Court Blow Dealt To 'Evasive Schemes'

Supreme Court Moves Against Leasing Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declared today states cannot resort to "evasive schemes" to continue racial segregation in schools. Thus it dealt a blow to such plans as that calling for leasing public schools to private groups.

The unanimous opinion of the high tribunal was handed down shortly after a plan to lease four closed high schools to private organizations was set afoot in Little Rock, Ark., where Gov. Orval E. Faubus has been opposing immediate racial integration at Central High School.

Today's opinion elaborated on the court's Sept. 12 decision that desegregation must proceed forthwith at Central High. It went further and aimed blows at what it termed schemes to get around its stand that racial segregation in schools is unconstitutional.

The rights of children to be free of discrimination in admission to schools "can neither be nullified openly and directly by state legislators or state executive or judicial officers, nor nullified indirectly by them through evasive schemes for segregation whether attempted ingeniously or ingenuously," said the opinion read by Chief Justice Warren.

Without naming names, the opinion also declared that no state official "can war against the Constitution without violating his undertaking to support it."

Racial segregation in schools was first outlawed in 1954, and in 1955 the court declared it must be ended with "all deliberate speed."

Today it spelled out to a certain degree, what it means by deliberate speed. In effect, it sanctioned delay in some cases, provided local authorities develop good-faith plans to put integration into effect as early as possible.

"Of course in many locations," the court said, "obedience to the duty of desegregation would require the immediate general admission of Negro children, otherwise qualified as students for their appropriate classes, at particular schools."

On the other hand, a District Court, after analysis of the relevant factors (which, of course, excludes hostility to racial desegregation), might conclude that justification existed for not requiring the present non-segregated admission of all qualified Negro children.

"In such circumstances, however, the (District) Court should scrutinize the program of the school authorities to make sure that they had developed arrangements pointed toward the earliest practicable completion of desegregation, and had taken appropriate steps to put their program into effective operation."

The court said the 1955 opinion made plain that "delay in any guise in order to deny the constitutional rights of Negro children could not be countenanced."

Further, the tribunal declared, the 1955 opinion made clear that "only a prompt start, diligently and earnestly pursued to eliminate racial segregation from the public schools could constitute good faith compliance."

State authorities were "thus duty-bound to devote every effort toward initiating desegregation and bringing about the elimination of racial discrimination in the public school system," said the opinion.

Concerning Little Rock, the opinion said that while the school board was going forward with its preparations for desegregating that city's school system, "other state authorities, in contrast, were actively pursuing a program designed to perpetuate in Arkansas the system of racial segregation which this court had held violated the 14th Amendment."

Constitutional rights of Negro students seeking admission to Central High, said the court, "are not to be sacrificed or yielded to the violence and disorder which have followed upon the actions of the governor and Legislature."

With the justices assembled in a special session, Chief Justice Warren read the court's 17-page printed opinion. It said that violence and disorder in the Little Rock situation "followed upon the actions of the governor and the Legislature."

"The command of the 14th Amendment is that no 'state' shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws," the opinion said.

It cited an earlier Supreme Court opinion in another case that no agency of the state, or its officers or agents by whom its powers are exerted, shall deny such equal protection.

Hodges Expected To Ask Hurricane-Hit Sections Be Declared 'Disaster Area'

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Luther Hodges was expected to appeal to President Eisenhower today to have hurricane hit sections of eastern North Carolina declared a disaster area.

The disaster area designation would entitle the stricken sections to federal assistance.

Although estimates varied of the damage caused by Hurricane Helene's slash at the coastal area Saturday, the governor's office said it will run into the millions.

A statement was expected from the governor later in the morning. He conferred today with Judge Thomas Goodman, regional Federal Civil Defense director, and state officials after having made two trips into the hurricane area. He visited Wilmington and Morehead City during the storm Saturday and flew over the area yesterday. Judge Goodman accompanied him.

A disaster area designation would entitle the area also Civil Defense assistance for the restoration of government facilities, to aid by the Small Business Administration of loans to businessmen to help them get back on their feet and aid for farmers.

After a flying inspection of the coast Sunday, Hodges said low tides when Helene struck plus a strong west wind which held back heavy seas minimized damages. Utilities, roads and private property suffered from the blow, he reported, but it was impossible to say how extensive the damage might be.

Many roofs were damaged, but few buildings were completely destroyed. Many of the sand fences erected to build up dunes on the Outer Banks were lost to the storm, and the state highway on Ocracoke and Hatteras islands sustained damage.

Civil Defense officials said better preparations for Helene possibly saved lives. Coastal residents who remembered the previous hurricanes needed little persuasion to leave their homes as Helene approached.

The Red Cross said 4,950 persons were cared for at 65 storm shelters.

Russell C. Nicholson, deputy state civil defense director, said improved radio communications kept officials in touch with all coastal sections even at the height of the storm.

Hodges was at Wilmington and Morehead City as Helene's terrific winds brushed the coast.

Little Rock Schools Are Leased

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Little Rock School Board executed a lease today for four closed high school buildings, turning them over to a private group for operation as private, segregated schools.

With the approval of the state attorney general, the board went ahead with the leasing without waiting for a court action in Omaha, Neb., where the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People is asking that the leasing deal be temporarily halted.

A two-judge court was scheduled to take up the NAACP request for a temporary restraining order at 10 a. m. (CST).

Apparently only action of a federal court session in Omaha, Neb., could prevent the schools from passing into private hands today and opening as segregated institutions later this week.

Members of the School Board and officials of the Little Rock Private School Corp. met with Arkansas Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett in closed session until after midnight.

As negotiations for the transfer continued, the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People moved swiftly to block the action.

"We might be out of business tomorrow," commented Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the private school group, in reference to the NAACP move.

The court session in Omaha will be conducted by two justices of the 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. They will hear the NAACP petition presented by Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff, Ark., seeking to prevent any transfer of school property without court approval.

There was speculation here that the School Board deliberately delayed consummation of the school building transfer until after the judges ruled.

A School Board source who declined to be identified said that if the court ordered the board not to lease the facilities, the order would be followed.

But without such an order, the board showed a readiness to comply with the public mandate of Saturday's referendum in which segregationists polled a near 3-1 majority.

DR. ORVAL L. PHILLIPS

Funeral Tuesday For Member Of College Faculty

Dr. Orval L. Phillips 45-year-old member of the East Carolina College faculty was found dead at his home on North Eastern Street yesterday morning.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel at 10:15 a. m. tomorrow morning by the Rev. Richard R. Gammon, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here. Burial will be in Commerce, Texas.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ann Holmsback Phillips, of the home; a daughter Sandra Phillips, student at Duke University; his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Phillips of Commerce, Texas; two brothers, T. R. Phillips, Jr., of Commerce, Texas and Carliss Phillips of Quitman, Texas; and a sister, Mrs. Gains Gaines of Temple, Texas.

Dr. Phillips joined the East Carolina staff in 1950 as Director of the Bureau of Field Services and Extension. In 1951, he became Registrar. Last spring he resigned this position to join the teaching staff of the college as professor of mathematics and was serving in this capacity at the time of his death.

He was a native of Greenville, Texas, and spent his early life at Commerce, Texas. He was a graduate of East Texas Teachers College, and held the M.A. degree from North Texas Teachers College and the Ph.D. from Teachers College, Columbia University. He also did graduate work at Louisiana State University.

During World War II he attended the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis and received there a degree in aerological engineering. He served with the U. S. Navy in the Pacific area and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant.

Dr. Phillips came to Greenville from Mississippi Southern College, where he was head of the department of mathematics. As a teacher of mathematics, he had previously taught in a number of high schools, acted as a supervisor of instruction, and served as an instructor at Teachers College, Columbia University, and at Louisiana State University.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville, Fraternity organizations with which he was affiliated include Pi Mu Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Kappa, and Kappa Mu Epsilon. At East Carolina, he was faculty advisor of the Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Frenchmen Adopt 'Fifth Republic'

PARIS (AP) — Premier Gaullie has won his fight. Returns from the most sweeping referendum in French history today gave him a resounding personal triumph and a strong constitution for a new Fifth Republic.

