Betty Lane Evans Reaches Atlantic City After One False Start Here Sunday

Miss North Carolina is in Atlantic City, N.J. today preparing for the big Miss America Pageant which will give the nation its most beautiful lady for 1959.

Betty Lane Evans left her home on Hooker Road at 1:45 yesterday afternoon enroute to Durham. It was a false start, however, and the group had to return for a bag which was thought to have been left.

The bag was found in the trunk of the car after a search and the group was on its way again.

Making the trip yesterday were Betty Lane and her mother. They were being driven by Lawrence Perkins. A friend accompanied the group and returned with Perkins. They traveled in an official Miss North Carolina car furnished for the year by a local auto dealer.

Well-wishers and friends gathered at the Evans home yesterday afternoon to see the beauty off. A stop was made at Raleigh-Durham airport to check some luggage and then the group continued to Durham.

There, Betty Lane and her mother spent the night at a hotel and arose early this morning to catch a plane to Atlantic City from the Raleigh-Durham airport.

They were joined by Betty Lane's business manager, Dr. Sam White, who traveled to Raleigh-Durham this morning for the 8 o'clock flight.

Upon arrival in Atlantic City Betty Lane was met by the press at the airport. She was taken in an official Miss America Pageant auto to the Hotel Dennis where she and her mother will be staying during the week.

Shortly after she arrived she was required to register and sign agreements concerning rules and regulations set up by the pageant. In addition she was introduced to her parent hosts and to Mrs. Lenora Slaughter, executive director of the Miss America Pageant.

Also badges and ribbons which identify her as Miss North Carolina were issued to the pretty 18-year-old Pitt County miss.

Tomorrow morning there will be a time set aside for posing for photographers.

Betty Lane and the more than 50 state and city representatives in the pageant will pose for the photographers on the beach at the New Jersey resort town.

Tomorrow night the boardwalk parade is to be staged.

Pravda Warns Soviet Will Help Red China In Any Island Conflict

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Nationalists claimed today their big guns on Quemoy sank three Red gunboats and eight motorized junks in an all-night attack on the islands.

The Nationalists said five other Communist gunboats were damaged in the shelling between 9:30 p.m. Sunday and 6 a.m. Monday.

The Reds, meanwhile, eased up once more on their shelling of Nationalist offshore islands. But the United States and Russia kept up a barrage of warnings.

With their new artillery attack in its 10th day, the Red guns around Amoy fired only 366 shells at the Quemoy islands between midnight and 2 p.m. This was a far cry from the record 41,000 rounds Aug. 23.

The latest American word salvo came from Army Secretary William Brucker, who told a news conference in Taipei recent statements by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were "a definite warning." He said they spoke for the people of the United States and the Communists should not take their words lightly.

Eisenhower so far has committed the United States 7th fleet to defend the offshore islands only if an attempt to take them appears to him to be a direct threat at Formosa itself. But he said last week that Quemoy and Matsu Islands were more important to the defense of Formosa than they were three years ago, and Dulles said "an attack on the islands would be a general threat to peace in the far east."

The New York Times said in a dispatch from Manila that the Philippine foreign ministry had learned from sources outside the country that the United States will defend Quemoy if Red China invades. The sources were not identified, and there was no confirmation of the report.

In its toughest challenge to the United States since the latest Far East crisis began, the Communist party mouthpiece Pravda said Russia would give Red China "moral and material help" if there is a clash over the offshore islands.

The paper, whose editorials usually carry the full weight of the Kremlin, accused the United States of preparing to intervene in a Chinese domestic affair and warned that "any aggression by the United States in the Far East would inevitably sharpen the whole international situation and lead to a spread of war."

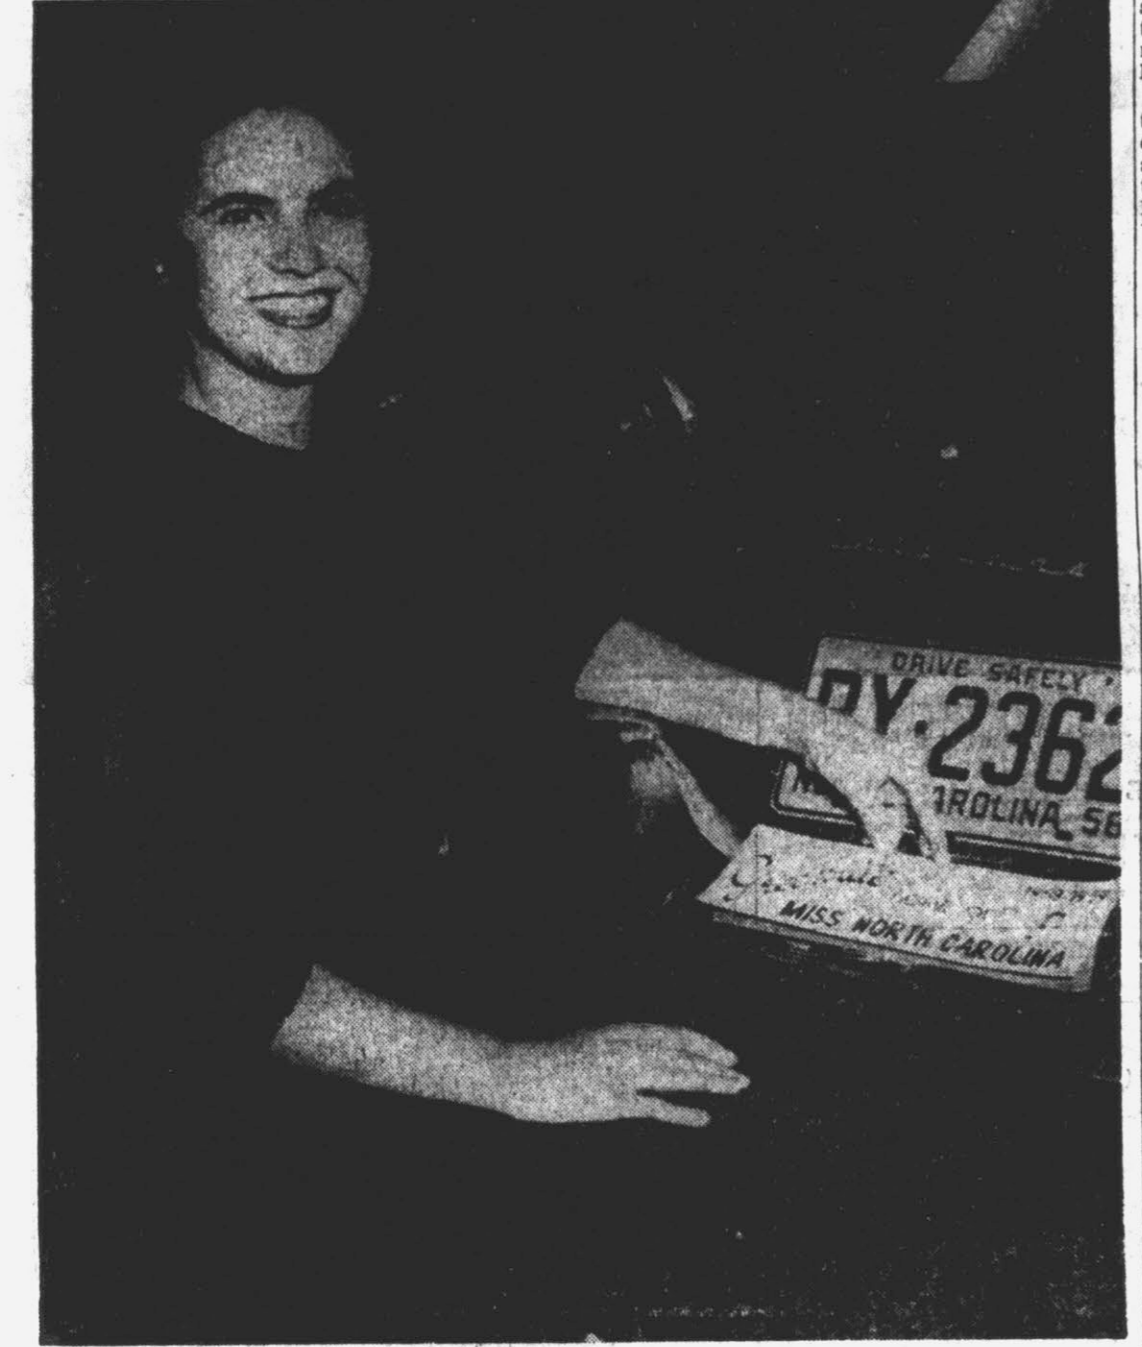

"Those who threaten today to attack the Chinese People's Republic," Pravda cautioned, "must not forget that they also threaten the Soviet Union because the Soviet Union is bound to the people of China with unbreakable bonds of fraternal friendship and cooperation, the basis of which is their determination to safeguard peace among the peoples and repel aggressors."

Brucker, who wound up three days of conferences with President Chiang Kai-Shek, other Nationalist leaders and American military chiefs in the area, told newsmen the United States intends to supplement American military aid to Chiang's forces. He stressed he was speaking on a long-term basis, however.

"We are allies and partners in the fight for freedom," he said. Brucker left this afternoon for Hong Kong en route home.

The Nationalists continued to give top priority to movement of supplies to the Quemoy, AP Correspondent Forrest Edwards, reporting from the Pescadore Islands between Formosa and Quemoy, said he saw thousands of rounds of artillery and ammunition and considerable amounts of other supplies being loaded on supply ships in one small port area.

A Navy spokesman said the ships were having no trouble getting through, although one LST has been sunk and one damaged.

APPROVES—Betty Lane Evans smiles approvingly as she takes a look at the bumper stickers which will be sold during coming weeks. The stickers proclaim Greenville as Miss North Carolina's home and they carry a picture of the beauty. Betty Lane is in Atlantic City for the Miss America Pageant today. (Reflect or Staff Photo)

Two Iceland Gunboats Avoid Clash With British Frigates In Dispute

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Two Iceland gunboats had a close call with a British frigate at dawn today in Iceland's codfish dispute with Britain, Reykjavik radio reported.

It said a clash was avoided because the Icelandic boats, with orders not to shoot, steamed away from the scene.

Otherwise, things were peaceful.

The broadcast quoting the Icelandic Fisheries Service said the incident involved the British frigate Palliser and two unmanned Icelandic gunboats.

The broadcast said that two Icelandic armed vessels started to arrest a British trawler fishing within Iceland's new 12-mile limit. "As our gunboats moved in," said the broadcast, "the British frigate Palliser dove into view."

"The guns on the British frigate were manned," the broadcast said, "and the frigate showed every sign of using force."

This was the first report of any kind of trouble. The Icelanders did not specify where the incident took place.

The broadcast of the incident aroused considerable excitement in Reykjavik.

The news was given at midday when hundreds of Icelanders turn on their radio sets for news. Britain has told her fishing trawlers to ignore Iceland's new fishing ban, imposed at midnight. Britain has 60 trawlers in the no-fishing zone under escort of gunboats.

Iceland increased the limit of her territorial waters from 4 miles offshore to 12 and ordered all foreign fishermen to stay beyond the 12-mile limit after a flurry of last-minute diplomatic activity aimed at preventing a breach between Britain and Iceland, both North Atlantic allies.

U. S. Ambassador John J. Muccio stressed to Foreign Minister Gudmundur Gudmundsson and to British Ambassador Andrew Gillchrist how seriously the United States views the dispute. Muccio repeated the State Department's call for moderation and offered suggestions how incidents could be avoided.

In London, Prime Minister Macmillan said the dispute might be handed to the U. N. General Assembly when it opens Sept. 16. This could lead to another Law of the Sea Conference like that which could reach no agreement on the territorial water limits in Geneva last spring.

Macmillan stressed, however, that Britain still was willing to accept proposals by a NATO technical conference in Paris last week which Iceland rejected. The conference recommended an agreed division of the catch between Icelanders and foreigners, and extension of the territorial waters to only six miles.

The Icelanders have not made known what they intend to do. If they try to board trespassing ships, arrest the skippers and take the vessels into port, they will run afoul of the Royal Navy. The British gunboats, however, were ordered to meet any Icelandic action with only passive resistance.

Icelandic politicians have indicated the names and numbers of offending vessels probably would be noted and the governments involved notified.

Iceland claims it must keep trawlers 12 miles offshore to prevent destruction of its fishing grounds and its national economy, which depends mostly on fishing. The island government claims heavy trawling of the close coastal waters has been depleting fish and spawning grounds. The British, which have fished the waters for years, contend Iceland cannot change the territorial limits arbitrarily.

