Regional School Plan Challenged To Move Ahead

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The 16 governors who make up the Southern Regional Education Board today heard a review of the past and a challenge for future efforts in advancing higher education on a regional basis.

The speaker was the board chairman, North Carolina's Gov. Luther H. Hodges, who said:

"The future of higher education in our states, in our region, and even in our nation, will be what we make it, but certainly the challenge which confronts us is too great and too important to demand less than our very best."

The 10-year-old board was originally formed by 10 Southern states interested in aiding the cause of higher education through regional cooperation. Since its birth, it has been joined by six other states. Each of the 16 governors is a board member.

Meeting in conjunction with the annual Southern Governors' Conference here, the board members heard Hodges recount generally the organization's efforts during the past decade, and specifically its work last year.

The board, Hodges said, is an official agency with a current operating budget of about $750,000 gained through governmental and private funds.

He said, it "has had to prove its right to existence by demonstrating the merits of ideas underlying the organization of the board and by showing in a tangible and practical way the benefits which can accrue to the individual states if we cooperate in this area of higher education and do some things on a regional basis."

Hodges spoke in detail of a board-sponsored meeting last month in Charleston, S. C., and Mississippi Gov. Coleman attended the session, the annual legislative work conference, along with legislators of each of the 16 states. They considered four major problems in the higher education field:

1. Should state institutions raise tuition as a means of meeting rising costs?

On this, Hodges said, "The conference concluded that tuition costs at publicly-supported institutions should be kept as low as possible, but also recognized that it is justified to increase tuition in line with cost of living increases."

2. Should state institutions raise out-of-state tuition?

"It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that it is desirable to have reasonable out-of-state tuition for undergraduate programs," Hodges said.

3. Should state institutions be allowed to restrict enrollment in some way in view of the anticipated large numbers of students within the next decade?

Hodges said the meeting decided it is desirable for every high school graduate to have the opportunity to continue his post high school education to the extent of his capabilities.

4. Should a state have some over-all agency to develop long-range planning for higher education?

The group decided, Hodges said, such an agency is desirable, but its exact structure should be left up to each state.

Accomplishments of the past year were outlined by the Tar Heel governor, who cited:

1. The contract programs in medicine, veterinary medicine, dentistry and social work which permit students from one state to attend schools in other states.
2. Tuition aid programs in forestry, statistics and nursing.
3. Work in the field of mental health training and research through the administration of a two-year $90,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health.
4. Research work by universities or other agencies in higher education through a five-year, $450,000 grant from the Carnegie Corp.

Two women and a man were injured in a two-car collision approximately eight miles west of Greenville yesterday morning.

One of the accident victims, Mrs. Effie Mae Peed of Lucama, was pinned in the wreckage for about 30 minutes before she could be freed. Mrs. Peed suffered a fractured thigh, abrasions and contusions. After being removed from the wreckage, she was transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital, given emergency treatment and admitted.

Her husband, Rinford Peed, 51, who was driving one of the cars, involved, sustained a fractured left knee. He too was admitted. Both were reported in "good" condition this morning.

Mrs. Ellen Hicklin, a passenger in the second car, suffered a broken rib and contusions and was admitted for treatment and observation. Today her condition was described as "not serious."

Mrs. Hicklin's husband, Harry Hicklin Jr., 32, of Rock Hill, S. C., was charged with exceeding a safe speed limit under conditions of the road by Highway Patrolman D.L. Minshew of Farmville who investigated the accident.

According to Minshew, Hicklin's car skidded out of control in a curve and ran across the highway into the path of Peed's automobile. Damage to each car was estimated at $500.

Late Friday afternoon, Mrs. Thelma Baldree of Greenville Route 2, was injured when her car was involved in an accident on U.S. 264, three miles west of Farmville.

Mrs. Baldree suffered a dislocation and fracture of her right hip and minor abrasions. She was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after the collision. An attending physician described her condition as "good" today.

Charles A. King of Wilson has been identified as the driver of the other car involved.

Patrolman Minshew, who also investigated this accident, said Mrs. Baldree was attempting to make a left turn off the highway into a private driveway and that King was attempting to pass her when the accident occurred. The officer reported this morning his investigation in connection with the mishap is incomplete.

Property damage was estimated at $600.

The men jumped into their car and sped off into the night. Butts called the sheriff's department after the two left.

He told officers that the pair used no weapon.

Sheriff Tyson said the men made no effort to take anything else other than the wallet from the store.

A description of the men and their automobile was placed on police radios following the robbery but they had not been apprehended this morning.

Freshmen Women Give Teas

Freshmen women living in Ragsdale and Cotten halls at East Carolina College entertained at teas yesterday afternoon in honor of their parents. Other guests included members of the faculty and the staff of the college.

Cotten Hall was decorated for the occasion with arrangements of fall flowers.

Refreshments were served from two serving tables.

Originally designed centerpieces of combined yellow button chrysanthemums and evergreens formed a background for upright letters in gold. COTTEN on one table and ECC on the other.

Miss Emma Jean Godard and Miss Peggy Wynne, both of Williamson, were in charge of decorations for the tea.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Patricia Farmer of Camp Burton, Miss Gail Baxley of Lumberton, Miss Sally Jo Kennedy of Beaufort, and Miss Jackie Harrison of Plymouth.

Those serving refreshments during the afternoon included Miss Becky Coley of Rocky Mount, chairman of counselors to freshmen in Cotten Hall, Miss Bobbie Bethune of Beaufort, Miss Janice Langston of Goldsboro, and Miss Mary E. Stewart of Goldsboro.

Miss Diane E. Broughton of Zeppulon was chairman of the social committee which planned the Cotten Hall tea. She was assisted by approximately 20 student counselors to freshmen women, by a large group of freshmen, and by Miss Bizzell and Miss Hazel Clark, members of the staff of the Dean of Women.

Guests calling at Ragsdale Hall during the afternoon were received by Miss Nancy Brown of Greenville, acting president of the dormitory, Miss Eunice McGee, dormitory counselor on the staff of the Dean of Women, and Miss Betty Thompson of Raleigh, Miss Kay Forester of Wilkesboro, Miss Sharon Williams of Virginia Beach, and Miss Jane Gilbert of London Bridge, Va.

Native shrubs and flowers in unique arrangements gave the dormitory reception rooms a festive air. The serving table was centered by a bowl of Spider lilies and ferns. Miss Linda Bullard of Bladenboro was in charge of decorations.

Miss Madelyn Coleman of Greenville acted as chairman in charge

ADULT LEADER HELPS GIRLS

Rockingham County adult 4-H leader, Mrs. P. W. Tysinger, Williamson Community, recently held a project workshop for 4-H girls in the community. And what a success it turned out to be!

According to Eugenia Green, assistant home demonstration agent, 27 girls attended the workshop, each bringing something they could work on connected with their 4-H projects.

Some of the girls made cookies, some prepared a breakfast and practiced table setting, while others worked on some other phase of their projects.

Mrs. Tysinger felt "it was a most enjoyable day for me and a profitable day for the girls."

MARKET FLOURISHES

Despite dry weather which cut the supply of vegetables, the Home Demonstration Curb Market in Carteret County did a thriving business in August, according to reports from Mrs. Ploy G. Garner, home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Garner says that the total sales for the month were a momentous $3,928.04, an increase of $1,041.18 over August sales in 1957. Mrs. Beatrice Pittman was high seller again this year, with sales of $706.00. Of this amount $329.00 was for vegetables and $377 for seafood.

According to Mrs. Garner, the sellers are finding that home-baked bread, cakes and pies will really sell if they're quality products and attractive in appearance.

COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT

The Arcola Community in Warren County has been making plans for community improvement and met as a group recently to exchange ideas. Home Agent Emily Ballinger reports that though attendance at the meeting was small, the group accomplished a great deal.

Among the ideas presented were: restoration of the one-room school in the community and securing a historical market to place near it. They felt that since there are only five or six schools left in North Carolina that it would be a worthwhile project.

Other plans include beautifying roadsides, removing an old wood-shed from the back of the community church, restoring and old school building to be used as a community center, and securing speakers to come to their community in order to get information on income-generating work in an effort to hold the young people in the community.

THEY LIVE OUT OF THEIR GARDEN

"We live out of our garden," exclaimed Mrs. A. W. Huff, president of the Mars Hill home demonstration club, one day as she was preparing beans to can.

According to Mrs. Janie M. Ramsey, Madison Home Agent, Mrs. Huff has conserved enough vegetables for her family's use this winter. The freezer and pantry are filled to capacity and now she is drying and canning to have an extra supply. She finds that home grown vegetables are certainly more economical for her family.

"Our children have helped in growing the garden," says Mrs. Huff with much pride. Ann, her daughter, feels that "the lessons I have learned in gardening, weeding, spraying and mulching have been helpful in carrying on my 4-H project, too."

FREEZING FOODS

Mrs. Carl Cothran, Happy Valley home demonstration club member in Henderson County, really is putting the slogan "Each One Teach One" into practice, reports from Kathleen C. Hodges, home agent, say.

It seems that Mrs. Cothran has been sharing freezing information with one of her neighbors who is a young homemaker. Since her neighbor is unable to attend home demonstration club meetings, Mrs. Cothran takes the information she gets at club meetings back home and shares it.

Her young neighbor used to freeze corn without blanching it, but Mrs. Cothran has shown her the difference blanching can make in improving the flavor of corn and other vegetables. Now the neighbor is blanching all of the vegetables she freezes.

"We need more leaders like Mrs. Cothran who follow recommendations from Extension Service," states Mrs. Hodges, "and are willing to share their knowledge with others."

Add a rose geranium to your garden plants; later on put a leaf in each glass of apple jelly you make. Delectable flavor!

30 Years Ago Today

September 22, 1928

Readjustment of farming in Pitt County received pronounced impetus here Saturday night when thirty or forty farmers from all parts of the county met with members of the Pitt County Department of Agriculture at the Rotary Club to discuss the problems confronting agriculture at this time.

Tobacco in Eastern Carolina is averaging 15 cents per pound and cotton about 17 cents per pound. These two commodities are below the cost of production and are the principal sources of income of the farmers. Taxes are high and the farmers are planning to offset the gloomy prospect now approaching. In this connection to get away from the two crop idea a creamery is under consideration.