The Fifth Republic will be proclaimed in the official journal next Sunday. And France will enter into a new, more powerful system of government so daring that many Frenchmen gasped at the conception while they voted their approval by a landslide Sunday.

Voters of continental France approved the new constitution by a margin of almost 4-1.

Complete official tabulations in France showed 17,666,828 "yes" votes and 4,624,475 "no" votes. There was a record turnout of 84.9 per cent of France's registered voters. Counting all those who sent to the polls, including some who cast blank ballots, the new constitution was approved by 78.5 per cent.

With one exception—French Guiana in west Africa—the overseas lands of the erstwhile French empire also backed the constitution to the hilt. This set them with France on the world political stage as a "French community," a sort of global confederation, with commonwealth status and even independence waiting in the wings.

Even the "no" vote of independence-minded Guinea made little impression in the general massive outpouring of approval that exceeded even the most optimistic estimates.

The landslide raised the prospect that de Gaulle, the 67-year-old World War II hero restored to leadership in a rightist uprising last May, can almost write his own ticket to cure the sicknesses of this long ailing country. Chief of these is the four-year-old Algerian rebellion.

De Gaulle probably will become president, with powers that no French chief of state has enjoyed since Emperor Napoleon III was overthrown in 1870.

In the interval, France has deliberately maintained a strong legislature and a weak executive.

De Gaulle's dramatic victory was the worst electoral black eye the Communists have suffered in postwar France. The Communists formed the largest bloc campaigning against de Gaulle's constitution. They said it would open the way to dictatorship.

water damage, and on the farm front, corn, the most vulnerable crop, was apparently safe.

News that Helene was coming was enough to throw a scare into Pitt Countyans, however, and remembering the devastation of Hazel, the Civil Defense organization was called into session to make plans for possible disaster.

As Saturday afternoon wore on, skies clouded up and winds began to rise. Many business operators taped up their big plate glass windows as a defense against the 125-mile-an-hour winds which they knew were howling near Helene's center.

Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose called a meeting of his organization and informed those there that volunteer workers would be called to their posts by means of the city fire whistle if the need arose.

The call never came, however. Helene snuffed at the southeastern North Carolina coast and slowly changed its northeastern course to north, then northwest.

Gradually the vicious storm moved along the state's coast, a course which took it away from Pitt County.

By seven o'clock the danger was past for this area. The good news came that Helene was headed to sea.

Officials received the news joyfully.

Harassment
But Helene was to provide a source of minor harassment throughout the remainder of the evening, particularly affecting power lines.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam said one of Greenville Utilities' circuits was out for about five minutes during the evening but other than that there were no major breakdowns in service.

The circuit which went out feeds First and Second St. area and North Greenville.

"The winds blew limbs through lines and probably about a dozen poles were blown over at various points and knocked out our system," he declared throughout our system.

"We didn't have any trouble at all—just a very few limbs blew off and things of that nature," he declared. However, he said, the winds were very gusty and we would have had some very expensive trouble but for the fact that we had a tree trimming crew come through a recently and they trimmed limbs around the power lines."

The city followed through with a general tree trimming job along municipal streets.

"Those things kept us from having any outages," Paylor said. "We felt we were mighty lucky."

Little Crop Damage
The farm agent's office said there hadn't been a survey made of crop damage this morning but the damage wasn't expected to be heavy.

Assistant County Agent S. J. Weeks said he had not been into WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Up and down the coast stand houses with roofs ripped open. Battered trees lean nakedly against the sky, their shorn limbs piled up on streets and roads. Telephone poles sag crazily.

On the miles-of-beaches, the surf washed over tens of thousands of conch shells, more souvenirs of the weekend's Hurricane Helene.

Damage from the hurricane is estimated in the millions of dollars. Communications are still out in many areas. But there was no loss of life.

Residents, recalling hurricanes of 1954-55, were prepared when Helene swirled past the Carolinas and the Virginia Capes, well offshore, with winds up to 140 miles an hour.

A civil defense spokesman said the people "gave us no argument" when asked to evacuate.

Three were scattered personal injuries. The Red Cross said 4,950 persons were cared for at 65 shelters.

Spinning shoreward Saturday morning from the southeast, Helene passed up most of South Carolina's lush resort area. She knocked down a fishing pier at Ocean Drive Beach, S. C., and damaged two more piers in Cherry Grove Beach and injuries for Moving toward the jutting North Carolina coastline, she smashed a 300-foot pier at Ocean Isle Beach, N. C., damaged most of the houses at Holden Beach and sent high water over the protective sand dunes at Long Beach, damaging roads. This was in the forenoon.

She hit hardest at Southport, tucked inside the elbow of the Cape Fear, and Wilmington, 30 miles north. She never came inland, staying about 35 miles offshore. All communications were knocked out at Southport and the town was in need of water until auxiliary pumps were brought in.

"The only thing that saved us" said some Southport citizens, "was that the winds and the tide

Miles Of Coastal Carolina Lashed

Wilmington, the state's biggest coastal city, suffered an estimated million dollars damage, said the high-water patrol. Most of this was to residences and businesses. Further up the coast, Mayor Pro Tem George Kanoutis of Kure Beach estimated property damage at $250,000, beach erosion at $30,000, Mayor Glenn M. Tucker estimated Carolina Beach damage at 1 1/2 million dollars, but said no property owners were wiped out. Mayor Pro Tem Richard Meier of Wrightsville Beach said all property suffered some damage.

Saturday afternoon Helene had passed the most densely populated areas. Her effect was felt several miles inland in rough weather and rains, but damage there was not severe. Later that evening she howled off toward the open sea.

Morehead City and Beaufort, port cities, were battered down and took up the blow with comparatively little damage.

Balloonists Are Sniper's Target

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A sniper on the ground fired at two balloonists as they drifted over Iowa Saturday in a low-altitude flight to qualify one of the men for a trip to the edge of space.

Air Force Lt. Clifton McClure, 25, Anderson, S. C., and a veteran balloonist, M. Lee Lewis, 45, Minneapolis, said bullets from a high-powered rifle whizzed within 15 feet of their balloon.

McClure was making the flight a practice for his planned Manhigh III flight to 100,000 feet Tuesday. Lewis, a former Navy balloonist, was along as an instructor.

Landslide Vote For Bond Issue

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County voters gave almost 12-to-1 approval Saturday to a $750,000 bond issue which will provide local funds for expansions and additions at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The issue carried by a margin of 2,783 to 242, with only one of the county's 25 precincts returning a negative count. That was in Belvoir precinct where 19 of 28 voters cast ballots against the bonds.

Only one other precinct had what could be termed a close vote. That was in Pactolus precinct where the issue carried by a one-vote, 18-17, count.

All other precincts carried the issue by wide margins, with unanimous voter approval registered in four precincts. The total vote represented 70.4 per cent of the 4,296 voters who qualified for the election during a special registration period.

Although the full $750,000 issue was approved, not more than about $520,000 worth of bonds are expected to be sold. That is the amount Architect George Watts Carr has estimated the county will need to meet its share of costs for the project which will be partially financed by a federal grant.

Carr has said that the total project will cost about $1,519,958, including $620,294 for additional, $224,400 for remodeling existing facilities, $22,000 for kitchen expansion, $202,654 for furnishing, contingency fund and architect's fees, $140,000 for air-conditioning, $30,000 for a nurse's call system, $60,000 for a laundry, and $20,700 for an expansion contingency and fee fund.

Federal funds, up to $1,000,000 have been allocated for the project by the North Carolina Medical Care Commission which dispenses federal Hill-Burton Hospital Construction Act funds. All costs above the federal appropriation must be borne by the county.

County commissioners are committed by law to authorize sale of only as much of the total issue as is "absolutely necessary" to complete the project as it was approved by the Medical Care Commission.

Actual sale of the bonds will be determined by the North Carolina Local Government Commission, probably after contracts for the project have been signed, according to County Auditor H. Reginald Gray. Gray said a retirement schedule for the new issue would also be set up by the Local Government Commission in coordination with retirement schedules for existing bond commitments of the county.

The new issue will become the second hospital bond issued outstanding against the county. The first, in the amount of $250,000 was made December 1, 1949, to finance construction of the present hospital unit. Those bonds of which $160,000 are still outstanding, are slated to be retired by June 30, 1965.

