Fate Of Explorer V Is Mystery

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—What happened to Explorer V? The fate of the latest potential American satellite still was an apparent mystery today despite another stellar performance by the Army's "old reliable" Jupiter-C rocket.

Explorer V—the heaviest U.S. moon launched at 37½ pounds—transmitted its signal only briefly after liftoff at 1:17 a.m. yesterday.

Army scientists studied telemetry data received from the spectacular flight in an effort to determine what happened.

They know that the launching ran smoothly. All four stages of the complex Jupiter-C functioned normally, boosting the satellite to the 18,000 m.p.h. velocity needed to plot it into orbit.

A clear Explorer signal was monitored for seven minutes at Ft. Monmouth, N.J. It gradually faded away six hours later. The Defense Department announced the satellite was not in orbit.

U.S. scientists hoped Explorer V would tell them more about a dense expanse of deadly radiation starting about 600 miles up. It extends far into the unknown. Man must be adequately protected against this radiation before starting adventures in space.

The radiation band is being investigated by Explorer IV, which blazed into an orbit July 26. Preliminary information shows that the intensity and energy of the rays are much more severe than was expected.

The equipment in Explorer V was changed slightly from its predecessor to take a closer look at this radiation phenomena at higher altitudes.

Scientists speculate that the radiation—type still unknown—could kill an unprotected man in from 4½ hours to a few weeks time.

The Defense Department announced that despite the failure, the Jupiter-C has earned the nickname of "Old Reliable" because of its performance in five satellite launches.

The 70-foot rocket now has a record of three complete successes in five attempts to put a satellite into orbit. It appeared to perform satisfactorily on all five shots.

Two of the Explorers—I and IV—still are whirling around the globe in the company of the Navy's Vanguard sphere and the Soviet Sputnik III.

Fewer Cases Of Polio In State

RALEIGH (AP)—Through Aug. 15 100 fewer polio cases were reported in North Carolina than for the same period last year.

The State Board of Health reported 43 cases for the 7½ months this year, compared to 144 cases during the same portion of 1957.

Twelve of this year's cases came in during the week which ended Aug. 16. Late summer and early fall are traditionally the months when polio is most prevalent.

Polio involving paralysis has been low both this year and in 1957. Only 23 paralytic cases were reported up to Aug. 15 last year, and 11 cases for the same period this year.

British Police Move To Avert Another Night Of Race Battles

LONDON (AP)—Emergency squads of policemen patrolled sections of London and Nottingham today in the wake of Britain's worst race violence in years.

With trained police dogs at their sides, police moved to head off the stabbings, slashings of beatings that terrorized two communities over the weekend.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The Chinese Communists today slacked off their attacks on the offshore Quemoy and Tan Islands after a week-end of massive bombardment and air and sea activity that aroused fears it was the curtain raiser for Red invasion.

The Nationalists reported turning back a seaborne Communist attempt to seize the island outpost of Tungting, 17 miles south of Quemoy, last night.

Chiang Kai-shek's forces also claimed their planes shot down two MIGs in a dogfight over Quemoy last night between 48 MIGs and an undisclosed number of Nationalist jets. It was the largest number of Communist planes so far reported in action at one time over the Formosa Strait.

After plastering the islands with nearly 80,000 artillery shells Saturday and yesterday in the heaviest barrage of the vest-pocket war, the guns on the adjacent Communist territory fired only 2,800 rounds during a four-hour bombardment this morning and another 22 shells in as many minutes during the afternoon.

The Nationalist Defense Ministry said the defenders' guns replied vigorously but did not disclose the volume of counterfire.

The U.S. Defense Department ordered the 7th Fleet and other American naval forces in the Far East to take normal precautionary defense measures "in light of the increased activity in the Taiwan (Formosa) Straits."

The U.S. Navy also announced that combined U.S.-Nationalist Chinese naval exercises would be held early next month to promote "close working relations" between the two forces.

The United States is pledged by treaty to defend Formosa and the neighboring Pescadore Islands. As regards Quemoy and the other offshore islands, the Eisenhower administration has followed a policy designed to keep the Reds in doubt whether the 7th Fleet would also go into action if the Communists tried to take them.

Defense spokesmen said Nationalist warships beat back two Communist moves toward Tungting. First navy units clashed with four Red gunboats and six landing craft. An hour later the Nationalists encountered five Red gunboats and 30 armed motorized junks.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today hurriedly ordered one of its special sessions for Thursday, Aug. 28, to consider the Little Rock, Ark., school segregation case.

With an eye on the calendar, Chief Justice Warren called the high court back from summer vacation to step into the touchy case just five days before schools reopen in Little Rock Sept. 2.

Just a year ago, violence erupted when nine Negroes enrolled in Little Rock's Central High School under a federal court order for racial integration.

Before the nine Supreme Court justices when they take the bench at noon Thursday will be an application of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. NAACP wants the Supreme Court to overrule a District Court at Little Rock which granted a 2½-year delay in desegregation.

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis issued an order voiding this delay, but then granted a stay of its order until the Supreme Court could rule.

The Supreme Court, in calling the extraordinary session, invited U.S. Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin to file a brief and take part in the arguments. That might put the administration squarely on record on the segregation issue and the legal entanglements surrounding it.

Eisenhower has called on all Americans to comply with federal court orders, and has urged state governments to "suppress unlawful forces." But he has declined to say whether he personally believes the Supreme Court decision outlawing separation of Negroes and whites in schools was wise.

A Justice Department spokesman said high-level conferences got under way immediately after Warren summoned a special session. Officials withheld any announcement.

Warren announced the special session after consulting the other court members.

"The petitioners have filed with Mr. Justice Whitaker an application for vacation of the order of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 8th Circuit staying the issuance of its mandate, and for a stay of the order of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern district of Arkansas of June 21, 1958," it said.

"Mr. Justice Whitaker deeming it more appropriate for the full court to pass upon such a motion, the Chief Justice, after consultation with other members of the court, has called a special term of the court for Thursday, Aug. 28, at noon, to consider this application.

Special terms are not unprecedented but they are a rarity. The most recent such session was the one called to pass on the appeal of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, later executed as Soviet spies.

Only an issue rated as tremendously important, or as presenting a question which must be settled before the expiration of a time limit, calls the Supreme Court back from summer vacation.

In the Little Rock case the time limit is the Sept. 2 opening date of the new school term.

As the session of the high tribunal was called, members of the Arkansas State Legislature streamed into Little Rock prepared to empower Gov. Orval E. Faubus to close Central High School if the federal government tries to integrate it for a second year.

The current litigation over integration at Central High stems from the action of the U.S. District Court in Little Rock in granting a 2½-year stay of a previous order for desegregation.

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeals threw out that order, and then on the application of the school board stayed the execution of its own ruling pending action by the Supreme Court.

Justice Whitaker, who has jurisdiction over appeals from 8th Circuit matters while the Supreme Court is in recess, has voiced the opinion that one justice could pass on the NAACP application for cancellation of the integration delay.

High Estimates

Record enrollments are expected for Pitt County schools which begin their 1958-1959 term Wednesday morning.

An estimated 7,502 Negro students and 5,970 white students are expected to enroll for classes at the county's 28 schools. The estimates are based on last year's enrollment and registrations of new students through pre-school clinics.

All of the county's schools will operate on half-day schedules through Friday. Full schedules will begin next Monday.

Over Three Inches Of Rain Here

No Flooding Problems In Saturday's Deluge As Drainage Projects Pay Off

Rain came in buckets Saturday afternoon but improvements made in the city's drainage system greatly helped several of the old flood spots.

That was the word from city officials this morning.

The Greenville Utilities weather station reported that 2.23 inches of precipitation was dumped on the city during Saturday afternoon's downpour.

However, City Manager Leonard Bloxam said he had not heard of any problems where drainage work has been done.

A good portion of the storm drainage for which funds were voted in a bond election has been carried out.

Included was a project to clean, widen and straighten Greene Mill Run. This stream, which runs along Tenth St. and then to the Tar River, has exceeded its banks on a number of occasions when rainfall was heavy.

In recent months the planned work on the stream has been done and Bloxam said the run did not exceed its banks as a result of the storm.

Another trouble spot was at Tenth and Clark Sts. where heavy rains generally have flooded the major Tenth St. thoroughfare.

Recently additional storm drainage has been installed at the intersection and no problems arose there Saturday.

The city manager also said as far as he could learn the Norfolk and Southern underpass on Dickinson Ave. stayed clear of water Saturday afternoon.

He said some work has been done which should have helped the flood situation at that point and more is to be done.

The principal work so far which possibly helped in that area was diverting some of the water which once ran toward the underpass into a ditch in the Higgs area near the U. S. 13 bypass.

The city's streets received little damage in the storm, according to Bloxam. The only major trouble he had heard of was at the culvert on Tenth St. where college steam pipes have recently been laid to the new property south of Tenth.

The cut in the pavement had been filled and the street opened to traffic but the heavy rainfall washed it out. The street was closed to traffic again.

The Utilities Commission reported no major trouble resulting from the storm. There were several interruptions of service to individual homes but no major circuits were reported out.

Saturday's rain ushered in an overcast weekend for the county. The sun shone for a period yesterday but during the night clouds rolled in again and this morning a steady rain was falling once more.

High temperature for Sunday was 91 degrees and the low last night was 78 degrees. At 8 a.m. Monday the thermometer stood at 79 degrees.

