Thousands Homeless After Big Winter Storms, Flood Waters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Winter's worst storms eased off today but intense cold added to the suffering and shivering misery of millions of Americans.

in Sharon was estimated at two million dollars. Kittanning, a community of 10,000 that is 45 miles north of Pittsburgh, was cut off for several hours when an ice jam in the Allegheny sent 5 feet of water coursing over 30 blocks.

Small Tornado Strikes In County, Scattered Damage

PORCH ROOF TORN FROM DWELLING . . . small tornado hits about three miles west of Greenville

A small tornado struck a section to the north of the Falkland highway about three miles from Greenville last as a climax to the high winds which whipped Pitt County during the day.

Alexander Bell, Negro, who lives at Greenville Rt. 1, Box 56 said he was awakened by the high winds at that time. Bell's house was undamaged by the storm, although the tobacco barn which was overturned was within sight of the house.

The tobacco barn, overturned during the storm, came to rest on its top. However the barn itself was still intact. Curing equipment inside was left still within the foundations but it was badly battered.

The crisis was over in Mount Vernon, a city of 16,000 population that experienced the worst inundation of central Ohio communities. Flood waters began to recede in other sections.

The Allegheny River was the big troublemaker in Pennsylvania, and the worst situations were north of Pittsburgh.

The blockbuster snow storm, which swept out of the Great Plains and dumped up to a foot of snow across the midlands, curtailed normal activities in hundreds of communities.

Zero weather followed the snow into the storm-battered Midwest. It was from zero to 10 below in the upper Mississippi Valley and northern plains.

Injuries Delaying County Engineer

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer Arrival of an engineer to direct activities of the Pitt County Development Commission has been delayed because of an injury to the man to whom the job was offered, members of the commission were told last night.

Leonard A. Weston of New Smyrna Beach, Fla., who was to have begun his duties in Pitt County around January 1, suffered "internal injuries" in December while completing work for a Miami, Fla., engineering firm.

Sanitariums Will Meet Tomorrow

About 40 sanitarians and health directors from 23 Northeastern North Carolina counties are expected to be in Greenville tomorrow for a quarterly in-service educational meeting of the Northeastern Sanitariums Section.

Robert L. Martin, chairman of the Pitt County Board Commissioners, was recognized last night as a new member of the commission, succeeding former Board of County Commissioners Chairman Woodrow Wooten.

TOBACCO BARN IS OVERTURNED . . . as local wind storm hits on Falkland Highway.

ADDRESSING LARGE BODY of Scouting officials at the East Carolina Council Annual Recognition Banquet last night at ECC, President John D. Messick installed the new officers for 1959.

Home Savings And Loan Ass'n Shareholders Told Of Gains

Home Savings and Loan Association shareholders were told last night their institution had its "best year ever from the standpoint of growth in total assets, savings and loans."

Dividends for the year totaled $221,000 which is the largest earnings ever paid by the institution. Tugwell reported that home loans made during 1958 totaled $1,750,000 bringing total home loans outstanding to $6,567,000 at the year's end.

At a special board of director's meeting following the shareholders' meeting all officers were re-elected for the coming year. The officers are: Dink James, president; J. A. Collins, Sr., vice-president; Clarence B. Tugwell, executive vice-president; Allie P. Whitehurst, treasurer and assistant secretary; Roscoe L. King, loan officer and assistant treasurer.

Refused Driver's License, Dies Of Crash Injuries

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — An 80-year-old man who was refused a driver's license because of bad eyesight died last night of injuries received in a two-truck accident.

Officers said Ervin Wilson Petty, 83, of Rt. 2, Newton, drove his pickup truck into the path of a 15-ton truck driven by John DuBose Pittman, 35, of Charlotte.

Record Earnings Reported By Guaranty Bank And Trust Co.

Stockholders of Guaranty Bank and Trust Company in their 58th annual meeting yesterday were told that the bank had reached new record highs in its total resources, deposits and capital funds during the year.

Total resources of the bank reached $50,064,375; deposits $46,105,881, and capital funds stood at $3,197,072 at year-end.

In addition to the increased capital accounts, $245,000 was set up as a reserve for income taxes, $80,000 was added to the bond reserve account and substantial additions were made to other reserve accounts, stockholders were told.

Bridge Clubs

GRIFTON—Mrs. Albert Tyson was hostess to members of her bridge club on Friday night at her home. Seasonal decorations were noted in the living room where the guests were received. A salad plate with sandwiches, ham biscuits and coffee with coffee was served as cards were put aside. Mrs. David Parker was highest scorer and Mrs. Walter Murphy second high; the consolation went to Mrs. Wilbur Murphy. Others playing were Mesdames Becky Worthington, Clifton Jackson, Conrad Hart, Bryan Davis, John Coward, Paul Bradley, Frank Davie, Johnnie Smith and Miss Ruth E. Smith.

Miss Mewborn Entertains
Miss Louise Mewborn entertained on Thursday night at her home on Queen Street for members of her bridge club and invited players for three tables. When guests arrived they were invited into the dining room for a buffet supper. The table was covered with a white linen cloth and held as a centerpiece composed of a silver bowl of red roses. A ham supper was served and later apple pie and coffee as dessert.

During the bridge games Mrs. Alton Chapman and Miss Hazel Patrick received high score prizes for bridge club members and Mrs. Cecil Cobb for visitors. Other players were Mesdames J. L. Quinerry, Jack Chapman, L. L. Mewborn, Eleanor Gower, Thurman

Williams, Richard Nelson, Bryan Davis, Brunelle Minges and Miss Marie Chapman.

Mrs. Jackson Hostess
The Thursday night club was in session with Mrs. R. L. Jackson as hostess at her home on Church Street. Dish gardens were used as decorations in the living room where the tables were placed for the games. Mrs. W. E. Rasberry scored high and Mrs. Roger Johnson second high. Mesdames Walter Patrick, Woodrow Smith, Kenneth Talton, Milton Hart, Ben G. Tucker, Mark Phillips, Glendie Tucker, Sam Nelson, Frances Shackelford, and David Parker also played.

A dessert with whipped cream and coffee was served during the refreshment hour.

Today's Menu

TEATIME TREAT

A quick loaf that's frosted.

- Orange Loaf
- Cream Cheese Spread
- Salted Macadamia Nuts
- Tea
- Lemon or Milk

ORANGE LOAF

Ingredients: 1 1/2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, grated rind of one orange, 3-4 cup rolled oats (quick or regular), 1-3 cup raisins (rinsed in hot water and drained), 1-3 cup chopped walnuts, 2 eggs (beaten until thick), 3 tablespoons orange juice, 1/2 cup milk, 1-3 cup butter or margarine (melted).

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in orange rind, rolled oats, raisins and walnuts. Add eggs, orange juice, milk and melted butter; stir just until ingredients are moistened. Turn into buttered pan (9 by 5 by 3 inches). Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 50 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. To frost, mix 2 cups confectioners sugar with 2 tablespoons orange juice and spread over top of cool loaf. Serve with cream cheese spread. Unfrosted loaf is delicious sliced, toasted and spread with butter.

Speaks To AAUW

At the meeting of the American Association of University Women Monday night the speaker for the program was Miss Clara Ellis, Supervisor of services to the aged on the staff of the North Carolina Department of Public Welfare and formerly a member of the local Public Welfare staff. She talked on what North Carolina is doing for care of the aged, pointed out that this state is a leader among the states in this work and that the other states in the entire area are patterning their work with older people on the plan worked out by North Carolina.

Before the talk Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, the president, conducted a business meeting. She appointed Mrs. Harry Billica, Mrs. Estella Striplin, and Mrs. Chester Walsh to serve as a committee to nominate a president, recording secretary, and corresponding secretary for the next two years.

Eight or ten members had had replies to the Christmas cards sent out by individual members with a message of good will to the international relations chairman in every national organization of university women in the world, replies having been received so far from Indonesia, the Netherlands, Hong Kong, England, Sweden, France, and Turkey. The plan was initiated by Dr. Bessie McNeil, the International Relations chairman of the Greenville branch of AAUW.

The speaker was introduced by Supt. J. S. Grimes of the Pitt County Public Welfare Department. He in turn had been introduced by Mrs. Clyde Hollowell, chairman of the Social and Economic Issues chairman.

Miss Ellis discussed the various ways in which North Carolina is pioneering in work with the aged. "Public welfare work today," she said, "is not limited to aiding the poor, but is helping people in all walks of life," and in certain aspects of this work, she said, this state is leading in the whole United States.

The first coordinated committee for special studies on the aging was appointed by Governor Hodges in North Carolina and other states are following North Carolina's lead in this. This state not only has a state organization but a county one, and a speaker's bureau to help acquaint the public with the work.

Three hundred and sixty-eight boarding homes for old persons—mostly accommodating from two to ten have been licensed in North Carolina since 1948. She pointed out how drastically the number of hazardous two-story frame boarding homes has been reduced since 1947. Services offered in these boarding homes range from just quarters for living to skilled nursing care.

Miss Ellis explained also the new homemaker service being experimented with in three counties on a grant from the Doris Duke Foundation, in which partially incapacitated old people are helped to maintain their own households as long as possible. State homemakers go into such homes periodically to help get in groceries, do heavy work, cook nourishing foods, and plan adequate meals. North Carolina is the first state in the United States to start such a service in rural areas, said the speaker.

The meeting began with a social hour, with coffee and a dessert served by the hostesses committee—Miss Louise Williams, chairman with Misses Bessie McNeil, Emma Hooper, Lois Grigsby, and Mrs. Katherine White assisting.

Phil Inscoe Has Birthday Party

GRIFTON—Master Phil Inscoe was honored on his fourth birthday by a party Saturday morning by his mother, Mrs. Jerry Inscoe. The youngsters met at the Inscoe home for games and were later invited into the dining room for refreshments. The table was covered with a birthday cloth centered with a Choo Choo cake, ice cream, cake, candy and bubble gum were served. Favors were novelty horns and hats. Guests were Marian Allen, Bill Callicutt, Louis and Lee Cherry, Quincey Hill and Emily Jo Inscoe.

RECIPES
Recipes for jams and jellies using commercial pectin usually direct that the mixture be brought to a "full rolling boil;" that means a boil that can't be stirred down.

'American - Soviet Relations' Topic Used By Dr. Steelman

Dr. Lala Steelman, a member of the East Carolina College faculty, spoke to the Delphin Book Club Tuesday when it met at the home of Mrs. Ed Tipton.

Following the business meeting, the members were served a dessert course of coconut squares, nuts and coffee.

Dr. Steelman's topic was "American-Soviet Relationships." She began her talk by explaining that prior to World War II there were six or seven super powers in the world whereas now the United States and Russia are the only two.

The speaker described the purpose of the Soviet Union, expanding Communism and the American aim of preventing its spread.

She made the following comparison of strength of the two countries: "Russia is more populous, the United States' economy is sounder and its industrial output greater. However, Russia has made great strides since it became a Communist country in 1917 mainly by denying the people consumer goods." While comparing the military strength of the two powers she said, "Russia has a larger Army, but the United States has a larger stock pile of nuclear weapons."

In describing the nature of Russia's challenge to the United States Dr. Steelman pointed out the difference in Stalin's threat which was military force and Khrushchev's prediction of Russian economic and political supremacy.

Before the meeting was adjourned, Mrs. Tipton, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that the next meeting would be a bridge-luncheon at the home of Mrs. Paul Scott.

New Furniture Worth The Money

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP)—You'll get your money's worth in 1959 home furnishings.

Reasonable prices, better design, sturdy construction and lighter scaling characterize this year's furniture crop, says Henry P. Glass, designer. Buyers attending the current International Home Furnishings Market here also have a wide choice between traditional and contemporary designs. Says Glass:

"People have found out at last that manufacturers are not charging a premium for good design in furniture, because they have discovered it isn't any more expensive to make well-designed furniture."

"Usually things that are lighter in weight, plainer in style and simpler in construction are easier to make than those that are ornate, heavy in proportion and intricate in construction."

For example, he explains, if the frame and construction are lighter scaled, there is more money left to put into a better grade fabric. Lighter construction and proportions enable better veneer and finer finishes.

Foam Cushioning
So homemakers will find more and more polyfoam used in upholstered pieces and even pre-formed plastic frames.

The polyfoam replaces coil springs and the plastic frames replace wood construction. Rubber-webbed bases form the base for more chairs and sofas.

One group called "Intermezzo" by Glass is upholstered with polyfoam cushions and the thin walnut arms of the lightly scaled pieces curve down from the back.

