Pitt Farm Bureau Aiming At 3,100 Members Goal

Pitt County's Farm Bureau organization, still the largest in North Carolina, this year is making an all out effort to increase its membership by 500 farmers.

Membership Chairman D. R. House, Jr. announced at last night's membership drive kick-off meeting that the goal for 1958-59 is 3,100 members. At the present time Pitt County Farm Bureau members number 2,569.

"Five hundred more members were added to our quota because we feel there is a great need for stronger support from the farmer during the coming year," House informed campaign workers at the meeting here last night. "Now is the time the farmer needs help the most and he cannot get help unless he helps himself and he through inflation."

House pointed out that Pitt County has the largest and strongest Farm Bureau organization in the state now. "We are strong now but we cannot remain strong without the support of those being served," he declared.

Quotas and "Captains" in charge of solicitation in each of the county's 15 townships were announced. They are:

Arthur, Mark H. Smith-150 members; Ayden, Barret Sumrell-300; Belvoir, Roy Stancil-125; Bethel, H. L. Briley, 275; Carolina, C. S. Whichard-235; Chicod, Lloyd Fornes, Jr.-195; Falkland, Atlas Wooten-185; Farmville, Tommy Lang-400; Fountain, Floyd Turnage-125; Greenville-200; Grifton, C. T. Jackson-175; Grimesland, Johnny Hardee-135.. Pactolus, B. W. Baker-175; Swift Creek, Wiley Ray Hardee-175; and Winterville, Milton May-250.

W. E. Little, North Carolina Farm Bureau Field Representative, was the primary speaker for the kick-off meeting.

"The stable line of defense for agriculture is the men and women who lead farmers in the right direction," Little explained. "It is up to the local Farm Bureau organization and individuals to maintain this defense."

Little stated that North Carolina must increase its Farm Bureau membership this year if it is to remain ahead of other agricultural states in the organization. "By the same token," he said, "Pitt County, Having been strong in the state organization during past years, should maintain its status."

"It all depends on the individual farmer," the speaker noted.

Already Mississippi and Alabama have exceeded last year's membership, he informed the group. North Carolina's Farm Bureau dues are reasonable compared to many other states, according to Little. Some charge $10-$20, with every state west of the Mississippi charging $10 or above.

Little also spoke about Reciprocal trade. He explained that this type of trade has been extremely beneficial to the farmer. "At the present time our foreign trade is equal to production on 60,000,000 acres of land, an area double the size of this state."

A program, such as this, gives the farmer an outlet for agricultural products, he stated. "It is possible legislation will be passed in the future that would do away with the Reciprocal Trade Act. Then where would the farmer stand?"

"We, as farmers, need to keep in touch with our lawmakers on both a state and national level and the Farm Bureau is the best possible way to do this," Little said.

County Farm Bureau President George Cox pointed out that in recent years Farm Bureau has been instrumental in the passage of a number of bills beneficial to the farmer's welfare. Among those cited were: better and enlarged school program; gas tax refund for farmers (6c per gallon); better rural roads program; removal of farm machinery tax, saving the farmer $1,500,000 annually; preventing state tax on cigarettes and other tobacco products; successfully opposing discriminatory tax on feed, seed, insecticides and fertilizers ($2,000,000 saved annually); and consistently working to improve the diary program in North Carolina.

Nobody Heeds Edict By Mayor

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Mayor Paul Egan suspended Aurora's entire 68-man police force Monday night and called on the citizenry to make arrests when laws are violated. But nobody obeyed him, including the cops.

The policemen, who have seen more than 10 police chiefs come and go during Egan's 4½-year tenure, carried on as usual. "Nobody's paying any attention to him," one said.

The City Council passed a resolution 4-1 saying it could not condone Egan's actions. Egan cast the lone dissenting vote.

Furthermore, said the Council resolution, it must refuse to go along with the mayor's order firing Police Chief Donald Curran. The ouster was for personal reasons, the resolution read.

It was the Curran episode that led to Egan's latest edict. Failure to crack down on gambling, especially bingo, was the reason he fired Curran, Egan said.

But Curran wouldn't go. In fact, he told the police force not to obey any Egan order unless it was approved by Curran or the corporation counsel.

Egan retaliated.

"Because the men of the Police Department are in open, defiant insubordination," read an Egan proclamation, "Aurora is in a state of emergency.

"This mutinous action of revolutionary individuals makes it imperative I act and suspend all members of the police force."

Then he called on the 55,000 residents of this northern Illinois city to make complaints or swear out warrants for any violations of the law.

Farmville Market Has Highest Day Of '58 Season

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market recorded the highest average this season on the Eastern Bright Leaf Belt with its sale yesterday when buyers paid an average of $64.17 per 100 pounds.

Sales Supervisor Charles S. Edwards said the average was based on sales of 750,780 pounds of tobacco for $481,768.24. Edwards said an official check of the Belt this morning showed that the highest was the highest single-day mark record thus far.

Yesterday's activity pushed the market's totals for the season to 16,041,824 pounds which have sold for a total of $9,096,148.10 and an average of $56.70.

Edwards added that light sales are expected in Farmville's warehouse today and tomorrow, with expectations of full sales Thursday and Friday.

Child Seriously Injured By Auto

A 10-year-old Negro girl, involved in a near-tragic mishap here late yesterday afternoon, suffered a concussion and extensive abrasions and contusions.

Pearlie Mae Brown, whose address is listed as 1002-B Travis Lane, was knocked unconscious when struck by an automobile at the intersection of Line Avenue and the Farmville Boulevard. The victim was admitted at Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after the accident where she received emergency treatment and was admitted.

Sometime during the night she regained consciousness. An attending physician reported her condition as "good" this morning.

Sylvester Armfield, 49-year-old Negro of 105 West Perry Street, Farmville, was identified as the driver of the car that struck the local youngster. Armfield told police the girl ran out into the street in front of his car and that he could not stop in time to avoid striking her. He was not charged.

Little Rock Abandons Effort To Open Schools On 'Private' Basis

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An attempt to reopen the closed Little Rock high schools now on a private segregated basis was abandoned today.

A spokesman for a group which had planned to operate the schools blamed the federal government and the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People for the continued shutdown.

Dr. T. J. Raney, head of the corporation that leased the schools to operate them as private and segregated institutions, said:

"The Little Rock Private School Corp. made arrangements to open the senior high schools to offer educational facilities to all the high school students.

"Through the concerted efforts of the government of the United States and the NAACP, the Little Rock Private School Corp. has now been enjoined and prohibited from operating the high schools."

Only a few Negro employes of the high school and a handful of students showed up in the drizzling rain for school. Apparently most of the students interpreted the terse statement of Supt. Virgil Blossom Monday night, that the Little Rock board would comply with the court order, to mean schools would remain closed.

Federal marshals clouded the plan to reopen the schools as private segregated institutions when they fanned out over the city Monday night serving scores of persons with copies of a restraining order.

Officials, buffeted between federal and state pressure and momentarily in complete confusion, refused to say what they would do.

The conferred feverishly but announced no decisions.

Marshals waited in readiness for the next move.

The dilemma was sparked by two federal judges in Omaha, Neb., when they issued a restraining order at the request of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, supported by the federal government.

The order instructed all persons connected with the private school plan not to take "further action to transfer possession, control or operation, directly or indirectly," of Little Rock schools.

It also forbade altering the "status quo of the senior high schools insofar as their integrated status is concerned."

The order came a few hours after the School Board had turned the four high school buildings over to the Little Rock Priiate School Corp. and plans were in the mill to open the schools today.

The judges made their ruling retroactive to last Thursday after Justice Department Atty. Donald MacGuineas said the school lease had been executed in haste to complete action before the hearing.

The retroactive clause apparently was aimed at nullifying any legal advantage sought by the quick transfer.

An official statement of the School Board said the board would comply with the court's order.

But Dr. T. J. Raney, president of the corporation that leased the school facilities, said, "I don't have any idea what will be done."

He made the statement after hours of conferences and declined to say anything more.

Whether the schools were under control of the School Board or the private corporation wasn't clear.

Thus the city's 3,700 high school students were again thrown into indecision. Their schools originally were scheduled to open three weeks ago, but they have yet to attend a day of classes.

Teachers were advised by their attorneys not to take any part in the operation of the high schools by a private group.

Copies of the restraining order were served later by federal marshals on teachers and others connected with the schools.

Marshals tried to serve a copy on Gov. Faubus. They were unable to get past guards at the gates of the governor's residence.

U.S. Marshal R. Beal Kidd said Faubus telephoned him later and Kidd read the court order to him. Kidd said that would be sufficient and there would be no need to serve the governor physically.

Dulles Says 'Some Give' By Chinese Reds Could Affect Quemoy Policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today there could be important changes in U.S. policy as to the defense of Quemoy if there were some "give" by the Chinese Communists.

If there was a dependable cease-fire in the Formosa area, Dulles said, the United States would favor withdrawal of at least some of the large Chinese Nationalist forces on the offshore islands.

Dulles said the United States acquiesced in Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's reinforcement of the islands in the first place but considered it a foolish step.

At a news conference Dulles also said that the United States thought any renunciation of force in the Formosa region should apply not only to Communist China but also to the Nationalist government.

He argued this would be a fair arrangement and that it would be wrong to ask the Reds alone to renounce force.

In the past two weeks the prospects for a peaceful outcome of the Formosa crisis have improved, Dulles said under questioning.

He attributed this to some slight tendency toward stabilization of the contending forces in the Quemoy region and to his feeling that there is now less chance of hostilities spreading into a bigger war.

Asked how an agreement to renounce force would affect Chiang's policy of fighting his way back to the Chinese mainland, Dulles said Chiang's return would seem to depend on what happens inside Communist China. For example, he argued, should a Hungarian-type uprising come about inside mainland China, it might lead to Chiang's return.

Dulles confirmed that Chinese Nationalist fighter planes are using Sidewinder air-to-air missiles against Communist aircraft in the Formosa area. But he rejected a Red Chinese complaint that this somehow upsets the situation in relation to the Warsaw talks. He said that release of the missiles to the Nationalists by the United States had nothing to do with the Warsaw talks.

Dulles was asked whether he thought it was sound now to arrange for withdrawal of Nationalist forces from the offshore islands.

That all depends on the circumstances, he said.

The United States would never agree to a retreat under fire, Dulles said, because of the probable impact such an action would have on other peoples and other countries as well as the morale of Nationalist China.

Await Declaring 'Disaster' Status

RALEIGH (AP)—State officials waited word from Washington today on whether President Eisenhower would declare coastal North Carolina a major disaster area in the wake of Hurricane Helene's crippling winds.

Gov. Hodges, who proclaimed a state of emergency in the stricken area, asked the President Monday for the disaster area designation so the storm-wracked counties would be eligible for federal aid in repairing damage to public property.

Hodges told the President a detailed estimate of the damages would be sent to Washington as soon as possible. He asked city and county officials in the hurricane area to make an immediate survey.

State Director of Hurricane Rehabilitation Harry E. Brown said he personally felt the destruction along the coastline would amount to between 7½ and 10 million dollars. He said the final tabulation may be available Wednesday.

The governor's telegram said, in part:

"It is now apparent that the damage, hardship and suffering are so extensive as to be beyond the capabilities of the state and local governments to alleviate, and federal assistance is required."

Meanwhile, embattled coastal residents continued cleaning - up operations and a host of governmental, welfare and business organizations went ahead with the burdensome task of damage evaluation.

Small business administration personnel were in the area today to determine what counties should be declared disaster areas under its emergency program. Such areas would be entitled to loans to help private business repair damages.

State Farm and Home Administration Director Horace J. Isenhower said his agency has sufficient resources to meet the credit needs of farmers in the hurricane area.

The two major utility firms in the area, Carolina Power & Light and Southern Bell Telephone, also made damage surveys. CP&L estimated its loss at $100,000 and Southern Bell at $150,000. Both expected to restore service to all areas today.

Despite the fact that damage estimates still were uncertain, it was believed the total would be much smaller than that of Hurricane Hazel, which smashed the state in 1954.

Assistant State Commissioner of Agriculture John Reitzel said crop damage may not be too severe. The storm did most of its harm along the beaches and coastal towns and only fringe winds got into eastern North Carolina's 25-million-dollar corn crop.

Bloodmobile

AYDEN—The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be here Wednesday from 12 noon until 6 p.m.

Gene Underwood is serving as chairman for the visit. Dr. John Jacoway is director of the local blood bank. Co-workers are Bill Phillips, Chester Stox and Guy Braxton. Sue Nobles is representing the Jaycettes and Janice Whitaker, the Woman's Club.

The Bloodmobile will be located at the Ayden Community Building and is being sponsored by the Jaycees. Quota for the visit is 110 pints of blood.

U.S. To Give Nationalists Flying Boxcars, Big Ships

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The United States plans to give the Chinese Nationalists C119 Flying Boxcars and big new landing ships to increase supplies to blockaded Quemoy.

A spokesman for the U.S. Taiwan (Formosa) Defense Command disclosed today that the equipment is on the way. The ships are LSDs (landing ships, dock), which can carry up to six times as much cargo as the LSTs (landing ships, tank) which the Nationalists now are using.

