Fleet amphibious task force.

The task group originally was formed for possible deployment to the Middle East. When the Mediterranean situation eased, it was diverted to the Caribbean.

School Board To Hear 9 Appeals

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Mecklenburg County School Board is scheduled to hear appeals today from nine Negro students who were denied admission to all-white county schools.

The pupils' parents earlier asked the board to reassign them from Negro to white schools.

Following rejection of the applications, the parents filed notices of appeal under provisions of the Pearsall Plan.

Story Of 'Human Torch' Is Failing Hold Up In Inquiry

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—The sketchy story that Teamsters Business Agent Frank Kierdorf gave after he stumbled into a hospital, burned almost from head to foot, began falling apart today.

At the same time, police had a warrant for the arrest of Kierdorf's uncle, Herman Kierdorf, either a vengeance-bent hunter or the fear-shaken prey of an anonymous telephone threat.

Herman, a former Teamsters business agent, disappeared after swearing he would get even with the people who his nephew said set him afire and left him, pain-wracked and nearly naked, on a hospital lawn.

While the 56-year-old Frank clung to a thin strand of life in a police-guarded hospital room, Prosecutor Frederick Ziem said: "The man had prior medication before he ever came to the hospital. Furthermore, there is no evidence to back up his statement that he rolled in the grass to put out the flames."

Ziem based his conclusions on the word of a pathologist, Dr. Richard E. Olsen, who said he found traces of a salve on Kierdorf's neck and face that was not administered at the hospital.

The new loopholes in Frank's story only piled higher the multitude of unanswered questions. Why did he leave home Sunday night with two strangers? He said they told him it was union business, but he later admitted he was wearing only a robe over trousers and an undershirt. Who are John and Roger? He has mentioned both in delirious mumbling but refused to talk about them later.

What was he loading into the black Packard in which he was taken from his home? A neighbor told police she saw him put what looked like pillows into the car. Could they have contained explosive material that accidentally scared him? Would that mean the men with him were friends?

Was he burned—either vengeance or accidentally—because of union business? At first Frank said yes, then he said no.

Both Frank and his uncle Herman are ex-convicts with Teamsters Union connections. Frank is business agent for the 2,600-member Teamsters Local 332 in near-by Flint. Herman quit only last week as business agent for Detroit Joint Teamsters Council 43 and as an aide to International Teamsters President James R. Hoffa.

Both were reluctant witnesses before the Senate Rackets Committee.

For the first 15 hours after staggering through a hospital door at 1 a. m. Monday, Frank even refused to tell who he was.

Finally, at the urging of Herman, he told a story of two men he did not know tricking him out of his house Sunday night, taking him at gunpoint to a wooded area, dousing him in a fluid, and setting him afire.

He said he rolled in the grass to put out the fire while his two attackers stood by watching. Then, at the urging of one of the men who said he wanted to avoid murder, they drove him to a hospital and dumped him on the lawn.

Herman, 68, told police that 15 minutes before he learned Frank had been burned a strange voice told him on the telephone: "You're next."

Ziem let Herman leave the hospital after he helped talk Frank into telling his story.

Then he disappeared.

Ziem issued a warrant for Herman's arrest for having a gun with a silencer. The gun was turned over to police by a neighbor girl who said Herman had given it to her to keep for him.

Daring Bandits In Daylight Raid

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Bandits smashed a jewelry store display window, tossed a smoke bomb inside the store and escaped with jewels valued at more than $750,000.

Police said four bandits with handkerchiefs hiding the lower parts of their faces took part in yesterday's daring daylight robbery. They escaped in a waiting car.

The owner of the store, W. J. Tobias, said the value of the stolen jewelry, which included diamond necklaces, rings, bracelets and earrings, may run to more than a million dollars.

If you want to find such a rare chemical as octamethylpyrophosphoramide (that's all one word), your best clue would be to call the National Registry of Rare Chemicals at the Illinois Institute of Technology. They have a source index of 36,000 hard-to-find chemicals.

May Buy Estate For Parking Lot

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The city of Palm Springs may buy Marion Davies' 15-acre Desert Inn Hotel property for $1,300,000 and convert it into a parking area.