Plastic Chairs
A new kind of furniture construction in the use of plastic for frames is introduced by Morris Futorian. Designed with Scandinavian influence, the frame of the living room chair is fabricated completely of plastic. It opens new ways to design upholstered furniture. Says Futorian:

"Finding a practical way to provide versatility of design has been a problem of the industry ever since the first piece of upholstered furniture was made. The limiting factor has been the frame."

The plastic overcomes the handicap of grain in wood. The plastic is about five times as strong as wood and about three times lighter. All frames from a single mold are identical. It does not absorb water.

Although the use of plastic for chairs is not new, the use of it in upholstered pieces is a departure from the traditional method of making furniture.

Rocking Chair Revival
There's also a swing to Early American furniture. This especially pleases Arthur Margolis, who describes himself as a practical man. He likes the old-fashioned rocking chair. Says he:

"There's a certain security about Early American pieces that men consistently like. They want to feel that the chair they're sitting in is not suspended in space, that it won't collapse with a sudden shift of weight."

OLD FAVORITE—In a new version—the platform rocking chair, more comfortable than its Early American original and a better value.

Ayden Jr. Woman's Club Honored By Local Club

Members of the Ayden Junior Woman's Club were guests last night of the Greenville Junior Woman's Club at which Dr. Ralph Brimley of East Carolina College was speaker.

Dr. Brimley, Director of Public Relations and Foundations, discussed the importance of good public relations. He pointed out the roll of public relations in industrial development, community growth and educational expansion. He stressed the importance of women's organizations in taking the lead with ideas and drive in getting these ideas realized.

Public relations should begin at home, he stated, and we should learn to live together on a smaller scale first.

Dr. Brimley pointed out that good public relations is doing the right thing at the right time, putting into practice the Golden Rule and giving the public the facts.

Refreshments were served during the social hour following Dr. Brimley's talk.

Rev. Howard Speaks To Club

Mrs. Jake Hadley was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home on Greenville Boulevard on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Hadley presented Rev. W. M. Howard Jr. as guest speaker.

He gave a brief resume of seven outstanding women of the Bible. The women had been selected by Mrs. Sune Richardson and pictures depicting each one had appeared in the Methodist publication "Together."

Mrs. Richardson had chosen the following women: Esther, Ruth, Mary of Bethany and her sister, Martha, the Samaritan woman at the well, the Elect Lady, and Mary, the Mother of Jesus. Rev. Howard gave facts about each selected woman.

Following a short business meeting and book exchange, the hostess served a salad and sweet course, assisted by Mrs. James Moye and Mrs. Luther Moore.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. Gladys Downs and Mrs. F. P. Brooks.

USE PARSLEY

Don't be afraid to add plenty of minced parsley when you are making a stuffing for meat or poultry—it takes a fair amount to give real parsley flavor.

President Attends Council Meeting

Mrs. C. B. West Jr., president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7032 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, attended recently in High Point a Department Council meeting and the dedication of the North Carolina Department Memorial Building. National Commander John Mahan was principal speaker.

Two past National commanders of the VFW who were present and who participated on the program were Jimmy Cochran of South Carolina and Otis Brown of North Carolina.

The North Carolina Ladies Auxiliary gave the VFW emblem which is used to decorate the front of the building.

Mrs. Lamb of Kinston, president of the second district, accompanied Mrs. West.

PARTY TEASERS

Can't Fall Behind In A Transition

The world's great military powers stand at the threshold of the age of missiles. The age is here, and it is recognized as the coming thing by leaders of the world. Yet the age of missiles is still in its infancy.

It will be a few years yet—perhaps a number of years—before the missile age matures sufficiently to render manned aircraft obsolete. Particularly is this true in the case of aircraft which must be used for transporting men and machines to combat areas.

For these and other reasons we find it a matter of concern that the President has provided in his new budget proposal for only 1,610 new aircraft for the armed forces during the coming fiscal year.

Since World War II air power has been greatly emphasized as the core of the defense system of the United States. We have sought to build an air strength to deliver a retaliatory attack of sufficient potential to discourage any attack on us or our allies. And we have sought to do so not only with large aircraft of tremendous capabilities, but also with imposing numbers of these aircraft.

It would seem that 1,610 new planes for the United States during fiscal year 1960 would hardly meet our requirements for keeping our combat and air transport systems at their present strength. Hardly a day goes by that we do not read of one, two or three air accidents in which military planes are completely destroyed. There must also be numerous incidents in which planes are damaged beyond repair of which we never hear. Then too, this country is bound to have a great many planes which become obsolete with each passing year . . . and perhaps with each passing month . . . planes that must be junked because of old age or new developments.

While we are aware that great emphasis must be placed on the development of missiles, it does not appear logical at the moment for us to relegate to a secondary position our need for manned aircraft either for direct combat or for transport. Though the number of new planes provided for in the proposed budget for fiscal 1960 is only 150 less than was called for in the current year, we question whether this number of new planes each year can even maintain our status quo in air power.

When Congress reviews the budget requests for our nation's defense, it should give careful attention not only to the development of missiles and other advanced weapons; but likewise to the problem of keeping our more conventional weapons at sufficient strength to offer us genuine protection during this period of transition.

Virginia Desperately Needs New Approach

Where will Virginia go from here?

That question is being asked throughout Virginia as well as in other Southern states in the wake of two court decisions this week which struck down Virginia's "massive resistance" laws to fight integrated schools.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond is rapidly developing plans for new laws designed to preserve segregation in the schools of Virginia. At the same time Norfolk school authorities apparently are making plans to re-open schools on an integrated basis as soon as possible. In other places in Virginia where schools have been closed, plans are being made more cautiously for the re-opening of schools.

There is obvious confusion. There is great consternation in Virginia at both the decision of the state's Supreme Court and the decision of the three-judge federal court which labeled unconstitutional Virginia's "massive resistance" laws.

There is one thing which is made clear, however. Virginia's "massive resistance" laws are without legal foundation. They are in conflict with the constitution of that state as well as in conflict with the federal constitution as now interpreted. There would appear little to be gained by Virginia in continuing to pursue its "massive resistance" approach to the fight against integrated schools. Virginia will have to find a new avenue of approach to the matter of preserving insofar as possible its system of segregated schools.

What Virginia does in this new situation in which she finds herself will be watched closely not only in North Carolina, but elsewhere as well. It is to be hoped that as quickly as possible Virginia will find some workable means under which its more than 10,000 youngsters who have been out of school since last fall will be able to return to their classrooms.

Though often forgotten in the current struggle over public schools, it is the children who are most severely penalized when schools are forced to close their doors.

Compromise By Lyndon Johnson

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the best insights into the mind and tactics of Sen. Lyndon Johnson, leader of the Senate Democrats, is in the kind of civil rights bill he offered Tuesday.

The Johnson bill is strictly a compromise; too mild for the liberals, too strong for the Southern Democrats. But if any civil rights bill can pass this year, it's probably this one, or one like it, just because it is middle-road. Because it's that kind, it fits completely a description of Johnson given last week by one of his closest associates: "Here in Washington issues are all around us. But Johnson doesn't try to create issues; he tries to settle them."

Johnson uses compromise to do two things mainly: to inch forward and to avoid long fights that create bitterness and delay the Senate's work.

One of his aides said: "Sometimes he'll talk to as many as 50 people, in Congress, in government, outside government to get the best advice he can before he makes up his mind. He's a brainpicker."

"Sometimes he finds, through these consultations in and out of Congress, that a slight change in the wording of a bill means the difference between enough votes to get it through and determined opposition."

All this, of course, is in addition to the many favors he does for fellow senators, who are not unmindful when he badly needs them.

Having made up his mind, he turns to strategy: picking the time and the situation for making his move. He gave a demonstration of that Tuesday.

Both the Eisenhower administration and the Senate liberals are expected to offer civil rights legislation fairly soon. Some bills already are in. Before others were offered, Johnson unexpectedly produced his proposal.

This got him the maximum attention for his bill. It became a yardstick for judging other proposals made later. By being first with a compromise bill, he took the steam out of any more far-reaching bills.

Johnson did the same kind of thing on the opening day of this new Congress. Liberals had said they'd put up a tough fight to change a Senate rule to make it easier to smash a filibuster.

On opening day, before they had a chance to open their mouths, Johnson offered a plan to make it just a very little bit easier to smash a filibuster. The liberals didn't like it and neither did the Southerners, but for opposite reasons.

But because it meant only a mild change, the Southerners did not filibuster and the change went through. What had seemed on opening day as a long fight was cleared up in less than one week.

In 1957 Johnson did what many people had considered impossible: he steered through the Senate the first real civil rights bill to pass in this century. It was truly a compromise bill, too mild for the liberals, too strong for the Southerners yet not strong enough to cause a Southern filibuster.

AMID THE DEAD

In two of the Gospels there is an account of our Lord's encounter with a man from the country of the Gadarenes who had been dwelling among the tombs. He had an unclean spirit—that is, was insane—"and no man could bind him, no, not with chains."

An insane man living among the tombs! So many narratives in the New Testament are, in addition to being historical facts, clearly delineated symbols of great truth. Here was a man living among dead things and he was insane.

How aptly the two conditions fit together, for to live among the dead is to live unnaturally, insanely. Some people live among ideas which have been dead for hundreds of years. These are the persecutors ready at all times

Another Hurdle Coming

After warmly congratulating myself, the household and the office on escaping a really bad cold thus far this winter, dismay is re-raised on reading that February is the worst month for the common cold.

In fact, it says here that February is to colds as August is to hayfever. . . a beautiful equation for the mathematically minded.

Spelling out what all this means to me, February poses one more hurdle to clamber over (my leaping and jumping days are long gone) before concern over winter colds can relax.

There quickly follows a span of months in which to be alert against spring colds; and then those summer colds are waiting in line to bring a unique kind of misery with its sniffles.

To some amongst us, life is just one hazardous period after another. We live dangerously.

But about the cold:

There are approximately ten million horribly healthy Americans who won't catch a cold all year long. That's a good round number to reflect upon, especially Americans snuffing their way along the road of life. The same information source says that people who catch colds usually have two or three a year . . . which figures out to a lot of medicine-buying.

The annual cold bill in the United States is estimated at between two and three billion dollars is said to have kept a ten-year record of illness among its 100,000 employees and found that 54 per cent of absences due to sickness were caused by the respiratory group of diseases.

Prevention remains the best cure. And that means lots of rest and a proper diet fortified by vitamins.

Somehow, the prospect of spending February in bed, and eating my weight in steaks and vitamin capsules sounds like a dull way to exist, even combating a cold.

Just can't see my way free from living dangerously another month and that chapter in my life entitled Man vs. Virus.

In other years, during their campaign season, the mails were full of March of Dimes publicity handouts from the national headquarters. Not all of it was carried by newspapers (who prefer a local approach), but occasionally an editor with a bit of spare space would use the news release . . . hoping it might help.

But these days the March of Dimes mail traffic is remarkably light.

Could be, that with the means at hand to route polio, the foundation is briefly resting on its oars. But another, and more likely answer might lie in the adding of birth defects and arthritis as targets. Instead of one enemy, now there are three. This requires a whole new plan of campaign.

Organizing such a program is a tremendous undertaking.

As of now, the public's dread of birth defects and arthritis doesn't match fears of infantile paralysis during the months it is most communicable or widespread.

Birth defects and arthritis cases far outnumber polio patients, even in the worst polio seasons; but the problems were given relatively modest attention. In terms of pain and wasted lives they dwarfed polio.

Now a big effort is underway to change all this. There are still polio patients who need help, but the army of arthritic victims and children born with defects of the central nervous system all are waiting their turn.

Those dimes and dollars going to the March of Dimes this year are the forerunners of a campaign that is really only just getting started. It all depends on how badly we want another victory for health. Isn't it worth something to you?

Opinions In Brief

"The 'Bandwagon' influence in elections is beyond understanding. Why would anyone, in the privacy of the voting booth, cast a ballot for a man merely because he seemed likely to win?" — Gastonia Gazette.

Artist Saved Town

By ERIC GOTTGETREU

HAIFA, Israel, (AP) — Marcel Yanku is a pioneer. In Switzerland and Germany more than 40 years ago, the Bucharest-born painter and architect was a leader of Dadaism, one of the most avant-garde movements in modern art.

Today, the 63-year-old Yanku is among the top-ranking painters of Israel. And in addition he is the country's most colorful community leader: mayor of the Ain Hod artists' settlement, a cluster of Oriental houses perched on a hill south of the Mount Carmel range overlooking the Eastern Mediterranean.