Specific hospital improvements which will be included in the project include addition of about 70 beds, an out-patient work area, expanded administrative facilities, piped-in oxygen, an elevator, large

Clemency Given Condemned Man

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Wilson's death sentence for a $1.95 robbery was commuted to life imprisonment today by Gov. James E. Folsom.

There was a dramatic clemency hearing last Friday which brought the 55-year-old illiterate Negro handyman face to face with the governor.

The governor read a prepared statement at a news conference today which said: "After careful consideration of the fact and circumstances it is the opinion of the governor that the said Jimmy Wilson is a fit subject for executive clemency."

Wilson must serve 15 years before he is eligible for parole.

Under Alabama law, the governor had no authority to reduce the sentence below life imprisonment. The Negro, whose fate has attracted worldwide interest and brought thousands of protesting letters and telegrams to the governor, was sentenced to death for robbing an elderly white widow of $1.95 in coins.

Under Alabama law, robbery by force, or threat of force, regardless of the amount involved, is punishable by the death penalty.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said today the Air Force's Thor has been chosen over the Army's Jupiter as the basic mass-produced 1,500-mile range ballistic missile weapon of the United States.

Hurricane Helene Fails Keep Date In Pitt; Nobody Minds, Little Damage

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

Pitt County was stood up by a temperamental lady this weekend and nobody seemed to mind at all. The county didn't actually have a date with fickle Hurricane Helene, but it was sort of an understanding.

Actually Pitt got a whiff of Helene's deadly perfume in the form of 55-mile-per-hour winds, but as a vamp the old gal was nothing compared to her now departed sister, Hazel, in her heyday of 1954.

So far as could be learned this morning, Helene was a complete bust in Pitt County. There was practically no wind damage, no water damage, and on the farm front, corn, the most vulnerable crop, was apparently safe.

News that Helene was coming was enough to throw a scare into Pitt Countyans, however, and remembering the devastation of Hazel, the Civil Defense organization was called into session to make plans for possible disaster.

As Saturday afternoon wore on, skies clouded up and winds began to rise. Many business operators taped up their big plate glass windows as a defense against the 125-mile-an-hour winds which they knew were howling near Helene's center.

Little Crop Damage
The farm agent's office said there hadn't been a survey made of crop damage this morning but the damage wasn't expected to be heavy.

Assistant County Agent S. J. Weeks said he had not been into the rural areas but "I wouldn't think it did any damage."

Weeks said corn which is still in the fields would have been subjected to damage. However, he said, "I don't believe it would have done too much to that. We were fortunate that the wind and rain weren't coming at the same time."

Civil Defense Director Rose said school buildings, which were made available for storm refugees if needed, were not used at all Saturday night.

He said the coastal areas were better prepared for this hurricane and persons driven from their dwellings by the storm were taken care of nearer to home.

Rose had thanks for the High-guard, Red Cross and city and county employees who stayed on alert until the danger had passed.

He also expressed appreciation to WNCT for its Hurricane Watch and to the Reflector for its assistance in preparing for the storm.

Rose pointed out that Radio Station WGTC was prepared to remain on the air all Saturday night but the plans were called off when it became apparent that Helene was headed out to sea.

Boy and Explorer Scouts and those who had set up the county's emergency communications system also came in for praise.

"We are in better shape now for anything than we've ever been," Rose declared.

Miss Anthony told about the tour of Raleigh, where they were shown through the Governor's Mansion, and of Duke University and University of North Carolina. The girls expressed sincere gratitude to the Auxiliary for having given them this chance to learn about law and government and making memorable friendships and contacts. With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE DAUGHTER TAKES OVER

"Like mother, like daughter," proved to be true when Mrs. Algie McCall, home demonstration club member from Franklin, N.C., became temporary manager of the Mason County Home Demonstration Curb Market recently. According to Mrs. Florence S. Sherrill, home agent, her mother, Mrs. Ella Peek was recuperating from surgery and was unable to look after things at the market herself. All agree that Mrs. McCall, her daughter, certainly did a wonderful job of managing the market in her mother's place. Mrs. McCall was a former 4-H Club member and a garden project winner during the second World War. In fact, she won a thousand dollar bond in the Green Thumb Contest for Juniors during those years she was a 4-H member. Now she is the mother of two children. During her mother's illness, she pitched in to harvest vegetables for sale on the curb market.

MAKING CHERRY PIES

The song, "Can You Bake a Cherry Pie" need never be sung to Barbara Brawley, 4-H Club member in Cabarrus County, since she is already practicing for the annual Cherry Pie Baking Contest, being held in the state this fall during the Southern States Fair. In her eight years as a club member, Barbara has taken an interest in and participated in the contest four years. Sara M. Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, says Barbara is well known in the county for her delicious cherry pies, so she's planning to give all the other entrants a "run for their money" in the state contest. But making cherry pies isn't all that Barbara can do. She's an old timer at planning and preparing meals for her family, and the 4-H food preparation project is her favorite. This year she is planning to enter her long-time record, in food preparation for state competition.

OUTLET FOR SEWING TALENT There's one young 4-H Club girl from McDowell County who has found a new outlet for her sewing talent. According to Julia Ann Smith, assistant home demonstration agent, she is Linda Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wilson, Old Port, Rt. 2, and her latest accomplishment was receiving the first place award in the Junior Dress Revue last spring. Her new found interest, however, is making back-to-school dresses for her neighbor's six-year-old girl to wear to school this fall. Linda, who saw this opportunity to add to her clothing project record, says she doesn't plan to charge anything for making the first dress until she sees that her customer is well satisfied.

Plans Being Made Yes, it's fair time again. In Pitt County, all of the 4-H club members are anxiously awaiting the date when they can exhibit many of their 4-H projects at the county fair. As usual, we have four 4-H Exhibit Booths at the fair. Topics of three have been chosen. The Belvoir Jr. Club has as its topic, "Only Cats Have Nine Lives"—which is a safety theme. Miss Harriet Turner is serving as chairman of this committee. Mrs. Alton Moore, Mrs. Albert Bell, and Mrs. McAlvin Turner, adult 4-H leaders, are working with their community 4-H clubs on their combined exhibits. The topic will be "Wildlife." Officers of the 4-H County Council met last week to make tentative fair plans. Their topic will be "Save That Baby Pig"—based on a state-winning 4-H demonstration.

Hope For Warsaw Parley Success Given New Boost

By STANLEY JOHNSON
 WARSAW (AP)—Hopes soared here today that statements from Washington and Peking had given a new lease on life to the Formosa talks and eased war threats.

The Warsaw talks between U.S. Ambassador Jacob Beam and Chinese Communist envoy Wang Ping-nan entered their third week today. The envoys held their fifth meeting here Tuesday.

Among developments which diplomats here considered conciliatory was the declaration by Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Sunday that the Red Chinese "do not give up their efforts to find a solution to the disputes between China and the United States through peaceful negotiations."

That was what the diplomats had left after they had stripped away much anti-American verbiage from Chou's Peking broadcast. Among other statements, he said Communist China would lead the United States to "final and complete disaster if the United States insists on provoking war."

In Washington an announcement on the details of the closed-door talks was postponed beyond the date such an announcement had been expected. This was interpreted as meaning that the highest quarters expected new developments.

It had been reported that if Washington became convinced the talks were fruitless the United States would disclose the details and take the case to the United Nations.

Communist circles here began taking a cheerful view after a secret meeting of Communist Chinese Ambassador Wang with Communist newsmen. Wang was reported to have told them, in general terms, that everything would turn out all right.

Sunday's statement by Chou was regarded here as the highest ranking use of what diplomats here call the 40-hour technique. They say that 40 hours before each meeting between Wang and Ambassador Beam the Chinese have issued a press statement which sets the tone for Wang.

The talks will continue here without much sense of urgency. Diplomatic circles think the two ambassadors are not negotiating, but merely delivering messages from their governments.

Earlier "leaks" of a time limit on the talks by Washington seem to be forgotten and there is now no indication of a deliberate break-off, although the possibility of failure at any moment is freely admitted.

