

Greensboro And Charlotte Schools Again Experience No Integration Difficulty

Betty Lane Is Crowd-Pleaser In Atlantic City Boardwalk Parade

Technically integrated schools opened for the second year in Charlotte and Greensboro today almost as quietly as students anywhere can return to classes after a summer vacation.

No trouble had been expected and none was manifest, except for minor heckling and a small knot of Ku Klux Klansmen gathered at Greensboro's Gillespie Park School.

All told, nine Negroes were assigned to white schools of the two cities this year — two at Charlotte and seven at Greensboro.

However, Greensboro School Supt. P. J. Weaver said two of the seven — Brenda and Jimmy Florence, both of whom attended a white school last year, were re-assigned to a Negro school at the request of their mother, Mrs. Howard Florence. She gave no reason for the request.

Uniformed policemen watched the Greensboro school where five demonstrators, carrying a KKK banner and a Confederate flag, gathered.

"Step right up to the Negro school," two of the demonstrators called out to white children accompanied by their parents. "All Negroes welcomed."

Police Chief Paul B. Calhoun quickly ordered the two demonstrators off of school property. They moved to a sidewalk and continued their comments.

The Negro children arrived in two groups, almost simultaneously, at the Greensboro school. Elijah H. Herring, a barber, accompanied his children, Elijah and Russell. Charles Davis brought his son, Harold; Mrs. Fred McKoy, and her two children, Reginald and Constance.

One of the five demonstrators was the Rev. George Dorsett, the self-identified kludd (chaplain) of a Greensboro KKK group. Two persons with him, C. A. Webster Jr. and Mrs. Lillian Grogan, told reporters they were Klan members.

The only adults present at Charlotte's Central High School when 17-year-old Gus Roberts returned for his senior year as the only Negro in the white student body were newsmen, six or seven plainclothes detectives, a State Highway Patrol sergeant and teachers.

Roberts, a tall, slim youth, entered the school through a side door and encountered no remarks or demonstrations as he walked to his homeroom class.

Roberts' sister, 13-year-old Girvaud, returned to Piedmont Junior High School without difficulty or demonstration.

The Roberts and two other Negroes broke the color line in Charlotte schools last year. The school one of the youths attended was abandoned earlier this year. The fourth student, a girl, dropped out of a white high school after a week of harassment—and an opening day demonstration in which a gang of white youths threw pebbles and spat on her.

A quiet opening also is expected tomorrow in Winston-Salem where four Negroes will enroll for mixed classes. Disgruntled parents earlier withdrew about 200 white students from a 600-student elementary school to which three of the Negroes had been assigned. They were transferred to segregated schools.

The total assignment of 13 Negroes in schools in the three communities represents an increase of only two over the number integrated last year.

Requests by other Negroes for reassignment to white schools have been rejected by school boards here and in Durham and Raleigh.

The Charlotte school board met today and heard appeals from 15 of the 23 Negro students whose requests for transfers to white schools were denied last week. The board said it doubted that it could have rulings on the appeals in time for the regularly scheduled board meeting tomorrow, but would rule as soon as possible.

A federal court suit brought by a Negro youth to end Raleigh's segregated schools failed, at least for the time being. District Judge Edwin M. Stanley ruled that 15-year-old Joseph Hiram Holt Jr. failed to exhaust administrative remedies provided in the state's pupil assignment law.

One integration suit is now pending in Durham where two Negro women seek to enter their daughters in white schools.

ATLANTIC CITY—Miss North Carolina proved to be a crowd and photographer favorite as she rode a float bearing the seal of her state in the huge boardwalk parade here last night.

There were cries of "hey Betty" and "Betty Lane" as the brown-haired beauty's float moved by the reviewing stand at Convention Hall.

The reviewing section was the climax of the parade which had moved for miles along Atlantic City's famous boardwalk.

Yells of "North Carolina" and "Miss North Carolina" greeted Betty Lane Evans as her float slowly moved by.

Once along the route, an annoying voice, clearly that of a New Jersey kid, cried out: "Wish you luck kid."

Stopped For Photographers
There was another indication of the Pitt County beauty's popularity here in Atlantic City.

As her float approached the reviewing area in front of Convention Hall it was stopped twice for picture taking—once by still cameramen and a second time under the bright lights which television network cameramen maintained for movies of the parade.

That happened for only a portion of the 52 candidates who participated in the parade.

Betty Lane appeared radiantly happy atop her float and she smiled and waved to the thousands upon thousands of persons who lined both sides of the wide boardwalk.

Sore Throat

Her business manager, Dr. Sam White, said she complained of a slight sore throat Monday. Yesterday morning it appeared the trouble was over. Later in the day her throat bothered her still more and she took a nap during the afternoon. Last night she appeared to be unbothered by the ailment as she rode in the procession.

An infirmary nurse yesterday gave Betty Lane medication to fight the sore throat.

Miss North Carolina's mother, Mrs. Amos J. Evans, said this morning Betty Lane was "feeling much better" although she is not completely well.

"Her spirits are mighty high," Mrs. Evans declared.

As for the parade, Mrs. Evans said, "Betty Lane said she had the best time she had in her life. I think she was more excited about that than anything in a long time."

Mrs. Evans stated that the schedule for the Miss America Pageant has not been "as rough as in Charlotte." Betty Lane's float for the boardwalk parade bore the seal of the state of North Carolina.

$1 Million Day

Yesterday the Greenville Tobacco Market had its first million dollar day of the season.

The market sold 1,913,162 pounds of tobacco for $1,005,879.65 and an average of $52.58. Total poundage also represented a season's high, surpassing opening day and August 29.

On opening day the market sold 1,685,398 pounds. Last Friday 1,489,566 was sold. Thus far this market has moved 9,336,598 pounds of tobacco.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Wheelbee said that yesterday's offerings consisted mostly of medium and low grade tips with a scattering of lugs and better leaf.

The seal was set in a flower garden and the entire float was illuminated with power furnished by a small gasoline generator.

It was pulled by one of the white convertibles which are furnished for the contestants during their stay here. Miss North Carolina wore a powder blue and white hand-painted gown with full skirt and a wrap.

The evening was somewhat cooler than those to which Betty Lane has been accustomed in Pitt County.

Lost Wrap

A problem arose during the day when it was learned that a fur wrap which had been placed on a plane in Charlotte for Betty Lane had failed to arrive here.

Dr. White spent the afternoon contacting airports in an effort to locate the wrap. Finally another was borrowed from Mrs. Hannah Block of Wilmington for the marathon 113-unit parade.

Mrs. Block was one of Betty Lane's coaches as she prepared for the Miss America Pageant.

Only 18 of the entrants in the Miss America Pageant were able to ride floats in the parade last night. The remainder of the girls rode in the official convertibles. The 18 contestant's floats were sold on a first-come-first-served basis, and Betty Lane's float bore a sign which said the float was sponsored by "City of Greenville, N. C., home of Miss North Carolina."

The great parade opened the public portion of the Miss America pageant.

Official Judging Begins

Tonight will be the first official judging night of the pageant and Betty Lane is scheduled to make her first appearance in the evening gown competition. Thursday night will be talent routine night for the Pitt County Beauty and Friday night she will make her swim suit appearance. The top 10 will be announced Saturday night and Miss America chosen sometime that evening.

This morning Betty Lane left the Hotel Dennis at 9:45 (EDT) for Convention Hall where more practice sessions were scheduled.

There was a general rehearsal at 10 o'clock and another general rehearsal with orchestra at noon.

This afternoon was free for Betty Lane. However, her mother said there would be no activities for her. She is remaining in her hotel room to rest until dinner which is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. For that Betty Lane must dress in an evening gown.

Mrs. Evans said her daughter is "doing fine in the dining room" where the girls are also judged on poise and personality.

She has made a lot of friends there, Mrs. Evans said.

Betty Lane returns to Convention Hall shortly before 8 p.m. to-night and the pageant begins at 8:30 p.m.

Competition Is Starting Today

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Fifty-two of the fairest girls in the nation begin competing today to determine which is the fairest of them all.

The girls, all entered in the Miss America Pageant, will spend today, tomorrow and Friday in preliminary evening gown, swimsuit and talent contests. The new Miss America will be crowned Saturday before a nationwide television audience.

The public had a chance to do its own judging last night when a glittering parade of the contestants rolled down this city's famed boardwalk to formally open the pageant.

Thousands of spectators sat on bleachers, in rolling chairs and stood on peach baskets as 39 illuminated floats passed by to the music of 24 bands.

Fifteen contestants rode on specially built floats while the rest sat atop custom-made convertibles.

Heading the paraders was singer Patti Page, who acted as grand marshal, followed by the current Miss America, Marilyn Van Derbur of Denver, Colo., and her court of honor.

The first contestant in line was Miss Alabama, raven-haired Lee Thornberry of Birmingham. The others from 45 states, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, New York City, Chicago and Washington, D.C., followed in alphabetical order.

The Pennsylvania float, with Rosalie E. Samley of Bethlehem aboard, won first prize for floats from visiting states. It was sponsored by the service clubs and Chamber of Commerce of Bethlehem and had as its motif "Bethlehem, the Christmas City."

Runners-up were Georgia, Alaska, Arkansas and Ohio.

Poultry Show, Sale Tomorrow

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock a 4-H Poultry Show and Sale will be held on the County Courthouse lawn.

Pedigreed Partridge Red pullets are to be displayed by 12 4-Hers, after which the birds will be judged and sold at auction.

Smallest School In County System Now Consolidated

Pitt County's smallest school—the Warren's Chapel Elementary School—passed out of existence yesterday.

The two-teacher Negro school was ordered consolidated with Robinson Union School in Winterville and its 40 students will be assigned to either that school or to Nichols School at Bell Arthur.

The changes were ordered by the Pitt County Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting.

Assignment of Warren's Chapel students to the other schools will depend on locations of their homes. Students who live South of U. S. 264 will be transferred to Robinson Union and students who live North of 264 in the Arthur School District will be sent to Nichols.

Superintendent D. H. Conley, secretary to the board, said today the changes were ordered although Robinson Union is still operating on a short schedule because of construction work at the Winterville school. Conley added that school officials hope that the work, which involves additional classroom space, will be completed by next week since major construction has been completed and only finishing work remains to be done.

All other county schools are now operating on full schedules, Conley said.

Other action by the board yesterday included acceptance of an audit of local school funds for the fiscal year which ended June 30 and approval of ten teacher contracts.

The audit, prepared by John C. Proctor, certified public accountant of Greenville, showed that the county's 26 local school funds and maintenance shop fund had balances totalling $43,338.16 as of June 30. Disbursements during the year totalled $406,324.31.

Proctor's report included the comment that examination of records "disclosed that there were a number of schools that had minor errors, and a few that had errors of a more serious nature." Most of the errors were classified as bookkeeping mistakes and Proctor reported that school officials had been advised of his office's suggestions and recommendations for correction and elimination of the mistakes.

Teacher contracts which were approved included one for Julius R. Carney, 1202 Battle Street, Greenville, who will direct driver education programs in the county's five Negro high schools. The driver education instruction will be under provisions of an authorizing act passed by the 1957 North Carolina General Assembly.

No final action was taken by the board on proposals for boiler insurance for the various schools. Chairman Joseph S. Moye was directed by the board to confer with state Attorney General Malcolm Sealwell regarding the board's responsibility and liability before negotiations are completed.

Pitt Commissioners Buy Coal Supply For Winter

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday bought next winter's coal supply for county buildings and delayed action on two property matters pending reports from its Buildings and Grounds Committee.

The coal will be purchased from Clark's Coal and Wood Yard of Greenville, only bidder for the contracts. The firm offered to supply the county with its supplies of stoker and egg coal for $12.75 per ton, based on amounts used by the county during the 1958 fiscal year.

Estimates of coal which will be needed, according to the bidding, include 77 tons of stoker coal at the Court House, 31 tons of stoker coal at the Tucker Building, 46 tons of stoker coal at the Old Hospital Building, and 54 tons of stoker coal and 41 tons of egg coal at the County Home.

Property matters which were delayed until after further study included a proposal from operators of Quinerly Manor to purchase a small portion of the Tucker Building lot and a proposal to establish a parking area for county employees who work in the Court House.

The proposal from Quinerly Manor operators was to buy a plot between Manor property and the main portion of the lot occupied by the Board of Education headquarters. The plot is in the interior of the block and measures 58 feet by 39 feet.

The Buildings and Grounds Committee, composed of Commissioners J. Vance Perkins and R. L. Martin, were directed by Board Chairman Woodrow W. Wooten to investigate the offer with County Attorney W.W. Speight.

Perkins and Martin were also directed to investigate possibilities of establishing a county parking lot near the Court House.

U.S. Help On Way To Meet Threat To Off-Shore Isles

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The top U. S. commander on Formosa said today American help is coming to meet the Communist threat to the Chinese Nationalist off-shore islands.

Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot told a news conference it would take the combined efforts of the Nationalists "and the help of the United States which is coming to overcome this immediate situation" created by Red bombardments of the islands and efforts to blockade them.

Smoot declined to tell what help he meant, saying it would be foolish to give the Communists military information. He also refused to say whether this meant U. S. forces would help defend the off-shore islands, a commitment American officials from President Eisenhower down have refused so far to make publicly.

Smoot is commander of the U. S. Taiwan (Formosa) Defense Command, which is committed to protecting Formosa and the nearby Pescadore Islands. Congress also authorized Eisenhower to defend any other Nationalist territory he considered essential to the defense of Formosa.

As the Communists continued for the 12th day an artillery attack on the Quemoy islands that might be a prelude to an invasion attempt, Smoot was asked if they could successfully invade or blockade the islands. "They can do neither," he replied.

The Nationalists said they still were getting soldiers and supplies through to Quemoy despite Red attempts to cut it off from Formosa.

Smoot said there are many ways to break a blockade attempt. "As far as the enemy blockade of Quemoy is concerned, I can tell you the Chinese (Nationalist) forces have not yet begun to fight," he said.

Nationalist forces are almost entirely equipped with U. S. weapons, and Smoot might have been referring to more and different arms for them.

More ships are on the way from the Mediterranean and the United States to join the U. S. 7th Fleet patrolling the Formosa Strait to prevent any Communist strike at Formosa. About 1,000 U. S. Marines are coming from Okinawa for maneuvers on Formosa this weekend. Additional jet fighters have been sent from the United States to Far Eastern bases.

