Grill Can Be A Labor Saver

LABOR-SAVING SOLUTION—Mom, up to her pretty neck in back-to-school chores on Labor Day, might consider encouraging Dad to get out the grill. The suggested menu: barbecued chicken accompanied by corn on the cob and followed with watermelon.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Around Labor Day, Mom's the busiest person in town. She's lengthening all of Susie's dresses—small fry having a way of sprouting up during the summer.

She's taking Johnny shopping for new shoes—and trying to get him to say which pair really fits. She's searching out last year's pencil boxes and half-filled note books and persuading her back-to-school set these important accessories are still usable.

In between she's getting Dad's winter suits and the family's heavy coats out of storage.

And of course, warm-weather slip covers have to be taken off the living-room furniture, laundered and put away.

That's just the moment she remembers she asked an old school chum and her family to supper on Labor Day.

If something like this happens to you, and you feel sunk, there's a way out. Encourage Dad to take over and produce the best cook-out of the season.

If Father is willing, we have a suggestion. Make up a batch (or more) of our savory new tomato sauce and order some tender young chickens so he can barbecue the birds over the outdoor grill. We call this sauce new because it's our own concoction using one of our favorite canned products—stewed tomatoes.

Add corn on the cob to the menu, and another pick-up-in-your-hand item—celery or endive if you can get it—stuffed with a mixture of cream cheese and Roquefort. Watermelon will fill the dessert bill if you decide to rely on the chance of visiting friends bringing a box of cookies or candy.

NEW TOMATO SAUCE FOR GRILLED CHICKEN

Ingredients: 1 can (1 pound) stewed tomatoes, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar, 2 tablespoons vinegar (any variety), 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, tabasco sauce (to taste), 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/2 teaspoon chili powder, 1/2 teaspoon onion powder, 1-4 teaspoon celery salt, 2 broiler-fryer chickens.

Method: Force tomatoes and their juice through a fine strainer with a wooden spoon so there is only a little residue and seeds to discard; or run until smooth in an electric blender. Add remaining ingredients, except chicken. Simmer sauce in a 1-quart saucepan, stirring often, for 20 minutes or until reduced to about 1 1/2 cups.

To Use on Outdoor Grill or Range Broiler: Halve, quarter or disjoint chickens. Brush inside surfaces with tomato sauce; grill or broil until half done and browned, brushing with more sauce during cooking. Turn skin side up, and repeat process. Chicken is done when drumstick may be twisted out of thigh joint easily.

Note: This sauce, as it makes a pleasant accompaniment to rice when it is being served with grilled or broiled chicken. More vinegar may be added for a spicier sauce.

Boots Hit Campus

SOMETHING NEW has been added to the college wardrobe this fall—boots of all shapes, sizes and description. Especially on northern campuses, where cold weather demands warm clothing, the girls are going all out for boots. Some reach to the knees and are made of stretch nylon. Others are ankle height, and made of everything from fleece-lined leather to blanket cloth. Even sneakers come boot style this fall, with fleece linings. So there'll be no excuse for college girls to get cold feet.

STADIUM BOOTS—Slated for campus wear this fall are crepe-soled, fleece-lined boots such as these, made of bright red blanket plaid. Elastic top gives snug ankle fit.

Johnny Comes Marching Home As Training Ends

(AP Newsfeatures)
All over the country about now parents are getting happy surprises as Johnny and Mary come home from summer camp, better children than when they left.
The camp experience of group living under trained leadership is almost certain to improve a child's manners and general discipline, says Sidney N. Geal, standards director of the American Camping Assn., who adds:
"Don't be surprised if your returned camper displays better table manners, more responsible care of his belongings, less feuding with brothers and sisters and more attention to personal grooming—all on a voluntary basis."
Here are some of the changes parents are likely to notice in their children, after a summer at camp:
1. More confidence. After having to solve some of their own problems at camp, children are more able to cope with those at home.
2. Cooperative attitude. Camp teaches a child to get along with a group.
3. Respect for others. Campers live closely with children of varying backgrounds, and so learn to understand ways of life different from their own.
4. Less restlessness. The returned camper will have learned how to entertain himself and get fun out of hobbies.
Hams are perishable. Store them in your refrigerator.

Suggests Orbiting Satellite Around Sun

By ALTON BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer

AMSTERDAM (AP) — A man-made satellite orbiting around the sun was proposed today by Dr. R. P. Haviland of Philadelphia.

He said it is feasible now with present equipment to put it as close to the sun as the planet Mercury.

With greater power, it could come within four to five million miles of the blazing sun, fountain of all life on earth.

Haviland, a General Electric Co. engineer, in a report to the International Astronautical Federation meeting here, envisioned a 2-foot long cone weighing 50 pounds. It could discover vital new information about the sun, he said.

A main task would be remarkable new analyses of the sun's vast gaseous atmosphere, which now seems to stretch 93 million miles to the earth and beyond in tenuous form. The sun satellite could make close-up measurements of the density of the solar atmosphere.

The two-foot-wide base of the cone would always be kept pointing toward the sun through use of photoelectric cells. There would also be a sunshade on this end.

The sides of the cone would always be in shadow to keep them relatively cool despite the tremendous heat.

Special coatings would also help reduce the heat along the sides. Special measuring instruments would be placed on the shadowed sides.

— such as bearings, transformers, wiring, generators and tubes — could survive the heat. They have various temperature limits, ranging up to 700 degrees centigrade.

Instruments could measure the intensity of ultraviolet light, electrons and protons, and meteor hits. The information would be telemetered back.

— B.K. Howard, President of Field Enterprises Educational Corporation, publishers of The World Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft, this week announced that District Manager Earl W. Brinkley, Greenville, will be honored by the company for his managerial and sales achievement in the World Book organization during the past year.

Mr. Brinkley will receive an all-expense trip to Chicago September 3, 4 and 5. This planned visit will include attendance at a banquet held in the Palmer House for the organization's top sales executives from all parts of the United States.

To Try Raleigh Man On Bank Hold-Up Charges

RALEIGH (AP) — A 30-year-old, heavy-set Raleigh man faces trial in federal court on a charge of robbing a branch bank at Laurinburg of $7,608 Monday.

Richard Sympol Townes Jr., who has worked as a butcher and a wholesale notions salesman, was arrested yesterday by police and FBI agents. In his pockets were $302, which the FBI said was a part of the bank loot.

A search of Townes' home uncovered an additional $6,937 special agent M. P. Chiles of the FBI said.

Townes, married and the father of three children, was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Henry A. Blind here, who ordered him held for trial in Middle District Court at Rockingham on Dec. 2. Bond was set at $25,000.

The complaint was filed before U.S. Commissioner Leonidas Herbin Jr. at Greensboro because the robbery occurred in the jurisdiction of the Middle District Court.

Following arraignment, Townes was transferred to Greensboro to await trial.

Chief of Detectives R. E. Goodwin said Townes was picked up as he entered a grocery store near here. The bank money was found, he added, in two candy boxes beneath a pile of rubbish in the Townes home.

A neatly dressed gunman with an adhesive bandage on his right cheek entered the Roper Street Branch of the State Bank of Laurinburg about noon Monday. He forced one bank employe to lie on the floor while he directed a teller to fill two paper sacks with money. Then he raced up an alley next to the bank to a parking lot where he disappeared.

Goodwin said Police Chief Roy Harris of Laurinburg and two bank employes viewed Townes in a lineup here last night. Goodwin declined to say whether they identified Townes as the robber.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
We don't know how many of you have caught any of Max Shulman's uproaring ads for a popular cigarette that run in some of the magazines, but he sure knows how to make smoking fun. He also knows how to make fun profitable. He's already made about one million dollars—still a good, round sum even in this day and age of the inflationary spiral—on "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" But profits on the paperback edition have not yet been counted, nor have those for the movie version, soon to be released. We think writing a book like "Rally Round . . ." is a very nice way to make money, though according to Mr. Shulman he more of less fell into it. When asked recently how he happened to take up writing, his answer was quick and to the point: "I was too short to steal."

