Triumphant Castro Preparing Fly Into Havana This Afternoon

Reds Predict 'Manmade Planet' Will Circle Sun

By LARRY ALLEN HAVANA (AP) — The bearded rebel leader Fidel Castro made arrangements for a quick flight to Havana today to restore authority to this strife-torn capital.

look over after Batista had fled to the Dominican Republic, was arrested. Castro had accused Canillo of betraying him after making a deal to hand over Batista and his top aides along with the reins of the Cuban government.

Although a general strike called by the rebels until Urrutia takes over is only 48 hours old, food is already in short supply. Some grocery stores were broken into and looted during the night in central Havana. Police were rushed to the scenes to break up raids.

Bank Trust Officer Now Church Curate

By TOM HENSHAW, AP Religion Writer

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Paul Jacoby Jr. was a bank trust officer for 40 years.

Now he's the Rev. Paul Jacoby Jr., curate of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in South Ozone Park.

He was able to attain the Protestant Episcopal priesthood late in life through the George Mercer Jr. Memorial School of Theology, the Diocese of Long Island's unusual night school for clergy candidates.

The school, located on the grounds of the Cathedral of the Incarnation in Garden City, reached full flower Christmas week with the consecration of its Chapel of the Good Shepherd.

Mercer is like any other theological school except that its student body is made up of older men who hold fulltime jobs during the day and study for the priesthood two nights a week and Saturday.

The school was begun in February 1955 by the Rt. Rev. James P. De Wolfe, bishop of Long Island. First classes were held in the Cathedral House or at nearby St. Paul's School.

Before that, men who received the call to the priesthood late in life studied for the ministry under private tutors assigned by Bishop De Wolfe. The bishop found the system "not altogether commendable."

"The older men who have read for the Holy Orders under tutors have lacked any community life in the course of their preparation," says the bishop.

"They have missed contact with the range of personalities and the modes of handling subject matter which are now provided by a numerous faculty."

"The danger of their reflecting chiefly the reactions and attitudes of a single instructor was a serious drawback calling for drastic change in procedure."

"The drastic change in procedure" became the Mercer school, the Episcopal Church's only night school for the training of clergymen.

Construction of the new school building, gift of Mrs. Helen B. Mercer of New York in memory of her husband, was begun in 1957 and the first classes were held last Sept. 20. Fifty students are enrolled.

The school offers no shortcut to Holy Orders. The requirements are every bit as stiff as those of an ordinary theological school. And the courses are just as tough.

In addition to the school of theology, Mercer maintains an academic department for those who have received the call to the priesthood but lack the educational background.

Withla Council Begins Year With Party

Members of Withla Council No. 42, Degree of Pocahontas, their husbands and friends gathered at the Woman's Club Tuesday evening for a New Year's party.
Much fun and laughter was evident as everyone arrived, each seeming to vie for honor of "the tackiest person."
The dining room was decorated with balloons and vari-colored streamers.
Many games and stunts were entered into and prizes given. Everyone wore a comical hat and were given a horn, squawk or noise maker.
Lillian Earl Hawkins, Genevieve Clark and Mildred Merrill received prizes for being dressed the tackiest.
After much merrymaking everyone went into the parlor for refreshments of lime ice punch, nuts and cake, and departed for their homes wishing one and all a "Happy New Year."

Tots And Parents Have Party

On Sunday evening 32 children of E. S. Nursery, their parents and friends were entertained with a Christmas party at the Nursery. The Nursery was decorated throughout with Christmas lights, arrangements, candles and a large Christmas tree.
After everyone was welcomed by Mrs. Betty Nobles, the hostess, each child and their parents were introduced.

A film, "Bethlehem's Manger," was shown and the children joined together in singing Christmas songs, directed by Misses Jean Bright and Pat Howell, accompanied at their miniature piano by Ronnie Earl Boyd.
Then, to the eagerly anticipated swell of "Here Comes Santa Claus," the jolly old gentleman made his grand entrance. Christmas stockings, each with the child's name imprinted, and loaded with toys and goodies were distributed by Santa amid great excitement.
"Aunt Betty," Jean Bright and Pat Howell assisted Santa in giving the gifts the children had drawn names for and the gifts to the parents which the children had helped make and wrap for them.
After the children had enjoyed an interlude of opening, examining and trying out their gifts, refreshments of punch, dainty Christmas sandwiches and cake were served from tables covered with Santa Claus tablecloths and centered with reindeer and candles.

GOOD TIP
Apply a small cross patch of cellophane tape over the spot on your plastered wall in which you want to drive a nail to hold a picture. Then hammer the nail in and you will not have cracked plaster to dismay you.

30 Years Ago Today

January 3, 1929

The Greenville tobacco market will resume activities next Tuesday morning after a three-weeks closing to observe the holidays. The last month of the season is expected to witness the highest prices yet recorded. When the curtain is rung down on the 1928-29 season the latter part of the month it will see Greenville in possession of two records of which every citizen is proud. The first is the selling of sixty million pounds of tobacco in 60 sales days and the second is reaching of the 70 million pound goal. Selling a million pounds of tobacco daily for 60 days doesn't sound like anything out of the ordinary, but it is a world's record for four sets of buyers.

Brides-Elect Announce Wedding Plans

MISS PEGGY FLORINE SEXTON . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Edwin Cleveland Sexton of Rocky Mount and the late Mr. Sexton. Her engagement to Vernon Larone Tyndall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton Tyndall of Greenville, is announced by her mother. A March wedding is planned.

MISS BETSY CASTELLOE . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Obed Castelloe of Winterville and the late Mr. Castelloe. Her engagement to Dr. John William Ormand Jr. of Baltimore, Md., son of Dr. and Mrs. Ormand of Monroe, is announced by her mother. The wedding will take place February 28.

'Come-As-You-Are' Party Given

At 7 o'clock this morning Sara Oakley, Nancy Allen, and Jeri Sue Clark dragged 13 other girls out of bed to invite them to a "come-as-you-are" party. All then returned to Nancy's home to whom it up for over an hour.
Gigi Guice, Judy Tripp, Mary Goodwin, Brenda Bowden, Ann Hunt, and Phyllis Moore attended the party. Others included Dorothy Sullivan, Barbara Brooks, Anne Hardee Joyner, Judy Thigpen, Jayne Willis, Eileen Maloney, and Florence Scott.

scratch, butterfly series, pretzels, Eagle spreads, and finger work with langes and leaps.
The girls followed this with a strutting routine, ending with another twirling number.
During their numbers the majorettes had to cope with an unexpected situation when, because of the record's sticking repeatedly, the music did not last the planned length of the routines. However, the group adjusted the length of their performance accordingly and executed their closing salute on exactly the right beat.

Bowden Entertains
Gigi Guice, Beverly Powell, Eileen Maloney, Barbara Brooks, and Brenda Bowden entertained at an open house Thursday night. Guests drank punch and ate cookies in Brenda's basement.
Twenty-four "Slumber" Thursday night Jean Trahey invited 24 girls to a slumber party. After attending Brenda Bowden's party, they returned to Jean's house and presented Janice Bentley with a cake in honor of her birthday.

BETTER IDEA

The wise hostess is one who likes to use originality when entertaining. Why not try this the next time you are giving a mother-to-be a baby shower? Instead of giving her the usual lot of small gifts for the new baby, give her one large gift. Consult the guests first. This way the honoree may receive a play pen, a high chair, or even a gift certificate to have baby's first picture made at a studio.

Buffet Menu

The menu for the January 4 buffet dinner at the Moose Lodge will be beef and vegetable stew, baked ham, cold cuts, tossed green salad, candied yams, turnip greens, string beans, rolls, pickles, relish, olives, cookies, and ice cream.
The movies to be shown are Elmer Elephant, Sprucin Up, Zippys Beach Adv., and Towed In A Hule.

A Third Adjustment Can Be Hard

If the budget message which Gov. Hodges delivers to the 1959 General Assembly in February shows considerable new tax revenue must be found from new sources or higher tax rates, there are going to be a great many disappointed and downright mad folks throughout North Carolina.

Several months ago the people of the state were told that in all probability the state would have to find considerable new tax revenue if it were to meet its necessary expenses during the coming biennium. They were told in a straightforward manner that both new levies and higher rates on old levies probably would be necessary.

In spite of the unhappy prospect of such eventualities most North Carolinians fairly well conditioned themselves to the situation, recognizing that the state must meet its needs to continue to progress—even if it did mean higher taxes.

Since that time, however, the people of North Carolina have been getting from the Governor's office and other high official sources increasingly broad hints that the financial situation will not be nearly as bad as it seemed at mid-year. On several occasions it has been hinted from official sources that no new revenue sources must be found to meet the needs of the state during the coming biennium.

These hints at the prospect for no increase in state taxes next year have pretty well convinced the people of North Carolina that in reality no state tax increases will be necessary. The public, even optimistic and always inclined to believe what it most wants to believe when concrete information is not available, has now convinced itself that no state tax increases will be necessary in the coming biennium. It has convinced itself of this fact on the official hints which have been coming out of Raleigh in the past 60 days.

If, contrary to what now appears to be the popular belief in the state, the Governor's budget report shows a big legislative revenue hunt is necessary, North Carolinians will be sorely disappointed. And it will be the fault of high officials who have allowed the citizens of the state to mislead themselves.

If North Carolina is going to have to find new sources of revenue and hike taxes during the coming biennium, it would be much better for the people to be told now rather than early February.

Once in the past six months, most people of the state have pretty well conditioned themselves to the prospect of more and higher state taxes after July 1959. Now, on the strength of official hints, they have convinced themselves that the forthcoming legislature will work with a rosy financial situation rather than an extremely difficult one.

It will be most difficult for citizens of the state to make a third adjustment in February.

Accessible To All In Only Matter Of Time

With construction work just beginning on a pipeline project to bring natural gas to a broad area of Eastern North Carolina, another application has been filed with the State Utilities Commission to provide natural gas to eight additional counties in north central and north eastern areas of the state.

