Mrs. Kehn Creates Gardens On Buttons

MINIATURE MAGIC—Mrs. Ora Kehn with two of the tiny formal gardens she constructs for hospitalized children.

DENVER (AP)—A button off a man's overcoat seems an unlikely setting for a formal garden. But youngsters at Children's Hospital could tell you a thing or two about that.

Every year 50 bedfast children at the hospital delightedly receive miniature gardens, built on large buttons, from a little widow, Mrs. Ora Kehn.

She has been enchanting sick youngsters this way for 13 years. Each tiny button garden has miniature figures, bits of living plant life, pea-sized seashells, thumb-nail acorns. Each is different from the others.

Mrs. Kehn is lame from a hip injury and has had arthritis for years, but she forgets all this as each year she turns her kitchen table into a workbench for more of the dainty gardens-on-buttons.

Friends and relatives help her with materials. One in Massachusetts sends acorns to her, another in Hawaii mails seashells.

Plants, figurines, shells and the rest are fastened firmly to the button base with airplane glue. Enraptured boys and girls water their gardens daily with an eyedropper and sometimes keep the plants green for months.

Designers Await Paris Debut

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—Two young newcomers are seeking fame and fortune as Paris dressmakers this season.

One, Serge Matia, a Chilean of 35, opens his own house, and the other, Roland Karl, 24 and German born, has designed the winter collection for Patou, one of the oldest houses in Paris.

If Matia is successful—and both he and Karl show great promise and are being tipped as winners—Paris may have another new house of top rank. Only three designers—Hubert de Givenchy, Pierre Cardin and Guy Laroche—have pulled off this difficult feat in the last decade.

The newcomers may well have been encouraged by the spectacular success of Yves Saint-Laurent then only 21, in the house of Dior last season. In fact one of them, Roland Karl, is a close friend of Saint-Laurent and has had an oddly parallel career. When Saint-Laurent won an international design contest in 1954, the other first prize winner was Karl. Both worked anonymously in big houses until a vacancy at the top gave them their chance.

The fact that neither of the new designers is French worries this fashion capital not a bit, for it's right in the Paris tradition. Balenciaga is Spanish, Desses is Greek, Schiaparelli is Italian, Piguet was Swiss, Worth and Molyneux were English, and so on. About the only thing Paris hasn't had is a famous American dressmaker since Mainbocher returned to New York.

Both this season's new designers are handsome, dark-eyed, and black-haired, both are medium height, and to carry coincidence further, both are well-traveled and speak several languages.

Matia already has declared himself as a sack and chemise hater. "I want to make women look beautiful again," he declares, with a certain emphasis on the last word. "I love women with their own shapes, and I only aim to embellish what God created."

Young Karl gets his family name from a Swedish grandfather, but he was born in Hamburg, where his family still lives.

When Karl won his fashion prize—for coats, while Saint-Laurent won for dresses—he was snapped up by Balmain on the same day, and remained there until hired by Patou this season.

"I won on coats," laughs Karl, "but actually I like designing coats least of all. What I really love are little black dresses."

Keep ribbons, scarves, and sport hats pert for each wearing by laundering them in soap or detergent suds at the first sign of soil. Ribbons may be wrapped around the hot water pipe in your kitchen or bathroom. While drying this way, they will also "iron" themselves, that is, come off the pipe wrinkle free.

SNUG FUN—This outfit, all hand-knitted, is an advance design for after-ski wear. The creation by Italian designer Adria consists of a black leotard topped by a white and black tunic in the manner of a medieval tabard.

SCRAMBLED EGGS PLUS
Ever add diced cream cheese to an egg mixture before scrambling? This addition gives delicate piquant flavor and smooth texture. For texture change, brown small bread cubes in butter and stir into scrambled eggs just before they are finished cooking.

Friends Of A Kind Before The Jaypee

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Alfred A. Steele appealed to Justice of Peace Alice K. Burridge to free his friend from an insufficient fund check charge.

She agreed if Steele would make good on $60 in bad checks. Steele promptly pulled a checkbook from his pocket and began writing. But Mrs. Burridge refused to accept this check without proof Steele had an account in the bank.

Sheriff Louis Cooper said Steele went outside the courtroom, forged a note from a bank official saying he had an account in the bank, then wrote a check to free his pal. The check bounced.

Adams Staying, But GOP May Not

Official Washington remains sharply divided over the questions of whether there has been any influence-peddling in high places in government, to what extent it has existed and by whom influence was peddled.

This is nothing more than we should expect.

After mounting to a high pitch, the Sherman Adams-Bernard Goldfine episode is now dying a quiet death in Washington. The charges of favoritism are heard with less frequency than a few weeks ago; and official White House defending of Adams' actions has faded away.

So far as the American people are concerned, they are right back where they were when the controversy began. They are left to make up their own minds whether favoritism was shown, bought, or what-not. There has been no official conclusion from Washington on the basis of information gathered from all the hearings.

There remain only private opinions.

Adams remains at his post as the President's chief assistant. The President still maintains he's as clean as a hound's tooth and that he "needs him." Republicans for the most part stand with the President and Adams while Democrats understandably continue to question the activities of this man who occupies a post of highest government responsibility.

THE GENERAL — A familiar figure will be missing from the public scene in North Carolina for the next three or four weeks. "The General" is taking a month off to rest up and recuperate from an incident of arthritis.

Patrol Sergeant Harold Minges, who has driven more Governors more miles over North Carolina highways during the past 14 years than any other driver, obtained temporary leave. Minges drove Greg Cherry all over the state during his primary and election campaign in 1954, then took over the wheel of the State's No. 1 Cadillac when Cherry became Governor in January, 1955. He has been on that job ever since, driving for Governors Cherry, Scott, Umstead and Hodges. There are not many miles of primary highways he has not been over, and he has driven thousands of miles on short cut and unmapped roads.

Early in the term Governor Cherry dubbed his patrol driver "The General," a title that has stuck and is better known than his official rank as a sergeant in the Highway Patrol. During his leave of absence No. 1 will be driven by a relay of patrolmen rather than by one fully assigned driver.

Throughout the Cherry campaign and for the first half of his administration as Governor war-time restrictions applied to the use of gasoline and tires. The General had to keep an accurate log of all trips. He continued the practice when it was no longer legally required. Result is he has a little notebook in which is listed just about every trip he has made, including boat, plane and train trips for which he took them to embarkation points. It would be easier to get in top secret files of the Pentagon than to get a glimpse at that little book.

NECESSARY — The littlest building on the premises of the restored Tryon Palace at New Bern is a reproduction of the original "necessary house." That was a predecessor of the famed Chick Sales Jobs, and an elegant four-holer. Despite a very adequate drainage and sewerage system, Lord Tryon's palace did not have indoor plumbing. The "necessary house" illustrates the faithful reproduction of the palace, which in its day was not only the capitol of the colony and the State of North Carolina, but was rated one of the finest buildings in North Carolina.

NATIONAL — Micou Browne, vice president of Occidental Life Insurance Company at Raleigh, has been reappointed a member of the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Newly appointed to the same committee is Herbert G. Bailey Jr., vice president of the Bank of Greensboro. The news release on these appointments says the function of the committee is to advise the U. S. chamber on educational matters and to work for better schools in their own communities. CONGRESSMAN — Heinz Rollman, who ran second in the recent primary and then failed to get the nomination at hands of the executive committee, has abandoned his plan to wage a write-in campaign in the 12th congressional district this fall. Instead, he is calling upon Rep. George Shuford, who resigned as the Democratic candidate, to resign his seat for the current term and let Dave Hall, who was nominated by the committee to go on the ballot this fall, take the office immediately. In making this suggestion Rollman shows the same lack of knowledge about election processes which many citizens also lack.

ELECTION ONLY — The office of Representative in the Congress is the only position that cannot be filled by any sort of appointment, but only by popular election of the people. There is provision for filling vacancies in the United States Senate, in all State and local offices, including membership in the General Assembly, by appointment. There is provision for filling vacancies on the general election ticket for candidates for the National House of Representatives — as was done in the 12th district this year. But the only way any person can get into the House of Representatives at Washington is by election of the people in his district. Take the 12th district situation for example. For Dave Hall to take that seat before the convening of the next Congress in January, the following steps would be necessary:

George Shuford would have to resign as Representative, in addition to his extant resignation as a candidate for re-election. The Governor would have to call for a special election to name his successor. The district committee would have to meet again and nominate Hall (or somebody else) for the unexpired term. The special election could not be held in less than 30 days, possibly six weeks. It would require two to three weeks for the State Board of Elections to meet and canvass the vote. Then the Governor would have to issue a commission to the new congressman. Meantime, the Congress would have adjourned and the new members could not take his oath of office until the next Congress convened in January — which will be the same time Dave Hall will take his oath as result of the regular election in November. He would gain no experience or seniority, and the only thing to be accomplished by the special election process would be to further disturb the political situation in the district.

by retaining Adams in his job in spite of tremendous pressure for his resignation. In the long run, however, the Republican party will pay a dear price for this Presidential action. Indeed, the President's action will cost the government dearly in the respect individual citizens have for the integrity of men in high offices.

Influence-peddling and corruption in high places was a major issue in the national political campaign in 1952. Eisenhower's promise to clean house in Washington was one of the factors which swept him and the Republican party into power. There can be no doubt now that the same issue will be a major factor in the national campaign in 1960. Only then the Republicans will be on the defensive instead of the Democrats.

The Republicans have won the Sherman Adams battle, but it may well cost them the 1960 campaign.

Always Be Some Who Won't Bow To Years

It isn't surprising that more than one and one-half million Americans over 65 are passing up their social security benefits and retirement to keep on working.

The high cost of living is probably partially responsible for the decision of these people who could draw their social security benefits. More than likely, however, most of the people over 65 who are now passing up their social security payments just don't want to give up what they are doing for a full-time job of loafing.

With advances in medical science, the guy of 65 today feels much better and gets along better than his counterpart of a few decades ago. Just because he's reached that age of 65 doesn't mean he's a tired, broken-down, old man. It doesn't mean he's ready to give up a daily routine of work he has followed for 40 or 50 years to sit around and rock.

We know, of course, that some people can hardly wait until they are 65 so they can ease up on the grind and enjoy the leisure they have looked forward to for so many years.