With their present collection of equipment left over from World War II the Nationalists have not been able to get through to Quemoy the 350 tons of supplies needed daily on the besieged offshore islands. U.S. military officials have been urging the Nationalists to step up supply efforts.

The Nationalist air force reported that Communist ground fire shot down one of its cargo plane parachuting supplies to Quemoy during the night. This was the first cargo plane lost in 16 days of dropping high-priority supplies to Big and Little Quemoy.

The Nationalists have been using old C46 transport planes for aerial drops so far and the most they have mustered on one night was 20. The C46 can carry up to 2½ tons of cargo.

The C119 can airdrop five tons and is better designed for such work than C46s. An undisclosed number will arrive this weekend and Nationalist crews will begin training in them immediately.

The Nationalists have used LSTs in combination with small loaded amphibious vehicles that swim ashore as the vessels stand outside Communist artillery range. In addition to carrying six times the load, LSDs have the advantage of a center section that can be flooded so that smaller craft can shoot out from it rapidly for the run to the beaches.

One LSD was reported already in Nationalist hands. More are en route but the spokesman refused to reveal the number.

Communist artillery had tried unsuccessfully to stop the nighttime drops by firing artillery shells that explode in the air. This method lacks the density and effectiveness of antiaircraft fire.

There have been rumors on Formosa that the Soviet Union was supplying Red China with long-range antiaircraft guns capable of reaching planes over the Quemoys.

New Edition Of Brochure Issued

The Chamber of Commerce has issued a new edition of its brochure on Greenville bringing figures and facts up to date.

The two page pamphlet, which is designed for mailing, carries an aerial photo of East Carolina College on its front. There are also pictures of City Hall, the Court House, Sheppard Memorial Library a tobacco warehouse, Greenville Mills and an aerial shot of the business district.

It lists a 1958 population estimate of 19,000 and points out the city covers an area of approximately 6.4 square miles. Postoffice receipts in 1950 were $139,214.14 compared to $214,103.67 in 1957, according to the brochure.

Altitude of Greenville is 64 to 75 feet and there are a total of 72.48 miles of streets within the city.

Sixty industries are located in Greenville, according to the brochure. Included are: lumber, millwork, carpet yarns, fetilizer, soft drinks, bakery, dairy and meat products, monuments, batteries, stock feed, armature and motor rewinding, leaf tobacco, hosiery, chick hatcheries and machine works.

The assessed valuation of the city in 1958 was $27,549,935 and for the county $75,500,000.

Bachelor Takes Frightening Role

ELY, Nev. (AP) — Bachelor James Shelton, armed with plenty of formula and diapers, was headed for Reno today, hoping to find the parents of a 2-month-old premature infant.

Shelton became separated from the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Williams of Slick Rock, Colo., Sunday night near Eureka, Utah.

Monday morning he faced the frightening job of feeding the crying baby, which needed a special formula, and the problem of changing diapers.

The infant's plight turned into a three-state alarm when Shelton walked into a Eureka cafe. A quick call was put in to the Cortez, Colo., hospital for the formula—a special meat base preparation. The child had been released from the hospital only two days earlier.

After feeding and changing the baby, Shelton waited 15 hours in Eureka for the Williams to return. They had been in a two-car caravan and gave Shelton the baby, he said, because their car was loaded with household goods.

Shelton arrived here last night and told Pine County Deputy Sheriff Del Hofhines he intended to look for the parents in Reno. If they weren't there, he planned to leave for Lakeview, Ore., and leave the child with unidentified relatives of the Williams.

Officers said Shelton and Willims were both miners and planned to seek work in Lakeview.

Unemployment Figures Shrink

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in two years, the number of the nation's major job areas reporting improved employment outnumber those showing increases in joblessness.

The Labor Department announced this Monday in reporting that the job picture improved during the late summer in all but a few of the nation's chief labor and production centers.

Surveys showed four-fifths of 149 major labor market areas reported a drop in unemployment. Most of the declines were relatively small.

The improved job situation was attributed to pickups in the durable goods industries such as steel and machinery manufacturing and to continued seasonal expansion in other industries.

Another Record

Another season's record was set on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday.

The market sold 1,731,546 pounds of tobacco for $1,087,-661.25, averaging $62.81. This average exceeded the previous high for the season by $1.84 per hundred pounds.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee reports that prices advanced sharply on the market yesterday. The advance in prices for offerings of medium quality brown smoking tobacco and the top leaf grades was particularly noticeable, he pointed out.

Yesterday's million dollar day was the third registered by the Greenville market in the last six days and sixth of the season.

According to Whedbee a large number of farmers averaged between $72 and $77 a hundred for their entire sale. "I've seldom seen so many extremely good averages for one day," he declared.

Company purchases continued as high as $80.

Norfolk Schools Closed; 10,000 Students Idled

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Restless students, police patrols, canceled football games and closed door emergency sessions of city and state officials marked a tense beginning to the closing of six Norfolk schools.

The six, three senior high and three junior high facilities with an enrollment of 10,000, were ordered shut down by Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. while he considers possible ways of restoring their operation on a segregated basis.

Almond acted within the authorty of the state's massive resistance of racial integration statutes. The showdown came after the City School Board enrolled 17 Negro children in compliance with a federal court order.

No major disturbances were reported. Police kept students from gathering on Granby High School grounds during the afternoon.

City fathers, school trustees and legislators representing the city huddled for 90 minutes behind closed doors. They broke up without comment.

Later, after a separate, 45-minute meeting of the School Board, School Supt. J. J. Brewbaker served notice the three senior high schools had suspended fall football programs indefinitely.

He said it would be up to Almond to resume the suspended activities.

Hammarskjold Cites Little Middle-East Progress

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced today that the United States and Britain had agreed conditionally to withdraw their troops from Lebanon and Jordan.

The secretary general said the United States had promised to complete the withdrawal from Lebanon by the end of October if the situation improves sufficiently. He said Britain would begin pulling out of Jordan in October and would complete the withdrawal as early as the situation allows.

Hammarskjold made his announcement in a 30-page report to the General Assembly on his recent Middle East peace mission.

He said he had appointed a special representative to work out arrangements to facilitate the troop withdrawals and that the representative, Pier P. Spinelli, a U.N. undersecretary, is now in Amman.

Hammarskjold said complete mutual confidence among the Arab countries has not yet been restored. But he expressed the belief "the implementation of the good neighbor policy will meet with growing success."

Unofficial reports, in London said the British withdrawal from Jordan will be completed by Oct. 28.

The United States already has pulled out its Marines from Lebanon, and it appeared that the remaining 7,500 U.S. soldiers would be departing soon.

Hammarskjold was cautious about making forecasts on Middle East stability. He said his effort to carry out the Assembly's peace resolution is "still at an early stage and it is therefore premature to pass a judgment on the degree of success it may meet."

Western diplomats voiced disappointment over the apparent lack of progress Hammarskjold has made in the Middle East mission he undertook at the behest of the Assembly. He acted under terms of the all-Arab resolution approved unanimously at the emergency session last August.

The secretary general was reported to have encountered opposition from the United Arab Republic, which is said to oppose letting oil supplies and plane transport into Jordan by way of Syria before the British get off Jordan's soil.

Abdel Monem Rifai of Jordan said he expected the British to announce troop withdrawal in a few days.

One Middle East source said U.A.R. President Nasser had assured Hammarskjold that his government would lift its blockade by the time the British pull out, and that U.A.R. propaganda broadcasts against Jordan would cease at about the same time.

Informed sources said the Soviet Union has been attempting to persuade Assembly members to use the Hammarskjold report as a springboard for full-dress debate on the Middle East situation.

The Arab states are said to oppose any such debate at this delicate stage.

The United States and Britain have been critical of the Egyptians and Syrians for their hostile broadcasts against Jordan despite their pledge in the August resolution to live as good neighbors.

Hurricane Damage May Run Up To $10 Million

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Curiosity - seekers with cameras and official damage inspectors with notebooks continued to patrol the Carolinas coast today, seeking further information on extent of damage caused by the weekend's Hurricane Helene. One estimate has put damage at 7½ to 10 million dollars.

Col. Harry E. Brown, director of North Carolina's hurricane rehabilitation program — which has been active for a number of years—made that estimate yesterday, which he said was his personal appraisal.

It covered the North Carolina Coast from Cedar Island to the South Carolina border.

Brown said that "Practically every building on the coast line has some damage and we have to look at each of them."

There were several estimates of damage for various areas, some overlapping. The U.S. Weather Bureau estimated $7,280,000 for Wilmington and New Hanover County, including one million dollars in Wilmington.

The county includes Carolina Beach, where Mayor Glenn Tucker estimated at least $1,750,000 in damages, and Wrightsville Beach, placed at about half a million.

A meeting of the General Adjustment Bureau of the National Assn. of Fire Underwriters was told here preliminary estimates of damage in a 100-mile radius of Wilmington reached five million dollars. This was based on a preliminary survey of insured property only.

Scores of claims adjusters will process the 18,000 insurance claims one spokesman said were expected.

The Red Cross, which sheltered and fed 9,000 evacuees from Charleston, S.C. to Hatteras, said its survey of the disaster area showed six homes destroyed, 66 others badly damaged and 3,199 homes slightly damaged. There were 11 personal injuries reported, one considered serious.

The Weather Bureau said the hurricane did about $100,000 damage to the Outer Banks villages of Hatteras and Buxton.

Communications and municipal operations in the cities and towns along the coast were largely restored by last night.

Plans For N.C. Elementary Art Show Set

"North Carolina Elementary School Art" is the name of the exhibit which will open tomorrow in the art galleries located in the former auditorium of Sheppard Memorial Library.

The exhibit will show what North Carolina public schools have done during the past few years in the field of art.

Approximately 70 paintings—the work of students in the first through the sixth grade—may be found in the exhibit which will be opened from 2 p.m.-5:30 p.m. each afternoon, except Sunday, through the month of October.

In the art gallery the paintings are grouped according to grade level. Many of the displays are very attractive virtually for which credit is due to Mrs. Linwood Ray Allen, gallery hostess, and the exhibit committee who helped "hung" the show.

Visiting teachers and students will find an educational value in the exhibit.

An eminent authority of school children's art is each year brought to North Carolina to judge the paintings and select the best to be used for exhibition purposes in the state.

This exhibit in Greenville is one of three such exhibits being sponsored in the state by the Art Department of the University of North Carolina, the N. C. Federation of Woman's Clubs, and the American Association of University Women.

Greenville Woman Featured

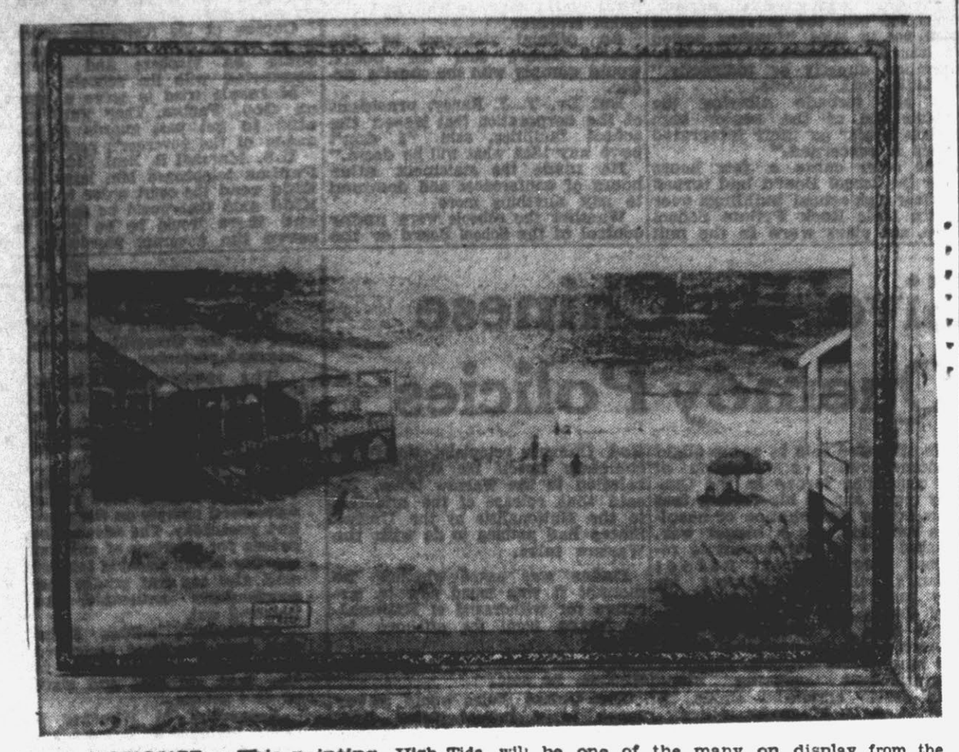

Last year the exhibit committee initiated the showing of a North Carolina artist's works during this exhibition of paintings.

A local woman, Georgia Pearsall Hearne, will be featured during the month of October.

She will have on display portraits, seascapes, landscapes, and still life paintings.

A SEASCAPE—This painting, High Tide, will be one of the many on display from the Georgia Pearsall Hearne collection.

30 Years Ago Today

September 30, 1928

Quite an honor has been conferred upon W. L. Whedbee of this city in his appointment as chairman of the Young Men's Democratic Club of the first congressional district. Young men are going to play an important part in the coming election to choose county, state and national tickets.