Natural gas which has been available in Piedmont North Carolina several years has proved a boon to that area in advancing its industrial development. It is looked upon as a distinct advantage to sections which are seeking to attract certain types of industrial plants.

While the areas of North Carolina in which natural gas has been available in the past have been severely limited, it appears now only a matter of time until practically every area and county of the state will have access to this low-cost fuel which is new to this region.

In the interest of the economic development of North Carolina, state agencies should encourage the extension of natural gas facilities into new areas so long as sound private companies request permission to provide these services. The greater the area of North Carolina in which natural gas is available for consumers, the better the state's chances are of landing an industry which is seeking certain requirements in a plant site including availability of natural gas.

Certainly natural gas will be an asset to Pitt and other counties in this area into which pipelines are now being extended. It also follows that natural gas would likewise be an asset to Caswell, Person, Granville, Warren, Halifax, Northampton, Franklin and Vance Counties into which a private company has now asked the State Utilities Commission permission to extend its lines.

Can The Public Get Protection?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rash of 1958's year-end strikes overshadowed the fact that the overwhelming majority of labor-management negotiations last year ended peacefully.

Under T-H when the President thinks a walk-out might damage the national welfare, he can prevent a strike for 90 days. But under both acts, when all tries at a settlement fail, the strike can start.

At year's end no one seemed more pleased at the way labor and management got along in 1958 than Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

His department put out a statement this week which said in 1958 was one of the best years on record. The number of mandates lost through strike idleness was lower than any post-war year except 1957.

Mitchell praised what he called the "statesmanship" and maturity of labor and management for their record in collective bargaining in 1958.

A number of states have laws whose purpose is to prevent or forbid strikes in public utilities. But the constitutionality of these laws has been questionable ever since 1951.

That year the Supreme Court knocked down a Wisconsin law aimed at preventing a public utility strike. What the court said in effect was that the Taft-Hartley Act does not forbid such a strike; therefore, the Wisconsin law was in conflict with federal law and could not stand.

Every year since 1951 proposals have been made in Congress to ban strikes in public utilities. They got nowhere. They will be offered again this year and appear likely to face the same fate.

Opinions In Brief

"Thinking it over, all we need is for that personal check to be good at two places. The City National and the Hale County State. What a chump for buying a credit card anyway! We can get credit already for more'n we can pay for." — Plainview (Tex.) Daily Herald.

"What if every newspaper in this country would fire every editor attacking administrative bodies? How long would the 'finer things' in our life continue if the press and its editors did not constantly act as watchdog over publicly-elected officials?" — The Publishers' Auxiliary.

There are two major labor laws: The Railway Labor Act, covering railroads and airlines, and Taft-Hartley, covering most other interstate business and industry. The Railway Act does not forbid a strike but has built-in ma-

Holidays Are Different

A book we've come by shows that Abraham Lincoln's birthday is still not celebrated in North Carolina. The same is true in most other southern states although not all.

The nation's president during the War Between the States celebrated his birthday on Feb. 12. According to this book, that

Other Editors Saying -- Nightmare Alley

(Wall Street Journal) When James Hoffa recently announced his plan to put all the nation's policemen, firemen and other state, county and municipal workers into his Teamsters Union, it sounded a little like a bad joke. Especially the idea of Mr. Hoffa, head of a union kicked out of the A.F.L.-C.I.O. because of alleged corruption and gangster domination, becoming the boss of the country's cops.

But the Teamsters, at any rate, don't seem to be joking. To start their organizing drive, they now say they will picket New York City police headquarters on January 12. They add that the picketing will go on indefinitely and may eventually include other police facilities, including precinct stations.

Since trucking members of the Teamsters would presumably honor the picket lines, this tactic could cut off needed supplies to the police.

As one Teamster official candidly put it, "We are going to give (Police Commissioner Kennedy) a taste of the economic force and pressure of the Teamsters Union." Mr. Kennedy, understandably enough, had indicated he would fire policemen who joined the Teamsters.

Well, the fact that the Teamsters are trying does not prove they will succeed in making a reality of this nightmare. Certainly local police power, in New York City or any other city, ought to be able to deal with the threat and enjoy public support in doing so; for there cannot be many people who fail to see the dangerous implications — to put it mildly — of having the Teamsters running the police of the nation. So this Teamster move may, at last, dramatize the urgent necessity of cutting the union down to size.

The necessity arises not only from this organizing effort. Apparently Mr. Hoffa's ambitions are unlimited. His union already contains people who have nothing to do with trucking; soon he will attempt to grab seventy thousand Sears, Roebuck employees. He dreams of making Teamsters of all transport workers, including the East and West Coast longshoremen, which would put all the United States at his mercy.

The main point, though, is not Mr. Hoffa as such, or even the Teamsters. The point is that there is nothing in law to prevent any of the union monopolists from exercising power so vast as to endanger the country.

In the last few days some developments looking toward possible remedies have been reported. The Justice and Treasury Departments are said to be making an extensive investigation of the Teamsters. The Justice Department is also said to be preparing to use the Sherman Antitrust Act against labor racketeers. However, this can be used only in cases of alleged collusion between unions and employers; the unions themselves

A Year Of Erratic Improvement

By ELMER ROESSNER Fifty-nine will be a year of slow, erratic economic improvement, much better than 1958 on the whole, but without an explosive boom.

That statement is based on analysis of government and private data and a study of developing trends and special situations.

Some factors of course, can upset any analysis. Sources of uncertainty in the year ahead are: (1) Khrushchev, (2) the course of labor relations and (3) the disposition of the new Congress.

Even if the Russians do not heat up the cold war and labor relations are only a little worse than they were in 1958, action by Congress can change any outlook for business.

Still unanswered is the question whether the heavy Democratic majority will sweep aside Republican opposition and Presidential votes to enact a fresh program of welfare benefits and labor aid, or whether conservative Democrats will apply brakes to resurgent New Dealism.

HELD INESCAPABLE Some fresh welfare legislation seems inescapable. That's what the people seem to have voted for; that's what organized labor is demanding under threats of forming a new party, and that may be what is needed to win (or buy) votes in the 1960 Presidential election.

More welfare legislation will mean more government spending and more government spending must mean higher taxes or more inflation — probably the latter. Inflation will create its usual aura of better business, more of the mad race to hedge wealth by converting it into common stocks and real estate, and frantic demands for higher pay.

Assuming moderation on the part of Khrushchev, labor and Congress, we may expect: Nagging unemployment. Employment has recovered slower in 1958 than most other economic factors. One reason is that every wage increase makes labor-saving machinery that much cheaper, and that cuts job opportunities. Another reason is that employers have recovered from fear of labor shortages and are no longer hoarding labor, except with certain skills.

CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY A boom in construction, this, too, is somewhat less than a prediction. Business commitments already made assure a rise in construction activity, with a good chance that total investment will top $50 billion for the first time. A large part of the rise will be due to governmental construction. Private home building will rise and, if it lags, the new Congress can be counted on to stimulate it and supplement it with more Federal housing. Highway expenditures are also rising.

Auto sales brisk. The public is showing signs of accepting the new models and credit positions are improving to the point where many more families are coming into a position to buy. However, it doesn't look like a 6,000,000-car year by 1960.

Higher prices. Wage pressures and continued inflation will mean higher prices in most areas, excepting for farm commodities. However, while the present Administration has tried to wean farmers from government pap, the Democratic Congress may reverse this program and increase price supports, stiffening food prices.

BUSY CASH REGISTERS Higher retail sales. The present rise in retail buying is likely to continue until the public is again frightened (as it was in late 1957 and early 1958) into saving a larger share of its income. However, part of the 1959 increase in dollar volume of sales will be due only to higher, inflated prices.

Higher corporate profits. These have been lagging this year but the turn has begun and unless labor difficulties or a fresh recession strikes, the trend should continue.

Higher personal income. There is nothing in sight to reverse the steady rise that began in the early days of the war. Part of it, of course, is inflation; but real income also has been rising steadily.

With all these favorable outlooks, the question naturally arises, "Why no boom then?" The answer is that while 1959 will average better than 1958, there is no great factor, such as unfilled demands for housing, autos, appliances, or no great new products, such as television, air conditioning or home swimming pools, to ignite the fuse leading to a boom.

Weird Music Lasts

TOKYO (AP) — For more than 12 centuries, Japan's Imperial Court Orchestra has entertained kings and knaves, princes and plotters in an unchanging ritual that was old even before the violin made its European debut.

Founded in 703 A.D., the orchestra has faithfully conserved the cream of ancient Indian and Chinese music to gain its sou-biquet as the "Conservatory of the World."

Its queer harmonies and weird sounds have puzzled Western ears for centuries.

But only recently studies have shown that the 200 ancient compositions that make up the orchestra's repertory bear close similarity to the modern atonal and 12-tone music of Schoenberg, Berg and Hindemith and may have influenced Debussy at an earlier time.

During its long history, the orchestra has been manned only by members of its founding families — except for one musician in the group's present 25 members and seven trainees.

Its instruments have been exact replicas of the original ones imported from China and Korea in the Seventh and Eighth Centuries.

Most of the ancient unwritten laws governing the orchestra are still in force.

All the members are male. Not a single female musician has been allowed to participate in the court orchestra during the past 1,255 years.

Five years ago, Emperor Hirohito sent his kappelmester to the court treasure house at Nara, the ancient capital in western Japan. The chief court musician, Sukehiro Shiba, 60, cleaned one original bamboo flute of its 1,200 years of dust and played the instrument.

The "A" tone of the ancient flute recorded 440 frequencies, exactly the same as the current internationally agreed concert pitch.

Shiba, direct descendant of the Korean prince who came to Japan in the Seventh Century to organize the orchestra, says: "I was overjoyed at the discovery."

The court orchestra normally has 16 instruments, Shiba said. "But our ancestors determined some were musically superfluous and discarded them."

Wind is represented by ryuteki, hichiriki and sho. Ryuteki is almost the same as the Western flute and Hichiriki is a cross between the flageolet and piccolo.

Sho does not look like any Western instrument. Thirteen different pipes ranging up to a foot long cluster around a barrel. When the player blows into the barrel, the sound is several different clarinets and saxophones played together.