Informed circles say the Chinese Communists have been impressed by American military buildup in Formosa Strait and the ability to supply Quemoy. They said this has moderated the tone of the talks.

With The Years, 'Father Knows Best' Growing Up

By CHARLES MERCER
 NEW YORK (AP)—Whenever our favorite television father, Robert Young, visits New York we try to drop around and pay our respects and see what's new with the Anderson family of Springfield, U.S.A.

One new thing this season is that "Father Knows Best" has moved to another network—CBS-TV.

Another new thing is that the kids are getting older—and Father doesn't like to think about that. Maybe, he confesses, because it means that he's getting older too.

"We'd thought some of marrying off Betty this season," Young said recently. "She's 20, you know and a college sophomore. But we decided to wait. What you'll see this year are barely perceptible changes."

"Betty will be inclined to be more selective in her boy friends. Bud—let's see, he's 17 and a high school junior—is changing subtly, too, from sheer terror of girls to a vaguely morbid interest in them."

"And Kathy—she's 12 and going into seventh grade—wants to be more of a friend to a boy and less inclined to try to beat him at baseball."

"We also plan to introduce more outside characters this year and base the family and the program around them. It will enable us to do more scenes outside the home."

Young smiled. "It will give us—the family, I mean—a change, too, and prevent us from getting bored with one another. If you know how it is with families, it's fun to have outsiders come in and break up the routine."

It's scarcely conceivable that you aren't familiar with Jim Anderson's family after years of "Father Knows Best" on television and more years on radio. Jane Wyatt plays Young's wife and their children are Elinor Donahue, Billy Gray and Lauren Chaplin.

"Father Knows Best" is one domestic comedy that never has lapsed into soggy sentimentality or crusty absurdity. If it's not a portrayal of what every American family is, it's a warm portrait of what every American family would like to be.

We urged Young to face up to the fact that the younger Andersons are growing up.

"Well, I suppose Betty will marry and have a baby and that will make us grandparents. And then—I don't know—maybe she'll have another baby. And then I suppose Bud will get married. And—"

He grimaced. "You know you're making me feel awful old."

Missionary Is Freed By Rebels

ALGIERS (AP)—The Rev. Lester E. Griffith, an American Methodist missionary, is free again after 40 days in the hands of Algerian nationalist rebels. He was kidnapped Aug. 18.

U. S. consulate officials announced he was turned loose in good health Saturday night at Mekhta, 75 miles east of Algiers, in the Grand Kabylie Mountains.

The mountains, a rebel stamping ground, had become thick with French troops escorting voters and guarding polling places in the weekend referendum on Premier de Gaulle's new constitution.

Restored to his wife and three children, the 33-year-old missionary rested today in undisclosed quarters.

His wife Janice and their children—Valerie Jean, 11, Forrest, 10, and Eric, 3—had waited in a suburb of Algiers through the weeks since his car was found abandoned and burned on a mountain road between Tizi-Ouzou and Fort National.

"Keep up hope," Mrs. Griffith cabled her mother-in-law Mrs. Hazel L. Schloupt, 54, of Cleveland, at the outset.

Word that Griffith remained active was received three weeks ago by Hans L. Aurbakken, the head of the American Methodist mission in North Africa.

Authorities here speculated that the rebels, once they learned the identity and nationality of their captive, decided to hold him for a while to impress upon him their fight for independence from France.

Midland and Odessa, Tex., are both tough cowtowns and oiltowns, 300 miles west of Fort Worth. Each supports a symphony orchestra and chorus.

Will Concentrate Plants In South

EASLEY, S.C. (AP)—Saco-Lowell Shops has announced its intention to concentrate all of its textile manufacturing operations in the South.

Thomas J. Ault, president of the firm, said Saturday that as part of the plan one million dollars worth of expansion work will soon get underway at the Easley plant and office.

He said the executive offices of the Textile Machinery Division of the company are being expanded to house the sales, purchasing and product engineering divisions.

In addition, manufacturing and warehousing facilities here are being increased by 85,000 square feet to accommodate operations being moved from Saco and Biddeford, Maine, and Central Falls and Providence, R.I.

Ault also said Saco-Lowell will consolidate its four replacement parts depots on leased premises in Greenville. These depots previously had been located in Edeford, Providence, Pawtucket, R.I., and Gastonia, N.C.

The Greenville depot is expected to employ about 85 persons, starting in November.

Clocks in the Washington, D.C., railway terminal are set two minutes fast to help travelers to catch their trains.

Increased Membership In Farm Bureau Sought

George D. Cox, President of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, has called on the county to support the efforts of his organization to increase its membership for the coming year.

Cox pointed out the annual Farm Bureau membership drive has already begun with more than 25 Captains and solicitors working at the present time. Tonight at Respass Brothers Restaurant drive officials are meeting to map final plans for the campaign. The meeting begins at 7 o'clock.

Local Bureau leaders, proud of the organization's past record on county, state and national levels, point to the necessity of increasing membership in order to do an even more effective job in the future.

"Our organization needs every farmer in the County who believes in the future of agriculture and is willing to carry his share of the responsibility of keeping farmers well represented in the most complex society on earth," Cox declared.

He promised that solicitors will be present in every community and township, giving of their time and means, in an effort to increase the Farm Bureau's membership in Pitt County. "Farmers have a responsibility to themselves and their families, to sign up again this year and to get their neighbors to do the same," Cox added.

No Doubt As To County's Support

The overwhelming manner in which Pitt voters approved the hospital bond issue Saturday leaves no doubt as to the desire of the people of this county for adequate hospital facilities to meet their needs.

By a margin of more than 10 to 1, the voters registered their approval of the issuance of approximately $500,000 in county bonds to defray the county's portion of the $1,500,000 expansion program for Pitt Memorial.

In a period when some communities are rejecting bond issues for needed public facilities, the vote here Saturday is indeed a tribute to the foresightedness of the people of this county to afford themselves facilities which are required for the good of all the people of the county.

County authorities can now move ahead with plans for expanding and improving the hospital. Though the plans should not be rushed with reckless haste, they should be pushed with all reasonable speed in order that Pitt can overcome the inadequacy of its hospital facilities as soon as possible. Already the existing facilities are outgrown. The overcrowding of the hospital which has existed for months is sure to become acute before the expansion program can be completed. The sooner the new facilities can be put to use, the sooner this situation can be alleviated.

While the 10 to 1 vote in favor of the hospital bond issue is indicative of the feeling of the people of the county, it is also significant that in only one of the 25 precincts was the proposal defeated. In only one other precinct where the measure carried by one vote, was the balloting close. In all the other 23 pre-

Morale Among State Employees

By LYNN NISBET
MORALE — Main reason given for the requested retirement of J. D. Beatty as Director of Protection was that morale in the department was low. That led to some questions in other areas about the overall morale of State employees. Information obtained leads to conclusion that general morale in the highway set up is not very good, although perhaps higher than it was a few months ago.

Among the rank and file of employees in other agencies and departments morale is much better, though not as high as it might be. Clifton Beckwith, executive secretary of the State Employees' Association (as distinct from the highway employees and the teachers association), makes careful distinction between general morale and dissatisfaction placed by newspaper stories on some recent statements by Governor Hodges and what the Governor actually said. Resentment expressed by a number of State workers at the reports of Governor's speech, and some discontent with conditions prevailing in many segments of employment, are regarded as temporary dissatisfaction with situations that can be changed and improved, rather than low morale. Beckwith notes generally high morale to the fact that the State Employees Association now justifies its name, because it is representative of all levels from top administrative department chiefs down to messenger boys and no segment feels discriminated against or lacks equal voice in association affairs. State employees feel they should have higher pay and hope to get it at hands of the next Legislature.

RANKIN — Rumors have been going around for some time that Ed Rankin will resign as private secretary to Governor Hodges and go into private business, probably with John Harden as public relations counsel. There is little prospect of that happening until after adjournment of the 1959 General Assembly, if indeed it comes about before the end of the Hodges term January 1, 1961.

