His Songs Live On

GEOFFREY O'HARA . . . A Man On Top In His Business.

Composer Strives For 'Permanency'

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer
Geoffrey O'Hara is a tall, white-haired man who looks like an athlete who never forgot his early training. He moves quickly and appears interested in everything about him. His eyes are keen and perceptive. His hands move when he talks, as if to demonstrate more forcefully what he has on his mind. He stands straight and tall, and sits very much the same way, as if he were disciplined to do so in years gone by. Everything about him suggests an orderly life, played according to rules and with an awareness of other people. O'Hara just looks like an athlete, however. In reality, he's a song writer—a successful song writer who has been on top in his business for more than 45 years. His alert and disciplined manner is more a result of getting where he is, and staying there, than a result of any association with athletics. The native of Ontario, Canada, who has been a naturalized American for nearly 40 years, has been on top of his business for a long time, but he insists that it was a tough one to crack, in the first place, and tougher to stay with the leaders. He doesn't say so, but his 57-line biography in "Who's Who" offers a pertinent piece of supporting evidence: He was 31 years old when he registered his first success. O'Hara's first successful song was pushed by one of the legendary heroes of the music business, Enrico Caruso. It was "Your Eyes Have Told Me," and once it got started the big man was in business for good. Al Jolson followed Caruso in using O'Hara's work, with a tune named "Tennessee" which kept Jolson in New York's Wintergarden for 18 months. The most famous of all the O'Hara songs—and there have been about 200—came out of World War I. "K-K-K-Katy," for which O'Hara wrote the music, has been sung countless millions of times and is still a favorite. Ranking behind "K-K-K-Katy," in a different vein, but still a popular song for many years, is O'Hara's "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked." It, too, has been sung countless millions of times and the words are familiar to people all over the world. Despite the universal appeal of many of his songs, O'Hara has been caught in the middle of a paradoxical situation which is partially of his own choosing. He isn't well known outside the music business, where he, incidentally, enjoys an outstanding reputation, and his work is usually identified with someone else. "K-K-K-Katy," for instance, was a trademark of singer Kate Smith for many years. During speaking engagements, O'Hara is frequently introduced as the man who has written many popular songs, but the people who introduce him apologize for not realizing it until O'Hara showed up to claim whatever fame there is. "I don't feel badly about it," he says, "because song writers are very seldom known. It could bother me, I suppose, but when you realize that most Americans don't know who wrote the music for 'The Star Spangled Banner,' I guess I haven't got much to

Mikoyan Begins Tour Of U.S., Visits In Cleveland

Cleveland, Ohio (AP)—Anastas I. Mikoyan, No. 2 man of the Kremlin, arrived in Cleveland today to start a 13-day coast-to-coast tour. He hustled off a plane and down a double line of police. Several hundred picketing nationality groups were blocked back by ropes. Mikoyan tipped his hat as he got off a Capital Airlines plane about five minutes after it arrived at 10:10 a.m. Then he hurried inside the concourse gates to hold a brief news conference before leaving the airport. Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland industrialist, and his wife greeted Mikoyan, Mrs. Eaton speaking in Russian. Mikoyan told her it was very good to speak Russian with her, and solicitedly advised the 75-year-old Eaton, who will be his host here, that he should wear a hat on his white-haired head, lest he catch cold. Several hundred Iron Curtain country nationality groups had gathered at the airport. They carried such signs as "Blackmaller," "Mikoyan, your hands are red with Russian blood." During the flight he sat beside Soviet ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, who read him news from New York and Washington newspapers. A dimpled airline stewardess, Miss Rita Sylvester, 23, of West Warwick, R. I., served the 63-year-old Mikoyan a breakfast of scrambled eggs and bacon, and he told her it was very good. Mikoyan inspected the cockpit of the Vickers Viscount and talked with the pilot, George Donahoe, 34, of Falls Church, Va., a 13-year airline veteran; and copilot Bill Patchen of Arlington, Va. He told them one of his brothers was an airplane engineer. That was Artem Mikoyan, codesigner of the MIG series of fighters. He said also that he had one pilot-son who is still a pilot. After an overnight stay here as the guest of millionaire Eaton, Mikoyan will go on to Detroit and the West Coast before returning to Washington Jan. 19 for talks with President Eisenhower. In the meantime, Secretary of State Dulles and other top American officials collected for close scrutiny all the demands, promises, assurances and hints the old Bolshevik scattered about the nation's capital. It was their impression that Mikoyan was here, not on vacation, as he insists, but to plug the line: Make me an offer. Although he left a lot of things fuzzy, they said, he so far has come up with no genuine Soviet concession on the tension-packed Berlin situation. Rather, any change appeared to be one of tone instead of substance, leaving the door open to possible concessions only after some sort of U.S. counter-proposal. After conferring for more than two hours with Vice President Nixon at the Capitol Tuesday, Mikoyan was asked by newsmen whether the Soviet Union had altered its Berlin policy in any way. "Why change it?" he fired back. "One does not change a good position." The State Department was reported particularly mulling over two impressions left by the wily Mikoyan in talks with Dulles, Nixon, congressional leaders, industrialists, union officials and others. These were: 1. That the Soviets might favor formal guarantees of Allied access to Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany. But it was not clear whether this depended upon acceptance of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's seeming ultimatum: West Berlin become a "free city" without Western troops by next May. If that were a condition, any access guarantee would have little meaning, since there would be no Allied troops in West Berlin to have access to. 2. That Khrushchev's Berlin demands were merely to break the ice so that new East-West talks, possibly only between Eisenhower and Khrushchev, could grapple with the whole German question. This would seem to be a slight Soviet shift, since Moscow has been demanding Berlin-only talks in the face of Western insistence on treating the German problem as a whole — to include agreement on reunification, European security and a peace treaty, as well as Berlin's status.

Ranks Split By Early Wrangling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new 86th Congress convened today already torn by wrangling over Republican leadership posts and the ground rules for a looming new battle on civil rights. The bang of gavels in Senate and House chambers at noon (EST) launched the session before it was over. The session was packed with the bright dresses of admiring women folk of the members. But beneath the normal hearts and flowers atmosphere, collective blood pressures were seldom higher for an opening session. Senate Republicans had just come from a party caucus where the old guard put down an insurgent rebellion and named Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, a 1952 supporter of the late Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, as party floor leader. House Republicans were split right down the middle as the result of a scrap Tuesday that saw Rep. Joseph W. Martin (Mass.) ousted as party leader after 20 years at the helm. Named to replace him was Rep. Charles A. Halleck (Ind.). And senators of both parties were taking sides for a possibly prolonged battle over that body's rules. The issue: whether to make it easier to cut off filibusters — the endless debate that backers of more federal protection for Negro voting rights have contended is the main weapon used to defeat such legislation. Only House Democrats, tightly under control of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), were without any raging feuds for the moment. Rayburn, who has served as speaker longer than any other man, was chosen again at a party caucus Tuesday. It put him in the presiding chair of the House for a ninth two-year term. Actually, the party only nominated. But the overwhelming strength of the Democrats made today's election by the House itself only a formality. Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas was re-elected Senate Democratic leader at a party meeting just before the Senate convened. He has held the post since 1953. Johnson described the conference as highly harmonious with no discussion of such matters as Senate rules on which the Democrats are divided. Dirksen won the Senate GOP leadership over Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky by a 20-14 vote with all 34 Republican senators participating. By a similar 20-14 margin Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California was chosen whip or assistant floor leader. Kuchel, who won over Sen. Karl Mundt of South Dakota, was the candidate for a group of senators who opposed election of Dirksen as leader. On the other side of the political fence, Democratic Leader Johnson was reported ready to take the play away from a bipartisan group of civil rights advocates who want a rules change to make it easier to kill off filibusters. The Greenville City Board of Education will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in city school offices on West Fifth Street, Superintendent J. H. Ross announced today. Members of the board will consider proposed expansions for the city school system and other future planning, Ross said. The meeting will be the first formal meeting for three new members of the board, Joseph M. Taft, Louis W. Gaylord, Jr., and J. K. Kittrell, Jr. The meeting will be open to the public.

U.S. Formally Charges Russia Began Cold War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today formally charged Russia with beginning the cold war. It said the Soviet Union, not the Western powers, wrecked cooperation in Germany at the end of World War II. In a 53-page booklet on Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's drive to oust the Western powers from Berlin, the United States accuses and distorting the history of the last quarter of a century in an effort to build a case for the Khrushchev campaign. The booklet was released by the State Department a few hours after Khrushchev's No. 2 man Dep. Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, left Washington on a tour of the nation. Mikoyan returns here around Jan. 19 for a meeting with President Eisenhower. Mikoyan in two days here created the impression that Khrushchev is determined to make changes in the status of occupied Berlin but would prefer to avoid a crisis with the Western powers in the process. The Soviet demand for removal of Western authority and troops from West Berlin was made in a note Nov. 27. The essence of the Soviet argument was that the Western powers had broken the international agreements which sanctioned their right to be in Berlin. On the other hand, Halleck's political ambitions could leave the coalition without an effective link with the Republican minority. Halleck avowedly has one determination in mind for the coming two years of the 86th Congress: "To see that we run a good Republican record in this Congress." But privately, his friends and some of his enemies say, Halleck wants the 1960 GOP vice presidential nomination on a ticket headed by either Vice President Richard M. Nixon or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. He could hardly expect it, they add, if he adheres to an encourages the conservative program of the coalition. Halleck's election hardly could be called the result of a rebellion by liberals. He was nominated by Noah Mason of Illinois and was openly supported by John Taber of New York, two of the most conservative members of the House. Halleck himself declined to say

Interim Constitution For Cuba Now Being Prepared

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Cuba's provisional government polished up a new interim constitution today as the work of weeding out remnants of Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship went forward. The cabinet met far into the night working on a new fundamental law to replace the constitution of 1940 until the holding of free elections. It was not immediately learned how the charter would differ from the old one, which was adopted during Batista's first period of power. Presumably the interim constitution will be replaced after a new Congress is elected. Provisional President Manuel Urrutia Tuesday dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and whether his leadership could be termed more conservative or more liberal than Martin's. He and Martin disagreed on what role, any, the White House played in the leadership fight. Martin said White House aides, but not the President himself, had "a little bit to do" with his defeat. Halleck said he was "absolutely certain that the White House did not intervene." Eisenhower congratulated Halleck and thanked Martin for his long service. Asked whether Eisenhower took sides in the election, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said the choice of leaders was "a matter for the House." On the voting records, Halleck has carried the brunt of the battle for White House programs. He is more of the needling, rough-and-tumble type of leader, while Martin has depended more on persuasion and conciliation. Halleck has not been, however, a consistent supporter of Eisenhower-backed programs. Last August, for example, he voted to kill a compromise federal scholarship bill Eisenhower had said was acceptable to him. Like Martin, Halleck has been a backer of the President's international programs.