In addition to three ancient drum-like affairs, the percussion section includes a big castenettle instrument more than six feet in diameter, surrounded by symbolic flames in relief with two dragons and two phoenixes each. The two large drums are used when the orchestra plays court dance music.

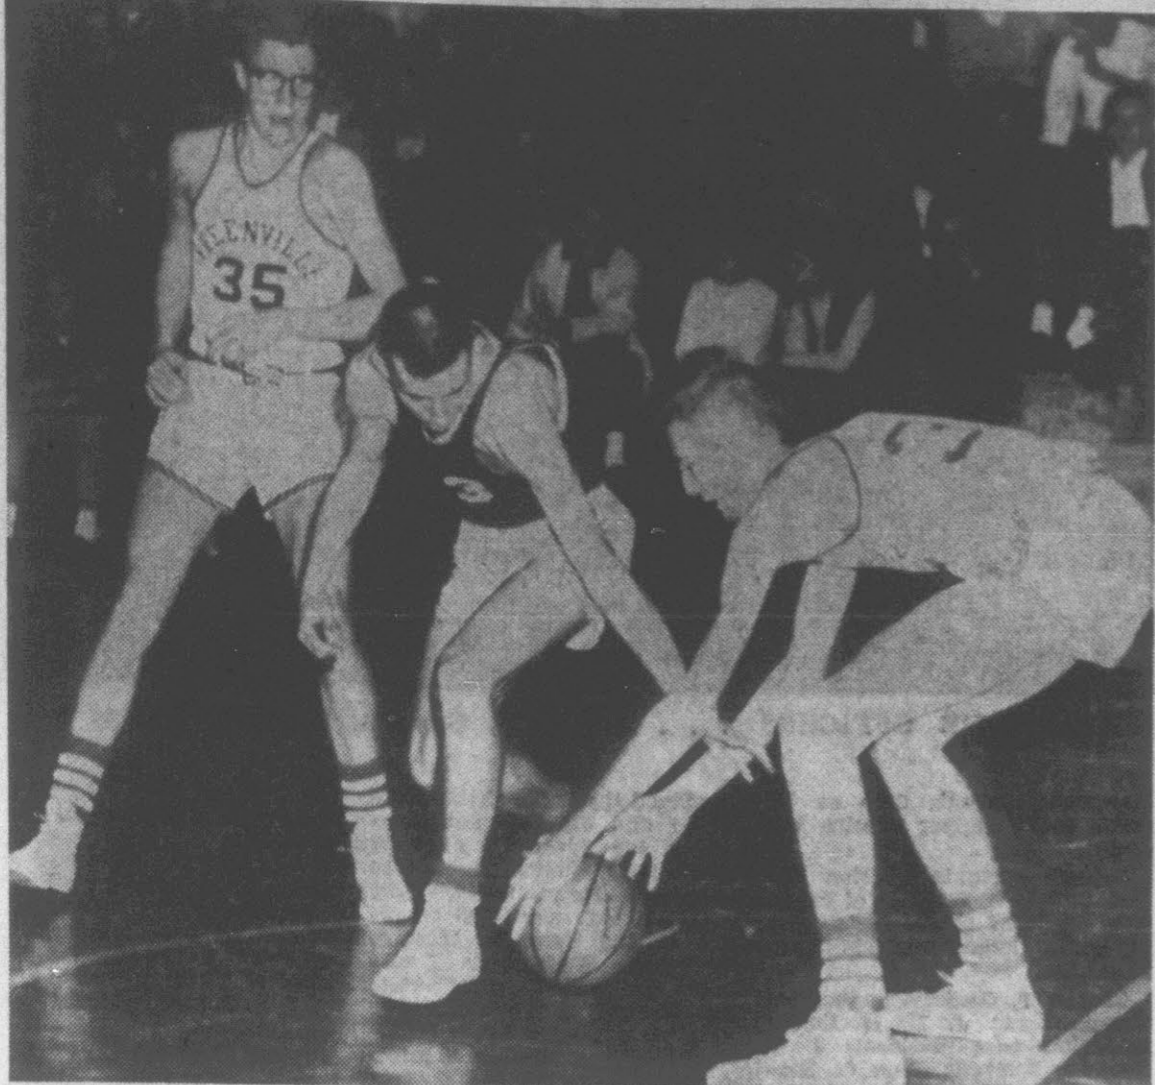

So, a 13-string harp, and biwa, a six-string lute, form the string section. Like their Western counterparts, these instruments are picked, never sawed.

The court orchestra members perform in formal recitals on an elevated, carpeted platform surrounded by red balusters.

The musicians, wearing brown medieval costumes and black headgear, play in a squatting position on the floor.

Normally three percussion players take the front row positions, followed by two harps on the right and two lutes on the left. Three flutes, three flageolets and three sho come behind the four strings.

Phantoms Lose To Washington Pam Pack By 53-43

SCRAMBLE—Greenville's James Ward scraps with a Washington player after a loose ball. Phantom Howard Garner (35) closes in to help. Washington captured an easy 53-43 victory in the opening game of the season for both clubs in Northeastern Conference play.

Except for a brief stretch of spirited play in the third quarter, Rose High School's Phantom basketball players played a ragged brand of ball last night in losing 53-43 to the Washington Pam-Pack here.

The contest was the first of the season in Northeastern Conference play for both clubs. Washington, with a lot of fire and balance, and three platoons of players, had little trouble knocking off the Phantoms.

Before the game, predictions were that the Pam-Pack would win by 13 points. The final margin of 10 proves very little by way of comparison, for Coach Bill Sweet used his three teams very liberally and the Washington club had margins of as much as 22 points at various times during the tilt.

Greenville's club, which was playing at top-strength—at least as far as manpower is concerned—for the first time, was weak in spirit as well as ragged in its fundamental play. Despite the fact that the Phants held a slight edge in height, Washington out-rebounded them and controlled the ball almost twice as much on the floor.

Washington took an early lead in the game, moving to a 10-6 advantage at the end of the first quarter. By halftime, the Pack had moved the score to 31-12. During the first half, Greenville managed to nab only four offensive rebounds and four defensive rebounds. "They threw the ball away six times."

Pacing the way for the Pam-Pack during the first half was a pint-sized guard, Billy Pittman, who tossed in 13 points in two quarters. He finished the game with high-scoring honors with 15 points. Pittman played little during the last half, under Sweet's platoon system. Others who contributed to the first half assault by the Pam-Pack were forward Rusty Hodges and center Russ Knowles, a 6-6 boy.

Flash Of Spirit
In the opening minutes of play of the third quarter, Greenville came back to whittle the score down to 31-23 in a brief flash of spirit. The Phants stole the ball three consecutive times and grabbed off four rebounds while racking up their points. Leading the way were James Ward, Joe Moyer, and Alan McArthur.

But the Pack came back. Sweet pulled out one team and put in another and Washington soon had control of the situation. By the end of the third period, the score was 42-26 and Washington was coasting again.

The Phants hit a hot streak again in the fourth quarter after the Pam-Pack relaxed. With Moyer hitting on three field goals, McArthur adding two more and a pair of free-throws, and other points from Howard Garner and Erskine Duff, the Phants threw in 17 points, while Washington tallied only 11.

In the last 40 seconds of play the Phantoms nabbed six quick points but the game ended 53-43, a victory for the visitors.

High for the night was Pittman with 15. Greenville's Joe Moyer had 14 for second-high honors. Garner had nine, for the Phants. Knowles had nine for Washington.

Jayvees Win
Coach Bud Phillips' Greenville Jayvees nabbed a 40-34 win from the Washington junior varsity in a 6-30 preliminary game. Lane Jorgensen, Phant forward, gathered 15 points to pace both teams in scoring. Billy Neal James garnered 10 points. John Bynum had six. Kroghie Andressen had four. Larry Roberts had four. Hooker had one.

Next game for both Greenville teams will be at Jacksonville January six.

Pacific Coast Basketball Title Possibly Decided

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
It's too early to tell, but this year's Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship may have been decided right off the bat.

Washington, hailed as a potential national contender, was regarded as the team to replace defending titlist California. But the picture has changed.

Cal, PCC champ for two straight years under Coach Pete Newell, attended to that Friday night.

Wyoming Coach Invited To Talk
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Wyoming football coach Bob Devaney, invited to the University of Maryland to talk about the coaching vacancy here, says the discussions were merely exploratory and the job "was not offered to me."

Devaney says he's interested in the coaching job, vacated when Tommy Mont's contract was not renewed, but he added: "I got the impression they (college officials) were going to wait until after the NCAA convention in Cincinnati Jan. 7" before deciding on Mont's successor.

Devaney is a 43-year-old graduate of Alma College in Michigan. Mont was forced to resign after 3 losing seasons, in which his teams won 11 games, lost 18 and tied 1.

Seven-point underdogs, the Bears smacked the Huskies 54-43. The unexpected triumph may give the Bears the impetus for a third straight title.

Big 6-10 Darrel Imhoff and Danny Fitzpatrick sparked the Bears. Fitzpatrick tossed in 21 points and Imhoff held Washington star Doug Smart to a measly five points.

The game topped a four-game PCC card that opened a heavy weekend of competition in college basketball as major teams turned from holiday tournament outings to conference activity.

Southern California and UCLA also posted surprise victories. Only Stanford made the odds stand up in the PCC by beating Washington State 59-40. Southern Cal, sparked by Jim Hanna's 18 points, upset Oregon 65-56 and UCLA, led by 14 points by world decathlon champ Rafer Johnson, downed Idaho 62-53. Paul Newmann's 24 points led Stanford.

West Virginia, bumped out of the top 10 this week, walloped Yale 80-52 in one of Friday night's major games outside the PCC. In others, Utah State nipped Washington of St. Louis 69-66, Seattle whipped Miami of Ohio 98-73, Rhode Island humbled Vermont 84-77 and once-beaten Providence beat touring Gonzaga 76-65.

There was plenty of tournament competition Friday night, too, although they involved minor teams. Springfield, Mass., and Williams battled into the final of the Springfield Invitational while Colby and St. Michaels, Vt., gained the final of the Downeast Classic at Bangor Maine.

