Still Concerned?

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Worried about teen-agers? Well, consider the case of Judy Moore. She's 15 and cute. She has a steady boy friend and likes rock 'n' roll. She grew up in a twice broken home. She lives in a low income housing project. Her mother is in a hospital after major surgery. Neighbors called juvenile officers to the Moore home the other day. Trouble? Not at all. They thought Judy was carrying too big a burden for a 15-year-old. This is what amazed juvenile officers found: Judy in charge of seven younger brothers and sisters. All were clean and well fed. The refrigerator and cupboards were stocked with nourishing food. Judy's role as head of the house began when her mother, Mrs. Bonita Moore Kenny, went to the hospital 18 days ago. The mother gave Judy $20 for food and left more money with neighbors. In Judy's care were 8-month-old twins Darlene and Debbie; Randy, 2; Jacqueline, 5; Nancy, 8; Billy, 9; and Bonnie Jean, 10. The officers took the children to Juvenile Hall. They kept them a day and sent them back home with a housekeeper to oversee things. Judy had proved herself quite a homemaker executive. She delegated duties—dry the dishes, make the beds, dust and mop—to the older children. Judy and the housekeeper are running the house together. But it's easy to see who is still at the helm: Judy ordered: "Billy, I told you to change that shirt. 'Bonnie Jean, the dishes are ready to dry. 'Nancy, go bring Randy in here so I can wash his face..."

Frightened Prior To Disappearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Indianapolis lawyer testified today Dave Probstein was a scared man, apparently involved with dangerous men, the day before Probstein mysteriously disappeared. Probstein, an Indianapolis business man and attorney, dropped from sight on a trip to St. Louis June 6, 1955. Police fear he was slain. Joseph G. Good, an Indianapolis attorney, told the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee that Probstein called him at his home June 5. He said Probstein told him he was about to undertake a dangerous mission from which he might not return, and asked him to help look after the interests of Mrs. Probstein if the worst should come. Good pictured Probstein as secretive about the exact nature of the danger. "Probstein told me he was in great danger," Good related. "He said he had become involved with some people he considered dangerous. He was going away on a mission he considered very dangerous. "He was a scared man." Good said he asked testimony were these evil people that were after him," and that Probstein insisted "all I can tell you about it, I'm going to St. Louis and then to the East." The Senate committee is digging into the Probstein story as part of its hearings on the affairs of Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. Earlier testimony was that Probstein had got a loan from Hoffa in connection with establishing a taxi company in Indianapolis. The loan was $8,000. Robert F. Kennedy, counsel to the committee, told newsmen as today's session began that a vood deal of money figured in the presumed death of Probstein. There has been an ultimatum also that a threat and ultimatum was delivered to Probstein shortly before he disappeared. The threat and ultimatum et al. The threat and ultimatum story was related to the committee yesterday by Betty Starrett, an Indianapolis secretary. She was a surprise witness in the committee hearings on relations between Probstein and James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union.

Farm Bill Faces Test In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—An 11th-hour House farm bill comes up today amid mounting speculation Congress will enact farm legislation acceptable to the Eisenhower administration. Faced with a congressional rush for adjournment, Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said he favors accepting the White House. Ellender expressed that view as his committee prepared to meet in closed session to consider the bill, passed yesterday by the House. Even though the measure is altered only slightly from a farm bill rejected by the House less than two weeks ago, it won't vote passage after House leaders reached a compromise on the issue. Ellender said he considered the House measure fairly close to the recently passed Senate farm bill strongly endorsed by Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Benson also praised the new House version. In general, both bills go far to meet Benson's requests for lower price supports and fewer government controls over farmers. Both also meet objections of cotton and rice farmers who face sharp curtailments in acreage eligible for price supports unless Congress agrees on a new bill.

19 Pints

BETHEL—Nineteen pints of blood were donated during yesterday's Red Cross Bloodmobile visit here. The total fell well short of the town's quota of 110 pints. Only one prospective donor was rejected. Yesterday's visit was sponsored by the Rotary Club. David O. Speir was chairman. Dr. Dan Jordan and Dr. W. A. Moody were presiding physicians. The Cantien was ordered under the direction of Mrs. David O. Speir, Mrs. Frances Hardy and Miss Camille Steton. Volunteer workers were Miss Betty Cooper, Miss Judy Cullifer, Miss Sue Taylor, Miss Mary Jo Wynne, Miss Jennie Lee Whitehurst, Miss Malisse Moringo, Miss Patsy Harris, Miss Judy Whitehurst and Miss Annette Watson.

Abandon Hope Of Finding Survivors Among 99 Persons Aboard Lost Airliner

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — All hope was given up today of finding any survivors among the 99 persons aboard the Dutch airliner that crashed in the Atlantic off Ireland's coast. The Canadian destroyer Crusader announced the search was being abandoned after a search of the area, where the KLM airliner Hugo de Groot crashed yesterday, failed to show any sign of life. By midafternoon, 35 bodies had been recovered. Evidence piled up that the Super Constellation, carrying 91 passengers including 52 Americans, either exploded or hit the sea with terrific force. Pieces of wreckage were found scattered over an area of four miles. Life jackets had been ripped to bits. The plane, en route to New York, had climbed into a violent storm. A KLM official said what occurred came suddenly, possibly an explosion. An under-sea search of the condition of the first bodies brought ashore indicated an explosion. Ships and planes of five nations were in the area about 100 miles off Galway Bay. Ships were picking up bodies and wreckage. One body recovered was that of a boy wearing a lifebelt. Wreck Victim Is Still Unconscious At Pitt Hospital

Richard Gorr, 23-year-old Cherry Point Marine who was injured in an early morning traffic collision Monday, is still in critical condition at Pitt Memorial Hospital. According to an attending physician Gorr has not regained consciousness since the two-car collision on the New Bern highway in the Shelburne area. The victim sustained a fractured right leg, a dislocated left hip, a possible head injury, an elbow injury and extensive burns about his body. As a result of the mishap, William D. Wohlers Jr., 20-year-old Cherry Point Marine from Philadelphia, suffered fatal injuries. His death was the seventh traffic fatality in Pitt County this year. Wohlers was reportedly pinned under the wheel of the car that was struck by another car said to have been operated by Edward Hanlin, also a Cherry Point Marine. Flames broke out in the death car and all its occupants escaped with the exception of Wohlers, whose absence was not discovered until it was too late to save him. To date no charges have been made against Hanlin by State Highway Patrolman Bill Whitehurst of Ayden who investigated the accident. Coroner Griffin H. Rouse stated this morning that an inquest will probably be held in connection with Wohlers' death but no date has been set pending the outcome of the other victims conditions. Yesterday afternoon three other servicemen, injured in the wreck, were released from Pitt Memorial Hospital and returned to the Naval hospital at Cherry Point. They were William Stambaugh, Hanlin and Gary Parker. All three have shown considerable improvement since being admitted Monday morning, their physician reported today. Two other servicemen, David E. Sowers and George Morgan, were also treated following the wreck. Later they were released.

Businessman Is Briefly Captive

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Okinawan police last night freed an American businessman from labor unionists who had held him captive in his own office for an hour and a half. Police arrested 20 unionists who had formed a human wall around William Baxter, formerly of San Francisco, who operates an auto sales agency in Naha. Shortly after 40 more screaming unionists were jailed when they demonstrated at a police station to protest the earlier arrests. Kamejiro Senaga, ex-mayor of Naha and head of the extreme-left Okinawa Peoples party, led the demonstrators but was not arrested.

Into Warehouses

Tobacco began moving onto warehouse floors in Greenville today, in preparation for next Thursday's opening sales on the Eastern Belt. One of the first loads to be unloaded was approximately 1,000 pounds of primings owned by Judson Whitehurst of Route 1, Stokes. He placed his tobacco on the sales floor of Smith and Sugg's Star Warehouse. "I went when Whitehurst unloaded the tobacco were James S. Ficklen Jr., president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, Harding Sugg of the warehouse staff, other warehouse personnel, and Whitehurst's son, Larry. Whitehurst said the tobacco represented "... as good quality primings as I have ever raised."

U.S. Shipping Arms To Tunisia

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is shipping a new supply of military equipment to Tunisia to strengthen that North African country's police force. The shipment, part of which has arrived in Tunisia, includes small arms, jeeps, trucks and radio supplies. A similar shipment was sent earlier this year. American officials said the equipment was being turned over to Tunisia at the request of President Habib Bourguiba. They said there was no connection between the shipments and the unrest in the Middle East.

Bid To Give Hammarskjold Role In Peace Plan Endorsed By West

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Western diplomats were reported today to be backing a Norwegian plan giving Dag Hammarskjold a major role in initiating President Eisenhower's Middle East peace plan. Informed quarters said Norway was busy lining up sponsors for a resolution, which may be submitted before nightfall, to the emergency session of the 81-nation General Assembly. The United States and Britain, while working with Norway, have decided for tactical reasons not to be sponsors, informants said. Some neutral diplomats indicated the plan had a good chance of winning the required two-thirds majority. Main points were: 1. The U. N. secretary general would be given responsibility for making whatever arrangements he believes necessary to safeguard the independence of Lebanon and Jordan so as to permit the withdrawal of U. S. and British troops from those countries. 2. Hammarskjold would be asked to study the question of setting up an economic foundation for the Middle East to help raise living standards. 3. Hammarskjold would also be asked to study the problem of establishing a mobile U. N. peace force for the Middle East. Under the proposed plan, the secretary general would report back to the Assembly by Sept. 30. This means the Eisenhower proposals for economic development and a U. N. peace force would come before the regular Assembly session opening Sept. 16. Informed quarters said there was no specific directive that Hammarskjold go to the Middle East personally, but it was pointed out he had ample authority to do so if he felt it necessary. Details of the plan became known as the Assembly pushed ahead with its third day of general debate. The situation was complicated yesterday when Jordan unexpectedly announced it would not accept a widely-backed plan to station U. N. observers in Jordan to replace British forces. The American and British delegations to the U. N. Assembly's emergency session on the Middle East hoped, however, that Jordan's turn-down was only a token gesture. "A lady never says yes right away," one Western official said. Plans were also under way for another trip by U. N. Secretary Dag Hammarskjold to the Middle East during which he could try to persuade King Hussein's government to admit a U. N. force to his threatened kingdom. Jordanian Delegate Abdel Monem Rifai jolted the Assembly yesterday by declaring his government would not agree to permit either U. N. observers or military units on Jordan territory. "What Jordan needs and asks for," he said, "is material assistance to reinforce its own army and security forces." Such a refusal could torpedo efforts by the United States and Britain to put through a formal proposal for replacement of their troops in Lebanon and Jordan with U. N. contingents. Both the West and the Soviet Union had been in tacit agreement that U. N. units of some sort should take over. Rifai's declaration brought swift response from Omar Loufi of the United Arab Republic. "Does the Jordanian government prefer the British troops to continue occupying Jordan?" he asked. The United States continued sounding out delegations on a tentative resolution which would embody the main parts of President Eisenhower's six-point plan to bring peace to the Middle East.

President Brands 'Surrender Study' Rumor Furor Ridiculous Nonsense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today described as ridiculous nonsense any thought that the United States might surrender to an enemy in the event of atomic war. Reacting to published reports of such a study, Eisenhower authorized his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, to say: "as far as the President is concerned all this talk about surrender is nonsense." The whole subject was heatedly debated in the Senate last night, with Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee leading a fight against voting any funds for possible surrender study purposes. "There has been no public money spent to study how or when the United States might surrender," Hagerty said. "There will be no such money spent for such a purpose." Hagerty said Eisenhower, after approving the prepared statement, authorized him to say in addition: "even if he (Eisenhower) were given money for this purpose it would not be spent. The whole matter is too ridiculous for any further comment." The subject set off a veritable storm of criticism in speeches last night. At one point an attempt was made to close the galleries to the press and public because of the seriousness of the topic. But it wasn't done. The United States has never lost a war and the legislators were indignant that the military should be having even the slightest thought of any American surrender. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) proposed tacking onto a $3,594,000 supplemental appropriations bill a rider that would nullify any surrender study contract and bar any payments in connection with it. Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said most Americans would rather die than see their country under the yoke of another power. At the White House, press secretary James C. Hagerty said President Eisenhower "certainly wouldn't agree to any talk about surrender of the United States." Hagerty said Eisenhower had ordered an immediate investigation of the reports about the surrender study. But even as the furor raged there was no solid confirmation that the Pentagon was undertaking any special surrender study. A spokesman would only say that it was standard military practice to consider all eventualities, even those unlikely to arise. The rumors apparently traced back to a study begun in 1951 by the Rand Corp., an independent, nonprofit organization which engages in national security research. Rand, which has a contract with the Air Force, analyzed the ways in which other countries have surrendered in the past.