Record Yield Of Tobacco In Pitt

Pitt County tobacco yield per acre set an all-time record in 1958, ASC Manager Walter Hasty announced today. The county's tobacco farmers produced an average of 1,930 pounds per acre during the year. The yield proved to be far ahead of 1,540 pounds per acre produced during the bad crop year of 1957. Hasty pointed out that over a hundred tobacco growers in the county produced over 2,500 pounds per acre during 1958. One grower's production went as high as 3,000 pounds per acre. The top producer reported good quality tobacco. He was growing White Gold, an old line variety.

The Greenville City Board of Education will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in city school offices on West Fifth Street, Superintendent J. H. Ross announced today. Members of the board will consider proposed expansions for the city school system and other future planning, Ross said. The meeting will be the first formal meeting for three new members of the board, Joseph M. Taft, Louis W. Gaylord, Jr., and J. K. Kittrell, Jr. The meeting will be open to the public.

To Announce Big 'Triangle' Step

RALEIGH (AP) — Major advances in the development of the Research Triangle area of Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill will be announced at a luncheon meeting here Friday. They will include announcement of the formation of an agency, to be known as the Research Triangle Institute, which will be established to perform research work on a commercial basis. Published reports that creation of the institute will be announced were confirmed by Pearson Stewart, associate director of the Governor's Research Triangle Committee. He said the published reports were premature. "It will be a place where industry can come and get research done for a fee," said Stewart. The newly-formed institute will occupy the entire floor of the New Home Security Life Insurance Building in Durham until permanent quarters are built within the Research Triangle area. The Research Triangle is aimed at taking advantage of the research facilities available at North Carolina State College, Duke University and the University of North Carolina.

Bids On 15 Road Projects To Be Opened Jan. 20

RALEIGH (AP)—Bids on the year's first batch of road projects will be opened Jan. 20, and reviewed by the State Highway Commission two days later. The 15 jobs advertised by the commission Tuesday included work on two segments of the interstate highway system in North Carolina. A total of 53 1/2 miles of work in 13 counties was covered by the list of projects. Grading and structures on 9.13 miles of Interstate 85 in Cleveland and Gaston counties would be provided under one project. The stretch of road runs from the South Carolina line to near Kings Mountain. Fine grading and paving on 10.88 miles of Interstate 40 in Burke County will be covered under another job. In Watauga County, a project would provide nearly seven miles of grading, paving and structures on U.S. 421.

Big Satellite Is Poised In West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 1,300-pound satellite — the first ever to be launched on the West Coast — is on its pad at Vandenberg Air Force Base. Some time within the next few days, Project Discoverer will be under way, headed for a Pole-to-Pole orbit. A dozen or more Discoverer satellites will be launched from the California coast this year, each of them carrying hundreds of pounds of instruments to tell man what he will face when he ventures into space. Some also will carry mice and, later, monkeys. The Discoverer satellites will be pointed southward to orbit around the earth from Pole to Pole. The first few are expected to stay aloft for only a matter of hours before they plummet back to burn up in the earth's atmosphere. Before they do, however, they will eject a capsule containing instruments — and any animal passengers — which can be recovered by Air Force and Navy search crews. The first satellite will be powered by a Thor missile topped by a smaller Bell-Howell rocket. Some of the hustling shots will be similarly powered but before long the Thor-plus booster is expected to be replaced with mighty Atlas missiles. Vandenberg Air Force Base, 170 miles north of Los Angeles, fired a Thor as a training shot last Dec. 16 to test launching and tracking facilities. The next shot and others in the Discoverer series will be directed by the Advanced Research Projects Agency of the Defense Department as part of the nation's space research program.

Judge Holds Negro Youth And Parents Failed Use All Doors

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Young Joseph Hiram Holt Jr., and his parents have covered a lot of legal ground in their school integration case. But it may be several weeks before the Negro youth learns whether he is any closer to gaining admission to Raleigh's all-white Needham-Broughton High School. The U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals held a 2 1/2-hour hearing here Tuesday on Holt's appeal from a September, 1957 ruling by District Judge Edwin Stanley. Judge Stanley held that Holt and his parents failed to make use of all administrative remedies listed in the state's pupil assignment law. Their attorneys argued before the three-judge panel here that the board was meeting in executive session and the question before it was a legal one not requiring the presence of the Holts or their son. School board attorneys maintained the school board had no opportunity to carry out the law because it did not have a chance to examine the applicants for reassignment. The circuit court hearing centered on two questions. One was whether parents requesting reassignment from one school to another for their child must appear before the school board. In Holt's case, the Raleigh School Board requested his parents to be present at the youth's reassignment hearing. Only attorneys for the Holts appeared. Their attorneys argued before the three-judge panel here that the board was meeting in executive session and the question before it was a legal one not requiring the presence of the Holts or their son. Holt charged in his suit that he was required to attend a segregated school only because of his race and that the Raleigh board is using the pupil assignment law to maintain segregated schools.

Look Who's Sewing!

By DOROTHY ROE

"So glad you like it, dear. I made it myself."

Gypsy Rose Lee speaking, presenting in a smart new gown that looks like the latest thing from Paris.

"Of course I know how to sew," remarks the famous stripteaser, movie star, author and art connoisseur. "Doesn't everybody?"

Right now it looks as if everybody really does, as the home-sewing craze spreads to the upper echelons of stage, screen and television. Among glamor girls who sew their own nowadays are such luminaries as: Celeste Holm, pert and highly sophisticated actress and night club singer; Loretta Young, star of movies and TV; Gail Storm, television headliner; Betty Furness, also of TV fame, and the chic Dorothy Rodgers, wife of composer Richard Rodgers, to name a few.

The beautiful Gypsy is an old hand with the needle and thread. She sews everything from dresses to slippers and from skirts to hats. On a recent movie location job she took over the job of wardrobe mistress for the cast, when no local dressmakers could be found. Right now she's engaged in a project of making skirts out of antique patchwork quilts for herself and her equally glamorous sister, actress June Havoc. Says she:

"It's a breeze to make smart clothes nowadays, when you can get Paris designs in home-sewing patterns. Anybody should be able to make a dress. If she knows how to read and use a sewing machine. As my 13-year-old son would say, it's so simple even parents can do it."

"Of course, I have a figure problem—I'm five feet nine and a half, 38-24-38, and my waist is two inches longer than any dress you can buy. I have to alter my patterns, but that's easy too—easier than trying to stretch the waist length of a ready-made dress."

"I can make a dress in a day. I get up early in the morning and I don't stop until it's done."

Celeste Holm says she has been turning out dresses since her doll-clothes days. Daughter of a designer, she learned the fine points of sewing as a school-girl in France. And, busy as she is, she still finds time to make a dress or two each season and to design her own night club and stage costumes. Now on a pre-Broadway tour of the Theatre comedy, "The Third Best Sport," Celeste says:

"Any woman who knows her own figure and knows what she wants can get more for her money if she sews her own. She can afford the best fabrics, and make her clothes with a custom fit. My latest home-sewn favorite is a simple straight sheath in the most beautiful Italian silk in the world—squamante. I've never had so many compliments on a dress, and I expect to be wearing it for years."

Mrs. Rodgers, who could barely turn up a hem until a few years ago, now makes not only dresses but also slacks—a major test of sewing skill. In addition she has invented a new type of basic pattern that can be used many times without tearing. Made of a soft, drapable, non-woven cotton that won't stretch or shrink, it can be stitched on the machine and ironed, so that a woman who takes the trouble to alter patterns to her exact measurements can re-use the same pattern many times. Executives of McCall's patterns thought so highly of Mrs. Rodgers' invention that they gave it a name—"Try-On Pattern"—and recently put it on the market.

"It's wonderful to fall in love with a piece of fabric, says the tall, slim and modish Mrs. Rodgers, and to know that you can make it into whatever you choose. I think I really started making clothes because I never could buy a pair of slacks that were long enough. Now I have slacks that fit—I make them myself."

Lee Speaks To Chatham Book Club

The Chatham Book Club held its first meeting of the New Year in the home of Mrs. Clay Carter Studdert on Beaumont Road Tuesday afternoon.

When the members were assembled the hostess, assisted by Miss Bessie Brown, served sandwiches, cake and coffee. After the business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. Luther Bowling, Mrs. Percy Upchurch, the program chairman, introduced Herbert White Lee, the guest speaker. "Where He Went and What He Did" was the topic of his talk.

