Hutson Urges Planting Standard Leaf Varieties

J. B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associates, Inc., yesterday urged tobacco farmers of Eastern North Carolina to plant "as near standard varieties as possible" this year.

"We know farmers have some difficulties over most of the East in planting old line varieties," Hutson said, "but we also know that most companies prefer old line varieties of tobacco. If a farmer is going to plant disease resistant tobacco this year he should plant two or more varieties because buyers don't like all tobacco of any one resistant variety even though it may be the best resistant variety."

Man Is Charged On Rape Count

A 23-year-old man has been charged with rape in connection with the alleged assault of a seven-year-old child Saturday night.

Facing the capital charge is Theodore Walton, Negro of 1301 W. Third St.

Walton is accused of raping Cynthia Anne Fleming, also Negro, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Fleming of 1207 W. Third St.

Chief of Police S. G. Gibbs said investigation showed Cynthia spent the night at the home of Walton's sister, where Walton lives, Saturday night.

When Cynthia returned home the next morning she told her parents of the alleged assault. The parents took the child to a physician for examination and then reported the matter to police.

Chief Gibbs said he understood the doctor's examination showed the child had been molested.

Walton, a Utilities Commission employee, was taken into custody by police when he returned to his sister's home early Monday morning.

Yesterday he was taken to Raleigh for a lie detector test. The results were not revealed.

Chief Gibbs said Walton still will be given a preliminary hearing in City Court on the rape charge. He is currently being held without privilege of bond. The warrant was signed by the child's father.

Mikoyan Said To Have Pledged Berlin Will Stay Open To West

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan was reported today to have assured the United States of continued free Western access to Berlin. Such a pledge would go to the heart of the current East-West tension over Berlin's future. It would signal a major concession by the Kremlin to the West's objections to Soviet demands to make a "free city" of Berlin. Mikoyan was understood to have told high level State Department, business and congressional leaders Monday night:

Auditor Reports County Finances In Good Condition

Pitt County's financial condition was described yesterday as "excellent" by the man who ought to know.

D. R. Hollowell of Greensboro, certified public accountant and head of a firm which audits the county's financial records, used the description in a report to the Board of County Commissioners on his firm's audit of county financial records for the 1957-1958 fiscal year. Hollowell turned copies of the completed audit over to the board.

Despite his overall praise of the county's financial affairs, Hollowell cautioned the commissioners against continued transferring of monies between funds included in each annual budget. He pointed out that there are legal limits to percentages of the total budget which may be included in some funds.

Prior to hearing Hollowell's report, the board deferred action until next month on filling five expired terms on the Board of Trustees of the County Welfare Hospital. The trustees are for all of an increase permitted by the state for care of welfare patients, accepted a report from Tax Supervisor and Collector Robert S. Moyse, and agreed to permit the Greenville Little Theater to use the county court room to stage a play in February.

Hospital Trustees whose terms will expire February 6 are W. Alex Allen, S. C. Ives, Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, Sr., M. L. Sharkey and J. Beverly Congleton, Jr. The trustees are all serving six-year terms and new appointments will also be for six years.

The request for an increase in payments for hospitalized welfare patients was contained in a letter to the board from Carson Jones, secretary-treasurer of Pitt Memorial. Jones pointed out that the State Board of Public Welfare authorized, effective October 1, 1958, an increase from $7.25 to $8.50 per day in the rate of payment for care of welfare patients.

Money for the state payments came from the State Fund for Hospitalization of Assistance Recipients and Jones said no additional county funds are required to meet the increased rate. He added, however, that the hospital was informed on October 27 by county welfare Superintendent K. T. Putrell that the county welfare board intended to decrease its portion of the old $11.25 daily assistance rate from $4 to $2.75 in order to maintain the same rate despite the state increase.

Jones asked the commissioners to see that the hospital got the full increase permitted under the state action, because of what he termed state-level recognition of increased hospital costs.

Commissioners referred the request to the Welfare Board and voted to follow that board's recommendations.

An agreement to permit the Greenville Little Theater to stage its production of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" in the county court room came at the request of Claude Garren of the Little Theater group. Garren said the play would be presented February 6 and 7, with the court room also needed for rehearsals on February 4 and 5.

The court room would be "an ideal setting" for the production, Garren said, and no other scenery would be required. Permits for use of the room was granted on condition that no public meetings are scheduled for the court room on either of the nights.

The board also told Garren that some charges would have to be made to defray costs of heating and electricity, and to pay for having the building opened and closed after regular working hours. Chairman R. L. Martin was authorized to work with Garren on such charges.

While there will be no reduction in strength, Wayne said, the number of Tar Heel Guard units will be cut from 141 to 102. Through some sharing of units by towns, he added, the Guard will "be able to stay in practically all towns it is now in."

Gov. Hodges and Wayne went over the reorganization plans Monday. The governor said the new troop basis for the state's National Guard resulted from prolonged negotiations between Wayne and the U.S. Department of Defense.

Each state is faced with the necessity of reorganizing its Guard to conform with the national defense plan, Hodges pointed out.

The field artillery content of the 30th (Old Hickory) Division will not be greatly affected, Hodges noted. However, the IV Corps artillery, which has included most of the Guard's non-divisional units, will be replaced by a set-up which will include a headquarters unit and two anti-aircraft artillery battalions.

Wayne explained that the reduction in units will result from the larger strength of companies under the "pentomic" concept. The 30th present three regiments will be reorganized into five battalions, he added.

The 30th Division was among five of 21 National Guard divisions selected as a part of the Army's first-line reserve, Wayne reported.

pickets. Neither did the 48 other guests, about equally divided between State Department officials, congressional leaders, selected newspapermen and business executives.

Mikoyan conferred for 95 minutes with Secretary of State Dulles at the State Department Monday, primarily about Berlin. Afterward, he said he will talk about Berlin and other tension topics with President Eisenhower on Jan. 19 or 20.

He is due back in Washington Jan. 19 after visiting several American cities. It was learned he will fly at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday to Cleveland to confer with industrialist Cyrus Eaton. The American millionaire recently conferred in Moscow with Khrushchev and Mikoyan.

After Cleveland, Mikoyan goes Thursday to Detroit and Friday to Chicago, with stops later at San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Boston and Philadelphia. An expected Dallas visit was tentatively ruled out.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), one of those at Monday night's dinner, told reporters he got the impression from Mikoyan that the Soviets are willing to negotiate a Berlin settlement.

"But what they are willing to do, I don't know," Humphrey said. Johnston, who was himself harassed by picket placards saying, "Eric the Jerk," for giving the dinner, released quotations from Mikoyan's formal address to the diners.

Mikoyan was quoted as saying: "We think there should be more contacts at all levels — from the lowest to the highest. And in order not to spend years in trying to work out an agenda, it is best to meet without one. I think that is where we are heading. . . . It might seem that contacts between people are a minor matter. . . . I would say that these contacts have brought about warmer winds in our cold war relations. . . . Let us compete in having more Winds subsided last night but the frigid temperatures remained. The thermometer dropped steadily until a low of 14 degrees was recorded for the night.

This morning at 8 o'clock there had been a one degree rise and the temperature stood at 15 degrees.

Tar River, which began rising last week after a rainy spell, stood at 15 feet this morning—about the same level recorded yesterday.

Judge James And Solicitor Paylor Sworn Into Office

JUDGE JAMES, SOLICITOR PAYLOR AND ASSISTANT CLERK LEWIS . . . During County Court Ceremonies This Morning

Judge Dink James and Solicitor John Hill Paylor of Pitt County Recorder's Court were sworn into office in ceremonies this morning in the Court House.

Assistant Clerk of Superior Court, H. L. Lewis, Jr., administered the oaths to Judge James, who has held the office since January 1, 1953, and to Solicitor Paylor, who is succeeding James C. Lanier, Jr. Lanier, county solicitor for the past four years, was honored by fellow workers in a brief ceremony following the administration of oaths.

County Attorney W. W. Speight presented Lanier with a certificate which entitles him to receive a gavel ordered by personnel of the office of Clerk of Superior Court, the Sheriff's office, Jailor, Auditor, Judge of County Court, Solicitor of the Fifth Judicial District, County Attorney, ABC officers and members of the State Highway Patrol.

Speight said the gavel is " . . . a token of their esteem and appreciation for (Lanier's) courtesy, politeness and efficiency in the conduct of his office of Solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court."

Prior to presentation of the certificate, signed by the Assistant Clerk of Superior Court, Speight congratulated Lanier on his conduct while in his office and said, "He has shown himself to be understanding, patient and sympathetic."

Judge James and Solicitor Paylor were formally elected to their offices in November, although neither of them had opposition in the May Democratic Primary. Judge James is a member of the law firm of James and Hite in Greenville. Paylor is a former Assistant Attorney General for the State of North Carolina who is now practicing in Farmville.

Other statistics released showed that seven arrests were made in connection with the accidents. None of the accidents resulted in fatalities and only one person was injured. There were 19 motor vehicles involved and one incident involving a bicycle and a motor vehicle. Sixteen of the accidents occurred during daytime and six occurred at night.

Douglas is seeking additional contracts that will increase work at the Charlotte plant, Smith said, adding that the Charlotte plant will continue to hire engineers for research and development of missiles in space technology.

Smith said the rescheduling of the plant will mean a layoff of about 200 of the plant's 2,900 workers during 1959.

Sen. Everett Jordan (D-NC) said in Washington yesterday that the layoffs were because of budgetary reasons.

Smith, in a statement, called the rescheduling "moderate" and the curtailment of employment "slight."

