Flood Waters Largely Receding In Stricken Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floods still menaced some areas in five eastern and central states today but waters from swollen rivers and streams were receding in most sections.

The chief problem for the thousands hit by last week's devastating floods in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia and Indiana was the huge cleanup job.

The Red Cross estimated more than 22,000 families were affected by the floods.

Cold air, with snow or rain, spread from the central plains across the northern half of the country, adding to the inconvenience of flood victims.

In Ohio, one of the states hardest hit, the Ohio River was the last of the state's waterways threatening further flooding.

The Weather Bureau predicted an expected 57-foot crest will be reached near Meadville tonight.

The Ohio floods caused an estimated damage of 100 million dollars in 76 of the state's 88 counties.

In western Pennsylvania, many roads were re-opened and public transportation was returning slowly to normal.

At Meadville, Pa., the ice-choked French Creek returned slowly to its banks and some of the 2,000 persons evacuated moved back into their homes.

Demolition experts blasted at two huge ice jams which kept about 10 per cent of the city of 25,000 under water for five days.

At Pittston, Pa., rescue workers finally halted the flow of water from the Susquehanna River into a mine shaft where 12 men have been trapped since Thursday.

Few believe the 12 men would be found alive. The big job of pumping out the tons of water which poured into the mine was expected to continue for two days.

Thirty-three other miners escaped the flooded mine last Thursday.

The cold air covered a vast area from the central plains eastward through the upper and middle Mississippi Valley to the Ohio Valley, the lower Great Lakes region and parts of New England.

Snow spread along with the cold air from Kansas eastward into the Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes.

Colest weather—below zero—was confined mainly to the upper Mississippi Valley and the upper Great Lakes region.

It was a little warmer in the Gulf states with temperatures 8 to 12 degrees higher than 24 hours earlier.

Urrutia Believed Ready To Take Reins

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Cuba's revolutionary government after a hectic three-week organizing period is turning its attention to the outside world.

A good deal is certain to be heard from provisional President Manuel Urrutia and his Cabinet ministers on Cuba's economic and political role in international affairs.

Urrutia's regime has been overshadowed by revolutionary chief Fidel Castro and his war crimes trials of ex-dictator Fulgencio Batista's lieutenants.

Castro's visit to Caracas may have coincided with the end of the new government's most difficult period.

Urrutia has had to find qualified personnel to fill civil posts vacated by the mass cleanup of Batista supporters.

He has had to act quickly to meet such urgent problems as getting the vital sugar harvest underway and repairing war-damaged highways, railways and communications.

A harassing factor has been foreign criticism of the speedy military conviction and execution of so-called war criminals and the carnival atmosphere in which the public trials opened in Havana last week.

Maj. Humberto Sori Marin, presiding over the three man revolutionary tribunal, announced the second Havana trial would be shifted from the Sports Palace to the Hall of Justice of the Superior War Court just outside Camp Columbia.

The next defendant is a Batista army captain, Pedro Morejon, 38.

Vinson Endorses Extending Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's plan for a four-year extension of the draft law got a potent push in Congress today.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) told his House Armed Services Committee "we have no choice" but to extend the draft.

"I hope there will be no hesitancy on the part of any member of the committee to meet his responsibility in this regard," the 75-year-old chairman announced.

Vinson's remarks were prepared for the start of hearings on the administration bill to keep the Selective Service Act in effect until July 1, 1963.

The measure also would extend the doctors' draft, the existing suspension of manpower limits for the armed forces and provisions aiding servicemen with dependents.

Mixed Term Of Court Is Opened

Judge Henry L. Stevens, Jr. of Burgaw opened a one-week mixed term of Superior Court here this morning.

The term is calendared to continue through Thursday and will include a sitting of the Pitt County Grand Jury. The jury was reorganized this morning, with nine new members being named for one-year terms and D. A. Blue appointed foreman.

New members of the Grand Jury are W. D. Thurston, James A. Taylor, Bruce Edwards, C. W. Harvey, Jr., Tom V. Joyner, Walter E. Lewis, Alton Whines, W. G. Norman and James L. Harris, Jr.

Representatives of other Christian communities, in addition to Roman Catholics, are likely to be invited to attend.

The 77-year-old pontiff announced his intention to convene the council Sunday after a mass in honor of the conversion of St. Paul the Roman Jew and persecutor of Christians who was struck to the ground on his way to Damascus.

The Pope did not announce a date for the council. Because of the gathering's great size and possibly long duration, the preparation may take many months.

Ecumenical means worldwide, representing the whole church. The 20 previous Ecumenical Councils were called to deal with major problems facing the church, such as heresy and schism, to resolve questions of faith or to establish dogma.

The Vatican announcement said: "Regarding the celebration of the Ecumenical Council, this is the thought of the Holy Father looks not only to the edification of the Christian peoples, but is in-

Adlai Charges Public To Blame For Education Ills

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Adlai Stevenson charged today that the American people themselves must shoulder the blame for the ills of public education in this country.

"If the community wants driver education or bachelor cooking instead of Latin and mathematics, it will get it," he told the annual convention of the National School Boards Assn. in a prepared address.

And if the colleges give scholarships to boys with coordinated bodies rather than with coordinated minds, what will a student value?"

The titular head of the Democratic party reminded the school board members from across the nation that "students and their families are reluctant to borrow for education. They will buy TVs, autos, washing machines, even travel, on time and credit, but not education for their children. Is it less necessary?"

He said "improvement is imperative," despite "the anti-intellectualism of so many communities, the inertia of so many pupils, and the poverty of so many school districts."

