Eastern Bowl Story

By JOE WHRITENOUR
Bethlehem Globe-Times Sports Editor

HOW MUCH OF AN ATTRACTION is Northeastern University, of Boston, against East Carolina College, of Greenville, N. C., in Allentown today? That's the lineup for the 2nd annual Eastern Bowl football game, and the king-sized question bugging promoters Mike Roman and Irv Kreindel. Will fans turn out for such a contest between two strange squads?

Roman, who resides in Norristown, joined Kreindel, an Allentonian, in staging Game No. 1 last season when West Chester demolished Hofstra, 46-12. The crowd, in spacious Allentown School District Stadium, was announced at 5,500. Promoters wrote the thing off as a fair first effort and hoped for something better in '63.

Northeastern and East Carolina are unknown to Lehigh Valley fans, but there seems little reason to expect anything except interesting, capable performances. The Huskies from Boston are 8-0-0 with triumphs over Rhode Island, Bridgeport, Bates, American International, Springfield, New Hampshire, Merchant Marine Academy and Tufts.

The Pirates from Carolina are 8-1-0 with the eight victories coming in a row following an opening loss to major college Richmond, 10-7. They have knocked off Wake Forest, Wofford, Presbyterian, Elon, Western Carolina, The Citadel, Lenoir Rhyne and Tampa. The makings are there for a spirited North-South struggle.

Another Soccer-Veteran Kicking Star . . .

STUDENTS OF THE GAME will be given an opportunity to watch the single wing, as employed by the Carolinians, go against the more-popular "T" which coach Joe Zabilski brews in Boston. You don't see too many single wing clubs these days, something that may lure an extra spectator or two through the gates for a look at an old-fashioned hard-nosed offense.

Clarence Stasavich, who coaches East Carolina, has been out of action for quite a while after suffering a heart attack. The team is run by Odell Welborn, his assistant mentor, who'd like a triumph for sort of a get-well gift. Zabilski has a different present in mind. He'd like to send Stasavich the game ball autographed by all members of the winning — Northeastern — squad. All that fellow.

Zabilski has an absentee problem of his own, a huge one, with star fullback Bob Cappadona ineligible Dec. 14 under NCAA rules which prohibit a transfer student in his first playing year from participating in post-season contests. Cappy wowed 'em this fall during the regular schedule, scoring 50 points and piling up 625 yards rushing on 123 carries for an eye-popping 5.1 average.

Cappadona's position may be filled by a boy named Maxine St. Victor, Jr., a native of Haiti known primarily for his kicking prowess. Like the Gogolak brothers, of Princeton and Cornell, he's a soccer veteran who boots off the side of his foot. He has a 47-yard field goal to his credit along with 27 extra points. At 6-foot-3, and weighing 227 pounds, he gets a lot of foot into the football.

75 Per Cent To Competing Schools . . .

ROMAN AND KNEINDEL are hoping for a turnout somewhere near the 10,000 figure because under NCAA regulations 75 per cent of the gross, after taxes, must go to the competing schools. That doesn't leave too much loot for operational expenses and an outdoor event in this part of the country in mid-December is risky. The weatherman must cooperate. If it comes up snow, well, there's always 1964.

The Eastern Bowl last season was played as the Cement Bowl, when West Chester and Hofstra competed, and the name was changed as part of a long-range hope that eventually the NCAA will recognize it as a small-college eastern regional gridiron playoff. Chances of this sort of sanction are slim indeed if the '63 presentation falls flat.

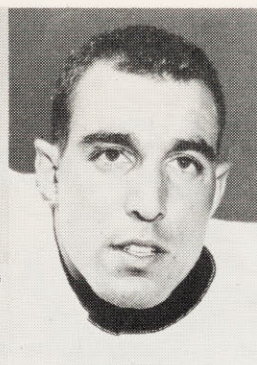

A participating charity in this year's offering is the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, which has accepted an offer to handle the program and retain advertising revenue. No set amount can be earmarked for the foundation, under this sort of plan, but actually this may be the part of the venture carrying the least risk.