An offer to sell by the former actress was transmitted to the City Council yesterday by her attorney Greg Bautzer.

The Desert Inn Hotel—one of the landmarks of this desert resort—would be rebuilt in the hills directly behind the present site.

The Stirring New Civil War Novel
THE LAND IS BRIGHT
BY JIM KJELGAARD

CHAPTER 8

Originally the clearing had been natural, one of the open meadows, or parks, that are found in all forests. But some human with the perception of an artist, and a prodigious will to work, had shaped it to his own desires.

The house was built on the far side of the clearing, near the forest's edge, and designed so artfully that it seemed to belong exactly where it was. Perhaps half the size of the mansion at Quail Wings, it was built of a rosy brick with a grey shingled roof and shutters that had probably been imported from the sawmill at Weatherly. The once-white paint on the shutters was fading, but even the dinginess of fading paint could not detract to any marked extent from an overall beauty and harmony. Even the stone chimneys at either end which began at ground level and thrust above the ridge pole had no harsh angles. The house faced the east, to receive the first of the morning sun. All the windows were boarded.

For a full three minutes, Colin sat entranced. Never had he seen a house that captured his heart more completely. It must be his. And Jeanne's, he amended. He could so easily visualize his own life in this house that somehow the house grew color and shape to life with Jeanne. Surrounded by so much calm and beauty, surely she would drop the airs of the spoiled beauty and become the Jeanne of his imaginings.

He considered the practical problems. The house was some fifteen miles from Denbury, about twelve miles from his father's house. With either Robin or Pegasus, his old stallion, he could reach Quail Wings in a little more than an hour and pick up Dusty there. If he had a very strenuous load of work or the weather were especially bad, he could spend the night in Denbury. As he rode slowly up the drive, Colin felt that at last he had come home.

He dismounted, tied Robin to a tree, and went to the three hounds trailing him, walked slowly around the house. Coming to the west side, his eyes lighted with pleasure. At the second story level, supported by a three-sided stone wall whose interior probably served as a root cellar, was a many-windowed room which, due to the slope that lay beneath it, rose above the level of the surrounding trees. Whoever built the house had contrived to greet the sun as it rose and bid it farewell as it set. The least Colin knew about him now was that he was an artist who had faith in time and the fulfillment of time. Whoever he was, Colin warmed to him.

Returning to the front of the house, Colin mounted the steps and tried the great white door. When it yielded, he brushed the snow from his boots, entered a hall and strode down in to a spacious drawingroom occupied at the present time only by the ghosts of draped furniture. In the dim light he could see little save the massive fireplace. But he could feel the love and affection that had been expended here, as though the house were a living thing.

Because he suddenly felt like an intruder, Colin stole out of the house, shut the door and mounted Robin. His heart sang as he continued down the trace. He had fallen in love with a house! This house represented so much that he valued, and he was convinced that life here with Jeanne would take on these values. A sudden chill crossed his heart as it occurred to him that the place might not be for sale. But he banished the thought. It had to be.

Within a few minutes he had reached another clearing. It was in a shallow valley, or rather the shallow upper reaches of what doubtless became a deep valley. The clearing was divided by an unfrozen creek that looked oddly black in contrast to the snow on either bank. A sturdy wooden bridge spanned the creek, and on the other side stood a cabin that was part old and part new.

As he gazed about him, Colin heard a woman's voice call out, "Judge Campbell!"

He looked toward the cabin door and recognized standing there the girl whom he had first met in Denbury court. Ling Stewart's wife. He had paid little attention to her then in his other preoccupations, but as he approached her now he saw that she was beautiful. The shawl that she had thrown over her simple homespun dress did not conceal the lithe fullness of her tall figure. Her face, tanned and glowing from the sun and keen mountain air, was both strong and delicate. "Why, she's a thoroughbred!" Colin thought in surprise.

As he extended his hand to her, she said, "Do you remember that your husband invited me to hunt with him? This is the first chance I've had to accept. I hope I don't come at the wrong time."

"You're most welcome, Judge Campbell," she answered, smiling. Colin's wonder mounted. Most hill country mispronounced their words in such a way that it was often difficult to understand them. Mrs. Stewart's enunciation was perfect and she was as gracious as any hostess in a manor on the Connetquot.