County Schools Wound Up With Small Budget Surplus

Pitt County Schools wound up with a small surplus in their Current Expense Budget for 1957-1958 fiscal year appropriations despite record overdrfts in appropriations for fuel, water and lights, the Pitt County Board of Education learned yesterday.

Annual audit of the school's financial records, prepared and presented to the board by Certified Public Accountant John C. Proctor of Greenville, revealed that last winter's severe cold caused expenditure of nearly $6,000 more than appropriated for fuel, lights and water. The total budget for current expenses, set at $285,620.98 when the fiscal year began July 1, 1957, wound up the year with a balance of $372.10 despite the overdrfts, Proctor reported.

Superintendent D. H. Conley had previously pointed out that fuel and electrical bills for all schools would be higher than expected because of a prolonged cold spell which gripped the county early in 1958.

In other financial matters handled by the board yesterday in its regular monthly meeting, insurance coverage in blanket policies on school properties was granted for disposal of school property no longer in use.

The review of insurance coverage showed that 60 county school buildings are valued at $5,307,000 and contents of the buildings are valued at $358,600. The expressed values are appraised, insurable values included in the insurance which covers fire, lightning, wind storm, malicious mischief and vandalism.

Unused school property ordered advertised for public sale is a one-and-a-half acre plot and six-room building formerly used as a Negro school in Falkland. The school has been replaced by the Bruce-Falkland Elementary School opened last spring.

Three teacher contracts were approved by the board. They are for Mary Luvenia Parker of Fountain Negro School, Mary A. Willetts of Grifton School, and Karen Campbell Wiggins of Chicod School. The remainder of the 1958-1959 school year as replacements for other teachers who have resigned.

Reports from supervisors Arthur S. Alford, Mrs. Edna E. Baker and Frederick D. Sledge were heard and accepted by the board, which also reviewed inspection reports from County Electrical Inspector Guy C. Dunn. Dunn's reports are required by action of the 1957 North Carolina General Assembly.

The board also reviewed letters from each school principal pointing out precautionary measures being taken in the event of fire or other disasters. The letters were requested in connection with an order from State Superintendent Charles F. Carroll.

The rest of the crew were Eliot's son, Timothy, 21, an engineering student at Cambridge and the radioman; marine architect Colin Mudie, 32, the navigator, and Mudie's wife, Rosemary, 30, the expedition's cook.

Wearing blue shorts and a blue and white sweater, Mrs. Mudie was the brightest of the four as they came ashore at a hotel beach on the island's southeast coast. She strode purposefully through the gathering crowd and up a cliff to the hotel, asking, "Can anyone

They landed tired, hungry for fresh fruit and vegetables and thirsty for carbonated drinks. Otherwise, they seemed unaffected by their grueling experience, and their gondola was still well stocked with food and water.

The four refused to say how long they had been aloft and how long on the water, explaining they had sold their story to the London Daily Mail, which backed their

Rescued Balloonists Report 'Small World' Aloft Only 3 Days In Trip

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The balloon trip of four Britons trying to span the Atlantic lasted only three days, it was disclosed today. They spent 21 more days floating at sea in the balloon's gondola, constructed for double duty as a lifeboat.

The three men and a woman set off Dec. 12 from the Canary Islands, seeking to float on the wind 3,000 miles to Barbados. They reached here Monday after a fisherman picked them up at sea.

They had traveled about 1,200 miles by air and more than 2,000 miles by sea. All four had been on rations of a few ounces of food daily since Dec. 15. All looked thin

Paintings On Exhibit At Center

Ten paintings by North Carolina artists are on exhibit at the Community Art Center during the month of January.

These paintings were selected from the Twenty First Annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition which was held in Raleigh during December to appear in the Greenville gallery.

They are "Horizontal Still Life" by Linda D. Byrum of Middletown,

Rhode Island; "Gamin" by Alan E. Cober of Fort Bragg; "Abstraction" by Ogden of McLeansville; "Untitled" by Ligon E. Flynn of Raleigh; "Girl on the Bench" by Maud Gatswood of Yanceyville; "Plant and Evening" by George Kackergis of Chapel Hill; "Near Bardolme" by Anne Kesler of Winston Salem; "Melancholy Musician" by Peggy Link of Reidsville; "November 1954" by Haywood New by Wayne of Raleigh. From the 49 works entered in state exhibit, sponsored by the N. C. State Art Society, five were designated by the jury to receive special awards.

Among those five was John Gordon, a member of East Carolina College faculty. Upon receiving the award, Gordon stated, "Always the painting becomes what it is in and through the act of painting. Some times one is able to say 'yes,' the painting is what I hoped for. Painting is found, not made."

"Boodie at Table" began as observation of one of my daughters, seen with my head full of Goyda. I was surprised when I found after painting it, that it was itself."

An added attraction at the local art center are three paintings from James B. Byrnes' acting director at the state museum, collection, Alexander Calder, Rico Aledrun, and nationally-known Ynez Johnston are the artist of the privately owned collection.

The gallery located in the Shepard Memorial Library will be open each day during the week beginning at 2 o'clock and closing at 5:30 o'clock.

ECC Playhouse To Give Three Plays

Production of three plays during the winter and spring quarters has been announced by the East Carolina College Playhouse. Selected by the college dramatic club for performance during the present school year are Graham Greene's "The Potting Shed," the children's drama "Hansel and Gretel," and Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

According to Director Joseph A. Withey of the Playhouse.

These productions follow the presentation earlier in the 1958-59 term of Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton" and Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman." The Playhouse has presented also this school year an experimental theater-in-the-round production of Patrick Hamilton's Victorian thriller "Angel Street," and a program of one-act plays with casts from the freshman class.

Casting of "The Potting Shed" is now in progress and the play will go into rehearsal at an early date. Performances are scheduled for February 11, 12 and 14.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be the annual play given by the college dramatic club for school children of Pitt County. Three performances March 20, 23, and 24 will be sponsored by the Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women. The children's play will be one of a series of dramas for young people presented each year since 1941 before audiences of several thousand people.

"Romeo and Juliet," scheduled for May 7 and 8 in the Flanagan Sylvan Theatre on the campus, will have a cast from the college and the city of Greenville. It will be the third Shakespearean play to be given an outdoor performance on the campus.

Eagles Talks To Club

When the Greenville Woman's club met Friday afternoon, the program chairman, Mrs. Tige Gardner, stated that Mrs. P. E. Wells, chairman of the Garden Club, was responsible for the program. Mrs. Wells introduced the guest speaker, W. C. Eagles, Pitt County Soil Conservation in Pitt County.

Eagles stated that several outstanding people from the Far East had visited the county to observe the farming methods which are practiced by Pitt farmers. They were keenly interested in learning new ways to improve the farming situation in their native land, because they have a great food problem. They wanted to find ways they could teach their people how to produce abundant food and fiber like the Americans.

He reminded the group that unless the people of the country take better care of what they now have fed or clothed. He stated it was essential for everyone to take care of the little things and not neglect the natural resources of our fertile land.

The people should strive in the future to make their resources more productive and fertile. He suggested numerous ways to conserve our resources so we Americans will continue to be strong and productive.

Afterwards, Eagles showed slides of different activities that have been done in Pitt County to improve the land and water drainage. He showed pictures of tobacco fields, fish ponds, and canals. He commented on each slide and suggested ways to conserve the land and water. He gave much information on drainage and irrigation, soil building, crop and plant rotation, tree planting and pond building.

At the conclusion of his talk, he remarked that if the farmers would follow the principles of water and soil conservation they could take the poorest soil and make it productive and worthwhile. He also showed slides to illustrate his statement.

Following his talk, questions were asked by the club members. They were told ways to improve and beautify their yards as well as protect their soil.

A short business meeting followed.

ed the program. Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., presided over the business session. She welcomed a guest, Mrs. J. W. Williams, and club members. She invited them to read in unison the Woman's Club Collect. Afterwards, the club members bowed their heads in memory of the late Mrs. Dewey Barnes, who passed away during the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. J. A. Piver, the secretary, read the minutes of the December meeting. They were accepted by the members. The treasurer, Mrs. Ed Ricks, gave a report of the club's finance and she also reminded the ladies to pay their club dues.

Several department chairmen made reports. Mrs. R. P. Rogers, chairman of Fine Arts, stated that her department would meet at the home of Mrs. James Worsley; she invited all members to attend the January meeting. Mrs. Ed Ricks, chairman of the American Home, reminded the ladies to attend the meeting of her department at the home of Mrs. H. L. Andrews. She stated that Sam Winchester will be guest speaker.

The club members decided to contribute three dollars for veteran's work.

Since Mrs. Ralph Brimley, Newcomers Club president, was unable to be present, Mrs. E. C. McGee presented to the Greenville Woman's Club two sterling silver bonbon dishes as a token of the Newcomers appreciation and gratitude. The club members accepted them and voted to have the club's name engraved on them.

Preceding the program and business session, a social hour was observed. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. B. C. McGee, chairman, Mrs. K. W. Cobb, Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, Mrs. G. E. Haney, Mrs. H. P. Minstead, Mrs. Dink James and Mrs. J. G. Riddick. Spiced tea, congealed salad, crackers and cheese sticks were served.

Mrs. Fleetwood Guest Speaker

BETHEL—Last week the Round Table Book Club met in the home of Mrs. A. M. McWhorter on Nelson Street.

Mrs. McWhorter, program chairman, presented Mrs. J. A. Fleetwood Sr. of Conway, N. C. as a speaker for the occasion. She gave a vivid account of "Operation Deep Freeze," a Federal government project of the I.G.Y. which made a scientific study of the Antarctic. She stated that President Eisenhower designated Rear Admiral R. E. Byrd as officer in charge of the 1955-56 explorations.