Follow Up
Some time ago we told you about "Horizon," a new magazine of the Arts, to be published six times a year by the same people who put out "American Heritage," which was launched very successfully awhile back as the magazine of History. The first issue of "Horizon" will be out September 15 and from our pre-publication information it will be a dilly. Sumptuously illustrated, handsomely laid out and superbly printed, it will be between hard covers like "American Heritage," will contain no advertising, and will be aimed above the mass audience" so as to appeal to people on a high intellectual level. Its contents will range throughout the field of "the arts"—painting, music, literature, philosophy—and also will take in "the good life"—eating, drinking, conversation, humor. To us it sounds like the answer to what Culture needed in America—and we wish them good luck and hope you'll buy a copy or subscribe . . .

Today's Review
Citizen Charles Horne, Jr., a highly literate and interested student of politics, writes his comments on a recent book of great political interest to all . . .

INSIDE THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY, by Jack Redding. New York: Bobbs-Merrill Co., 1958. The "behind the scenes" drama of national politics is effectively told by Jack Redding in his new book "INSIDE THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY." From the top level of the White House to the precinct level of the "branch-head boys" the story of the Democratic victory with Harry Truman in 1948 is spelled out in exciting details. Even though this easily readable book is not written in text book form it could certainly claim the title of "Text book for politicians". Written about one party at one time, the campaign methods and political problems encountered will apply to either party at any time. Through his stories the author gives new insights into the personal lives of some of our national leaders. The reader will discover the Strom Thurmond who would not be seated, jumping Jimmie Roosevelt, Louis Johnson the fund raiser undaunted, Howard McGrath the persistent organizer, the Harry Truman who would not concede to anything short of victory, and many others. A book well worth reading for politicians and laymen alike. By Charles Horne, Jr.

Hunting Cause Of Plane Crash

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Investigators today probed the charred wreckage for clues to what caused a Northwest Orient Airlines plane to crash and burn on takeoff early yesterday.

The 58 passengers and 4 crew aboard all escaped after the big DC6B bounced and skidded nearly a mile to a flaming stop in a farmyard near the airport.

Fourteen remained hospitalized, all but two in good condition. Albert Conrad, 60, Waukesha, Wis., was listed as poor and Mrs. Anna Urbanik, 69, Ambridge, Pa., fair.

President Donald Nyrop of the airline said it probably would require at least a month of study to determine what caused the smashup.

Nyrop said the weight was well under regulations as the plane was rated for 76 occupants. 14 more than were aboard.

He said the Civil Aeronautics Administration was bringing in several men trained for crash inquiries.

Nyrop praised the crew and male passengers who carried out evacuation of the plane.

He had a special word for R. E. Mielke, Minneapolis, flight engineer, for making a last-minute check of the cabin to insure all were out while flames were sweeping the wreckage.

Nyrop said statements would be taken from the crew members after they are released from a hospital where they are being treated for shock. In addition to Mielke, they are Capt. James Wilkinson, 39, the pilot, and Verne J. McGinnis, 37, the co-pilot, both of Seattle, and stewardess Margaret Gallagher, 23, Minneapolis.

Big Year Of Decision In Education

Back-to-school time already has arrived for some 13,500 Pitt County school children, and another 4,700 return to their classrooms when school opens in Greenville next week.

For the youngsters and their parents this new school term should take on greater significance than those of past years. In the past 12 months there has been a tremendous increase in the pressure for better educated children in this community and throughout the nation. The times are demanding it.

Educators, businessmen and industrialists all have asserted the years ahead will require a better educated populace than the nation now possesses. The young people must have a greater knowledge of mathematics, the sciences, languages, history and the humanities if they are to compete and survive as adults in the world in which they will live.

Not only must the youngsters show greater achievement in the classrooms, they must also apply themselves more efficiently to their studies at home. The process of gaining an education—while it has always been a serious business for some—must become serious business for the great majority of youngsters. Otherwise the nation will not have in its youth the capabilities which will be required in the future.

If the goal of a better educated youth is to be achieved there must be greater emphasis on scholastic achievement not only in the classrooms, but in the homes as well. There must be in the community as a whole a more realistic recognition of necessity for better education. It places an additional burden upon the teachers, upon school administrators, upon parents and upon the entire citizenry which in the final analysis must determine the quality of educational program offered young people.

The students themselves, guided by teachers and parents, must be brought to recognize their tremendous responsibility for gaining the maximum from their educational opportunities. Otherwise they fail themselves, their parents and their community. They place in jeopardy their own potential in the future.

In public education this is a year of decision; not only for the students, but for parents and the entire community as well.

More Than A Little Late In His Assertion

President Eisenhower is a little late—three or four years late—with his public assertion that efforts toward integration should move more slowly.

Moreover the President's words of Wednesday do not correspond with action which the government took Thursday when the Supreme Court opened its special session to consider the Little Rock situation.

On Wednesday the President said he felt the rate of school integration should be slowed. He also told reporters he felt there would be no general divergence between his personal views on integration and those advanced by the Justice Department in its brief in the Little Rock case.

Yesterday the Justice Department filed its brief. And what did it say? That the Supreme Court should allow no delay in integrating Central High at Little Rock.

From this series of events we can draw only one of two conclusions. Either President Eisenhower misled his audience when he indicated he favored slower moves in integrating schools; or the President was mistaken when he said the Justice Department brief would reflect no great divergence from his own personal views.

It is apparent now the Justice Department wants no delay in integrating schools. The government brief filed before the Supreme Court ranged the Department of Justice side-by-side with the NAACP.

Where is the slow-down process of which President Eisenhower spoke?

Where in the government brief is there any appeal toward the elements of education, reason and sense which President Eisenhower declared are the only means through which integration can be achieved?

If the President really believes efforts toward integration should move slowly, he should have spoken out before Wednesday. If he believes in what he said, he must now speak out in no certain terms and make his words heard both by the Supreme Court and the Department of Justice in his own administration.

Unless President Eisenhower does speak out clearly and loudly, he will not succeed in filling the void of leadership which has existed in public school affairs since 1954.

If the present crisis is to be resolved and future crisis to be avoided, reason and sense must prevail both in the administration and in the courts in handling the matter of integrating public schools.

So far neither the courts nor the administration have exhibited the reason or sense required to resolve the crisis.

Leaned Toward Slow Process

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — That President Eisenhower has finally said he thinks public school integration should go slower is no surprise to anyone who has carefully examined his news conference statements over the past 2½ years.

His whole theme — although he never flatly said so until yesterday — has been that this is a slow process. He's talked of patience of educating people on the issues, and said laws can't change the hearts or prejudices of people.

But what came as a surprise was the time he chose to say publicly that he thinks the Supreme Court's order to end public school segregation should be carried out at an even slower pace than it's going.

Only eight days ago — when the Little Rock school integration case was still in the hands of a lower court — Eisenhower said he did not want to comment on a case pending in the courts.

But his statement yesterday about slower integration came one day before the Supreme Court was to hear arguments on whether integration at Little Rock's Central High School should be resumed or delayed.

A reporter quoted Newsweek magazine as saying Eisenhower had told friends he thought integration should slow down. Asked if that was correct, the President said he might have told someone that.

However, Eisenhower denied another part of the magazine story that quoted him as saying privately he wishes the high court had never handed down its 1954 decision declaring public school integration unconstitutional.

Never throughout news conferences — going back to February 1956 — has he given any sign that he had any clear plan for enforcing the Supreme Court's order.

He's repeatedly mentioned talking to educators, clergymen and occasional governors he met about the need to get people to understand the problem of integration and obeying the Supreme Court.

He refused repeatedly to say whether he thinks the court's order was good or right.

All he's ever really said about his intentions was that he had taken an oath to enforce the laws. At one time — Sept. 11, 1956 — he seemed to think he himself couldn't do anything; that the job was up to U.S. marshals.

That day he said: "The federal government is not allowed to go into any state unless called upon by the governor who must show that the governor is unable with the means at his disposal to preserve order."

And on July 17, 1957, Eisenhower said: "I can't imagine any set of circumstances that would ever induce me to send federal troops into a federal court and into any area to enforce the orders of a federal court, because I believe the common sense of America will never require it."

