

In Talent Appearance Tonight

CRUCIAL PAGEANT DAY FOR BETTY LANE . . . She's ready for talent competition tonight.

Betty Lane Wasn't Scared At All, Last Night, When In Evening Gown Category

By ALVIN TAYLOR

ATLANTIC CITY — Betty Lane Evans made her scheduled appearance in the evening gown division here last night, and she "wasn't scared at all."

Pitt County's lovely lady appeared along with 16 other girls in her category.

"I had a good time tonight," she said following the pageant's first night, "and I wasn't scared at all."

Each of the girls in the evening gown group was announced by master of ceremonies Bert Parks. They walked out on the huge stage, paraded before the judges, and then took the long walk down a ramp which stretches 120 feet into the audience at Convention Hall.

"I had a lot of fun walking on the ramp," Betty Lane said, "a lot more than I thought I would." Did it seem long?

"No, it wasn't long at all," she declared.

Miss North Carolina maintained her well-known smile as she glided down the left side of the ramp, made the turn at the far end, and then returned on the other side.

She was wearing a chiffon, taffeta gown with long torso, cut in princess lines with full skirt. The low scooped neckline outlined with re-embroidered lace was heavily jeweled with rhinestones, pearls, and sequins.

If the throat infection which has plagued her since her arrival was bothering her, it failed to show.

However her mother, Mrs. Amos J. Evans, said a doctor was called in yesterday morning to take a look at the troublesome throat. The physician left gurgles and pills to combat the infection.

Yesterday afternoon the beauty rested in preparation for the pageant last night.

As she was waiting for her daughter to return to the Dennis Hotel, Mrs. Evans said, "I am really going to work on her tonight — even if I have to sit up with her all night."

Mrs. Evans said her daughter sleeps and eats well. "That's one of the best things a girl can be blessed with."

Betty Lane was complimentary of the winners in the talent and swim suit divisions. Evening gown winners were not announced.

"Miss California looked so good in that swim suit," she declared. "I'm so glad she got it, and I thought Miss Mississippi looked real cute. I got to see her. All of the talent was wonderful and I was really impressed."

Sandra Lee Jennings, 18-year-old brown-haired beauty from California was swim suit winner in the preliminary competition.

Mary Ann Mobley, 21, Mississippi representative in the pageant, took the talent round. She did a combination classical, popular number, and a dance routine. The announcement that she had won drew warm applause from the audience.

Miss North Carolina makes her talent appearance in Convention Hall tonight. She plans to open at the piano. Then she will move up stage where the pageant orchestra will take over. She will sing the song "Wait 'Til You See Him" and do a dance routine during an interlude.

"I don't know whether it is as good as some of those here tonight," she said following last night's session. "But I am going to do my best. That's all I can do."

She said her throat is "better now."

"It's getting well," she continued. "I hope it's all gone by tomorrow night."

Betty Lane said she had received about 10 telegrams at the time she left the hotel last night. There had been flowers sent to her also. Some telephone calls had also been received at the hotel.

However, she said, "I'm not allowed to talk over the telephone, but mother took the messages for me."

Today is Betty Lane's busiest and perhaps most crucial day of the pageant.

At 8:45 this morning she and the other contestants headed for Haddon Hall where an all-important breakfast with the judges was scheduled. The girls wore morning dresses for the occasion.

At 11:30 contestants headed for Convention Hall where another general rehearsal was held. Then from 12:30 until 5 p.m. there was the long rehearsal for the girls who will be making their talent appearances tonight only. That includes Betty Lane.

At 6:30 Betty Lane will dine at the hotel and at 8 she reports back to Convention Hall. The talent routine comes in act three of the preliminary contest, and the setting is "Spring Festival."

Tomorrow night Miss North Carolina's group appears in swim suit.

Personal Note

"I hope you can shake some people down there loose with some telegrams for Betty Lane. She's only received about 10 so far from Greenville folks."

That was a comment of Daily Reflector City Editor Alvin Taylor today from Atlantic City where he is covering Betty Lane Evans' activities in the Miss America Pageant.

"She's doing fine in the pageant and her spirits are high, but I think some more telegrams from the folks back home would give her a big boost."

A spokesman from the local Western Union office said shortly before noon she estimated a total of 20 to 25 telegrams from here have been sent to Betty Lane in Atlantic City since the first of the week. Some of them were sent yesterday and others today.

Red China Extends 'Territorial Waters'; U.S. Told To Keep Out

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Communist China posted a new keep-out warning today to any American ships and planes that might be sent to help Nationalist Chinese in Formosa and garrisons on Quemoy and other offshore islands.

The Peiping regime extended its territorial waters to 12 miles offshore, taking in Quemoy and Matsu which nestle against the Chinese mainland. The official New China News Agency said in a broadcast that all foreign ships and aircraft must have permission to travel in the new zone.

The new area also included Formosa, about 100 miles from the mainland; and the Nationalist Pescadores Islands, supply point about 30 miles from Formosa. Both have always been claimed by the Reds as part of China.

The announcement charged that "U.S. military occupation of Formosa is an illegal act violating China's territory and sovereignty. "China has the right to recover Formosa at an appropriate time using all appropriate means," the announcement said. "This is China's internal affair, in which no foreign interference is tolerated."

The news agency defined the starting-point of the new 12-mile line as the line connecting the mainland coast with its offshore islands. That would take in Quemoy, Matsu, which is about 18 miles from the nearest point on the coast, was within what the Peiping announcement called the Chinese inland sea.

The new sea limits give Peiping the pretext to regard any blockading mission to relieve Quemoy as an act of invasion.

The Red Chinese move likely will be called illegal by most of the Western allies. But the allies lodged similar protests recently when the Soviet Union extended sea limits, and got nowhere.

The United States continued to beef up its forces on Formosa. U.S. authorities announced the arrival of more American Sabre Jets but did not say how many.

The new jet force is commanded by Maj. M. H. Frisbie of Powell, Wyo. His rank suggested that the force is of wing size, which usually numbers about 75 planes.

Gen. Curtis LeMay, U.S. Air Force deputy chief of staff and the top American exponent of long-range bombing, is due in Formosa Sunday for a look at the situation.

LeMay is expected to remain here several days at the invitation of the Nationalists and then take off for a tour of U.S. Air Force bases in the Pacific.

Nationalist defense headquarters reported that up to early afternoon only 144 shells landed on the island complex off the Chinese mainland.

The bombardment yesterday also was relatively light — 740 shells.

The U.S. carriers Essex and Midway and the cruiser Los Angeles joined the 7th Fleet guarding the Formosa Strait.

These warships plus additional Air Force units apparently comprised the new help Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot said was on its way to aid the Chinese Nationalists.

Super Sabre Jets and transport planes to Pacific bases, reported by to Okinawa and the Philippines.

Neither Smoot nor any other U.S. official would say publicly that the 7th Fleet would defend the offshore islands against a Red invasion attempt. So far the United States is committed only to defend Formosa itself and the Pescadores Islands, 30 miles west of Formosa.

The main 500-bed military hospital on Quemoy was a target Tuesday and yesterday. In yesterday's attack a male nurse was killed and four other hospital attendants were wounded. The patients, however, had been transferred to smaller field hospitals after the big four-story building was attacked Tuesday.

The hospital's chief surgeon, Col. Yao Tze-yin charged the attack was "deliberate and savage."

On Middle Belt, Good Sales Start

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Middle Belt flue-cured tobacco markets began the auction season today with general price averages for the first hour of sales estimated at $53 to $58 per 100 pounds.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that the bulk of the tobacco on the 10 markets was bringing $47 to $67. The top price observed was $74, paid for fine orange lugs.

Demand was strong for medium to lower qualities, especially for primings. However, the demand was only fair for the better grades.

Volume was heavy at all markets, the news service said. More tobacco was on hand at some markets than could be sold in the allotted time.

The Market News Service said 10 to 20 per cent of the opening day sales were going to the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. under the government price support program.

The range of opening prices for a limited number of grades on the middle belt:

Leaf — Low lemon 55 to 56; fair orange 61 to 67; low orange 55 to 63.

Lugs — Good lemon 66 to 70; fair lemon 63 to 66; fair orange 63 to 67.

Primings — Good lemon 65 to 66; fair lemon 63 to 67; fair orange 58 to 67; low orange 45 to 57.

Non-descript — Best thin body 20 to 48.

Meanwhile, the Market News Service said sales and averages yesterday on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt totaled 10,257,338 pounds for an average of $58.26. The figures by states were: South Carolina, 4,955,520 pounds, $57.73 average; North Carolina, 5,301,810 pounds, $58.75 average.

On the Eastern Belt, sales yesterday totaled 10,492,298 pounds for an average of $52.83.

Schedule Farm Bureau Meets In Annual Drive

Four meetings have been scheduled by Pitt County Farm Bureau officials in connection with the organization's annual membership drive.

Tonight a meeting will be held in the Grimesland Township, beginning at 8:15 in the Simpson Community Building.

Tomorrow night a meeting has been scheduled at the Farmville Town Hall at 7:30 for the Farmville Township.

The Pactolus School Building will be the scene of a meeting next Tuesday night for the Pactolus Township, beginning at 8 o'clock.

On Thursday night, September 11, Farm Bureau members in the Swift Creek Township are scheduled to meet in the Timothy Recreation Building. The meeting commences at 8 o'clock.

President And Dulles Warns Will Use Force If Formosa Endangered

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Eisenhower today solemnly warned Red China he will not hesitate to commit American armed forces to defense of the Nationalist offshore islands if he finds that necessary to the security of Formosa.

The President's position was set forth by Secretary of State Dulles in a statement authorized by Eisenhower after they had conferred at the summer White House for an hour and 45 minutes.

Dulles said Eisenhower will not hesitate to conclude that Formosa, the main Chinese Nationalist bastion, is threatened under an attack on Quemoy, Matsu and other offshore islands.

Dulles stressed that Eisenhower has not yet made any such finding under authority conferred on him by Congress.

"Presidential determination, if made, would be followed by action both timely and effective," Dulles said.

Despite the persistent bombardment of the Nationalist islands by the Reds, and Communist China's announced intention to invade, Dulles said the United States has not abandoned hope that the Communist government "will stop short of defying the will of mankind for peace."

"The President and I earnestly hope that the Chinese Communist regime will not again, as in the case of Korea, defy the basic principle upon which world order depends, namely that armed force should not be used to achieve territorial ambitions," Dulles said.

"Any such naked use of force would pose an issue far transcending the offshore islands and even the security of Taiwan (Formosa)."

Dulles went on to say any such development "would forecast a widespread use of force in the Far East which would endanger vital free world positions and the security of the United States."

Dulles said any United States acquiescence would threaten peace everywhere.

One official at the summer

White House said the United States would intervene swiftly if it thought the Formosa Strait situation was out of hand—that is, if Nationalist Chiang Kai-shek forces could not handle it by themselves.

Asked if today's Dulles statement could be regarded as a stiff warning to the Chinese, Dulles said, "This official—who asked not to be named—replied that if he were on the Communist side he certainly would weigh the consequences of further aggression."

Dulles stated the U.S. position at a jammed news conference. His manner was serious but apparently confident.

This country is bound by treaty to help defend Formosa and the nearby Pescadores. Congress left it to Eisenhower to decide whether successful defense of the main island requires fighting, too, for the offshore territories.

Dulles noted that the Reds for nearly two weeks have been subjecting Quemoy to heavy artillery bombardment and through artillery fire and use of small naval craft — have been harassing the regular supply of civilian and military population of the Quemoy, where the population is about 125,000.

Dulles spent much of yesterday in Washington discussing the Far Eastern situation both with diplomats and with military men. One of the conferences included Secretary of Defense McElroy; Undersecretary Donald A. Quarles; and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Dulles sought their views on the situation.

"We don't want to be rattling sabers and saying we can lick anybody in the world," McElroy told newsmen. "That is not our interest."

"Our interest is not to wage war but to deter. It is my judgment that if the Chinese Communists are wise they will be deterred."

Dulles is understood to have underscored the seriousness of the outlook by noting that Chinese Communist broadcasts threatening to invade Quemoy described such action as a step toward liberation of Formosa.

On Formosa a bit earlier the top American commander, Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot, did assert "We will lick them" if the Communists attempt an invasion.

"But," Smoot added, "it takes the combined effort of the spirit of (Nationalist) China and the help of the United States, which is coming, to overcome this immediate situation which is the interlocking of the offshore islands (by the Communists)."

No Integration 'Incidents' For Winston-Salem School

Enroll 4,812 In Opening Session

Greenville City Schools enrolled 4,812 students in yesterday's opening sessions with prospects of more to come.

Superintendent J. H. Rose said today the opening day enrollment figures include 2,947 students in the city's six white schools and 1,865 in three Negro schools. Some children who have not yet been placed in classrooms are not included in the report, Rose said.

Largest enrollments were reported by Junius H. Rose High School, where 632 students reported for classes, and by C. M. Eppes School, where 889 students were enrolled. Other school enrollments include Third Street School, 574; Junior High School, 492; Elm-hurst School, 465; Agnes Phillips School, 440; Wahl-Conte School, 544; Fleming Street School, 472; and South Greenville School, 504.

In addition to the enrolled students in the Negro schools, Rose said, there are about 250 Negro children who have not yet reported. They are expected before Monday when all schools will begin operating on full schedules.

Today's schedule for the schools called for classes to be dismissed at 12:30. The short schedule will also be followed tomorrow.

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Three Negro youngsters enrolled in previously all-white Easton Elementary School here today without incident. Only a handful of curious onlookers were present.

Thus, the second year of token integration in public schools here began without excitement.

There was no difficulty when Gwendolyn Yvonne Bailey, 16-year-old senior, returned today to Reynolds High School where she was the only Negro attending a white school in Winston-Salem last year.

The three Negro children arrived at Easton about 20 minutes after the start of school. They went unmolested to the school auditorium with other new pupils. About eight minutes later, enrollment completed, they departed as quietly as they had come.

Several policemen and one State Highway Patrolman were present when the three arrived in a car driven by Mrs. Lovie Cooper, the mother of two of the Negro children, Kenneth Richard, a fourth grader, and Roslyn Dianne, a second grader. The third child, Norma Earnestine Corley, also a second grader, and her mother, Mrs. Earnest C. Corley, accompanied the Coopers.

Union Monitors Protest In Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Court-appointed monitors went to U.S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts today with a protest against may-nuevers by Teamsters President James R. Hoffa which would abolish their job of watchdog over union affairs.

The conference with the judge broke up quickly, however, to be resumed this afternoon with a Hoffa representative present. Letts apparently wanted to hear both sides at the same sitting.

After the afternoon session Martin F. O'Donoghue, chairman of the monitors board, was expected to ask Judge Letts to take a stand on Hoffa's plan to hold a union convention and election next February.

Assuming a Hoffa victory in such an election, the move would do away with the Letts-appointed monitors and permit a team selected by Hoffa to take over the corruption clean-up job in the union.

O'Donoghue, emerging from the judge's chambers, said he would be back with L. N. D. Wells, union attorney and Hoffa's nominee on the monitors board.

The third monitor is Godfrey P. Schmidt, New York attorney for rank-and-file Teamsters whose court action against Hoffa's elevation to the union presidency brought about the creation of the board.

Hoffa, expressing impatience with reform orders from the monitor watchdog group, disclosed last night he plans a new union convention as a step to end the monitor setup and get his critics out of his hair.

O'Donoghue was reported intent on finding out from U.S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts whether the monitors can forbid such a convention and get court backing for cleanup directives to Hoffa which the Teamsters boss has ignored in some cases.

Hoffa himself questioned whether the monitors can properly require that the union name an outside prosecutor to bring out charges against one of Hoffa's closest union cronies, Owen (Bert) Brennan, a union vice president from Detroit.

Brennan is one of half a dozen Hoffa aides who have figured in Senate Rackets Committee disclosures and whom the monitors have recommended for suspension from union office and power.

"We feel we have complied with the orders and recommendations of the monitors up to the point where we question whether the monitors have overstepped their authority under the court order," Hoffa said.

Better Outlook For Employment

RALEIGH (AP) — Steady improvement in the North Carolina employment picture was reported today by Chairman Henry E. Kendall of the Employment Security Commission.

For this week, continued weeks of benefits claimed by jobless workers stood at 38,899, a drop of 1,441 from last week's figure, Kendall said. For the first time during a normal week since last November, he added, the figure was under 40,000.

"While the trend down in unemployment has continued for several months," Kendall said, "Benefit paid this year so far are over one-third higher than for the same period last year."

During July, the ESC paid out $4,625,769 in benefits, which was 41 per cent more than for the same month in 1957. For the 12 months ending last July 31, the total benefits paid unemployed workers was 53 per cent greater than for the year which ended July 31, 1957.

The ESC chairman cited evidence that North Carolina has a more favorable employment picture than the national average. "Latest figures show that the national average is 53 unemployed out of each 1,000 covered employees," he pointed out. "North Carolina's average is 46."

Vote To Extend Storm Sewers

BETHEL—Bethel Town Commissioners voted here Tuesday night to extend storm sewers in the business district an additional 500 yards to eliminate flooding conditions during heavy rains.

Mayor Clinton Everett said today the extension will carry the line from East Street to the Sugar Branch Canal. Estimated cost of the project, Everett said, would be about $1,300 which will be paid from the town's surplus funds.

Other business transacted by the board included approval of monthly bills and other routine actions.

Dr. Messick Greets Faculty, Looks To Another 'Great Year'

"I believe we shall have another great year," President John D. Messick of East Carolina College told members of the faculty this morning at a meeting held as opening event of the 1958-1959 term.

Introducing forty new faculty members to their colleagues, Dr. Messick said that these new teachers, along with fifty who joined the faculty last year, make up two-fifths of the faculty. They will "invigorate us and help us to go forward," he said.

"Our over-all objective at East Carolina College is to conserve, diffuse, and advance learning," he said, as he analyzed problems which confront administrative officers and faculty members.

"The solving or resolving of the objective is the responsibility of both the administration and the instructional staff," he explained.