Stevenson rapped the nation's schools of education and teachers' colleges for what he said was living in isolation from the sources of intellectual ferment in the great universities.

"There has been too much emphasis on how to teach a child, rather than what to teach him," he said. "The emphasis must be restored to teaching teachers the solid content of history, science, English, etc., instead of the techniques of teaching."

He said, "Personally, I doubt if we ever again have enough teachers, let alone enough good ones. We will have to have more recourse to the new techniques of teaching by film and television. Happily, the American teacher, no longer dependent on the printed page, can now draw from a vast library of remarkable educational films to open the doors of a child's mind."

The spurt that Sputnik gave education is dying down, Stevenson said.

Special Session For Virginia Legislature

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia's Legislature will meet in extraordinary session Wednesday to seek new defenses for the state in its battle against integration in the public schools.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr., called the special session Sunday night—six days after the courts had dealt a knockout blow to "massive resistance" laws enacted in 1956.

Without these laws, under which nine schools have been closed, the state is powerless to prevent or delay integration where it is ordered by federal judges. In one school in Arlington, it has been ordered by federal judges. In one school in Arlington, it has been ordered for no later than Feb. 2.

Almond indicated he will offer the Assembly only a stopgap program designed to meet the most immediate problems—when he addresses the State Senate and House of Delegates in joint session Wednesday noon.

The governor said he still plans to appoint a committee of legislators to formulate a long-range anti-integration program.

Almond declined any hint of specific measures he would recommend. He said "it would serve no useful purpose" to disclose whether he will offer a plan aimed at staving off integration in Arlington and in the localities where closed schools may have to be reopened on a racially mixed basis.

He said, "Personally, I doubt if we ever again have enough teachers, let alone enough good ones. We will have to have more recourse to the new techniques of teaching by film and television. Happily, the American teacher, no longer dependent on the printed page, can now draw from a vast library of remarkable educational films to open the doors of a child's mind."

Norfolk, Charlottesville and Front Royal.

In Arlington, plans have been laid to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court the order of U.S. Dist. Judge Albert V. Bryan that four Negroes be enrolled at Stratford Junior High School for the semester starting Feb. 2. School board attorney J. H. Simmonds said Sunday he will confer with a representative of State Atty. Gen. A. S. Harrison today or Tuesday.

Norfolk, where 10,000 pupils were affected when six schools were shut down last fall, may find out today whether the schools must be reopened. The City Council has voted to deny operating funds to all grades above the sixth effective early next month. This move, which would close white as well as Negro schools, was to be challenged today before U.S. Judge Walter Hoffman.

In Charlottesville, where two schools with 1,700 pupils have been closed, the school board has been told by its counsel it must reopen the schools "within a reasonable time." Similar advice has been given the Warren County School Board, whose 1,000-pupil Warren County High was closed.

He said the Eisenhower administration favors immediate passage of statehood legislation but recognizes that Congress must set its own schedule.

"The grant of statehood to Hawaii will prove to the world—and particularly to Asia—that we practice what we preach," Seaton said in prepared testimony.

"I say we need the participation of Hawaiians in our counsels, and their advice and experience in dealing with the peoples of the Orient."

He pointed out that Hawaii is the only incorporated territory now, and its 59-year apprenticeship in territorial status is longer than was required of any of the present states.

Long before annexation in 1898, he said, Hawaiians were thoroughly imbued with American ideals and American culture and the Americanization has continued at a rapid pace since incorporation.

He rejected arguments that Hawaii is susceptible to control by Communists.

"The fact is that the people of Hawaii, time after time, have utterly rejected the Communist philosophy and every attempt of Communists to influence their government," Seaton said.

"The people of Hawaii wrote into their proposed state constitution a far-reaching prohibition against any Communist holding public office or public employment of any kind."

He also recounted that the Hawaii Legislature in 1949, during a prolonged dock strike, passed laws giving the territorial government comprehensive power to seize the docks in event of a strike. Those laws have been an issue in four subsequent general elections but are still on the books today.

And, Seaton continued, there were warnings communism would control the 1950 constitutional convention but instead the convention adopted "the strongest kind of anti-Communist protective language."

Seaton said Hawaii is economically and politically qualified for statehood and has a population of about 635,000, larger than that of six of the present states.

To the argument that Hawaii is not contiguous to the rest of the United States, Seaton said: "The admission of Alaska provides an excellent rebuttal. Contiguity is not, in this day of jet transportation, essential to preserve our union."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in a formal length gown of white Skinner taffeta and imported Chantilly lace, fashioned with em-werly dressed identically in short formal emerald green lace sheaths with iridescent taffeta overshirts forming a pouf hemline. They wore matching tulle chapel veils and carried cascade bouquets of white fuji mums interspersed with ivy and green croton leaves.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Bradshaw, Miss Frances Canaday, Miss Ann Hudnell and Miss Harriet Sutton, all of Kinston. Wearing short formals they carried corsages of feathered carnations pinned to their evening bags.

The bridegroom had Charles Ritter of Washington, D. C. as his best man and ushers were Frank Morgan of Cimarron, Kansas, Roy Flanagan and Michael Flanagan of Kinston, brothers of the bride, and Timothy Navidomskis of Washington, D. C.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother wore rose beige lace over pink taffeta, harmonizing accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in wedgewood blue chiffon, matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Charles T. Bent of East Greenwich, R. I. wore beige wool with satin trim and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

In the early evening Mr. and Mrs. Devine left for a wedding trip after which they will make their home in State College, Pa. Mrs. Devine chose a royal blue woolen suit with black shoes and bag with white accessories. She wore an orchid corsage from her bridal bouquet.