The Tar River stood at the three-foot mark today.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Temperatures averaging a little below normal through Saturday. Rainfall is expected to run about an inch inland, one to two inches near the coast starting tonight, over most of state about Thursday.

Sunday Wedding Unites Keeter-Liverman In Winterville

Today's Menu

Sliced Meat Potato Sticks

Green Beans with Pineapple

Apricot Cake Beverage

APRICOT CAKE FRANCES

Ingredients: 1 can (1 pound) unpeeled apricot halves (in light syrup), 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ¼ cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar, ¼ cup sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon double-acting baking powder, salt, 2 eggs (separated), ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 4 teaspoons water, apricot sauce, heavy cream.

Method: Drain apricots, reserving juice. Melt butter in heat-resistant glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1½ inches); sprinkle brown sugar evenly over melted butter; arrange drained apricots, cavity side up, over sugar. Sift together the flour, baking powder and a dash of salt. Beat eggs with rotary beater (hand or electric) until foamy; beat in ¼ cup of the sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time; continue heating until peaks will stand straight up when beater is slowly withdrawn. Without washing beater, beat egg yolks and remaining ¼ cup sugar until thick and pale colored; beat in vanilla and water. Fold sifted dry ingredients into egg yolk mixture; fold in egg whites. Spread over apricots. Bake in moderate (350° degrees) oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 30 to 35 minutes. Place pan on cake rack for 10 minutes so sugar will set; turn out on platter. Serve warm with Apricot sauce and garnish of whipped cream. After turning out, cake may be reheated on foil, place in slow oven until warm through and slightly toasted.

APRICOT SAUCE

Stir 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ cup sugar and a dash of salt together thoroughly in a 1-quart saucepan. Gradually add reserved apricot juice, a little at a time, stirring until smooth after each addition. Add 2 tablespoons strained orange juice and 1½ teaspoons strained lemon juice. Cook and stir constantly over moderately low heat until clear and slightly thickened. Stir in 1 teaspoon grated orange rind.

Iredell Home Improvement Contest Shows Good Results

By VIRGINIA B. NANCE

"Home Improvement Contest" has been the phrase on many 4-H Club members' lips in Iredell County since January of this year, for it was at that time that opportunity was offered 4-Hers for participating.

According to Mrs. Martha C. Archer, assistant home demonstration agent, any 4-Hers who agreed to abide by the rules of the contest was eligible to participate and compete for prizes.

At the official close of the contest June 15, there were at least 15 4-Hers who had completed home improvement projects and many more who did minor improvements. And these 15 judged to determine which youngsters had done the best jobs of improving any room in their homes with a minimum of expenditure.

The only requirements were that good planning be done with approval of parents and agents, that the 4-Her himself do as much of the work as possible, that just one room be selected for improvement, and that accurate records of expenditures and time spent be kept by the participant.

There were three Iredell 4-Hers who merged victorious after the judging, with their efforts being pinpointed as deserving special recognition.

First place in the senior division went to D. E. White, Jr., 17, Statesville, N. C., who remodeled the kitchen in his home, transforming it from a drab, colorless, inefficient kitchen to a modern, cheerful, efficient place for meal preparation.

D. E. had a dual motive for selecting this particular room to remodel. First, he wanted to improve it for his mother's enjoyment, but he also did it for his own pleasure. According to his mother D. E. has been cooking since he was 10 years old.

Living on a 78-acre farm has provided a number of challenges to D. E. in his 4-H Club Work. His concern for the welfare of the farm led him to take soil and water conservation as a 4-H project and in 1957 he was named state and national winner. He and his brother, Jerry, have built up their farm into a Grade A Dairy with a herd of 24 dairy animals.

He has also been state winner in public speaking, farmer cooperative demonstration state winner, and state winner in Dairy demonstration. He attended National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago in 1957.

In addition to D. E.'s active eight years in 4-H Club Work, he graduated as valedictorian of his class from Iredell's Central High School this year and will enter N. C. State College this fall.

Some of the improvements which won the radio for D. E. in the contest included correcting four major problems: drab, unattractive walls and floors, inadequate light, refrigerator located in utility room, and inadequate cabinets for work and storage space.

One of the best planning ideas D. E. used was in creating a way to bring the refrigerator into the kitchen without taking up valuable space in the small room. So he recessed the refrigerator in the old door space and moved the door over beside it. "This required many hours of work," D. E. pointed out, "but it has already paid off in added convenience and step-saving for mother."

He also built all the cabinets, installed a new double sink, laid rubber plastic floor tile, put up sheet rock on the walls, and painted the kitchen. His improvement expenses came to $329.64 with 238 hours spent. He had some help from his mother, daddy, brother and uncle amounting to 78 additional hours.

First place in the Junior division of the contest was a tie between two 11-year-old 4-H Club members. One was Edward Lee Gallihier, Harmony, N. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tobe Gallihier, Jr., who chose to remodel his bedroom.

Major improvements made by Eddie and his father included sheet rock for the walls, pine flooring, ceiling for the ceiling, and painting. The bed was home made, but they purchased a new mattress, refinished an antique dresser, and made draperies.

"We have other plans for my room," says Eddie, "because Daddy hopes to build a closet later. But the total cost of fixing my room was $162.41, and I'm very proud of it."

The other junior winner was 11-year-old Judy Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Walker, Stony Point, N. C. "When I heard about the contest," Judy said, "I decided to enter it. I talked it over with my parents, and they agreed that I could have the little room at the top of the stairs that we called our 'junk room.' It was a small 9-foot square with one door and a small double window and it was packed full of odds and ends."

Judy worked very hard to fix a room all her own. First, she moved everything out of the room and removed the wall paper. Her bed was too small for a big one. They finally found just the right mattress for a built-in bed to be used as a couch in the day time.

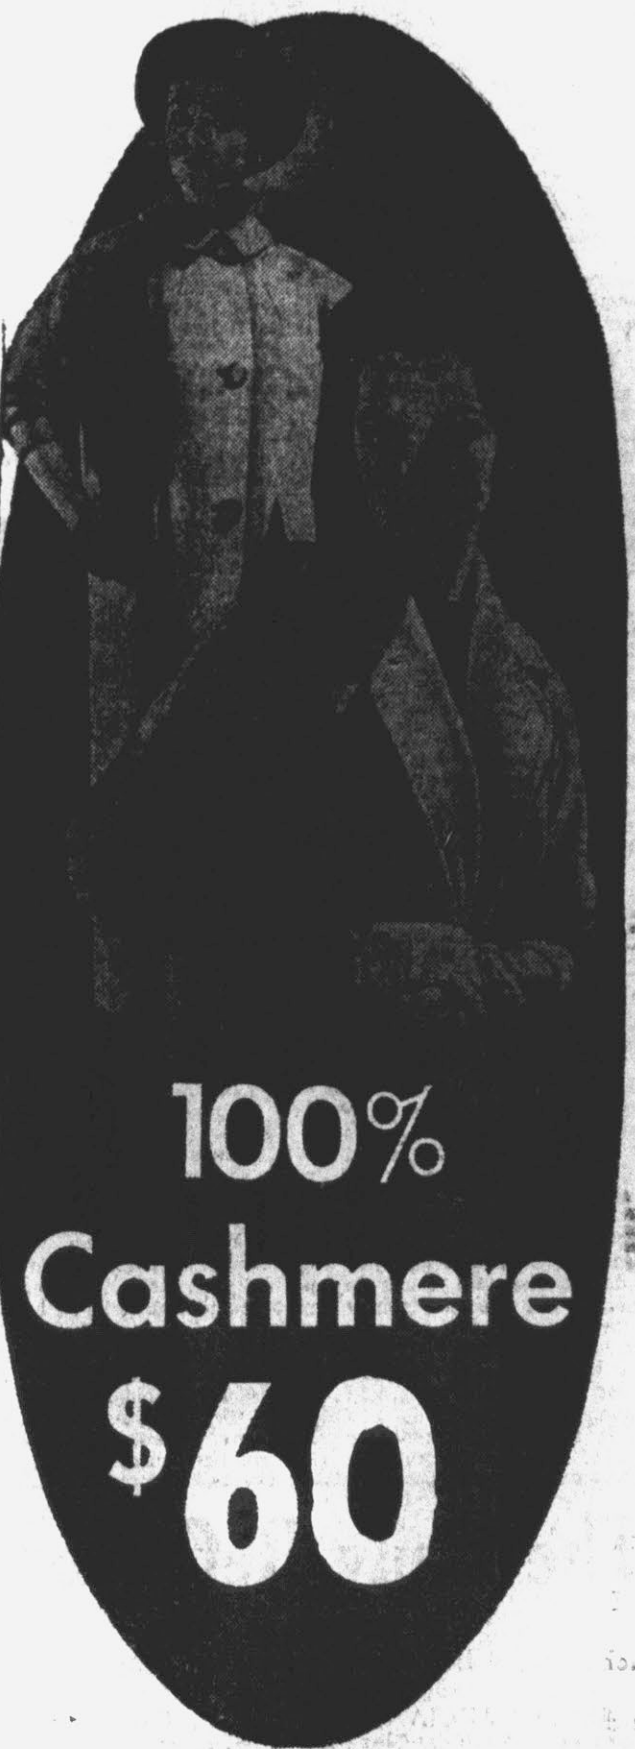

When she painted, Judy said, "I put two coats of white paint on die and his father included sheet rock for the walls, pine flooring, ceiling for the ceiling, and painting. The bed was home made, but they purchased a new mattress, refinished an antique dresser, and made draperies."