The production of live stock has greatly increased. These two industries are especially adapted to Eastern North Carolina in that a temperate climate and rich grass-producing soil are present for live stock.

It is upon the for-going definite plans that the farmers of Pitt County are now thinking with a conference of farmers to be held in Greenville within the present week.

Sam Underwood To Be Speaker

The League of Women Voters will have Sam B. Underwood as their guest speaker Wednesday night for their general meeting. It will be held in the council room at the city hall beginning at 8 o'clock.

The purpose of the League is to promote active and informal citizenship. Underwood will review the proposals of the North Carolina bar on improving and expediting the Administration of Justice, after which questions may be asked.

Mrs. R. R. Rogers, chairman of State Agenda, will present the program.

World Friendship Club Holds Session At ECC

The World Friendship Club met Thursday night at Flanagan Building at East Carolina College.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Robert Starling, and the group sang "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder." Mrs. Starling read for the devotion, "The Creation," by James Weidon Johnson.

Dr. Beattie McNeill reported on the 9th International Home Economics Conference in Maryland held this summer. The club voted to accept the Golden Rule as the club motto. Fifteen names of foreign pen-pals were given to the members of the club as suggestions for correspondence friends. The president announced the next meeting will be held on United Nations Day, October 24, with a covered dish supper at the Red Oak Community Building.

The program was given on Africa by Miss Ernelle Brooks. Miss Brooks has been serving as a missionary in Africa and is sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention. She showed colored slides and contrasted the modernization of parts of Africa with some of the more primitive parts. The president presented Miss Brooks with a Testament to be given to some person in Africa as a present from the World Friendship Club.

The group was invited to the Home Economics dining room for refreshments to conclude the meeting. Hostesses were Dr. McNeill and Mrs. Starling.

WCTU Meets

BETHEL—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met with Mrs. Marshall Whitehurst in her home on James Street last week. Mrs. R. L. Whitley, the president, presided and asked the group to sing "Onward Christian Soldiers". This was followed by prayer.

At the business session, the nominating committee recommended that the same officers be elected for another year. A motion was made and voted on to accept their motion. Therefore the following officers were re-elected: Mrs. R. L. Whitley, president; Mrs. Lucy M. Whitehurst vice president; and Miss Athelene Rollins, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. W. R. Bullock had charge of the program. She read and discussed the subject, "Liquors Big Lie". Her scripture selection was "Wine is a mocker, Strong drink is raging and who so ever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Mrs. R. L. Whitley read an article entitled, "Alcohol Shrinks the Brain."

Mrs. Whitley read the yearly report which is to be sent to the convention to be held in Asheville in October.

Cake and ice cream were served to the 13 members present.

Billy Graham's Crusade In Charlotte Gets Under Way

By BLOYS W. BRITT

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — "Christ is the answer to the world's problems, including the current racial strife," said Charlotte-born Billy Graham, who opened a four-week crusade here yesterday.

The 40-year-old evangelist spoke to an integrated overflow crowd of 14,375 in the city's four-million-dollar coliseum, which he dedicated three years ago.

He hopes to draw 250,000 into the big dome in the 25 meetings he has scheduled.

This was his second revival effort among his home folks since he began as a boy evangelist nearly 20 years ago. At the end of his sermon, 390 people, including a few Negroes, answered his call for a "decision for Christ."

Graham, whose opening sermon subject was "Christ's Answer to the World's Dilemma," said social problems in the nation "cry out for God's help."

He told an audience that included about 500 Negroes that racial tension is nearer to the breaking point than it has ever been.

He cited the stabbing in New York Saturday of the Rev. Martin Luther King, a Montgomery, Ala., Negro minister, King, an integration leader who led a successful bus boycott in Montgomery two years ago, was stabbed by a Negro woman in a Harlem department store.

"Thank God that Martin Luther King was not stabbed by a white person," the evangelist said. "If he had been we might have seen a racial war in New York with blood flowing down the street."

Graham said "many people are crying for an answer" to the problems of race, science, economics, politics and morals. But he added, "No one has come up with an answer, and no one has given God a chance."

More than 3,000 prayer meetings drew 50,000 people during the weeks preceding the crusade opening. Some 10,000 lay workers and ministers and a 2,000-voice choir will help with the crusade.

The evangelist said thousands of people in Australia, where he will hold a crusade next year, "prayed all night" Sunday for the success of his meetings here.

He received messages, too, from groups in New York City and San Francisco which sponsored his crusades there.

When Graham was 29 and still known as the boy evangelist, he held a two-week crusade here that drew 80,000 people.

Graham had said he feared the present Crusade more than any he had ever undertaken. He said there was no opposition to it and he feared that, too, "because there should be opposition to God's work. We can't lick Satan unless he comes out in the open."

Charlotte, he said, has a church for every 400 of its residents. Yet, he added, it has one of the highest crime rates in America.

"What's wrong? Why doesn't it balance out? It may be that we need revival within our churches," he said.

Another answer, he said, is that thousands of people go to church "once in a while if it isn't too inconvenient," and the rest of the week "they live for the Devil and live for themselves."

Graham arrived at the coliseum an hour before the 3 p.m. opening. He was accompanied by his wife and their 8-month-old son Ned. He spent much of the time before the service in seclusion in a cozy suit prepared for him just off the arena.

The evangelist's family and close friends sat in a box to the left of the rostrum. The group included his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Graham, and his wife's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Bell of Montreal. Dr. Bell, a former missionary, is editor of a religious publication.

Long lines of people were on hand two hours before the coliseum opened. The arena, which has been arranged to seat 12,500 for the crusade, was nearly filled an hour before the service started. City fire department officials called a halt when all seats were filled, but nearly 300 got in anyway to stand in the aisles.

The choir sang softly "Just As I Am" during Graham's call for "decisions for Christ." Slowly at first, then in increasing numbers, people started coming down the aisles to the rostrum. Many of them wept. Many were young people. They were met by counselors who took them to rooms just off the floor for prayers and individual discussions of their problems.

A blind woman and her blind child were among those who answered Graham's call.

Graham said his sermon subject tonight will be "What's Wrong with the Church."

Preview Of TV Harvey Promises Superb Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — "Harvey," visible tonight as the season's first Du Pont Show of the Month (CBS-TV), surely will be one of the best television shows of the year.

The sponsor invited critics to view the first dress rehearsal of the comedy in New York yesterday, and pass along their judgments before the home audience has a chance to make its own decision.

Although, I personally, have reservations about judging a TV Show before the public and critics outside New York have had a chance to see it, I personally have absolutely no reservations about "Harvey." It's superb entertainment and you'll miss something if you don't see it tonight.

Art Carney finally finds a TV role worthy of his abundant acting talent as Elwood P. Dowd, a middie-aged bachelor who views life perceptively through the bottom of a glass. Elwood never is drunk, you understand. But by some standards it's difficult to call him sober.

Among Elwood's fine perceptions is a six-foot-pardon, 6-foot-1½ — rabbit named Harvey. The fact that other people have difficulty in seeing Harvey does not dim the clarity of Elwood's vision.

Harvey very well may be the ideal friend we all want and never find, the velvet ear into which we pour the wisdom the world never quite recognizes.

Because of his friendship for Harvey, Elwood is a great embarrassment to his sister, delightfully portrayed by Marion Lorne in as memorable a piece of acting as that demonstrated by Carney. Notable in the excellent cast assembled for the David Susskind production are Larry Blyden, Charlotte Rae, Loring Smith, Ray Walston, Ruth White, Fred Gwynne.

Who plays Harvey? Why, Harvey does, of course. You know Harvey.

Bob Hope, in his first show of the season, blithely brought life and fun to that old operetta dame "Roberta," on NBC-TV Friday evening. He was ably abetted by the lovely Maria Alberg and Janis Paige.

Rev. Luther King Is Stabbed By Woman

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. remained on the critical list at Harlem Hospital today. He faces three months of convalescence from a stabbing by an apparently mentally unbalanced woman.

His assistant, Mrs. Isola Ware Curry, 42, Negro, is undergoing mental observation at Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Curry plunged a seven-inch steel letter opener into King's chest Saturday in a Harlem department store as the 29-year-old Negro leader in the Southern struggle for integration was autographing copies of his book "Stride Toward Freedom."

Dr. Aubrey Maynard, Harlem Hospital surgeon who removed the letter opener from King's chest during a delicate four-hour operation, said King's condition was satisfactory but that he would be kept on the critical list for a day or two.

It will be at least two weeks before he can leave the hospital, the surgeon said, and another three months to full recovery.

After the operation, Maynard said the letter opener had just missed King's aorta, the body's major artery. If the aorta had been cut, Maynard said, instant death would have resulted.

The only visitor permitted at King's bedside yesterday was his wife Coretta, who arrived by plane from Montgomery, Ala. King is pastor of a Baptist church in Montgomery, where his leadership of the 1956 Negro boycott propelled him into the front ranks of the forces for integration.

Mrs. Curry was ordered to Bellevue Hospital after her arraignment before Magistrate Vincent P. Rao on charges of felonious assault and violation of the antiweapons law. A loaded pistol was found in her clothing after the assault on King.

"I understand this is the woman who is accused of stabbing the Rev. Mr. King with a knife," Rao said.

"No, it was a letter opener," shouted Mrs. Curry.

She later interrupted the arraignment proceedings by yelling, "I'm charging him as well as he's charging me."

"I'm charging him with being mixed up with the Communists," she told Rao, and added: "I've reported the case to the FBI and its being looked into."

"This woman is ill," Rao said as he ordered her taken to Bellevue.

"I'm not ill," snapped Mrs. Curry.

Mrs. Curry was seized by bystanders after the stabbing and was quoted by one of them as saying: "I've been after him for six years. I'm glad I done (sic) it."

The woman told police she is a native of Adrian, Ga., and that she came here from Florida about two months ago. She has visited New York periodically, she said.

In compliance with the terms of Hart's will, the ranch was presented to Los Angeles County in ceremonies Saturday. One of those who attended, cowboy actor Monty Montana, commented: "Happy to see you're paying tribute to a cowboy who could ride a horse."

MEMORANDUM

STATE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY
GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA

TO: Those who breed swine
FROM: Eric Whichard
SUBJECT: Hog Cholera

For the first time in several years there is danger of a hog cholera epidemic in this area. (Already there has been an outbreak in Virginia.) What makes the danger greater is that there may be a shortage of vaccine. Certainly there will be if all those with unvaccinated herds wake up to the danger at the same time.