He settled it himself. Ain Hod is quite different from let's say, Greenwich Village, Chelsea or perhaps Ascona with its Monte Verita. Its history probably began in the 13th Century when the Crusaders built the mighty fortress and harbor town of Atilit, half way between Caesarea and what is today Haifa Bay.

In the same period, it seems, they built Ain Hod — more exposed to refreshing winds — a sort of summer resort. The same large pre-Gothic arches found in Atilit can be seen in some of the old houses of Ain Hod. Others stand in the open. Ain Hod, which is Arabic for "Fountain of Splendor," was inhabited by Arabs till the Palestine war of 1948. Then the inhabitants fled the country.

For some time the rather dilapidated houses remained empty.

Later, new Jewish immigrants tried to live there, but it did not work. There was not enough water — despite the romantic name — no electricity, no road to anywhere, and the soil wasn't very fertile.

The newcomers also left and with no one there the Israel security authorities were somewhat worried. To have an empty village close to one of the main roads and rail links of the country didn't seem expedient. They decided to blast the place.

Then Yanku stepped in. Working at that time for the Town and Country Planning Department of the Israel Ministry of Interior, he had been charged with a survey of possible sites to be kept as natural preserves. Ain Hod with all its romantic beauty was just what he was looking for.

"Okay," said the security people, "you may keep the place if you find enough madmen to live there. We give you two weeks."

An appeal went out to the 700 members of the Israel Artists Assn. Seven took the trouble to look at Ain Hod. Three said they would live there.

But Ain Hodism was contagious and others followed the first three. The Ministry of Labor paid a group of workers to clean up the place. The Haifa Municipality "adopted" it and helped out by building a road and a water reservoir and installing a telephone. The artists themselves did much to make the village homey.

Some artists have jobs in town and come to Ain Hod only for a prolonged weekend, but others live there permanently. This is true particularly for those occupied in one of the Ain Hod workshops, such as ceramics, weaving, jewelry making, olive wood carving or even lithographic arts.

A fine album has just been issued with lithographs by Ain Hod artists. Some are among the best of the country—though it would not be correct to speak of a specific "Ain Hod School."

It's a success, this village without agriculture. Tourists come in good numbers. For those in a hurry, a good selection of the paintings, sculptured and workshop products of Ain Hod is always on show in the cooperatively administered art gallery on the piazza of the village opposite the hospitable cafe terrace.

Other Editors Saying... Should Support Hodges

(Goldboro News-Argus)

Senator John P. Kennedy of Massachusetts, in Charlotte for an address, made his manners in the direction of Governor Hodges as a vice presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket next year. He did it most graciously with well chosen words.

Governor Hodges, he declared, would add distinction to any ticket. He said he spoke from personal knowledge and admiration of and for our favorite governor.

Naturally a man come visiting from another state wishes to do the correct and courteous thing toward the state and its chief executive. But the words from the Senator have too genuine a ring to be mere courteous pleasantries.

Hodges as a vice presidential candidate for the Democrats would make sense.

Despite the cantankerousness, if not contempt, of Chairman Butler, it is vital for Democratic prospects that the South stay with the party in the coming election. It is most important that the South does not take a walk.

Hodges is the best prepared to assure these conditions for the Democrats of all names which

A Stranger Side Of Business News

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here's a round up of strange, curious and sometimes incredible bits of business news:

The Small Business Administration is trying to help the inventor find a manufacturer for a patented abacus operating on the decimal system. . . A Dallas store, offering to exchange unwanted Christmas gifts no matter where purchased, took in $1,000 in a single day. . . The National Garden Bureau is suggesting merchants offer unsold hula hoops as edging for flowers and vegetable beds.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that shippers of all wines carrying the word "champagne" in their labels must pay rail-freight rates for champagne, even if only domestic imitations.

Canners, food chains and the government have joined for a canned pea promotion in February. . . In a rare ruling favoring taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service holds that bait boxes, casting nets, fish hook extractors, fish tackle boxes, fish tank aerators, gaff hooks, landing nets, lure retrievers, retrieving lines and sinkers for nets, scint oil for bait and wire minnow traps are not subject to the tax on sporting goods because they aren't mentioned in the law. (Rev. Rul 606.)

FEWER CHURCHES BUILT

New religious structures in 1958 totaled $863,000,000, a drop of $5,000,000 under the 1957 total. . . Only six out of every ten dollars in personal income is subject to Federal taxes, calculates Paul F. Icerman, accountant. . . A large manufacturer (Sealy) announces it won't preticket mattresses unless the retailer promises to sell them at the price ticketed.

Ralph Levitan, a Home Furnishings Daily columnist, reports that a Maritan entered a New York store and said, "Take me to your loss leader." . . Engaged girls are better customers, now because engagement periods are shorter, Max Hess, Allentown retailer, reports. . . Industrial ink sales doubled in the last 10 years, largely because of use in packaging, says Sun Chemical. . . The National Association of Food Chains lowers the Consumer Price Index because it measures prices of only 80 foods, while up to 6,000 are offered in the average super.

CONTROL SYSTEM COSTS $7.50

Five thousand hat checks were bought for $7.50 for a stock control system in a California furniture store. When an item is sold, its check goes to the control center and its duplicate is removed from the inventory chart. . . The National Retail Merchants Association is up in arms because some manufacturers are substituting "f.o.b. plant" for "f.o.b. New York" terms, which means the buyer must pay extra to get goods from plant to freight depot. . . Ytterbium metal 99 per cent pure is now available in lump or ingot form, says Research Chemicals.

Three lots of rose hips have reached New York from Yugoslavia. They are the ripened fruit of the rose bush, rich in vitamin C. . . Ecuador's castor bean crop is 25 per cent larger than in 1957. . . A Washington court ruled a market was liable for injuries to a customer when it stacked items beyond an ankle slipping in an effort to reach a box of paper tissues. . . The North Carolina furniture industry wants more people to plant young poplar trees, the chief stock material of the trade. . . The city of Santa Cruz, Calif., is offering to sell space over and under its municipal parking lot. . . Adjacent stores can buy rights to build extensions 13-feet above the lot. . . Oil company and other credit cards are being accepted as credit references from new charge customers by many stores. . . Prefab home sales rose 7 per cent to 67,000 units last year, House & Home says.

30 Years Ago Today

January 22, 1929

The Suzanne Wesley Club of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held their monthly meeting at the home of Miss Ruth Horne Wednesday afternoon. The meeting opened with the reading of the 57th Psalm which was followed by sentence prayers. A delicious ice course was enjoyed by all. Among those present were: Ruth Horne, vice-president; Ruth Willard, reporter; Mrs. Roy Harris, leader; Mrs. Hill Horne, Mary Mussewhite, treasurer; Helen Moore, Jane Cox, Florence Perkins, president; Laura Fleming and Edna Dall.

When you are roasting a stuffed chicken at 350 degrees, count on leaving it in the oven for 15 to 17 minutes per pound.

Pork Most Economical Meat Buy

RALEIGH—Pork continues to be the most economical red meat buy for this week's food shopper, according to Mrs. Ruby P. Uzale and John W. Hagen, consumer marketing specialists for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.
 Lower prices are found on many different cuts of pork; many other pork items are featured as "specials". Most cuts of beef show a price increase. In the next few weeks, because of the large supply, canned chunk tuna will be a bargain food. Homemakers will wish to consider the abundant supply of poultry available for added economy to the food budget. Heavy hens carry attractive prices; turkeys of every size remain steady in price.

Large eggs are the most economical buy per pound this week.
 Major root-type vegetables—potatoes, turnips, sweet potatoes, carrots and dry onions—remain in good supply at attractive prices. Fresh vegetables arriving from Florida will add variety to your meals.
 The markets are well stocked with good oranges and grapefruit but the tangerines and tangelos are diminishing in quality and supply. Try the red and yellow Delicious apples for your eating pleasure. The Winesap and Rome Beauty apples offer good cooking varieties.

Even Castro Had Trouble Seeing All Of Havana Rally

By WILLIAM GLOVER
 HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Even Fidel Castro had trouble seeing it all.

Long before he spoke, the leader of the revolution arrived for the giant rally in front of the Presidential Palace Wednesday. But he remained out of sight of the ocean of humanity waiting to hear him.

Occasionally the lanky man in battle fatigues craned up on tiptoe to look. Then he would turn and talk to those nearby in the surrounding throng on the speakers' platform. Once in a while he would lift a field canteen to his lips for a drink of water.

At 5 p.m. he stepped forward to speak, and the emotional dam which had been building up through the long afternoon broke. The sea of humanity roared with countless voices, banners swayed, and upraised arms swung in rhythm.

The dominant mood all the way, however, was that of fiesta rather than fanatic fever. This was a crowd in a holiday spirit. Packed tight, they ate oranges, swapped chatter, and quietly listened to speakers who preceded Castro.

The vast plaza began filling at noon as all business in Havana shut down. The broad main highways and narrow streets in the old city soon were jammed with the converging horde.

They came by jitney, bicycle, motorcycle, bus, and in marching companies. Nearly every group had banners—"We are with you," "We ask justice," "For murders we condemn war criminals."

Some were painted on bedsheets, others crudely made on cardboard. Some cars had loudspeakers which blared similar sentiments.

The throng filled every inch of space for blocks around the Presidential Palace, trampled shrubbery, and crowded onto rooftops. An hour and a half after the announced time for the rally the program got under way. When the man all called Fidel stood up, he talked for 85 minutes. Castro speaks with sparse gestures — usually the right arm swung wide, the forefinger raised. Occasionally, as his voice grows louder, he punctuates with his left arm straight out, the fist clenched. The high point came as he called for those who felt as he did to raise a hand. Two arms shot up

Ike Says GOP Should Avoid Part-Time Role

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Eisenhower told the Republican National Committee Wednesday that the GOP must not become a "hibernating elephant" that awakes only at election time.

In a message to National Chairman Meade Alcorn, the President called for a sustained year-around program of Republican campaigning which would imprint the image of "progressive leadership" on the party.

This was in harmony with Alcorn's own recommendations to the National Committee in its initial meeting of a two-day session that the party "preach and practice an enlightened Republicanism 365 days a year."

Saluting Alcorn's proposal for formation of a year-around campaign staff, Eisenhower said the seasons here should become "the first step in a continuous work program of the Republican party."

wakes with a mighty trumpet blast at election time and then rests calmly until the next campaign," Eisenhower said.

"Political activity must be a matter of unrelenting effort. It must go on 365 days a year if we are to maintain the vitality that has made our nation great. Only 636 days remain until the next national election. We must make each of them count. Every day we lose is one we can never get back."

Eisenhower called for action to induce a "clear understanding of our long-range objectives." Only in this way, he said, "can we lift creative Republicanism to new heights of national achievement."

In this connection, the President said the party must make certain that "candidates are capable, vigorous, personable and dedicated; that finances are secured on a continuing and satisfactory basis; and that every Republican and every friend of Republicanism keep everlastingly at the job of recruiting for the party."

Books Closed On Larceny Probe

Police today closed the books on a larceny and damage to personal property case which occurred on January 10 of this year.

William Jr. Green, 22-year-old Negro, who was arrested and faced with the charges shortly after the incident today told police that he rifled a jukebox and extracted $5.90 from it during a dance at a local establishment.

over every head.

A dark-eyed girl veteran of a women's army group fell off a pedestal in the excitement and leaped right back up.

Some others in the throng found the heat and congestion too much. Every once in a while, out from the sea of faces, someone who had fainted would be lifted on a litter and carried off.

There were a few cases of hysteria. Once someone caused a localized stampede by firing an old cannon on a nearby roof.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
P Newsfeatures

Advances in photography and improvements in photographic equipment are not limited exclusively to the research labs of the major manufacturers. Many a camera fan, dissatisfied with available equipment, devises his own accessories or methods to make photography or its processes easier. Some are tiny items, the inspiration of a moment; others are major projects, taking years of work and painstaking labor with homemade materials.

For an example of a simple, ingenious idea, I turn to George Ward, traveling representative of the Plymouth Products Co., Chicago. One of his journeys around the country extolling the virtues of fine-grain Ethol developer, he showed me his own accessory: a snap-on, snap-off camera strap link.

In his travels, George always carried a 35mm camera for any picture emergency. But in order for it to remain out of sight when not needed, the strap went around his neck and under one arm. . . . And all under his jacket. In this shoulder holster position, the camera was safe, comfortable and inconspicuous.

However, when the camera was wanted for shooting one jacket sleeve had to come off and the camera slipped over the arm. This was unhandy, but George figured out a home-made solution.

To the regular strap, he added a small adjustable strap with a snap link at one end. Now he could

Air Force pilot, was unhappy with home color processing methods. They were cumbersome, sloppy and subject to human errors. So he built a crude pilot model of an automatic machine out of vacuum cleaner parts, tin cans and other scrap materials.