But a couple of months later — when Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus used National Guard troops to block a court order to integrate Central High School — Eisenhower sent in federal troops not at Faubus' request, but over his protests.

It will long be argued whether Faubus ever would have used the guardsmen or blocked integration if Eisenhower on July 17 — instead of giving the impression he'd never use troops — had said he'd use them when and where necessary.

Eisenhower apparently didn't even know on July 17, 1957, whether he could use troops, for he told his news conference that day: "Now, there may be that kind of authority resting somewhere, but I certainly am not seeking any additional authority of that kind, and I would never believe that it would be a wise thing to do in this country."

On Aug. 6, 1958, Eisenhower, reminded that another school year was approaching, was asked if he had any plans for personal action to head off tension by such means as talks, statements or special instructions to the Justice Department.

He said: "Well, I haven't planned at this moment any particular speeches. . . . I believe we have got to look inside ourselves." And, returning to the theme he has stressed, he said: "New law will never solve this problem."

SECOND IN A SERIES ON SNOBBERY — (Thanks to Bette Elliott, Woman's Editor of the Raleigh Times).

There are three distinct definitions for the word "snob" — 1. one who blatantly imitates or vulgarly seeks association with those whom he regards as his superiors.

"And (2) — One who repels the advances of those whom he regards as inferiors. And (3) — One who is conscious of his superiority and is inclined to exclusiveness."

"You are a snob if: 1. You run your finger over wedding invitations to ascertain whether they are engraved or printed.

2. Lace dollies give you fits of depression. 3. You do not feel real sorrow when your friends go broke.

According to the writer there are five distinct kinds of snobs — "1. The All-Purpose Snob. "This one is an island. He is not only better, he is best. When you meet him you feel as though you ought to kiss his ring. It's like having an audience with the Pope.

"2. The Taste Snob. . . . he adhered to the cult of the obscure — his home was filled with dabs by artists named Revalos, Macurdy, Litchenstein, Bran Dover. Nobody had ever heard of these artists, naturally . . .

"His bookshelves held posh books with ragged-edged pages of thick rich paper . . . he claimed 10 have translated without a key James Joyce's Finnegan's Wake.

"3. The Ancestor Snob. "You don't have to do much searching to find this one in various forms. "Just perk your ears at any local social gathering and you will hear this conversation: "My mother was a Brown of the County Browns. My father was a Jones. You know the — Jones'. No, not THOSE Jones's. They are connected with the Dukes. Yes, quite connected. My grandmother was a Smith. The County Smiths. No, not THOSE Smiths. They are connected with the Dukes. Yes those Dukes."

"4. The Teaparty Snob. "This one has to be watched or she will ruin you forever. To play safe don't invite her to your home. But if you must, please observe these rules: "Wear a dress that cost at least $200 and let her know right away who designed it.

"Point out that your silver punch bowl was retrieved from a well when Sherman came marching through.

"Hire a butler to answer the door, even if he is the man who mows your grass on Thursday. "5. The Price Tag Snob. . . . Her eyes rove like two little humming birds every time she comes to call. They flash dollar marks. She's pricing everything you own or wear."

Snobbery, according to Miss Elliott, is not born. It is created, sometimes unconsciously. In its most violently vicious forms, it is damaging to the personality for it tends to create a constant fear in one that one shall be contaminated by inferior people and things.

Other Editors Saying --- Use Ever Justified?

(Kinston Free Press)

In commenting upon the decision of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in overruling the ruling of the Federal Judge in the Little Rock case, President Eisenhower made it plain that he would not hesitate to use federal troops to force integration of schools if necessary.

The President's statement in its final analysis was more than a warning. It was a threat. It might even be considered as an effort on the part of the President to intimidate governors of various states who are not in accord with the decision of the United States Supreme Court and who have let it be known that they are going to resort to every possible means of circumventing the decision.

Two governors have expressed themselves — one, Governor Faubus of Arkansas, whose defiance of the integration law last Fall caused the President to order federal troops to Little Rock.

There ought to be some way for federal and state authorities to work out this situation without the use of force on either side. It's perfectly patent, however, that certain states in the South are not going to surrender States' Rights prerogatives because the supreme tribunal of the Nation made the worst mistake in its history.

call of a special session to deal with the emergency. He has called that session.

Governor Almond of Virginia has stated emphatically that if federal troops are sent into the Old Dominion to enforce integration of any of the schools that they will be immediately closed and the troops will patrol empty buildings.

The Free Press asks the question — Is the use of federal troops in such cases ever justified? Our answer is "No emphatically. No."

The commonwealths of this United States have certain constitutional rights. Their prerogatives in arranging for and conducting their schools and other educational institutions was not questioned until the United States Supreme Court in May 1954 handed down what may prove to be the most disastrous and unfortunate decision the High Court has ever rendered.

There ought to be some way for federal and state authorities to work out this situation without the use of force on either side. It's perfectly patent, however, that certain states in the South are not going to surrender States' Rights prerogatives because the supreme tribunal of the Nation made the worst mistake in its history.

Remedies Channel Jumping

By ELMER ROESSNER

"Channel jumping" can breed distrust, destroy morale and make a shambles of organization in business.

Channel jumping is the practice of taking short cuts in the chain of command. A supervisor may go over the head of a manager to get the president's decision or, conversely, a general manager may bypass a foreman in instructing a work-

This generates confusion and authority is diluted. Eventually it becomes impossible to get anything done efficiently.

However, there are remedies for channel jumping. Russell H. Ewing, Packard-Bell Electronics training supervisor, writes in Supervisor Management. This American Management Association's monthly is being mailed to members today.

ANSWER FOR EVERY EXCUSE There is a remedy for every real or fancied reason for channel jumping, Mr. Ewing holds. These reasons, developed in supervisory instruction at Packard-Bell, have helped eliminate confusion. Here is a sampling, much condensed, of reasons and remedies:

Channel jumping gets things done better or faster. It provides only momentary relief. If it persists, it indicates a bottleneck that should be eliminated.

It is easier to instruct an operator than to train his supervisor. Wrong! A trained supervisor can instruct, then supervise more effectively.

Channels may be jumped in emergencies. Avoid emergencies by better planning. Even in real emergencies, try to touch all bases.

Hot projects have special privileges. If a project is best handled outside the chain of command, officially specify a different procedure.

People desire contact with top executives. Improved work performance will impress an executive more than superficial contacts.

PERSONAL EQUATIONS Employee wants to get ahead by fair means or foul. Review the promotional situation, suggest a training program and show the employee how to advance legitimately.

A supervisor may be so hard to deal with he invites bypassing by superiors and subordinates. The remedies are human-relations training, expert counseling and assistance from the supervisor's boss. If these don't work, move the supervisor to a more suitable job.

Misunderstanding exists and subordinate goes to the supervisor's boss to tell his story. If necessary to go over a supervisor's head it should be cleared with him first; the situation may reflect a breakdown in personal relations, or may mean both supervisor and subordinate need clearer definitions of their responsibilities.

Subordinate feels he is held back by his supervisor. He may be right. The supervisor should discuss the situation frankly with his subordinate and perhaps with his own superior. The subordinate

Coop Can Say 'Whoa'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Cooper still rides high in the saddle of time.

After 30 years of stardom, the veteran actor still seems as fresh as a daisy as the sagebrush he has ridden through so often in making more than 100 major films.

What is the secret of his durability? Cooper said it was very simple. He just had to learn when to stop saying "giddyup" and start saying "whoa!"

Two bouts of illness, he said, taught him this lesson. One came in 1931, when a siege of jaundice, after years of overwork almost ended his career. The other was an ulcer attack in 1949. The two experiences taught him the value of relaxing.

In 1931, a doctor warned him he had to quit for a while if he wanted to say alive. Gary had been working on pictures night and day, and his weight had dropped from 180 to 147 pounds.

"I dropped everything, broke my contract, went to Africa and did nothing but loaf and hunt for six months," he recalled. "It was one of the happiest times of my life."

Cooper is still somewhat annoyed at himself for letting an ulcer get him down in 1949. And he's determined he'll never let himself get another.