It's just a difference in individuals and what they want to do. Whatever the official retirement age, there'll always be a good many people who pass up their social security benefits to stay on the job. It just that they like what they are doing.

Red China Issue Still With Us

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Nations' 81 members may have to pause in their dingo-dog fight over the Middle East, while they wait around once more with the old question of membership for Red China.

Every time this came up previously the United States lined up enough votes to keep the Chinese Reds out. It can probably do so again. But the State Department, as if expecting trouble, has just put out a 5,000-word document outlining the U. S. position on the issue. This is in part a flat explanation — and in part a kind of question-and-answer explanation — of why the United States refuses to recognize the Red Chinese as the lawful government of China, and therefore opposes a seat in the U. N. for them. It's a pretty cold, realistic document, unusually free of broad-brush, except for one broad splash of wishful thinking. And in one spot it's a little less than candid.

It's wishful thinking for the department to say it holds the view that Communist rule in China is not permanent. There's nothing solid to indicate otherwise. And it's a little less than candid — in explaining American support of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa — to speak of the Nationalists' growing power without adding the Chiang couldn't stand five minutes without American help.

For a while in 1950 — after the Reds drove Chiang off the mainland and to Formosa — the Truman administration's policy was one of non-interference in the Chinese civil war. This meant leaving Chiang to his fate. This abruptly changed when the Reds entered the Korean War. Ever since, under both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations, U. S. policy has been the same: nonrecognition and opposition to a seat in the U. N. for the Reds.

Here is the U. S. explanation for refusing recognition: It's to this country's interest not to recognize the Reds. If the situation changes, and if it would be to the benefit of this country to change its policy, it will do so. Without using this exact language, the department said the Reds outlawed themselves by their attack on Korea and by breaking agreements and promises since then. Further: the Chinese Reds are breathing down the necks of their Asian neighbors and want to communize the continent. This country has lined up with the non-Communist nations and is doing what it can through economic and military help to keep them non-Red. To give the Reds diplomatic recognition would give them prestige they don't have now, increase their influence, bewilder the non-Communist Asians, make them uncertain of American policies, and perhaps weaken their resistance to Peiping.

And, if this country gave the Reds recognition, it would lead to a U. N. seat for them. This would mean turning over China's seat to them and, eventually, the end of his government. Then the department dwelt on questions that have been raised about the wisdom of this American policy. And it gave answers. They went this way: Don't the Red Chinese, since they actually run mainland China, have a right to American recognition? No. Such recognition is a privilege, not a right. This country can grant it or withhold it. But how can this country "ignore" a government which controls all mainland China and rules over 600 million people? The department said the Communists who run China are only 2 per cent of the population and besides, because of their brutality, have caused a lot of popular unrest.

This is not one of the department's best arguments. Only a small percentage of the Russians are Communists, yet the Reds there control over 200 million people and this country, despite Soviet Communist brutality, has recognized the Kremlin regime for years. Might not recognition of Red China eventually weaken the ties between Red China and the Soviet Union? The department said there's no evidence to support this belief and argued at length to the contrary. Wouldn't this country widen its trade by recognizing Red China? The department doesn't think much of trade possibilities with the Red Chinese.

other human beings have a soul. Furthermore, he believes that this soul lives on forever. This in itself gives dignity to the whole of human life. It sets up a goal for us which is worth attaining, a destiny which is in keeping with the designs of God. Mortal man has a soul. This conviction lies not only at the base of all religion; it lies at the base of all art; of poetry and music. It is the source of human aspiration. It is the thing that keeps us going even when we are inclined to lose heart and give up. A soulless life would not be worth living. Life here is preparation for eternal living. We have a soul. The whole of life is made different as we ponder this awesome truth.

MAN IS DIFFERENT The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, the animal kingdom comes and goes. As growing things fade, they are cast into the flames. The animal dies and is consumed in the forest, or decays there, or, if it happens to be a pet, is sometimes buried. But all these things constitute the end of the inanimate and non-human categories. But with man it is not so. Here we are dealing with an entirely different being; and, of course, the thing that makes him different is the possession of an immortal soul. What is this soul? No one can answer that question, but very religious believer is confident that he and all

Speaking Of Foreign Policies

By JIMMY ELLIS

So Help Me, It's True!

The note on the typewriter yesterday afternoon was almost insulting.

"All right, buster," the first sentence read. "Let's see you explain in a column to your curious public how come you've been sporting a bruise in the middle of that receding forehead."

The writer of the note, News Editor Don Schlenz, seems to take a special delight in writing notes like that. He says they're just to remind us that we have columns due, but a long association with him and his notes has convinced me that the thing goes deeper.

For instance, he knows full well that the bruise I've been sporting in the middle of my forehead (which is not receding thank you) is a Badge Of Honor. Despite that knowledge, he insists on making wise cracks about it.

In his little note, Schlenz suggests, "Go ahead, tell 'em some sort of fanciful tale about not getting clouted by an indignant wife about how you didn't get cllobbered by that No. 1 Son... about how you didn't come off second-best against a 97-pound weakling..."

There's more, but I'll dispose of those first. My Fair Gwen most certainly did not clout me. When she gets indignant, she won't have anything to do with me, and that includes clouting which she does only in moments of great affliction.

The Wee Urchin did not clobber me, because he's afraid to try it again. He did it once about three months ago and I was unconscious for nearly five minutes. He thought he had seriously injured me.

I did not come out second-best against a 97-pound weakling because those fellows don't waste their time with me. Most of the 97-pound weaklings I know are out for bigger game.

Schlenz also suggests, "Deny your blood didn't just get tired, it quit; and you fell flat on the noggin... belittle that rumor a champagne cork zered-in on you during a stag supper... sneer at the snickering throng who suspect in a moment of frustration you banged your head against a wall."

Well, now, my blood hasn't quit. I don't have any.

I have not been slugged by a champagne cork because I have not seen any champagne since a member of The Daily Reflector staff got married a year or so ago, and even then they would not let me get close to the room where the cork-popping was going on.

Furthermore, those who suspect I bruised my forehead in a moment of frustration by banging it against a wall just don't understand my situation. I have been banging my head against walls so long that the marks no longer show.

In his grand piece-de-resistance, Schlenz advises, "Don't try to palm off that story about a suction cup; nobody would believe that even if you stood on your head."

To be completely honest about the whole thing, and to ignore Kind Don's advice completely, I'll admit that a suction cup was responsible for it all, believe it or not.

It was this way: Sunday afternoon, both of The Twins were yelling and being the loving father I am, I offered to go to any lengths to quiet them. My instrument for the maneuver was a small rattle with a suction cup on the end.

I plastered it to my forehead, so that I could lean over The Twins' play pen, shake my head, cause the rattle to make noise and thereby entertain them. It worked, but one of us got tired of it after a while. When I started to remove the suction cup from my forehead, it held firmly until I jerked it away in a moment of unusual, for me, strength. The bruise popped up when the suction cup's vacuum was broken.

That, so help me, is the truth. Some people, like Schlenz, won't believe it, however. I won't stand on my head as an evidence of further faith in the story, however. I won't even do that for The Twins.

Nor will I put that suction cup on my head again. It hurts when you pull it off.

Other Editors Saying --- SAC In Eastern Carolina

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Several major cities and military installations in North Carolina have for some time been listed among the major targets for enemy attack in case the U.S. becomes involved in all-out war. Naturally, the military posts would rate first choice from enemy bombers, but several plants in the Piedmont section, now engaged in missile work, would rank high also.

The Air Force has announced that Strategic Air Command units will be placed at Seymour Johnson Air Base in Goldsboro, early in 1959. Sen. Sam Ervin said this will include 1,400 personnel for wing headquarters, a bomber squadron and a tanker squadron with supporting units. SAC has the responsibility of retaliating against the enemy should this country be attacked.

Since SAC poses such a formidable arm of our striking forces, its bases would rate top priority targets, because the power to hit back at an enemy forms much of the deterrent ability of our military forces, and indeed provides the base upon which much of our present foreign policy is built.

Thus, with a new SAC segment coming to Eastern North Carolina, we who live in the area must consider ourselves right in the middle of the military stream. The area no longer can be considered an isolated one, of no interest to an enemy. Military experts expect SAC bases in the continental U. S. to be among the first hit by enemy bombs. That is one reason why a third of SAC's available bombers are in the air at all times, and much of the remainder on 15 minutes notice (at least since the Lebanon crisis).

These facts are not designed to panic residents of the area. They are not meant to raise storm warnings. Rather, they mean we must face the idea realistically, and react as other residents in critical areas have reacted. It is known that civil defense preparedness is woefully inadequate. And that applies to almost every part of the country, with the exception perhaps of critical areas, such as those near missile installations or missile and plane factories.

So, the next logical step would be to look to our civil defense systems. Would most of us really know what to do in case of an emergency? It may well pay us to find out, for perhaps sometime in the future we may be faced with something other than a civil defense drill. It may be the real thing.

Future Grief In Fringe Benefits

By ELMER ROESSNER

It may never happen. But the size of fringe benefits may someday cause trouble in labor fringes.

The Chamber's figures throw a new light on the average gross earnings of production workers in manufacturing industries which in June, this year, were $83.10 per week of 39.2 hours, or $2.12 per hour.

Fringe benefits have undoubtedly increased since last year, but even if they haven't, they would bring average earnings up to more than $2.59 an hour and more than $101 a week.

Suppose that labor runs into some block in its drive for ever higher wages, or suppose that a sharp and sudden rise in prices cuts buying power of current wages.

Will continue to grow. When the Chamber makes its next survey of benefits paid in 1959, the total will undoubtedly be higher. For one reason, many of these benefits are based on wages and salaries, which have been increasing and seem dead certain to keep on rising. For a second, there is no reason to expect unions to refrain from asking larger, newer and fancier fringes.

But remember that when tax withholding was begun, and again when wartime overtime shrank, labor raised the cry, "No cut in take-home pay!" And, to a great extent, it succeeded in getting raises to compensate for the losses.

Couldn't a similar cry bring about a switch for benefits into immediate cash?

THEN, DEMANDS FOR FRESH BENEFITS

If this happened, it would be surely followed by demands for new series of benefits, because the same situations that created the first pensions, insurance, vacations, etc., would still exist.