In his introduction he told where he went and what he did when he was a foreign courier for the United States. Then he concentrated on the place that appealed to him the most which was "The Union of South Africa."

He gave a historical background of the country and told his impression of the country which had been influenced by the book, "Cry of the Beloved Country." He described its cities, climate, customs and some of its outstanding people he was fortunate enough to have visited with on his plane rides and in their homes. The greater part of his travel was by plane.

More Blondes In '59

IN A HOLIDAY MOOD... Everything goes to the head this season. Her pink blonde hair is the rage, the center part haloed by Nancy Mace is accented with a jeweled widow's peak that dangles from a rhinestone strand.

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press Beauty Editor

We'll see more blondes in 1959, says Nancy Mace, a leading hair colorist.

"More than half my clientele is now blonde," Nancy says. "The secret of the success of being blonde is due in part to the new processes in hair dyes that make a girl look like she was born with her golden topknot."

Another thing that helps is the quicker dye process, less than two hours, and the range of natural colors available.

One of the most popular shades at New York's Les Girls salon, where Nancy is stylist and fashion coordinator, is a claret blonde shade that is blonde with just a slight cast of pink in it. Beige blonde has a slight grey cast that is flattering to most women, and mutation blonde, another popular shade, is a mixture of gradual shadings of blonde, lighter towards the face and darkening toward the back of the head.

Blonde hair faded out years ago because it made some women look older than their years. But now all harshness has disappeared from the color, and these new shades have a softening effect on the face, in fact making a woman look younger, says Nancy.

There will be more than usual emphasis on the hair this year. Ladies who own important jeweled clips will transfer them to the hair. Tiaras will be worn. Any flattering ornament that may enhance a girl's crowning glory without hiding the coiffure, plain or fancy, will serve the purpose.

Where a center part is used a jewel may serve as a "widow's peak," advises Nancy. Or a long strand of rhinestones worn along a center part if the hairdo is very simple. Or if your hairstyle and you are in the Oriental mood, a couple of glittering arrangements on either side of the head will emphasize the simplicity of your coiffure.

Mrs. Lautares adjourned the meeting with this thought in mind: "To accept God as Perfection, to accept myself with all my imperfections."

"To look for good in the people I deal with, and not pass judgment on anyone."

Ear Ache Is Common Childhood Plait

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
An earache surely does hurt. It's the kind of a hurt that will wake a child up screaming in the middle of the night. You are not in doubt over what's the trouble. "My ear, my ear!" he shrieks and holds onto the offending part. If it's 2 o'clock in the morning (as it often is) you hate to call the doctor. Do you know what to do in the emergency? Put a few drops of warm oil in the ear (medicated ear drops are best, but if you don't have them, plain warm mineral oil or even olive oil will do) and a plug of cotton very loosely applied just so the oil doesn't run out. Give the child a warm hot water bottle to put against his ear and a tablet of aspirin by mouth. This will usually ease him off back to sleep until a slightly more respectable hour to call your doctor.

Causes
Children are much more susceptible to earache than are grownups. There are two reasons for this. In the first place children have more colds and other respiratory diseases than do older people and infection in the ear almost always follows infection in the throat. In the second place because of the shape of a child's head the little tube (the Eustachian tube) which connects the middle ear with the throat is almost horizontal in childhood and it's easy for infection to travel along this pathway from throat to ear. In adults the face is longer and the Eustachian tube is almost vertical. It is more difficult for infection to work its way uphill as it would have to in the adult.

The middle ear, the troublesome spot in children, is a small enclosed area. The eardrum makes a tight wall between the middle ear and the outside. On the other side of the middle ear is a firm membrane that has one opening in it for the Eustachian tube which leads to the throat. When infection travels up this tube it forms pus in the middle ear. This causes swelling and it is the pressure in the ear that makes it hurt. Heat helps relieve the pressure—the medicated drops also help shrink the tissue and also relieve the pressure.

Infection in the middle ear—it's called otitis media—can be a serious disease and always needs a doctor's care, though it is safe to wait a few hours if the symptoms come on in the middle of the night.

Before the days of the antibiotic drugs it was very frequently necessary to open the ear drum with a special knife and let out the pus. Nowadays we very seldom have to do this because the new drugs destroy the bacteria that are causing the damage and the pus and inflammation subsides. Occasionally an ear drum will rupture spontaneously especially if the child has not received treatment.

Never neglect an earache. Even if the acute pain subsides always take your child to the doctor and let him examine the ear with his special instruments.

Middle Ear
A neglected ear infection can cause serious consequences. The middle ear is very close to the mastoid area. The mastoids are spongy pieces of bone at the side of the skull. If an abscess in the middle ear ruptures into the mastoid a nasty infection can result. In the old days mastoid infection was common; now thanks to the miracle drugs it is quite rare.

Frequent attacks of otitis media especially if not treated promptly and effectively can lead to deafness.

Chimp Could Teach Manners To Children

By VIVIAN BROWN
MONKEY BUSINESS has faded with the scarcity of organ grinders. But a handsome, intelligent ape hasn't a worry in the world—he can make a dollar any time. He may even send his master off to college to learn a few tricks himself.

Take that lovable 6 1/2 year-old chimp, Zippy. He smokes cigarettes and cigars, rides a bike and roller skates. He manages to sock away $100,000 a year in between smoke rings.

"He's just like a child, but more expensive," says Lee Ecuver who paid $3,000 for him when he was 2 months old, a new arrival to Florida from French Equatorial Africa.

"I didn't have a dime after that expenditure," explains Ecuver "but wanted to study for my master's degree at the University of Miami. So I exhibited Zippy to trying to cram in science and pay my way. Those were the days. Zippy's baby formula. Most chimps stay on their mothers' backs until they are eight months old. So he had to stay on a bottle."

Ecuver took Zippy to his New Orleans home on vacation, where they did a night club show together. They were invited to New York for a week's television performance, and they stayed three years on the same show.

"That was the end of my master's degree," says Ecuver, "but I've taken a real life course in chimps instead."

Zippy lives the life of Reilly in the Ecuver household in Freeport, Long Island, where he is permitted the run of the house by the Ecuvers, who have no children, and devote all their time to him. He has his own bedroom and child's set of furniture from bed to dresser. He runs up and down stairs for recreation, snoozes on the sofa, curls up on the chair and "reads."

"He adores cowboy movies, and is crazy about horses," says Ecuver, "but when a love scene comes on screen, he actually hisses. His for a chimp. He reads one of the choice of magazines is odd too, home and garden magazines which he prefers to any other, turning every page, examining it carefully, and chucking as he goes along."

Zippy plays hard with his toys, and enjoys breaking them, naps like any child when he is tired, and sleeps 14 hours a day. He eats like an adult, though. His favorite breakfast is a bowl of oatmeal, raisins and cream in the morning. He drinks two quarts of milk a day and eats pounds of fruit. He is not averse to having a "nip" now and then, but prefers a drug store visit for milk shake or ice cream soda. He weights 40 pounds.

Ecuver's wife adores Zippy, preparing his meals, and giving him a bath every morning in his own tub. She dresses him in leather shoes, child's sizes 12 1/2, and shirts emblazoned with his name.

"His feet grow just like a child's," says Ecuver. "He needs a new pair every few months, wears out about six pairs a year along with 20 pairs of socks and a gross of shirts."

Zippy has appeared on top television shows, at private clubs, night clubs, sportsman shows, conventions, carnivals, has cut ribbons for store openings and performs at luxury schools.

He has his own private airplane that transports him and the Ecuvers around the country to keep engagements and he loves it. He goes out in the Ecuver boat, but he won't go in the water.

"Chimps have a fear of the water. I've tried everything but Zippy won't learn to swim" says Ecuver, a former swimming instructor.

Zippy is easy to get along with, but he has a mind of his own. A slated mating with the "only white chimpanzee in the world," "Snow is at a stalemate. "They squabble just like children," says Ecuver and dislike each other intensely. Ecuver paid $12,500 for Snow to keep Zippy company. A Yale scientist who observed the 4 1/2 year-old chimp said she was one of the most unusual animals he had ever seen. She has white skin and nails, brown eyes and red hair.

But Zippy will have none of her for all her charms.

"How does Zippy spend his money?"

"He loves to play and eat, his two joys in life, besides being a ham. So we feed him well, and give him lots of chance to play and show off," says Ecuver.

Church Women Hold Meeting

BETHEL—Ten of the Women of Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church met in the home of Mrs. G. F. Whitehurst Friday night.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. J. M. Dougherty, president. After the group sang "Stand Up For Jesus," Mrs. D. W. Morton led in prayer.

The devotionals were given by Mrs. G. F. Whitehurst. Her scripture lesson was taken from the first and second chapters of Peter. Old and new business was discussed. In the new business, plans were made for entertaining the Albemarle Presbytery January 24.

Other business was appointing a flower chairman for each month of the year. The women were urged to attend the District Conference of the Women of the Church at West Haven Presbyterian Church in Rocky Mount.

Plans were made to collect a donation of good used clothing to be sent out from the Christian Church in Greenville. These will be transported by truck to points from which it will be sent overseas. All children are encouraged to take part in this even though the gift is as small as a nickel.

At the social hour, the hostesses served ice cream sodas.