A reception was held by the bride's parents at Hotel Kinston immediately after the ceremony.

The guests were greeted at the door of the ballroom by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Johnson and introduced to the receiving line composed of the bridal party and the parents of the bride and the bridegroom.

The room was decorated in green and white with standards of burning white candles and palms.

Mrs. Walter Harrington of Greenville and Mrs. James Doyle of Virginia Beach, aunts of the bride, served at opposite ends of the white satin covered table, centered with variegated white flowers and five branched candelabrum. Sandwiches, cheese straws, punch, bridal cakes and salted nuts were served the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Blalock registered the guests while Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hudnell said the goodbyes.

Cake-Cutting
Friday night immediately following the rehearsal for the Devine-Flanagan wedding a cake cutting was held at the home of Mrs. Charles C. Skinner entertained the Sans Souci Book Club at her home in Sheraton Place Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the English Department of East Carolina College. Dr. Utterback read excerpts from Abigail Van Buren's book "Dear Abby."

"Abby Van Buren," she said, "is a lovelorn columnist for a San Francisco paper whose column became so popular that it was syndicated two weeks after it started and is now read by millions of people. She gets about 7200 letters a week—every one of which is answered." Dear Abby is a collection of some of her most interesting letters and her replies to them. She noted that Abby's advice is filled with wisdom and a wonderful philosophy which is "to spare those around you as much unhappiness as possible and never pass along the evil you hear."

Following the program, Mrs. Skinner served a chicken salad plate with hot coffee and coconut cake.

Potential New Conservative Ally

If Senator Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) is right Southern conservatives in Congress have new allies in the Mountain states of the West.

Commenting on the defeat of his gag rule proposal in the Senate earlier this month, Douglas called attention to one facet of the voting which has thus far been underplayed. "The old bipartisan coalition", he said, "has been working beautifully. Conservative Southerners on the Democratic side; conservative Republicans on the other side. This is the coalition that has been operating for 20 years. It is still in effect."

"Now, I shall say something which will hurt me but in the interest of fairness I have to say it. They have been joined in this struggle largely, but not exclusively, by the small states, particularly of the West. . . it is apparent that a third element has now been added to the coalition, namely, most of the small states of the West."

Perhaps the senator was jumping to conclusions based principally on the gag-rule vote; perhaps not. Time will tell. Certainly there is reason to believe the Mountain states could join the conservative coalition now existing. And, it would be a welcome addition.

The Mountain West, like the South, has a tradition of individualism. Both regions are semi-rural, with small towns and cities; not claiming big cities dominated by labor bosses. Nor are either of them affected by leftist influences.

Common interests should make for a commonsense strengthening of the conservative alliance. The Mountain West might well prove to be a practicable partner for Northern and Southern conservatives in the struggle against the over-zealous liberals in Congress.

The prospects bear watching.

New Legislature Has A Weighty Calendar

According to a tentative list of activities awaiting the 1959 legislature, as drawn up by Governor Hodges' liaison man . . . ex-Senator Joe Eagles, the forthcoming General Assembly may well be the busiest in many a year.

As to being "one of the most constructive legislative sessions in North Carolina history", the proof of the pudding will be in the eating.

Such things as the proposed withholding plan for state income taxes, a new legislative building, the matching fund for the state to equal local expenditures for school construction, court organizational changes, rebuilding of the Outer Banks, possibility of re-raising the auto mechanical inspection law . . . all raise as many (or more) questions than their mere introduction answers.

Too, we are told the legislators are going to have more study commission reports to act on than at any previous time in history.

This quick summary of what confronts the next assembly sounds impressive enough; but there are bound to be introduced a considerable number of other proposals of widespread interest.

In all likelihood, more money will be involved than in any past budgetary contemplation. This alone would make the coming session of more than passing interest.

But the quality of a legislative session, newsworthy in its impact on a state's peoples, doesn't lie in the menu that is placed before it . . . rather, it's the positive actions that result.

The weight of difficult decisions often promotes uncertainty and procrastination, and the legislature convening in February has a heavy burden awaiting.

As Eagles suggested, this could well be the most constructive legislative session in North Carolina history . . . or, we may witness a piecemeal operation.

Either way, Tar Heel observers are going to have much to ponder over in the months ahead.

Developments Worthy Of Note

By RALPH ROBNEY

Several current developments on the business front again are worthy of note. First, in December private housing starts on a seasonally adjusted annual basis rose to 1,430,000, the highest since 1955. For the year as a whole there were 1,199,000 housing starts. Private forecasts had been that 1959 would show about a million and one-half, or better, so this is really good news. Further, and equally important, it is now obvious that the housing industry will remain strong for at least the next six months and, if mortgages money remains plentiful, probably for all of 1959.

Construction as a whole continues to make new high records. This is the result of the road building program, schools, hospitals, and so forth. In November total construction was at an annual rate of $52 billion, and it is expected that this year as a whole will maintain that pace.

Second, industrial production, as measured by the index of the Federal Reserve Board, rose another point in December. That brings this index to 42 per cent above the average of 1947-49. The gain in December was only one-third as great as in November, but this index always is stated in full numbers, which means that if the actual increase was 1.4 it would be reported as a one point gain in the report. This December rise was caused by a further increase in durable goods production, largely automobiles and their component parts.

For the year as a whole total industrial production according to the Reserve Board index, was 134 as compared with 143 in 1957. Production of non-durables was the same in both years, but durables had declined from 160 to 142.