The Chamber's survey showed that there was a wide variation in benefits. They ran from 6 to 60 per cent of reporting company's payrolls. Of the 1,020 companies, 102 have supplied data every other year since 1947. The figures showed that these companies had paid an average of $420 per employee in 1947 and $1,150 in 1957. That doesn't seem likely, of course.

As Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, who directed the Chamber's survey, pointed out, the Department of Labor's figures on gross hourly and weekly wages are no longer accurate measures of worker income or of costs of doing business.

Indian Error Cited

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the greatest mistakes made by the American Indians was their failure to set up customs posts all along the coast shortly after Columbus first landed.

Had they done so they could easily have checked the mass emigration from Europe to a drifting land that still owns most of the continent. But, no, they chose to fight the white man with weapons instead of the law's delays — and look what happened to them!

But the custom of customs inspection has spread now throughout the world. Half the ordeal of traveling abroad today lies in going through customs — or, rather, in waiting to go through. The elements of the situation are always the same: The customs inspector tries as long as possible to keep you from entering his country; and you try to get past him and into the country as soon as possible.

There are a few tricks, however, which veteran travelers find sometimes speed them through the barriers.

Tell the customs man you are a secret courier from Washington, D. C., sent to expedite a loan to his country. To make it more plausible, offer to lend him a buck.

If you are in France, whisper that your wife is conciente. The French, who are crazy about motherhood, will rush her to a hospital — from which you can remove her to a hotel. If you want to attend the Folies Berger, you might even leave her in the hospital overnight.

Speaking just a few words of his native tongue is often helpful, as it shows the customs man you are really interested in his country. This doesn't work in Britain, however, where they distrust any Americans who speak English.

Never brag a customs agent yourself to speed up his inquisition. Let your wife do it. It's cheap. Women can always get more for less money.

Never brag you've got influence. They'll know you're lying. People with real influence don't have to announce it. It goes ahead of them — like waves.

Faint. When the customs agent picks you up, faint again. After he's picked you up several times, he'll be glad to stamp your baggage just to get rid of you.

Pretend you're in no real hurry. Open a bottle of wine and spread a picnic lunch. This stratagem doesn't work well, however, in countries whose customs agents are poorly paid. They'll join in the feast and won't admit you to their country until the last crumb is gone.

Lie down on the pier and cry. There's something about a grown man in tears that softens even the heart of a customs agent.

Tell them you're a smuggler. This is admittedly a drastic step, but after all they can't take you to jail without first letting you into the country.

After you've outwitted the customs agents of half a dozen foreign countries, comes the acid test — on your return home.

All travelers since Marco Polo have agreed that the toughest part of a trip abroad lies in getting back into your own country when the trip is over.

Opinions In Brief

"Last year's Asian influenza epidemic started somewhere on the continent of Asia and swept round the world. It would be unfair, however, to blame Asians for it. They were merely the first victims of a new and unpleasant mutant of the influenza virus. It would be even more unjust for the Occident to retaliate."

"But retaliation there seems to be. What else is to be made of the news that 'chemies' has invaded Japan?" — Palm Beach (Fla.) Times.

"The men who know farming best are not nearly as keen for federal subsidies as the farm-bureau congressmen are." — N. Y. Herald Tribune.

Increased Aerial Service Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winston-Salem, Greensboro and High Point, N.C., will have to be satisfied with their present air service.

The addition of National Airlines to the two trunk airlines now serving the area, Capital and Eastern, was ruled out yesterday by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

In upholding findings by Examiner Richard A. Walsh, the board said traffic among the cities and points to the northeast is insufficient to warrant the addition.

"Moreover," the board said, "the limited traffic between these cities and points to the south, including those on the Florida east coast, is not sufficient" to justify another airline.

National had sought approval to serve the three communities either as an additional airline or in substitution for Capital.

The CAB held that the area's main community of interest is with cities to the northeast rather than to the south. Both Eastern and Capital can satisfy present needs, the board added.

The board rejected a proposal by Walsh for an investigation to determine whether Winston-Salem and Greensboro-High Point should be served through a single airport rather than the present separate airports. The CAB said there was insufficient cause to order such a study.

Ghost Of Conformity For World Populace Is Haunting Tomorrow

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer
It was a chilling thought.

I was somewhere in the Far East when this idea suddenly began taking shape. It has been haunting me ever since.

Here it is:
Are we all becoming alike?
Is every nation on earth losing its special customs, culture, individuality? Are we all heading straight toward (you'll pardon the expression) togetherness?

It looks that way.
It appears that, in the not too distant future, we may be dressing more alike, eating much the same foods, living in a few standard types of houses, watching the same international TV programs, dancing the same dances, responding to the same advertisements, developing pretty much the same tastes.

Fantastic?
Of course, but look over your shoulder.

Only yesterday, a low-slung European car was so rare on the road that you stopped to stare at it. Few Americans ever heard of a vodka martini, much less sipped it. Foreign movies were confined to small, arty theaters in the big cities. Who would have dreamed that a Japanese actress would win an Oscar?

Only yesterday, Coca-Cola invaded Europe. The wine growers rocked with laughter—at first. Soon, they were yelling for government protection. Same with the Paris coiffeurs when American hair-waving gadgets began to take hold with the girls.

On Formosa, the other day, a Chinese tot had a birthday. Which gift wrecked the party? A cowboy suit with chaps and a 10-pint stetson.

One night, some Indonesian students gave a musical program. True, they played native songs, but they had transposed the state-Indonesian rhythms to a weird form of mamba and samba, plus a touch of Dixieland and Jelly-roll!

What's the newest influence in home building and interior decoration in the United States today? Japanese. Architects blend Japanese features into the ranch-style house. All over, you see the "shoji" panel, screens used as room-dividers, vases of flowers and scroll paintings set in combination, the Japanese way of honoring a guest.

These are not unrelated developments. They are part of a universal trend.

Let's look at some of its major aspects.
Take the position of women in some countries where, for centuries, they have been the inferior sex.

In Egypt, a feminist leader is agitating for their right to vote. In East Germany, a woman Communist is the minister of justice. In Japan, women hold seats in danger.

Parliament and have become business executives.

Take some changing social customs.
Communist China is edging toward birth control. On two counts, this is startling. First, it abandons the Oriental tradition of large families. More important, it quietly buries the old Marxist contention that overpopulation is an evil copyrighted by Western capitalists, something that doesn't happen in a Socialist society.

It is hardly news that rock 'n' roll has taken root all around the world, that there are native versions of Elvis Presley in other countries, that the marriage arranged by the parents is disappearing in the Orient.

Take an American psychological development.
Do you detect a tendency among young Americans to play it safe, to overvalue security and undervalue adventure, to emphasize pensions and benefits instead of opportunity in a job. European young men and women have been doing that for many years.

Take a major political current.
The Communist nations constitute a bloc. As a reaction, other nations have drawn together into blocs. It is not only NATO and SEATO. You see it in the Coal and Steel Federation and Euratom in Western Europe, in the new West Indies Federation, in the Arab attempts to come together.

Thus few nations today can afford the luxury of a wholly independent foreign policy. Few can go free-wheeling along in their own way.

These are the trends. Powerful influences are at work, accelerating them by the minute.

Long ago, for example, mass communications and advertising largely erased the differences in the way people live in widely removed sections of the United States. Think of the impact on people around the world when they see each other on international TV.

Think of the impact of jet airliners, cutting travel time, making it possible for more people to go farther from home.

One of these days, no doubt, science will provide the Eskimo with an ordinary business suit—except that it will be electrically heated. Air conditioning already has come to the tropics and the blazing deserts, changing the homes, costumes and habits of the people there.

Even the cold war... It brings thousands and thousands of people from many nations to the United States for training; they carry away with them ideas about American living methods. Vice versa, it has sent thousands of Americans abroad; they come back with discoveries they incorporate into the way they live.

Like it or not, for better or worse, we are losing our differences, becoming more and more alike.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Is Demo Primary Winner

NEW YORK (AP)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. buried his opponent in an avalanche of votes today to win the Democratic renomination for his Harlem congressional seat despite the opposition of powerful Tammany Hall.

The 49-year-old Negro congressman, seeking an eighth term in the House, easily defeated Earl Brown, a Negro city councilman and an assistant editor of Life magazine, in yesterday's primary election.

Returns from all 143 election districts gave Powell 14,837 votes to Brown's 4,936.

The victory assured that Powell will be on both the Democratic and Republican ballots in November. He was the unopposed GOP designee. Brown, 55, once again will be Powell's opponent—running on the Liberal party ticket, where he was unopposed.

Barring unusual developments, Powell seemed a good bet to defeat Brown in November and return to Congress, where he has been the self-proclaimed champion of the American Negro and of the people of Harlem in particular. Harlem is about 85 per cent Negro, with much of the rest Puerto Rican.

Powell won, however, even in a section of Harlem that was heavily Italian and Puerto Rican. Powell said the area is a "powerful Tammany district run by Carmine DeSapio's leader, Frank Rosetti." DeSapio is New York secretary of state and the Tammany Hall leader.

The victory was a blow to DeSapio and the fortunes of Tammany, which backed Powell's previous seven successful bids for Congress but turned against him this time.

The Tammany leaders said they dropped Powell because he supported President Eisenhower in the 1956 campaign. Powell said he supported Eisenhower because the Democrats took too weak a stand on civil rights.

Powell is awaiting trial on charges of federal income tax evasion, and the outcome could be one factor in the fall election. His indictment played little part, however, in the primary campaigning.

Both candidates campaigned mainly on racial issues. Powell called Brown a "hand-picked Uncle Tom"—a Negro considered subservient to whites. Brown replied that Powell's vaunted civil rights advocacy was mostly talk.

Brown, like Powell, opposes segregation but has not been as vociferous about it.

Selection of candidates for governor and U.S. senator will come later this month at state party conventions.

Army Units Keep Close Eye On Lebanon Rebels

By TOM OCHILTREE
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Reconnaissance units of the U. S. Army keep a constant watch on rocky ridges beyond which the mysterious forces of rebel leader Jamal Jumblatt make their camps.

The American watchers work with helicopters, jeeps and on foot. The blue Mediterranean glimmers about four miles away. They get down to the beach about once every three days to swim off the dust that goes with soldiering.

They are not looking for trouble and have not had any. Like the cavalry of old they are the eyes of the Army. They should be among the first to know if the present uneasy truce in Lebanon breaks down.