Other improvements included a linoleum rug for the floor, making a bedspread and curtains to match, and building in a storage unit along one wall. The total cost of her project came to only $41.12.

God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen

It took some straining, but Congress adjourned over the weekend as hoped. There was the usual frenzied action to wrap up all the major loose ends before weary lawmakers called it a day.

The process calls to mind again oft-expressed fears that unwise compromise may enter the picture in that rush to adjourn. Such matters as lawmaking and appropriating are the very crux of the business at hand in those final days. The pile-up of last minute measures incurs considerable headshaking and doubts as to chances of meeting adjournment deadline. Ordinary sideline observers can only conclude there must be a considerable amount of cutting corners, bypassing some action that can be put aside for another day, the acceptance of some provisions . . . "splitting the differences" for the sake of harmony . . . the attachment of riders to legislation generally believed to pass in a breeze . . . all in the name of meeting a deadline.

Yet, somehow it all seems to work out surprisingly well.

The Ship of State keeps clear of reefs and shoals, when squalls appear the sails are always trimmed; and while it doesn't always hit its destined port right on the nose, the navigation is good enough to keep its passengers reasonably happy.

Any carping over the course of Congress is modified by tacit recognition it "scored" over and over again on other fronts.

And whenever people belittle politicians, the sting is missing because even the critics know their politicians are generally doing a remarkable job which themselves couldn't do.

That's why, despite dissatisfaction with some facets of the recently adjourned session of Congress, The Reflector isn't going to knock the over-all product. In fact, the accomplishments far overshadow a number of other sessions we can recall.

So, God rest ye merry, gentlemen; mend your fences, listen and council well at the grass roots, plan well for all the tomorrows.

One Rival The 'Big E' Could Not Overcome

Americans enshrine a host of things that were a part of their country's past. Sometimes an old battle-ship is preserved; or it might be an old ship . . . airplanes . . . documents . . . estates . . . modest homes . . . pioneer endeavors that ultimately spelled success.

Some things seem as though they can't be too little to be preserved as a part of the peoples' heritage. It is sad to note circumstances have prevented one great symbol of the past from being preserved: the aircraft carrier Enterprise.

She was a mighty ship. An epitome of the power, courage, resources thrown into the great Pacific War.

The Enterprise fought in twenty major battles and emerged from each with glory. When the going was rough, the "Big E" seemed always to do more than her share.

During some crucial years The Enterprise represented the last word in seapower. Now obsolete, the gallant warship is being dismantled for junk.

Unlike so many of our other treasured relics, she was too much of a white elephant; saving her would have cost a fortune that might better go to other purposes.

Her name is still very much alive in the minds of Americans, but future history books may only mention her in passing, if at all.

So dies an unconquered giant of history's greatest war.

The enemy couldn't kill the Enterprise; time did it for them.

In Which The Days Of Summer Are Numbered

You awake to the realization our hot summer days are nearing their end

When the hour of dusk begins to come appreciably earlier;

When some trees first begin to shed a few leaves;

When news sources begin to report low temperatures in the northern tier of states;

When the excitement of the tobacco market's opening subsides;

When television networks unveil formats for the coming new season;

When schools prepare to open again;

When farsighted mothers begin to plan cold-weather needs of their offspring.

The days of summer are numbered.

More Favorable Business News

By RALPH ROBEY
More and more favorable business news is coming to light. For example:

1. In July, according to the Department of Commerce, personal income rose from the previous month by about $2.5 billion. Of the increase, $1 billion was in private industry wages and salaries, reflecting moderate reflecting moderately higher employment hours and wages. Another $1 billion resulted from government civilian workers. The other $1.5 billion was in transfer payments, largely veterans and social security benefits. The total on an annual rate was $354.5 billion as against a recession low last February of $346.4 billion.

2. Private housing starts continued their upward climb and in July were at an annual rate of 1,160,000, the highest level in two and one half years. For the first seven months of this year the total has been at an annual rate of 1,014,000. The comparable figure last year was 970,000. The primary cause of the increase has been a plentiful supply of mortgage money. The estimate for the year still is being held at 1.1 million starts. Other construction also is making new high records.

3. Industrial production as measured by the Federal Reserve index advanced another two percentage points in July to 133. The June figure was revised upward one point to 131. The low was last April at 126. This index uses 1947-49 as equal to 100, and price changes do not affect it. There is a substantial seasonal corrective for July and many observers had believed that it would not be enough to keep the index from falling. The higher figure, therefore, is especially encouraging.

4. On the basis of preliminary reports it appears that business profits tended to level out in the second quarter. It had been anticipated that they would show a further drop of appreciable proportions. If final reports bear out the preliminary figures it will mean that business had done an extraordinary job of cutting expense and increasing efficiency. State of profits in the second quarter would indicate the probability of an increase in the third quarter, although the total would still be well below a year earlier. Dividends have held up remarkably well — much better ter than customary in such a recession.

5. Both employment and unemployment for the month ending July 13 were a bit disappointing. Employment increased about 200,000 and unemployment dropped 143,000 to 5.3 million. Both figures on the surface appear favorable but the normal seasonal change for this period is appreciably larger. Unemployment for example, for purely seasonal reasons, should have declined around 500,000. Employment was less than expected because of bad weather.

6. Government spending continues to increase. The total of Federal, state and local rose on a seasonally adjusted annual rate from about $114 billion in the third quarter of last year to $125 billion in the second quarter of this year.

Revenues declined in the same period by $3 billion. The net result was that, whereas there was an overall surplus of some $3 billion in the third quarter of last year, there was a deficit of over $12 billion in the second quarter of 1958 on an annual basis.

7. The Federal Reserve System has made two moves to lessen the danger of inflation. The first was an increase in the margin for stock trading from 50 to 70 per cent. In other words, where before one was required to put up only $50 in order to buy $100 worth of stock, he is now required to put up $70.

The second was an increase in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco; and, on the basis of experience, it is assumed the other Reserve Banks also will increase their rates. Back of this change is the conviction of the Federal Reserve authorities that the recession hit its low point in April and that the problem now is inflation. Raising the rediscount rate tends to tighten money rates in general and hold down the expansion of loans.

These seven items are all of broad importance. They can be supplemented by many of lesser scope. Small wonder, therefore, more and more people are convinced that business is on the upgrade and the only remaining question is how fast the recovery will be. It should be noted, however, that some analysts still want to see the reception of the new automobile models before committing themselves to the statement that the recession is over.

For Today

WHAT ABOUT THAT COMPASS?

No sailor would, for a single moment, think of venturing out of a harbor without a compass. Furthermore, if he is going on any extended voyage, he wants to keep in very close contact with the stars. His eyes more often are raised to the heavens in a long voyage than they are to the horizons.

Yet millions of people go through life without the aid of a compass. They have no pole star toward which the whole of their lives points. They make off after the other craft, no matter where these foolish captains and their crews may be heading. Since everybody is doing it, that, of course, is the thing for us to do.

But even more serious is the indisposition of human beings to look to the heavens for guidance. Neither the stars nor what is above the stars mean much to multitudes of people until they find themselves in trouble. Then when the heavy hand of the law rests upon them or upon their loved ones, when a spouse or a child is stricken with illness, when the creditors have served notice that they will foreclose on a certain day unless payment is made—then these people look up frantically to the heavens and beseech a God, whom up to that time, they have thought practically nothing about.

Navigation is a fine art—both through the world's oceans and the world's life. And navigation depends on the compass and on the stars.

Long Range Buying

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Please do not ask me if, after buying land in Florida, California, or elsewhere in the South or Southwest, you can sell it at a profit if you later decide you don't want to build on it or use it.

SUCH LAND IS GOOD SECURITY

Let me first say that at this time whatever you buy — land, stocks, bonds, or a small business — you should buy for cash. This, in my humble opinion, is not yet the time to borrow money in order to buy anything for a "quick turn" or profit. However, I may be wrong and I hope I am wrong.

On the other hand, for those people who will be retiring on pensions in the North, I believe it is a good protection to own a well-located lot in a warm climate. But be sure to buy this as you would buy life insurance — for protection, not profit. And make sure you see the land before you buy it.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

My reason for not now "buying for profit" is because we have no control over the market when we wish to sell. When we buy anything, today we are "sitting in the driver's seat," but this is not so when we sell. The price which we get when we sell will depend upon the real value of the property, but upon how many other people want to sell similar property at the same time. This we cannot control.

This explains a basic trouble with business today. The supply of both goods and labor, at the present time, exceeds the demand. This especially applies to the automobile industry. Priming the pump, reducing taxes, or trying other artificial gimmicks will not restore prosperity. But, as soon as demand again equals supply, we will once more have full employment. The same applies to selling land or lots for a profit. Our own property ultimately depends upon the other fellow, — that is, upon what he wants.

PRICES AND WAGES

The usual method for bringing about an increase in demand for goods is to lower prices. According to the newspaper advertisements of today, it appears that retailers are now really cutting prices and that there are true bargains. These, however, vary in different localities. Customers should "shop" to see for themselves. President Eisenhower advises everyone to buy more; but he does not say "where" or "when." He leaves that for you to find out.