"The primary province of the administration here is to see that physical and fiscal provisions are adequately made, and together with the dean and chairmen of departments of instruction to see that the very best possible staff is employed," he said.

"Most administrators," he continued, "recognize that their pay is earned primarily by trying to solve problems in relation to other persons."

Even among educators, he stated, there are conflicts as to the objectives of education.

"Some believe," he told the faculty, "that we have an obligation to be all things to all students, while others think that we should confine our objectives to traditional aims. Some are primarily concerned with their departmental offerings, while others are more concerned with a breadth of education that will assure a well-rounded individual. When these two are brought together we probably have the pragmatic philosophy which develops the end product most desired."

"But that too might be challenged to the extent of serious debate. Shall we have liberal and general education as well as or instead of vocational training and specialization? But comprehensive thinkers will probably concede that a meshing of both philosophies will result in the best well-rounded individual and one who has a saleable preparation."

Dr. Messick urged all teachers to analyze and evaluate their work as instructors and to exert every effort to make their classes more dynamic, inspiring, and sounder in content.

Instruction by closed circuit television, he announced, will be an innovation on the campus this year.

"It has proved successful at many colleges and universities as well as in public schools," he said. "It is not a panacea for all ills, but is another medium of instruction. Scientific education must continue its search for better and more economical ways of teaching as student enrollment and faculty supply in ratio diminishes."

The challenge of making 1958-1959 "another great year," he concluded, is with us.

"You have spent many years in preparation for it," he told the faculty. "Many of you are neophytes, but every one is potentially great. Let's exert every possible effort to realize that potential and assure an end product at East Carolina College that can measure up to the best. We can if we will!"

Storage Space For Fold-Up Bed Can Serve As A Room Divider

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Treat your fold-up guest bed to a new home—a storage place right in the room where it may be used. Then, when your guest gets sleepy you won't be tempted to flip coins to see whether you get the bed down from the attic or he sleeps with the dalmations on the floor.

This is supposed to be a do-it-yourself project, so you should have an inkling of how to use a level, saw and sand paper. Dimensions vary with the size of the bed, but in any case the unit can serve as a room divider or decorative addition.

The unit is a plywood box with no bottom, with doors at one end and a desk shelf along the side. You'll need two panels of three-quarter inch fir plywood for the sides and doors, a few feet of one-by-four and one-by-two lumber for the door stop and desk brackets, and hardware for the doors and desk.

The body, built much like a box, must be put together by gluing and nailing all joints. Fasten the end panel between the side pieces, then insert and fasten the top. Position the structure against the wall of the room, cutting out a section of baseboard to fit the unit tightly against the wall. Fasten the whole assembly to the wall with screws driven through the back panel into the wall.

Put a metal fitting—brass, aluminum or steel—to anchor the front of the storage cabinet at the base. Leave space on either side of the length of metal so your bed wheels may slide easily through the spaces. Screw the anchor to the floor.

The desk which may be used on either side of the unit is not the full length of the cabinet, but is cut shorter so the cabinet doors may swing back. You'll need brackets for the desk. Cut them from 1 x 4 lumber. Fit doors allowing for 1-4 inch or more bottom clearance, hanging them with cabinet hinges—either pintle or mortised butt hinges. Supply pulls and catches.

Fill nail holes and the edge grain with filler, sand the unit until smooth, and then finish it to match the room decor. Sand each coat of paint before applying the next to insure a slick finish. Some of the new adhesive backed wallpapers that are easy to use may make a nice contrast to painted walls when used on this unit. A brick pattern, for instance, may give an unusual effect with trailing variegated ivy and geraniums gracing the top of the bed storage unit. The top may also be used for books.

If you build this unit for a double bed it will be more on the long side, if built for a coil or link spring bed, it may need to be wider than you'd expect, so it is a good idea to measure the bed carefully before going ahead with your project.

DO IT YOURSELF CABINET—An ideal storage place for a guest folding bed is easily made with fir plywood.

LUNCHEON FOR THE GIRLS

Avocado Plus Melba Toast
Chicken Salad with Trimmings
Peach Shortcake Beverage
AVOCADO PLUS

Ingredients: 1 can (13 ounces) chilled consommé madrilene (red colored), 1 jar (2 ounces) red caviar, 2 medium-sized ripe but firm avocados, water cress.

Method: Turn madrilene and red caviar, just as they come from the cans, into a bowl; madrilene must be jellied. Flake madrilene with a fork, carefully mixing caviar with it as you do so. Cover and refrigerate. At serving time, cut avocados into thirds and remove seeds; remove skin. Place avocado wedges on individual salad plates; spoon madrilene mixture over avocado; garnish with water cress. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. Talton Party Hostess

GRIFTON—Mrs. Kenneth Talton entertained Thursday night at a party at her home on Cheribatal Drive in Forest Acres.

Guests were received in the living room where decorations of flowers in shades of gold and brown made a setting for the tables appointed for bridge.

After a delectable fried chicken supper, bridge was played at three tables and high scores were made by Mesdames Roger Johnson and W. E. Raeberry for club members and among the guests Mrs. James Hudson.

Others playing were Mesdames Milton Hart, Sam Nelson, Glend Tucker, Walter Patrick, Ben G. Tucker, Julius Chauncey, Woodrow Smith, Gay Onagay and Ed Sumner. Supper guests were Mrs. Becky Worthington, Willie Padgett and Lois Whit.

Some Day Our Luck Will Run Out

In the long years of work by legislative bodies under democratic governments, no one yet has found a way to avoid the last-minute log jam of bills to be acted on at the tail end of a session.

It happens every year in Washington when Congress approaches the beginning of its summer vacation from the nation's capital. It happens every other year in the North Carolina General Assembly and the legislative bodies of other states.

By and large there are remarkably few fouled up pieces of legislation which are pushed through in this last minute rush. It must be concluded, however, that we would have better laws if some method could be devised to avoid the landslide of measures to be acted upon when a legislative body is in its mad rush for adjournment.

So far as the federal government is concerned, the problem doesn't end with the adjournment of Congress. There is also the matter of executive action on the bills which are passed. The President has just 10 days in which to make up his mind on the legislation ... to approve it or subject it to a pocket veto.

Late on Tuesday, President Eisenhower acted on 117 pieces of legislation which was sent to him after Congress adjourned. He signed 105 measures into law and rejected a dozen. He has until midnight Saturday (10 days after Congress adjourned) to make up his mind about 18 other pieces of legislation passed during the last hectic days of the recent session.

The 10-day limit doesn't give the President much time to make up his mind about the merits of the individual pieces of legislation. Even by delegating responsibility for decisions to members of his staff, the large number of bills places a tremendous burden on such a staff.

To be sure the method has been followed decade after decade; but we must remember the quantity of legislative measures is increasing year after year, to say nothing about their complexity. How long is our luck going to hold out?

From the standpoint of Congress and the individual state legislatures, it would not be amiss to seek some workable solution to the problem of rush action during the last days of a session.

One of these days on a state or nation level we are going to rush ourselves into a terrible predicament through ill-considered action on measures during the rush adjournment.

Our State Blessed By Lack Of Corruption

Sometimes when we get disturbed over something that happens in our own state government, we find consolation in the things that go on in other states that under no circumstances would be tolerated in North Carolina.

We realize how genuinely fortunate North Carolina is to have maintained the high standards and high calibre of state government it has had for decades. We find ourselves more confident than ever that North Carolina ranks high in the calibre of government it gives its people in comparison to that of some other states.

Not long ago, for example, Jack Tarver, president of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., which publishes the formidable Atlanta Journal and Atlanta Constitution, received an invitation to bid on the Georgia's state highway center-line paint.

To the invitation from the state purchasing agent of Georgia, Tarver replied:

"My first reaction was that it had been sent to me in error, but on reflection I realized that an administration which purchases much of its insurance through a newspaperman to be asked to submit bids on paint. 'However, inasmuch as it is my well-considered good fortune not to be numbered among the cronies of Governor Griffin, much less his brother Cheney, I think you will agree there is no need in my wasting your time or mine in submitting a bid on this or any other item which the state might need. Yours for more pigment and less politics in our paint.'"

There may be some politics in the paint and hundreds of other items North Carolina purchases every year, but if that is the case it has been a well kept secret for many years. And in North Carolina, we don't believe it is possible to keep a political secret for that long.

While corruption in high places has come to light in one state after another in recent years, North Carolina has been blessed with as corrupt-free government as any state we know of.

Less Allure In Ike's Coattails

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's coattails look even shorter this year.

Three times in the past — in the elections of 1952, 1954 and 1956 — Republican candidates for Congress rode his coattails as hard as they could.

All three times Eisenhower was riding a wave of personal popularity but only once was he able to help his party to victory.

This year, with Republicans desperately anxious to retain control of Congress, he figures to be of even less help than before.

For two reasons:

1. He's been coming more and more under criticism.

2. He's a lame-duck President — he's finishing out his second and last term because, by law, he can't run again.

A lame duck in any political office traditionally has an ebbing influence.

So it's questionable how much help he can give the Republican congressional candidates in 1958 or how much help they want from him.

It still isn't clear how much campaigning he intends to do, if any. This might be taken as a sign of how the wind blows.

Last March 2 Chairman Andrew W. Schoepel of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee said he hoped Eisenhower would be active in the campaign but added: "I don't think any president can go out and give his blessing to any one man and have that the contributing factor. It can be helpful factor ... but in the last campaign (in 1956) in some of these instances it didn't turn out so well."

Schoepel said it would be detrimental in some states for Republicans to base their campaign on support for Eisenhower's programs.

He said some GOP candidates "simply are not going to take the same position as the President or his advisers" on some questions, like foreign aid and trade.

Republicans — including their national chairman, Meade Alderson — have predicted they'd win control of the House but admitted the Senate fight is tough.

For Alderson this seemed to indicate a rise in spirits since last April.

Then he was admitting he didn't think his party could win the Senate and predicted only a bare majority in the House.

In 1952 — when Eisenhower was the enormously popular war hero and voters were fed up with 20 years of the Democrats — he not only won himself but swept his party along with him to control of Congress.

Not so in 1954. He wasn't running that year but he campaigned across the country for the Republican congressional candidates. It wasn't good enough. The Democrats took over Congress.

In 1956 there was reason to expect a different result. Eisenhower was running for his second term and he campaigned as hard as he could after a heart attack and a serious intestinal operation.

It didn't work. He won for himself overwhelmingly. But again the Republicans lost control of Congress to the Democrats.

This year, as a lame duck under growing criticism, there's no reason to think he'd be any more effective than in 1954 or 1956 in carrying his party to victory.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
STILL QUITE PREVALENT
"Thou shalt not steal."

One's quick response to this Biblical commandment would be that, as a matter of fact, there is very little real theft in civilized nations today. If we mean by theft the actual purloining of articles of value, then there is very little theft amongst us. Gigantic as our present criminal population is, it constitutes, nevertheless, a very small percentage of our population.

But theft must be associated with something more than the mere taking of articles of value. The employee who loafs on the job is a thief. There are hundreds of little dishonesties of thought and attitude in which the most respectable people in every community participate. One can steal without every laying his hand on an article which belongs to another, for theft has to do with attitude of mind as much as with action.

The most serious forms of dishonesty result when we are dishonest with ourselves and with God. We are dishonest with ourselves when we fail to live up to the best we are or to the best we can do. We are dishonest in our attitude toward God when we are uncharitable, when we deny Him the worship which is His due, or when we misuse the abilities He has given us.

We can all grow very uncomfortable as we ponder the words, "Thou shalt not steal."

We Conceded Lots Of Putts—

It's A Good Question

Up drove a late model car from out of the darkness. Out jumped six boys as soon as the wheels stopped rolling. They converged upon the joint with the vim and vitality of a week-old colt.

In they came, each clad in the latest ivy-league style. "Me a beer," one hollered across the counter to the waiter. "I made a half-hearted effort to smile in return."

"Make it five," the tallest boy in the crowd said. Everyone sat down but the smallest. He came over to the waitress who was busy opening beer cans and requested a pint of plain milk. Then he too sat down at the table.

Presently the waitress brought the order. "Who ordered the milk?" cried one, in a tone of voice that indicated he knew, but just wanted to "play games."

"I did," was the meek answer he received.

"What are you Mac, a mother's boy?" the tall boy asked. His name was Frank and it was not difficult to tell he was from the North. Even before he could complete the question a smile broke out on his face. A bully for sure.

The milk-drinker had nothing further to say along the current line of conversation. Instead he came back. "Did you boys see that good looking chick walking around campus today around noontime?"

"Man she was a knockout," one blurted. "Prettiest thing I've seen since I struck town."

"Let's order another beer," the fat one at the end of the table requested. "Alright," cheered in the boy sitting next to him.

While the waitress filled the order, one of the group, who appeared to be more "prosperous" than the others, got up and put a coin in the juke box. To the satisfaction to the others he played the latest pop release.

Frank leaned back in his chair and threw his arms in the air. "Man if it was any better I just couldn't stand it."

By this time the second round of brew was ready "to be rented." The boys went about drinking it like the curfew was only a minute away.

One took a sip and smiled over his glass. "Bet there ain't no one in the house who can drink a beer as fast as I can," he boasted. And right then he turned the glass to his head and emptied it to the amazement of his companions.

"Give me another beer," he shouted.

In the meantime he leaned over his buddy and told him about what he had done during the summer. "I worked at the beach," he boasted.

The conversation changed. Everybody wanted to know where everybody else went to school.

"I went to Charlotte Central," Frank said without hesitating. "Wheatfield High," the milk drinker volunteered. Everybody laughed.

"Where's that place," was the logical question. "Why it's near Newton Grove, about four miles out in the country."

A country boy!

Right then the conversation died. A country boy sitting there with all those "bigtime operators."

"Give us another beer and a

A Goal For Science

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — If science can build a perfect dummy mother, why can't it build a perfect dummy wife?

That logically is the next step? and, some feel, a step already long overdue.

The dummy mother — a cloth-covered wood and sponge figure heated by a light bulb — was made by Harry Harlow, a University of Wisconsin psychologist.

He found that bottle-fed monkeys were completely content with this laboratory mother. In fact, there was some evidence she was more satisfying than a real mother. For, in addition to being warm and soft, she never left her babies — and she never scolded them.

What works with monkeys, however, may not work with children. One can hardly foresee much of a future for artificial human mothers — at least in this country. Americans have a firm faith that a good mother can't be bought, built or borrowed — she's usually inherited, just as are the color of one's eyes.

But this isn't true at all of wives. Wives are almost never inherited. They are acquired — just like a broken arm, a job, or false teeth.

The possibilities of creating dummy wives — perhaps artificial is a better word — are positively breath-taking. They offer a real challenge to any scientist worth his test tubes.

A substitute human wife would have to be more than warm, soft and silent.

She'd be kind of a combination of an electronic brain and a department store dummy — full of all kinds of wonderful machinery unknown to ordinary wives.

Instead of talking, she'd merely hum recorded Strauss waltzes while you read your morning paper. If you got lonesome for conversation, you could put two broken records in her in English, French, German, Spanish or Italian. This is one more broken record in the normal wife today can play in any language.

If anything went wrong with her, you'd save doctor bills. You could fix her with a wrench — or be kicking her in the control panel.

On a vacation trip you could ship her ahead by express, and join her yourself later by air, first class.

She'd never complain about not having anything to wear. All a mechanical wife could wear is out — in which case you'd just trade her in for a newer model, or sell her to the junkman and become a bachelor again.

If she ever talked back to you, you wouldn't just suspect she had a screw loose somewhere. You'd know it.

Her food bill would come from the power and light company. And everybody knows electricity is cheaper than groceries.

If she ever seemed cold or distant to you, you could always make her more warm and affectionate by installing another 200-watt light bulb in her. You could even change the color of her eyes by switching the color of her light bulbs.

She could be much more entertaining than the usual flesh-and-blood and yakky-yak wife. You could put a steel handle on her side, a glass panel in her bosom, equip her with slot machine innards — and do all your gambling at home.

All in all, it's a wonder science hasn't come up with the mechanical dummy wife already.

What would be her disadvantages? None.

How could there be? She is perfect from the standpoints of sociability, durability and low cost of upkeep.

But already I can hear some long-time old married codger protesting: "Why bother to build new artificial wives? Aren't the ones we got artificial enough already?"

Opinions In Brief

"Pressure and propaganda groups in our national government can sure make a mess of fair play." — The Herald, Park Falls, Wis.

Featherbedding Said Spreading

By ELMER ROESSNER

Featherbedding is spreading into manufacturing, Herbert R. Northrup warns in "Personnel," a magazine of the American Management Association. Mr. Northrup is a consultant of labor economics with General Electric.

Featherbedding, he points out, is usually an effort to expand employment, but in practice adds to the cost of production, decreases productivity and tends to curtail employment in the long run.

"How many jobs have been lost to building workers by the rise of the do-it-yourself movement?" he asks. "How many printers are out of work because of newspaper consolidations and the shift to competitive methods? What about the loss of jobs in the amusement field because of high labor costs? What good does it do to give two railroad men 24 hours pay for one man's eight hours of work when railroad jobs are only one-third of what they were 25 years ago?"

OWNERSHIP OF JOBS

Featherbedding is spreading into other industries through the theory of job ownership, the GE consultant says. "If a particular craft can establish that a particular type of work 'belongs' to it, then management loses the right to assign work and, thus, to utilize its labor force most efficiently," he adds.

"The argument goes like this: If a man has seniority in a particular occupation, then he alone can perform the work, even though other persons are qualified. By seniority, he acquires exclusive ownership in his job. Unfortunately, some arbitrators have found this reasoning most appealing."

He cites one case in which an arbitrator decided that Republic Steel was not justified in assigning another work a job usually done by the electrical millwright, even though it had to be done on a day when the millwright was off. The arbitrator awarded the millwright a day's pay at overtime rates, while the other worker kept his pay.