In the most advanced position of all, members of Troop C, an airborne reconnaissance unit of the 17th Cavalry, are dug in snugly. Working with Lebanese security troops and patrolling on their own, they keep track of any disturbances in rebel territory.

Maj. Oran K. Henderson of Indianapolis, the commander, said: "According to our information Jumblatt's army has about 35 per cent local people from his own area in its ranks with the other 65 per cent being what we call strangers. These are said to be Lebanese from other parts of the country, Syrians and even Egyptians.

"Jumblatt, who is even respected by his opponents, can keep the local people in his army from starting the shooting again. His control over the strangers is questionable, however; that is why we are here to keep a watch on things."

"There has been little to report from here since the recent election of Gen. Fuad Chehab as Lebanese president," said Lt. Douglas.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Israel is taking the position of a watchful observer at the outset of today's U.N. emergency Assembly session on the Middle East.

But Israel has made plain to the Western powers and Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold that it cannot be ignored in any vital decisions affecting the future of its area.

Israel's delegation to the Assembly is headed by Ambassador Abba Eban. He is being assisted by Arthur Lourie, the Israeli ambassador to Canada, and Moshe Toy, adviser on Latin-American affairs at the Foreign Ministry in Tel Aviv.

Authoritative sources said this was Israel's position:
Israel has served notice on the Western powers that if Jordan seems about ready to fall into the hands of President Nasser's United Arab Republic, defense considerations will dictate Israel's course of action.

Uppermost in Israel's mind is what happened in Gaza. The Israelis feel they surrendered Gaza to U.N. control, only to be confronted later by Nasser's forces in that area. They do not intend to see the same thing happen in Jordan.

The inference is that the Israelis will occupy all of Jordan west of the Jordan River and the Dead Sea, including the Old City of Jerusalem.

Eban intends to speak in the Assembly when it gets down to brass tacks on specific proposals. He will stress Israel's contention that any state threatened by another has the right to invite help from a friendly power.

He will also stress that any guarantees given to Arab states in the Middle East should be applicable to non-Arab states as well.

Carolina Dairies Playing In State Tourney Today

Playing Club From Charlotte At W-S Today

The Carolina Dairies softball team, recent winners of the Northeastern District fast-pitch tournament here, left Greenville today at noon, heading for Winston-Salem and the State playoffs.

Manager of the team, Pete Carraway, told reporters today that arrangements had gone smoothly and that all of the team's regular players would probably be able to make the trip.

At least two of the players will have to come back to Greenville Friday in order to take examinations at East Carolina College. Bill Altman and Jerry Warren, both regulars, will be closing out their summer school work at the school Friday when finals are underway.

The Dairies team was allowed to pick up two extra players to take with them on the trip, according to the tournament rules at Winston-Salem. Manager Carraway secured Ike Riddick, shortstop for the City Champion Grantees, as one choice. The other has not yet been disclosed.

Playing Today Carolina Dairies will make the five-hour trip to Winston-Salem by car and will play their first ball game shortly after they arrive. They are scheduled to battle the Charlotte Metro District winner at 6:00.

Carraway has not named his probable starters but the lineup should look something like this: Bill McHallich and Bob Dash at the batteries; Brownie Tripp at first base; Tom Boyd at second base; Blaney Moye or Riddick at shortstop; Matt Hall at third base; Bill Altman in leftfield; Earl Tripp or Doug Sasser in centerfield; Jerry Warren in rightfield. The Dairies club earned its berth in the State playoffs by whizzing through the Northeastern District tournament, racking up a phenomenal 55 runs, while allowing only six by the opposition. They won eight of nine ball games, had one no-hitter, slammed a number of homers, and upset both the favored clubs in the tournament. Bill McHallich, a fireballing right-hander from Griffin, did all of the winning pitching chores for the Dairies. The whole team contributed to the hitting.

All-Stars Have Lots Of Depth At Quarterback

CHICAGO (AP)—Will it be King Hill of Rice, Ray Brown of Mississippi, Tom Forrestal of Navy or Jim Ninowski of Michigan State? That's the lineup of All-Star quarterbacks for the big game against Detroit's Lions Friday night at Soldier Field.

If the All-Stars hope to win, they'll need a sharp field general. Otto Graham, former Northwestern University star and later the quarterback who led the Cleveland Browns to numerous professional football titles, has not announced his starting lineup.

But it's a good bet that Hill will be the quarterback. If not Hill, then it's anyone's guess. Graham says he'll play a wide open game which, at best, means a lot of passing.

"You can't run through the pros," says Graham. The All-Stars have a line that averages 234 pounds from tackle to tackle. They're well fortified up front and have the horses, if needed, in the backfield.

But since Graham is the coach, and he knows what it takes to beat the pros, he'll probably have his quarterbacks pitching to his halfbacks.

Graham is satisfied with his team's showing in drills and insists that it takes a lot of desire to beat the champions of the National Football League.

"The pros should win," says Otto, but somehow, somewhere, lurks the idea that his All-Stars might surprise the Lions in the 25th anniversary of the contest. The game will be broadcast and televised nationally by ABC at 8:30 p. m., EST.

Every Time Braves Are Hot, Up Pops Pittsburgh

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer Just when Milwaukee's world champs looked to have that National League pennant race under control, up pops Pittsburgh.

The Pirates, usually stone cold dead at this stage, ran their winning upset to six games, took over second place and trimmed Milwaukee's lead to five games last night by beating the Braves 10-0. Rookie right-hander George Witt blanked the champs on two hits, although it wasn't as easy as it sounds. It was his second successive shutout and gave the Bucs a sweep of the two-game series at Pittsburgh.

St. Louis skidded San Francisco to third by beating the Giants 7-3. Cincinnati belted Philadelphia 12-4 and the Chicago Cubs smacked Los Angeles 9-3.

In the American League, the New York Yankees rapped Baltimore 7-2, the Chicago White Sox defeated Cleveland 4-1 and Detroit beat Kansas City 7-6. Witt had to struggle for his sixth victory until Frank Thomas unloaded his 29th homer with man on in the sixth off Bob Rush. The Bucs then put it away with eight in the eighth. Witt had little trouble with the Braves after the second inning, but the second was a pip.

Frank Torre lifted a pop fly to left that fell for a double and the Braves' first hit when Bob Skinner lost it in the lights. Then Witt, who walked four, hit Johnny Logan with a pitch, loading the bases with one out. Rush then bunted, Witt scooped up the ball and flipped to catcher Danny Kravitz for a home-to-first double play.

That's all the Braves managed against Witt, who has lost two, until Hank Aaron doubled with two out in the ninth.

The Bucs sent 12 men to bat in the big eighth. Thomas drove in his third run with a double, and Skinner tripled home two.

The Cards made it eight out of nine by overcoming a 3-2 Giants lead with a pair of unearned runs in the seventh. Sam Jones won his 10th, fanning seven but walking eight while matching loser Mike McCormick's six-hit job.

Jim Bolger hit a two-run triple and Lee Walls socked a two-run homer as the Cubs scored five runs in the third at Los Angeles. Walls also hit a solo homer in the ninth, his 23rd of the season. Dick Drott won his fifth, giving up Gil Hodges' two-run, 16th homer in the fourth. Danny McDevitt (1-5) lost it.

The Redlegs bagged it with a six-run sixth, capped by Bob Thurman's three-run double, at Philadelphia. Tom Acker gave up eight hits for his first victory. He had a three-hit shutout until the seventh, when Chico Fernandez hit a two-run double. Wally Post hit a two-run pinch homer in the ninth for the Phils, while Frank Robinson hit his 21st homer for the Reds.

Forbes Field Helps, But Witt Is Even Better

By GEORGE ESPER PITTSBURGH (AP)—Manager Danny Murtagh would like nothing better than to take a ballpark full of Pittsburgh Pirate fans on the 19-game road trip that starts today.

But he wouldn't swap George Witt for even that much help. Not after the red-haired young right-hander's pitching feat of handcuffing Milwaukee last night. "The Forbes Field crowds help us play better ball," said Murtagh after the Pirates crushed the National League-leading Braves 10-0 before 36,867 cheering fans. The victory moved the Pirates to within five games of the Braves.

San Francisco's loss last night gave the astounding Pirates sole possession of second place.

The Pirates have won 16 of the last 18 games at Forbes Field, including all six of the short home stand which ended last night.

Pittsburgh has copped 17 of its last 22 games and is riding a six-game winning streak, including the two-game sweep over the Braves.

The Pirates open the road trip tonight against the Philadelphia Phillies, then return to Forbes Field Sept. 1 for an 18-day home stand.

"We're looking at this road trip optimistically," Danny said. "It's going to be rough. Any road trip is tough. A loyal crowd helps the home club.

"If we're within striking distance of the pennant when we come back, you'll have to concede us a chance. Nobody is surrendering to Milwaukee.

Witt handcuffed the Braves on two hits—just missing a no-hitter—for his sixth triumph and second straight shutout. He has lost two. "I was mixing them up pretty even," Witt said. "Fast balls and curves. I don't take much of a windup. I just sort of try and step into the pitch. It helps my control and saves energy."

Mickey Mantle Finally Hitting His Stride Now

By ED WILKS Associated Press Sports Writer

An uniquely healthy Mickey Mantle, finally busting into the American League lead, suddenly was shot at joining Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx and Ralph Kiner as the only sluggers ever to hit 50 or more home runs in one season twice.

The Oklahoma strong boy needs 17 in 41 games for 50, but he's come a long way after a sour spring. He's hit 29 since June 1. He broke loose from a tie with Boston's Jackie Jensen and Washington's Roy Sievers yesterday by hitting his 33rd as the New York Yankees beat Baltimore 7-2.

Jensen and Sievers, the defending champ, remained tied at 32 when Boston's game at Washington was postponed because of rain.

The Chicago White Sox, 15 games behind New York, broke a second-place tie with Boston by defeating Cleveland 4-1 and Detroit outlasted Kansas City 7-6 in the other AL games.

In the National League, Pittsburgh took second place and trimmed Milwaukee's lead to five games by beating the Braves 10-0 behind rookie George Witt's two-hit pitching. St. Louis defeated San Francisco 7-3, Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 12-4 and the Chicago Cubs rapped Los Angeles 9-3.