Two little boys, one about six and the other perhaps three, crowded around their mother and then ran toward Colin's hounds. Mrs. Stewart called them back to her side, and Ann turned to her younger son, saying, "Lingo, this is Judge Campbell."

"Please 't'metcha," and there was more defiance than shyness in the child's voice at manner. Ann's face grew stern.

"Lingo!"

"Please!" Colin laughed. "I thought he acquitted himself very well."

Ann sighed. "I often believe that cleaning the Augean stables was simplicity itself compared with teaching manners to healthy boys."

Colin glanced sharply at her. Who had taught her of Hercules and the tasks assigned to that mythological hero?

Unnoticing, she asked Colin,

"May they play with your hounds? For the moment we have no dog, and the youngsters love them."

"I'm sure my hounds will love them, too."

The children raced happily forward, and the hounds waited with welcoming tails for the frolic to come. Colin watched them for a moment before he turned to speak to Ann again. He was surprised to find that next to her now stood a white-bearded and gaunt old man, motionless, with his face cast down. He had evidently come up silently from around the corner of the cabin.

"This is my father, Enos Polard," Ann said.

Colin was about to extend his hand in greeting when he noticed that the old man had not even looked at him, had not, in fact, taken his eyes off the ground.

"Father, will you please put Judge Campbell's horse in the box stall and feed him?" Ann asked.

Only then did the old man raise his visage briefly. Colin caught a glimpse of his eyes. They were mindless as stones. What horror, Colin wondered, had destroyed the intelligence that must have once lit his face?

Wins The Right To Secret Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—An inventor of a top-secret device has won the right to sue the government for compensation behind closed doors. The decision was handed down yesterday by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dr. Otto Halpern, a Vienna-born physicist, had been unable to come to terms with the government for a device he invented in 1941.

So secret is the device that its only description disclosed by the Navy is that it "deals with a manner and means whereby an object may escape observation and detection by radar."

Last September Halpern filed suit for "hundreds of thousands of dollars" against the government for use of the device.

Halpern's lawyers said he was offered less than $50,000 for outright acquisition of the device. The offer was rejected.

In rejecting the suit a federal judge cited the Invention Secrecy Act of 1951, which provides that no patent can be given for secret military devices until potential enemies of the United States have the secret.

Judge David N. Edelstein contended the Secrecy Act precluded an action until declassification of the invention.

In yesterday's precedent-setting decision, the appeals court ruled Halpern's suit might be tried "in camera" before a single judge "if the judgment of the District Court such a trial can be carried out without substantial risk that secret information will be publicly divulged."

Halpern was denied a patent in 1945 on the grounds one would make his secret public.

Registration Of Motor Vehicles In N. C. Down

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Motor vehicle registration in North Carolina for 1958 is running more than 18,000 behind the same period last year, but sales may catch up before the year is out.

Foy Ingram, director of registration for the Motor Vehicles Department, said yesterday that economic conditions may be a factor in the lagging sales of license plates.

"However, reports from other states show that their sales are generally up 1 per cent over last year," he added.

Miss Ingram spoke at the annual Institute of Insurance of the University of North Carolina campus. She reminded auto owners that when they buy their 1959 license plates they will need a new certificate of liability insurance responsibility.

License tag registration at the end of July totaled 1,385,057, Miss Ingram reported. The decrease compared with last year is being lowered each month, she said, and may be wiped out by the end of the year.

Since a new financial responsibility law became effective last Jan. 5, notices of insurance termination have been mailed to 66,395 car owners, Miss Ingram said.

The actual order of license revocation for lack of financial responsibility has been issued for only 8,505 cars, she added. Highway patrolmen are instructed to pick up license plates in such cases.

Richard Brantley of the North Carolina Assn. of Insurance Agents, sponsor of the institute, said the insurance industry expects to mail out certificates of insurance to car owners late this year.

He reminded policyholders to be certain information on the certificate matches their auto registration blanks.

Heat Wave Has Fifty Victims

ROME (AP)—Italy's worst heat wave of the year has taken about 50 victims in the past four days. Among the dead were 20 from sunstroke and heat exhaustion. More than 30 drowned on swimming excursions to escape the heat.