Honoring Miss Elizabeth Gaskins, who will be married this month, Miss Sarah Gulley was a charming hostess at a luncheon given at her home Saturday. Covers were laid for nine of Miss Gaskins' most intimate friends. An attractive package surmounted with a miniature bride and groom was given Miss Gaskins. The package held a shower of lingerie.

Dinner Party Honors Couple

A dinner party honoring Mrs. Margaret Taylor Matthews of Robersonville and Ben James of Raleigh, bridal couple-elect of October 4, was held Saturday evening by Dr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott Ward.

For this occasion their home on Purvis Street was decorated with vases of fall flowers.

The bride's table was covered with a white embroidered linen with lace inserts and matching lace edges. The centerpiece of pink carnations interspersed with fern was flanked by silver candelabra holding burning pink tapers.

Those who attended were: the honored couple, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George James of Parmele; Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Edmondson of Hassels; Miss Cynthia James of Raleigh; Mrs. W. B. Shoe of Greenville; Hilton Leggett, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Matthews, Miss Peggy Ward, Elliott Ward and Miss Ann Ward.

Bridal Pair Given Dinner

BETHEL—Saturday evening Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst was hostess at a buffet dinner and bridge party in honor of Miss Betsy Rose and Sammy Carson.

Fall flowers and decorations suggestive of the bridal motif were used throughout the reception rooms. A delectable buffet supper was served after which games of bridge and hearts were played.

Julie Pollard was the winner of the high score in bridge and J. C. Wynne, Jr., won the prize in hearts. Hal Manning was awarded the consolation prize in bridge.

The betrothed couple was presented a gift of china in their chosen pattern.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Brody's new hat bar, featuring Fall hats by Mr. John, Betmar, Braeburn and Amy, is complete. See this exciting collection of fall hats tomorrow.

White Family Has Sunday Reunion

BETHEL—Mr. and Mrs. Charlie White entertained their children, in-laws and grandchildren Sunday in their home on Main Street. Those present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dockery and childen, Wanda and Artie, Mrs. Robert Johnson and children, Bobby and Joyce of Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard White and Moye White of Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bryant, Jimmie, Ginger, Jone and Larry of Battleboro; and Derwood White of East Carolina College, Greenville.

The home was decorated with arrangements of mixed fall flowers.

In the dining room where a turkey dinner was served buffet style, the table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a glass container holding fall flowers of many hues.

It's Fair Time In Pitt County

The Pitt County Fair for 1958 will be just what the patrons of Pitt County make it. Since it is a reflection on the county, let's make it an exhibit to be proud of.

Every resident in the county, except certain persons directly connected with the fair association, is eligible to exhibit. So get out your fair catalogue, look over the premium list, and plan now to be a part of "Pitt County On Parade."

Exhibitors in all women's and girls' departments must have their products entered and ready for exhibition in the building by 6 p.m. on Monday, October 6, except in the Floral Departments. These entries may come in on Tuesday morning, October 7, by 9:00 o'clock.

Mrs. Norman Stanley is Director of the Clothing Department. There is a division for girls and one for women.

All girls in the county between the ages of 10-18 are eligible to enter articles that they have made between October 1957 and October 1958. The work must be that of the exhibitor.

Then, of course, there is a lengthy list of entries in the Clothing Department for women in the county. It is a good way to show off some garments or pieces of hand work that you have made in the past year.

Mrs. Amos Evans is again in charge of the Pantry Department. Look over your canned goods and select your best looking jars to bring to the fair.

Be sure you check your catalogue and bring the right jars. All canned goods should be in standard pint or quart jars. All exhibits in mayonnaise or other type jars will be disqualified by the judges from winning. There should be no spices or lemon peel in exhibition jars.

The Fair Association reserves the right to have all pickles, jams, jellies and preserves open for judging.

If you wonder how the prize winning jars of canned goods are selected, you might check the score card for judging each division.

All jellies should be covered with a layer of parafin. However, no parafin is used on jams and preserves.

The baked goods department has been expanded this year to include a greater variety of cakes, cookies, pies, candies, and breads for both women and girls. Be sure to check the premium list to determine the quantity needed for display.

There have also been some revisions made in the Floral Department. Please note that entries in this department may be made until 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, October 7.

Exhibitors will also want to abide by the following suggestions:

(1) There shall not be any residue on cut flowers or potted plants;

(2) A cut flower specimen is one flower with foliage and no buds;

(3) A display is three or more of the same kind of flower;

(4) A collection is three or more of different varieties, and

(5) An arrangement is a pattern of flowers with a focal point.

Representatives Of Local NCEA To Attend Legislative Meeting

The East Carolina College unit of the North Carolina Education Association will be represented at an area meeting in Kinston October 2 by President John H. Horne, Vice President Thomas J. Haigwood, Jr., and Chairman of the Legislature Committee Edgar W. Hirshberg. Dr. Ruth Modlin of the college education department will represent the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

The purpose of the meeting is discussion of the NCEA legislative Program to be presented to the coming North Carolina General Assembly.

Taking part in discussions at the Kinston meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Northwest Elementary School Cafeteria, will be county commissioners, representatives to the General Assembly in the Eastern NCEA district, school board members, leaders in the United Forces for Education, school officials, and presidents and other officers of NCEA units in the area.

Hickfang To Sing With N.C. Symphony Orchestra

Paul A. Hickfang, assistant professor of music at East Carolina College, baritone, won vocal auditions recently conducted by the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra and will appear as soloist with the organization during its coming season. In competition with a dozen contestants from North Carolina and bordering states, he received a unanimous vote from adjudicators.

Hickfang is a teacher of voice in the East Carolina department of music, of which he has been a member since 1954. At the college, he also directs the Opera Theatre, a student group which is now rehearsing an opera for presentation later in the school year.

A native Texan and a graduate of the University of Michigan, Hickfang studied during 1955-56 under a Fullbright grant at the State Institution of Music, Munich, Germany.

On the campus he has appeared as soloist in the annual production of Handel's "The Messiah" and has sung on a number of additional campus programs. During the past summer he gave concerts in Texas at Beaumont, Austin, and Bonham. A recital at the college here has been announced for November.

Luncheon Fetes Bridal Couple

BETHEL—Mrs. Eugene Carson, Mrs. Henry Rogerson, and Mrs. Raymond Whitehurst entertained at a buffet supper on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Carson in honor of Miss Betsy Rose of Wilson and Sammy Carson of Bethel, whose wedding will take place on October 18.

Upon arrival guests were served tomato juice in the den. The home was decorated throughout with arrangements of fall flowers interspersed with candle light. The dining room table was covered with an imported cloth and centered with bridal flowers.

Guests served themselves from the bountiful table and found their seats at pre-arranged auxiliary tables in the living room and the music room.

After the dinner Lester Rose of Raleigh, uncle of the bride-elect, entertained the guests with several stories and piano selections. Wilbur Harris of Conetoe, added to the entertainment next by rendering two vocal solos.

On arrival Miss Rose was presented a corsage and later in the evening the hostesses presented a the honor couple an electric fryer as a wedding gift.

Nixon Starting To Talk Rough In Campaign; Echoes Of 1954

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon is giving signs that as a campaigner he intends to return to his 1954 form when he was the scourge of the Democrats.

Nixon kicked off his campaigning for a Republic Congress with a speech in Indianapolis, Ind., Monday night. In it, he urged party members to take off the gloves for what he characterized as "the fight of our lives."

There were echoes of the Nixon of four years ago as he sailed into what he called "the cheap, below-the-belt cracks of Harry Truman and his ilk" and spoke of the "frightening alternative" to the election of Republicans.

Former President Truman was a favorite Nixon target in 1954. Then the democrats said the vice president went around the country insinuating that their party was soft on communism. Truman said Nixon had called him a traitor, a charge the vice president denied.

In 1956 Nixon threw the Democrats off stride. Instead of assailing them bitterly as he had two years previously, he spent most of his time talking about the accomplishments of the Eisenhower administration.

In his Indianapolis speech Nixon defended the administration's record. He boasted that six years under Eisenhower "have been the best six years in the history of this country." Then he drew a dark picture of what would happen if the Democrats increase their strength in Congress.

For the "Communist" issue of 1954 he substituted the threat of socialization of health, housing, power, farming and other American institutions.

Nixon said that if the opposition wins more strength, the country will be "in for a wild spending binge by radical Democrats, drunk with visions of votes and not pink but dead elephants."

He said a Democratic victory not only will mean a trend to big government but a kiss of death for legislation to control labor racketeering.

The Republican National Committee followed up this line today with a campaign broadside contending that "extensive and generous" campaign contributions have been made to Democrats by the Teamsters Union. The union has been the subject of extended investigations by the Senate Rackets Committee.

The GOP cited a series of contributions, going back as far as 1954, including $30,000 it said the Teamsters had contributed to Democratic funds to help re-elect Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) in 1956.

Organized Three Clubs In School

By LILLIAN GATLIN
Pitt County Training School

Pitt County Training School students have completed organization of three clubs for the 1958-1959 school year.

Included in organization plans for the Dramatics, 4-H and Library clubs was election of officers. Dramatics Club officers include president Louise Langley, vice-president Alice Daniels, secretary Lillian Gatlin, assistant secretary Mary Ward, treasurer Julia Hawkins and reporters Willie Gardner and Lou Crandal.

Officers for the 4-H Club are president Martha Mills, vice-president Eugene Price, secretary Lillian Gatlin, assistant secretary Louise Langley and treasurer Annie Clemons.

Library Club officers are president Robert Stokes, vice-president Lillian Gatlin, secretary Louise Langley, assistant secretary Nay Dean Hardy and treasurer Anna Hooks.

Members of the Pitt County Training School Committee met at the school last Thursday to discuss proposed projects for the 1958-1959 school year. Included in the discussions were campus grading, bus shelters, walks, and beautification of the school.

President at the meeting were Charlie Smith, Lyman Hardy, Walter Boyd, Willie Mills and Principal M.Q. Wyche.

The largest ship ever built on the Great Lakes was recently launched at River Rouge, Mich. She is the 729-foot Edmund Fitzgerald.

Long Lines Wait For Salk Shots

DETROIT (AP)—Some 5,600 Detroiters, fearful of contracting polio during the current epidemic, jammed nine emergency clinics Monday to receive protective Salk vaccine inoculations.

Health authorities have arranged for inoculations at $1 a shot. However, no one will be turned away.

There have been 432 reported cases with 16 deaths in the Detroit area so far this year. During the same period last year, 167 cases and two deaths were reported.

None of the polio fatalities had received Salk vaccine, health authorities said.

Merger Of Southern Railway, ACL Talked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed merger of the extensive Atlantic Coast Line and Seaboard Railway systems is under consideration.

Officials of the two lines said here Monday consultants will be hired soon to study possible advantages of a merger. If their indications are that one would be advantageous, the proposal then will be studied by directors of both railroads, with the final decision to rest with stockholders.

A statement signed by John W. Smith, president of Seaboard, and Thomas Rice of ACL, issued here Monday, said:

"Preliminary consideration of Seaboard and Coast Line indicates that tangible economies and greater efficiency may be achieved, with resulting benefits to the public."

The two lines operate in Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, with Coast Line operating about 5,300 miles and Seaboard about 4,150 miles.

Both railroads jointly serve a number of communities.

ACL, for 30 years operated out of its headquarters at Wilmington, N.C., announced early this year it would move its general headquarters to Jacksonville, Fla. Groundbreaking is scheduled Oct. 15 on a 15-story, 10 million dollar headquarters building there.

Rice said any merger would not affect plans to build the new headquarters.

The ACL president, who succeeded Champion McD. Davis as president last year, said the merger plans "sort of grew and developed recently." He said it looked like a natural thing to do "because the lines serve the same territory, have mutual problems and sometimes run side by side."

Policeman Tore Up All 8 Tickets

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A traffic policeman lined up eight motorists and started writing tickets for failure to heed a stop sign.

Seven accepted the tickets, saying they hadn't seen the sign. The eighth said, "Show me the stop sign and I'll accept the ticket."

"So you can't see a big red sign on a tall green pole?" asked the officer. "Come on."

They walked back to the intersection, but there was no stop sign.

"Somebody must have stolen it," said the red-faced officer as he tore up the tickets.

Little Point In Amendment Vote

There seems little point now in the voters of North Carolina approving the proposed constitutional amendment which would give Justices of the Peace jurisdiction in non-contract civil matters involving up to $200.

Voters of the state will have to decide on this constitutional amendment at the general election on Nov. 4. Under circumstances which now prevail, it would be wise for the voters of North Carolina to reject the proposed amendment.

There is every likelihood that the Jaypee system of North Carolina will be altered considerably by action of the 1959 legislature which convenes next February. The commission on court reforms in North Carolina has made its reports which recommends far-reaching changes in the Jaypee system. Furthermore the Justices of the Peace organization itself has more recently come forth with its own recommendations for changes.

Rather than adopt this one small constitutional change affecting the Jaypee system, it would be more logical for the voters of the state to wait and see what other changes are brought about by the legislature after its full study of the Jaypee system.

The Jaypee courts as now constituted are outmoded. The system as a whole needs revamping if it is to make a genuine contribution to the administration of justice in North Carolina.