Northeastern and East Carolina, according to their press representatives, are anxious to get into ASD Stadium and offer their pigskin version of the Civil War. It'll be North vs South, "T" vs single wing, the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation vs illness and Roman-Kreindel vs the weatherman and the creditors. All aboard.

Northeastern Campus

CABOT CENTER — The Godfrey L. Cabot Physical Education Center on Northeastern University's Boston, Massachusetts campus contains two gymnasiums, special exercise rooms, an indoor rifle range, offices and service areas, and a "cage", which is used for physical education programs and for indoor practice sessions.

Founded in 1898, Northeastern University has consistently followed an educational policy of seeking out community educational needs and then meeting these needs. It has not duplicated programs offered by other institutions but has pioneered new types of educational service.

Northeastern is chiefly known for its Co-operative Plan of Education, which was adopted as an experiment in 1909. The experiment proved to be successful and is being expanded year by year. More than 8,000 students are currently enrolled in the various co-operative programs.

Co-operative Education is basic to Northeastern's colleges of Engineering, Business Administration, Education, Liberal Arts, Pharmacy, and next year Nursing — when the college is established. "Co-op", as it is called, is also in the Graduate School in engineering and some of the pure science programs.

Under Northeastern's Co-operative Plan upperclass students alternate periods of classroom instruction with practical experience on regular paying jobs in business, industry, and the professions.

Northeastern has also pioneered evening education programs and adult education programs.

Growth and expansion have become synonymous with Northeastern in recent year. In 1961, Dr. Asa S. Knowles, President, announced the greatest expansion program in the University's history. He announced a $40 million Diamond Anniversary Development Program which, by 1973, is expected to double the size of the University's facilities, triple the size of its faculty, increase enrollments, and substantially expand the academic offerings.

As part of this program the University has doubled the size of its main campus during the past few years from 22 acres to 43 acres. In addition, it has added three off-campus sites totalling nearly 60 additional acres.

A suburban campus is currently under construction some 15 miles from the main campus, near the Route 128 industrial complex. This campus will serve those working in the science — and engineering — oriented companies who wish to engage in graduate or specialized studies. During the day it will serve some 350 freshmen.

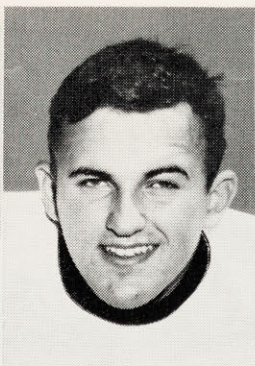

A second off campus area, some 25 miles away from the main campus, will be developed as a Center for Physical Education and Recreation.

Another site, approximately 12 miles from the University itself, is used as a Center for Continuing Education, where specialized programs are held for adults. The facility is also used for meetings for adult business and professional groups, etc.

President, Northeastern University

Dr. Asa S. Knowles, the third president of Northeastern University, has spent his entire life in the field of education and has served both private and public education with distinction. The former president of the University of Toledo (Ohio) from 1951-58, Dr. Knowles has also served as a vice president of Cornell University and as the president of the Associated Colleges of Upper New York. The recipient of six honorary degrees, Dr. Knowles is a member of a number of educational and civic groups and professional societies, and is now vice chairman of the National Commission for Co-operative Education.

Northeastern University's Director of Athletics Herbert V. Gallagher received a bachelor's degree in business in 1934 from Northeastern where he was also awarded varsity letters in hockey, baseball and soccer. After his graduation, he played professional hockey in England for one year, and then was given a coaching position for the 1936 Austrian Olympic Hockey Team.

Returning to Northeastern in 1937, Professor Gallagher was named head coach of the varsity baseball and hockey teams and backfield coach of the Husky football squad. He held these posts until 1953 when he was named to his present position.

Professor Gallagher has served as president of the American Hockey Coaches Association, the Eastern Collegiate Conference Ice Hockey Association, the Greater Boston Collegiate Baseball League and the New England Intercollegiate Football Association. He has also served in many capacities on numerous athletic committees including the United States Olympic Hockey Committee, of which he was chairman in 1956, and is presently secretary-treasurer.

NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY COACHING STAFF

Although post-season bowl games are nothing new to Joe Zabilski, head football coach at Northeastern University, at this season's Eastern Bowl he will be seeing events from the sidelines for the first time.

A member of the Boston College football teams that played in the Cotton and Sugar Bowls under Frank Leahy, Zabilski is again returning to a post-season bowl contest.

After serving 16 years at the Huskies' head, Zabilski has compiled a total of 61 victories, 49 defeats and 6 ties.

One other season in his coaching history failed to add a blemish to the loss column, when in 1951 the N. U. team again went undefeated, only to be tied in the season's final with the Coast Guard Academy.

Prime factor in that initial unbeaten season was John "Tinker" Connelly who quarterbacked the team then and who is backfield coach now.

Not only did Connelly drive N. U. through its first perfect schedule, but he also was named to the All-New England hockey, baseball and football teams that season.

Newest member of the staff, but a familiar face to N. U. is Robert Lyons, who in 1956 and again in 1957 was named All-New England center.

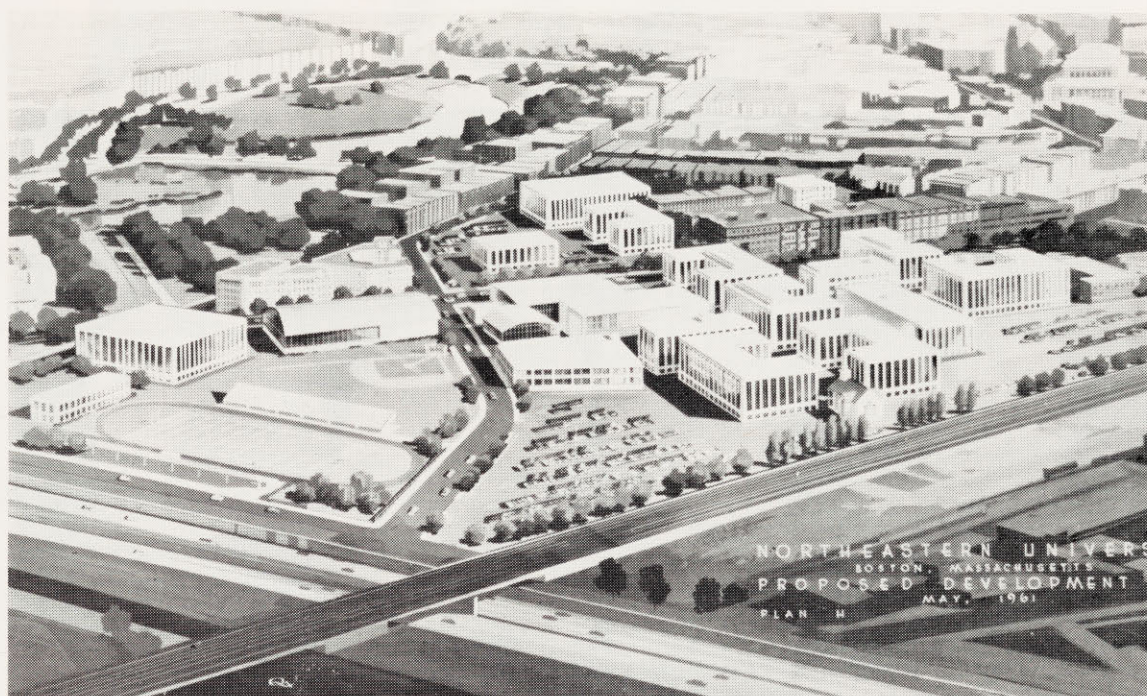

It was in 1957 that he captained the Northeastern eleven and it was 1963 that he served his first season as line coach.

The other member of the N. U. coaching service is Harold "Mickey" Walker, who has completed his 11th season with the Huskies.

Walker serves a dual purpose in his chores, doing yeoman's duty as end coach and doubling up as chief scout.

A graduate of Bates College, he came to Northeastern with solid credentials having captained the football and baseball teams there and winning All-State laurels in both sports.