Mrs. Fleetwood's son, Dr. J. A. Fleetwood Jr., a former member of the navy, was recalled to join Task Force 43 at Byrd's personal physician and physician to all aboard.

Other out-of-town guests were Mrs. N. DeLoache of Conway, Miss Frances Warren and Mrs. Paul Warren of Conetoe.

Assisted by Miss Betty Lee Andrews, the hostess invited the guests into the dining room where from a lace covered table, centered with New Year's bells and candies, a salad and sweet course, hot green tea and confections were served.

Boys Like Pancakes

If you want to entertain a number of your teen-age son's boy friends at your house simply give them a pancake breakfast, lunch or supper. Whoever saw a 12- or 14-year-old boy who wasn't hungry or one who didn't like pancakes, especially in the winter time?

Count on a whole head of cauliflower, boiled in slightly salted water, taking at least 20 minutes.

Profits Of IGY Remain To Be Assayed By Scientists

By ALTON BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Over a luncheon table, Germany's Dr. Julius Bartels searched a moment for the right words:

"We see out traps for nature. Then when nature does something, we often learn her secrets."

To Bartels, professor of geomagnetism at the University in Goettingen, this was the essence of the IGY, the 18-month International Geophysical Year which just ended.

It brought the greatest single hunt in history for knowledge — about earth, sun, weather, and the new province of space into which humans are eagerly reaching.

The traps for nature were tended by 30,000 scientists and volunteers from 66 nations in a huge cooperative effort.

Now nature is yielding a treasury of secrets. The full wealth of meaning and significance, however, must await months or years while scientists analyze the literally millions of observations concerning weather, gravity, electrical phenomena, and other forces and events affecting the destiny of the earth and its people.

Practical benefits are bound to come from IGY. The sun, our life-giving star, was one main focus of IGY. For every minute of 18 months, the sun was held under constant watch by 100 observatories around the world, to count its stormy sunspots, record its gigantic flares, or explosions which often choke off radio communications and hang the shimmering Northern Lights in our sky.

And the sun obliged, staging the greatest sunspot activity since 1778. Special rockets soaring up for brief glimpses discovered that flares shoot out great bursts of X-rays. X-rays always are beaming out of the sun. It's the added X-rays from flares which apparently cause radio fadeouts on earth.

For the first time, rockets reached above obscuring clouds during an eclipse of the sun, learning that the solar X-rays stem from the sun's corona or atmosphere, not its disk.

Other rockets, looking into space with eyes tuned to see only ultraviolet light, found that some stars are wrapped with nebulous radiation not explainable by the energy the stars are thought to possess.

IGY scientists set their traps to learn what these bombardments do to the earth's magnetism and electrified ionosphere, and what actually happens on the sun. Out of it all could come knowledge to achieve limitless energy for man's machines and power stations on earth.

Rockets flying 50 to 150 miles up found the earth's atmosphere to be perhaps 10 times denser at high altitudes than had been thought, with strong daily and seasonal variations — factors influencing weather.

Although the feat was accomplished a few hours after IGY's end, man took a giant stride when the Soviet Lunik sped past the moon and headed into an orbit around the sun this week.

At 2 a.m. Monday, however, it was announced in Moscow that radio contact with Lunik had been lost.

A huge surprise was discovery through U. S. Satellites of two great and hazardous bands of radiation ringing the earth at altitudes of 1,400 to 8,000 miles.

Vanguard — the little grapefruit-sized satellite — turns out to be one of the most useful space voyagers.

Swinging out in a highly faithful orbit, it is so precise in its journey that it is being used in place of stars to get accurate navigational "fixes" on earth, and to check guidance instruments and devices at missile test centers.

Coming — fairly soon — are weather satellites which can track hurricanes, take a global view to tell man what is coming in climate, droughts or floods, help determine whether the earth is warming or cooling. Telescopes mounted aboard satellites will fathom mysteries of stars, planets and universe. And man's next great communications system probably will be a group of special satellites relaying messages from earth back to any other place on earth.

Little Progress In Strike Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators hit an apparent snag early today in efforts to work out final details of a tentative agreement between American Airlines and its striking pilots.

"All I can say is that we seem to be making a little progress," Chairman Leverett Edwards of the National Mediation Board said after a lengthy negotiating session that ran past midnight.

He said another meeting was scheduled today in an attempt to end the 18-day walkout. Edwards told newsmen late Monday that tentative agreement had been reached between the company and the Air Line Pilots Assn. on most major issues.

Approximately 1,500 pilots are seeking higher wages and fewer work hours on the new jet airliners American intends to put in service soon.

American, the nation's largest airline in number of passenger miles flown, furloughed about 20,000 of its 22,000 employees without pay Monday.

Sixteen furloughed office workers picked Monday's negotiating meeting, carrying signs saying, among other things, "My Christmas bills are not paid — pilots go back to work."

Training Course Set For Scouters

With the quality of the scouting program in the East Carolina Council as primary concern, the Leadership Training Committee of the council will conduct a training course for District Scouters and Commissioners tomorrow at East Carolina College.

The course will have as its objective acquainting new district scouters with their responsibilities and opportunities and as a refresher course for veteran scouters.

The course will cover advancement, camping and activities, and the district operation. It will offer training in finance, health and safety, leadership, organization and extension, public information, and commissioner work.

The first session of the course will be held in the ECG library auditorium. The second session will be conducted in classrooms at Austin Building. The courses will begin at 3:00 and will end at approximately 9:00 p.m. A charge of $1.50 per person will be charged to those who attend; the charge will cover a dinner and materials used.

Course Director for the project will be P. R. O'Connor.

Lots Of Support At Swearing-In WASHINGTON (AP)—The Hall family will be well represented when Rep. - elect David M. Hall (D-NC) is sworn into the House of Representatives Wednesday.

Among those expected to be on hand for the ceremony are the Sylva legislator's wife and three daughters, his mother, Mrs. Edith Moore Hall, assistant dean of women at Western Carolina College; his brother, Robert C. Hall of Asheville; and his sisters, Mrs. E. N. Dowdie of Franklin, and Miss Lela Moore Hall, superintendent of public welfare in Harnett County.

Hall and other new Democratic congressmen were luncheon guests of House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) Monday.

Phony African Prince Cooling Heels In Jail

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—An imaginative Negro from MacClenny, Fla., who has passed himself off in six states as an African crown prince, cooled his heels in a jail cell today.

His tall tales are beginning to catch up with Edward Lee Woods, 28. The populace doesn't bow and scrape any more. When he identifies himself as Prince Nkabar Kawama Mboya of Ubangi-Sheri, Portuguese East Africa, people are dubious instead of deferential.

They vaguely remember they've heard something like this before. Wasn't there a story in the paper a little while ago? There have been a good many stories in a good many papers. The datelines included cities in Virginia, Florida, North Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

In all these states, Woods received royal treatment at hospitals where he said he was suffering with a kidney ailment. One of the hospitals, St. Mary's at Athens, Ga., said nothing was wrong with Woods' kidneys.

The hospital reported he departed in a princely huff before he could be handed his $34 bill. At several other hospitals, Woods gave lordly instructions that his bill was to be presented to the French consulate — which never had heard of his highness.

He entered a hospital here Monday. Same old story. Kidney trouble. But hospital authorities didn't follow the script. Hadn't this happened somewhere else? They called police.

Woods will be arraigned later in Tampa before a federal commissioner on a charge of interstate transportation of a fraudulent check. Police in Danville, Va., charge him with cashing a worthless $187 check drawn on the Community National Bank of Roxbury, Mass.

Despite his frequent unmaskings, police said Woods insisted he was an African prince for several hours before admitting his non-regal identity.

Deputy Sheriff Dick Jacobs said Woods is wanted for fraud in several cities besides Danville.

Father Returns Daughter To Pen

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Monday, her father brought her back.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last weekend. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner. "We'll drive all night if necessary."

He described the father as "quite a forceful man on his ideas of right and wrong. There was only one thing in his mind and that was to bring her back."

Miss Gardner, serving a forgery term, fled with two other women inmates. One remains at large. El Monte is 900 miles from here.

Murderer Denies Slaying Uncle

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A 17-year-old High Point youth, already serving 25-30 years for slaying his brother, pleaded innocent here Monday to a charge of murdering his uncle.

The defendant, Arthur Miller Bowden, is accused of shooting Pearson Bradford, 49, while they were walking in the mountains last Easter Sunday. The victim's body was found last August in a gully near Ox Creek.

Bowden was sentenced in Guilford Superior Court last Sept. 23 for the shotgun slaying of his brother, Vance, 22, at Vance's Hill Point home last July 30. He had pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

Trial of Bowden on the second murder charge did not begin in Buncombe Superior Court Monday. Neither Judge J. Will Pless nor Solicitor Robert S. Swain indicated when it might begin.

Conservative GOP Ranks Appear Ready For Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz) withdrew his support for Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R-Calif) as GOP whip today amid signs that Senate Republican conservatives may strike back at rebelling liberals.

The liberal group has nominated Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky to oppose Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois for GOP floor leader, and Kuchel to succeed Dirksen as party whip, or assistant leader.

But the insurgents, captained by Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, appeared likely to let go unchallenged the reelection of three veteran Republicans to leadership posts.

The question was before a closed meeting of the liberal group today, but both Aiken and Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York said they favored naming no candidates for other posts.