In view of that, why pass now a constitutional amendment increasing from $50 to $200 the maximum amount of a non-contract civil action over which the Jaypees have jurisdiction?

It would be much better to let the constitution remain as it is until the 1959 legislature has an opportunity to act on proposals for revamping North Carolina's antiquated system of Jaypee courts.

Hurricane Could Have Been So Much Worse

While hurricane Helene's devastation along the North Carolina coast will run into millions of dollars, most of the Coastal Plain area of the state has a great deal to be thankful for.

As bad as Helene was, she could have done many times more damage both on the coastal and in the interior had she come inland instead of going to sea.

The fact that Helene brushed the North Carolina coast when the tide was low rather than high kept property damage from high water and wave wash to a minimum. The fact the storm swerved seaward instead of inland spared farmers of the Coastal Plain section literally millions of dollars in crop losses that otherwise would have been sustained.

On the whole there was little damage to crops that were still in the fields. A large portion of the biggest corn crop this section has produced in years was still in the fields. Also in the field was most of the cotton and peanut crops. While these suffered some damage, it is insignificant to what it might had been if Helene had followed the course of Hazel.

The eastern area of North Carolina will long remember Helene, just as it remembers Hazel, Connie and Diane. In the case of Helene, we should remember just how lucky we really were.

Legislation And Time Element

By LYNN NISBET

TIMING — Experienced legislators, as well as business men and politicians, recognize the importance of timing the presentation of ideas. Governor Hodges told newsmen the other day that every agency, department and institution operated by State government had been requested to get bills in which they are especially interested introduced early in the next Legislature. "Early" is a relative term, depending upon anticipated length of the session. Traditionally the budget bills, major appropriations and revenue acts, are introduced during the first week of the session. That is early by any standard, whether the pay time for members is 60 days, or 90 days or the current limit of 120 days.

The Governor sees no reason why the budget bills cannot be ready for introduction within the first week of the 1959 session, although budget bureau folks are faced with new problems in getting the material ready because of the revised system of A and B budget recommendations.

Governor Hodges also said he expected to have the administration-sponsored bills on reorganization ready for early introduction. Again the term is relative. Perhaps the two most publicized reorganization bills two years ago were those overhauling the highway commission and separating prison administration from highways. The highway reorganization bill was introduced on February 19, during the third week of the session, and the prison department bill on March 12, in the sixth week. It is obvious that introduction of these bills, as well as others sponsored by the administration and individual introducers, was timed for what seemed to be the most propitious occasion. It has always been that way, and probably will be in 1959 and thereafter.

OCTOBER — John Charles McNeill referred to October as the "month of memories." This year North Carolinians will not have much time to indulge in memories. October will be a month of hectic activity. Every person will have an individual priority list of events.

The politically-minded, October is the month before the election. Democrats and Republicans have staged meetings for almost every week-day in the month—and there'll be a lot of politics talked on Sundays, around churches before and after services and in neighborhood visits during the afternoon and evening.

October is the major "fair" months, with the big State Fair at Raleigh during the middle week and dozens of smaller expositions all over the map. A number of fairs were held in September, some will not be held until November. October is the main month for such events.

There will be some hot days and some cool nights in October, but generally October is a very comfortable month climate-wise in North Carolina. Summer is definitely gone, winter has not yet come to close down activities.

From early April until late June, Nature gives beauteous color to North Carolina—azaleas on the coast, rhododendron in the mountains, dogwood and red bud and apple and peach blossoms all over. Again in October the master painter splashes color all over the map, from the Outer Banks to the Great Smokies, a spectacle unsurpassed anywhere in the world. Any North Carolinian can drive out for an hour in an afternoon, or spend a week in Variety Vacationland, or stay at home and look out the kitchen window and find beauty in North Carolina in October.

ENTERTAINMENT — For those who like sports, either as participants or vicariously as spectators, North Carolina in October offers a wide variety of choice. Every Saturday afternoon during the month there is one or more "Big Four" football games in the State. And every Friday afternoon or night there are dozens of high school games. A fellow who is in position to know what he is talking about said the other day that total attendance and interest in high school football games exceeded that connected with big college games. The State Championship Horse Show at Raleigh October 1-4 is first of several such events.

The Carolinas Kiwanis convention is scheduled at Asheville October 5-7, the League of Municipalities at Winston-Salem the 12th to 14th. The Travel Council of North Carolina will meet at Fontana on the 17th and there are a number of other conventions—including the National Council of State Garden Clubs at New Bern on the 6th to 8th.

All flue-cured tobacco markets will be going strong, as will the furniture mart at High Point. All in all, North Carolinians will be so busy doing things to remember later they will not have time to indulge in fond memories of the past.

Statistically, A Tail Is Wagging The Dog

In Arkansas and Virginia something like 27,000 youngsters of school age have no schools because of closings. Those of high school level are concerned for their future in going (or not going) to unaccredited makeshift schools.

Parents of children in the lower grades are worried over the loss of irreplacable classroom hours and future prospects of educating the youngsters.

Think of it: over 26,000 youngsters who are missing their schooling are white; fewer than 800 are Negro! From a distance it would seem the tail is wagging the dog.

Long Live The Fifth Republic

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

The vote throughout metropolitan France and her overseas departments Sunday has written finis to the Fourth Republic. As the French would say, long live the Fifth Republic!

The conception was the work of a master politician, and the new constitution is a most remarkable document. Gen. de Gaulle has achieved the astonishing feat of satisfying almost everybody in France — except the Communists.

The constitution now offers the country a chance to rescue itself from the hopeless mess engendered by the dogged political individualism of the average Frenchman. One wonders whether even the French will find a way of wrecking the chance.

There is a touch of gradeur in the bond sweep of this document, which will stand as an immense tribute to the sagacity and political daring of Premier de Gaulle himself. He has given France a real chance of putting an end to the chronic instability which has brought an average of almost two governments a year in the 14 years since the country was liberated from the Nazis.

De Gaulle has been able to overcome the gnawing French fear of the political strongman, and the country now is headed for a strong central government. He has given France a chance, too, to ocervome the unhealthy effects of splinter party activities. At last there will be a check on the Assembly's violent politics.

The National Assembly will be elected by universal national suffrage. The Senate will be chosen by indirect vote. But the key to the future is in the executive

The new basic law provides for election of the President by an electoral college made up of about 80,000 persons. These are the elected members of Parliament and the elected municipal councillors and mayors in some 38,000 communes. Some of the communes are tiny villages from which only the mayor will vote. In others, the mayor and a number of councillors will be in the college.

The vote for President thus provides representation for the whole country. But the vote will be heavily weighted to the conservative side among the local councillors. The result thus indicates a strongly conservative chief executive, vested with important powers. The hand of the master politician is evident in this.

France's leftists and even centralists who longed for a government with sufficient staying power to carry out long-term policies can see their answer in the new constitution. But the conservatives ande ven the extreme right can hope they will have more representation in the government than the popular vote alone would provide.

According to the division of the National Assembly, the President will select the Premier. But the President will preside over meetings of the Cabinet, and he will have the power to dismiss the Premier. In addition, there will be limitations on motions of censure, in discrediting a premier, the President will represent the contintuity of the government.

De Gaulle's political daring also was evident in his challenge in the overseas territories. In the teeth of rising nationalist agitation all over the colonial and former colonial world, the territories were told the constitutional referendum would decide whether they would secede from the French Union or seek their future in partnership with metropolitan France.

There will be many trials and challenges ahead for this new constitution. But the rest of the world will be watching with deep interest the birth of the Fifth Republic to judge whether at last France has come determinedly to grips with the basic political problems which have been robbing her of her rightful stature among the world's great nations.

Strength For Today

DON'T BE TOO SURE

Someone has said that the neatest trick the devil ever perpetrated was to spread the story that he was dead. After every reason has been given for the decrease of religious interest among young people today, the greatest reason, probably, is that people disbelieve in the devil and have but little fear of eternal punishment.

Yet regardless of the jaunty skepticism men have about Satan, the spirit of evil seems to be abroad in the world just as it always has been. The word "Satan" means "adversary." In the Bible Satan is pictured as hostile in all goodness, a being who aims to undo the work of God by leading men into evil ways.

This may appear to many to be a naive conception. Perhaps it is. But its naive character does not alter the fact that evil as a gigantic enterprise still thrives among men. Certainly the world in which we live today is more comfortable and in many ways more wholesomely enlightened than it was a thousand years ago. It is doubtful, however, if the sum total of evil today is much less than it was centuries ago. We have just been through a war which killed more human beings than any struggle that ancient or modern man has known anything about.

So let us not be too sure about the demise of the "adversary." We may not be as sure as our ancestors were about his personality, but along with them we can be dead sure about his oresence in the world

Off The Beaten Track

Sales of "fancy glass" containers for alcoholic beverages this coming holiday season will exceed the all-time high of 36,000,000 decanters established two years ago, according to a recent prediction made by a nationally-known distillery.

Did you know the average American family sends out 250 greeting cards annually, including some 150 at Christmas time.

An air conditioning system large enough to provide comfort in a six-story building helped the officers and men of the atomic submarine Nautilus to keep cool under the Arctic ice during the recent historic voyage.

Now I wonder why they specifically designate "officers and men"? I know 'cause I spent two years in the Army as a man.)

Did you know that—

One chicken sandwich, containing a quarter pound of meat, will supply more than one-half of the daily protein requirements of an adult man or woman.

One-half of the American population today is suffering from "light-breakfastitis", a condition resulting in mid-morning tiredness, nervousness and inefficiency.

National Honey Week begins October 27 and runs through November 2.

Research at a midwestern college has shown that freshly fried chicken which has been frozen and then thawed for eating, can't be distinguished for flavor and appearance if the freezing is done properly.

A story that didn't make the paper—

DAYTON, Ohio — Service station attendant Max Stapleton is not a man to let disaster strike twice.

A week ago, he was robbed of $70. The same man walked up to Stapleton's station Sunday and found that Stapleton (1) had recognized him, (2) was barricaded in the back room and (3) was armed with a .38 caliber revolver.

The holdup man emptied his gun into the door of the back room. On the other side, Stapleton emptied his gun right back. No one apparently go hit.

When the smoke cleared, Stapleton told police, he could hear the holdup man rifling the cash register. But Stapleton was ahead of him there too. It was empty.

A sound catnap proved to costly for one man here recently. For what it cost, the victim probably would have gotten out cheaper if he had rented a room in the Waldorf-Astoria instead of going to sleep in his automobile.

When Levi Henry Faulkner of Ayden Route 1 woke up he was $30 poorer in cash and minus one pair of pants and a cigarette lighter. The money was taken from his pockets while he was asleep and the clothes removed from the back seat of the car.

I will not desert the Carolina Tar Heels during their time of need. I will not speak harsh words about Coach Jim Tatum. I will not, I will not.

No Time For Hacks

(Greensboro Daily News)

It is a curious circumstance—perhaps a law of politics — that as a strong Democratic tide begins to run in the country, the better Democratic leaders are being dumped in favor of party hacks and old pols.

That is the development in New York, Connecticut and other areas where Democratic hopes are rising. Thomas Dodd won out over Chester Bowles and William Benton in Connecticut; Frank Hogan got the senatorial nod in New York instead of Thomas K. Finletter; Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh won the senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania instead of Richardson Dilworth.

This leads James Reston to observe:

At a time when most reflective men are insisting that the requirements of the day are for more brains, the old pros seem to be insisting that the Grade C party cronies should be put in office while a Democratic tide is running in the country.

This may be a perfectly natural inclination among the party bosses, already scenting a Democratic landslide in November, regardless of the candidate; but it can become a dangerous trend.

For there is no assurance that the principal issues on which the Democrats are relying — the recession, Ezra Taft Benson and Sherman Adams — will stand up either in 1958 or 1960.

A Democratic landslide in 1958 could be the clarion call of doom for the party of 1960. For then a certain apathy might develop, leading to certain victory for Richard Milhous Nixon.

The real Democratic trouble, in fact, is the absence of any front-running candidate for the presidency. Nixon is the Republican white hope. But the Democrats have a stable of untried fillies — men like Kennedy, Leader, Meyner and Muskie, who may or may not make the grade. In the background for the moment stands the twice-defeated Adlai Stevenson, who, despite his battle wounds, could mount his faithful charger once more, if all else failed.

But this early in the game the Democrats are doing both themselves and their party — and, indeed, the nation — a disservice to assume that party hacks can lead in a time of crisis.

Opinions In Brief

"Tests show that the multi-grade students learn more reading, arithmetic and languages than those in separated classes. The reason: the younger students learn by listening to the older ones recite their lessons, the older ones benefit by reviewing what they have studied in the past. It remains to be seen whether the one-room school will receive general acceptance by professional educators again; but it may well be that the millions of middle-agers who received their early education in a Little Red School House in the country weren't so bad off after all."—The Tampa Tribune.

"We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of heaven; we have grown in numbers, wealth and power as no other nation has ever grown, but we have forgotten God; we have forgotten the gracious Hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us; and we have vainly imagined in the deceitfulness of our hearts that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own."—Abraham Lincoln.