Livestock Building Work Under Way

an alley led between the two rows of stalls. Goodman said the building had been leased from the Fair Association for ten years at $1. per year to make the renovation work possible. The structure will be available to the Livestock Association all year through with the exception of three weeks at fair time. The Farm Bureau is also working with the association on the project. "We think it is going to meet a need of a great many farmers," Goodman said. "It will be a center of our activities. It's the first big step in promotion of livestock that we've had in our county. "This pavilion will be used for feeder pig sales, purebred swine sales and other sales." Goodman said the interior of the building is expected to be completed in time for the fair this fall and the remainder of the work is to be done soon thereafter. The first two sales will be an all-breed sale and a feeder pig sale to be held sometime during the last week in October. The Pitt County Livestock Association was organized March 4, 1958 and received its charter in July. Its members now number over 100 and membership is open to persons, firms or organized groups which are interested in the production of livestock in Pitt County. Goodman said the purpose of the organization is to promote a livestock interest in Pitt County, and assist any existing organization in the promotion of livestock development. At its organizational meeting in March, four objectives for 1958 were approved by members. All have been carried out or are in the process of being carried out. The members decided to support a market cattle referendum which called for assessing cattle sold at market 10 cents per head with the money to be used for promoting livestock. That was approved on a state-wide basis in the referendum. Another objective was to cooperate in the sponsoring or supporting the Pitt Fat Cattle Show and Sale. That was done also. The third objective was to support and sponsor Pitt livestock exhibits at the Fair and plans are being made to do this. Finally the organization voted (Continued on Page Ten)

The study, completed last year, was recently published in book form with the title, "Strategic Surrender, The Politics of Victory and Defeat." But Rand denied that the study dealt with any possible American setback. "Nowhere do the study or the book deal with any hypothetical U. S. surrender," the firm said. "The question of negotiating with an opponent of the U. S. in a wartime situation is treated solely in the context of a termination of a war in which the U. S. would be victorious." Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) said he had studied the Rand report and had found nothing smacking of any suggestions of American surrender. The Republican leader told the Senate he could say categorically that Eisenhower had not authorized and has no knowledge of any surrender study. "The word surrender is not in the vocabulary of the President of the United States," Knowland said. Russell said he was offering his rider as reassurance to the American people and free nations that the United States wouldn't quit in any atomic conflict. Senators Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) and John S. Cooper (R-Ky.) asked Russell to withdraw his amendment and not insist on a vote. Adoption of the rider, Capehart said, would permit the Soviets to boast that Congress had to act to keep the President and he secretary of state from planning America's capitulation to the Soviets.

Hope For Destitute Family

The seven children of Mrs. Elizabeth Cooley pose at Miami, Fla. before Miamians came to their rescue with offers of help. The family became destitute after Mrs. Cooley's husband deserted them a few weeks ago. They were prepared to return to Dayton, Ohio, where they came from five months ago, on bus tickets provided by the welfare department of the Florida city. But after their story appeared in the Miami News, residents offered toys, clothes and money and a neighbor offered to care for the children until the mother finds a job. (AP Wirephoto)

New Standards Ordered For Expanding Highway 11

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer. The State Highway Commission said today it is ordering narrower construction limits and other new standards for the expansion of Highway N.C. 11 to four lanes between Greenville's West End Circle and the highways intersection with U.S. 264 at the South 11 Drive-In Theater. Sam Beard, public information officer for the commission, said the changes will cut proposed construction widths of the four-lane road to 73 feet within Greenville's city limits and to 84 feet outside the city. Original plans announced by the commission had called for an 86-foot roadway along the entire route. Beard also said the changes resulted from study, by state and federal highway personnel, of transcripts of a July 18 public hearing here, at which the proposed project was discussed. Some property owners along the route had objected to full expansion of the highway under the announced plans. The new plans for the project will eliminate a proposed 16-foot grassed median between North and South lanes of the four-lane road. Portions of the roads within the city will be redesigned into an urban section without a median but with a parking lane. Portions of the road between the city limits and the drive-in theater will have a four-foot oval-type median which will permit vehicles to pass from one lane to another. Major effect of the revised plans, Beard said, will be a reduction of construction limits from 99 feet to approximately 73 feet. The highway commission owns a 100-foot right-of-way along the route, but Beard said the construction limits were reduced to leave more right-of-way space in the yards of residences along the highway. Inside the city, the roadway will measure 84 feet from curb to curb, including the curb facings, gutters and parking strips. In addition, there will be four-and-one-half feet of graded area behind the curb facings. Outside the city, the highway will measure 72 feet from shoulder to shoulder, including the four-foot median and six-foot ditches. Estimated cost of the original project was $414,000, a portion of which will be paid from funds appropriated by Congress as a recession combatting measure. To utilize the federal funds, however, the project must be under contract by December 1, 1958, and completed by December 1, 1959. Beard said the highway commission plans to have the contract let by December 1. Use of transcripts in revising the project are "a good example of what public hearing are doing," Beard said. He added, "We feel we can preserve what we feel is necessary for the next 10 to 15 years in the area, and still work with the people as closely as possible." At the time the public hearing was held, Beard said the present two-lane road, which is 20 feet wide, serves about 4,000 vehicles daily. He said, at that time, that highway officials had noted "some clogging" at critical traffic hours. Under plans for the expansion, the present centerline of the highway will remain in place. Speed limits along the route will remain the same when the four lanes are completed, Beard said.

Finland Home Ec. Educators Visit ECC

Two educators in the field of home economics in Finland are winding up a brief tour of the United States this week following a visit to the East Carolina College campus for four days.

Mrs. Helvi Vuolo, instructor of home economics in a Lahti, Finland, high school, and Miss Inkeri Suhonen, instructor in home economics in a teachers college in Helsinki, Finland, have been guests here of Dr. Beattie McNeil, chairman of the ECC Department of Home Economics. Mrs. Vuolo and Miss Suhonen attended the 8th International Congress on Home Economics in College Park, Md., and came to North Carolina with Dr. McNeil of ECC and Miss Ellen Brewer, head of the Meredith College Department of Home Economics, Raleigh.

Mrs. Vuolo strongly expressed Finland's deep feeling of friendship for the people of the United States and recalled her girlhood days when international relations between Finland and America were strengthened by relief missions administered by former President Herbert Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover seemed like God who could give us all things," Mrs. Vuolo said. Her recollections of former years in the struggle for survival of the country of Finland noted that Hoover and General Mannerheim of her own generation are the two greatest living men in her memory.

And Mrs. Vuolo and Miss Suhonen agree that "it is hard to find words to express our thoughts about the friendship shown them during their current all-too-brief tour of America."

"We have mountains in Finland, but your North Carolina mountains are simply breath-taking in the grand views we had of them," added Mrs. Vuolo.

Unaccustomed to the high temperatures of the Southern summer, the two visitors have found the welcome really on the "warm side."

Mrs. Vuolo is on the board of home economics for the secondary schools of the city of Lahti whose population is about 62,000.

This board provides for vocational training, gives help to householders on a variety of problems, including kitchen planning, menu preparation, and food conservation, says Mrs. Vuolo. Also, there is guidance and assistance to young people in a number of vocations.

Miss Suhonen's home town has a population of near 10,000 and she has served on the town council for 10 years and has also aided in a program of social work for about eight years.

Dr. McNeil noted that at the International Congress at the University of Maryland there was an attendance of 1,044 women representing 59 countries. Dr. McNeil and Mrs. Vuolo met at an International Congress in Edinburgh in 1953 and the two have maintained an active correspondence over this six-year period.

Jaguars, MGs Have Created Strange Lingo

By DOROTHY ROE

Want to know how to enjoy life with a belt in the back?

Just cavestrop at the monthly luncheon of the Sports Car Driving and Chowder Society in a midtown Manhattan restaurant.

It's real far out, man, practically frigid, with about 200 cats and kittens digging this new rumble that's like orbiting on the ground.

And that crowd, kids, it's like nothing you'll ever see this side of Mars—everybody from corporation presidents to truck drivers and from debutantes to secretaries, all tuned in like hi-fi.

The main idea here is that if you haven't driven a sports car, kitten, you haven't lived. It's a theory that seems to be spreading all over, from Park Avenue to darkest Africa, with high concentration on the west coast and Florida.

The talk is of comparative merits of Jaguars, Austin Healeys, Triumphs, MGs and Corvettes.

Members have their own jargon, as you may have gathered. For instance, a square is anybody who drives a standard car with automatic shift and power steering. With-a-belt-in-the-back is fabulous, terrific, the most.

There are almost as many women as men in this new speed fraternity. Wives whose husbands have been bitten by the sports car bug have discovered that they have the choice of going along or becoming sports car widows.

Unmarried girls have found that the best way to attract men is to buy a sports car.

Then a lot of big business men and professional men seem to find an outlet for their spirit of adventure in piloting one of these small, powerful speedsters.

Gypsy Loves Kitchen Of 26-Room Town Home

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures

It may upset a man's preconceived notion of a glamorous woman to learn that some of the world's most fascinating women are mad for kitchens. Gypsy Rose Lee, for instance.

The vivacious, versatile star of stage and screen has two kitchens in her household, just for the very good reason that she wants one for herself.

"I love to cook," says Gypsy, who lives with her 13-year-old son Erik and a housekeeper in a pair of New York town houses that comprise 26 rooms. "My little kitchen is stocked with just about any utensil a woman could want for kitchen fun."

Her culinary equipment runs the gamut from the traditional melon-shaped pudding mold to a paella pan, the latter for holding the mouth watering paella dish, a gastronomic achievement that includes chicken, shrimp, rice, lobster and what have you. Utensils hang from the kitchen ceiling, and decorate walls and shelves. "My stove is the 1913 Rolls Royce of stoves," says Gypsy, pointing proudly to the old-fashioned black stove that is her personal love.

Gypsy's entire home is like that, furnished with the things she loves and has selected personally. Her decorating achievements include a charming blue and white dining room. One wall's shelves contain a large collection of Royal Copenhagen china. The white dining table is about nine feet in diameter. "Af-

Blonde Is Good Missile Engineer

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A 14-year-old girl watched a Pratt-Whitney airplane motor being revved on a truck in Joliet, Ill., in 1942 during a War Bond drive and decided instantly she was going to be an aviation engineer.

Today, 20-year-old Florine Cain is a slim, green-eyed blonde engineer with undiminished enthusiasm for aeronautical science.

She has helped design the new Lockheed X7 ramjet-powered test missile. This new 37-foot device was developed to test the powerful ramjet engines that will propel the Air Force's advanced interceptor missiles.

Married to Richard Cain, contracts administrator for Lockheed's aircraft division, she is engaged in design engineering in the missile systems division.

"I kid him about getting planes in the air while I'm helping design missiles to shoot them down," she says. "But he likes his work and I have been engrossed in mine here for the last three years. I love it. I wouldn't want to be doing anything else."

"I was the first woman to be graduated from the powerplant section of the aeronautical school at Purdue University in 1951. From there I went into ordnance work, and when that dwindled I took a job with a railroad, doing diesel powerplant work. A strike cut me out of that. I'm glad it did."

"I went to the Illinois Institute of Technology and worked on high cyclic rate gun design. We were firing 40-millimeter guns, 200 rounds a minute, and did our test firing at Ft. Sheridan, near Lake Michigan. It was rather dangerous work, as we mixed our own propellants, and we had some close calls."

One of the few women in the highly technical field of missiles, Mrs. Cain says the work holds opportunities for women. She believes that more and more women will be going into all kinds of scientific fields.

"I think vocational guidance should be started earlier with our children," she says. "There is no use waiting until a student is about through high school or into college before he makes up his mind what he intends to do about making a living. I think we should seek out the talents and aptitudes of children on a continuing basis in the earlier years, and direct them along those lines, for this assuredly is the age of specialization as never before."