Then came years of perfecting his "tin can" model until it could process color without fumes, floods or film damage by mechanical handling in a sealed, compact unit with liquid agitation and at a lower cost.

At the recent Detroit Photo Show, Rosenberg's machine performed its "miracle in color" automatically and without a hitch. An Ektachrome color picture of writer Juntunen, taken on the spot, was processed successfully on the spot.

The machine consists of a control box and plastic tank atop a cabinet containing the motor and solutions. Different buttons on the control box determine which of the color film processes is to be used: Ektachrome, Ansco-chrome, Printon, Kodachrome, Type R or Type C Ektachrome.

After the Ektachrome sheet film was placed in the plastic tank under cover of a light-proof changing bag, the proper (Ekta) button was pressed and the machine started on its 14 vital steps using six different chemical solutions without further human attention.

After a few phases, a light flashed on beneath the plastic tank signalling the reversal process.

At this point, Rosenberg removed the cover from the plastic tank. "From here on," he said, "you

Teacher Thinks Big When It's Time For School Play

By BILL SANSHING

RINGLING, Okla. (AP) — "If you're going to have your students rehearse six or eight weeks, you might as well give them something worthwhile to do," said high school drama instructor Jack Topping.

And the Ringling High School teacher did just that. He gave them "The Ten Commandments" as a stage production, the first time it ever was presented by either amateurs or professionals outside the movies.

To get permission to use the movie script of Cecil B. DeMille, Topping merely wrote the Hollywood producer.

"We received a reply from his office saying that Mr. DeMille and Paramount Pictures owned the script," he said.

"The letter explained that they would have to check the matter to the legal department. Well, we just about gave up hope when we read that.

"But, you know, within a short time we got another nice letter saying we could use the script. Later they sent it to us.

"The only stipulations were that we should present the play only in Ringling and that our version had to be approved by Paramount. They let us borrow the shooting script without charge.

"Of course we had to make some major adjustments to fit our requirements, especially the lengthy part about Moses' life — which was beautiful on the screen but impractical for us.

Another problem was the tiny 20 by 30 foot stage in the consolidated school's auditorium. But the adjustment was made and a capacity audience of 1,200, more than the total population of Ringling, saw the play.

In the nine years Topping, who is in his early thirties, has been at this small town in southern Oklahoma's cattle and oil country, he has found it takes quality productions — rather than the usual high school fare — to attract a crowd.

"Let's face it," Topping asserted, "it's a matter of attendance and economics. People won't leave their television sets for just anything." His classes have presented "The Robe," "Jerusalem," "Saint Joan," "War of the Worlds" and "Arsenic and Old Lace."

A large number of businessmen in Ringling supplied many of the props used in the high school's production of "The Ten Commandments." The school's home economics and woodwork classes turned out costumes and stage settings and the University of Oklahoma chipped in some period furniture.

The cast included 127 students who worked eight weeks preparing for the two hour, 14 minute play.

School officials figured the one night production, which grossed millions of dollars as a movie, netted $300. To get the 1,200 persons in the little auditorium, chairs were placed in aisles and along walls.

Perhaps the success of the high school play could be attributed to the town in which it was presented. One of the town's founders was circus man deluxe, John Ringling.

NO HALF MEASURES—Dramatics teacher Jack Topping checks his "Ten Commandments" script while Moses (Charles Warthen) stands by. Topping's school obtained the movie script from Cecil B. DeMille and staged it as the annual play.

Schools In Other Lands Described For PTA

GRIFTON — The Grifton PTA rendered "All In The April Evening" and "Magic Moments" the night and heard three talks on schools in other countries. Dr. John M. Christens of Belgium, Dr. Alberto E. Molini of Puerto Rico and Dr. David Fosbury of England who are now with the Kinston Dupont plant, spoke on the schools in their respective home lands.

It was noted in Dr. Christens' talk that there is a difference in the systems, there are separate schools for boys and girls and there is no social activities or between the sexes until late college years. He also said that the Belgium youth took their education more seriously.

In Dr. Molini's remarks there was noted that the schools have a sameness but in most schools uniforms are required.

Dr. Fosbury informed the group that there were no PTA organizations in the English schools, parents have no say, the school boards rule the schools. The compulsory school age is from 5 to 15 years. The public school as defined by him was for the student whose parents were able to pay a very stiff fee for his attendance. Other students attended a grammar or trade school where the schooling was free.

Army Develops TV, Radio Tube With Long Life

FT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (AP)—The Army says it has developed a tube that may last longer than any radio or TV sets the tube serves.

The tube was fashioned jointly by the Signal Research and Development Laboratory here and Tung-Sol Electric Inc., Bloomfield, N.J.

The Army said in an official statement Wednesday that the development is the first major break through in basic tube design in more than 30 years.

The new tube is cold, the Army said, in contrast with the hot cathode tube. It consists of a tiny nickel cylinder coated with dried milk of magnesia and glows blue instead of red. It uses less than a tenth the power of a standard hot tube.

Unlike an ordinary tube, it needs no warm-up period after being turned on.

Musselwhite's seventh Mrs. Nixon's seventh and Mr. Burkes eighth grades.

Immediately following the close of the program parents were invited to visit the home rooms of their children for a visit or conference with the teachers.

The world population will be slightly more than 4 billion people by 1960, says the Population Reference Bureau in Washington, D.C.

CAREER IN COLOR seems to be in the making for Phil Rosenberg, as he works on an early model of his automatic color processing machine in his Detroit basement. It has now been perfected.

bring the camera into use by disengaging one strap end by the snap link, pulling out the strap and snapping it back around his neck.

This device proved so popular that George and his wife have a small business going in the basement of their home to fill the orders.

For home-made ingenuity on a larger scale, we go to Detroit. Thanks to Free Press camera editor Arthur Juntunen, we have the story of Phil Rosenberg and his automatic color processing machine.

Phil, an auto engineer and former professional photographer and can watch the colors appear on the film."

And that is what happened, the editor reported, as the automatic machine finished its job.

Plans are under way to make the machine available to all. A small, compact unit for amateur home use will cost about $400. Larger, speedier, multiple units for commercial photo plants will range from $4,000 to $10,000.

OPERATIC YOUNGSTERS

In courtyard of school compound, students watch opera performance on tiny stage.

Reading, writing and arithmetic, Taiwan style, mix freely with the ancient Chinese arts of mimicry and dancing at Free China's Fu-Hsiung opera school for children. There, 120 children, ranging in age from 7 to 15, are undergoing rigorous professional training for the stage. It is a seven-year course.

The boys and girls live in a compound which is their home, their school and recreation center. Room, board and the wardrobes the children wear are free. A full time staff of 40 prepares costumes, directs makeup, conducts schoolroom courses, paints scenery and provides dining room and dormitory services.

Chinese opera is quite different from the occidental type. It is a traditional means of communication between the people. Behind the melodious or sometimes discordant music, glittering costumes, heroic acrobats, lies the history of China. Themes like morality, ethics and loyalty are woven into the scores.

For his appearance on stage, Chang Fu Hung, 15, has his face painted by makeup supervisor Wu Teh Kwei.

OPERA STAR - JUNIOR SIZE, Nine-year-old Hung Fu Lung plays part of Chinese lancer in one of school operas.

In school auditorium, boys and girls rehearse the stylized dancing which is part of the traditional Chinese opera. It helps to develop poise and grace.

Pupil studies self in mirror before performance. Costume is of rich fabric, heavily brocaded and decorated.

While their classmates sit in circles and watch, students rehearse gymnastic feats. Training develops agility required in interpretation of dances.

Nine-year-old Hsiao Fu Mei seems one of the best poised and balanced during mass calisthenics for entire class of students.

CHAPTER 8

Not only were all the Harlingens gathered in the living room, Murray Kirk discovered, but Ruth Vincent was there as well. She sat straight-backed in her chair, pale and beautiful and remote, and the sight of her hit him like a finger driven hard into his diaphragm. As Ralph Harlingen made mostly small talk, putting everyone on a first-name basis, Murray watched her, seeing the color tinge her cheeks, the small pulse flicker at the hollow of her throat, knowing that even in his waking dreams she had never been lovelier than this. When she suddenly turned her face away from him he realized that he had been unabashedly staring, and didn't care. Let her know, he thought. Let her pile the furniture of her conscience against the door and think she was safely barricaded behind it. He had enough on Arnold Lundeen already to blow apart her tie to the man whenever the time was right.

Dinah Harlingen said brightly: "Ruth's been rehearsing Megan for a little play they're going to do at school. One of those old moralities about Goodman Willing and Goodwife Ready, and so quaint and charming. Isn't it, dear?"

Her daughter plopped down on a hassock, locked her hands over her head, and said in a sepulchral voice, "No, why does something have to be good just because it's old? When Grandfather talks like that he's so stuffy. But everybody else talks like that, and it's terribly heroic and adult. You listen sometime, and see for yourself."

"But it is perfectly charming," said Dinah Harlingen nervously. "At least, what I heard of it. The background music is all done on a single woodwind recorder, too. So medieval. Who is that little boy who plays it, Megan? He looks like a miniature faun."

"That's William Hollister Three," said Megan. "And he's a total neurotic."

"He is not," said Ruth. "And I wish you and everyone else in the Thespians would stop calling him Three, Megan."

"If he doesn't want people to call him that he should stop putting it down on all his papers," Megan said. "He's going to be a total neurotic, too. He said so himself."

"You know, Ruth," Dinah Harlingen said, "perhaps this play wasn't the wisest choice after all. If the children—"

Harlingen stood up abruptly. "Drinks, anyone? Ruth? Murray? No, well I suppose it is pretty early to start lubricating. So if you'll excuse us now, Murray and I have important things to talk over. We won't be long."

Behind the closed door of his study he said to Murray: "I wish Dinah wouldn't interfere like that. Ruth's got her hands full with that gang of demons as it is, and don't think every word said here won't get back to them. Not that I entirely disagree with Dinah, mind you. Giving those kids pre-Elizabethan drama is sheer waste. Tennessee Williams is their speed."

He sat down, found a pencil, and looked at the clock. "Well, did you have any luck with our friend Helen? Did she have anything to do with Miller?"

"No. Nothing at all," Murray said.

"Are you sure? I could have sworn—"

"Dead sure. Her business was strictly with Lundeen."

"How do we know she isn't keeping Miller her secret? Just talking to her wouldn't settle the matter, would it?"

"It would in this case. You'll have to take my word for it that she wasn't Miller's motive, that he didn't frame Lundeen out of jealousy, or anything like that."

"Well, exactly what did you find out from her?"

Murray smiled. "I'll have to pass on that one. Any information not related to the case is for Lundeen alone. I'll be in the file, waiting for him."

"Yes," said Harlingen. "I can't argue with that." He tossed the pencil on the desk, then watched dispiritedly as it rolled off to the floor. "I don't know. I just don't know. Is there any chance that the time he spent with that woman might be overlooked during the trial?"

"There's a chance, but I wouldn't bet on it."

"If she does testify," said Harlingen, "can you see what it means? An officer on duty taking time off to see a married woman on the Q.T.? It means that no matter what happens at the trial Lundeen and Benny Floyd will have to go before the commissioner afterward for dereliction of duty. That's what Floyd's been terrified about."

"Too bad about him," Murray said. "He should have thought of that before he started to cover up for Lundeen. He and Lundeen both turn my stomach. But your job is to defend Lundeen in court, not to hold his hand and tell him what an unfortunate case he is."

"Yes," Harlingen said thoughtfully. "I know what you mean. That's been your attitude from the start, hasn't it, Murray?"

"I've never made any secret of it. I took the case with that understanding. Why?" Murray asked flatly. "Do you have any objections? Is this where I get off?"

"No, Ruth's told me all about your talk with her. About your attitude toward the case."

"All I want to know," said Murray, "is where you have faith in Lundeen even after finding out about this woman and the way he tried to cover up about her."

"He was doing that for Ruth's sake. He's the kind to risk a jail sentence, rather than allow an affair with a passing tramp to become public property."

"You think so?" Murray said.

Harlingen said angrily: "Do you want to drop the case?"

"No, not as long as I'm wanted."

"All right then. Let's get down to facts and quit theorizing." Harlingen leaned back in his chair. "Now, about this Helene, I don't know. What I'd like to do is let it go for the time being. Maybe Lundeen will come to me about it himself; maybe something'll turn up that'll help us get around it. Meanwhile, we'll roll it up and put it on the shelf."