Forgive me for so often referring to the "Good Book" — but the Bible has gradually been built up on the experiences of the ages, — some 3500 years. If you will turn to the third chapter of Ecclesiastes in your Bible, you will find it says that there is a time for everything. Therefore, we should recognize the reality of the business cycle and time our moves accordingly. We must now bring business and employment into balance. This, of course, means that as prices decline, labor should be willing to accept lower wages. Restoring prosperity is no "one-way" street.

BEST STOCKS TO OWN

The law of supply and demand applies equally to land, commodities, and labor. The wage-worker must be willing to take less money home for a few months and the builder and the retailer must be equally ready to reduce prices. I urge wage-workers do not now freely accept lower wages. They must suffer from partial unemployment. There is no halfway solution. Neither the President of the United States nor the president of any powerful labor union can, in the long run, upset the basic law of supply and demand. I urge readers to turn again to Ecclesiastes, the third chapter.

"How can the wageworker buy goods if he is unemployed?" you ask. I reply that he can do so with his unemployment insurance and, if necessary, by withdrawing some of the savings which he has been "storing up for a rainy day." This gives a hint to investors as to the best type of stocks to own, viz., "Own stocks of companies that supply goods which people must buy, whether they are employed or unemployed."

The 'Balkanized' United States

By ELMER ROESSNER

Let's suppose you invent a brick that weighs a fourth as much as an ordinary brick and supports four times as much weight. Let's suppose it is four times more resistant to weather, acid, abrasion and other corrosives.

Make a million, eh? Nah.

Unless they were edible, the bricks would largely stack up in your yard. Nobody would buy them. Reason?

Building codes. These United States are largely Balkanized. Cities, counties and states specify what materials can be used in buildings and how structures may be put together.

FACING THE FACTS

A new product is rarely acceptable until the guardians of the code approve of it. And — let's face it — there is seldom approval, unless the courts intervene or officials, union leaders, fixers, contractors and other pressure groups are satisfied. And satisfaction is often achieved only by payoff.

One city — which now has a decent building and plumbing code — once required every water outlet to have a direction connection with the water main. As a result, basements in Cleveland, Ohio, often looked like spaghetti bowls. Plumbers and contractors loved this, and waxed fat. However, the city has since modernized its code.

Similar code depressants exist elsewhere. A house that costs $10,079 in Philadelphia costs $11,731 in Pittsburgh, the Federal Housing Administration says. Reason: building codes that require extra extras.

A house built in Middleton, N. J., would cost $2,000 more than the same house built five miles away on Staten Island.

HOPE GLIMMERS AHEAD

Some communities are doing something about it. Many have adopted standard plumbing and electrical codes. Others have adopted one of the several, and similar, building codes. However, codes reflecting sanitation and medical thinking that predated Pasteur still exist.

In addition, House & Home is waging a vigorous campaign against unnecessary requirements in home building. It gathered some of the leading authorities into a round-table discussion and developed a plan by which those interested can promote acceptance of standard codes.

Henry R. Luce, editor of H&H as well as some other magazines, and Admiral George F. Hussey, Jr., managing director of the American Standards Association, drew up a program for local action.

The program, however, is a soft-glove thing. It suggests getting the women and serious thinkers of the communities together to push for reform.

Nowhere does it suggest an attack upon the labor racketeers, the venal contractors, dishonest suppliers who have converged on simple-minded city councilmen, county supervisors and state legislators and persuaded or bribed them to maintain codes that create extra sales for suppliers, extra work for union employees, and extra charges on the sucker who buys a house whose price is jacked up by the code racketeers.

WHO CAN AFFORD TO BE A VETERAN THESE DAYS?

A New York bank has discontinued its dinners for employees who have reached the 25-year mark in service. The reason: many employees sent thankful regrets. The reason behind the reason: they didn't want to be classed with the old fogies.

Army Has Large Family Of Rockets To Fill A Variety Of Requirements

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a series of articles dealing with United States Army Guided Missiles and Rockets. This information comes to The Daily Reflector through the courtesy of Sergeant Aubrey E. Kidd the local United States Army Recruiter.

Glossary
Ballistic Missile — A vehicle whose flight path from burn-out of engine to impact is "free flight" like that of an artillery projectile. It is subject to gravitation and drag, and it may or may not perform maneuvers to modify or correct the flight path.
Beacon Radar — A combined radar receiver and transmitter which receives (interrogation) from a radar and returns similar pulses (response) which enable determination of bearing and range.
Booster — An auxiliary power system which travels with the missile giving it an initial boost; it may or may not separate from the missile when its power has been delivered.
Computer — A mechanism which solves mathematical problems involving firing and navigational data.
Guidance — The entire process of directing a missile and maintaining the missile on a specified path.
Guidance, Beam Rider — A guidance system in which equipment aboard the missile enables it to sense its location relative to a radar beam and correct its course, seeking out and following the path made by the radar beam.
Guidance, Command — A system whereby a missile's movement is guided by electronic commands from an outside source.
Guidance, Homing — A system in which a missile steers toward a target due to some distinguishing characteristic of the target, such as sound, heat, light, or radar reflectors.
Guidance, Inertial — A system in which all guidance components are located within the missile. These components include devices to maintain the missile on a desired path by noting and compensating for outside influences such as crosswinds.
Guidance, Preset — A technique of missile control wherein a predetermined path is set into the control mechanism of the vehicle and cannot be adjusted after launching.
Guided Missile — An unmanned vehicle whose trajectory is capable of being altered by a mechanism within the vehicle.
Intermediate Ballistic Missile (ICBM) — A ballistic missile which has a range of approximately 5,000 nautical miles.
Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile (IRBM) — A ballistic missile which has a range of approximately 1,500 nautical miles.
Jet Propulsion — The thrust resulting from the ejection of gas from within the propelled body.
Missile — A propelled unmanned vehicle which travels above the earth's surface.
Propellant — As applied to large missiles, the material which if suitably ignited changes into a larger volume of hot gases capable of propelling a rocket or other projectile.

Ramjet — A jet-propulsion device which depends for its operation on the air compression accomplished by the forward motion of the unit.
Rocket — A thrust-producing system or a complete missile which derives its thrust from ejection of hot gases generated from material carried in the system, not requiring intake of air or water.
Sonic — Velocity that is equal to the speed of sound, in air at sea level.
Subsonic — A velocity that is less than the local speed of sound.
Supersonic — A velocity that is greater than the local speed of sound.
Thrust — The "push" obtained by exhausting material backward, that lifts or accelerates a rocket. Trust is expressed in pounds of force.
The Redstone
 The Redstone is the largest surface-to-surface ballistic guided missile operational in the western alliance.
 The team that developed the range ballistic missile system developed by the Army, to be used by the Air Force. It is now in production and the first operational Jupiter units are scheduled for December 1958.

 A high degree of mobility permits a greater secrecy for the launching sites. It has a range of approximately 1,500 nautical miles and is about 60 feet long. The Jupiter is liquid fueled and will carry a nuclear warhead. Note: The Jupiter should not be confused with the Jupiter C, workhorse of the Army, used to launch the first American satellite Explorer I, and Explorers II, III and IV.
The Redstone
 The Redstone is the largest surface-to-surface ballistic guided missile operational in the western alliance.
 The team that developed the Redstone is unsurpassed in the free world. Named for the place of development, Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Alabama, the Redstone can deliver an atomic projectile. It is highly accurate up to 200 miles. It is approximately 70 feet long and has a self-contained guidance system. It is launched vertically from a mobile platform. It rises slowly but accelerates to several times the speed of sound. As the Redstone rises controls cause it to tilt and head for the target. When the right speed is reached outside the earth's atmosphere, the rocket engine shuts off and the missile coasts.

 This concludes the first of four articles on missiles, brought to you by this newspaper with the cooperation of Sergeant Kidd the local US Army Recruiter. The second article will appear next week.

Janet Leigh In 3-Car Pile-Up

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Janet Leigh, who expects her second child in November, was shaken in a three-car traffic pileup. Also jarred in the accident yesterday were her husband, actor Tony Curtis; Singer Dean Martin and his wife Jean, and songwriter Sammy Cahn and his wife Gloria.
 Following in another car were Frank Sinatra and comedian Ernie Kovacs and his wife, actress Edie Adams. The group was returning from a dinner party at the Santa Monica home of actor Peter Lawford.
 Miss Leigh was treated for shock. She rested at home today. Police said Robert Seddon caused the mishap when he used his car as a battering ram against an auto in which he thought he saw his wife Patricia with another man. Seddon's car careened into the Curtis convertible, officers said.
 When police arrived, Sinatra was standing up in his convertible

Set Dec. 1 Deadline In Raising Five Millions

DURHAM (AP) — The North Carolina Methodist Conference has set itself a Dec. 1 deadline for raising five million dollars to help Christian higher education in the state.
 Plans for the campaign were outlined here yesterday before the close of the annual laymen's retreat for Methodist men. About 700 attended.
 The Rev. Paul Carruth of Raleigh, head of the campaign and executive director of the Methodist Commission on Higher Education, said two million dollars calling, "May day, may day," his car as a battering ram over his auto telephone. His friends said he was contacting UCLA Medical Center to arrange treatment for Miss Leigh.
 Seddon, 39, of Santa Monica was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon—his car.
 Other amounts include $450,000 for Louisville College, $100,000 for Duke University Divinity School and $150,000 to the various Wesleyan Foundation chapters at state colleges of the five million would go to support High Point and Greensboro colleges, and for expenses connected with the campaign.
 President L. Stacy Weaver of Methodist College said that two weeks ago the contract was let for the first building. W. Jasper Smith, vice president and business manager of North Carolina Wesleyan, said the contract has been let for the college's heating plant, utility mains are being laid and campus roads are being constructed.
 Cecil Robbins, president of Louisville College, said the money earmarked for that college will go toward construction of all-glass auditorium and library. Divinity School facilities will be expanded, said Duke President Hollis Edens.
 Edwin L. Jones of Charlotte, prominent Methodist layman and Charlotte contractor, told the group Saturday that a current resurgence of lay interest in the Methodist church must be "fanned into the flaming zeal that the early Methodists possessed."
 Dr. Paul N. Garber, presiding bishop of the conference, said that laymen in recent years have been playing a larger role in the making of ministerial appointments. He asked, in this regard, for a "spirit of fairness to our preachers and congregations."