The heat wave is now largely centered on southern Italy. Rains have brought relief to the North.

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE
CINCINNATI (AP)—A housewife here bought a raffle ticket for 50 cents on an electric clock. Afterwards she noticed the drawing was set for Feb. 29. But that's a leap year date—and two years away. She called police who arrested three men for investigation of a fake raffle swindle.

No woman has ever been electrocuted for murder in New Jersey.

Over Code Terms Have Complaint

A group planning to erect a tobacco storage structure complained to the Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday that masonry walls required by the city building code cause undesirable condensation in such buildings.

For that reason the group asked the board to allow it to use some other type walls for the structure.

The building is to be located in the Meadowbrook area partially within the city limits.

Board of Adjustments members decided they needed further information before making a decision on the request. Chairman James W. Butler asked City Manager Leonard Bixman to contact the State Insurance Commission office for their recommendations on such buildings.

Durwood Tucker represented the group which plans to erect the structure.

Butler recessed the morning session and the board will be called back in session when the needed information arrives.

Board members Milton Williamson, Tom Webb, Simon Moye and Building Inspector J. W. Wilson were present for the morning's meeting in addition to Chairman Butler.

Inflation Worry Is Having An Effect On Bonds

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Treasury's financing problems and the growing belief that a new round of inflation is starting have brought the yield on bonds today strikingly close to that on stocks.

That is, bond prices have gone down, making a return on their fixed interest rates higher if bought today. And stock prices have gone up while corporate earnings were falling and dividend payments were mostly static or dwindling, making a return on stocks at today's prices smaller.

Traders in stocks and bonds are disturbed both over the growing belief that inflation is inevitable and over possible effects on the money market of the steps that the Treasury, aided by the Federal Reserve Board, may have to take in the months ahead to finance the growing federal debt.

At first the U.S. bond market's troubles were blamed on speculators who bought on slim margins hoping for a quick kill. When the price of newly issued government securities, which they had thought were priced below the market, went down instead of up, they were forced to sell at a loss, further upsetting the market.

But some observers are looking for more far-reaching causes.

They cite the Treasury's subsequent refunding of a little more than 16 billion dollars of maturing government securities. The return on the new offering seemed right, but the Treasury says that holders of around 2 1/2 billion dollars asked for cash instead. This was 17 per cent of the total.

But the National City Bank of New York points out today in its August bank letter that the Federal Reserve held many of the exchanged securities and had bought more of the old ones just before the offering to help the Treasury.

Counting out the securities held by the Fed, which automatically exchanged for the new, 29 per cent of those held outside the system were turned in for cash.

And the bank adds that the Fed also bought more than a billion dollars of the new offering from outside holders on a when-issued basis, which are being turned in for the new securities. The bank figures this brings public holders demanding cash to 42 per cent of their original holdings.

Out of this came renewed downward pressure on bond prices, both government and corporate—and hence higher yields at today's prices.

U.S. government bonds are the safest in the land. They will be repaid in full. But the bank points out that in times of creeping inflation the fixed return on bonds looks unattractive to those who see the market value of the dollar receding.

The rise in stock prices last week owed some of its impetus to the turmoil in bonds — perhaps more to belief that government deficit spending means more inflation, edged on by some recent price rises and by a hoped-for upsurge in business this fall.

Normally when the bond and stock yields get this close, many investors switch to the safer bonds. But the fact that still more U.S. securities will swell the market supply, and belief that inflation may erode their returns, causes some observers to feel that this may not happen so markedly this time.

The bank notes as the core problem "getting federal government expenditures and financial commitments of every type under control." It holds, "It is not fair to ask anyone to buy bonds of a government which seems to be embarked on deficits as a way of life."

Many will dispute the bank's views, but that's how it feels about it.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tried hard to resume a summer rally today but achieved only partial success with prices slightly higher in early afternoon.

Oils were favorites again with gains running from fractions to more than a point. Many changes in other groups were fractional.

Turnover was moderate compared with the huge volume of the past two sessions.

Higher Foreign Aid Spending Is Near Conceded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of increased foreign aid spending all but conceded victory today to Senate leaders fighting to restore most of the funds cut by the House from a foreign aid money bill.

