Tar River Claims Fisherman's Life Here On Saturday

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor. A fisherman who fell from a boat into the Tar, slipped from the grasp of a friend trying to save him and drowned in the rapidly moving river Saturday. The dead man was identified by police as Lee Taylor, 42-year-old Negro. He lived on Side St. and was employed on a construction job at East Carolina College. The accident occurred at the foot of Reide St. within the city. Greenville Rescue Squad members and equipment were called to the scene around 12:15 to make a search. Using dragging equipment the squad members located the drowned man's body around 1:20 p.m. It was a short distance down stream from the spot where Taylor fell overboard. The victim had been fishing Saturday morning with two companions, Clemons Sanders, 32 of 803 Reide St. and Fred Barfield who lives on Reide St. Both are Negro. Sanders said the trio was bringing the boat in to the landing at the foot of Reide St. and Taylor "stood up ready to get out." "He fell out backward," the companion said. Sanders, who stated he was in the Navy 13 years and a qualified life guard, dived in after Taylor and managed to reach him. "He was fighting me and I had to turn him loose," he continued. Taylor disappeared in the waters and Sanders said he and Barfield searched for Taylor for some time. Then they called the rescue squad. A large crowd gathered along the river bank as rescue squad members launched their metal boat in the water to begin the search. The squad members trolled along the edge of the river in search of the body. The stream was muddy and moving rapidly as a result of a heavy down pour which fell here and up stream the night before. Five rescue squad members participated in the search. They were Paul Adams, Bill Ford, Claude Christopher, Bob Harrington and C. L. Perkins. Dets. R. T. Rogerson and W. E. Peterson investigated. Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said this morning Taylor's death appeared to be "accidental drowning." No inquest is to be held, the coroner stated.

Grand Jurymen Reorganized

The first of two weeks of Superior Court were opened this morning under Judge Clifton L. Moore of Burgaw. Action this morning included semi-annual reorganization of the Pitt County Grand Jury and disposal of several civil actions. Criminal cases are slated for the remainder of the court week which is calendared to continue through Wednesday. In the reorganization of the Grand Jury this morning, E. O. Parkinson Jr. of Greenville was named foreman to succeed F. H. Worley, one of nine Grand Jurymen who were rotated off the jury after completing a year's service. New Grand Jurymen picked this morning include E. L. Nobles, Hubert M. Wainwright, Ira J. McGilobon, J. W. Clark Jr., Henry Berryman, Jamie Dail, D. A. Blue, H. O. Baldrice and John Clark Noble. Included in the criminal cases which are calendared for trial this week are those involving four Cherry Point Marines in a series of break-ins in Greenville. The Marines, David Nagle, Donald Gary Robar, Larry George Groce and C. E. Wiley. Nagle, Robar and Groce are all charged on several first-degree burglary counts which are scheduled to be heard tomorrow. In a veto message to the House Eisenhower said the company had a fixed price agreement with the Navy and that the government should not be held responsible for "a succession of maritime accidents which occasioned losses and expenditures considerably beyond the price the government was committed to pay." "Every negotiated or fixed-price contract represents a risk voluntarily assumed, presumably for the purpose of profit. This is the rule traditionally associated with our free enterprise economy. It seems to me that to depart from it would tend inevitably to bad practices and destruction of the advantages of competitive bidding," he added.

Two Mothers Attempt Desegregate All Schools

DURHAM (AP) — Can two Negro mothers in Durham force North Carolina to desegregate its public schools in every city, town, hamlet and county in the state? That is the avowed purpose of their suit, filed here against both the Durham city and North Carolina boards of education. They ask that their daughters be admitted to white schools here and that racial segregation in the state's public schools be permanently ended. Judge Edwin Stanley of U.S. Middle District Court, who has been on the federal bench since last October, will meet in court here Wednesday with attorneys for both sides. They will try to decide the basic issues of the case and set a trial date. School boards of three other North Carolina cities — Greens-

First Moon Rocket Blows Up; New Effort Scheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The nation's first moon rocket shattered into bits 77 seconds after launching yesterday. Even before this initial strike at the moon a second attempt had been ordered. The follow-up Air Force lunar probe attempts is expected during a three-day period starting Sept. 14. There was a distinct possibility that the Soviets might attempt to beat the new U. S. deadline by one day. Plans for another moon rocket try were disclosed as the Air Force began fishing the explosion-torn debris of its first lunar vehicle out of the Atlantic. Divers descended into 60 feet of water some 10 miles northeast of the cape and came up with sections of the metal skin of the Thor missile that was the first stage of the moon rocket. The two upper stages—both borrowed from the Navy Vanguard program—continued onward an undetermined distance after the explosion. It was not expected that that part of the wreckage would be recovered. Preliminary analysis indicated that the explosion occurred in the engine compartment of the first of the three rocket stages. Maj. Gen. Bernard Schriever, chief of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, told a news conference that while it might take a week to pinpoint the trouble definitely, a quick look at the data indicated a random failure. A leak in or rupture of one of the liquid oxygen or fuel lines might have touched off the explosion, he said. Schriever and Roy W. Johnson, head of the Defense Department's space program, told newsmen two hours after the blowup that they were disappointed but not discouraged by the failure. Johnson, director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, said the malfunctioning of any of 300,000 parts could make the missile do what this one did. "We'll keep trying and the odds will get better as we go along." This was the first of five lunar probe attempts ordered for this year, three by the Air Force and two by the Army. The rocket contained equipment to transmit pictures of the moon back to earth. The relative positions of earth and moon are most favorable for moon rocket launching from any site only three or four consecutive days each month. Because of the 2 1/2 days required to travel the 250,000 miles from earth to moon, the rocket must be aimed at a theoretical point far ahead of the moon. At 7:18 a.m. the base of the rocket suddenly spouted yellow flame. Steam billowed out in a rolling cloud, and the 55-ton missile roared upward—straight and steady. The plan called for the Thor Rocketdyne engine to produce its 150,000 pounds of thrust for a burning time of 137 seconds. Then the spent hull would drop away and the Aerojet-General engine of the Vanguard second stage would take over. The missile climbed to about 50,000 feet, angling over very slightly toward the northeast. Then there was a puff of smoke, a tongue of flame—and a long continued streak of a vapor trail northeastward. Twenty minutes after the missile vanished, the Air Force announced that it had exploded after only 77 seconds of flight. Neither of the upper stages of the rocket had time to achieve ignition. Nevertheless, the missile payload raced on and upward, sending back radio signals for more than 200 seconds after launching time. In Washington, Lt. Gen. Roscoe Wilson, Air Force deputy chief of staff for research and development, predicted that another U. S. moon rocket attempt would be made Sept. 14. Wilson said the Soviet Union might try launching Sept. 13 because, in view of its location, it would have a chance for a moon shot one day before this country does. Wilson said he believed the Soviets already had made one or two unsuccessful efforts to reach the moon. The Chinese Communists reportedly told the Soviets they need ballistic missiles and antimissile defenses because of the presence of U. S. and Nationalist forces on Formosa. The Times said the type of missiles the Soviet Union agreed to supply is not known. "Plans are reported to be working out to channel a major part of the Soviet bloc's economic assistance through Communist China," the dispatch said, apparently to increase Chinese prestige in the area. The Times said Warsaw reports were that the Soviet and Chinese technicians already are working on launching a satellite.

Missing Uncle Of 'Human Torch' Surrenders To Law

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Herman Kierdorf, former Teamster Union official sought for two weeks in the fire death of his unionist nephew, gave himself up last night. He said: "I have nothing to hide." Other than that, his most frequent remark in interviews with police and newsmen today was "No comment." The 68-year-old ex-convict and one time business agent for a Teamsters local, surrendered to the authorities at a drive-in restaurant by prearrangement. "I'm happy to have it over with," he said. "I'd like to cooperate, but being innocent, I don't think I could be connected." "I'm happy to have it over with," he said. "I'd like to cooperate, but being innocent, I don't think I could be connected." Kierdorf, who vanished Aug. 4, refused to say where he had hidden. The balding Herman was sought on a warrant charging him with possession of a gun with silencer. He vanished the same day his nephew, Frank Kierdorf, 56, stumbled into a Pontiac hospital with burns over 65 per cent of his body. Frank died four days later. Police believe Frank, a Flint Teamsters business agent, was burned while setting fire to a Flint dry cleaning shop. Earlier, Michigan Atty. Gen. Paul Adams called the missing Herman the key to the mystery. "But today, Adams said he had no immediate intention of filing a charge against Herman in connection with the dry cleaning shop fire. Frank Kierdorf told police before he died that he had been burned deliberately by two men. But police said their investigation disproved his story. Herman insisted Frank, an ex-convict like himself, did not torch himself, accidentally or otherwise. "Why should Frank set that place on fire as an arson job?" he asked. "I just don't believe Frank would do a thing like that." Clutching a big cigar and wearing an Ivy League cap, Herman gave himself up promptly at the agreed time of 10 p.m. His son Richard had acted as intermediary with police. "I am a sick man," he told reporters, referring to a heart condition. He added that another reason he turned himself in was that he felt sorry that Chief Assistant Prosecutor George Taylor of Oakland County was "taking a rap." It was Taylor, a chief investigating officer in the Frank Kierdorf fire death mystery, who let Herman have his freedom Aug. 4 after he had been questioned. "I'm sorry I caused so much trouble," Herman said apologetically. Herman surrendered to Taylor and Chief Prosecutor Frederick C. Ziem at the drive-in. The two officers were accompanied to the meeting place by Herman's son. Before being booked at the Oakland County jail, Herman took a nitroglycerine pill for his heart. He was booked on a formal charge of possession of a pistol silencer. This was the charge on which he had been declared a fugitive. He said he never left Michigan while the search was on. He refused to say where he had been. His statements in an interview with newsmen sometimes were in conflict.