On Tuesday evening the Parent-Teacher Association of Winterville High School held one of the most enthusiastic meetings in its history. Mrs. R. E. Davenport called the meeting to order and Mrs. Roy T. Cox invoked Divine blessing. Mrs. J. L. Rollins submitted a very gratifying report of the treasury. The following program was presented: a piano solo, by Miss Biser, a new teacher at Teachers College; a vocal solo by Miss Bessie Brown of Greenville; a talk on "Music Appreciation in Rural Schools" by Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp of Falkland, and a "Community Sing," led by Miss Eugenia Thomas, public school music teacher at the college. Mrs. Davenport then made a surprise announcement saying that a public school music department has been made certain for the Winterville school, this being done through the untiring efforts and with the help of the association. After this, refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Sensitive Issues In New Congress

Congress convenes today facing as many difficult problems as any session of the nation's lawmaking body in peacetime years.

Perhaps its most difficult problem will be resolving the matter of how much will be spent for the nation's defenses, and into what categories of armaments and military programs the greater portion of appropriations will go.

Congress meets with the new Russian cosmic rocket far out in space and moving into its orbit around the sun. Still fresh in the minds of Congress and the people of the nation is this remarkable achievement by Soviet scientists. Still uppermost in the minds of almost everyone are the questions: Are they ahead of us? What must we do to catch up?

Outwardly at least the Soviet Union has again taken the initiative in the space race. Upon Congress rests a great portion of the responsibility to see that facilities are made available through which this nation can regain and retain the initiative in this important field of development.

Already, Democratic leaders have voiced disappointment over the total amount which is tentatively earmarked by the administration for defense purposes in the forthcoming budget. And with the Democrats solidly in control of Congress, opinions of the party leaders in Congress will carry greater weight than in the past few years.

Tied in with this matter of spending to speed up the nation's defense and space programs is the matter of taxes which will be a sensitive subject as the 1960 election year approaches. Then too, there is the relative importance which must be accorded both defense spending and domestic and welfare programs to which both the administration and the heavily Democratic Congress are committed.

Though these matters make up only one segment of the many problems Congress will face this session, they alone will prove a task which will call for utmost effort on the part of Congress to revolve. Combined with the literally hundreds of other problems which Congress must act on before it adjourns, they give a suggestion as to the difficult time Congress faces in its current session.

A Stay In Jail Should Cure Irresponsibility

Sentencing of teenagers to jail for making school bomb hoax calls that swept over North Carolina several weeks ago will prove an effective means of preventing another rash of such calls at a later date.

It may seem harsh for teenagers to have to spend from 10 to 30 days in jail, but on the other hand, one must consider the serious offenses these youths have committed in making the false bomb reports. In all they disrupted literally thousands of school children and caused the missing of many classes. Moreover they initiated a wave of pranks which sooner or later could have encouraged some misguided person to actually attempt to bomb one of North Carolina's schools.

Had the courts confronted with such cases merely given the offending youngsters verbal punishment and sent them on their way, there is every reason to believe the wave of bomb hoax calls would continue and indeed grow worse. By sentencing the youths to jail as prescribed by the law governing disturbance of schools, North Carolina has shown to its own youngsters—and to adults here and elsewhere—it will not take lightly attempts to disrupt its program of public education.

Though to some the sentencing of youngsters to jail for making bomb hoax calls to schools may seem unduly harsh to some citizens of this state, it is our opinion that such punishment is fully justified by the offenses which these youths committed.

Predictions On A New Congress

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Three predictions about the new Congress seem safe: It will be more liberal-minded than its predecessor; a big fight among Democrats is unlikely; the split among Republicans will probably continue.

These predictions have their roots in the November elections where the voters, showing distaste for Republican conservatives, gave the Democrats overwhelming majorities in House and Senate.

A look at the score-card tells the story. Last year Democrats outnumbered Republicans in the House 235-200, this year 285-153. Last year Democrats outnumbered Senate Republicans by a paper-thin 49-47; this year 64-34.

Now a bloc of liberal Senate Republicans, interpreting the election as a demand for more progressive Republicanism, are trying to take over the leadership from a band of Republican conservatives.

They may lose. But, having declared themselves, they can hardly line up on the conservative side for the rest of 1959.

Other Editors Saying -- Lifting North Carolina

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
Hustling Governor Hodges travels for his dear North Carolina people more than 66,000 miles the past year. That was more than 4,000 miles ahead of the distance he traveled the year before.

Governor Hodges wasn't just traveling for the sake of traveling in the record mileage he piled up. He was traveling to carry to the people his faith and conviction that North Carolina can better its per capita income by more industry and processing and diversified industry and processing.

Most important in Governor Hodges' travels for his people were his heading delegations on industry hunts. Chicago responded quickly to the force and charm of the unusual from the start. Local sources, Philadelphia sources, that is, may have started the idea that Hodges and his Tar Heels were raiding Pennsylvania industry.

The travels and the personal efforts of Governor Hodges were most important in establishing a great new peak in new industry in the state for the year.

Old Issues Are Now Forgotten

By LYNN NISBET

ISSUES — Almost certainly there will be legislation introduced in the upcoming General Assembly extending or reducing application of the general sales tax and amending the laws governing the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Both candidates for Speaker, Hewlett of New Hanover and Venters of Onslow, come from ABC counties which also are challenging the West in industrial development.

The issue apparently accepted have much less popular interest, but have figures prominently in legislative fights during past sessions. It looks now like more effort will be made in the upcoming session than ever before to get a law requiring all banks to clear checks at par, or face value without charging exchange; and to get a minimum wage act written into the statutes.

ATTITUDES — The generally appraised attitudes of the Speaker candidates on these points is somewhat anomalous. Neither has a record of championship for either proposal. Hewlett is alleged to be more favorable to the minimum wage idea and to par clearance of banking paper.

These issues are relatively unimportant to the rank and file of average citizenship, because very few banks now operate on a full non-par basis and very few industries pay as low wages as the minimum which might be imposed by statute.

ORCHIDS — A bouquet of orchids or a blue-ribbon or some token of appreciation should go to the Motor Vehicles Department for the way it handled the early rush for automobile license plates.

DOUBLE-TAGGED — Associate Justice Hunt Parker proudly displays two city tags on his family cars. Because he spends most of his time and keeps his car in Raleigh, where he lists it for ad valorem taxes, he is required to buy a Raleigh city tag. He maintains voting residence in Roanoke Rapids and goes "home" for the summer weekends and for the summer vacation. So he also buys and displays a Roanoke Rapids tag. He thinks the dollar that the tag costs him is a cheap price for the satisfaction he gets out of retaining constant evidence of citizenship in his home town.

The first problem is the parking problem. Capitalism has made us so rich that there are as many automobiles in the United States today as there are families — roughly fifty million families and fifty million automobiles. One need only drive into the center of the city, or town, or even village in which he lives at certain times of the day to realize how serious the parking problem has become.

The second problem in which capitalism has involved us is the

Titanic Turning Point

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK AP—“For years I felt God went down with the Titanic,” said the tiny, old lady. “It took a great many years for me to get my faith back.”

Mrs. Henry B. Harris shares today a feeling held by men that the sinking of the “unsinkable ship” after crashing into an iceberg in 1912 spelled the end of an age of security the world has never known since.

She was one of the 705 saved when the great ship sent down. Her husband of 10 years, a famous New York theatrical producer, was among the 1502 lost.

Mrs. Harris, now in her 70s, uses a crutch because of an ailing hip. Looking a bit like a crippled elderly Irish lady, she was playing cards with her husband in their suite when the ship struck the iceberg at 11:40 p.m. April 14.

“There was no shock or jar,” she recalled. “I simply noticed that my clothing, which had been swinging on hangers a moment before, suddenly stopped swinging.”

“When we went up on deck later and saw people getting into the lifeboats, we thought they were sissies. There was no feeling of terror—then.”

“But as time passed we realized we were in real danger. My husband begged and pleaded with me to go, but I didn't want to leave him, even though I felt everyone would be saved.”

Mrs. Harris, left a millionaire, became America's first theatrical producer, but lost her wealth during the last depression. Something of a career survivor, in the nearly 47 years since the Titanic sinking Mrs. Harris has also weathered two world wars, hard times, and three more marriages.

A lady of indomitable spirit, she observed philosophically: “I had my life to live over, I wouldn't change it. After all, I had 10 wonderful, happy, superb, unforgettable years with my first husband.”

“He spoiled me for any other man in the world. I have had four marriages—but really only one husband.”

“As Julius Caesar once said, kids nowadays don't have the fun we used to. Most boys can now afford a pack of cigarettes when they decide to learn to smoke. It was different in the days of our first puffs. Half the barns in West Texas used to be hidden in great, billowing clouds of blue smoke, indicating that the kids were safely hidden from the adults while practicing up on cedar bark. You got the bark by stripping it off new fence posts. It was long, scraggly stuff, and the cigarette you rolled had to be about two feet long and as large around as a softball ball. No question about it, though, it smoked.”—Dallas Morning News.

“There is no foreseeable limit to what we, through our economic, social and political organizations can achieve. It will be the ultimate irony if, in the light of this, we surrender the individual to material bigness—wherein a government or any other agency never had a more urgent need to uphold age-old principles and convictions that make for the only worthwhile kind of progress—confidence in something, faith in ideals, fairness, the determination to defend what one believes to be right.”—Industrial News Review.

“Besides, if you have your ideas on paper, you can sue the blasting pirates if they steal them,” one advertising executive said.

Freebooter Of Modern Vintage

The executive admitted he was impressed. He was asked when his final decision would come.

“I don't know,” he replied. “You see, I am interviewing twenty other publicity firms.”

“The corporation may be doing somewhat less than the stockholders expect. Our executive is expected to provide the magic that will take the company on to prosperity.”

“The result was highly ingenious.”

Secret Police Informers Are Marked For Death By Cubans

By THOMAS DEL VECCHIO
HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The dirtiest word in Havana today is "chivato."