The Nationalist defense ministry expressed confidence that its own navy could deal with Red torpedo boat attacks on supply ships to Quemoy. Communist shelling of the Quemoy airfield has virtually stopped air supply from Formosa.

The Defense Ministry spokesman, Rear Adm. Liu Hoh-tu, said some supply ships from the Pescadore Islands had been turned back by Red attacks. Others were getting through "but how many I'm not going to let the enemy know," Liu said.

One convoy was turned back yesterday by Communist torpedo boats without unloading 370 of 400 Nationalist troops sent to reinforce the Quemoy garrison. U. S. military advisers in the Pescadores said it was the third time in four days that supply and troopships had been unable to complete unloading into small boats off Quemoy.

One Nationalist convoy officer insisted, "If it were absolutely necessary we could have gone in and landed our troops. But the men aboard were not vital to the defense of Quemoy this time and there was no point in risking lives and the ship."

Liu said the Nationalists were prepared to accept a percentage of losses in supplies and personnel rather than launch air attacks on the Communist mainland bases of forces harassing the convoys.

The admiral said Communist artillery attacks had not reached a point at which the Nationalists would consider it necessary to bomb enemy gun positions. Such bombing would spread the vest-pocket war, Liu said, "which we don't want to do—we want to calm the situation down."

City Schools Begin Brand New Academic Year

ROSE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WAITING FOR THE DOORS TO OPEN . . . Before Classes Began This Morning In All City Schools

Students in Greenville City Schools began a new academic year this morning with what is thought to be record-setting enrollments.

An estimated 4,900 students, including approximately 600 first graders, answered today's call to classes. The estimates, if they are fulfilled, will mean an increase of about 300 over last year's total enrollment.

Each of the city's nine schools—six white and three Negro—operated on short schedules today and will follow a half-day schedule tomorrow and Friday. Full schedules will go into effect Monday when lunchrooms will also be opened.

Also in full operation today were the city's two parochial schools, St. Raphael's and St. Gabriel's, both of which opened yesterday. St. Raphael's reported a total enrollment of about 105 children in seven grades and a kindergarten and St. Gabriel's reported an enrollment of about 150 in six grades.

City schools which opened this morning include Junius H. Rose High School, the Junior High School, Wahl-Coates School, Agnes Pulliole School, Elmhurst School and Third Street School for white children and C. M. Eppes School, Fleming Street School and South Greenville School for Negro students. In addition, the city system also operates a school for trainable mentally retarded children on the senior high school campus.

Superintendent J. H. Rose said the opening ceremonies at each school were conducted without any difficulties. He said all of the schools were opened without confusion, including elementary schools which conducted special militarization programs yesterday or first graders.

Luncheons Fete Greenville Debutantes

PLENTY TO TALK ABOUT—Aerial debutantes discuss the many things which will happen to them during this weekend when they will make their social debut in Raleigh. They are, left to right, Miss Nancy Brown and Miss Frances Smith, hostesses, Miss Grayson Waldrop, Miss Helen Hawes and Miss Dornier Jenkins, debs. (Photo by Peggy Smith)

Miss Grayson Waldrop, a 1958 debutante, was honored Monday with a luncheon by Miss Frances Smith and Miss Nancy Brown. The pre-deb event took place at the Smith home on Johnston Street. Upon the honoree's arrival, she was presented a yellow chrysanthemum corsage. Guests were greeted by the hostesses and honoree and were directed to the side porch where tomato juice was served. Using an informal theme, the guests attended wearing Bermudas and other sportswear. Tables were placed throughout the living rooms and were covered with red-checked cloths with a centerpiece of ivy and white flowers. Fall arrangements were used throughout the house for decorations.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, mother of the honoree, presided at the appointed table where a three-course dinner was served buffet style. Also assisting were Mrs. Kemp Baldwin and Miss Deane B. Haskett. As favors, the guests received miniature white wrought iron chairs with velvet cushions. The honoree was remembered with a small white evening bag decorated with pearls and sequins by the hostesses. Debutantes who attended were from Rocky Mount, New Bern, Kingston, Washington and Greenville. Debs Feted Mrs. Jesse R. Moye Jr. and Miss Margaret Moye, a debutante of last year, entertained the three Greenville debs with a luncheon Saturday. Upon arrival the hostesses presented Miss Dornier Jenkins, Miss Helen White Hawes, and Miss Grayson Waldrop, the honorees, with corsages of white fugi mums. Guests were greeted by the hostesses and directed into the dining room where a two-course dinner was served. Of focal interest in the appointed room was an arrangement of yellow fugi mums which centered the dining table. Book matches with the inscription "1958 Deb" were given to the attending debutantes as favors. Lacy handkerchiefs were given to the Greenville debs as a remembrance by the hostesses.

PARMESAN FARINA
Ingredients: 2 1/3 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup quick-cooking farina, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/4 cup plus 2 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese (lightly packed), 1/4 teaspoon white pepper, paprika.

Method: Have water and salt at a boil in a 1 1/2-quart saucepan; sprinkle in farina slowly enough so water keeps boiling, stirring constantly. Allow to cook, bubbling gently for 3 minutes. Stir last minute or so because mixture will be thick and may stick. Remove from heat. Stir in 2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 cup grated Parmesan and pepper. Turn into buttered heat-resistant glass pie plate (8 1/2 by 1 1/4 inches); sprinkle with remaining 2 tablespoons cheese and paprika; dot with remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Place under broiler several inches from source high heat until flecked with brown; watch so as not to scorch. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Macaroni Salad Refuses To Die

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
GO TO A CHURCH SUPPER—the sort where the ladies of the parish bring their best dishes—or to an elegant Swedish-American restaurant. You're likely to encounter the same dish. Among the lavish array of foods at either place, macaroni salad takes a bow. Epicures have been known to look down their noses at this thrifty and homey combination, but it stays firmly on the scene. The Danes like it, too. A spiral-bound book called "From Danish Kitchens" (first published almost 20 years ago and now in its seventh edition) gives directions for making it. This book was compiled by a Seattle, Wash. church group with the avowed purpose of preserving favorite Danish recipes.

A rich recipe, this Danish one! It calls for cooked cold macaroni with a dressing of whipped cream, rutabaga, vinegar and grated horseradish. This same dressing for the salad we find in the Danish section of "Scandinavian Cookery for Americans" (Little, Brown) by Florence Brobeck, an American, and Monika Kjellberg, a native and resident of Stockholm.

Still sleuthing for recipes, we come on only one other macaroni salad from a strictly Scandinavian source; this is in "Smorgasbordet" by Gerda Simonson. Here the boiled cooked macaroni is chilled and teamed with narrow strips of cooked smoked tongue or ham or smoked (beef) and tossed with a mixture of French dressing and chili sauce.

Now comes a new American recipe for the cold macaroni, adding a cooked dressing plus dill, a favorite Scandinavian herb. When you have dill's fresh green feathery fronds on hand, you might like to try this latest combination. We served this version with baked ham at a company supper—and even the most sophisticated of the guests liked it. The next day we offered it with cold left-over ham to our college-age nephew and he, too, approved. A way of ours that was particularly liked: we used sea shell macaroni, instead of regular short elbow lengths, and this esters found intriguing.

MACARONI DILL SALAD
Ingredients: 3 quarts water, 4 teaspoons salt, 2 cups (8 ounces) elbow macaroni, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 egg, 1-4 cup water, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1-4 cup cider or white wine vinegar, 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish, 1-4 cup finely chopped dill, extra salt, salad greens, paprika.
Method: Bring water and 3 teaspoons of the salt to a boil in a large kettle. Add macaroni gradually so water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered—stirring occasionally—until tender or according to package directions. Drain in colander; rinse with cold water; drain again and chill in a covered container. Stir together thoroughly the flour, sugar and remaining 1 teaspoon salt in the top of a small double boiler. Beat egg enough to combine yolk and white; add water; beat enough to blend. Add to flour mixture; stir until smooth. Cook over hot (not boiling) water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in butter until melted; slowly stir in the vinegar. Stir in horseradish and dill. Toss with macaroni; add extra salt if desired; chill until serving time. At serving, garnish with salad greens and sprinkle with paprika.

THE FLAVOR OF SCANDINAVIA—Not one, but two macaroni salads find a prominent place in this layout of Scandinavian treats, one prepared with dill and the other with bits of meat. Completing the assortment are Swedish meat balls, assorted breads, stuffed eggs, tomato and onion slices, marinated cucumbers, red caviar, anchovies and smoked salmon.

Miss Foss Is Party Honoree

BETHEL—Miss Gale Foss celebrated her 11th birthday at the Woodmen of the World Hall with 40 boys and girls attending recently.

The hall was decorated in pink, white and green. The appointed table covered with a white cut-work cloth was centered with the white and pink trimmed birthday cake, surrounded by green ivy and flanked by pink burning tapers.

Following a period of dancing the group was directed to the table where sandwiches, potato chips, toasted nuts, party cake squares and iced bottle drinks were served buffet.

Immediately after the serving, two door prizes were given, one to Miss Janet Everett, and Miss Sandra Lassiter receiving the other.

Couples Club Entertained

BETHEL—Mr. and Mrs. Alton J. Whitehurst entertained the Thursday Night Couples Club at their home on Pleasant Street.

Three tables were arranged for the occasion with ten members and two invited guests, L. L. Andrews and Mrs. Ruth Thomas, present to take their places in the game.

At the end of the second progression hot coconut pies and iced bottle drinks were served.

At the conclusion of the game, Julian Smith was awarded high score prize for the men and Mrs. Robert T. Davis won high prize for the women.

Pessimistic Psychological Outlook

The United States Supreme Court which apparently has been so concerned about the sociological and psychological problems of children who are required to attend segregated schools might like to consider additional conclusions drawn from a psychological study involving race relations.

Recently at the 66th annual meeting of the American Psychological Association, a New York University psychologist said a study carried on at NYU suggests a pessimistic outlook for any easy solution to the problem of integration.

According to the psychologist, the study was carried out in a small integrated group of 78 white and Negro graduate students and was designed to reduce prejudice. According to the psychologist racial prejudice has three components . . . intellectual, emotional and behavioral. Tests given at the beginning and end of the study indicated the intellectual component was reduced significantly during the study, but there was no reduction in either the emotional or behavioral components.

In the words of the psychologist who conducted the study, " . . . these findings suggest a pessimistic but important conclusion, namely that each component of racial prejudice must be reduced separately since change in one component is unrelated to change in other components."

These findings point to another reason for slower movement toward integration of public schools. Certainly the Supreme Court, which took sociological and psychological factors into consideration of the legal question of segregated vs. integrated schools, can ill afford to overlook the conclusions of this NYU psychological study as it prepares to implement its own decision in the case of Little Rock Central High.

To Be Sure, Our Eyes Are On Atlantic City

It's exciting for any community, city or town in the nation to have an entrant in the Miss America Pageant.

Greenville is no exception.

When pretty, talented and charming Betty Lane Evans won the Miss North Carolina title last July local citizens were quick to stage a big home-coming celebration. In the excitement of having a home-town girl reign for a year as Miss North Carolina, few people hereabouts gave much thought to the Miss America Pageant which would follow in a few months.

Now in Atlantic City judges already have begun their most difficult task of selecting the prettiest, most talented and most charming young lady in the land from the 52 representatives in the Miss America Pageant.

Among them is our own Betty Lane.

To be sure, the tension is mounting in Greenville.

Will Miss Greenville, Miss North Carolina, become Miss America of 1959?

The next few days will bring the answer.

Whatever it is, Greenville and North Carolina have every right to be proud of the young lady who represents us in Atlantic City. To us she exemplifies Miss America. But whether the official title is Miss Greenville, Miss North Carolina, Miss America or just plain Betty Lane she has won a permanent place in the hearts of local citizens.

Important Enough To Take Time Required

Just two more Saturdays remain in the special registration period for the hospital bond election which Pitt voters will decide upon September 27.

So far only a handful of voters have registered for the special election. They represent a very small percentage of the other 20,000 eligible voters in Pitt County.

On Saturday of this week and Saturday of next week, registration books of the county will be open at the 25 polling places throughout Pitt. Citizens who fail to register on these two Saturdays will not be eligible to participate in the referendum on the bond issue.

The Reflector urges those who have not registered for the special election to do so one of the next two Saturdays. The need for expanding Pitt Memorial Hospital is important to every citizen of this county. It is sufficiently important for local citizens to take the time required to register and vote in the special election.

Faubus Is Not Too Consistent

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas still has trouble getting some people in high places to believe him. What he says one time isn't necessarily what he says the next.

In the past year he has, in effect, been called a liar by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and James C. Hagerty, President Eisenhower's press secretary.

And the U. S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis has derided his reasons for calling out the National Guard last year in the integration controversy at Little Rock Central High School.

Latest example of Faubus' troubles in the credibility department came Sunday when he said the White House had pressured him into saying the Supreme Court's order banning segregation in the public schools was the law of the land.

Last year — after he had called out guardsmen to keep Negroes from entering Central High School — Faubus flew to Newport, R.I., to confer with Eisenhower, who was vacationing there. They issued separate statements.

Part of Faubus' statement said: "I have never expressed any personal opinion regarding the Supreme Court decision of 1954 which voted integration. This is not relevant. That decision is the law of the land."

Since then Faubus has made statements saying the Supreme Court's decision is not the law of the land and that the Supreme Court has no authority to make a law.

Sunday he appeared on the CBS TV show Face the Nation. Reminded of the statement he issued in Rhode Island, he was asked why he has changed his mind about the high court's decision being the law of the land.

Faubus said he hadn't changed his mind; that his saying so didn't make the decision law. Then he added this:

He said he had been required, by the White House to make that statement as the price of negotiating with the White House. Later Hagerty was asked about this Faubus statement. Hagerty said: "I think the only thing I can have is no comment. You wouldn't print my comment that I feel like giving."

But Faubus even seems to have trouble making up his mind on whether a law passed by Congress ordering integration would be a law that had to be obeyed.

He was asked on TV: "Would you accept a declaration or a law by Congress on this integration of public schools?"

Faubus replied: "Well, I think if Congress passed a law, then it would be the law of the land, and there would be no means of questioning its legality."

Just a few days ago he appeared to take an exactly opposite position. On Aug. 26, appearing before the Arkansas Legislature, to ask authority to prevent public school integration, he said: "There is no clear-cut federal statute regarding the integration of schools. If there were it would be unconstitutional, for the authority to control public education has never been delegated by the states to the federal government."