I know you may still be busy with your tobacco. But this is too important to put off much longer. I urge you to call in your veterinarian — or order the vaccine, if you plan to do the job yourself — right away.

The cheapest insurance you can have — insurance against losing half or even all your herd — is to vaccinate against hog cholera. And don't forget that as of now the national supply of vaccine is below the probable coming demand.

Even Essentials Can Strain State

Where is the money coming from?
That question is being asked now that the Advisory Budget Commission has added requests for almost a billion dollars in state funds from agencies and departments during the coming biennium.
The question will continue to be asked throughout the rest of this year, and quite possibly during the major part of the 1959 General Assembly.
One answer is fairly apparent even at this early date. That much money for state expenditures isn't coming from anywhere. North Carolina just isn't going to spend that much money for its operations during the biennium.
Where the money is coming from to meet the obligations finally approved by the 1959 General Assembly is another matter altogether.
It is generally accepted that all budget requests from state departments and agencies are not included in appropriations finally approved by the General Assembly. While the state needs many services, and would like to have additional services, it is, and always has been financially impossible for it to have everything it wanted. The same thing will be true for the 1959-61 biennium.
Though the total figure is staggering, the people of the state must face squarely the fact that North Carolina is growing. The services of many of its agencies and departments must be expanded to meet the

Spenders Must Face The Facts

By LYNN NISBET
TAXPAYERS — Spenders of tax money have filed requests with the Advisory Budget Commission for nearly a billion dollars appropriations for the biennium beginning next July 1.
To date there have been no requests on part of big taxpayers or organized groups for hearings as to where the money will come from. Almost certainly some such requests will come in later—probably after the tentative text of the Tax Study Commission report has been published.
Briefly stated the budget situation is about this: When the Advisory Commission concluded its public hearings last week, it had applications for operating and capital improvement allocations in the aggregate amount of $982,640,984.
This total is divided $784,500,000 for "A" budget to continue services at current level; $113,200,000 for "B" budget to expand or enlarge the scope of services, and $75,000,000 for capital improvements—some of which is needed immediately, the rest marked for future needs.
These total requests represent an increase of $175,675,000 or 21.75 percent over appropriations for the 1957-58 period. Of this increase roughly $147.6 million is for general fund purposes, $28 million for highway and related services.
Governor Hodges told newsmen that obviously these figures must be materially reduced, because the State does not have the slightest prospect for that kind of revenue. The hardest job facing the budget commission will be to go through thousands of items, consider each on its merits, and decide where curtailments can best be made with least detriment to service.
REQUIREMENTS — Until these adjustments are made and the budget group adopts a spending figure to recommend to the General Assembly it will be impossible to estimate what new tax money may be needed. Distinction also must be made between new tax money and new sources of tax money. Estimating probable revenue yield from existing tax levies is a function of the Advisory Budget Commission, perhaps its most hazardous task. Only two or three times since the budget system was inaugurated has prospective revenue been over estimated.
Since the State derives its entire revenue from its sales privilege and other indirect taxes, it is influenced by many factors which the budget makers and legislators can neither anticipate nor control. For example: It appeared that the 1949-51 biennial revenue was going to fall short of estimates. Then came the Korean war, an upswing in economy and a substantial surplus at end of the period.
State collections now are falling below the rate estimated by needs of the people even on the present level. If agencies and institutions are to meet the increasing demands for their services, there must also be some capital improvements.

With expansions that have taken place in the state's economy, we may expect present tax structures will bring in more funds during the coming biennium than have during the current biennium. Even so the amount may not be sufficient to meet the needs.
It will boil down to the case of the Advisory Budget Commission, and subsequently the legislature, combing through the requests and allotting priorities on a first-things-first basis. When the frills and fancies have been cut out of the requests, it must be determined whether revenues will be available to meet the essentials.
Although we have no idea North Carolina will appropriate nearly a billion dollars in state funds for the coming biennium, it is clear from the requests that a major financial job again faces the legislature. It will be a major undertaking for the state to trim its appropriations as closely as possible to take care of the essentials, and then find sufficient revenues to meet the obligations.

Face-Saving Note By Russia's Khrushchev

It shouldn't come as a surprise that Khrushchev has sent a stern note to President Eisenhower in reply to the President's message to Moscow on September 12 placing the blame for the Far East crisis squarely at the feet of Red China.
Khrushchev had to defend his ally, Red China. He also had to be tough in his reply to the President's message just as the President was blunt. Khrushchev's warning that the United States abandon Formosa or be thrown out of the area by Red China has more of the earmarks of a face-saving message than an ultimatum.
Although the United States' policy toward Nationalist China has been questioned—and rightly so, from time to time—the time has now come when the United States can ill afford to back down from its protection of Formosa. To do so would be to indicate to the Communists once more that they can gain what they want by boasts, bluffs and threats.
They already have the idea that the United States, if pushed hard enough, will abandon a position rather than to fight for it. Abandonment of Formosa would only lead the Communists to stage another bigger and bolder stroke somewhere else in the hope of winning important concessions from the free world.
We expect American officials to take every reasonable step to ease tension in the Far East and to avoid a shooting war with the Red Chinese. The fact remains, however, that appeasement of the Communist leaders will lead only to bigger trouble.

Business News At Flood Tide

By RALPH ROBEY
There is something close to a flood tide of good business news becoming available day after day. Last week we discussed the prospect of business investment in plant and equipment turning upward in the fourth quarter of this year (which is much earlier than had been expected), the declining rate of inventory liquidation and the new evidence that the Federal Reserve Board is convinced that the upturn is so strong that higher interest rates will not stop it. All of these are of basic importance and to them there now needs to be added other developments.
Perhaps the most important of these new developments is the fact that the Federal Reserve Board index of production in August made its fourth consecutive monthly increase. This index measures physical quantities, which means that it is not influenced by price changes, and uses 1947-49 as equal to 100. For August the index was 137, three points above the revised figure was July. For August last year, which was the month before the recession started, the index was 145. From that level it started a decline which carried to 126 for last April. Currently, therefore, we have recovered a little more than half of the lost ground.
This improvement has been pretty much across the board. Durable goods production, which has been the great laggard, has moved upward sharply, and non-durable production has continued its recent rise. Mineral production also has strengthened, an industry by industry basis, the Board said steel production had increased more than seasonally, coal and crude oil production had risen by more than 5 percent, and most other industries had shown betterment.
Housing starts again moved up in August. The figure on an annual basis was 1,170,000. This is only 10,000 above the July level, but it is the highest since January 1956. The total from January through August was 8 per cent above the same period last year. This was the sixth consecutive monthly increase in this field.
It now appears evident that we shall have at least 1.1 million private housing starts this year, and it will be closer to 1.2 million. That is a good year. Total construction continues to make new high records as a result of public activity in this field.

We also now have the official revised budget figures for this fiscal year. It had been hoped, and rather widely assumed, that with business on the upgrade the estimated deficit would be somewhat below $12 billion. Actually the revised figure is $12.2 billion. Last January, when the 1959 Budget was submitted, it was estimated that there would be a half billion dollar surplus. Even at the time that was considered too optimistic, and since then the deficit figure has been going up and up.
The great change, according to the Budget Director, has been about 60 per cent because of a drop in receipts, about 40 per cent because of an increase in expenditures. Receipts are now estimated at $7.4 billion below the 1958 figure. Expenditures are estimated to be $5.3 billion higher.
In more detail on the revenue side, it is estimated that individual income taxes will be $36 billion, which is $2.5 billion below the January figure but $1.3 above 1958 collections. Corporate income taxes are estimated at $16.7 billion, as compared with $20.4 in January and $20.1 in 1958. The reason for the increase in personal income taxes while corporate income taxes decline, is that personal taxes are paid during the year the income is earned while corporate taxes are paid the following year. In other words, the revised estimates reflect the fact that personal income has risen to a new high, while corporate profits are still well down.
The largest increase in spending is for agriculture. It is the result of record breaking crops and larger than expected participation in the soil bank. The next largest increase is in connection with housing, then comes the Department of Defense, the Post Office, and unemployment benefits and services. There are numerous other increases but each of them is less than half a billion dollars.
This revised budget is a rather sour note, but in spite of it there no longer is any question that business is on the upgrade. If the public gives a good reception to the 1959 automobiles it will mean that we are on our way to further prosperity.

ent building, and being certain that our hospital needs will increase in the future, and also due to the fact that the Federal and State governments are to furnish the major part of the money for this addition, I do not see how we can afford to pass up this expansion program.
In all sincerity, I urge you to vote in favor of this bond issue, and also that you talk with your friends and encourage them to do likewise.
Respectfully yours,
S. Eugene West,
Mayor

The Natives Of Taiwan

By RELMAN MORIN
Snaps from a traveler's album: In the thundering and dangerous dispute over the future of Formosa, one voice is seldom heard—that of the Taiwanese people.
They are the natives of the island. They are a vivid people, eager, energetic and intelligent. Generally, they look Chinese. Yet many of them have distinctive features, possibly from intermarriage with Filipinos, Indonesians and other races.
Over the centuries, they have been ruled by the Portuguese, the Dutch, a Ming dynasty rebel, the Japanese, and now the Chinese Nationalists.
They agree with the Communists on one point: Both maintain that Formosa is a province of China.
Nobody so far as I know, has ever conducted a plebiscite to determine how the Taiwanese feel.
They could argue that, apart from the Portuguese, Dutch and Japanese, there have been others who denied the authority of China.
A very colorful guy, known as Koxinga, came to Formosa when the Manchus

Other Editors Saying Aromatic Leaf Convincing

(Henderson Dispatch)
Wednesday's sale of aromatic, or Turkish, tobacco was the first ever to be held in this part of the State. It was both impressive and convincing to growers and spectators alike.
The few farmers who experimented this year with this new type of leaf were pioneering in this particular field. They had to learn the particular procedure in cultivation, curing and preparation of the commodity for marketing. If here and there they made some missteps, at least they will be able from now on to profit by their mistakes, with better quality and higher prices as the reward for their knowledge and labor.
The sharp difference in prices for aromatic and those for flue-cured were noticeable. One reason, of course, is the scarcity of aromatic as grown domestically, since the aggregate of millions of pounds imported annually from Turkey and Greece by American manufacturers has to be brought from great distances and then a duty paid when it enters this country. Aromatic, as is well known, is used as a blend for certain types of cigarettes to add aroma and flavor.
The proceeds of selling was watched with interest by the crowds on hand Wednesday afternoon. There was no auction. Standard prices are set by the buyer for various grades, and then the grading thus determines what the grower receives.
Farmers had tobacco here from Vance, Franklin, Halifax and Person counties. There were about fifteen in all. Their tobacco, packed in bales, was purchased by the Southeastern Aromatic Tobacco Company at good prices.
While many farmers during the season have observed this leaf in process of cultivation, they were their first opportunity to look in on an actual sale. Now they know how it is carried on.
Agricultural leaders believe more growers here than ever before will plant this type of leaf next year. It does not in any manner interfere with the farmer's flue-cured allotment. It is just another source of income, and a type of tobacco on which there are no restrictions. So far as the farmer is concerned, the sky is the limit. And the price is high, with a substantial net for the year's efforts.
Growers who plant larger acreages next year should find here a welcome addition to the farm income. It may be the answer to the dilemma of reduced flue-cured cultivation. The crop certainly seems to offer a higher return for labor than any other means of diversified farming.