At one time he said he vanished because he was "shaken up by the death of my nephew." He did not explain why he was missing three days before Frank died. "I hated to meet his (Frank's) wife," he said. "I wanted to find out what it was all about, x x x With my health I couldn't stand the questions—the stay in jail—the notoriety and so forth." Later, Michigan Atty. Gen. Paul L. Adams issued a statement in which he said he still believed Herman was the key to the fire mystery. The Nautilus begins its voyage home. PORTLAND, England (AP) — The USS Nautilus, the first submarine to cross the North Pole, sailed for home today. It took an hour and a half to get her nuclear engines started up and the machinery running. Then three sailors spent four hours checking 754 items of nuclear equipment. Cmdr. William Anderson, the skipper, said the Nautilus would dive under the surface about 25 miles off Portland and stay under water until her arrival near Ambrose Light off New York next Monday. He said he would not know the orders for his exact route home until he was well under way. "This ship will be sealed with the good Portland air and we will arrive at New York with this same Portland air after it has been processed and conditioned," he said. The Nautilus sailed into this English port last Tuesday for her first landing after the pioneer voyage under the polar ice cap. She left Pearl Harbor July 23. As the crew paraded in a farewell ceremony on the rain-soaked quay, Anderson told British spectators: "Wherever Nautilus men have gone in the last few days you have shown the true meaning of the word hospitality." He pledged to continue, whenever there is an opportunity, to demonstrate to the royal navy, to whom we in the U.S. Navy owe so much, the capabilities of our remarkable ship and to stand with the royal navy in professional pride in the dynamic program which is producing the first British atomic submarine, the Dread-

Winston-Salem Board Assigns 3 Negroes To All-White School

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The Winston-Salem School Board assigned three Negro children today to the all-white Easton elementary school. It turned down requests from five other Negro students for reassignment from Atkins to Reynolds High School. The board's action was the first time racial integration has been ordered here below the high school level. The students involved live in the Bellview community only a few blocks from the new Easton School. They are about 1.3 miles from Diggs School, the Negro school to which they had been assigned, an unofficial source said. The students listed as: Kenneth Richard Cooper, Roslyn Dianne Cooper and Norma Earnestine Corley. The school board action was taken without a word of discussion. The board received a prepared list from its Reassignment Committee of recommendations for approving 23 reassignment requests and disapproving 28 requests. Reassignment Committee Chairman Clifford M. Perry moved the adoption of the recommendations. It was seconded and the board adopted the motion with only one dissent. The Rev. W. R. Crawford, the board's lone Negro member, voted "no" but did not argue the mat-

Woman Reveals Poisoned Water In Refrigerator

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—The woman arrested on a drunkenness charge babbled that she had put poison in an ice water pitcher at an Indian rest home where she recently had been given a job. Officers were skeptical, but decided to investigate. They found a pitcher of bluish water in the refrigerator at the newly-opened Chavis Rest Home in Robeson County. The State Bureau of Investigation laboratories in Raleigh reported the water contained mercuric cyanide, a poison used in rest homes for medicinal purposes. The woman, Miss Mary Ford, 39, of Pembroke, was charged with attempted murder. Officers reported the story yesterday. Jailer Allen Lamb charged Miss Ford with destruction of public property after she allegedly set fire to the mattress in her cell. She was arrested on the drunkenness charge on Friday and charged with attempted murder the next day. He did not discuss the matter during the meeting. Afterward, discussing it with people who had gathered outside the meeting room, he said, "I still think those students (who applied for reassignment to Reynolds) are nearer Reynolds than they are to Atkins — particularly two of them." The meeting was attended by a number of persons, mostly Negro spectators, and perhaps a dozen others gathered outside, unable to get into the crowded room. Winston-Salem broke the racial barrier on a token basis last year when the board assigned a Negro girl to the previously all-white Reynolds High School.

Peanut Growers Helped By Atom

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina peanut growers already are harvesting benefits from nuclear energy. Textile manufacturers and coastal fishermen may soon do so. These and other atomic age achievements in agriculture, industry, education and other fields were reviewed this weekend in a report by the Governor's Committee on Nuclear Energy. "The people of North Carolina may well be proud of the significant developments in atomic affairs that have been accomplished in our state, under your productive leadership, in the past few years," Chairman W. D. Carmichael Jr. said in delivering the report to Gov. Hodges. Some of the advances cited were: Research involving irradiation of peanut seed brought genetic changes which aided in boosting per acre production by 15 per cent. North Carolina State College has opened a radiology laboratory in its Department of Textile Research to apply nuclear energy technology to textile research and processing. Duke University scientists at Beaufort Marine Laboratory are using radioactive calcium to study the growth of oysters, an important food product on the coast. Barnacle growths, which plague ship owners, also are being studied. At the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, a research team is tackling one of the atomic age's major problems — how to dispose of dangerous waste materials from the atomic energy process. On the industrial front, the committee pointed to plans for the nation's first privately-owned nuclear testing reactor to be built in the Wadesboro - Rockingham area. Ground for the 12 million dollar project will be broken within 90 days, the report said, and April 1, 1960, has been set as the target date for critical operation. In addition, power companies of the Carolinas and Virginia are moving ahead with plans for a power reactor to be built at Parr-

Atomic Tests Set By Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain will soon hold her third series of nuclear weapons tests at Christmas Island in the central Pacific, the Defense Ministry said last night. The first British H-bomb was set off near Christmas Island May 15, 1957, and four more have been reported since then, the most recent one last April 28. There was no indication of the extent of the coming test series. With pressure for suspension of nuclear tests mounting at home and abroad, the British government has been reported under pressure from scientific and military advisers to hurry up tests to beat any ban.

Len Hall Quits Senate Bid In N. Y.; Rockefeller 'In'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With Leonard W. Hall out, Nelson A. Rockefeller appeared certain today to be the Republican candidate for governor of New York. Some GOP leaders moved to persuade Hall to run for the Senate. However, one close associate expressed doubt that he would. Hall, describing himself as a "political realist," quit the gubernatorial race yesterday. A short time later, the 106-member Brooklyn delegation to the GOP State Convention endorsed Rockefeller for the nomination. Their votes pushed Rockefeller's pledged total to 485. It was uncertain where Hall's 163 pledged votes would go, but Rockefeller appeared likely to get some. He needs 586 to be nominated on the first ballot.

Two important Republicans urged Hall to make the Senate try. Hall has said he does not want to return to Washington. He is a former GOP national chairman and also served seven terms in Congress.

Other possibilities for the Senate are veteran Rep. Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester and Paul W. Williams, a former U.S. attorney. John R. Crews, the Brooklyn leader who announced the switch to Rockefeller, was the first to publicly urge Hall for senator. He said a Rockefeller-Hall ticket would be unbeatable.

Later, Rep. Dean P. Taylor of Troy joined Crews. Taylor, a national committeeman and a close friend of Hall, has been his chief supporter upstate.

Taylor said a combination of Rockefeller and Hall would win unanimous approval when the Republicans meet in Rochester to nominate a week from today.

Democratic Gov. Harriman is seeking a second term. Five Democrats are interested in the Senate seat, now held by Republican Irving M. Ives, who is retiring because of ill health.

Williams is the only Republican to express publicly any interest in the Senate nomination. But he asserted again yesterday his first goal was the governorship.

The other gubernatorial candidate, State Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo, has 254 votes if, as in Rockefeller's case, the delegates go along with their county leaders. Mahoney said he would continue his fight.

Hall mailed a three-paragraph announcement to the press. "I have always been a realist in politics," the statement said. "I am therefore withdrawing by name as a candidate for governor." Hall said he was dedicated to the Republican cause. He

Posse On His Trail, Slays Women, Self

SEDLEY, Va. (AP) — A North Carolina man, who had been warned by police to keep his distance from a Roanoke Rapids woman, followed her into Virginia Saturday, killed her and another woman and then himself as a sheriff's posse took up his trail. Southampton County Sheriff T. B. Bell identified the victims as Mrs. Carrie Arnold, 35, of Roanoke Rapids, N.C. Mrs. Annie Jones Upton, 38, of Sedley and Dan Peele, 50, also of Roanoke Rapids.

The two women were killed by pistol fire as they stood on Mrs. Upton's porch in the center of this small Southern Virginia community late Saturday. Peele killed himself early Sunday about one half mile from the home.

Bell said Mrs. Arnold, accompanied by her husband Will, a sister, Mrs. Hattie Daughtry and Ralph Allwood, came here for a visit with Mrs. Arnold's cousin, Mrs. Upton. Peele apparently followed, engaging in a fight on the way with Allwood. Later Saturday, Bell said he was told, Mrs. Arnold was called out on the back porch by Peele. Mrs. Upton went along.

The shootings followed. Peele escaped in the darkness. Bell said he had no clearcut motive for the slayings but it appeared Mrs. Arnold was Peele's target, with Mrs. Upton apparently an innocent victim.

In Roanoke Rapids police said Peele had given trouble before by going to the Arnold residence and causing a general disturbance and that he had been under a suspended sentence of 30 days for public drunkenness.

Bell said his posse got to within 10 feet of Peele early Sunday when he raised a gun to his head and fired. The automatic used for all three killings had one bullet left in it.

Peele, an electrician, resided in Gaston, N.C., but worked in Franklin, Va. Police said he was separated from his wife.

N.C. Exchange Clubs Elect A New President

RALEIGH (AP) — The new president of North Carolina's Exchange Clubs is C. C. Burriss of Wilson. He was elected Saturday night at the group's 24th annual convention here.

In other business the convention heard addresses by Chairman John W. Umstead of the State Hospitals Board of Control and Col. John F. Smoller, U.S. Army deputy director of special weapons.

In addition to Wilson, the Exchange Club members named the following new officers:

Vice President J. D. Ennis, Sanford; Secretary Marcus Deal, Greensboro; Treasurer Frank Heister, Durham; and new Board of Control members, Fred Church of Winston-Salem, Chick Welch of Graham and E. T. Lewis of Clinton.

Col. Smoller, in outlining the Army's missile program, said a missile aimed at countering intercontinental ballistic missiles is in the initial stage of development.

Find Relief In Cool Air Mass

Cool air streaming southward from Canada gave a touch of autumn to sections of the northern Great Lakes region today. The cool air spread across Northeastern areas and also brought a little relief from the hot weather to some Southern regions.

Temperatures were 10 to 15 degrees lower than 24 hours earlier in the northern Great Lakes, dropping into the 40s. One of the lowest readings in the country, outside the mountain regions, was 41 at Alpena, Mich.

Readings were mostly in the 50s in the north Atlantic states except near the coast while they were in the 60s as far south as North Carolina and Tennessee. The cooler breezes also were felt in most of Oklahoma and Kansas, with temperatures in the 60s.