Last year Faubus charged that FBI agents were tapping his telephone (he offered no proof) and that they were holding teenagers incommunicado for hours in Little Rock. Hoover said both statements were false.

Also last year — after Eisenhower sent federal troops into Little Rock to make sure Negroes got into Central High — Faubus said the soldiers had invaded the privacy of girls' dressing rooms.

Hagerty answered for the White House: "Completely untrue and also completely vulgar."

Faubus has always argued that when he called out guardsmen to keep Negro children out of Central High which a federal judge had ordered integrated — that he was not defying the court, but only trying to prevent mob violence.

The U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis lashed out at this by saying that if Negro children were kept out of school to prevent mob violence, then by the same kind of reasoning: "The banks could be closed and emptied of their cash to prevent robberies, the post office locked to prevent the mails from being robbed, and the citizens kept off the streets to prevent holdups."

—BIG RIPPLES!

Precious Morning Hours

No man should have to work the morning after the first night he uses a blanket to ward off the coolness of an impending Autumn.

He should be permitted to lounge in his bed, idling in the luxury of having warm covers pulled up to his ears and shielding his eyes from the harsh light of day. He should be allowed to drowse his way through the early-Autumn dreams of hearing beagles sound the trail of a rabbit, calling to his mind's eye the sight of a quail exploding from its cover, or reliving the thrill of seeing a 100-yard kick-off return at his very first football game.

There is much a man could do in the morning hours of first

Fall. He could search with his toes for the little places of coolness on the sheets, exploring for the spots where body heat has not taken the crisp feeling off fresh sheets.

He could plan, in his thoughts alone, the procedure for cleaning and oiling a shotgun which had been silent too long.

He could wonder at the ideas of a wife who has definite thoughts about packing summer clothes and electric fans, but who always changes her mind at the last minute in the belief that Winter is not yet here.

He could map the shortest routes to a half-dozen football stadiums, pin-pointing in the recesses of his brain the location of service stations which will honor the gasoline credit card and which have adequate facilities for a troop of little urchins who get wild ideas at strange times.

He could, if he wanted to roll slightly and patently open his eyes, peep through the window at the solitary pecan tree in the backyard and measure the distance the leaves have to fall. He could, too, wonder at the leaves themselves and ponder the time they have left before they float silently down to rest in a little fellows sand pile.

He could lie back with his eyes closed and listen for the sounds of life from other rooms and downstairs. He could measure the quick tread of his wife and wonder what she was doing, and know by the fast pace of little-boy feet what his first-born was up to.

He could search the air for the first odor of the breakfast bacon and remember the many different circumstances under which he has smelled the same fragrance.

He could ponder the million and one things which must come to a man in the morning hours of Autumn's earliest coolness. He could think and plan and dream of the good days and the good years which lie ahead.

And he could just lie there, if he were a mind to, and not do anything.

That, perhaps, would be the nicest of them all.

Other Editors Saying --- Demos Gain Strength

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

If Democrats need to offer any proof that they are gaining ground steadily, even in areas traditionally regarded as Republican strongholds, they merely point to Maine. Ever since the present Republican party was founded Maine has voted Republican for president every time except one. The exception was 1916 when former President Theodore Roosevelt split the Republican vote. And although Woodrow Wilson, a Democrat, carried Maine, he got one-third fewer votes than were cast for Roosevelt and Taft (Republican) combined.

I know there were people like you around somewhere, but I never thought I'd live to see one here in Maine," an election official reportedly told a man who wanted to vote in the Democratic primaries there because he was a Democrat. If the story is true it probably isn't, it must come down from an era of long ago. It certainly is not characteristic of Maine today.

In 1936 Maine was one of only two states that voted for Alf Landon, and it gave him a substantial majority to boot. But since then many of the oldtimers to whom Republicanism was a religion have died or moved away. The population, almost 60 per cent rural in 1932, is almost 60 per cent urban today. In 1956 the Maine voters re-elected Edmund S. Muskie, Democrat, son of a Polish immigrant, as governor, and with more than twice the majority they had given him in 1954. They chose another Democrat for the House, and gave one of the two Republican representatives a majority so thin it wasn't even funny. This year's election in Maine this week will be the last held there this month. Muskie this time is running for the Senate. The state GOP organization likes to explain that in 1954 and 1956 the Maine voters thought of him as a good man even if he happened to be a Democrat, but a generation and they would probably have thought of him as a Democrat even if he happened to be a good man.

This isn't to say Muskie will win the election. Recent presidential elections have served to cast a pall over the pollsters. So many have been upset by the results of certain elections, they are more cautious than ever in their predictions. But trends during the past five years have shown that Democrats are gaining majorities in many states formerly held by Republicans. The South is certain to give the Democratic party greater backing in the near future than it has in recent years. Although President Eisenhower made a good showing in the South, his Republican running mates fared rather poorly. That trend was also noted in other parts of the country.

Export Item In Our Old People?

By ELMER ROESSNER

Old people may become one of the United States' most important exports.

Even with increases next February 3, Social Security alone provides but meager subsistence in the United States. But it may provide a comfortable, even luxurious, living in many parts of the world.

The maximum a man and wife over 65 can draw after that date is $190.50 a month. Most old couples will draw less. While the maximum might make a couple the richest family on Tobacco Road, it is little better than starvation in high-cost urban centers.

THE ENDLESS CHASE. Social Security benefits have been increased frequently since the system was inaugurated, but the increases have always trailed rises in the cost of living.

Benefits have never caught up with inflation. By next February, people on Social Security may be no better off than they were last February.

Defenders of the system now frequently say that Social Security is not expected to be complete support. It need not be for people with children or grandchildren with surplus income, nor for those with accumulated wealth. However, present tax rates largely inhibit saving for old age.

And those without such resources may prefer to move into another economy than to ask for home relief or charity.

The difficulty is compounded by the rising number of persons over 65. At present, there are more than 14,500,000 in that group. The Census Bureau estimates there will be 15,800,000 by 1960, 17,371,000 by 1965, 18,879,000 by 1970 and 20,655,000 by 1975.

COMPETITION FOR JOBS.

The great rise in older persons will increase competition for work by those wishing to supplement benefits. Furthermore, the increase in those drawing benefits will make it costly to increase the benefits. Substantial increases would require expropriation of larger shares of the income of those under 65.

Emigration may be the answer for many. There has already been a noticeable migration to places where living is much cheaper. Previous, Inc., an international real estate firm, reports that 8 per cent of its sales so far this year have been in overseas homes, mostly to Americans.

A family can sell a $40,000 home in this country and, after buying an equivalent dwelling in many places abroad, have enough left over, with the addition of Social Security, to live long in fair luxury. Spain and its islands, certain parts of Mexico, some of the West Indies and other spots offer comfortable housing, plenty of food and drink, clothing and several servants for little more than $100 a week.

BACK TO OLD COUNTRY.

Many oldsters have returned to native lands to live on Social Security or private pensions. Italy, Ireland and Spain have regained many of their emigrants. Because of higher costs of living, Germany, England, France and Scandinavia have attracted fewer. In many an Italian village the big man is a returned native living very well on a pension paid by an American utility company, an American city or Social Security.

Let'em Study Again

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk scrawls of the Pavement Plato: School bells ring out this month for a record 45 million young Americans from the kindergartens through colleges.

But a strong case could be made out for the theory that they are ringing for the wrong people.

School now is that period between the slumps of childhood and the lumps you get when you have to start earning your own living.

It is a long season of the co-con, when the muscles mature and the mind is strengthened by learning that, in a right angle triangle, the square of the hypotenuse equals the sum of the squares of the other two sides. It is only in later life one discovers most triangles don't have a right angle.

So much to learn in so short a time — for the average student spends less than a fourth of his life in the classrooms. The wilderness of the multiplication table gives way to the jungle of algebra. And even then has one found out the things that really count?

The trouble with formal schooling is that it ends with most people when their real education begins. There is no bridge between the two — the vast library of books, and the vaster library of living.

One teaches knowledge, the other can — and should — teach wisdom. It is unfortunate, but true, that few people get wise merely by reading.

The schooling years now are roughly from 5 to 22. After that a man spends less time exploring what the world knows — and more time finding out what he has to put up with. One of the oddities of the educational process is that he will do more real growing up in one year of kindergarten — and, later, in one month of marriage — than he will in four years at college.

Seeing the bright-eyed "hopes of tomorrow" go gaily, or mournfully, back to the classes gives many of us middle-aged dupes of today a twinge of regret. We know a feeling of envy. We wonder if, perhaps, education, like youth itself, is too splendid a gift to waste on the young. They don't get enough mileage out of it.

When you get right down to it, who really needs education most? Not the young. They are still largely helpless and harmless. The people who tear the world apart with hate, prejudice and fear are the middle-aged and elderly. They make war, both hot and cold, and break peace — if any. It is their massed ignorance that threatens the safety of mankind in a perilous time.

Much of the knowledge they acquired in the classroom has become outdated by the rapid march of science. They have become Neanderthals without knowing it. They need new facts, wider knowledge, on which to base decisions growing ever more critical — because mistakes are growing ever more costly.

Perhaps after 40, ever man and woman should be required by law to take a sabbatical year every decade and go back to the classroom and face new ideas.

It might help if the school bells

NO REASON IN DISBELIEF

"Since then everything about us shows a progression of power, where is the difficulty that there is, at the summit of all things, a Being in whom an infinity of power unites with the infinity of the will? When this simple idea presents itself to our mind, we have the idea of a perfect being that man calls God."

This statement would suit even the most orthodox, yet, strangely enough, it was written by a man, Thomas Paine, who has always been looked upon as an atheist. Paine was held in his day for his destructive religious teachings. He has come down to us with the bad name of atheism attached to him and the stain of atheism on his quite brilliant reputation.

All of which teaches that, as a matter of actual fact, there are few atheists in the world. In fact, atheism is so logically indefensible that no one can hold to it without doing violence to every process of reason. Of course, the other of things suggests a creator. Of course, the continuation of the creation along established lines suggests a Sustainer of the Universe. To think of anything else, is, in fact, not to think at all.

It is when men adjourn their reason or determine to do violence to it that they can be atheists. The mind left to itself believes in God.

School Integration Quiet For Majority Of Cases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

White and Negro children quietly attended racially mixed schools in several Southern states yesterday almost unnoticed in the turmoil kicked up by the integration crisis.

Elsewhere, possible flareups in the bitter desegregation conflict between state and federal authority were avoided temporarily by the postponement of school opening dates.

There were one or two minor incidents, but on the whole the children seemed to get along better than their elders, busy with legal maneuvers, charges and delaying tactics.

At Little Rock, Ark., where Central High's opening date was delayed until Sept. 15 to give the Supreme Court time to hear oral arguments on the case, Gov. Orval E. Faubus said U.S. marshals were being mustered for duty in the event the court orders integration be resumed.

The governor did not say where he obtained the information and the Justice Department would neither confirm nor deny the report.

About the same time plans were reported for chartering the state's first Ku Klux Klan chapter since the 1920s in Little Rock.

In Kentucky, it was just another schoolday for 20 Negroes and 161 white pupils attending classes together for the first time at Fulton High. The school was desegregated by court order.

"We didn't expect any trouble and didn't have any," said Principal J. M. Martin.

Three other schools also held their first racially mixed classes in Nelson County, Ky., without trouble. Sturgis High, where the National Guard was called out in 1956, also opened quietly with 25 Negroes attending.

In the west Arkansas city of Van Buren, however, 13 Negro pupils reporting for classes at integrated Van Buren High were confronted by crudely painted signs saying "This is a White School" and "Nigger, Go Home."

There was no physical contact but Negro pupils said about 20 white boys yelled offensive remarks.

In contrast, white pupils and Negroes went to classes in a friendly atmosphere at the junior high school across town. There are five Negroes enrolled in the junior high. Van Buren is one of nine cities in the state in which schools have been integrated.

The second year of mixed classes were scheduled to begin today at Charlotte and Greensboro, N.C. Police were on the alert but officials said they expected no trouble.

At Winston-Salem, preparations were being made for four Negroes to enroll in white schools tomorrow. About 200 pupils in that city withdrew from an elementary school to be attended by three Negro children.

In Tennessee, 10 Negro boys and girls went to classes with 873 white pupils at Clinton High without incident. The school was the scene of violence two years ago when Negroes first were admitted.

In Oklahoma, Oliver Hodge, superintendent of public instruction, estimated 7,000 Negroes—about a fifth of the Negro pupils—attended mixed classes in more than 430 integrated schools. Last year there were 6,633 Negroes in mixed classes. Oklahoma has about half a million pupils.

Texas schools, both integrated and segregated, have opened this week without any reported incidents.

In addition to the delay in school opening at Little Rock's Central High, postponements were ordered in Norfolk and Arlington, Va., where court suits are pending.

At Colp, Ill., classes began there with Negroes attending a grade school and white pupils paying $200 tuition each to go to schools in nearby communities.

Captured Deer With A Lariat

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—It may never catch on as a deer-hunting tactic but John Scott, poultry farmer near Lincoln, captured a full grown mule deer with a lariat.

After lassoing the animal which had wandered onto his farm, Scott and a companion threw the deer to the ground and tied it up in the manner of a calf ready for branding.

In short order, the deer became the newest addition to a Lincoln zoo.

States Rights Champions Bobbing Up All Over Map

RALEIGH—Thad Eure is just back from the meeting of the National Association of Secretaries of State at Salt Lake City. The secretaries adopted without dissenting vote, although New York and Iowa abstained from voting, a series of resolutions protesting encroachment of the Federal government upon State prerogatives.

The conference of Chief Justices of State Supreme Courts a few days before had vigorously criticized the United States Supreme Court for lack of judicial restraint, particularly in the field of State rights. State Attorneys General and other administrative officers have taken similar action through their national associations.

In every instance the resolutions were supported by preponderant majority of the groups without regard to geography or party affiliation.

Eure has an explanation for this attitude and for the toned-down statements emanating from Federal offices. He thinks it very simple. This is an election year. The president is not up for election but all members of the National House of Representatives and one-third of the Senate are.

Also a number of Governors and other State officers. The attendants at these conventions of State officials are either voted upon directly or owe their appointment to a Governor or a Legislature elected by votes in one State only.

McElroy Says Overall U.S. Military Power Still 'Tops'

CHICAGO (AP)—The United States is ahead of the Soviet Union in overall military strength, says Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy. He asserted this country and its allies are strong enough to win either a general or limited war.