Springfield beat Amherst 53-42, Williams downed Massachusetts 76-65, Colby whipped Bowdoin 60-54 and St. Michaels, the runner-up to South Dakota in the NCAA College Division championship last March, trampled Bates 63-44.

The Big Ten gets underway today with Indiana's defending champs pitted against seventh-ranked Michigan State in a regionally-televised afternoon game. Ohio State plays at Illinois in another matinee contest. At night, sixth-ranked Northwestern entertains Iowa, once-beaten Purdue welcomes Michigan and Wisconsin goes to Minnesota.

The afternoon nationally-televised game (NBC) finds Notre Dame at fourth-ranked North Carolina in a rematch of their Blue Grass Festival clash. Then the Tar Heels beat the Irish 81-77.

A couple of other afternoon regional-TV games find Clemson at Wake Forest and Texas Tech at Arkansas.

The heavy firing comes tonight with top-ranked Kentucky entertaining Georgia Tech on an SEC state that also finds Miss State and Auburn, ranked 8th and 9th, matching baskets. Tenth ranked Bradley takes on Drake in a Missouri Valley Conference struggle. The remaining teams in the AP's top 10, Cincinnati, Kansas State and N. C. State are idle.

Indians Bid For Conference Tie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
William and Mary's basketball team, en route home from the holiday tournament wars, stops off at Furman tonight to bid for a tie with West Virginia for the Southern Conference lead.

It's the first conference bout on the road for the home-loving Indians, who've shown good balance in compiling a 7-2 season's record and a 3-0 conference ledger thus far.

Furman, 5-4 for the season but 0-2 in the conference, won't be an easy target. The Paladins losses come at the hands of West Virginia and Virginia Tech. And Furman is fresh from a championship performance in the Watauga Invitational tournament at Johnson City, Tenn.

The other conference game tonight finds Virginia Tech, runner-up in the Gulf South tournament, at Richmond.

George Washington, 5-2 for the season, entertains Washington and Lee in a non-conference contest. West Virginia rolled easily to its ninth victory of the campaign Friday night. The Mountaineers, 11th-ranked nationally, bopped Yale 80-52 with Jerry West and Bob Smith leading the way with 20 points apiece.

Bulla Leading In Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Birdie-baggie Johnny Bulla of Arizona today led the way into the second round of the $35,000 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament, an event he captured back in 1941.

At 44, Bulla is hardly an antique in golf, but it's been a long time since he hit the headlines in a major tournament.

The likeable guy from Phoenix took charge of the first round when he burned the Rancho municipal course with a 33-31-64. This was even strokes under par 36-35-71 for the 7,000-yard layout.

Bulla, an infrequent participant in the big tournaments, made a stab at the Los Angeles crown in 1955. He finished third behind Gene Littler and Ted Kroell.

In recent weeks he has won four sectional tournaments, the Arizona Open, the Southwest PGA and the Southern California PGA and Open events.

A pair of newcomers, John McMullin of Alameda, Calif., and Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., were tied at 66. McMullin and Sanders, 23 and 25, were kids when Bulla won this event 18 years ago.

Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex., was alone with a 67. Two former National Open champions, Julius Boros and Jack Fleck, were tied with 68s.

Tommy Bolt, U.S. Open champion, was deadlocked at 69 with veteran Lloyd Mangrum, Mike Souchak, Howie Johnson of Glenwood, Ill., and young Joe E. Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn.

Knotted at 70 were several other sound threats, including Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Bo Wininger and Fred Hawkins.

Two Californians who rated as pre-tournament favorites were a bit back in the running. They are Bill Casper with 70 and Ken Venturi with 72.

Frank Stranahan, the 1958 winner here, was well down the line with a 74. Former National Open champion Dick Mayer had 76 and Arnold Palmer and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison each had 72.

Tony Jackson Praised As Best Jump-Shooter

NEW YORK (AP)—Cincinnati's "Wonderful O" in Oscar Robertson, now New York has a "Wonderful T" in Tony Jackson.

Jackson, a sophomore at St. Johns (N.Y.), is the latest sensation in college basketball. He has drawn raves from virtually everyone who has seen him in action.

Listen to Alan Seiden, St. Johns' captain, after the Redmen had beaten St. Joseph's Philadelphia for the ECAC Holiday Festival championship:

"Robertson can't hold a candle to him when it comes to jump shooting. There isn't another college player in the country who can. He's the best."

If you think that is putting it on a bit thick hark to veteran Coach Joe Lapchick drool over his 19-year-old 6-3 soph who was named the most valuable player in the ECAC festival.

"This is the most talented basketball player New York has had since the Garden started basketball 25 years ago," Lapchick said. "I've never seen a greater long jump shooter and he has the ability to get up there and hang and then shoot from the hanging position. He takes one or two steps to give him this awful leap and then he's a 6-10 guy up there."

Jackson grabbed 48 rebounds in the ECAC, 22 of them in the title game, and scored 79 points as St. Johns whipped Holy Cross, Dayton and St. Joseph's en route to the tourney crown.

Horse Of Year Faces 9 Rivals At Santa Anita ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Round Table, America's "Horse of the Year" in 1958, faces nine rivals today in Santa Anita's $50,000-added San Carlos Handicap at seven furlongs.

Round Table, greatest equine money winner of all time, is up against some pretty fair speed horses. Since seven furlongs isn't his particular dish, he may have to go all out. There will be some serious competition from Hillsdale; the Irish bred Seaneen; a highly rated Eastern campaigner, Warhead; the Polite Stable's Terran; Nashville; Eddie Schmidt; The Searcher; Bounty Bay, and Golden Notes.

This is Round Table's first start since he won the Hawthorne Gold Cup last October. That victory boosted his lifetime earnings to $1,336,354 and his purses for 1958 to $662,780.

The Travis M. Kerr color bearer packs top weight of 132 pounds today, srotting the field all the way from 17 to 24 pounds.

Los Angeles (AP)—Pittsburgh's Bobby Layne and Ollie Matson of the Chicago Cardinals have started a controversy by duking the Pro Bowl to be played in Los Angeles Jan. 11.

They are in Hawaii for Sunday's Hula Bowl, so Coach Jim Lee Howell of the New York Giants, who assembled his Eastern all-star squad for its first workout today, called upon Eddie LeBaron of Washington and Tommy McDonald of Philadelphia to replace them.

National Football League Commissioner Bert Bell said in Philadelphia that the contract of every NFL player requires participation in the Pro Bowl, if he is selected.

Bell said he would recommend "severe penalties" for both players when the club owners meet Jan. 21 in Philadelphia.

While the Eastern squad was working today at Bovard Field, home of the University of Southern California Trojans, Coach Weeb Ewbank called his West squad together at Wrigley Field. Ewbank, who directed the Baltimore Colts to their first NFL title last week, is expected to start off with his ace quarterback, Johnny Unitas, directing the West. Bill Wade of the Los Angeles Rams will spell him.

Kept Receiving Marriage Bids
DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Mrs. Anita M. McDaniel, 52, won a divorce on the grounds her husband, Bobby, 64, registered with a matrimonial agency as being unmarried.

She said her husband, a pipefitter, was continually receiving letters from women seeking him as a mate.

"Bobby was a delightful man but a horrible husband," Mrs. McDaniel told Judge Joseph E. Cook Friday.

Glamour Girl Golfer by Pap

Miss Marilyn Smith risked life and limb climbing through a maze of cables, up rickety stairs to the flight deck of the Navy's newest and biggest carrier, The Independence, which is being commissioned at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The personable president of the Ladies' Professional Golfers Assn. then braved the biting cold and snow flurries to join Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Mike Turnesa and Al Brosch in an attempt to drive golf balls the length of the tremendous flight deck. It was an exhibition staged for the officers and crew which will man the great ship. Obvious pleasure spread over the faces of these men when none of the golfers succeeded in accomplishing the feat. The Independence had warded off her first attack!

Later, in the officers' club, Miss Smith thaved out and gradually warmed up to her pet subject—the Ladies' P.G.A. tour.

Tar Heels And Irish Play Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The North Carolina Tar Heels, whose potent junior - sophomore team has racked up a 7-1 record this season, took on Notre Dame in a nationally televised basketball game today at Charlotte.

It was the second meeting of the teams this season. North Carolina, ranked fourth nationally in the current Associated Press poll, beat the Irish 81-77 in the Bluegrass Tournament at Louisville, Ky. last month.

Notre Dame has a poor 3-6 record so far, but has an outstanding player in muscular Tom Hawkins, a 20-point-per-game man. North Carolina, whose only senior regular is team captain Danny Lotz, placed third in this week's Dixie Classic tournament, losing to seventh-ranked Michigan State and beating second-ranked Cincinnati.

Two other Atlantic Coast Conference teams played before the television cameras, Clemson visiting Wake Forest. The Tigers had a 2-7 record going into the game, the Deacons a 4-5 mark. The game was regionally televised. Lenoir Rhyne of the North State Conference met independent Belmont Abbey at Charlotte directly after the North Carolina - Notre Dame game. Both squads went in to the game with 5-0 records against college competition.

Appalachian And Wofford Win

SPINDALE, N.C. (AP)—Wofford and Appalachian, one-sided winners in first round games, play tonight for the championship of the first annual Spindale Holiday basketball tournament. Wofford walloped Guilford 97-65 Friday night and Appalachian dumped Pfeiffer 84-68. Guilford and Pfeiffer will play tonight's first game for the consolation title. Wofford had six men in double figures, headed by Bill Barber with 20. Boyce Berry with 18 and Trap Hart with 17. The winners hit on 53 per cent of their floor shots. Guilford's high scorers were Ted Tilghman, 21 points, and Don Lineberry, 14. Pfeiffer was soon outdistanced by the Apps, whose Willard Swift led scorers with 21 points. Richard Biddy had 17 for Pfeiffer.

Always Wanted To Be A Fighter

NEW YORK (AP)—Some kids want to grow up to be railroad engineers. Some want to be policemen. Some doctors. Denny Moyer always wanted to be a fighter.