But northward in the western Dakotas and eastern Montana, where the mercury climbed to 100 degrees and higher yesterday, readings were mostly in the 70s. Hottest weather yesterday was across southern Texas westward through Arizona into southeastern California.

Most of the wet weather during the night was in the Western part of the country, extending from Idaho and southern Oregon southward into New Mexico. Rainfall in most areas, however, was light. Gusts winds were clocked at 45 m.p.h. at El Paso, Tex., and Pocatello, Idaho, during brief thunderstorms. A violent storm, with wind gusts of 60 m.p.h. lashed the Cleburne area in north central Texas, drenching the region with 4 inches of rain.

Probe Cause Of Big Gang Fight

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Police today sought to learn what started a gang fight in which a score of teen-agers wielded knives, broken bottles, and blackjacks made of lengths of hose.

One battler fired three pistol shots before two squad cars of police arrived early yesterday. Apparently the shots didn't hit anyone.

The fight was about over by this time and the arrival of police put an end to it.

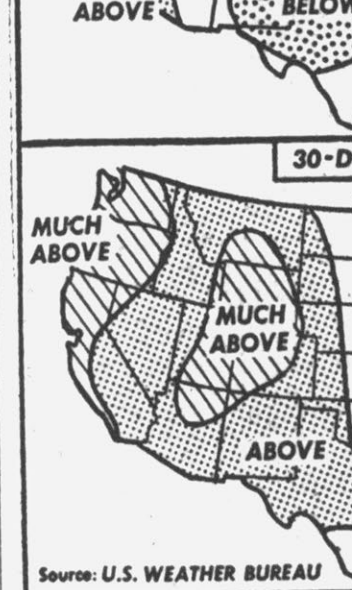

It was the second gang battle in a month at about the same spot, a parking lot in downtown Kannapolis. It was witnessed by some 200 persons who had just come out of a late show at a movie.

Two carloads of boys from Kannapolis and neighboring Concord fought last month, reportedly over girls they had been dating. One boy was shot and wounded, and another was held for superior court trial next month.

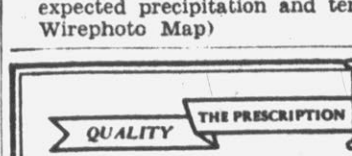

Police said yesterday's battle broke out between two youths, one of whom was drunk, and their buddies joined in.

The cause of the original fight was not learned. An 18-year-old youth was arrested on a drunkenness charge.

Fight Shapes Up Over High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long-delayed Senate battle shaped up today over legislation to overcome the effects of various Supreme Court decisions.

It could hold up the adjournment of Congress, which most legislators hoped would come by the end of this week.

Stated for Senate action was a bill designed to ease the impact of a high court ruling freeing a confessed rapist here because police held him as long as 7 1/2 hours before arraignment.

The bill, a modified version of a measure previously passed by the House, is one of several that Senate critics of the court have been demanding a chance to act on before adjournment.

Other senators, defending the court's decisions as protecting individual rights, have vigorously opposed any efforts to modify them. Several bills have been offered on the subject.

The most far reaching of the bills is a measure sponsored by Senators William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) and John M. Butler (R-Md.).

This bill, approved over three months ago by the Senate Judiciary Committee by a 10-5 vote, would curb the court's review powers and undo the effects of its decisions in a number of Communist cases. The Senate Democratic Policy Committee has not cleared this one for debate.

Once any of the other bills are brought up for action, the provisions of the Jenner-Butler measure could be offered as amendments. If this happens, the debate could rage for days.

The bill on today's calendar grows out of the court's decision last year freeing Andrew R. Malloy, a 22-year-old Negro who had been sentenced to die after he made what police said was a voluntary confession to raping a housewife. Malloy was not retried, although he could have been.

The court's decision in this case was based on the federal rules of criminal procedure barring "unnecessary delay" between arrest and arraignment of a suspect.

As the measure passed the House, it provided that confessions otherwise admissible as evidence in federal criminal trials should not be excluded solely because of police delay in taking a suspect before a committing magistrate.

The Senate Judiciary Committee amended the House bill to provide that "reasonable delay" in arraigning a suspect should not bar the admission of a confession as evidence.

Union Officers Charged With Violating Orders

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Officers in this area, is one of the officers of Teamsters Union Local 391, forbidden by court order last April from transferring assets of the local to other units of the union, have been ordered to appear in court here Saturday for allegedly violating the injunction.

Superior Court Judge Walter E. Johnston issued a show cause order last Saturday at the request of members of the trustee-run local. Local 391 officers were ordered to appear to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for violating the injunction.

The petition alleged, among other things, that the Teamster officials had violated the April restraining order by continuing to draw salaries from the local's funds; by transferring local funds to the International Teamsters Union, including about $7,250 a month in dues collections; and by trading four 1956 automobiles for four 1958 models, using local funds in the transaction.

George W. Carter of Winston-Salem, vice president and business agent of the local, which represents more than 3,000 truck drivers in this area, is one of the officers ordered to appear in court.

Carter declared that the financial transactions mentioned in the petition were handled by its trustee, whom he identified as Richard C. Bell of Washington, D.C. He said Bell was a replacement trustee for A. L. Gumber of Charlotte, another official named in the show cause order.

Others ordered to appear were D. W. Willard of Burlington, president and business agent of the local; Lloyd Huggins of High Point, secretary-treasurer and business agent; S. C. Jones of Greensboro and B. C. Reynolds of Winston-Salem.

Drag Farm Pond For 2-Year-Old

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Volunteer firemen and policemen dragged a farm pond near here today, searching for a 2 1/2-year-old child missing since yesterday morning.

The child, Ulysses Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Wallace, had been playing with some children on the tenant farm of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Pearce, near Matthews. He was missed about 9:30 a.m.

More than 100 persons participated in the search of an area three miles around the Pearce home. Efforts were concentrated on the small pond situated on the tenant farm.

Richard Tucker, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, was first an errand boy in Wall Street banks.

Brooking No Thought Of Surrender

From what we've been able to determine about the now famous "surrender study" furor, it appears to be a farcical example of how far responsible people can go in jumping to the wrong conclusions, basing a premise on fragmentary information, and getting excited about a lot of nothing.

Now that the sound and fury has subsided, the conclusion seems to be that some unidentified patriot got a glimpse of some papers with the title including the words "surrender" and "study", and without reading the details decided this country was piecing together the data on how many millions of casualties and how much damage to its nerve centers could be absorbed before bowing in abject defeat.

The rumors apparently were based on a study begun in 1951, analyzing the ways in which other countries have surrendered in the past. The research organization denies the study dealt with any possible American setback.

Senator William Knowland, one of those who has studied the report, likewise states he found nothing that bore any suggestions of American surrender.

The President branded it all ridiculous nonsense and his press secretary added that no money has been spent to study how or when the United States might surrender.

Even so, the hard-to-discourage alarmists had a great deal to talk about: the estimated 20 million dead Americans within the first few weeks of a new war, the destruction of great cities, the vulnerability of manufacturing centers, and so on. All that was "old hat". The grim story of what to expect has been told over and over again by men whose job it is to prepare for catastrophe.

Reasonably speaking, some detailed study of eventualities in a third World War has been made. It would have to be made in order to prepare intelligently for the future. If some assessment has not been made of how many body blows this country could withstand before being unable to function any longer . . . then somebody in very high places has fallen down on the job.

But we can be thankful for this: the word "surrender" remains anathema in America.

Sometimes we've wondered. This land is so rich, and its people live in such relative luxury that the old spirit of "we've nothing to lose but our lives" might have been smothered by love for material things.

Even if the "surrender study" uproar was based on nothing, it serves as a good reminder this Land of Destiny brooks no thought of defeat, no matter what the price.

Experience Results In Less Disappointment

There hasn't been nearly as much disappointment over the first failure to launch a lunar rocket as there was in the days when the first Vanguard proved a flop.

The obvious reason lies in repeated warnings that failure was as much to be expected as success. Experiences in the satellite program likewise inoculated enthusiasm against expecting too much on this first try.

Others are scheduled, and the experts say they'll be delighted if they can put just one device close to the moon.

All in all, the moon-shot program is a thrilling bit of ambitious undertaking. Its complexities now comprise the ultimate test of all that is known in rocketry and electronics. Even in failure there is some measure of "good".

The earth satellite program, replete with its many failures and few successes is already on the verge of playing a secondary role in scientific goals.

For at least another year, or until this new program sees some measure of success, the far side of the moon represents an ultimate in the reaching out of mankind. It won't stop there.

When that has been accomplished another goal will be ready and waiting to fire the imagination and will to explore further the vast reaches of the unknown which surrounds us.

Social Security Bill's Prospect

For many months it has been predicted there would be another Social Security bill passed by Congress this year. Starting in 1950, there has been a Social Security bill in every national election year since, including 1952, '54, '56 and now, 1958.

Some weeks ago the House Ways & Means Committee conducted hearings on the general subject of social security without referring to any one particular bill. Out of those hearings came H.R. 13549. This bill passed the House by a vote of 375 to 2 and went to the Senate where it was referred to the Senate Finance Committee. The committee, probably aware of the early adjournment date, limited hearings on the bill to two days.

In addition to many technical changes in the 106-page document, the bill consists of two major parts: first to increase social security (OASI) payments, and second to increase federal welfare and public assistance payments through grants-in-aid to the states' welfare programs.

In connection with OASI, the bill provides for an increase in benefit payments of seven per cent with a minimum of $1 per month; for social security taxes to be increased effective next January 1; and, that the amount of annual earnings subject to the tax and credited toward benefits be increased from $4200 to $4800.

The social security system is operated by the Federal Government. In contrast, the public assistance program is a Federal state matter, with each state determining qualifications for receiving payments, and what the state welfare payments to individuals shall be.

The new Social Security bill provides for federal grants-in-aid to state welfare programs to be increased by an estimated $288 million next year, and probably more in the years which follow. These latter expenditures, incidentally, are derived from general funds of government and not from social security funds and, therefore, will add to the growing annual federal deficit.

Discordant Note By Tax Expert

By LYNN NISBET

HAPPY HOME — James A. Speight, three times representative of Bertie county in the General Assembly and presently a member of the Tax Study Commission, sounds a pleasing discordant note in the new taxes chorus.