Big Gap Between Sale And Net

By ELMER ROESSNER
There's a big gap between a department store's profit on sales and its net profit.
Take the typical department store with sales from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year. In the year ended January 31, profits on merchandising operations were 2.1 per cent of total sales. But its total profit before taxes was equal to 4.5 per cent of sales.
That leaves the question: where did that 3.4 per cent come from? Some came from real estate operations, an important source since so many department stores are participating in the development of shopping centers. Others own office buildings and other rental property. Some come from charges for services: some from interest charged on installment sales.
And a big chunk comes from leased departments.
STORES WITHIN A STORE
There is no precise figures on profits from leased departments because each store or chain employs a different accounting system. However, Sam Flanely, general manager of the National Retail Merchants Association, estimates profits on leased departments to be considerably less than half of the gains from non-merchandising operations.
Nevertheless, it is important and in some cases makes the difference between profit and loss for a department store.
The average customer probably imagines a department store as a single enterprise. But Mr. Macy doesn't repair the watches. Mr. Scruggs doesn't take hair and Mr. Field doesn't take the studio photos.
A new study by the Controllers' Congress shows that 10 per cent of the departments in a average store are leased and that they generate 8 per cent of the sales.
MOST FREQUENT FIELDS
The study shows that the 10 most frequently leased department are, in this order: beauty

Outlook As To Building

By ROBER BARSON
BARSON PARK, Mass. — Whether you want to own your home, or plan to build, you are interested in the building outlook. You are concerned, too, with how such costs compare with those of five or ten years ago and you want to know the prospects for the future.
COSTS OF BUILDING
Land values have stood up amazingly during the sharp setback met by general business. With few exceptions, land is now selling for as much as or more than it was a year ago. Vacant land well located in relation to the business centers of most cities often commands a premium price, especially if zoning laws permit it to be developed for parking space. Meanwhile, land in the suburbs continues upward in price, as does "close in" farm land. I am bullish about most land. A severe depression could sometime cut land prices, but the long-term trend is for higher prices. Generally speaking, the longer you postpone a given land purchase, the more the land will cost you.
The construction industry is now zooming along in high gear. Despite the business downturn earlier this year, expenditures for residential building for the first seven months were about the same as a year ago. Bolstered by this good consumer demand and by steadily rising wages, construction and building costs are at an all-time high (as measured by an index covering 29 leading cities). Prices of materials for most building materials will continue generally firm or upward.

SHALL I BUILD AN INVESTMENT?
I am not in favor of building — or buying — residential property to be rented as an investment. Such property is usually fairly high in cost and often does not bring in any very large return. It is expensive to maintain and can turn out to be a big headache if unemployment becomes widespread, forcing people to "double up."

A further reason for steering clear of investment in residential rental units is the tax situation. Local taxes on real estate are heading higher. They will make sharp advances during the next few years and rent returns probably cannot be boosted sufficiently to fully offset this additional expenditure. Also, if war should come, rent controls would be invoked promptly; but there would be no ceiling on taxes!

SHALL I BUILD A HOUSE
If you need a new house, and especially if you have children who require more space, then I would advise you to build, or to buy, now. Proper living accommodations are important to health and happiness. So if you need a house now, or a bigger or better one, I say build or buy it. To delay is to cheat yourself. There is a chance you may be able to build or buy for less money at some future time when unemployment may deflate today's high costs. When or if that time comes, however, you may be frightened to build or buy.

Now see their way clear to buying and carrying a single house. I strongly recommend the purchase of a two-family or "duplex" house. The two-family house, if well located and bought under favorable circumstances — and if you live in one half yourself — is one of the best real estate investments you can make. You may think this better care of the property than if you were an absentee landlord.

HOUSES VERSUS LAND
There are two other important points to remember:
1. When you build a house in a good neighborhood, the land should increase in value from the day you move in; but depreciation on the house will begin directly after its construction is completed. Therefore, don't be skippy about the lot. Get as department can draw additional customers to the store.

Among the newer leased departments found in the study are massage equipment, freezer food plan, office machines and typewriters, and fresh meat. It found there were fewer leased optical goods and vacuum cleaner departments.
Other departments sometimes leased include restaurants, appraisal services, auto accessories, furs, musical instruments, radio-TV, phonographs, stamps and coins, and electric razors. Copies of the study can be obtained from the Controllers' Congress, 101 W. 31 St., New York 1, at $7.
DISTILLERS DIVIDED ON GIFT DECANTERS
The liquor industry is divided. About half the major distillers will bring out gift decanters for Christmas; about half will rely on Christmas packaging. However, almost all are counting on a big year and are planning to realize maximum sales with heavy advertising.

Raft Sails From Coast To Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — An adventurous Mormon elder and his three young crewmen—who drifted to Hawaii from California aboard the raft Levi IVK—fly here today from the island of Maui.

Skipper De Vere Baker, 42, boat-builder from Petaluma, Calif., near San Francisco, will be reunited with his wife Nola and three children, who are flying from the mainland.

The raft arrived off Maui Saturday afternoon after a 69-day voyage from Long Beach, 2,100 miles to the east. When Baker and his bearded crew and their dog Targoraa were sighted, they were down to their last four cans of spinach and two loaves of bread.

The raft was towed into port at Kahului by a tuna boat. All the mariners were in good condition. Asked what his trip proved, Baker told newsmen: "The Coast Guard put it very nicely when they congratulated us on proving Hawaiians thousands of years ago came from the Americas, the same way we did."

The voyage was a shakedown, preparatory to a raft expedition from the Persian Gulf next year. Baker hopes to prove that the prehistoric settlers of Central America drifted on crude craft from the Middle East. The Book of Mormon relates that the prophet Lehi used rafts to move the Lost Tribes of Israel from the Red Sea.

With Baker were Larry Fogline, 31, a UCLA psychologist; Don McFarland, 27, University of New Mexico student; and Ed Kekaula, 27, a Brigham Young University dental student.

Earlier attempts by Baker to drift to Hawaii had failed.

Distortion, Falsehood Charged Harry Truman

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republican National Committee today accused former President Harry S. Truman of what it called five distortions and falsehoods in three campaign speeches last week.

GOP Chairman Meade ALCORN at the same time challenged the No. 1 Democratic campaigner to explain to Northern audiences "why Southern Democrats are closing public schools rather than obeying the law."

The Republicans, reacting to Truman's utterances last week in Albany, N. Y., Atlantic City, N. J., and New York City, issued what they called a "Truman vs. the Truth Fact Sheet."

"Harry Truman hit the campaign trail last week and, as usual, left behind him in each city a mountain-sized pile of distortions, half-truths and outright, deliberate falsehoods designed to deceive Americans," ALCORN said in a statement. He said the sheet was issued "to correct Mr. Truman's major misstatements."

The GOP document listed the following Truman statements and Republican retorts:

Truman — The Republicans in Washington are following economic policies designed to prevent full production.

Republicans — Even after the mild spring business downturn, America's gross national production in this peacetime year is about 100 billion dollars more than at the height of the Truman Korean War year of 1952.

Truman — They want a little unemployment. It helps 'keep labor in its place.'

Republicans — More Americans are at work today earning more than at any time under a Democrat administration, and this has been accomplished without the periodic Democrat stimulus of a major war.

Truman — They want to hold wages down. They think it makes for higher profits.

Republicans — Personal income is now at a record peak, more than 26 per cent above Truman's best result.

Truman — The idea that Democrats are extravagant and that Republicans are economical is a

In The Clink Due To 'Inner Voice'

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Kyle's inner voice has landed him in the clink again.

Kyle, 39, sent 2½ hours searching for a detective squad. He finally found one.

"It's my conscience again," he said. "Please lock me up. I have robbed two homes."

The detectives acquiesced. They also checked and learned that the two homes Kyle mentioned had been broken into.

Kyle said he has served prison terms in Boston, New Jersey, Texas and Alabama for grand larceny and burglary.

"Each time that inner voice—my conscience—made me give myself up," he moaned. "It has cost me 10 years and my career."

Station WELL Helps Listeners Get That Way

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The world's first complete closed-circuit hospital broadcasting station, including television and radio reception in one unit with individual pillow speakers for patients, is operating at Milwaukee Misericordia Hospital.

Called the Televue, the system was developed by The Dahlberg Co., a Minneapolis hearing aid and electronics manufacturer. Operated from a master console, the station includes facilities for tape recordings, records and piped-in programs. It's call letters: WELL.

Misericordia's administrator, Sister Superior Marie De Liese, said the installation has proved to be "a very worthwhile therapy," particularly with children and surgical patients.

"Before an operation," a patient said, "You feel like you're about to flip. But now you flip from channel to channel."

The pillow speakers have finger-touch controls for TV channels and radio station selection.

Hold Services For Luther King

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Several Negro churches at Montgomery held prayer services Sunday for the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro integration leader who was stabbed in New York Saturday.

Prof. Roosevelt D. Crockett of Alabama State College conducted services at the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church where King is pastor. Crockett urged the congregation to "turn to the scriptures for sustenance of the soul."