Mantle, on batting surge that has pushed his average to .308, had three hits. His homer, a solo shot deep into the left field stands at Yankee Stadium, gave the Yanks a 4-0 lead in the fifth. It came off lefty Ken Lehman and was his sixth off Oriole pitching.

Gil McDougald also homered for the Yanks, while Bob Nieman hit his 12th for the Birds, a two-run blow that junked Tom Sturdivant's shutout bid in the seventh.

Sturdivant (2-5) won his first since April 22, but needed Virgil Trucks' relief help in the eighth. Hee Brown (4-3) lost it.

Early Wynn (10-12) won his third in a row over his former Indian mates while Jim Landis drove in three runs for the White Sox. Monte Miano gave the Tribe a 1-1 tie with his 17th home run in the second inning, but the Sox bagged it with a sixth-inning run on Ron Jackson's sacrifice fly for their eighth success in 10 games. Jim Grant (9-9) was the loser.

The Tigers twice came from behind against the A's and finally nailed it on Gail Harris' two-run 12th homer in the seventh off losing reliever Dick Tomaneck. Al Kaline ended an 8-for-16 slump with a double ahead of the winning blow. Tom Morgan won it in relief.

A Look At Athletics

(Editor's Note: The following article represents the first of a series to be presented by the ECC Athletic Department. It is hoped that these short articles may be a means of informing the public, and more specifically the many friends of East Carolina College, with some of the background, development and present day problems confronting the average American College in the conduct of an athletic program.)

A Brief History of Intercollegiate Athletics in American Colleges . . .

The games of college students in America are as old as the colleges. In 1761 the Trustees of Princeton issued the following order: "The Trustees having on their own view been sensible of the Damage done to the President's House by the Students playing at Ball against it, do hereby strictly forbid all and any of the Sd Students, the Officers and all other persons belonging to the College playing at Ball against Sd President's House, under the penalty of five shillings, for every offense, to be levied on each Person who shall offend the Premises."

Intercollegiate athletics resulted from the desire of one institution to match their physical prowess and playing ability with those of another. Their sports began to assume a place in college life in the fifties and a very important place in the eighties.

The earliest intercollegiate meet was a boat race between Harvard and Yale in 1852.

The first recorded game of baseball was at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, 1859 when Williams won over Amherst with a score of 66 to 32.

Basketball has the most unique origin of any sport. James Naismith, a student at the Y.M.C.A. Training School at Springfield, Massachusetts, invented the game in 1891.

The first intercollegiate game of football seems to have been played by Rutgers and Princeton in 1869. The game had very little resemblance to the present style of playing; running with the ball and throwing it was not permitted, and there were twenty-five players on each team.

League Meeting

DURHAM (AP)—Class B Carolina League club owners met here today to outline playoff plans for the end of the current season. Also up for discussion is next year's league operations.

Carolina League Lead Changes

Danville slipped into first place in the Carolina League last night following Greensboro's 5-4 extra-inning defeat by Wilson.

The Virginia club holds a slim one percentage point margin over the Yankees, who went down in 13 innings to last place Wilson. Danville's scheduled game at High Point-T hom a sville was rained out.

In the only other action, Burlington gained a tie for fourth place with a 6-1 win over Raleigh. A scheduled second game between the two clubs was rained out. The Winston-Salem at Durham match was also washed away.

Von McDaniel, the Oklahoma schoolboy bonus pitcher, is slated to take the mound tonight for Winston-Salem in the first game of a double-header with Durham. It will be the Carolina League debut for McDaniel, who got a reported $50,000 bonus when he graduated from Hollis, Okla., High School in June 1957, and joined the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dick Simpson's 12th inning single with the bases loaded brought home the two winning runs for Wilson. In the top of the frame, Greensboro had moved ahead with a solo homer by Tom Keane.

Burlington's win over Raleigh was the seventh straight for the Indians, and their 12th in the last 15 games. Steve Hamilton pitched three-hit ball for his 12th win. He has lost 11.

Says Patterson Will Arise A Great Champ

By BOB MYERS OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Floyd Patterson, in at least one man's opinion, will emerge a great world heavyweight champion in his title defense with Roy Harris of Texas in Los Angeles Monday.

The one man, who admittedly is prejudiced, is Cus D'Amato, Patterson's turbulent and controversial manager.

Patterson renewed old friendships here today and D'Amato reviewed old feuds as a delegation of fellow New Yorkers, all boxing writers, visited the champion's camp.

D'Amato told about making the match between Patterson and the unbeaten hero of Cut and Shoot, Tex. Among others, he said, he talked to Lou Viscusi of Houston, Roy's managerial adviser, long prominent in the fight game.

"Viscusi put it this way," related D'Amato. "He said Harris had never been really tested, nor had Patterson."

"But he said, 'I'll promise you this will be a terrific fight between two young fighters and whoever wins will be a great champion.' So we made the match," D'Amato concluded.

And he is sure that comparison was made between Floyd's six-round knockout over Pete Rademacher and the four rounds it took Zora Folley to dispose of Rademacher.

"I'll give you the explanation for that," declared D'Amato. When Rademacher met Patterson, he had an appetite for fighting.

"After he met Patterson he had no appetite to fight anybody."

Old Timers At St. Paul Today

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The St. Paul Open, one of the patriarchs of the pro golf circuit, today welcomes back its old timers for Auld Lang Syne and their successors for $25,000.

Names like Horton Smith, Light-horse Harry Cooper and Ed Dudley once more will appear in the tournament field as they did the first time it was held in 1930.

The tournament starting Thursday at Keller Course is the Open's silver anniversary. It missed a couple of years when bigger tournaments such as the PGA were held at Keller.

Those of the original field able to make it back were honored by the tournament sponsors as anniversary ceremonies that included the hitting of a symbolic opening shot by Cooper, the champion in 1930, '35 and '36.

Rep. Powell Colorful Figure In Campaigning

NEW YORK (AP)—Adam Clayton Powell, landslide victor in the Democratic congressional primary in Harlem, is a man of contrasts with a taste for the dramatic.

A vociferous champion of Negro rights in Congress, he was recently charged by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People with a kind of racism in reverse. Racial issues were important in his campaign against City Councilman Earl Brown, his vanquished opponent in yesterday's primary, although both are Negroes.

Brown, while fighting for civil rights, takes a calmer approach. A spokesman for teeming Harlem, Powell owns two expensive sports cars and makes no secret of his taste for fine wines and choice cuisine. He is 49.

A Baptist minister with a strong following in preponderantly Negro Harlem, he has been married twice, once to an actress, then to a jazz pianist. The first marriage ended in divorce. He has a son by his second wife, Hazel Scott.

During his campaign against Brown, he referred to his 55-year-old opponent as an Uncle Tom—a Negro term for a colored person regarded as subservient to white people—and to Tammany leader Carmine DeSapio as "Massa Carmine."

A Democrat and practical politician, Powell supported President Eisenhower in the 1956 campaign—because, he said, he felt the Democrats did not take a strong enough stand on civil rights.

As a result, Tammany Hall dropped him this year after supporting him in seven successful previous elections.

But even when he received its support, Powell was often feuding with Tammany over his refusal to cooperate with it at all times. "I can't be bought," he explained. He is awaiting trial on charges of evading federal income taxes. Powell has pleaded innocent.

In Congress he has introduced a multitude of civil rights bills, including many antidiscrimination riders (amendments) to major legislation.

To the political arena, as to the pulpit, he brings a dramatic, even flamboyant oratorical style.

"Adam Powell, with all his faults, is a valuable asset to the Negro movement," says a top NAACP official. "It's true that he is not especially useful to us as a congressman. Nevertheless, when he makes a speech, in or out of Congress, he has the ability to dramatize a situation, to focus attention on some problem vital to the Negro, to shatter the complacency that all too often obscures Negro needs."

"Negroes as a whole look on Powell as a kind of lovable 'Peck's Bad Boy,'" the spokesman said. Born in New Haven, Conn., the grandson of slaves, Powell has spent most of his life in New York.

His political career began in 1951, when he won election as the first Negro on the City Council. He ran on the Republican, Fusion, and American Labor party tickets.

Three years later he went to Washington for his first term in Congress. He has been there ever since.

Emerged From Reveries, Left

WEST NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Case, 42, listened absently in Magistrate's Court while another action was disposed of prior to his scheduled arraignment on an assault and battery charge.

When the court clerk boomed out "Case dismissed!" he came out of his reverie, got up and left the court.

Police rearrested him near his home. Now he faces an additional contempt of court charge.

Art Carney Prefers To Be A Free Agent

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Art Carney, a fine actor who loves his profession and a responsible suburban householder who loves his wife and three children, had a difficult decision to make this summer.

His good friend and happy working companion, Jackie Gleason, asked Carney to come back with him on a regular basis when Gleason launches his new CBS-TV show this fall.

After much meditation Carney regrettably turned down Gleason's offer because he wished to take the financially more hazardous course of being a free-lance actor to take acting assignments he liked and to tilt at a variety of roles.

The first result of his decision is that he will appear on television next month in one of the most delightful roles (in our opinion) to come from the American theater in recent years. On Sept. 22 he will play the role of Elwood P. Dowd in Show of the Month (CBS-TV) adaptation of Mary Chase's comedy "Harvey."

Numerous television viewers think of Carney chiefly in terms of the roles he played with Gleason, particularly as Norton in "The Honeymooners"—which, by the way, still is rerunning strong on many stations throughout the country. Last season when Gleason was off the air, Carney demonstrated his versatility as an actor in several TV shows and on

Sabotaged Ship, Draws Sentence

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A young ensign sabotaged his ship so he wouldn't have to leave his wife, says the Navy. Mrs. James L. Johnson, 23, of Long Beach, Calif., was ordered dismissed from the navy and sentenced to six years at hard labor. The Navy said Johnson caused $100 damage to his LST last January by placing metal materials and tools in the ship's propeller gears. The ship made repairs and sailed for the western Pacific without Johnson. Johnson, who pleaded innocent to the charges, said his wife Patricia, 20, was so upset he feared to leave.

Tar Heel Way Again A Winner

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina way of licensing automobile drivers is bound to be good. For the third straight year, it has reached the top award of the American Assn. of Motor Vehicle Commissioners.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Ed Scheidt reported yesterday that North Carolina led all other states in the annual rating conducted by the association in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

Factors considered by the association, Scheidt explained, included training and supervision of licensing personnel, examination standards and procedures, driver examination results, central record file and driver improvement activities.