Trawlers from Belgium also may challenge Iceland's law. Scandinavian nations and West Germany have ordered their trawlers to obey the edict.

Some Changes In Store As City Schools Open Sept. 3

Greenville City Schools will open Wednesday with changes scattered throughout the nine-school system.

First, Superintendent J. H. Rose said today the city's six white units and three Negro units are anticipating a record-setting enrollment of between 4,850 and 4,900. At least 225 students more than last year's total enrollment of 4,635 are expected for classes, and Rose says the figure may reach as high as 500.

Science students in Rose High School and the junior high school will have more equipment to use, in addition to being able to participate in the system's first television instruction program. Rose said the system has spent about $5,000 this summer for additional science equipment, aimed at improving science instruction in the upper grades.

New efforts will also be made to expand science teaching in elementary grades. The expansion program was begun last year, and will be continued this year, with cooperation from Science Department faculty members from East Carolina College.

Also planned in continuation of an experiment with ungraded primary groupings, in which students stay with the same teacher more than one year. Under the plan, students are permitted to develop according to their individual abilities.

The city's school for trainable mentally retarded children is expected to be doubled in size this year and will have new quarters. A new teacher, Mrs. M. E. Cavendish, will direct the school which will be located in a building behind Junius H. Rose High School. The new quarters include three rooms and toilet facilities for the class which was conducted last year at Third Street School.

Art will be restored to the instruction program for students in grades one through the junior high school level. Mrs. Norma Wallace Gray will direct the instruction.

Latin students will have twice as many classes to choose between as they had last year. Latin I and Latin II will both be offered in junior high school and in senior high school, with a total of four sections offered.

Approximately $10,000 has been spent during the summer to improve and expand library facilities in each of the schools, particularly at the junior high school. Rose said today that junior high school students who used Sheppard Memorial Library last year will have a complete library this year.

Other changes include an expansion of music programs and a new 54-passenger school bus to replace an old activity bus which was used last year. In addition, all buildings have been cleaned and repaired during the summer months.

During the school year, senior high school activities and teams will be re-evaluated by teams of specialists from the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. The accrediting agency was asked by local school officials to conduct the evaluation which will be done throughout the school year.

Holiday Traffic Toll Keeps Rising

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Traffic 300

The mounting highway death toll today rose close to a pre-holiday pattern estimate which would bring 420 Labor Day weekend traffic fatalities.

At 1 p.m., on Labor Day a year ago, the toll stood at 342, with the final count reaching 445 for the three-day period.

Highways were jammed in many areas today as millions turned homeward from outings on summer's last extended holiday.

The National Safety Council, which estimated 420 traffic deaths for the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight tonight, had this word for homebound motorists:

"Only a lot of good common sense, patience and old-fashioned courtesy can pull the toll down below our estimate. Traffic officers are working around the clock this weekend to save lives. It seems only fair that drivers, themselves, should cooperate."

Gov't Payroll Increases In July

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's civilian payroll increased by 6,305 workers in July, the first month of the new fiscal year.

Reporting this today, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) said this increase over June brought the July total to 2,373,409 workers.

Auto Industry Enjoying Nearly Complete Peace

DETROIT (AP)—Labor Day today found almost complete peace in the auto industry. Most of its wildcat strikes were settled.

Strikes at Ford in Cleveland and at General Motors plants in Flint, Mich., were settled on the weekend holiday eve, assuring the return to work tomorrow of more than 8,000 men.

A United Auto Workers Union source said the three remaining strikes, affecting 2,750 workers in Detroit Chrysler factories, might be settled today.

Contract negotiations between UAW and the industry thus could resume tomorrow without a strike in the picture for the first time in weeks. At one time last week more than 13,000 men were idle in walkouts.

Most of the strikes have been over company callback policies on laid-off workers.

The nation paid its annual respects to the U. S. working man today. But much of the Labor Day tribute was coupled with renewed pleas for action to oust hoodlums and racketeering union leaders from the labor movement.

Congress also was rebuked for rejecting legislation aimed at curbing shady tactics underscored by the senate Rackets Committee in its investigation of labor-management relations.

At the same time, Congress got a new invitation from President Eisenhower to get busy at its next session and enact laws to halt such abuses.

Eisenhower, vacationing at Newport, R. I., said in a Labor Day message yesterday:

"The members of employer and employe organizations have the right to demand from their leaders and administrators complete honesty, integrity, trustworthiness and loyalty."

The President didn't specifically mention the labor control proposals he recommended to the recently adjourned 85th Congress.

But in urging guarantees to protect the nation's working men and women from improper labor-management practices, Eisenhower's statement was plainly an invitation to Congress to pass legislation along those lines.

Secretary of Labor James Mitchell said he deeply regretted that Congress didn't act this year to curb racketeering and dictatorship in labor unions.

"I have every hope that the succeeding Congress will see fit to do so," Mitchell said in a statement. "Until such help is available, however, labor's own efforts must continue."

In another Labor Day statement, Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler praised cleanup efforts by unions, saying:

"Courageous labor leadership moved swiftly, without fear or favor, to meet its own internal problems and thus maintain the integrity of the American labor movement."

In Detroit, Walter Reuther blamed the defeat of a labor control bill on "an unholy alliance of big business, reactionary, anti-labor politicians and a few corrupt labor leaders."

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, was referring to the bill by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Irving M. Ives (R-NY) which was passed overwhelmingly by the Senate but rejected by the House in the closing days of the session.

Reuther again called on Eisenhower to convene a national conference of labor, management and government leaders to draft a program for full employment and to fight inflation.

AFL-CIO President George Meany touched on a different problem in his Labor Day statement.

Addressing racial segregation in schools, Meany said:

"The segregated school poses an artificial barrier to our nation's progress in education."

Meany also urged a federal school construction program to provide new jobs, higher teacher salaries and government-financed scholarships.

Albert J. Hayes, AFL-CIO vice president and chairman of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, said in a television interview, "we can look to the end of corruption in the trade union movement when we are able to end corruption in the country."

Arthur J. Goldberg, counsel to the AFL-CIO and its ethical practices committee, said "where corruption exists in a union, responsibility rests not alone with the leadership, but equally if not primarily, with the union membership."

Addressing a Labor Day weekend forum at Hopewell Junction, N. Y., Goldberg said:

"Union members tend to get the sort of leadership they deserve. Frankly, they often get better leadership than their degree of participation would suggest they deserve."

Miss North Carolina Won't Be Alone At Contest Scene

A number of friends, relatives and fellow Red Oak Church members will be attending the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City to root for Betty Lane Evans.

First her mother Mrs. Amos J. Evans left with the beauty by auto yesterday afternoon. They were joined by Dr. Sam White, Betty Lane's business manager, this morning for the plane flight to the New Jersey city.

Later in the week, Betty Lane's father, Amos J. Evans and her 11 year old sister Joan Dell will make the trip by auto to Atlantic City.

Her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Ray Evans, are also planning to make the trip.

Then there is her minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Glenn James, who are also planning to attend.

The Rev. James is minister of Red Oak Christian Church, where Betty Lane has played the organ and sung in the choir until the Miss North Carolina title came her way.

She plans to continue her organ playing at the rural church when her busy schedule permits.

An uncle and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. (Pete) Sermons will make the trip and another uncle, Leslie E. Evans, has plans to attend.

Betty Lane's boyfriend, Lawrence Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Perkins and Jane Perkins will make the trip to the pageant city.

Mrs. N.O. VanNortwick Jr., who coached Betty Lane in preparation for the North Carolina Pageant and turned out a winner, will attend.

A number of family friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Carawan, Dan Wooten, Richard King and Mac Dupree will be in attendance.

Fails To Break Raleigh Barriers

RALEIGH (AP) — A 14-year-old Negro youth, Joseph Hiram Holt Jr., failed today in his effort to break segregation barriers in the Raleigh public school system.

Federal District Judge Edwin M. Stanley ruled that young Holt had failed to exhaust administrative remedies under North Carolina's Pupil Assignment Act prior to the institution of his lawsuit.

The youth, more than a year ago, applied for admission to Raleigh's all-white Needham S. Broughton High School.

The Raleigh School Board rejected his application and he appealed to the federal courts since the case has dragged out since. The judge held hearings in the case several weeks ago.

Judge Stanley said, in his conclusions of law:

"The plaintiffs are not entitled to the relief prayed for."

"A judgment will be entered in conformity with this opinion unless the plaintiffs file a written motion within 10 days requesting that the case be retained on the docket for the purpose of giving them an opportunity to adequately exhaust their administrative remedies."

Raleigh's schools are scheduled to open Wednesday. Young Holt lives within less than a mile of the Broughton school and upwards of three miles from the Ligon High School (for Negroes) which he has been attending.

Labor Day Tributes Marked By Pleas To Kick Out Hoodlums

Eidson-Brown United In Church

In a ceremony Sunday evening in the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church, Miss Lois Jeanette Brown became the bride of Thomas Wayne Eidson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brown of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Eidson of Greenville.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor. The traditional wedding marches were played throughout the ceremony. Bill Moore of Greenville sang "O Perfect Love." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the bride and the bridegroom knelt at the altar.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert B. Crawford.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a wedding gown of white embroidered tulle over taffeta. The gown was fashioned with a descendant sequins and pearls. The bouffant skirt with a tulle duster ruffle had an overskirt of embroidered scalloped lace which fell into a train effect.

Wearing a crown of orange blossoms and net petals which was fastened to an imported veil of illusion, the bride carried a white satin covered Bible topped with a white purple throated orchid with white satin streamers tied with stephanotis and satin hearts.

Miss Barbara Dall, aunt of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a Kelly green satin tressie dress with the ballooned back and matching head cap and shoes. She carried an arm bouquet of white mums with yellow center and yellow ribbon.

The bridesmaids, wearing identical dresses and hats, were Miss Frances Newson of Scotland Neck, Miss Becky Sigley of Durham, Miss Janet Parsler of Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Betsy Carole Braxton of Norfolk, Va. They carried arm bouquets of yellow mums with yellow ribbon.

Little Misses Ginny Lynn Richards of Burlington, niece of the bride, and Becky Ann Eidson, sister of the bridegroom, acted as flower girls. Wearing matching Kelly green satin dresses like those of the maid of honor and bridesmaids, they carried white baskets filled with yellow carnations.

The bride's mother wore a green lace sheath dress with matching accessories which was complemented by a beige orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a royal blue vel-ray satin balloon dress with matching accessories and a beige orchid corsage.

Thomas B. Eidson, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Jerry Drum, Gene Brown, Jimmy Phelps, all of Greenville, and Sherrill Lane of Concord.

When Mr. and Mrs. Eidson left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a blue lace sheath dress with matching accessories and the orchid lifted from her Bible.

After the wedding trip, the couple will reside at Oak Forest Lodge at Lake Johnson in Raleigh.

Mrs. Eidson is a graduate of Greenville High School, attended East Carolina College and is presently employed with Occidental Life Insurance Company in Raleigh. Mr. Eidson, a graduate of Greenville High School, will continue his studies at N. C. State College in Raleigh.

Teen Life Is Different In Ireland

What is it like to be a teen-ager in Ireland?

"It's a lot different from America," says Peggy Foley, who left her home there recently to live with an uncle in Ansonia, Conn.

Peggy, whose six brothers, three sisters and parents live on a farm in Meens Kiskean, County Cork, Ireland, felt that opportunities there were limited, so she came here to try her luck.

At 18, she wants to learn shorthand and typing, two subjects that are considered special courses in Ireland and taught only in convent schools.

High school is a six-year course in Ireland. The girls are taught to sew, knit and study Gaelic, the Irish language.

In Ireland, says Peggy, "it is walk or ride a bike." She was overwhelmed to see teen-agers here with their own cars. She used to ride six miles on her bike to school.

"We would think nothing of cycling four or five miles to a dance at night," says Peggy.

She misses the dances. There were three or four a week, a major source of recreation. Fast stepping jigs and curry sets were the order of the day, no rock 'n roll. Young people in Ireland play records, but there is no Elvis Presley or Pat Boone. It's the songs the Irish love, rather than the singer, Peggy says.

They gather for song fests and fun, as nearly all young people play some musical instrument. The most popular is the melodian, which looks and sounds like a small accordion.

Girls wear dresses or skirts and blouses for most occasions. Blue jeans and Bermuda shorts are out of order.

Peggy likes her new life, and has had little difficulty in adjusting to it. She looks and acts like other American teen-agers. She does miss her family and her home and would like to have her sisters with her, but she definitely would like to stay here.

Once she decided to come to America, it took a lot of determination to board the plane.