While it is often argued that seniority does not involve an economic cost, Mr. Northrup points out that when a person with seniority "bumps" another man out of his job, the cost of downgrading, trial periods, training periods and related troubles costs considerable — even if the worker with seniority does not damage a machine with which he is not familiar.

BEDED DOWN STEWARDS
Featherbedding is spreading into manufacturing through the payment for union work on company jobs, he holds.

He cited a case in a New England plant where he was previously employed. He discovered there were four shop stewards who drew pay although they had not worked for five years.

The idea of the nonworking stewards had originated with the former management in an attempt to buy them off in the hope of decreasing union pressure for wage increases and benefits," he adds. However, workers agreed to give up the idea of nonworking stewards. They resented the fact that they had it so soft.

Mr. Northrup says, "The Robbins Engineering Co. of Detroit ... went out of business early this year. One of the reasons, according to its management, was excessive featherbedding, including the cost of thousands of useless hours ... spent each month in digging up, airing and discussing shop grievances."

The Taft-Hartley Act prohibition of featherbedding is largely ineffective, the consultant points out. He doubts whether any law can halt it effectively. The only solution is a greater understanding by management and labor of the true costs of featherbedding, and for management to "stand firm against any union restriction on sound plant operations."

YOUNGSTERS' FISHING POLES
The Internal Revenue Service has looked benignly on boy fishermen. It has ruled that the manufacturers tax on sporting goods does not apply to bamboo cane poles in their natural state, or straightened, scraped and varnished. However, if the poles are cut into sections and fitted with ferules, they are taxable.

Mothers Find Fun In Creating New Stitches

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The difference between a run-of-the-mill school dress and a favorite costume lies in the individual touches a bright mother may add.

One of the simplest and most effective ways to add a custom touch to children's clothes is with gay appliques. All you need are some bright scraps from the rag-bag, a little imagination and a sewing machine. Iron-on tape also comes in handy for features, buttons and other accents too small to stitch on laughing apples, flirtatious flowers or a cheerful Humpty-Dumpty.

Appliques are done with the versatile satin stitch on your automatic machine or zigzagger attachment. Local sewing center experts give you some tips on how to make them.

First sketch your design on paper and trace it onto the fabric. Back fabric with organdy, basting pieces together. Make features or other designs on applique before cutting out. Leave full inch all around applique when cutting.

Baste in place on dress. Work close satin stitch around outline of design and trim away excess fabric close to line of stitching.

Here are specific instructions for some gay designs:

1. Laughing Apples in black and white gingham are sprinkled around the hem of a white, pique dress. The black might be repeated in corded trim on the dress. After sketching and tracing apples, back with organdy. Automatic stitching in combination with iron-on tape makes the features. The eyelashes may be done automatically with the comb stitch, or by making a curved line of zigzag stitching and filling in lashes by hand. To make the mouth, trace outline on a scrap of white iron-on tape and iron in place. Trace around mouth outline with red satin stitch, and trim away excess fabric. The eyes are little triangles. Or you can make one winking eye and one open eye, outlined in zigzag stitching with an iron-on pupil.
2. A close satin stitch is used to secure the apples to the skirt. A green leaf is applied with green satin stitch; a wide satin stitch, also in green, forms the stem.

3. Paper Dolls are another hemline decoration. They may be cut out and traced onto white pique. Again the little figures are backed with organdy. The buttons are of tiny black circles of iron-on tape. (Try a pinner punch to bet even circles). White satin stitching outlines the dolls; the little girl is finished with red ribbons for her pigtails.
4. The simplest little dress of dark cotton can be a conversation piece with a single figure accenting the hemline—in this case, a dignified HUMPTY-DUMPTY. To make this figure, first draw egg outline on yellow cotton. Baste plaid fabric in place to cover lower half of egg. Make eyes nose and buttons of iron-on tape satin-stitch mouth. Add bow tie of black bias tape. Back egg with organdy and yellow cotton. Draw legs and arms on yellow cotton backing. Cut out egg, legs, and arms, leaving seam allowance around all pieces. Stitch around top of egg half way down yellow section. Stitch on "fence" of red bias tape. Let the same line of stitching secure the hemline. Baste egg in place, and satin stitch. Trim away excess fabric close to line of stitching.

5. A Single Tall Flower is the perfect accent for a child's Trapeze dress—particularly when it's a yellow calico flower on a moss-green cotton. To make this design, first trace flower outline on solid yellow calico. Make pot of bright red. Back all pieces with organdy. Make black face of flower of iron-on tape, with white mouth and eyes. Baste flowers, leaves and pot in place on dress. Stitch around outline of flower in yellow satin stitch; stitch petals in satin stitch. Use yellow satin for leaves; red satin stitch for pot with scalloped top. Make stem of black satin stitch.
6. Here's a delightful treatment for a front-buttoning dress—a DECORATIVE BUTTON PANEL, with jet buttons forming the centers of white-pique flowers. Here, simply cut several flower shapes of white pique, backing them with organdy. Baste and stitch in place along front closing. Connect flowers with black satin stitch, and make buttonholes in centers of flowers. Sew on buttons of jet black.

AMIALE APPLE—Checked gingham applique is effective as accent for white.

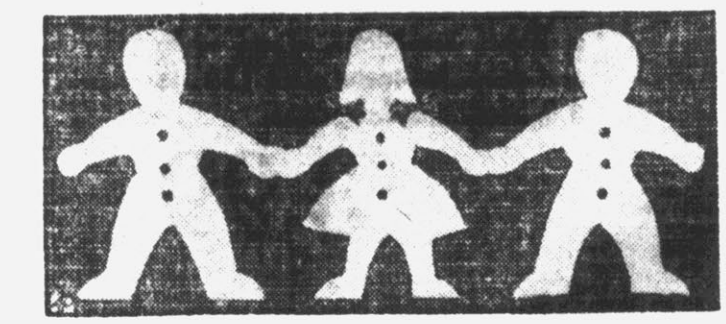

FAIRY TALE FLOWER—One yellow calico flower in red pot accents child's dress.

DECORATIVE BUTTONS—White pique flowers and jet buttons make gay closing.

HUMPTY DUMPTY—Make him in bright colors to perk up a dark cotton school dress.

PAPER DOLLS—Make them in white pique to march around hemline of gingham.

Coffee Break Firmly Entrenched; Problem Now Is Time For Worry

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The president of a large firm unexpectedly walked into one of the company offices recently and found, although it was shortly after 10 A.M., the place empty except for one stenographer. The staff happily wandered in a few minutes later—a few of the 28 million Americans who had enjoyed a new workday custom, the coffee break.

Some employers take a dim view of morning and afternoon refresher periods for obvious reasons, but the custom is so popular that most of them have, perforce, given in. To avoid a sometimes empty office, many firms have installed coffee vending machines or permit a coffee and snack vendor to roll a cart through the premises twice a day.

One Eastern printer has been doing a brisk business selling cars which has been popping up in offices in the area. They say, in bold, black letters:

"To All Employees:
"Due to increased competition and the keen desire to remain in business, we find it necessary to institute a new policy.
"Effective immediately we are asking that somewhere between starting and quitting time and without infringing too much on the time devoted to lunch period, coffee breaks, rest periods, story telling, ticket-selling, golfing, auto racing, horse selections, window-gazing, vacation-planning and rehashing of yesterday's TV programs, that each employee try to find some time that can be set aside and be known hereafter as The Work Break."

There may be some employers who wish the morning and afternoon coffee break (it's called a coffee break even if you're a tea or soft drink imbiber) were outlawed, and there certainly are numbers of coffee-breakers who find that a couple of extra snack periods add to weight problems. But the custom has growing acceptance—particularly where it is organized—among some employer who find that refreshment picks up flagging workers and actually pays off in more work.

Regardless of its merits or demerits, the coffee break seems here to stay—and it is making such people as snack manufacturers and, above all, the coffee industry very, very happy.

A recent survey indicated that currently 70 million cups of coffee are being consumed daily in coffee breaks. Drinkers include 42 per cent of all men with jobs, 44 per cent of women with jobs and 27 per cent of all housewives (who used to call their mid-morning coffee a kafferalatch, but no more).

Morning Most Popular

The morning coffee break remains the more popular of the two usual periods—51 per cent of the breakers participate in the morning session. Sixteen per cent go for an afternoon cup, and 39 per cent sip on both occasions. This activity adds up to about three cups a day—a cup and one-half on an average, morning and afternoon.

Apparently, there is still considerable organization work to be done in the break field: 30 per cent of the drinkers are still running out to restaurants and eating places. However, 43 per cent are buying beverages from carts and 17 per cent in company cafeterias.

And why does the coffee business love the coffee break? This year it accounts for almost 20 per cent of all the cups of coffee consumed in the nation.

Baby Feet Mu* Last A Lifetime

Foot troubles are pretty common. Most of them are unnecessary. Good care throughout babyhood and childhood can prevent about three quarters of all the aching feet of grown-up life.

The human foot is a pretty complicated structure. It contains 33 joints and 26 different bones. The feet contain one fourth of all the bones in the body. Like any delicate piece of machinery, the feet need good care to keep them in smooth running order for 70-odd years.

When a baby is born, many of the bones of the feet are not really bone at all; they are composed of a rubbery material known as cartilage.

This pliable substance will mold and take on new shapes if the feet are subjected to constant pressure. For this reason a baby should not lie in the same position all the time. When a baby lies on his tummy his feet are spread out so that the inner side of each foot is stretched and the outer side is pushed together. If he lies this way all the time some tendons stretch, some contract and the bones mould to fit the position—a position not too good for later weight bearing. See to it that your baby lies sometimes on his back, sometimes on his tummy, sometimes on one side or the other. In this way you equalize the pressure and the foot maintains its original shape.

Sometimes a baby's foot is so cramped while he is lying in his mother's womb that when he is born it's not properly shaped. Many such feet will straighten out as soon as the baby is able to kick them about freely. However, occasionally such a foot needs special treatment. Casts or a brace put on a newborn's feet for the first six weeks of life can accomplish more than years and years of corrective shoes later in life.

Throughout babyhood feet need freedom. Let your baby kick and wiggle his feet unhampered with socks, shoes or tight bedclothes. The more he wiggles, the better his feet will grow. A normal healthy baby foot needs no covering any more than hands need mittens.

When your baby finally begins to walk he will need shoes—for protection, not for support. The important thing about shoes is the fit. Take a look at the natural shape of your child's foot. It is straight along the inner border. It is almost square along the toes. The widest part is from the heel joint to the little toe. The heel is much narrower than the front of the foot. Can Size Up Man By His Doodles

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Your man may be doodling little hatchets on his desk pad all the while he's drooling sweet nothings to you on his office telephone. So says Helen King, author of "Your Doodles and What They Mean to You."

"Many a man shows his hand when he picks up the pencil to scribble," she explains. "It would be easy to figure out how you rate with your best beau if you could catch him in the act of scriawling."

As Psychiatrist Blanche M. Baker, M.D., Ph.D., points out in a foreword to the book, "The unconscious seems to shape the trail of ink we leave on paper." Freud, she says, gave us the concept of the unconscious mind to solve problems of human behavior that eventually may lead to a "more extensive codification of these odd by-products (doodles) of man's versatility."

Miss King, an eminent graphologist, drew on thousands of doodles collected over 22 years to compile her book. There is George Washington's checker-board doodle, revealing, she says, mental poise, steadiness and that he was a planner. Jefferson's "Y" doodles show "system, carefulness, conscientiousness." Coolidge had a provolently for dots, an indication of being discreet and of "watchful waiting."

Famous Doodles

Franklin Roosevelt doodled fish, in and out of water. There is a doodle that President Eisenhower did of Gen. Henri Giraud while the men were conferring in Algiers during World War II. Ben Franklin doodled parts of faces, showing an interest in his fellow man, Miss King says.

The most popular doodle, she says, is the old penmanship pattern of circles taught in school. Geometric designs and small initials are runners-up. Domestic animal-bird doodles exhibit a considerable nature. Arrows pointing up are symbolic of shooting high, clock-wise arrows are doodles of one who thinks rapidly. Ladder doodles show ambition, hearts denote sentiment; stars are symbolic of a person who aims high intellectually and spiritually. Houses show security, and flowers are doodles of kindly, protective persons.

It's the people with perverse streaks—such as backseat drivers—who reveal immaturity by painting moustaches and eye glasses on photographs.

Angular doodles indicate constructive, curved formations show affection, friendliness, sentiment. Heavier pressure shows more serious thoughts. John L. Lewis blanks out printed matter heavily as though to show disapproval, Miss King says.

Miss King, former newspaper woman, lecturer and author, became interested in graphology at 13 when she saw an ad in a booklet which captured her imagination. At 16 she was lecturing on the subject, became president of the Graphology Society, working for the police department, in helping to identify frauds, and through a fluke became a contest judge, in which field she is well known. "Some people, she says, claim they just doodle words. 'T' or 'Me' indicate more than a dash of egotism. Knives, bars, swords and rifles, although frequently doodled by military men, are occasionally the doodles of those who have suicidal tendencies.

HERE'S A DOODLE: Made by a staffer at a creative meeting, analyzed by Helen King, graphologist and author. The heart motif is sentimental, expressive. The house shows attitude toward security. Tiny boxes and geometrical figures represent planning, trying to develop ideas. The cat is creative, showing development of unusual ideas from orthodox statements. The doodler shows a psychic quality, the ability to pick up surroundings, thoughts.

Swimming Is Great Sport For Elderly

ELMIRA, N. Y. (AP)—When the gray hair and wrinkles begin to show, "get in the swim," advises a great grandmother.

Swimming keeps her young, says Mrs. Archie W. Lamb, 60, admitting 60-odd years. Mrs. Lamb swims and dives three nights a week at the YWCA pool.

Until three years ago, Mrs. Lamb couldn't swim and was afraid to go over her depth in the water. It took a lot of courage to join the swimming class, she relates, but she told herself: "I'm not getting any younger so I may as well do it now."

Mrs. Lamb recommends swimming for elderly folks.

"As you know," she says, "when you get older, your circulation slows down and this swimming is excellent for stimulation. You can't beat swimming for relaxation and recreation."

At times, she says, she practically dragged herself to the pool, but "swimming washed all my tiredness away. In fact, since I have been swimming, I've never slept so well."

Mrs. Lamb's favorite stroke is the back crawl. But she has mastered many strokes.

BIG TOP BUG—Fred D. Pfening Jr., president of the Circus Historical Society, studies one of his many circus programs. The wagon he discovered in a Pataskala, Ohio, barn and restored.

If It's About A Circus, He's Very Interested

By PHIL GUNBY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—At 33, Fred D. Pfening Jr. still runs off to the circus every chance he gets. Not to join it, for he's president of a bakery equipment company. Just to see it.

It's a love affair that began 23 years ago. Pfening is national president of the Circus Historical Society and also belongs to the Circus Model Builders and the Historical Society, which does extensive research to preserve circus lore, provides the information for articles and books (Pfening has tried his hand at both) about circus life, and channels material to the Circus World Museum at Baraboo, Wis., and Museum of the American Circus at Sarasota, Fla.

The Model Builders construct scale models of circus wagons (Pfening has about 50), tents, acts and other phases of circus life. And those who are just plain fans of the circus make up the third organization.

But though his basement is jammed with the second largest collection of circus routebooks (year-books of a circus' activities) in existence, one of an estimated three or four air calliopes possessed by private individuals, and many other mementoes of circus life, Pfening says it is not an effort to preserve a dying tradition.

"There will always be a circus," he maintains. "Good astute businessmen, providing the proper management, can make the circus succeed by doing the old time things in a modern way."

More shows are on the road now than in the past three years, he says, and the Circus Historical Society is doing its bit by promoting a Be A Circus Booster campaign.

Pfening says he's seen all but two or three of the 20 to 25 circuses now on the road. Last year he saw 16 circuses 26 times.

All this should make life a circus for his sons, Frederick III, 9, and Timothy, 4 — and usually does.

"But Ricky (Frederick) is becoming interested in stamp collecting and that seems to be pulling him away from the circus," Pfening admits.

After Long Try, Caught One Fish

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Vacationing President Eisenhower finally has caught a fish — after hours of trying.

He hauled in a bluefish measuring about 20 inches as he was close to the end of a full day of deep sea trolling yesterday.

It helped to make up for less than four hours of fishing in Narragansett Bay Monday, plus a lot of frustrated effort on this latest trip into Block Island Sound, about 25 miles south of the Newport summer White House.

Eisenhower traveled to and from the Block Island area by helicopter. He fished aboard a 62-foot Navy boat specially rigged for deep sea trolling. He was away 10 hours.

Highway Patrol Finished Job

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — When the car her husband Donald was driving skidded and rolled over, highway patrolmen took Mrs. Ella Adams to the hospital.

Mrs. Adams, who reportedly had only slight injuries, was going there anyway. Twenty minutes after the accident, she gave birth to a 7-pound, 14-ounce boy.

Supporters Of Betty Lane Arriving At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY—Many of Miss North Carolina's supporters are beginning to arrive here as the Miss America Pageant moves into its second night.

Her mother, Mrs. Amos J. Evans, and her business manager, Dr. Sam White, have been with her since she arrived last Monday.

Since then her father and her young sister, Joan Dell, have arrived.

Making the auto trip with Evans was Betty Lane's boy-friend, Lawrence Perkins, who has chaffered the young beauty on a number of occasions since she became Miss Greenville last spring and then Miss North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Perkins and Joan Perkins also made the trip. The group is staying at a beach cottage of a friend.

One of the persons who worked with Betty Lane between the time she won the Greenville title and the time she took the Miss North Carolina title arrived late last night. That was Mrs. Ramona VanNortwick who coached Betty Lane in walking and poise.

Arriving here with Mrs. VanNortwick was Dr. White's wife, Mrs. Colleen White.

Another rooter who has been here all week is Mrs. Hannah Block of Wilmington who worked with Betty Lane on walking and poise following the Miss North Carolina pageant.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hardee have also been here since Betty Lane arrived. Hardee is covering the pageant for WNCN and the Hardees are staying at the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

Alvin Taylor, covering for the Daily Reflector, is staying at the Dennis Hotel.