It was natural. Denny's father, Harry, was a pretty fair welter in the Pacific Coast area years ago. His uncle, Tommy, who now is the promoter in Portland, Ore., was a great amateur boxer. His older brother, Phil, is a good looking middleweight prospect.

At the age of 19, this handsome youngster from Portland is a professional boxer with 19 straight victories and no defeats. He almost lost his first bout last night at Madison Square Garden but he scraped home on a controversial split decision.

The experienced Ortega, ranked No. 5 by Ring and No. 6 by the National Boxing Assn. in the welterweight class, had been an 8-5 favorite. A late switch made Moyer a 6-5 favorite.

"It was very close," admitted Moyer and his manager, Sid Flaherty, in the dressing room. "I stuck in there with him," said Moyer who bears a striking resemblance to Tony Janiro, another baby faced youngster who came out of Youngstown, Ohio, several years ago.

"He is very tough, the best I ever fought," said Moyer. "I was tensed up with my first fight in the big city and the Garden."

Ortega, a sad - faced warrior from Mexicali, Mexico has been in with the best in the class. He was eliminated in an early round of the welter tournament held to determine a successor to Carmen Basilio and lost two decisions to Don Jordan, the latest welter champ during the fall.

The Mexican put pressure on Moyer who used a darting left jab and a sharp right uppercut with effectiveness early in the fight. Ortega bulled him with steady pressure in the middle rounds, shaking him up in the third and again in the fifth with a long overhand right to the head. Although Moyer regained control in the eighth, it appeared on this card that Ortega took the last two and the fight.

Moyer weighed 148½. Ortega 146 3-4.

"He is a good boy but I won the fight," said Ortega. "I think it was the worst decision of my career."

Jack Barrett, the Carden matchmaker, said he hoped to pair the two welters in a return bout in February.

Holiday Road Deaths Rise At Rapid Rate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic 213
Fires 40
Miscellaneous 57
Total 310

The new year holiday auto toll, triggered by a relentless assault by motorists on the highways, piled up today at a bloody clip, which threatened the record for a similar four-day period two years ago.

The grim prospect that the death count might reach the record of 409 auto fatalities for the 1956-57 new year period brought an anxious appeal from the National Safety Council for drivers to slam on the brakes and curb the toll.

The NSC had predicted 390 auto deaths for the 102-hour period that started at 6 p. m. (local time) Wednesday. The Associated Press count ends at midnight (local time) Sunday.

An unexpected rash of highway deaths late Friday night shot the toll to a pace ahead of a corresponding count two years ago.

The NSC feared the combined Christmas and New Year total was likely to result in the stunning figure of nearly 1,000 auto deaths on the nation's roads.

Some 594 Americans paid in their lives for auto accidents during the four-day Christmas holiday. Two years ago the Christmas weekend showed 706 auto deaths, which combined with the New Year's figure, added to an all-time high of 1,115.

The Council today again pleaded for drivers to exert safety on the roads as the AP countdown headed into the weekend homestretch.

A non-holiday survey by the AP for 102 hours from 6 p. m. Wednesday Dec. 10 to 12 midnight Sunday Dec. 14 showed 341 traffic fatalities, 106 fire deaths, and 105 fatally injured in miscellaneous mishaps.

Funeral Set Sunday For Don G. Bryan

FOUNTAIN—Don G. Bryan, 77, died Friday night at 8 o'clock at his home on Route 1, Fountain, following declining health of four and a half years.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Farmville Funeral Home, conducted by the Rev. L. B. Manning of Fountain, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Holmes of Farmville.

Mr. Bryan had spent his entire life in the Farmville community engaged in farming activities. Surviving are his wife, Dora, Jane Bryan of the home; four daughters, Mrs. Harry Crawford of Tarboro, Mrs. W. A. Dail of Roanoke Rapids, Mrs. G. L. Daniels of Greenville, and Mrs. Donald Kropp of Rocky Mount; three sons, Russell D. Bryan of Richmond, Va., Charlie L. Bryan of Route 1, Fountain, Don G. Bryan Jr. of Farmville; one sister, Mrs. Mattie James of Greenville; 30 grandchildren; and 20 great-grandchildren.

Greenville Kiwanis Club Installs Officers For '59

NEW GREENVILLE KIWANIS CLUB OFFICERS . . . McGlohon, Gaskins, Edwards, Collins and Snowden.

By CHESTER WALSH
John A. Collins Jr. was installed as the 42d president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club at the club's weekly supper meeting last night.

Seventh Kiwanis Division Lt. Gov. Charles S. Edwards of Farmville officiated at the installation ceremony. Collins succeeds J. D. McGlohon.

On receiving the gavel from retiring President McGlohon, President Collins expressed appreciation for the honor bestowed and pledged his fullest support for achievement of Kiwanis ideals. He concluded his brief inaugural address with a request for Rev. Thomas M. Davis to lead in prayer for continued improved community service.

No Tracking Of Russian Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—America's space tracking outpost here sat idle Friday night, making no attempt to track Russia's rocket to the moon.

"You would think we would be asked to track it," said Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the Air Force missile test center, "but we weren't."

Yates got the news while duck hunting.

The big rocket base received no official word from Washington about Russian claims.

The center is closed for the long holiday weekend.

Charles P. Gaskins is the new vice-president; J. D. McGlohon, immediate past president; J. T. Snowden succeeds John O. Reynolds as secretary-treasurer.

Harry R. Billica, El Bloom, Leonard W. Bloxam and W. O. Moore are the hold-over directors. New members of the board are Grover W. Everett, Kenneth D. Hite, John O. Reynolds and Dr. Allen Taylor.

The Kiwanis lieutenant-governor outlined the duties of the club's officers and directors and commended the Greenville club for outstanding community service during 1958. He recalled that the Greenville club sponsored organizing of the Farmville Kiwanis club during World War II and praised the "good neighbor" relations existing between the two clubs. More than a dozen Farmville Kiwanians were at the meeting, including former past governor of the Carolinas Kiwanis District Sam D. Bundy and past lieutenant-governor Frank Allen.

Exchange Club Installs Officers For New Year

JOHN HASSELL, last night elected president of the Greenville Exchange Club for 1959, was presented with the club's gavel by State Exchange President C. C. Burris. Others elected to office were Dr. Ray Minges and Luther Moore, vice presidents; Ed Parkinson and Tom Finch, secretary-treasurer and assistant; and Tommy Diener, Board of Control.

The Greenville Exchange Club, at its weekly supper meeting at the Woman's Club last night, installed its 1959 officers, with Carolina State President C. C. Burris giving an inspiring challenge to the new officers and directors of the club.

Installed as president, was John Hassell; Dr. Ray Minges, and Luther D. Moore; Ed Parkinson, Jr., secretary and treasurer; Tom Finch, assistant secretary and treasurer.

Tommy Diener was elected a member of the Exchange Board of Control.

The state president, in his address to the club, highlighted the duties of Exchange club members to further the idea of Exchange in the city and state. He presented the new officers with their respective office pins as he installed them.

Birthdays greetings were extended to Exchangeites J. T. Manning, Luther Moore and Jimmy Wells.

Reports of various committees were read and discussed and the club welcomed Charles Brown as a visitor.

are exempt from the antitrust provisions.

In addition, the Senate Internal Security subcommittee recommended that the Justice Department try to thwart the Teamsters' proposed transport combine as a threat to national security, and to consider whether new laws are needed to fight such threats.

Without doubt one needed change in the law is the removal of the antitrust exemption. Unions like the Teamsters are the only monopolies in this country today. It is not only irrational for them to enjoy this legal immunity; it is also the source of much of their monopolistic power. That is not the whole answer, to be sure; other changes are needed to guarantee that unions are operated as responsible organizations.

But we had better not wait indefinitely, or think we have averted the danger with a weak reform law such as who introduced in the last session of Congress. It may be too late if one day we suddenly find ourselves in a nightmare alley where even the cops run in gangs.

Benjamin L. Tyson Dies Early Today

Benjamin Leon Tyson, 69, died suddenly at his home in the Red Oak community, near Greenville, early Saturday morning after apparently suffering a heart attack. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Leota Jenkins Tyson; a son, Joe B. Tyson of Richmond, Va.; a daughter, Mrs. L. W. Edwards of Greenville; five grandchildren; three brothers, Pereane, Raymond and N. S. (Kid) Tyson, all of near Greenville, and three sisters, Mrs. Hubert Crawford, Mrs. Jim Tucker and Mrs. Bernice Tyson Carney, all of near Greenville.

Oller Ross Dies In Baltimore Thursday

AYDEN—Oller Ross, 74, died at his home in Baltimore, Md., Thursday. He was reared in the Ayden community and had been living in Baltimore for about 40 years.

Those New Electric Appliances Can Raise Problems

By PEGGY SMITH
Woman's Editor

Among the many Christmas gifts given to some Pitt County housewives were electric appliances for the home.

Obviously, when a homemaker receives such a gift, she should know a few things about electricity in her home and the equipment itself to enable its life expectancy to be longer.

Here are a few tips to increase the knowledge of a homemaker in electricity.

Every woman should know the location and operation of the main electric control center in her home. Being able to replace a fuse or reset a circuit-breaker is a must in an electric house.

Slow heating appliances, blowing fuses, shrinking television pictures, dimming lights and faltering motors are characteristics of a home with low housepower.

Inadequate wiring costs money — a 10 per cent drop in voltage will give 30 per cent less light or 20 per cent loss of heat. Four out of five homes do not have enough housepower today due to the increased use of electricity.

What is the cure of wiring problems?

First, a house should have three entrance wires; second, at least a 100 amp. circuit box; third, plenty of circuits — for lighting and general use, for plug-in appliances, for large appliances — and plenty of outlets, fixed lights and switches.

Certain electric servants in the home need separate circuits. Some are washers, dryers, air conditioners, freezers and dishwashers.

Another tip for a housewife concerning her appliance is the cost of operation.

Wattage of appliance, hours used for a month, and the amount charged per kilowatt hour for electricity gives the total cost of home electricity.