"What about Floyd?" Murray asked. "Won't he be talking to Lundeen about it?"

"Well, I told him not to discuss it with anybody until I spoke to you. I'll call him up tonight and make sure he keeps mum even with Lundeen."

"That's sound policy," Murray said. "As far as my end goes, I'm getting together with my investigators, Strauss and Manfred, first thing Monday. Manfred hasn't gotten anything worth while on Miller so far, but he'll be working on him over the week end, and that's a good time for things to happen. I'll keep in touch with you, anyhow."

"And that about ties it up, doesn't it?" Harlingen said. "Now, how about that drink I owe you? Say, if you don't have to rush away—"

"I'll take a rain check on that," Murray said. "Got an important appointment with genius."

"No, not as long as I'm wanted."

"All right then. Let's get down to facts and quit theorizing." Harlingen leaned back in his chair. "Now, about this Helene, I don't know. What I'd like to do is let it go for the time being. Maybe Lundeen will come to me about it himself; maybe something'll turn up that'll help us get around it. Meanwhile, we'll roll it up and put it on the shelf."

"What about Floyd?" Murray asked. "Won't he be talking to Lundeen about it?"

"Well, I told him not to discuss it with anybody until I spoke to you. I'll call him up tonight and make sure he keeps mum even with Lundeen."

"That's sound policy," Murray said. "As far as my end goes, I'm getting together with my investigators, Strauss and Manfred, first thing Monday. Manfred hasn't gotten anything worth while on Miller so far, but he'll be working on him over the week end, and that's a good time for things to happen. I'll keep in touch with you, anyhow."

"And that about ties it up, doesn't it?" Harlingen said. "Now, how about that drink I owe you? Say, if you don't have to rush away—"

"I'll take a rain check on that," Murray said. "Got an important appointment with genius."

"No, not as long as I'm wanted."

President Plans To Meet Queen

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is planning to meet with Britain's Queen Elizabeth during her visit to Canada this summer.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerly said Tuesday that details have not been worked out but that Eisenhower probably will meet the Queen somewhere along the U.S.-Canadian border when she inspects the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Queen and Prince Philip, due in Canada June 18 for a six-week visit, are to attend a dedication of the new seaway June 26-27.

Policemen's Ball Not On Budget

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — A Quincy police officer edged past the Cadillac parked in the driveway and knocked on the door of the magnificent home.

"Yes?" asked the lady of the house, standing in the spacious reception hall.

"Would you be interested in buying a ticket to the policemen's ball?" asked the officer. "They're only $1."

"No, I'm sorry," she replied. "I really couldn't afford it."

First important gold discovery in Colorado was made in Central City in 1859. Population today is 706.

Pasternak Said Set For Tour

LONDON (AP) — Boris Pasternak, the Russian author called a traitor by Soviet authorities after winning the Nobel Prize for Literature, reportedly is willing now to make a six-week lecture tour of the United States and Britain.

Jose Villalonga, noted Spanish author, and Prof. Philip Hallie of Vanderbilt University are seeking to arrange the tour.

Villalonga, who lives in Paris, said Wednesday night he had assurances "through diplomatic channels that Pasternak would be willing to come."

The Soviet government warned Pasternak last November that if he left the Soviet Union to accept the Nobel prize, he would not be allowed to return. The 60-year-old writer renounced the prize and said he could not "imagine my fate apart from Russia and outside her. . . . To go beyond the frontier of my motherland is to me equal to death."

Pasternak was designated last October for the Nobel prize primarily because of his novel "Doctor Zhivago," which paints a grim picture of Russian life under communism. The Kremlin retaliated by unleashing severe criticism of the writer and his novel, which has been published in 13 languages abroad but is banned in the Soviet Union.

HOME VANISHED—Mrs. Blanche Hill of Detroit points to a vacant lot on which her house stood—until somebody made a mistake with a bulldozer. The excited woman phoned the Detroit Housing Commission and reported that wreckers on an expressway demolition project went one house too far and cleared away her house and its contents with a bulldozer. No one was in the house at the time. The president of the wrecking company said "this is awful. We'll make it right." Mrs. Hill valued the house at $11,000. (AP Wirephoto)

Two Injured In Traffic Mishap

A car-motorcycle collision at the intersection of Sylvan Drive and South Dickinson Avenue Wednesday resulted in injuries to two people and approximately $575 total damage to the vehicles.

Police charged Jarvis Tripp, 26, of Rt. 2, Box 90-A, Greenville, driver of the 1954 auto involved, with failure to yield right of way.

Operator of the motorcycle, a 28-year-old Negro named Lyman Earl Scott, of Greenville, suffered a dislocated shoulder and bruises of the head. A passenger in the auto, Mrs. Hazel Garris Tripp, also suffered lacerations of the nose and bruises of the forehead. Both were treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Cow Victim Of The Space Age

OKEMAH, Okla. (AP)—A government experiment may cost $210 additional because of what it did to a curious cow.

Farmer A. L. Starkey sent a bill for that amount to Weather Bureau officials who, in turn, forwarded the message of the cow's death to Washington.

Weathermen sent a balloon to the earth's outer atmosphere. It burst and then settled back to earth—in a pasture occupied by Bessie, a 3-year-old polled Hereford.

She munched on the equipment and despite efforts of a veterinarian, she died.

"You can call Bessie a victim of the space age if you want to," said Starkey. "But she was worth $210—maybe more."

Rocket Center's Opening Is Set

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP)—A rocket center will be opened here April 25 and dedicated to the father of modern rocketry, the late Dr. Robert H. Goddard.

Present at the ceremony will be Hugh Milton, assistant secretary of the Army and former commander of New Mexico Military Institute here.

Dr. Goddard experimented with rockets north of Roswell in the late 1930s after finding that Massachusetts was too crowded for such research.

Early-day and modern rockets will be displayed at the new museum.

MARCH OF DIMES MOTHER Mrs. Virginia Connors, 35, of Cranford, N. J., poses with two of her children in New York in preparation for a luncheon in her honor at which the National Polio Foundation named her 1959 National March of Dimes Mother of the Year. Mrs. Cranford was stricken with polio and paralysis in September, 1955, and now gets about in a wheel chair. But she runs her own household and has a teaching job in public school at Westfield, N. J. ### Resigned To No Schools In 1959

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Most Little Rock high school students and their parents apparently are resigned to finishing this year without public schools, despite recent court moves to reopen the facilities immediately.

"It's too late to do any good this year," said one mother. "My Billy is settled at a private school, and he'll probably stay there because we couldn't be sure the public schools would stay open if they are reopened."

The speaker was representative of thousands of parents who first looked on school closing as a temporary measure but who now are prepared to extend emergency educational provisions indefinitely, mainly through this school year.

Caught in a massive battle between federal and state governments on the school integration question, 2,000 Little Rock students this week finished first semester work in schools in other communities. Some 1,100 more are nearing midterm at newly organized private schools here.

About 700 students, including 450 Negroes, remain out of classes altogether.

Community sentiment is divided on the school issue. Many prefer that the schools remain closed if integration is the only alternative.

Students apparently continue to take the situation in good spirits. The novelty of attending new schools, even at great inconvenience, has not worn off. Many said they prefer the new schools to the old, mainly on grounds that they are smaller, more friendly.

Mayor Collects City's Old Bills

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP)—Mayor Ben C. Schuck is not only Wausau's chief executive, he's pretty good at collecting old bills—for the city.

When he took office Schuck found a stack of old bills nobody had bothered to collect. Most of the money was due for paving improvements, some of them made in 1953.

The mayor said that in some cases residents had not paid because they felt the jobs weren't completed. "In such cases we did the work and collected the bills," he said.

"My office has collected $4,343 in old bills," he declared.

Smarter Than Humans In Diet

NEW YORK (AP)—In the matter of diet, dogs outsmart many humans.

Researchers for Neutrena Mills, a dog food manufacturer, say they have found that just before reaching adulthood, puppies suddenly begin eating less.

A cocker spaniel, for example, when almost full grown at 24 weeks, will drop in less than a week's time from 14 ounces of food each day to as little as 8 or 9 ounces. The reason for the adjustment, the specialists say, is that the dog's system simply doesn't require as much nourishment once the growing cycle is completed.

Cookbook Sends Girls To College

CHICAGO (AP)—A cookbook is sending Swedish coeds to college.

The American Daughters of Sweden presented the University of Chicago with $16,000 toward a $30,000 endowment fund for scholarships for coeds of Swedish descent.

Most of the fund was raised from the sale of a 180-page cookbook containing recipes for 22 different ways to prepare herring as well as many other Swedish delicacies.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDREW C. LANG

New paints are emerging from the laboratories in a steady stream, a large percentage of them aimed specifically at the do-it-yourself home owner.

It's a wise purchaser indeed who looks over his dealer's entire stock of paints and finishes before he makes his decision. A look-see is in order even if a visit has been made to the same store a week or two earlier. There's always a chance that the researchers will have come up with something that may fit a particular paint problem a little more specifically.

One of the unusual paints that seems to be making a hit in homes where there are small children is one that leaves a hard green or black slate finish. It can be written on with chalk or crayon and the writing easily erased with a regular blackboard eraser or damp rag. The color simulates the "bite" and writing qualities of slate and can be applied to wood, plaster, metal, composition board or any other surface.

Glass can be frosted with (what did you expect?) a glass-frosting paint. It allows the light to come through yet gives complete privacy. The paint is easy to apply and quick to dry and achieves an elastic, opaque finish that withstands scrubbing and extremes of temperature.

For a "baked-on" effect, there is a liquid porcelain enamel, especially suitable for use on washing machines, refrigerators, dryers and similar home appliances. It now is available in many colors so that it can be used for transforming white into a sunny shade as well as for a mere refinishing job. This enamel is said to be extra long-wearing, designed to withstand the onslaughts of boiling water, grease, steam, fumes and alcohol.

Since the exclusive province of gymnasium and other heavy-duty floors, a triple-duty varnish is available for the home. It is excellent for floors that get extra-

Lost 2 Engines, But Plane Safe

HONOLULU (AP)—An Air Force Superconstellation lost both of its port engines, but the pilot landed it safely an hour and 30 miles later, using only the two starboard engines.

Nineteen airmen were aboard the C121 radar plane which was on a reconnaissance flight.

Maj. Earl W. Bierer, the pilot, said the No. 2 engine dropped off, damaging the propeller of No. 1. His co-pilot was Maj. Mervin G. Getty.

They are based at McClellan AFB, Sacramento, Calif., but were on temporary duty at Hickam AFB, here.

Won't Concede They're Licked On New Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some congressmen won't admit they're licked on postage stamps. "A commemorative stamp is one of the honors of our government, and I do think Congress should have a voice in it," Rep. Abraham J. Multer (D-NY) said in an interview Wednesday. Multer is one of 11 congressmen who have introduced bills to authorize various commemorative stamps — although Congress stopped passing such legislation back in 1949.

To get a special commemorative stamp now a person has to ask the Post Office Department. All requests go to a committee of seven members appointed by the postmaster general—three artists, three philatelists and one representative from the U.S. Information Agency. The department issues about 12 to 15 special commemorative stamps a year. It used to issue many more when Congress was passing stamp legislation. In 1948 President Harry S. Truman vetoed a bill calling for a stamp to commemorate the landing of the first Swedes in America. A great furor arose and the department issued the stamp. In the next Congress the Post Office committees of both the House and Senate passed resolutions saying they wouldn't consider any more postage stamp legislation because they weren't set up to handle the scheduling and production problems.

That policy continues. But Multer said he still hopes it will change. His bill would honor Col. David (Mickey) Marcus, a West Point graduate who, he said, was commander of the Israeli forces during the war of independence of Israel and was killed. Marcus came from Multer's district. Other stamp legislation introduced this year would commemorate National Flag Day, the Battle of Kings Mountain, S.C., and the 100th anniversary of Illinois State Normal University. Still others would honor the nation's pioneer lumberjacks, coal miners, the American farmer and Sequoyah, the famous Cherokee Indian. Rep. John P. Saylor (R-Pa.) wants a stamp bearing the phrase, "highway courtesy is contagious." "Even if the committee doesn't consider it and the legislation isn't passed, I hope this will bring the matter to the attention of the post office department," Saylor said. Other sponsors apparently have similar hopes.

Tax Men Accept Mother's Story

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service told a Dallas woman she would have to pay an extra assessment if she couldn't come up with a "reasonable cause" for filing a late income tax return. She replied: "At the time I should have filed I was having a baby and it was next to impossible to fill out the return and get it in on time." Turner had cashed the check from his own pocket for a man who gave an invoice for the construction work. Fifteen Northampton citizens appeared as character witnesses for Turner, who has headed the county school system for 20 years. He is on a leave of absence to defend himself in court.