Rankin has already served in his present capacity nearly six years, almost twice as long as most secretaries in recent years. He went on the job with Governor Umstead in early January 1953, expecting to stay four years or less. He had unusual responsibilities thrust upon him during the prolonged illness of Governor Umstead. When Governor Hodges came to the Governor's office in November of 1954, he asked Rankin to stay on with him. Thus incts of the county the measure passed by wide margins.

This fact alone is indicative of the remarkable support for the hospital in almost every section of the county. It is, we believe, a tribute to the high calibre of service Pitt Memorial Hospital and its staff has rendered to citizens throughout the county since it was open in 1951.

Though the expansion program which is now approved Pitt citizens once more can rest assured they will have within their own county one of the finest and most modern medical facilities in this section of North Carolina.

Civil Defense Proves Capable Organization

Experienced by three devastating hurricanes in the past four years, the Civil Defense organization throughout Eastern North Carolina operated with peak efficiency during hurricane Helene Saturday.

There was a sharp contrast between the manner in which Civil Defense workers went about their duties Saturday, and the confusion which prevailed in many parts of Eastern North Carolina four years ago when Hazel made her visit.

The intervening years, and the bitter experience with destructive hurricanes, has brought the Civil Defense organization in this part of the state from a paper organization to one which is highly effective in time of emergency. It's something of which every community in this area can be proud.

To a great extent, the efficiency of the Civil Defense operations is responsible for the fact that the Carolina Coast faced one of its most powerful hurricanes in history and came through it without a casualty. The situation Saturday was in striking contrast with the conditions which prevailed in October four years ago when Hazel claimed a number of lives along our coast and injured many people.

Though North Carolina's coastal area will continue to fear the tropical blows from the Atlantic, it is comforting to know that an efficient Civil Defense organization is now available at a moment's notice to cope with such emergencies.

McClellan And James Hoffa

By RALPH ROBEY
Senator John L. McClellan, chairman of the Select Committee of Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field, which perhaps is better known as the Rackets Committee, has completed a seven weeks' investigation of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and its president, James R. Hoffa. There was a relatively brief investigation of the Teamsters and Hoffa last year, but this time the Committee really gave them the works. The facts brought out were so shocking that Senator McClellan issued a special report in which he called for the "immediate resignation or removal" of Hoffa. He termed Hoffa a "cancer" in the labor movement.

These are strong words and back of them are the following charges by Senator McClellan: "The Hoffa 'has not only placed hoodlums and men with criminal records in key positions in the union, but he and his chief lieutenants have consorted with the major racketeers and gangsters in the United States'."

2. That Hoffa "spends the union's funds as if they were his own and handsomely takes care of his cronies and friends."

3. That Hoffa "appears to labor under the belief that there is nothing that cannot be fixed," and always around him, for the protection of himself and his hoodlum friends, is a staff of a dozen highly paid attorneys which costs the union hundreds of thousands of dollars each year."

4. That Hoffa appears to "countenance the cheat, the lie, the steal and violence to gain his ends" and shows arrogant disrespect for members of the union, for the general public, and for the United States Government."

5. That Hoffa is seeking power "greater than the people and greater than the Government."

6. That Hoffa, since his election as President of the Teamsters, has done nothing to rid the union of undesirable characters.

7. That Hoffa has used, or permitted to be used, millions of dollars of union funds for loans to gangsters and racketeers, or to back projects of his friends, or for his own personal benefit. All of these charges, it should be noted, grow out of information presented to the Committee by witnesses under oath, or are the result of staff investigation. Many of the statements, especially those relating to financial matters, were denied by Hoffa or other Teamster witnesses, but denials do not materially change the conclusion that this is truly a sorry mess that has been uncovered.

There is no reason for assuming, however, that the Teamsters are worse than everyone else. If the same type of search investigation were made of the other large unions it might be found that they are run in much the same way as the Teamsters. The real trouble is the power of the top officers, and little distinction can be made between our large unions in that score.

The United Automobile Workers and Walter Reuther provide a good example of how other unions are operated. Granted, they were before the McClellan Committee for a brief spell some months ago and Reuther came out with his armor untarnished. But there is no comparison between the conduct of Reuther and that of Hoffa. In the first place only a small fraction of as many staff men or hours were devoted to digging up the facts about Reuther and his union as were devoted to Hoffa and the Teamsters. Secondly, the Committee members were not as well briefed on such facts as had been uncovered on Reuther as they were on Hoffa.

Is Hoffa worse than Reuther? That is a matter of opinion. Among those who have worked with both men the conclusion prevails that Hoffa's word is better than that of Reuther. In other words, it is said that when Hoffa makes an agreement he will stick to it, but that Reuther cannot be counted on to the same extent.

It also is said that both men are ambitious, but in a different way. Hoffa wants power and aggrandizement in the labor movement, Reuther wants this; but as well he wants political power. This is borne out by the fact that Reuther is always more active in the political arena, while Hoffa limits his activities to the labor field.

In my opinion, neither man is a credit to the labor movement, but on the political front Reuther is much more dangerous.

WORDS TO PONDER

There are four important words which every reader of the New Testament should watch for and ponder when he encounters them. They are: repent, give, believe and love.

The first of these is the word "repent." Jesus began to preach saying, repent. There can be no start made on a better life until we cut away from the old life.

The third word which comes out of the New Testament and challenges the mind of every believer is the word "give." The Bible will not let us rest in complacent religion. If we have something which really lights up our souls and fills us with happiness, we want to go and do something in the light of that new experience.

The fourth word is "love." The worldly life is based on the desire to get and it pays little attention to the duty of giving. Christian giving means more than merely giving money. It means, above all things, the giving of ourselves in a loving attitude toward our fellows and loving service to their needs.

Mystery Of Akhen-Aton

Snaps from a traveler's album.

I had a here-we-go-again feeling when they told me their plan—and also the old, unfulfilling excitement of the story.

"We have found many thousands of pieces of his temple," the archaeologist mentioned. "We are going to put them together and try to reconstruct the temple. Perhaps it will tell us more about him."

Akhenaton, king of Egypt, came to the throne somewhere around 1375 B.C.

He had built a temple to a god. After his death, the people tore it down. Their fury was such that they even smashed the stones to small bits.

These are the pieces the archaeologist mentioned. They were used as fill in later royal buildings. Now, he said, they are about to try to reassemble them, a jig-saw puzzle of unimaginable dimensions.

Why undertake such a gigantic task? Because the story of Akhenaton for years has puzzled, fascinated, and infuriated Egyptologists, they fight like tigers over the meaning of his works.

One called him "the first individual in human history," a very high compliment. But another says he is "the most over-rated figure in all history."

Apart from that—his actions may repeat may—hold the clue to the mystery of the origin of the Christian belief that there is only one God.

He lived eight centuries before the Hebrew prophets. At that time, everywhere in the ancient world, men worshipped a whole pantheon of gods. The idea of a single, all-embracing deity was completely foreign to their thinking.

Did Akhen-Aton invent the concept of monotheism? Did this concept pass, possibly through Israelite captives in Egypt, to the Hebrews? Is it possible that Moses learned this concept in Egypt and passed it on to them?

These are only a few of the questions that swirl around the name of Akhen-Aton, nearly 4,000 years after he lived. Briefly, what he did was break away from the established religion of Egypt in which Ammon-Ra presided over a host of gods. He asserted that the "Aton" manifesting itself in the life-giving essence of the sun, was the only God. Thus, he changed his name to embrace the term, "Aton."

He left Thebes, the capital, and built a new capital at Amarna. His temples, in complete contrast to those of the old religion, were open to the sun and the sky.

His "Hymn to Aton" is startlingly similar to passages in the 104th Psalm. Place them side by side and you find not only the same thoughts expressed but frequently the identical phrases.

He also revolutionized Egyptian art forms, freeing the artists from the conventional ways in which they portrayed royalty. You can see graceful, informal pictures of the king, playing with his children, and with his arm around his wife—who, incidentally, was his sister, Nefertiti, of the long, swan-like neck.

After he died, the priesthood of Ammon quickly re-established the old religion. And, of course, their own high stations in society.

The temples were torn down. Chisels chipped the name, "Aton," off monuments wherever it appeared. Everything possible was done to obliterate forever the memory of the "great heretic" and his God.