"I was shaking and very scared," she says. "It's quite a jump from a bike to a plane, but after a while it didn't make too much difference."

Miss Elizabeth Bost was hostess at two tables of bridge Saturday evening, when she charmingly entertained in honor of her house guest, Miss Esther Howard of Morganton. Sun flowers were effectively used for decorations. High scores were made by Miss Howard and Mr. Melton. They were given novelty bridge pencils. A tempting salad course was served following a number of interesting progressions.

Miss Frances Taft entertained for Miss Esther Howard of Morganton on a recent evening. Various summer flowers were used. There were two tables of bridge. Miss Elizabeth Bost was given a dorin and Louis Crisp was given an address book for high score. Miss Howard was remembered with a dorin. At the conclusion of the game cantaloupe a-la-mode was served.

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Church Hall at the Free Will Baptist Church.

Guests and out-of-town guests were received and greeted by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McClohon Jr. who directed them into the receiving line.

The appointed table was covered with a white linen cloth with lace trim featuring a silver candelabra cascaded with white carnations and pom poms. Mrs. Rufus E. Davenport of Bethel, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

The bridal table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Thomas Bentley, Miss Alma Joyce Paramore and Mrs. Wilma Barwick who assisted during the social event.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. William M. Richards of Burlington.

Mrs. Leo E. Dall of Tarboro, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Graham Leggett assisted also during the wedding.

Rehearsal Party
The bride and bridegroom were entertained at a party following the rehearsal Saturday night by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Eidson, parents of the bridegroom, in the Church Hall at the Free Will Baptist Church.

Members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests were present for the affair.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over pink. The center was flanked with a bouquet of pink carnations featuring a candelabra with pink tapers.

Mrs. J. H. Mullen and Mrs. H. W. Felton presided at the punch bowl. Assisting in serving was Mrs. R. A. Leftwich.

The bride was wearing a mint green brocaded taffeta sheath dress with chiffon trimming. She wore a pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. House spent last Sunday in Durham with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bowers. Mrs. Bowers returned with them to Bethel where she will spend a few days. From here she will go to Hassel where she will be with her mother for several days before her return to Durham.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rives, Mrs. P. S. Bellamy and Mrs. B. B. Sherrod of Entfield were house guest of Rev. and Mrs. Carl Barbee during the weekend.

Mrs. Ella Hobgood, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. Hettie Moore, for almost five weeks, has returned to her home near Farmville.

Miss Carolyn Stewart of Lewisville spent this week with Miss Margaret Rose Edmondson. For the weekend she will visit Miss Janette Cob.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hux and family were guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moxingo last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pollard and Mr. and Mrs. Jule Pollard were weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins in Raleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Smithers, who have an apartment with Mrs. F. E. Price, will be living here until the Greenville tobacco market closes. They will then return to Pleasantville, Ky.

Lionel Parker of Bethel, and William Robert Edwards of Garland sonville who were recently bitten by snakes have been undergoing treatment in Bethel Clinic.

Miss Rose Powell, a major and minor science student at N. C. State for a six weeks summer term, has returned to Bethel. She leaves Saturday for Washington D. C. where she is to make a short visit with friends; from there, she will go to the western part of Pennsylvania for five or six days.

Mrs. W. A. Osborne of Robertsonville is a patient in Bethel Clinic.

Wedding Vows Spoken At Bride's Home

The home of the bride was the scene of a candlelight wedding Sunday afternoon when Miss Ronna Respass and Gene Ervin Vann were united in marriage. Rev. W. O. Haney performed the double ring ceremony.

The ceremony took place in front of a mirrored mantel. In the center of the mantel was a fan-shaped arrangement of white gladiol and white mums. A kneeling bench decorated with green huckleberry and a white satin pillow was placed in front of the fireplace which was banked with emerald greenery. On either side of the kneeling bench was a seven branched candelabra covered with huckleberry and holding tall cathedral candles. Mrs. H. L. Carter rendered a program of nuptial music as guests assembled. Ralph Sullivan as soloist, sang "Because Truly" by Carrie Jacobs-Bond. As benediction, Mr. Sullivan sang "O Perfect Love" by Barnby. The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride chose as her honor attendant her sister, Mrs. Melvin Moore, of Staten Leland, N. Y. Mrs. Moore's ballerina gown was of coral silk with V-neckline and basque bodice. The blouson skirt was caught at the hem line with a silk butterfly bow hat with flirtation veil and white shorty gloves. Her arm bouquet was of asters, chartreuse mums and sweetheart roses tied with delphinium blue satin.

Attending as bridesmaids were Miss Patsy Moore of Washington D. C. and Miss Yvonne Tatum of Winston-Salem, cousin of the bride. They wore gowns of Dior blue fashioned after the honor attendant with matching hats and white gloves. Arm bouquets of mixed asters tied with coral satin were carried by the bridesmaids.

Jess Maghan of Arlington, Va. served as best man and ushers were Roy D. Oaks of Jacksonville Beach, Florida, and Norman Mullis of Charlotte.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of regal satin and alencon lace motifs enhanced with tiny pearls. The gown featured an empire bodice with high rising folds of satin with lace had long, fitted sleeves with points over the hands. The bouffant skirt belled out at the hip line into blouson puffs. The full skirt extended into a cathedral train. Her chapel length veil of imported illusion was triple tiered and attached to a Spanish heart-shaped cap of alencon lace and pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of Easter Lillies tied with bridal satin. The bride's mother was handsomely dressed in cornation blue lace over taffeta with matching headress. She wore a corsage of red sweetheart roses.

The couple received congratulations and best wishes from the assembled guests.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Respass of Greenville. She was educated in the City Schools of Greenville and attended East Carolina College.

The bride groom is the son of Mrs. N. E. Vann of Goldsboro and the late Mr. Vann. He is a graduate of Goldsboro High School and attended East Carolina College.

After a short wedding trip to the North Carolina Coast and Radium Springs, Georgia, the couple will reside in Albany Ga.

For travelling the bride wore an original brocaded cotton in beige with beige straw accessories and a hybrid orchid corsage.

Immediately following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Respass entertained at a reception in the dining room of the home, honoring the new Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ervin Vann and their wedding party.

Mrs. Tom Adams presided over the punch bowl and guests were served bridal cakes, nuts, mints and French pastry cheese straws buffet style.

The table was covered with a ping cloth with white fringe trim centered with a formal arrangement of white mums and pink sweetheart roses. Around the punch bowl were frosted grapes and a garland of improved simlax with orange blossoms.

The crystal candelabra bearing white candles were tied with white nylon tulle and orange blossoms. A three-tiered wedding cake of green and white with a touch of blush pink roses surmounted by a miniature bride and groom graced the buffet and was later cut by the bride and bridegroom and served to their wedding party.

Poultry Heads List Of Food Buys For Week

RALEIGH—Poultry and poultry products are at the top of the list of best food buys this week. John W. Hagen, N. C. Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist, reports all poultry products are in plentiful supply and at most economical prices. Large quantities of small eggs appearing on the market at reduced prices are the best egg buy.

Fryers and broilers continue in good supply at attractive prices. Many stores are expected to feature them for the Labor Day weekend. Also, heavy hens and turkeys are plentiful and at attractive prices.

Supplies of most fresh vegetables remain adequate. Appearing at economical prices are Irish potatoes, tomatoes, cabbage, field peas, sweet corn, and green beans. Other vegetables available in good supply with little change in price include celery, green peppers, lettuce and carrots. Some new crop of sweet potatoes are now moving to market at moderate prices.

Locally produced late crop watermelons and cantaloupes continue to move to market at attractive prices. Both the melon and peach seasons are coming to a close.

Cooking and eating varieties of apples are moving to market from Western North Carolina. Peak of the season for the Red and Golden Delicious varieties is expected this week. A moderate supply of grapes is now available at reasonable prices with increased volume expected in a few weeks.

Most meat prices show little change from last week. Pork prices have declined slightly. Lamb and veal prices remain at last week's levels. Many fresh and frozen fish products are available for a menu change and budget stretcher.

Brown-Harris Marry

In a ceremony of beauty and simplicity Miss Daphne Harris became the bride of Thomas Bradley Brown, Jr. Saturday afternoon, at the White Level Parsonage near Justice, N. C.

The Rev. T. H. Steen, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Harris of Justice and the groom is the son of Mrs. P. T. McLean of Kinston and Lt. Thomas B. Brown of Greenville.

For her wedding Miss Harris wore a gown designed and made by her mother of white organdy featuring a scalloped neck line extending into a scalloped redingote effect down the front trimmed with a row of tiny buttons. Her small white hat was tipped with pearls with which she wore a shoulder length veil of illusion and elbow length mitts. She carried a white Bible topped with a white purple throated orchid and white stephanotis.

The couple entered together and exchanged their vows in the presence of their families and a few close friends.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents and the bride and bridegroom welcomed guests at their home.

For traveling the bride changed to a white silk sheath with an overall design of tangerine braid and trimmed with a large bustle bow of tangerine in the back. With this she wore white accessories and the orchid lifted from her Bible.

The bride is a graduate of Louisville High School. The bridegroom attended Hargrave Military Academy, Greenville High School, and graduated from Hardbarges Business School.

After a wedding trip the couple will make their home in New Bern where the bridegroom is employed by Southern Railway Company.

Mrs. Thomas Bradley Brown, Jr.

No Question As To Hospital Needs

Three questions seem to be uppermost in the minds of Pitt Countyans as they contemplate the forthcoming referendum September 27 on bonds to finance the county's portion of the cost.

Oddly enough, none of the questions concern the need for the proposed expansion program. Most citizens seem to be well aware the hospital facilities must be expanded if the hospital is to continue to meet the needs of the people of Pitt County.

The questions we have heard asked most often are these:

1. Will the outcome of the referendum be determined by a majority vote of those who go to the polls on September 27, or will it be determined by the number of people who vote for the bond issue versus the total special registration for the referendum?

2. What will be the cost to the people of Pitt County to retire the bonds which the county proposes to issue?

3. Will the county issue all of the $750,000 worth of bonds which will be approved according to the machinery under which the referendum is being held, or will the county issue only $500,000 of the bonds which will be the county's share of the proposed $1,500,000 building project?

The answer to the first question is quite simple. It is covered by both a general statute and a special statute which have been in effect for several years. The outcome of the election will be determined by a simple majority of the ballots which are cast on September 27. There will be no "voting-against-the-book." Regardless of the number of people who register for the special election, if 1,000 votes are cast on September 27, and 501 of the ballots are in favor of the bond issue, the measure will be carried.

The exact amount of increase in the county's tax rate which would be made necessary if the bonds are issued is a more difficult question to answer. It will

Big Returns In Travel Business

By LYNN NISBET

TRAVEL NORTH — Travel business put almost as much money into the North Carolina general fund account last year to operate all the colleges owned and supported by the State.

That is a graphic way of answering the question so often asked about what the travel industry is worth to the overall economy. There is no accepted formula for separating commercial travel from the purely tourist or vacation type. There is sound basis for estimating the total yield of travel business taxes.

During the fiscal year ended June 30 the State of North Carolina collected $5,298,564 in sales taxes from hotels, motels, cafes and restaurants—$148,407 above the previous year. Since the tax is 3 per cent that would indicate total spending for lodging and meals of $176,618,800. Numerous surveys have shown that these items represent about 40 percent of all expenditures made by travelers. That means aggregate spending of $441,547,000.

Nearly all the taxable lodging and most of the meals were obtained away from home. From which it would appear that the travel business, pleasure and commercial, put at least $400 million into the state general fund last year.

Original one time levy of 3 per cent that amount would have produced $12 million in taxes. But travel dollars, like those derived from any other source, pay taxes many times over. Hotel and restaurant owners and their employees pay sales and income taxes on subsequent transactions. So do the clothing, furniture and grocery stores where they spend their profits and wages.

PYRAMID — Economists figure that every dollar put into the channels of trade "turns over" five to seven times. That is why an industry with an annual payroll of one million dollars is estimated to be worth at least five million to the community. Total State general fund revenue derived from travel is conservatively estimated at $13 to $14 million.

Appropriations made by the last General Assembly for the operation (not counting capital investment in buildings) for the Consolidated University and its units at Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro; for East Carolina College at Greenville, Appalachian at Boone, Western Carolina at Cullowhee and Pembroke

State College total $14,195,254 for the current fiscal year. Revenue derived from travel almost meets these commitments.