Governor Hodges has warned that some $48 million in new tax revenue may be required to hold the line of State services at present level during the next biennium. Most other students of government finance agree that new money will be necessary, but some of them question the amount.

Jim Speight concedes that more money will be needed, but he isn't at all sure that new tax sources will be tapped to get it. During his three terms in the Legislature he earned the right to have his opinion respected, and was accorded by newsmen assigned to cover legislative doings the pseudonym of "The Gray Fox of Bertie."

The folks who insist that new tax sources must be found have statistics to support their contention. The 1957 General Assembly used some $32 million of accumulated surplus to balance the biennial budget. There will be no surplus of consequence next year, and reports filed by institutions and services show need for $27 million more to maintain services at current level. In addition to that $27 million for operation, some $7 to $10 million for permanent buildings is absolutely necessary to fill immediate needs.

None of this is for expanded or extended services. It will only give to the thousands of additional public school pupils and college students educational facilities comparable to those enjoyed by the same groups this year, and afforded other government services (health, welfare, etc.) to the growing population at present level.

LOGIC — Lacking the support of statistics, Speight falls back upon logic. He contends that the same growth in population which increases demands also means more taxpayers. He seriously doubts that new tax sources will be required to maintain current levels. He points out that tax collections have been tightened up a lot in recent years, and thinks they can be further tightened so as to get more dollars from the same taxpayers, as well as from the new taxpayers coming along with the growth in population.

He concedes that if teacher salaries and welfare payments are increased (and these are his pet peaves) new taxes must be levied. Such increases, he contends, will be expansion and not just holding the line.

The Gray Fox, who will not be in the 1959 Legislature, makes no bones about his objection to higher teacher salaries and increased welfare payments—especially to Negro families with multiple illegitimate children. And he doesn't want new or higher taxes for any purpose. He says he will insist that if additional levies are made the reasons for them be clearly stated and widely publicized.

DEMOCRATS — Woodrow Jones, State chairman of the Democratic party, is not yet sure just what type of campaign will be waged this fall. He has completed the hard core of the organization. He has named Cloyd Philpott of Lexington as his chief assistant and finance officer; Steve Nimock of Fayetteville as secretary, and Eric W. Rodgers of Scotland Neck as publicity director. These men, together with Mrs. Mary Laurens Richardson of Raleigh, state vice chairman; John D. Larkins Jr., of Trenton, national committeeman; Mrs. B.B. Everett of Palmira, national committeewoman, and Robert W. Davis of Salisbury, state YDC president, constitute the executive inner circle of party management.

Jones later will select an advisory committee, probably one man and one woman from each congressional district. At least two congressional candidates, Herbert Bonner in the first district and David Clark in the tenth, have expressed desire to have a district-wide rallies this fall. Bonner has no opposition and there are only a few local Republican candidates in the first district counties.

Clark is challenging the sole Republican incumbent, Charles Raper Jones, and several counties in his district are normally Democratic. The Democratic effort will be centered on the tenth district for congress and on that and adjoining districts for legislative and county offices. Other than that, the party organization pretty well ignores geography.

GEOGRAPHY — An eastern legislator was complaining the other day about the west "getting everything, while the east furnished the votes." State Chairman Jones hails from Durham; Vice-chairman Richardson at Raleigh; Secretary Nimocks at Fayetteville; Publicity Director Rodgers at Scotland Neck; National Committeeman Larkins at Trenton, and National Committeewoman Everett at Palmira. That doesn't look like the west is getting everything.

Notes In Perusing Mail

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That for the first time in this century America is growing timber faster than it is being removed from the forests.

That one in every 700 children is born with a cleft lip or palate.

That if dogs kept people they probably would never pat them on the head because most dogs don't like to be patted on the head themselves. They'd rather be scratched.

That nearly 30,000 Americans are injured in accidents every day, or about 20 a minute.

That the Kiwanis Magazine reports this sign on a mortician's office door: "Pay now, go later."

That the oldest gem known to man is the pearl.

That one way to get rid of dandelions is to keep rabbits around your house. They love dandelion roots, plus everything that grows in your garden, too.

That the crusty Duke of Wellington once closed a letter of reprimand to one of his officers as follows: "I have the honor to be, sir, your humble and obedient servant (which you know damn well I am not), Wellington."

That if you're on a diet, slipping a little water between meals is supposed to help still your hunger pangs. This may work with you; it doesn't with me.

That it takes nature from 500 to 1,000 years to form an inch of topsoil.

That the strawberry isn't a true berry. It belongs to the same plant family as the rose.

That the first person to wear silk stockings was a man, French King Henry II, introduced them to his court in 1559, and Queen Elizabeth of England started wearing them two years later.

That a full-grown ruby-throated hummingbird weighs about the same as a penny.

That the longest recorded flight by a homing pigeon was from France to China, 7,200 miles.

That Joseph Haydn, known as "the father of the symphony," had a wife who didn't appreciate music. One of her annoying habits: Cutting up his completed musical scores to make curling papers for her hair.

PLAN INSPIRES STUDENTS

(The Miami Herald)

Last month 24 high school seniors in Fall River, Mass., received college scholarships ranging from $50 to $300 each. The money to help these students to higher education did not come from one philanthropist. It was provided by one of the big foundations.

The aid came from the people of the industrial town. They formed a Citizen Scholarship Foundation. Civic organizations joined in a united effort to solicit money. More than 4,000 signed up. Most contributed $1. A few, intrigued by the idea, gave more.

An important by-product has been noticed in the town's high schools. Sponsors say the youngsters who have ever lived are not so much different from one another after all. The highest and the lowest are both within touching distance of us all. We have no cause either for discouragement or pride. Both are equally pointless.

The Bible assures us that in patience shall we possess our souls. There is no broad and easy highway to success in anything, and this includes success in spiritual matters as well as material.

We have to bear patiently the cross of grief and pain. We have to be still, knowing that the Lord is indeed on our side.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE NEED PATIENCE

Be still, my soul; the Lord is on thy side;

Bear patiently the cross of grief or pain.

These brazen words, written by Katherina von Siegel more than three hundred years ago and set to the moving melody of Finlandia, by Sibelius, have sustained the souls of thousands of Christian believers. Yet the conviction that God is on our side and that all can be regained into his hands is hard for any of us to get through our minds and souls. Even the greatest saints of God have had to struggle to gain such faith, and, after gaining it, to keep it. You and I and the most holy persons who have ever lived are not so much different from one another after all. The highest and the lowest are both within touching distance of us all. We have no cause either for discouragement or pride. Both are equally pointless.

The Bible assures us that in patience shall we possess our souls. There is no broad and easy highway to success in anything, and this includes success in spiritual matters as well as material.

We have to bear patiently the cross of grief and pain. We have to be still, knowing that the Lord is indeed on our side.

Swimming Pool Nearly 'Essential'

By ELMER ROESSNER

Won't tell you how many years ago because it would disclose our antiquity, but your reporter, nut frau kinder, once drove 167 miles before he came to a motel. "Cabins" we called them then. We found a cabin somewhere in Oregon, at $2.50 a night for four.

It had running water. A faucet thrust out from a wall dripped into the middle of the living-bedroom.

Times have changed. You don't have to drive that far now to find overnight accommodations — except after 3:33 p.m. at which time all motels switch on neon "no vacancy" signs.

WATER, INDOORS AND OUT The faucets are over sinks today and they often dispense a choice of hot or cold water. There are also showers, indoor plumbing, refrigerators, stoves, television receivers and electric razor outlets. In addition: swimming pools. We have no statistics at hand, but we hear that people will drive 167 miles today to find not a cabin but a motel with a swimming pool. A family may pass 166 other motels not because signs say "no vacancy," but because they do not say "swimming pool."

Pools, it seems, are the gimmick of the day. Makes sense.

After a hard day's drive, there's nothing the average motorist likes more than a cool drink followed by a cool dunk.

POOLS AN ESSENTIAL "Our Sun," a house organ published by an oil company whose name, for the moment, escapes us, recounts that there are 60,000 motels today, and that the number is increasing constantly.

Appointments are becoming more and more elaborate, with fancy lounges, wall-to-wall carpeting, period furniture and other luxuries.

And one of the more important accessories these days is a pool, a fortunate item since so many motels are shaped to surround one.

Of the 3,500 motels being built this year, almost 42 per cent are designed for pools, and most of the others are being designed so that pools can be added later if competition demands.

An Augusta, Ga., motel, with a fancy swimming pool, reports that it begins to register guests at 10 a.m., and is frequently sold out by 2 p.m. A Panama City Beach, Fla., motel reports that many one-day visitors stay for a week to enjoy its pool.

A WET TENTH A survey by Esther Williams Swimming Pools indicates that 10 per cent of the nation's motels

Water Fronts Choice

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Most people think the best place to invest money is the stock market. So they give their money to some broker, who sends it to New York City. This may or may not be a good place to get a quick profit; but the best investment for the long pull may be waterfront land in your own neighborhood.

OUTBOARD MOTOR GLAMOUR Speaking of the stock market, I am greatly impressed by the relative action of railroad stocks and automobile stocks vs. outboard motor stocks. For instance, the first mortgage 4 per cent $1,000 bonds on the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad can be bought for about $450,000, or at a discount of over 50 per cent. General Motors sells today just under 45 of a year ago, while Chrysler sells near 50 today compared with 78 a year ago. The Ford Motor Company has just reduced the dividend on its stock.

While declines have taken place in the stocks of companies whose products operate on wheels, a big advance has taken place in motorboat stocks. Outboard Marine, adjusted for stock splits has increased to a price of 25 from an equivalent 2 1/4 in 1953, a gain of 1000 per cent. This is because people are tired of using automobiles for pleasure driving, owing to crowded highways, lack of parking space, and increasing accidents. Families get more peace and quiet in a small outboard. In short, the automobile is becoming largely a business accessory; the glamour of driving is fading away. This is a fundamental reason for the decline in automobile sales. WATERFRONT REAL ESTATE

There will always be interior land to buy. As roads are extended, more land constantly comes onto the market. Interior land is like money; it depreciates just as the dollar does unless backed by increased production which can be sold. But there is only so much waterfront property. There never was, and never will be, any more. This is another reason why waterfront land, wherever located, is probably the best investment for the long pull for both residences and industry, cities and towns bordering oceans, lakes or rivers will continue to grow and their waterfront property will continue to increase in value.