The dictionary defines it as racial, but to Cubans who endured the police state oppression of fallen Dictator Fulgencio Batista it means informer — and death if he is caught.

One terrified youth was dragged by revolutionary militia from the plush Capri Hotel. Watching American guests said Cuban on-lookers drew forefingers significantly across their throats and explained that the youth got $33 a month to tip the police on revolutionary activities. He was traced through checks he cashed.

The hunt for Judases among Havana's million and a quarter people was spurred by memories and documentary evidence of sadistic practices of government interrogators exacting information.

A Havana television station showed an Associated Press reporter a filmed record dating back to 1953 of bodies bearing marks of beatings, bullets and hangings.

The station information chief, Rafael Coello, explained the pictures and gave a graphic account of methods used by police Col. Esteban Ventura's men in questioning prisoners. Ventura was known as one of the most hated men in Cuba and was marked by rebels for death. He fled Cuba last Thursday when Batista left.

"One night 13 bombs exploded," said Coello. "The next morning in different places we found 13 bullet-pierced bodies of young men, each with an unexploded bomb in his hands."

Coello indicated these men had been slain in haphazard retaliation for bombings by rebels. Ventura's men pulled captives' fingernails and toenails, beat them, electrocuted them by connecting high voltage wires to their steel beds and hammered nails into their heads, Coello said.

Rogelio Paris, a director of commercial television shows, said: "Last December right in front of this building about 100 women came with two lawyers to appeal for the release of their husbands, fathers, brothers and sisters. Police beat them with clubs and whips. They screamed and ran bleeding. We could do nothing."

Television men who kept a photographic record of victims estimated that Batista's police had killed about 600 young men and five or six girls in Havana.

Sees A Future Threat In China

FT. BRAGG (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says Communist China may represent a greater threat to the free world than Russia.

Referring to China's "Bamboo Curtain," Mrs. Roosevelt said: "Things are going on there about which we know little or nothing. And we can't get in to find out what they are."

On the other hand, she added, the U.S. carries on diplomatic relations with Russia and maintains other channels of information.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke Tuesday to about 1,000 Army wives and their guests at a luncheon here.

The Whole World Loves A Boo-Boo On Television

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Many people admire polished performances, but the whole world loves a boo-boo. Television had its share in the year just past—and can look forward to more as long as people remain human.

TV performers sometimes confide in close friends their most embarrassing moments on the air. But it took Jack Paar to rebroadcast his to the entire nation.

Paar's memorable slip was the wayward commercial in which a medicine bottle blew its top and sprayed the entire panel of the program. Paar's cover-up remark, as he dried his face: "I told you this was the most powerful pain remedy on the market."

By reshooting the kines of some of his boobos to his NBC-TV New Year's Eve show, Paar may have started a new programming trend. There's certainly a backlog of material to draw from.

There was, for example, the production of "Macbeth" in which a stage hand was caught on camera as he set up a cauldron and thereby became the play's fourth witch. There also was the production in which an actor labored frantically to light a fire and finally gave up with a muttered "Damp wood!"

The most commonplace goofs are slips of the tongue. Nearly everybody has heard about the slip by out the month of January.

The campaign will include the above-listed projects, all aimed at raising funds for the March of Dimes. Although the campaign is not fully completed, regarding plans and personnel, the projects already named are outlined.

The Shoe Shine Day January 10, project will feature shoe shine boys who will be located in or around each city bank. All proceeds for shiners will be given directly to the fund.

Coffee Day January 15, will be a project including all city restaurants. Coffee proceeds for that day will be contributed to the fund.

Blue Crutch Day, January 17, will be a tag-sale day. Salesmen and women will be located about the city.

A tacky party will be given for the public on January 24 at the Moose Lodge. All proceeds here, too, will go directly into the fund.

Chairman Eli Bloom has, as yet, released no information concerning the planned March of Dimes Dance, which will be held on January 31. Also, there is no available information on the money troughs which will be situated at various points in the city.

On January 29, the Mother's March will take place. The march will be handled through School PTA organizations and volunteers will canvass the city at night.

Gov. Rockefeller Is Calling For Tax Hike

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller launched his administration today by telling New Yorkers they must pay millions more in state taxes.

The new Republican governor declared in his first annual message to the Legislature that the state's fiscal affairs had fallen into "a serious condition of deterioration" under Democrat Averell Harriman.

"Much as we deplore the facts," he said, "conditions require additional tax revenues now."

Rockefeller said he was struggling with a deficit of "at least 230 million dollars" in the new budget.

He said he would spell out his tax proposals in the budget message, which he must submit to the GOP-controlled Senate and Assembly by Feb. 1.

The governor's 7,000-word message hewed strictly to state problems, unlike his inaugural message, which carried strong international overtones and prompted new speculation on Rockefeller's White House potential.

He linked virtually all of the state's problems to its economic climate, which he said had grown stale during Harriman's four-year tenure — an era marked by constant battling between Harriman and the Legislature.

Rockefeller reported that, during the last four years, state spending had climbed 4 per cent, while revenues increased only 3 1/2 per cent. He observed that Harriman balanced his last budget — a 1.8-billion-dollar spending plan — by dipping deeply into reserve funds, which were nearly exhausted.

Phants Swat Down Jacksonville By 65-42 In Big 2nd Half Rally

Kentucky Winning Streak Is Broken, Rupp Can Relax

by DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The load's considerably lighter today for Adolph Rupp, the Kentucky basketball coach, who once said "a winning streak gets kinda heavy to carry around."

Vanderbilt's Commodores eased the burden Tuesday night, shattering top-ranked Kentucky's 16-game string of victories with a 75-66 decision that must rank as the top upset of the college basketball season thus far.

Only 5-5 before the game with the team judged the nation's best, the Commodores reeled off a 21-4 spurt midway in the first half and stayed comfortably ahead throughout.

Jim Henry's 29 points and 32 fouls called on Kentucky were the big factors in the Wildcats' first loss since another Southeastern Conference team, Auburn, sandbagged Rupp & Co. by a single point, 64-63 last Feb. 24.

Kentucky reeled off five straight victories to close out last season as NCAA champions and had tacked on 11 in a row this season.

North Carolina State, No. 2 in the weekly Associated Press Poll and the only other rated team in action last night, had a scare but survived — overcoming pesky Virginia 73-68 in an Atlantic Coast Conference match. Virginia, which upset West Virginia last month for one of its two victories in 11 starts, led the powerful Wolfpack 52-51 with nine minutes left, but State pulled it out behind the clutch shooting of Lou Puccio and Bob MacGillivray.

Scattered conference play and a handful of neighborhood matches rounded out the Tuesday program.

Rice's Gary Griffin whipped in five points in the last 12 seconds to break a tie and upset Texas A&M 70-75, throwing the Southwestern Conference race into a tizzy.

The Aggies, beaten but once in 10 earlier starts, pulled even at 65 on Neil Swisher's swisher with 33 seconds left.

Griffin broke it up with a lay-up with 12 seconds to go, and then wrapped it up with three free throws.

Bobby Jones' 38 points led Southern Methodist over Texas 83-55 and Texas Tech rallied to edge Baylor 68-65 in other SWC games.

Dartmouth, with George Rammington netting 29 points, opened its Ivy League campaign with a 52-51 squeaker over Yale.

In the Southern Conference, Virginia Tech rode a 34-point performance by sophomore Bob Ayersman to an 86-81 decision over George Washington, and Richmond topped The Citadel 69-62.

Connecticut, triggered by Jack Rose's 20 points, won its seventh straight for a 10-1 record, 73-58 over Yankee Conference foe Maine.

Al Butler, the sophomore jumping-jack, flipped in 22 points as Niagara bounced Syracuse 70-55 despite a 24-point burst by the Orange's Joe Cincobex. And well-thrashed Notre Dame lost another, blowing a 19-point lead to drop its eighth, this one 62-60 to Indiana rival Butler.

Xavier of Ohio, clobbered favorite in the All-College holiday tournament last week, bounced back with an 85-79 triumph over Miami of Ohio as Joe Viviano hit 35 points.

Hardin-Simmons beat Trinity (Tex) 70-54 and Massachusetts hit on nearly half its shots in the second half to down American International 71-51.

JACKSONVILLE — Rose High School jumped into the win column in Northeastern Conference play here last night by swatting the Jacksonville Cardinals 65-42 in their best performance of the new year.

The Phantoms overcame a one-point Jacksonville lead at half-time and came back to post 43 points in the last half to swamp the hosts. Said Coach Bo Farley of his club's second-half effort: "It's the first time we've been able to score like that this year. We were hitting and getting the ball of the backboards. That's what it takes to win."

Leading the Phantom scoring parade were Joe Moyer with 20 points, Howard Garner with 17, and Steve Noble with 14. Top rebounders for the Greenville club were James Ward, Noble, Garner, and Moyer.

Jacksonville's leading point-man was DuBois, who had 12. Rose High journeys to Tarboro Friday night for its next contest.

Coch Bud Phillips' Rose High Jayvees copped their second straight conference victory of the season, stopping the Jacksonville club, 57-40. Lane Jorgensen was high scorer for the Green Club with 21 points. Billy Neal James added 16. Others who scored were Roberts 4, Bynum 2, Andersen 7, Clark 3, Bradner 2, and Jenkins 2.

Cronin 'Certain' Prexy Of League

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Cronin, long identified with American League baseball as a player, manager and executive, today appeared a certainty to take over as league president at the end of the month.

At the moment there is no other candidate to succeed Will Harridge who resigned last month after serving as president for 27 years.

The official announcement is expected Jan. 31 at a meeting of league club owners in New York. A majority vote is needed to elect a new president.