Bob Campbell of Durham is in Atlantic City covering the activities of Miss North Carolina for the Durham television station.

Bomarc Is Fired From Distance

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A button pushed 1,500 miles away has launched another Bomarc, the nation's most highly developed air defense missile.

The Bomarc, the closest weapon on this country has to a so-called antimissile missile, roared aloft yesterday on another test within the SAGE air defense system.

Once the missile was poised for launching at the Cape, it was fired from Kingston, N.Y., by a technician manning one of the largest and most complex digital computers in the world.

The computer is part of the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) system — an intricate network of radar stations and compute centers that guards the nation against enemy air raids.

The Bomarc, designed to carry a nuclear warhead from 250 to 300 miles, was aimed at a World War II pilotless B7 drone bomber target somewhere along the south Atlantic missile range. For test purposes the Bomarc is set to miss the drone rather than destroy it.

The Air Force announced that a Bomarc was fired, but officials declined to divulge either the objectives or the results of the test.

FISHERMEN WON'T TALK
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—State fish experts here don't agree that fishermen brag too much.

Quite the opposite, they say. Because fishermen are reluctant to talk about their exploits, they pose a serious handicap to scientific fish management. Fishermen probably keep things to themselves, they add, because big stories draw competition.

Emphasize Safe Route For Kids To School

A frontal assault on traffic accidents involving school-age children has been undertaken by the American Automobile Association.

Such accidents take the lives of 2,650 youngsters and injure 150,000 annually.

A blueprint for community action on the problem is featured in a new handbook, PLANNED PEDESTRIAN PROGRAM, issued by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety. The publication which has been several years in preparation outlines a basic program for use by states and cities in reducing pedestrian mishaps.

It has been distributed to local police, traffic safety officials and others concerned with the reduction of highway mishaps.

Steps urged by the AAA to reduce school-age accidents include:

- (1) greater uniformity in school crossing signs and signals.
- (2) scientific surveys by city traffic engineers to develop sound school crossing controls for the community.
- (3) increased use of the School Safety Patrols and adult School Crossing Guards.
- (4) development of more and better city playgrounds, competently staffed and strategically located.
- (5) adoption by all states of uniform school bus laws.
- (6) cooperation of parents on "the safest route to school."
- (7) intensified pre-school education for living in the motor age.

The AAA handbook points out that youngsters between 12 and 16 years seem to have the best pedestrian record of all school-age children, but that they more than compensate with their heavy death toll as bicyclists. During the first two years of school, pedestrian accidents show a sharp rise, the AAA said.

"From 5 to 10 years of age, about half the accidents come from walking or running off the pavement and half from crossing the street," the booklet said.

"Mid-morning and mid-afternoon are the most hazardous periods for pre-school children, and Saturday mornings are markedly dangerous."

High tribute was paid to the work of the nation's 660,000 members of the School Safety Patrols who protect the lives of over 15 million classmates at 26 thousand schools throughout the country.

Support School Patrols

The AAA urged communities to use police coordinators to help in development of efficient Patrol units, and called on parent-teacher and other civic organizations to give full support to the Patrols.

The AAA booklet also appealed for greater use of police officers at school crossings where "adequate gaps in traffic are not sufficiently frequent for safe crossing."

Youth traffic courts were recommended as an important weapon for communities in fighting pedestrian accidents.

Sign Proclaims Home Of Miss N.C.

The first highway sign on an approach to Greenville proclaiming the city as the "Home of Miss North Carolina" went up this week and two more signs are now being installed.

One of the signs was purchased by the Greenville Merchants Association and two others by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. Clarence Tugwell, chairman of the Jaycee committee for promotion of Greenville is conjunction with Miss North Carolina, said plans call for five such signs to be placed on the major traffic arteries leading into Greenville. Two of the signs, he said, are yet to be sold.

"The idea is to promote Greenville as the home of Miss North Carolina," Tugwell said. "And it will be very little trouble to change the signs to read 'Home of Miss America' if events in Atlantic City this week-end make such a change necessary."

Erection of the highway signs is one phase of the local Jaycee project to promote and advertise Greenville as the Home of Miss North Carolina. Tugwell said local citizens have been extremely cooperative in the promotion effort.

Auto Insurance Firms Argue For Boost In Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Tar Heel auto insurance firms argued today for a 14.6 per cent boost in liability rates.

The pitch was made by the North Carolina automobile rate administrative office at a hearing before State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold.

North Carolina motorists would pay at least three million dollars more each year for bodily injury and property damage liability insurance on private cars if the rates are approved.

The filing was an amendment to the original request of the rate office which asked for 19.9 per cent hike. Gold turned down that request in a ruling in July.

The commissioner also threw out a proposed 50 per cent higher rate differential for the Fayetteville area, saying it would be discriminatory. It was omitted from the present filing.

Big Advance In Weather And Ocean Science Resulting In IGY Program

Editor's Note—The intensive, cooperative efforts of the International Geophysical Year have brought notable advances in weather and ocean science. From Moscow, where he attended IGY sessions recently, Dr. Dale F. Leipper reports on developments in these fields. He is director of the Department of Oceanography and Meteorology at Texas A&M College.

By Dr. DALE F. LEIPPER
Written for The Associated Press
Thirteen months of systematic observation of the earth's fluid envelope—the atmosphere and the ocean—were summarized as part of a recent gathering of world scientists in Moscow.

Some 50 research vessels are involved in the marine research program and expeditions have been conducted in all the world's oceans. Surveys lasted as long as nine months. Since time is required after an expedition to prepare the data for distribution, it's still in the 18-month International Geophysical Year period which began July 1, 1957, for comprehensive results to become available. The same is true for meteorology with its far-flung network of regular and special observation stations.

But it is obvious from the discussions at Moscow, at the meeting of the Special Committee for the International Geophysical Year, that the IGY period has begun a new era of international cooperation in oceanography and meteorology. And many new tools have been perfected. One of these is the swallow float developed in Great Britain. This is a device which will float and may be tracked at a fixed ocean depth giving direct current measurements. With it has been detected a reverse flow under the Gulf Stream of comparable speed.

Another most important device is an accurate indicator of ocean salt content, using the electrical conductivity of sea water as a basis. In meteorology, instruments carried by rockets and satellites open up great new possibilities.

One of the main efforts of IGY has been to obtain weather and ocean data over the whole earth on a simultaneous time basis. In working toward this objective, meteorologists have for the first time produced daily weather maps of the antarctic and prepared weather forecasts from them. There are some 54 observing stations in this area for IGY—an unprecedented event in polar research.

The difficulties of describing the oceans on a simultaneous time basis seem almost insurmountable. In the past, data from many decades often were combined to give a picture of conditions in a given area. The systematic work of the IGY provides one fairly comprehensive picture in a single year.

Good indications have thus been obtained that the significant features of the ocean temperature, its circulation and other characteristics do vary from year to year. Such changes have effects upon world climate, food supply and navigation.

In some specific areas, notably the north and northeast Atlantic, more intensive investigations were carried on. In this case many countries, working through the International Council for Exploration of the Sea, were able to define much more closely the general position and variability of the Polar Front—the southern boundary of a cold water mass which greatly influences the entire ocean circulation.

Another group of IGY studies in oceanography and meteorology is related to the heat budget of the earth. This is the mechanism by which solar radiation is received, absorbed, stored and emitted from the oceans and the atmosphere. It is the basis of the world's weather and climate.

Meteorologists have been making special efforts to attain greater and greater altitudes with their sounding balloons, and have added to the normal 60,000 to 80,000 feet heights, some 20,000 feet of altitude with temperature information. They have used rockets and satellites for occasional readings from even greater heights. They have added new observation stations.

A final grouping of IGY results in oceanography and meteorology may be made under the heading of chemical and radioactivity studies. Here, for example, measurements of the amount of carbon dioxide in the air and surface water layers indicate the influence of large industrial areas—which produce carbon dioxide by burning petroleum products—upon the natural environment.

The amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere modifies climate by affecting the transfer of heat. In the ocean it is a major factor in plant growth. To date, analyses do not show unusually large concentrations in the atmosphere. Apparently the ocean acts to keep the system in balance, in spite of man's efforts to change concentrations.

Radioactive elements such as tritium and deuterium have been used to trace air and water masses, determining the general flow and the rate of overturn. The general level of radioactivity in the air and in the sea has been monitored with the object of predicting areas and times when concentrations may become dangerous.

PRESIDENT GOES TO WORK—President Eisenhower, taking time out from his vacation, goes to work on 135 unsigned bills. The President came across the harbor by boat to get to his office on Coasters Harbor near Newport, R. I. from the summer White House. With him is Gerald Morgan, the President's special counsel. Another Riot Night Is Deterred By Rain

LONDON (AP)—Racial disturbances tapered off last night as heavy rain helped reinforced police patrols keep the situation quiet in London's Notting Hill area.

The first night since last Friday without fighting between white youths and nonwhites followed a warning from Prime Minister Macmillan's Cabinet that "utmost strictness" will be used by officials to end racial trouble.

The government also hinted it might curb the presently unrestricted immigration from Commonwealth and colonial countries, saying the policy was under study. Most of the isolated residents attacked by white teen-agers came to Britain from the West Indies, Nigeria and other Commonwealth countries to seek better jobs.

The courts around Notting Hill dealt with 55 riot cases yesterday—43 white men, 10 colored men and 2 white women. This brought the week's total to more than 100 arrests. Such confiscated weapons as knives, iron bars, bottles and bicycle chains were presented as evidence.

About 200 extra police with Alsatian dogs were on hand when the rain cooled off the trouble area. Police broke up a group of six youths who jeered at a colored couple in one of the few minor incidents.

Earlier in the day youths hurled stones and milk bottles through windows of some nonwhite residences in suburbs about five miles from Notting Hill.

Despite the trouble, a shipload of 362 Jamaicans set out from Kingston yesterday for London to seek jobs. Their ship Irpina had just brought home 254 Jamaicans, most of whom said they returned because of bad conditions in Britain.

Probers Looking Into A Million Dollar Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators set out today to find out about a million-dollar Teamsters Union investment in a Detroit real estate development project.

The committee is conducting hearings on charges that Hoffa has misused union funds and conspired with gangsters in labor rackets. The AFL-CIO has expelled the Teamsters as a corruptly led union.

In testimony yesterday, Harold J. Gibbons, the Teamsters Union's top vice president and boss of its operations in the St. Louis area, acknowledged he may have violated the union's constitution when he won election last January as president of the St. Louis Teamsters council comprising some 20 locals.

He won by a 76-70 margin after allowing seven disputes votes from a Tampa, Fla., local to be counted. The committee contends the election was rigged.

Gibbons told the committee "I'm entirely willing to have a new election" to resolve the controversy.

But he rejected its suggestion that he let his opponents throw out the seven votes from Tampa, which he said would automatically give victory to defeated candidate E. E. (Gene) Walla.

Gibbons said the union constitution may have been violated because the Tampa delegates were not in good standing when they cast their votes. Foes also have challenged the right of Tampa men to vote in a St. Louis election.

Gibbons vigorously defended the presence of his staff of a long list of men the committee labeled as gangsters, criminals and strong arm men. He said he had neither facilities nor desire to investigate them and believed them innocent of wrongdoing as unionists.

He pleaded a lack of recollection as to many incidents of violence for which the committee attempted to blame him.

Recommend Boy Be 'Confined'

WOODWARD, Okla. (AP)—Commitment to a mental hospital has been recommended for a 12-year-old Woodward, Okla., boy who with his younger brother Robert and killed two men last March.

The recommendation was made yesterday by a sanity commission that studied psychiatric reports on Robert Arthur Smith Jr. The boy and his brother, David, 10, are accused of fatally shooting grocer Floyd Blair, 49, and a clerk in Blair's store, Adrian Wilson.

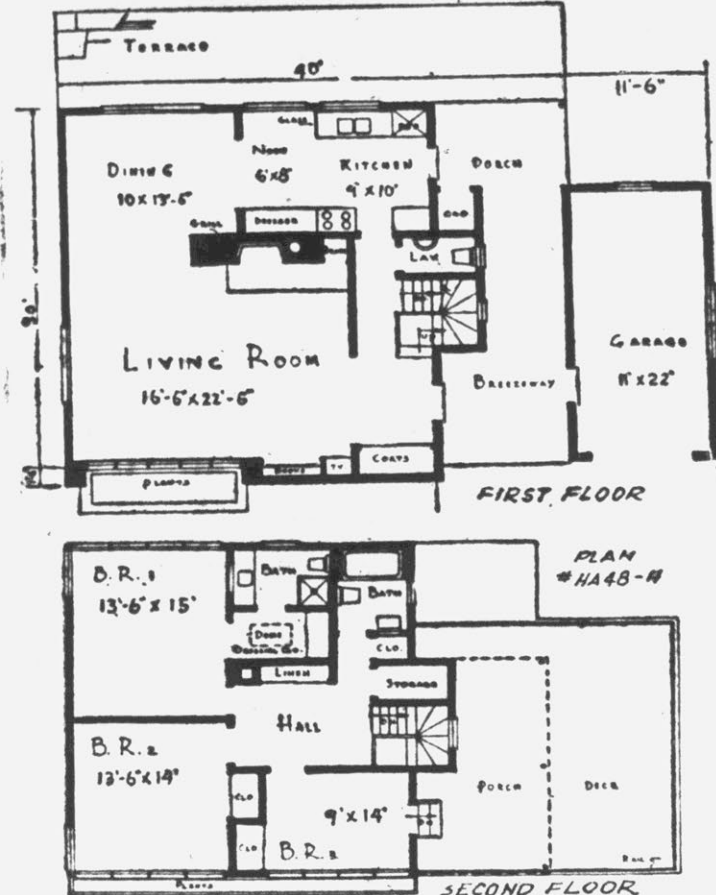

The younger brother was sent to a boy's ranch, while officials considered prosecuting Robert for murder. County Judge James Young said it still may be several days before he reaches a decision on the murder charge.

The Shining New Civil War Novel

CHAPTER 33

While steadily gazing in the enemy's direction, Colin Campbell was startled to hear someone close behind him say, "Captain Campbell."

It was Sergeant Deshmire from Captain Taylor's company.

"Captain Campbell, Sergeant Maxwell's had hit!"

"Sergeant Maxwell!"

Colin was on his feet and running beside Deshmire, but even as he ran his mind rejected the absurdity of this news. Jason Maxwell had come through four years of war without a minor wound. He was indestructible. Then Colin was kneeling beside him.

His head pillowed on Deshmire's jacket, Jason lay behind the tree where Deshmire had placed him out of the path of the bullets. Sweat covered his forehead and dampened his hair. Frothy blood, indicating a lung shot, bubbled from his mouth. He was too deep in shock to feel much pain. Colin took Jason's limp, cold hand in his and knew that nothing could be done. He hoped his smile was reassuring.

"So you finally stopped one, Sergeant?"

"I stopped one, Captain," Jason smiled wanly.

Wonder rose and mounted in Colin's mind. Throughout the years he had seen many men die. Some had been silent, some moaned or screamed with pain, some hysterically blurted out a confession of their sins and all feared dying. But when the final moment came, Colin could not remember even one who feared death itself. He had long ago determined that on the threshold between life and whatever succeeds life, some shining, splendid vision was revealed to those about to die. In the final moment they had no fear.

Jason was going to die and he surely knew it, but he seemed filled with a serenity that verged on ecstasy. Colin knew that any possible pain could not steal or dim that mood. Pain was physical.

"They're comin'!" Deshmire hissed.

Deshmire stood behind a tree about five yards to one side, and Colin looked down the slope to see the Yankees advancing again. The attack was more purposeful this time. The Yankees knew the Rebel positions and they were coming to destroy them. Colin noted that the Union forces did not seem weakened. He waited for the first rifles, the second, and shot with the third.

At once he reloaded and in turn fired again. When the Yankees went back down the hill, the pattern of their attack was evident. This was a battle of attrition. After they were down the Rebels, they would overwhelm those remaining with a bayonet charge.

Colin turned to Jason Maxwell. The first numbing shock has passed, and he was in pain. Jason ground his teeth in agony, and Colin's wonder mounted. Even this pain could not overcome the serene aura, the ecstatic glow, that enveloped Jason.

Colin wiped his friend's face with a handkerchief and said, "We'll get you out, Sergeant."

It was an insane thing to say and he knew it, for they were not going to get Jason out. Colin needed inspired words, but he could not provide them. He glanced up to find Colonel Andrews staring at Jason.

Understanding, admiration and sorrow were in Andrews' eyes. No sentimentality existed in his expression or in his voice when he spoke. "He's a happy man, Colin."

Colin said dully, "Happy?"

"He knows all he ever wanted to know."

With a sudden rush of warm gratitude for this observation, Colin now understood what Andrews had seen at first glance. Destiny had decreed that Jason Maxwell be born a clubfoot at the same time fate had endowed him with dreams of a soldier's life. Granted his dream, he had been granted its fulfillment. He had lived a soldier's life and now he was dying a soldier's death. Colin bent his head. Andrews said gently, "You're fortunate, too, for while you lingered on this earth one man was truly your brother."

Suddenly the pain faded from Jason's face and only the ecstasy remained. In a sudden resurgence of strength he stretched forth his hand. Then he spoke in a faint whisper, "Captain."

"Yes, Sergeant?"

Colin took the outstretched hand and leaned forward to hear the next whisper. Jason's hand tightened and his smile became joyous.

Fabulous 100% Increase In Steel Production Is Target

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

Mao Tse-tung is going to try to drive Communist China this year into a fantastic increase of 100 per cent in steel output over 1957.

This project was advanced and approved a few days ago at the session of the broadened Politburo of the Chinese Communist party. How it is proposed to attain this vast increase in steel output has not yet been disclosed by the Communist Chinese press and radio.

Here is the way this amazing project developed. In 1957 Red China produced, according to official figures from Peking, 5,350,000 metric tons of steel. (A metric ton is about a tenth larger than the English short ton of 2,000 pounds.) In February the economic plan for 1958 adopted by the Peking government provided for an increase in steel production of 850,000 tons over 1957.