AFL-CIO Chiefs Plan Wage Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders, spurning President Eisenhower's renewed plea to curb wage increases, meet today to chart a new drive for pay boosts.

Al G. Hayes, president of the Machinists Union, said in advance of a meeting of the AFL-CIO Economic Policy Committee he does not agree with the President's wage-price policies. "Saying prices and overly high profits are to blame for inflation, Hayes added that "I don't agree with the implication that decent wage rates are responsible. "It is misleading to the American people."

Hayes is a member of the AFL-CIO policy group headed by United Auto Workers chief Walter Reuther. Its position has been that wages are too low in relation to costs and profits. The President's annual economic message to Congress Tuesday said most indicators are pointing upward but renewed inflation could retard recovery prospects. Eisenhower urged business to keep down prices and labor to confine wage increases to improved output.

Similar Eisenhower pleas for moderation have fallen on deaf ears in the past. Both consumer prices and wages are now at record highs by the government's measurements. Labor already is hitting for hefty new pay boosts in 1959. Sizeable new coal wage increases went into effect this month. Oil workers are

Ervin Sees N.C. Works Omitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam Ervin (D-NC) says he "can't understand not having one red cent in the President's budget for public works in North Carolina."

"We certainly need appropriations for improving the Morehead City harbor and for the Wilkesboro Reservoir on the Yadkin River," Ervin asserted Wednesday.

He told reporters he will join Sen. B. Everett Jordan and Rep. Paul Kitchin (D-NC) in a fight to obtain funds from Congress for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Ervin touched on politics after one reporter suggested that since he had co-authored labor and anti-bombing bills with Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass), there might be a Kennedy-Ervin ticket for president and vice president in 1960.

"Since I live below the Mason-Dixon line and am not known for advocacy of civil rights," Ervin said, "I would not be able to exercise the civil rights I have to run even if I wanted to run." The Tar Heel senator added that his only interest is staying in the Senate.

Final Arguments Due In Superintendent's Trial

JACKSON, N.C. (AP) — The jury which will decide an embezzlement charge against Northampton County School Supt. N. L. Turner today hears final arguments by state and defense lawyers.

The case was due to go to the Superior Court jury later during the day, following the charge by Judge Walter J. Bone.

The charge involves a check for $180. It is the first to be tried of many charges against Turner. More than $6,000 in school funds is involved.

The prosecution has given no hint on the course it will follow on the other charges after the present trial ends. A claim that charges against Turner were politically inspired was voiced to the jury Wednesday by Ralph Branch, one of the lawyers defending the 39-year-old veteran school official. Branch asserted that Turner was being crucified on "a cross of politics." J. Lunsford Crew, assisting in the prosecution, said the reference to politics was a "red herring" designed to draw attention from the charges.

A key witness Wednesday was C. W. Moseley of Lenoir, Va., owner and operator of the M. & W. Well Co. He testified his firm never received a $180 check drawn on the Northampton school fund for well construction at a county school. The check was endorsed by the name "L. H. Moseley." No one by the name ever worked for his company, Moseley told the jury. Mrs. Dafne Lynch, secretary to the school official, testified that

Newsman Await Awards Tonight

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — A big thrill for a newspaper and its staffers is to win hard-earned recognition by other newspapers for outstanding work.

Various Tar Heel daily and non-daily newspapers gain that recognition here tonight when excellence awards are presented at the North Carolina Press Assn.'s annual Press Institute.

The opening program of the institute was preceded by the North Carolina Associated Press Club luncheon. The featured speaker was Max Harrelson, veteran Associated Press foreign correspondent and now chief correspondent for the AP at the United Nations.

Sen. B. Everett Jordan (D-NC) and William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, were scheduled to address the institute session tonight.

Separate meetings for daily and non-daily newspapers open Friday's program, followed by a trip to the Duke University campus Friday night for an address by Dr. James T. Cleland, dean of the university chapel. A business session rounds out the institute Saturday.

Arrowheads, Other Indian Relics Are Used In Unique Art Designs

By VERA SAVAGE
Henderson Daily Dispatch
Written for The Associated Press
HENDERSON, N. C. (AP) — Two Indian heads and a buffalo hang in the farm home of Clarence Holt Thompson near Wise, N. C. But they are not the result of any head hunting expeditions or big-game expeditions. Thompson has used thousands of arrowheads and other Indian relics and mounted them on plywood panels to create a unique form of art in authentic designs. In one display arrowheads and a few spearheads are spaced artistically in proportion to show two life-size Indians with tommyhawks crossed. This design is mounted on a four by six foot frame, with copper wiring wrapped around each stone and threaded through holes bored in the wood. This work of art, time consuming and tedious, has been named by Thompson as "Rival Chiefs."

The buffalo, which was copied from a specimen in the State Museum in Raleigh, is three-quarters of a life-size animal. This design is entitled "The Indian's Best Friend."

"It took me 12 months in spare moments and nearly 2,000 stones to finish "Rival Chiefs," Thompson said, adding, "With the buffalo, I was a little more experienced in the work and things went along much faster." He completed the buffalo display, requiring about 2,200 arrowheads, in less than a year.

Thompson explained that the two exhibits were finished nearly twenty years ago and are still perfect in every respect. In designing the buffalo, he encountered a little difficulty in that he was running out of space on the board for the animal's tail and was uncertain as to what to do until he noticed the buffalo on a buffalo picnic. It's tail was curved around its flank, so, with a few changes in the pattern, Thompson soon had his problem solved.

A number of the arrowheads which help comprise Thompson's exhibit have specific and distinct designs pertaining to the lives of the Indians who first shaped the stones. These designs were inscribed into stones as an early custom of various tribes.

In making pottery, an Indian brave would have his squaw first to weave a straw basket or container of some kind and then place the wet clay into the basket which served as a mold. When the clay was cooked, the straw burned and the impressions worked into the reeds were left on the finished pottery. As the crockery was used over a period of time, it would sometime break and bits of it were made into arrowheads. Some of the stones in Thompson's collection still bear these designs. Many people ask the relic artist where he obtained so many arrowheads. It's simple. As a boy, he found hundreds of arrowheads in the fields on the farm in Warren County where he was reared and began saving them. He stored the stones in cigar boxes, because, he said, if arrowheads are stored in large quantities, they soon break or shatter into pieces. By the time he was in his late twenties, Thompson had more than enough for his two projects.

As reason for the vast number of Indian relics found on the Saint, Sing farm, Thompson explained that the property is located on what was once the old Indian Trail from Jamestown, Va., to the western part of North Carolina. Also, long ago, Indians followed waterways for ease in traveling, and as a result, hundreds of the relics were discovered near streams on the farm.

Now, however, seldom are the stones seen in the soil, since modern day machinery used in agriculture has crushed or shattered them.

In addition to the more than 4,000 arrowheads that comprise his two collections, Thompson has enough to complete his next work which he says will be a reproduction of the painting, "The End of the Trail," with the exception that instead of using oil and brush, he will be using stone relics. The next project is expected to take at least two years to complete and will require over 5,000 stones. When finished, it will show a life-size Indian on a horse and other scenes which he expects will cover nearly an entire wall in the Thompson home.

The artist intends to appropriate his entire collection of Indian relics to classical reproductions of famous paintings.

When not busy at work on his hobbies, which also include writing, Thompson works in Warren County where he is employed on the tobacco market. He also helps manage the Saint-Sing farm, for years given the name, "Mockingbird Hill." (The idea for this name was derived from a one-legged mockingbird which nested in honeysuckle vines near the farm house.) During World War II, he served with the Eighth Air Force and spent two years in overseas duty.

He presently is writing a volume of the history of Wise Baptist Church of which he is a member. Upon completing the book, Thompson expects to begin his next "arrowhead" design, which will be a bigger task than both previous projects combined.

'Alfalfa' Switzer Is Shot To Death In Quarrel Over Money

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP)—Actor Carl (Alfalfa) Switzer, 33—a freckle-faced, wide-eyed movie star as a boy—was shot to death Wednesday night. Police said the shooting had occurred during an argument with another man over money.

Switzer was a favorite of moviegoers a generation ago when he appeared in "Our Gang" and "Reg'lar Fellers" comedies. He became known again with reissue of the films to television under the title "The Little Rascals."

But in recent years his movie parts had been minor, and he worked as a bartender and hunting guide when not acting. He realized nothing from reissue of the old films.

Police said Switzer had gone to the home of a friend, Mike Stiltz, 38, Wednesday night in an effort to collect a $50 loan.

Detectives Louis Bell and Ernest Johnson said Stiltz told them that an argument had developed and Switzer hit him on the head with a clock. Stiltz got a gun, and he fired harmlessly while they struggled, Stiltz said Switzer drew a knife, and Stiltz shot him in the abdomen the latter said.

The shooting was witnessed by Jack Piott, 37, who had accompanied Switzer to Stiltz's home, and Mrs. Rita Jane Corrigan and her three children, who were there when Switzer and Piott arrived.

Stiltz was held for questioning. Switzer began his movie career in 1933. He and his young colleagues pranced through a long series of "Our Gang" comedies and then, as they grew older, appeared in the "Reg'lar Fellers" series.

Some of Switzer's pictures in those days were "Too Many Parents," "Wild and Woolly," and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

After 1942 Switzer's career went into eclipse along with those of most of the other kids who had appeared in "Our Gang" and "Reg'lar Fellers." Jackie Cooper was one member of the gang who went on to success as an actor.

Switzer continued to act, but the parts were sparse. Among his most recent pictures were "Going My Way," "State of the Union," "Lilian in the Sky," "High and the Mighty," "Dig that Uranium, and "The Defiant Ones."

Just a year ago Switzer was slightly wounded in a mysterious shooting near his home. A sniper winged him in the arm. The police never learned who the sniper was.

Switzer was divorced in 1954. Learning of his death, one of Switzer's fellow child stars, George (Spanky) McFarland, said he was "shocked, to say the least." McFarland, who now has a TV show in Tulsa, Okla., said he and Switzer had been close boyhood friends but that they had only infrequent contact in recent years.

Goldwyn Claims Stars' Prices Curbing Movies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) Movie producer Samuel Goldwyn says the motion picture industry is at a record low because of the high prices paid stars.

"How long do you think this will continue — when actors demand and get up to a million dollars a picture, and a huge share of the gross or the profits in addition?" he asked Tuesday night at a Screen Producers' Guild Banquet, where he received the Guild's Milestone award.

"There are some people in Hollywood who can write, direct and produce, but there are very few of them," he said. "Actors would do well not to try to take over the functions of the producers."

Cost of reconstruction of the U.S. Capitol now underway in Washington, D.C. will be about 10 million dollars.

Homework Took Them Elsewhere

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Deciding that Puerto Rican nurses needed to improve their English, officials at Brown Hospitals here agreed to pay for courses at the University of Dayton.

First homework for two taking an English composition course was to write a business letter applying for a job. Both turned in excellent letters, so good that the girls sent them to another hospital and got new jobs.

DeMille's Outward Assurance Concealed His Deep Worries

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A giant has gone.

The heart of Cecil B. De Mille stopped Wednesday morning, erasing the most colorful movie maker from the Hollywood scene he had dominated for 45 years. De Mille always invited superlatives; his films were the biggest, made the most money, were seen by more people throughout the world.

Superlatives aside, what kind of a man was he? The answer is best told in his own words.

Despite his outward assurance, he said he faced his job with trepidation.

"I have never made a picture without being frightened," he said. "Of what? Of my own ability. Of whether I squeezed the most out of my material. Of whether I created something that would bring the public's heart."

He prepared his scripts with infinite pains. "A good story" is everything. If you have that, the director and the stars do not make much difference. They can help a picture a little or hurt it a little. But they can't make a good script into a bad picture, or a bad script into a good picture."

He supervised even the smallest details in his films. "What did the people wear and eat in those Biblical times? Did they eat roast beef or lamb chops or what? It would be as bad to show them eating the wrong thing as it would be to show them dressed in tails and top hats."

He made pictures for the public alone, though the disdain of the intellectuals stung him. "I have often wondered why critics are hostile. If the people are entertained, that should be enough. Every time I make a picture, critics' estimation of the public drops 10 per cent."

He demanded loyalty from his ever-present retinue but denied the legend that he hired only yes-men. "I pay pretty generously, so why should I pay a man more than 20 dollars if all I wanted him to say is 'Yes'? On the other hand, I don't want an aide who continually 'noses' me. He'd be just as worthless. I want assistants (and I have them) who can give me good reasons for disagreeing."