Debater's Dream World Awaits

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. emergency General Assembly meets in a debater's dream world come to life.

Every technical facility is provided for leaders from 81 nations to let the world know their views on the Middle East situation.

The meeting is in a big blue and gold modernistic assembly hall. Each delegation is entitled to 1 seats in the acoustically designed hall with its 75-foot ceiling. The U.N. has five official languages—English, French, Russian, Spanish and Chinese. Translators occupy glass enclosed booths along side walls. As a speaker talks in one of the official languages, language experts provide simultaneous translations in the other four official tongues. Delegates listening through earphones obtain the translation desired by twisting a dial to the proper language channel.

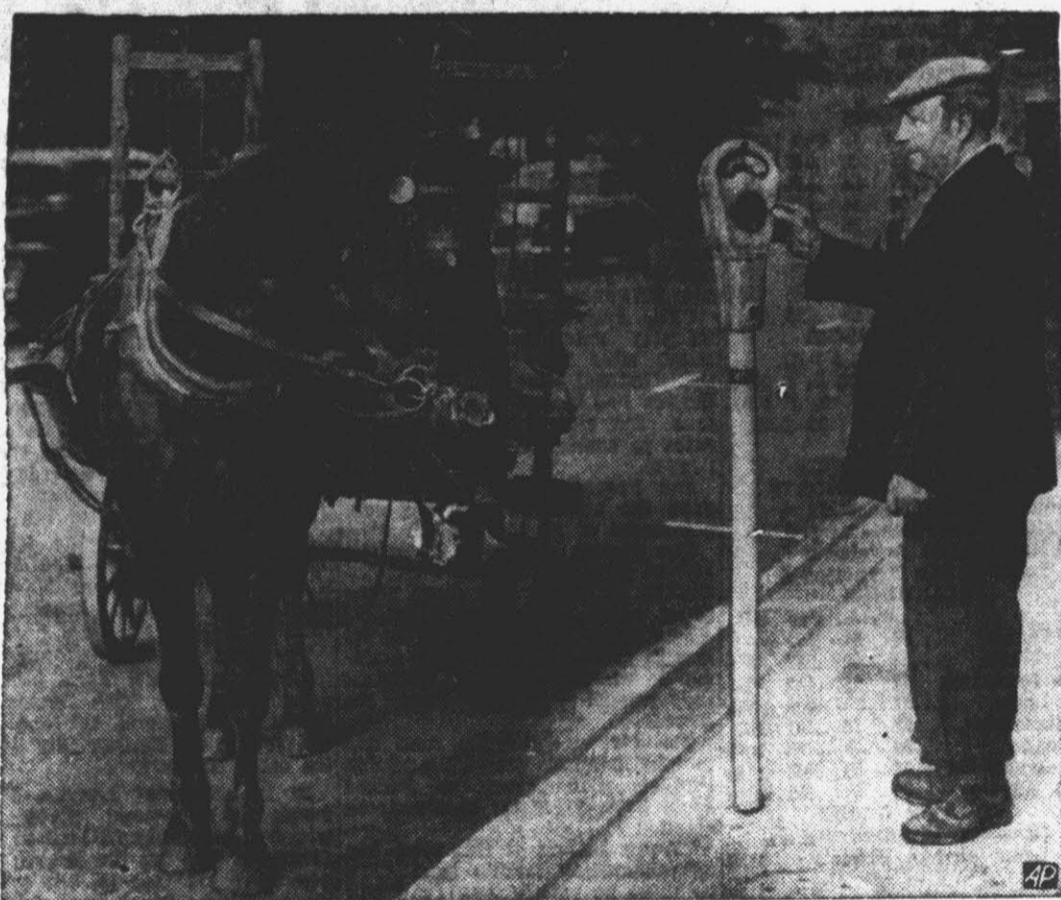

Press, radio and TV booths also line the walls of the hall, and the speaker comes under the glare of special spotlights for TV transmissions.

In addition to space for the 810 delegates, the Assembly accommodates 270 observers, 234 reporters in a special press section, and 800 visitors in the public galleries. Assembly President Leslie Munro of New Zealand occupies a marble podium on an elevated stage at the front of the hall. On one side of him is seated Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, and on the other side Andrew Cordier, executive assistant to the secretary general.

Behind the podium is the seal of the United Nations. The speaker's stand is in front of the podium.

The big power veto does not apply in the General Assembly, as it does in the 11-nation Security Council.

Resolutions must win a two-thirds majority of those present and voting in order to pass the Assembly.

Slain Premier's Wife In Poverty

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. Nuri Said, 65-year-old widow of the murdered Premier of Iraq, is living in a London apartment nearly destitute and unaware her husband is dead, the Daily Mail reported today.

With her are the widow and children of her son Sabah, another victim of the July 14 revolution in Iraq.

The Mail gave this account: Sabah's widow knows the fate of her husband and father-in-law but no one so far has had the courage to tell Mrs. Nuri Said. She knows there has been a revolution in Iraq, but since she does not read or speak English, she has not learned about her husband and their son. Her fears are growing, however.

Nuri left the family in London 10 days before the revolt, saying he would return in two weeks. Almost the only money he left was a year's rent for the apartment in which they are living.

"A few days ago," the report said, "a friend who heard of the women's circumstances took them some fish for their dinner. There was no other food in the apartment."

Sabah's wife is 39, a graduate of the University of Paris and a doctor of law and economics who speaks five languages. She says she will have to go to work soon but at the moment spends all her time looking after her mother-in-law.

An official at the Iraqi Embassy told the Mail: "Mrs. Nuri's position is the same as anyone else holding an Iraqi passport. If she has no money, she can return to Iraq."

Seer Forgot To Add A Warning

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—"Don't spend your money unnecessarily today," warned the fortune teller, "or your bills will come crashing down on you." So Roy Owens and his wife Ellen took the seer's advice and left $200 home while they went on a weekend trip. They hid the money in a can and stuck it in the stove for safekeeping. On Monday Mrs. Owens cooked a tasty dinner. All she burned was the money.

One Word Explanation Of What Caused His Trouble

GREENSBORO (AP)—"Whiskey." That was 17-year-old Arthur Bowden's one-word answer as to what caused all his trouble. The High Point youth, awaiting trial for his brother's slaying, has been questioned about the mysterious death of an uncle.

"I started drinking when I was eight," the bare-foot, dungaree-clad youth told a newsman.

The reporter asked who gave him his first drink.

"My uncle," Bowden replied. "The one they found dead."

Bowden, slender and tousle-haired, talked with the newsmen in the Guilford County jail shortly after questioning yesterday by Buncombe County Sheriff Lawrence E. Brown. The Asheville sheriff quizzed Bowden about the death of Pearson Bradburn, last seen alive April 6 near his mountain home at Ox Creek.

"I told him I didn't have anything to do with it," Bowden said. "We, my uncle and me, were going up to the logging camp where we worked. We both were drinking white whisky. He left and I never saw him again." The 49-year-old victim's bones were found last week on a mountainside. Bowden has been charged with slaying his 22-year-old brother, Vance, during an argument July 30. Another brother wrestled a pistol from Arthur's hand, pistol-whipped the youth into submission and guarded him until High Point police arrived. Arthur neither confirmed nor denied his brother's slaying, but said: "I know I'll get some time out of it."

Astronomy Finds Evidence Sun Is A Litterbug

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—Rocket astronomy is finding evidence our sun is a litterbug.

The sun is strewing a lot of hydrogen gas around in the earth's front yard and in the path of all planets of the solar system.

If you could expose a quart milk bottle to this gas in space, it would pick up from 100,000 to a million hydrogen atoms, reports Dr. Herbert Friedman of the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory in Washington.

Most if not all of this gas apparently comes from the sun, which ejects it in vast flares.

But, interplanetary space is still a pretty good vacuum. A quart of air at sea level contains ten million billion atoms.

Friedman's report is new evidence the sun's atmosphere in effect extends all the way to the earth, which is a distance of 93 million miles, and probably beyond. It is also evidence that space is not quite so empty as once believed.

The rockets are equipped to see only ultraviolet light of a kind much more energetic than that which tans your skin. Rising to heights of about 100 miles, the ultraviolet eyes see a remarkable spectacle. Space becomes aglow with intense light, rather than being black.

The glow is an ultraviolet light of a particular wavelength which does not reach the earth because it is filtered out by the earth's air.

This is a part of the sunlight which has been bounced around by atoms of neutral hydrogen, meaning atoms carrying no electrical charge.

The special rocket eyes measured the intensity of this light. This measurement was the base for an estimate that there are 1,000 neutral atoms per quart in space. And it is known that for every atom of neutral gas there are 100 to 1,000 electrically charged hydrogen atoms. Therefore there are 100,000 to 1,000,000 atoms per quart in the interplanetary area, which means the distances between all planets and the sun.

Take Dim View Of Kidnap Hoax

STATESVILLE, N.C. — (AP) — The FBI doesn't like being kidded. Jasper Belcher, 36, being held on $1,000 bail, found that out yesterday.

Belcher told the State Highway Patrol at Sparta early Tuesday that he had been kidnaped in Jacksonville, Fla. by a pistol-carrying driver who beat him and tossed him out of the car at Sparta.

Statesville officers, answering a general police alarm, arrested Bob Ripley Bales, 34, of Fayetteville, Ga., and held him while FBI agents probed Belcher's story.

Under questioning, Belcher admitted he had made up the kidnap story because he was angry at Bales. Belcher said he had traveled willingly with Bales.

Belcher was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner L. F. Amburn on a charge of giving false information to the FBI.

Meanwhile, Statesville police held Bales on a minor charge of carrying liquor into North Carolina which was purchased in another state—South Carolina.

Bales said he picked up Belcher as a hitchhiker in Virginia and was heading south to visit his

Blocked By Ice

WARWICK, R. I. (AP)—Two crewmen have written home that the nuclear submarine Nautilus attempted to pass under the North Pole two months ago but was repelled by an 80-foot wall of ice.

"We tried to get under the ice pack a couple of months ago but didn't quite make it," Engineer-in-Chief William J. McNally Jr. wrote his parents.

"The captain turned back when we ran into a solid wall of ice 80 feet thick."

"The distance from the surface to the ocean floor is about 136 feet. Subtracting 80 feet of ice leaves the Nautilus with 56 feet of water, not quite enough."