Mrs. Cain and her husband have their own ketch, the "Love Affair," and spend most summer weekends in Southern California waters. They also are sports car enthusiasts, have a swimming pool at their home high in Beverly Hills, and divide the housework because they have no servants.

"We eat out a lot," she confesses, "but we seem to have a busy schedule and there isn't too much time for cooking. We're trapped, just like everybody else in this busy world."

Housewives Not Ready For Thanksgiving Meal—Army Is

Housewives, busy with summertime household chores, probably have not given thought to the 1954 Thanksgiving Day menu.

But this is not true with food specialists of the United States Army Quartermaster Corps. They have known for quite some time what American soldiers will eat at the festive Thanksgiving Day board. In fact, the larder has already been filled—down to the last raisin and piece of traditional hard candy.

United States Army soldiers the world over will partake of the same feast from a menu which goes something like this: shrimp cocktail or fruit cup, crackers,

W.C.T. Union Has Meeting

BETHEL—Mrs. J. P. Harris was hostess Monday to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in her home on Main Street.

Mrs. R. L. Whitley, president, called the meeting to order by having the group sing "Onward Christian Soldiers," after which Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst led the group in prayer. After the secretary, Miss Athleen Rollins, read the minutes and called the roll, Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst gave the devotion using Jeremiah 42:3 for the scripture reading. Her topic was "Do You Care Enough?" taken from the "Daily Word."

Mrs. R. L. Whitley read a selection from the Union Signal explaining the purpose of temperance union research work.

A nominating committee, Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst, Mrs. W. E. Crisp and Mrs. Mamie Andrews, was chosen to select officers for the new year. The committee is to report at the September meeting.

Peach Prices Still Attractive

RALEIGH—The North Carolina peach volume is still heavy this week, according to John W. Hagen, Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist. He says that prices are still attractive for fresh peaches for eating and all conservation purposes. Elberta and Georgia Belle are the two favorite peach varieties on the market now.

Good supplies of vegetables are the rule in most markets this week, with prices remaining steady and quality variable. Tomatoes and green beans top the vegetable list as home grown supplies reach harvest season.

Other vegetables including cabbage, sweet corn, Irish potatoes, field peas, lima beans and squash are all in good supply at attractive prices. Vegetables showing slight increases were cucumbers, lettuce, celery, onions and pepper.

Attractive buys continue on all poultry products, Hagen continues. Fryers remain steady at low prices; heavy hens are slightly weaker. Large size eggs have declined a few cents per dozen, while medium size increased a little. Small eggs increasing in supply carry low price tags, making them excellent buys for cooking use.

Beef prices, particularly the higher quality cuts, show a slight decline from last week, Hagen points out. He says, however, that most pork prices remain unchanged. Weekly featured "specials" and the large assortment of variety meats continue to offer economy to food shoppers.

H. D. Club Is Held In Bethel

BETHEL—The Bethel Home Demonstration Club held its meeting Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. P. Harris with 14 members present.

A Song of Peace was sung after which Mrs. R. B. Edmondson gave a devotional entitled "Too Busy." She stated that many were too busy to hear the still small voice of God.

Mrs. Maude Harris, educational leader, gave a report on the recently held H. D. Book Club. She said there were 12 book reports given. She also read the committee report on resolutions and the club members approved them.

Mrs. F. C. James, home beautification leader, gave a report on mulching shrubbery. Pine straw was the most highly recommended mulch. It helps to keep down weeds, keeps the soil moist, allows ventilation and helps prevent freezing of roots.

Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, vice president, presided at a short business session in the absence of Mrs. W. R. Bullock, president. She also gave some freeing tips.

Mrs. Lillie Little, home agent, gave an informative demonstration on "The Uninvited Guest." She commented that a pair of roaches could produce 500 roaches in one year. She also stated that sanitation, cleanliness and insecticides were the best remedies.

The meeting adjourned with the club collect after which the hostess served iced drinks, cookies, potato chips, salted pecans and pickles.

Educator Fights For Three R's

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Over-indulgent parents and "progressive" schools are turning out a generation of undisciplined illiterates, says Isabelle Buckley, who has fought for old-fashioned methods of teaching for the last 25 years.

"There has been too much spoon-feeding of children by today's parents, who are among the first products of progressive education," says Mrs. Buckley, who has three schools in the Los Angeles area and another near Detroit under her supervision. "They have permitted a dictatorship of over-indulged children to grow up around them."

Mrs. Buckley takes a "no nonsense" approach to education, and believes every child should be able to read and write by the end of the first grade, she says.

"If the public schools abandoned early reading in favor of phonetics there would be no such problem as why Johnny can't read."

"When children in our schools reach the first grade they are ready to learn to read and write. When they have completed the first grade, they can read a newspaper, and write. They also can spell."

Buckley classes start with nursery school for children aged 3 and continue through the 10th grade. The 3-year-olds start a course in French that continues until they are 12. Before they reach the first grade they are taught the alphabet, numbers and a smattering of phonetics, in addition to a course in reading readiness.

"Children are eager to learn," says Mrs. Buckley. "It is a basic impulse that must be satisfied if it is to survive. That's why they ask questions from the time they are able to talk."

"Children also are creatures of habit. We try to make concentration and study a habit with them." In the Buckley schools homework starts in the first grade. About 20 minutes daily is the rule for beginners, working up to two hours daily at the ninth grade level.

"This outside school work is no problem with our children," says Mrs. Buckley. "We have found it beneficial because the child not only learns what he is studying but also develops self-discipline and powers of concentration."

Mrs. Buckley also believes parents should help children with their homework. Says she:

"I would like to reiterate parents as teachers at home and thus make the child's life a less desperate fight to learn things he can't learn without more help than he sometimes gets in school."

Looking Ahead To 1959 Assembly

Growing support for the proposed school of nursing at East Carolina College increases chances that the school will be established during the coming session of the General Assembly.

The proposed school gained another boost this week with the adoption of a resolution by directors of the North Carolina State Nurses Association endorsing "... the principle of establishing, with state funds and under the state system of colleges and universities, a collegiate school of nursing at East Carolina ..."

With the passing of months, more and more people in the East and elsewhere are recognizing the fact that a state supported school of nursing is the answer to the critical shortage of nurses which is faced by this section of the state.

Unless such a school is provided by the General Assembly, Eastern North Carolina is destined to face a period in which its shortage of nurses will seriously impair the operation of hospitals and other facilities. It will likewise affect adversely the calibre of medical care available to the people in this area.

It was about two years ago that efforts for the proposed school of nursing began. Hospital administrators in the Eastern part of the state, keenly aware of the need for more nurses, started the ball rolling. The movement quickly gained the support of doctors and other interested people. There was not, however, sufficient support for the school to gain required action by the 1957 General Assembly. The legislature declined to appropriate funds to establish the school during the current biennium.

By the time the 1959 General Assembly convenes it should be a different story. More people are aware of the need for nurses in this section of the state. They are likewise aware that this section is not getting from schools in other areas enough nurses to fill the needs of Eastern North Carolina. There is broader recognition of the fact that if a state supported school of nursing is not established in this area the shortage of nurses will become more acute in the years ahead.

Most of the county medical societies of the area already have adopted resolutions citing the need for nurses and calling for establishment of the school. Similar action has been taken by a number of local civic organizations throughout the area. In addition to this support, several medical societies have established scholarships for the proposed school of nursing, effective when the school opened.

This tangible evidence of the growing recognition of the need for a state supported school of nursing in this part of North Carolina leads us to the conclusion that the 1959 General Assembly will also recognize and meet the need by providing funds for establishment of the school.

U.S. Maneuvered Into De Facto Arrangement

Another lesson out of the Middle East: Because there is no such thing as an international police force to keep the peace when local fights threaten to flare into world-wide catastrophes, the unhappy burden has fallen to the major powers.

American and British forces in Lebanon and Jordan fortunately didn't have to fight; but they were ready, if and when the need arose. Instead of having to use force to suppress a dangerous situation, their very presence served as an element of restraint.

Today the crisis-filled atmosphere is at least temporarily clearing and the token removal of one battalion of Marines is under way. But behind all the sound and fury of recent weeks there emerges a very clear fact.

The major powers of the West bear a responsibility toward enforcing the shaky global peace within the borders of their own spheres of influence. Conversely, that same responsibility is presumed to be felt by the giants of the Communist World within their sphere of influence.

So the picture of that Moscow goal... of formally dividing the world into two domains... is nearer reality by virtue of existing conditions rather than by diplomatic accord.

Having stoutly opposed the latter proposal for a number of years, it's beginning to appear we've been maneuvered into the kind of de facto arrangement the Reds wanted all the time.

Getting Action Will Be Harder

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP) — This country has responded warmly to President Eisenhower's proposals in the United Nations for Middle East peace. But getting action on them by other countries — in or out of the U.N. — is something else.

This suggestion captured most attention: that an effort be made to see whether the Arab countries would agree to setting up a development organization to help their industry, farming, water supply, health and education.

Eisenhower did not say this should be part of a U.N. program. He suggested the money could be put up by the United States, other countries which wanted to take part, and private capital. The development organization would be run by the Arabs.

It's easy to see trouble ahead on this one. President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, who seems bent on bringing all his Arab neighbors under his thumb, can do it easier if they're wracked with discontent than if they see a bright future ahead.

He can stall on this one in the belief that time is on his side, and given time he can capture his neighbors. Then he might talk about a development organization, with him as boss. It's doubtful the Soviet Union would want in on this. Soviet infiltration in the Middle East is easier if the individual countries try to improve their lot with Soviet help in manpower, materials and loans.

Further, Eisenhower limited his proposal to the Arab countries. This left Israel out, an omission which must have been deliberate. Eisenhower knows he'd almost certainly not get Arab approval for a development program including Israel.

Yet, somehow in any Middle East development plan Israel would have to be considered. For example, in any development of the Jordan River. Perhaps El-senhower has something in mind for Israel by itself, if the Arabs buy his development idea.

Eisenhower also proposed steps against indirect aggression — specifically broadcasts beamed from one country into a neighbor's receiving sets to inflame the people against their government.

The President didn't mention Nasser on this one. No doubt he had Nasser in mind. This idea almost certainly will run into opposition not only by Egypt but by the Soviet Union, too.

In any discussion of a curb on broadcasts into another country — whether or not their purpose is subversion — the Soviets would probably insist that American broadcasts behind the Iron Curtain be stopped or monitored.

Another Eisenhower suggestion that the U.N. take "action looking towards the creation of a standby U.N. police" to keep peace in the Middle East, Nasser, highly successful so far with his pressure tactics, will hardly buy this one.