McElroy, in a speech to the national commander's dinner at the American Legion's annual convention last night, also spoke out against increased spending now on the long-range ballistic missile program, saying more spending now "would be an unwarranted risk of your money."

He took issue with those he described as oracles who predict the United States will be unable to match Soviet military strength in the years ahead.

He said he and President Eisenhower both have "the utmost confidence that the United States has both the capability and the determination to keep a gap in overall comparative military strength from opening. I said keep it from opening because it does not now exist."

McElroy said the Soviets are ahead of the United States in the development of an intercontinental ballistic missile, and added: "I stress the word 'development' because both countries are now in a developmental stage—a testing and proving stage."

President Eisenhower, in a message read by McElroy, said the nation's citizens can bring about a victory in peace over communism by "selfless devotion to the work and sacrifice which are indispensable to the strength and security of our country."

The Legion's Distinguished Service Medal was awarded to financier Bernard M. Baruch, who was not present.

The Legion, at final business sessions tomorrow, will elect new officers. Preston Moore, a Stillwell, Okla., lawyer appeared to have the inside track for election as national commander, succeeding John S. Gleason of Chicago.

When Men Mum, They Cherchez La Femme

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cherchez la femme is getting a new meaning in Washington.

If you can't get a story from a government official involved in a controversy, try his wife.

The trend started last year with Mrs. Jessie Wilson, wife of then Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

It spread to Mrs. Rachel Adams, wife of chief presidential aide Sherman Adams.

And the latest lady to take up the cudgels for her husband via a newspaper interview was Mrs. Ruth Rickover. She is the wife of Rear Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, sometimes called the Father of the Atomic Submarine.

Mrs. Wilson's ire was aroused by President Eisenhower. She criticized the President for making "uncalled for" remarks about the defense secretary.

Eisenhower at a news conference had said Wilson made an unwise statement in accusing some members of the National Guard of being draft dodgers.

Mrs. Adams vented her resentment growing out of a House probe of her husband's relationship with Boston millionaire Bernard Goldfine.

She said the two families had exchanged gifts for years — just like any other friends — and she lamented that "there is very little thanks" for all the work Adams has done. She said the Democrats would use the issue to hound her husband out of office.

Unlike Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Adams' blast was a one-shot affair. She spoke no more for publication.

Latest at bat was Mrs. Rickover. When her husband was not invited to a White House ceremony.

Says U.S. Aid Is Off Target

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan says the United States is "missing the target" with a lot of foreign aid money.

The state's junior senator figures that of the more than three billion dollars Congress appropriated for foreign aid this year, "we will be lucky if we get a return of 50 cents on the dollar from it."

Addressing the Western Carolina Safety Council here yesterday, Jordan labeled the foreign aid program "feeble and obsolete."

Dulles Winding Up New Study Of China Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles winds up an intensive new study of the China crisis today preparatory to making a personal report to President Eisenhower.

Dulles was closeted in his office yesterday with members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, including Gen. Nathan Twining, the chairman, and other Defense Department officials.

Shortly afterward, Eisenhower's vacation headquarters at Newport, R. I., announced Dulles will fly there for a conference tomorrow with the President.

About the same time, the State Department confirmed in a statement that Dulles spent his second day back from vacation getting a top-level Pentagon briefing.

The key question is whether the United States would fight to defend Quemoy, Matsu and the other Nationalist-held islands which lie within sight of the China mainland in the Formosa Strait.

U. S. air and sea reinforcements already have been sent in to the area to back up the strong 7th Fleet force already there.

The United States is committed by treaty to defend Formosa. But it is left to the President to decide whether that defense requires also the defense of the offshore islands.

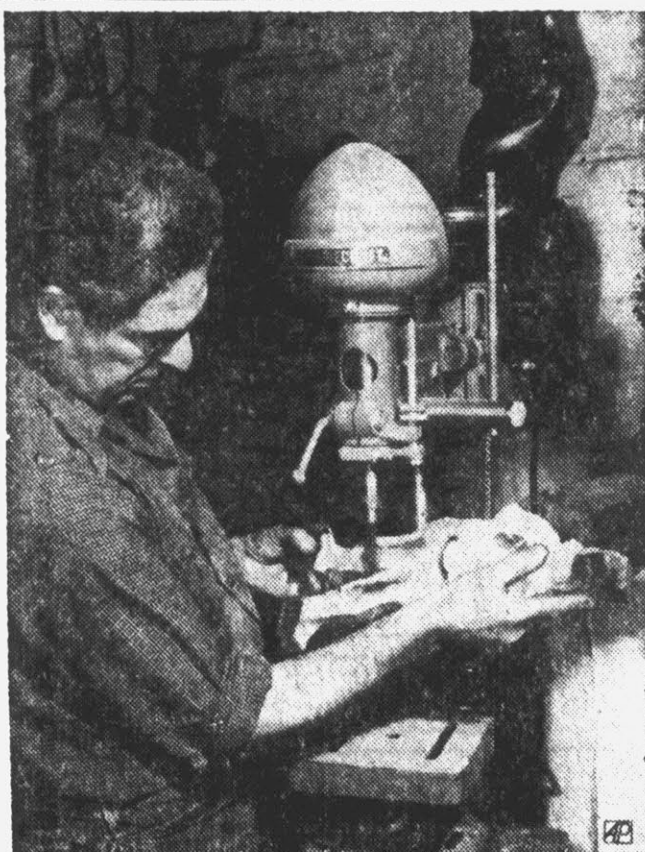

Dulles' findings, during these three days of close examination, presumably would help Eisenhower reach his crucial decision if Red China actually launches the attack it has long threatened.

Nature, meanwhile, appeared to be taking a hand. Heavy storms lashed the embattled area yesterday in what officials described as the start of the typhoon season.

If the annual typhoons are now to rage in the Formosa Strait, any Red Chinese landing assault would be a doubly risky undertaking.

Officials conjectured that, if the Red Chinese are looking for an excuse to call off their threatened attack, the typhoon would provide a good one.

Many Barriers To Cooperating With Russia In Space Exploration Work

EDITORS NOTE: Will Russia and the United States cooperate in space exploration? In the second of four articles written for The Associated Press by leading U.S. scientists who have participated in International Geophysical Year sessions in Moscow, Dr. Richard Porter sifts the clues and reports on accomplishments in the rocket and satellite fields.

By DR. RICHARD PORTER

It is natural to think of the work of a meeting such as the fifth meeting of the special Committee for the International Geophysical Year as having been completed with the fall of the final gavel. But nothing could be further from the truth. In the field of rockets and satellites, at least, more questions were raised than settled. More work was left to be done than was accomplished.

Although some 75 important papers were presented by scientists from many countries during the seven half-day sessions of the rocket and satellite symposium, it was not possible for most of us to grasp more than a small fraction of the information made available.

For one thing, language barriers remain a formidable obstacle despite all attempts to surmount it. Another problem was the mental indigestion which resulted from too many papers for the available time.

Therefore it will be necessary for most of us to read the translated papers and reports to study them carefully, and perhaps even to correspond with their authors before much of the technical data presented at this conference can be completely understood.

Fortunately for international science, it appears that this process of reading and corresponding actually may be not only possible, but worthwhile.

Previous meetings on the subject of satellites in which the Soviet Union has played an important part have tended to be rather sterile. Little in the way of actual scientific results had been obtained, and information about the vehicles and launching problems had been regarded as highly secret, at least by the U.S.S.R.

This year in Moscow there were some definite results to discuss, and although the Soviet scientists were obviously still unable to talk about how they launched their satellites, or how they sent most of the information back to earth, they were prepared to talk about their results.

Important results they were, too.

First of all, the air density at altitudes of 150 miles and higher could only be estimated by means of very approximate assumptions before the International Geophysical Year (IGY) began.

As a result of observations of the Russian and U.S. satellites by many IGY countries, it is now generally agreed that atmospheric density at this altitude is significantly higher than previously expected.

Another subject of great interest was the radiation recently discovered in the ionosphere (between 50 and 200 miles up) and recently announced in Washington by Dr. James A. van Allen of the State University of Iowa.

Several papers by both U.S. and Soviet scientists touched on this subject, and the latest information from both the third Sputnik and the most recent Explorer satellite was presented and compared. Although there were some differences in data, it appeared to this observer, at least, that they can be explained by the differences in the means by which the data were obtained. And on the whole, there is agreement concerning the existence of the effect.

Here again, a good explanation of this radiation must be found. The extensive instrumentation of the Soviet satellites, made possible by their larger size, was very impressive to American scientists. Important scientific reports of early Soviet results on atmospheric composition, ion density, solar corpuscular radiation, micrometeorites, cosmic radiation, gamma radiation and biological experiments gave promise of great scientific advances to come.

Despite the popular glamor of the satellites, one must overlook the high-altitude rocket experiments of the IGY.

It was reported that the U.S.S.R. had launched 57 of these rockets by the first of June, and the United States a similar number. High altitude rockets also have been launched by the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, and Japan. Results obtained include valid measurements of temperature, density, and composition of the atmosphere in the important region between the maximum altitude reached by balloons and the minimum altitude at which satellites' orbits can be sustained.

As the result of discussions by working groups, it was agreed that a third world data center for rocket and satellite data should be established in Great Britain. The two now in existence are in the United States and the Soviet Union. A number of previously controversial points regarding the use of these data centers were also settled.

However, at least three major points were left unresolved:

1. The U.S.S.R. scientists were unwilling to agree that data of any kind, except copies of published papers, should be sent to the data centers unless specifically requested in each case. The American delegation insisted such observational data should be sent automatically.

2. The Americans asked that information such as size and weight should be given for all significant objects placed into orbit, including, for example, the carrier rockets. The Soviets want to confine such information to the instrumented satellite only.

3. Finally, most of the nations represented at the conference believed that orbital elements or, in other words, the size and shape of the orbit, should be transmitted by each launching nation for all of its satellites. However, the Soviet delegates refused, insisting instead on providing only approximate direction angles for each different observing station, although the process requires more computation and will be less useful to competent observers.

Lack of agreements on points like this will not necessarily prevent some measure of continuing international cooperation among rocket and satellite scientists, but it does indicate the difficulties under which such cooperative programs must operate.

They Gave Blood To Get Recruit

CENTRAL CITY, Ky. (AP)—The U.S. Marines made a special effort to get Stephen Elsing into the corps.

He passed the written examination but a physical checkup showed the 18-year-old had a serious lung disorder. He was sent home with advice that an operation was necessary.

The operation was arranged but Elsing needed five pints of blood. Marine recruiters at Louisville, 200 miles away, soon had the situation well in hand. Five donated a pint each.

Elsing will be sworn in soon.

We Are In Desperate Need of Expanded Hospital Facilities In Pitt County!

Our need for expanded facilities at Pitt Memorial Hospital has become desperate. We have reached a point where, at times, it is necessary to place patients in the halls of the building or overcrowd the wards with extra beds in order to care for the patients. The demand for private rooms has also reached the stage that day after day patients are turned away due to lack of beds. This condition has necessitated a waiting list and a delay in admission of elective cases ranging from two or three days to a week.

The people of Pitt County are being called on to vote bonds for the construction of the needed rooms and facilities to care for our sick. The County Commissioners have set the Special Election date for Saturday, September 27, 1958. WE URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR THIS PROPOSED EXPANSION PROGRAM, which is so urgently needed.

The cost of this expansion including 75 new rooms will be approximately $1,500,000. A Federal grant of $1,000,000 is to be given to Pitt County which means the County's share will be approximately $500,000. NOW is our chance to build our needed facilities at about 1/3 the actual cost. If we pass up this opportunity, it may be many years before we have such a chance again.

Registration books will be open Saturday, September 6th, and Saturday, September 13th. Since this is a special election, YOU MUST REGISTER IN ORDER TO VOTE! We, the undersigned, URGE YOU TO REGISTER AND VOTE FOR THIS BOND ISSUE!

You must register in order to be eligible to vote in this special election!

Registration Books will be open at all regular polling places

ARMED WITH AXE—A colored woman holds an axe as she stands talking to a newsman, right, in door of her home on Bard Road in the Notting Hill section of Northwest London. Two colored men stand behind her. Two iron bars and a flaming lamp were thrown through window of her home while assorted objects broke other windows. Racial violence broke out for third night in a row. Gangs of white youths stormed through the streets smashing windows of homes of colored people. (AP Wirephoto by radio from London)

Predicts Middle Belt Open At $57

RALEIGH (AP) — A tobacco marketing specialist predicts that opening day sales tomorrow on North Carolina's Middle Belt will average about $57 per hundred pounds.

W. P. Hedrick of the State Department of Agriculture said today the average prices will be a little below those on opening day of the Eastern North Carolina and South Carolina-Border North Carolina belts "because the tobacco in demand will not be on the floor in large quantities."

The 10 markets on the middle belt which open the season tomorrow are Aberdeen, Carthage, Durham, Ellerbe, Fuquay, Varina, Sanford and Warenton.

On opening day last year the belt sold 4,315,000 pounds for an average of $54.43 per hundred pounds.

"The Middle Belt crop is of very good quality," Hedrick said. "About 80 per cent of it has been harvested. Quite a bit of lugs and primings that bring good prices have already been sold on the Eastern and Border belts."

He added, "The crop has come along a little faster than anticipated. There'll be quite a few lugs and primings tomorrow but there will also be a sizeable quantity of tips. That's the top of the stalk and this kind hasn't been selling too good."

Hedrick predicted that as the season progresses and better tobacco is sold the average will move up. He said he expects a $60 average for the belt for the season.

"The more desired tobaccos are yet to come," Hedrick added. "Sales will be full Thursday, but will be lower on Friday and then begin to pick up the following week."

The Middle Belt crop last season had a yield per acre of 1,400 pounds. The yield for 1958 is indicated at 1,550 pounds per acre.

Mixed Classes Quietly Started

FULTON, Ky. (AP) Twenty Negroes began their second day of classes with 161 white pupils at Fulton High School today as some of Kentucky's few new integration programs got quietly under way.

Officials called the mixing of classes just another school day, although it was the first break in school segregation in this area.

Fulton High was one of four in the state which integrated for the first time. The other three were in the Nelson County, where Bardonia, Bloomfield and Old Kentucky Home high schools quietly moved a total of 20 Negro pupils into classes with 276 whites.

Dr. Robert Martin, state superintendent of public instruction, had said earlier he expected little

Signs Bill, But 'Not Too Happy'

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A $1.118,000,000 public works appropriation bill has been signed into law by President Eisenhower but he isn't too happy about it.