"We are treating luxuries as necessities and necessities as luxuries . . . We have got to return to a reasonable sense of what is really important, as distinguished from what is merely desirable . . . The problem is larger than what has gone wrong with our policies. Even more fundamental, it is what has gone wrong with our society."—Sen. William Fulbright.

This Stereophonic Stuff Is Big

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you a any one of a hundred businesses, including interior decor pishing, architecture and advertising, as well as the rely musical fields—

If you have children—

Or if you appreciate music—

Then you'd better get squared away on this stereophonic stuff.

It's big. At the High Fidelity Music Show opening in New York today it's estimated that sales by manufacturers of high-fidelity and stereo components will exceed $250,000,000 this year. When you add the volume of records and musical instruments, performers fees, repair charges and so on, you're up in the billions. Solid billions, that is.

MATTER OF DEFINITIONS

To understand stereo, you've got to get the hi-fi beat first. Start:

The best human ear can hear sound vibrations between 20 and 20,000 vibrations per second. Most people hear much less. A high average may be no more than 14,000 cycles.

Ordinary AM radio, picked up by a good set, may let you hear from 40 to 6,000 cycles. If your set isn't good, you may get an even narrower band. FM radio, under Federal Communications Commission regulations, will give you from 30 to 15,000 cycles. AM radio picks up other sounds, such as that of one electron slapping another in the face. FM picks up less. Still, even the best FM radio is something less than seat E 106 at the Metropolitan Opera.

Some years ago manufacturers, egged on by the appreciationists, began bringing out hi-fi equipment. This would reproduce the full range of radio casts and combinations of hi-fi records or tapes and hi-fi phonographs would give almost the range audible to humans.

LOW DISTORTION NOW THE KEY

Recently there has been a shift to a new criterion. High fidelity, many say, depends more on lack of distortion than on cycles. Music with less than 5 per cent distortion with a narrow range has more fidelity than 20-to-20,000-cycle music with more distortion.

This built interest in stereophonic sound. When a person hears an orchestra, the sound comes to his ears from all directions. But when he hears an ordinary record or broadcast, the sound comes from a single microphone.

But stereophonic (from the Greek for solid and sound) sound is picked up from two microphones, one corresponding to each ear. On radio, a station may play the left recording over FM and the right recording over AM. Two receivers, some distance apart, are necessary to get the "solid" effect. Phonograph records are now made with two sound-tracks in the groove. To get the stereo effect, it is necessary to have a special cartridge, a second hi-fi channel and two speakers.

EVERYBODY IN THE ACT

Equipment to reporduce this sound is shoving sales up into millions of dollars a year. The stereo interest is influencing the design of music rooms, their decoration, the publishing of books, claims made in advertising, and even the sale of bandages to disputants upholding various theories. (This is not the origin of the term "solid sock.")

Many people are confused by talk of cycles, high fidelity, stereophonic and circumjacent words. But here's the advice of one expert:

"In choosing a phonograph or radio set, choose the one that pleases your ears. Let your own appreciation—not advertising, sales talks or labels—guide your buying."

Travel Can Be Trying

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — If I live to be 100, I doubt if I'll ever fully comprehend the highway signs erected in our so-called English-speaking country.

Who writes them, anyway? Gertrude Stein? Casey Stengel in the off season? Sam Goldwyn's old English teacher?

I've tried. Honest, officer, I've tried, but I just don't get the roadside message. The argot of the asphalt escapes me completely. "Fallen rock zone," for instance. How does one decently comport one's self in a fallen rock zone?

Look up, then duck. Look down and cringe? "Drive slow" —it should be slowly but the roads' scholars decree otherwise —and give the fallen rock a sporting chance to conk me? Should I "resume speed" to avoid pulverization or hie to the nearest "roadside rest" until the rocks have had their fill of falling?

Nonsense. Let the rocks fall where they may, this sign has no place in a free society. Why should a fallen rock, which pays no taxes, much less gathers any moss, be given the right of way over a sober, properly licensed, law-abiding, sign-watching, meter-feeding, tax-paying motorist?

And "end speed zone," what does that mean? Do I start to stop speeding or start to speed to stop from stopping?

Man and hot rodder, I've been tooling along the nation's highways and byways, up "hill" and down "grade," through "thickly populated" (one barn, two sheds) and "densely populated" (one house, two barns, three chickens) areas for close to 15 years now and I have yet to encounter the stag at eve or at any other time at a "deer crossing" and wouldn't have the vaguest notion of what to do if I did.

Do the rules differ in season and out of season? What is the bag limit for a breech-loading 1953 Ford?

Come to think of it, I've never seen any eggs on the road in a "bird nesting area" or any cows at a 'cattle crossing" on any backward moppets in a "slow children" sector, although several did seem a bit unstrung farther up the pike and a subsequent "slow school" sign informed me that their deficiencies were being remedied.

And please don't ask me to "beware low flying aircraft," because the old buggy doesn't have an ejection seat, or to "watch low trees," no matter how pretty in autumn, when I should be watching the road; or to "drive off bridge in event of enemy attack," as a sign on the George Washington bridge so boldly bids me. Fellows, it's a 136-foot drop into the Hudson. Let the enemy watch out for itself.

I'll "merge," I'll "yield," I'll even "squeeze," though it always makes me blush in mixed company, but I'll be darned if I'll "bump" just because a sign says so. The guy up front might be from out of state and not appreciate this legalized horseplay.

There are signs like "court quiet" and "alternate feed" which confuse and amuse me; signs like "road closed, preceed at own risk" which terrify and demoralize me, but of all sad signs that try my soul, the saddest are these:

"One mile, pay toll."

Phants Prepping For Tarboro; Two Halfbacks Hurt

This weekend will be Homecoming at Rose High School and the Rose-Tarboro football tilt at ECC Stadium will climax the weekend festivities.

Tarboro—just recently admitted to the Northeastern Conference—will be aiming for a victory Friday night as an indication to all NEAC teams that it intends to be tough in that league next season. The Tarboro club will not be officially included into the loop—as far as football is concerned—until 1959.

Greenville, on the heels of a 33-6 licking at Washington last weekend, will be trying to get back into the win column and is expected to have extra incentive due to the Homecoming festivities.

Coach Bud Phillips commented this morning that two of his ballplayers are still out of action due to injuries. Charles Roberts, who did not play at all last week against Washington, is still sidelined due to a shoulder injury. John Boyd, who saw only limited action against the Pam-Pack, is out and will not play against Tarboro.

Both injured boys are halfbacks, both regulars.

Much of the Phartoms' inability to get an offensive attack rolling was due to the absence of both those halfbacks. Roberts was being primed for All-Loop recognition this season and turned in stirring play against Jacksonville and Kinston earlier. With both he and Boyd out of action, Phillips will have to use inexperienced players at the two slots.

In Washington, Phillips used freshman Alan McArthur at Roberts' left half position. Boyd's post was filled by freshman John Adams, and inexperienced Larry Holmes and Randy Bass. Neither Bass, Adams, nor Holmes had run an offensive play for the Phants prior to the Pam-Pack tilt.

No injuries were reported in the Green line. Both quarterbacks Erky Duff and Charles Ross are still in top shape, as is fullback Robin Wilfong.

Tarboro will bring a 2-1-1 record to Greenville Friday night. Last weekend the Tarboro club trounced Hertford 32-7.

Coach Phillips said, "They've got a real good ball club. They are big boys, tall, and they love to play, love to hit you."

Phillips' work is cut out for him this week. He'll be trying to work in his new halfbacks and shape his club into a playing unit.

Torres Draws Sellout Crowd At New York

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "If boxing is dead, that was a helluva wake."

So said matchmaker-promoter Teddy Brenner today as he counted the $7,174 receipts for boxing's first sellout at ancient St. Nicholas Arena in 11 years. Back in 1947 Billy Graham (the welterweight) and Rocky Rossano packed the musty, midtown battlepit.

A red hot Puerto Rican attraction — a valuable promotional asset in New York — in undefeated middleweight Jose Torres and no television accounted for the turnaway crowd of 3,216.

To make Brenner's cup of tea sweeter, Torres, 22-year-old graduate of the Olympics, stopped veteran Otis Woodard in the fifth round of the ten rounder to the thunderous cheers of the Puerto Rican fans. That made Jose's record 6-0, including four kayos.

Unable to sell the show to television stations, Brenner gambled without TV in his first card in a month.

"This proves the fans will turn out and pay for something they want to see," said Brenner. "Boxing is far from dead.

Dr. Samual Swetnick's decision to stop the fight after the fifth round ended — a round in which Woodard was staggered twice — provoked angry outbursts from middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, Woodard, and manager Harry Wiley. Woodard is Robinson's sparring partner and the champ was in his corner.

Torres, 160, had won every round and staggered the 160-pound New Yorker several times. But he was unable to floor him.

Yankees May Start Without Yogi Berra

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — For the first time since 1949 the New York Yankees may start a world Series game with catcher Yogi Berra on the bench.

Berra, the squat swatter who holds the series record for games played with 54, has started 47 consecutive games for the Yankees in seven series since 1947. Now, with Manager Casey Stengel ever mindful ot the platoon power, Berra may sit out Wednesday's opener against the Milwaukee Braves in favor of Elston Howard.

Neither Stengel nor Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney has announced a lineup for the opener, but the right-handed hitting Howard could get the nod over Yogi, a lefty, against southpaw Warren Spahn, the Braves' pitching choice.

It's more than just a platoon plan that may move Casey to bench Berra for the opener, However. Howard was the American League champs' leading hitter for the season with a .314 average. Berra hit .266.

The last game Yogi missed in the series was the second game of the 1949 classic, which the Yankees won in five games against Brooklyn.

Berra, 33, has played the outfield for the Yankees this season, and also has dabbled at first base. The first base job, for the opener anyway, belongs to Bill Skowron. Since Casey has to play a left-handed hitter in the outfield, the odds say he has to go with Norm Siebern.

Siebern has been so impressive against left-handed pitchers — against the book — Stengel has even used him as a pinch-hitter against southpaws this season.

Stengel named White Ford, his southpaw ace, to pitch the opener.

It requires a temperature of more than 4,400 degrees Fahrenheit to melt the precious metal ruthenium, an element of the light platinum group.

Eppes To Be At Top Strength For Georgetown

Eppes High School's football team, licking its wounds from an 8-0 defeat at Wilmington this past weekend, has some bright news with which to start off the new week.

Injured ball players—Joe Tyson, Garland Allen, and Alton Davis—are expected to be ready for action this weekend against Georgetown High of Jacksonville. The ball game will be a non-conference affair, played there.

Tyson, reserve quarterback who has seen plenty of duty as a passer during the early season, was hurt two weeks ago and was expected to be out for the rest of the season. He had a neck injury. However, he made a brief appearance against Wilmington last week and will be back at top strength this week. Injuries kept Tyson from earning regular honors last year, also, when he broke his ankle before the season's final two games.

Allen, a husky center, will be back in light togs this week and is expected to be ready to play Friday night at Jacksonville. Davis, a regular guard who was hurt earlier, will bolster the Eppes line considerably, according to line coach F. R. Sanders.

Returning To ECC Lineup

FLEET NO. 29—James Speight, ECC's All-Conference back, plans return to action this Saturday against Catawba. (Reflector photo)

The Sports Reflector

By BILLY ARNOLD

Reports from the East Carolina grid camp this morning say that all but two of Coach Jack Boone's injured ballplayers are back in heavy equipment.

Yesterday's workout at the ECC field, following the postponement of the ECC-Guilford contest Saturday night due to Hurricane weather, was light. Joining in the drills were ends Howard Beale and David Thomas, halfback Lee Atkinson, and center Lynn Barnett. All four were scheduled for the sidelines against Guilford.

James Speight and Glenn Bass, both halfbacks, were the only boys on the injured sheet who did not work out in heavy togs. Speight, an All-Conference back last year, was injured in the opening game of the season and has seen only about three minutes of duty. He received a badly-bruised foot in the first tilt. Bass, a sophomore from Wilson, played both against Emory and Henry and Presbyterian and turned in top-flight defensive and offensive performances. He has a bad knee.

WHOLE TEAM WILL BE NEEDED

Boone will need his entire team this Saturday night, for the Pirates run head-on into the only dedefeated club in the North State Conference. Catawba, ranked this year as one of the loop's most powerful outfits, has the destinction of holding a win over Davidson already and tripped Newberry 24-14 this past weekend.

Though Boone has made no announcements regarding the possibility of having Speight and Bass in the lineup Saturday, indications are that both will be back. For the first time in four weeks, the Bucs are expected to be at pretty near full strength.

One good thing about the recent injuries at ECC is the fact that a lot of inexperienced boys have been able to see action. Boone said recently, "We've had to use a lot of freshmen. Naturally we've made some mistakes while they are feeling around in there, learning. But one good thing: when our regulars come back, it'll be nice to have those freshmen backing them up with some experience."

ECC'S BIGGEST NIGHT

The Catawba tilt is being billed as East Carolina's biggest night of the season. Besides the fact that the Bucs are expected to be at full strength and they will be playing undefeated Catawba, there are other considerations: It will be the first chance fans will have to really see All-Conference Speight in action; it will be official "Buc" Night, when the school will honor its new mascot, a 15-month-old Great Dane; it will be topped off by a fantastic fireworks exhibition during halftime, presented by Wannamaker.