Coach Odell has been on the East Carolina staff since 1960. He is a native of Thomasville, N. C. and graduated from Elon College in 1956—where he served as an assistant coach his junior and senior years. Welborn entered Elon in 1948 and played tackle for the Christians for two years — but in 1950 Uncle Sam interrupted his college career and he served four years in the USAF. During his tour of duty he played Service football and was a head football coach with a USAF football team during 1953-54.

He is married to the former Rachel Poule of Thomasville and they have one daughter, Jane Bennett 1½ yrs.

BOB GANTT – BACKFIELD COACH

Bob Gantt joined the East Carolina coaching staff last fall as backfield mentor. He came to the Pirates from Albemarle, North Carolina where he was head football coach at Albemarle High School from 1959-1961.

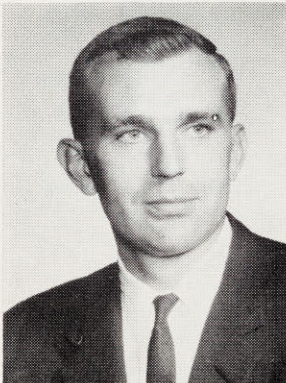

"Goo Goo" — as he is nicknamed, played his football at UNC under Coach Carl Snavelly where he starred at wingback in the grey fox's famed single wing offense. He served in the Marine Corps from 1952-55 and returned to Carolina to complete work for his Masters in 1956-57.

From 1957 to 1959 he was an assistant coach to Toby Webb at Albemarle.

He is married to the former Christine Williamson of Rock Ridge, N. C.

During the winter term Bob coaches the Buc wrestling team.

HENRY VANSANT – FRESHMAN COACH

Henry Vansant hails from Newport News, Virginia and this marks his second season with East Carolina football. He is a graduate of East Carolina receiving both the B.A. and M.A. Degree in 1961. During his four years at ECC he played center on the Pirate football squad — and was an outstanding defensive linebacker.

Henry served three years with the 82nd Airborne Division to complete his military obligations before entering college in 1957.

Last fall his Baby Bucs posted a 2-1 record.

He is married to the former Ragnhilde MacDonald of Fayetteville

HAROLD BULLARD – END COACH

WRIGHT BUILDING

The WRIGHT Building, named for the late Robert H. Wright, the former president of East Carolina College, is one of the oldest building on the college campus. It is located on the East Campus and overlooks a picturesque garden circle which is centered with a water fountain.

The first floor of the building has an auditorium with a seating capacity for 1700 students and a stage equipped with lighting and theatrical equipment which provides for entertainments. To the left of the foyer are the offices of the Student Government Association, and upstairs are those of the EAST CAROLINIAN, semi-weekly campus newspaper, and THE BUCKANEER, college yearbook.

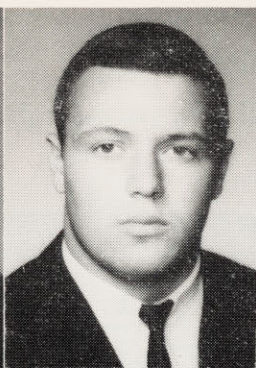

An attractive lounge and recreation room, a well equipped soda shop, a book store, games rooms, a kitchen, dressing rooms connecting with the stage of the auditorium on the first floor, a TV room, a "listening" room, to be used for playing records, offices, and ample storage space are among the excellently planned facilities which make up the decorated ground floor of Wright.

A $650,000 addition to Wright Building is expected within the next two years.

What Is Cystic Fibrosis?

Cystic fibrosis is the most common and serious chronic disease of infancy and childhood. It affects the lungs and digestion. Thick, gluey mucus clogs the lungs and prevents the flow of digestive juices from the pancreas into the small intestine. The child is prey to pneumonia and often suffers from severe malnutrition. In some C/F babies a blocked intestine at birth requires immediate lifesaving surgery.

What are the symptoms?