Third, personal income declined in December. The drop was caused by a lower volume of year-end dividends and a smaller amount of transfer payments in the form of unemployment compensation, social security and veterans' payments. Wages and salaries continued to advance as a result of a slightly longer work-week and a small increase in the rate of wages. The total net change was a decline of approximately $900 million. For the year as a whole personal income was $353.4 billion — some five and one-half billion above 1957. For 1958 wage and salary payments were about one billion below 1957, but transfer payments more than made up this drop. In its mid-year budget review last September the Administration estimated personal income for the year at $352 billion. The final figure, in spite of the December drop, is almost $1.5 billion above this estimate, which means increased revenues for the government.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE MUST MEET BASIC REQUIREMENTS King Solomon was one of the most distinguished human beings that ever lived. Yet he was also one of the great failures. He stands with two other men — Aristotle and Leonardo da Vinci — as among the best informed persons the race has produced. As a king he had wise domestic and foreign policy. His name meant "peace" and his life and reign, save at the very end, were characterized by peace. In his declining years, life seemed to cave in on Solomon. He died an unhappy man. He left a horrid legacy to his son. He who should have gone down as one of history's greatest characters went down as one of history's greatest failures. Solomon had certain ailments—and they were spiritual ailments. In the first place he was vain and luxury loving to such an extent that he was willing to oppress his subjects in order to satisfy his own vanity. Again, Solomon would not face a moral problem and settle it. He swept all moral problems under the rug. His many wives worshiped many different gods, and Solomon in a spirit of good-natured tolerance allowed these women to bring these gods into the land of Israel and corrupt the spiritual and moral life of the land. There is no true success in life — for Solomon or anyone else — save spiritual success. Make and keep the soul right with God and success will take care of itself. And always remember that the only real success is that which conforms to the requirements of our spiritual nature.

To Celeste, A Fair Deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Celeste Holm's favorite drink is milk. But she is a gal with a champagne spirit, and has the easy air of one who floats through life in a saddle on a bubble.

"I'm supposed to have the energy of six wildcats," she remarked, "but I'm not aware of it."

Celeste made an unplanned theatrical debut at the age of three. Her mother and father had taken her to lunch at the old Waldorf-Astoria. She was seated on two phone books at a table when the chamber music started. The small child slipped down and began to dance, unconscious of anyone else. When the music stopped, everyone in the room smilingly applauded her.

Started back into awareness, the child ran, sobbing, and hid under the table. When her mother gently asked why she had wanted to dance, Celeste wept: "I didn't want to waste the music!"

This incident from her childhood gives a good insight into what she is today.

Miss Holm. She never has been one to waste the music of living. "You pay for what you get in this world," she observed. "But, on the other hand, you also get what you pay for."

"It's a fair deal." A girl who has shown she can do practically anything in the theater except possibly the Indian rope trick, Celeste was the last leading lady for George M. Cohan. She made Broadway history with her singing of "I'm Just a Girl Who Can't Say No" in "Oklahoma!" and she won a Hollywood Oscar in the film "Gentleman's Agreement."

Her gift for satire shines brightly now in her latest Broadway comedy, "The Best Sport." The third best sport — after sex and baseball, according to the authors — is attending business conventions.

As a bride forced to spend her honeymoon at a business convention, Miss Holm hilariously explodes the current myth of "The Corporation Wife" — that a woman who marries an executive always marries his corporation. The role is perfectly suited for Celeste, who is an individualist to the core. If anything in life bores her, it is social hypocrisy.

"I hate the idea of always trying to find tags for people so you can fit them nicely into some pigeonhole of your mind — whether they really fit there or not," she said.

"I like to remember something my mother once said. She said that a sophisticated person was one you could enjoy spending an hour with without finding out what he did for a living."

"It is so boring to have people judge what you are merely on the basis of your job or your income. People fascinate me more than anything else in the world — but not their jobs or their income taxes."

Celeste, an all-around actress, doesn't want to ever to be typed merely as a comedienne. "A sense of humor is a wonderful thing," she said. "But comedy, after all, is only one aspect of life. It is the spice of life — not the bread and butter of living."

She doesn't believe in a completely planned life. "If you are bound too much by rules and regulations, they can paralyze you. You have to be free in some situations to improvise — to be creative."

She sums up her philosophy thusly: "Do the best you can with whatever's at hand. Value the present — if you want to keep interested in life. The present is all we can hold in our hands. Live life as it comes."

"But always remember to save a little time to do what you really want to in this world — then you'll have the strength to do what you have to."

Why isn't advertising aimed at meeting government competition legitimate? Actually it may be more legitimate than normal advertising aimed at private competition. For the government's competition in the electric power field is not always fair. Public power projects enjoy certain financing and tax advantages unavailable to private utilities. —Salt Lake Tribune.

large numbers of jet planes on order, many airlines are worrying about what to do with their prop planes, many of which are almost new. Some, of course will be needed for short runs. But the South American market, which has been absorbing many replaced planes, is near saturation and many South American nations are in financial trouble.

Cement record. Outstanding orders and highway and construction programs indicate a demand for more than 310,000,000 barrels of cement this year, topping the record of 309,000,000 in 1956.

Check on income tax reports are sure for this year. Tax men have been given refresher courses in spotting tax dodges. The Administration is trying to squeeze out as much tax money as possible under present rates to keep the budget in balance.