HIGHWAYS — The foregoing figures deal only with the State's general fund account. In addition to the tax contributions aggregating some $14 million to this fund, the travel business pays the entire bill for constructing and maintaining public highways, in an amount of slightly more than $100 million a year. Most of this money is derived from a gallonage tax on gasoline, which is an adaptation of toll charges. The people who use the roads pay for them, whether residents of North Carolina or visitors from outside. Because so large a part of the gasoline taxes are paid by commercial vehicles, this item is a less reliable factor for estimating the value of travel business than is the lodging and meals sales tax. Theoretically, highway users pay per se what they pay for, and pay for what they get.

TOURISTS — None of this answers an attempt to answer the question of what the "tourist industry" is worth to North Carolina. Nor does it attempt to define "tourist" as distinguished from any other person going places and seeing things. There is inclination in some quarters to think of tourists as out-of-state travelers. That is palpable absurd, because Cherokee is closer to Louisville, Kentucky than to Elizabeth City, and Nags Head is farther from Murphy than from New York. Thousands of people from South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia can get to Mount Mitchell or the North Carolina side of the Great Smoky Mountains Park with less travel than people from coastal North Carolina.

The gratifying fact is they are coming in droves from all these places, in and out of the state, to points of interest in North Carolina. And State revenue derived from these travelers in building and maintaining our roads and just as certainly, though less clearly earmarked, are supporting our institutions of higher education.

Stated another way, if people didn't travel we would not have—or need—highways and we might not have as good colleges and universities. For that reason it would seem that efforts of the State advertising division and the State Travel Council to promote the business are fully justified.

depend upon the schedule of maturities for the bonds which will be set by the State Local Government Commission. It will also be influenced by the retirement schedule of county bonds already outstanding. It will also be influenced by the interest rate which the bonds bring at the time they are sold, and the property valuation of the county from year to year.

County officials considering the matter have come up with the estimate that issuance of the proposed $500,000 in bonds for the hospital would cost approximately 10 to 12 cents on the county's tax rate.

It should be remembered, however, that when the last county hospital bonds were voted on in 1947 the county's tax valuation was only $44.6 million. Today the tax valuation of the county is more than $75 million. On top of that, the current bonded indebtedness of the county will be retired by 1965.

As the property valuation of the county continues to rise in the years to come, and as previously incurred debts of the county are retired, less of the county-wide tax rate will have to be devoted to debt service.

Finally, if voters of the county approve a bond issue of $750,000, will the full amount of these bonds be issued, or will the county issue only the estimated $500,000 indicated to cover the county's share of the proposed hospital expansion?

That, we believe, is best answered by resolutions of the Hospital Board of Trustees and the County Commissioners. Both of these bodies have assured citizens of the county that only $500,000 worth of the bonds are to be issued for the hospital expansion. The remaining $250,000 of the proposed bond issue will not be used.

If those resolutions are not sufficient assurance to the voters of the county, we might look back a few years to the time when Pitt Memorial Hospital was constructed.

In 1947 voters of the county went to the polls and authorized the issuance of $352,500 in county bonds to pay the county's share for building the hospital. When the hospital bonds were sold in 1950, the county sold only $250,000 worth which was needed rather than the $352,500 worth of bonds authorized by the voters.

The county needs the additional hospital facilities which the proposed expansion program would provide. Financially, the county is in a sound position to issue the required bonds and retire them.

The Reflector urges the citizens of Pitt County to register during the special registration period for the referendum and to vote on September 27 in favor of the proposed bond issue.

Cost Of Living Keeps Going Up

By Ralph Robey

Termination of the upswing in the cost of living is still in the future. From mid-June to mid-July the consumers price index, nearest and best measure we have of the cost of living, advanced to another new high.

The July figure for this index was only two tenths of a point above that for June but that was double the increase shown in June over May. At 123.9, it means that these prices on the average are almost 25 percent higher than they were in 1947-49. The increase during the past twelve months has been 2.6 percent.

It is customary for the index to rise between June and July. This time, however, the increase was caused primarily by items which do not have such a seasonal variation. A rise in gasoline and used car prices and in transit fares, all of which are included under transportation, lifted the index more than any other factor. None of these normally advance at this time of year.

The next most important element in the upswing was medical care. Compared with a year ago there is an advance of 4.5 percent, the largest rise in any of the eight broad subdivisions of the index.

Next came personal care, then food, both showing a slight increase. Apparel and miscellaneous goods and services were unchanged. Housing, which includes furnishings, and reading and recreation both declined by a small fraction.

As a result of this increase in the index it is estimated that about one-half million workers will get an upward adjustment in wages. Amount of the raise will range from one to four cents an hour, the difference being determined by whether the escalator clause in their contracts provides for quarterly or semi-annual adjustments for changes in the consumers price index.

In spite of the continued rise of this index, it has advanced in all but a couple of months over the past two years. Ewan Clague, the exceptionally capable Commissioner of Labor Statistics still believes we are heading into a period of stability. His optimism is based in large measure upon the conviction that food prices will decline enough in coming months to offset any upward trend in other items. In fact, except for the prices of various meats, oranges and orange juice, which still are reflecting the crop-killing frosts of last winter, a decline in the food component is already under way. With larger marketings in the weeks ahead it is expected that meat prices will show a drop.

Since there is no group in the nation that knows more about the trend of retail prices than Mr. Clague and his staff this optimism is most encouraging. It should be noted however that Mr. Clague predicts merely a period of stability, not a decline in the consumers price index, and the prediction of stability covers only the remainder of this year.

This means that overhauling the present situation is the threat of new inflation, which, if it occurs, will start the index on the upgrade again. The factors back of this threat of renewed inflation are many, but most important are the continued increase of wages without regard to the output per manhour, increased government spending which the Congress has ordered, and the huge federal deficit which confronts us in the years immediately ahead.

Fortunately both the Administration and the Federal Reserve Board are keenly aware of this danger of a revival of inflation. Whether the Administration can hold back on its spending significantly is dubious. But the Federal Reserve Board already has changed its policy and taken steps to make borrowing a bit more unattractive. This has been done by an increase in the discount rate and by limited selling of government securities in the open market. The latter mops up reserves of commercial banks, thereby making it more difficult for them to lend. The raising of the discount rate makes it more expensive for commercial banks to borrow from the Federal Reserve banks and is one method of adding to the reserves against which they can make loans.

Whether the Federal Reserve will follow through and take whatever steps are necessary to prevent further price increases remains to be seen. It is not too early to say, however, that at least this time the reserve authorities did not delay in taking action.

Quiz To Pass The Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you bored with the long holiday week-end?

Well, then, maybe you'd like to play a little game to see just how smart you are.

Every year the research staff of "Our Wonderful World," an 18-volume children's reference work, receives thousands of questions from parents and kids.

Some of the questions fascinate the experts who often, for one reason or another, find them a bit hard to answer—adequately, anyway.

Want to test your own knowledge? All right, get out your pencil and paper, and see how you'd do on these actual sample questions:

"How many grains of corn will a goose eat in 30 days?"

"I am an undertaker. Please tell me how I can attract and keep business."

"Send me information on how to spot a Communist. Please rush."

"How many Adam's apples has a giraffe got?"

"Are there any good uses for lightning?"

"Why does a hypodermic needle have a hole?"

"I would like some information on bugs like mother found in her flour. Are they wheat germs?"

"I have heard that on expeditions in the Himalayan Mountains there were encountered another race of people called the Abdominal Snow Man. Who are they?"

"I want to know what a Democrat or Republican considers himself to be."

"I am to give a report on 'beheading.' Any information you can give me on what actually causes death after a beheading?"

"I would like to ask a question. What does love mean? I am 13 years old. I can't figure it out. Mom doesn't know either."

"How can we know just where to draw the line on worry?"

"Please furnish me with all available information on the following subject: Ways, means and methods used in cheating in the game of poker. P.S. I have been took a few times lately, in a friendly game at the local club, and I want to know how they do it."

"Is fire hot? What are the latest ideas on this?"

"Why does a baby wet its diaper as soon as changed?"

"I would like some information about Vladimir Horowitz, Russian pianist. I would like to know if he does the playing for Liberace."

"What did the people of B.C. call their years? They could not have called it B.C. because they didn't know Christ was coming."

"Describe a typical day in the lives of Adam and Eve."

"I would like a research report on phobias—how many there are and also their names. I have 21, but they tell me there are many, many more."

"After you have finished this quiz, do me a favor, will you? Don't send the answers to me. I don't feel up to grading them. Send them to Harvard."

Opinions In Brief

"We have become too much a nation of lookers and listeners, a nation of spectators. Amidst the easy artificiality of our life, the plethora of substitutes for learning and thinking, the innumerable devices for avoiding or delegating personal responsibility for our opinions, even for having any opinions, the fine edge of our faith has been dulled, our creative power atrophied."—A. W. Griswold, Pres. of Yale Univ.

"Hail to B. A. Brown, professor of agronomy at the University of Connecticut and friend of every lazy man in the land. On two, not just one, counts he has bolstered arguments that have for generations been ineffective against nagging wives, to wit: (1) That tall grass is healthier, (2) That grass, like chips, should be left fall where it may and left there."—Hartford Courant.

Other Editors Saying --- People Much The Same

(Henderson Dispatch)

In Russia a few weeks ago, a group of American students and their professors on a summer tour there held a meeting with a similar group of Russians who had just returned from the United States. A statement from the Soviet Embassy in Washington said "the unofficial nature of the meeting and the atmosphere of mutual good will led to friendly, unconstrained conversation."

A Hanover College professor commented that "the best thing about our trip was that we were able to get acquainted with many Soviet people and establish warm, friendly contacts with them." A Tufts University professor said "it is just this sort of contact between guests and hosts that helps establish good relations. There was unanimous agreement on the part of the Americans in noting 'the great hospitality and friendliness of the Soviet people.'"

Alone and of themselves the Russian masses apparently do not share the trades of hate and accusation that flow from the Kremlin propaganda agencies. That is probably true of like groups of the people in all countries where there is understanding of mutual characteristics and aspirations. They do not want war. They crave friendship and good will. Perhaps there is a silver lining to the clouds, after all.

This exchange of fellowship in Soviet Russia between American and Russians is in marked contrast to the arrogance demonstrated by the group of Soviet students who recently visited the University of North Carolina campus. They were cold and evasive, and inclined to keep to themselves. They avoided free conversation, as if they had been tutored by the Moscow propagandists before they came here. They carried with them the superiority complex of the rulers of their country, as if they were desirous of perpetuating the suspicion and of criticizing what they saw and found and heard. This type of exchange students is notably different from the comradeship at the meeting somewhere inside Russia.

Given an opportunity, the rank and file of citizens of all countries would quickly dissipate the ill will, jealousy, covetousness and scorn leaders in some nations seek constantly to instill in the minds of their people. More of this sort of exchange and less, and indeed none at all, of the sort that took place at Chapel Hill a few weeks ago could ultimately produce a spirit of cordiality that might transform the world into a better place in which to live.

In such a spirit, the nations might sooner than supposed "beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" and "learn war no more." In that sort of atmosphere every man could rest under his vine and his fig tree in peace and contentment, and without fear of being destroyed by the hate and ambition of a ruling hierarchy of dictators.

Not The Best Of All Labor Days

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is not the best of all Labor Days.

Labor has made some gains since last September. But they have been largely offset by losses.

The biggest loss has been in the prestige of some of the top levels of organized labor. This is indeed ironic because George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, has a rare reputation for integrity.

Exposure by Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field has shown amazing incidents of corruption and amorality in the lesser ranks of leadership, involving well-kept girls in Florida, arson, murder, and the taint of Greenpeace murder-kidnap money.

LEGISLATIVE BATTLE LOST
The worst part of these revelations may be the disillusionment of many rank and file unionists.

Other FRAIL VICTORIES
Because of the recession earlier this year, labor was forced to modify demands. In some cases, it agreed to no increase in wages. Some unions won increases, but the average was less than those won in 1957. Some of the gains were straight cost-of-living adjustments, but in some industries the gains did not equal the rise in costs of living—which kept on going up during the recession. Thus union members ended up with fewer potatoes than they had a year ago.

The biggest blow to labor was unemployment. Total personal income did not drop during the recession; stock prices fell fairly well; dividends dipped only slightly; other sources of income

Sees No Soviet Conflict

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — As I have continually stated in these columns, we will not have a shooting war with Russia. We may have a chemical-weather war; and we are now in an economic war. I go further and say that Khrushchev — like all Russian leaders — has world domination as a goal; but this is not true of the Russian people or of the satellite nations. Furthermore, Khrushchev fears Premier Mao of China.