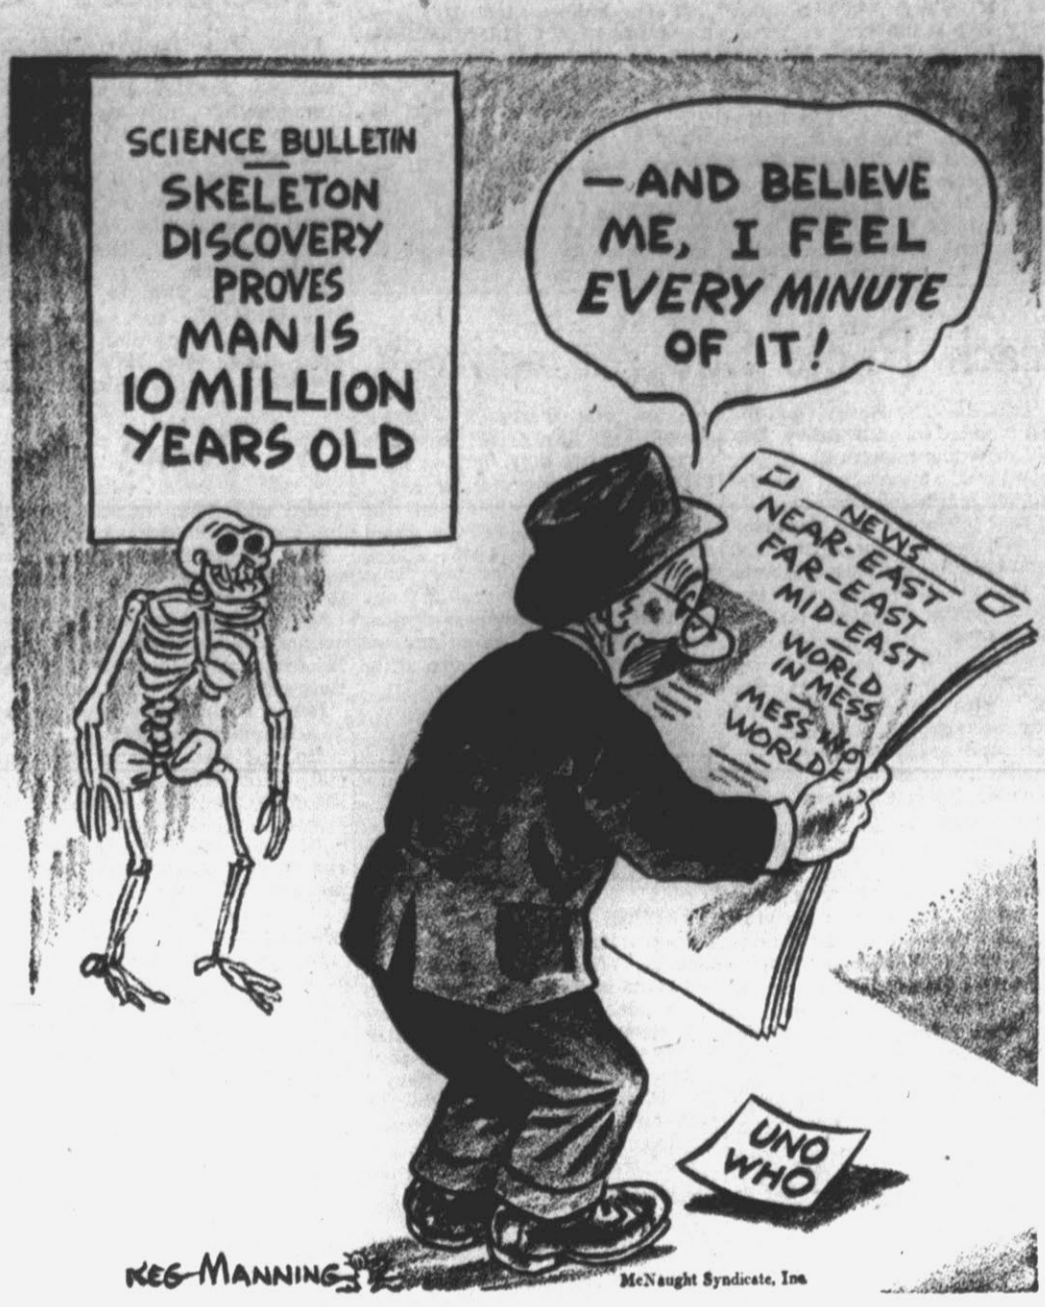

And even Jordan's King Hussein — so close to being thrown out — is cool to any idea of a U.N. police force on any Arab borders with Israel.

This Eisenhower proposal seems destined to get the coldest shoulder from both Nasser and the Soviet Union, that the "nations involved in the 1948 hostilities (the Arab-Israel war) might approve creation of a U.N. study to see what could be done about controlling the shipment of heavy armaments into the area."

He didn't say anything about extending arms shipment control to the Baghdad Pact countries—Turkey, Iran, Pakistan—which this country in effect joined a full partner a couple of weeks ago for defense against the Soviet Union.

Nasser has been bitter against this military alliance right on the Arab doorstep in the Middle East. And the Soviet Union has been bitter about it because it stretches along her southern frontier.

Age Of Man

Very Welcome Surprise

Mrs. Mildred Manning of 202 E. Tenth St. has found an honest man. Mrs. Manning's husband passed away some time ago. She decided to dispose of some of his clothes since no one else in the family could wear them. One particular suit had been purchased by her husband and worn only once. The suit was considered by a local businessman who decided he didn't want it. He then gave it to a Negro man who took it home for a time. He, too, decided he didn't want the suit and returned it to Mrs. Manning. Finally Mrs. Manning mentioned the suit to Hilary Phelps of Phelps Radio and TV Service.

He was interested and upon finding the size was his own, Phelps purchased the suit. That ended the matter, or so Mrs. Manning thought. Then, a few days later she received a call from Phelps. "Mrs. Manning, did you know there was some money left in this suit I bought," he asked. Mrs. Manning didn't know it, of course. Phelps returned the cash — a considerable amount. The value of a Rescue Squad to a community is hard to measure. One thing is certain, however. The Greenville Rescue Squad constantly proves its worth to Pitt County and even to surrounding counties. The local squad is well equipped to handle any emergency for which it might be called. It is a cracker jack group which trains constantly. To be sure such an organization is not called upon daily to save lives. But when a life is at stake the group is ready. They have good equipment with which to work — although more is needed — and the know-how to handle such situations. Much of the equipment has been jammed into the main fire station with the regular fire equipment. However, city fathers have rectified that situation by voting funds to construct a rescue squad building alongside the main station. When that is completed the ambulance, Civil Defense truck and other equipment will be moved to the special building. In addition to always standing by for life saving duties, squad members are frequently called upon for dragging operations to locate drowning victims. Now squad members have taken on still more duties to be of service to their community. They are taking special training with the city's fire fighting equipment in order that they might serve as a stand by fire fighting crew in case of major conflagration. And for all this the members serve without pay. Greenville and Pitt County are lucky to have such an organization within their midst.

Other Editors Saying --- Hurricane Season

(Rocky Mount Telegram) Up until several years ago, when mention was made of the hurricane season, local citizens usually thought about Florida, or Cuba and the Caribbean. Hurricanes were merely something one read about in the newspapers or saw in the movies. All that, of course, has been changed, and it took a big girl named Hazel to change the thinking in these parts when the word hurricane is mentioned. Hazel, it will be recalled, is the big blow that came through here several years ago. Rocky Mount, and all of Eastern North Carolina for that matter will long remember the punch carried by Hazel. Damage was extensive up and down the Seaboard, and the damage bill ran into millions of dollars. Fortunately and strangely, there was no rain accompanying Hazel when she visited Rocky Mount. Otherwise the damage would have been greater. Once again we enter that foreboding season of the year known as the time of the hurricanes. Already, the U. S. Weather Bureau has reported the season's second tropical storm, Becky, developing in the Atlantic. Happily enough, Becky is at the present time posing no threat to any coastal or insular area. However, vessels in the path of the storm were urged to use caution, since the storm was accompanied by winds of 50 m.p.h. within a hundred miles of the center. Few residents of this area need more than the usual word of caution about the threats these midsummer storms pose. Ironically, many people of Rocky Mount, and other surrounding towns suffered more property damage at the beaches than in their home towns. Many summer homes and cottages were blown away along the coastline of North Carolina. The Weather Bureau has cooperated with news services rather closely in issuing frequent advisories on the hurricanes, giving location, intensity of the winds, and the rate of movement as well as the direction of the storm. This advice enables newspapers, radios and television stations to keep the public informed as to the exact location of the storm and its progress at any given hour. Such service helps to inform the public concerning the dangers of any particular hurricane, when to evacuate and when to prepare to "batten down the hatches," to use an old Navy phrase. The public, in turn, can respond by paying close attention to these weather advisories and act accordingly. Heed should be paid to these warnings. By doing so, property damage can be held to a minimum, not to mention the lives that can be saved.

Brainstorming And Motivation

By ELMER ROESSNER The three biggest business gemstones since the war have been brainstorming, motivation research and automation. "Gemtish" is a word invented only this moment to describe a gimmick that has become a fetish. It probably never will be seen again. No business is dragging all three over to the window, not to throw them out but to get a little more light on them. Brainstorming is the process of getting a group to spew forth ideas on a given problem with the promise that no suggestion will be criticized. All ideas are recorded and evaluated later. It is held that the uninhibited atmosphere will encourage creativity, and that each person will help spark the imagination of others. Often the number of ideas, rather than the quality, is considered a measure of the success of a session. EVERYBODY WINS Your reporter dropped in one day on a brainstorming session. A design of a chair. "Make it wider!" shouted one of the stormers. "Make it narrower!" shouted another. It was all like that. Somebody suggested building a bar in one arm. Brainstorming has countless enthusiasts throughout business. Many say fine ideas have been developed in some sessions. But many managements are raising doubts. They suspect that one creative mind may be better than a room full of people struggling for attention. An experiment by Professor Donald W. Taylor, Yale psychologist, indicated that four men working alone could generate more ideas on a given subject than a group of four. Though not commenting on this experiment, President A. Whitney Griswold of Yale not long ago asked: "Could Hamlet have been written by a committee or Mona Lisa painted by a club?" WHY PEOPLE RUS Motivation research is the determining of the real reasons people do things, with emphasis on why they buy. While the basic idea is old, this kind of research has been greatly increased in recent years, and is so common that advertising men refer to it as simply as "MR." It has brought scores of psychologists into the field—and why shouldn't a psychologist be happier with $35,000 a year from an ad agency than with $6,000 a year from a college? Motivation research's chief tool is research in depth, in which subjects are questioned, often with great subtlety, for long periods. It has produced such conclusions as that people smoke cigarettes to demonstrate virility, energy, vigor and potency, and that ads showing beer served in elegant drawing rooms make people discontented, not thirsty. But a recent survey by Tide magazine showed that only a handful of advertising executives understand it thoroughly and only a third actually use it. Many said it was overrated and at least one executive treated it as a fad.

Opinions In Brief

"Ghost writing and ghost thinking are producing an ersatz American culture which can only signify decline in the quality of literature and of thought. Apparently the great majority of speeches given by eminent men in politics, business and other fields are ghost written. How can we expect to deepen American culture, to lift the level of American education, to impress the world with the spiritual values in American life, when this form of patent insincerity is rampant?"—Terre Haute (Ind.) Tribune. "The United States is on a suicidal course to slavery because in recent decades we have been yielding to government our individual responsibility." — Adm. Ben Moreell, USN, Ret. "Forty years ago it took only 100 horsepower to keep a combat plane in the air. Today it takes 250 horsepower to carry a 100-pound female to the corner grocery." — Eldorado, Kansas, Times.

If The Deacon Had Been Alive

By LYNN NISBET POLITICAL BOSSES — Many times during the past few weeks it has been said that if "The Deacon" had been alive and active, things would have turned out differently in the 12th congressional district. Reference is to the late E.C. Greene, Asheville business man and political leader who was accorded the title of "Deacon"—mostly with affection but some times with opprobrious connotation. He exercised the influence, and occasionally the authority, of a deacon.

North Carolina has never experienced political bossism to the extent that prevailed in many states. We have never had anybody to exercise such complete control over state affairs, or to influence the course of national events, anything like William (Boss) Tweed and his successors in Tammany Hall, Matt Quay and Boies Penrose in Pennsylvania, Mark Hanna in Ohio, Ed Crump in Tennessee or Harry Byrd in Virginia.

Furnifold M. Simmons from 1910 until 1930 and Max Gardner from 1930 until his death in 1947 had tremendous influence on state affairs, but neither wanted the prerogatives nor claimed the title of a political boss.

Meantime, from around the turn of the century until about 1930, there were developing powerful local political "machines" rather than individual bosses. In Wake county the machine was built around Armistead Jones and his son, Buck. In Union county the head group included Dave Houston, John Sikes, Oscar Blair et al. In Iredell it was A.D. Watts and Jim Hartness. In the northwestern "lost provinces" area it was the Doughton family. From the southern mountains, from Asheville west, it was Deacon Greene. His influence was felt as far east as Morganton and Shelby—and through sponsorship of legislators and judges, throughout the state.

THE DEACON — Unlike the typical political boss, The Deacon did not throw his weight around too obviously. He personified "the organization"—which did throw its weight around, openly and by stealth. His organization was seldom successfully challenged. On the rare occasion when he was beaten in a Democratic election, he quietly absorbed the victor into his own group—or disposed of him at the next opportunity. He accepted with equanimity personal criticism, but would not tolerate disloyalty to the organization on part of any who had sat in its councils.