"Electric appliances can be considered time savers or electric servants," according to Mrs. Charlie Mohle of Ayden. She, like other local homemakers, received kitchen appliances. The difference is that she received from Santa a complete electric kitchen.

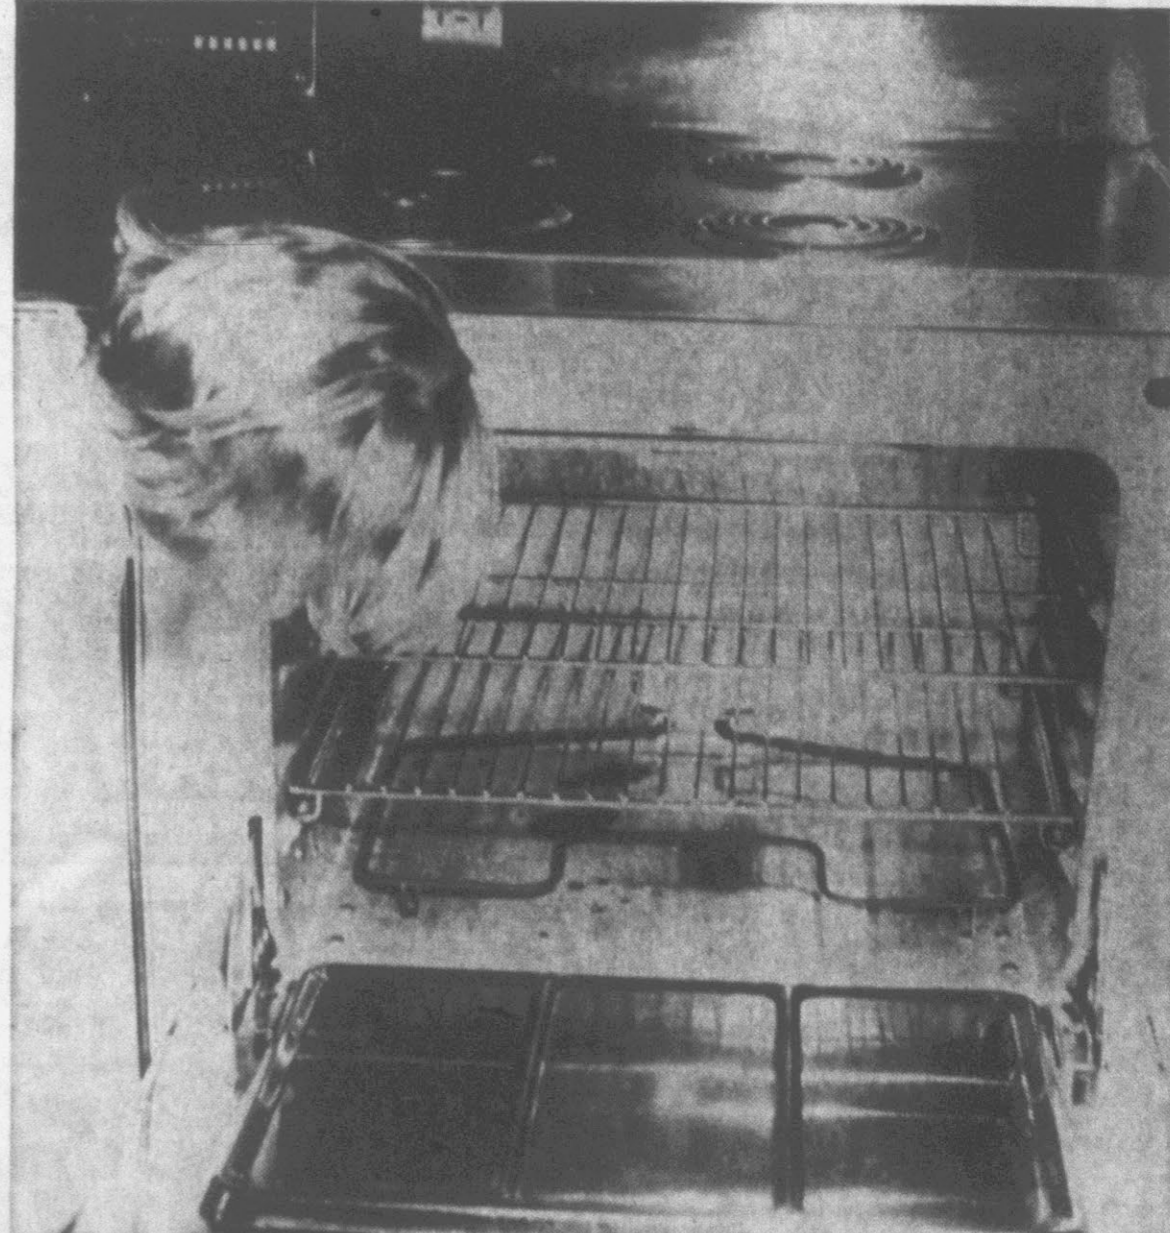

Leonard Bloxam, utilities commission superintendent, stated he would like for every homemaker to know that "it is the desire of the Greenville Utilities Commission that those who have been most fortunate in receiving electrical appliances be satisfied with the manner in which this piece of equipment performs.

"The commission's responsibility, ends at the meter; however, its employees are always happy to assist in helping owners resolve their problems within the house.

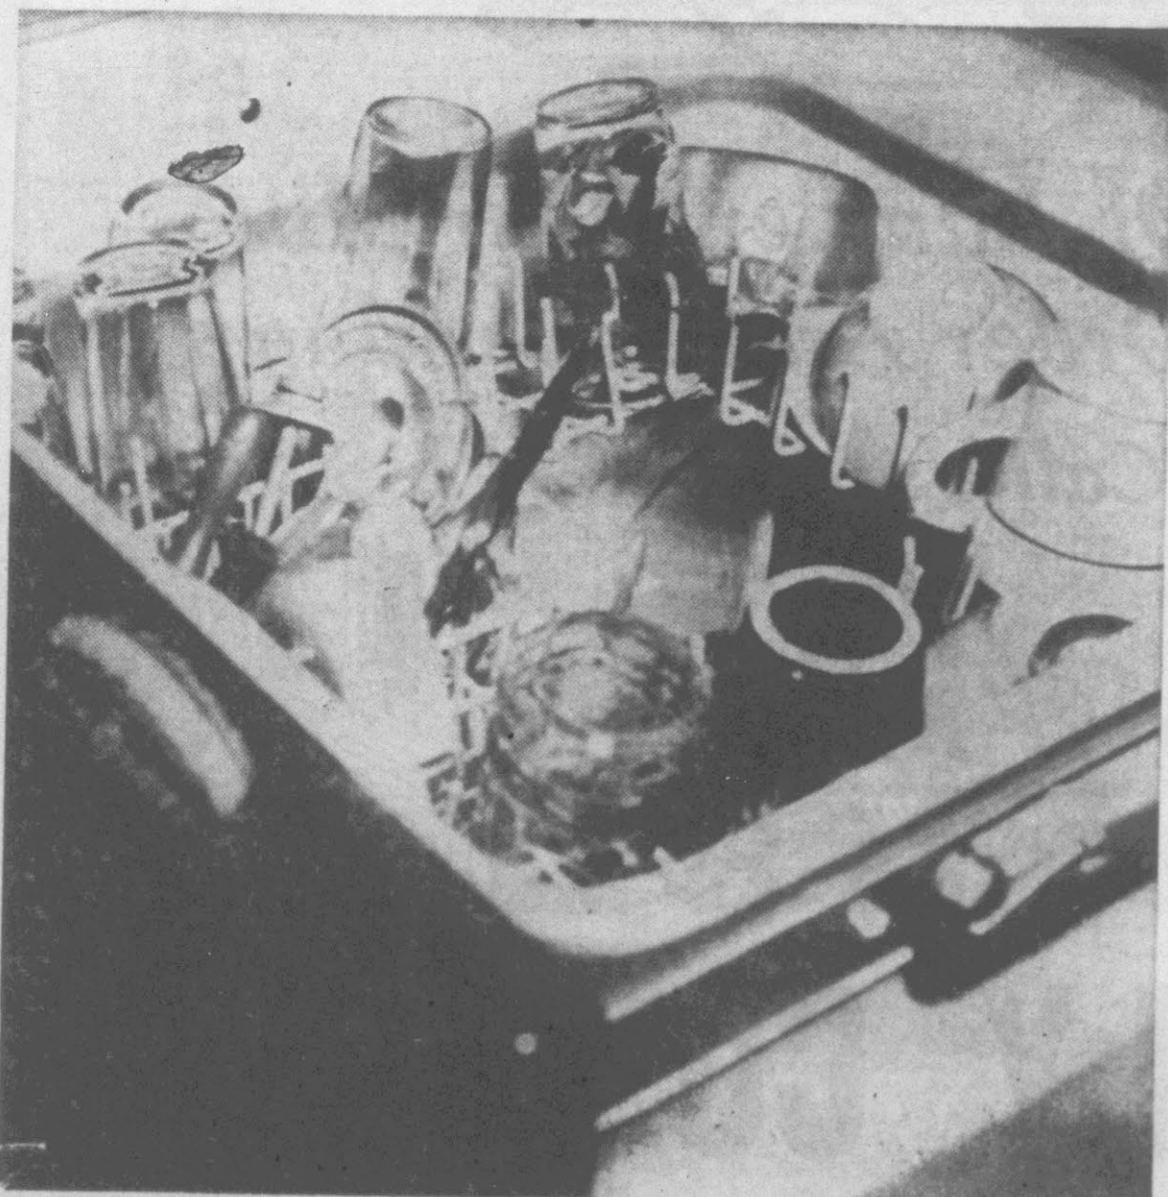

"It is very easy to unintentionally create problems which you may not be aware of except because of poor performance of electrical equipment. It is quite possible that one can unjustly criticize a piece of equipment because of overloaded circuits. We supplying, likewise, do not always know when major additions of equipment large or small are installed; consequently, it is very easy for our facilities to become overloaded. This we do not want to happen; however, we must depend on you to keep us informed."