WATCH CHINA CAREFULLY
There are many reasons why China would not join Russia in war against the West. China is largely Buddhist in religion; but China is not atheistic, as Russia claims to be. Most of the Chinese leaders were educated in Christian schools. The colleges and hospitals of China were largely financed by American dollars.

China, by tradition, is friendly to the United States. My Grandparents formerly sailed ships between Boston and Chinese ports. In the homes of their descendants today — including my own — are beautiful pieces of chinaware which were purchased in China by the Captains of these ships. It is within the last fifteen years that these ties with America have been broken. It is only common sense that they will again be renewed.

MARSHALL'S BIG MISTAKE
I think Mr. Truman will tell intimate friends that he made a mistake in accepting the report of General Marshall on China. Of course, the General was in China only a short time and was dependent upon the reports which he received from those whom he met. To make a comprehensive report on China would take months or years.

Besides, General Marshall was a West Point graduate, with Army experience. He should not have accepted the task which President Truman gave him. General Marshall was very much influenced by Chiang Kai-shek and his charming wife. She graduated from our college here in Wellesley and made friends with all of us people whom she met. She also won the hearts of Mr. Truman and other prominent men. It was largely due to the character, courage, and wealth of the Sun family that the railroads, public utilities, and factories of China were built.

NATIONALIST CHINA AND UNITED NATIONS
From the observations I gathered when I visited China, I would hesitate to admit Communist China to the United Nations. It, however, has always seemed inconsistent to permit Formosa and Chiang Kai-shek to represent the 600 million Chinese mainlanders in the United Nations. This may have been a means of "saving face"; but it does not make sense to me.

If Chiang Kai-shek should die today, I am sure the Communist China under Premier Mao, would be admitted to the United Nations. On the surface, we continue to be unfriendly to Communist China; but it may be that Premier Mao is receiving some sympathy and moral support from certain factions in our State Department. It is very interesting to see how England has kept friendly with Communist China, which has not disturbed Hong Kong. This is one of the most beautiful cities I have ever visited. It is very busy and very rich. Yet, Premier Mao could drop a bomb on it and knock it out of existence.

KHRUSHCHEV FEARS MAO
As I said in my column last June, there is more probability of war between Russia and China than between Russia and the United States. I continue to feel that Premier Mao of Red China is a chief factor in the actions of Khrushchev during the past weeks. The press has told of how Mao has been to Moscow and has apparently caused Khrushchev to "get off his high horse" and accept President Eisenhower's desires relative to the Summit Meeting. After the Marshall Report, Mao was obliged to accept help from Russia, but today the situation is very different. If Khrushchev should attack Western Europe and America, China would at once attack Russia on the East.

New Decline In Farm Prices Is Blow To Hopes Of GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new drop in farm prices has come along to plague Republicans just when they thought their campaign to regain control of Congress was looking up.

A decline of 1 per cent in the farm price average between mid-July and mid-August left the level nearly 3 per cent higher than a year before.

But it was the third straight month in which the Agriculture Department reported a price drop and it put something of a damper on Republican contentions that their chances are improving in the farm belt.

GOP hopes of holding Senate seats this year in Minnesota and Indiana and of recapturing one in Wisconsin may hinge largely on the mood of farmers in those states.

To a lesser extent the economic health of the agricultural community could affect the outcome of similar contests in Missouri, Michigan, New York, California, Ohio and Wyoming.

With this in mind, the Senate Republican Policy committee has just put into the hands of campaigning members a 1,000-word summation of what it calls the "agricultural achievements of the Republican administration — 1953-58."

Typical of the claims was the statement that "gross farm income in the first half of 1958 was the highest on record—$13,800,000,000."

GOP campaigners were advised to remind their constituents also that "farmers in 1954 were benefited by the greatest tax reduction in history."

Recent Republican talk about beating the Democrats in November has been based in part on reports of improved chances of some GOP candidates in the farm areas. The Republicans also are encouraged by the belief that the general economic recession has dropped out of the picture as an issue.

Furthermore, the Republicans have reason to hope the Middle East situation may be resolved before November and GOP strategists feel the President's action in the crisis will yield political benefits. However, they are keeping their fingers crossed about possible developments in the Far East.

New Agency Programs To Be Explained At Meeting

RALEIGH (AP)—New programs proposed by state agencies for the 1959-61 biennium will be explained to the Advisory Budget Commission at a 10-day series of public hearings beginning Sept. 8.

Requests for buildings and other permanent improvements also will be placed before the commission during the hearings. Gov. Hodges is expected to be present during some of the hearings, which serve to aid the budget group in making spending recommendations to the next Legislature.

Money requests from the state agencies are certain to run beyond revenues which the state can expect to collect during the next two fiscal years. Hodges already has forecast that finding new tax money will be a major job for the Legislature which meets in February.

The Advisory Budget Commission already has studied "A" budgets from state agencies and institutions, outlining amounts of money needed to continue services at present levels.

The hearings will deal with "B" budgets, setting out funds which would be needed for proposed new programs or expanded services.

Agencies which will appear the first day of hearings on Monday, Sept. 8, include the State Board of Public Welfare, the Department of Labor, and the Revenue Department.

The following day, the State Board of Education will tell of new programs proposed for the state's public schools.

State-supported colleges will be heard during the final 2½ days of the hearings, from Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 16, through Sept. 18.

She Sat Out Her 112th Birthday

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—Clay County folk swarmed five thousand strong into tiny Asher's Fork Sunday to celebrate Aunt Josie Sizemore's 112th birthday.

But Aunt Josie missed the party. "I went down to the well this morning for water and like to smothered to death in the heat," she told a delegation of gubernatorial candidates who came up the hollow to see her. "That's when I decided to stay home."

Lloyd Godwin, manager of the South-11 drive-in, said he received an anonymous letter through the mail the other day. Attached to the back of the letter with cellophane tape was 75 cents.

In the letter the writer explained that he was 14 years old and had attended the recent showing of the "Ten Commandments" at the theatre on a child's pass.

His conscience had bothered him since, the writer said, and to set things right he was enclosing 75 cents—the difference between a 50-cent child's admission and 1.25 adult ticket.

Godwin is a man who admires honesty and he said a season's pass—good for the rest of the year—will be waiting for the youngster; if he will drop by the theatre.

Then she asked about her birthday cake, a 40-pound affair with 112 candles. But it was too heavy to be carried across the streams and swinging bridges that mark the path to Aunt Josie's mountain cabin.

"If you want to live to a ripe old age, she told her guests, "go to bed early, get up early and take the Lord with you."

Then she gave her gentlemen callers a bright smile. "Come back in four years, she said. "I'll be sweet sixteen again, you know."

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP)—Despite William A. Rainey III's vigorous protests, his wife has been restored to him.

Sally Ann Rainey told Superior Judge Aylett Cotton yesterday she (1) never had been served with notice of Rainey's divorce suit, (2) didn't know he had been granted an interlocutory divorce and (3) first learned of the October 1957 decree when she was given some of their community property.

Judge Cotton accepted that and voided the divorce decree, reinstated the Rainey's marital status.

Eden's Niece To Wed Mechanic

LONDON (AP)—Former Prime Minister Anthony Eden's society-born niece, Amelia, is marrying an Italian ferryboat mechanic with her family's blessing. But her father regrets she didn't make a better match.

Amelia, 25, will be married next Sunday to Giovanni Borelli, 30, who earns $23 a week serving the ferry between Naples and the resort islands of Capri, Ischia and Ponza. They met when Amelia was vacationing in Italy two years ago.

Amelia's father, Sir Timothy Eden, who runs an exclusive girl's school in Hampshire said his first regret is she isn't marrying someone from a similar status in life or who has money or position.

"My second regret is on religious grounds," Sir Timothy added, "but I have looked at a snapshot and I am sure he is a charming, fine fellow and a worthy man. I have given them my love and blessing."

The bride's mother, Lady Patricia, seemed more favorable to the match. Taking a plane to attend the wedding, she told reporters: "Of course there are social barriers, but are they important? Isn't happiness of more value?"

The couple will wed in the Church of San Martino, on Ischia, where Giovanni has been living with his parents.

For The Record: It Seems Best To Lose

By JAMES BACON
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's nice to win a beauty contest but it's better to lose—if you want to become a movie star.

The history of beauty contest winners has been dismal in Hollywood, but losers go on to stardom. Take Vera Miles, who lost out in the Miss America contest some years back. Even she can't remember the name of the girl who won the year she entered.

In the recent Miss Universe contest, Evy Norlund as Miss Denmark wasn't one of the five finalists. Yet she is the only one of the 79 international beauties who wound up with a movie contract.

Max Arrow, talent director at Columbia Pictures, watched the telecast of the Long Beach beauty pageant. It was a miniature screen test for the 20-year-old Evy.

Arrow had a look at another beauty contest loser a few years ago. He took her to the late Harry Cohn and urged that she be signed. That was Kim Novak.

He has the same feeling about Evy—also a blonde. She's getting the same buildup that Kim got four years ago. Columbia even fixed her up with a room at the nearby Studio Club, the YWCA-like habitat that Kim called home even after she reached stardom.

Evy's selection for a contract indicated a trend in Hollywood beauty, especially as it relates to box office. A few years ago, every new starlet signed by a studio could roughly fall into two categories. Either she was a Marilyn Monroe type or a Grace Kelly type.

Evy, a shapely blonde with an intriguing accent, is a Scandinavian Brigitte Bardot. The Bardot category is a blending of the Kelly-Monroe types with that added something that only foreign girls have.

Evy had no dramatic training before Columbia signed her. The daughter of an architect, she was a top fashion model in Copenhagen when she won over several hundred girls for the Miss Denmark title.

"I didn't think I would ever get to the United States as a tourist but here I am under contract to a big movie studio. It's incredible," she said.

But then, how many tourists look like Brigitte Bardot?

Tobacco Sales Resume Tomorrow On 2 Belts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Carolina's fine-cured tobacco markets continued their breathing spell today after a spiral of prices that have brought all-time highs and more recently a series of new season lows.

Sales will resume tomorrow on the Border and Eastern North Carolina belts after the three-day Labor Day weekend. On Thursday, sales will begin on the North Carolina Middle

Redleg Record Among The Best With Dykes At Helm

By JOE REICHLER
The Associated Press

General Manager Gabe Paul of Cincinnati doesn't have to look any further than his clubhouse when the time comes for him to consider a manager for the Redlegs in 1959. The fellow who is acting as interim manager—James Joseph Dykes—is doing a whale of a job, just about the best in the majors.

When Dykes took over last Aug. 14 after Birdie Tebbets' sudden resignation, Paul announced that the 51-year-old coach would fill in until a full-time manager was named. He made it plain Jimmy would not manage the Redlegs in 1959.

Paul might be in the mood to change his mind today following Cincinnati's sweep of a Sunday doubleheader from Philadelphia 6-2 and 7-3.

The double triumph not only secured the Redlegs' fourth place position but extended the club's streak to six straight. Cincinnati has a 12-6 record since Dykes took over. Only Milwaukee has done as well in both majors. The Redlegs were last on Aug. 14.

Milwaukee opened up an 8½ game lead, as rookie right-hander Carlton Willey shut out Pittsburgh 2-0. The San Francisco Giants tied the Pirates for second place, drubbing the Los Angeles Dodgers 14-2. Chicago whipped St. Louis 8-5 to vacate the cellar.

Two home runs by Ed Bailey helped Harvey Haddix gain his eighth Cincinnati victory in the opener. Johnny Temple also drove in three runs with a pair of hits. Don Newcombe went all the way in the second game for the Redlegs for his third straight triumph. Jerry Lynch's three-run homer off Robin Roberts in the seventh broke a 3-3 tie.

Willey, brought up by Milwaukee in mid-June from Wichita, stopped Pittsburgh with five hits for his ninth victory and fourth shutout. Ronnie Kline was the loser. Red Schoendienst's single, a wild pitch and two infield outs, furnished the first Milwaukee run in the first inning. Wes Covington singled in the other.

Bob Schmidt drove in six runs and hit a grand slam homer as the Giants made it three in a row and 13 out of 17 against Los Angeles. Willie Mays hit his 25th home run as Stu Miller won his fourth with an eight-hitter. Sandy Koufax, the first of four Dodger pitchers, was the loser.

Walt Moryn, whose pinch-hit homer in the 10th beat St. Louis Saturday night, did it again for the Cubs yesterday. He slammed a two-run homer in the seventh to break a 5-5 tie.

Taylor Phillips, who replaced starter Moe Drabowsky in the third, was the winner with Billy Muffet, third of four St. Louis pitchers, the loser. The victory moved the Cubs into seventh place a half game in front of the Phillies.