Bob Friend On Way To 20 Games

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh's youth-minded Pirates, en route to their first finish in the first division in 10 years, are almost certain to have a 20-game pitcher this season. He is Bob Friend, the oldest Pirate in point of service.

The 27-year-old right-hander has 17 victories, more than any other National League hurler. He was credited with the Pirates' 3-4 first game triumph over St. Louis yesterday although he gave way to Elroy Face after seven innings. St. Louis won the second game 12-8. The Pirates are one percentage point behind the second-place Giants.

A workhorse, Friend already has pitched 215 innings, second only to Milwaukee's Warren Spahn. Although he has lost 13 games, most in the league, he already has equaled his top winning mark (17-17 in 1956). In seven previous years, he has had only one winning season — 14-9 in 1955.

In other games, Milwaukee increased its first-place margin over San Francisco to seven games, defeating the Giants 8-5 in 10 innings. Cincinnati nipped Los Angeles 6-5 and Philadelphia swept a double-header from Chicago 13-8 and 5-3. The second game was called after eight innings because of darkness.

Bill Mazeroski and Hank Foiles drove in two runs each for Pittsburgh in the opener. In the nightcap, Stan Musial's pinch single in the eighth ignited a five-run inning and enabled the Cards to overcome an 8-7 deficit. Joe Cunningham and Irv Noren drove in runs with singles. Gene Green doubled in another and Frank Thomas' will throw added home more for St. Louis. Ken Boyer hit a three-run homer earlier for the winners.

In the American League, the New York Yankees gained a split with Detroit, winning the second game 3-2 after the Tigers had won the opener 8-3. Boston took two from Kansas City, 14-3 and 3-2 in 11 innings. Cleveland thrashed Washington 9-1, and Baltimore defeated Chicago 5-2.

Hank Aaron smashed a two-run homer in the 10th as Milwaukee snapped a 5-5 tie. The Braves added another run off Red Worthington on Joe Adcock's double and singles by Andy Pafko and Johnny Logan. Leon Wagner hit his third homer in four days for the Giants.

Frank Robinson's two-out home run in the ninth after Johnny Temple had led off with a double, gave Cincinnati a come-from-behind 6-5 victory over Los Angeles. Don Zimmer hit a three-run homer for the Dodgers.

Ed Bouchee slammed a home run in each game in Philadelphia's double triumph over the Cubs. His first came with the bases loaded to high-light a seven-run outburst in the seventh inning.

Pinch hitter Rip Repulski also homered in the opener with two on. Wally Post and Willie Jones batted in two runs apiece as the Phillies came from behind in the second game with four tallies in the eighth to give relief pitcher Jack Sanford his eighth triumph. "First baseman Jim Marshall, purchased from Baltimore Saturday, kept the Cubs alive in both games. He hit two homers and a single in the first game and came through with a home run and single in the second.

BATTING: Hank Aaron, Braves — Aaron's two-run homer in the tenth inning snapped a 5-5 tie with San Francisco and led to Milwaukee's 8-5 triumph. Aaron singled in the tying run in the fifth.

PITCHING: Frank Lary, Tigers — Lary allowed New York six hits in Detroit's 8-3 first game victory for his sixth triumph over the Yankees this season. The Yankees came back to win the second game 3-2.

Tennis Committee Facing Dilemma

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Ham Richardson and Alex Olmedo, National Doubles champions, have dumped a problem in the U. S. Davis Cup selection committee's lap—and it's a dandy.

Although they hadn't played together prior to last Wednesday, Richardson and Olmedo completed a sweep to the crown yesterday by defeating Davis Cup team members Barry MacKay and Sam Gammalva 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The nation's amateur tennis overlord, who needs more financial help than the standard expenses to go to Australia for the Davis Cup Challenge Round. He still wants his wife to accompany him. In the past, the committee has said nix.

First, Richardson — playing at his peak—says he needs more financial help than the standard expenses to go to Australia for the Davis Cup Challenge Round. He still wants his wife to accompany him. In the past, the committee has said nix.

Second, Olmedo, though legally eligible for the U. S. cup team through three years of residence, is not a citizen. He is a Peruvian national.

The Richardson-Olmedo triumph was no fluke. They knocked off defending champions Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser of Australia in a brilliant semifinal display. In the quarter-finals they ousted the Willie Pep, one of boxing's all-time greats, swings into action again tonight. The old master from Hartford, Conn., takes on Manuel Baptiste of San Francisco in a 10-rounder at North Adams, Mass.

The former featherweight champion will be seeking his 219th victory. He's almost a sure thing to collect that. More important for the 34-year-old veteran is that it's a warmup for his Sept. 20 non-title clash with world featherweight ruler Hogan "Kid" Bassey of Nigeria at Boston.

The Los Angeles Rams, Chicago Bears and Detroit Lions are the only undefeated teams in the National Football League's exhibition season today despite the fact that the pros have been going at it only two weeks.

The Rams and Bears show 2-0 records, while the Lions have won their only game.

The Bears chalked up their second triumph yesterday, a 3-0 decision over the Philadelphia Eagles in Columbus. It was the only game of the day. George Blanda kicked a 19-yard field goal in the second period for the only score.

The San Francisco 49ers edged the Washington Redskins 20-19 at Portland, Ore., and the Baltimore Colts and Chicago Cardinals tied 31-31 at Austin, Tex., Saturday night.

Greensboro Gaining On Carolina Loop Leaders

Second-place Greensboro walked Danville 7-2 in the Carolina League yesterday to move within three games of the first-place Leafs. The Yanks get another try tonight.

Another early season leader moved further down the standings. Burlington won twice over High Point-Thomasville, 3-2 and 3-1. The defeats left the Hi-Toms, who headed the loop at mid-season, 5½ games out of first.

In other games, Durham trounced Raleigh 6-2 and Winston-Salem came from behind for a 9-6 victory over Wilson.

Lefty Rudy Serett hurled the Greensboro win. Danville got both its runs in the fifth. Serett won his 11th triumph against nine losses.

Burlington won its first game over the Hi-Toms with a late rush, then piled on early to sew up the second. The Indians pushed across all three of their runs in the ninth in the opener. They packed into the first inning all three of their

Consider Better Sports Relations

DENVER (AP) — The men who supervise collegiate athletics in the United States will consider today ways to improve relationships with high schools and professional sports.

Officials of 14 athletic conferences were in attendance at the start of two days of meetings sponsored by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Also present were representatives of football, basketball and baseball.

An estimated 70 athletic directors, coaches, conference commissioners and faculty athletic representatives were among the group. The agenda includes discussions of ways to improve the administration of playing rules and a proposal that high schools and colleges join in adopting continuing rules of eligibility.

The NCAA's Executive Committee yesterday awarded the 1959 basketball tournament finals to Louisville, Ky., March 20 and 21. Selected for regional tournaments in the university division were Charlotte, N.C.; Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.; University of Kansas, Lawrence, and the Cow Palace, San Francisco. The dates are March 13 and 14.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — More than 25 entries have been received here from five states for the 1958 National AAU horseshoe pitching tournament Aug. 30-31, and officials say a field of 50 to 60 is expected.

There will be two flights, the championship and the second flight. Entries had been received last week from North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, Arkansas and New Jersey.

Frank Lary laughs at the moans of the Yankees who are constantly howling "Break up the Yankees."

Lary's only complaint is that he doesn't see enough of Casey Stengel's American League champions.

The stocky Detroit right-hander faced the Yankees yesterday for the seventh time this season and for the sixth time he beat them. The score was 8-3, enabling the Tigers to gain a split in their doubleheader as the Yankees won the nightcap 3-2.

Not since 1944 has a pitcher whipped the Yankees six times in one campaign. It was done by a pair of Detroit hurlers, Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout.

The split enabled the runaway Yankees to widen their lead to 12 games over Chicago, which lost 5-2 to Baltimore. Boston's third-place Red Sox swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 14-3 and 3-2 in 11 innings. Cleveland swamped Washington 9-1.

In the National League, Milwaukee increased its lead over San Francisco to seven games with an 8-5 victory over the Giants in 10 innings. Pittsburgh split a twin-bill with St. Louis. The Pirates won the opener 8-4 but lost the second 12-8. Philadelphia took a pair from Chicago 13-8 and 5-3. Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-5.