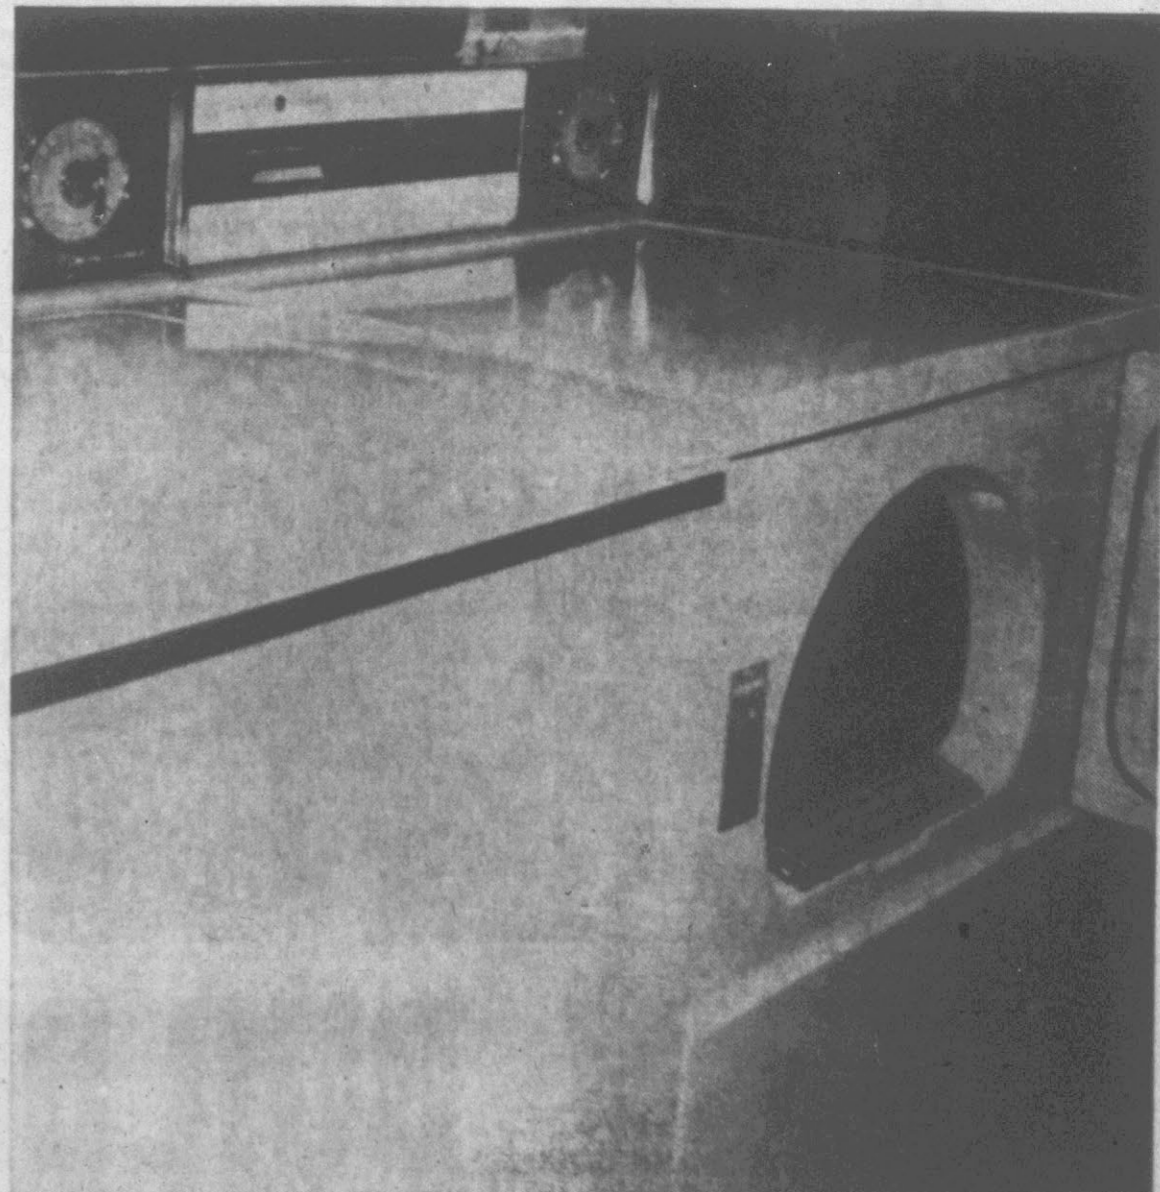

ALL IN THE FUN . . . Mother and children enjoy using this new electric mixer to blend ingredients for cake.

BUILT-IN RANGE . . . With the oven built in the cabinet design the little daughter of the house can watch over cooking items.

STERILIZES DISHES . . . The water in this new dishwasher gets to a high temperature in order to sterilize each dish.

WASHER-DRYER UNIT . . . According to Mrs. Mohle, she prefers a dryer rather than the sun for her clothes. "It leaves them fluffy and dried equally all over."

SEE FOR YOURSELF, TRACY. WHO IS SHE?

DON'T KNOW. IT HAPPENED DURING THE NIGHT.

BUT THE COSMOS HOTEL IS ALWAYS WILD WITH TRAFFIC. HOW COULD A THING LIKE THIS HAVE HAPPENED UNNOTICED?

DURING THE SUPPER HOURS THE DOORMEN PARK CARS ALL AROUND THIS FOUNTAIN. THE VIEW IS CUT OFF.

MAYBE SHE TASTED TOO MUCH WINE, STROLLED OFF FROM HER ESCORT, AND— YOU KNOW—

I DON'T GET IT. NO APPARENT WOUNDS OF ANY KIND—SAY! SHE'S GOOD LOOKING! WONDER WHO SHE IS.

YEE-EEEK! WHAT IS IT, LIZZ?

I'VE SEEN THIS WOMAN BEFORE—

WHILE POPPIE AND HEADACHE, THEIR TRIP WEST HALTED BY THE ABDUCTION OF POPPIE'S MOTHER, SIT QUIETLY AT A LONELY SPOT NEAR THE OCEAN—

I WON'T GO WEST TILL I KNOW WHAT HAPPENED TO MY MOTHER.

I'M RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS. I INSISTED MOM GET OUT OF THE RACKETS—SHE SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE—BUT I INSISTED.

I INSISTED—I INSISTED! BUT HOW DID THE SYNDICATE KNOW SHE WAS LEAVING?

HOW DID THEY KNOW SHE HAD MADE THE BIG BREAK? NOW, NOW! HERE HAVE A FRESH ONE.

ALBUQUERQUE, (AP) — U.S. Judge Carl A. Hatch revoked the probation of a 38-year-old Albuquerque man and ordered him to serve a three-year sentence which had been suspended.

The sentence was imposed because Neulon A. Brown reported to his probation office in an intoxicated condition.

CHAPTER 28

The mounted Indians came skimming back to the Rocky Mountain Fur Co. pack train in the afternoon, signaling that they'd spotted a herd of white men. Little Foolish Bear made the sign for three hundred horses. "Much dust. One sleep away."

He had overestimated the size of the pack train, Mordecai Price knew, but it couldn't be anybody but the American Fur Co. outfit.

Big Nose Yezzer and Mordecai looked at each other. They couldn't go one step faster than they were going at the moment. In fact, they both knew they couldn't even hope to keep up their present speed.

They watched their own pack train moving past. The rest had benefited some of the original animals, but it hadn't been enough rest. Mules with backs rubbed raw when they were badly overloaded on the Plate trail were trying to hold back now. Some of the lame ones weren't going to last two days more. Some of the packers slogging by, a few of them night barefooted, looked resentfully at the mounted Indians.

"Go back," Mordecai told Beaver Tails and the other Snakes. "Watch. See if they come faster." The Indians had nothing better to do. It was interesting work, with out risk, and they were getting paid for it. They went away happy enough.

"Know any short cuts?" Big Nose asked.

Mordecai shook his head.

They were raising camp when the Snakes came in to report three men coming on from the American pack train. Emil Frederick, the clerk, was one of them. Grim as an insulted Crow, he was, with dust thickly overlying the burned redness of his features. He came riding in like he meant business, instead of just coming on a pretended visit to gloat over the condition of Rocky Mountain's outfit. He always rode with a tomahawk tied at his saddle horn, and it was said he could throw it better nor he could shoot a rifle at close range. "Where's Jim Shandy?" he demanded.

"He ain't with us," Big Nose said. "What'd you want?"

Frederick looked around the camp. He took an inquiring long time in answering. "Three horses. Shandy stole 'em."

"He ain't with us," Mordecai said. "His two men ain't with us any longer, either. Have we got any of Frederick's horses, Big Nose?"

"Maybe one. You can have it back at the rendezvous, Frederick."

"I see that one," Frederick said. "It ain't the one I'm most interested in. My buffalo horse. . . . You say that's the one Shandy's got?"

"Nope," Big Nose shook his head. "I know that buffer horse of yours. He ain't been near this train."

"Best damn' buffer horse there ever was," Frederick said. "Shandy stole him. I'd've given him horses if he'd asked." He looked hard at Mordecai and Big Nose, as if he had more to say about Shandy. But he didn't say it.

"I guess you'll stay with us tonight," Big Nose said. "Not that there's anything you ain't seen already."

"Thanks kindly," Frederick grinned. "Sure we'll stay." Now that the matter of the stolen horses was fairly settled in his mind, he was friendly enough.

He sat around a fire and yanked away that night with Mordecai and Big Nose. Now and then Frederick got in a careless question that was a bit of information. No doubt at all, Frederick knew that Shandy had made a deal with American, and now he was fairly certain that Mordecai and Big Nose had discovered Shandy's treachery.

"Where is Shandy?" Frederick asked.

"Up ahead somewhere," Mordecai said curtly.

"Keep that horse he stole?"

"Nope," Big Nose said. "We ain't that bad off."

"Not that it's going to do you any good," Frederick lit his pipe. "You two could go to work for American."

"I worked for 'em once," Big Nose said. "Keep your damn' company, Frederick."