Harridge Tuesday said that Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, is the only candidate who has been invited before a screening committee which will meet in Chicago Jan. 14.

"If the conditions are right so far as Joe Cronin is concerned, he probably will be the man," said Harridge.

In Boston, Cronin declined to comment until something definite has been settled.

Harridge Tuesday said that Cronin, 52, a member of Baseball's Hall of Fame, started his American League career as a shortstop with Washington in 1928. He remained with the Senators through 1934 when he was traded to Boston for shortstop Lynn Lary and $250,000.

He ended his playing days with the Red Sox while managing the team and finally was named general manager.

Crippled Chief Still Shooting

LESTER MANOR, Va. (AP)—Chief Walter S. Bradley of the Pamunkey Indians is still getting his ducks and geese despite almost complete loss of use of his right hand.

The chief's Chesapeake retriever tripped over his gun and the discharge almost severed the Indian's right wrist. It looked like the end of 50 years of that right hand to pull the trigger of his gun. He didn't think he could learn to shoot from his left shoulder. But with an ingenious device on the forearm he can now pull the trigger with his left hand.

Belvoir Loses 2 To Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Winterville took a clean sweep of three ball games from a visiting Belvoir last night. The hosts grabbed the girls ball game, 60-45, the boys ball game, 76-28, and a jayvee contest, 48-24.

In the girls game, Winterville's Caroly Cayton was high scorer with 34 points. Belvoir's leader was Brown with 23.

Bryce Cox and J. C. Little snared 16 points each to pace the boys to a lopsided victory.

The wins advanced Winterville's boys record to 10-1 overall and 5-1 in conference. The girls now have a 9-2 overall mark and a 4-2 loop record.

Olmedo Suffers Severe Sprain

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Alex Olmedo, who won back the Davis Cup for the United States last week, suffered a badly sprained stomach muscle in the Western Australian Tennis Championships today. He may be forced to withdraw from both the singles and doubles.

Olmedo disclosed the injury after he had advanced to the semifinals by beating Rod Laver, top seeded Australian, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3.

"It happened in the first set when I reached for a ball," Alex said. "I will talk it over with Mr. Jones (Perry Jones, captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team) and see whether I can play in the rest of the tournament."

Eppes Loses To Visiting Cagers

Eppes High School dropped a close 38-35 ball game last night to the visiting Warriors of New Bern's Barber High School.

The Baby Bulldogs defeated Barber's Jayvees, 35-20, in a preliminary tilt.

The Host boys took an easy 45-25 win. Hardison was the high point man with 26.

Nugent Is Named Maryland Coach

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Whether Maryland football fortunes go up or down next fall, the fans are probably in for some surprises with Coach Tom Nugent at the helm.

The Florida State University head coach, who moves into the Maryland job Jan. 15, is an experimenter and a careful planner of plays. He led FSU to a 7-3 season last year, his sixth at Florida State.

He is eager to try his brand of football at the University of Maryland and Maryland officials are happy to have him.

Nugent's over-all coaching record, including four years at Virginia Military Institute and six at FSU is 53 wins, 45 losses and three ties.

WRESTLING MATCH
Rose High School will battle Kinston Thursday afternoon at 4:15 in a conference wrestling match at the Rose Gymnasium. Coach Odel Welborn's Phantom grapplers will open their season with this match.

IGY Scientists Study Possibility Of Little Triggers To The Weather

By ALTON BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with our weather could be that it behaves too much like people. Little things often make humans blow their stacks. And suspicions are mounting that little things may set off vast storms, droughts, floods, or changes in our climate. The triggers could be flares on the sun, a hail of meteors, strange kinds of radiation, or other events. Discovery of such triggers—if they exist—could well be one of the fantastic rewards from the worldwide studies of the International Geophysical Year. The earth has been wheeling around for millions of years. By this time, you might expect it to have worn down or become pretty stable weatherwise, says John Townsend of the National Aeronautical and Space Agency. Our sun is very constant and steady in its output of heat and visible light. But the sun does vary in its outbursts of X-rays and radiations from flares. Could these be triggers for mechanisms high in the atmosphere, which in turn affect surface weather? Do cosmic rays, or radiation leaking from magnetic traps above the earth, heat up the air? Astronomer Walter Orr Roberts of Boulder, Colo., is checking a theory that great electrical "winds" from solar flares influence a vital weather factory in Alaska. Some flares could deepen weather troughs or lows so they sweep farther south than usual, bringing rain or snow to Texas rather than the Dakotas. Absence of flares—as the sun now is quieting down in its cycle—could mean severe droughts in the U.S. Southwest in 10 years or so. Australia's E. G. Bowen proposes that dust from meteors supplies seeds for raindrop formation—meaning more rainfall a month or so after the earth intercepts a swarm of meteors. Whatever the merit of such ideas, IGY is certain to produce far keener and more basic understanding of the why and how of our weather. That means better forecasts, perhaps methods of eventual weather control. Massed around the South Pole is the earth's great icehouse—Antarctica. Ice is a factor in the balance of heat and water on earth, hence a weather influence. Scientists discovered Antarctica contains nearly half again as much ice as first suspected—ice averages about 1 1/2 miles thick over the region's six million square miles. At one point in Marie Byrd Land ice lies nearly three miles deep. Were it all suddenly to melt, seas would rise 300 feet or more, in disastrous floods. Antarctica was stripped of its icy masquerade—it's apparently not a continent after all, but an ice-hidden system or even two separate systems of islands and mountains. Soviet weathermen at a station in the Antarctic highlands measured a record low temperature of 124 degrees below zero. But temperatures on any given day can vary 80 to 90 degrees between South Pole and coastal stations—a range as great as that between Miami and Bismarck, N.D. Signs were found that Antarctica is warming up, at least in places. Little America is about five degrees warmer now on the average than in 1912, reports Dr. Henry Wexler of the U.S. Weather Bureau. At Spitzbergen in the arctic, average winter temperature is 11 degrees warmer than 50 years ago, he adds. Arctic studies find there is less ice in that region than half a century ago, but that the arctic is being bathed with far more snow than Antarctica now. Ocean currents shuttle vast amounts of the earth's heat from place to place. Seagoing scientists discovered three vital counter-currents flowing deep under the Gulf Stream, under the Pacific Equatorial Current, and another north of the Equator. They influence not only weather, but the precious marine life reserves of the oceans. At sea and on land, they sought to learn whether mankind is making the earth grow warmer from the stupendous quantities of carbon dioxide released by burning coal and oil. This gas, if it stays in the atmosphere, could exert a greenhouse, warming effect. The preliminary verdict: All but 2 or 3 per cent of it is absorbed by the oceans. Ships of many nations sounding the water bottoms discovered new submerged mountains and valleys, recovered specimens of marine life long thought extinct, charted water temperatures, density and salinity to determine the course of ocean currents and the speed with which cold bottom waters rise to replenish and fertilize sea life. Floating on a flimsy ice floe and ice island, daring scientists discovered a new mountain range rising from the Arctic Ocean floor, a high plateau with steep drops, and mountain peaks as jagged as the Rockies, took photographs of puzzling tracks made on the ocean bottom by some strange sea life. Sea topography can channel currents, and in the arctic—where the Russians have long concentrated scientific studies—could also be essential for future submarine voyages under the ice cover. And IGY brought a fabulous prospector's strike. In the southeast Pacific, oceanographers discovered a vast area of sea bottom is covered with a sludge of manganese, iron, cobalt and copper—worth perhaps half a million dollars per square mile. It appears economically feasible to bring it up. Solving the mystery of how and why it is there could supply important clues to past geologic history of the seas, in which life on earth first began. Some Soap Shows Show Improvement

By BILLY ARNOLD

This may just be wishful thinking, but it looks to me as if television's soap operas are improving—one or two of them, anyway. These things—soap operas, I mean—are a lot like molasses. You can get tangled up in them and strangle to death if you aren't careful. Most of them were designed to wring tears and soap money from the unoccupied housewives of America and are chock full of every kind of cheap device and gimmick possible to achieve these two goals. They are usually tragic tales about ordinary people swallowed up by strife and tribulation, riddled with excess emotion, caught in a series of complications which range all the way from adultery to asthma; and the American housewife—who is apparently a breathing sponge for this kind of pusillanimous indulgence—laps it up. They are tales usually rigged on the barest skeleton of a plot which can be and is, at times, altered from day to day in the studio. Characters are often switched about from show to show and, often, substitute actors are brought in to fill in for regulars. There are some actors and actresses who make a comfortable living by just haunting these afternoon soap shows, although several of them are on more than one show per afternoon.

So, the viewer—unless experienced in the ways of TV soap dramas and well acquainted with the current goings and comings of scripts, actors, products, etc., etc.—is liable to go stark raving mad trying to follow the things. By nature, these shows are low budget (comparatively) and must operate on a sort of fly-by-afternoon procedure. They are not geared for big production, for top-notch performers, for great writers. It is financial, in many cases. In fact, by nature, these shows were invented to be exactly what they are—a lot of fodder to feed unoccupied housewives and sell soap. But a little imaginative writing and production on the part of one or two of these shows has paid off in extended time and a large viewing audience by other than the unoccupied. Two shows in particular—in fact, the only two as far as I'm concerned—have advanced a little beyond this stage. They are Love of Life and The Edge of Night, two CBS offerings. These two shows have made advancement. The caliber of the writing on both shows is aimed at both the occupied and the unoccupied but even that is a step above the others. The plot lines in both involve current themes, in both involve interest, the dialogue isn't confined to slobber as it is on most of the others. (Ann Loring recited some Shakespeare on Love of Life the other day.)