Detroit outlit the Yankees 12 to 6 in the opener. Charlie Maxwell led the Tiger attack with a pair of singles and a three-run homer. Art Ditmar was the loser.

Norm Siebern's ninth-inning home run snapped a 2-2 tie for New York in the second game. Herb Moford, who had held the Yankees hitless after the first inning, was the victim. Winner Bobby Shantz went the distance for the first time since April 27.

Jackie Jensen's run-producing single in the 11th broke up a tight pitching duel between Boston's Murray Hall and Kansas City's Ray Herbert in the second game of their twin bill. The Red Sox bombed four Athletics pitchers for 16 hits in the opener, with Don Buddin and Pete Daley driving in three runs each on as many hits.

Wall, coming to the relief of starter Ted Bowfield in the fourth inning of the nightcap, allowed only one hit in 7½ innings.

Billy Gardner drove in three runs with a pair of doubles in Baltimore's triumph over Chicago.

Two other Billies—pitchers O'Dell and Jim (Mudcat) Grant hurled his fifth victory over Washington as Cleveland belabored four Senator pitchers for a dozen hits. O'Dell Dobby drove in three runs for the winners with a single, double and his eighth home run.

Again They Look Like Champions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves are safely out of Los Angeles, and to the dismay of San Francisco Giant fans, are playing like champions again.

The world champs looked like anything but when they dropped four while winning only one from the Dodgers in the Coliseum.

But they flew here yesterday for a five-game set and pushed their National League lead to seven games over San Francisco and Pittsburgh with a 10-inning 8-5 victory.

Hank Aaron's 28th homer with Ed Mathews on base was the key blow in the 10th. Del Crandall hit a three-run homer, his 17th, in the second.

Softball Seems A Rougher Game

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Softball and football don't seem to mix for Charlie Carpenter, first string quarterback of the Wake Forest Deacons.

Charlie, playing in a softball game at the South Atlantic Regional men's tournament at Canton Saturday, ran into another player in the outfield. He suffered a broken arm. First estimates were that he would be sidelined about six weeks, but physicians later scaled this down to about a month and said he would be ready for light practice in two weeks.

Chief Justice Attacks 'Unjustifiable' Delays In Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren said today that interminable and unjustifiable court delays are compromising the basic legal rights of thousands of Americans.

These delays, he said, are corroding the very foundations of constitutional government in the United States.

The chief justice, delivering the keynote address at the American Bar Assn.'s 81st annual convention, said that realization of legal remedies is painfully slow for many people.

"And to the extent that this is so, there is created a disrespect for law at a time when everyone should be continually conscious of the fundamental principle that it is primarily the law and its adequate enforcement which makes liberty possible," he said.

"Therefore, I urge that we make the improvement of justice the great central cause of our profession."

The former California governor said lawyers and judges must relate their responsibilities to the orderly and effective administration of justice in its broadest terms.

U. S. district courts are saddled with a backlog of 70,000 cases, Warren said—enough to keep all district judges busy for more than a year even if not another case is filed.

"And the situation is rapidly growing worse."

Nearly 40 per cent of all civil cases in federal courts are subject to from one to four years' delay between dates of issue and trial, Warren said.

"The principal reason for these problems," he said, "is that our judicial systems—both state and federal—have just grown up like Topsy—without proper organization and administration planning."

The basic structure of the United States judiciary is sound, Warren said.

"But, in striking contrast there is the hodge-podge development of the managerial aspects of handling the business of the courts and the snail's pace at which we have devised sound administrative techniques to meet new demands and changing conditions," he said.

"The result, quite candidly, is that our federal judicial system is largely barren of the modern concepts which are so familiar and so much in use in the executive departments of government and in private business," he said.

"Much of the same type of development has characterized our judicial systems."

As a consequence, Warren said, some state courts report five-to-six-year trial delays.

The chief justice said he does not advocate mass production in courts.

"On the contrary it is precision that is desired," he said. "The precision that flows from improved methods designed to meet drastically changed conditions."

House Fly Sheds Original Germs

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The house fly, bred in flight, has the peculiar ability to shed the disease-causing germs it lived with at birth, a University of Illinois researcher said today.

For this reason, the importance of disease carrying by flies born in refuse and other dangerous bacteria havens is probably slight, the researchers reported.

Dr. Bernard Greenberg, Illinois zoologist, traced the numbers of bacteria present in the house fly at various stages of its growth.

His report was presented at the American Institute of Biological Sciences meeting at Indiana University.

Flies lay eggs in such places as garbage, manure and sewage. The maggots which soon hatch carry tens of millions of bacteria in their systems, Dr. Greenberg said.

But by the time the larva has formed its hard outer case, it has rid itself of about 90 per cent of this bacterial load.

When the fly finally emerges, it carried with it about 1,000 bacteria—five hundred on its surface and a similar number internally.

While the fly undoubtedly spreads some of these bacteria, it is not as serious a carrier as was earlier believed, Dr. Greenberg said.

A way to give new lawns a boost in growth was reported by a Michigan State University researcher, George McVey. He obtained good results with gibberellic acid, a plant growth stimulator. But he also had to keep the lawns well fertilized or they grew pale in their rapid growth.

Says Conditions Are 'Intolerable'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The president of the American Federation of Teachers said today that the teaching profession is "in an intolerable situation in which the final analysis, schoolchildren are the victims."

Carl J. Megel of Chicago made the statement in a speech prepared for the organization's 42nd annual convention.

"Ten to 15 per cent of the nation's qualified teachers now quit annually," Megel said. "Many to have their places taken by the unqualified."

He said it is time to stop experimenting with "teach-saving nostrums and panaceas, mass education by television and staff-disrupting merit rating for teachers."

Convention delegates were urged by Megel to make salaries, tenure and bargaining their major objectives this coming year.

"No other profession is subjected to so little protection and security as now given teachers," he said. "We must start improving our teaching staffs by requiring that every new teacher have at least a four-year teaching degree."

Father Will Stay Near Pvt. Elvis

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Pvt. Elvis Presley said last night his father would remain near him during his Army career.

Presley, returning to Ft. Hood after attending his mother's funeral in Memphis, Tenn., said, "One of the last things Mom said was that Dad and I should always be together. I'll report back to Ft. Hood in the morning. Wherever they send me Dad will go too."

His outfit is reported to be scheduled for duty in Germany. The teen-agers' idol said they would keep their home in Memphis.

Rail Crash Kills One, Injures 30

EASTBOURNE, England (AP)—One person was killed and 30 injured today in the morning rush hour crash of two trains outside Eastbourne.

The cause of the accident was not immediately determined. Ambulances and fire engines from this south coast resort city converged on the crash scene.

One train was a special sleeper service from Glasgow, pulling in to its last stop with a crowd of Scottish holidaymakers. The other was a crowded commuter train, which had just pulled out of Eastbourne station en route to London.

Space Problems Before Experts

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—The possibility of space problems zooming to other planets take the spotlight this week in discussions by space experts from 25 nations.

Schemes which might send space ships flying at speeds of 100,000 to a million miles an hour are the main topic before the ninth annual meeting of the International Astronautical Federation opening today.

Such speeds could make it possible to visit Mars and other planets. You could get there in a few days or weeks. Mars, for example, is rarely less than 40 million miles from the earth.

Engines using atomic energy or gases or even rays of light could be used to keep speed up.

Three-Car Crash Leaves Five Dead

MADISONVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A three-car collision on a straight stretch of U. S. 411 Sunday left five persons dead and seven others injured, two critically.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Bowles Jr., 26 and 25, and their 2-year-old daughter, Becky Jo; Mrs. Nora Walker Stucker, 56, and Mrs. Chandler Connors, 52, all of Shelbyville, Ky.

State Trooper Wallace Mills said the five occupied the Miami-bound Bowles' car. He said the mishap occurred when the one vehicle attempted to pass another and collided head-on with the Kentuckians.

FAMILY MATTER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Floyd and Gene Wilkins agreed to swap automobiles for the day. An hour later, they met on a highway curve—head-on. Neither was injured. Police said the brothers decided to keep the matter strictly within the family.

Foresee Bright Future In South

COLUMBIA (AP) — Unlimited opportunities and a rich destiny are foreseen for the South by the Southern Regional Education Board.

The 150 delegates to the board's seventh annual legislative conference ended a three-day meeting Saturday. The delegates expressed the conviction that "The South has an unequalled opportunity to become one of the richest regions of the United States by fully developing its human and natural resources."

Another resolution passed at the final session called for abolition of out-of-state tuition for graduate students except in professional schools.

Along that line, the SREB recommended studies to determine the feasibility of eliminating out-of-state tuition on a reciprocal basis in state universities of the 16 SREB states.

Mississippi Gov. James P. Coleman, in an address at the closing session, said the South should ignore her critics and take a positive, constructive approach to her problems.

That would enable the region to make a strong bid toward regaining her former cultural and economic leadership, Coleman said.

"You're not getting anywhere spending your energy and resources just fighting unjust criticism," the Mississippi governor said. "Don't pay any attention to your critics if you see there's a job to be done and a way to do it."

MEMORANDUM

STATE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY

GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

TO: The women of Greenville and Pitt County.

FROM: J. T. Marston, Jr.

SUBJECT: The women and their bank.

We have tried to make State Bank the most pleasant place in which a person can bank. All our expansion and improvements were planned with the women as well as the men in mind. Members of the staff were selected because of their courtesy as well as their knowledge. We doubt that you will find a more friendly, helpful group.