As an illustration of the increasing popularity of water, note the advertisements for backyard swimming pools which are being taken in department stores! Children at a very early age are being educated to love the water. This popularity has so spread that the Babson Institute has built probably the best swimming pool in New England, costing over $200,000, to satisfy the demand for water sports and to make sure that every student who graduates can swim like a fish.

SKING AND OTHER SPORTS When I was a boy the only water sports were rowing a boat or swimming; but today these are "old hat." The outdoor motor boat has taken the place of rowing; while skiing and underwater exploring have taken the place of playing on the beach or in the "old swimming hole," with which most readers are acquainted. This underwater exploring is a most fascinating sport which just recently started those engaged in it put long plastic fins on their feet, and either a can of oxygen on their back or a tube leading up to the surface. They discover marvelous new kinds of fish, crabs, and curiosities of all kinds, including the wrecks of vessels, some of which may contain platinum, gold or silver.

The way to make money is to invest in corporations in some new industry of permanent value. When I was a boy, it was the railroads that held the glamour; later, water power and the development of electricity. Recently, it has been the automobile; but the future will deal with the discovery of unknown wealth under lakes, rivers, and oceans. Thus far this has been done by haphazard dredging, but in the future it will be done by underwater diving.

Therefore, if you are buying property today, try to get some waterfront, do not sell it. To make money in any investment, buy into something for which the demand will increase and where the supply is more or less limited.

The reason our dollars will gradually become of less value is because they can be printed in unlimited supply. The reverse is true of good waterfront property.

When the "no vacancy" signs flash, a traveler will take any motel accommodations offered him," said Don Pruess, Chairman of International Swimming Pools. "But when he has a choice the traveler will always stop at a motel with a pool." Mr. Pruess, since he sells pools, is not unhappy about this situation.

RETAIL SALES LAG; AUTOS FALL TOTAL DOWN The recession really caught up with retail sales in July, according to Department of Commerce data.

Total sales were $164 billion ahead of the June total, it was a sniplet behind July, 1958.

Sales in recent months, the largest decline has been in auto sales.

Production Begins On '59 Model Cars

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry started production today on its new 1959 model cars in an atmosphere of uncertainty. With contracts still to be settled with the United Auto Workers, the industry's Big Three faced the possibility of a strike in the fall. The union has said nothing specific. But labor trouble is held to be likely if there is no settlement with Ford, Chrysler or General Motors. Negotiations are continuing. Chrysler called back several thousand men after months of layoff. They were the first of 42,000 workers coming back to turn out Dodge, DeSoto, Chrysler and Imperial cars. Chrysler's full work force is about 90,000. By mid-November the worker recall is expected to number into the scores of thousands in the industry. The future will tell how the 1959 model year is to compare with the recession-cut 1958 year. Ultimate peak employment will depend on the car market and the extent of production. Recently General Motors had employed fewer than 200,000 men. On the basis of present forecasts the figure will be 325,000 by mid-November. That would be about 60,000 less than the peak in the first quarter of last year. Union-company negotiations resumed without the presence in Detroit of UAW President Walter Reuther. Reuther is in Forest Park, Pa. for the meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council. Two labor disputes were settled yesterday. An unauthorized walk-out of 26 UAW lift truck drivers at Chrysler's stamping plant at Twinsburg, Ohio, ended, but terms of the agreement were not announced. The strike, caused by personal grievances, has idled 1,400 production workers for a week. A dispute over an outside contract at the Wyom, Mich., Lincoln-Thunderbird plant, where 2,500 workers are employed, was settled when UAW members voted to return to work under terms of a settlement worked out by company and union negotiators.

ECC Delegation Arriving In Ohio

East Carolina College delegation to the National Congress of College Student Government Associations will be headed by SGA President Mike Katsias of Virginia Beach, Va. The delegation will arrive today and will participate in the proceedings of the Congress which continues through August 29. Dr. James H. Tucker, dean of men and director of student personnel at East Carolina, will participate in a special section of the National Congress for college administrators, during the weekend to take part in committee session adding finishing touches to the program. His colleagues from East Carolina arriving Monday are Miss Kathryn Johnson, editor of the East Carolinians, Greenville; John P. Hudson, SGA treasurer and the 1958 summer session SGA president, of Wadesboro; and Clinton LeCote, member of the Senate in the Student Government Association, of Greensboro.

First Mascot Of ECC, A Great Dane, On Campus

A 50-pound 4-month-old Great Dane has arrived on the East Carolina College campus to become the first mascot in the college's history. The pedigreed dog from championship parentage is a gift from the Summer School Student Government Association, announces its president, Johnny P. Hudson of Wadesboro. In balloting by the summer session students, the Great Dane was voted the preference of several mascots nominated as a campus symbol. Hudson says the animal, purchased from Henry E. Crawford, Dover, Del school principal and dog breeder, has a bloodline which dates back several generations with all his ancestors holders of championship titles. Hudson said the Great Dane will be six months old at the opening of the football season on Sept. 13, and that as a symbol of strength he will be a great inspiration to the students.

Atoms For Peace Plan Is Slowly Taking Shape

NEW YORK (AP)—Slowly but surely, President Eisenhower's Atoms for Peace plan is taking shape today. The expense and international red tape have been a drag, but American corporations have set up nuclear reactors abroad, are building more and have contracted for still more. At least 20 can be tallied. The President launched the plan nearly five years ago in his last previous appearance at the United Nations before he presented there last week the Middle East Development Plan. In this he hinted that nuclear power might help the Arabs solve one problem, that of making fresh water out of salt water. Talk of atomic powered submarines to carry oil and other cargo under the North Pole also is stirring imaginations. But some actual projects are in place on dry land. The progress will be checked next month in Geneva at the U.N.'s International Conference on Peaceful Use of Atomic Energy. An American built mobile radio-isotope laboratory is on the way there. Later it will tour Europe to give training courses to students. American Machine & Foundry and its AMP Atomics division have stepped out fast. They report 16 nuclear research reactors either completed or underway in the United States, Canada and overseas. Among them are reactors completed for the Ministry of Education in the Netherlands and for a laboratory at Munich, Germany. Other AMP reactors are under construction or in various drawing board stages for Canada, Austria, Greece, Portugal, Italy, Iran, Israel, Japan and Puerto Rico. Westinghouse Electric International has licensed manufacturers in Belgium, Italy and West Germany to build and sell pressurized water reactors. A Belgian thermal reactor is expected to be operating by the end of 1959. Edisonville, S.P.A., large Italian utility, reports it will get one. GE's atomic division reports one of its 3,000 thermal kilowatt reactors will be in operation next month near Madrid, Spain. Under construction are GE reactor plants in Venezuela and Formosa. A West German utility announces it has contracted for a GE reactor to go into operation near Frankfurt by the end of 1960. GE's reactors are built by its Atomic Power Equipment Department at San Jose, Calif. Peaceful atoms are being harnessed here and in England to produce commercial power, but much of the nuclear reactor work here and abroad so far has been for research and training. The U.S. has bilateral agreements with 24 nations to set up such programs and has appropriated five million dollars toward paying half of the reactors' costs. AMP says its reactors will be used to activate materials for engineering tests, such as food processing and sterilization, biological reaction by radiation, and determination of wear in machinery. The President's Atoms for Peace plan has led to setting up the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna. And the U.S. Congressional Joint Atomic Energy Committee last week approved legislation to give American aid to Euratom. This is an atomic pool being set up by France, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg to put atoms to peaceful labors.

Lawmakers Plan Overseas Jaunts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Whether or not Congress adjourns this week, some of its members are all set to leave for distant places. Some have gone overseas already. The exodus won't be as heavy as last year, however. The main reason: Many Congress members will be out campaigning. Elections are coming up in November, affecting all 435 House seats and 34 of the 96 Senate seats. One Senate-House group took a pre-adjournment trip late last month. This was a delegation of seven House members and four senators attending the two-week annual conference of the Inter-parliamentary Union in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Here are a few examples of pending congressional trips: 1. Two members of the newly formed House Space Committee expect to read papers at the International Astronautical Federation meeting in Amsterdam starting next Monday. 2. About half a dozen representatives and senators from the Joint Atomic Energy Committee are due to start for Geneva about the same time to attend the International Convention on Atomic Energy. 3. Starting early next month some Senate-House Economic Committee members plan to check on economic matters in Europe that might have a bearing on U.S. policy. Sometimes dollar expenditures for such trips, if any, come out of congressional funds. Sometimes they are charged off by executive departments. The biggest money source is counterpart funds—U.S.-owned foreign currencies acquired under American aid programs.

Breeze Hampers Fighting Fire

GLACIER PARK, Mont. (AP)—A stiff breeze hampered efforts today to control a fire that has destroyed 1,300 acres in a primitive area of Glacier National Park. Hundreds of gallons of a chemical mixture were dumped on the fire yesterday. Planes made seven passes over treetops, dumping 200 tanks of borate at a time. An 18 m.p.h. wind developed. Gordon Bender, chief park ranger, said the blaze may not be controlled for a day or two. A fire-fighting crew of 450 was on the job, including 100 Zuni Indians flown from Albuquerque, N. M., and 100 Blackfeet Indians. The fire is the largest in this northwest Montana playground area since 1936. It blew up last Tuesday in an area that contains no tourist routes and no inhabitants. Streets in Salt Lake City are numbered by the direction and distance they are located from the Mormon Temple in the downtown area.

Actor's Illness Halts Airliner

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Sudden illness of actor Edward G. Robinson caused an American Airlines plane, flying nonstop from New York to Los Angeles, to make an emergency landing at McCarran Field here yesterday. Robinson was taken by ambulance to Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital. After treatment for a bladder condition, the 64-year-old actor was released. Mrs. Robinson said she and her husband would continue their trip to Los Angeles as soon as they could book another flight. The couple had been in the East to attend a funeral, Mrs. Robinson said.