The acting on these two shows, while not really polished, is good, considering the way the shows have to be produced; that is, considering the speed, the money, the commercials, etc., which play a part in it all. I would even go so far as to say in several instances these particular two shows have often been far better than some of the so-called Grade-A programs recently, including Playhouse 90, Desilu Playhouse and the other ultra-ultra dramas. That isn't really saying too much, is it? Just the same, it's improvement.

Stolen Credit Card Is Costly

KUTTAWA, Ky. (AP)—Two men who robbed O.B. Herring Jr., are driving around the country at his expense. They stole his service station credit card. So far he's received bills totaling $475. They took $500 in cash from him at the time of the robbery.

Hastily Correct Campaign Error

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—The Arizona Democratic Committee mailed out a list of state and county candidates. The committee urged, "Speak for them, vote for them and take this card to the polls with you." The committee urged support of K.W. Holbrook for county supervisor. Holbrook is a Republican. The committee made a hurried correction.

Dr. Salk Urges Fourth Booster

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Dr. Jonas Salk, who developed the anti-polio vaccine that bears his name, today recommended a fourth shot to increase immunization against crippling infantile paralysis.

But Dr. Gordon Brown, a University of Michigan scientist, said that while a fourth dose undoubtedly would be beneficial to many "what is most needed is complete (three-shot) immunization of the larger number" who have as yet had no vaccine at all. The president of the American Medical Assn., Dr. Gunnar Gundersen, declared "there is no time to lose" in the two-shot plus-booster campaign; that partial immunization is not enough and that doctors must see that the uninformed, the indigent and the complacent are vaccinated.

And Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., on whose 1955 findings Salk's vaccine was accepted as "safe, potent and effective" suggested from the same platform today that Americans be made to comply with a code of health, just as they must with housing, electrical and plumbing codes. All four appeared on a symposium sponsored by the University of Michigan School of Public Health in connection with the kickoff of the National Polio Foundation's 1959 March of Dimes campaign to raise $5 million dollars to combat arthritis and birth defects, as well as polio.

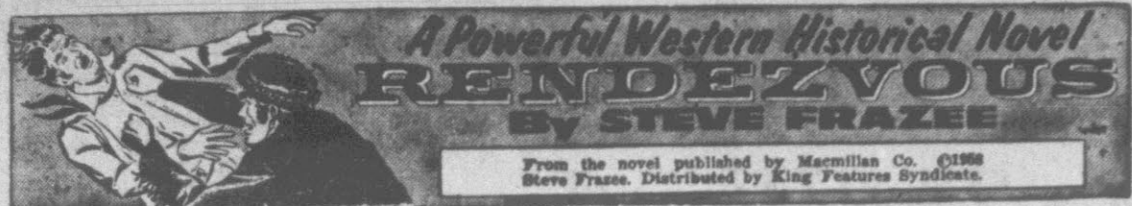

Dispute Slowed Chairs In School

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Students at the West Kinney Junior High School, a brand new seat of learning here, return to classes today assured of seats to learn from. When the school bell rang Monday, the 1,025 students who filed in were met by only 262 chairs. The rest had been held up because of a dispute over the use of nonunion delivery men.

Business and management sat down to hurried negotiations and resumed the flow of chairs and desks.

CHAPTER 31

The worst whirlwind on Union Pass was a gentle breeze compared to the force that struck the Rocky Mountain Fur Co. pack train.

Mordecai Price dropped flat in the shallow water, with his rifle under him. He grabbed the base of a willow clump. He felt himself bounced up and down. He struck soggy turf. The water under him had been sucked away.

Dust to choke a prairie dog. The wind hammered with monstrous eagle wings. Mordecai was aware of the odor of bruised sage. He heard but dimly the noise of the cottonwoods being splintered.

And then the whirlwind was gone, belting away with terrible force through a heavy growth of cottonwoods a short distance up the river.

All along the edge of the willows where Mordecai had clung the leaves had been stripped from the growth. For a moment longer he held hard to the toughly rooted clump of willows. Then he stood up. Shredded leaves and bits of sage were settling on the dripping mules and horses. Wide-eyed men were popping up from behind the willows. Some of them had stood deep in the water.

Mordecai went over the packs. From the height of his head the cottonwoods had been torn away, with the whole top massing down to the last twig borne away by the wind, so that the ground around the packs was bare. Most of the ropes the voyageurs had tied to the trees had held, though some of the panniers were ripped.

Mordecai was going toward the lower end of the thicket when he saw Ree Semple and Rhoda Marsh coming toward him. He turned away and went to find Big Nose Yenser. The packers were talking excitedly now, telling of their individual escapades from death as they drove the pack animals from the thicket.

"It don't look so bad," Big Nose said. "How about the packs?" "They're not hurt much," Mordecai said. "I hope it scattered the American Company pack train from here to the Yellowstone," Big Nose said savagely. "It might've too, unless they got into the rocks awful fast up there ahead."

When the Snakes came riding back a short time later, Mordecai sent them out to see what damage Emil Frederick's American outfit had sustained.

Mordecai was walking back to where Big Nose was having camp set up, when a rider with a led horse appeared on the downriver trail as if he had been spawned from the whirlwind. Mordecai walked out a ways to meet him. It was Tom Fitzpatrick, grizzled, red-eyed from dust, with a gauntness in his face more marked than usual. He got off his pony stiffly. "This child has seen some wind."

"Where's the ponies?" "What ponies?" "I sent word by a Snake to rendezvous about the fix we was in." "Spotted Dog, yeah. It wasn't clear what he was trying to say, outside of you was taking back all the ponies you needed, and wanted somebody to meet you."

"Ain't got the ponies now," Mordecai said. Fitzpatrick frowned at the herd of pack animals. "Seemed like twice that many where I first struck the sign."

"It was. Our tracks are on top of the sign of two hundred mules. Emil Frederick is ahead of us now."

"Don't hardly want to believe Jim Shandy would do it," Fitzpatrick said. "I ain't arguing about Shandy. Believe anything you want to about him! What did Spotted Dog say about the Hudson's Bay pack train?"

"He said it was coming toward the Siskadee." "Injun messengers! Mordecai cursed them all. 'McIvane is on his way to rendezvous then, damn it!'"

"Wagh! From what Spotted Dog said, we figured the British was going to set up on the Siskadee and try to draw some of the trade away."

Mordecai glanced toward camp. Ree Semple was striding out toward them. Fitzpatrick looked at Ree. "Semple working for Campbell and Sublette?" "Nope. He sort of come along, is all."

"He'll do, that Ree," Fitzpatrick said, "providing he ain't up to something, like usual."

"He ain't," Mordecai knew his voice was carrying to Ree. "He rode clean over the pass to the Siskadee to see where the British was."

"Find 'em Ree?" Fitzpatrick asked. "I seen 'em. I didn't get along." Ree gave Mordecai a brief, apologetic look, as if thanking him for the lie.

"Thing is," Fitzpatrick said, starting at the miserable collection of animals the packers were hobbling, "what're we going to do?" "Go on as best we can," Mordecai said. "There's a chance Frederick got busted up by the whirlwind. The Snakes just went ahead to have a look."

Fitzpatrick got up and mounted his pony. "I'll see for myself." He went bumping past the camp with his faded blanket leggings sawing against the sides of the pony.

"So you wouldn't have me sculpted by my own people?" Ree mused. "I lied. Don't know why. You ain't scarcely worth it."

"Make it up to you, I will, comes a chance." Ree went back to where Rhoda was sorting out her plunder from a wind-ripped pack. Mordecai saw her hastily shoving the Mandan-dancer pantaloons into a bag as Ree approached.

Fitzpatrick and the Snakes returned at dusk. "The wind got at 'em, sartin'," Fitzpatrick said. "They're some scattered up, but they're riding like hell to get things pulled together."

"How bad they hurt, you figure?" Big Nose asked. "Wouldn't bet on more'n a day, knowing Frederick." "That's something," Mordecai said. "Big Nose shook his head. 'Not near enough.'"

"They's a handful of Blackfeet down that way," Fitzpatrick commented. "Chased me, they did, almost from the time I left rendezvous."

Beaver Tails perked up at once. Blackfeet, huh? In the morning the Snakes would see about that. That night the Snakes jarred the weary camp when their fired twice at shadowy figures close to the ponies. They didn't bring down anything but neither did they lose any ponies. Little Foolish Bear swore that the intruders were Crows, saying that he had caught a glimpse of their hair as they raced away.

Beaver Tails would settle for nothing but Blackfeet, and Fitzpatrick supported him. "The Crows plumb disappeared this spring when they heard the spotted death was killing off plains injuns," Fitzpatrick said. "They been cacked out somewhere for months."

When the train moved on in the morning, the Snakes stayed behind. Ree and Rhoda stayed along close together, talking some, thing over real earnest. Now and then they laughed.

It sort of soured Mordecai to see them laughing like that, considering the fix the Rocky Mountain Fur Co. was in.

"No disrespect to you, ma'am, but I wouldn't want no wimmin of mine companied nowhere by the likes of him," is the advice given to Rhoda, but what can she do? Continue the story here tomorrow.

Brothers Died Within An Hour

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — Two brothers died in Lankeanau Hospital Monday within an hour of each other. Herman H. Perlmann, 58-year-old Chester furniture dealer who lived in suburban Overbrook Hills, died first. He had been a patient since Sunday.