This would mean that the 34 GOP senators, meeting Wednesday, rename Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire as chairman of the party policy committee, with Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts as chairman and Sen. Milton Young of North Dakota as secretary of the Conference of All Republican Senators. Kuchel thus far has no announced opposition for the whip's job, but Goldwater indicated there may be another candidate. He did not comment on whether he himself might seek the post.

Goldwater, who said recently he thought Kuchel "would be a good man" for whip, said he had changed his mind.

"I am not for him anymore," Goldwater said. "I'm not for any liberal. I wouldn't support anyone who is involved with the elements that want to tear the party limb from limb."

Aiken said he believes the liberals have a good chance to prevent the promotion of Dirksen to succeed former Sen. William F. Knowland of California as floor leader. He said a half dozen Republican senators remain uncommitted in addition to the 12 the liberals contend are backing Cooper.

On the other hand, Sen. Mundt of South Dakota, a Dirksen supporter, said he is confident his group can muster 20 of the 34 GOP votes for the Illinois senator.

Beyond the leadership posts themselves there are at stake coveted committee assignments which will be filled by the Republican conference, on recommendations of its leaders, at a meeting following Wednesday's session.

Sophia Unafraid Of Bigamy Story

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sophia Loren says she's going back to Italy next spring despite reports that she might be jailed for bigamy if she returns.

"This is old stuff," the Italian actress said Monday. "Someone in Italy started the story a year ago. I'm going home in four or five months to work on a picture, and I'm not a bit afraid."

The government there recognizes only a church-approved annulment for a couple married in a Catholic ceremony. Sophia, 24, and Carlo Ponti, 46, a film producer, were married by proxy in Mexico in September 1957, after he obtained a Mexican divorce from Giuliana Fiaschi.

Ponti said he might not go back — "I like it so well here."

Fire Company Plan Is Too Late

KULPTOWN, Pa. (AP) — For two years David Kennedy, a plumber, toiled in his spare time to build a one-story frame and cement block home in this eastern Pennsylvania community.

It was ready as a Christmas gift for his wife and 21-month-old son. The family moved in Christmas Eve.

Monday a fire destroyed the house when firemen from neighboring communities were too late to save it. The Kennedys lost everything.

And Monday a judge granted a charter for Kulptown's first fire company, although township officials had objected to the extra tax burden.

One of the sites under consideration for the proposed fire house adjoined Kennedy's house.

Russian Scientists Startled All

Like the rest of the world, including the Soviet Union, the United States is looking with amazement and some apprehension at the new Russian cosmic rocket now beginning its orbit around the sun.

Russia is making all of the propaganda fodder it can out of this great space-age achievement, and even President Eisenhower has sent a message of congratulations to the Russian scientists responsible for the rocket which shot past the moon and on into space.

The question that comes to the fore in the minds of most Americans is, how far does this mean that they are ahead of us?

No one can answer the question for sure. It would appear on the surface at least, that the Russians have succeeded where we so far have failed. And there is further indication that the new Soviet Lunik is considerably larger than anything the United States has tried to put into space.

There are, and probably will remain, many unanswered questions about Russian cosmic rocket. Is this the first Soviet try at a moon shot, or have they experienced failures which have not been announced? Do they have some new fuel which we do not possess? Have they developed a guidance system which is better than that developed by American space scientists? Does this startling cosmic rocket success mean that Soviet space-age development is far ahead of that of the United States?

What repercussions will this new Soviet space achievement have in international affairs? How close does it put us to the day when man will venture into the depths of space?

The firing of this cosmic rocket comes less than 18 months after the first successful launching of an earth satellite by the Russians . . . and the United States was not far behind in putting its own satellite into orbit. And in just 18 short months man has moved from the threshold of space with earth satellites into deep space with this Soviet rocket which reportedly will orbit around the sun.

Such a rate of advancement is sufficient to completely astound the layman if not the scientist. It is also sufficient to prompt the question, where are we going and where will we be when we get there? What sort of new problems in human and national relationships will confront the peoples of the earth as we continue our advance into the space-age?

The new cosmic rocket opens new portals in scientific achievement, but it also opens new doors for other types of problems which must be confronted and solved.

While top scientists in East and West have been given top priority to solve the mysteries and problems of space, the East and West should likewise give top priority to experts in other fields to work on the equally complicated problems of human relations that are sure to be compounded by our scientific achievements.

Cuba's Future Tied To Future Of Fidel Castro

Cuba has a new ruler, Fidel Castro, and a new President, Manuel Urrutia, who appear to have the domestic situation in that war-torn republic just off the coast of the United States well in hand.

Outwardly at least, Cubans appear overwhelmingly pleased with the sudden end of the 2-year-old rebellion led by the young Castro. Celebrations unparalleled in Cuban history have been going on since the flight of President Batista who ruled the country for almost a quarter century.

An abrupt end to the general strike on Castro's orders also makes it appear that the rebel leader not only has the military power of the country now under his control, but likewise has the popular support of the people of Cuba.

Together with other factors that have come out of the rapid series of events in Cuba during the past week, the island country would appear on its way to recovery from the civil war. It must be realized, however, that Castro's new government probably faces many difficult situations before things in Cuba return to normal.

What the Communists will do remains a question. Whether Castro will nationalize American holdings in his country is another moot question although for the moment at least the outlook is optimistic for most Americans who have invested in industries in Cuba.

If Castro has, as he has professed since the beginning of his campaign to oust Batista, the genuine interest of the Cuban people at heart; and if he has the popular support he now appears to have in Cuba, it may well be that the little island country now stands on the brink of one of the greatest eras of progress in its history.

For the sake of the people of Cuba, we hope that is the case.

The next few weeks will give an indication of what the Cubans and their neighbor nations can expect from the government of Fidel Castro.

Senate To Open With A Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Senate explodes Wednesday in a fight over changing its rules. It may last weeks and much of it will sound dull. But it's far-reaching. This is an ABC on it.

A bloc of northern Democrats and Republicans wants to change Senate Rule No. 22, which makes it so hard to smash a filibuster that none has been broken in 31 years.

The Senate prides itself on its rule of practically unlimited debate. But debate can have two purposes: To discuss an issue fully before a vote on it or to prevent a vote altogether. The latter is the filibuster.

The 98 senators will do most of their business — passing bills — by just a simple majority of those present on the floor at voting time. A full majority, harder to get, would be 50 of the 98.

But under Rule No. 22, shutting off a filibuster against a measure — to let the Senate by a simple majority vote decide its fate — requires a two-thirds vote of all the senators, or 66 of the 98.

Getting such a two-thirds vote is almost impossible, except in some national emergency. The reason: So many senators, not just southern Democrats, favor the principle of unlimited debate.

It isn't hard for each to foresee the time when he, too, may want to use it to prevent passage of legislation he intensely opposes.

The filibuster has been employed against various proposals in the Senate's long history. In recent years southerners particularly have used it, and successfully, to prevent passage of civil rights bills.

The northerners, favoring new civil rights legislation, protest that Rule No. 22 permits a minority in the Senate, where southerners are in a minority, to thwart a majority.

Southerners argue that a minority under Rule No. 22 can protect itself against the unwelcome will of a Senate majority.

But why all the fuss about changing Rule No. 22? Since the Senate adopted this rule itself, can't it change it easily? Not

At The Barrel's Bottom

More years ago than I like to dwell upon an instructor introduced me to the idea of writing arranged so the reader would "read" from left to right on one line, and the following line would be read from right to left; something like this:

It's really very simple except that I which factor little one the professor purposely avoided of collection his displaying in examples. The process is easy hard is it but read to enough work for linotype operators to set, difficulty the of nothing say to it poses for the writer.

Theoretically it should provide for a speedup in reading. Practically, it slows up writing and printing production.

So we took our choice; and favored more writing and slower reading. That way there's at least a fighting chance to keep up with demand.

As long as we're on the subject of writing, I'd like to call attention to a book written by Lt. Gen. James Gavin, "War and Peace in The Space Age."

The book itself is written to be understood by veterans, taxpayers, lawmakers and people interested in one facet of national preservation. It is not technical work, but a combination of reminiscence and outlines of findings and suggestions evolving

Other Editors Saying -- Two Californias Talked (Henderson Dispatch)

This statehood disease appears to be growing increasingly contagious. First Alaska; in 1959 probably Hawaii; and now out in California they are talking of splitting that State into two units.

The San Francisco Chronicle has taken a poll and finds that those who sent in straw votes favored the division. It was said that a majority of the participants believe the north and south have little in common, and would like to see the issue settled by a referendum.

More than a third of the voters thought the proposal was unrealistic, maybe impossible. They are probably correct. Nearly half expressed belief that such a division would benefit both the northern and southern sections of the State. Some sentiment was that the constant shift toward Southern California political domination is a threat to the north which can best be met by separation.

Every one knows California is one of the largest of the forty-eight States in the continental federation. But it is no larger than Texas. Who knows, though, but that dissident elements even in Texas may come around to demanding a split, especially if the proposal in California should materialize?

Or is the whole matter based on political considerations? Are there groups who would like more prominence and influence?

By ELMER ROESSNER This will be a year of labor strife. The two big reasons are: 1. Inflation psychology is aboard in the land. Labor as well as others expects a continuation of the upward spiral and sees a necessity of demanding higher pay to meet higher prices.

2. Labor believes Congress is on its side. Labor is convinced that it alone made the larger Democratic majority possible and is sure a grateful Congress will strengthen labor's position.