Several members of the congregation were crying during the service.

King, who led the successful Negro boycott of segregated buses here in 1956, was reported on the critical list at a hospital in New York.

Bethel Rotary Told Of Worldwide Role Toward More Understanding

BETHEL — Rotary Clubs in one hundred ten (110) countries and geographical regions throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace. That was the message of W. Jesse Moyer, Governor of District 773 of Rotary International, in addressing the Rotary Club of Bethel Sept. 16, following a conference with local Rotary officers and Committee Chairmen.

In addition to the activities of the more than 9,800 Rotary Clubs within their own communities to promote this objective, Moyer explained, Rotary International has awarded grants of more than $2,600,000 in the past eleven years through its program of student fellowships, which enables outstanding college graduates to study for one year in countries other than their own, as Rotary ambassadors of good will. Since 1947, when this program was established, 1,076 Rotary Foundation Fellowships have been awarded to students in sixty-five countries for study in forty-three countries. Robert Kennell of New Bern is the Rotary Fellow for District 773 and is studying at the University of Melbourne, Melbourne, Australia.

In his talk, Moyer emphasized the theme, "Help Shape The Future". This is the theme to be stressed this year by Clifton Randall, President of Rotary International. Moyer gave suggestions as to how each individual club in District 773 could meet the high standards of Rotary and in doing so "Help Shape The Future."

Moyer urged local Rotarians to attend the Rotary district conference to be held in Greenville, date to be announced, and to make plans for the club to be well represented at the fiftieth Annual Convention of Rotary International, which will be held in New York City next June.

School Break-In Suspect Nabbed

A county man was arrested yesterday morning in connection with a break-in at the Fleming Street School.

Levey Council 15-year-old Negro of Greenville Route 1 was picked up shortly after the break-in was reported. He was arrested while sitting in a car on Fleming Street.

Council was reportedly seen entering the school building. Later he was identified by a woman who lives near the scene. Officers quoted her as saying she saw Council walk up to the door, force a lock and enter the school.

A 10-foot ladder was removed from the building. Police found it lying in front of the building. Nothing else was missing.

Charged with breaking and entering and larceny, Council is presently in City Jail in lieu of a $200 bond.

School Reform Proposal From Khrushchev Has Strange Angle

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst

One of Nikita Khrushchev's unadmitted purposes in proposing a radical reform of the Soviet school system is to liquidate universities as centers of intellectual ferment among Soviet youths.

He proposes to do this by turning them for the most part into night and correspondence schools.

The Moscow press announced yesterday that the Presidium of the Central Committee has approved Khrushchev's "work while you study" scheme, to be put into effect over the next three or four years. The full membership of the Central Committee and the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, will be called upon to endorse it later.

One purpose in the proposed change is economic. It will make it possible for the Kremlin to mobilize for manual labor millions of boys and girls from 14 to 17 years of age. The mobilization will help make up for the impending acute shortage of young men and women due to the drop during World War II in the birth rate.

Without adoption of something like this school measure, there would be about five million fewer young people entering the labor force and armed forces in the next five years than in the last five.

Under the Khrushchev plan, after the seventh or eighth grade almost all children, except those exceptionally gifted and intended to become scientists, will be put to work at manual labor on farms and in factories. They will be forced to continue schooling, if at all, at night classes and by correspondence.

Political motives behind the plan are probably stronger than economic.

During 1956 under the de-Stalinization program advanced that year by Khrushchev there was a letup in repression. As a result much discontent with Communist

Rescue Youth On Mountain Ledge

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Mountain climbers and state police yesterday rescued a young New York climber who tumbled 25 feet to a ledge in the rugged Sandia Mountains.

William Pinch, 18, a University of New Mexico student, and a companion, Sidney Pascua, 18, of Puerto Rico, fell while climbing the craggy face of the mountain about 12 miles east of here.

Pinch, of Rochester, N. Y., was trapped on the ledge 8,000 feet above the valley. Pascua dragged an injured leg to the top and called state police.

Pascua declined medical attention. Pinch was held for observation. He suffered only cuts and bruises.

dictatorship came to light among Soviet university students.

The Kremlin's answer to the problem, expressed in various shifts during the last two years and now particularly in this new over-all change, is to abolish universities as places where large numbers of students study and live together for periods of five years and more. From now on if he is hard-working enough to complete two to three years of high school and three years of higher education at night and correspondence courses the ordinary Soviet youth desirous of completing his higher education may, if he is lucky, be given a leave of absence for only two years of full-time study at a university.

Wind Up Test Of Strain Today

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two specialists were to finish a 10-day test today aimed at seeing how men react to the stresses of space flight.

Dr. Bruno Balke and M. Sgt. Samuel Karst underwent simulated emergencies, high temperatures and humidity, low oxygen and high carbon dioxide conditions. The chamber they lived and worked in was kept at a simulated 16,000-foot altitude.

After leaving the chamber today, they faced blood tests and performance work tests. Results will be compared with those taken by the two men before entering the space cabin 10 days ago.

Many Troops On Off-Shore China Islands Today

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nationalist China apparently has increased the size of its forces on the off-shore islands by more than 25 per cent since last spring.

At that time, Chiang Kai-shek was estimated to have approximately 75,000 regular army forces manning garrisons on Quemoy, Matsu and the smaller islands in both areas. Today's estimate is slightly over 100,000.

The estimate for Big Quemoy is 80,000 soldiers. The total civilian population in that island is believed to be about 40,000. Quemoy is the focal point for Communist attack, hammered daily by siege guns from the nearby Red mainland, with the primary purpose of attempting to stop or seriously restrict arrival of supplies.

The apparent increase of forces was made before the Reds suddenly opened their artillery — and political — offensive against Quemoy.

Why did Chiang send more troops to the exposed positions? The only completely official interpretation here has come from President Eisenhower. In a news conference last month, Eisenhower said that about a third of the Nationalist forces are deployed on the islands west of Formosa and the nearby Pescadores.

Eisenhower said then that the deployment of the forces through the off-shore islands "makes a closer interlocking" between the defense systems of Formosa and the off-shore islands. Before that, said the President, the off-shore islands were largely thought of as outposts.

"Now apparently, the thing, the philosophy" is to hold the whole complex of islands as "part of the

State Of Economy Appears Big Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state of the nation's economy appeared today to be emerging as the No. 1 "big boys" cut back spending and raised interest rates "and the recession was on."

Top Republicans and Democrats covered a wide range of controversial subjects in weekend campaigning. But argument over what caused this year's business recession and whether it is yet ended provided the principal theme of party disagreement.

Democrats took the offensive on this line in speeches by former President Truman and Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.). They laid the blame for the economic slump and increased unemployment on President Eisenhower's doorstep.

Republican National Chairman Meade ALCORN contended in Lansing, Mich., that "virtually every economic indicator points to the fact that we are well along the road to recovery."

He said this "leaves the panic-button pushers way out in left field again." ALCORN's position paralleled that in a speakers' handbook put out over the weekend by the GOP National Committee. The handbook said there were "minor downturns" in economic activity in 1953-54 and 1957-58.

But it added: "They were overcome by timely and moderate government action without resort to lavish spending or New Deal programs. The downturn of 1957-58 (chiefly a decline in durable goods) stopped in April 1958. By the end of July one-third of the decline in industrial production had been made up."

Truman told a Democratic audience in Charleston, W. Va., "it is a serious thing to say that the Republicans deliberately planned territory from which they hope to make their living," Eisenhower said.

the Democrats will gain their biggest majority in Congress in 20 years.

Kerr said in Indianapolis, Ind., "wishful thinkers" are claiming the recession is over. But he said it isn't over for the nearly five million persons who still are unemployed.

He said that "countless millions throughout the land bear witness that it has been the Republican policies of Dwight D. Eisenhower that produced the critical and unnecessary recession of 1958."

By BILLY ARNOLD

Poor Ole Jim Tatum just can't seem to get started on his first North Carolina powerhouse.

Every year since he returned to Chapel Hill to liberate the Tarheels from the gridiron, the beer and fraternity set has been predicting that Carolina is on the rise. Opponents have been tying down the goalposts and hiding the football! The Baby Blue And White have been on the march! Drag out the old flasks and dust off the old fight songs that have gone flat since Choo Choo left! Beat the drum, Tatum has come, to make Carolina number one!

And quiet ole Earle Edwards just keeps on rolling along and poor ole N. C. State just keeps on squashing the Tar Heels year after year.

It's enough to make a man take to drink. Or, in UNC's case, enough to make a drinking man quit.

WHERE WAS PERRY?

Where was Bobby Perry Saturday night when East Carolina was getting drubbed in the second and third quarters by Presbyterian?

On the bench.
Was he hurt?
No.
Oh.

WHO SAID BAPTISTS CAN'T DANCE

Who said Baptists can't dance? Wake Forest sure waltzed circles around Tommy Mont's Maryland Terrapins Saturday afternoon.

And reports from Baptist's Hollow indicate that the Deacons may do some rocking and rolling when they hit Carolina and Duke.

But the game to look forward to is the match between Wake Forest and N. C. State. It'll probably be the dang-busting battle ever staged between two low-totem-pole teams.

LOTS OF SOPHS AND FRESH

When Greenville romped on Kinston 25-7 here Friday night, about 3,000 fans and several scouts from opposing teams got an eyeful of some sharp sophomore and freshman talent from Rose High School.

Spotted among the crowd were a scout from one of the Northern-most Northeastern Conference clubs and the one from Washington who is called Peter Rabbit. The most obvious man on the field was a skinny 135-pound Greenville freshman named Alan McArthur who threw one touchdown pass, ran another touchdown, and jogged off yardage from his halfback position all night.

The scouts didn't get a chance to see Greenville's regular halfback at that post because he was hurt.

Another star was sophomore quarterback Erky Duff.

And there were others. Ask Kinston.

Coach Edwards Is 'Not Surprised'

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State football Coach Earle Edwards, apparently the only man not surprised by his team's victory over North Carolina, has started preparing for Saturday's tussle with Maryland.

Discussing State's 21-14 upset Saturday over the heavily favored Tar Heels, Edwards said, "The victory was no surprise to us. We had a strong feeling that we were going to do real well."

It was State's triumph along with a 34-0 shellacking by underdog Wake Forest over Maryland that upset the pre-season Atlantic Coast Conference form charts at the opening run.