Effort To Beat Gravity

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — Everyone knows the force of Gravity. The baby learns it when he first falls to the floor; the child learns it when he slides down the stair banister; and so it goes. I got one of my main lessons when I worked for the Adirondack Power Company at Niagara Falls, New York. The greatest illustration in the world is at Kariba Gorge, on the Zambezi River in Africa, where I have been in the past few months. HARNESSING GRAVITY

Gravity, like electricity, will some day be harnessed as a source of cheap power. It is true that we now do not know what gravity is or where it comes from. Gravity waves go through buildings just as do radio waves, which we also know little about. We do not know where electricity comes from or how it travels. With all the power it possesses, we cannot see electricity or magnetism.

Gravity is the only known physical force that cannot yet be retarded. We can insulate against heat or cold; we can shut off light by pulling a window shade or closing a blind; but retarding gravity even 10 per cent has thus far been impossible. Of course, no one wants to eliminate it 100 per cent, as we would rise to the moon without it, whether we wanted to or not!

ANTI-GRAVITY STUDIES It is, however, very important that the downward pull of gravity be regulated or partially insulated. Certain airplane companies are now feverishly working on this problem. The U. S. Defense Department is hoping that Russia will not discover the solution before we do. A partial insulation of gravity would revolutionize the making of rockets, missiles, and all "sputniks" or "luniks."

Its regulation could also render partial relief to the 10,000,000 U.S. citizens who suffer from arthritis, neuritis, and other rheumatic troubles.

Therefore I am especially interested in the educational work which the Gravity Research Foundation of New Boston, New Hampshire is doing. Here is a humble organization which is trying to discover a means of preventing people from "getting tired" when working in factories, homes, or stores. As air-conditioning adds so much to the well-being of people during the hot weather, a slight retarding of the force of gravity in the factory and home would do much to keep manual workers and mothers from "getting tired" at their jobs.

GETTING OVERTIRED IS DANGEROUS Most colds and many illnesses are now caused by getting overtired. Every physician will tell you this. We never "catch cold" when we are rested and healthy and have proper sleep and diet. Even shopping is a tiresome chore. Think how the stores where gravity could be retarded would get the patronage!

Moreover, the stores would be able to regulate this gravity pull by a thermostat, letting it be "natural" in the morning and decreasing its pull toward the end of the day when everyone feels tired.

I believe that investors should be interested in the studies of the Gravity Research Foundation. The total efficiency of every plant would naturally speed up if the workers did not "get tired" during the latter part of the day. Time studies will prove this. I further believe that "getting tired" is a basic cause of many strikes which are so destructive both to good will and to profits. Regulation of the gravity pull would do much for industrial peace. Fatigue is the great enemy of man.

INCREASING SALES Let me conclude by referring to my own experience. It is very hard for any one to sell me anything — land, stocks, merchandise, or even an idea, when I am tired. If this is true of me, it should be true of 75,000,000 other adults in the U. S. Think how sales of all kinds would increase if, upon going into a store, we would feel refreshed and anxious to buy. Of course, the ability to regulate gravity pull by a thermostat and thus prevent people from getting tired has not yet been achieved. Neither has a cure for cancer and other scourges; but I can assure readers all these are on the way.

"I'm working on stereo-steriophonic much reproduction," he said.

We said, "Huh?" several times and he went on: "Steriophonic music is an improvement over monophonic music. But while it picks up sound from both left and right of musicians, it is still in a single plane. But with picking up the sound from both left and right and all of the musicians, I can get true sound reproduction."

"There may be some technical problems," we suggested gently. "What are technical problems when there are still millions in it?" he demanded. Guess they aren't so much.

Other Editors Saying... What Price Stability?

(Wall Street Journal)

Without going in for wage-price controls, the Administration plans to campaign vigorously for price stability. A special Cabinet committee will examine Government programs for their effect on prices, and exhort labor and management to hold the line.

Now price stability sounds at first like a highly agreeable condition, especially after the experience of the past 25 years. And this new committee may be able to do some good, especially in its scrutiny of Federal projects. But the question ought to be asked whether price "stability" is actually the goal we want. Literally, price stability would mean prices would go neither up nor down. That would have to mean wages and salaries could not go up. We doubt that the scores of millions of people who work for a living in this country would care to contemplate a future without pay increases. Also, most of us would like a situation in which prices could go down as well as up, rather than price stability.

In short, it's pretty hard to argue that there's something wrong with pay increases as such. It's equally hard to argue that prices should not fluctuate in a free economy. The trouble lies elsewhere. What has happened in most of these past 25 years is that the Government has been inflating the money supply. It is that inflation which has largely made it possible for labor unions to demand and get wage boosts which exceed any economic justification in terms of increased output or other contributions. This pressure, plus the inflation itself, has goaded prices on their fairly steady upward march through the years. The absence of inflation would not preclude wage increases, but would make the more rational: the absence of inflation would mean that prices would respond — down as well as up — with much greater alacrity than now to changes in demand and other conditions.

So we suspect that when people say they want "stable" prices, they do not mean that at all. They want a dependable currency — one that isn't continually eaten away by inflation. We would all be getting somewhere at last if the Government would concentrate on giving us not stable prices but stable money.

More Look-Aheads In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more look-a-heads in business, developed from analyses of developing trends: More Alaskan get-rich schemes. Never in history have fast-buck boys failed to cash in on public excitement over a major new development and there are no signs that Alaska will be an exception. It will be wise to check with banks, Better Business Bureaus and attorneys before investing in Alaskan land, mining, timber and other schemes.

Credit card trouble. Rebellion of restaurant owners against 7 per cent charges by credit card companies is growing, fanned by the restaurant trade press. A rising number of restaurants say they will add charges for credit — which may be the best way out anyhow. The card carrier should be willing to pay for credit services, especially when in a spending mood.