Apparently the ladies like the attention they receive at the teller's window, in conversation with bank officers, and at the drive-in window where they can bank from their cars. Today State Bank has more women customers than ever before. If you are not one of them, pay us a visit the next time you are around Five Points.

Whether you want to open an account, make a loan, or avail yourself of any of the services of modern banking, State Bank solicits your business and your good will.

CHAPTER 24

The cow's bawling became louder, clearer, more urgent, as the men advanced. Captain Colin Campbell knew a rising irritation. War was cannon and rifle fire, bayonet sparring, hand-to-hand combat, and in no way who-so-ever related to a remote sortie against a bawling cow.

Ling Stewart spoke casually. "Take it easy, Jedge. Ain't nobody here but us."

"How do you know?"

"If there was," Ling remained almost maddeningly indifferent. "that cow wouldn't be bawling. She'd be milked."

Presently they came to a clearing in which there was a weather-beaten cabin, a garden, and a lean-to barn. Near the barn stood a red and white cow with curved horns and swollen udders. Wanting desperately to be relieved of the load of milk that pained her, she took a few uncertain steps toward the men.

Colin asked, "What now?"

"Milk her," Watt Sackett said practically. He walked slowly up to the cow, stroked her with a practiced hand, and soothed her, saying, "So-o, boss-o."

Colin felt a mighty relief and an overpowering embarrassment. He had stalked up the muddy road expecting to find an armed enemy, and he had found an unmilked cow. The five men looked at each other and laughed. When the rest came up, Watt Sackett took a pail from the wagon and began expertly to milk the troubled cow. Ling, Tracey and Johnny Moss-moss provided into the woods. A few minutes later they returned.

Ling said quietly, "Somethin' you should see, Jedge."

Colin followed wonderingly to a saddled and bridled brown horse that lay on its side and seemed to be resting. But the blackened blood, which had run down its shoulder and gathered in a puddle between its stiff front legs, proved that it was dead. Near the horse lay the rider — a man in a blue uniform. His cap had fallen off, his rusting rifle lay beside him. He was perhaps nineteen years old.

Colin could imagine what had happened. A raiding party of Yankee cavalry had penetrated behind the Confederate lines. There had been a fight here, and both the boy and his horse had fallen in a place where nobody except a woodsman from Hobbs Creek would have found them.

"We'd better bury him," Colin said abruptly.

Ling went to the wagon for spades, and when the news spread the rest of the Wetherly unit came to view the dead soldier. The grave was dug and the soldier laid in it. Watt Sackett contributed a wood cross fastened together with buckskin. They hung the soldier's cap on it, and while the wondering men stood with bared heads, Colin read from Jason Maxwell's Bible.

Then they stripped the saddle and bridle from the dead horse, threw them into the wagon, tied the cow on back, and continued. The ease was gone, and so was the happiness. Accompanied by the four men from Hobbs Creek, Colin resumed scouting three hundred yards ahead of the unit.

They stopped for lunch and a brief rest and went on. Suddenly Ling flung himself sideways against Colin and pushed Tracey Hamlin to the ground. Johnny Moss-moss and Watt Sackett dropped. A second later, rifles spoke and bullets whined like angry bees overhead. Ling whispered, "Come on!"

He motioned Colin behind the trunk of a huge oak and crouched beside him. With a mighty effort, Colin resumed the leadership.

"We'll fall back to the rest," he whispered.

"All right," Ling agreed. "Come on out, Yanks!" a near-by voice snarled. "Come on out an' we'll be ye prisoners!"

"Blasted idjits!" Watt Sackett screamed. "Blasted idjits! We ain't Yanks! We're goin' to help fight 'em!"

"You —" there was astonishment in the voice. "You are?"

"Yes, we are! Yes, we are! Blastid idjits! Blastid idjits!"

"We —" the voice was apologetic now, "we're sorry."

"You oughta be!"

"We'll come out if you won't shoot."

"Won't shoot!" Watt snarled. "When I see one of you —"

"Wait!" Colin said sharply, and to the hidden spokesman, "Come on out. We won't shoot."

They emerged from the bush, fourteen lean and sheepish settlers who knew how to handle their firearms even though they were presently fumbling with them. A bearded giant who, in lieu of a shirt, wore a tattered and buttonless jacket said, "The Yanks was here."

Colin said crisply, "They aren't now."

"Tain't our fault," the big man said truculently.

"And it isn't your fault that some of us aren't dead, either. Where's the fighting?"

"S'all over. The Yanks are runnin' home to Mama. If they get a few more lickin's like that one the war'll be over. You should've seen 'em at Ball's Bluff yestiddy — a bunch of girls they was. That's Bide Dirksen's cow ya got there."

"Where's Bide Dirksen?"

"Kilt by the Yanks. I'll take the cow."

"The cow," Colin said smoothly. "has just been requisitioned by the Confederate Army."

Colin and his platoon arrived at the city of tents outside Williamsburg just before noon. One of a group of artillerymen loafing beside his field piece called, "Some more purty soldiers! They'll make purty corpses, too!"

Johnny Moss-moss stepped forward. The rest of the Hobbs Creek men swung naturally to follow and the men from Wetherly also made ready for battle. It had been an uninteresting winter and they were ready for some excitement.

"Come back here!" Colin ordered.

"Aw, Jedge!" Watt Sackett said plaintively.

"There'll be no brawls. Save your ginger for the Yankees." Then he addressed the artilleryman. "Attention!"

"Atten!" The artilleryman was less defiant than frightened now. "They got a purty officer, too."

Colin turned to Jason Maxwell. "Sergeant, have a detail arrest that man."

The artilleryman came to clumsy attention. "I was only foolin'."

"Your fooling will get you in trouble one day," Colin snapped. "Where are Colonel Harvey's headquarters?"

"Bender's store."

"Sir!"

"Sir! Bender's store, sir." The artilleryman pointed. "That it be."

His men grinned openly at Colin's conquest of the insubordinate artilleryman, but Colin was suddenly weary and depressed. The army outside of Williamsburg was not trained. The men were lounging, sloppy, indifferent and this artilleryman was typical of the group.

He halted in front of Bender's store and turned to his men. "Find a place and set up camp. I'll join

"Sure, Jedge," Ling said easily. "When Colin entered the store the soldiers of various ranks who were busily at work did not even look up at his entrance. Obviously Harvey had chosen a diligent staff."

"Captain Campbell reporting with the Wetherly platoon," he told the soldier on guard.

"One moment, sir." The soldier disappeared. When he returned, he said, "The colonel will see you now, sir."

There's no certainty of how men will act under fire. Colin isn't sure about himself, as Jim Kjeldgaard continues his provocative story here tomorrow.

New York Gives Submarine Nautilus Cheery Salute

NEW YORK (AP)—The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus, fresh from her historic passage under the North Pole ice, got a whistling, cheering but rainy welcome from New York today.
Police helicopters circled a flotilla of about 20 Navy destroyers, Coast Guard cutters, tankers, tugs, police launches and fireboats. They escorted the Nautilus through the harbor, part way up the Hudson River, and then around the tip of Manhattan head-Revlon, which opened on a big Last night, the submarine passed Ambrose lightship off the southern coast of Long Island, establishing a speed record for underwater craft of 6 days, 11 hours and 55 minutes, cutting almost two days off the record previously held by the sister submarine Skate.

The Nautilus surfaced twice on its trip from Portland, England. Rear Wm. Hyman G. Rickover, a pioneer in the development of atomic submarines, boarded the Nautilus when she arrived. Rickover, President Eisenhower's personal representative for the arrival ceremonies, went aboard from a Navy tugboat.
Rickover was accompanied by commandant of the 3rd Naval Rear Adm. Chester C. Wood, commandant of the 3rd Naval Dist. and commander of the Brooklyn Navy Base.
Rickover remained on the sub during its sail up the Hudson and return down the river to dockside ceremonies in Brooklyn.

Tomorrow, sightseers will be able to get a look at the sub at the navy yard.
On Wednesday — officially "USS Nautilus Day" in New York City — Rickover and the 115 officers and men of the sub will be honored in a traditional ticker-tape parade up lower Broadway.
William Sunderland, who was aboard the Nautilus writing for the combined American press, filed a report on the sub's arrival off New York which follows in part:
There was no cheer as the Nautilus passed the lightship. The men off duty were busy preparing for the entry into New York ... The officers and crew on duty were too busy running the ship to say much.

The night was bright, and although there was a slight wind, the sea was calm. A good thing too because the Nautilus rides like a bucking bronco on the surface.
Skipper William R. Anderson had little to say about the record.
The slight, 37-year-old commander said the "nuclear power plant, as it has always done, performed with both ease and reliability."
The record is but another manifestation of the tremendous capabilities of the nuclear-powered sub and another indication of even more remarkable and more routine underwater voyages of the future," he said.

Following (in part) is the official announcement of the record by Anderson:
"The entire voyage was made submerged independent of the earth's atmosphere except for a total of 72 miles on the surface in the approaches to Portland and New York."
"The route followed by Nautilus from Portland to Ambrose lightship was over 3,150 miles. The exact mileage cannot be mentioned because it would divulge classified speeds. The average speed made was over 20 knots.