Not long ago a man who knew The Deacon well for many years, sometimes cooperated and sometimes opposed, had this comment: "I had genuine admiration for his finesse as a politician and his genius for political strategy. It is true he promoted his friends and tried to humble, even destroy, his enemies. But generally speaking he wielded a rapier rather than a claymore." "Election returns through the years of The Deacon's leadership, roughly from the middle twenties until his death in 1952, will show that his candidates for Governor, United States Senator and other state-wide offices usually won in the mountain counties, however they might have fared elsewhere. Although he never sought or accepted public office for himself, his proteges contributed much to the high quality of State officialdom. Outstanding example is the late Brandon Hodges. As legislator, an architect of local government refinancing methods, as State Treasurer and as chairman of the tax study commission which remodeled the State's fiscal policies, Brandon Hodges made great impact upon the State. Another protege is George Shuford—State legislator, Superior Court Judge and Representative in the Congress.

PASSING BREED — Deacon Greene was the "Last of the Mohicans" among North Carolina politicians who could claim control of a really functioning organization of more than county-wide scope—and there aren't many local "machines" left. Byrd in Virginia is one of the few state bosses surviving, and the potency of his organization has been declining in recent years. The Edgar Browne-Sol Blatt combine still controls fiscal policy in South Carolina, but has little influence in other fields.

The concept of loyalty to an organization has been displaced by the idea of individual independence. Churches and religious denominations are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain discipline, and the major political parties have lost much of their integrity in the upsurge of individualism.

About the only place that real bossism survives is in some of the labor unions, and flagrant misuse of power there is putting that system on the rocks. The labor organizations now are more scandal-ridden than were the combines of giant bankers and railroad builders 75 years ago. Economic bosses, whether on the side of capital or of labor, have always been more ruthless than political bosses—and more costly to the people.

Historic fact is that, contrasted with development in other states, the leadership—call it modified bossism, if you like—of Simmons and Gardner, Aus Watts and Deacon Greene, and their numerous counterparts in local communities, gave to North Carolina good government through the past half century.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS What is the world like for a person who does not believe in God? The sincere and thorough-going atheist is rare. There are a few such in the world, but most of the people who call themselves atheists are in reality skeptics, and usually rather uninformed and unintelligent skeptics. But for some people a disbelief in God is definite and established through position at which all their reasoning starts. Napoleon in talking to some of his officers who claimed to be atheists swept his hand upward to the night skies. "Gentlemen," he said, "how do you account for this?" "Of all the fantastic notions ever conceived, the notion that this universe of ours just happened is certainly the most fantastic. No argument against atheism is more ancient than the insistence that a created universe requires a Creator. To this, science in recent years has added the further reason for supernatural power by showing that the universe is a living universe and that what has been created must be kept functioning. Because we cannot understand God and the way He operates and the ends lie in mind is no reason why we should deny that divine operation exists and that there is an ultimate purpose to everything. Atheism proves nothing. It is simply an attempt to substitute denial for lack of knowledge. It is an attempt to evade the necessity for thought.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Leviticus 19:33-37; Deuteronomy 23:7-8; 24:14-16; Matthew 9:9-13; John 4:7-9, 39-41; Galatians 3:26-28.

One of the laws of the Lord to the Hebrews was to welcome strangers to their homes and treat them well, always remembering that they had been strangers in Egypt.—Leviticus 19:33-34.

The law also commanded that poor, needy hired servants were to be well treated. They should be given their wages before sunset, whether they were strangers or brethren to their employers.—Deuteronomy 24:14-15.

As Jesus Christ was eating in Matthew's home, many people came and ate with Him. The Pharisees accused Him of eating with sinners, and He answered that such were in need of Him.—Matthew 9:10-13.

At a well in Samaria Jesus asked a woman for a drink of water. He told her He was the Messiah and she believed and converted many.—John 4:39.

MEMORY VERSE—Hebrews 13:1-2.

FOLLOWERS OF CHRIST SHOULD BE FRIENDLY, KIND AND JUST TO ALL PEOPLE

"IF A STRANGER sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex him. But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt; I am the Lord your God."—Leviticus 19:33-34.

Jesus into his house and made a feast to which many "publicans and sinners" came and sat down with Him and His apostles. The Pharisees saw this and asked His disciples why He ate with such people.

Possibly there has never been a time in all the years since those laws of God's were read when we should ponder and act upon them more than today. Many strangers are within our gates and in our schools, churches, homes or neighborhoods. School children encounter classmates who are strangers to our customs and language.

Jesus heard and told them: "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."—Matthew 9:12-13.

We all—students from the lower grades through college and all adults, too—should treat them in the Christian way. We should treat them as Christ would have done, helping them to adjust and

We are not told how these self-righteous Pharisees reacted to these words of Christ's, and if they understood His meaning.

Passing through Samaria while going to Galilee, Jesus' disciples went into a nearby city named Sychar to buy food. Christ, being weary, sat down on the curb of Jacob's well to rest. That well is still there and is visited by many tourists.

A Samaritan woman came to draw water and Christ asked her to give Him drink. She was amazed that a Jew would ask one of her country—despised by Jews—even for a drink of water, and asked Him to tell her why He did. Jesus knew her history, that she had not been a good woman. However, He said, "Whoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again; but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."—John 4:13, 14.

In the 24th chapter of Deuteronomy we are told how we should treat people who work for us. "Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates: At his day thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it, for he is poor, and setteth his heart upon it."—Deuteronomy 24:14-15.

The woman told Jesus that she knew that "the Messiah cometh, which is called Christ: when He is come He will tell us all things." Jesus said: "I that speak unto thee am He."—John 4:25-26.

Jesus "saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and He saith unto him, Follow Me. And he arose, and followed Him." In his position, collecting taxes for the Romans and hated by his fellow citizens, Matthew probably was thoroughly tired of his job. So when this splendid Man beckoned him, he gladly left his occupation and followed Christ, of whom he was a true and loyal follower all the rest of his life.

Kentucky Counts Heavily On Seasoned Players

Lions Rated 13 1/2 Points Over All-Stars Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—The All-Stars start Operation Ozone tonight. They are expected to make a daring effort to beat the Detroit Lions, champions of the National Football League.

The 25th All-Star promises to draw 70,000 spectators to Soldier Field. It will be televised and broadcast nationally by ABC starting at 8:30 p. m. EST.

The Lions rule a solid 13 1/2 point favorite to gain a 16th decision for the pros in the rivalry. The All-Stars have won seven times, the last being 30-27 over the Cleveland Browns in 1955, and have held the pro champs to two standstills.

In two other appearances in the classic the Lions have treated the All-Stars as morsels. They beat them 24-10 in 1953 and 31-6 in 1954.

With Tobin Rote and Bobby Layne giving a powerful one-two punch at quarterback, the Lions again are preparing for a feast. Probably their two busiest men will be Darris McCord and Gene Cronin, defensive ends. They are assigned to barge into the All-Stars backfield in an attempt to smear passing plans.

But don't get the idea the collegiate sensations of 1957—many of whom already are under contract to NHL clubs—are lambs being led to slaughter. They have the passers, speedy receivers and breakaway runners to make the Lions pant.

And they have Otto Graham as head coach with a staff of former pros who know what to expect.

Perhaps their offense will be leveled by a series of flat passes from King Hill of Rice or Jim Ninowski of Michigan State to such quick-footed halfbacks as Jim Pace of Michigan; Dick Christy of North Carolina; Bob Mitchell of Illinois; Phil King of Vanderbilt, and Len Lyles of Louisville.

Other targets are such ball-grasping ends as Fred Dugan of Dayton; Jim Gibbons of Iowa;

Bob Jewett of Michigan State, and Tom Shulte of East Kentucky State. The game will be played under pro rules permitting free substitution. The forecast is for fair and pleasant weather with temperatures in the 70's.

1958 Eppes Eleven Loaded With Power And Experience

Eppes High School's 1958 varsity football candidates will gather at the school field for the first time August 18 to begin drill.

There will be approximately 19 days of practice before the Bulldogs open their new grid season on September 12 with Mary Potter.

Coach Percy Daniels doesn't seem too worried about having to shape up a playing club in 19 days. In fact, he seems unusually happy. The main reason for Daniels' happiness is the return of 15 lettermen, including All-Star candidate James Harris. Harris is a four-year veteran fullback at Eppes and scored over 80 per cent of the Bulldogs' touchdowns last season as a halfback. He is being primed as a possible selection to the North Carolina Negro Athletic Association All-Stars, who play an annual Shrine bowl game at Durham.

Another reason for the grin on Daniels' face is the fact that he lost only one regular by graduation last year. Kenneth Greene, a top-flight guard, was the missing regular.

Making up for Greene's loss, however, Daniels will be able to pick from the following lettermen and a bunch of newcomers to fill his eleven posts: James Teel, Garland Allen, Woodrow Wilson, Willie Adams, Julius Murphy, Calvin Gatlin, Rufus Huggins, Virgil Lynch, Larry Hardy, Joe Tyson and the Davis Twins.

The 1958 Bulldogs will operate from the single wing and T-formation, according to Coach Daniels. The big cogs in the offensive attack will be quarterback Virgil Lynch, fullback James Harris, and a bunch of halfbacks, Woodrow Wilson, Willie Adams, Julius Murphy and Larry Hardy. Lynch is an expert passer and ball handler. Harris supplies the power and speed. The halfbacks have good breaking power.

Listed below is the 1958 Eppes football schedule:

- Sept. 12—Mary Potter, here
- Sept. 19—J. T. Barber, there
- Sept. 26—Willeston, there
- Oct. 3—Open
- Oct. 10—Ligon, here
- Oct. 17—P. W. Moore, there
- Oct. 24—Dillard, here
- Oct. 31—P. S. Jones, there

Tebbetts Quits Red Legs Post

CINCINNATI (AP)—A solemn-faced man and his wife sat in a box at Crosley Field last night and watched the Cincinnati Redlegs hit a season low in batting futility.

It was Birdie Tebbetts who earlier in the day had quit as manager of the Redlegs saying "I believe that it is better for Cincinnati baseball that someone succeed me."

Last night he watched the Redlegs lose chance after chance to get something going for the lack of a few base hits. It was the same problem he had been fighting all season. Only it was worse for Jimmy Dykes, who had taken over as acting manager.

The Redlegs got only one hit off Joey Jay in eight innings and none off Warren Spahn in one in a 3-0 victory by the Milwaukee Braves.

Tebbetts and his wife sat with Redleg general manager Gabe Paul at last night's game. Earlier, Paul had said, "I certainly would recommend him to another organization. I have never worked with a manager who was more cooperative."

Down in the Redleg clubhouse, the retiring manager also got a big boost from several of his players.

"It's a lousy shame," said pitcher Joe Nuxhall. "He's a great guy."

Outfielder Gus Bell said, "play-ers made the mistakes—who doesn't—but they (the fans) took it out on Birdie..."

A chorus of boos has greeted Tebbetts of late as the Redlegs sagged and finally dropped into last place.

Catcher Smoky Burgess said Tebbetts is "a great manager, and I mean it."

Tebbetts reportedly was being paid $35,000 to $40,000 a year. He will be paid off for the rest of this season but the 1959 portion of his contract will be canceled.

A Look At Athletics

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles concerning collegiate athletics, written by EOC Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen.

The Purpose of Athletics . . .

Most good things of life are somewhere between too much and too little. Athletics are no exception. When football and basketball begin to overshadow broad education aims—when the people of local communities and sometimes whole states become "gladiatorial mobs"—where winning is the price of the coach's job, where violation of rules and league regulations seem justified to insure victory, where players are placed on false pedestals, athletics have taken over and the ideals of education for democracy have been abandoned.

The above conditions undoubtedly do exist in various colleges and universities throughout the country. However in the vast majority of schools athletics are a benefit to the American College system. Throughout western civilization and now the whole world sports and games are being utilized to inspire youth. Organic power is developed to serve the nation in peace and war. Athletics can become the "great rehearsal" for living under law in a democratic state. Sports offer one of the best laboratories of experience in education for learning the "give and take" essential to emotional adjustment and getting along with one's fellows.

If athletics are not regulated and directed to serve sound educational objectives they have no place in the school program.

We believe the overall athletic program at East Carolina is sane and that it is being directed toward the attainment of sound educational objectives.

Power Steals Home Twice In One Game Yesterday

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Because the Detroit Tigers mistook the improbable for the impossible, Cleveland's Vic Power stands alone today as the only man in American League history to steal home twice in one game.

No one had done it in the majors in 47 years and only two National League players before that. Power hadn't stolen even one base through 106 games this season, and had managed just seven thefts in 636 games in the majors.