Milwaukee Picked To Lick New York In World Series

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — On the assumption that the pitching of lefty Warren Spahn and righty Lew Burdette will neutralize the hitting of Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra, the Milwaukee Braves are picked to repeat last year's victory over the New York Yankees in the 1958 World Series starting here Wednesday.

Because the teams are so evenly matched, with the Braves having an edge in pitching and the Yankees in hitting, the Series figures to go the full seven games.

Should it go the full distance, Spahn, who will pitch the opener, and Burdette, slated to start the second game, could conceivably hurl six of the seven games. The pair won four out of five decisions against the Yankees last October.

On the other hand, it is not certain that Yankee ace Whitey Ford, Manager Casey Stengel's first game selection, will be physically able to pitch three games—the first, fourth and seventh. Despite the ability of right-handers Don Larsen and Bob Turley, probable second and third game pitchers, Ford looms as the key pitcher for the Yankees.

Ford is the American League's earned-run leader and the Yankees' top World Series winner. He has a 5-3 postseason record.

Ford has given up only one run in 17 innings in his last three starts. Those three tuneup efforts, however, were stretched over a 12-day period and although he pitched brilliantly, he did not complete any of his starts.

No one knows for sure whether the chunky 29-year-old blond southpaw can go nine innings at one stretch, let alone three full games in nine days. Sidelined for two weeks in August with a sore left elbow, he hasn't gone the distance since Aug. 8, when he beat Boston 2-0.

Spahn has pitched all season with three days rest. His 23 complete games attest to his durability despite his 37 years. Burdette, with his free and easy style, can go at top ability, rest or no rest. He stretched his consecutive scoreless inning streak to 24, shutting out the Yankees 5-0 with only two days rest in last year's finale.

Turley and Larsen made three starts against the Braves last year, and completed only one game between them. Bob Buhl, who started twice for Milwaukee, and failed to go very far either time, apparently has been shunted in favor of Bob Rush, the big right-hander acquired from the Chicago Cubs last winter.

Rush may pitch the third game if Braves Manager Fred Haney doesn't switch to either rookie Carlton Willey or veteran Ernie Johnson.

Now for the hitting. Mantle's healthy condition is bound to add strength to the Yankee attack. The slugging center fielder was handicapped last fall by a shin splint and shoulder condition.

Berra has had a better year, as have Elston Howard and Andy Carey. In Norm Siebern, their rookie left fielder, the Yankees have a left-handed spray hitter who is apt to prove troublesome to Burdette because he hits to the opposite field.

On the Yankee debit side, Bill Skowron, Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek don't appear as potent as last year, at bat or in the field.

The Braves are at laast as good as they were last year even with left fielder Wes Covington plagued by aching legs. Haney said he would not know whether Covington would be in the opening day lineup but the betting is he'll be in left field with the right-handed Joe Adcock playing first base. Frank Torre, despite a sore left wrist, will play first base against right-handed pitching.

Another questionable spot in the Braves' lineup is centerfield. Bill Bruton, the regular in that position, has still not fully recovered from his knee operation last winter.

The rest of the lineup—Red Schoendienst at second, Johnny Logan at short, Henry Aaron in right, Eddie Mathews at third and Del Crandall behind the plate—is all set.

Has Revolution Hit Virginia? Ask Duke

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Has the revolution come for the University of Virginia, heretofore the dependable doormat of the Atlantic Coast Conference?

The Cavaliers' showing in the season's first two games, against two of the ACC's toughest teams, indicates that more opponents' heads may roll before they're through. And the man who'll likely do most about chopping off the heads is a slender young junior from Williamsburg, Pa. named Reece Whitley.

Whitley, the 5-10, 168-pound varsity quarterback, showed the way for the Cavaliers in their narrow 20-15 loss to Clemson and in their 15-12 upset of Duke last week. He has completed 25 of 52 pass attempts and his running also has been outstanding.

Duke Coach Billy Murray calls Whitley "one of the slickest men we've ever seen." And Earle Edwards of North Carolina State, whose Wolfpack visits Virginia this Saturday, deems him "a magician." State spent most of its time yesterday setting up defenses for Whitley's passes.

Clemson worked out lightly and planned scrimmages today against plays used by Maryland, the Tigers' road opponent this week. Coach Frank Howard warned the Tigers Maryland will be at least as tough as North Carolina, whom Clemson defeated 26-21.

Maryland Coach Tommy Mont learned that his No. 1 right halfback, Tony Forbes, will be out at least three weeks from a shoulder separation in the Terps' 21-6 win over N.C. State. Mont already had lost Ted Kershner, No. 1 left halfback, who won't be back for two more weeks. Mont moved up Bob Layman to replace Forbes.

South Carolina, drubbed 45-8 by Army, will meet Georgia, which has been beaten narrowly by Texas and Vanderbilt. The Gamecocks came out of the Army game in good physical condition and their spirit was described as good.

Coach Jim Tatum of North Carolina put his first two teams through defensive workouts and introduced two new running plays for the Saturday game at Southern California. Center Ronnie Koes, who sprained his knee in the Clemson game, is expected to be ready.

Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen started getting ready for the Deacons' game at Florida State, and said he was pleased that the Wake Forest running game had looked so good in the 13-6 victory over Virginia Tech. He also praised fullback Neil MacLean highly. MacLean has averaged 3.95 yards in 46 carries this season.

Duke worked out under the lights for its home game with Illinois. Coach Murray said tackle Jim Gardner, injured in the Virginia game, would be ready but that he didn't know about third string quarterback George Harris, who suffered a knee injury.

Oklahoma Still First After Romp Over West Virginia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's something vaguely familiar about the weekly Associated Press college football poll today.

Oklahoma is in the No. 1 spot, a place it has held many, many weeks the past few years, and where it finished twice in the last three years. Last year Auburn wound up as national champion.

The sports writers and the sportcasters participating in the poll gave the Sooners 66 first-place votes and 1,387 total points on the strength of their 47-14 romp over West Virginia.

Ohio State, No. 1 a week ago before playing a game, dropped to third place. The voters possibly were a little shaken by the narrow 23-20 margin which the Buckeyes won over Southern Methodist. Auburn, a 13-0 victor over Tennessee, took over the No. 2 spot.

Three new teams were voted into the top 10, displacing Texas Christian, Pittsburgh and Washington State. The newcomers are Iowa, victor over a highly touted Texas Christian team; Wisconsin, an impressive victor over Miami; and Clemson, winner over already beaten North Carolina.

The only team to hold the same position this week as it did a week ago was Michigan State, No. 4 in both polls. The Spartans beat California Saturday 32-12. Army moved up from eighth to fifth, Mississippi from ninth to sixth, and Notre Dame dropped from fifth to seventh.

The top 10, based on 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second etc. (first-place votes in parentheses):

1.	Oklahoma (66)	1,387
2.	Auburn (58)	1,206
3.	Ohio State (23)	1,117
4.	Michigan State (3)	1,002
5.	Army (5)	843
6.	Mississippi (2)	717
7.	Notre Dame (2)	673
8.	Iowa (15)	626
9.	Wisconsin (2)	333
10.	Clemson (2)	333

The second 10: Mississippi State 324, Pitt 305, Louisiana State 167, Purdue 101, Navy 88, Michigan 84, Texas 61, Southern Methodist (1) 61, Houston 48, Vanderbilt 42.

Defense Becoming Football Problem

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

What's all this talk about too much defense causing a major shift to wide open offensive alignments?

Penn State and Oregon, for a couple of teams, don't consider themselves overabundant in defensive formations. They are the ones who must defend against Army and Oklahoma this weekend, the first shot anyone has to solve the much-talked about "wide open" style.

Admittedly these boys have problems. But so do the coaches who must face the conventional modes of football attack this Saturday. That's why most college squads spent the first practice day of the week concentrating of defending for Saturday's games.

Most of the problems were in the defensive backfields after a hectic day of passing last Saturday.

Pitt, 17-0 conquerer of Holy Cross and triple threat quarterback Tom Greene, looked toward a new nemesis in Minnesota's Jim Reece.

"Reece can thread the needle," assistant coach Carl Depasqua said of his passing. The Gophers' quarterback completed 12-for-21 and 207 yards in a losing cause against Washington last Saturday.

Pitt contained Greene by having its bruising line exert continual pressure.

The Gophers likewise looked to their defensive backfield as they fell victim to Washington's passing attack and must face Pitt's twosome of Ivan Toncic and Bill Kaliden.

North Carolina, highly touted in pre-season estimates, but loser of two in a row, tried to batten down the defensive hatches for its Friday night encounter with Southern California on the West Coast. Coach Jim Tatum expected trouble from USC's ability to use the run-or-pass option play that beat Oregon State and just lost to Michigan 20-19.

Rutgers, one of the big surprises Saturday with its 28-0 beating of highly touted Princeton, posed a single wing problem for Colgate, which must also stop tailback Bill Austin.

The Rice Owls 30-7 victory over Sanford last weekend has Purdue Coach Jack Molenkopf re-arranging his defenses. The Owls ran up 442 yards, 341 on the ground. Purdue stopped Nebraska, 28-0.

Michigan faces the same kind of problem in prepping for its big game at Michigan State. The Spartans amassed 502 yards whipping California, 32-12, while the Wolverines gave USC 298 yards in winning 20-19.

Kansas solidified its defensive backfield by moving its No. 1 quarterback Bob Marshall to the left halfback spot and moving Bill Crank into the quarterback post. The Jayhawks have yet to score this season, losing 42-0 to TCU and 12-0 to Oregon State. They face Colorado this week.

Secules Is Top Choice In SC Player Of Week

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — William and Mary quarterback Tom Secules has drawn first blood in 1958 balloting for Southern Conference football Player of the Week.

Secules, a 6-3, 210-pound senior from Williamsport, Pa., was cited for his pinpoint passing in a 14-0 loss to Navy Saturday in almost impossible playing conditions. Digging in on a muddy field at Annapolis, Secules hit receivers on seven of nine passes for 137 yards and kept the Tribe in the game all the way.

Coach Milt Drewer said Secules also chipped in with "an outstanding defensive game." All told, Tom was on the field for 58 of the 60 minutes. "He called by far the best game I've ever seen him call," said Drewer.

Close behind in the balloting was Jim McFalls, Virginia Military Institute tackle. He led three goal-line stands as the Keydets buried Villanova 33-6.

Peiping Protests Use Of Missiles By Nationalists

By NATE POLOWETZKY

TOKYO (AP) — Red China claimed today the Nationalist Chinese were using U.S. Sidewinder guided missiles to shoot down its fighting planes.

Peiping charged this was "a premeditated step in the U.S. plan of a war of aggression." and threatened "punitive blows on Chiang Kai-shek's air force for this criminal action."

An article in the People's Daily, voice of the Communist regime, declared the use of the guided missile "is a military provocation of the utmost gravity."

"This is the first time in the annals of war throughout the world that guided missiles have been employed," the article declared.

"U.S. imperialism has now confronted mankind with the danger of guided-missile and nuclear warfare."

A Peiping broadcast of a Defense Ministry statement claimed that one of its planes was shot down by a Sidewinder launched from a Nationalist plane during an air battle Sept. 24. It said parts of the missile, including the nose, were found near Wenchow on the mainland, and had been put on exhibit in Peiping.

The Communists said five Sidewinders were fired during 143 Nationalist sorties over Chekiang and Kwangtung provinces on that day.

The Sidewinder, a U.S. Navy-developed missile named for a desert rattlesnake, finds and destroys target by homing on a source of heat—the jet engine in the case of an airplane. It has a warhead of conventional explosives and a speed greater than sound. It can follow its target despite evasive turns and twists.

The weapon has been standard equipment in the U.S. 7th Fleet in Formosa Strait for two years and has been produced in thousands for the U.S. Air Force.

In Washington, the Pentagon would not say yes or no as to whether the Communist claim was true.

The Peiping broadcast came after reports had circulated in Taipei, the Formosa capital, that the Nationalist air force was equipped with the air-to-air Sidewinders.

Adm. Liu Hoh-tu, Nationalist military spokesman in Taipei, denied the reports.

Nationalist air force officials have claimed, however, that 29 Red Chinese MIG fighters have been shot down in combat without the loss of a single Nationalist fighter.

Forgets $2,500 In Favor Of A Wedding Date

BALTIMORE (AP) — Shirley Klein, a 21-year-old blonde secretary, has decided she'll forego $2,500 in favor of James A. Halloran, 24, Woodbury, N.J.

The couple were in a traffic accident last May in West Virginia. She claimed she received injuries and filed civil action against Halloran. Then she became engaged to him.

Last week Miss Halloran won a $2,500 court verdict against her husband-to-be. The money would come from an insurance company, not out of his pocket.

Miss Klein might still get the $2,500 by delaying her marriage, scheduled Saturday, and waiting out an appeal which the insurance company has filed. But that could take months.

A West Virginia statute provides that a woman who obtains a judgment against her husband-to-be and then marries him prior to the appellate court action, forfeits any further contest of the case.

NO MAM, WE WON'T

HELENA (AP) — A 73-year-old Big Powder River Montana ranchwoman, Mrs. Frieda Ullrich recently made her first trip to a physician's office. And she has had seven children. After her checkup, she apologized: "I hope people won't think Powder River county women are sickly."