Here's his own two-point program for mental and physical health:

"Try to keep from making boneheads. Then you won't have so much to worry about.

"You owe it to yourself — and everybody around you — to keep in the best possible shape."

Today Cooper is one of the most relaxed men in the motion picture industry, or at least he gives that impression.

He sees acting as a satisfying career in itself, and has no urge to become an active director-producer, although he picks his own roles.

Leaning his lanky frame back after polishing off a plate of rare chopped beef, Cooper pulled out several toothpicks and passed them around the table.

"Actors are happier now than when everybody in the movie business was riding a great big gray boat," he observed. "That kind of thing is all over now."

"But actors are happier than in the old days because they have more independence. They don't have to do everything everybody tells them. They have more of a choice in their lives."

"But the movies are really a wonderful business. In politics a man often has to step on other people. To get elected he may have to make so many promises that when he finally does get into office he can't move."

"I am very proud of the movie business, and I respect it. You don't have to double-cross anybody to get ahead in it, you don't have to attack people, or put the squeeze on them. "You do have to stand up and fight for your own ideas, but isn't that good for anybody?"

Opinions In Brief

"Last spring's fashions made women look as if they were poured into their clothes. This year's balloon styles make them look as if they were settled at the bottom." — Hertford County Herald.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SPRINGS OF YOUTH Length of life is not a matter of years. It has very little to do with the calendar. Some are doddering old men at the age of twenty; others are vivacious youngsters at ninety. I have a friend who in his ninety-third year is, according to all standards of vitality and intellectual interest, my junior by a number of decades.

The one thing that seems to characterize all old age is a lack of resiliency. Motor reflexes slow down. The arteries harden a bit. The eye sight begins to fail. We just don't have that up-and-onward urged which characterized the second and third decades of life. Old age means above everything else the slowing down process.

And by the same token, youth is the matter of staying on one's toes. This does not mean that between the sixth and eighth decades people should prance about like adolescents. Vibrant youthfulness of spirit can, and often does, exist along with quite awesome dignity and considerable reserve. The young are not necessarily the clamorous. The young are the people across whose physical, mental, and moral capacities, the great tides of universal energy still sweep.

This, we repeat, has nothing to do with years. Don't look into the mirror to see how old you are. Look into your heart, into your mind, into your capacities for tolerance and aspiration. These are the springs of youth.

Temperance and Social Justice ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buscher

Scripture—Proverbs 23:29-35; Daniel 1:1-20; Habakkuk 2:9-16; Romans 13:11-14:23.

In the reign of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar, Babylonian king, besieged and conquered Jerusalem. He made the king a prisoner, and took some of the vessels of the temple, putting them into the house of his heathen god.—Daniel 1:1, 2.

Temperance

PROVERBS WARN AGAINST ALCOHOLISM, AND DANIEL SHOWS THE RESULTS OF SELF-CONTROL

Scripture—Proverbs 23:29-35; Daniel 1:1-20; Habakkuk 2:9-16; Romans 13:11-14:23.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THIS LESSON might be introduced to the younger classes by stressing the possibility of our influence for good by our reputations.

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith illustrates this in Peloubet's Notes by relating a personal story of his boyhood. While he was having his hair cut, his father, whose reputation as a godly man was well known, was being shaved, swathed in towels beyond recognition.

The older classes might begin with the same illustration or another that the teacher may prefer.

All classes will be interested in the story of Daniel, Jehoiakim king of Judah, and Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, besieged Jerusalem and captured the king of Judah into his hand, with part of the vessels of the house of God which he carried into the land of Shinar to the house of his god.—Daniel 1:2.

MEMORY VERSE

"So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God. Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way."—Romans 14:12, 13.

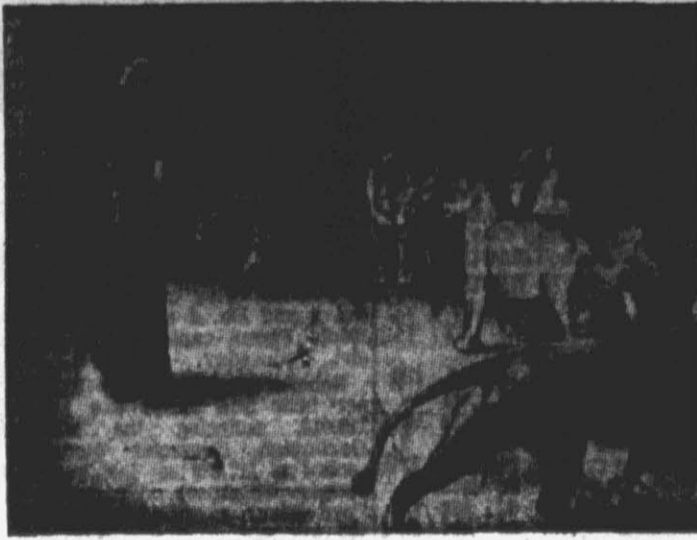

Then the king commanded the chief of his eunuchs, Ashpenaz, to bring certain of the children of Israel of high lineage, "children in whom was no blemish, but well favored, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding sciences, and such as had ability in them to stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans."

Among those the eunuch chose were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. They were to be fed daily the king's meat and of the wine which he drank to nourish them for three years, then were to stand before the king.

Now Daniel had found favor with the eunuch, who loved him, and Daniel had decided he would not eat the king's food or drink his wine and so defile himself, as he had been strictly brought up. He told the eunuch how he felt and was told that the king had ordered the food they were to eat and the wine to drink, and if he, the keeper of the boys, did not obey the king's command, he was likely to lose his head.

Then Daniel suggested that his best and copyrighted outline produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

MEMORANDUM STATE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA TO: Miss North Carolina FROM: John Hardy SUBJECT: A lovely girl . . . you In a few days, Betty Lane Evans, you will be leaving for Atlantic City and the Miss America contest. All of us wish you well — and by "us" I mean the people at State Bank, the Jaycees, and all the people of Greenville. But insofar as your place in our hearts is concerned, the outcome is immaterial. When you came back from Charlotte as Miss North Carolina, we were delighted. But even that was secondary. It is as Miss Greenville, a young girl who is not only beautiful but also so unaffected, so cheerful, and so typical of the very best in southern girlhood, that we learned to love you. And whatever other titles you may or may not win, you'll always have a place of honor in the hearts of your own people. John R. Hardy, Vice President Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Boone Talks To Pirates Club Members About Football

COACH JACK BOONE . . . "The biggest morale builder: M-O-N-E-Y."

1958 Pirates Club Drive Instigated This Morning

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Football Coach Jack Boone told Pirates Club members this morning that "Greenville and the people of Eastern North Carolina can have the kind of football at East Carolina that they want to have. No matter what kind that is. If you want it, you can have the very best."

Coach Boone spoke to almost 40 members of the club this morning at the official 1958 kickoff meeting-breakfast at Respass Brothers Restaurant.

"But this business of football is a rough one, gentlemen. When you get into football these days you have to jump in all the way. You have to get wet all over."

"You people are the core of the Pirates Club and of East Carolina football. The job that you do will furnish the best morale builder there is: M-O-N-E-Y."

"There is no such thing as a successful football team without it."

Boone told the Pirates Club members "East Carolina is a good school. We can furnish our students with any kind of training and education that they might want. We have the things that kids like to have in a college. But today, we compete with bigger schools with larger payrolls and tremendous stadiums. Boys expect scholarships. If we can't give them scholarships then they'll go to a school that can."

Six Home Games

The Pirates Club members began today their sale of memberships and tickets for the 1958 season. It was brought out at the meeting that there are many advantages to membership this year. There will be six home football games, to which Pirates Club members will have tickets and choice seats. The 1958 schedule includes home games with Emory-Henry, Presbyterian, Guilford, Catawba, Western Carolina and Randolph-Macon, and away games with Elon, Newberry, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, East Carolina President Dr. J. D. Messick spoke to the group briefly. He said that East Carolina College is the "Citadel of the East" and could be much more. "It is up to the people of this area. We have a fine school. We can have, here, a center of athletics for an even larger area. It depends upon Greenville."