At the end of May, the Politburo met and ordered the goal increased to 8 to 8½ million tons. This involved a boost of 50 per cent in one year, unheard of even in the Soviet Union or the United States.

But even this apparently was not enough. The new target of 10,700,000 tons is exactly twice the production claimed in 1957.

It seems amazing that such a high goal has been set, particularly since in the first half of 1958 steel production was only 26 per cent above the same period of 1957. This is a big rise, but it is far from the 100 per cent now proclaimed as a state plan.

There is an obvious conclusion: the rulers of Red China may be making a propaganda bluff or they may have some special gimmicks of this sort. One of them is very speedy and big Soviet help. The other is the new method advocated in Communist China of developing small steel and iron smelters on a handicraft scale throughout the nation. But it seems difficult to suppose that either could begin to account for a doubling of output.

Nevertheless, steel output in China is rising fast with Soviet assistance, and within a few years it is likely Communist China will be running a race with France for the rank of fifth in steel production.

Worrying About All TV Industry Becomes 'Hobby'

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—As if Murray Golden didn't have enough worries of his own directing dramas for television, he has taken to worrying about the whole industry.

It's become a kind of hobby with him. He's even worked out a formula to measure the bottom of the barrel called "program material," a worry that besets many people besides Golden in television. This, he says, is how to begin fretting on the subject:

Since 1938-39 Broadway never has had more than 100 openings a season. Since 1930 Hollywood never has had more than 100 openings a season. Since 1930 Hollywood never has produced more than 800 feature films a year. But the three TV networks currently are absorbing a total of 3,328 scripts a year—including straight drama, Westerns and situation comedies.

Furthermore, more people are spending more time looking at more TV program than ever. Now listen carefully to Golden as he moves into the sphere of his musings:

"The bigger the audience and the longer it stays in its seats, the faster the program material gets used up and the faster new ideas and new approaches have to be developed.

"From the time of Greek civilization," he says, "the theater was able to go for as long as a century at a time without big changes in its form and substance.

"In modern times, however, the motion picture—reaching mass audiences—has had to make big changes every decade or so. There have been astonishing changes from the 1896 peep show to the color photography and wide screen processes of today.

"When television faces the need of great change—which could be any day now—it should ransack the theater's accumulated resources from Aeschylus to Maxwell Anderson, intelligently but boldly. It should run the gamut of modern drama from Strindberg to Christopher Fry, to say nothing of Oriental drama such as the Japanese No plays and the Indonesian shadow plays.

All of this, plus the dance and grand opera, folk drama, musical comedy and medieval mystery plays, ought to be enough to tide television drama over its next stage of evolution."

Beyond that Murray's dream doesn't dare to reach.

But why should it? The wonderful thing is that he dreams as far as he does.

Varied Reactions Face Greater NLRB Power

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industry is divided and labor unions are solidly in favor of the National Labor Relations Board's plan to expand its jurisdictional standards to cover more labor dispute cases.

This is the result shown in industry-labor comments on proposed new NLRB jurisdictional standards. These are expected to increase the board's present case load, already at record proportions, by about 20 per cent.

The board has authority to decide all cases affecting interstate commerce, but has voluntarily curbed cases it will consider by establishing standards of business volume.

Under a Supreme Court interpretation of the law, states are barred from taking over jurisdiction of cases the NLRB won't consider. This has created a no man's land for certain labor cases. In face of this, Congress recently provided the NLRB with an extra 1½-million-dollar appropriation to expand its facilities.

The board then announced broader jurisdictional standards and invited industry-labor comment before a Sept. 1 deadline.

By far the most comment came from franchised automobile dealers. Individually and by state groups, they generally opposed one of the NLRB's new standards that would reduce from a million dollars to $250,000 the amount of annual business such a firm must have to come under NLRB scope. But there were exceptions. Some auto dealers, including the Washington and Utah state associations, said they favored this proposed rule change.

A large group of farm implement dealers solidly opposed coming under this broader rule. Some asked that rural business enterprises be exempted.

Construction industry comments were all in favor of the broader jurisdictional standards.

Being under NLRB jurisdiction cuts two ways: it enables unions to compel employer bargaining and enforce bargaining rights, but also permits employers as well as unions to bring unfair labor charges.

The AFL-CIO wrote the NLRB saying it preferred eliminating all jurisdictional limits so the NLRB would exercise fullest jurisdiction possible. Individual unions generally supported this stand.

There was no comment presented one way or the other about the NLRB's proposed reduction of the present $500,000 minimum for newspapers to $250,000.

Radical School Plan Gives 3 Classrooms, Low Cost

VERSATILE CLASSROOM—Raised panel exposes home economics equipment while students study efficient kitchen techniques. Some classroom space can be used for other instruction when science or shop alcoves are exposed.

SHOSHONE, Calif. (AP) — Students, seated in the main classroom area, change seats to face whichever alcove is open. The plan literally provides the equivalent of three classrooms for the construction cost of one, says the architect who designed the building, Robert Trask Cox of Los Angeles.

More than half of U.S. high schools — 13,140 — have an enrollment of less than 200, he reports. Death Valley High, in Inyo County, near the Nevada border in upper Southern California, has 21 students.

The 21 students and their three teachers formerly met in a two-bedroom residence. The new building was constructed at a cost of $207,000.

The building's reverse-J shape provides a semicircular shield against high winds common in the area, the sheltered area serving for outdoor leg-stretching between classes.

The crossbar at the top of the J is a multi-use room: a bad-weather gym and a community center with a folding stage for PTA meetings, drama activities and weekly movies.

The stem of the J contains administrative offices, showers, lockers and an examination room used by visiting school doctors and nurses.

In between the sliding walls of the classrooms are picture win-

The money will be used for Methodist colleges in Greensboro, Brevard and High Point, the Duke Divinity School and for Wesley Foundations at other colleges and universities in the conference area.

Grand Jury To Sit On Slaying

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — A 39-year-old Kannapolis man, Charlie Lee Laws, faces grand jury action in the strangling of his mother here Sunday.

A coroner's jury recommended yesterday that Laws be held for the slaying of Mrs. Lucy W. Laws, 69.

A Cabarrus County Hospital pathologist, Dr. C. F. Carroll Jr. said cuts on both sides of Mrs. Laws' neck and a fractured Adams apple resulted from "violent force."

Arresting officers testified Laws had scratches on his face, neck, shoulder and chest.

Group Finishes European People-To-People Tour

HIGH POINT (AP) — Sixty-three tired but happy High Pointers, members of a friendship tour which spent 16 days in Europe, came home yesterday pleased with their contribution to the people-to-peoples program.

The group, largest international travel unit ever to leave the Greensboro - High Point Airport, left Aug. 19. They visited England, France, Holland and Belgium, with longer stops in London, Brussels and Paris.

They had a royal welcome at Brussels with the World Fair's high commissioner and public officials turning out to greet them. Guido Peeters, adjutant to the high commissioner, noted the Southern accent of the visitors and spoke warmly of the millions of Americans who have poured through the awe-inspiring fair grounds.

At the fair the group was ushered by Patricia Caughman, appointed by Gov. Hodges as North Carolina representative at the cost was $750 per traveller — added liveliness as well as activity to the trip which was blessed with good weather and health for those making it.

Tour Director Brown, happy to get his group safely home, was high in his praise of the treatment accorded the High Pointers and said he felt international understanding had been served by the project.

The friendship tour was sponsored by the High Point Enterprise. Accompanying the travelers were Managing Editor Joe Wendler, Photographer Janet Teague and David Rawley, son of the president of The Enterprise. They sent back daily stories, with pictures, recounting experiences and impressions of the visitors, and those with whom they visited.

Idea for the tour was conceived by Holt McPherson, editor of The Enterprise. Having frequently visited Europe, he felt that Europeans ought to see High Pointers, and vice versa, thus a large contingent enrolled for the trip.

A number of North Carolina newspapers, noting success of the venture, have made inquiries indicating a purpose to undertake similar tour promotions next year, McPherson said. He added that no project in public relations undertaken by the paper had generated as much favorable comment as the friendship tour.

The group organized early this year and had several meetings for study and instruction. President Eisenhower gave it White House blessing and unusual interest attached to the people-to-peoples phase which tour members took seriously while seeing sights of Europe.

It was an exciting experience for most of the group that had never seen Europe. Compressing as much sight-seeing in a short time and at low expense — total

Train Stopped In Time To Save Horse On Track

NORTHRIDGE, Calif. (AP)—A horse lies trapped on a railroad trestle. His owner, a tearful boy of 8, screams for help. From the distance comes the ominous hoot of a freight's air horn.

This was the dramatic scene yesterday on the Southern Pacific right-of-way after Denny Hayes tried to ride his 10-year-old horse Buck across the trestle.

Firemen, called by neighbors, rushed to the scene. They phoned the railroad. By the time the freight arrived a track workman had placed on the track a torpedo that warned the engineer to halt.

Workmen loosened the ties, and Denny comforted his horse: "It's all right, boy. We'll get you out."

Seven firemen, cradling Buck's belly with their arms, lifted him clear. Buck—unhurt except for a scratched leg — was led off the trestle on its wooden sidewalk.

He and Denny returned to their nearby home. The ties were replaced and the freight rolled on, 45 minutes late.

Prop Damaged, Passengers Safe

DALLAS (AP)—A Braniff Airways DC7 with 30 passengers aboard landed safely last night after the tip apparently broke off of a propeller.

The plane, flight 6 headed for New York, was 15 minutes out of Dallas when the tip apparently broke. Capt. Melvin Sellmeyer turned back to Dallas and all but one of the 30 passengers climbed aboard another four-engine DC7 and left for New York — 2½ hours later.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR

AP Newsfeatures

Toting up my just-back-from-vacation photo experiences, with its lessons learned from mistakes and successes, could be helpful to those camera fans with vacation time still ahead of them.

Definitely on the plus side was a day-by-day pocket notebook and diary. This gave the date and name of every place we stopped in orderly fashion. Whenever we stopped to take pictures, a few brief descriptive notes were added to make later identification easy and positive.

Any snapshooter who has conscientiously written down names, dates and other data on a menu, map or other handy scrap of paper will appreciate a bound notebook because there seems to be no way to prevent those scraps from disintegrating by the time they're needed for reference.

In hindsight, I'd add one further recommendation. About my recent pictures, my written record tells who, what, where and when but not how. Since my wife kept the records (and here's a tip of my sunshade for her good work) she didn't report any of the off-beat exposure data because I never relayed them.

Yet today, in going over the results from 25 rolls of black-and-white film, I wish I were more certain as to when I used a green filter and when the red.

I am glad, though, that I took along more than one camera. Most of the time, I had three slung around my neck. I wanted color and stereo slides besides the black-and-white. Trouble came after a visit to a beach. You know how fifty sand can be and how defenseless cameras are unless they're covered or hidden. Well, one camera inhaled a little more flying sand than was good for it and was rendered momentarily

Make Substance Similar To Heart Of Living Cells

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have created a substance from nonliving matter that looks like and may act like the heart stuff of living cells.

Three U.S. scientists reported their laboratory experiments yesterday at the fourth International Congress of Biochemistry in Vienna, Austria.

The material they created from chemical building blocks appears to be like deoxyribonucleic acid, called simply DNA.

DNA seems to be the control matter of living cells, carrying the hereditary characteristics, or genes.

The Sloan-Kettering Institute here, which sponsored the research, said: "Because cancer cells are believed to have an altered abnormal DNA, it is hoped that synthetic DNA-like substances which can interfere with the activity of natural DNA, may have a role in cancer treatment."

DNA is composed of more simple chemical compounds called nucleotides. In solution, nucleotides maintain an equilibrium with DNA, drifting into DNA formation and out again. But the DNA itself is a fleeting, changing thing.

How to segregate the synthetic DNA from the solution was the problem that faced Dr. Aaron Ben-Dich of Sloan-Kettering and Dr. S. M. Reisler of Columbia University and researcher Herbert Rosenkranz, also of Sloan-Kettering.

Recruit Marshals For Possible Use

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The federal government has enlisted civilians to serve as deputy marshals if needed at Little Rock. Several Southern schools integrated peacefully. Trouble, however, was reported at two points. Court-ordered integration proceeded at Van Buren, Ark., where white students Tuesday had jeered 13 Negroes.

The Negroes went to high school without apparent incident yesterday. But last night 16-year-old Larry Bell said he and two other Negroes left the building during the morning because white boys in their classes threatened to beat them after school.

Bell said neither he nor seven other Negroes enrolled planned to return to school today. School officials have refused to comment.

At Greensboro, N.C., a small group displaying a Ku Klux Klan banner and a Confederate flag met at a school. Even so, five Negro children, three of whom entered the school last year, attended the opening session without trouble.

Application blanks for deputy U.S. marshal did not mention the racial situation at Little Rock's Central High School, but one applicant said there was no doubt he was signing for duty at Central if it reopened as an integrated school.

The U.S. Supreme Court meets Sept. 11, four days before the school opens, to hear the Little Rock school board's plea for a 30-month breathing spell. The NAACP will ask that integration

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The 2,232,650 visitors to Disneyland during the summer season—a new attendance record — ran true to form: The adults outnumbered the kids, 3 1/2 to 1. This ratio has remained constant since the big amusement park opened in 1955, spokesmen said.

Transport Plane With 17 Aboard Has Disappeared

ADANA, Turkey (AP)—The U.S. Air Force carried on an intensive search today for an American transport plane with 17 persons aboard that disappeared two days ago near the southern Soviet Union.

The C130 Hercules turboprop plane was last heard from on a routine radio report over Van, Turkey, 110 miles southwest of Soviet Armenia. An unarmed U.S. cargo plane got lost in bad weather in that area last June and crashed into Armenia, where two Soviet jet fighters shot it down. The nine crewmen were released 10 days later.

Air Force officials did not suggest the Hercules might have wandered over the Soviet Union. Nor had the Soviet government said anything about the plane.

The plane of the 7406th Support Squadron, based at Frankfurt, Germany, took off Tuesday from Incirlik air base at Adana as part of a worldwide Air Force project to study radio wave propagation, the Air Force said.

Readying For Purple And Gold Ball Game

Exhibition Purple-Gold Game Set Saturday Nite

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Greenville and Pitt County will get its first glimpse of East Carolina football this Saturday night when Coach Jack Boone puts his Pirates on the field in the Purple and Gold intra-squad tilt which will probably decide his starting unit for the year.

The Purple-Gold game will be an exhibition match, featuring the entire squad. Boone and his assistants will divide the club into two units and they will battle each other under actual game conditions.

From their showing Saturday night, the starting club will probably be picked. East Carolina opens its season September 13, here, against Emory and Henry.

Boone has mentioned that his 1958 football team will probably play a more wide-open brand of football than was displayed earlier by his 1956 or 1957 teams. "We've got some boys who can throw the ball now," Boone has said, "and we've moved our backfield around so that we might be able to run better."

James Speight
Also, fans from this area will get their first look at James Speight, running from a fullback position. Last season, as a sophomore, Speight was a halfback. He managed to run up a total of 479 yards on the ground, 97 more by passing, for an average of 64 yards per game. He had a carrying average of 5.9 yards each time he ran.

Coach Boone believes that his 170-pound star will "have an even better chance to gain from the fullback position. Our club is built around the fullback. Whereas, last year, Speight could run only one side as a halfback, he will now be able to run to either side, go wide, or go straight ahead. He'll also be a target for our passes this season."

Speight, a former All-State, All-Conference, All-Eastern performer at Greenville High School, is a little man for a college fullback. At 170 pounds, he may well be the smallest fullback in the state. Last year, at 165 pounds, he gained All-State, All-North State, and All-NAIA District honors as a halfback.

No. 1 Team
Probably forming the No. 1 team with Speight at fullback, will be quarterback Ralph Zehring, halfbacks Lee Atkinson and Tommy Nash, ends Howard Beale and Bill Cain, tackles Ed Emory and Charles Cooke, guard Wayne Davis and Chuck Gorgon, and center Lynn Barnett.

The game will begin at 8:00 under the lights at ECC Stadium. All interested are invited to attend the Purple-Gold tilt. There will be no charge.

The team has been going through two-day practice sessions since the club began drills Monday. The morning sessions usually include light work and play maneuvers; the afternoon work is usually heavier, including contact and scrimmage.

ECC's first game of the year is only nine days away.

Ayden Looking For Rough Year

Ayden High School, which finished third in the Coastal Conference last year and produced a 5-3 overall record, isn't looking forward to the 1958 season in its re-vamped conference.

Although Coach Stuart Tripp admits that he may have a better line this year than he had in 1957, he doesn't think his club will have much of a chance against such powerhouse as Robersonville and newcomers LaGrange and Havelock.

"I saw LaGrange play last week and I know they're loaded," Coach Tripp said yesterday. "They won 52-0. I also know that Robersonville should have a strong team. They tell me that Havelock also has a team with 10 senior starters on it, so they're going to be tough, too."

As for his own team, Tripp said, "We lost a lot of good boys, including Tommy Edwards. That's going to kill us. Of course, we'll be fighting every inch of the way, but I don't imagine we'll have much of a chance against those big teams."

Playing Benvenue
The Tornadoes open their 1958 season tomorrow night against Benvenue at Ayden. In the reshuffle of the league, Benvenue dropped out of the conference in favor of the other clubs already mentioned. This year, the conference will include Ayden, Farmville, Vanceboro, Robersonville, LaGrange, Contentnea, Beaufort, and Havelock.

"Of course, having those new teams coming into the league is going to help the conference," Tripp said. "They're good schools and they have good football teams. Most of them will be strong this year. We won't be."

Tripp pointed out that this year club will be the "smallest team I've ever had." The club will average about 140 pounds throughout.

Last year, Tripp had 12 seniors who were experienced and big. This season, he has six seniors, two juniors and 15 sophomores. And not all of the six seniors are lettermen.