Chief Driver For Jordan's King Hussein Enjoys Work

By REINHOLD ENSZ AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—How does it feel to pilot a king across the scorching deserts of Jordan in a bullet-proof limousine? "I like my work very much," says 40-year-old Maurice Rayner. "I think it's a grand experience." Rayner has been chief driver for Jordan's King Hussein for five years. They got to know each other while Hussein was attending Harrow School in England. Rayner managed a garage which Hussein, a sports car enthusiast, used to frequent. "One day he asked me to come to Jordan and I came," Rayner explains. There is constant fear that somebody may try to assassinate Hussein. The fear was heightened by the killing of his cousin King Faisal of Iraq on July 14. Before that Hussein generally traveled with a small armed escort. Now he appears with 60 fierce, heavily armed Arab Legion troopers riding on open patrol cars and motorcycles. In the middle of the column is Hussein's black 1956 air-conditioned Cadillac, its springs sagging under the weight of armor plating. The thick bulletproof windows are always rolled up and Hussein can hardly be seen in the back seat. Up front, sitting stiffly, is Rayner, wearing his tan chauffeur's uniform and British military ribbons. Doesn't he worry about getting shot? "I must confess I used to think about things like that. But after a while you stop worrying and decide you must live life as it comes."

East Carolina Line Should Show Power, Experience In 1958

When Coach Jack Boone calls the 1958 football drill at East Carolina College on September 1, a lot of hefty young men are expected to show up to compete for front line positions. Boone will be looking hard.

The past two or three years have been some of the most disastrous in ECC football history, due in great part to a lack of power and experience in the front wall. Last year, when the Bucs won only one out of nine ball games, Boone had to shift his line around constantly and still had trouble finding the right boys for the job.

One of the main troubles in the ECC line has been an inability to keep the boys in school. Boone has lost over 40 footballers over the past two seasons, due to graduation, scholastic troubles, or other reasons. A goodly number of them have been linemen.

Last year Boone had to use several freshmen in his starting lineup. Some of them were linemen. They lacked experience and often were unable to measure up against opposing teams. The boys had the weight and the height and the power, but they didn't know what to do with it. It takes experience and hard knocks to find that out.

No More Doubts About The Braves

By ED CORRIGAN Associated Press Sports Writer The talk around the National League these days is not whether the Milwaukee Braves can hold out.

rather, it's how much they will win by. There's no longer any lingering doubt that the Braves might fold. They have an eight-game bulge today as they head on a road swing and there isn't a team in the league that appears capable of making it even close. They've won seven in a row, matching their previous season's high.

Odds favoring the champion for this third title defense were quoted at about 6-1 to win and 3-1 to score a knockout but little wagering action was evident. Still Patterson could find himself against his toughest foe to date, a rugged opponent with 22 straight victories.

Frank Torre hit the first grand slam home run of his career in the opener. Pizarro came within two outs of his first major league shutout, only to have it spoiled by Ed Bouchee's homer. In the nightcap, Burdette out-pitched rookie Ray Semproch to gain his 13th victory. Wes Covington helped with a home run. The Cincinnati Reds climbed out of last place by licking the Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 4-3, and 7-5. The San Francisco Giants polished off the Chicago Cubs 8-6. Los Angeles and St. Louis split a doubleheader, the Cards winning the first 12-7 and the Dodgers the second, 9-3.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox turned back the Cleveland Indians 3-2 while the Boston Red Sox downed the league leading New York Yankees 6-5. The Kansas City A's crushed the Detroit Tigers 4-1, and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Washington Senators 2-1.

Harris hails from the woody Big Thicket country 40 miles from Houston. He remains a mystery man to most since all his bouts have been in his home state and he's never appeared on national television.

The challenger was expected to weigh in today at 192 with the speedy champion at 186. On the financial side, Harris collects a $100,000 guarantee and Patterson might get twice as much on the basis of a guarantee and percentage. Until the weigh-in at Hollywood Legion Stadium, both remained in seclusion at hotels here and both voiced confidence. "If I didn't think I could beat him, I wouldn't want to fight him," drawled Harris, a graduate of Sam Houston State Teachers College who considers returning to the books for a master's degree.

Waco Heights Claims 6-1 Win Over Warren

WINSTON-SALEM — Waco Heights of Raleigh Tripped Greenville's Carolina Dairies, 6-1, Sunday afternoon to knock them out of the State Fast-Pitch Softball tournament.

It was the second loss of the tournament for the Dairies, since the beginning night of play, last Wednesday. Stanley Drugs topped them in the first night of action, 2-1. On the next night, Greenville tripped Brock's Ice Cream, 3-2, behind the pitching of Jerry Warren.

Yesterday, Warren hurled again for the Dairies, but was unable to contain a sharp-hitting Waco Heights team. They plastered Warren for nine hits and bunched their runs in the first, second, fourth and sixth innings. Warren's club managed to get five hits.

In other games, Minette Mills of Grover advanced to the semifinals of the winners bracket with a 4-1 victory over Cannon Mills of Salisbury and City Beverage of Winston-Salem eliminated Billers-Somers of Burlington, 8-2.

White Sox Are 11 1-2 Games Behind Yankees

By ED CORRIGAN Associated Press Sports Writer The Chicago White Sox look like they mean to make a race out of the American League pennant chase.

Whether they started their surge too late remains to be seen. Probably they did. But they're only 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading New York Yankees today and all signs point strictly upward for them. They have won five in a row and 18 of their last 24.

The Yankees have lost eight of their last 11, and Manager Casey Stengel is so upset with the sudden turn of events that he called a morning practice today in Yankee Stadium. No team has been so close to the Yanks since July 20th.

Yesterday, the Sox licked the Cleveland Indians 3-2 behind Billy Pierce, who now has run his record to 13-9. It was second-string catcher Earl Battey who contributed the winning blow, a home run with two out in the eighth inning.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant was on the mound for the Indians. His record against the Sox this season is now 0-6.

'Fever For Bigness' Hit By Sen. Jordan In Speech

DURHAM (AP) — Sen. Jordan (D-NC), accusing the federal government of neglecting small businessmen, said today, "One of the most serious problems facing our economy is the fever for bigness."

The senator made the diagnosis in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the North Carolina Food Dealers Assn. However, the press of Senate business prevented Jordan from delivering the speech in person and it was read by an officer of the association.

Jordan announced yesterday he would remain in Washington for a Senate vote on farm legislation. In his speech, Jordan asserted it is essential for Congress to intensify its interest in the small business field.

He said government policymakers "who have the mistaken notion that bigness is essential to success," were failing to give what he called a fair shake to the little businessman.

"The order of the day in Washington is bigness — in business, in agriculture, and in industry alike," the junior Tar Heel senator declared.

Jordan said it would be a mistake for Congress to try to tell any business how to operate, but the government should create conditions under which new and wider opportunities will open up for small business.

He called the food dealers' attention to two bills passed by Congress during the current session — the Small Business Investment Act and the Small Business Tax Revision Act.

By explanation, Jordan said the investment act will make federal assistance available to set up private firms which would offer to small businessmen loans for working capital and long term credit purposes.

The tax revision act will, the speech explained, enable small businesses to make fast writeoffs for depreciable property, extend the loss carry-back period to three years and increase accumulated earnings credit.

He told the food dealers, "As a group, I would urge small business men everywhere to thrash out their problems, agree on a program and plan of action and then present it to their elected representatives."

"I am confident that constructive steps can be taken to strengthen small business without excessive interference in free enterprise," he added.

About 600 retailers arrived Sunday for R. Calhoun Berry, reception honoring R. Calhoun Berry, Berry was introduced by Tyres Woods, president of the Durham County Food Dealers Assn.

Talks by Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager of the National Assn. of Retail Grocers in the United States, and Henry Blason Jr., general counsel of that group, were slated for this morning.

The afternoon scheduled featured panel discussions:

"What the Association has Meant to Me," Charles Reid, Charlotte; "Proper Financing of Stores," Ned C. Cheek Jr., Greensboro; "Wholesalers' Relationship to Retailers," Clyde E. Todd, Charlotte; and "Consumer Relations," W. T. Harris, Charlotte.

Good TV Season Ahead Says CBS President

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Louis G. Cowan, president of the CBS Television Network, sees a coming season of good television for the home viewer, a season marked by improved quality in production.

Although speaking chiefly of the outlook for CBS-TV, he says of the industry in general: "There are three networks for sure this year. That's good for the networks, and so it is good for the public. It also should be remembered that the networks are making commitments for the 1955-1956 season just as the nation is beginning to move out of a recession."

The entertainment programming trend on CBS-TV, he says, is to long dramatic shows and programs combining comedy, variety and music.

As a creative force in television and radio, the man who developed "The $64,000 Question" and numerous other popular programs, Cowan is worth listening to.

Using 40 half-hour units as the basis of prime evening viewing time, it turns out that only five will be taken up by quiz and panel game shows on CBS-TV. There will be eight half-hour units of Westerns and adventure programs.

"Compare those eight to the proportion of Westerns and adventure stories turned out annually by the movies and book and magazine publishers," said Cowan, "and I think you'll find that our network is producing a smaller proportion."

CBS-TV will be the only network offering an hour or more of drama five nights a week, Cowan pointed out.

"We've built up a tremendous assemblage of writers, producers, technicians and other creative minds," Cowan said. "We've invested millions of dollars over a long period of time in experimentation and the development of new products. I like to think of all this creative effort as the hidden part of the iceberg. Not all of it can be apparent at the moment, but eventually it will be. It is there."

Cowan is as concerned with the field of news and public affairs as with entertainment.

Discussing this phase of the network's operation, he said: "We have a well-qualified corps of seasoned newsmen. We have the staff in depth. Our important function is to utilize these people in meaningful study of the world about us rather than in endless talk. That is what we have been doing. It is what we shall continue to do."

Insurance company statisticians predict that there will be a national upswing in marriages in the early 1950s when the record number of postwar babies reach marriageable age.

Queen's English Has Seen Recent Changes

By HAL COOPER
LONDON (AP) — "Two Harry Redders," said the youth in the blue jeans.

We thought our friend Percy the bartender would do his nut. Having sent the customer of his way with two glasses of red wine, Percy said grimly: "Fine thing, ennt, what these coffee bar types are doing to the English language? Reached the point around here where I feel like a foreigner."

We said we had noticed a certain obscurity about the bar conversation ever since the espresso joint opened across the street — for instance, for Harry Champs, Harry Wallop, Harry Sludge, and Harry Plasma.

"The 'Harry' means nothing," Percy explained. "It's just a word these types throw in because in their set it's clever. Redders is red wine. Champs is champagne. Wallop, sludge and plasma are beer."