"Information on times and speeds between intermediate points on the route involve classified information and cannot be divulged."
The men on the ship never had any doubt such a record would be set on the return trip.
Anderson had emphasized that the trip back was not to set a speed record but just to get home — "and we want to get there in a hurry."
As Stewart First Class Walter J. Harvey, 38, Pascagoula, Miss., put it — "It feels great to set a record but we knew we had it all the way."

Norfolk Integration Moves Returned To School Board

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A federal district judge today returned to the Norfolk School Board for further consideration the applications of all 151 Negroes who sought admission to white schools.
Judge Walter E. Hoffman referred the applications back to the board "for such further consideration, if any, as you may deem proper and legal" by reason of his interpretation of the board's duties.

He instructed the board to report the results of its "actions" on Aug. 29. Norfolk schools re-open Sept. 8.
Applications were filed by 151 Negroes, and 88 of them submitted to tests and interviews required by the board in its pupil assignment plan. The board turned down all the applicants. Five of those who took the tests asked Hoffman to direct the board to admit them to white schools.

After weeklong hearings, Hoffman instructed the board Friday night to appear before him today. During the weekend the judge prepared instructions directing the board to meet at its earliest convenience and reconsider some of the applications it had rejected.
The instructions, similar to those a judge gives a trial jury, informed the board of Hoffman's interpretation of its duties as related to principles of law.

These interpretations dealt with legal aspects of the five grounds on which the board denied the Negroes' applications. The grounds were racial tensions, isolation of Negroes in predominantly white schools, lack of scholastic achievement, too frequent transfers and geographical boundaries.
His action in ordering the board to appear before him today to receive instructions made it clearly evident he had concluded the board did not properly consider some of the applications.

The judge was expected, however, to support the board's denial of the applications of 26 Negroes on the ground of lack of scholastic achievement.
During the hearings school officials conceded that five of the Negro applicants met board requirements and had been white. They would have been admitted to the schools to which they sought entry.
Four of these applicants were denied admission on the ground of past racial conflicts in the area in which the schools are situated. The fifth was denied because she was slightly below par scholastically.

Instructions by Hoffman that the board reconsider some of the applications will pave the way for a direct clash between federal and state jurisdiction. The school board was enjoined last week by the State Supreme Court from carrying out provisions of its pupil placement plan.
Hoffman said he would delay school integration in Norfolk if the U.S. Supreme Court upholds the 2 1/2-year delay granted in Little Rock integration by Dist. Judge Harry Lemley. Lemley's delay order was reversed by the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

After Vacation, Holiday There's Day Of Reckoning

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The returning vacationer mixing with the millions taking to the roads for the long Labor Day weekend is sending anticipatory shivers today down the spines of the companies that write auto and personal injury insurance.

Because after the shock and grief at the death and injury toll that mars every holiday, comes the day of reckoning.
Americans spent three billion dollars last year for auto liability insurance. But the insurance companies say the settlements are mounting so high that many no longer are breaking even. The clamor is on for even higher insurance rates — just another phase of the inflation story.

Part of the rise in settlement claims comes from the increased cost of patching up injured bodies and repairing damaged property. These reflect increases in medical, hospital and rehabilitation care, and higher compensation to pay for lost earnings under current wage scales.

Property damage mounts because of such features as wrap around windshields, elaborate fender sections with multiple lighting units, more ornamental and expensive bumpers, and dashboard gadgets galore.
The auto liability companies charge that on top of these rising costs there is a growing tendency to demand higher settlements. They contend that juries grow more liberal each year. If the matter goes to court instead of being settled by direct negotiation, higher court awards encourage higher out-of-court settlements.

Insurance firms dislike going to court, not only because of the liberality with insurance company money they charge to today's juries, but also because drawn out court actions tie up their reserves.
A spokesman for the 287-member National Assn. of Independent Insurers notes that auto insurance is now so common its existence is taken for granted. Some insurance men suspect this could be a subconscious factor in making drivers a little more careless and in making complainants a little more demanding.

The Assn. of Casualty and Surety Companies complains that "Even exemplary citizens are under continuous heavy pressure by their friends to exaggerate claims in auto accident cases."
The National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters says its 114 members collectively lost 147 million dollars last year on auto accident settlements. This boiled down to $116.70 in liability claim costs for each $100 of premiums earned.

The Mutual Insurance Rating Bureau, which figures out optimum auto liability rates for 70 mutual firms, says its recommendations have resulted in 24 states raising the insurance costs.
All of this is unpleasant for car owners, who have plenty of other rising costs to cope with. But insurance men say it's necessary because the mounting highway toll of injury and damage and the increasing size of the average claim settlement have been running into the red.

Deputies Called, Found 'Business'

Sheriff's deputies, called to a rural home to investigate a juke box break-in, found some additional business during the week-end.
The officers said they found about a pint of bootleg liquor in the dwelling.
They arrested David Jenkins, 45-year-old Negro of Greenville, R. 4, on a charge of possession of non-tax-paid liquor. He is in Pitt County jail in lieu of $200 bond and trial has been set for the Sept. 2 term of County Court.
Jenkins had reported that the juke box in his home had been broken open and around $20 stolen. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said.

Call 'Curfew' On Party At Club

Curfew was called on an early morning party at the Cavalier Club by law enforcement officers who raided the West Fifth Street establishment shortly after 12 o'clock last night.

Roscoe C. Norfleet, 35-year-old Negro, identified as operator of the club, was arrested and charged with possession of tax-paid whiskey and beer for sale. Officers reported finding more than a gallon of whiskey and a case and six cans of beer on the premises.

The raid was conducted by Greenville police who were assisted by ATU agent F. W. Thomas of New Bern.
Michael L. Wilson, 37-year-old Negro of 200 Stutz Street, was arrested over the weekend by Pitt County ABC officers H. B. Lilley and Walter M. Taylor.

Lilley and Taylor charged Wilson with possession and transportation of non-tax-paid whiskey. The defendant's automobile, a 1957 model, was also confiscated pending court action. Wilson was released under a $200 bond.

Officers said they picked up the defendant on Fleming Street. At the time of his arrest Wilson reportedly had one-half gallon of illicit liquor in his possession.

Levelling-Off Process For Tobacco Markets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The shaking-out and levelling-off processes in flue-cured tobacco prices likely will continue this week on markets of the Border and Eastern North Carolina belts, which never have had it so good as in the opening days of the 1958 sales season.

Prices generally were on a slight decline as sales adjourned for the weekend. But they were coming down from record highs on both belts. The Border Belt, which began sales Aug. 5, entered the price levelling-off stage several days ago, but the Eastern Belt, which opened last Thursday, may have a few more heavy days to come.

Here is the picture on each of the two belts at the end of sales Friday:
Border Belt — This week's sales totaled 51,793,207 pounds for an average price of $59.94 per 100 pounds, down $1.59 from the previous week. For the first three weeks' sales, 117,467,883 pounds went for a $60.40 average, and 15.8 per cent of sales have gone to the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. under government loan.
More than half the grades on the Border Belt were down last week from the preceding week, some by as much as $7 but most from $1 to $3. Greater losses were for some lower quality grades of leaf, primings and nondescript.

By states, sales and averages on the Border Belt last week? North Carolina 25,047,298 pounds, $59.98 average; South Carolina 26,745,909 pounds, $59.99 average. For the season, North Carolina 56,191,499 pounds, $60.14 average, South Carolina 61,276,394 pounds, $60.54 average.

Eastern Belt — Sales the first two market days totaled 17,271,934 for a $57.58 average, a gain of $8 over the average price on the first two days of the 1957 season, when about 8,300,000 pounds were sold. On opening day last week, 9.2 per cent of deliveries went to the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp., mostly better quality grades.
Average prices by grades on the Eastern Belt were mostly $1 to $12 per 100 pounds higher than last year, with largest gains made by fair and low quality primings and best thing body nondescript. A few leaf grades suffered losses.

Lightning Adds To Toll Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fiery, fatal flashes of lightning added a spectacular touch to the North Carolina weekend death toll of at least 17. But the automobile kept its accustomed place as the biggest killer.

David Ruth, 9, of Raleigh, was struck by lightning and killed as he sat on a swing in his yard. His family started to rush him to a hospital and their automobile wrecked, killing the boy's grandmother, 62-year-old Mrs. M. W. Ruth of Cary.

William Howell, sales representative of Nashville, Tenn., was struck by a bolt of lightning in Charlotte as he and a golfing companion dashed through a thunderstorm for the clubhouse. A surgeon cut open his chest at the hospital and massaged his heart, restoring the beat. But about four hours later Howell died.
An automobile went out of control on an Iredell County paved road and wrecked, killing Robert Franklin Sharpe, 26, of Rt. 1, Mocksville, and his brother-in-law, William Harrison Horton Jr., 37, of Rt. 8, Salisbury.

A two-car collision in Halifax County killed Eva W. Perry, 63, of Norfolk.
William Bernard Rape, 28, of Charlotte was killed when the car in which he was riding failed to make a curve on a Mecklenburg County road.

Sylvester Hall, 30, was killed near New Bern when another Negro man fired a shotgun blast into a crowd gathered before a funeral service.

A Raleigh man was fatally injured when he was struck by a Southern Railway train at a Raleigh overpass.

The Wake County coroner identified the man as Ira Lee Sanders and ruled death as accidental. The coroner said Sanders was killed Sunday night, but his body was not discovered until early this morning. Death was caused by a fractured skull.