Weeks Predicts 'Rapid Rebound'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Weeks predicted today a rapid rebound from recession will keep business strong throughout the autumn and into the Christmas shopping season.

"The outlook for continuing recovery is bright—the brightest yet this year," he said in a speech prepared for the convention of the National Assn. of Retail Druggists.

He blended politics with economics in a glowing account of "wise government leadership" which he said has helped restore public confidence and has "confounded the carping critics and the fainthearts."

Plans reported by industrial firms to speed up their investment in new plants and machinery, along with other factors, point to a marked rise in national output and income for the rest of the year, Weeks said.

But he cautioned that advocates on what he called "Socialist witchcraft" and "sky's-the-limit government spending" could overburden the economy with debt, inflation and high taxes.

"Spendthrift government undermines business confidence," Weeks said. "An eventual resulting increase in taxes would weaken business incentive, cut down take-home pay and dry up customer purchasing power."

He urged the businessmen to resist new spending proposals.

Humber To Talk On Museum In Raleigh Sunday

Dr. Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, president of the North Carolina State Art Society, will discuss "The North Carolina Museum of Art" Sunday in a public lecture to be held at 4 p.m. in the Flemish Gallery of the museum in Raleigh.

Dr. Humber's address is the second in a series of Sunday afternoon programs regularly scheduled by the museum. The information desk at the museum will have 150 free tickets available for the lecture, and museum officials request that the tickets be picked up in person during this week because of limited space available for the meeting.

President of the State Art Society since 1955, Dr. Humber has also served as chairman of the State Art Commission since its formation in 1951. He has been a member of the state Art Society since the early 1940's.

'RESCUES' FISH

CAROLINA BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Mayor Glenn Tucker came across a 1½-pound marooned flounder while inspecting his beach for Hurricane Helene damage. The fish was in a big puddle in the street, 100 yards from the ocean. Tucker decided it deserved to go back where it came from.

CHAPTER 19

Well after midnight, Elizabeth Rettig was for sitting down and closing shop, but Finley Burkhauser urged her on, handling all the transactions with the Indians, driving his bargains. With all the goods gone, he traded off the cook stove she had bought from Van Moor; he even traded off the last sack of flour.

"Now that's going too far," Elizabeth said wearily. "Finley, don't tell me they'll cook on the stove."

"They'll cut it up and make knives and stuff."

"My good stove?" The thought brought her near tears.

He quieted her. "Elizabeth, I know what I'm doing. Trust me."

There was nothing else she could do. Toward morning, Tom and his sisters went inside and fell asleep on the floor, but there was nothing so luxurious for either Elizabeth or Burkhauser. By mid-afternoon the next day, the trading ended. The Indians left in a body, children yelling, dogs barking, the braves walking with their women for they had traded the very horses they rode.

Elizabeth looked about her. "I'm cleaned out," she said.

"Except for sixty head of horses," Burkhauser said. He looked at the herd, properly picketed, grazing casually near the cabin. "I figured that we ought to have near seventy, but I'm allowing for the ten they probably stole back after Tom went to bed. Sixty horses at seventy-five dollars a head — that's close to forty-five hundred dollars at Camp Supply. I'd say you had another fifteen hundred dollars worth of robes and peltries."

"I'm too dog-tired to care," Elizabeth said, turning toward the cabin doorway. She went down the short flight of steps to the sunken-level floor, then turned and looked at him. "Darn you Finley, selling my stove."

"Buy yourself another," he said. "Elizabeth, at Camp Supply you could find a dozen stoves." He came into the cabin. "A trader is a man who will trade anything, even the coat off his back. If he won't, then he's got the wrong frame of mind to be a trader. You get some sleep. I'll bed down outside where I can keep my eye on the horses. Wait a minute." He walked out and around the side to the lean-to. When he came back he was carrying his blanket roll. He spread one blanket over the children and handed her the other one.

"Finley, you keep it," she said.

"No, Elizabeth. I've got the fire." He touched her gently, his fingers digging into the plump roundness of her shoulders. "Dang it, but you're a pretty little thing."

"Finley, you're a horse thief; I'm too tired to resist you."

His smile widened. "Knew I'd wear you down in time." He pulled her to him and kissed her with a big man's gentleness. When he released her, he said, "We're not going to be able to forget what happened, you know."

"I know," she said.

He stood there while she turned inside, then he went out and hunkered down next to the wall and pulled his coat collar up around his neck. Throughout the rest of the day he dozed, and that night he built another fire, waking now and then to tend it.

Toward morning he awakened with a start, ears turned to catch the alien sound that had alerted him. Easing away from the fire's light, Burkhauser drew his .44s and held them cocked. Then he caught the sound again, two horses moving through the frozen grass. A man's voice raised a murmured, unintelligible question, and there was a mutted answer. The two men came forward, shadowed, cautious, moving in until the firelight glinted off their rifle barrels.

Bat Masterson said. "What the hell's the fire for?"

Finley Burkhauser stood up then and he startled Masterson, who swung the muzzle of his rifle around. "Hold it, Bat!" Burkhauser stepped into the firelight and the two men dismounted, coming up immediately.

"You gave me a scare there." Masterson said, curiousity in his voice. "Who belongs to all the horses? The pelts?"

"Elizabeth just finished some trading," Burkhauser said. "She's in the cabin asleep."

The young buffalo hunter pawed the beard stubble on his cheeks. Then he turned to the man with him. "You know my brother, Jim, don't you?"

"I believe we met." Burkhauser extended his hand. "I didn't recognize you in the dark. You two been at Adobe Walls?"

"Yeah," Jim Masterson said. He was taller than his brother, and a little older, more restrained in manner. "You heard about the fight?"

"Heard about it and saw the Kiowas that got licked," Burkhauser said. "You two in that?"

"Start to finish," Bat Masterson said. "And it sure looked like our finish, too." He shook his head. "That damned Adobe Walls ain't as safe a place as it's made out to be, either. Still a man can't run out on his friends. Jim and I are going to Camp Supply for shells." He grinned. "Then we're going back to Adobe Walls and wait for the fun."

Burkhauser said, "Sure was nice of you to stop by, Bat, but everything's all right here."

"Well, I told Elizabeth I'd stop by." He grinned. "I like that little gal." He looked carefully at Finley Burkhauser. "How come you're here, so handy like? Ain't you supposed to be out chasin' outlaws?"

"Well, I do other things," Burkhauser said. "Matter of fact, I've taken some interest in Elizabeth myself."

Bat Masterson pretended surprise. "Now that don't surprise me a bit. Your being here was almost too good to be an accident."

"Matter of fact, it wasn't," Burkhauser said. "I've been here some time now."

A shadow passed over Bat Masterson's face. "That is news. Real interesting. Course, there won't be anything here to keep you now. I'll look after Elizabeth while Jim rides on alone to Camp Supply. He can pick me up on the way back."

"Say," Burkhauser said, smiling, "that's damned decent of you, Bat; I don't rightly know how to thank you."

"I'm going to bed down," Jim Masterson said. "You two want to stand there and fab, you go right ahead." He walked over to his horse and took his blankets off the saddle.

"I guess you're eager to get back to Tascosa," Bat Masterson was saying.

"Well, no. I ain't," Burkhauser said. "I thought I'd help Elizabeth sell the horses at Camp Supply, so she can pay back that fifteen hundred you loaned her."

"No hurry," Masterson said. "No hurry at all."

"That's mighty generous of you," Burkhauser agreed, "but likely she'll feel better about it when it's paid back. Elizabeth isn't one to take favors."

"Know her pretty well, do you?"

"Like I said, I've been here some time now."

"Yeah, that's what you said," Masterson slapped his stomach and looked at the fire. "Guess I'll turn in. You, too?"

"No, I'm slept out," Burkhauser said.

Masterson nodded and went to get his blankets. He spread them, then settled down, legs crossed, body inclined forward. "I'm not going to beat around the bush with you, Finley. I like the girl. Like her a lot."

"So do I. So does Harry Butler. We all can't have her."

"That's for sure," Masterson said and stared at the fire. "I wouldn't cut a man out, Finley; it ain't my style. But I wouldn't shy away from a woman just because another man wanted her."

Tempers clash as Burkhauser tells Masterson: "Don't get hard in the eyes, Bat, because you don't scare me one bit!" The story continues tomorrow.

Favor Equator Launching Site

DALLAS (AP)—Some scientists are urging that the United States establish facilities along the Equator soon for launching manned space craft.

Informal surveys of potential sites have been made.

James R. Dempsey of San Diego, vice president of Convair Astronautics Division of General Dynamics Corp., told newsmen that launching directly over the Equator would make possible establishment of an orbit that always would trace the same path through the sky. This would require a minimum number of communication stations.

Strips Mask Of Sherlock Holmes

LONDON (AP) — A mild-mannered horror specialist is about to strip the mask from Sherlock Holmes.

The Holmes the modern public knows, says Tony Hinds, is a fake. He may have been a magnificent detective, but he was mean and moody too.

Hinds makes horror movies. He's planning to give the horror treatment to "The Sound of the Baskervilles," one of the best known stories about Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's fictional crime-buster.

"Every movie so far gave Sherlock the romantic treatment," said Hinds, a 38-year-old Londoner with horn-rimmed glasses and a quiet manner. "You know the sort of thing. The great man. Amiable, patient, considerate. Pondering crimes like Rodin's Thinker.

"But the truth is that Holmes was—well, not quite top drawer, you know. Took cocaine. Kept cigars in the coal scuttle. Moody, cynical, bad tempered, rude — that's the sort of man he was."

Hinds said Holmes' contempt for Scotland Yard detectives was first class egoism and his rudeness to his sidekick, Dr. Watson, was "absolutely deplorable."

"The old way was to treat Holmes and Watson as a sort of comic opera act with the intelligent and kindly Holmes trying to cope with well meaning but stupid Watson," said Hinds.

"But Watson was no fool. He was an intelligent physician. Not the equal of Holmes in brainpower but a solid, courageous man with both feet on the ground."

Explorer Scouts On Storm Alert

Explorer Scouts of Post 30 were busy last weekend and all because of the actions of an unpendictable lady named Helene.

Saturday around noon the Post, which has a mobile communications bus, was alerted for amateur radio communications duty by Civil Defense Director J. H. Rose. A radio watch was kept on through the night.

Sunday brought a number of "welfare" messages as anxious relatives up state and in other states deluged him operators with requests for news in the devastated areas. At this time transmission conditions became very pppr on the frequencies being used by operators in these areas and the Post was called on to relay messages into and back from the Wilmington and Morehead City areas. Additional behind the scenes drama was enacted when an ocean-going vessel off the coast cut across the ham bands with a plea for help and advised that they were damaged and creeping toward Norfolk. The Coast Guard was informed, according to Charles Cobb.

As traffic tapered off late Sunday afternoon, equipment was dismantled and generators were stored away until "next time." A group of tired and sleeply Explorers returned hom to brush up on their "home work" and school Monday.

Rural school teachers are paid about one-third less than teachers of city children, reports the Twentieth Centur. Fund.

'Stereo Sound' Brightens Music Box Sales

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The music box which has made such a remarkable comeback since the war today has a fast growing baby brother.

Stereophonic sound, its fans declare, will sweep the country the way high fidelity and the long-playing records did before it. What this may do to the already established older forms of the phonographic industry no one is quite sure yet.

Stereo is a new starter but its enthusiasts think sales soon will reach the 500,000 sets a year mark, or about one-tenth of the total phonograph business.

The latest entry into the home music field is the device that makes you thing the sound is coming from all sides of the living room, instead of just from the box in front of you. With some effort and a bit of cash your present hi fi equipment can be enlarged to take on stereo. Or you can start from scratch and buy a new stereo set outright.

For records you now have about 500 titles from which to choose—or just about one month's production of long playing records. But more stereo records are being rushed to market.

The older manaural records — millions of them—can't give you stereophonic sound and the phonograph industry wouldn't be too happy to see this investment of theirs outdated. The oldies can be played on a stereo set but they go on sounding manaural.

Stereo calls for new records, new needles and a different cartridge, for two amplifiers and two speakers.

On the standard long playing record sound waves are recorded on one side of the groove. On a stereo record, one part of the sound is recorded on one side of the groove and the other part of the sound on the opposite side. The needles pick up both parts of the sound and the needle and cartridge separates them and sends them to different amplifiers and different speakers.

The stereo needle has to be even smaller than the one used for long-playing records and must be rounded to keep it from cutting into the record.

Phonograph and record makers are launching a campaign in October to educate people to stereo—what it is and what it isn't.

Joins Up With 'Enemy' Forces

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lomie Puckett made news last month when she took up arms in a fruitless attempt to keep the State Division of Highways from taking her house to clear a path for a new freeway.

Helping the stout-hearted widow was her son Ross.

Ross' has a new job now: working for the State Division of Highways, as head of its new eviction section.

Radio Outlet At ECC Has Begun Year's Program

EastM Carolina College's F radio station WWWS has begun its program for the present school year. A number of new broadcasts are included in the schedule, which extends from 2 to 9:30 Monday through Friday of each week.

The station, now transmitting its program on FM only, is installing an AM transmitter, a recent gift from members of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at the college.