The three-year contract between the United Steel Workers and the industry expires July 1. There is little hope that a new contract can be negotiated without a strike, even if sessions began today.

around nuclear arms and missile problems. To say that General Gavin is dissatisfied with present planning in strategy and tactics and organizational procedures, is putting it mildly.

Of course, it's one man's story . . . and his opinions have been (and are being) challenged by the biggest wheels in government; but when you put his book down you get the feeling he has a mighty good case which more people should know about.

Right about the time you're reading this, some Democratic lawmakers who have read this book are shaking their heads over the President's proposed military spending in his tentative budget. So the book is timely. It is also likely to play a part in influencing decisions yet to be made.

Our Junior Miss (aged 22 months) recently began the doll-carrying jag which probably will go on for a number of years.

And, to top it off, she was briefly introduced to mink . . . which made an impression that may last a lifetime.

It was nearly a month later (after mink) she encountered some fur trim (rabbit) and proudly pointed called it "mink".

The occasion sparked a fleeting hope that henceforth all fur would be "mink" to her . . . it might even pay to cultivate that thought.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS REGARDING THE RECORD "There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, neither hid that shall not be known" (Luke 12:2). This same truth is reflected in the prayer, "Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid . . ."

God knows us thoroughly now. At the last great day, everyone will know us. Won't that be awful? All the meannesses we have thrust down into the lower chambers of our hearts, all evil desires, all those things we keep trying to forget we ever did — these will be on public display.

We have the Lord's own word for that, and it is most disconcerting assurance. How we wish it might be otherwise.

Strength For Today But there is nothing we can do about the divine decision to bring everything out into the open on the last great day. There is something we can do, however, to keep that display from being too embarrassing.

We can strive to keep the record clean. We can go singing through life with the glad realization that God is on our side. We can bear in mind that "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

The good thing about this assurance is that nothing will be hid in the hereafter is the assurance that nothing of God's mystery and providence will be hid from us. We shall see Him as He is, and his purposes as they are.

DEVALUATION MAY ATTRACT PENSIONERS, SAYS PROMOTER The Old Promoter was in a thoughtful mood when he dropped around today for his first visit of the New Year. He was a bit philosophic, too, and not the least hung over.

"It will take months to figure out all the consequences of the devaluation of those European currencies," he said. "But here is one point that has been overlooked. The United States will lose many old people. Now that foreign currencies have been cut, their Social Security checks will buy a lot more living in those countries, and many will return to the old country."

Resolve To Be A Bum

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—America's leading manufacturing industry at this time of year is the making—and breaking—of resolutions.

Children, just before Christmas, are as good as they can be. But most adults wait until New Year's to start their reform waves. As soon as Santa Claus disappears over the horizon, children start acting worse, and their parents start acting better.

At least their male parents do. For that is an odd thing about the making of new year resolutions—it is pretty much of a masculine delusion. The thought that her conduct might need a yearly overhaul is unthinkable to the average strong-minded woman.

But this is a rough time for a wife just the same. It is hard for the lady of the house to adjust to the master of the house when he ceases to regard himself as one of nature's noblemen and decides he is, in fact, pretty much of a bum.

"Yep, that's all I am, just a bum," he tells himself in self-pity. "And not even a good bum. I'm a bum bum. I don't see how you've put up with me all these years."

Listening to this is pretty painful to a wife. But even more painful is having to put up with her abject hero during the halcyon period that follows.

He is going to do so many things to improve himself and lead a better life. He is going to give up smoking and drinking and poker playing. He is going to quit borrowing money and start living within his means. He is going to concentrate on his own work and quit telling the boss how to run the office. He is going to be kinder to the children and help his wife more with her household chores.

Yes, he is going to improve himself in a hundred ways. And for a while he does.

His strange, martyr-like behavior is unvarying to all around him — friends, enemies, wife and children. Even the family dog wonders what came over him.

Mother is kind of worried, too. In the week since father insisted on lending her a hand in the kitchen, he has burned himself twice, broken four plates and a cup, and thrown out three pieces of silverware in the garbage.

But by the end of the second week at most father himself tires of a self-imposed code that would bore an angel in heaven. As his rise to virtue was dramatic, so is his fall.

There comes a morning when he refuses to leap out of bed and do deep knee bends. He has two pieces of toast again, his old quota, instead of one.

That night when he returns from work he mixes himself a martini, lights up a cigar, kicks the dog off the sofa, and lets down himself. He tells Junior to do his own homework and quit looking to him for help. He informs his wife: "Don't ask me to take you any place tomorrow night because I ain't. I'm playing poker."

The tension that has gripped the house for two weeks immediately disappears. Mother and Junior look at each other and smile. Even the dog grins.

Average Of 21.6 Cents Per Pound Is Recorded At Second Feeder Pig Sale

An average of 21.6 cents per pound was recorded at the Pitt County Livestock Development Association's second feeder pig sale yesterday.

Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman said 395 pigs were sold in 41 different pens in the recently-remodeled livestock barn at the Pitt County fairgrounds. Feeder pigs up to 65 pounds are sold by the head and Goodman said 148 of the total number of pigs yesterday went by the head. Two hundred and forty-seven were sold by the pound.

Pigs sold by the head brought a total of $1,749 and the average was $11.81 per pig.

The total sales for the day amounted to $6,333.27.

Goodman noted that all the buyers he knew of were local buyers who were purchasing pigs to feed in the field or to be grown out in concrete feeder pens.

Yesterday's overall average was lower than that for the first sale held by the association. However, Goodman pointed out that it was a very cold day and some farmers may have been reluctant to buy pigs and haul them any distance. He also pointed out there has generally been a declining price for market pigs recently.

There were twice as many pigs offered for yesterday's sale as for the first sale held by the association.

Yesterday's sale had been originally scheduled for Dec. 15. However, it was postponed then due to the snow.

Goodman said he expected even more feeder pigs to be offered for the next sale which is scheduled for the third Monday in March.

"These sales offer an opportunity for farmers to get good quality pigs when they could not get them elsewhere," Goodman declared.

Parable Of Talents Told And Re-Lived

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donluca listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' parable of the talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer. Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

In the months that followed, Nicolosa swept and scrubbed and dust-d for her living. Her spare moments went to making and selling enchiladas.

One day she proudly showed the minister a bankbook. She had saved $100.

Ever since she had visited her native Mexico last year, she had worried about the many poverty-stricken people she had seen. She had wanted to help them. At last she knew how.

From a brother in San Luis, Mexico, she had asked names of 33 orphans there and 33 more in the town of Nochtistlan. She had written another brother in Mexico to list 33 old people who hadn't enough to eat.

Thirty-three, she explained, was the number of years Christ lived. "And I want to say happy birthday to the baby Jesus."

So it was that on Christmas Day 66 orphans got gifts from a poor charwoman in the United States, and 33 destitute old folks who thought they didn't have a friend were given little presents. And because there was some left over, four prisoners in Mexico jails received gifts, too.

None knew who the donor was. Nicolosa would not let them be told.

She plans to go right on with her enchilada work, doing what she can with the talent she was given.

If asked about the Christmas gifts, Nicolosa points a calloused finger toward the heavens.

"Thank Jesus," she says. "It was a happy birthday party for Jesus."

Messick Compares ECC Salaries; Below Average

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, said here today that, according to the U.S. Office of Education, salaries paid college teachers in the United States are low. He compared the average annual salary for faculty members at East Carolina College with the national average. Dr. Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. Commissioner of Education, has revealed, Dr. Messick stated, that salaries of college teachers have not kept pace with progress in relationship to other professions and that only modest progress has been made in relationship to the cost of living.

No Compromise Over Filibusters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Confronted with a firm no compromise stand by 17 Southern Democrats, a bipartisan group of Northern senators draft last-minute strategy today for a showdown fight over filibustering.

Seeking ways of countering the Northern move, the Southerners Monday pledged an extended fight against any attempt to change the Senate rules which now permit almost unlimited debate.

The issue will be raised formally when the new Congress convenes Wednesday, but there were indications actual debate would be delayed until Thursday or even next week because of special events arranged for new senators.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), who presided over the closed-door meeting of Southerners, said his group's aim is to present its side of the case, which he said he is hopeful will assure victory in an ultimate test of voting strength.

The Southerners plan to open their counter offensive when the Northern group calls for a revision of Rule 22. That rule requires a two-thirds vote of the full Senate membership—66 votes in the new Congress—to shut off debate.

Since there is no time limit on debate over a rules change, a lengthy Southern talkfest is a possibility.

Senators favoring a change in the rules called three meetings today to rally their forces. Separate meetings of Republicans and Democrats were to be followed by a joint meeting of the two groups later in the day.

The purchasing power of salaries paid to college faculty members declined nearly 25% between 1937 and 1947, Dr. Messick said, again referring to information from the U.S. Office of Education. During this period, he continued, the purchasing power of workers in manufacturing industries increased about 25%.

Studies indicated, according to Dr. Messick, a 20% increase in average faculty salaries from 1947 to 1954 and found 20% increase in the past three years.

The average salary for college faculty members in the United States, he said, is $6,120 for the regular college year of two semesters or three quarters. In contrast to this figure, he added, the average at East Carolina College is $5,637 for the regular year.

There is, however, he said, extra compensation for teaching summer school. Almost all who desire to teach for six weeks increase their salaries from $750 to $1,200, the amount earned depending upon the regular salary. The annual average salary of East Carolina College faculty members is thus brought to $6,376, he explained.

The national average for full professors is $8,530, he stated, while the average at East Carolina College for those holding full professorships is $6,810. For instructors, he said, the picture is somewhat better, for the national average is $4,230, and the average at the college here is $4,777.