He told the members that "As East Carolina goes, so is Greenville influenced."

Dr. Messick stated that East Carolina enrollment had soared to over 5,000 students (including extension courses) in 1957. "We have the students, and we are still growing. But much of our success depends upon you."

Athletic Director Dr. N. M. Jorgensen also addressed the group briefly.

Present and in charge of the meeting were the officers of the Pirates Club, President W. M. Scales, Vice-Presidents W. M. Aldridge and Bill Taylor, Secretary James W. Butler, Treasurer J. H. Waldrop. The executive committee of the club was also present, including Dr. Messick, J. D. Duncan, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, and Dr. J. B. Cummings.

Pirates Club members are selling tickets now in a concentrated effort, with the opening of the 1958 ECC football season set for September 13. Memberships may be purchased from members or by contacting the East Carolina Athletic Department by telephone.

Washington To Be First Victim Of NY Next Week

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees should finally get around to making Washington the first victim of the inevitable in the American League pennant "race" this weekend.

The champs' magic number for officially eliminating the last-place Senators is three. Any combination of Yankee victories and-or Washington defeats totaling three does the job.

The Yankees open a three-game set at Washington tonight.

But if the Senators are doomed to be the first to go, they won't be alone very long. The number is 17 for the Yankee pennant elching over the second-place Chicago White Sox.

The magic numbers that officially eliminate the rest of the league go like this: Boston, 16; Baltimore, 13; Detroit, 12; Cleveland and Kansas City, 9.

By comparison, Milwaukee's pennant number in the National League is 21 after rapping third-place San Francisco 3-0 in the only game scheduled in either league yesterday.

All that looms ahead for the Yankees who have been in first place since April 18, the fifth day of the season, is a job of getting their pitching back on the beam.

for the World Series. Which is an incredible thing, as Casey Stengel would say, when you figure his guys are 11 1/2 games out front.

Fact is, the Yankees have a complete game this season (second only to Milwaukee's 57 in the majors), yet they've managed but 4 in 20 games over the past three weeks.

Whitey Ford (14-7) will go tonight against Pete Ramos (11-13).

Elsewhere tonight, it's Detroit at Chicago, with the Tigers sending Herb Moford (3-6) against Dick Donovan (10-12). Baltimore, trying to shake off Detroit for a first-division finish, is at Boston. The Orioles have named Arnie Portocarrero (12-9) against Frank Sullivan (10-7) of the Red Sox who are trying to catch Chicago.

Cleveland's Gary Bell (7-9) is at Kansas City (Ned Garver, 11-9).

Kouri Will Be On Mound For Shelby Tonight

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — John Kouri, a tall, dark, curly-haired, righthander who hasn't lost a game in 27 high school and American Legion decisions this year, will start for Shelby against Memphis, Tenn., here tonight in the deciding game of the Region 4 American Legion Junior baseball tournament.

The winner of the double elimination tournament (each team has one defeat) will go to the Section B tourney starting Monday in Pouchatoula, La. Likely starter for Memphis is righthander Joel Porter, who has a 4-1 record.

Kouri is eligible to pitch as many as nine innings tonight. He pitched three last night, starting the game but retiring to the outfield after one inning when Shelby jumped into a 9-0 lead. Then, after Memphis had raked two other Shelby pitchers, he returned to the mound for two innings and scored the deciding run in the 11th inning for a 13-12 victory.

The 6-3, 187-pounder, a quarter-back during football season, thus won his 18th Legion victory.

Memphis didn't get a hit off Kouri, but in getting back into the ball game lambasted relievers Alen Dixon and Bobby Hoover for 16 blows. The Tennesseans drove Dixon out in the seventh and scored 10 runs in four innings to tie it up. All of their runs were earned, but four of Shelby's were not.

Shelby's 13-hit attack was paced by Kouri, a triple and single; Ronnie O'Shields, home run and single, three runs batted in; Ronnie Vaughn, three singles, and Tom Wright, two singles.

Pirates And Milwaukee Open Three-Day Session

By ED WILKS

Pittsburgh's persistent Pirates thunder into 10 telling days in the National League pennant chase tonight, opening a three-game series at Milwaukee with the first-place Braves.

The next 10 days could be thrillers or chillers for the no-longer-bungling Bucs. At the moment, they're in second place, 7 1/2 games behind the Braves. They stand 7-8 against the Braves with seven games remaining in the season series.

All seven are scheduled for the next 10 days — three at Milwaukee this weekend, four at Pittsburgh next weekend.

Milwaukee wrapped up a 4-1 series at San Francisco yesterday by smacking the third-place Giants 3-0 behind Bob Rush's 10-hit pitching in the only game scheduled in either league.

Rush (7-12) walked but one and struck out seven while giving up eight singles plus a triple and double to Orlando Cepeda.

The Braves had only six hits — four of 'em by Red Schoendienst, who doubled home the second run — off loser Johnny Antonelli, now 14-11. Del Crandall's walk and stolen base, triggering errors by catcher Bob Schmidt and center fielder Willie Mays, gave the Braves the run they needed to push the Giants nine games back in the fifth inning.

The Pirates send right-hander Bob Friend against southpaw Warren Spahn, the NL's top winners with 17, tonight.

The Giants are home to the fourth-place Dodgers, with Paul Giel (4-3) opposing Don Drysdale (9-11). In the rest of the all night game schedule, it's Chicago (Glen Hobbie, 9-6) at St. Louis (Sam Jones, 11-10), and Philadelphia (Don Cardwell, 3-2) at Cincinnati (Bob Purkey, 14-8).

Darlington Race Should Be Best

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — On the basis of qualifying times, the three-car front line for Monday's Southern 500 race will be the fastest in the nine-year history of the $60,000 stock car classic.

The three drivers who will occupy the front row averaged 117.906 miles per hour in their four qualifying turns around the mile and three-eighths track.

Fireball Roberts of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., qualified for the No. 2 and No. 3 spots yesterday. Eddie Pagan captured the No. 1 slot Wednesday.

Roberts averaged 118.648 miles per hour and made one lap in 1:19.018, eclipsing the all-time Darlington Chevrolet qualifying record of 117.836 set last year by Speedy Thompson. Weatherly, a Ford driver, qualified with a 118-124 average.

Pagan, of Charlotte, N.C., and Lynwood, Calif., won the pole position Wednesday with 116.952 in a Ford.

The qualifying tests continue today with five more starting positions to be filled. That will bring the total to 15 and leave 35 positions to be settled at tomorrow's time runs.

Weatherly won the four-lap air-lift dash yesterday, a feature which closes each day of qualifications. He averaged 114.709 m.p.h.

Second row starting positions were captured by Curtis Turner, Roanoke, Va., in a Ford, at 118-096; Lee Petty, Randleman, N.C., in an Oldsmobile, 117.955; and Joe Eubanks, Spartanburg, S.C., a Pontiac driver, 117.927.

In the third row are Buck Baker, Spartanburg driver and the 1953 500 winner, in a Chevrolet, at 117.430; Shorty Rollins, Corpus Christi, Tex., driving a Ford, 116.669; and Jim Massey, Burlington, N.C., in a Pontiac, at 117.159.

Herb Elliott Breaks Another Running Mark

GOETEBORG, Sweden (AP) — How fast can Herb Elliott run? That was the question track experts asked today after a world-record-smashing 3:36 for 1500 meters by the lanky, 20-year-old Australian.

Many even refused to venture a guess as he preceded his almost incredible 1500 with a 3:54.5 mile at Dublin Aug. 6. The mile is 1,760 yards. The 1500 meter is 1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches.

Some believe that Elliott will be the first to better 3:50 for the mile. He has been under 4 minutes on eight occasions since bursting into the limelight late last January with a 3:59.4 mile at Melbourne.

"No man must set a limit on his capabilities," he said of himself. "Nobody must be limited by what's around him."

Dr. Roger Bannister, first man to break the 4-minute barrier, and John Landy, who lowered the mile record to 3:58, called his 3:54.5 at Dublin "absolutely incredible."

But his metric time yesterday was even better. It was equivalent to a mile between 3:53 and 3:54.