North Carolina was tabbed as a team to beat in the conference and Maryland was the most highly rated darkhorse contender.

Speaking to reporters yesterday at his first weekly post game news conference, Edwards credited his team's recent personnel setbacks as one factor in the Wolfpack victory.

"In view of the discouraging things which happened to us, our boys made up their minds that they were going to play that much harder," he said.

State lost the services of center Paul Balonick when he suffered a broken leg during practice and only Friday the team learned first string quarterback Ernie Driscoll had been declared ineligible.

Sophomore Bill Hill played a stellar game filling in at center, and senior Frank Cackovic took over for Driscoll at the signal-calling post.

"I was real proud of Cackovic," Edwards said. "He did a fine job on such short notice. He called a fine game."

Another standout was halfback Ken Trowbridge who broke loose for touchdown runs of 15 and 20 yards.

Edwards said Maryland, which may come into Riddick Stadium here next Saturday with the disposition of a wounded lion, will be ready. "We've got a tough game coming up and we'll have to work real hard."

'Sceptre' Hoping For More Wind

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP) — The hopes of Britain's proud Sceptre rode with the winds today.

If the promised 15-to-20-mile-an-hour southwest gusts which the weatherman promised, materialized, the British crew figured they had a chance to get back in the America's Cup competition.

They already are one-down, having lost last Saturday's opening race. Three more defeats and the coveted cup stays right here where it has rested for more than 100 years.

The only trouble, stiff winds also are bread and butter for Columbia, the 12-metre class yacht that is the American defender.

Presbyterian College rocked East Carolina 24-16 here Saturday night before a crowd of 5,000.

The visitors from South Carolina got revenge for a 6-0 defeat at the hands of the Bucs in the last game of the 1957 season.

It was a sweet 24-0 revenge until ECC halfback Bobby Perry was turned loose in the fourth quarter to spark the Pirates to two quick touchdowns.

Perry galloped through the hard-hitting Blue Hose line for 18 yards and one touchdown and caught a 23-yard pass from quarterback Ralph Zehring for the second. The scores came within four minutes of each other.

But Presbyterian started its attack early—scoring twice in the second quarter and once again in the third and fourth quarters—to grab the victory.

The loss is East Carolina's first of the new season and levels the Buccaneer record to 1-1.

Savage Attack

The Presbyterian attack—a T-formation geared to accommodate 190-pound fullback Bob Matthews—was a savage one which blasted big holes in the ECC front wall all night. The Blue Hose concentrated on power plays through the outer edges of the line and picked up constant yardage on handoffs to Matthews and both halfbacks.

Bobby Pate raced 21 yards for the first PC touchdown of the evening in the second quarter, after ECC's George Turner delivered a weak punt. The PC club worked its way down to the scoring position on a 34-yard march.

Shortly afterwards, defensive halfback Tony Benson grabbed a Zehring pass and scooted 55 yards for the second tally of the night.

In the third quarter, Presbyterian took the kickoff and moved 57 yards for a score. Matthews bucked through the line from the two-yard line to score the TD.

In the fourth quarter, PC again got a drive started and rolled 37 yards to scoring position. Bob Waters cracked through the right side of the ECC line for the fourth touchdown.

With several minutes of the fourth quarter already gone, the Blue Hose had a 24-0 lead. Moments after the fourth touchdown, the Presbyterian club had the ball again and was threatening another march.

Gordon Gets Two

Then ECC defensive guard James Gordon pounced on an enemy fumble on the Presbyterian 27 to give East Carolina the ball and their best scoring opportunity of the evening. Two plays netted the Bucs nine yards and Greenville halfback Bobby Perry took a handoff 18 yards, the rest of the distance, for ECC's first touchdown. Perry was hit three times on the short jaunt and was almost brought down on the seven, but he managed to wriggle free for the rest of the yardage.

A pass from Zehring to end Randall Holmes was good for the two-point conversion. It was 24-8.

Shortly after that, Gordon barreled through to fall on another Presbyterian loose ball on the PC 23. ECC quarterback Jerry Carpenter tried two plays and lost yardage. Then, Zehring went back into the lineup and fired a pass to Perry on the third down. Perry caught the ball on outstretched fingertips on the run and bounded into the end zone with a tackler around his neck.

Another pass from Zehring to Holmes added two more points. It was 24-16.

It ended that way.

Outstanding for PC offensively was Matthews, a rangy hard-running ball carrier, ECC's bright spots on offense were supplied by Perry's elusive running and the passing of Ralph Zehring and booting of Randall Holmes.

Defensively, the Pirates had little in the way of bright moments. But end Bill Cain, guard James Gordon, and halfbacks Glenn Bass and Perry were standouts.

Two More At Home

Next week, East Carolina will have another home tilt with Guilford, it will mark ECC's first ball game against a North State Conference opponent this season, following that, on Oct. 4, Catawba will be in Greenville for another league game.

Last year ECC had a 0-5 mark against North State competition.

Braves 'Own' Milwaukee And National Flag

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Today the Milwaukee Braves own this town—lock, stock and beer barrel.

Horn-toting home town fans whooped it up yesterday evening, pausing only to welcome the National League champions when they flew in from Cincinnati.

The celebration started in Cincinnati's Crosley Field yesterday afternoon immediately after world champion Braves clinched their pennant with a 6-5 victory over the Redlegs.

The triumph made the Braves hosts for the New York Yankees in the start of the World Series Oct. 1.

In Milwaukee, fans took to their cars to tout their way down Wisconsin Avenue, Milwaukee's main street.

The main celebration reached a climax at General Mitchell Field, where a crowd estimated at 14,000 jammed the passenger terminal to greet the Braves.

Police estimated another 15,000 lined the route to the airport, although there was no motorcade of players in the plans.

First man off the chartered airliner was Manager Fred Haney, who jokingly declared, "Folks, it was never in doubt; we had it all the way."

This brought shouts of laughter from the fans, who had waited tensely while their Braves battled in recent weeks to escape the hot pursuit of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The players' wives and children joined them outside the terminal before the crowds surged onto the concrete apron and engulfed the Braves.

Corks popped from champagne bottles which Braves owner Vincent Perini had kept on ice every since last Friday—waiting for the pennant clincher.

Players alternately gulped at the champagne and poured it over each other.

In recent years Atlantic Coast Conference basketball coaches have insisted that theirs was one of the most evenly balanced leagues in the nation. They've held that compiling an outstanding won-lost record and gaining high national ranking was exceedingly difficult, with any of the eight teams capable of bumping off a family foe.

Apparently that situation has come about in conference football competition.

Last Saturday's results indicate a marked trend toward beeping up the erstwhile lower bracket boys.

Wake Forest and North Carolina State may have established a trend that if continued may produce fewer so-called upsets as the teams become more evenly matched and fewer one-sided favorites are designated.

Wake Forest moved against Maryland mired in a 12-game losing streak. At best, the Deacons were two-touchdown underdogs.

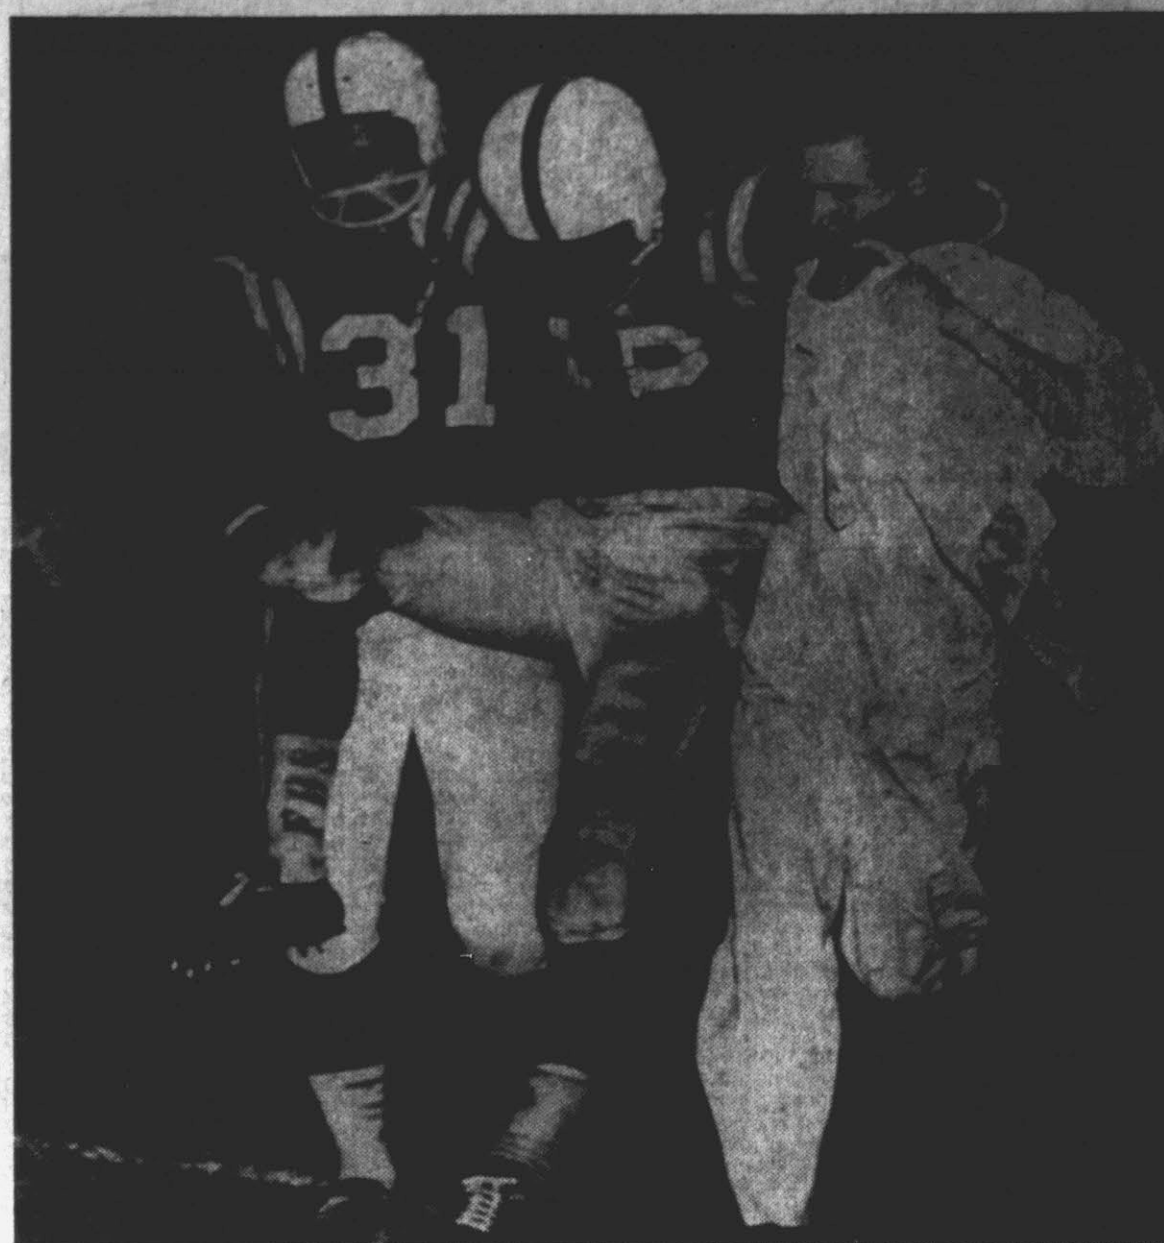

Tommy Mont's Maryland club had been tabbed as a dark horse in the ACC race.