In recent years, scholars have tended to downgrade Akhen-Aton. Some claim he had political rather than religious motives for his acts. Some say, before he was born, Nefertiti, of the long, swan-like neck, was not new and could not have been transmitted to the Israelites. Others disagree flatly.

And so on. Yet the story is eternally fascinating because of its implications for Christianity. It was in the glorious ruins of Karnak in Egypt recently when the archaeologists told me about the jig-saw puzzle plan.

"Here we go again," I thought. "Here comes a new set of arguments."

Other Editors Saying Twain Said It

Mark Twain said—"But we'll get back to that in a minute. . . . The scene of our story is Tokyo where the Fifth International Congress on Diseases of the Chest is in progress. Among those present are cancer experts who have warned about the possible link between smoking and lung cancer. Some are among the world's most eminent specialists in their field.

But the lobby of the convention building is blue with smoke after each session, and the ashtrays filled with butts from a miscellany of tobacco products. And the blue cloud is there even at a panel discussion between four of the most noted lung cancer experts. Three of them smoke even while relating their opinions on the connection between cigarettes and the dread disease. One inhales a filter-tip cigarette, another the regular variety, and the third puffs a cigar. The fourth quit smoking five years ago.

Such is the scene as reported by a newsman covering the session. Now, going back—Mark Twain said it's a good thing to be good, but a darned sight easier to tell somebody else to be good.

Pretty soon, it appears, you will find that a chicken you buy at the meat counter will wear a union label. And, if you serve a chicken at your table without the label, your meal will be hot cargo which no CIO-AFL guest will consent to carry away from your board.

That sounds absurd. But on Sept. 29, the members of the Textile Brotherhood will vote on whether to join the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, CIO-AFL.

Meanwhile the Unamalgamated Chicken Leg Consumers, Unorganized, are gradually getting hemmed in on every side. The right-to-work law, presumably, allows you to raise your own broilers in your own backyard, provided you are beyond the reach of some city zoning committee.

But the General Welfare boys in Washington will be after you before long and they will have forms for you to fill out and permits for you to obtain. You may come to CIO-AFL drumsticks sooner than you think.

Largely Ignored LAW

By ROGER BABSON
BABBON PARK, Mass. — Government decisions involving those determining federal and local taxes will now affect our businesses and personal lives more than ever before. To prosper in business, we must know what our government is doing on all affairs. We must also heed the Law of Supply and Demand. Our politicians refuse to tell the voters the truth about this LAW.

IMPORTANCE OF COMMODITY PRICES
Goods are plentiful today, for the most part. Now that the shortages of war and its aftermath are gone, few people stop to think much about commodity prices. Many who invest sizable sums in securities — sometimes nearly all their life's savings — will buy stocks in companies about which they know little.

When I buy stocks, I like to know something about the goods on services which the company makes or sells; to find out what raw materials it uses, and how plentiful or scarce, these are. Knowledge of such conditions, upon which your investments depend, will help you when buying or selling a business, when seeking new employment, and especially when making investment decisions.

DEPRESSIONS ARE NATURAL
The Law of Supply and Demand shows that there is nothing unnatural about depressions. Those who prepare for both depressions and booms by keeping out of debt and working harder and better will have little to fear. The present recession should be a healthy development. It permits us to digest the excesses of the last boom.

During a recession period merchants should increase their advertising. At the same time, they should attend more strictly to business by reducing inventories and liquidating debt. Manufacturers should recognize that recessions call for a thorough reorganization of their employment and manufacturing to bring them into close harmony with prevailing supply-demand conditions. Agriculture should keep in mind that freezes and drought also are natural and should prepare for them. There is no sense in thinking that the economy will ever remain stationary for very long.

WATCH DEVELOPMENTS ABROAD

Recent cuts in the price of aluminum were originated by Canadian producers to offset increasing competition from Russia. Reliable reports indicate that we may expect further changes in domestic supply-demand ratios in key commodities due to Russia's rapid industrial progress. If this increase persists, Russia will eventually be supplying large quantities of coal and oil to all Europe. Naturally, this could lead to weaker price trends in the U.S. and for oil — in the Middle East. We, therefore, may be forced now to temporarily ignore the Law of Supply and Demand, as a defensive move, and charge certain uneconomic legislation to defense, along with other cost of missiles and other shooting devices.

Russia does not now possess anything like our standard of living. But she does possess vast resources, excellent scientists, and a dedicated, disciplined determination to make best use of these resources and talents to advance her political aims. As she pursues her foreign trade program, changes in individual supply-demand relationships will occur. # Really Good Ideas Scarce Items

By ELMER FOESSNER

All of us know a fellow who jumps up, with eyes glistening, and with all the excitement of one who has just talked with the ghost of Macbeth, exclaims, "Say! I've got an idea!"

Often it turns out to be printing letterheads down the side of the paper, or moving the water fountain two feet to the west. Ideas may not be a dime a dozen. Ordinary ones, like getting in touch with that girl you met at the beach, may be worth the price of a phone call. Good ones, of course, are of great worth.

Profiting from new ideas largely lies in recognizing the good ones and putting them into action.

TWO THOUSAND A YEAR
Samuel C. Johnson, vice president, recently reported that S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc., receives about 1,000 ideas for new products each year. James W. Russell, a planning executive for American Machine & Foundry Co., wrote that of 1,000 product ideas, probably less than 10 per cent will get through the screening stage and 1 per cent or less through the business specification stage. And of those that reach the market, he said, from 50 to 90 per cent are failures within the first two years.

The Johnson Company has a systematic examination of all new product ideas. First, qualified opinions are sought, without extensive investigation. Then the market for the product is examined, the growth possibilities of the market studied and its share of the market estimated.

Then a calculation of the gross profit margin is made and compared with the cost of development, introduction expenses and capital expenditures, for plant equipment and tooling.

"FIT" FACTORS
Then, if the idea hasn't been jettisoned, what the company calls the "fit" factors are examined. These are questions whether the product will fit distribution channels, production, advertising and sales appeals, and so on. It must fit the financial situation, too; the product must return an adequate ratio to investment.

A "sponsor group" participates in the introduction. This includes the man with the original idea, the man doing the laboratory work, the man who has to sell the completed product, representative of the production and financial departments, and a member of the new products department.

Johnson, originally a flooring company, moved into the floor wax field and, under the system described, has added an air freshener, an instant auto wax, a wallpaper wax, an insecticide and several other recently introduced household products.

Topped Them All

NEW YORK (AP)—The final figures for the 1958 major league baseball attendance resolved all doubts about Milwaukee's ability to maintain itself as the nation's top baseball town.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press show the National League champion Braves again topping all clubs in home attendance with 1,971,101. This was the Braves' sixth straight year to lead the turnstile league.

The seventh-place Dodgers trailed the Braves by 125,833 with a 1,845,268 mark, second best in the majors, while the American League champion New York Yankees led their league with 1,428,428, third in the majors.

Overall, the National League's 10,163,568 showed a healthy increase of 1,343,967 over 1957 with the San Francisco Giants chipping in with 1,272,625 in their move from New York's Polo Grounds.

The runaway American League ran hurt all but two clubs—the Kansas City A's and Washington Senators—as the total loop attendance was 7,295,914 compared with 8,196,218 in 1957. With the NL jump the over-all increase for the majors was a hefty 15 per cent.

Catawba Rallies To Stay Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Powerful Catawba, victor in two nonconference games, meets East Carolina Saturday night in the Indians' first North State Conference game.

Catawba, one of the North State favorites, rallied last Saturday to thump Newberry 24-14 and become the conference's only team undefeated in all outings this season.

Elon, another contender, plays Appalachian. The Christians were defeated 22-16 by Wofford last week but is 1-0 in North State play.

In other Saturday night games this week, Lenoir Rhyne is at Newberry, Western Carolina at Tampa, and in the only Saturday afternoon game Bridgewater is at Guilford.

Ashburn Thinks Pitchers Are Getting Tougher

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Richie Ashburn, who won his second National League batting title in a photo-finish Sunday, thinks the pitchers are getting tougher.

"I feel that the pitching is stronger now and getting stronger every year," said the speedy Philadelphia Phillies outfielder.