Aragon, Basilio To Fight Friday Night

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The amazing career of Art Aragon, the golden boy of California boxing whom the fans love to hate, reaches another climax at Wrigley Field tomorrow night.

Aragon goes against perhaps the toughest opponent in his long and checkered career, Carmen Basilio of Chittanooga, N.Y., once welterweight champion of the world and later the middleweight king.

The scheduled 12-round match will be televised by the National Broadcasting Co., with Los Angeles and a 300-mile radius screened out.

Warren Spahn Wins 18th Game Behind Sharp Brave Hitting

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
Warren Spahn seemed to have hit a snag in pursuit of his ninth season of 20 or more victories. He had won only one of his last three decisions, and there he was, trailing 1-0 after seven innings.

So the Milwaukee Braves came up with 11 runs in the last two frames at Philadelphia last night, beating the Phillies 11-5 for Spahn's 18th victory.

It gave them a nine-game lead in the National League — their largest since moving to Milwaukee in 1953.

Cincinnati knocked off the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 and Los Angeles kept San Francisco in a second-place tie with the Bucs by trimming the Giants 5-3. St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-7 in 12 innings.

In the American League, New York beat Boston 8-5. The Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit 1-0 with only two hits. Baltimore defeated Washington 4-3 and Kansas City rapped Cleveland 6-2.

The Braves came from behind on Joe Adcock's three-run homer, his 17th, in the eighth, chasing loser Seth Morehead (1-4). The champs made it a six-run inning against reliever Jim Hearn with the help of errors by the Phils.

Farmville To Open Season Friday Night

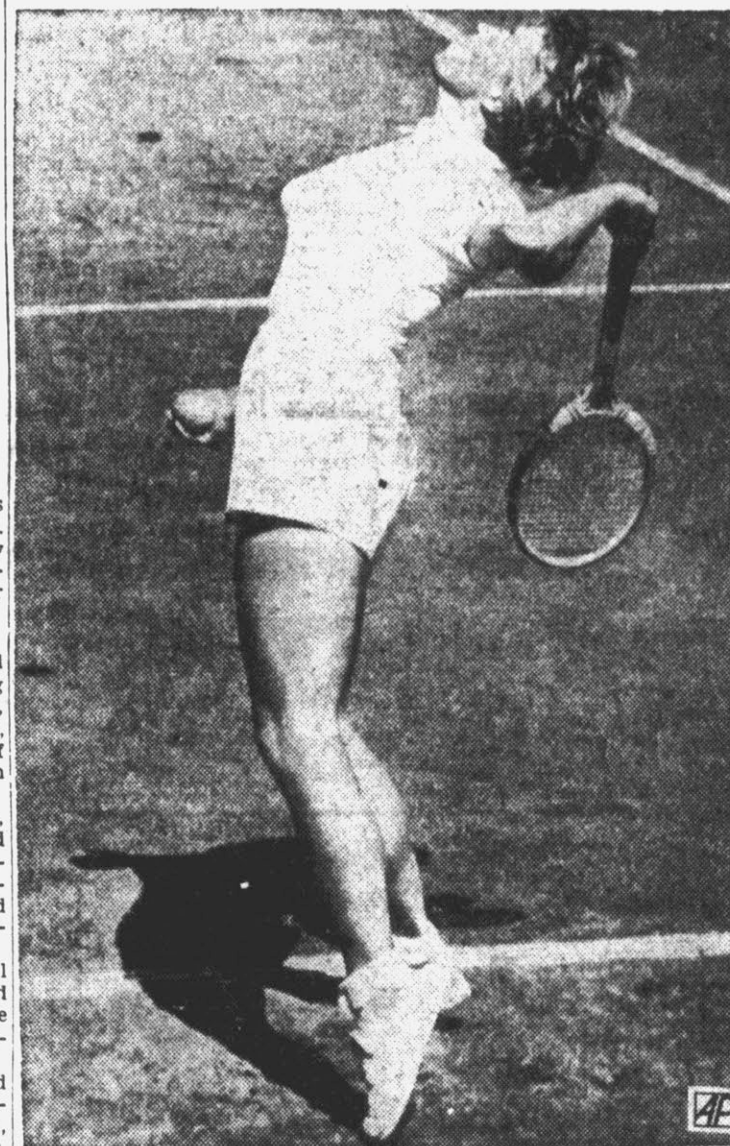

FARMVILLE — The defending Coastal Conference Champions, Farmville, will open their 1958 football season here tomorrow night at 8:00 with Contentnea. The game will be a conference affair.

Coach Elbert Moye, whose club went to the semi-finals of the Eastern Class A playoffs in 1957, is in the midst of a re-building job. Gone from his 1957 club is the starting backfield, as well as two ends and two tackles. Veteran holdovers from the last year's team may be shifted to new positions.

The 1958 schedule for the Red Devils is as follows:

Sept. 5—Contentnea, home
Sept. 12—Nashville, away
Sept. 19—Benvenue, home
Sept. 26—Ayden, away
Oct. 3—Robersonville, away
Oct. 10—Beaufort, away
Oct. 17—Vanceboro, home
Oct. 24—LaGrange, home
Oct. 31—Havelock, home

Howard Pleased But Still Weary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If golf they say it isn't how you drive but how you arrive, Clemson Coach Frank Howard, taking note of the rosy pre-season ratings his Tigers are getting, has the same feeling about football.

"It's not how they start you. It's how they finish you that counts."

The dean of Atlantic Coast Conference football coaches shrugs off the forecasts but he's obviously pleased with the way things are going on the practice field.

With only three days of work behind it, the beefy squad — injury-free so far — is farther along than it was at the same time last year.

Howard has an explanation for this: "They were mostly sophomores last season but they're a year older now."

Howard, like most of the other ACC coaches, is tagging two drills a day in preparation for the Tigers' opener with Virginia Sept. 20.

North Carolina, the team many pick for the ACC title, lost its second letterman for the year, Coach

Jim Tatum reported quarterback Curtis Hathaway, a Tar Heel co-captain, will have to undergo an operation on his long-ailing arm.

The day before, Tatum announced that veteran guard Jack Lineberger, badly out of condition had dropped from the squad.

At Winston-Salem, Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen expects to have two talented replacements for injured quarterback Charlie Carpenter in the opener with Maryland Sept. 20.

They are sophomore Norman Sneed and Preacher Parker, a rangy junior from New Bern. Amen said Parker has shown a sharp improvement in defensive play over last season. It's still a question whether Carpenter, who suffered a fractured wrist recently, will be ready for the Maryland game.

American Loop Hurlers In An Up-and-Down Business

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Editor

Think you want to be a major league pitcher? Nice job, that. You can give up 10 hits in one game and win, then allow the same club only two hits five days later and lose.

Or you can win nine of your last 11 decisions — and finally reach .500 for the season, too. That's the way things went last night for right-handers, Frank Lary of the Detroit Tigers, who lost 1-0, and Dick Donovan of the Chicago White Sox, who beat him with a five-hitter.

Lary (14-13) had a no-hitter for 6 1-3 innings. Then Billy Goodman blooped a single and Sherm Lollar followed with a double. Lary retired the next eight men, but it was all over. Donovan made off with his second consecutive shut-out and a 12-12 record. He had only a 3-10 record at the All-Star game, but has won all but two of 11 decisions since.

The New York Yankees reduced their magic number to 10 over the second place White Sox by defeating Boston 8-5.

Baltimore broke a tie for fourth with Detroit by defeating Washington 4-3. Kansas City rapped Cleveland 6-2, but the seventh-place A's were eliminated officially from the flag chase by the Yankees.

In the National League, Milwaukee smacked Philadelphia 11-5 after seven scoreless innings, giving the Braves a nine-game lead and reducing their magic number to 13. Pittsburgh lost 7-4 at Cincinnati, and San Francisco tied for second with the Pirates, lost 5-3 at Los Angeles. St. Louis defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-7 in 12 innings.

The Yankees put it away on a Yogi Berra's 22nd home run, a three-run shot in the ninth off Leo Kiehl — a lefty reliever brought in to face the left-handed batting Berra. Ryne Duren (6-3) won it with two perfect innings, fanning the last four men, in relief of Murry Dickson. Murray Wall (7-8) was the loser.

Baltimore took it with two runs in the ninth, on a pair of walks, a tie-breaking pinch single by Bob Hale and a clinching single by Bob Boyd. Arnie Portocarrero (13-10) won his first in three weeks. Vito Valentinielli (4-3) was the loser.

Bob Cerv's 31st home run and Hal Smith's fifth powered a tie-breaking, four-run fifth inning for the A's against loser Hal Woodeshick (3-6). Ray Herbert (5-7) won it with a five-hitter, blanking the Indians on two hits (both by Minnie Minoso) after the first inning, when Lary Doby's 11th homer counted two runs.

Could Take No More Threats And Abuse, Negro Pupils Quit

VAN BUREN, Ark. (AP)—A group of white youths loitered about Van Buren High School today, saying they would prevent Negroes from returning for the school's second year of court-ordered integration.

A 17-year-old white senior, who refused to give his name, told a newsman that 41 boys—sophomores, juniors and seniors—had organized a strike to get rid of the Negroes.

There were indications that none of the Negro students would attempt to enter the school today. "I'm not going back," said Freddy Bell, a 16-year-old Negro junior. "I don't know, but I don't think any of the others are going back either."

Bell said last night that he and seven others of his race could not take any more threats and insults from their white classmates. The spokesman for the white youths said his group would block the entrances of the school to keep the Negroes out.

A station wagon occupied by two Negroes passed the campus. The white boys started after it. When it sped off, they said they probably had scared the Negroes away. A newsman reported that School Superintendent Everett Kelley was seen on the campus and that a Sheriff's patrol car and a city police car were parked nearby. The superintendent has declined to discuss racial tensions at the high school.

Thirteen Negro boys and girls are enrolled at the high school, which has about 650 white pupils. Bell said he and two other Negro youths walked out of classes yesterday after white boys threatened to get them after school. Van Buren's integration program started last September under a federal court order. It was considered successful since there were no reports of disturbances during the 1957-58 school year.

But when the fall term began Tuesday, the Negroes were greeted by a score of jeering white youths in front of the school. Signs painted on the building said "Nigger, Go Home."

Bell said someone hit him in the leg with a rock as he entered school yesterday. He also said several white youths exhibited switchblade knives.

Efforts to obtain statements from school officials have been unsuccessful. Bell seemed worried about his decision not to return to the integrated school because Van Buren—a west Arkansas town of 6,000—has no Negro high school. He said he hoped officials could "work something out."

In several other Arkansas cities which have integrated, fall terms proceeded with no reported difficulties. At Fort Smith, two Negroes are enrolled in grade school; 12 Negroes are attending public schools at Fayetteville; Charleston has about the same number; and nine are integrated at Hoxie. At Little Rock, focal point of the state's integration crisis, elementary and junior high schools opened for the fall term today. All high school openings have been postponed until Sept. 15, pending a Supreme Court ruling on the Central High School integration case.

It was revealed that the federal government is enlisting Arkansas civilians to serve as deputy U.S. marshals if needed at Central High.

Mustard Seed In Her Bracelet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—"If we have faith such as a mustard seed, nothing shall be impossible."

Mary Ann Mobley, entered as Miss Mississippi in the Miss America Pageant here, wore a bracelet with this inscription last night. Inside the bracelet last night was a mustard seed. Both had been given to her by her Sunday school teacher in Brandon, Miss.

Mary Ann's faith didn't let her down. The 21-year-old senior at the University of Mississippi sang and danced her way to the talent championship in the first round of the pageant's preliminary competition.

Miss California, Sandra Lee Jennings of Riverside, won the preliminary swim suit event. The pretty 18-year-old Californian freshman, is 5 feet 5, weighs 121 pounds and has brown hair and green eyes. She is to compete in the evening gown competition tonight.

Miss Mississippi ranged from an operatic solo through torch singing to jazz dancing in pleasing a crowd of 6,642.

Mary Ann wants to continue training in voice, theater and speech and hopes for a television and theater career.

Last night's was the first of three preliminary rounds of competition in the pageant. The new Miss America will be crowned Saturday night.

Large Railroads Asking Fare Hike

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The nation's two largest railroads, the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, said today they will seek passenger fare increases of up to 15 per cent.

The proposed increases would go into effect Nov. 1, if given approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The 15 per cent increase would be on first-class passenger travel. Coach travel increases would be 5 per cent.

A Pennsylvania spokesman said continuing deficits from its passenger service plus increased costs, necessitate the proposed fare hikes. He said unionized railroad workers are due to get an 8-cent an hour pay raise Nov. 1, under terms of a three-year contract.

Commuter fares would not be increased. The 1957 reports of both lines reported losses on passenger service despite previous fare hikes granted by the ICC.

The PRR in its 1957 report said its passenger losses were $7½ million dollars. The Central claimed a $2-million-dollar loss.

'Beat The Rap' For Jaywalking

NEW YORK (AP)—The first person to plead not guilty and go to trial on a jaywalking charge beat the $2 rap because a magistrate said, he was "so honest."

George T. Delaney, a 31-year-old lawyer, was given a summons Aug. 9 for crossing against a traffic light at 6th Avenue and Carmine Street.

Appearing as his own counsel yesterday, Delaney admitted crossing against the light. But he pointed out that the anti-jaywalking regulations fail to say specifically a person should not cross against a light but rather that, in doing so, must not impede traffic. He said he did not impede the flow of traffic.

Magistrate Manuel Gomez dismissed the case.

TV Gunslingers Spur Demand For Old Guns

By SANKY TRIMBLE

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Current popularity of movie and television Westerns has the antique gun market in a tizzy.

"We're selling the old frontier single action models like mad," says a veteran collector J. A. Ross. "We can't get enough of them to meet the demand."

The buyers mostly want brass-frame carbines and any caliber of single action pistol.

The price on such guns has reacted to the market stimulation. A brass frame—if you can find one—goes anywhere from $35 to $75. There's practically no limit to the price range on the pistols.

One which Ross has in his Seven Idols shop in nearby Tijeras Canyon is on the market for $2,750. It's a Texas Patterson, a limited edition model made strictly for use by Texas Rangers. Ross is offering a $250 reward for information leading to the location and purchase of another Texas Patterson. He has a three-inch salesman's model, a working model at that, of the same gun which he'll let go for a mere $250. That's about $90 an inch for a three-inch miniature.

The new demand for frontier guns keeps Ross on the road most of the time, traveling in search of weapons to keep his customers happy. He'll spend two or more weeks on the road and perhaps pick up 100 guns. They go, on the local market, mostly to collectors but also to individuals who just want a weapon of the Old West. One man recently bought 160 pieces from Seven Idols in one visit.

Ross keeps from 600 to 800 guns on hand at all times. This doesn't count his personal collection of more than 200 guns at home—picked up in 50 years of gun collecting.

Best bet for finding guns, he contends, are the gun shows held in various major cities from time to time. He keeps a careful record of what shows are being held where and when and usually is on hand, if it is in the immediate Texas, Colorado, Arizona and Oklahoma area.

Oldest gun in the shop—which Ross says by the way is well guarded and protected by a burglar alarm system—is a matchlock made, he says, in the 1300s in China.

That Texas Patterson is his favorite subject. A .42 calibre weapon, it was designed and produced in limited numbers in 1838. Since he has his only one—and he says it is the only one in New Mexico—up for sale, he's looking for another one. Or more if he can find them.

Advertising widely, both for sales and purchases, Ross has adopted the old wanted poster gimmick in his efforts to pick up another Patterson. His advertisements and cards show a replica of the gun with this slogan: "This gun wanted—Good or Bad."

New Program

A new training program for Air Force reservists in the Greenville area has been announced by First Lt. Billy B. Laughinghouse, commander of Flight C, 994th Air Reserve Squadron.

The course will begin September 11, with weekly meetings scheduled for 7:30 p.m. each Thursday. Classes will meet in the basement of Austin Building on the campus of East Carolina College.

First Lt. William F. Landing will serve as instructor for the new course. He taught a similar course last year in the Air Force Reserve training program.

Openings are still available in the training unit for former army men and officers who meet requirements of the Air Reserve program. Further information may be obtained from either Lt. Laughinghouse or Lt. Landing.

Cargo Tonnage Sharply Declines

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The volume of tonnage moving across the state docks here during the first half of 1958 dropped sharply compared with the same 1957 period.

Officials said $3,027 tons of cargo moved during the first six months of the current year, compared with 166,177 tons for the same months last year.

The absence of scrap metal exports was primarily responsible for the drop. The officials said the price of scrap metal has slipped to a point where exporters refuse to sell it on the world market.

Atomic Reactors Advance Goal Of Water From Sea

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Writer
GENEVA (AP)—Atomic reactors are advancing the thirsty world nearer the goal of drawing fresh water from the sea, a prominent American scientist told the atoms-for-peace conference today.

One new development cuts electrical costs of processing salt water by two thirds, said Dr. Willard P. Libby of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Many areas of the world, including the Middle East and the American West, face serious water shortages now or in the near future. This has stimulated intensive research to achieve economical methods of desalting tremendous amounts of sea or brackish waters.

One method of getting rid of the salt uses special plastic membranes and electric current. A far superior membrane has been produced by exposure of plastic film to X-ray radiation produced by atoms splitting in atomic reactors, Libby reported.

"Use of these new membranes to desalt sea water requires only one third the electric power of currently available membranes," he said.

Electric power costs are one big item in the desalting process. Thus, this is one step toward reducing costs to the point where thirsty areas can afford to buy water for industrial, agricultural and human use.

Here is how the desalting process works:

Salt in solution breaks up into electrically charged atoms or ions. Some are positively charged, others negatively when an electric current is passed through water, positive ions move in one direction, negative in the other.

Negatively charged membranes allow only negative ions to pass through to one side. Positive membranes let positive ions go to the other side of the vessel. The water in between two-membrane cells loses some of its salt. Repeating this process produced salt-free water.

Atomic reactors are also one bet to supply electricity for heating and evaporation of salt-free water. Reports on this use of reactors is expected later in the conference.