Yet he slipped in for Cleveland's last two runs yesterday, scooting home with the winner in the 10th inning as the Indians beat the Tigers 10-9.

Joe Tinker of the Chicago Cubs set the record by stealing home twice June 28, 1910. The only other man to do it was Larry Doyle of the old New York Giants, Sept. 18, 1911.

Tom Morgan was pitching when Power's first steal capped a five-run eighth that overcame a 7-4 lead. Frank Lary was caught by the second steal.

The Tigers were left in a third-place tie with the Boston Red Sox, who were belted 8-2 by the league-leading New York Yankees. The Chicago White Sox, 14 1/2 games behind, strengthened their hold on second by beating Kansas City 5-2 in the only other AL game.

In the National League, a joint one-hitter by Joey Jay and Warren Spahn gave the Milwaukee Braves a 3-0 victory at Cincinnati. San Francisco defeated St. Louis 4-3 and Los Angeles rapped the Chicago Cubs 7-3.

The Indians blew a 3-0 first-inning lead, falling behind when Harvey Kuenn's three-run seventh homer capped a four-run Tiger sixth. Rocky Colavito's 26th homer, his second of the game, got the Indians rolling in the eighth and the long-injured Vic Wertz added a two-run, pinch-hit homer, his first of the year, for a 7-7 tie. Power singled home the tie-breaking run and moved around on an error and wild pitch for his dash home.

The Tigers scored two in the ninth for another tie before winner Gary Bell (7-6) came on for two perfect innings of relief. Singles by Power and Russ Nixon set up Powers' payoff steal.

Johnny Kucks won his eighth for the Yanks with six innings of shutout relief. The Yankees scored three in the first off loser Dave Sisler (7-6), who went out with a bruise above the left ankle after being hit by a Tony Kubek drive that batted in the deciding run.

Luis Aparicio, who got things started with a double, lined an RBI single that capped a four-run sixth for the White Sox. Ray Moore won his ninth with a five

Red Sanders Is Dead From Heart Attack

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Death apparently from a heart attack yesterday ended the career of one of America's great football coaches, Henry (Red) Sanders of UCLA. He was 53.

Sanders, who came here from Vanderbilt in 1949 and developed UCLA Bruin teams of powerful pre-eminence, died in a second-floor room of a small hotel near the downtown area.

A blonde woman, about 30, who identified herself as Ernestine Drake, was sitting in a chair a few feet from Sanders' body when police arrived. She said she was wearing pants, shoes and socks "He complained of the heat," Miss Drake said. "He ordered two soft drinks brought to the room. We talked of football and I said I didn't follow the game. 'Football is a great game,' he said. 'You should come out this fall and see a few games.' Those were his last words."

Miss Drake said Sanders suddenly clutched his chest and rolled over on one side of the bed. She said she ran for help, and when she returned she found him on the floor.

She told a reporter she is a clothes model, born in Vienna.

"I didn't know he was a famous football coach," she said.

Miss Drake said she was introduced to Sanders by the room's registered occupant, V. T. Grimes. The elderly Grimes said he was an old friend of the coach. Grimes said he was not present when Sanders was stricken.

Sanders had no record of a heart ailment, but homicide detective R. T. Reid said a heart attack apparently caused death. An autopsy will be performed.

Sanders was a progressive, imaginative, inventive coach who had a 27-year coaching career with 102 wins, 41 defeats and 3 ties. Feted coaches across the nation followed him coach of the year in 1954. That was the year the Bruins won nine games and became UCLA's first undefeated and untied team.

UCLA was searching for a coach who could give it parity with its home-town rival, the University of Southern California, when it came upon Sanders at Vanderbilt.

He gave the Bruins nine top-flight teams and took them to the Pasadena Rose Bowl after the 1953 and 1955 seasons, but lost both games to Michigan State.

Sanders employed the single-wing attack successfully at Vanderbilt and continued it here.

Jay's Victory Pads Brave Lead

Fred Haney who manages the world champion Milwaukee Braves.

He went into the last of the ninth leading 3-0 at Cincinnati last night with young Joey Jay pitching a one-hitter. But when Joey gave up his eighth walk to the leadoff man, Haney, up to his tobacco pocket in pitching, pulled no less than 15-game winner Warren Spahn out of the bullpen for a mop-up job against the last-place Reds.

Spahn did just that, completing the one-hit shutout and padding the Braves' National League lead to six games over Pittsburgh's idle second-place Pirates.

The third-place San Francisco Giants defeated St. Louis 4-3, and Los Angeles rapped the Chicago Cubs 7-3 in the only other NL game scheduled.

In the American League, the New York Yankees belted Boston 8-2, the Chicago White Sox defeated Kansas City 5-2 and Cleveland, major leaguer in 47 years to steal home twice in one game, slipped past Detroit 10-9 in 10 innings.

Jay walked the Cincinnati lead-off man in six innings. But the Braves backed him up with two double plays. The only hit he allowed was a leadoff single by Jerry Lynch in the sixth inning.

Billy Bruton homered for the Braves off Don Newcombe in the first and Wes Covington scored on a triple and error for a 2-0 edge in the second.

The Giants cracked a 1-1 tie on Daryl Spencer's 13th home run in the seventh inning then put it away when Willie Mays homered and Orlando Cepeda hit an RBI double in a two-run eighth. Johnny Antonelli won his 13th.

Mary Grissom was touched for a single by Curt Flood, but only one run scored when Wally Moon, running from second, tripped rounding third. Grissom then retired Gene Freese, who had driven in the Cards' first two runs with doubles, on a ground ball. Billy Muffett (4-4) lost it.

Duke Snider's solo 11th home run, a 430-foot poke to dead center in the spacious Los Angeles Coliseum, gave the Dodgers a 2-2 tie in the third and Junior Gilliam's two-run single wrapped it up in the fourth. Don Drysdale, who hit the winner, but needed relief help for a 7-11 record. Johnny Briggs (4-3) was the loser.

Lenoir Reaches Finals Of Nat'l Teen-er Tourney

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—North Carolina's champion team from Lenoir and Bossier City, La. met today for the title of the 1958 VFW National Teener baseball tournament, with the Louisiana team holding an edge.

Lenoir, which won two games yesterday, including the one which eliminated the defending champions from Panama Canal Zone—had suffered one loss in the double elimination tournament. It was to Bossier City, 5-0. The Tar Heel team would have to beat its undefeated adversary twice today to win the championship.

Lenoir eliminated Struthers, Ohio, 3-1 in a quarterfinals game yesterday, then took the measure of the Canal Zone team 3-1 in an eight-inning overtime game.

Jimmy Watson struck out eight batters for Lenoir. Gary Ness 12 for Panama. The winning runs came on James Hatton's squeeze bunt and Steve Sumlin's single.

Wettlaufer Is Holding Lead

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—Ward Wettlaufer, 22-year-old Hamilton College student from Buffalo, N.Y., shot a one-under-par 69 yesterday over the Elizabeth Manor Golf and Country Club course to take the early lead in the second Eastern Amateur golf tournament.

Most of the tournament favorites were scheduled to play their first qualifying round today. By tomorrow afternoon, all of the field of some 275 golfers will have played 36 holes of medal competition. Lee Brown of Norfolk was second yesterday with a 74, followed by George R. (Buddy) Guy of Virginia Beach with a 75 and John West Brook of Norfolk and Jim Schubeck of Detroit, Mich., each with 76.

ONE OF NOMINEES

AYDEN—Stuart Tripp, coach at Ayden High School, is one of three nominees to be voted on as coach of the Eastern All Star basketball team next year when the East clashes with the West.

Danville's Hurlers Responsible For It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danville holds a one and one-half game lead in the Carolina League thanks to some fine performances by its pitching staff.

The Leafs got their third straight shutout last night as Andy Yetko blanked Wilson 5-0. Danville pitchers have now hurled 31 consecutive scoreless innings.

Winston-Salem battered out a 13-8 victory over Greensboro, erstwhile league leaders and now in second place.

Third-place High Point-Thomasville split a doubleheader with Raleigh. After the Caps won 5-2 in the opener, the Hi-Toms got a 10-7 triumph in the finale.

Burlington beat Durham twice, 2-1 and 7-5, to run its current victory string to nine. The Indians are fourth in league standings.

Yetko held Wilson to two hits for his 14th win against seven losses. Two unearned runs, along with seven hits off Wilson hurler Al Barth, made up the Danville scoring.

Winston-Salem amassed 19 hits in a heavy attack on Greensboro. Six runs in the first inning put the Red Birds in command.

Jack Swift, who started the first game for the Hi-Toms, played a relief role in the second contest. His seven-inning relief work and a big seven-run first inning gave the Hi-Toms their split.

Gaines tonight: Wilson at Danville, Greensboro at Winston-Salem, Hi-Toms at Raleigh, and Burlington at Durham.

Board Reversing A Day Like Any Day, In The Recession Policy Year 2,008...Inches Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board, showing deepening concern over the threat of inflation, has reversed its recession policy and moved toward tightening the money supply.

The change in direction — the first since last November—came with the announcement that effective today the discount rate at the San Francisco Reserve Bank would go up from 1 1/2 per cent to 2 per cent.

The discount rate represents the interest charged Federal Reserve member banks borrowing money from the reserve system. A boost in discount rates normally goes hand in hand with a general increase in interest charges.

Thus, the reserve board action yesterday held broad implications for anyone planning to go into debt to buy a factory, an automobile or a living room rug.

The general feeling in financial circles was that only a worsening of the economic picture could make it cheaper to borrow money.

With the discount rate boost taking effect in San Francisco, similar increases by the other 11 reserve banks are expected to follow, although there may be some time lag.

A board spokesman said the decision to switch policy direction was influenced in part by an increase in inflation sentiment which has been reflected in a rising stock market. He said another factor was the apparent bottoming out of the recession. The spokesman also noted recent upward moves in some interest rates.

Directors of the San Francisco bank initiated the discount rate action there, the board spokesman said.

In San Francisco, Reserve Bank President Herman N. Mangels said the prime factor in the directors' decision was "a fear of a continuance or even an accentuation of inflationary pressures."

A year ago — before the recession got a foothold — discount rates reached a peak of 3 1/2 per cent. Last November the reserve board abandoned its tight money policy and began easing the money supply to combat the growing recession. In four successive steps, the discount rate was lowered until it reached 1 1/2 per cent last April.

Although the reserve board's new action was in the direction of tighter money, it can't be said the board is putting any real squeeze on credit. The system's member banks have idle reserves of nearly half a billion dollars, which means they have available plenty of money for lending.

The effects of the action are thus expected to be largely psychological, affecting the sentiment of both borrowers and lenders. Any change in sentiment can have real effect, however, in the prices of stocks and bonds.

News of the board decision had an immediate impact on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange. It brought a flurry of selling and increased volume.

It was a day like all other days. Some history was made, some footnotes were added. Some people died, some were born, humanity inched forward.

In Moscow, the Linsky government had won complete control and began downgrading the Malinovsky government, which had downgraded the Shmolaky government, which long before had downgraded the Khrushchev government for making a cult out of world travel.

In the United States, inflation had finally been halted and once more a housewife could buy a loaf of white bread for $2.89.

Her husband, the average American, set out for the office in a car 36 feet long, 18 inches high. He drove lying down, steering with his feet, his eyes on a small TV screen in the ceiling.

Air experts predicted that in the future helicopters, rather than autos, would be commonplace.

It was, as usual, a busy day in Washington. The President of the United States, a former physicist, told his semiannual press conference: "E plus M2 minus W equals NG12." Early English translation: "I'm going to Saturn for the weekend."

The State Department said it was still hopeful of obtaining recognition from the government in Dallas.

An eight-star general, chairman of the Consolidated Chiefs of the Combined Chiefs of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified that an

Four Marines Face Trial Next Week For Break-Ins

Four Cherry Point Marines charged with a series of break-ins in Greenville are scheduled for trial next week in a mixed term of Pitt County Superior Court.

The Marines, David Nagle, Donald Gary Robar, Larry George Groce and C. E. Wiley, will be tried before Judge Clifton L. Moore of Burgaw who will preside at next week's term of court and at a one-week term beginning August 25. Nagle, Robar, and Groce who have several first-degree burglary charges in the counts against them, have been held in Central Prison in Raleigh since true bills were returned in June by the Pitt County Grand Jury.