Limitations In Making Laws

By LYNN NISBET

LAWS — The process of enacting bills into laws is governed by constitutional limitations, statutory authority and rules adopted by the Senate and House. The constitution sets out a number of things about which the Legislature cannot make laws, and a few things are required to be handled. In both respects the General Assembly has often flouted the constitution with impunity.

No statutory provision of any prior session is sacrosanct or immune to amendment or repeal but until amended or repealed existing provisions are binding. A major function of committees is to catch infractions in these areas. Most important for members to know are the current rules of the respective branch in which the bill is introduced.

These rules impose no limitation upon ideas or subject matter. They do require that bills clearly state the subject matter in the title, that the text be easily legible and that a specified number of accurate copies accompany the main bill. Statement of the bill's purpose is necessary for the presiding officer to know what committee should consider it.

To aid legislators in properly preparing bills the Attorney General's office maintains a bill-drafting service. It is not necessary that all bills be prepared or approved by this agency, but a lot of time and trouble can be saved by that practice. No bill can be acted upon without going through a committee unless two-thirds of the members present vote to suspend the rules. That is a fairly common practice, particularly in the first and last days of the session.

ENACTMENT — No bill or resolution can be enacted into law without majority vote on two separate "readings" in each branch. The constitution requires three readings, but practice has established the introduction as the first reading. If the bill purports to levy a tax, direct or indirect, the readings must be on three separate days in each branch, requiring a minimum of five days for final enactment. Bills other than tax measures may be passed through both branches in one day, unless there is objection. If objection is raised a two thirds majority vote is necessary to authorize immediate passage.

Requirement for more than a simple majority vote of those present, after a quorum has been established, is statutory or embodied in the rules, on all matters other than submission of constitutional amendments. The constitution requires that before any amendment can be submitted to popular vote it must be approved by three-fifths of the total membership in each branch, which means an affirmative vote by 30 of the 50 senators, 72 of the 120 representatives.

All votes on tax measures and constitutional changes must be by recorded roll call, and on any bill when a member requests a roll call record it must be granted upon approval of one-fifth of the members present.

Bills must be approved by both branches before they become law. It is not unusual for a bill to pass one branch with preponderant majority, only to be killed in the other by a one vote margin.

When one branch amends a bill adopted by the other, concurrence of the originating branch is necessary. If it fails to concur a conference committee is appointed, and report of that committee must be approved by both branches. Failure of either branch to approve results in defeat of the measure.

ENROLLING — After both the House and Senate have passed a bill by required majority vote it goes to the enrolling office, from which it comes back in completed form for signatures of President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. That constitutes the final step in law-making. It was a bill when introduced, an act after passage, a law when signed by the presiding officers. This State does not require the signature of the Governor, nor permit his veto.

North Carolina is unique among the States in that procedure. It is the only State that surrenders custody of acts before they become laws to an administrative officer other than the chief executive. The enrolling office is an adjunct of the Secretary of State's Department, and will be again this year in charge of Lee Chaffin, former clerk of court in Harnett county, appointed by and responsible to Secretary of State Thad Eure.

MISCELLANEOUS — In addition to the functions outlined in the foregoing paragraphs the Legislature has important miscellaneous duties. It must meet in joint session of Senate and House the trustees of the University of North Carolina; and in joint session it must confirm the Governor's appointments to the State Board of Education.

The Senate is required to confirm numerous executive appointments of administrative officers and trustees of State institutions. Usually these confirmations are perfunctory, since in most instances the appointees are already serving. Most notable example of that was when the joint session in 1951 adjourned without taking action on Governor Kerr Scott's appointments of Miss Marjorie Alexander and Mrs. Romas Sawyer Cheek to the State Board of Education.

Social Security, Welfare Programs See Costs Grow

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security insurance is getting the major credit for taking more and more needy old folks off federal-state welfare roles. However, both programs are costing more. Expenditures for the old-age assistance program are going up because the monthly payments are increasing. The insurance program is more costly because benefits have been increased and the number of beneficiaries is rising rapidly. The old-age assistance program is financed from general tax revenues, with the federal, state and local governments all putting up a share. But increases in the federal share in recent years have provided the larger portion of the higher benefits. The Eisenhower administration now wants the state and local governments to put up more money. The insurance program is financed from special social security taxes on employers, employees and self-employed and is purely a federal program. It is designed to pay its own way, and its financial operations are not included in the government's annual appropriations budget though they will run in the vicinity of 10 billion dollars annually. The aid for the needy aged is the most costly of four federal state public assistance programs under the Social Security Administration. The other three aid needy who are blind, or totally and permanently disabled, or dependent children. In all, it is estimated the total cost of the four assistance programs in the year beginning July 1 will be $3,523,600,000, with the federal share being $2,051,000,000. States also have general assistance, or relief programs in which the federal government does not participate. The federal expenditure for grants in 1959-60 is put at $2,018,000,000, or 57 per cent of the total. The budget estimates that the needy aged will receive an average monthly payment of $65.85 in 1959-60, compared with an estimated $64.25 this fiscal year and $60.38 actually paid in 1957-58. The number of recipients is estimated to average 2,390,000 monthly in 1959-60, compared with 2,442,100 for this year and an actual average of 2,481,954 for 1957-58. The recipients now average 75 years of age, which means that the lengthening life span is having an effect. The total expenditures for the needy aged in 1959-60 from federal, state and local funds are put at $1,888,600,000, compared with an estimated $1,882,900,000 this fiscal year and 1957-58 actual costs of $1,798,374,143. Of the total, the federal share is figured at 1,108,500,000 for 1959-60, $1,094,600,000 this year and an actual $1,002,076,981 last fiscal year. Social security officials said today a further decline in needy aged beneficiaries is expected despite an increase in the number of old people in the population because the insurance system now covers about 9 out of every 10 persons who work for pay. Benefit payments are expected to total $10,025,000,000 in 1959-60, compared with about $9,060,000,000 this fiscal year and $7,874,932,414 actually paid in 1957-58. The social security taxes are designed to meet current costs and create trust funds in the immediate years ahead, with income and outgo eventually to just about balance. Currently employers and employees each pay 2 1/2 per cent in social security taxes on the first $4,800 of annual earnings, which makes a payroll tax of 5 per cent. The tax rate went up Jan. 1 by one-quarter of one per cent on each and the wage base was broadened from $4,200 to $4,800. Another rate increase of one-half per cent on each, with the wage base remaining at $4,800, is scheduled next Jan. 1. That will make the total payroll tax 6 per cent. It is estimated that some 75 million Americans now earn social security credits toward future insurance benefits in the course of a year. The social security taxes are expected to yield $9,936,000,000 in 1959-60, compared with $7,884,000,000 this fiscal year. Both totals are less than the estimated expenditures, but income is expected to again exceed outgo after the tax increases next Jan. 1.