A BOY AND HIS HORSE—Barefoot Denny Hayes (left), 8, strokes the brow of his horse, Buck, as firemen and railroad men sought to remove the animal from the railroad trestle where he was wedged near Northridge, Calif. Buck's legs slipped between the ties as he and Denny explored the world beyond their neighborhood. A train (background) waited 45 minutes while Buck was finally lifted by seven men. He was only scratched. (AP Wirephoto)

City Fathers Finally Lost Their Patience

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP)—The city fathers finally lost their patience with Stanton Hudson.

Hudson, publisher of the weekly Sedalia Times, has been trying for months to get arrested.

The 62-year-old newspaperman wants to make a test case of his arrest to protest closing of the municipal reservoir to public fishing.

He claims the city does not have the right to restrict fishing. The city maintains it must do so to prevent contamination of drinking water.

Hudson has been fishing all summer in the lake in open defiance of the ban. Yesterday he was arrested for trespassing.

He spent 45 minutes in jail then was released on $200 bond. Hearing has been set in Magistrate Court Sept. 22. Three other fishermen friends are charged with him.

Some Hazards Facing The Upturn In Business

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—As business winds up for its autumnal pitch, the odds today seem to favor the home team—the one we all hope wins—steady and sure recovery.

But there are factors — some potential and some just fears — that could throw it off form.

Here is a report on the business outlook from its summer training camp:

Steel output is rising and auto makers are set for a spurt of new model production. If a threatened auto workers strike develops, however, the steel and many other industries will feel it.

The long period of inventory cutting appears nearing an end. Some companies have resumed ordering hand to mouth. Others are rebuilding stocks in belief that business will get better steadily.

Government spending is on the rise, making more work in many industries. But in recent days there's been a turn in Washington to talk of economizing again.

The decline in earnings has been halted by many fortunate companies. Some are definitely on the upgrade again.

Business confidence in better sales and profits this fall and winter pops up whenever executives are questioned on the outlook.

The same confidence (tied in with belief in more inflation) has sparked much of the gains in the stock market.

These two forces work on each other. Brighter business prospects pep up the stock traders. And a rising stock market always kindles more confidence among businessmen and consumers.

Only the extremely cautious warn of the dangers of overconfidence, of what might happen to public psychology if the recovery isn't as spirited as hoped for.

And they note that for all its new talk of confidence, business hasn't changed yet from a program of less spending for plant and equipment to one of further expansion.

Consumer income is rising and seems likely to continue to do so. Even with unemployment unpleasantly high, income totals have been bolstered by government and corporate unemployment payments. On the positive side has been a rise in wage scales, made effective by an increase in factory work weeks, a pay boost for government workers, higher incomes for farmers and a slow but steady gain in incomes in the service industries.

What consumers will do with this higher income after taxes will spell what course business takes this fall. Consumers weren't panicked by the recession and seem ready to go on spending as before. If they spend a little more for the durables—if, for instance, they take to the new models the auto makers are bringing out—the recovery seems in the bag.

If business, in turn, spends more for inventory, for better equipment, the recovery then will be sizable.

Adding it all up, business is looking for a good fall and winter. There are, of course, the enigmas. There's always some international ruckus. If it isn't the Middle East, it's Formosa. And there is the strike threat in Detroit. And also the fear that a new inflation is building up, one that could rob the recovery of most or all of its fruits.

BURN AND SAVE
VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—The state of Virginia feels it is saving from $2,000 to $3,000 per building in burning 63 structures here.

It would cost that much more to demolish them by conventional methods. The buildings are on the state military reservation and beyond economical repair. The 459th Engineer Detachment (Reserve) is handling the burning job.

Sophia Returns To Big Welcome

VENICE, Italy (AP)—Shapely Sophia Loren came back to Italy to a roaring welcome last night that left her weeping in a borrowed handkerchief.

Her appearance at the Venice Film Festival was the star's first visit to Italy since her Mexican marriage a year ago to a divorced man was condemned by Roman Catholic Church leaders.

The sultry brunette showed up 20 minutes late and held up the showing of her American-made picture "Black Orchid." Many members of the audience remained outside the theater until she arrived, joining the crowd of almost 5,000 which shouted, "Welcome back, Sophia."

She reached her seat sniffling and asked a friend, "Please let me have your handkerchief. I am so happy I'm crying."

It was one of the biggest personal triumphs scored at the festival this year. But her new movie came off with less applause.

Critics have panned most of the pictures shown at this year's festival as mediocre to poor. Most critics said "Black Orchid" was not even the best of this lot.

Misa Loren was married by proxy in Juarez last Sept. 17 to Italian director Carlo Ponti, who had been divorced by proxy in Juarez just six weeks earlier. A Vatican attorney warned they were liable to excommunication.

STARTED BITING
CUMBERLAND, Va. (AP)—The fish just wouldn't bite for fishermen at Bear Creek Lake. Associated Press staff writer Bill Johnson gave up the fishing idea to play with his small daughter in the water. Just then a bass struck a small mole on his back—hard enough to draw blood. Bill says it was only an eight-incher that he saw swimming away.

Sign Clean Campaign Promises

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — The heads of both major political parties have promised to avoid smear tactics in the congressional campaign.

But in signing clean campaign pledges yesterday, the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican national committees made it abundantly clear they are not barring their candidates from discussing such topics as racial integration and the way President Eisenhower does his job.

Meade Aicorn, Republican chairman, and Paul M. Butler, Democratic chieftain, reached one of their rare agreements at a news conference after formally endorsing a code of fair campaign practices worked out by a national committee headed by Charles F. Taft.

They agreed they don't like the statements and the attitude of Democratic Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas no school integration. Faubus has threatened to close any Arkansas schools that federal courts order integrated.

Aicorn said the kind of statements made by Faubus about the Supreme Court's antisegregation opinion and other phases of the controversy "do not contribute to the solution of this problem, either from a Republican or a Democratic standpoint."

Butler said Faubus' statements "do not constitute the attitude of the Democratic party, do not reflect its views and the Democratic party repudiates such statements by Faubus."

Aicorn was asked if he would classify as dirty politics the Democrats' charges that Eisenhower is a part-time President. The GOP chairman replied he felt this transgressed the pledge's ban against the "use of campaign material of any sort which misrepresents, distorts or otherwise falsifies the facts."

But Butler said he doesn't interpret the code as restricting the Democrats from making the part-time President charge "with some degree of public acceptance of it as a fact."

In signing the pledge, the two chairmen went on record as condemning "any appeal to prejudice based on race, creed, or national origin."

They promised to condemn also "the use of personal vilification, character defamation, whispering campaigns, libel, slander or scurrilous attacks on any candidate or his personal or family life."

Another provision called for denunciation of "malicious or unfounded accusations against any candidate which aim at creating or exploiting doubts, without justification, as to his loyalty and patriotism."

Meanwhile, in a memorandum sent to Democratic candidates for the Senate and House for use in their campaigns, Butler credited the Democratic-controlled Congress with passing "without help from the executive branch, the first major civil rights law in this century."

Chile Electing A New President

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile elects a new president today after a race in which four of the five candidates appeared heading for a photo finish.

Congress was expected to decide the winner. If no candidate gets a clear majority, the legislature must choose between the top two.

The four major candidates are: Sen. Jorge Alessandri Rodriguez, engineer and economist backed by two conservative parties.

Salvador Allende Gossens, Socialist party candidate also supported by the Communists and other left-wing groups.

Sen. Eduardo Frei Montalva, a lawyer who leads the Christian Democrat party and has the support of several minor parties.

Sen. Luis Bossa, a businessman, candidate for the left-of-center Radical party, Chile's biggest which governed the country from 1938 to 1952.

The fifth candidate, Antonio Zamorano Herrera, is a former priest unfrocked for his political activities. He has a following among the poor, but is expected to trail far behind the leading four.

If either Allende or Bossa wins, Chile probably will resume diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union and its satellites. The government broke with the Red group in 1948, contending that international communism was meddling in Chile's domestic affairs.

The new president will take office Nov. 3, succeeding Carlos Ibanez for a six-year term. He faces an unbalanced budget, reduced revenues due to the low price of copper, and rising inflation.

Mounted Police Didn't Stop Him

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Mounted Patrolman William R. Blalock suffered only minor bruises and a red face when his horse slipped and fell on him.

Blalock was almost struck by a motorist who ran a red light. He yelled for the driver to halt and was approaching the car when his horse slipped on an oily spot. Blalock went down and the motorist went on.

Quiz Show Records Requested

NEW YORK (AP)—The district attorney's office has asked for tape recordings and financial records of the television quiz show Twenty-one as a result of a charge by former contestant Herbert Stempel that the program was rigged.

The recordings apparently will be used to match Stempel's own voice with a voice on tape concerning a purported conversation between Stempel and Dan Enright, a coproducer of Twenty-one.

Enright said the 31-year-old Stempel was given $18,500 of his winnings in advance when the latter threatened to quit the program.

Stempel eventually left the show in 1956 with $49,500 after losing to Charles Van Doren. Stempel has charged he was told to lose, an allegation denied by Enright and Jack Barry, producers for the NBC show.

Enright said of the advance payment: "He (Stempel) told me if he didn't get the money he would have to quit the show immediately. I gave it to him without questioning him because at that point the show needed him."

"He was the first contestant who had remained on for a number of weeks in a row. He was establishing an identity for the show and we couldn't afford to lose him."

At the time, Stempel was ahead $50,000 on the show, but winnings are always at stake and over a period of time—his winnings could have been wiped out. On the other hand, a contestant is free to quit with his winnings at any time.

Barry and Enright have said that Stempel, long after he was off the program, tried to blackmail them by announcing he would make public charges that the show was rigged.

Barry and Enright earlier this week produced a tape recording in which a voice, presumably Enright's, was heard to say "a blackmail scheme" was afoot and asked, "Do you agree?"

A voice purported to be that of Stempel replied, "Uh, yes."

Stempel charged yesterday that the tape recordings "have been doctored."

He said he had a conversation with Enright on the date specified—March 7, 1957—but added: "I insist that I did not say yes when Enright asked me the question about the blackmail."

Asked what he did say, Stempel replied: "I don't remember. I might have said no or emphatically not."

Stempel reiterated that the advance money proved his contention that Enright knew he could not lose. It was reported, however, that some quiz shows other than Twenty-one have advanced relatively small sums to contestants whose assured winnings were greater than the advance.

The GAO report did not deal with the rigging charges in talking to newsmen. Barry, he said, "had absolutely nothing to do with giving me the answers."

Asked why he lent himself to the alleged deception, Stempel said: "I was a poor boy all my life and when the man offered me this proposition, I am sure that 95 per cent of all the people in this country would have done the same thing."

Interest Chiefly In Getting Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office said today the Chinese Nationalists are more interested in a military buildup than in a self-sustaining economy for Formosa.

In a report to Congress, GAO listed this and other problems which it said have influenced the U.S. economic aid program totaling 80 million dollars to the Chiang Kai-shek government from 1948 through 1957.

But the agency said U.S. officials feel the large scale assistance has so far accomplished the main aim of bolstering Formosa's defenses and economy in the face of a growing population.

The GAO report did not deal with U.S. arms help to the Nationalist Chinese, totaling many hundreds of millions of dollars. The spending watchdog agency called for prompt settlement of 247 million dollars worth of Chinese dollars it said were in arrears on amounts the Chinese were supposed to put up to match U.S. grants.

It also suggested that the U.S. aid program would be more effective if the Chinese government raised its exchange rate to a more realistic value, or at least put into the aid program as much local currency as it receives from sale of U.S. aid goods.

The report said U.S. aid officials favor a shift from state to private ownership because they believe it would improve efficiency, speed economic development and reduce the Chinese government's financial load. Some progress has been made in this direction, GAO said.

Rites Friday For F. S. Spruill

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Funeral rites will be conducted here tomorrow for Frank Shepherd Spruill, 63-year-old attorney and former legislator, who died yesterday of a heart attack.

Burial will be in Pineview Cemetery following services at 11 a.m. at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Spruill, a native of Louisiana, was president of the North Carolina state bar in 1943. He served one term in the General Assembly from Nash County in 1923.

Farmville Board Gives Final Approval For New Truck Route

FARMVILLE — Final approval for a truck route to take U.S. 258 traffic off Farmville's downtown streets was given here Tuesday night by town commissioners.

The route, for Southbound truck traffic, will begin at the intersection of the highway and Turnage Street. Trucks will be directed onto Turnage to Pine Street and then to Fields Street. The route will pass the new Flakboard plant and proceed on Fields Street to its intersection with U.S. 264, the town's East-West by-pass. From that intersection, the trucks will proceed to Marlboro where they can re-enter the primary route of U.S. 258. Northbound traffic will follow a reverse route.

Primary purpose of the truck route is to relieve traffic congestion caused by through truck traffic on downtown streets, particularly near the intersection of Main and Wilson streets in the heart of the business district. The route will be marked when all details are completed.

In other actions Tuesday, the board agreed to purchase additional land adjacent to Forest Hills Cemetery, authorized its Street Committee to study possibilities of a new street, accepted a bid for asbestos tile flooring for the second floor of the new fire station and agreed to proceed with plans for renovating the old fire station quarters for a new Police Department location.

Land for the cemetery will be purchased from Robert Monk for $750 and will incorporate into the cemetery area an old cemetery site which has some vacant lots within its borders. The transaction involves about 14 lots, according to Town Clerk C.M. Paylor.

Street Committee members were instructed to investigate possibilities of opening one block of Cotton Street between Green and Waverly streets, adjacent to the Norfolk-Southern Railroad right-of-way. There is no street in the area now, although the town map has provisions for one.

Thorne-Wooten Furniture Company of Farmville was low bidder for the contract to supply tile for the second floor of the new fire station. The company's bid was $983.20.

When the flooring is installed, Farmville offices of the Pitt County Health Department will move into the building, occupying about one-third of the second floor space. Two offices on the front of the building will be offered for rent and the remainder of the floor space will be reserved for fire department purposes.

Work is scheduled to begin immediately on renovation of the old fire department quarters in the Municipal Building which will permit the Police Department to move from its present location beside the renovated area. The work will involve building offices for police personnel and construction of two cells, to be used for women and juvenile prisoners.

Present Police Department quarters will be renovated for use by personnel in the town clerk's office.

Wins Eagle Scout Badge

AYDEN—Sunday morning, during services at the Free Will Baptist Church, Thomas Parker Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon A. Dunn Sr., received the Eagle Scout Award.

The award was presented by Scoutmaster J. D. Dennis of Troop 34. Pitt District Scout Executive Carl Knott acted as "Voice of the Eagle." Tenderfoot Henry Wood, Second Class Leonard Gibson, First Class Billy Bateman, Star Scout Jimmy Pratt, all of Ayden, and Life Scout William Stancill of Greenville, participated in the ceremonies. Eagle Scout Emitt Gibson escorted the parents.

During the ceremonies, the Dunn youth, who has been active in church, community and school work, received an outstanding recommendation from Board of Review and Troop Committee representative Warren Kinlaw. The Scout was also commended by his pastor, Rev. Raymond Gaskins.

The new Eagle Scout is the seventh in Troop 34's history here. His oldest brother, Lindy, received the coveted Scouting award in 1953.

Says 'Any Man'
A Better Cook

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Any man who takes over in the kitchen can out-cook his wife."

So says Eugene Ertle, a chef, a widower and a student of the soulful side of cooking.

"It's an urge from the heart," said Ertle, president of the American Culinary Federation, as the group opened its convention yesterday with 150 top U.S. chefs in attendance.

"Men have more of the creative urge," he said. "They have a great natural talent, and they take the creative arts into cooking."

What's more, they've been at it longer.

"When the caveman hunted and made his kill, he cooked it over an open fire and brought it home to his woman that way," Ertle said.

"Then it was discovered food could be made by grinding meal. That was a tedious job, so the man turned it over to his woman."

"Gradually she took over the whole job of food preparation."

And, said Ertle sadly, too many women still regard cooking as just another piece of household drudgery.

"The average American family is better nourished than those in Europe," said Ertle, who is from Alsace-Lorraine, the French-German borderland. "But sometimes American women are a little careless in the preparation of the food."

Ertle is chief of the United Air Lines flight kitchen in Chicago.

Bond Proposal

East Carolina College faculty members endorsed this morning the proposed bond issue of $500,000 for a new wing to the Pitt Memorial Hospital and pledged their support of the community project.

At the first meeting of the group for the present school year, the faculty voted 100 percent to cooperate in efforts to secure the new wing.

Vice President Leo W. Jenkins of the college, who is serving as chairman of the steering committee for the Pitt County Hospital Campaign, explained the need of additional facilities at the hospital, addressing his remarks particularly to those who have been absent from the city during the summer months and to new members of the instructional staff.

"The community," he said, "desperately needs these facilities." Conditions at the hospital are already crowded, he explained, and will become increasingly inadequate as the community grows.

He pointed out that through provisions of the Hill-Burton Act a large part of the cost of the new wing can be financed by the Federal Government and that this aid will substantially reduce the sum that must be met locally.

As faculty members gave their support to the bond issue, Dr. Jenkins summarized the sentiments of the group in approving "a good business proposition" and in seeking better medical facilities for the city and county.

"You have given," he said, "a great vote of confidence in our county and our town."

DeGaulle Winds
Up His Campaign

PARIS (AP)—Premier Charles de Gaulle today goes into the home stretch of his drive for a new and stronger French constitution with an address before a mass meeting in the historic Place de la Republique.

French Communists, most bitter and most vocal of his opponents, have called for a large-scale turnout to disrupt the meeting. French police are being called out by the thousands to preserve order.

The Premier, who took office three months ago on a pledge to rebuild French institutions both at home and overseas, has chosen this time and place to unveil his constitution for a Fifth Republic.

The Cabinet completed work on the text yesterday. Frenchmen will vote on it Sept. 28.

In general, it would provide a stronger and more stable executive and trim Parliament's power to overthrow a French government—a power which many believe Parliament has abused in the past. It would also put France's relations with overseas territories on a confederation or commonwealth basis.