"We also ran into a couple of fear collisions with icebergs. So the captain decided the attempt wasn't worth the possible loss of his crew. That's when we turned around and headed for Hawaii."

Robert E. Simonini, 27, engineer first class, wrote that "we ran into too much ice so we went to Pearl Harbor to wait for better ice conditions."

Belcher, who said he had no address, carried a draft card giving his home as Blooming Rose, W. Va.

Struck By Auto, Declines Charge

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Ebenzer Dunlap, 76, was crossing the street last night on his way to a restaurant when he was struck by a car.

The driver didn't stop and neither did Dunlap. He picked himself up and went to dinner. A witness called police.

Dunlap said he had only a scratched knee and didn't want medical treatment.

Police found the car. Its owner, Henry Gross, told police his son Henry, 19, had been driving it. Henry admitted striking Dunlap, officers said.

But Dunlap refused to prosecute. "I've lived my life and I want this boy to live his," he told police.

Henry was released.

Few Real Yankees Hear 'Yankee Go Home' Cry

BEIRUT (AP)—"I don't know where the Lebanese get this 'Yankee go home' stuff," said Cpl. Antony Brennan of Staten Island, N.Y.

"There aren't many Yankees here. Most of the guys in my outfit seem to be from Georgia."

The 2nd Battalion of the 2nd Marine Division, the first to hit the beach south of Beirut July 15, was moving out with some leaflets in its pockets that carried the worldwide slogan, "Yankee Go Home." They were distributed on the beach by Lebanese youths.

S. Sgt. Richard A. Cochran of Kennesaw, Ga., made himself a quick cup of coffee over a beach fire and said:

"We're happy enough to leave. Pvt. Jim D. Chrisawan of Asheville, N.C., Cpl. Frank J. Geiger of Jacksonville, Fla., and Cpl. Charles E. O'Brien of Savannah, Ga., agreed.

On Khaldi Beach behind the international airport, where the first landings were made, two mounted 8-inch howitzers rolled into an LST. On the first was painted "Lebanese Lady" on the second "Beirut Baby."

Supervising the howitzer loading was Lt. Franklin D. Burroughs of Charlotte, N.C. Burroughs said he was glad to get back afloat. "I'm glad things turned out so well," he said. "At least, it looks like they turned out well."

Secondary Roads Being Bettered

RALEIGH (AP)—Mounting millions of dollars are going into improvements on North Carolina's secondary roads.

The State Highway Commission reported yesterday that $12,052,456.92 was spent to pave and stabilize a total of 1,500 miles of secondary road during the fiscal year which ended June 30. Paving covered 729.48 miles, and 771.26 miles were drained and stabilized.

During the current construction session which ends in December, the commission said $12,803,053.46 will go into paving 471.55 miles of secondary roads, and stabilizing another 646.11 miles.

For the 1959 construction season, the commission said it has set aside $15,765,853.66 for paving 817.75 miles of secondary roads, and 616.75 miles of secondary and 616.80 miles of draining and stabilizing work.

CHAPTER 14

When the fire was blazing and they were seated before it, Colin Campbell said, "Ann, I want to buy this house and move into it as soon as it can be made ready."

"But Jeanne—"

"Jeanne and I are not going to be married. I would live here alone. Zack and Nell, whom I employ, will take wonderful care of me."

"I'm terribly sorry, Colin."

"Sorry!" For one very bad moment he thought she was terribly sorry that she couldn't sell him the house. Then he realized she was referring to his broken engagement. He smiled. "I should pull a long face, I know. But you can't imagine how wonderful it feels not to be engaged to a girl you don't love."

"I think I can," Ann Stewart looked into the fire for a moment and then said, "You can buy the house, Colin. We'll arrange the details later, but before we do, I'd like to tell you why I am here today and every Christmas day. No. I guess you'll have to go further back. Can you bear to hear the story of my life?"

"I have been anxious to hear it since I first came to Hobbs Creek."

"My father had this house built when my brother and I were small children. He was tired of the family business in Baltimore and wanted to lead a more quiet life, with time to study and write. He and my mother loved the mountains—anyway, we came here."

"We were wonderfully happy. My brother and I hated going away to school and longed for the Christmas holiday even before the school year began. It was during my second year at school, when I was fifteen—Ann's voice quavered and broke off. She paused, not to collect her thoughts this time, but to get her emotions under control."

"On Christmas day, when I was fifteen and my brother seventeen, some Cherokees came raiding while we were still asleep in bed. My brother was inexperienced and reckless. He made an easy target from behind a window and soon from behind a chest. He died within a few minutes but not before my mother, in tending him, had been killed outright. My father held off the Cherokees singlehanded for thirty minutes before one of the servants sneaked away from the quarters out back and brought help from Hobbs Creek."

"Why didn't the servants come to help you themselves?" His own voice sounded muffled to him. His tongue was thick with rage and horror.

"They were unarmed. It would have been suicide for them to try to approach the house."

"Did you see the whole thing?"

"Blessedly, no. My father ordered a housemaid to keep me out of gun range. And sometimes when I pass this house now, I hear the Cherokees yelling and see my mother and brother lying dead in their bloody nightclothes, and again I live everything I lived that Christmas day. Other times it's as though that day had never happened, as though they're still here. Can you understand that?"

"Yes, I can, Ann."

"Yes, I can read it in your eyes. Why does no one else ever know?"

"Because few love as deeply as you. Do you want to tell me what happened after that, Ann?"

"Yes," she answered calmly. "It was a black time, a lost time. Overnight, it seems, my father's mind deserted him. He turned from a vigorous, youthful and highly intelligent person into a wordless, helpless old man. He had loved his books, his family and his home. He cared little for anything else. He had always received a generous income from the family business and left the management of it in my uncle's hands. I sent a letter to Uncle Nah, telling him of the raid. He came at once and—"

"Go on," Colin urged. Unnoticed, he had put his hand on hers in an unconscious gesture of sustenance.

"Father did not even recognize him. He wanted me to leave with him at once, but I wouldn't leave Father. He promised to send for both of us—but he never did. No more money came from Baltimore. We had to let the servants go; we couldn't feed them, let alone pay them. Father and I would have starved if it hadn't been for Ling. He watched over us, did everything for us that we couldn't do for ourselves. He was wonderful."

"I know," and now Colin knew also why Ann had married Ling.

"When I was eighteen, Ling and I were married. Of course, I had told him I could never leave Father. He knew that. Father had been growing worse staying in this house—too many memories for him—and Ling wouldn't have stayed here, anyway. So for seven years now this house had been empty. I am glad it will be lived in again." She smiled at him.

"I hope you will be happy here

"If you still want to buy the house after what I have told you today."

"From the moment I saw this house, I've wanted to live here. I felt I knew the man who had built it—I knew what kind of life he wanted for me only by the happy family that once lived here, and they will be pleasant company."

Ann smiled. "Thank you, Colin. We were pleasant company, I think."

"Ann, before we talk about the house further, I want to appoint myself your lawyer. Now that I've attained your majority and might press a case in court, have you given any thought to collecting your father's share of the family business?"

"Yes, but Ling doesn't believe in courts. His going to Denbury court was a gesture of defiance, not compliance. If he thought we needed any of Uncle Nat's money, he'd go find him in Baltimore and take it by force."

"Direct and to the point," Colin murmured, "but hardly practical. If you would like to start legal proceedings, I'd be glad to do it for you."

"I'd rather you didn't, Colin. I shouldn't care to do anything unless Ling approved."

"I understand. Now will you grant me a favor?"

"Of course."

"Come to this house and visit with your mother and brother whenever you want."

"Thank you very much, Colin." It was an evasion, and he wondered why.

"Yes—yes— I will come whenever I want," she said in some confusion. "Shall we go now to Ling and the children? Ling will be so excited to hear you are buying the house and the children will talk to you about the sale. I know nothing about it, not that he knows very much more."

"Let me retain a lawyer for you in Weathers. That would be best."

"If Ling agrees, fine. You're the first townsman he ever took to, you know. I'm sure he'll accept any suggestion you make."

They put out the fire and while Colin roused the puppy, which had fallen asleep in a sheeted armchair, Ann took a last look around the room in the light of the lantern she held. This was a farewell, in a way. The house would be Colin's from now on. She watched him as he bent over the puppy. And suddenly she knew why she had felt she knew him from the first. A stab of pain went through her at the knowledge, so sharp she almost cried out. She loved him! Her earlier recognition had been, not of an old acquaintance, but of her heart's secret desire.

Colin Campbell finds he can think of only one woman now—Ann Stewart. Continue this dramatic romance tomorrow.

Stamp Dealer Is Accused Of Big Smuggling Project

NEW YORK (AP)—A top American stamp dealer is accused of smuggling thousands of dollars worth of stamps from Red China.

The dealer, Kurt Welshaupt of Queens, was indicted in Brooklyn Federal Court yesterday under the Federal Trading With the Enemy Act.

He is scheduled to plead next Tuesday. If found guilty, he would face a possible maximum sentence of 40 years in prison and $40,000 in fines.

The six-count indictment charges the 45-year-old dealer imported the stamps from Shanghai between November 1953 and February 1957.

An unidentified American naval officer stationed in Japan was said to have tipped federal authorities to the operation.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Warren M. Deutsch said more than two million stamps were seized in Welshaupt's home. He reportedly paid more than $33,000 for them.

Welshaupt, a former president of the American Stamp Dealers Assn., was said to have sold smuggled stamps at 100 per cent profit.

The naval officer told authorities last year that Communist Chinese stamps were being sold at a concession at Gimbel's department store.

Neither Gimbel's nor the concessionaire was named in the indictment. Deutsch said they had cooperated fully in the investigation.

Treasury agents reported tracing $33,394 sent by Welshaupt to his alleged source, a Shanghai firm named the Oriento Stamp Co.

The stamps assertedly were shipped in small parcels to members of Welshaupt's family. They forwarded the packages to him, Deutsch said, unbeing advised the stamps were worthless.

Theoretical Hit For Speedy Jet

White Sands Missile Range, N. M. (AP)—An antiaircraft missile—the Talos—has intercepted and theoretically destroyed a new supersonic Kingfisher target missile.

The Kingfisher was launched yesterday from a B50 high above the missile range.