"He is the greatest runner I ever saw," said Sweden's Dan Waern, silver medal winner in the recent European Games. "He is able to do the impossible and you can expect everything from him. This was not the last time he will set a world record."

Swedish experts were unanimous Elliott is the best runner ever seen in the Scandinavian countries.

The youthful Australian, whose method of training belies all accepted programs, gave credit to the fans in the stands for his record.

"They inspired me," he said. "Their cheers carried me along a fine track. I didn't think about a timetable. I ran to win, not to set a world record."

He crossed the finish line 20 meters ahead of Czechoslovakian's Stanislav Jungwirth, who holds the listed world record of 3:38.1. Jungwirth was timed in 3:39.

Sportswriters Vote Duke Award

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn. has voted Duke University its Sportsmanship Trophy.

A committee of the association made its selection after tabulating votes of football and basketball players and game officials who worked Atlantic Coast Conference games. Treatment accorded visiting players by spectators was a major consideration in the voting. Reports were filed after each football and basketball game last season.

Hugo Germino, Durham Sun sports editor, will make the presentation of the trophy to the student body president at halftime of the Oct. 4 Duke-Illinois game at Durham.

The school will receive a permanent plaque to commemorate the event.

Maryland won the initial award a year ago.

The youthful Australian, whose method of training belies all accepted programs, gave credit to the fans in the stands for his record.

"They inspired me," he said. "Their cheers carried me along a fine track. I didn't think about a timetable. I ran to win, not to set a world record."

He crossed the finish line 20 meters ahead of Czechoslovakian's Stanislav Jungwirth, who holds the listed world record of 3:38.1. Jungwirth was timed in 3:39.

Sportswriters Vote Duke Award

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn. has voted Duke University its Sportsmanship Trophy.

A committee of the association made its selection after tabulating votes of football and basketball players and game officials who worked Atlantic Coast Conference games. Treatment accorded visiting players by spectators was a major consideration in the voting. Reports were filed after each football and basketball game last season.

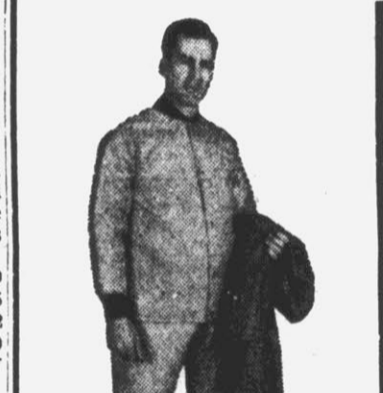

Hugo Germino, Durham Sun sports editor, will make the presentation of the trophy to the student body president at halftime of the Oct. 4 Duke-Illinois game at Durham.

The school will receive a permanent plaque to commemorate the event.

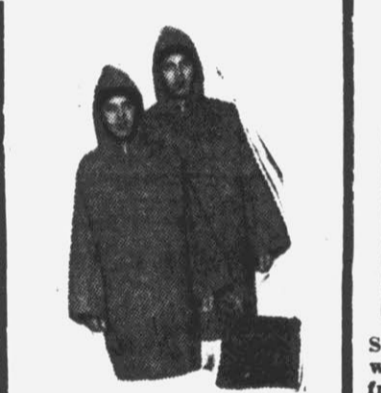

Maryland won the initial award a year ago.

Story Of Rigged Union Election Being Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rackets probers seek new information today about an election allegedly rigged to keep Harold Gibbons in command of the hoodlum-infested St. Louis area Teamsters Union.

The Senate committee received testimony yesterday that seven officers of a carnival workers Teamster local in Tampa, Fla., were brought in to cast the votes that swung the election to Gibbons last January.

The election made Gibbons president of Joint Council 13 comprising Teamster locals in the St. Louis area. Until then, Gibbons was top man in the region by appointment from the union's international hierarchy.

The committee wants to know why Gibbons permitted Local 447, which was chartered out of St. Louis to operate in Tampa, to cast the seven votes that gave Gibbons a 76-70 victory in the election.

Gibbons presided at the election meeting and ruled the Tampa delegates were eligible to vote.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said testimony from Gibbons, who had been scheduled to appear today, will be postponed at least until Tuesday.

Harry Karsh, a top lieutenant to Gibbons and actual boss of the Tampa local, invoked the Fifth Amendment yesterday in refusing to answer questions about Gibbons' election.

Nor would Karsh talk about allegations that he was Gibbons' agent in violence-ridden drives to recruit the nation's circus and carnival workers — first into the Jewelry Workers Union and then into the Teamsters after Karsh was kicked out of the jewelry union.

Vernon F. Korhn, a carnival worker from Tampa, testified Karsh appointed him president of Local 447 just before the election. Korhn said he then hand-picked the other six officers of the local and all seven went to St. Louis at Karsh's expense to vote for Gibbons.

He said he knew nothing about Teamster affairs in St. Louis and to this day hasn't seen any of Local 447's official records.

Most of the hearing dealt with Karsh's efforts to engineer labor contracts with circuses and carnivals, including the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus. There was considerable mention of violence in those organizing efforts.

The committee also heard how the Teamsters and another union set up a rival circus in Boston in 1956 in an effort to split the crowd while Ringling was playing there. However, the two unions lost heavily on the deal and the attempt at organizing Ringling workers failed.

Electric Co-Op Is Now Dissolved

MORGANTON, N. C. (AP) — Western North Carolina Electric Membership Corp. was formally dissolved here yesterday after 17 years of existence. It was formed in 1941 to service other electric cooperatives in a 40-county area.

William T. Crisp, acting attorney in the dissolution, said the eight member cooperatives voted unanimously at the called meeting.

Crisp, acting general counsel for the newly formed North Carolina Electric Membership Corp., said the new organization will undertake a broader scope of services for all of the 33 electric cooperatives in the state.

The Stirring New Civil War Novel
THE LAND IS BRIGHT
 BY JIM KJELGAARD

CHAPTER 22
 Ling Stewart had helped to repel an occasional party of pillaging Cherokees or white renegades at home on Hobbs Creek. He had fought with savage enthusiasm, and he had shot any raider with the feeling that it was the right thing to do. Although he had thought he would do the same when war came and kill Yankees just as happily, there was a vast difference.

He had discovered this discrepancy on Dynamite Hill, where he had killed one of the advancing Yankees with his first shot, reloaded, killed a second, reloaded again, and wounded a third while the Yankees were retreating. Even while he was reloading for his second victim, and despite the fact that his aim did not falter as he shot, he knew that this was and always would be a distasteful task.

It had taken Ling, who still shot with deadly precision in battle, a long while to understand why he shuddered every time he killed a Yankee. Now he knew that the Cherokees and renegades who came to Hobbs Creek threatened not only him but also his family. He could kill them with as little compunction as he crushed the heads of the rattlesnakes that occasionally ventured into his yard.

The Yankees posed no direct threat to Ling and his family. They were just like rattlesnakes. They were just men like himself. Though Ling could not understand the reasons for war, he finally understood why Colin considered it senseless.

Suddenly he heard Watt Sackett whisper, "What do you think, Tracey?"

"Can't see 'nough to know. We'll have to get closer," Tracey Hamlin replied.

"How 'bout you, Ling?"

"Let's move up."

In the darkness, they almost stumbled over a cannon tipped on its side and their feet sank into the soft earth of the graves that had been recently dug for the cannon's dead crew. Ling's hand slipped along to his knife and even though he found it comforting, a cold dread gripped his heart. He could not avoid what he was doing any more than Watt and Tracey could avoid their actions, but he did not want to use that knife on a fellow human.

As they neared the fire, Ling fought a great desire to turn back. He did not fear what was ahead, but if Colin Campbell were with him now, he knew he would be able to speak the words that had for so long been in his heart. But Colin was not with him and there was no turning back. There never was. They could now see the fire plainly, built from trunks and branches of the shelled trees. On the ground rested ten shadowy lumps that were ten men sleeping and, far enough from the fire so that only their outlines showed a dozen horses stood on a picket line. Counting one man for each horse, there were twelve men. Ten slept while two stood guard.