Chris, who towers 6-3½, had good reason to be surprised. In his first match in the National Tennis Championships, he drew canny old Gardnar Mulloy. He got rid of Mulloy. That was surprise No. 1.

Then yesterday, he pulled the shocker of the tournament when he trounced Davis Cupper Barry MacKay in the second round, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"I have practically nothing with me," Crawford said. "When I saw that draw, I figured I'd be back home to Piedmont, Calif., in a hurry. Why, Bill Talbert had to give me a shirt to play in yesterday."

Chris was the No. 1 junior in the country in 1956. In fact, this is his first year of the tournament trail.

"I never played MacKay before," he said. "And I must admit, I think Barry was off form. But I did have a strategy. I tried to keep the ball at his feet and it worked out pretty well."

MacKay was crestfallen. "I guess I just need a couple of weeks rest," he sighed. "That wasn't the kind of tennis I usually play and everyone knows it."

Crawford next meets Bob Mark, one of Australia's second line players.

Otherwise there were no upsets yesterday although a rhubarb almost caused one.

Dick Savitt, former Wimbledon champion from East Orange, N. J., walked off the court and was formally defaulted after the umpire had refused to call the match with Crawford. Henry of Atlanta because of darkness.

However, tournament Referee Dan Johnson overruled the umpire and Savitt was persuaded to return to try to finish the match. But the match then was called with Savitt leading 6-2, 6-2, 6-8, 5-4. It will be finished today.

In the women's division, second-seeded Mrs. Dorothy Knode of Forest Hills led the march to the third round with a 6-0, 6-4 triumph over Joan Sullivan of Belmont, Mass. Ann Hayden of Britain, ranked No. 3, sailed past Helene Weill of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-2, 6-3.

Anyone around the National Football League who thinks the cunctious Chicago Bears are kindly Bruins had better do a double take on the exhibition standings today.

Since George Halas, the original Papa Bear, resumed command they have not lost. Halas has his Bruins atop the standings with a 3-0 mark in exhibition play, adding Pittsburgh to the list of victims, 17-10 Saturday.

Halas returned to the NFL wars this year after a two-year absence during which time Paddy Driscoll took command. When the Bears failed to impress, Papa George jumped back as head of the lair.

In Sunday's only NFL activity San Francisco turned on a awe-inspiring display of power, romping over the Chicago Cardinals 55-31 at San Francisco. Philadelphia plays the Green Bay Packers at Green Bay today in the only Labor Day activity.

The Cards jumped to a quick 10-0 lead but the 49ers drove 85 yards for one score and turned two recovered fumbles into two more to stay in front for good. Reserve quarterback John Brodie put the icing on the cake with four touchdown passes in the second half that gave the 49ers an easy victory.

Hunting Course Opens Nov. 30

RALEIGH (AP) — Hey, Tar Heel hunters, have you been missing your bag limit lately? Maybe you need schooling in hunting and shooting.

You can get it at Southern Pines Nov. 30-Dec. 5, in a game hunting short course conducted by the North Carolina State College Extension Division.

For a package fee (of $175), students will receive classroom instruction in gun handling and safety, hunting techniques, wildlife facts, and game regulations. They also will be taken out in the fields for pheasant, quail, and deer hunts, and possibly others. Trap and skeet shooting will be offered to improve marksmanship.

Carolina League Meeting Slated

DURHAM (AP)—President Bill Jessup and directors of the Class B Carolina League will meet here the morning of Sept. 5 to study a plan calling on major league clubs to assume more responsibilities for their Carolina League franchises.

Details of the plan, drawn up by a committee of the directors at Winston-Salem on Aug. 24, will not be made public until the directors take action on it here. If the so-called Jessup Plan is approved, it will be presented to major league clubs which have working agreements in the league for the 1959 season.

Aging Wynn Still One Of Toughest

By JOE REICHLER

Chicago's Early Wynn, nearing 40, may not be the peerless pitcher he was in his Cleveland heyday, but the White Sox right-hander is still one of the toughest pitchers in the American League.

Wynn, who pitched his first major league game in 1939, turned in one of his finest mound performances Sunday—a two-hit shutout over the Detroit Tigers. The stolidly-built Alabaman, now residing in Nokomis, Fla., simply overpowered the Tigers as he struck out 7 and gained his 12th victory against 13 losses.

Wynn now owns lifetime totals of 287 triumphs, 36 shutouts and 1,883 strikeouts. No active pitcher has more victories or strikeouts and only Warren Spahn of Milwaukee, with 43, owns more shutouts. He has four shutouts this season and is tied with New York's Bob Turley for the American League lead in strikeouts with 149.

Turley became the first pitcher in the majors to win 20 as the Yankees barely beat Washington 7-6 to retain their 10½ game margin over Chicago. The Boston Red Sox shamed Baltimore 3-2 and Cleveland nipped Kansas City 3-2 in 11 innings.

Detroit's two hits off Wynn were cleanly hit. The Sox sewed up the game in the first when singles by Nellie Fox, Jim Landis and Ray Boone and a sacrifice fly by Billy Goodman produced two runs.

Turley had a four-hitter and the Yankees were leading 6-1 when the Senators chased the fire-balling right-hander in the seventh. Riney Duren stopped the threat without a run but he left in the eighth when the Senators tallied once.

Trailing 7-2 in the ninth, Washington rallied for four runs and just missed getting the equalizer. Three singles produced a run before Norma Zauchin smacked his 13th home run with two aboard.

Murry Dickson replaced Johnny Kucks at this point and put two runners on base via a hit batsman and a walk. Herb Flews, however, grounded out to end the game.

Hoyt Wilhelm allowed Boston only five hits but two came in the seventh inning, along with a disastrous balk, to provide the Red Sox with the winning run.

Frank Malzone opened with an infield single and was forced by Jackie Jensen. A balk put Jensen on second and he scored on a single by Jimmy Piersall. Tom Brewer won his fifth straight.

Two home runs by Rocky Colavito and one by Minnie Minoso gave Cleveland its victory over Kansas City.

The Indians trailed 2-0 when Colavito hit his first homer, off Ralph Terry, in the seventh. Rocky Walloppe his 34th with two in the ninth to tie the score.

Minoso's homer, his 20th of the season, came in the 11th, and was only the fifth hit off Terry, who lost his 11th against eight victories. Morrie Martin, who stopped the Athletics with the bases full and one out in the 10th, was credited with his second victory in two days.

Darlington Classic Expects Big Crowd

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP)—The ninth annual Southern 500 late model stock car race runs away here today before an expected 75,000 fans. The cars were expected to average better than 100 miles an hour.

Co-favorites among the 49 drivers who made up the fastest, most exclusive field in the history of the 500-mile race with $60,000 purse were Curtis Turner in a Ford and Glenn (Fireball) Roberts in a Chevrolet.

Turner, Roanoke, Va., lumberman, and Roberts, of Daytona Beach, Fla., each have won the Rebel 300 late model convertible race held each spring on the mile and three-eighths paved Darlington International Raceway.

Thirty eight drivers qualified at better than 110 miles an hour to make it the fastest 500 field ever to run here.

The cars start in rows of three based on qualifying times. In the first row were Eddie Pagan, Lynwood, Calif., Ford, 116.952 m.p.h.; Roberts, 118.648 m.p.h.; and Joe Weatherly, Norfolk, Va., Ford, 118.124 m.p.h.

Other drivers had better qualifying times than Pagan, but he won the pole position by being the only driver to finish the first day's qualifying runs, which were stopped after an accident.

Turner was in the second row with a qualifying speed of 118.096 m.p.h.

Back in the seventh row was Speedy Thompson of Charlotte and Monroe, N.C., who won last year at 100.1 m.p.h.

Many in the crowd were at the track when dawn broke, having spent the night in the infield. The stands, holding about 40,000 began

45 Boys Report For First Session

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Football practice for the 1958 gridiron season began this morning for 45 husky seniors, juniors, and sophomores at East Carolina College.

Coach Jack Boone and his assistants met with the squad this morning at 10:00 for the first day of work, which was expected to be light. Working with Boone will be Assistants Jim Mallory, Earl Smith, Frank Madigan and Bill McDonald. Managers and trainers will be Eppees Reedy, Billy Thacker, and Howard Black.

Yesterday, the 45 boys and their families were invited to the campus by the school. The boys underwent physical examinations at the infirmary while their wives, children, parents and other kin were entertained at the gymnasium by the Athletic Department. At 4:00, all the players and their families were treated to a picnic in the gymnasium.

Coach Boone sent his 45 gridders through the physical exam grind yesterday under the supervision of Drs. Fred and Malene Irons and Dr. Dan Wright. Most of the gridders were on last year's East Carolina team. The 45 were composed of four seniors, 14 juniors, and 13 sophomores. There were 17 lettermen present.

Coach Boone commented that 25 more footballers are expected to report to school before the week is over. They will be composed mostly of freshmen.

Two practice sessions per day will be in order for the Bucs for the first week. A lot of inside work will be included in the work schedule, including blackboard drill and study of game movies.

With the first game of the season scheduled for September 13, the East Carolina squad has a lot of work to do, according to Coach Boone. The coach has commented that "there are no breathers in this year's schedule and we'll have to get ready fast and stay up."

The Bucs will play six home games this fall, the first four being played in Greenville. On September 13, Emory-Henry will be here; on September 20, Presbyterian here; on September 27, Guilford here; on October 4, Catawba

Raleigh Teams In Title Playoff

RALEIGH (AP) — Waco Heights and Military District, both of Raleigh, play tonight for the championship of the North Carolina Invitational softball tournament.

The two clubs split a Saturday night double-header, forcing the deciding game over until tonight. Waco won the first game 1-0 and Military District squeezed out a 3-2 decision in the second game in 10 innings.

WEEKEND FIGHTS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Monroe Ratliff, 181, Los Angeles, stopped Ruben Vargas, 197, Oakland, Cal., 7.

HAVANA, Cuba — Armando Baragan, 138, Havana, outpointed Weyman Dawson, 138½, Pittsburgh, 10.

KINGSTON, Jamaica — Allan Hackman, Jamaica, stopped Aman Perk, Tampa, Fla., 2. Middleweights.

Prospects

Last season the Bucs won only one ball game out of nine. This year, for the first time in a long time, the Pirates will have a group of lettermen back without having to use a force of freshmen in the starting lineup. Boone has said that "we'll be able to start a team which will not have a single freshman in the lineup. All of them will be regulars and lettermen."

Of course, Boone isn't revealing his lineup. With today being the first day of drill, he cannot name his regular club. He foresees many changes between now and September 13.

One thing that seems fairly certain will be Boone's backfield. Ralph Zehring, a 165-pound two-year veteran, is expected to be the starting quarterback. Zehring is co-captain of the club, can run and pass. James Speight, 170-pound seat back who has earned just about every All-Star honor possible since coming to ECC, will handle fullback duties. Probable halfbacks will be Bobby Perry and Tommy Nash, both veterans.

Though the line is still unsettled, Boone has sketched in the following positions as follows: Ends, Howard Beale and Bill Cain; tackles, Charles Cooke and Ed Emory; guards, Wayne Davis and Charles Gordon; center, Lynn Barnett.

After today's 10:00 workout, Boone plans to have his club working out two times each day, starting at 6:30 in the morning.

It's Tougher To Trim Redskin Squad To Limit

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — "It gets tougher every year to cut the squad," says Coach Joe Kuharich of the Washington Redskins, and he adds that the other coaches in the National Football League "are going through the same misery I am."

The misery Kuharich refers to is that his rookie players of last year blossomed so early that just about all his 43 squad members look like pro quality. He has to cut to 35 for the season.

The Redskins opened practice yesterday for the annual Piedmont Bowl game with Green Bay here Sept. 13.

Ed Sutton, former University of North Carolina halfback, is among the rookies of last year who came through well in their opening season.

The Redskins last year finished fourth in the NFL's Eastern Conference.

Jupiter C Is The 'Big One' Of Army's Missile Team

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of articles dealing with US Army Guided Missiles and Rockets. This information is furnished through the courtesy of Sergeant Aubrey E. Kidd the local United States Army Recruiter.

The Jupiter "C"
As a research missile built to test Jupiter components, the Jupiter "C" was developed in connection with re-entry problems arising when a ballistic missile nose-cone leaves outer space and strikes the relatively heavy, thick atmosphere of the earth.

Using the proven Redstone engine, a liquid propellant power plant in the first stages, the upper stages of the Jupiter "C" are solid propellant rockets. The first stage powers the satellite to the required height and during the ascent the main power plant separates from the upper stages. It falls back to earth and the upper stage continue to the apex of the arc. The satellite and final-stage rocket are joined together and circle the earth as a unit. It is notable that the satellite is not designed to be recovered.