The target missile is equipped with a firing error indicator which automatically records hits, misses and the distance of a miss. It is recoverable.

City Is At War With Skunks

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The scent of battle fills the air today as Sacramento moves to wipe out an invasion of skunks.

Poundmaster George Martin estimates there may be 500 concentrated in southwest Sacramento.

The city hired Walter Sims, a professional trapper and expert on skunks. He has caught six.

"This is an all-out battle," said Martin. "I mean it's a serious thing."

Lytle Ackerman agrees. He tried to dislodge a skunk from a hole by pulling its tail.

'Good Workout' Beats The Budes, Says Tina

By Bob Thomas AP Motion Picture Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tina Louise, one of the most whittable figures to grace the movie scene in many moons, does it by lifting weights. Tina argues that you have to give nature some help. And that means working up a sweat. "Oh, I do it in the gym, where there are no men around," she replied. "You've got to sweat or it just doesn't feel right." Her formula: a workout a day keeps the bulges away. Also ner-that is the laziest part of a woman's body. Leg pushups (pushing up suspended weights), deep knee bends, things like that. But doesn't she face the danger of developing unsightly muscles? "No, silly," she chided. "Women don't get muscles. We're not built that way." (no comment.) Broadway patrons found nothing wanting in Tina's shape when she played the sexpot Appassionata von Climax in "Li'l Abner." Yet that was before she discovered exercises. "I could have done a much better job in the show if I had worked out," she declared. "I don't believe in those machines that do the exercise for you. I think you have to do the work for yourself, both to get the most out of it and to feel good about it." "I concentrate mostly on exercises from the waist down, since

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market pulled out of a small decline and became mixed in the early afternoon today.

The improvement came after President Eisenhower presented a six-point Middle East program to the United Nations.

Changes were generally in fractions. A few special situations moved in a wide range.

Airlines, tobaccos, motors and metals were a shade higher. Steels and oils were irregular and aircrafts were lower.

Scherer rose about a point after announcing a new drug for treatment of hay fever and asthma.

General Precision dropped around 3 after failing to act on a common dividend.

American Motors, most active stock the last four days, got a good play near the start, rising a fraction. Minute Maid and Loew's continued active, both up slightly.

Pan American World Airways, Allied Chemical and Lorillard were ahead major fractions.

Up 1/2 point or so were Chrysler, Kenecott, Merck and Eastern Air Lines.

Avco hit the tape on several small blocks, up a fraction in early afternoon.

United Aircraft fell more than 1/2 point on lower earnings.

Other losers included Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Goodrich, Caterpillar, General Electric, and Eastman Kodak.

Baltimore & Ohio was up around 1/2 and numerous other carriers were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 20 cents at $184.80. Industrials were down 10 cents, rails 30 cents and utilities 10 cents.

Argue Local Rights In Pupil Assignment

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Whether a locality has the right to enact a local pupil assignment plan as a means of approaching the Virginia school segregation crisis was argued here today before Circuit Judge Clyde H. Jacob.

An attorney for Mr. A. Mrs. Coleman H. Coley, white Norfolk resident, filed a petition last week asking the court to enjoin the Norfolk School Board from assigning any pupils—white or Negro—to the public schools. The board contended that all assignment powers have been vested in the powers have been vested in the three-man State Pupil Placement Board.

In another segregation development, Arlington County Negro children who boycotted interviews scheduled yesterday before representatives of the Pupil Placement Board were given a second chance to appear. Letters went out from the board to 31 Negro youngsters seeking admission to white schools next month telling them that the interviews have been rescheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

Ass'n Supports Proposed ECC School Of Nursing

Proposals to establish a school of nursing at East Carolina College were supported yesterday in a resolution approved by directors of the North Carolina State Nurses' Association, meeting in Raleigh.

The resolution endorses, "the principle of establishing, with state funds and under the state system of colleges and universities, a collegiate school of nursing at East Carolina College." Directors of the association approved the measure unanimously.

In its resolution, the association said, "The shortage of qualified nurses... is felt acutely in Eastern counties; there are many young women in Eastern North Carolina who are qualified, scholastically and emotionally, for a collegiate program in nursing; past experience has shown that young women preparing for the profession of nursing tend to enroll in schools of nursing and to practice near their home communities; and the lack of a collegiate school of nursing in the eastern section of our state may be a factor in the loss of many young women to the nursing profession."

Initial plans for establishment of the school were presented to and rejected by the 1957 North Carolina General Assembly. Efforts are now underway to have the bill presented to the 1959 General Assembly, with endorsements for professional and lay groups throughout the state.

Sixteen Bodies Recovered From Crashed Airliner

TOKYO (AP)—Sixteen bodies were recovered from the Pacific today after Japan's second fatal civil airline crash since World War II. There were no signs of survivors from the 33 persons, including one American, aboard the twin-engine DC3 of All-Nippon Airways.

The plane crashed 80 miles south of Tokyo last night after the pilot radioed a report of trouble in the left engine. The plane was on a flight from Tokyo to Nagoya, 150 miles west, by a roundabout coastal route to avoid mountains.

The first wreckage was found 15 hours after the radio report. Thirty-three ships and 22 planes, including 11 American aircraft, kept up the search.

The American passenger was Howard Kreiss, 34, a Los Angeles importer who arrived Aug. 4 on one of the four or five business trips he made to Japan annually.

To Name Farmers Day Officers

A nominating committee to name Farmers Day, Inc. officers for the coming year was appointed last night.

The committee was named by Farmers Day officials and representatives of local civic clubs and the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce. Officers will be announced next Monday night.

The Farmers Day, Inc. committee voted to apply for membership in the United Fund. According to President Clark Stokes application will be made either today or tomorrow.

Drank Bleaching Agent, Treated

Curtis Evans, 22-year-old Negro of 1305 South Pitt Street, was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon after reportedly drinking a large quantity of bleaching agent.

Following emergency treatment he was released. An attending physician stated this morning his condition is "fair" and that he is expected to recover.

According to investigating police officers who were called to the incident, Evans drank the liquid between 3:30 and 4 p.m. He was transferred to the hospital by members of the Rescue Squad.

Evans was quoted as saying he was worried about domestic affairs.

Last Half Day

Middle-of-the-week "vacations" on Wednesday afternoons for employees and employers of Greenville business firms will be a thing of the past after today—at least until next Spring.

Following a policy of long-standing local stores will remain open all day next Wednesday, the Wednesday prior to the tobacco market opening date, August 21.

Blind, But Good Ear For Phonies

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Ralph Clemmer is blind but he has a "feel" for paper money and a good ear for phonies.

A man walked up to Clemmer's aid-to-the-blind stand in the courthouse here yesterday and asked him to change a $5 bill. Clemmer gave him the change but something about the fellow's voice made him doubtful.

Just after the man left, the courthouse switchboard operator confirmed Clemmer's suspicion—he'd given $4 too much in change.

Police were notified and a short time later arrested a 40-year-old unemployed Gastonian, Robert Lee Henson. He was charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses and placed under $500 bond.

Temperature Hit 98 Here Tuesday

Old Sol lacked only two degrees of sending the temperature in the Greenville area to the century mark yesterday. The thermometer at the Utilities Plant registered 98 at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The lowest during last night was 76 degrees. At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 83.

There was a drizzling rain but not enough to measure. Tar River is at normal depth, the report stated.

About the only trees on the French island of St. Pierre, off the coast of New Foundland, are dwarf balsam firs. They grow only a couple of feet tall.

Earlier Elections Set For C-Of-C Officers

Officers of the Chamber of Commerce will be elected earlier this year to give new officers time to become familiar with the organization's operations.

Manager W. T. Kyzer said the board of directors has authorized President John T. Barnhill to appoint a five-man nominating committee to name 16 candidates for the eight positions which will become vacant on the board next year.

The committee is to report back to the board of directors at the October meeting. Following the election the nominating committee will name a slate of officers and probably report to the board at the November meeting.

Kyzer said the officers must come from within the new board. The new officers will have until the organizational meeting in January to study the Chamber's operation before taking office.

In the past officers have been elected in December.

The Chamber's board also voted to cooperate with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in publishing Greenville as the home of Miss North Carolina. Directors approved leasing two reflectorized signs to be erected on highways entering the city proclaiming Greenville as Home of Miss North Carolina.

Bill Drum and Floyd F. Hendrix were named as the Chamber's representatives on the Farmers Day board of directors.

The Chamber is also taking an industrial ad in the Site Selection Handbook, an industrial development publication which is distributed to executives throughout the country.

Sympathy, But No Cash For Him

RALEIGH (AP)—The Employment Security Commission has sympathy but no cash for four young Asheville men who were bilked out of $35 each by a smooth talking film-flammer.

One of the victims had asked the ESC to repay his money, since he parted with it in the course of an interview with a supposed employer in the regional ESC office in Asheville.

The ESC said yesterday it had turned the case over to Asheville police and the State Bureau of Investigation. It could not be responsible, the agency added, for the loss of money involved. Other regional employment offices have been alerted to watch for the swindler.

The four young men were interviewed by a man who called himself "Mr. Henderson" and represented himself as an official of "Allied Mapping Co. of Asheville." The victims said Henderson promised them jobs, but asked for deposits of $35 each to guarantee room and board for two weeks of training in Raleigh. They were supposed to receive pay of $75 weekly during the training.

Henderson made a date to meet the four at the Asheville bus station the following night. Police were called in when he failed to appear.

Tropical Storm Is Heading West

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Tropical storm Becky moved westward across the Atlantic Ocean today. Gale warnings were hoisted for the Leeward Islands for winds up to 50 m.p.h. in squalls.

A tropical storm watch was in effect for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The latest weather bureau advisory placed the season's second tropical storm 575 miles east-northeast of San Juan. It was moving west-northwest at 20 m.p.h.

Highest winds were estimated at 25 m.p.h. in squalls in the northern semicircle. Gale force winds extended outward 175 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south of the center.

Weathermen looked for Becky to increase slightly in intensity and size in the next 12 hours.

Air Force and Navy hurricane hunter planes and three instrument-loaded planes from the National Hurricane Research Project at West Palm Beach, Fla., were to fly into the storm today to collect data used in plotting Becky's course and future storm studies.

"Becky stands a good chance of developing more during the next 24 to 36 hours," said Walter Davis, assistant to the chief forecaster at the Miami Weather Bureau.