Tracey whispered, "They must be rec-roots."

"I don't follow," Ling contradicted. "We just happened to be a smart hog behind their lines. They don't expect no prowlin' here-bouts."

"That's it. That's it," Watt Sackett agreed.

One of the sleeping men rose, took a pipe from his pocket, filled it, lighted it with a brand from the fire, and sat down to puff contentedly.

The conviction strengthened in Ling's mind that Tracey was at least partly right. These men, a Union cavalry patrol, might not be raw recruits but they lacked experience, for they had picketed their horses on the downwind side of the fire. The wind itself would help muffle any noises arising from the picket line.

"Let's try for the picket line," Watt whispered.

Tracey said caustically, "Now ain't you the smarty-pants? What'd we come for?"

No further conversation was necessary. This was an old story, one that each of the three knew by heart. Ling and Tracey alternated in knocking the guards out—it must always be done silently—before they raided. If there were two guards, each took one. Watt a farmer with both a genius and familiarity in handling animals, quieted the aroused horses or mules until the three were able to get under way. If there were more than two guards, they gave up and sought another Yankee camp that offered better chances for success. They walked now toward the picket line, hidden by darkness.

One of the two sentries joined the man who was smoking beside the fire. The other sat disconsolately on a pile of saddles with his back turned to the cold wind. Ling became more certain that these soldiers lacked battle experience. It was a long way back to the Rebel lines but, even so, the horses should have been saddled and ready. Frequently, in a single flying attack, the Rebels had swept farther than this and seasoned veterans were always ready for anything.

It was Ling's turn to quiet the sentry, and Tracey and Watt waited expectantly as he slithered forward on his belly. Silent as a crawling snake in soft earth, he never averted his eyes from the sentry, who still kept his back to the wind. Then another great and troubling worry began to torture him. He hoped he would not have to kill the sentry. It was far better simply to steal the horses without killing anyone. If those thefts alarmed the Yankees, and forced them to alert more watches and station more men behind the front lines, they might even serve a military purpose.

Ling cared little about this matter. He was unable—few men possess such an ability—to see the war in its entirety. He was just one individual in the southern army pitted against his counterpart in the northern corps.

Got His Degree 36 Years Later

COVINGTON, Va. (AP) — Just about the proudest of 1958 college graduates is the Rev. Richard Guy Sheltman, 58. He got his A.B. degree from Randolph Macon college 36 years after beginning his work at the college in 1922.

Financial difficulties forced him to drop out of school. Came the depression of the 30's and it took him 13 years to repay money he had borrowed to go to school. In 1945 he decided to get that degree. He used extension courses and went to night school while serving as pastor of Mt. Carmel Methodist Church and working week days as supervisor in the finishing and dyeing room of a rayon plant. He passed his final examinations with flying colors.

Mistook Her For The Girl In Case

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Reporters and photographers waited outside the courtroom for a strip tease dancer expected for a trial. When a shapely brunette came in and sat down, a reporter rushed up and asked if she were the stripper.

"No," replied the brunette. "I'm the policeman who arrested her."

Robber Or Not, Pride In House

MULLINS, S.C. (AP) — State Rep. James C. Hooks and his wife were awakened in the middle of the night by a noise downstairs.

"Jim," whispered Mrs. Hooks, "there's a robber in the house."

"Impossible," was the reply. "In the Senate, yes, but in the house, never."

Red China's Warning Is Seriously Taken By U.S.

By WARREN ROGERS JR. WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials said today a new Peiping threat will weigh heavily in any decision by President Eisenhower on sending U. S. forces against any Red Chinese invaders in the Formosa Straits.

The State Department was so impressed by Peiping's statement that it issued a hands-off warning to the Chinese Communists yesterday.

The United States is pledged by treaty to defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadore Islands, about 100 miles across the strait from the China mainland.

Congress left it up to Eisenhower to decide whether any Red Chinese attack on Quemoy and Matsu, small islands closer to the mainland, was the start of an attack on Formosa and the Pescadores.

If the President decided it was his next step could be to oppose it with the U. S. 7th Fleet and other American military power.

This, in part, is what Peiping radio said, as Red guns pounded Quemoy and Matsu in a continuing bombardment.

"The Chinese people's liberation army is determined to liberate the fatherland's territory and coastal islands."

The Red radio called on Nationalist defenders of Quemoy to surrender, saying "the island is doomed . . . a landing is imminent."

U. S. officials said this is probably the toughest such statement yet made by the Red Chinese on this highly inflammable subject.

There was speculation on Formosa that if the Reds really intended to invade the Quemoy area they would not broadcast it in advance.

However, if Eisenhower accepted the interpretation that the Reds intend to try to take Quemoy as a step toward conquering Formosa, it would lie within his discretion—under the treaty and the Congress-approved Formosa resolution—to order American forces into action.

The 7th Fleet already is on alert. It has been conducting war exercises with Chiang's military establishment, dramatizing U. S. support which Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have emphasized during the past few days.

Eisenhower told his news conference Wednesday that Quemoy and Matsu no longer are considered mere outposts. He said they are interlocked with Formosa as never before, with one-third of Chiang's forces deployed on the little islands within sight of the China mainland.

But Eisenhower refused to be drawn out on whether this would affect his judgment on whether Quemoy and Matsu should be defended by U. S. forces. He counseled newsmen that this was a military decision which could not be made until after the event—that is, any Red Chinese assault on the offshore islands.

From Pinups To Pinto-Painting

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — As a painter, Allen F. Brewer, Jr. has gone from pinups to pintos.

He is now one of the country's leading painters of horses. But two decades ago Brewer worked his way through Yale painting pinup girls with innocent pastoral scenes on the other side that could be switched when parents came to visit.

He has since moved from here to Kentucky but on a recent visit he says he still does pinups — on the backs of playing cards.

New GM Team's First Hurdle: Strike Talk

By SAM DAWSON AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—The first task facing the new and younger team heading up General Motors will be to handle the threat of an auto strike.

How incoming Chairman Frederick G. Donner and incoming President John F. Gordon deal with Auto Workers President Walter Reuther will be of prime importance to the industry, of which GM is roughly half.

Many other industries—rubber, copper, glass, lead, zinc, radio set makers—and a host of auto industry suppliers will be watching the labor parley. Their business would be hit badly by an auto strike.

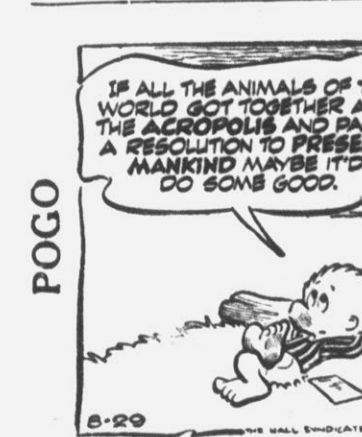

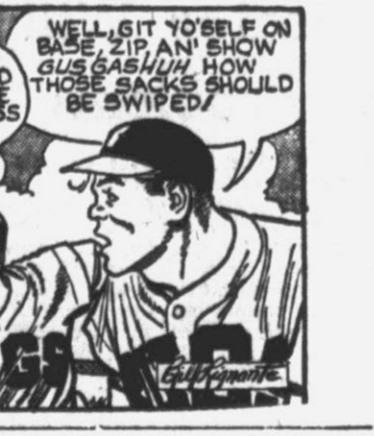

The auto industry shares with the steel industry the popular conviction that their wage settlements set the pace. What Reuther gets short of a strike, or after one, may affect negotiations in other industries. It may affect the general price pattern too.

of further inflation, is of prime interest, not only to industry but to consumers. GM officials say that Donner as executive vice president has been in close touch with the labor negotiations to date and won't be stepping into his new shoes as GM's chief executive officer as a novice.

Neither will Gordon. He has been vice president in charge of engineering and manufacturing, dealing directly with union and other operational affairs in the plants. He will head up the executive committee in charge of operation policies.

Some think he may take over Curcio's role as chief spokesman when GM deals with the public. The new team in management won't be unknown to the union leaders either, who doubtless have long gauged Donner's and Gordon's characters, convictions and policies.