Mordecai watched Rhoda Marsh go toward her shelter. Etienne Beaugard was looking after her like a moonstruck calf.

Frederick went to bed, yawning mightily, well pleased with himself, and as secure as if he'd been with his own pack train.

Big Nose said, "You'd better sleep near her lodge tonight, Mord."

Mordecai gave him a long, hard look.

"Missionary or not, she's still a woman, and a heap better looking than most."

"Yeah," Big Nose went to bed. After he was sure Big Nose was asleep, Mordecai did go over and put his robes down near Rhoda's lodge. Wasn't no need of it, of course, but just in case Beaugard did get to stumbling around in the night, Mordecai would take pleasure in breaking his head.

In the morning Lajoie and two other hunters were gone. They'd taken ponies, and the tracks led back toward the American pack train. Two of the ponies belonged to Lajoie, his hunting horses.

Ordinarily, Big Nose would have led a party to overtake the deserters and deal them harsh punishment. There was no time for that now. He did accuse Frederick of luring the men away.

Frederick shook his head disgustedly. "Your men are walking. Why wouldn't they desert? I never ever talked to those three."

"You'll hire 'em though, won't you?" Big Nose raged.

"Of course. The more men hired away from the Rocky Mountain Fur Company, the sooner you'll be wiped out," Frederick watched the packers loading scarecrow animals. More and more of the bulk of goods for being shifted to the Indian ponies. Frederick was very plainly thinking that he would pass this train soon. He was right. Both Big Nose and Mordecai knew it.

The American men didn't bother to hurry back toward their own trail. They were still loafing at the campsite when the last mule groaned away under its heavy burden. The Snakes who circled back later to scout reported in the afternoon that Frederick met his people halfway between the two camping places of the night before.

"Come fast," Wounded Crow said. He made the rapid passing sign with his hands. "Maybe tomorrow." He grinned, as if it all were a very fine game.

"If Jim Bridger sends us some more ponies when he gets my message . . ." Mordecai said. Big Nose nodded glumly.

Mordecai was at the head of the train when Rhoda came up beside him. He tried to ignore her, thinking of the way she had played up to Lajoie, and then to Beaugard. She wasn't no fly-up-the-crick but she sure as hell was a flirt.

After a time she said, "I suggested desertion to Lajoie."

"What for?"

"So you wouldn't kill him, or he might have killed you. Isn't it simpler just to have him out of the way?"

Mordecai was startled. She was not only looking like an Injun; she was thinking like one too.

"You or Big Nose would have killed him," Rhoda said.

"Up. By he takes two packers with him and three ponies."

"You said the packers were no good. Two of the ponies belonged to Lajoie. You're even on the third one because you've still got one that was stolen by Shandy."

"You've got everything figured out, ain't you?" In spite of himself, Mordecai had to grin.

Mordecai's really got Rhoda interested. "I'm trying to determine whether you're a savage at heart or by necessity," she tells him, as Steve Frazee's rousing story of the West continues Monday.

Eighth St. Christian Announcements

The congregation of the Eighth Street Christian Church will have two items of business to transact Sunday morning at the close of the service; namely, acting upon the report of the nominating committee for officers of the board to be elected to serve for the next three years, and to hear a report from the pulpit committee. Roy Martin will report for the nominating committee, and John Proctor and L. W. Gaylord Jr. will bring the findings of the pulpit committee. Due to the fact that the morning service will be broadcast the business session of the congregation will begin promptly at 12:00 noon.

At the morning service the pastor will begin a series of sermons on the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith under the title, "This I Believe." The choir will sing "I Heard The Voice Of Jesus Say" by Dykes. The youth organizations meetings at 5:00 and 6:00 will swing into a full program for the New Year.

The board of officers of the church will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30. Robert S. Moyer, chairman, will preside. The officers who have served for the past three years and retired as of December 31 are invited to this meeting. Also those newly elected officers serving for the years 1959-1961 are also invited. The women of the board will serve coffee at the close of the meeting. This is an organizational meeting and David A. Evans will bring in the report for the nominating committee.

The circles of the Christian Women's Fellowship will meet as follows on Monday, January 5:

No. 1 with Mrs. J. B. Jackson, 10:00 a.m.

No. 2 with Mrs. Milo Smith, 3:30 p.m.

No. 3 with Mrs. M. R. Long, 3:30 p.m.

No. 4 with Mrs. J. B. Cummings, Mrs. B. T. Balson, assisting hostess, 3:30 p.m.

No. 5 with Mrs. S. A. Smith, 3:30 p.m.

No. 6 with Mrs. L. W. Gaylord Jr., 8:00 p.m.

No. 7 with Mrs. Douglas Paige, 8:00 p.m.

No. 8 will meet in the Ladies Parlor, Misses Nina Bland and Ruth Munford, hostesses, 8:00 p.m.

No. 9 will meet with Miss Gussie Kuykendall, Miss Lela Brown Stancill, assisting hostess, 8:00 p.m.

No. 10 with Mrs. J. A. Joyner Jr., 8:00 p.m.

Big Escort For Hospital Trip

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Richard Barchick, 26, had lots of company on her way to St. Vincent's hospital where she gave birth to a son. When the arrival seemed imminent, she phoned her husband at work and called in four friends. Her husband phoned the fire department which dispatched a five-man rescue squad. The firemen, in turn, called in a two-man police ambulance detail. The total of 12 persons, in various vehicles, accompanied Mrs. Barchick to the hospital.

Escaping Goat Had Accomplice

FULTON, Ky. (AP) — Farmer Oleg Lecornu couldn't understand how his goat always got out of its pasture.

One day Lecornu hid behind a tree. The goat climbed onto a stump in the field and started baa-ing. A burro sauntered over to stump and the goat leaped onto his back.

Then the burro trotted to the fence and the goat bounded over the barrier.

Girl No Longer A Social Menace

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A stern-faced lawyer, thumbing pages of a psychiatrist's report, told Mecklenburg County Recorder's Court Friday that pretty young Barbara Ann Massey, who wanted another man's wife killed, no longer is a social menace.

Miss Massey, 22-year-old former social worker, pleaded guilty to trying to hire a Charlotte detective to arrange "a fatal accident" to Mrs. Frances Smith of Greensboro.

Under North Carolina law, the charge is a misdemeanor. Judge pro tem Howard Arbuckle gave her a one-year suspended sentence with several conditions, among them that she remain under a psychiatrist's care.

Miss Massey, a smartly dressed blonde, broke into tears after the sentence and slumped down into her seat. Friends from her home town of Greensboro, who had described her to the court as "the girl next door," crowded around to comfort her.

Detective Dick Ruth, only state witness, told of posing as a hired gunman whom Miss Massey offered $500 to kill the wife of State Highway Patrolman "Han'some" Samsone Smith.

Ruth, who tape recorded their conversation, said he asked her why she wanted Mrs. Smith dead. "I love the guy," the detective quoted her as saying.

Smith, who resigned from the patrol after Miss Massey's arrest in November, was not in the courtroom. Neither was his wife. Smith told his superiors he had stopped seeing the Massey girl several months ago.

Miss Massey's face was cheerless during Ruth's testimony. She cried when character witnesses said they were shocked and incredulous when they learned of her arrest.

Welch Jordan of Greensboro, Miss Massey's lawyer, blamed her emotional tension on the fact that when she was 12 years old her late father, former Greensboro policeman Hunter Massey, was convicted of breaking and entering.

Nevertheless, she was an outstanding student. In high school she won a national Knights of Pythias oratory contest, and used her scholarship prize to attend Wake Forest College. There she was the first girl freshman to attain the debating team.

While she was at Wake Forest she met Smith, who stopped her for speeding in April, 1957. At her pleading, he refrained from giving her a ticket. Later he called her and arranged a date. While she was seeing Smith, she flunked her law course at Wake Forest last February.

"She's more to be pitied than censured," said her lawyer. He added that the psychiatrist recommended her treatment continue for one to two years.

Judge Arbuckle commented that she "apparently got in an emotional involvement without having the emotional stability to go through."

Other conditions of the sentence, suspended for three years, were that she pay the $8.30 court costs; remain a law-abiding citizen; keep the Guilford County sheriff informed of her whereabouts for the next year, and meet probation requirements in that county; and that she observe a 10 p.m. curfew for one year.

Miss Massey's lawyer criticized the publicity given the case, and declared that she never had intimate relations with Smith.

After her arrest, Miss Massey was given an indefinite leave of absence from her job as assistant case worker with the Guilford County welfare department. But the department's superintendent, L. M. Thompson, said Friday that he and Miss Massey reached a mutual agreement Dec. 27 that her services would be "terminated permanently."

Her character witnesses included R. Boyd Morris, former Greensboro mayor; A. P. Routh, principal of Greensboro Senior High School; William D. Burke, Greensboro city councilman; Mrs. Rosalind Brooks, former junior high school teacher; and Luther R. Medina, principal of Page Senior High School, who knew her as a junior high student.

On-The-Spot For Second Accident

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Second Lt. Thomas Stewart made an emergency landing at Flagstaff Airport. His jet knocked down five landing lights, ran off the runway, crashed through a fence and smashed into a row of trees. But Stewart walked away unscathed.

An Air Force investigation team flew to the airport to determine the cause of the crash. After investigation, the five team members and Stewart were heading home when their light plane suddenly veered off the runway, spun around and stopped in soft dirt. None was injured.

All but one member of the team Gammon will conduct the installation of officers in the Senior High Fellowship. The Pioneer Vespers program topic will be "Facts and Fancy about the Boyhood of Jesus."

Calvary Baptist Announcements

Last Sunday was a great day at the church in attendance and everyone is cordially invited to attend this Sunday.

At 11 o'clock Rev. Jack W. Finch, pastor, will bring the message. Evangelistic service begins at 7:30 p.m. and at this service the pastor will speak on "What the Preacher Saw When He Looked Through the Hole in the Wall."

Tuesday night at 7 o'clock is time for visitation, and on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. the regular prayer service will be held.

Calvary Baptist Church is located at 1504 N. Greene St. A cordial invitation is extended to all to worship in every service.