Approximately 70 feet long, the Jupiter "C" final stage plus the instrument-carrying satellite case is 80 inches long and about six inches in diameter. The satellite weighs 18 pounds and it is stabilized by electric motors causing it to spin like a rifle bullet.
NOTE: Weights are for Explorers I and III. Explorer IV is larger and heavier. In September 1956, the Jupiter "C" reached a range of more than 3,300 miles into space.

Sergeant
The Sergeant is a new addition to the Army missile family which can deliver a nuclear blow deep behind enemy lines. A highly accurate guidance system in the Sergeant is invulnerable to any known means of countermeasures. Because it is highly mobile, the Sergeant can be quickly set up and fired by a small propellant which allows better storage than in some other weapons systems and is easily adaptable to field operations in most tactical situations.

Honest John
The Honest John is a long range artillery rocket used to provide fire support in combat. Using "shoot and scoot" tactics the Honest John can be moved rapidly from one position to another. Powered by solid propellants, the Honest John is a supersonic free-flight rocket and is aimed the same as artillery. The rocket is 27 feet long and uses its own truck-transporter launcher. It has atomic or conventional warhead capability.

Little John
The "baby brother" of the Honest John is adaptable to airborne operations and can be transported by helicopter. Designed for use in the Army's new Pentomic organization, the Little John affords "Sunday-Punch" for small, mobile combat teams on any future battlefield. It is a 12 foot, supersonic, free-flight rocket, packing a greater explosive power than heavy artillery. It can be used with an atomic warhead. Powered by a solid propellant, the accurate and reliable Little John is now in the hands of selected Army units for training and development of handling techniques.

This was the second in a series of four articles dealing with US Army missiles. Watch for the third article next week.

Giant 'Umbrella' At Air Terminal

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's largest steel-ribbed umbrella will serve as a terminal for Pan American World Airways at New York International Airport.

Thirty-two rib girders will radiate from the center core of the umbrella-like structure, said Thomas R. Mullen, whose Lehigh Structural Steel Company of Allentown, Pa., will fabricate and erect the eight million dollar structure. The roof will be four acres in area.

Mullen said the largest of the girders will be 224 feet long and weigh 75 tons.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 30 cases in Municipal Recorder's Court Friday. Thirteen of them involved violations of motor vehicle and traffic laws. The other 17 ranged from assault on a female to assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. In three cases, the defendants were bound over to Superior Court.

Public Needs Safeguard From Abuses: President

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — President Eisenhower, in a Labor Day message this election year, says the public must be protected against any lawlessness and power abuse in the labor-management field. Spending the holiday at his vacation headquarters on the Narragansett Bay shore, the President called on both labor and those who belong to business people to demand from their leaders complete honesty, integrity, trustworthiness and loyalty. The President's four-point program included the following:

1. "That funds contributed by workers to the treasuries of their organizations be used solely to advance the welfare of all the members."

2. "That organizations of working men and women be administered according to the free will of their members."

3. "That working people be fully protected against any dealings between labor and management representatives that prevent the exercise of workers' rights to organize and bargain collectively."

4. "That the public be protected against unfair labor and management practices that make a mockery of the collective bargaining relationship, endanger innocent third parties, and give rise to lawlessness and harmful abuses of power."

Eisenhower made plans to get in another round of golf at the Newport Country Club course. He played 18 holes yesterday. On his leaving a naval hospital chapel where he attended non-denominational Protestant services, a crowd of about 200 persons broke ranks on the curb across the road.

Youngsters, nurses in uniform and other adults surrounded him as he picked his way with difficulty toward the wharf where a cabin cruiser waited to take him by conduct, both cases not prosessed with leave.

James R. Lee, Negro, 204 Washington Court, failure to stop at a stop sign, failed to answer and an instant capias was issued for him.

Jerry Never Forgot The Man Who Started Him

By JAMES BACON
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Irving Kaye read the other day that Jerry Lewis grossed seven million dollars in one year from television, movies, night clubs and records. "Well," said Kaye, "that's $700,000 I lost this year."

And he's right. Irving has been with Jerry all the comic's show-business life—18 years. In fact, Irving was entertainment director at a borscht belt resort when a gangling busboy pleaded for a chance to entertain the guests. The busboy was Jerry.

From the Catskills, Irving took Jerry on the road with him. "I remember one night in Buffalo," recalls Irving. "We were sitting in a $2.50 a night hotel room. Jerry was making funny faces and mouthing words to phonograph records in the show. I think he earned $80 a week at best."

"He was just a kid but he was grateful for the chance I gave him. He said then: 'Irving, someday I'm going to be a big star in the big money.'"

"I told him he'd have to change his act, forget about mouthing phonograph records. He agreed and said he wanted to show his gratitude. He wrote on a piece of paper and handed it to me."

The paper read: "I promise to pay Irving Kaye 10 per cent of my income when I become a big star. (signed) Jerry Lewis."

Kaye kept the paper a little while and then tore it up. "But Irving doesn't have to worry. Jerry has taken care of him for life with a job and an annuity. He's one of the comedi-

14-Year-Old In 100-MPH Chase

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — State Police arrested a 14-year-old girl — too young for a driver's license — after a chase at over 100 miles per hour on the new Richmond - Petersburg Expressway.

She said she had damaged a fender on her father's car and, fearing punishment, drove off. Juvenile Judge J. H. Montgomery sentenced her to write a 1,000-word essay on the cause of the automobile accidents.

CHAPTER 30

Captain Colin Campbell found Colonel Andrews in his tent, bent over a map spread out upon a makeshift table. The years and his promotion from Major to Colonel had changed him little. But he had changed and perils had shared hardships and perils had shared hardships and perils had shared...

Andrews said companionably, "Hello, Colin." "Good morning, Len. How goes it?" "Couldn't be better. If Andrews were the last man in the Confederate army, he would still fight. 'What's on your mind?'"

"I have a man, Private Haplan, who should be sent home." "Can he get up to the front?" "Probably, but he'll never get away if we have to skip."

"We have quite a few who aren't exactly ailing." "A sick man cannot shoot accurately." "That's true," Andrews agreed, "and we have no ammunition to waste. Send Haplan home. Anything else new?"

"Ling Stewart, Watt Sackett and Tracey Hamlin aren't back yet." Andrews nodded. "One of these days those raiding bands of yours are going to walk into a hornet's nest and get stung. Why don't you stop them?"

"I ordered their arrest if they tried to leave, but they slipped out."

"Well, I don't see what you can do about that. Are you going to arrest them when they come back?"

"I am." "Good. We can't have every man in the army fighting the war his own way. Also, we have undertaken some strategic retreats of late. I believe Lee's luring the Yankees into a trap."

"Why don't you get some Major's insignia for your uniform, Colin? You could." "You could." "I'm too weak to hold them up."

Andrews matched Colin's grin. "You and your blasted platoon!" he said.

Colin returned to his quarters, sent for Jason Maxwell, and asked, "Will you send Private Haplan home?"

Haplan shuffled in, a tall, gaunt man with thinning hair and straggly beard. A farmer by trade, he was ill at ease even in this battered splendor, which was the best Colin could present. "Ya sent fer me, Cap'n?"

"What's your first name, Private?" he asked gently. "Ira, Cap'n."

"Well, Ira, you're going home." "I see my missus?" Haplan inquired eagerly.

"To stay." "But—" He was bewildered. "But I come to shoot the Yanks."

that kill m'two boys an' Arno. He's m'daughter's man."

"I know," Colin remained gentle. He did not want to hurt this man if he could avoid doing so. "But war is war and an army must travel."

"I think so," Haplan said miserably. "Knewed I was slowin' 'em down even when I wa'n't ailing." Then he brightened. "All right, Cap'n. I can't fight, but I'll go plant crops fer them as can."

He extended a gnarled hand. Colin shook it. Ira Haplan said feebly, "Bye, Cap'n, an' may the Lord bless ya."

"Thank you, Private Haplan." The next morning, the Wetherly platoon went back into battle. Colin's heart was heavy as he led his men forward. Watt, Tracey and Ling were still missing. Except for Jason Maxwell and himself, his command consisted of old men and young boys. The slaughter of the innocents, he thought.

Colonel Andrews dropped back to walk beside him. Colin warned to his man who could not convey of letting go. Andrews peered from beneath his jutting black brows.

"Maybe we'll get 'em this time," he said. "And maybe we won't." "Don't be a pessimist, Colin. War's done a lot to us. But it has not left them unscarred."

Colin inclined his head backwards. "Take another look at our army."

"Bullets fired by fourteen- and sixty-year-olds are just as deadly," Andrews pointed out. "Besides, this has become an orphan outfit. We still have some crack troops."

"We'd better have. Where are we going?" Andrews shrugged. "We report at Berry Knob to General Drummond, who should be in some old men's home, and put ourselves at his disposal. I suppose it is a hold-up or diversionary action. Drummond wouldn't be trusted with anything else."

For a moment Colin did not reply. Andrews would never say such a thing unless he trusted Colin completely because remarks like that could get officers in trouble.

Colin said moodily, "I'd almost trade my chance at Heaven if Ling, Watt, and Tracey were with us."

"I'd be happier too," Andrews agreed. "They know what they are doing. Why haven't you given all three sergeant's stripes?"

"They wouldn't take them." "Some men are like that."

The march was slow, due in part to the age and infirmities of some of the soldiers, but it was not hard. Mid-afternoon of the second day they came to Berry Knob and Colin bivouacked his troops to await further developments. Then he looked about the camp.

It was a good camp; these men knew how to set up a camp. Except for a few battle-worn veterans, all of whom looked bored and went about their tasks with a skill born of long experience.

there was an air of tense expectancy. The boys, some of whom were no more than fourteen, had flushed cheeks, and the older men prowled restlessly, as though expecting to find a Yankee somewhere. Jason Maxwell approached Colin.

"Hadn't I better put them to work, sir?" "I think you'd better, Sergeant."

Jason set them to building a stone wall, which he said would serve as breastworks when the Yankees came. The wall was unnecessary, it would of course be abandoned when they moved up, but it did take the men's minds from themselves. Just before dusk a scout came to lead them to their positions in the front line.

They stopped on a hill. Lieutenant Jackson, who had been holding the position, reported no action save a brief skirmish yesterday and retired with his men. Colin and Jason Maxwell deployed the more inexperienced troops, trying to arrange them between the few veterans in the platoon. They advised the green-horns to stay down, shoot straight, and look to the man on either side.

Colin took up his own position, watched the Yankee emplacements and hoped fervently that there would be no attack. If he lived to return to Campbell Hill, he would never hunt again. He watched the night pale into dawn and become day until he was aroused by Jason Maxwell, crawling toward him.

Jason whispered, "Look down the hill."

Colin peered in the direction indicated. Perhaps a hundred yards away, attached to a slender, crooked stick, a dirty white flag protruded from behind a massive oak and waved frantically up and down. Colin frowned. This could be the flag of surrender or a ruse.

He called, "What do you want?" "Leave us come in," and as soon as he heard, Colin knew it was no ruse. There was more than ordinary fear in the voice—there was stark terror.

Colin knew that these men had not merely thought they had seen demons. They HAD seen demons. The story moves tomorrow to a dramatic conclusion.

STILL GROWING

PESOTUM, Ill. (AP) — Farmer Chris Schultz has a stalk of corn that towers 18 feet. And he says his stalk is still growing and may reach 30 feet. "I didn't apply any special fertilizer and secret shots to make it grow this much either," Schultz vows. "But you've got to admit it's going to be a whopper."

Eight-Year-Old Narrowly Escapes Being Hurt By Car

An eight-year-old youngster narrowly escaped injury when he ran into the path of an automobile on Evans Street yesterday afternoon.

William Boyd Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Roberts Junior of 500 East Mumford Road, has been identified to be the child who fell down when brushed by a car being operated by Ronald Earl Jensen, 32, of 1311 Cotton Road. The young boy was not injured.

The accident was one of four investigated by local police yesterday. Only one minor injury was reported.

Jensen's daughter, Rachel, age three, struck the windshield of his car when he put on brakes to avoid striking the youngster who was running across the street in front of the Pitt Theatre. The windshield was broken but the child was not injured.

Damage to the car was estimated at $75. No traffic violation was cited.

James P. Smith, 28, of Smithfield suffered minor mouth injuries when the automobile he was driving struck another car on Evans Street yesterday morning.