"I am compelled to approve the act," the President said yesterday, "because it appropriates essential funds for continuing work on river and harbor, flood control and reclamation projects that were started in previous years."

The President blasted Congress for adding nearly 700 million to the already heavy future commitments for federal projects.

He called the additional appropriations "another instance of irresponsibility in the expenditure of public works."

Eisenhower earlier in the year signed a measure authorizing $1.2 billion dollars for water projects. The authorization bill included $44,300,000 for the Hartwell Dam Reservoir in South Carolina and Georgia; $4,725,000 for water hyacinth eradication in the Carolinas and other Southern states; $1,197,000 for navigation work at the Morehead City, N.C., harbor; and $413,000 for flood control in Pennsylvania and Chuklers Creek in North Carolina.

Four Fire Calls But Only Minor Damage Reported

Only minor damage was reported in one fire by Greenville firemen who were called out four times yesterday.

A shortage in a television set at the home of George Perry on Harding Street resulted in minor damage. The call was received at 9:21 p.m. and the firemen returned at 9:40 p.m.

Early yesterday morning firemen were called to Dr. F. B. Haas's residence at 602 East Ninth Street to check a faulty heating plant. There was no damage.

Two out-of-town calls were made. A woods fire threatening property belonging to Johnnie F. Edwards on the Greenville Boulevard was extinguished late in the afternoon. Fire of an undetermined nature threatened a mule stable owned by Jenness and David Morrell of Falkland around noon. Firemen were called to the scene but the flames were out when they arrived. No damage was reported by Fire Chief George Gardner.

Four Football Players Killed

BURAS, La. (AP) — A collision involving a car and a parked trailer truck last night killed four high school football players returning home from practice.

Dead were Gary Gariboules, 17, Howard Cronin Jr., 17, Loys John North Jr., 17, and Ansley Bonin, 17, all of Venice.

Sheriff's Deputy Harry Packard said the boys' car smashed into the rear of the trailer truck and was torn to pieces.

Says He's Opponent Of Labor Dispute Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teamsters bigshot Harold J. Gibbons faced more questioning today after beatings and bombings today after describing himself as an opponent of violence in labor disputes.

Gibbons said it wasn't his fault that locals under his command are infested with men he conceded have long criminal records.

"If the employers hire these people, we're stuck with them," Gibbons testified. He said he most accept as a union member any one hired by employers with whom he bargains collectively.

In indignant tones, he denied knowing that any of his aides had been convicted of such crimes as assault and armed robbery before he sent them out, among other things, to convince nonstriking taxi drivers "of the error of their ways."

Gibbons labeled as false testimony by a woman witness, Mary Lou Bledsoe, that he had arranged with her in 1953 to decoy a St. Louis taxicab driver up a dark street, to be waylaid by a Teamsters strongarm squad.

Actress Jean Seberg To Wed French Suitor

MARSHALSTOWN, Iowa (AP) — Actress Jean Seberg, who soared overnight from obscurity to Joan of Arc stardom, has returned to her hometown to wed her French prince charming.

The 19-year-old Marshalltown girl will be married Friday to Francois Moreuil, 24, Harvard-educated lawyer from Paris, at a simple ceremony in Trinity Lutheran Church here where she once taught Sunday school.

"I'll have something borrowed, something new, something blue and a six pence in my shoe," the bride-to-be said gaily as she sent about preparations.

New York, Hollywood and French celebrities have been invited to the wedding, but Jean said she wants the marriage ceremony to be devoid of fanfare.

Much of Jean's current interest is in her wedding dress—a short oyster white silk moire fashioned with an empire waist and full balloon skirt. Guy Laroche of Paris, who designed it, has been invited to the wedding along with producer Otto Preminger, who discovered Jean, and Paul Louis Weiller.

Nemesis Of Con Men Plans Retiring Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heard, any good schemes lately for getting rich quick?

Before investing any money, better check with a lanky attorney from Kentucky named Herman L. Arterberry. He's spent a lifetime matching wits with bunco promoters.

Arterberry has shaken the confidence of countless confidence men during his prosecutor's career that dates back to 1921.

A lot of them—in jail and out—will be happy with this news: Arterberry, 70, retires officially Monday.

Nothing is truer, he says, than the con man's adage: "You can't cheat an honest man."

"Usually it's a person's greed that puts him in the clutches of a 'bunk,'" says Arterberry, using the jailhouse slang term for a fraud promoter.

An exception was the case of a charming old fraud who operated a lonely hearts club in Los Angeles during the 1930s.

His advertisements promising companionship and perhaps marriage brought replies from scores of widows and spinsters. The ladies with the most promising bank accounts were romanced personally by the suave con man, who cheated them out of more than $150,000.

"Hardest part of the trial was getting some of those gals to testify," Arterberry recalled. "Some were so infatuated they actually tried to shield him."

But Arterberry got the conviction, which established a California law precedent: Anyone getting money by a false promise could be convicted of grand theft.

Arterberry hounded oil swindlers in Texas and Arkansas as a federal prosecutor before joining the Los Angeles County district attorney's office in 1932.

He and his wife Imogene plan a trip to his home town—Tompkinsville, Ky., after he retires. Then he'll return to California and a limited private law practice.

Expects To Present Haliwa Tuition Plea

HALIFA, N.C. (AP) — An attorney says he is reasonably sure he will formally request tuition grants from the state to set up a private school in Warren and Halifax counties for a group calling themselves Haliwa Indians.

J. Ed Knott of Roanoke Rapids, attorney for the group, planned to confer with their leaders today to make a definite decision.

The Halifax County Board of Education yesterday denied for a second time the request of the Haliwas for reassignment from a Negro school. Knott said about 250 Haliwa children are seeking reassignment.

The Haliwas, who live in the Hollister area of Warren and Halifax, derive their name from the two counties.

The Halifax board's action cleared the way for them to apply, under the Pearsall Plan, for state money to attend private school.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for another group from the Hollister area appeared before the Halifax board yesterday and asked that plans be pushed for a new Hollister elementary school building.

Vernon Lynch, a spokesman for the group, told the board his group just wants a new school and is not fighting the Haliwa movement for tuition grants.

The Halifax board agreed to proceed with the purchase of additional property adjoining the present Hollister school. It has been proposed that the Hollister and Terrapin schools, about four miles apart and attended by Negro students, be consolidated and a new school built. The proposed building would have 12 classrooms based on present enrollment and attendance.

Next Time, Tell A Proud Papa About Baby Gorillas

By JOHN PASCAL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The next time some proud papa buttholes you and begins an endless recital about Baby's amazing progress, you may ask:

"Yes, but how's his symmetrical posturing? I'm told a baby gorilla does much better."

You will be right, of course. If papa wants proof, you can point to a paper delivered yesterday before the American Psychological Assn. in Washington by Drs. Hilda Knobloch and Benjamin Pasamanick of Ohio State University, a husband and wife research team.

In their paper, Drs. Knobloch and Pasamanick give the little ape the nod every time in such things as sitting, toddling, walking and standing.

The paper is based on an 18-month study of Colo, a female gorilla born at the Columbus Zoo, the first ever born in captivity.

Among the findings: From birth to six weeks of age, Colo showed "symmetrical posturings" of the body and head. That means she could keep her head centered and maintain her body in its normal position. She could also bring her hands together in front of her at birth.

It takes a human baby 16 weeks, say the doctors, both to attain symmetrical posturing and engage hands directly in front.

From the time she was born, Colo could lift her head while lying down. A human baby can't turn the trick until it's a ripe old 28 weeks, the report says.

Colo walked while holding a railing at 18 weeks, a good 30 weeks ahead of a human baby.

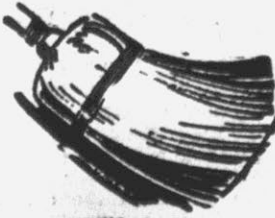

All in all, report Drs. Knobloch and Pasamanick, a baby gorilla develops about twice as fast as a human baby during infancy. But, there is this consolation: though Colo may develop faster, it's just that much sooner she drops down and begins walking, most of the time, anyway, on all fours.

Rose To Have More Depth This Season

With the first Friday night in September set aside as an open date for Rose High School football, Coach Bud Phillips will have an extra week in which to get his Phantoms in shape for 1958.

He may need it. At the present time, after about three weeks of practice, he still doesn't have a starting team. "We've got 22 boys battling for those first string positions out here," Phillips said yesterday. "Every one of our positions are still wide open."

Almost 50 candidates turned out for Rose High practices on August 15 and have been working out with the club twice a day since that time. Many of them are too young for varsity play and will be playing Junior Varsity ball this season. Well over half, however, will remain with Coach Phillips.

Among the 50, Phillips has 12 lettermen left over from his 1958 squad. Seven of those 12 were regulars on last year's Phantom team. They are in the middle of the fight for first string positions. The seven regulars are Billy Cox and Steve Noble, ends; Robin Wilfong, fullback; Charles Roberts, halfback; Wilbur Owens and Billy Brown, guards; Ralph Sullivan, tackle.

Besides the veterans, Phillips will have a lot of newcomers up from the Junior Varsity team to help pad the team. "We've got much more depth this year than we had last year," Phillips has commented.

Battling for backfield berths are the following boys: Charles Ross, a senior, and sophomore Erskine Duff are making a close struggle for quarterback honors. Both boys can pass and run and are showing up as fine field generals. At left halfback, Charles Roberts and Art McArthur are the two competitors. John Boyd, Randy Bass, Don Speight, and Tom Henderson are crowding for right halfback laurels. Robin Wilfong and Wayne Sumrell are fighting for fullback.

In the line, former JV fullback Jeff Fountain has been made into a center. He is a junior and will probably get the nod, however sophomore Bill Wade is also scheduled to see action at the post.

At tackles, Louis Dall, Ralph Sullivan, Norflet Felton, and Lawrence Davenport are seeking starting positions. Reggie Johnson, formerly an end, has been moved to guard. David Wade, another end, has been shifted to a tackle position. Burt Aycock will battle with Billy Cox and Steve Noble for end positions.

There has been only one injury reported since drill began. Wilbur Owens separated a shoulder last week and has been in light equipment since that time. He is expected to be in playing condition, however, by the time of the opening ball game with Jacksonville, September 12.

Last Friday Phillips got his first look at his team under game situations. His squad was divided into Reds and Blues and a scrimmage game was conducted on the Meadowbrook practice field. The Reds defeated the Blues 18-0. One touchdown was scored on a pass play and passes set up two other running scores.

"Well, we're going to try to mix them up this year," Phillips says. "We'll be able to pass and run."

As for the 22 boys battling for first positions, Phillips grinned slyly yesterday and capped off an interview with "I don't know, maybe we'll use two teams. I'm sure of one thing: We've got 22 boys who'll play a lot of football this year."

What's Going On Among The College Teams?

By JIM KENSIL

Associated Press Sports Writer Murray Warmath, 20th century football coach and disciplinarian, has added another chapter to "Tom Brown's Schooldays."

The Minnesota football boss who learned the game and its requirements under Tennessee's tough taskmaster, Gen. Bob Neyland, was yesterday he could be just as strict as a headmaster out of the 19th century English novel.

When sophomore guard Tom Brown showed up two days late for the start of fall practice, Warmath promptly put him in the third team. Brown, a 224-pound all-city selection in Minneapolis, reportedly had been on a canoe trip in northern Minnesota.

He has been touted as a starter on a Gopher team that needs rebuilding after a 4-5 season.

Mike Lee, Nebraska end and co-captain, was dropped from the Cornhusker squad by Coach Bill Jennings.

Jennings said only, "Lee is no longer on the squad." Lee, son of former Nebraska track coach Jerry Lee, declined comment.

Among other players who made news at the college boys picked up speed during the first week of practice: George Nuk, Cornell tackle, was believed lost for the season with a twisted knee.

Lou Mautino, Syracuse tackle and junior letterman, was on the shelf for the year with a shoulder injury.

Bob Williams, quarterback, and Nick Pietrosanti, fullback, lost excess pounds as Notre Dame went through first contract drill.

Ron Moody, Illinois halfback, had to withdraw from squad after recurring baseball knee injury.

Bob Wojcik, sophomore center, was lost to Michigan for the season because of a spring practice knee injury.

$250,000 Miler Runs For Nothing

LONDON (AP)—Australian miler, Herb Elliott, valued at $250,000 in the professional market, runs in London today for nothing.

And to preserve his amateur status he has to stay in an inexpensive boarding house instead of a plush hotel befitting a champion.

Reason: The 20-year-old Aussie exhausted his 28-day limit for drawing expenses early in August.

He ran his fabulous 3:54.5 mile in Dublin Aug. 6. Since then he's been paying his own way through Europe, and watching every cent.

The crew-cut Australian, fastest man on earth over a mile and 1,500 meters, could be suspended for professionalism for accepting expenses from any source.

Elliott's professional value was put at $250,000 by Leo Leavitt, an American promoter.

"That's the amount I will deposit in his bank the day he says okay," Leavitt was reported as saying from Adelaide, Australia.

Elliott's reply was: "I just can't believe any fellow has money like that lying around to put in my hand. It's 99 per cent certain I shall stay an amateur."

The Australian's appearance today at the White City Stadium has boosted ticket sales to 40,000.

Among others, he will be up against Derek Ibbotson of Britain, who ran 3:57.2 for the mile a year ago, and another sub-4-minute miler, Brian Hewson.

Teams Play Best Two-Of-Three Legion Series

PONCHATOULA, La. (AP)—Greenwood, S.C., and New Orleans will open a best two-of-three series tonight to decide the American Legion junior baseball sectional championship.

The winner gets the right to enter the Little World Series at Colorado Springs, Sept. 9-13.

It will be the second game for New Orleans, Region 6, champion, which eliminated Memphis, Tenn., Region 4 titleholder last night with a 13-4 victory.

Greenwood the Region 5 champion, beat Memphis 6-4 in Monday night's opener.

New Orleans jumped on Joel Porter for eight hits and 10 runs to hand the Memphis ace his first loss of the season after six victories. Porter also issued 10 walks.

TUESDAY'S FIGHTS

TOKYO—Flash Elorde, 132½, Philippines, outpointed Hsiao Kobayashi, 129½, Japan 12 (for Orient lightweight title).

Robinson charged conduct of the defendants "has seriously diminished corporate revenues and unless enjoined will result in insolvency of the corporation." The suit says also that Griffith has "practiced fraud, deceit and trickery on the community and stockholders, thereby forfeiting the good will of the community, necessary to successful operation of the team."