Two opponents suffered a strong setback yesterday when the Senate Appropriations Committee approved $3,518,992,500 in foreign aid spending after restoring 440 million of the 597 1/2 million chopped out by the House.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

Seven Norfolk, Va., Negroes, three women and one man, were given prison sentences Monday for shoplifting at two stores—Brody's and Belk-Tyler's—last Friday.

Those sentenced for larceny: Marian Gibbs, six months in Women's Prison; Charles E. Moore, nine months in Women's Prison; Shirley Mills (two charges) seven months on the first charge and the second sentence is to be served concurrently; Charles E. Moore, nine months (concurrent); Larose Melving, seven months in Women's Prison (concurrent) with above sentence; Marian Gibbs, six months in Women's Prison (concurrent) with above sentence.

Home To Bed

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y. (AP) — S. Sgt. Thomas A. Johnson quit his attempt at settling a world's talking record and went home to bed today. His tired vocal chords had splintered for 85 hours and 37 minutes.

Johnson, a one-time disc jockey from Memphis, Tenn., had hoped to hit 100 hours of continuous talking.

At 4:30 a. m. Capt. Oscar Ruiz, an Air Force doctor, advised Johnson to quit or risk permanent injury to his voice. Johnson complied.

Room And To Spare For Shoppers This Dollar Day

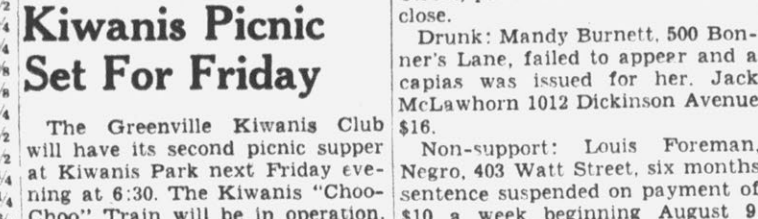

DIAGRAM OF GREENVILLE DOWNTOWN BUSINESS SECTION . . . black squares indicate municipal parking lots.

Shoppers by the thousands are expected to fill the streets of Greenville tomorrow for the city's semi-annual Dollar Day.

There will be over 1,000 free parking spaces as every parking meter and municipal parking lot is to be opened to the shoppers.

This one-day sales promotion, sponsored by the Merchants Association, has become a traditional affair here. E. E. Featherston, Chairman of the Association's Trade Promotions Committee, stated this morning that he expected tomorrow's Dollar Day to be the best ever staged.

All the stores will open as usual at 9 a. m. and close at 5:30 p. m. Extra clerks have been employed by many of the stores for the event.

Indirect Aggression Leads To World War, Says Dulles

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said today indirect aggression threatens another world war. "This time," he said, "with even more disastrous consequences."

World events now show "disturbing symptoms such as preceded and forecast World War II," Dulles said in a speech prepared for a luncheon given for him by the American Chamber of Commerce in Brazil.

Dulles spoke to the American business community just before flying with Brazilian President Juscelino Kubitschek to Brasilia, the nation's capital, under construction 600 miles northwest of Rio. It was the secretary's last stop on his 2 1/2-day visit to Brazil. He was to fly back to Washington tonight.

Kiwanis Picnic Set For Friday

The Greenville Kiwanis Club will have its second picnic supper at Kiwanis Park next Friday evening at 6:30. The Kiwanis "Choo-Choo" Train will be in operation.

This is a regular meeting of the club and is for the Kiwanians and their wives and children.

Chairman Robert Elks of the Cusine Committee and his committeemen are arranging the affair. There will be no business transacted. President Dixie McGlohon stated.

Bond Measure In Fountain Loses

FOUNTAIN — The election held in the Fountain Town Hall Saturday to vote for bonds to dig a new well and buy a new fire truck saw the proposal defeated.

There were 63 votes cast for the well and 60 votes cast for a new fire truck.

There were 69 votes cast against a new well and 69 votes cast against bonds to buy the new fire truck.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tried hard to resume a summer rally today but achieved only partial success with prices slightly higher in early afternoon.

Oils were favorites again with gains running from fractions to more than a point. Many changes in other groups were fractional.

Turnover was moderate compared with the huge volume of the past two sessions.