Instead, the dark horse looked more like a worn out old nag in front of a brewery wagon as the dashing Deacons demolished the Terps 34-0.

North Carolina State, minus its All-America halfback Dick Christy and most other 1957 starters who had swept to the conference title, was figured to be respectable this season, but hardly in the same class as North Carolina, rated No. 10 only a week ago in the pre-season Associated Press national poll.

So, the State team turned five fumble recoveries into three touchdowns and beat the Tar Heels 21-14.

While all this was going on,

While all this was going on,

Clemson, rated co-favorite with

North Carolina, had the battle of its life before storming from behind twice to finally put down Virginia 20-15.

Further pointing up the new and scrambled-look of the conference was the Saturday night windup of the dizzy day in which South Carolina scored early and held on for an 8-0 victory over Duke.

The ACC is starting its sixth season. Through the first three years only Duke and Maryland won football titles. Duke winning one and sharing two crowns with Maryland.

Clemson broke the monopoly in 1956 and last year North Carolina State swept the marbles.

For the first five years Duke shows a 21-2-1 record in ACC play; Maryland is 17-5-2 and Clemson 13-8-1. North Carolina is just over 500 at 15-14-1. None of the four other teams has managed to at least break even against its conference rivals. But three of them won Saturday and the fourth, Virginia, winner of only three of 17 ACC games through last season, missed a major upset by a whisker.

The carnage continues this week with three conference games Saturday afternoon. Heading the list is the one sending North Carolina to Clemson. This is the game observers said in August might well decide the title. While still of major importance, it appears that some other teams in the league will have something to say about the matter of the championship.

Duke seeks to "get well" at Virginia and Maryland plays at North Carolina State. Maryland goes into the game minus the services of senior starting halfback Ted Kershner. He suffered a left shoulder separation in the Wake Forest disaster. A year ago he was the Terps' top runner, averaging 5.5 yards for 41 carries.

One Could Argue About 'Reduced' Living Cost

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—If the government wants to start an argument with the American housewife and the family breadwinner all it has to do is tell them the cost of living has gone down.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says this has just happened to its consumer price index for the first time in two years.

It says the drop came in the price of foods, which carry 30 per cent of the weight of the index.

A housewife has no trouble telling her husband of a number of foods whose prices haven't gone down at all, and some whose prices have just gone up.

And perhaps he belongs to a union whose wage contract has an escalator clause giving him a raise if the bureau had said the index had gone up. Often he can't see that it's any easier making ends meet now than a couple of months back. It may even seem harder.

The index, in fact, shows rises in the costs of transportation, housing, medical care and recreation.

The bureau is aware of the misunderstanding that arises from over-emphasizing the importance or conclusiveness of its index.

Its food component, for example, consists of 80 items, while the average supermarket is said to offer 6,000 food items.

The bureau also knows that a family's tastes and shopping ability can determine to quite an extent how much its food bill goes up or down.

The index as revised in 1953 includes 220 things other than food. It is the bureau's best guess as to what the average family of wage earners and clerical workers in U. S. cities pay for in the way of goods and services.

The families covered represent about 40 per cent of the population—taking in neither those making more than $10,000 a year nor those in the lowest brackets, and leaving out farm families or those in small cities and towns.

Each item is weighted both as to the amount purchased and the frequency of purchase, trying to strike a balance for the family budget over a period of time. That is why the 80 food items carry such a big weight (30 per cent) and why a rise in public transit fares weighs more than a hike in the price of autos.

In the last two years the cost of living index has gone up 6 per cent and about two thirds of the rise has been due to the rising cost of services and the increased cost of eating.

Some of the items on the index are considered luxuries by many persons. The bureau isn't interested in that. It simply says that its research in setting up and revising the index has shown that they are bought by the average middle income family in the cities.

Once a month it sends shoppers around to price the 300 items in the stores, at the dealers, or in the offices and shops that service the people. Then it gives each price change its weight and averages it all out.

This time it says fresh fruits and vegetables came down enough seasonally to more than offset the rises in other items.

So the headlines tell you the cost of living is down, no matter what your billfold or bank account shows.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why are English actresses cast as Southern belles?

"For the life of me, I don't know," says Margaret Leighton, the latest of them. She's as English as Yorkshire pudding, but she has been brought here to play a Southern lady in the film version of William Faulkner's "The Sound and the Fury."

She follows a tradition. Vivien Leigh bested a bevy of droning actresses to play Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind" and was convincing enough to land an Oscar. Gertrude Lawrence won another plum role as the mother in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," though her portrayal was not quite so convincing.

Then Miss Leigh returned here to play the decaying Blanche DuBois in "A Streetcar Named Desire," and blundered if she didn't win another Oscar.

Miss Leighton's casting is the work of movie mastermind Jerry Wald. More than a year ago, he visited her backstage at the Glass Menagerie, where she was helping light up the Great White Way in "Separate Tables." He mentioned "The Sound and the Fury," but she forgot about it.

Recently, he contacted her in England. It happened that she was free, and her husband, Laurence Harvey, was coming to the U. S. to tour with the Old Vic Company. So she agreed to her first journey to Hollywood.

"I must say I was a little worried about handling the accent," she admitted. "People have told me that the Southern and British accents are not far different, but I don't see it at all. The Southern is lax and drawn out; the British is about as clipped as the language can be."

"I asked Vivien Leigh for some advice and she said it was easy. All you had to remember was 'foah-doh fohd cah' (four-door Ford car). I tried it, but it didn't help at all."

No stranger to American audiences is Miss Leighton, though this is her first American film. She is constantly the star of the late, late show on TV, and her old films haunt her.

Historical Novel of the Old West ELIZABETH, BY NAME BY WILL COOK

© 1958, Will Cook. Reprinted by arrangement with Dodd, Mead and Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 12

Elizabeth looked at Tom, working the long blade of his knife across an Arkansas stone. "Are you speaking to me, Tom?" "Howdy," he said and did not look up. "When we leavin'?" "When Mr. Masterson gets back," Elizabeth said. "Of the cavalry patrol who went out to see if they could find a trace of your father?" "They won't find nothin'," Tom said flatly.

"Now you don't know anything of the kind," Elizabeth said firmly. "Tom, you've got to stop this brooding." He went on working the knife across the stone and this irritated her beyond reason.

"What am I going to do with a boy like that?" she asked this of Mobette Jake.

"Give him his head," Jake said. "He's got it in for Masterson."

"He looked at the boy and smiled. 'Kind of itchin' to be a man, ain't ye? I was the same way when I was your age. Couldn't wait until I could whip my old man. Knew I'd be a man one day I done it. Thirteen at the time. Took a single-tree to him. Heard later that I dang near killed him; I wasn't sorry. No more, not one bit. This was all buff'd country when I saw it the first time. Had to kill 'em out of the way to make a place for me to sit down. But she was my meat, by Johnny, and I liked livin' with the hair on my back, and I've been backed down a few times, too. It's a give and take world, sonny, and a man's liable to bleed a little both ways."

"Just what did you tell Lieutenant Burkhauser when I was in the hospital?" Elizabeth asked. "I want a straight answer from you, Tom."

"I wouldn't lie to you," he said. "I told him that Masterson and Garrett didn't even try to find pa when the storm cut loose. They were more interested in you because you wear skirts."

"Why, Tom Rettig?" She was genuinely shocked and her face took on color.

"Well it's so. Pa always said so."

With an effort she kept from slapping him; she was angry. She took a deep breath. "Tom, that isn't the reason they stayed, is it?" She touched him on the shoulder and he stayed stiff and unbending beneath her hand.

"Tom, we've got to forget and go on living out our own lives. We'll go back to Mustang Creek, down where the cottonwoods grow and we'll build a new place. You and I and your sisters. Can I count on you to be the man in your father's place?"

He looked at her then, steadily, and for a long moment. "I'll go," he said. "I'll go because I ain't big enough to do anything else. But one of these days I'll be big enough to do as I please. When that day comes, I'm goin', and you won't stop me."

Mobette Jake frowned and said, "Son, that's a lot of big talk from such a little man. You ain't heavy enough for such talk."

"We'll see," Tom Rettig snapped and stepped to the door.

"Where are you going?" Elizabeth asked.

"Out! Any fool can see that!" He slammed the door and Elizabeth moved to follow him, but Mobette Jake put out his hand and stopped her.

"Let the boy go. Let him run it out. Let his system. Better than beatin' it out of him."

"But what if he don't run it out?"

Mobette Jake scratched his whiskers. "Then the beatin' wouldn't have made the difference. It just makes a good boy sullen and a bad boy worse."

Elizabeth took little pleasure in the knowledge that she would have to wait at least ten days at Camp Supply, until Bat Masterson and Pat Garrett returned. Tom Rettig spent his time absorbing Mobette Jake's wealth of lore, both Indian and plains-craft.

Elizabeth had a free run of the post, and to her relief, the tobacco-chewing man finally departed; he had called the times at Jake's adobe, and had the door slammed in his face. His name was Justin Allen and he kept insisting that he would do right by any pretty little gal who wanted to be his wife.