The guessing over a Minneapolis law suit grows out of statements made by Stanley Stabno, business agent of a city employees' local that claims the city council kraled only token wage increases recently when the workers demanded and needed more.

Stabno fought council approval of the bond issue last week, contending the city could not ethically risk taxpayers' money on a baseball stadium and flub wage requests by its employees.

Councilmen replied no money which would be used for wage boosts would be risked on the stadium.

Casey Needs Time To Rest His Pitchers For Series

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer Casey Stengel has his ninth American League pennant all but officially bagged. He has a 12-game lead with less than two dozen games to play. Yet this may be the toughest part of the season for the New York Yankee skipper.

What he needs is time, not to clinch the flag, but to rest his ailing pitchers—southpaw Whitey Ford and right-hander Don Larsen—for next month's World Series. Both have been found free of serious arm trouble, but a holiday has been prescribed for both.

So what's Casey do? He comes up with a new set of starters.

pitchers, his fourth this year. He has brought Bobby Shantz and Zack Monroe out of the bullpen to form a five-man starting staff with Bob Turley, Art Ditmar and Duke Maas. It could be a six-man group with Murry Dickson.

Thus far, the "new" staff of starters has won three of five games. Monroe, recalled from the minors, pitched his first complete game in the majors last night for a 6-1 victory over Boston.

Washington spilled Baltimore 4-3 and Detroit tied the Orioles for fourth by defeating Kansas City 6-1 in the only other games scheduled.

In the National League, idle Milwaukee's lead returned to eight games as Los Angeles defeated San Francisco 4-0 and Pittsburgh tied the Giants for second by defeating Philadelphia 3-2. St. Louis beat Cincinnati 4-2.

Monroe, 27, a right-hander making his first start since July 28, got past the Red Sox with a five-hitter for a 3-1 record. He had a shutout until Dick Gernert hit his 20th home run with two out in the ninth. Home runs by Mickey Mantle (38) and Yogi Berra (21) on successive pitches in the sixth inning broke up a scoreless tie. Dave Sisler (7-8) lost it.

Herb Moford (4-7) gave up only two hits as the Tigers swept their three-game series at Kansas City. He had a perfect game until Harry Chitt doubled in the sixth inning, then lost his shutout on Bob Cerv's 30th home run in the seventh. Bob Grim (4-6) lost it.

Pete Ramos reached his major league high with his 13th victory for the Senators, but needed relief help and a good defensive play by shortstop Ossie Alvarez to nail it after blanking the Birds on two hits for six innings. Alvarez' backhand stab turned pinchhitter Joy Taylor's bases-loaded smash into a game-ending double play. Albie Pearson, hit a three-run, inside-the-park homer in the third off loser Hec Brown (6-4).

and regained a second-place tie with San Francisco.

The Giants were spilled 4-0 by the Los Angeles Dodgers and Don Drysdale, who allowed five hits in his first shutout in a year. That left the Giants and Bucs eight games behind idle Milwaukee.

St. Louis defeated Cincinnati 4-2. In the American League, the New York Yankees defeated Boston 6-1, regaining a 12-game lead over the idle Chicago White Sox. Washington beat Baltimore 4-3 and Detroit whipped Kansas City 6-1.

Friend, who never had won more than 17 in any previous season, gave up seven hits, walked only one and struck out seven. He had a shutout until the eighth, when a hit batter, Dave Philley's pinch infield single, an infield out and Solly Hemus' sacrifice fly counted a run.

The Pirates, who managed only five hits off loser Don Cardwell (2-4) in his seven innings, put it away on Frank Thomas' solo 35th home run in the seventh.

Drysdale (11-1) struck out six and walked three. It was his sixth straight win. He gave up two hits in the fifth, when the Giants loaded the bases with one out on Orlando Cepeda's double, a single by Hank Sauer and a walk. Drysdale then fanned pinchhitter Leon Wagner and got pinch hitter Whitney Lockman on a fly ball.

The Dodgers nailed it in the first on Gino Cimoli's solo homer, his eighth, off loser Ray Monzant (6-9).

Bob Mabe gained his first major league victory after five defeats with the Cardinals, striking out eight while allowing seven hits and only one earned run. Wally Moon's double broke a 1-1 tie and Irv Noren singled him home with the clincher in a two-run second inning against loser Bob Purkey (15-9).

Since 1930, the year Bob Friend was born, the Pittsburgh Pirates have come up with only two 20-victory pitchers. Now Friend is just one game short of becoming the third.

The last was Murry Dickson, now with the New York Yankees. He did it in 1951—and with a seventh-place club.

Truett (Rip) Sewell, the guy with the blooper pitch, is the only other Buc to win 20 in one season since 1930. He did it twice, in the war years of 1943 and 1944.

Now, with the Pirates scrapping for their first finish in the first division in a decade, Friend is the National League's top winner. He picked up his 19th last night as the Bucs defeated Philadelphia 3-2.

Belk-Tyler's Remodeled Store Opens Thursday

Belk-Tyler's, the largest department store in Greenville, has just completed the third phase of its four phase remodeling program and will have its Grand Opening on Thursday Morning promptly at 9 o'clock sharp.

Newly remodeled departments and many new lines of merchandise will be among the highlights of the opening.

B. D. Johnston, local Belk-Tyler manager, said workmen for the construction company and the cabinet makers from the fixture company have finished their work and that everything is now in readiness for the Fall selling season. The work which has been done at Belk-Tyler's has been completed at the cost of thousands of dollars in an effort to provide one of the best shopping centers in this area to the people of Greenville and Pitt County.

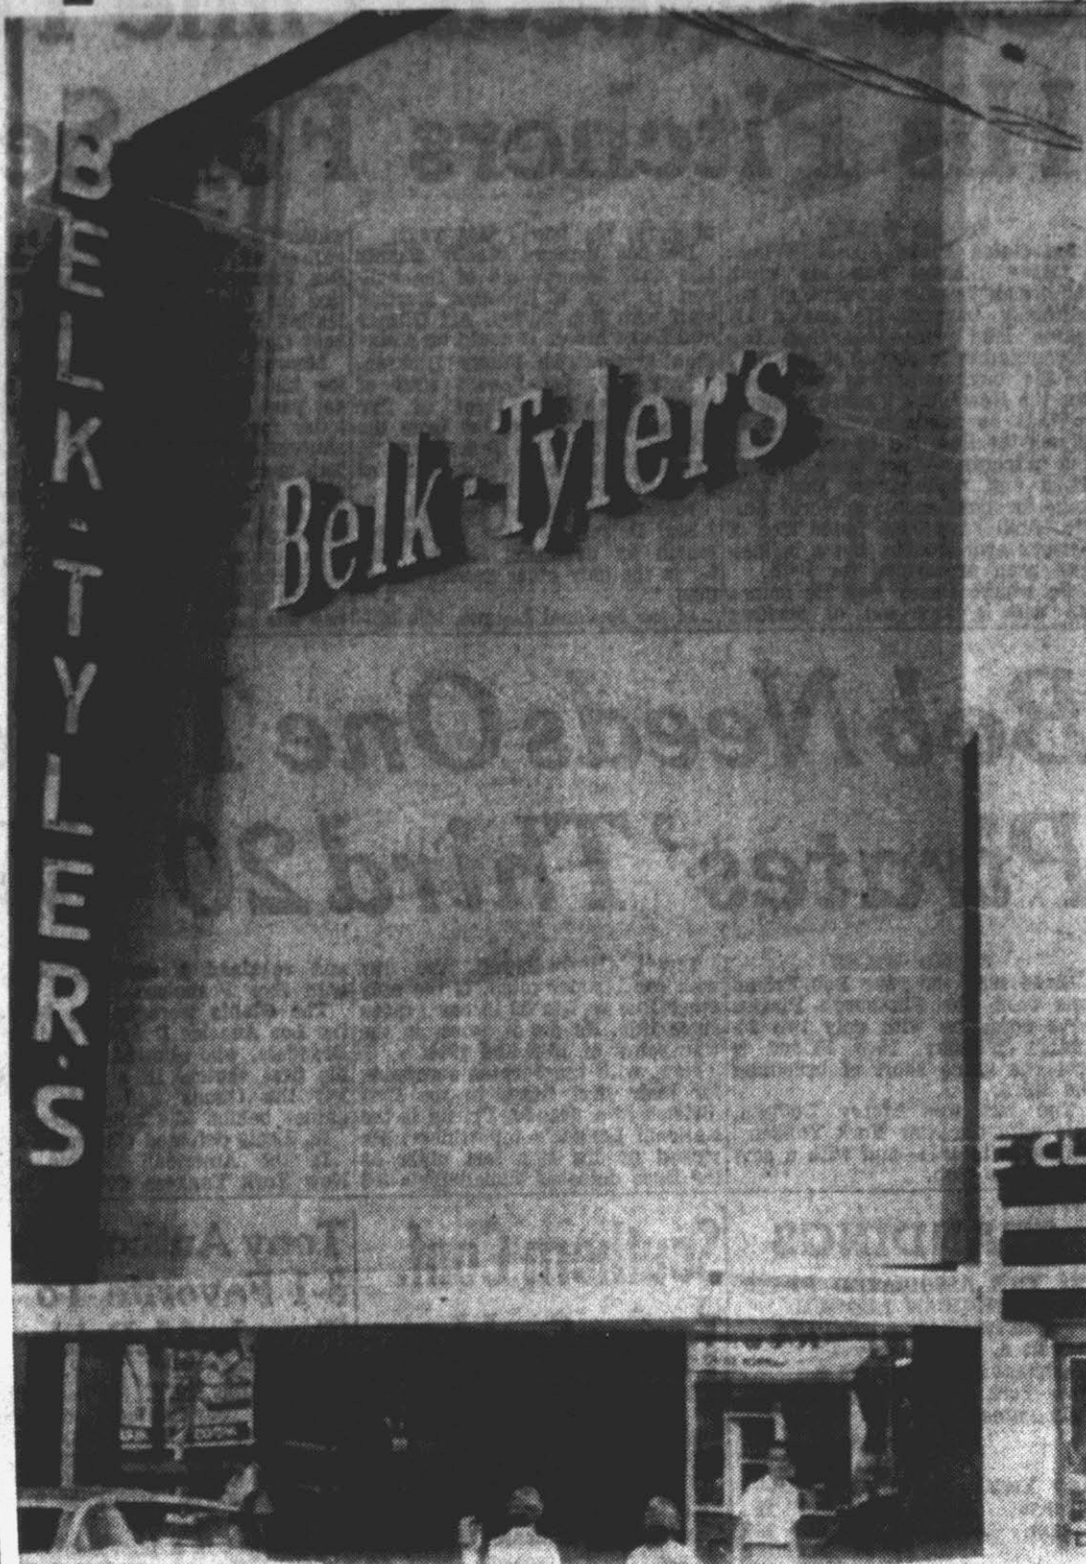

A smart looking new store front is one of the new features. It is made of lifetime baked porcelain in a battleship grey color and is highlighted by the use of two large signs proclaiming the name "Belk-Tyler's." One of the signs is installed flush against the face of the building and is made of polished stainless steel. The other sign is neon lighted against a Chinese Red Pylon that extends from the roof of a marquee to the roof of the three story building. One of the features of the new front is the permanent constructed marquee which eliminates the use of awnings. It is constructed of steel and timbers and projects over the sidewalks so that it protects the customers from sunlight and rain as well as protecting the merchandise in the show windows from the harsh glare of sunlight.

The show windows are a new item on the front at Belk-Tyler's. They are new angled windows with backgrounds of worm-eaten cypress paneling with a hand rubbed gold and green effect while the women's side of the show windows is decorated with a hand rubbed gold and white panel of striated wood. New lighting has been installed that makes the windows among the brightest in Greenville. New mannequins have been bought and other window displays procured so as to present the best dressed window displays in this area.

Inside the store one sees the newly decorated departments which have been enlarged and expanded with the use of smart looking fixtures. The Main Floor is highlighted by the use of a new lighting system that gives three times the amount of light found before the remodeling. Slimline fluorescent fixtures along the ceiling and with the use of concealed lighting along the cornices on the fixtures gives the floor a softly lighted effect.

A new floor of handsome tile in a pale rose and grey shade highlights the new fixtures in each department.

The remodeling at Belk-Tyler's had been spaced into four phases so as to not interrupt the selling routine of the store. Several years ago the Second Floor was remodeled and last year the store saw the addition of a new annex which enlarged the selling area by several thousands of feet. This annex was added to take care of a newly expanded piece goods and bedding center that has grown in popularity with the home sewers in this area. The third phase has just been completed and as of this date it is anticipated that the remodeling of the Third Floor will

Belk-Tyler's "strives to keep pace with the changing times and never stands still in the effort to provide newer and better shopping facilities for the people of this area."

New Fixtures Featured In Belk's Men's Dept.

The Men's Department on the Main Floor is under the leadership of Matt Hall, the buyer and manager of men's clothing. Hall along with a staff of three other well qualified men form the core of the selling force.

The new department has brand new fixtures throughout and has been greatly enlarged in space. The fixtures are of hand rubbed grey oak and were styled and installed by the Acme Fixture Company of Richmond, Virginia. There is a long expanse of wall cases for the display of men's suits and coats as well as a self service bar of men's dress shirts, neckties and belts. An enlarged area has been set aside for the display of men's hats near the front door.

To the rear of the steps leading to the balcony is a complete area set aside for men's work clothes. This department will feature a complete selection of men's overalls, dungarees, work pants and shirts as well as many other items necessary for the working man.

The selection of the merchandise is done by the buyer, Mr. Hall, on regular trips to the Belk Stores Services in Charlotte.

PACKING AWAY a semester's array of dresses is easy with this hanger bag.

Enlarged Shoe Department At Belk-Tyler's

The Shoe Department at Belk-Tyler's is located to the rear of the Main Floor and is known for the fact that it caters to the needs of the entire family. Actually there are four departments consisting of shoes for men, for boys, for girls and for women. All this is under the general supervision of W. E. Jones, a long time veteran in the shoe business, who attends all the regularly held style showings of shoes that are held at the Belk Stores Buying Service in Charlotte.

The fashion shoes for ladies consist of the famous makes of "Natural Bridge", "Valentine" and "Fashion Lane", as well as other brands known to women everywhere. For men there are "Natural Bridge", "Weyenberg", and "Masterbilt." A complete assortment of famous make shoes are also featured for boys and girls.