"That's one reason I feel good about winning the title. I think the pitching is stronger now than ever. It's a lot better now than when I came into the league in 1948."

The 31-year-old, left-handed hitter rapped out three singles in four official times at bat against Pittsburgh Sunday to boost his average for the season to .350—highest in his 11 seasons in the league.

His nearest competitor, Willie Mays of the Giants, banded out three hits in five trips against the Cardinals but ended up with a .347 mark.

Ashburn won the title in 1955 with a .338 average.

Clemson Tigers Claw Up To ACC Lead

By KEN ALTYA
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the new electric score board featuring an animated tiger was installed at Clemson College last week on the eve of the BIG Atlantic Coast Conference football game with North Carolina it was noted that the bengal would wink his eye and wag his tail when Clemson scored a touchdown.

It was noted further that the tiger would be equipped with a growl for the next home game—against Wake Forest Nov. 1.

The scoreboard tiger may be silent for the moment, but Coach Frank Howard's football Tigers are making plenty of noise. They leaped their way into the ACC lead with a rousing 26-21 conquest of North Carolina Saturday. This second successive victory left them atop the league standings, but they have no time to relax. A suddenly aroused Maryland team lies in waiting at College Park, Md., ready to meet Clemson Saturday as Howard takes his team on the road for the first time.

Maryland has the added stimulus of appearing in its home opener following a smashing 21-6 triumph over North Carolina State. It was a complete form reversal for the Terps who had slumbered through a 3-0 pausing at Wake Forest the week before.

There's only one other conference game on the slate Saturday. North Carolina playing at Virginia, surprise winner over Duke 15-12.

ACC teams are in action in five states coast to coast this week. North Carolina, probably a better team than its 0-2 record indicates, opens the schedule Friday night at Los Angeles against Southern California.

On Saturday afternoon Duke is host to Illinois and South Carolina plays at Georgia. Wake Forest, which shares with Clemson the distinction of being the only unbeaten ACC team after two weeks of play, travels to Tallahassee, Fla., for a Saturday night game with Florida State.

South Carolina and Wake Forest remained at 1-0, one victory back of Clemson in league play as they engaged outside teams Saturday. South Carolina was trampled by Army 45-8 in the rain at West

Extra Week For Bucs To Recover

BOBBY PERRY—Greenville's 165-pound halfback at East Carolina College who has scored three of ECC's four TD's thus far this season, will be in the starting backfield for the locals next Saturday when they play host to Catawba in a North State tilt. James Speight, another Greenville product, is expected to be at the fullback slot next weekend.

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

The hurricane which swept into Greenville this weekend and caused the postponement of the East Carolina-Guilford football game may have been just the breath of fresh air the Pirates need.

Coach Jack Boone's injury-riddled outfit will now have an extra week in which to pull itself together. Next weekend, a home contest with rugged Catawba will put the Bucs back in business.

Going into the Guilford tilt, there were seven East Carolina players on the sidelines with injuries. The seven were heavy-duty players and would have been sorely missed. With the extra week of rest and work ahead of them now, the Bucs may be able to face next week's ballgame in better condition.

Coach Boone commented Saturday morning after the postponement had been announced that "It may be a good thing. There are other boys on the club besides the seven who have a few kinks and bruises—just little things—wring with them. But sometimes in a game it doesn't take much to put them out."

"With an extra week in which to rest up and work, I think most of our hurt boys will be ready for Catawba."

Leading the list of injured ECC gridders is All-Conference James Speight. The 170-pound fullback suffered a bruised foot in the opening tilt of the season after only a few moments of play. He missed last weekend's game with Presbyterian. Boone said, "I figure James will be ready along with the others."

The others are halfbacks Glenn Bass and Lee Atkinson, ends David Thomas and Howard Beale, and center Lynn Barnett.

Boone also commented that "If we can just get all our boys in playing shape again, put them all on the field as a unit, I think we'll give anybody a battle."

The Pirates gave Emory and Henry a battle in the season's opener two weeks ago, dropping the highly-vaunted Virginia club 12-0 with all the Pirates in good shape. During the game and in the week's drills which followed, the seven boys named earlier were hurt.

The weekend afterwards, Presbyterian came to Greenville and handed the locals a 24-16 setback. Speight, who has been regarded one of the best backs in the state,

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's Warren Spahn and New York's Whitey Ford, the same pair who pitched last October's opener, will face each other in the first game of the 1958 World Series here Wednesday.

The selection of the star southpaw to open the post season proceedings was taken for granted even before the official announcements, scheduled to be made some time today.

Spahn, 22-11 during the regular season, warmed up for his important assignment with a six-inning chore against Cincinnati Saturday, during which he permitted only one run. Ford (14-7) also turned in an impressive performance for his lead-off role with a one-hit, six-inning performance against Baltimore Friday.

Although neither of the managers would admit it, each has his rotation for the first three games at the Los Angeles Coliseum (30-10), three-time conqueror of the Yankees in last year's Milwaukee triumph, is a lead pipe cinch to hurl the second game for the Braves. Opposing him on Thursday, in Milwaukee's County Stadium, will be Bob Turley (21-7), the Yankees' strong-armed right-hander.

Third game opponents figure to be Bob Rush (10-6) for the Braves and Don Larsen (9-6), the only perfect game pitcher in World Series history, for the Yankees. Rush, who hurled three strong innings in the season's finale against Cincinnati Sunday, is this corner's choice to receive the nod over candidates Carleton Willey, Juan Pizarro, Bob Buhl and Ernie Johnson.

No matter who pitches, and when, the Series figures to go at least six games. Neither of the clubs has a decided advantage over the other. The hitting and fielding is about even, the Braves have the edge in pitching and on the mound.

The Braves, having proved to themselves they could beat the Yankees, are confident they can do it again. The Yankees, on the other hand, point to the fact that Mickey Vernon pitched in the 1903 Skowron, who missed part of the action last year because of injuries, are hale, hearty and healthy this time.

The Braves will enter the Series with Wes Covington, their big left-handed power hitter, nursing two bad legs. His sub-par physical condition could prove fatal. Cincinnati Manager Jimmy Dykes, for one—and National Leagueu—to boot—thinks Covington's poor underpinnings may cost the Braves the Series.

"The Braves are in trouble," he said before his team clashed with the Braves in the season's final game. "They're not coming up to it in good shape."

"There are a few things wrong with them right now," Jimmy added. "Left field is one of the big ones. Covington did a good job for them out there last time. Now he has two bad legs. You can't play in that big Yankee Stadium with him leg. It'll hurt the Braves."

"I'm worried about that guy (Johnny Logan) at shortstop," the 61-year-old Redleg skipper said. "He's having a terrible year. He did a terrific job in the Series last year. He played great shortstop as well as half of left field for Covington. He took care of all the pop flies in short left, allowing Wes to play deep. He'll have to go back even further this time, and he's having his own troubles."

Williams Isn't Sure Of Future

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ted Williams, who draws $125,000 a year for swinging a bat as few have never done, won't say whether he'll be back next year for another try.

"I wish I knew," the Boston slugger said Sunday after capturing his sixth American League batting championship with a .328 average.

"I'm not going to worry about that now."

"I'm going fishing."

He took off immediately for Maine, stopping just long enough in Boston to pick up equipment.

The 40-year-old Williams said he was "extremely lucky" to have won another crown, his second straight. But his blazing finish was in the tradition of confident heroes.

Hitting under .300 in June, he had edged up on the leaders and finally crept ahead of teammate Pete Runnels in the first game of a doubleheader last Friday night. Runnels, an ex-Senator, tied it in the second game but could not stand up to Williams' pace Saturday and Sunday.

Going into the last game of the season, Williams was hitting .327 and Runnels .324. When it was over, Williams was still the champ with .328 and Runnels, hitless for the afternoon, was second with .322.

NEW METHODS MAKE IT POSSIBLE...
Low-cost shelter buildings with walls of solid concrete

Reinforced concrete walls are cast on the ground, erected with form tractor and new tilting frame developed at Texas A. & M.

Farm engineers have borrowed a method from industrial builders... streamlined it... cut costs to make it practical for simple farm structures. The method is "tilt-up"... but builders no longer need heavy-construction lifting rigs to raise the concrete panels.