Nagle, first of the Marines to be arrested, will face seven first-degree burglary charges, one second-degree burglary charge and six charges of attempted burglary. Groce will be tried on four first-degree counts, one second-degree count and five attempted burglary charges. Robar has been charged in three first-degree cases and two attempted burglary cases.

Wiley, who has been free under bond since June, will be tried on two charges of attempted burglary. The Marines will be represented by three court-appointed attorneys, M. E. Cavendish, J. W. H. Roberts and Clifton W. Everett, all of Greenville.

Also scheduled for trial in next week's term are 23 other cases. The Grand Jury will also meet during the term to consider bills of indictment presented by Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, Jr., and to have nine new members named. Fifty-five jurors have been summoned for service during the term. They include:

She leaves 10 children, 55 grandchildren, 78 great grandchildren and four great great grandchildren. Two Convicted In Slaying Case

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP)—The strange murder case of Charles H. Drake Sr. has been cleared up more than two years after the 60-year-old Jefferson merchant was shot to death during a robbery.

Here's what happened in Superior Court yesterday: 1. A. D. Allen Jr., a 37-year-old bootlegger who formerly lived in Winder, Ga., was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment as an accomplice in the Drake death.

2. Charles Paul (Rocky) Rothschild, 33-year-old former policeman from Cairo, Ill., entered a plea of guilty to the murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

3. James Fulton Foster, 40-year-old house painter from Greer, S.C., was acquitted by directed verdict and walked from the court room a free man. He twice had been sentenced to death in the Drake slaying.

Allen, who now is serving a five-year liquor sentence in the Atlanta federal prison, was convicted by a Jackson County Superior Court jury after it deliberated 21 hours and 50 minutes.

Allen and his attorney filed a motion for a new trial and Judge Maylon B. Clinkscales set a hearing on the motion for Dec. 18.

Immediately after court adjourned, Allen was taken back to the Atlanta prison and Rothschild was returned to the South Carolina State Penitentiary.

Gen. Doolittle On Space Board

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Gen. James H. Doolittle has been named board chairman of Space Technology Laboratories, a firm devoted to the study of missile and space problems.

The laboratories, now a division of Ramo-Wooldrige Corp., will become a separate corporation in the near future, and Doolittle will assume his new position Jan. 1.

The famed flying hero, who led the first bombing raid on Tokyo during World War II, will be in charge of the largest concentration of scientists in the nation working exclusively on missiles and space technology, Ramo-Wooldrige said.

Reminds Law On Hiring Children

RALEIGH (AP)—State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane warned today that federal regulations place a clearly defined ban on the employment of most children under 16 in tobacco warehouses.

Crane said, "The regulations allow restricted work in only three warehouse occupations for 14 and 15 year olds. These are ticket or tag boy water boy and sweeper."

Special regulations prohibit the employment of 14 and 15 year olds for more than eight hours daily and 40 hours weekly when school is not in session, he added. Stricter hours apply during school terms.

To Push Effort In School Case

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—The law firm representing a group of Craven County Negroes is planning more legal moves in an effort to crack racial bars at Havelock High School.

The Craven County Board of Education last week turned down applications of 14 Negro students to attend the white Havelock school. In addition, the board asked Craven Superior Court for a declaratory judgment which would have the effect of requiring parents of the children to appear before the board before making any appeal to the courts.

Samuel Mitchell of Raleigh, a member of the law firm representing the group, said yesterday the board's action is under study. Some steps on behalf of the Negroes may be taken next week.

Word of the board's decision was not made public until yesterday.

Craven Schools Supt. R. L. Pugh cited reasons for the rejection. He said the applications did not comply with existing regulations and no evidence was presented to change school assignments previously made.

Four Negro students who had applied for admission to the Havelock school were granted their request that action on their applications be postponed.

The students involved live in eastern Craven County, where there is no Negro high school. They have attended a Beaufort school in neighboring Carteret County in the past.

MEMORANDUM

STATE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY
GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

TO: Pitt County tobacco growers.
FROM: J. T. Marston, Jr.
SUBJECT: Greenville Tobacco Market.

The 1958 Greenville Tobacco Market should be one of the best we have ever known. A recent survey by ASC of U. S. Department of Agriculture experts shows there is not a pound of discounted tobacco grown in Pitt — though the county is producing more cigarette tobacco than any in the nation.

These facts have impressed the domestic and export companies and every one will have their buyers on the Greenville market. Prices should be as high, if not higher, than on any market in the country.

The betterment of the Greenville market will mean a great deal to tobacco growers in Pitt and vicinity. We have more high grade tobacco than any other section; and we have the best market. Sell your tobacco in Greenville and the whole section will prosper.

CHAPTER 16

Zack himself dug his barbecue pit and went to search for exactly the wood he wanted. He must have pined to give his fire life, oak for endurance, hickory for glowing coals, and mulberry to impart a final magic touch found in no other wood. But he could not simply cut the first trees he ran across; if the wood was too green it merely smoldered and if too dry it scorched the outside of the meat without penetrating to the bone and tender marrow.

At sunset Zack started his fire using pine as a base. He waited until it blazed and then added hickory and oak, laid alternately. Then he placed nine carefully selected boulders on top of the blaze. When his roaring fire subsided to red-hot coals, Zack banked the coals with ashes. Finally he made his grill from the tough trunks of young and green oak trees and went to bed.

At dawn Zack was up at dawn, and in the woods to gather herbs; mint for tang, the bitter root of jink-in-the-pulpit to be used sparingly for strength, and wintergreen for flavor. According to the use for which it was intended, each had to be young and tender or old and woody.

He laid the herbs on a slab of bark, and, being careful not to crush them, covered them with another slab and tested the temperature over the banked coals with the palm of his hand. It was as it should be. Zack laid his grill over the pit and arranged upon it four shanks and three lambs. Then he squatted beside the pile of mulberry chunks. He laid a chunk on the fire, watched it flare and die into ashes, and laid on another. When the pile of mulberry chunks was exactly half gone, he garnished each of the carcasses with wintergreen leaves.

Well came from the big house with containers of salt and pepper and parcels of assorted spices. She sniffed hungrily.

"Wheeh's Mistah Colin?" Zack asked her.

"Gone rousse out eve'y man, woman, an' chile what lives heabouts an' ask em all to come to go back. That Cloe an' Emma," borrowed from Quall Wings for the occasion, "they do know what side of the stove's the hot 'un."

"He ridin' Nancy?"

"Yeah."

As Colin Campbell approached the Stewart clearing, six-year-old Jeffrey, accompanied by the hound puppy, came running. "Uncle Colin! Uncle Colin!"

Colin halted Nancy, waited for the boy to draw alongside, gave him a hand up, and steadied him in the saddle. Jeffrey turned a happy face, Ann's face, to Colin.

"Some day I'll have a horse just like this."

"I'm very sure of it."

With the hound puppy frolicking beside them, Colin hugged the youngster lightly. He had, he thought wondrously, lived most of his life in a shell. He thought he had known the common people, but he had known from the height of the judge's bench only those who appeared in Denbury court. Not until he came to live in the mountains had there been any genuine understanding.

Without knowing it, he had shared the mobbishness of the planter class. Without ever thinking about what the element might be, he had assumed there was some mysterious trait which set most of humanity apart from himself. Now he knew that, given equal opportunities, Ling's sons and all the other children on Hobbs Creek would be the equal of all children everywhere.

They reached the house and Jeffrey slid to the ground.

"Good morning, Ann. I've come with an invitation. Will you all—the whole family—come to a housewarming tonight? The last curtain has been hung and Zack, Neil, Dab, Elva and I are all bursting with pride. We want all the neighbors to join in our pleasure."

"Of course, we'd love to come. Do you want Father, too?"

"If you don't think it would bring him pain."

"I have a feeling that seeing the house lived in, cared for and full of people, might help to erase the memory of it that he carries with him."

"Oh, I hope so. Bring him, by all means."

"I'm bursting with curiosity. I've kept away so that when it was all finished it would all be a complete surprise. I haven't even let Ling describe any of it to me—not that describing carpets and sofas is his strong point."

"Is that why you've kept away?"

Colin asked. "I've wondered."

Their eyes met with sudden intensity. "Yes, that's why," Ann said falteringly.

Colin knew that if he did not leave this minute, he would blurt out everything to her—that he loved her, that he longed for the sight of her and that somehow he knew she loved him too.

He turned abruptly, saying, "I must go invite the Hamilins. See you tonight! Six o'clock!"

After inviting the Hamilins, Garisons, Tylers, Doyles and Murdock's, Colin rode home. He stopped to chat a moment with Zack and to sniff the aroma from the barbecue rack. "Master and Miz Betsie done come," Zack told him.

"Good!" Colin said and bounded into the house.

He found Betsie looking about her admiringly in the dining-room. The long table was set for forty guests with the finest silver and the most delicate china. On either side were smaller tables as elegantly appointed. He took Betsie by surprise as she was in the act of picking up a spoon and giving it close scrutiny.

"After my silver, eh?" Colin teased.

Betsie turned to face him, laughing. "Caught in the act! Oh, Colin, this place is heavenly. The setting, the view, the house, the way you've arranged it—everything! Even your father is terribly impressed."

"Where is he?"

"He's upstairs lying down. The trip on horseback was too much for him, though of course he wouldn't hear of ordering the carriage."

"I want to take you on a real tour of inspection, but first tell me what news you have from Macklyn."

"The convention goes on and on, waiting for some kind of assurance from Washington. Most of the delegates are against secession but they don't want to take a stand without obtaining some guarantees for the Confederacy."

"The state is trying to mediate then, to prevent the possibility of war?"

"Yes, but I'm far from sure that the conditions they ask will be met by the federal government. Macklyn is confident they will. Now, show me your house."

"With pleasure!"

As they strolled from room to room Colin gave Betsie something of the history of the house. He ended by explaining Enos Pollard's condition. "Do me a favor—keep an eye on him. It's going to be something of a shock to him."

"What is Ann's husband like?" Betsie asked.

"Husband? You mean Ling?"

"Yes."

"He is goodheartedness itself and the best woodsman I ever saw in my life. But he is something of an overgrown boy."

"Is she happy with him?"

"Is she—who—Betsie, what is the reason for these questions?"

Betsie looked at him soberly. "You don't fool your Aunt Betsie for one minute, Colin. You are in love with this girl, Ann. Heaven help you!"

A declaration of war and a pledge of love bring 'The Land Is Bright' to a stirring climax tomorrow.

Tobacco Prices 'None Too High'

RALEIGH (AP)—A flue-cured tobacco leader says prices farmers are receiving this season are averaged only 100 per cent of parity, the standard worked out under government farm programs to represent a fair return to the farmer.

"In view of all the sacrifices that growers have made in the past few years, and in view of the unprecedented net profits received by manufacturers, I feel that growers are entitled to a good market for this crop," Royster declared.

The Henderson warehouseman also pointed to a shift in buying patterns. Domestic buyers are returning to "smoking tobacco" types, he explained, leaving for export buyers the heavier grades they have traditionally preferred.

The change has resulted from domestic manufacturers "putting better tobacco in their filter-tip cigarettes," Royster asserted.

"And it's a very healthy thing for everybody concerned," he added.

There is no reason, Royster continued, why "export dealers can't come in and buy all the tobacco they need at a reasonable price."

The high percentage of tobacco around 12 to 15 per cent, going under the government price support program from sales on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt is a disturbing factor, Royster said. Weather conditions in some areas of the belt may be responsible, he added.

Atomic Accidents Will Need Planning Ahead

RALEIGH (AP)—Law enforcement officers, health officials and plain citizens must be prepared for the atomic age—including the possibility of accidents involving radioactive materials.

Steps to take in the event of such accidents were outlined yesterday by an Atomic Energy Commission expert. At the same time, State Health Officer Roy Norton said legislation dealing with handling atomic energy and nuclear radiation is being prepared for the 1959 General Assembly.

The subject of radiation safety was explored at a meeting at North Carolina State College, attended by press, radio and television representatives, plus police officers and public health officials. W. D. Carmichael Jr. of Chapel Hill, chairman of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Nuclear Energy, arranged the session.