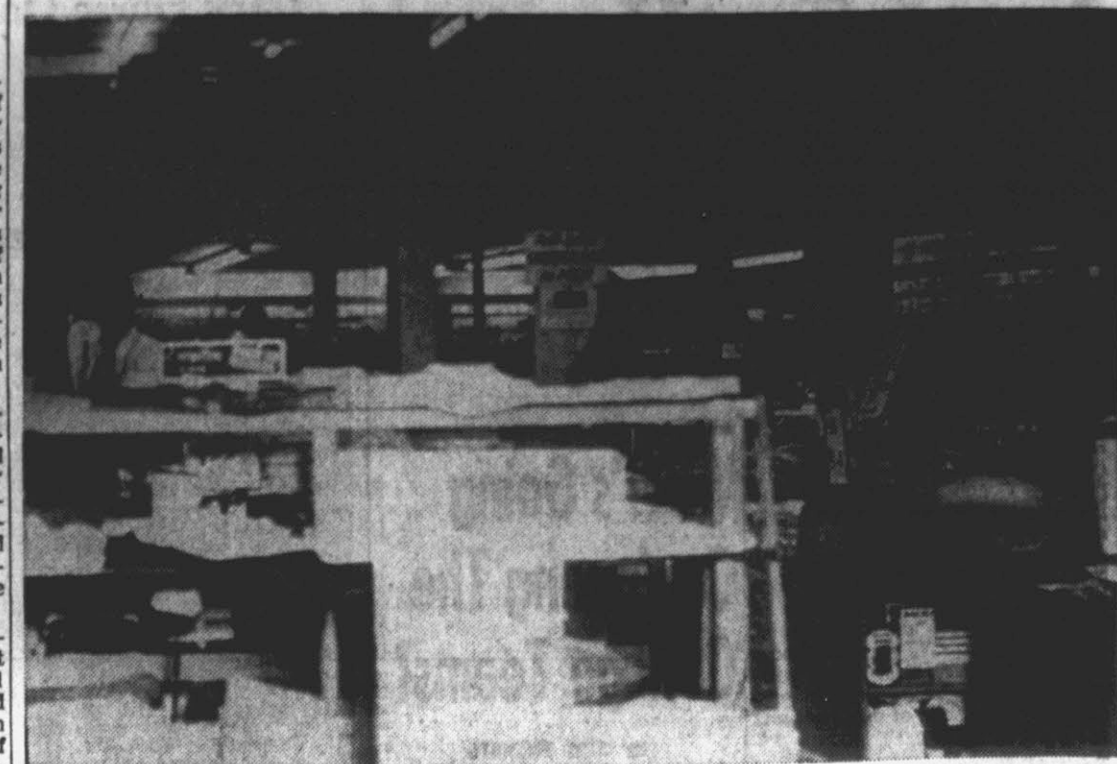

The shoe department at Belk-Tyler's is known for the fact that it stands by the quality and value of each shoe that is sold and customers know that they can get complete satisfaction out of the shoes they buy at Belk-Tyler's. Thousands of pairs of shoes are sold each year making this store have one of the largest shoe volumes in this area.

The new department is highlighted by the use of new fitting chairs, new carpets, and new fixtures that have been installed. New lighting also makes it easy for the customer to make a selection.

LOTS OF TIME

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Donald V. Cook, 45, of Hinton, W. Va., convicted of stealing a watch band from a 5 & 10-cent store, will have to tell time by the calendar for the next six months.

Ladies Accessories Section Enlarged At Belk-Tyler's

The Ladies Accessories Department is located on the Main Floor near the front door and extends almost halfway the length of the store. This department has been completely remodeled with the use of new fixtures and showcases. New colors on the walls, new lighting, new flooring and new hand rubbed oak fixtures highlight this popular department.

The department is under the general supervision of Mrs. Etta Rooke as manager and buyer and she is aided by several other competent co-workers. Mrs. Rooke attends the annual shows that are held each season at the Belk Stores Buying Service in Charlotte. The Accessories Department features a completely new assortment of ladies handbags in various sizes and shapes and these are displayed on a long self service wall fixture that holds hundreds of bags. There are also four counters on the floor that display the popular price bags.

Gloves and hosiery have also been adequately displayed in special self service display units. In gloves there are many nationally famous brands and in hosiery the famous brands of "Reigning Beauty", "Heiress", "Glen Raven", "McCrory" and "Cameo" are featured. A complete assortment of 51 gauge, 60 gauge, seamless, mesh, stretch and service weight hose are featured.

One of the popular spots in this department is a completely new jewelry department which features the famous make "Coro" and "Karu" jewelry that is known to women everywhere. Large displays of necklaces, bracelets and earrings are being featured in gold and silver combinations.

Complete assortments of handkerchiefs, scarfs, stoles as well as novelties and stationary are featured.

This is one of the largest showing of ladies accessories to be found in this area and will be one of the most popular spots for ladies. The assortments are complete and prices reasonable.

Boy's Dept. Occupies Spacious Balcony

One of the biggest improvements at Belk-Tyler's new store that has its Grand Opening on Thursday Morning is the newly enlarged Boy's Department which is located on a spacious balcony just over the shoe department.

Customers will find that this popular department has been enlarged twice over its previous size and that a brand new stairway has been installed from the main floor plus the fact that a new elevator landing has been built so that the elevator can stop at that location. The department has newly remodeled fixtures, new lighting, new flooring and a much larger stock of merchandise from which the customers may select. One of the new improvements is the location of the smaller boys clothes on this balcony for the 3 to 8 year old boy.

The department is under the supervision of Mrs. Peggy Lockhart, a veteran saleslady with experience in this field of merchandise.

Cosmetics

When the new Belk-Tyler's opens here in Greenville on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock one of the smart new departments that will be seen by the customers will be delightfully new cosmetic department which has been situated right near the front doors.

This department, which is under the supervision of Mrs. Etta Rooke, is highlighted by the use of new glass enclosed wall and floor display cases which are filled with the most famous names of ladies cosmetics. Such famous names as "Revlon", "Helena Rubenstein", "Max Factor", "Tussy", "Evening in Paris", "Shulton" and others will be shown in an abundance of items.

Mrs. Rooke is well trained in the knowledge of cosmetics by having attended many of the regional cosmetic schools that are held regularly in this area.

CHAPTER 32

"I believe this may very well be the turning point of the war," said Colonel Andrews. "We have a formidable group of picked men. Even though we may be numerically inferior, there is every chance that we'll win the battle and capture the Union supplies which will enable us to launch an offensive. Who flanks our position?"

"Lieutenants Henry and Jackson," replied Captain Colin Campbell.

"Good men," Andrews commented. "Good men both, but we should have an over-all command."

"We all have the same orders," Andrews said. "To hold for twenty-four hours." Andrews asked scornfully, "Pah! Trust old Whisky-Washy Drummond to think that one up! Do you realize that, if an opportunity presents, we shall be unable to launch an effective counterattack?"

"That's right," Andrews said sadly. "More of our men are being killed. With the exception of Lee, our high officers are bungling asses."

"What about Stuart, Jackson, Hood, and the rest?"

"Grandstand players!" Andrews said contemptuously. "Very picturesque and good headlines for the press, but they accomplish nothing. How many lives have been sacrificed because those who should have exercised wisdom chose to play the fool?"

"All of them."

"Enough."

"All of them."

There was a short silence while Andrews pondered. Then "You're right. Of course you're right. Of course you're right. When do you think the war should have ended?"

"It should never have started."

There was another silence that Andrews broke. "You're right again. Have you always held such views?"

"Always."

"Yet, you're in uniform?"

Colin countered with, "Did you want to fight a war?"

"No," Andrews said without hesitation. "I much preferred my importing business. Colin, you're a pernicious influence."

"Why?"

"You make me think. Why are we here?"

"Soldiers should never think," Colin advised. "They should merely accept, and we are here."

"So we are," Andrews laughed. They stopped talking and silence reigned. Colin slid from the boulder he'd been sitting on and pillowed his head on it. He thought of Ann Stewart and immediately wished he had not, for he could not think of Ann without thinking of her dead husband, Ling. And he could not think of Ling without going over and over in his mind what he might have done to stop the raiding and save Ling's life.

Always, he came to the conclusion that, short of putting him in irons, there was nothing he could have done. His sense of responsibility for Ling's death grew out of his love for Ann, out of the guilty knowledge that it freed her for him if she would have him now.

Andrews fell into a sound sleep and his gentle snoring broke the silence.

Colin, who had slumbered peacefully on a half-thousand rude couches, found sleep eluding him. He stared at the sky. Soon, by the time the sun rose, only twelve hours of their vigil would remain. When the sun set, all who remained alive would be free to leave. Colin shook his head in irritation. The Yankees had not come all night and there was no certainty that they would come with the morning. Everyone might survive the day.

Toward morning, the clouds scurried away. The sun, sad dawn broke. A heavy mist that had lingered all night over the creek wandered into the woods. It hung there like a great thick blanket of white fleece. The sun burned through it and the mist drifted away. Colin glanced at Andrews, still sleeping, and then at his men.

Some of the men still slept, some merely waited, and some gnawed at the cold hardtack and pickled beef that had been issued. Every man who now a veteran, and all knew that their orders were to hold this position at any cost for twenty-four hours. Yet, perhaps because attack was not certain and perhaps because no one believed he would die, the men seemed bored rather than tense or excited.

Andrews stirred, awakened, and yawned prodigiously just as Jason Maxwell hobbled down to Colin.

"Any orders, sir?"

"The orders stand as issued, Sergeant."

"Very well, Captain."

Jason left and Andrews gazed curiously after him. "There's a queer duck."

"Why?"

"I've never seen his feathers

Fourth Straight Night Of Race Rioting For London

LONDON (AP) — Race rioting continued for the fourth straight night last night in London but fast-moving police squads took the edge off the violence and kept big mobs from forming.

Fifty-nine persons were arrested, the biggest roundup since police whites began attacking colored immigrants from the West Indies and other Commonwealth areas nearly two weeks ago.

Hundreds heeded Scotland Yard warnings to stay off the streets of the Notting Hill district—the chief trouble spot — and surrounding areas. Police patrols moved in whenever those who did come out tried to form the large mobs which rampaged through the area on previous nights.

Dozens of automobiles and hundreds of walkers were searched for weapons. Police collected a small arsenal of knives, chains and clubs.

In one of the most serious incidents of the night, a gang of white youths stormed a colored calypso club in the Baywater area with gasoline bombs. Colored men in the club gave battle, and knives,

Five-Day Cruise Sea Scouts End

The Greenville Sea Scouts returned home Sunday night following an adventurous five-day summer cruise to Morehead City and Wicahayville Beach.

The cruise began last Wednesday morning here on the Scout Boat "Tau-O-Lin". Sponsored by the Rotary Club, the boat is equipped with beds, stove, a refrigerator and fresh water, enabling the Sea Scouts to sleep and eat aboard.

During the cruise a considerable amount of time was spent swimming, fishing and cruising.

J.B. Newman served as Skipper. Scouts making the trip were Bobby Hardee, Ronnie Cox, Jackie Cox, Pete Anthony, J.B. Surles, Jr., George Clark, David Cobb, J.B. Proctor and Billy Horne.

One of the highlights of the cruise came when the Sea Scouts assisted a disabled sailing vessel that had run aground near Topsail Beach. According to Skipper Newman strong winds were hazardous but the rescue was made without difficulty.

The regular meeting of the local Scouting unit is Thursday night at 7:30 at the Rotary Club Building. Any boy 14 to 17 years old is invited to join. The first meeting of the Fall is this Thursday night.

Dissidents Form Their Own Union

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—A group of dissident Teamsters Union members yesterday formed a new union. Atty. Tony Fredericks said the new group—General Truckers Assn. of America—would try to gain recognition as bargaining agent for employees of Consolidated Freightways in the Utah-Idaho Teamster district.

He said more than 75 per cent of Consolidated's teamster employees have applied for membership in the new organization. The firm is one of those idled by the Teamsters dispute with central California truckers.

Fredericks said the group was formed as a result of growing dissatisfaction of Consolidated employees with Teamsters representation.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Joanne Woodward and her actor husband, Paul Newman, are expecting a baby. Joanne said she will retire from films until the baby, due in April, arrives. She and Newman were married Jan. 29 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Wise Bird Will 'Dunk' Crusts

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — You should never underestimate the intelligence of a blackbird, says H.G. Coleman.

He said he placed several pieces of hard bread in his backyard bird feeder. Sparrows and a jaybird tried unsuccessfully to eat them. Then along came a blackbird.

The blackbird carried the hard bread to the nearby birdbath and dunked it until it was soft enough to eat.

Costly Reaction In That Button

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tony Hostetter brought his family here from Nashville, Tenn., and dropped into an appliance store to visit friends.

Five-year-old son Tony Jr. slipped to the rear of the store, saw an electric golf cart, boarded it and pressed a button.

It took off in reverse and banged against two electric stoves, two refrigerators and an air conditioner before a brick wall halted it.

Damage: about $1,200 to the appliances; none to Tony and very little to the cart.

SEPARATED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Pier Angeli and her husband, singer Vic Damone, have separated. She told a reporter: "We had a misunderstanding. I'm not sure what will happen." Damone wasn't available for comment. It is the second time the couple have separated in their four years of marriage. They have a son, Perry.

Co-eds at the University of Cincinnati are learning it takes more than a shape to shine these days.

Mrs. Janet M. Thomas, director of the campus Modern Dance Club, has been working with a group of co-eds in what they call a "figure forum." She feels there has been too much emphasis on women's dimensions and not enough on what is "really important"—poise and grace in motion or at rest.

Mrs. Thomas believes "the world's best shape isn't enough, and even without the best shape everyone can make progress in learning to form the body to pleasant contours and to make it flow into satisfying and visually pleasant movement."

How? Mrs. Thomas suggests lessons can be learned from the dancer. These lessons are applied here.

FIGURE FORUM

Shirley King holds stick against Ellen Harris' spine so she can feel each vertebra being aligned.

Starting position is important as Paulette Dorsel and Nancy Mofford do torso twist to slenderize waist, but Paulette, left, does it correctly.

Postures, from bad to perfect: Paulette Dorsel slumps; Emma Moses' is fairly good, while Ellen Harris achieves the ultimate by taking deep breath.

Flat feet at left could develop the dancer's well-arched feet at right through dance exercise.