He was a stern taskmaster and could wither an extra at a hundred paces. "I have been called a tyrant, a despot and a martinet because I lose my temper when I see someone playing checkers on a set that cost $40,000 a day when he should be paying attention to his job. It's the same with alibis. I don't have enough time on this earth to listen to alibis."

He had faith that the movie business would continue despite its ills. "They've been saying the theater is doomed for 6,000 years. My belief is that if our material is good, we won't have to worry."

He wanted to die in the saddle.

"I don't suppose I will ever quit unless I am forced to. If you are a good story teller—and Mrs. De Mille and I believe that I am—I think you should stick to your trade as long as you are able."

He had been planning two more productions on a schedule that would have taken him to the age of 85 — "and then they'll have to come and wheel me away." But after returning from a strenuous tour for his last picture, his heart wore out before he could conclude his work.

Plan Presenting 'Bartered Bride'

Smetana's "Bartered Bride" will be presented by the Opera Theater of East Carolina College February 2 and 3 at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis Auditorium. The production will be produced under the direction of Paul Hickfang, faculty member of the college music department.

Rose Rich, senior from Albemarle, and Ann Darden, sophomore from Williamson, will each appear in one performance as the heroine, Marie. Gerald A. Powell of Riedsville, a junior, and Ronald Knouse of Winston-Salem, a freshman, will have the principal roles for men.

Mrs. Inez Laube of Greenville is serving as dance director for the production. Colorful and attractive costumes and stage settings are being planned to contribute to the effectiveness of performances.

Included in the cast, in addition to principals, are George Johnson, Oxford; Lynford Saunders, Roanoke Rapids; Jane Fuller, Greenville; Hannah England, Weaverville; Ray McNeely, Newton; Kenneth Killebrew, Rt. 2, Rocky Mount; Ashlynn Mauldin, Kannapolis; Judith Hearne, Henderson; Alfred Krekeler, Kenneth Gim, and Martha Bradner, all of Greenville; Jane Murray, Roxboro; and James C. Burns, Sumter, S.C.

Give Up Hope of Finding Little Lost Boy Alive

LEBANON, Mo. (AP)—Authorities have given up hope of finding Willard Jones Jr. 3, alive.

The boy has been lost in this Ozark Mountain area since Saturday. Searchers, numbering some 5,000 at one time, haven't found a trace of him.

Temperatures in the area have been freezing or below since he wandered away from his farm home 10 miles south of Lebanon. Snow blanketed the area Tuesday night.

The search was stopped Wednesday. Sheriff Neil Brown said the hunt will be resumed when the cold weather breaks, but he thinks the boy is dead. Police have speculated that Willard either fell into a stream and drowned or froze to death after crawling under brush to escape the cold.

His parents have eight other children.

INSINCERE DEPUTY

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Asked why she hadn't heeded a summons for jury duty served by a deputy sheriff, a woman told Judge F. Pierce Keese, "I thought hee was 'kiddin'."

The judge believed her and didn't fine her.

Fast Correction; Santa Isn't Dead

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Officials of station WHIO-TV are hurriedly assuring area youngsters that Santa Claus is not dead.

Apparently a lot of the small fry got the numbers mixed up when a program provided a telephone number for getting in touch with Santa. A funeral home reported about 50 calls.

Goldwater Will Head Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators accepted Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) as their 1959-60 campaign chairman Wednesday after opposition from self-styled liberals among them had wilted.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (Mass.), chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, said the group had given unanimous ratification to his appointment of Goldwater to lead the campaign committee.

That action was taken after the conference rejected a proposed charter in the method of selecting the chairman.

Saltonstall also named these other members: Sen. Alexander Wiley (Wis.); Homer E. Capehart (Ind.); Frank Carlson (Kan.); Wallace F. Bennett (Utah); Prescott Bush (Conn.); J. Glenn Beall (Md.); and Norris Cotton (N.H.).

Sen. John Sherman (Ky) had led the opposition to Goldwater. He had contended publicly the selection of the Arizona might invite Democratic allegations that Republicans are anti-labor. Goldwater says he is not anti-labor at all.

Survey Reports Trading Stamps Offset The Cost

WASHINGTON (AP)—A survey shows that customers pay more for food at supermarkets which give trading stamps, but the added cost is more than offset by the value of the stamps.

The Agriculture Department, reporting this today, said its study in 21 cities showed that food prices in stamp-giving stores averaged six-tenths of one per cent more than those in nonstamp supermarkets.

But the value of the stamps amounted to about 2 per cent of the money spent at stores giving stamps, the studies showed.

The survey covered the period from November 1953 to March 1957. In a report on the study, the department said: The use of stamps apparently has no significant effect on prices paid to the farmer. But it noted this potential gain for purchasers:

"If the consumer pays six tenths of one per cent more for food in the stamp-giving store but redeems his stamps at the rate of 2 per cent, he benefits by the extent of this difference. That is, if you don't count the time and trouble it takes to save and redeem these stamps."

Swap Settled 2 Housing Cases

WASHINGTON (AP)—Both Andrew W. Roland and Walter L. Stanley showed up in court with housing problems.

Roland was being sued on a Health Department complaint that his home was too small for his family of nine.

Stanley was being sued for not paying his rent. He said his home was too big and expensive for his family of five.

Both cases were settled in one stroke. Roland and Stanley swapped homes.

His Son Tough; Will Bite Snakes

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Doug Harris was bragging today about how tough his son can be.

The son — Timmy Ray, aged 15 months — had picked up a garter snake that promptly curled around the boy's arm.

Doug stammered a warning.

Timmy Ray gurgled, patted the snake, then bent over and bit it in two.

Cotton Farmer Ordered Comply

FAYETTEVILLE—Vernell Jones, Robeson County farmer, has been ordered to comply with the child-labor and record-keeping provisions of the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act in a consent judgment signed here by U. S. Judge Don Gilliam.

The complaint against Mr. Jones, filed by Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, said 8 children under 16 years of age were working on his farm when their schools were in session.

Jones was producing cotton which, though sold locally, found its way into interstate commerce through later sale so as to make his farming operations subject to the federal child-labor law.

Judge Gilliam's order also directs that proper records be kept on all employees in the future. In the case of children, this includes a record of the name, address, and date of birth of minors under 16.

Investigation of the Jones farm was made by G. S. Taylor and V. T. Craddock wage-hour investigators on the staff of the N.C. Department of Labor. The Fair Labor Standards Act is administered in North Carolina by state employees through a federal-state agreement.

WHERE AM I?
BRIGHTON, England (AP) — A 62-year-old man arrested on the beach of this Sussex seaside resort for being drunk and disorderly told police: "If you charge me I won't come to Southend again." Southend, another resort, is more than 70 miles away in Essex.

Plan Afternoon, Evening Courses

East Carolina College will initiate in the spring quarter a special program of undergraduate courses to be taught in late afternoon or at night.

Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins has just announced that plans for the program are well underway. Efforts, he said, are being made toward offering courses, with emphasis upon required courses, which will be of value to undergraduates working toward a degree and to teachers interested in raising their certificates.

Scheduling of a number of courses at hours convenient to people unable to attend classes during the regular school day is expected to benefit many who do not now hold degrees, especially to teachers, Dr. Jenkins explained.

The new series of undergraduate courses will be offered by East Carolina College in addition to the program of graduate work now being given in the afternoon or at night, Dr. Jenkins stated. A large number of teachers and other students who are working toward the master's degree are now participating in this graduate program, he said.

Already announced in the new series of afternoon and night classes for the spring quarter are the following courses for undergraduates: Application of Science to Industry and Commerce, Geography of Canada, Advanced English Grammar and Composition, Practices and Procedures in Health for Elementary Schools, Children's Literature, and World History to 1500. In response to demand, other courses may be added.

Further information about the new program of courses may be obtained from Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Vice President, East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C.

Any Coastal City Is Open To Attack By Submarine In Germ War Tactics

By ROGER GREENE
 WASHINGTON (AP)—An enemy submarine, masked by fog or darkness a few miles offshore, could blanket almost any American coastal city with deadly germs spreading over thousands of square miles.

Fantastic? It already has been done—by U.S. Navy ships using harmless materials.

Dr. LeRoy D. Fothergill, scientific adviser at the Army's Germ Warfare Research Center at Ft. Detrick, Md., recently gave the American Medical Assn. an inkling of what might happen.

Fothergill said, a U.S. Navy craft, traveling two miles offshore in moderate fog, sent up a spray of biological aerosol containing a nonpoisonous organism. The mock attack lasted 29 minutes, using 130 gallons of spray. The germs were detected as far as 23 miles away and covered 100 square miles.

Later, a ship cruising 10 miles offshore disseminated 450 rounds of an inert substance along a 156-mile course. The wind-borne substance was detected 450 miles inland. It blanketed a region covering 34,000 square miles.

What is being done to cope with the possibility of such an enemy attack, using live germs or deadly chemical gas? The Defense Department is wary about answering such questions.

The Army announced several years ago it had developed an aeroscope to give instant warning of a germ warfare attack. The device can count germs, dust and moisture particles as small as a micron—one forty-millionth of an inch—1,000 times faster than a microscope.

The Army Chemical Corps has developed an infrared device—known as "Lopair" (long-path infrared)—which flashes a warning light and sounds a horn upon detecting even a tiny amount of colorless, invisible contamination in the air. It has a range of a quarter mile.

This question was submitted to the Pentagon: "How many automatic nerve-gas detecting devices are now in use? Where?"

After 25 days of deliberation, the Pentagon came up with this answer: "Many of these automatic devices are in use throughout the Department of Defense. The exact number and locations of the devices is classified (secret)."

Less hidebound by secrecy, the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization says that by 1967 it expects to have 1½ million monitors trained to defend against chemical, biological and radiological warfare.

Leo A. Hoegh, OCDM chief, says the agency this year has installed radiation detection kits—modified geiger counters—in 15,000 high schools and 900 weather stations and airports from coast to coast.

In addition, 3,471 Public Health Service employees and 3,045 others have been trained to guard against animal and crop contamination.

So far, so good, but—

The OCDM admits that if an enemy should strike today with germ or chemical warfare, the American public would be unable to buy or obtain either gas masks or antigas protective clothing.

The agency has stockpiled 5½ million doses of atropine, with the kits costing $1.55 for a four-dose package including hypodermic needle.

Maj. Gen. William M. Cressy (ret.), former Army Chemical Corps chief told a House subcommittee:

"If you get there fast enough, you can save the man's life (with atropine) if he doesn't have too much of a massive overdose. It is a matter of getting there awfully fast, though." How fast? "Thirty seconds," said Cressy.

Ignore Warning, Cars Trapped

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The sign under the elevated freeway construction project said "no parking."

That didn't deter 12 car owners. They parked anyway but returned to find their autos trapped by stacks of construction materials.

They had to pitch in and level off a big hump of gravel in order to get out.

Wayward Cows Liked His Pool

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Carl Waldt found two cows swimming in his backyard pool. He grabbed them by the ears and led them to the shallow end, where they scrambled out.

Then in splashed a third cow. He took it out too.

Later he learned a gate had been left open at the nearby University of Arizona dairy farm—and the prize Holsteins just sauntered out.

Bomarc Bases In Canada In 1961

OTTAWA (AP) — Two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases are scheduled to be operating in Canada in late 1961.

It is understood the bases will be in the neighborhood of North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que.

The Bomarc is manufactured by Boeing Airplane Co. of Seattle. Ottawa officials say the missile, to be highly effective, will have to carry a nuclear warhead.

Under U.S. law, Canada cannot be given American atomic warheads but they could be kept under U.S. custody at the Canadian sites. These sites will be roughly on a line running from Sault Ste. Marie to Quebec City to help protect the Canadian industrial triangle east of the Great Lakes.

Each site will have 56 launching platforms as well as the radar control unit, housing for personnel, maintenance shops and the like.

By 1961, the Canadian air force says, the Bomarc should have a range of more than 375 miles. The missile is a pilotless interceptor and will operate in almost the same way as the manned CF100 jet fighter currently functioning in Canada's air defense system. The Bomarc is designed to carry out its task more quickly and to be able to climb higher.

The two bases and the semi-automatic ground environment electronic system to control their operations will cost about 264 million dollars.

Air Raid Alert Set Off By Dust

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP)—Electrically charged dust particles from a howling sandstorm set off the air raid alert system here Tuesday.

The dust, kicked up by winds which hit 65 m.p.h. in gusts, lodged in the alert system's relays, became electrically charged, and set off the system.