We said we had overheard one of the types asking his girl friend to "chuck the snouts over." She passed him a pack of cigarettes and remarked, "Let's ride out of this clinic — I'm dead chocker."

"Snout is a British prison term for tobacco which has been adopted by the coffee bar types in their assault on the English language," explained Percy. "Clinic is their word for a pub, to ride out is to leave and dead chocker is terribly bored."

How did Percy become so fluent in this new tongue?

"By playing Parker," he said. Parker?

"That's from Nosey Parker, an old Englishism for a person who listens in on other people's conversations," said Percy.

Percy supplied a glossary of some of the more common terms in use by the caffeine fiends and he obliged with the following:

Lumbering—Courtin' a girl.
Dicey on the bubble—Gettin' bald.
Dead chuffed—Delighted.
Not with it—Unable to understand.
Lollypop—Sugar daddy.
Belt up—Be quiet.
Scupper up or jug up—Drink liquor or beer.
Cut, honkers, bottled or paralytic—Drunk.
Bunch of five—A fist.
Round box—Somebody who doesn't dig jazz. A square.
Doing his nut, or stroppy—Gettin' furious. Blowing his stack.
A screech—Enjoyable show or party.
Advanced case—A big head.
"Girl in here on her todd the other night explained that her cookie was helping to lamp a bloke in Camden town," said Percy. "I didn't know whether to chuck her out myself or call the rozzers, in the end I just corpse."

We said we would appreciate a translation.

"Excuse me, I forgot you are not with it," said Percy. "On her todd means she was alone. Cookie is a boy friend. To lamp a bloke is to gang up on him. The rozzers are the cops. When you corpse you are struck speechless."

We said thanks and rode out of the clinic feeling like a round box but convinced that English is a living language.

Edwardian Belle Dies In London

LONDON (AP) — The 80-year-old dowager Marchioness of Headfort, star of the Naughty 90s and one of the greatest of the Gaiety Girls, died at her London home last night.

Once all theaterland knew her as Rosie Boote, a beauty from Tipperary who captured the heart of Edwardian London and the hand of a handsome marquis.

Her voice and her figure won her fame overnight in the storied world of hansom cabs and stage door Johnnies who drank champagne from her silken slipper.

Rosie's big success came with a hit song "Maise Was a Darling, Maise Was a Dear," in a show called "The Messenger Boy" at London's famed old Gaiety Theater.

A year later, at the height of her fame in 1901, she retired from the stage to marry a young Life Guards officer, the fourth Marquess of Headfort. His family was shocked, but Rosie's charm finally won them over.

After their marriage, the couple settled on his family estates in County Cavan and County Meath.

They had two sons and a daughter. Lord Headfort died in 1943. Hollywood feted Rosie when she visited the United States in 1951.

CHAPTER 18

Macklyn, now Brigadier General Macklyn Campbell of the Confederate army was back at Quail Wings after three weeks at Montgomery, conferring with Confederate leaders. Only this morning Tob, overseer of the stables at Quail Wings, had brought Colin Campbell a message scribbled in haste: "Must see you at once, Macklyn." And Colin, mounted on Robbin, was on his way to meet his brother.

During the three weeks since war had broken out he had fretted constantly. The more he thought of it, the more he was convinced that his idea of leading the mountain could perform in this war with any degree of satisfaction to anyone.

As Colin rode through Wetherly he looked for any changes the war might have made in the life of the town. A farmer was driving a yoke of oxen up the road. Saddle horses twitched their tails or kicked their feet at various hitching posts. Children played. Jason Maxwell, the middle-aged clubfoot who had devoted his spare time to studying military campaigns, was again drilling awkward country youths in an empty lot. Men and women went about their small but all-important tasks precisely as they went about them every day of their lives.

In a republic, according to theory, the people made every decision: the people would decide in favor of or against war. Colin thought bitterly that with few exceptions nobody in Wetherly had any clear ideas about why North and South differed or why war should be. But the people he saw about him would not respond to the voice of reason. They would stampede hysterically at an impassioned speaker. They would hate, but they would never really know why they hated. If reason prevailed, however, there would be no war.

As he left Wetherly behind him, he reprimanded himself. Who really understood war? For the first time in his life Colin went directly to the study at Quail Wings and entered without knocking. His father, as usual, sat behind his desk and as he looked thoughtfully at the shock he felt. He had known, of course, that his father was old, but for the first time he seemed old.

"Are you ill, Father?" Colin blurted. "Not exactly," Macklyn answered for the old man. "He is upset because the army refused to accept him."

"You — you don't mean he tried to join the army?" "And why not?" A little of his father's old spirit flared. "Why shouldn't I serve the army in some capacity? I've forgotten more about a thousand different things some of these snippy young officers will ever know."

Macklyn's fine dark eyes were gentle as they warned Colin to humor the old man. "I know just what you mean," Colin assured his father. "Why, we had a recruiting officer visit Hobbs Creek the other day who knew as much about handling men as a six-week-old kitten."

His father looked grateful. Colin glanced at the star on Macklyn's shoulder. "Congratulations, General Campbell," he said. "What will your assignment be?" Macklyn smiled proudly. "I'm to be in charge of the army of upper Connecoon." Then, looking stern, he added, "Now that war has come, you've forgotten all that nonsense about the futility of war and so on, I hope?"

"I haven't changed my views and I don't consider them nonsense, but once the die is cast I know it is useless to discuss them further. Tell me, there'll be conscription, I suppose?" "His father gasped. 'Colin! You would wait to be conscripted?'" "Not for myself, Father. I was thinking of the men of Hobbs Creek and what their future will be."

"I had in mind stationing you at Dare's Landing," Macklyn said. "Tom Dare has been made colonel in charge of supplies for this area and he'll need someone who knows the law and can cut through a mass of rules and regulations and legal details. It may seem odd to you to be put under his command in view of your relationship with Jeanie, but we must all forget personal considerations in this emergency."

The idea of doing Tom Dare's paper work filled Colin with horror. "No, no!" he said. "Some older lawyer can do that better than I. I have an idea of my own. But Tom Dare has been made colonel in charge of supplies for this area and he'll need someone who knows the law and can cut through a mass of rules and regulations and legal details. It may seem odd to you to be put under his command in view of your relationship with Jeanie, but we must all forget personal considerations in this emergency."

"If the war lasts more than three or four months," Macklyn answered, "there will certainly be conscription. But we are hoping by a strong show of volunteer strength to demonstrate to the Northern leaders that it is useless to try to take the South by force of arms. Virginia will naturally be the crucial State."

"I see," Colin said. "In other words, either a man volunteers now and, by swelling the Confederate army, serves to warn the North by mere presence in uniform, or there will be real hard fighting and the need for conscription."

"Yes, that's about it," Macklyn answered. "Here's my idea, then," Colin said. "My neighbors on Hobbs Creek are good men and they'd make the best fighters you ever saw, but they're used to a lot of leeway and they'd never take orders from a conventional army officer."

"You mean they're undisciplined," Macklyn said. "The army would knock that out of them soon enough."

"They have their own kind of discipline," Colin answered. "But they require someone who understands what it is to be their leader. I've been among them a good deal. I like them and respect them, and I think they feel the same way about me. I would like to recruit them and serve as their commanding officer. Put them under the wrong officer and they will desert within two hours."

"Then they're too unreliable."

"They're steady as a rock under the right circumstances. If they're under my command, I'll answer for them."

"Are you sure you can handle this?" Macklyn asked, concern on his handsome face. "I'm sure."

"If you'll take the word of a useless old man," Ralph Campbell put in, "I think Colin has a splendid idea there."

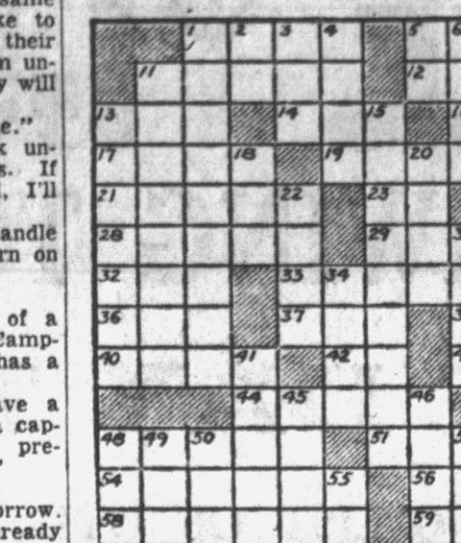

"All right, Colin. You have a free hand and may expect a captain's commission. Are you prepared to start right away?" "Yes."

"Come into Denbury tomorrow. Your commission will be ready and you will be sworn in."

"Where is the army headquarters in Denbury?" "We've taken over the inn. You know, by the way, that you'll have to resign your judgeship."

Mother Drowns Her Three Sons

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A distraught mother drowned her three sons in a bathtub yesterday, because "I didn't want my husband to have them."

"I have just drowned my three children," Mrs. Rosa Pena calmly told a police sergeant. "I only wish I had," the 24-year-old woman answered when the sergeant asked if she made up the story.

Patrolmen dispatched to the home in a poorer section of the city found the three boys, David, 6, Alvina, 4, and Richard, 2, dead. A medical examiner said they apparently had been drowned.

Police had not been able to locate the father. They said Alfonso Pena worked at Kelly Air Force Base here. His wife said they had been married nine years.

Police said she admitted the boys to a bathroom for their baths and drowned them there. Then, she said, she drank what she thought was poison from a bottle. It had no apparent effect.

She told police she waited about an hour before coming to them. She was booked at city jail for murder and placed in a hospital for treatment of shock.

She told police that she and her husband had had domestic difficulties. She quoted Pena as saying that if she left him he would take the children with him.

"If I can't have them," she told police, "no one can."

Do-Or-Die Day For Labor Control Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is do-or-die day for labor control legislation at this session of Congress. Its chances were rated as slim.

The House called up a Senate-passed labor bill under procedure allowing little debate, no amendments and requiring at least a two-thirds vote for passage.

Backers of the bill decided on this last-ditch effort after the House Labor Committee refused to consider either the Senate measure or a substitute backed by Republican committee members.

The Senate bill, sponsored by Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.) would require public disclosure of labor union finances. It also would give union members a bigger voice in union affairs. The bill was passed by the Senate June 17 by an 88-1 vote.