Students of the class in Radio and Television Techniques hold the executive positions of the WWWS staff on a rotating basis. During the fall quarter each student in the class will act for a time as program director, music librarian continuity chief, traffic chief, publicity director, sports and special events director, and music coordinator. The station is operated under the supervision of Rosalind Roulston and Wendell W. Smiley of the faculty.

Trying 3,000 Miles On Skates

GROVE CITY, Pa. (AP)—A 50-year-old unemployed assembly line worker is on her way to Los Angeles—on roller skates.

Miss Sophie Krofcheck left this western Pennsylvania town Monday, hoping to skate 200 miles daily in the 3,000-mile trip. She covered only nine miles in the first four hours.

"I'll take it easy," she said. "I'll stop at motels and hotels along the way as I get tired."

Miss Krofcheck, who said she won the Mercer County, Pa., roller skating championship in 1929, intends to visit a brother in Los Angeles.

Two Guilty Of Game Violations

A pair of Pitt County men have been found guilty of violating dove hunting laws this month, Game Protector J. O. Teel reported today.

W.A. Mann of Grifton paid $11.50 court costs and had a $10 find suspended by Magistrate R.B. McCotter for discharging firearms within city limits and taking doves within a sanctuary on September 9. Joe Atkinson, Negro, Route 6, Greenville, paid a $10 fine and $9.50 court costs to Magistrate Heber Savage for taking doves before shooting hours on September 8.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market pushed further into record high ground early this afternoon. Trading was active.

Most leading stocks rose fractions to about a point. A few wider moves were made by specially situated issues.

Drugs and most tobaccos were up. Steels, motors and rails resumed their advance. Aircrafts, chemicals and some nonferrous metals were on the upside. Utilities were a bit higher.

Expectations of an early settlement of Chrysler's labor dispute, rising steel output and declining unemployment were encouraging factors. The market seemed to ignore tightening interest rates which usually are a dampening factor.

Atlantic Coast Line rose more than three and Seaboard Air Line Railroad was up well beyond a point.

Reynolds Tobacco B was off about two and Warner-Lambert around three.

Schering was a one-point gainer. Lukens Steel gained more than a point.

Gains of about a point were scored by American Smeltering, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Goodyear and American Cyanimid.

Radio Corp., Illinois Central and Standard Oil of Indiana were losers.

U.S. government bonds were unchanged.

Bonus Player To Be Tried On 2 Arson Charges

GREENSBORO (AP)—Tom Alston, 33-year-old former bonus first baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals, is scheduled for trial here this week on two counts of arson.

Alston, a Negro who reportedly received a bonus of $100,000 for signing a baseball contract, was indicted Monday by the Guilford County grand jury.

Officers charge that Alston set two fires on Sept. 5, both at the New Goshen Methodist Church near his home on Rt. 1, Greensboro. Only slight damage was done.

Alston, a 1951 graduate of Greensboro A&T College, has been held in default of $5,000 bond. He asked for and received his release from the Cards last April. He last played with the Omaha team of the American Assn.

The grand jury returned 72 bills of indictment, including three on charges of manslaughter.

Funeral Wednesday For C. R. Robbins

FARMVILLE—Connie R. Robbins, 68, died Monday at his home of a heart attack.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. from the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Williard Poythress, assisted by the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain. Interment will be in the Snow Hill cemetery in Snow Hill.

He was retired from farming activities. He was a member of the church, a veteran of World War I and a member of the American Legion Post No. 151.

He is survived by his wife, Beedie Burris Robbins; three daughters, Mrs. J. W. Potts of Snow Hill, Mrs. Fred L. Carraway of Route 1, Greenville, Mrs. John Ward of Farmville; one son, Archie Robbins of Kinston; one brother, Roland of Elm City; 11 grandchildren.

DRYER SHORTED

Firemen were called to the home of Frank Brown, 2007 E. Fifth St., around 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a clothes dryer shorted.

There was some insurance on the loss, firemen reported.

Lake Says Public Schools Of South Heard 'Death Sentence'

DR. I BEVERLY LAKE TALKS WITH ROTARIANS . . . Dr. Charles T. Pace, Dr. Lake, T. I. Wagner.

Integration decisions of the United States Supreme Court have "laid the sentence of death upon public schools of the Southern States," Dr. I. Beverly Lake, former assistant attorney general of North Carolina, told Greenville Rotarians last night.

"As a result of the decision," the speaker said, "millions of Americans have lost faith in the intellectual integrity of the highest court of the land."

Speaking on the topic "Good Citizenship and Obedience to the Law of the Land," Dr. Lake declared the law of the land is the constitution and the laws pursuant thereto; not the decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court or what the judges say the law is.

The doctrine that the law of the land is what the court construes it to be "is a false philosophy of law preached from the text that the constitution is what the judges say it is," Dr. Lake declared. He further asserted that the program of integration of schools is but a step toward the ultimate goal of mixing the white and Negro races.

The false philosophy of law now being preached, he said, could ultimately lead to the removal of the freedoms of speech, religion, press and other freedoms of American people if it is not contested.

Dr. Lake termed the present administration in North Carolina as one "committed to the policy of moderate integration and appeasement of the NAACP.

"If the unholy alliance between the NAACP and the federal government" is successful in forcing integration of schools in Virginia and Arkansas, how long will it be before North Carlina faces the same situation?", he asked.

Dr. Lake asserted no one with the welfare of North Carolina and its people in mind would advocate the people of the state engage in a gunbattle with federal troops or throw themselves against federal bayonets. Neither, he said, should the state acquiesce to integration orders. The state must not allow the situation to bring about hate of its Negro citizens, nor turn schoolgrounds into battle grounds.

If worse comes to worse, he said, public schools must be closed and other methods employed for the education of both white and Negro children.

The people, Dr. Lake declared, "are slow to recognize tyranny when it is clothed in the robes of the judiciary."

Success Concept Told Lions Club

"Success is to discover one's individuality and dare to express it," Dr. Jim Jones, president of Abundavita Corp. told members of the Lions Club last night.

"In our work we do not do as well as we know how because we lack inspiration," he continued.

Dr. Jones was speaking on a concept that all human behavior is controlled by one's mental processes. He challenged members of the Lions to think "abundant, new, creative thoughts" in order to accomplish the things that are wanted.

"Our thoughts must not be conformed, but transformed, in order to seek new ideas."

H. L. Lewis reported to the club on the sight conservation work done in Pitt County during the month of September.

Fifty-one indigent persons were given eye examinations. Glasses were recommended for 33, surgery for six, treatment for seven and an artificial eye for one. For four there was no recommendation for improvement of vision.

Eight persons were removed from the classification of blindness. Six eye operations were performed.

Funeral Set For Mrs. W. A. Morris

Mrs. Lena Adams Morris, 81, wife of the late Willie A. Morris of Blackjack, died Tuesday morning at 8:15 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Linwood Sugg of Kinston, following a short illness.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 o'clock at the Edwards Funeral Home in Snow Hill. Rev. W. R. Crowder of the Rainbow Church will officiate. Burial will follow in the Snow Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Morris was a native of Pitt County, and a member of the Blackjack Free Will Baptist Church for more than 60 years.

Surviving in addition to Mrs. Sugg are three daughters, Mrs. Roy McLawhorn and Mrs. Lessly Eason, both of Newport News, Va. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson of Grifton; three sons, Willie A., Dewey, and Herman Morris of Hookerton; five sisters, Mrs. Lula Dixon of Murfreesboro, Mrs. Alex Gray of Greenville, Mrs. Maggie McLamb and Mrs. Scott Dixon, both of Blackjack, and Mrs. Bessie Cobb of Whitakers; five brothers, George Adams or Williamston, Stance Adams of Chocowinity, Adrian Adams of Blackjack, and Jake Adams of Greenville; 19 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

Pitt Tract Among Group Leased To Paper Company

According to an agreement filed a week ago in the office of the Pitt County Register of Deeds, the U.S. Steel Carnegie Pension Fund has leased 67 tracts of land in 14 North Carolina counties to the Riegel Paper Corporation.

The group of tracts includes one in Pitt County, a 144.915 acres site in Chicod Township. According to terms of the agreement, the various tracts are to be maintained and operated as a timber plantation.

The lease, which is for an initial period of 36 years with an option for a 30-year extension, calls for Riegel to pay the steel company's pension fund a quarterly rental of $12,437.60 for the first 29 years and annual rental of $21,000 thereafter. In addition, Riegel will be required to pay all taxes and assessments.

Total acreage in the 67 tracts of land is 13,798.54. In addition to Pitt, counties and acreage which are included in the agreement are Duplin, 1,387.5; Brunswick, 1,119.5; Pender, 975.1; Jones, 554.03; Moore, 441; Lenoir, 201.1; Simpson, 1,177.9; Lee, 614; Bladen, 506.56; Columbus, 2,273.5; Craven, 2,964.99; Wake, 1,129.45; and Chatham, 308.

Under terms of the lease agreement, the paper company will have rights to all timber grown on the land involved.

Reaffirms Close Ties With U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi in a major policy speech before Parliament today reaffirmed Japan's friendship with the United States.

Speaking in the midst of propaganda pressure from Communist China and the Soviet Union because of American military bases in Japan, Kishi told the Diet: "Cooperation with free nations, especially the United States, is the keynote of Japan's foreign policy."

At the same time he called for a settlement of the Japan-Red China trade feud. He stressed that Japan will not recognize Peiping but both countries could gain "mutual benefits through trade and cultural exchange."

Last Rites Set For Mrs. W. E. Turner

WILSON—Mrs. W. E. Turner, the mother of Mrs. J. C. Lamm Jr. of Greenville, died early this morning after a lingering illness.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Joyner Funeral Home in Wilson. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Clyde E. Baucom and Elder A. D. Ayers; interment will be at Evergreen Memorial Gardens.

Mrs. Turner is survived by her husband, Elder W. E. Turner of Wilson; one daughter, Mrs. Lamm, of Greenville; a granddaughter, Frances Lamm; one brother, W. T. Aydlett of Moyock; five sisters, Mrs. Earl Cooper and Mrs. E. L. Bundy of Moyock, Mrs. Mamie Bryant of Wilson, Mrs. C. D. Turner of Dunn and Mrs. Judith McFarland of Norfolk, Va.

Reuther Fails Achieve Terms With Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther failed today for the second time in a week to achieve a clear-cut labor contract settlement for his United Auto Workers with Chrysler Corp. But he reported a meeting of minds that would make his further presence unnecessary.

Reuther had hoped to clear up the Chrysler situation so the union could devote its full attention to the huge General Motors Corp. Ford, other member of the auto industry's big three, reached agreement with the union almost two weeks ago.

The UAW president led his team through 18½ hours of marathon bargaining which began Monday morning and was interrupted only for brief lunch periods, subcommittee meetings and separate caucuses by the union and Chrysler.

He had indicated before the start of the session that an agreement could be hammered out within six or seven hours if Chrysler "really wanted to bargain."

Reuther indicated that agreement had been reached on major features of a contract similar to the three-year agreement which Ford and the UAW reached Sept. 17. The Ford agreement was expected to set the basis for contracts at Chrysler, General Motors and the independent auto makers.

Reuther, emerging from a meeting of almost 24 hours, said: "We have reached a meeting of the minds."

However, he said, problems concerning engineers, office workers and salaried employes still remain unresolved.

Reuther headed immediately for General Motors, the other member of the Big Three that still has not come to contact terms with the UAW.

Reuther said the remaining problems at Chrysler could be negotiated by the Chrysler bargaining team headed by Jack Conway, his administrative assistant.

The Chrysler talks, which covered 18½ hours of bargaining since Monday morning, recessed for two hours following Reuther's departure and then will tackle the problems again.

John D. Leary, Chrysler vice president, told newsmen: "No, it's not settled. We are very close and should reach agreement sometime today."

Named Division's Soldier Of Year

Private first class David T. House, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. D.T. House, Jr., of Bethel, has been named the First Cavalry Division's "Soldier of the Year", according to information received here today.

In a letter to the elder House, Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court, Major General George E. Bush, division commander, said Pfc House was selected for the honor after ". . .exhaustive testing in all aspects of military knowledge and training." Pfc House qualified for the competition by being named the division's "Soldier of The Month" in August.

General Bush also said in his letter that Pfc House was awarded an engraved watch in ceremonies on September 12, the First Cavalry Division's organization day. The ceremonies were held in Korea where the division is stationed.

Hi Kids

Yes, "Mr. Green Jeans" Is Coming To Greenville In Person Saturday, Oct. 11

Yes, "Mr. Green Jeans" is coming to the Pitt County Fair October 11, 1958. He and "Mrs. Green Jeans" will fly to Greenville and be our guests for the day.

You have enjoyed seeing "Mr. Green Jeans" on the Captain Kangaroo program. Now you can see him in person right here in Greenville.

We are also going to have "MISS NORTH CAROLINA" at the Fair, Miss Joan Brandon, the world's greatest hypnotist, and many other interesting people that you will want to meet.

New rides, a new stock barn full of interesting animals, and a complete mechanical display direct from the Automobile Shows in Miami and Detroit.

Yes, kids, this big Fair has been planned with you in mind.

ED HARRIS,
President