Jeanne Hubble's high-heeled feet can ward off aches and pains by adopting the dancer's lunge position and then bouncing up and down on the heel of the rear foot.

An Oriental dance? No, it's a chest-firming exercise demonstrated by co-ed Diane Lengel.

Sit on the floor with a cup of tea at a party? It can be graceful if you know dancer's deep-knee bend, Ellen Harris, left, demonstrates. Caryl Stuckey and Therese Crittenden adopt it to party dress and company manners.

Squad Car Test Run Is Its Last

ELM GROVE, Wis. (AP)—The test run of the Elm Grove Police Department's new Squad car was its last.

The new station wagon was delivered to the department in the afternoon. In the evening, a patrolman tried it out on a new highway under construction. The vehicle hit a 12-inch drop, the tires blew out and the dragging gas tank burst into flames.

The officer escaped serious injury but the squad car was destroyed by fire.

Plan Memorial To War Dead

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—Wesley Cullipher, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced today that contracts have been let and construction will begin soon in High Point on a memorial honoring veterans of all wars.

Cullipher, of Elizabeth City, said contracts totaling $80,000 have been signed with the Coltrane and Graham Construction Co. of High Point.

The memorial will be a one-story limestone building, housing the state headquarters of the VFW. Completion of construction is expected by mid-January, 1959.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved into new high ground for the first time in the afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Lower - priced issues still remained in brisk demand but some of the blue chips made strides, boosting the average.

Generally, the gains of key stocks were fairly modest, going from fractions to about a point. Exceptions were wide advances by two pivotal stocks, Commonwealth Edison, up about 5, and Eastman Kodak, ahead more than 2.

Motors, chemicals, airlines and drugs were mostly higher. Steels and rails were slightly on the up-side. Oils and aircrafts were mixed.

Studebaker-Packard and American Motors continued active and fractionally higher. Ardmore rose about 2 points despite certain restrictions placed on trading in this stock following its gyrations of yesterday.

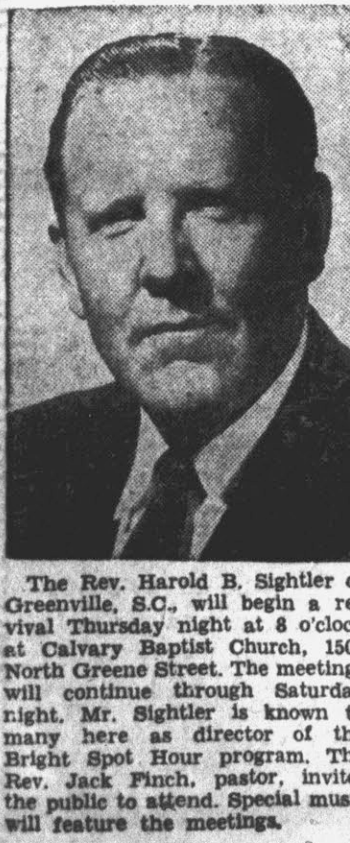

Cuban-American Sugar boosted its dividend to 40 cents from 25 cents and declared an extra dividend of 75 cents. The stock jumped more than a point.

Fruehauf Trailer, an active gainer yesterday, rose 1/2 on 15 blocks of 10,000 and 4,000 shares.

Gains of around a point were made by Merck, Allied Chemical, Du Pont and Kennecott. Anaconda and Sears Roebuck were easy. Fractional gains were made by Ford, General Motors, Lorillard, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Santa Fe and Raytheon.

Icelanders Show Anger Over British Naval Actions

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Icelandic anger was reflected in the nation's press today against British naval action in Iceland's fishing dispute with Britain.

A brickbat and smoke bomb demonstration outside the British ambassador's residence last night was followed this morning with charges of armed aggression and demands that Britain call its gunboats and trawlers home.

Thodvilljinn, the Communist newspaper, demanded that Iceland break relations with Britain, its North Atlantic (NATO) ally.

"Don't negotiate with pirates," it said. "Sever diplomatic relations at once."

Iceland's minister of Fisheries, Ludvig Josephson, is a Communist in this country's coalition government.

Reykjavik's other papers had headlines about yesterday's clashes between British sailors and Icelandic coastguardmen.

"Sooner or later the British will be forced to follow the example of other nations in this matter," the newspaper Pippin said.

"If they don't this might become a very serious dispute, threatening to assume international significance and of great damage to the cooperation of Western nations—particularly NATO."

This is armed aggression," said Althjofur, the newspaper of Foreign Minister Gudmundur Gudmundsson's party.

The coast guard reported there were no overnight incidents in Iceland's coastal waters where British trawlers—backed up by naval frigates—began fishing for the third day inside Iceland's new 12-mile limit.

The British say the 12-mile limit is illegal and its fishermen have an international right to trawl in the zone.

A British Embassy spokesman said he understood today would be the final day in which the trawlers would defy the Icelanders. All trawlers and frigates will have left by this time tomorrow, it is expected.

The dispute is over Iceland's self-imposed ban on fishing 12 miles from its coasts.

The demonstration at the ambassador's residence apparently was in retaliation for the British victories in two hand-to-hand battles yesterday between trawler crews and Icelandic coastguardmen.

The state radio in Reykjavik said trawlermen used axes, spikes and streams of water to keep coastguardmen from boarding one vessel to arrest its captain for violating the 12-mile ban. The British admiral made no mention of this incident.

In the second clash, nine unarmed coastguardmen boarded the trawler Northern Foam and were trying to head it into port when the British navy frigate Eastbourne sent aboard sailors.

The coastguardmen were captured and put aboard the Eastbourne, which tried to hand them back to the Icelandic gunboat Thor. The Thor's captain refused to accept them, apparently contending the men still should be on the Northern Foam.

British Ambassador Andrew Graham Gilchrist was entertaining visiting newsmen at dinner when the demonstrators appeared outside. Gilchrist played Scottish bagpipe music on his phonograph to cover the noise outside. A smoke bomb was tossed into the yard and the fumes drifted into the house. When the mob boomed, Gilchrist had the phonograph turned up.

Then the demonstrators, most of them youths, began throwing bricks. Six panes of window glass were broken. One pane shattered close to a British girl secretary commented. By that time the bagpipes had run out and the ambassador was playing Chopin for his guests on the piano.

Warns Against Apathy In Hospital Bond Vote

TALK HOSPITAL BONDS . . . Moose Governor John Behr and Dr. Leo Jenkins discuss Sept. 27 vote prospects.

Appearing before members of the Greenville Moose Lodge Monday night, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins urged all members to work actively and vigorously in behalf of the hospital bond issue.

He warned that conditions at the hospital are crowded and will become more so as the county grows.

"Those who elect to become complacent and let the other fellow worry about it," he cautioned, "will have no one to blame but themselves if the time comes when they and their families are unable to gain admission to the hospital in time of need."

Registration for the special election is still in progress, with books to be open September 6 and 13 for the voters. The election is scheduled for September 27.

At stake is issuance by the county of $500,000 in bonds to cover one-third of the cost of a new Pitt Memorial Hospital wing.

Moose members have pledged support of the proposed bond issue and efforts to promote voter registration and votes in behalf of the issue.

Truman Feels Soviet Has Long Been Planning War

CHICAGO (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman said today the Soviet Union "apparently is preparing for war, has been since 1945, and 'the danger we face today is a very real one.'"

Truman said the United States trails the Soviet Union in arms and missiles and "for the first time in science we are behind."

In this missile age, he added, the United States faces "a very real crisis."

He said there never has been a peak in Soviet military preparations since the Allied victory over the axis in 1945. At the same time, he said, American armed forces were reduced. This, he added, was "a grave mistake."

Truman, in a speech prepared for the 40th annual national convention of the American Legion, said the United States must be ready for war.

"We must have the strongest of a defense—we must surpass any potential enemy of the free world the Soviet Union, and hold the free world together. This we can do," he said.

"It is wicked to say that we can not do this without bankrupting our economy. Two world wars did not bankrupt us. Confronted by total war, we had the will, the resources and the ingenuity to do everything necessary to save our country and our allies for a free way of life. We can do it again, if we have to."

Truman's views differed sharply with remarks made to the convention earlier by Defense Secretary Neil McElroy who told the legionnaires the United States is ahead of the Soviet Union in overall military strength and this country and its allies are strong enough to win either a general or a limited war.

President Acts On 117 Bills Sent To Vacation Office; Few Left To Sign

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower has put on the books new laws lightening tax loads in a few fields, increasing the national debt ceiling and providing $87 million dollars in education aid.

He has killed by pocket veto a bill to increase federal aid to airports from the current $3 million dollars a year to 100 million, and continue it until the middle of 1962.

Those are highlights of Eisenhower's action at his vacation headquarters late yesterday on 117 bills which Congress sent to him shortly before it adjourned Aug. 24.

The President now has only 18 other pieces of legislation still before him for decision by midnight Saturday.

The major measure remaining would launch a 275-million-dollar new program to help chronically depressed city and rural areas.

Eisenhower's action on the 117 bills came during a 2 1/2-hour stint at his temporary offices at the Newport naval base after he had played 18 holes of golf. He signed 105 bills into law and vetoed a dozen, nearly all in that category minor.

Advance research on all of the bills had been done for him by aides, principally White House special counsel Gerald D. Morgan, who arrived by plane from Washington shortly before Eisenhower went to his office.

The major bills Eisenhower signed into law:

1. Provide multimillion-dollar tax relief to small business and make scores of technical changes in the tax laws. Those changes provide special new advantages to some classes of taxpayers, while at the same time blocking loopholes which have given unintended benefits to others.
2. Cut excise (sales) taxes for folks who ride in air taxis, and ease the tax burden on whisky distillers and movie tickets. This bill juggling excise levy features will cost the government an estimated 42 million dollars annually in tax revenue. The revisions are effective next July 1.
3. Raise the national debt limit to 288 billion dollars, highest in U.S. peacetime history. That is a temporary ceiling—until five billion dollars from the current temporary one—until next June 30. The new law also hikes the permanent statutory limit from 275 to 283 billion dollars.
4. Provide $887,400,000 over a four-year period for "national defense" federal aid to education in this increasingly scientific age. The plan features loans of up to $1,000 a year to college students who meet standards.

U.S. Will Ask Adopting Of Plan For Outer Space Work

dorsing in principle the establishment of appropriate international machinery to accomplish these aims.

Lodge announced to the American Legion convention in Chicago yesterday that the United States would seek Assembly approval of an international space program. The Soviet Union already has asked the Assembly to set up an agency for cooperation in the field of outer space. But it wants the Assembly to take up at the same time the elimination of foreign bases on territories of other countries—a subject the United States

Postponed

The Pitt County Safety Council will not meet tomorrow as originally scheduled.

Council officials stated today that the regularly scheduled meeting has been postponed until a later date this month. Official notice of the meeting will be mailed to members.

Normally the Council meets the first Thursday of each month. The July and August meetings were cancelled due to summer conflicts.

U.S. Will Ask Adopting Of Plan For Outer Space Work

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States said today it will ask the U.N. Assembly to adopt a four-point plan to assure that outer space will be used solely for the peace and benefit of mankind.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge announced that the United States has asked that the proposal be put before the 81-nation Assembly scheduled to open at U.N. headquarters Sept. 16.

The four main points are:

1. Creation of a special U.N. committee to make detailed studies and recommendations of specific steps for furthering progress in outer space work and to assure that outer space will be used solely for man's benefit.
2. A declaration by the Assembly separating the subject of peaceful uses of outer space from the long fruitless disarmament negotiations.
3. A formal declaration giving Assembly support "the principle of the peaceful utilization of outer space."
4. An Assembly declaration endorsing in principle the establishment of appropriate international machinery to accomplish these aims.

Lodge announced to the American Legion convention in Chicago yesterday that the United States would seek Assembly approval of an international space program. The Soviet Union already has asked the Assembly to set up an agency for cooperation in the field of outer space. But it wants the Assembly to take up at the same time the elimination of foreign bases on territories of other countries—a subject the United States says should not be linked with outer space.

In a memorandum to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, Lodge described as enormous the potentialities for good and evil that will arise from exploration of outer space, and said urgent steps are needed to lay a solid basis for international cooperation in development of peaceful uses of outer space.

He added that such steps can be taken "while parallel efforts are being made to conclude meaningful agreements on the disarmament aspects of outer space."

Had Nothing, So Brothers Leap To Their Death

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rebus brothers were aging bachelors — Roman 65 and George 63.

Their health was poor. Each had to use a cane.

They had lived together for many years. And they worked together, operating a little company that manufactured bridal veils. Business had been bad for years.

Last night the Rebus brothers made a token $25 payment to another manufacturer in their office building who had befriended them and lent them money from time to time.

The brothers appeared at peace with the world as they joked with their benefactor.

Then sat down at a desk in their little sixth-floor office in the millinery district and typed a note: "We have no money, no relatives, no friends. No religious service. Bury us in potter's field."

With that, they went to a window and leaped to death—together.

Ex-President Of Bar Ass'n Dies

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Frank Shepherd Spruill, 63, president of the North Carolina Bar Assn. in 1943, died at his home here early today from a heart attack.

Spruill had been an active lawyer here since 1922, the year he was admitted to practice.

He served in the State House of Representatives from Nash County in 1925.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina and of the UNC Law School, he was a veteran of World War I having served as a captain in France.

Survivors include his wife and daughter.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Leaf Prices On Way Up Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prices are moving back to early season high levels after a long weekend of inactivity at Carolinas blue-cured tobacco markets.

Meanwhile, growers are looking for a big opening tomorrow on the North Carolina Middle Belt. A tobacco marketing specialist, W. P. Hendrick of the State Agriculture Department, predicted a sales average of about $57 per 100 pounds.

On opening day last year, the belt's 10 markets auctioned 4,315,000 pounds for a $54.43 average.

Prices on the Carolinas Border Belt yesterday ranged above Friday's figures while Eastern North Carolina Belt marketings brought prices averaging slightly higher to unchanged.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that Border Belt increases ranged from $1 to $3 better than Friday. Volume was heavy at nearly all of the 19 markets along the belt.

The volume of sales also continued heavy on the Eastern Belt. Price gains primarily were $1 to $2 per 100 pounds with buyers bidding up to $73 for good quality leaf.

Yesterday's Border Belt volume totaled 11,805,899 pounds for a $60.20 average. South Carolina markets sold 5,960,733 pounds for $59.25 and Tar Heel auctioneers sold 5,845,076 for $51.16.