The tilting frame illustrated was developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Now, a small crew can place 8 x 8 or 10 x 10 concrete panels in a matter of minutes. The only power needed is that of a standard farm tractor.

Long-life concrete is weather-resistant, rodent-proof and noncombustible. Solid concrete walls can take the punishment required in farm structures like loafing and feeding barns and machine sheds. And because they need little or no maintenance during their long life, concrete buildings save you time and money. For details, see your ready-mix dealer, rural builder, or farm structures specialist at your state college. Or fill in the coupon below.

Historical Novel of the Old West ELIZABETH, BY NAME BY WILL COOK

© 1955, Will Cook. Reprinted by arrangement with Dodd, Mead and Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 18
Finley Burkhauser was, Elizabeth decided in the days that followed, a very easy man to get along with, and she could not help but believe that she could live with him for years without a serious argument. The children loved him in spite of the fact that he was more firm with them than she had ever dared to be. Tom washed three times a day, and bathed twice a week. Once he assented Burkhauser and promptly had his brushes removed and his bottom tanned. Elizabeth never heard the boy speak smart again.

Work went extremely well under Burkhauser's direction and Elizabeth found that her firm resolve to keep him at a friendly distance was not so firm after all. He was more than just another worker. He was a core around which a life was built, a family grew to quiet strength. Burkhauser had a great dignity, and even when he joked with the children, they never forgot it or lost their respect for him, or the position of authority that he occupied.

He was, she had to admit, in authority, at the table, at work around the place, but he never gave her an order, or made more than a suggestion to her, leaving all the decisions to her own judgment.

And she saw another side of his nature that she had only suspected before: there was a vigilance about him that never slept. He listened to the wind and looked to the sky and worked heavily armed, continually scanning the flats for anything that might be out there.

His ten days stretched into three weeks. The weather was turning bitterly cold and each morning the prairie was white with frost and a man could see his breath at noon no matter how brightly the sun shone.

They were working along the creek. Tom and Finley Burkhauser, and the tall Texan quietly dropped a hand to the boy's shoulder. "Go find your sisters and get them into the house."

"Huh?" Burkhauser's nod indicated the direction; then Tom Rettig saw them, a small party of ten Kiowas slowly approaching. He swallowed heavily and ran for the soddy, calling to Catherine and Mary. Burkhauser stood there a moment, then casually gathered up his tools, shouldered them and walked toward the cabin. Elizabeth came to the doorway, saw the serious expression on his face.

"What's the matter?" She looked past him then and saw the Indians, still a half mile away. The girls came running, Tom behind them. He was nearly out of breath and spoke haltingly. "Shall I get my rifle, sir?"

"Just keep it out of sight but handy," Burkhauser said. To the girls he said, "You two sweeties get inside and don't poke your noses out for anything."

They welcomed the chance to obey. Burkhauser stepped inside and picked up his Spencer repeating rifle. He checked the tabular magazine in the butt-stock, then leaned it against the cabin wall where it would be handy, yet not threatening. He did not bother to check his pistols because he knew they were ready at all times.

The Indians were close enough now so that Elizabeth could see their wrappings and weapons. She darted a glance at Finley Burkhauser, but he seemed quite calm. He was a wall of strength, just standing there with those efficient pistols on his hips. Twenty yards away the Indians stopped. They were not tall, and mostly stocky, big-boned, with flat faces and dark skin. One of them raised a hand in the Kiowa sign and to Elizabeth's surprise, it was Tom who answered him.

"Where the blue blazes did he learn that?" Burkhauser said. "Mobeetie Jake taught him," Elizabeth said, still watching the Indians.

Then one of them did a surprising thing: he dismounted from his horse and came forward on foot. This was enough to cement Burkhauser's suspicions. "I know what's ailing 'em now. They've taken a good licking somewhere. No Kiowa would ever dismount that way unless he had a belly full of fighting."

When the Kiowa spoke, Burkhauser understood it, and Tom understood a good deal of it; they both listened intently. Finally Burkhauser said, "He's called Barking Dog, a small chief. And there was a fight. They caught some buffalo hunters away from Adobe Walls and tried to kill 'em. The hunters took a position in a waller and beat the soul out of 'em." He glanced at Tom. "That about the way you got it, son?"

"Yes, sir. What I got of it." Elizabeth looked at Barking Dog when she spoke. "Find out what he wants." She met the Indian's eyes although it was an effort to do so, for there was no trust there, and a friendly tolerance brought about only by distressing circumstances.

Barking Dog spoke at length, then Burkhauser translated. "Of course he wants cartridges. I suppose he wants to go back and fight some more."

"There are no cartridges," Elizabeth said. Repeating this, Burkhauser added a lot, about how this woman sold only the things of peace, not of war, and how the winter was about to settle down on them and how hungry they would be because they chose to make war instead of hunting buffalo. He painted a realistic picture and Barking Dog understood it. He was a whipped Indian, easily handled now, open to any kind of a suggestion, and Finley Burkhauser knew it and played it as far as he could.

He knew that if an Indian was given victory, he became intolerable, but in defeat he was as helpless as a small child. Indians believed that everything, good and bad, was due to their medicine, and once they thought it had turned against them, there was only one thing left to do, wait until it turned good again.

"What have you got to trade?" Burkhauser asked. "Blankets, pots, knives, the things they can use." "Set your price high," he suggested. "A horse for a blanket. You can sell the horses at Camp Supply for thirty times what the trade stuff cost you."

Elizabeth shook her head. "Are you suggesting that I cheat them, Finley?" "Oh, no. But you've got them over a barrel and that don't happen but once in a blue moon."

"I want to trade fair or not at all. All right?" He knew when he was licked and smiled. "All right, your way. Elizabeth. Get the stuff out here where they can see it."

The Indians stood in a line, their copper faces expressionless as Elizabeth and the children made repeated trips into the cabin to carry out and arrange trade goods. Nothing in her life had prepared her for trading with Indians, or their jabber, their curiosity, poking into this, trying on blankets, looking at everything.

She stood by Finley Burkhauser and watched them; this went on for an hour, the Indians grunting and talking and laughing. "How long does this go on?" Elizabeth asked. "Until they've had their look."

Phillips Died Of Ruptured Ulcer

An autopsy, performed yesterday afternoon at Pitt Memorial Hospital, has disclosed that the death of Dr. Orval L. Phillips was due to natural causes. Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse reports. Dr. Phillips, a member of the East Carolina College faculty, was found dead yesterday morning by his wife who had just returned home from an overnight trip to Durham where she visited the couple's daughter, who is a student at Duke University. The dead man was discovered lying in a hallway, clad in pajamas. Coroner Rouse said his right leg was broken just above the ankle and that he had a superficial scalp wound. Some blood was on the floor near the body, according to the coroner. Rouse estimated Dr. Phillips died sometime Saturday afternoon. The autopsy disclosed death resulted from a ruptured ulcer, he reported. The coroner pointed out that Phillips suffered the broken leg and scalp wound when he fell in the hallway.

New City Parking Lot Is Ready, Open For Use Today

One of three parking lots approved by city councilmen at a special meeting last month is now open for use. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said this morning. The Evans St. lot, less than a block from Five Points, is the first of the three to be completed. Work crews completed the curbing, paving and marking of the lot last week and meters were installed late in the week. Since the Evans St. lot is in the business area, parking will be limited to two hours in contrast to the other metered lots where all-day parking may be obtained for 25 cents. Bloxam said the meters will give 12 minutes parking for each penny up to 120 minutes, an hour for a nickel and two hours for a dime. Another lot is nearing completion. "We hope to have the Methodist Church lot in use by Thursday or Friday," Bloxam said. Most of the concrete work in that property is completed. The lot is located between Green St. and Dickinson Ave. adjacent to Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Provided bad weather doesn't develop, grading and paving will be finished this week. Bloxam also said it is hoped work will be begun on the lot at Fourth and Washington Sts. this week. That lot is already paved and only curbing needs to be installed. The city already operates two other paved and metered lots. One is located on Dickinson Ave. near the Green St. intersection. The other is on the old swimming pool property on Fifth St. opposite the junior high school.