NEW YORK (AP)—Oils and airlines resumed their uptrend as the stock market advanced moderately in active trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks gained fractions to a point or so generally. There were wider advances as well as a scattering of losers.

Tung-Sol Electric was an outstanding gainer, adding more than 6 points before paring about 2 from the rise.

Alcoa dropped a point. Rome Cable was up fractionally.

Fractional gains were posted for Kennecott, American Smelting and Reynolds Metals.

Many leading rails were unchanged, others mixed. Seaboard was up slightly, Illinois Central off a bit.

American Motors was off about a point.

Sharon Steel up 2 and Youngstown Sheet, up 1, were outstanding in a ragged steel group.

Eastern Air Lines rose about 2 and American Airlines a point or more. Texas Co. and Royal Dutch rose more than a point each. High priced Superior Oil of California clipped a 50-point rise back to 35 or so.

U. S. government bonds were steady.

Fifty-One ECC Students Are Suspended For Party

Fifty-one East Carolina College students have been ordered suspended from all classes, effective tomorrow, for participating in an off-campus party January 10.

Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina, said this morning the suspensions will continue until February 2 when the students will be permitted to return to the campus and to classes. Four other students were suspended last week for the remainder of the winter quarter, for conducting the party, which was unchaperoned and contrary to college regulations.

The 51 students who begin their suspensions tomorrow will be required to leave the campus after completing classes today. Dr. Messick said. He added that any member of the group who does not leave the campus will be automatically suspended for the remainder of the winter quarter which continues through the month of February.

Under terms of the suspension orders, recommended by the college's student - faculty Discipline Committee and approved by Dr. Messick, each of the suspended students will miss six full days of classes. The absences will be unexcused, which could mean a loss in quality points.

College regulations require a student to attend at least 75 per cent of his class meetings to receive credit for a course. Students are permitted to be absent, without excuse, once for each hour of course credit, but all absences in excess of the number of credit hours results in a loss of one quality point for each excess absence.

The college's grading system gives a student one quality point per hour for a "3", two quality points per hour for a "2", and three quality points per hour for a "1". A grade of "4" on any course does not carry any quality points and a grade of "5" results in a loss of one point per hour of course credit.

Students are generally required to maintain an overall "3" average to remain in school.

The party the students were found guilty of participating in was held in an off-campus residence rented by the four male students suspended last week. Residents of the neighborhood in which the house is located complained to Greenville police about loud talking and laughing. City police notified campus police, who, in turn, notified Dr. James H. Tucker, Dean of Men at East Carolina, and dormitory counselors.

The college personnel went to the house, with city police, and found the party in progress. Dr. Messick said no misconduct, other than drinking, was observed.

In announcing the Discipline Committee's findings and recommendations, and his approval of them, Dr. Messick said this morning, "The incident is very regrettable. The policy of the college is to serve, but it also to control, within reason, for the direction of character training, as well as intellectual attainment.

"Therefore, we do have to safeguard the reputation of the institution by some regulations of menations, and his approval of them. Dr. Messick said this morning, "The incident is very regrettable. The policy of the college is to serve, but it also to control, within reason, for the direction of character training, as well as intellectual attainment.

Special Music Planned With Sermon Tonight

"Who Lives In You?" will be the subject of tonight's sermon in the James Methodist Church's Stewardship - Evangelism Crusade which will continue through Sunday.

In addition to the sermon, which will be delivered by guest minister the Rev. L. O. Leet of Dallas, Texas, tonight's service will include special singing by the church's Adult Choir, Rider Quartet and a violin solo by Mrs. Kenneth A. Wilson of the Adult Choir.

The sermon tonight will be climaxed by the story of Leonardo Da Vinci's painting of Judas Iscariot in Da Vinci's "The Last Supper". The Rev. Mr. Leet will be assisted in tonight's service by the Rev. C. C. Cribb of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, who will deliver the evening prayer.

The Rev. Thomas Money of Hooker Memorial Christian Church assisted with last night's service when the Rev. Mr. Leet's sermon topic was "Must A Man Die?"

Tonight's service will be the ninth in the crusade series. The Rev. J. Malloy Owen, III, host minister, said today, "The statement that 'this is a revival that is different' has proved to be true. It is different in that it is a campaign of 12 days, 12 weeks and 12 months. The preaching is pointed toward the goals of the next 12 months, and of life, rather than the results from the first 12 days."

The crusade is open to members of other churches in Greenville and surrounding towns and communities. Services tonight and tomorrow will begin at 7:30, with a special Victory Sunday service planned for 10 a. m. Sunday.

Record Earnings

F. Richard Atkinson, vice president; J. S. Moye, vice president and cashier; and Sherrill Bryant, farm representative, commented on the bank's operations and activities.

Waldrop, in his report to stockholders, commented on the new home office for the bank being constructed at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets in Greenville. "The rapid growth of the Guaranty Bank system requires a new home office not only sufficient in size to carry on our present and contemplated operations, but also to provide the very best in the way of facilities and new services for the convenience of our local area people," Waldrop said.

The building will be three stories with all general banking services on the first floor. The second floor will house the trust, audit and bookkeeping departments, and the third floor will contain the directors' room and a community meeting room. It will be of modern construction with tan brick, white Georgia marble and blue stone. Paying and receiving teller services will continue to be maintained at the site of the Guaranty banking office on Evans Street after the new building is completed.

Commenting on the eastern North Carolina area served by the Guaranty Bank system, Waldrop said that most areas were favored with a much better agricultural position than in the previous year. Farm crop production, yields and cash sales in certain areas were particularly good, he said. In others, he added, farm income was not on a par with the average because of local distressed conditions. "We strive to be good corporate citizens not only in Greenville, but also in all the area we serve," Waldrop told stockholders.

Stockholders elected W. H. Woolard honorary chairman of the board, and an honorary director. His brother, J. D. Woolard of Williamston, who is chairman of the Williamston board, was elected to the general board of directors.

All other directors were re-elected to the board of directors. They are: J. A. Staton, A. W. Angus, J. H. Waldrop, E. Graham Flanagan, J. H. Blount, James T. Little, Ralph H. Hodges, Vance L. Robertson, Wayne W. Massey, H. E. Anderson, John D. Messick, John C. Proctor, Lindsay C. Warren, E. B. Aycock, L. S. Ficklen, F. L. Blount and J. H. Moye.

Following the stockholders meeting, the board of directors met and re-elected the following officers:

J. H. Waldrop, president; Ralph H. Hodges, chairman of the board; J. H. Moye, vice president and trust officer; F. Richard Atkinson, vice president; Jos. S. Moye, vice president and cashier; J. W. Overton, vice president and comptroller; A. J. Moore, assistant cashier; Ralph P. Hardee, trust officer; Ralph C. Tucker, assistant cashier; James W. Joyner, assistant cashier; and Claude R. Taylor, assistant auditor.

The following branch bank officers were also re-elected:

William A. Magee, Jr., cashier, Aurora; John D. Rafferty, cashier, Bayboro; J. E. Edwards, cashier, Belhaven; S. C. Ives, cashier, Bethel; R. H. Staton, cashier, Dickinson Avenue Branch; A. G. Small, vice president and cashier, Elizabeth City; W. H. Woolard, Jr., cashier, Meadowbrook branch; D. R. Everett, vice president, Robertsonville; B. L. Stokes, cashier, Rogersville; V. N. Whitehurst, cashier, Snow Hill; A. F. Whitley, cashier, Vanceboro; H. S. Gurganus, vice president and cashier, Washington; J. M. Moye, cashier, West End branch; and D. V. Clayton, vice president and cashier, Williamston.

Liz Taylor Took Disneyland Tour

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor was resting her tired feet today after a full day at Disneyland with two of her children and singer Eddie Fisher, her constant companion.

Fisher and Miss Taylor and her two sons by actor Michael Wilding, Michael, 6, and Christopher, 4, took in all the attractions.

"I told her those slippers would not support her," Fisher said as he helped her into a car at the end of the day of sightseeing.

The party was the target of scores of tourists with cameras.

Truck In Mishap Privately-Owned

A truck involved in an accident with a pedestrian reported yesterday by The Reflector as belonging to the Greenville Fire Department, was the property of a volunteer fireman, Chief George Gardner said today.

The pick-up truck, owned and operated by Harold Ross, a volunteer fireman who had answered a fire call at the time of the accident, brushed a passer-by. The truck was backing up at a rate of 2 miles per hour. The passer-by walked into its path. He suffered minor bruises. No charges were placed in the incident.

Expansion Plans For Ayden Bank

AYDEN — President Walter L. Stroud of the First National Bank of Ayden told the annual gathering of the stockholders Tuesday that the bank had an increase of approximately half a million dollars in deposits during the year 1958.

He also reported the planning of a building expansion program which includes the purchase of the McKinney - Edwards Drug Store Building. He stated that plans will be completed after Edwards Pharmacy has been renovated and moved to a new location.

The death of bank president G. C. Dixon on May 7, Stroud remarked, was "a great loss to us (the bank) as well as the community."

Directors for the new year were elected and installed. They were S. M. Edwards Jr., Charles L. McLawhorn, R. H. McLawhorn Jr., W. C. Ormond, W. A. (Jack) Quinlery, A. F. Rowe, Harry W. Littleman, Jesse R. Stokes, and Walter L. Stroud.

President Stroud will be assisted this year by the following officers and employees: A. F. Rowe, vice-president and cashier; A. F. Rowe Jr., assistant cashier; Mrs. Virginia T. Everett, Mrs. Hazel J. Hart and William Earl Stock, tellers; Mrs. Gladys H. Corbett and Mrs. Hazel C. Phillips, bookkeepers, and Miss Peggy Wadkins, bank clerk.

Small Tornado ...

Some tin was ripped from the roof of one house while the roof of a dwelling located on the farm where the barn was overturned was nearly ripped away.

The wind damage appeared to be very local—within an area of less than a mile. A short distance either way down N. C. 43 from the damage area, houses and barns appeared undisturbed.

At noon today there had been no reports of major damage from wind elsewhere in the county.

However, the Greenville Utilities weather station reported high winds throughout the day and night. Wind velocity averaged 25 to 35 miles per hour with occasional brief tornadoic gusts yesterday and last night.

Heavy black clouds were pushed rapidly through the skies during the turbulent day.

The highest temperature yesterday was 74 degrees during the afternoon. The low last night was 65. At 8 a. m. today the thermometer stood at 58 degrees.

Approximately 97 inches of rain fell during the 24-hour period and the Tar River stood at 5.6 feet.

This morning the winds seemed to have subsided a bit although it was still blustery. It was particularly cloudy today. The unseasonably warm weather was expected to give way to another cold wave tonight and the weather man was warning of a hard freeze.

Judge Gilliam Is Planning Retire

RALEIGH (AP) — Federal Judge Don Gilliam of Tarboro today announced he plans to retire from the bench.

Judge Gilliam, who has been in poor health for nearly a year, said he will ask to be placed in active retirement after he reaches his 70th birthday March 12.

The judge's announcement was made public by A. Hand James, clerk of U. S. District Court for Eastern North Carolina.

James said, "Judge Gilliam has authorized me to say that while he has been assured by his physicians recently that he has shown marked improvement, that on their advice he has decided it will be unwise to attempt to again take the responsibilities and duties of the judgeship of this district."

"About mid-March," said Judge Gilliam, "I will have reached my 70th birthday and promptly after that date I plan to ask for active retirement."

"During active retirement I will then be able to perform such duties for the court as my health will permit."

Judge Gilliam has not held court since last April 9 when he collapsed during a trial in Raleigh.

He had to be assisted from the courtroom.

He was hospitalized for several weeks thereafter and since has been under the care of physicians at Tarboro.

Although he has not held court recently, he has been able to go to his office almost daily.

During the months of Judge Gilliam's illness, several other federal judges have conducted terms of court in the Eastern District. These included Judge Edwin Stanley of the Middle District and Judge Wilson Warlick of the Western District.

Driver Charged In 2-Car Crash

Police charged Joseph Saleed, of 900 Ward Street, with failure to yield right of way in an accident which occurred Wednesday at 1:15 p. m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Seventh Street, involving a 1958 station wagon.

Saleed was driving a 1957 auto which was damaged approximately $350, according to police reports. The station wagon, operated by Donald Eatmon, 41, of 206 South Warren Street, was damaged $200.

Names Omitted In Officer List

The names of Secretary H. W. Lee and Attorney J. B. James were omitted from a list of officers of Home Savings and Loan Association included in a story in yesterday's edition of The Daily Reflector.

Lee and James were among association officers re-elected by stockholders at the group's annual meeting Tuesday night. The Daily Reflector regrets the omission of their names.