On the fifth day, Lieutenant Harry Butler returned with his patrol; when he saw Elizabeth he stared, then turned the detail over to his sergeant and ran to her. Before she could stop him, he lifted her off her feet, whirled her about, then killed her before putting her down. She agreed to have supper with him, to tell him everything that had happened.

Another patrol was making up and Mobette Jake gathered his gear, intending to scout the mission. Tom Rettig wanted to go alone, but he saw home, and when Tom sassed her, she took a strap to him, but he went anyway.

She was in a depressed frame of mind when she walked across the parade ground to Harry Butler's quarters, and Butler, being a sensitive man, held to his silence until she wanted to talk.

Elizabeth said, "Harry, I'm glad you're back. Really glad."

"Are you?" He smiled. "I couldn't believe my eyes when I looked across the parade and saw you standing there."

He reached across the table and took her hand. "Maybe I can help now. I want to, Elizabeth."

"I worry about the boy," she said.

Harry Butler stroked his mustache. "Ah, that wasn't exactly what I meant."

"He needs a man's hand," she said. "A boy can take punishment from a man when it would be intolerable from a woman."

"What do you want me to do, Elizabeth? Be a father to him? I'm not very good with words but I'll try to make myself understood. Tom is not your son. I know, with his father dead, the responsibility of caring for the girls and him is yours, but a man would think twice before he accepted it. I'm an army man, and I'll stay army; I like it. As I see it, he'll be old enough to join next year, as a bugler. My advice is to let him join, and let the army have the responsibility of straightening him out."

"Harry, I don't want him to be in the army."

"Is there something wrong with it?"

She pressed her hand against her cheek. "No, there's nothing wrong with it." She leaned back in the chair and looked around the small room. The walls were stick and mud, calcimined to give the impression of finish. The bunks were against the far wall, the straw ticking on one rolled up, blankets folded on top.

"Finley Burkhauser's," Butler said. "You met him, huh?"

"Yes," she said, smiling. "We met." Then she looked at Butler and found him watching her, a frown on his face. "Something the matter?"

"The smile," he said. "Women always smile like that when they mention Finley Burkhauser."

He lifted his coffee cup. "Mind you, I like Finley, but he's not what I call a stable man. Too restless."

"You sound jealous, Harry."

He met her eyes briefly and colored. "I do at that, don't I? Comes so easy for Finley and so hard for me." Then he sighed and patted his pockets for a cigar. He bent over the table lamp for his light. "You're going back to Mustang Creek?"

"You don't you advise it?"

"You know the answer to that," Butler said. "Elizabeth, why can't you stay here? I could arrange it for awhile; then you could make it permanent."

Faubus, Chandler Stand At Opposite Poles In South

By BELMAN MORIN

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus ploughed through the crowd. It was slow going. People kept pressing forward to shake his hand, both men and women, from many parts of the South. They were saying: "Fine work, governor. . . . Want to tell you how proud I am. . . . Don't you give in, governor."

Faubus was beaming. "Well, thank you very much," he kept repeating as he headed for the door.

This took place at a dinner, preceding the opening of the Southern Governors Conference.

But in another room of the high-ceilinged mansion, Kentucky's Gov. A. B. Chandler was saying: "It won't take very long for public sentiment to build up to a point where they'll have to get those schools open. I think it will build up rapidly. People in those places are already having second thoughts, now that the schools are closed."

Faubus has closed the high schools in Little Rock, Ark., to keep Negroes from enrolling.

Chandler brought about integration in Kentucky and he is proud of the way it was handled.

Which man represents the Southern feeling?

It is hard to say. Perhaps each represents different prisms of its many sides.

Integration is not on the conference agenda. But when the 14 governors get through trading notes, an accurate picture could emerge.

Chandler said, for example, "They're a lot more willing to talk about it this year. That's a sign in itself."

Chandler said he thinks a change of heart is taking place now that Southerners confront the fact of shuttered schools in Arkansas and Virginia.

But Mississippi's Gov. James P. Coleman doesn't see it that way. "Our people are overwhelmingly in favor of the closing of the schools. That includes the Negroes because in Mississippi the Negroes don't think its any badge of shame to have and operate their own schools."

A member of a state delegation, who asked not to be identified, said, "Sentiment against integration is harder now, and its going to get still harder, whether the schools stay closed or not."

Most of the governors were not talking yet.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market eased below its record peak in heavy trading early this afternoon.
Leading stocks declined irregularly with motors very actively traded. Rails and steels also were brisk.
Losses were mostly fractional among key stocks, stretching to about a point in some instances. A minority of gainers moved in about the same range.
Most automotive stocks were steady to higher. Chrysler was off a fraction as labor talks continued. Steels dropped slightly and rails were mixed.

A lower trend prevailed among rubbers, aircrafts, utilities, oils, airlines and tobaccos. Chemicals, nonferrous metals, airlines and tobaccos trended lower.
A feature was the performance of Zenith which rose more than 3 in a resumption of a recent high-flying pattern then plummeted, showing a high of about 6. The firm's president denied rumors of a stock split and a merger while reporting excellent sales.

Another highlight was Glenmore Distilleries on the American Stock Exchange. Glenmore was off 30 cents more than an hour in opening as buyers swamped the trading facilities. It opened on 4.00 shares, up 2½ to 19, later clipping this gain by around a point.
U.S. Gypsum rose more than a point, DuPont around 2 and Divco-Wayne about a point. Fracor gains were made by General Motors, Studebaker-Packard, Kennecott, Pennsylvania Railroad, Union Carbide and Westinghouse Electric.

Losses of about a point were taken by Paper, General Electric and Gulf Oil. Chance Vought was active and about a point higher. Santa Fe rose ¼ to 25½ on a block of 15,000 shares.
The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 30 cents to $192.20 from the industrial down 20 cents, the rails unchanged and the utilities down 30 cents.

Clear 500,000 Acres Of Fireants In New Program

By DILLON GRAHAM
WASHINGTON (AP) — About 500,000 acres of land in the Southeast have been cleared of fireants since the Agriculture Department began its eradication program a year ago this month, a USDA spokesman said today.
"We are pleased with the results," said Dr. M. R. Clarkson, deputy administrator of the Agriculture Research Service. He supervises the program.
Much of the land treated with granulated insecticides has been on the northern fringe of the infested areas. This includes land in North and South Carolina, Northern Georgia, Northern Louisiana, southern Arkansas and in Alabama regions north of Birmingham. Additionally, some eradication work has been done in the hard-core areas in the southern parts of Alabama, Georgia and Louisiana where infestation is more concentrated.
Fireants, the USDA says, cause "annually millions of dollars in damages by destroying sprouting crops, building housing operations and by attacking new-born livestock and wildlife."
However, some observers doubt that the fireants cause all this damage, oppose the USDA's eradication methods and question whether the eradication program is worth the millions of dollars the federal government will have to spend.
Opponents say the fireant cannot be totally eradicated, is a nuisance but is not ruinous to crops, and contend that charges that it attacks wildlife are unfounded.
Clarkson expressed some surprise at these comments.
"The reports we have from landowners in the areas treated say they are pleased with the results," Clarkson said. "I don't recall any critical letters from landowners but we have received many unsolicited letters praising the program."
Clarkson said, however, there has been considerable criticism, chiefly from conservation organizations, expressing apprehension that the spreading of insecticides may do damage to wildlife.
Landowners themselves have paid all the costs of treating about one-fourth of the 500,000 acres already cleared, he said. It costs a minimum of $4 an acre for eradication, with the USDA generally paying half and the landowners along with state or local interests paying the remainder.
The USDA originally estimated that some 20 to 27 million acres

Pose Strike Threat For Chrysler, GM

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union with a strike threat poised over General Motors and Chrysler, today resumed efforts to have the two companies sweeten their contract offers and avert a walkout.
GM and Chrysler offered to the UAW Saturday three-year contracts almost identical to the one which Ford and the UAW agreed on Wednesday.
UAW President Walter Reuther said he would not accept from GM or Chrysler a carbon copy of the Ford settlement, but he indicated the offer made Saturday supplied a basis from which to work for ultimate settlement.
The UAW has an 11 a.m. Sept. 20 strike deadline at GM if no contract agreement is reached. Reuther and other top officers of the UAW have been given authority by the union to call a Chrysler strike whenever they feel it necessary.
Reuther said that since GM has four times as many plants and

Several Arrests On Liquor Front

Pitt County's ABC officers had a relatively busy weekend.
Saturday afternoon they arrested a Negro man and woman in the Ballard's Cross Roads section and a local Negro man. Yesterday two arrests were made.
Council Brown, Jr., 24-year-old Negro of 1022 Mack Street was charged with illegal possession of non-tax paid whiskey when officers reportedly found a small quantity of bootleg on his premises.
Joe Nathan Hardy, Negro, of 212 Wade Street was picked up for no operators license.

Charlie Wells, 51, of 404 West 12th Street was arrested and charged with illegal possession of non-tax paid whiskey for the purpose of sale Saturday afternoon. Officers reported finding a half-gallon of bootleg whiskey on his premises.
Earlier in the afternoon Elizabeth Grimes, 33, and S. T. Hadlock, 22, both of Greenville Route 1 were arrested on charges of illegal possession. According to Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward a small quantity of bootleg was found in each's home. The woman was recognized to appear in County Court next week while the man was released under a $200 bond.
Constable Joe Joyner assisted the ABC officers in making their Saturday afternoon arrests. Yesterday's arrests were made by Officers H. B. Lilley and W. M. Taylor.

Two Little Rock Pupils In N. C.

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Two 17-year-old cousins from Central High School in Little Rock, Ark., today enrolled as seniors at Ashley H. High here to complete their education, interrupted by the integration disturbance that closed Central.

Ann and June Williams are living in Gastonia with their grandmother, Mrs. A. L. Bulwinkle. Ann's father, E. G. Williams, brought them here last week and planned to return to Little Rock late today.

He and school officials wanted no fanfare attending the enrollment of the girls and declined to have the teen-agers' picture taken by a newspaper photographer.
Ann is a National Honor Society student. She plans a teaching career. June wants to be a physical education teacher.

"We've got a lot of work to do here with school already started for two weeks," observed Ann.