Patient Spaniel Aided In Rescue

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (AP) — For five hours, Tina waited on shore while others tried to rescue her master, Donald Dickey, 22. Dickey and two other hunters had taken the dog hunting. Dickey had gone out alone on a lake in a small boat when he spotted a flight of ducks. The outboard motor failed. Firemen and police came, but were unable to reach the young hunter. Someone thought of calling in a helicopter. And someone thought of Tina. A rope was attached to the 2-year-old spaniel's neck and Dickey called to his dog. Tina walked across thin ice to her master. Dickey attached the rope to the boat and he and Tina were hauled ashore.

NEW YORK (AP)—Steels, rails, motors and chemicals were hit hard by profit taking early this afternoon. The stock market declined in heavy trading. Losses of key stocks went generally from fractions to about 2 points. Selected issues bucked the trend, some making sizable gains. Wall Street has been anticipating some corrections of the latest rise which has taken the averages to record highs on the past seven trading sessions. The market was a bit lower at the opening. The prices improved, making the tone irregular. A selling drive multiplied the minus signs and cut some big early gains. Early trading was featured by a 5-point leap in American Telephone. The gain was slashed to about 2 points. Have run up about 4 in early dealings but later was cut a point-plus.

Noted Evangelist Is To Conduct Crusade

A 12-day Stewardship-Evangelism Crusade, to be conducted by a nationally known evangelist, will begin next Wednesday at St. James Methodist Church.

The crusade, to be conducted by the Rev. L. O. Leet of Dallas, Texas, will include services each night, except Saturday, between January 14 and January 25, with two special Sunday services planned for January 18 and a Victory Sunday service on January 25. Each of the evening services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Announcement of the crusade was made today by the Rev. J. Malloy Owen, III, pastor of the host church. In making the announcement, the Rev. Mr. Owen said, "I see in the 12-day Crusade a tremendous and challenging opportunity. Its purpose is to bring the entire church—old and young men and women, active and inactive—into a study and practice of the primary obligations, responsibilities and privileges of the Christian life."

Invitations to attend the services have been extended to all persons in Greenville and surrounding towns and communities. In addition, ministers from churches throughout Greenville and Pitt County have been asked to participate in the nightly services.

The crusade will be the 302nd for the Rev. Mr. Leet and his first in a North Carolina Methodist church. He is the National Stewardship Evangelist for the Christian Churches of America.

His ministry began in Indianapolis, Ind. in 1922 but for the past 18 years he has been conducting Stewardship Evangelism Crusades throughout the United States. He is a graduate of Butler Tradition Of Talent In Grass Roots Opera Co.

The National Grass Roots Opera Company, which has contrived a new interest in opera throughout the nation, will appear in McGinnis Auditorium on Monday, January 12, in a production of "Don Giovanni," sponsored by the Greenville Music Club.

The roster of this nationally famous troupe lists singers from North Carolina, Virginia, Louisiana, Missouri, New York, Illinois, California, as well as the District of Columbia. All of the young singers have college degrees or the equivalent experience in opera as well as concert, oratorio, and television. The National Grass Roots Opera Company has proved to be a haven for young professional singers desiring more experience. Each season auditions are held in New York and Raleigh and only the most outstanding voices are chosen. Acting ability and appearance as well as voice and musicianship are strongly considered. Each singer chosen for the roster has the opportunity of singing, in English, from thirty to sixty performances of several different roles during the season.

Over one hundred young Americans of past seasons have found the experience they gained with this group has been of the greatest value to their careers. Some of these singers have appeared with the New York City Opera, NBC Television Opera, the New Orleans Opera House, The Shreveport Opera Company, and Wagner Opera Company, and numerous other opera groups and light opera groups throughout the country, as well as in Europe.

Farmers Have To Feb. 15 To Ask Pre-Measurement

Over 150 farmers have made application for pre-measurement of crop land since the sign-up period began Jan. 2. ASC Manager Walter Hasty said today.

Farmers have until Feb. 15 to sign up for the program. So far the requests for pre-measurement have included about 1,500 tobacco, cotton and peanut acres.

"This service has been very popular with farmers in Pitt County," Hasty said. "Last year we had 650 who pre-measured and were well-pleased with the service. The service enables the farmer to make sure he has his entire allotment planted and saves him much worry and time during May and June when he is so very busy. Farmers who desire the service are reminded that we shall serve them on a first come, first serve basis, so we urge them to make application as soon as possible."

To obtain pre-measuring service the farmer must pay $3 plus $1 per acre or a minimum of $8 per farm whichever is greater. The $3 fee is for training and supervising the reporters and for providing the stakes used to mark off the fields. Hasty pointed out that the reporters who perform the service are older and more experienced and this guarantees the farmer the best service possible. "Pre-measuring gives the farmer a chance to have his fields measured and plenty of time for him to check this measurement and satisfy himself that it is correct," Hasty declared.

Drop Charges

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP)—Cases against two former drill instructors charged with irregularities involving an Ohio recruit platoon were dropped today by the Marine Corps.

Dismissal of the charges against Sgt. Ronald J. Heller of Milwaukee, Wis., and Willard E. Foss of Augusta, Ga., followed a verdict of innocent returned last week in the general court-martial of S. Sgt. Ralph A. J. Grant of Racine, Wis.

Grant was charged with soliciting and accepting money from the 69 members of the all-Ohio Steel Valley Recruit Platoon, and with striking two of its members with a plastic mess cup.

Foss was accused of similar charges. Heller was charged only with striking recruits.

sters, hasn't attracted O'Hara to its ranks. He looks at it, however, with a sort of academic detachment which makes him regard it as "causing overstimulation by use of certain rhythms."

"I don't know whether rock and roll is good or bad, but you can look at it this way: Ice cream is good on a hot day, but you want to eat 25 dishes of ice cream, even on the hottest day? You can get too much of a good thing, and I would think that three hours of the fast, steady beat of rock and roll rhythms is too much."

Whether rock and roll is a passing fancy is beyond O'Hara's knowledge, he claims, but he does not hesitate to deny that it is what can be called "the" American music.

"American music, as I see it, takes in all kinds. It's a mixture of everything, and George Gershwin's 'Porgy and Bess' is about the best example of what can be called American music. Gershwin has a little of everything in it."

"Such things as 'Porgy and Bess' have made Gershwin, in O'Hara's mind, the leading interpreter of American music. 'There's very little experimental music in 'Porgy and Bess,' Gershwin, as I see it, just put the cap on 15 years of successful writing with it."

O'Hara's easy conversation about Gershwin and other composers, and all kinds of music, suggests a rigid background of association with the art. He claims, however, he grew up with nothing more than ordinary association with it, suggesting at the same time that anybody could do the same thing.

"Everybody's taking a step in music constantly, whether they realize it or not," he says. "It can cause a physical reaction, offer a cultural outlet and an emotional appeal. It works wonders with young people and can be a beneficial deterrent to crime. It is not a cure all, but it is an outlet for people who are thwarted elsewhere. Its beauty can dispel ugliness, its magnificence can overwhelm physical deficiencies and its very presence can chase away the loneliness we all know from time to time."

"Music teaches us to use our own power and our strength. It does have charms, for all of us."

Fire Caused By A Faulty Flue

A faulty flue caused a fire in the wall of a house at 110 W. 16th St. yesterday afternoon.

The dwelling is owned by Fred Moore and occupied by Fred Moore, according to Fire Department records. Firemen reported damage was slight. A box alarm was sounded.

This morning firemen were called to the home of J. H. Harrell at 1036 Rock Springs Drive when a washing machine shorted out. Damage was confined to the machine.

Saw Comet-Like Object In Sky

A rural resident near Winterville reported seeing a bright comet-like object in the skies late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. J. A. Branch of Winterville Rt. 1 said she saw the object in the southwest skies around 5:15 p.m. She said it looked like a comet. It was a ball of fire with a streak behind it and it lasted a few minutes.

Mrs. Branch lives about three miles from Winterville between the Tar Road and the New Bern Highway.

Dog Bites And Scratches Boy

A 15-year-old boy was bitten and scratched on the face by a dog early last night.

Police identified the youngster as Lonnie Gray Brown of 1307 Vandye St. He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment. The dog was handled by the County dog warden.

ACP Program Has Pitt Farmers Signed

Approximately 175 farmers have signed up for assistance under the Agricultural Conservation Practices program since Monday.

That was announced today by ASC Manager Walter Hasty. Pitt farmers have until Jan. 16 to make application for the current program.

Hasty said that all practices that were listed in the handbook last year are being offered this year. They include: open ditch drainage, tile drainage, irrigation ponds, forestry planning and improvement, permanent pastures, summer and winter cover crops.

The total allocation for 1959 is $105,000 which is $5,000 more than was allocated for 1958. Hasty said there will be another sign-up period for ACP assistance in the fall. The period will probably come at the last of August or the first of September.

"During this sign-up thus far, the participation has been quite heavy as it always is in Pitt County," Hasty declared. "We're expecting a great deal more before Jan. 16. Other counties usually have ACP money to return. In Pitt County we never have to return any and could actually use several times more than we get. This is due to the conservation mindedness of our farmers."

ACP is a service by which the federal government shares with the farmer the cost of carrying out conservation practices on his farm. For instance, the government will pay over 50 per cent of the cost in helping a farmer dig an irrigation pond.

"The ACP program helps provide the sound land that we need for a sound agricultural economy," Hasty declared. Last year 960 farms participated in ACP. That is about 35 per cent of the 783 farms in Pitt County.

Minor Damage In Car Collision

Minor damage resulted from the collision of two autos at the intersection of Eighth and Dickerson Ave. yesterday afternoon.

Police identified the drivers as James Henry Rhodes, Rt. 4, Box 4, Greenville and Curtis Perkins Jr., 2408 E. Third St. Damage to Perkins car was set at $50 while no damage resulted to the Rhodes car. No charges were placed.