Control Of Chicago Paper Is Sold For $16 Millions

CHICAGO (AP) — Field Enterprises, Inc., owners of the Chicago Sun-Times, has bought control of the Chicago Daily News for an estimated $16 million dollars.

Marshall Field Jr., head of Field Enterprises and editor and publisher of the Sun-Times, and John S. Knight, editor and publisher of the Daily News, made the announcement jointly Monday.

Field paid $50 a share for his more than two-thirds interest and offered the same price to holders of the balance of the stock. The total number of outstanding shares was listed as 481,293 of which more than 75 per cent were held by Knight Newspapers, members of the Knight family, and executives and employees of Knight papers.

Purchase of the minority holdings by Field would boost his outlay for the Daily News to an estimated $24 million dollars, thus making the deal one of the biggest newspaper transactions in history.

In 1955, S. I. Newhouse bought the Birmingham (Ala.) News, the Huntsville (Ala.) Times, a TV station and three radio stations for $18,700,000.

The Daily News building also becomes the property of Field Enterprises. It was erected in 1929 at a cost of $8,786,000.

The purchase of the Daily News reduced the Chicago daily newspaper publishing field to two groups — the Tribune company which publishes the morning Tribune and the afternoon Chicago American; and the Field Enterprises.

The Sun-Times, a morning newspaper, has an average daily circulation of 561,978 and a Sunday circulation of 630,006. The News, an afternoon newspaper, has an average circulation of 575,371.

Drastic Action To Get Husband

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP)—A Clovis woman took drastic measures to get her husband out of an all-night gambling game. She stalked into the game, fired a shot into the floor, and lined the players up against the wall. She got her husband home, all right, but she also paid $25 for firing a gun within the city limits.

Apps' Late Rally Overcomes ECC Pirates, 86-75

BOONE, N. C.—Appalachian overcame an East Carolina lead in the last 2:43 of play here last night to push to a stunning 86-75 victory in North State Conference play.

ECC took a 2-2 loop record into the contest against Appalachian's 1-0 mark.

The Apps, paced by sharp-shooting Don King, overcame an ECC lead which at one point in the game was as much as nine points. The Bucs led by four at halftime.

With 2:43 remaining in the ballgame, a rush of successful free throws by King and his mates nipped the Buc lead. After that, King got hot and paced his club to a flurry of points which knocked the Pirates out of the game.

King finished the game with 27 points. He scored 20 of them in the second half.

ECC's scoring was erratic. Starter Don Smith failed to score. Nick Nichols scored only seven. Joe Plaster and Jess Curry got 23 each to pace the club. Guards Ike Riddick and Charlie Adams netted 10 each.

Coach Howard Porter commented this morning to the press that his club had a good team percentage, "but some of our regular scorers were shooting very badly. Nichols is usually a consistent scorer but he only hit two fields goals out of 15 tries last night. And Adams was off, too. You can't win ballgames like that."

Porter stated quickly that the game was "a good ballgame. They (the Apps) had a good night and we just didn't play as well as we should have."

Next game on the Buc agenda will be with Elon at Elon on the 17th.

Kentucky Retains Top Of Poll, Wolfpack Rated 2nd

By BEN OLAN Associated Press Sports Writer—The unbeaten Kentucky Wildcats—boasting 11 victories, the longest season streak of the country's major teams—held down first place for the third consecutive week today in The Associated Press basketball poll.

But North Carolina State, Auburn and St. John's (N.Y.) all made notable gains.

On the strength of victories over Cincinnati and Michigan State in the Dixie Classic, North Carolina State moved into second place.

The Wolfpack, fifth a week ago, collected 29 votes for first place and 1,115 points in the balloting by 137 sports writers and broadcasters.

Kentucky, however, garnered 81 first place votes and 1,245 points on the usual 10 points for first, 9 for second etc. basis. The Wildcats padded their victory total by three last week. They will go after their 12th straight tonight at Vanderbilt.

Auburn climbed from ninth to sixth place. The Plainsmen whipped previously undefeated Mississippi State for their 19th straight over a two-year span.

St. John's, winners of the ECAC Holiday Festival, zoomed into 10th position. The voting was based on games through last Saturday.

There was an almost complete shuffle in the other positions in the top 10.

North Carolina moved up a single notch to third place. Michigan State bounced back from its N.C. State setback to edge Indiana.

This triumph enabled the Spartans to advance two spots to fifth place. Cincinnati, which also lost to North Carolina, tumbled from second to seventh. Kansas State slumped one place to fourth.

Two Illinois teams, Northwestern and Bradley, held the other positions among the nation's elite. Northwestern was ranked eighth after beating Iowa and Notre Dame.

Bradley jumped from 10th to ninth after trouncing Drake Saturday for its eighth straight triumph.

The competition for the middle spots in the first 10 was extremely close. Michigan State received 563 points, Auburn 552, Cincinnati 546 and Northwestern 512.

West Virginia headed the second 10 followed by Mississippi State, which fell four places, Oklahoma City, St. Louis and Marquette.

Top 10 teams with first place votes and won-lost records through Saturday, Jan. 3 in parentheses (points on a 10-9-8 basis):

1. Kentucky (81) (11-0) 1,245
 2. North Carolina State (30) (9-1) 1,115
 3. North Carolina (4) (8-1) 1,043
 4. Kansas State (2) (9-1) 772
 5. Michigan State (0) (7-1) 563
 6. Auburn (4) (8-0) 552
 7. Cincinnati (4) (6-2) 546
 8. Northwestern (1) (8-1) 512
 9. Bradley (6) (8-0) 468
 10. St. John's (2) (9-1) 208
- The second ten: West Virginia (1) 165; Mississippi State 118; Oklahoma City 51; St. Louis 49; Marquette (1) 48; Seattle 45; Tennessee (1) 44; Villanova 31; Texas A&M 28; Illinois 25.

N.C. State Takes On Cavaliers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina State, the No. 2 basketball team in the country, tonight gets its first taste of action since winning the Dixie Classic last week.

The Wolfpack will take on Virginia at Raleigh in the only Atlantic Coast Conference game on the schedule.

Duke's sophomore-studded squad had to go all out Monday night to take a 58-57 victory over Wake Forest. A field goal by John Frye in the last two seconds saved the game for the Blue Devils.

South Carolina, meanwhile, bounced back from a Carrousel Classic loss to Clemson to hand the Tigers an 83-69 trouncing at Clemson.

Wake Forest appeared headed for a mild upset when it held a seven-point lead over Duke about midway of the second half. But Frye paced a Duke comeback and sank a jump shot that put the Blue Devils ahead 49-48 with 7:05 left.

The Deacons' Dave Budd tied things up at 56-56 with 1:40 left. After a foul shot put Wake Forest ahead by one point, the Blue Devils took time out with 13 seconds left, then played for the big shot by Frye. The 6-foot soph had 13 points for the night.

South Carolina took a commanding lead over Clemson early in the game and held it most of the way.

Gamecocks' Mike Callahan led the way with 23 points. Teammate Ray Pericola, who got 12 out of 12 from the free throw line, had 18.

The top scorer was Clemson's Walt Gibbons, who kept the Tigers in the game with 30 points. N.C. State will be seeking its fourth straight ACC victory against Virginia and its 10th win in 11 starts.

Although the Wolfpack appears headed for its best season in years, the team won't get an opportunity to go for the national title this year or next.

State was slapped with a four-year NCAA probation two years ago as a result of a basketball recruiting violation case. The ban eliminates all Wolfpack athletes from competing in NCAA championship meets.

Williams, generally recognized as the greatest hitter of modern baseball, listed his intention to play at least another year at an informal press conference Monday night.

"I don't know how long I'll be able to continue in baseball," commented the controversial outfielder. "Three or four years ago I'd have said I wouldn't be playing now. You just can't tell."

Williams, who at the age of 40 won the American League batting title with a .328 average, said he expects to play at least 100 games. "I'd hate to think I couldn't," he said.

The slugging outfielder of the Boston Red Sox was in the city for a sports show at which he gave a flycatching exhibition. He appeared in fine condition although he complained of being a trifle heavy.

The tall, sun-tanned Williams spoke of many things — his 1958 batting title, the New York Yankees and their manager, Casey Stengel and what he wants out of baseball before he hangs up his spikes.

Williams said that the desire to lead the league in batting last year when he edged out teammate Pete Runnels in the last two days of the season wasn't as great as it was in 1957 when he won with a .388 average.

"Honestly, I was pulling for Runnels. Pete's a great kid. I actually tried to help him and think I did by advising him to choke up on the bat. In Washington, the day before the season ended, he hit one a country mile that Roy Sievers made a sensational catch of. Then I hit a bad one that luckily hit the fence. It turned out to be the difference."

As for the Yankees and Stengel, Williams said the only way to beat them was for the other clubs to organize.

"The Yankees have a great organization," he said. "They are a well-balanced ball club. Don't look to penalize them because they are good. Build up to them and some day they'll have their downs, even though right now they look invincible."

He rated Stengel as one of the great managers of all times.

Grid Coaches Adjust To Two-Point Conversion, But Want Compromise

CINCINNATI (AP) — College football coaches who scorned the two-point conversion rule have now learned to live and play with it. But they are seeking a compromise. They want the goal posts moved to the goal line.

The majority of delegates here for the annual convention of the American Football Coaches Assn. realize that the two-point rule, enacted suddenly a year ago by the NCAA Football Rules Committee, has won popularity among the fans and is not likely to be changed.

They contend, however, that putting the posts back on the goal line would make a more equitable game.