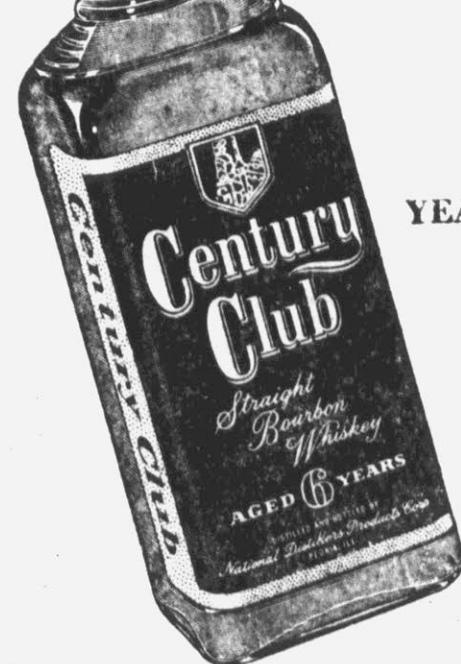

De Gaulle has already put some potent pressure, along with his own prestige, into the balance. He has said he will again retire from public life if the public turns down his constitution.

POP FOR PACIFIST—Mrs. Ramona Erickson, Cheyenne, Wyo. housewife, angry at pacifist demonstrator Erika Enzer, 32, one of several pickets at the Atlas missile construction site there, angrily pours soda pop down blouse of Miss Enzer. Mrs. Erickson first berated Miss Enzer, then tried to force her to drink pop. When the Chicago woman refused, the Cheyenne housewife held her and poured it down her blouse. (AP Wire-photo)

New Students Arriving At ECC, Begin Orientation

Getting acquainted with East Carolina College will occupy during the next five days the attention of approximately 1,400 freshmen and other new students who have just arrived on the campus. The Twenty-ninth Annual Orientation Program, marking the opening of the 1958-1959 term at the college, is getting under way this afternoon as the Daily Reflector goes to press.

Extending through Monday, September 8, a full schedule will keep newcomers busy. Events include assemblies, departmental conferences, testing programs, registration for class work, meetings with dormitory counselors, instruction in the use of the library, welcome services in Greenville churches, and various social events. Class work will begin Tuesday, September 9.

New students began arriving on the campus yesterday, and dormitory staffs have been doing a rush job of checking room assignments and helping students settle down comfortably for their year's work.

Fifty women from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes, appointed last spring as "Big Sisters" to freshman women, have been on hand for the past two days to help new students with the problems of campus life.

All student dormitories are filled to capacity at present. Dean of Men James H. Tucker and Dean of Women Ruth White stated this morning. Several hundred students have rented rooms in Greenville and will live off campus, according to Melvin V. Buck, housing director. A large number of men students are still trying to locate living quarters close to the campus, Mr. Buck said. The need for rooms in homes situated near the college is pressing, he stated.

Upperclassmen are already arriving on the campus and will register for academic work Monday of next week. They too will begin class work Tuesday.

College President John D. Messick is scheduled to address new students this afternoon at an assembly in the Wright auditorium. Friday at 9:30 a.m. Dean Tucker will preside at a meeting designed to inform students about various phases of campus life.

Testing programs will begin Friday afternoon and will continue through Orientation. Included will be placement tests for students who have not taken entrance examinations, Kuder Occupational Preference tests, and speech and hearing tests.

All new students will report to the Joyner Library Saturday and will receive from members of the staff information about the use of library materials.

Churches of Greenville will welcome new students at an assembly Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Austin Auditorium. C. J. Bradner, director of religious activities on the campus, will preside. The meeting will be followed by open house at the Y Hut, with members of the college YMCA and YWCA as hosts and hostesses.

Rim Blew Off, Lacerated Face

Late yesterday afternoon a 22-year-old Negro man suffered serious facial injuries in a freak accident at Sutton's Service Center on Dickinson Avenue.

Connie John Mouring has been identified as the victim. Mouring was inflating a truck tire when the rim blew off and struck him in the face.

He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Rescue Squad where he received emergency treatment and was admitted. This morning his condition was described as "satisfactory."

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Larry Patterson, 7, was going to show his disbelieving playmates in suburban Neffville that it is possible for Santa Claus to come down a chimney.

He climbed to the top of neighbor Joseph T. Mendeny's new outdoor fireplace and grill, shouted, "Watch." He started down, and disappeared from view. Police were summoned. They couldn't get Larry out. Finally, Walter Frey, a road construction foreman, arrived with a truckload of equipment.

First he removed the brick facer from the chimney. Then, using a sledgehammer, he cracked the chimney block. Larry emerged slightly sooty but unhurt.

Tammeny's fireplace is no more.

Las Vegas Nude Shows May Lose Their Fight

By JAMES BACON

AP Motion Picture Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The forces of decency, helped by the hard economics of the gambling fraternity, could eventually cover up Las Vegas' controversial nude showgirls.

As one big gambling operator put it tersely: "Gambling and undressed broads just don't mix. We've got a good thing here in legal gambling and we don't want to see it taken away."

Veteran Las Vegas hotel men, such as Ben Goffstein of the Riviera and Jack Entrater of the Sands, fought the bare-breasted invasion from its inception more than a year ago. Both reasoned that nudity could well turn the plush oasis into a honky tonk town.

And more important, that it could drive away the lucrative family vacation trade.

"We spent millions of dollars publicizing Las Vegas as a place where the whole family can have a happy vacation, see the finest entertainers in the world and gamble legally, only if they want to," said Goffstein.

Entrater says the married businessman who brings his family with him is still Las Vegas' best customer.

During the Labor Day weekend the Sands had 96 of its 300 rooms allotted to children.

"If the town goes for the striptease boom," says Entrater, "the wives will keep the kids home and their husbands too."

Las Vegas is a unique night club city, especially during summer. Children often make up as much as a fourth of the dinner show audiences.

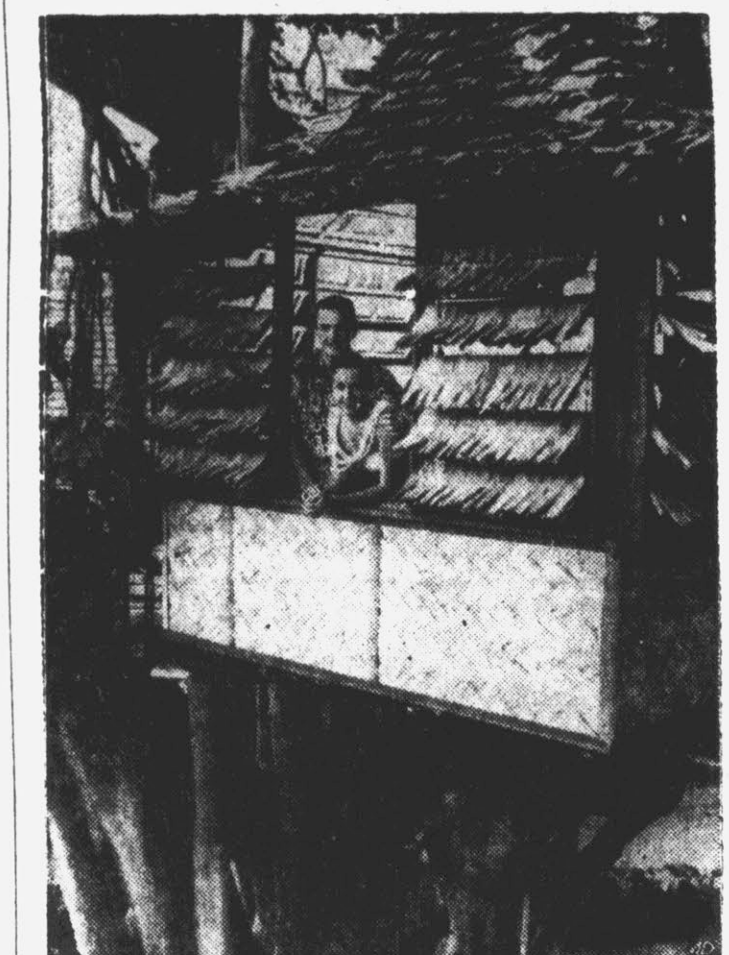

They are barred, however, from the nude girlie shows.

The major hotels have good economic reason to believe that family-type entertainment pays off better than strip-easers.

Red Skelton, a great favorite with kids, just broke the all-time house record at the Riviera. Then Goffstein shelled out $250,000 to bring the Broadway hit musical, "Lil' Abner," direct from New York for an eight-week stay. It's a clean show, so reflected in advance family reservations for the hotel.

Alaska already is boasting, and correctly, that it has the fastest growing population in the nation. The new state has tripled its population since 1940.

'Tree For Two' Reserved For Honolulu Lovebirds

TREE FOR TWO—This bamboo tree house provides romantic atmosphere for newlyweds in Honolulu. Included in the rental fee is a full-course dinner and champagne.

HONOLULU (AP)—High in a giant banyan tree overlooking Waikiki beach, is a restaurant reserved exclusively for couples in love.

It is a thatched-roof bamboo tree house called the "Tree for Two." It is designed to inspire romance in a setting of fancy food, good wine and soft music.

For a fee, couples who want to be alone—be they newlyweds or old folks—can spend an evening in this lovebird hideaway.

Halfway up the narrow stairs leading to the tree house is a gate for which only one key has been made.

It costs $37.50 to rent the key for one evening.

The tariff includes an exotic, full-course dinner which features roast quail stuffed with curried quail eggs. A bottle of champagne and brandy also are included.

To capture the mood, the "Tree for Two" is fitted with a television set and a high fidelity record player.

It is operated by a Honolulu restaurateur who says booking are so good that he plans to build two more tree houses this year.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market milled irregularly early this afternoon, as profits were taken at the newest 1958 high. Trading was fairly active.

Among pivotal issues gains and losses of fractions to about a point were the general rule.

Steele were off a bit but the industrial section as a whole was irregularly higher. Motors did little. There were more losers than gainers among copper. The balance was higher for rubbers, aircrafts, chemicals and tobacco.

Studebaker - Packard continued to reign as the trading favorite. The third day as big blocks changed hands, one of 20,000 shares. The price was up a fraction as new models were anticipated.

Kroger rose about 3 in unusual activity for this stock. Wall Street heard rumors of a possible stock split and increased volume.

Armstrong dropped about 3 as jitter prevailed about possible SEC action following the stock's upward move which reached at least a temporary climax this week. General really rose about a point following news of a proposed liquidation plan.

General Motors was about unchanged and actively traded on a series of blocks attributed to institutional transactions. Goodyear had an unusual spurt of 3 points.

St. Regis Paper was actively traded and ahead a fraction as traders looked with favor on the stock's chart pattern. Babcock, Sparten and Fruehauf Trailer moved ahead fractionally. American Telephone was about unchanged following a 1 1/2 jump yesterday. A 12,000-share block of reading and preferred traded unchanged at 27 1/2.

Plans For Area Airport Dealt A Blow By Veto

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Plans for a community airport to serve Rocky Mount and Wilson have been dealt a blow by President Eisenhower's veto of a new federal-aid to airports program. Rocky Mount Mayor P. K. Gravelly said yesterday that as a result of the veto, plans for the airport probably will be delayed. The President's veto wiped out $6,843,752 in federal grants to North Carolina.

Suspend License A Day Too Late

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — In a program to discourage reckless driving, South Carolina suspends the licenses of frequent traffic violators. The State Highway Department dispatched a patrolman to the home of a truck driver to notify him of suspension. The patrolman found a funeral wreath tacked to the door. The driver had been killed the day before in a traffic accident.

Averaged $2.80 Per Bird In Poultry Show And Sale

4-H CLUB MEMBER TAKES A BREAK... while judge and crowd make their way toward his entry at today's poultry show and sale. (Reflector Photos)

At this morning's annual Pitt County 4-H Poultry Show and Sale, 144 birds were sold for an average of $2.80 per bird.

Today's average surpassed last year's figures by 36 cents a bird and the 1956 average by 15 cents per layer.

Twelve 4-Hers, nine boys and three girls, participated in the show, held on the County Courthouse lawn. Each participant entered 12 birds. Seven blue ribbons, three red and two white ribbons were awarded.

Prices for the layers ranged from $1.80 to $3.40. The birds brought a total price of $403.80.

Each 4-H Club member who participated in today's show received 100 Parmenter Red chicks from the Sears Poultry Chain earlier this year. Twelve layers were chosen from each flock and placed on display in separate pens where they were judged and sold collectively.

Money derived from the sale is used to continue the chain next year. Participants get to keep the remaining layers in their flock.

According to Assistant County Agent Bob King, the success of today's sale assures the continuity of the poultry chain in this county. "Collectively the birds were one of the best looking batches I've ever seen," he commented. "Extensive preparation by each participant certainly made the show and sales successful."

King further expressed his appreciation to buyers and the public for their cooperation in the show and sale. State College Poultry Extension specialist T. B. Morris judged the layers and conducted the sale.

J. R. Gladson of Greenville Route 3 made four purchases this morning. Other purchases went to A. C. Turnage of Greenville, Harry Ferguson of Washington Route 3, Pitt PCX, D. H. Parker of Tarboro Route 1, B. B. Drum of Greenville, V. A. Merritt of Greenville, J. D. Hudson of Grimesland and Speight's Seed Farm.

Blue ribbons were won by Charles Tyler, and Johnny Phillips of Fountain; Jerry Grimesly of Winterville; Junior Nichols, Marvin Harris and Charles Ray Evans of Farmville; and Roger Simmons of Greenville.

Mary Ann Ferguson of Grimesland, Lillian Crisp of Pateolus and Hazel Price of Greenville won red ribbons. White ribbons were awarded to Steve Jones of Greenville and David Nelson of Farmville.

Progress was reported in the mapping and boring preliminary plans for actual construction of the plant at Parr Shoals, S.C. The four-company nuclear power project was formed by Duke Power Co., Carolina Power & Light Co., South Carolina Electric & Gas Co., and Virginia Electric & Power Co.

It was announced at yesterday's meeting that CVNPA will establish its offices here Oct. 1 and will hold its annual meeting here Oct. 6.

N. A. Cocke, president of CVNPA and Duke Power, said the directors discussed a number of routine matters, which involved basic contracts with the Atomic Energy Commission, the Westinghouse Electric Corp., and South Carolina Electric & Gas Co.

After four hours, a crane swung out a hoisting platform from the liner New York with the Uhlhorn car aboard. Suddenly the platform tilted, and the car slid into the Hudson River.

Uhlhorn said he's going to stay around until they raise his vehicle from 40 feet of water.

REPORT PROGRESS ON ATOMIC PLANT

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Directors of Carolina Virginia Nuclear Power Associates Inc. have been told that satisfactory progress has been made towards construction of the first nuclear power plant in the Southeast.

Progress was reported in the mapping and boring preliminary plans for actual construction of the plant at Parr Shoals, S.C. The four-company nuclear power project was formed by Duke Power Co., Carolina Power & Light Co., South Carolina Electric & Gas Co., and Virginia Electric & Power Co.

It was announced at yesterday's meeting that CVNPA will establish its offices here Oct. 1 and will hold its annual meeting here Oct. 6.

N. A. Cocke, president of CVNPA and Duke Power, said the directors discussed a number of routine matters, which involved basic contracts with the Atomic Energy Commission, the Westinghouse Electric Corp., and South Carolina Electric & Gas Co.

Legionnaires Begin Wrap Up Chicago Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Legion national convention moves into its concluding session today with another full round of speeches and resolutions. But the high point of the day will be election of a national commander.

While the votes are yet to be cast, Preston Grover, 38, Stillwater, Okla., was considered a shoe-in for the post.

Speakers today include Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese Nationalist president, and Luis Munoz Marin, governor of Puerto Rico.

Mme. Chiang, in a news conference shortly after her arrival here, said her country does not need at this time American fighting men or money to defend the island fortress of Quemoy.

"The Chinese Reds want to see how far they can go in regard to Quemoy. They will go as far as the free world will let them," she said.

After long debate, the Legion approved its traditional stand for pensions based on need.

However, the successful resolution added these liberalizing amendments to the present pension stand: an increase in monthly disability pension rates, a provision veterans receive permanent and totally disabled pension payments at 65 regardless of health or need, and lifting of restrictive outside income limitations.

Radioactive Poison Fears: False Alarm

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The inscription on the sealed lead and plastic container read: "Radium—poison. To be disposed of only by burial in ground."

Russell Trunzo Jr., 10, and Willie Thoman, 6, found the green glowing container on a private road here yesterday and played with it for a while.

Russell later returned home and announced proudly to his father: "Guess What? I was playing with radium. But don't worry. I washed my hands good."

That's fine, his father said. "Now your hands are clean for a change."

Then he did a double take. At about the same time, Willie arrived home with the container in his hand. He showed it to his brother, Emil Jr., 22, a laboratory worker, who was eating supper.

Emil dropped his supper. Within moments, police cars rushed to the boys' homes. Officers blocked off the area where the vial was found.

They isolated Russell, Willie and Willie's sister Marion, 10, who had come in contact with the container.

Medium And Low Quality Tobacco Dominates Sales

Large offerings of medium and low quality tips and leaf continued to dominate sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market yesterday.

The market sold 1,303,930 pounds of tobacco for $686,162.92. Average for the day was $52.62 per hundred pounds.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reported this morning that bids and primings continued to sell at an all time high. Company purchases of cutters and top leaf tobacco reached $73 and above.

Whedbee stated today's sale is expected to exceed yesterday's figures in total poundage and average. Another heavy sale is anticipated tomorrow.

Watched Auto Fall Into River

NEW YORK (AP) — Clemens Uhlhorn, a Cincinnati real estate man, and his family were happy to be home yesterday after a motor tour of Europe, and they waited patiently for their 1958 car to be unloaded from their ship.

After four hours, a crane swung out a hoisting platform from the liner New York with the Uhlhorn car aboard. Suddenly the platform tilted, and the car slid into the Hudson River.

Uhlhorn said he's going to stay around until they raise his vehicle from 40 feet of water.