Outbreak Bears Polio Symptoms

RALEIGH (AP) — Outbreak of a disease, which has all the symptoms of non-paralytic polio, have been reported in several North Carolina counties. The disease is caused by ECHO (Enteric-cytopathogenic human orphan) viruses. Dr. Jacob Koomen Jr., chief of the Communicable Disease Section of the State Board of Health, said yesterday the viruses are causing much concern among public health authorities.

The viruses, he explained, produce a disease that is clinically indistinguishable from non-paralytic polio. The symptoms are stiff neck, high fever, and severe headache. The acute stage lasts from two days to two weeks. Family outbreaks have been reported, he said, in Stanly, Orange, Camden, Durham and possibly in Cleveland, Clay and Wake counties.

There are 14 types of ECHO viruses. Dr. Koomen said, "As we reduce our polio cases these types of cases seem to crop up because we think it is due to the fact that at one time all these cases were lumped as possible polio. As laboratory services improved it became possible to separate the ECHO viruses from polio."

He added, "There is no treatment of the disease at this time. Type 9 may produce skin rash."

Dr. Koomen said the virus is present in the throat and gastrointestinal tracts and the disease is probably spread like polio.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market milled unevenly in sluggish pre-Labor Day trading early this afternoon. Key stocks showed very narrow changes for the most part and many were unchanged. Moves of a point or so were rare. Turnover was the slowest this week on the eve of the long weekend which is always regarded as a milepost for business and the market. Steels, motors, oils, chemicals and aircrafts were mixed. Union Oil of California added a fraction to its recent rise and showed some activity as the financial district continued to bandy rumors about some possible deal with Gulf Oil despite a company denial yesterday. Meanwhile Gulf was inactive and about unchanged.

Curtis Publishing, yesterday's most active stock, rose fractionally as the market continued to improve. The new policy of the Saturday Evening Post in accepting liquor ads.

Inland Steel fell more than a point but was under no particular pressure. Brokers ascribed this to a bit of profit taking.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were about unchanged. General Motors was firm. American Telephone added a fraction. Du Pont was off slightly.

Standard Oil (New Jersey) eased. Fractional losses were taken by Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central. Baltimore & Ohio jugged slight to the upside.

Merck rose about a point. Pfizer, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and United Air Lines posted small gains.

Something New?

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A U. S. congressman reported today that the United States has developed electronic equipment which can use the moon to "tell what is going on" on the entire surface of the earth.

"We can monitor the whole world," Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.) told newsmen after referring publicly to the moon system at the meeting here of the International Astronautical Federation.

"The equipment now is being installed," he declared. "It uses the moon as an artificial satellite. It is startling. It is a great breakthrough."

Fulton hinted that the system could detect instantaneously the launching of intercontinental ballistic missiles or nuclear explosions.

Chinese Communists Step Up Barrage By Artillery

By SPENCER MOOSA
TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Communists stepped up their artillery attack on the Tan islets in Amoy Bay today, hurling a blistering 7,120 shells into the 136 Nationalist-held acres in an hour.

It was the heaviest concentration in the nearly four years of the pocket war in the Formosa Strait.

The bombardment heightened speculation that the Communists soon would try to take the islets. Only 2 1/2 miles from their port of Amoy, they are used by the Nationalists as lookout posts from which to alert naval forces blockading Amoy.

The Nationalist island fortress of Quemoy, 15 miles out from Amoy, got off relatively lightly. The Nationalist Defense Ministry said the Reds fired 783 rounds at Quemoy during a four-hour period beginning at dawn. Then the Communist guns turned on the Tans.

Tobacco Prices 'Holding Firm'

Greenville tobacco market's average took a dip yesterday but Sales Supervisor W. L. Wheedbee said prices in a per grade basis held firm.

The market sold 1,611,962 pounds of tobacco for $861,401.22 yesterday to average $53.44.

"Prices per grade of tobacco held firm," Wheedbee said, "though quality of the offerings declined as an abundance of heavy, common and medium quality tips and leaf predominated the warehouse floors."

"Company purchases on cutters and top smoking tobacco advanced from 71 cents to as high as 73 cents yesterday."

Chief Tax Collector Will Retire; Notes Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russell C. Harrington said today the biggest task in being internal revenue commissioner is not squeezing money out of reluctant taxpayers, but hiring the right people and promoting good relations with the public.

Harrington spoke in an interview after deciding to end nearly three years as the nation's chief tax collector.

The 67-year-old Rhode Islander handed his resignation to President Eisenhower yesterday. The President regrettably accepted it effective Sept. 30, and started looking for a new commissioner.

In a letter to the outgoing commissioner, Eisenhower spoke of the personal sacrifice he said of ten accompanies service like Harrington's.

Pedestrian Hit By Car Thursday

A pedestrian suffered minor injuries when struck by an automobile about five miles west of Greenville on U.S. 264 near Frog Level late yesterday afternoon.

The victim has been identified as J.T. Vincent, 34, of Greenville Route 1. Vincent suffered lacerations of his head and back when struck by a car driven by Oscar Godwin, Jr., 28, also of Greenville Route 1.

He was transferred from the scene to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Truck. There he received emergency treatment and was released.

State Highway Patrolman D.L. Minshew of Farmville quelled Vincent as saying he stepped out of a friend's car onto the highway without looking. Godwin's car struck him head on, going about 35 miles an hour according to the driver.

President Signs 44 Bills Into Law Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today signed 44 bills, including such far-reaching measures as the new farm law and Social Security revisions—but he still had 135 to go.

The leftovers will go with him to his Newport, R.I., vacation spot, or follow him by courier. He has 10 days in which to act after Congress, which adjourns Sunday morning, actually sends the legislation to the White House.

Anything not signed by that time dies by pocket veto. Here are the major new laws made effective by Eisenhower's signature:

FARM — A new, more flexible price support range, with a floor of 65 per cent parity, is provided. Deep cuts in cotton and wool acreage are headed off, the way is opened to elimination of corn acreage allotments, and the wool subsidy program is extended for three years.

Low Grade Tips Cause Dip For Sales Average

ROBERSONVILLE — The price for lugs on the Robersonville Market remained firm yesterday, but a large offering of low grade tips caused a dip in the day's sales average.

Sales Supervisor Rufus Armstrong reported that the Martin County market sold 337,792 pounds of tobacco for $174,635.96 for an average of $51.69.

According to Armstrong yesterday's offering of tips was the largest the market has had since opening day. "Good tips were selling good," he said, "but the overall quality of the variety was poor."

Thus far 1,339,742 pounds of tobacco has been sold here, compared to a total of 693,920 pounds for the corresponding period last year. The Sales Supervisor said local tobaccoist are predicting the market will sell in the neighborhood of 12 million pounds of tobacco this year, far exceeding the 1957 figures.

The lot on Evans St. next to Hooker and Buchanan is owned by Mrs. C. H. Edwards and the parking area on Greene St. is owned by the Methodist Church.

Bloxam told councilmen last night that the church lot would be used just as other municipal lots and members would have to pay to park during meter hours.

However, he said, it was agreed that cars would not be tagged in the lot when the Methodist Church conference is held in Greenville. That only takes place once in several years.

There were also other proposals to come before the council at last night's session. One was for a 28-car lot on Cotanche St. next to the Reflector building. It was for sale or lease.

There was a proposal for an area at Fourth and Greene St. involving two property owners. They wanted to lease the property to the city outright.

A 36-car lot was proposed for an area on W. Fifth St. to be rented outright by the city.

Still another area on Seventh St. near Dickinson Ave. would have parked 24 cars.

Another Matter

Councilmen considered another matter before delving into the parking lot situation at last night's special session.

It involved the re-zoning of several lots on E. Tenth St. to make way for the construction of a shopping center to include a super market.

Owner of the property James Keel was represented by Attorney M. E. Cavendish on the matter. Cavendish presented a map showing the proposed area and pointed out the change from residential to business zoning had been recommended by the Planning-Zoning Commission.

City fathers called for a public hearing on the matter. They set it for Oct. 2.

The hearing will involve several lots opposite the Highway Patrol building.