Members of the AFCA Rules Committee, headed by former Columbia coach Lou Little, refused to comment on recommendations they would make to the parent NCAA for action at its rules committee meeting next week in Los Angeles. But Little was expected to have an announcement today.

Little's group met in closed session Monday, while many coaches on the sidelines had this general comment:

"I wish I were on that committee. I'd tell them how to straighten out this two-point business."

Bobby Dobbs, youthful coach at Tulsa, said: "You have to look at it this way. We won a game from Oklahoma State 24-16 this year. We missed four tries for two points in that game. They made both of theirs."

"With another touchdown and conversion they could have tied us, even though we out-scored them in touchdowns four to three. With such a rule in existence, you can't measure the true power of a team."

Dobbs figured in one of the strongest rumors as the coaches rubbed shoulders with delegates to the 53rd annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn., and other allied groups meeting here this week.

Several sources had him ticketed for the head coaching and athletic director's job at Baylor. But Cliff Speegle of Oklahoma State was also being mentioned frequently for the Baylor post.

Jerry Claiborne, young assistant to Bear Bryant at Alabama, has reportedly been approached by both Baylor and Maryland.

The main session on the NCAA convention opens Wednesday.

The American Assn. of College Baseball Coaches concluded its meetings today, topped off by a coach-of-the-year dinner honoring Rod Dedeaux of Southern California's NCAA champions.

The coaches met in round table discussion Monday and heard that any athlete certified by the amateur athletic union would be eligible to compete in the Pan-American Games next summer. This includes baseball players who competed for colleges in exhibitions against pro teams.

Lenoir Rhyne, defending North State Conference champion, boosted its record to 7-1 Monday night by rolling over Newberry, another Little Four team, 91-62. Junior Bill Reece led the scoring with 20 points.

Belmont Abbey, the only team to whip Lenoir Rhyne so far, remained undefeated by whipping Pfeiffer 77-68. Jim Mullen had 21 points for the Abbey. Pfeiffer's top man was Phil Stone with 15.

A 20-point scoring spree by Don King in the final half enabled Appalachian to take an 86-75 North State Conference win over East Carolina.

Horse Brings A $42,000 Price

POMONA, Calif. (AP)—Allwar, a speedy 4-year-old, brought top price of $42,000 at an auction disposing of the thoroughbred holdings of the late Harry M. Warner.

James Garibaldi, of Maywood, Calif., got Allwar after a spirited bidding duel with Travis M. Kerr of Oklahoma City.

Kerr paid the second highest price of $42,000, for the Broodmare Admiral's Lark, which is in foal to Allhal.

In all, 28 broodmares, 30 head of racing stock, 15 yearlings and three stallions brought a total of $681,600.

Venturi Comes Up From Behind To Win L. A. Open

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 1959 winter golf season was off to a rousing start today with good-looking Ken Venturi a spectacular winner of the first tournament on the rich money trail.

As the nomadic professionals headed for the next stop, the $20,000 Tijuana Open in Mexico Friday, Venturi counted the $5,300 he picked up off his tremendous come-from-behind victory in the $35,000 Los Angeles Open.

At tee-off time at the Rancho Golf Club Monday the 27-year-old pro from Daly City, Calif. played out two birdies and two back-to-back eagles on the first nine holes for a course record 30, blast on in with a 33, post a 63 for 278 and a bit back to see if Wall could crack it.

Wall made a gallant bid, but it was not quite good enough by two strokes.

Wall had gone into the lead with scores of 71-68-68 for 207, and his last round 73 beat such threats as Maxwell, Bolt, Souchak and company.

But it couldn't overcome Ken's marvelous round. Venturi's first two birdies came on putts that traveled 12 and 18 feet. His first eagle came when he whacked a 2-iron on his second shot on the 542-yard eighth hole 18 inches from the pin. It only took a tap to sink the ball.

He followed with a putt from down below the ninth green that traveled some 40 feet.

of 72-71-72 for the Rancho Club's par 36-35-71.

So all Venturi did was knock out two birdies and two back-to-back eagles on the first nine holes for a course record 30, blast on in with a 33, post a 63 for 278 and a bit back to see if Wall could crack it.

The 30 broke the course 9-hole record of 31 set by Bolt in 1956. Venturi took a bogey four on the 12th when his ball hit a spectator, but he birdied the 14th and 16th holes with 20 and 3-foot putts, and birdied the 18th with a 12-foot putt.

His 63 equalled Bolt's course record, also set in 1956.

Wall collected $3,400 for his 280, while the runner-ups were: Maxwell, 72 for 281 and 3-200; and Sanders, 74 for 282 and $1,000.

Bolt and Souchak had 73s for 283 and a tie with Paul Harney and amateur Allen Geiberger of Santa Barbara. The pros got $1,533.33.

Ted Williams Says He Is Going To Play Next Season

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Attention Joe Cronin: before you take that job as president of the American League, send Ted Williams a contract. Ted says he's going to play in 1959.

Williams, generally recognized as the greatest hitter of modern baseball, listed his intention to play at least another year at an informal press conference Monday night.

"I don't know how long I'll be able to continue in baseball," commented the controversial outfielder. "Three or four years ago I'd have said I wouldn't be playing now. You just can't tell."

Williams, who at the age of 40 won the American League batting title with a .328 average, said he expects to play at least 100 games. "I'd hate to think I couldn't," he said.

The slugging outfielder of the Boston Red Sox was in the city for a sports show at which he gave a flycatching exhibition. He appeared in fine condition although he complained of being a trifle heavy.

The tall, sun-tanned Williams spoke of many things — his 1958 batting title, the New York Yankees and their manager, Casey Stengel and what he wants out of baseball before he hangs up his spikes.

Williams said that the desire to lead the league in batting last year when he edged out teammate Pete Runnels in the last two days of the season wasn't as great as it was in 1957 when he won with a .388 average.

"Honestly, I was pulling for Runnels. Pete's a great kid. I actually tried to

CHAPTER 30

Mordecai Price was riding ahead of the Rocky Mountain Fur Co. pack train with the Indians when Wounded Crow pointed at the sky and said, "Great wind."

"Nothing strange in that," Mordecai said.

"Great wind. Heap great wind," the Snake insisted.

It was the dangedest clabbered-up sky Mordecai had ever seen so close to the mountains.

"Like Union Pass," Wounded Crow said. "Only more."

If they got wind any worse than the ones that ruffled through Union Pass, it would be a dinger. Mordecai decided it would be best to camp out from the cottonwoods and close huddle every critter in the train that evening.

And then he saw the lone horseman bearing in from the trail ahead. The closer the rider came, the more familiar his way of sitting his pony was. By Old Caleb, it was too!

"Ree Semple.

Ree came in like he'd just left an hour or so before on some errand, with no argument or bad feelings possible. He took the rag off the bush for guts, that was certain.

"What's up, hose?" he asked Mordecai.

"You tell me, you lowdown, sneaking—"

"Don't say it, Mord. I allow to everything you're thinking."

"What if you want, Ree?"

"Nothing. Just come back to die with the Rocky Mountain Company. Is all."

Mordecai studied him with dark suspicion. "What changed your mind?"

"Just recollecting how you and me always got along so good," Ree looked over his shoulder toward the train as if searching for someone.

"Rhoda's there," Mordecai growled. "Sotheaded enough to be glad to see you, I'm thinking. I ain't."

Ree grinned.

You had to like him, even knowing he was tricky; but you had to remember he was dirty honest. What Mordecai didn't like about him was the way he kept looking to see where Rhoda Marsh was.

"We ain't gone under yet," Mordecai said. "Why'd you come back, Ree?"

"Thought I could help. Looking at that train, I see I can't. Warned you about the American Fur Company, didn't I?"

"You started on ahead."

"Just once, tell the truth," Mordecai said. "Where's the Hudson's Bay train?"

"Just about coming up the pass now, I'd guess. The whole she-bang is figuring mighty close, them, old Frederick up there, and Rocky Mountain."

"Just scouting things out, huh?"

"Done with the British, Mord."

Mordecai grunted his disbelief.

"They tried to get around me."

"That would be the day I'd like to see Let's hear the rest of the lie."

"Told you what I was going to do with Hudson's Bay, didn't I, Mord? I started to do it and then—"

"You got religion."

"Shut up, and let me say it! They're coming, Mord. I ain't saying that some of it ain't my fault either, but maybe they'd've come anyway. McIlvane, it is, with a whole bunch of Bannocks." Ree hesitated like he didn't want to go on.

"You look like a dog with a mouthful of bad meat," Mordecai said. "Spit it out and tell your big lie."

"It ain't no lie! They was going to pay me, and that was fine. Then I found out the pay was an order on a bank in London. London, by Old Ephraim! Why, hell, that's clean around the world! All I had was a piece of paper with fancy writing."

Mordecai grinned. "Maybe you could've got money for it closer than London."

"Hell I could! McIlvane said I'd have to take it all the way to London."

"And you get so scared of water you dump over canoes on a piddling river like the Yellowstone."

"I'll fight you about that later," Ree said.

Mordecai looked at the sky. "So you was going to make a big raise and you pulled up nothing but chawed-off toes and muhstrats. Now you come sneaking back with your troubles."

"I ain't sneaking. Thought I'd see if I could help you."

Ree could have stopped with the American pack train, no doubt. "You're too late to help us any," Mordecai said, "but hang around and eat mule meat if you want to."

"Guess I will." Ree turned his pony and went trotting back toward the train, straight back to Rhoda.

"Big wind soon," Wounded Crow called.

"Just had one," Mordecai said.