Advices Women Show Interest In Farm Programs

RALEIGH (AP)—A high-ranking Farm Bureau woman said today Tar Heel farm women must become more active in programs which affect the lives and living conditions of farm people. Mrs. John B. Chase of Eureka, chairman of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Women's Committee, delivered her annual report at a group meeting in conjunction with the annual session of the State Farm Bureau Federation. Mrs. Chase said the committee's 1958 platform included programs to stimulate interest in citizenship, health and safety, public relations for agriculture and development of sound farm legislation. "Special commendation should go to the women on county and community levels who have served agriculture in many capacities," she said.

Trial Scheduled On Arson Count

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Lawrence G. Daughtry, 28, charged with arson in the Dec. 7 fire that swept his father's oil company here, is to be tried during a term of Sampson Superior Court opening today. The fire destroyed two 20,000-gallon oil tanks, two 5,000-gallon tanks, a truck, house and other small buildings. Daughtry, who turned up in Asheville a week after the fire, allegedly told Clinton police he set the blaze to help his father out of financial trouble.

Ten Hospitalized In Car Collision Fatal For Two

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Negro woman, Estelle Teasley of Fayetteville, was five months pregnant, remained in Cape Fear Valley Hospital today in the aftermath of a two-car collision which killed two persons Sunday night. The two autos, one carrying six white persons and the other six Negroes, met atop a hill on U.S. 401 with such force that they were fused. Highway Patrolman L. F. Holst said the two dead persons, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Strickland of Dunn, had to be cut from the wreckage. Holst said the auto driven by Strickland was returning from South Carolina when it pulled out of its northbound lane to pass another auto on a hill 12 miles south of here. The auto carrying the Negroes was traveling south. A hospital spokesman said a

Firm Will Open Greenville Store

J. Herman Leder, president of Leder Brothers, Inc., with home offices in Whiteville, announced today the purchase of the Saleed Building in Greenville and plans to establish a store here. Leder Brothers, now operating 15 stores in the Carolinas, opened the parent store in Whiteville in June, 1925, founded by J. Herman and Morris Leder, active and senior officers of the company. From the modest beginning with limited capital, the business has progressively grown to take its place among the foremost mercantile concerns of the state.

Perhaps a peculiar and significant characteristic was initiated by the sentence "We have come to be a part of you" appearing as part of the first announcement made by the founders. Leder said that as his company has expanded into new areas, this thought has crystallized as a definite part of the basic philosophy governing the company in its expanding operations.

A definite date of the opening of the new Greenville store will be made as soon as necessary work incident to the opening progresses to the point of making such an announcement, Leder said.

The president of the firm said he and his associates have "for years looked hopefully for an opportunity to come to Greenville. This in effect is the realization of long cherished hopes to bring one of our stores to this immediate area of North Carolina."

Withholding Tax Plan Is Stronger

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH (AP) — Chances of North Carolina's Legislature approving the payroll withholding plan of collecting individual income taxes appear brighter than ever.

This is indicated by answers to a questionnaire submitted to the state's lawmakers by The Associated Press. Of some 51 legislators who answered the questionnaire, 28 said they favored the plan under which their income tax would be deducted from their pay checks—the way federal income taxes are collected.

Only four of those answering said they opposed the withholding plan and 19 said they had not made up their minds.

The General Assembly has considered the plan several times but has always rejected it.

An added incentive this time is a windfall feature the withholding plan presents which would go a long way toward solving money problems. The windfall feature would result from the fact that the state could begin collecting income taxes from the payroll deductions in the same year that it receives its final payments under the present method of paying income taxes. Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie has estimated this windfall would amount to between 27 and 28 million dollars. Surveys have shown that many folks like the idea of paying their state income tax a little at a time and not having the problem of digging up a big payment at the end of the year.

Probably the main objections have come from businesses which would have the task of deducting the money and turning it over to the state. For them, it would entail additional red tape, trouble and some expense. However, if the income tax payments are turned over to the state quarterly—as they are in some states which have the plan—these businesses might find they have additional working capital to partly compensate for their trouble.