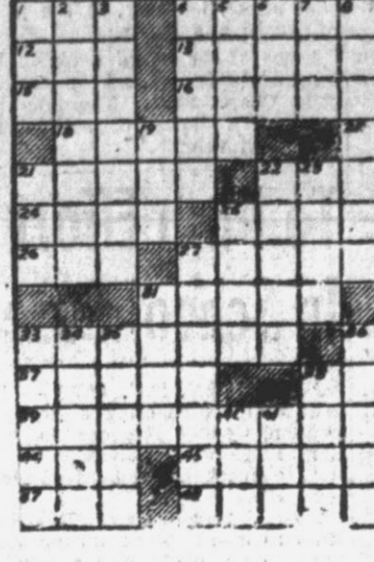

State civil defense director Edward F. Griffin announced that radiation detection instruments supplied by federal civil defense will be placed in 196 North Carolina high schools before Sept. 1. At least one set will be in each of the 100 counties, with county health directors responsible for their use, he explained.

John L. Sullivan, director of the inspection division at the AEC's Savannah River Plant, said ordinary citizens should be prepared to lend a hand in the event of a radiation accident. Despite strict precautions, he warned, such accidents are possible.

One of the first things to do, he said, would be to notify the Savannah River Plant. Teams of experts are ready around the clock to give medical and techni-

Film Version Is Worrying Her

HONG KONG (AP)—The real-life heroine of Harold Bergman's latest film today denounced 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. as "a bunch of liars."

"I don't know what those words they might have put in Harold Bergman's mouth—things which I would never have said," said Gladys Aylward, a substitute, over-60 missionary whose life in China is the subject of the 20th Century-Fox movie "The Son of the Sixth Happiness."

Miss Bergman plans Miss Aylward in the movie, which has not been released yet.

A spokesman for the film company denied yesterday that the film had been made without consulting Miss Aylward. He maintained she was very enthusiastic about the picture and that it would help her missionary work.

But Miss Aylward, who recently arrived in Hong Kong from Formosa, said Mark Robson, the producer of the film, had not sent her a script as he promised.

"I believe they are doing something in the film which they know I won't like, so they have not sent me the script. I know nothing about the film," she declared.

"These people—Fox—have been hounding me for months and they won't tell me anything. I have suffered under the Communists and Japanese, but I have never suffered so much pain as over this picture."

Short-Circuited, Seven Cows Dead

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) Donald Draught, 73, has electric milking machines on his nearby farm. But he milked a cow by the old-fashioned hand method yesterday and it probably saved his life.

One of the machines short-circuited and killed a cow. The cow fell over dead on the machine and set off a chain reaction through metal stanchions.

Draught was thrown away from the cow he was milking and was able to turn off the eurrent before a fire started.

But the short circuit had already done its damage. Seven cows lay dead in the barn. Draught said their value was $1,500.

Canadians Have New Complaint

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadians have a new gripe against their neighbor to the south — the United States is restricting travel in Canada's Northern defense areas.

Elvin Hamilton, minister for Northern Affairs, told Parliament last night that U.S. officials have held up approval for several months for minor Canadian officials to visit some arctic areas.

It is a matter of "national chagrin" that American permission is required to travel around the U.S.-operated Distant Early Warning radar line that warns of planes coming from the Arctic or the Soviet Union, Hamilton said.

He said he has "taken up the matter with our U.S. colleagues and have had a very friendly and favorable response." A Defense Department spokesman in Washington declined comment.

Lester B. Pearson, leader of the opposition Liberal party and former foreign secretary, said there had been no difficulty in visiting any U.S.-controlled station in Canada when the Liberals were in power. Hamilton said Cabinet ministers had no trouble but lesser officials and prospective workmen in the area did.

Hamilton reported one U.S. official declared Washington does not recognize Canadian ownership of arctic islands which Canada does not occupy. Many of the islands north of the Canadian mainland are not populated.

Canada should occupy and use this area, Hamilton said. Pearson added, "We must establish beyond doubt our claim to our arctic territory," because of both Soviet and U.S. military interest in the polar regions.

Gentle Approach For Overtimers

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — City police are using the gentle approach on motorists parked overtime at meters.

Chief Blair Overton has ordered his men to scout around for the driver and warn him rather than write out a ticket at once. He points out the purpose of the police is to serve the public, not to make money.

His bill adds that "The vermin and flea situation is worse than that inflicted upon the Egyptians

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was lower today in a mild reaction to a move toward higher prices by the Federal Reserve Board.

Key stocks were down fractions to more than a point in the early afternoon. Chemicals were the weakest spot with several issues off a point or so.

Trading was moderately active. The only rush came at the start when the tape was late briefly in a flurry of selling.

After the opening decline stocks held pretty close to those levels in a rather listless performance.

Small losses dotted all key groups. Even the special situations made only limited headway.

Schering, Union Oil of California and Lorillard were up fractions. Schering has been prominent in the competition for new drugs. Union Oil, which rose 1 1/2 yesterday, has been mentioned in published reports as talking over a possible deal with Gulf Oil. Gulf was off a shade.

Kennecott got a boost in early afternoon when the House Rules Committee cleared a minerals subsidy program for floor action. The stock erased a small loss and rose a major fraction.

U.S. Gypsum declined more than 2. Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Boeing and American Telephone & Telegraph 1 or so.

American Motors again was active, down a fraction.

Off 1/2 or so were Jones & Laughlin, Goodyear, Raytheon, Consolidated Edison, American Cyanamid, General Electric, Loew's, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and United Air Lines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 90 cents at 184.60. Industrials were down $1.40, rails 60 cents and utilities were down $1.40, rails 60 cents and utilities 40 cents.

Tar Pot Blaze Brings Firemen

A tar pot caught fire in an alley beside the Pitt Theatre late this morning and firemen were called to extinguish the blaze.

The pot was reported owned by E. L. Garris whose work crew repaired the roof of Dixie Lunch. The call came around 11:30.

Around the same time an alarm was sounded from Export Leaf Tobacco Co. on Tenth St. where a sprinkler head on the fire extinguishing system broke loose. There was no damage.

There were calls to Drums Hatchery at West End Circle and Busy Bee Cafe on Grande Ave. early this morning when electric motors shorted. Damage was slight.

Yesterday afternoon around 2 o'clock firemen were called to the M. K. Porter farm at Pottertown where a tobacco barn and 800 sacks of tobacco were destroyed by fire.

There was some insurance on the loss, firemen reported.

Operator of the farm is A. J. Paramore.

Jordanian Soldiers And Police Search For Arms

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Police and soldiers searched the two largest Palestine refugee camps in Amman today, looking for arms in these tinderboxes of opposition to King Hussein's government.

A top Jordanian army officer said 140 persons were taken into custody for questioning. About 15 of them had Communist leaflets, he reported. Police sources said blasting powder and ammunition was found in one camp.

The searches were carried out under a curfew imposed on the two camps before dawn. By noon the police and soldiers had completed their raids and the curfew was lifted.

The two camps contain about 50,000 refugees out of 250,000 persons in Amman. The other 25 U.N. relief agency camps in Jordan, housing about 450,000 refugees, were not affected.

The clampdown opened the Moslem sabbath, a day of possible trouble because it brings emotional, easily inflamed crowds into the streets. Another 500 to 800 security troops were added last night to the already heavy military guard in Amman.

Rumors rocketed through the Jordanian capital. One said that antiroyalist riots might occur today. Another said an attempted coup was frustrated yesterday.

A top Jordanian source denied an Israeli report that about a dozen top Jordanian officers were arrested yesterday in the Nabulus area of Jordan-held Palestine for plotting a coup. A number of officers were arrested last month for plotting against Hussein.

Except for the presence of spike-helmed police and troops, downtown Amman started the day quietly with appearances normal. In addition to the British-trained troops of the Jordanian army, formerly the Arab Legion, there are more than 3,000 British soldiers in Jordan to offer Hussein whatever protection possible against foreign interference and domestic enemies.

The refugees have been in camps since the new state of Israel was formed 10 years ago. Most of the half-million refugees in Jordan live on U.N. relief. They have tended to follow the brand of violently anti-Israeli Arab nationalism preached by President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, who has issued veiled calls for Hussein's assassination.

NEW YORK (AP) — Science has made a date with that mysterious lady, the moon. But will it be able to keep it?

As early as next Sunday, scientific marksmen hope to set off the first moonbound rocket. But they will consider themselves lucky indeed if they bring off a rendezvous.

Here are some of the problems they must solve:

The moon is at least 220,000 miles out in space. But scientists must aim at any empty point

Islands Expect Warning About Hurricane Cleo

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hurricane warnings may be raised in the Leeward and northern Windward Islands this afternoon.

The San Juan Weather Bureau issued a 9:50 a.m. bulletin on Hurricane Cleo placing its position about 625 miles east of Martinique in the French Antilles. It is moving west-northwest at about 15 miles an hour.

The hurricane, carrying top winds of 145 m.p.h., was described as dangerous and a threat to the Leeward and Windward area.

Hurricane watch was in effect for the Windward and Leeward Islands but the Weather Bureau advised that persons in the area should keep in touch with latest advisories and bulletins in case the hurricane watch is changed to hurricane warning.

Highest winds Cleo were estimated at 145 m.p.h. near the center. Hurricane force winds extended 75 miles to the north of the center and 50 miles to the south.

The Weather Bureau said the hurricane is expected to maintain its present intensity and increase slightly in size during the next 12 hours.

"This is a severe hurricane," the bureau said.

At the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral on Florida's east coast, Cleo was seen as no threat to the Air Force's attempt to launch a moon rocket, scheduled for Sunday morning.

Plans No Inquest Into Two Deaths

Two elderly Negro women died here yesterday, Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse reports.

Coroner Rouse identified the two to be Agnes Jones Woodard of 804 Vanderbilt Drive and Martha Cummings of 112-B Roosevelt Avenue. Both died at their homes.

Death was due to natural causes, the Coroner said. No inquests will be held.

Mrs. Carroll Is Civitan Speaker

Mrs. Ellen Carroll, supervisor of schools for the Greenville City Board of Education, was guest speaker last night at the regular meeting of the Greenville Civitan Club.

Mrs. Carroll discussed the city school system's special program for trainable mentally retarded children. She described entrance requirements, academic programming, and financial operation of the school, including assistance received from the State Department of Public Instruction. She pointed out that while state aid is available, the school depends largely on local assistance programs for continued operation.

The supervisor also said the school will have 15 students this year, an increase of three over the 1957-1958 total. This year's enrollment will be the largest in the school's three years of operation.

Members of the club pledged their support of the school and will assist in its operation with donations of funds, supplies, a club spokesman said.

Eventually regular sales are expected to be held in the new building at the fairgrounds, according to Goodman.

REASON TO BE HAPPY—Mr. and Mrs. John Penneck bestow kisses on daughter, Marijke, 17, (center) after her arrival from the Netherlands at Idlewild Airport in New York. The Pennocks hadn't seen the girl for 17 months and were doubly happy since she made a last minute switch in Amsterdam to another plane from the ill-fated KLM Dutch airliner which crashed into the Atlantic. Philmont Ranch Trippers Hold Reunion Gathering

First reunion of the East Carolina Council Explorer Expedition of 1958 to the Philmont Ranch in New Mexico was held in Greenville Wednesday evening when 44 of the 50 boys on the trip assembled to recall highlights of their recent journey.

The program of the evening included talks by leaders of the expedition, exchange of snapshots, and a color motion picture of the 26-day cross-country tour. Parents of the Explorer Scouts were guests at a steak dinner served in the East Carolina College cafeteria preceding the program.

Under the direction of Pitt District Field Executive Carl Knott, director of the expedition, the highlights of the trip were narrated by Wilbur Ormond Jr., of Ayden; John Crow of Morehead City; and Bennett Williams of Ahsokie.

Capt. Charles Dyer of Jacksonville, N. C., one of the directors of the expedition, narrated the film which was a travelogue of the trip from Greenville to Philmont Ranch and return, including scenic points in the area where the Scouts camped and hiked.

Scout Executive Knott announced that plans have been set up for the 1959 Philmont Expedition and that two reservations have been received for next year's trek.

Several of the parents present spoke their appreciation of the Scouting program and the Explorer project, including the recent Philmont Expedition. The guests were welcomed to the campus by James Butler, EOC assistant director of public relations and fundations, who also pointed to service the Explorers may render the East Carolina Council in assistance to the public information committee.

Combined damage to both cars was estimated at $275, police said.