Coughing and wheezing, bulky diarrhea, failure of a baby to gain weight despite enormous appetite, sweat which is salty to the taste and a "pot belly"—these are common symptoms. The child may appear to have asthma, bronchitis, celiac disease or an allergy. Known as "The Great Masquerader," C/F presents symptoms which are often confusing even to doctors.

How serious is cystic fibrosis?

Extensive lung damage can occur unless treatment is started early in life. The pancreas, unable to function properly, may become scarred and fibrous. C/F kills more youngsters than polio in the pre-vaccine era. It rivals cancer as a cause of death up to age 15.

What causes cystic fibrosis?

Most medical scientists believe that cystic fibrosis occurs when a child inherits two genes for the condition—one from each parent. This "double dose" of faulty genes throws the body's chemistry out of kilter. Ordinarily the parents themselves have only a single C/F-carrying gene apiece and show no sign of the disease. Some of their children, too, may be lucky enough to inherit only one C/F gene or none at all, and thus escape.

Is C/F curable?

At present there is no cure for C/F's "built-in" defect of human chemistry, but investigators are trying to pinpoint the exact deficiency or error in hopes of supplying what the body needs to correct it. Insulin was discovered as just such a control for diabetes.

What can be done NOW to help C/F victims?

Happily, if the disease is detected early enough, many children can be saved from its gravest consequences. A form of physical therapy called "postural drainage" helps them cough up the choking mucus. Antibiotics reduce lung infection. Aerosol sprays and plastic mist tents, in which patients sleep, enable them to breathe more naturally. Special diets including powdered animal pancreas aid digestion. Since cystic fibrosis was first identified as a separate disease in 1938, methods of treatment have steadily improved so that more and more children are surviving.

How common is cystic fibrosis?

More common than originally supposed. One person in 20 is believed to carry the gene for C/F, which occurs as a disease in approximately one in every 1,000 live births. Conservative estimates place the number of Americans with cystic fibrosis at 25,000. As the death rate in early childhood continues to decline, this total will increase.

Is C/F patient care expensive?

For most families cystic fibrosis is a staggering economic drain. Costs of drugs, equipment and other items needed in the home may run to $1,200 a year. There are other costs which cannot be measured in money—the costs of round-the-clock watchfulness and attention by the parents .... of the demanding schedule of visits to doctors' offices, clinics or C/F Centers ... of strain on family relationships. Problems arise when care of the patient absorbs so much of the parents' time and energy that brothers and sisters feel left out. In households with more than one C/F child the pressures on overworked, worried mothers and fathers are enormous. Yet most parents, operating as a team, manage to meet the challenge with courage and resourcefulness.

How do the C/F chapters help?

Some of 140 C/F chapters throughout the country, formed originally by parents of afflicted children banding together, help ease the burden. They work to win recognition of cystic fibrosis as a community problem involving education for homebound youngsters, financial assistance from state health departments and special care by visiting nurses and physical therapists. Also they spread awareness of C/F as a threat to other children in the community as yet undiagnosed and in serious danger if treatment is delayed.

Cooperating with nearby C/F Regional Centers or hospitals, chapters organize equipment pools from which air compressors, mist tents, etc. may be borrowed. Many contribute to the establishment and maintenance of C/F clinics.

What is the National Cystic Fibrosis

Research Foundation?

The National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation is a voluntary nonprofit health agency supported by the chapters. In turn it offers the chapters guidance and assistance. The Foundation has established 30 Cystic Fibrosis Regional Care, Research and Teaching Centers located in medical school teaching hospitals. It makes grants to the Centers, paving the way for further research grants by the federal government's National Institutes of Health.

While scientists seek the key to unlock the mystery of cystic fibrosis, more Regional Centers, more clinics in areas surrounding the Centers and many smaller local diagnostic and treatment facilities are being developed with Foundation aid. Through this farflung network, the most up-to-date information about C/F, the most advanced methods of care are being made widely available.

Physicians and workers in C/F research look toward the conquest of the disease within ten years. In the meantime, the Foundation plans to create 20 more Regional Centers and help set up enough related community facilities so that no child with C/F anywhere in the land need be deprived of early, accurate diagnosis and the best treatment known to medical science.