Smith's car was involved in the collision with a car belonging to the Frank House of 1018 Evans Street, parked in front of the owner's house. Police charged Smith with failure to keep proper lookout.

Damage to both cars was figured to be $300.

Early yesterday afternoon police investigated a three-car accident on East Fourth Street.

Winfield Sylvester Fleming, 64, whose address is listed as the New Greenville Hotel, has been identified as the driver of the car that struck two parked cars. The parked vehicles belonging to Lindsey Earl Kittrell of 393 East Fourth Street and the late W. Scott Lloyd of 305 East Fourth Street.

Property damage amounted to $250. Fleming was not charged.

Faubus Says Only Congress Can Make Law; Not Court

Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus says acts of Congress are the "laws of the land" and that Congress has not yet acted on school integration.

The governor made the statement while answering questions on a panel interview (CBS's Face The Nation) which highlighted a weekend of verbal charges and countercharges in the nation's integration crisis.

A questioner pointed out that Faubus said last year after conferring with President Eisenhower at Newport, R. I., that he would support the U. S. Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the public schools.

"I really haven't changed my mind," the governor said. "I was required to issue that statement as a basis for negotiations with the White House. Because I said it didn't make it so."

Faubus said Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark) and Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams insisted a statement be drafted saying the 1954 decision of the high tribunal was the law of the land.

The governor did not reply directly to a question asking if he could take it upon himself to interpret a decision of the Supreme Court. But, he said, "if Congress had passed a law, it would be the law of the land and there would be no question of enforcement."

In reply to another question, Faubus said he would close Central High School in Little Rock "if necessary for the peace and the community" should the Supreme Court order the school integrated.

The court has set Sept. 11 as the date to hear further oral arguments on Little Rock. A bill passed at a special session of the Arkansas legislature would delay opening of Central High until Sept. 15. But Faubus has not signed the measure and the school could open Sept. 8—before a decision by the court.

A somewhat similar situation appeared to be developing in Virginia. Attention there focused on Arlington, where schools open Thursday; Norfolk, where schools are due to start Sept. 8; and Charlottesville, where the school year is now set to begin Sept. 15.

School authorities in all three communities have been ordered to begin integration at the start of the September term by the federal courts. They also are faced with Virginia's "massive resistance" laws which automatically provide for the closing of any integrated school. Legal maneuvers are expected during the week in an effort to resolve the situation.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) who helped formulate the massive resistance policy, said in a speech that "for just and proper reasons the governor and the General Assembly of Virginia, carrying out the expressed will of our people after due deliberation, are refusing to obey an illegal decision of the Warren Court." He referred to the Supreme Court's chief justice.

In New York, Thurgood Marshall, chief attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said he believed Eisenhower was not fully advised when he made a statement on integration.

The President told a news conference last week that he might have said something about going slower on school integration and "I do believe that we should."

Marshall said he was not satisfied with the statement. He said "the President earlier should have made clear... that he stands foursquare behind the decision of the Supreme Court."

During the television interview (ABC's College News Conference), Marshall said in reply to a question that he knew of no time when Vice President Nixon has varied from his forthright stand on individual rights. He had been asked whether he thought there was significant difference between the positions of Nixon and Eisenhower on the Supreme Court decision.

Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, said on a radio program that there was a good chance Negro pupils would register and apply for admission to Central High if the school is opened. But he predicted Faubus would close Central if the Supreme Court rules it must be integrated now.

In Alabama, crosses were burned near 18 white schools in the Birmingham area. There was no information on who was responsible, however. Negroes made unsuccessful attempts to enroll at two of the schools last year but there have been no reports of renewed desegregation efforts.

Many Traffic Dead In State's Weekend Toll

The Labor Day weekend, when the highways are crowded with motorists taking the last outing of the summer, has brought violent deaths to at least 15 persons in North Carolina. The Associated Press is keeping a tally from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight tonight.

Eighteen persons were killed in traffic accidents last year.

This year's victims, in traffic and otherwise:

Two Negro youths were killed when a car went out of control on a sharp curve just south of Roxboro. They were Laton Noel Jr., 23, of Roxboro, a soldier stationed at Ft. Bragg, and William Outlaw, 15, also of Roxboro.

An 8-year-old boy on his way to Sunday school was killed in another Pender County accident. Steve Randall Wilson was struck as he ran across a road. William Matthew Lawson, a Negro employee of the city of Roxboro, was charged with manslaughter.

A car smashed into a tree at High Point and killed Hubert Alexander Williams Jr., 26, of High Point.

Samuel R. Thompson 35, of Newport News, Va., died in an unusual accident in Bladen County. He was standing beside a parked car which was struck by an oncoming vehicle. The parked car hit Thompson and injured him fatally.

Thomas Earl Lewis, 4, a Negro of near Beaulaville, was struck and killed by a car on N.C. 258 near Richlands. His mother was fatally injured in the same accident.

Another pedestrian victim was Eugene Ellis, 44, of near Bladenboro, who was hit by a car on N.C. 131 just south of Bladenboro.

Junius Martin, 63, a Negro of Norfolk Va., lost his life when an automobile in which he was riding overturned on U.S. 158 in Warren County.

Arnold McLamb, 29, of Raleigh, was killed when the car in which he was riding overturned near Benson.

Paul Edward Moore, 40, of near Statesville, was fatally injured when he was struck by a vehicle near Statesville.

Curtis Bannerman, 35, a Negro from Maple Hill in Pender County, died when a car in which he was riding went out of control in Pender County.

James Herman James, 3-year-old Negro of near Willard, was struck and killed by an auto near Wallace in Duplin County.

Mattie Mae Hicks, 49, of near Kenly, was struck and killed by a car near that Johnston County town.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chittick, 60, of the Asheville suburb of Biltmore, was shot to death by accident in the kitchen of her home. The coroner, Dr. P. R. Terry, reported that her daughter, Mrs. Bety Jean Wrigh, was showing her a rifle similar to one which she was considering buying as a Christmas present for her son. The coroner said the gun discharged and a bullet penetrated Mrs. Chittick's heart.

Pair Arrested On Liquor Count

An Ayden Negro man and a local Negro woman were arrested by Pitt County ABC officers Saturday night.

Theodore Jenkins, 35, of 823 East Avenue, Ayden was charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey when officers found a small quantity of illicit liquor in his house. He was released under a $200 bond to appear in Ayden Recorder Court on September 8.

Rachel Lofton, 32, of 1014 Taylor Street has been identified as the local woman who was arrested. Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward said a quantity of non-tax-paid whiskey, beer and ABC whiskey was discovered in the woman's house.

Charged with illegal possession for the purpose of sale, she was released under a $200 bond. Her trial has been scheduled for September 8 in Greenville Recorder's Court.

Haiti Struck By Hurricane 'Ella'

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, (AP)—Hurricane Ella moved inland over Haiti today and threatened Jamaica and southeastern Cuba.

The Weather Bureau said in a press and radio bulletin that the season's third hurricane was centered about 65 miles west-southwest of Port-au-Prince, the Haitian capital, at 8 a.m. moving northwest at about 17 miles an hour.

Highest winds were estimated at 110 m.p.h. over a small area near the center, and hurricane force winds extend outward 60 miles to the north and 30 miles to the south.

Hurricane warnings were in effect along the southern and western sections of Haiti. Warnings were discontinued over the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

Gale force winds extend outward 150 miles in the northern semicircle and 75 miles in the southern semicircle.

"Hurricane Ella is expected to maintain its present size and intensity during the next 12 hours," the Weather Bureau said.

"Shipping in the path of the hurricane should exercise caution. Small craft in Hispaniola, Jamaica and along the southeast coast of Cuba should remain in port."

The Weather Bureau said in a 5 a. m. EST advisory that indications were that the storm will pass between Haiti and Jamaica about midday and between Jamaica and Cuba during today and tonight.

"All interests in Jamaica, particularly along the north and east coasts, and also in southeastern Cuba should take all necessary precautions against hurricane winds, rough seas and flash floods immediately," the advisory said.

The center of the storm, 75 miles from Port Au Prince, is near latitude 17.6 north and longitude 73.2 west. That's about 700 miles from the southern tip of Florida.

Dove Hunting To Open On Sept. 6

The season for hunting doves opens next Saturday, September 6, and ends October 4. The season then closes and reopens December 11 and closes January 15.

The daily bag limit on doves is 10 per day per person. The possession limit per person is 20. Doves may be taken each day from noon until sunset.

The federal government enforces the hunting laws on doves, feral (or marsh) hens, sora and woodcock, migratory birds.

The season for hunting rails begins September 10 and ends November 18. These birds may be taken from one-half an hour before sunrise until sunset each day of the open season. The bag limit on rails is 15 per person per day. Possession limit is 30 per person.

The sora season opens September 10 and ends November 18. Sora may be taken from one-half an hour before sunrise to sunset. The bag limit is 25 per day per person. Possession limit is 25 per person.

Woodcock may be hunted from November 27 to January 5. These birds may be taken from 30 minutes before sunrise until sunset. The bag limit on woodcock is four per day per person. Possession is eight per person.

Federal and state game management law enforcement officers cooperate in enforcing the wildlife laws.

Atom Conference Opened In Geneva

GENEVA (AP)—The second World Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy opened here today with a warning by its president that secrecy in nuclear research is harmful and dangerous to all mankind.

Francis Perrin, France's high commissioner for atomic energy, told the 5,000 delegates from both sides of the Iron Curtain that the conference should help to reduce the antagonism between the great nations, "continuously made more bitter by the atomic arms race."

The conference—like its predecessor in 1955—"certainly cannot halt this mad race, and cannot even directly slow it down, but can to some extent diminish its risks," Perrin said.

The danger of excessive armaments is increased by anything which tends to isolate countries or to make them work secretly, or by anything leading them to know less about each other," he declared.

Britain and the United States on the eve of the conference formally announced the declassification of all their research to achieve a controlled thermonuclear reaction. The French and the Russians are also expected to give the conference details of their work in this field, which aims at harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb.

Perrin urged the world's underdeveloped countries not to seek progress towards industrialization by any immediate program for nuclear power development. He said the industrialized countries of Western Europe can make the best use of atomic power at present. The United States and Russia have no immediate need of it, and the underdeveloped countries are not ready for it.

Perrin urged the underdeveloped countries to prepare for nuclear power by large scale education and scientific training programs.

Some 2,500 scientific papers on all aspects of nuclear power are to be submitted to the two-week conference.

The U. S. exhibit was opened yesterday by a recorded speech by President Eisenhower. He appealed to all countries and all scientists "to press forward to transform this great natural force from an instrument of destruction to a power for good in our own day and for our children to come after us."

Assault Charges Follow Affray

Al Jolson Randolph, 22-year-old Negro of 1311 Short Street, was arrested by police following a Saturday night affray at his home.

Randolph is being charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill in connection with the stabbing of Lewis Forman, 22-year-old Negro of 304 Wyatt St. Forman reportedly suffered a deep knife wound in his chest.

Following emergency treatment at Pitt Memorial Hospital he was admitted. This morning his condition was described as "satisfactory."

Final Services In Brewery Hall

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The money was raised. The new church is ready.

So yesterday the congregation of the Prince of Peace Lutheran church held final services in its temporary place of worship — a brewery tap room-catereria.

Pastor Donald Schneider's sermon said in part:

"To some people it has probably seemed strange that we have worshipped in a brewery and yet the life of Christ is filled with many strange events."

Last week, in brief ceremonies, the congregation thanked brewery officials to use of the room the past two years. The church never owned a building until now.

Reports Theft From His Car

Sometime early yesterday morning two pairs of pants and two shirts were stolen from an automobile parked on Grande Avenue.

James D. Livesy of 1013 Eighth Street, Apartment A-2, Alexandria, Virginia, reported the theft. He informed police detectives that the clothing, valued at $60, was stolen from his unlocked car between one and eight o'clock in the morning.

Production Credit Ass'n Loans Rise

F. L. Little Jr., general manager of the Greenville Production Credit Association, has returned from Raleigh, where he attended a statewide meeting of General Managers of Production Credit Association in the State of North Carolina.

The conference was based on management problems, including plans for the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Production Credit Associations now being celebrated. Integrated farming and contract farming which is on the increase in North Carolina was an important subject discussed at this meeting.

Little says that reports indicate a substantial increase in the total dollar volume of PCA loans in this State for 1958 as compared with 1957.

Locally, the Greenville Production Credit Association, of which Little is manager, has loaned over four million dollars, which is an increase of one million dollars over last year. A substantial portion of this increase has been due to the expanding capital needs of farmers in Pitt and Greene counties.