The controversial bill was sparked by the Senate Rackeet Committee's investigation of abuses in labor-management affairs.

Nine House Democrats joined during the weekend in a circular letter to other members, urging passage of the Senate measure, which they concede is not a perfect one.

But the Democrats said, "The House has not choice at the last minute... except to either approve the Senate bill or deny the country this badly needed reform legislation."

On the other side, Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich) called the Senate bill "a quack remedy, not only reckless but harmful." He turned a profit, because of the entertainment boom.

Why not dip into more of the oldies? Yes, even the silent. Some of the best of the cinema art was created before the screen learned to talk.

Those Old Silent Screen Epics Good Fare For TV

By BOB THOMAS
AP Motion Picture Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the nice things about having a new baby in the house is that you can catch up with the late show on TV.

Lately, Caroline and I have been watching KTTV's cavalcade of MGM greals. For five nights each week, the station presents films from the careers of Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Lana Turner, Red Skelton, etc.

Our fancy was caught this week by the Greta Garbo festival, especially Monday night's showing of "Anna Christie." The Eugene O'Neill drama has been done at least twice on live TV and recently in a Broadway musicalized version, "New Girl in Town." Yet the 29-year-old Garbo movie was still fascinating to watch.

Oh, that Marie Dressler! What an outrageous mugger she was, exploiting every trick she learned with Weber and Fields and Mack Sennette. It was a beautiful job, and I can't think of anyone today who could approach such a performance.

And Garbo was a revelation. She was not the stolid Swede legend has created. She was animated and expressive, etching a perfect portrait of the world-weary Anna.

Watching these two great artists brought this thought: How much more exciting was the film medium when actors weren't afraid to make their faces move? The old-timers were trained in silent films, when their expressions had to tell the story. Today's stars, who rely on words to convey the plot, are a dull, stone-faced lot by comparison.

Another thought: "Anna Christie" was one of the earliest talkies ("Garbo speaks" was the ad campaign). Yet it was better than most of the old movies on TV.

NEW YORK (AP) — Coppers and other nonferrous metals paced a stock market decline early this afternoon in fairly active trading. Key stocks fell from fractions to well over a point.

The coppers continued their decline of Friday when they were upset by Kennecott's dividend reduction. Chemicals also backed away considerably in a resumption of their retreat on Friday.

The steels were unchanged to slightly lower. Motors, rubbers, aircrafts, rails and utilities were among the losers.

Kenecott, which was clipped for a 3 1/2-point loss on Friday, dropped well over a point. Anaconda, American Smelting and Phelps Dodge were off about a point while Miami Copper extended its decline past the point mark.

A similar loss was shown by International Nickel. Aluminum also were hit, Alcoa and Reynolds Metals falling a point or so. Kaiser Aluminum was off a sizable fraction.

Du Pont retreated well over 2 points. Union Carbide and Allied Chemical each fell more than a point. Eastman Kodak and American Cyanamid were fractionally lower.

U.S. Steel and Republic Steel were about unchanged. Jones & Laughlin was a 1-point loser. Bethlehem lost a fraction.

Minute Maid, helped by its good earnings, moved ahead fractionally. Wide - moving Zenith fell more than 3.

In over-the-counter dealings, E. L. Bruce stock moved up to $150 bid from its bid price of 120 on Friday. Short sellers were squeezed by a situation resulting from a thin supply of the stock due to a fight for control of the company.

On the big board, other losers of about a point included Goodyear, Curtiss - Wright, Commonwealth Edison and Eastern Air Lines.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down $1.30 to $128.10 with the industrials down $2.20, the rails down 80 cents and the utilities down 30 cents.

Two Men Slain In Argument Over Woman Saturday
RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — An argument, apparently over the affections of a woman, led to gunplay here Saturday. Two Negro men were killed and three Negroes, including the woman, wounded.

Sheriff Vance Wilkins identified the dead men as Alden Proctor, 36, of Spindale and Lou Abrams, 22, of Rutherfordton.

The wounded were identified as William Abrams, brother of Lou, shot in the hand; John (Buddy) Goode Jr., shot in the head; Ernestine Long, shot in the feet. All are from the Laurel Hill area.

Wilkins said two charges of murder had been filed against Goode, being held in the Rutherfordton County jail. Goode and the woman also were charged with adultery, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Wilkins said that Proctor shot Goode with a shotgun during an argument. Goode, though wounded, returned the fire with a 22 rifle.

The woman and William Abrams were wounded in the gunplay among the other three, the sheriff said.

No personal injuries were reported by police who investigated seven traffic accidents on Greenville streets during the weekend. Six of the accidents occurred on Saturday.

Four of the collisions were minor, involving property damage less than $100.

Lee Davis Williams 31-year-old Negro of 805-A Bancroft Avenue was charged with careless and reckless driving as a result of an accident at the intersection of Skinner Street and Myrtle Avenue early Saturday afternoon. Williams' car was involved in the collision with another car being operated by James Carroll Coward, 33, of 1408 Myrtle Avenue. Damage to Coward's vehicle was estimated at $600. Officers reported $350 damage to the automobile being operated by Williams.

Property damage was heavy in a car-truck collision at Third and Pitt streets later in the afternoon. Involved were Mrs. Lorraine Wynn Whitehurst of 600 West Fourth Street and Eli Clemeth Lanier, 51, of Sneed's Ferry. Lanier was charged with failure to stop for a stop sign.

Damage to both cars was said to be $650.

Henry Staton Gurganus, 24, of Williamston Route 2 was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way by officers who investigated another Saturday accident.

The mishap occurred on North Greene Street around 9 p.m. Bobby Gene Howard, 21, of Greenville has been identified as the driver of the second car involved. According to police combined damage to both cars was estimated at $450.

Three other accidents were investigated on Saturday, all three involving property damage of less than $100. Two of the mishaps took place on North Greene Street, one at 5:50 p.m. and the second around 7 p.m. The third occurred at the intersection of Virginia and Grande avenues at 7:15 p.m.

Yesterday afternoon officers were called out to investigate a minor collision on East 10th Street.

Hammarskjold Role Is Offered UN Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — A Western-supported resolution was laid before the U.N. General Assembly emergency meeting today proposing that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold be given a new Middle East peace mission.

The new plan was whipped into final form in a busy weekend of conferences between the chief sponsor, Dept. Foreign Minister Hans Engen of Norway, and other key delegates.

The United States was not a sponsor, but informed quarters said the United States would give the proposal full support.

Locate Body Of Missing Man
BOYDTON, Va. (AP) — Mecklenburg County police indicate they have cased out their investigation into the disappearance of a 27-year-old Raleigh, N.C., restaurateur, whose decomposed body was identified yesterday.

Two former employees of Skenteris from Raleigh had the identification. Later a county medical examiner, Dr. P. H. Winston, of Clarksville, said death had been caused by drowning and that Skenteris was a "probable suicide" victim. Winston said there was no evidence of any foul play.

Mecklenburg County Sheriff C. C. Mullin said there seemed to be little else for him to do in the matter.

Skenteris left Raleigh last Nov. 20 weeks that he was headed for Winston-Salem, N.C., on a business trip. He reportedly carried $1,500 in restaurant funds.

The next day his abandoned car was found beside the dam. On the seat was an unloaded shotgun and an empty wallet.

Mullin said efforts to reach relatives of Skenteris, including the wife, believed to be in her home state of Florida, were unsuccessful.

One of those making identification yesterday was Gus Nick Makos, who said he worked for Skenteris for three years.

Skenteris' wife said at the time that her husband had been upset about something "when he left Raleigh. They had been married Nov. 10 at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Social Security Pay Hike Before House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House faces a decision on what to do about a bill that would boost payments to some 12 million persons now drawing Social Security benefits.

The question before the House is whether to accept amendments adopted by the Senate in a move to avert a possible veto by President Eisenhower.

If acceptance is voted without sending the bill to a Senate-House conference, the measure will go to the White House.

The House on July 31 passed a bill to grant a 7 per cent increase in benefits. The vote was 375-2.

The Senate last Saturday approved a similar 7 per cent benefit boost in passing a Social Security bill by a 79-0 vote. However, the Senate pared increased federal grants to the states for four public assistance programs to 197 million dollars.

As approved by the House, these grants would total 289 millions. The programs are for the needy, the aged, blind, and disabled and dependent children.

Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.), sponsor of amendments cutting the public assistance grants, said he was certain their adoption would prevent a veto.

The Eisenhower administration had been urging that the federal government reduce, not increase, its share of the assistance programs.

Despite the slash in the House-approved allocations, some senators predicted the House would accept the reduction without seeking a conference committee meeting to work out differences.

Benefit increases for retired persons and recipients of survivor and disability benefits would start in checks received next February.

Worthington and Edna Ruth Suggs, both of Greenville; and Archie Campbell Jr., Chocowinity, and Mae Gertrude O'Neal, Washington.

AFL-CIO Leaders Plot Quarantine Of Teamsters

UNITY HOUSE, Pa. (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders met today to spread tighter organized labor's quarantine against the Teamsters Union.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president said in advance that all AFL-CIO unions must end their mutual aid pacts with the giant truckers union, ousted from the federation eight months ago on corruption charges.

Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, told newsmen he was confident the AFL-CIO Executive Council would vote to require member unions to sever all ties with the Teamsters.

This is a crucial decision with most AFL-CIO unions whose bargaining power depends on Teamsters' help in respecting their picket lines to cut off deliveries and make their strikes effective.

The Teamsters have been the target of more than 18 months of corruption charges by the Senate Rackets Committee in Washington.

The truck union, headed by James R. Hoffa, has continued to cooperate with AFL-CIO member unions even after its ouster from the main body of organized labor. Many AFL-CIO unions have unashamedly accepted or courted such aid. Any formal cutting of Teamster aid, as threatened here, could result in Teamsters' retaliation that would pit union against union and dilute strike cooperation.

The issue is whether the AFL-CIO is willing to risk losing this help in dealing with employers as the price of the federation's avowed stand against union corruption.

At issue also is the status of Maurice Hutcheson, an AFL-CIO vice president and chief of the big Carpenters Union.

Hutcheson is embroiled in an Indiana state highway scandal, charges of fixing a grand jury and frittering away union funds on a book lauding the Hutcheson clan.

He inherited his union's helm from his father, the late William (Big Bill) Hutcheson.