Mordecai wasn't one to overlook an Intjun's warning about nothing. He took it in dead earnest when the Snakes veered off into a rocky gulch and began to unsaddle their ponies. The air was deathly still then, with an oppressive feeling of heaviness and tension.

Mordecai went racing back to the Rocky Mountain Fur Co. pack train. Down near the Sweetwater were heavy wood thickets reaching out a piece from flooded ground near small beaver ponds. A few cottonwoods and box elders grew near the higher ground at the head of the thicket.

Big Nose Yenser had been worrying about the weather too. He began to turn the train as soon as Mordecai shouted. Left left Rhoda and rode back down the line, urging the packers on toward the willow thicket. Tired as the men were, the urgency spurred them on, although few understood it and most of them yelled questions about an Indian attack.

The lead mules crashed into the thicket. Mordecai turned them back and yelled for the packers to unload on dry ground. The willows were flooded worse than he'd thought, but when he rode through them he discovered that it was recent flooding from the dams and that there was strong sod still underfoot.

They heard it coming from the west then, a distant humming sound, and then a roaring that made the still air around them vibrate.

Some of the packers left the animals and dived into the willows. Ree and Mordecai and Big Nose drove them out, nearly trampling two of them with their horses. Mordecai caught a glimpse of Rhoda and Letourneau turning mules that were trying to run away. Others with their packs still on stumbled into the willows, and some of them went too far and bogged down. Yelling as they rode, Ree and Mordecai and Big Nose at last beat some system into the confusion.

Run the pack animals to the cottonwoods in three lines. Pile the packs. Freeze into it, you pork eaters! Move!

Letourneau and another voyageur were roping the packs together as fast as they fell upon the ground. There was no longer any order in the stacking. The two Frenchmen ran ropes through the loops of the panniers, dragged the packs into the pile, and secured the ropes to the base of the cottonwoods.

The booming noise was coming closer. Mordecai saw the vague form of it, a gigantic whirlpool dark with dust. It seemed that it would come twisting in directly to the pack train.

Mordecai ran to where Ree was lifting packs. "Take some men and watch the lower end of the willows to keep the horses from running away!"

"They ain't got the strength to run!" Ree shouted, but he spun away and grabbed Letourneau by the shoulder, yelling at him. Letourneau drove a group of voyageurs toward the downstream end of the ticket. A moment later Mordecai saw Ree grab Rhoda by the arm and hustle her along with him as he ran to take charge of the voyageurs.

Sacco-Vanzetti Issue May Be Re-Raised By Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP)—Sacco and Vanzetti have been dead 31 years, but their ghosts may stalk the halls of the Massachusetts State House again in 1959.

Once again there may be a great debate on the same question that made these two obscure Italian immigrants—one a fish peddler, the other a shoe worker—world figures in the 1920s and subjects of controversy ever since.

Were they really guilty of murdering a factory paymaster and his guard and robbery of a $15,000 payroll?

Or were they convicted by a "hard hearted New England jury" because they were aliens and draft dodgers and admitted to being "radicals"? And what ever became of their reported accomplices?

Rep. Alexander J. Cella (D-Medford) now asks the Massachusetts Legislature to pardon the two men to "correct and historic injustice."

Cells, 29, was born two years after Sacco and Vanzetti were executed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market dipped in slackened trading early this afternoon after posting six straight record highs. Gains and losses of key stocks were mostly fractions to about a point.

A correction in the market's latest upsurge was regarded as healthy by market analysts who noted that the market is "not a one-way street." The business news remained good.

The market was slightly higher at the start and the ticker tape was late for a nine-minute period in early dealing. Prices turned mixed within a half hour and the trend was lower after the first 60 minutes of trading.

Steels, rubbers, aircrafts, rails, coppers and oils were mostly on the downside. Chemicals, electrical equipments, tobaccos and drugs were irregular.

U.S. Steel and Republic Steel were down about a point apiece while Bethlehem dropped fractionally. Chrysler was a firm spot in the automotive group. Losses were taken by General Motors, Ford and American Motors.

Illinois Central was down about a point while Plynian, Railroad, Southern Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio were off slightly. Chesapeake & Ohio was a bit higher.

Bad News With Statehood, Too

WASHINGTON (AP)—Statehood brought bad news to some Alaskans today: The heretofore tax-free cost-of-living allowance paid federal employes now is taxable.

Federal employes in Alaska received a 25 per cent allowance above their basic wage scale to offset higher living costs. It previously had been exempt from federal income tax.

In a ruling made public today, Harold T. Swartz, assistant internal revenue commissioner, said Alaska's admission to statehood makes a change necessary.

Leopoldville Riots Leave At Least 34 People Dead

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—Thirty-four people are reported killed and about 100 seriously injured in two days of rioting in Leopoldville, the Belgian Congo capital.

Shops have been set on fire, Catholic missions ransacked, and schools and police headquarters burned out.

Europeans have been stoned and shot at and mission priests have been beaten by the rioting Africans.

Most of the dead were believed to be Africans shot by police or troops.

A state of siege has been proclaimed, and jeeps of troops armed with machineguns are patrolling the main avenue of the city's large African sector.

Barbed wire barricades have been set up. Firearms have been distributed to the European population.

Road blocks have been set up around the Leopoldville area. Movement across the river from

Congress And Courts 'Dissolved' For Cubans

HAVANA (AP)—The provisional government announced today it will dissolve Congress and the criminal courts and rule by decree until free elections can be held.

The decision was taken at a meeting of Provisional President Manuel Urrutia and his Cabinet. Acting speedily after his arrival in the capital Monday night, Urrutia:

- (1) Named Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Assn. to be premier of his government;
- (2) Announced free elections would be held within 18 months to two years;
- (3) Summoned his new cabinet into a post-midnight meeting;
- (4) Rescinded the martial law proclamation and curfew extension decreed earlier by the provisional government's military chief for Havana province.

Urrutia flew to Havana from Camaguey following a talk with Fidel Castro, leader of the uprising that ousted Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro continued his victory procession toward Havana with 3,000 of his guerrilla warriors and new supporters from Batista's military forces. He is expected in Havana Wednesday.

Urrutia said the rebel chief prefers to remain outside the cabinet in order that he may observe developments.

The President named additional cabinet officers, bringing it to 11 members, but still had to appoint ministers of defense, communications and interior.

Urrutia also announced his government would not allow gambling, which under Batista had grown to a multimillion dollar business carried on largely by American interests.

Some elements of confusion remained in the government setup that probably will be clarified when Castro arrives. The only framework of government in the first few days after Batista's fall was provided by radio announcements from the rebel leader in Santiago, at the other end of Cuba.

The brief period of martial law in Havana province had been decreed Monday by Maj. Camilo Cienfuegos, Castro's army-navy chief for the province, during a dispute with a rival group of rebels over possession of the Presidential Palace.

The rival group, which calls itself the Revolutionary Directorate, is made up mostly of students. They had seized the palace right after Batista fled while numerous armed bands were roaming Havana.

Demos Disappointed In Defense Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats plugged for accelerated missile and space programs today on the eve of the opening of a new Congress heavily dominated by their party.

Top Democrats, including Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and his assistant, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, expressed disappointment with the 40.9-billion-dollar defense program reportedly outlined by Eisenhower and his aides at a White House meeting with leaders of both parties Monday.

Mansfield said the briefing was so sketchy that "the proper committee are going to have to go into these matters in much greater detail" before Congress knows where the country stands in relation to Soviet accomplishments.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), a member of the Senate Armed Services and Senate-House Atomic Energy committees, said the Russian cosmic rocket success means the Soviets have seized the initiative again.

Secretary of State Dulles was reportedly concerned about growing Soviet military strength and space progress.

Allegiance Oath Felt Sufficient

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — University of North Carolina officials feel an oath of allegiance to the U.S. Constitution is more effective in screening job applicants than questions on Communist connections.

President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University will report to the executive committee of the UNC trustees next Monday on a decision to drop from job application forms a question relating to Communist ties.

"Actual experience has shown over the past 10 years that there has not been a single instance where the question revealed any tangible evidence," Friday said.

The question had been on application forms for the university here since 1949, although not on forms for North Carolina State College at Raleigh and Woman's College at Greensboro, Friday, who served as president of all three units, said uniform job application forms are being prepared for all three university branches.

Chancellor William B. Aycock of the university here recommended elimination of the question dealing with communism, and Friday gave his approval.

"It is wishful thinking to expect a question of this nature to catch a Communist, and the true effect is to create an unwholesome backwash," the chancellor declared.

At the age of 8 composer Richard Rodgers had to have an operation to save his right index finger.

Wounded, But Assailant Slain

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — Two Danville police officers were wounded and their assailant shot to death in a blazing gun battle in the city's business district early today.

Capt. Norman H. Boswell, 49, a veteran of 24 years on the force, was hospitalized with a .38-caliber revolver slug near his lung. His condition was listed as serious.

Det. Sgt. Coley Boone, 44, was wounded in the left shoulder, but fired back at the man who shot at his police cruiser. Boone's bullets felled Clifton Bernell Terry, 26, Negro, of Danville.

Terry ran about 150 feet around a corner. Officers later found his body, a snub-nosed revolver still clutched in his right hand.

Recognition Is Asked Of U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. recognition of the new provisional government in Cuba is expected momentarily, diplomatic sources said today.

The State Department said officially it has received a cabled request for recognition from Roberto Agramonte, secretary of state of Cuba.

The department issued a statement Monday which praised revolutionary leaders for their cooperation in evacuation of U.S. tourists from Havana.