At present, of 32 states and the District of Columbia which have income taxes, 11 states and the District employ the withholding plan of collecting them.

Of the legislators who said they opposed the plan, one who requested that his name not be used, asserted that "among other things, it is obviously an effort to collect two years taxes in one."

Sen. Edwin S. Lanier of Orange, who indicated he was undecided, said he had studied carefully data from states which are using the withholding tax for persons on wages and salaries and the pay-as-you-go tax for the self-employed.

"Some states have considered and declined these plans," he added. "Their reasons for doing so are impressive. Hence, as of now, I am not at all sure North Carolina should adopt these two special tax collecting plans. I think there is a considerable amount of information, which only the revenue commissioner can provide, (which) the General Assembly will have to consider and debate before a wise decision about these two plans can be made."

Elizabeth Citian Sworn In Today

DURHAM (AP)—A new board member, Elizabeth Citian banker Lorimer W. Midgett, was sworn in today at the opening of the State Conservation and Development Board's winter meeting. Midgett was appointed by Gov. Hodges recently to succeed the late Charles H. Jenkins of Asheville.

The group held a public hearing and heard reports from Conservation and Development Department officials.

At the public hearing, a group from Manteo asked for state support of a study of the value of salt water sports fishing to the coast.

Executive Editor Miles H. Wolff of the Greensboro Daily News was to report on the William T. Polk Memorial Award for industrial news writing.

Committee meetings, social functions and a tour of the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. will occupy board members and guests during the rest of the meeting which ends Tuesday afternoon.

Gov. Hodges slipped from the Washington Duke Hotel during a supper Sunday night to talk to what some observers describe as an active industrial prospect for the state. The name of the prospect was not disclosed.

Whale 'Insists' On Going Ashore

BRIGANTINE, N.J. (AP) — When a halibut, 9-foot whale washed up on the beach here Sunday, 10 persons tried to tow it afloat with a rope around the tail.

It worked. But the land-lubbing whale turned around and swam back to shore. The rescuers waited for high tide and tugged again. Waves tossed the mammal back on the beach.

The Coast Guard said beached whales are not its responsibility. Police had no solution. The whale took a night of shore leave while residents puzzled over the next move.

No Comfort For Stumbling Terps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maryland's Terps, off to a stumbling start in defense of their Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championship, get no comfort from this week's abbreviated schedule that finds action resuming on a small scale after mid-term exams.

Maryland, down in third place with an unimpressive 4-3 record, two games behind North Carolina and North Carolina State, the top pair, is idle this week.

But indications are that Maryland will be starting from three games back when it resumes play next week.

The only league games this week send North Carolina and N.C. State against second division opposition, Clemson and South Carolina, in a pair of Charlotte Coliseum double headers.

North Carolina, leading the league with a 5-0 record and No. 2 in the nation, plays Clemson in the nightcap Friday night after fourth-ranked State, with a 6-1 conference record, plays South Carolina. The Saturday schedule has North Carolina opening with South Carolina and State-Clemson following.

Should South Carolina and Clemson lose both games Maryland's task will be that much more difficult as it resumes its chase of the pacesetters three games to the rear. The Terps' next start is at North Carolina on Wednesday of next week. Later this month they are at home to the Tar Heels and play at N.C. State.

South Carolina warms up for its Charlotte assignment with a Tuesday home game against Furman. The Southern Conference team trounced the Gamecocks two weeks ago.

The only other game of the week for an ACC member comes up Saturday afternoon at Durham when Duke engages Pittsburgh in a regionally televised game. Additional interest is furnished by the appearance of Don Hennon, Pitt All-American and one of the nation's leading scorers.

Duke's sophomores may be ready to roll after an uncertain start. They were at their best last time out in a nine-point victory over Maryland, doubly impressive in view of the Terps' 31-point demolition job on the Blue Devils only 10 days earlier.

Palmer Hero In Thunderbird Win

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the 1958 Masters champion, today stood as the newest hero of the winter golfing trail.

The 29-year-old former national amateur champion from Latrobe, Pa., staged an astonishing rally to win the 29,000 Thunderbird Invitational Tournament Sunday.

Trailing pace-setting Jimmy Demaret by five strokes going into the final 18, Palmer shot a 9-under par 62 and a 7-hole total of 266 for a new tournament record for the full distance.

Demaret finished with a 70 and a tie for second at 269 with Ken Venturi, last year's winner here.

Palmer pocketed $1,500 in winning his 12th tournament since he turned pro in 1955. Demaret, a three time Thunderbird winner, added Venturi won $875 apiece.

Lloyd Mangrum, with three straight 68's and a final 66, finished fourth at 270 for $650.

Palmer had a 6-under par 30 for the first nine holes. His irons were brilliant throughout. He seldom left himself with putts of more than three or four feet for birdies. The champion was over par on only one hole, the 11th, where he missed the green and took a five.

U.S. And Soviet Teams In Action

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Favored but struggling United States and Russia—the two remaining undefeated teams—see action tonight in the World Basketball Championships.

Both triumphs capped one of the most successful tennis trips an American delegation has made Down Under. The Yanks also take

Banquet Circuit Exhausts Jensen

CRYSTAL BAY, Nev. (AP)—Jackie Jensen, who has been busy on the banquet circuit, is missing at least two dinners because of nervous exhaustion.

The American League's most valuable player of 1958 will miss the Boston Baseball Writers' Dinner Thursday. The Red Sox slugger already has missed a Saturday night banquet at Washington.

Jensen suffered chills and nervous convulsions after boarding an airplane at Oakland, Calif. for a flight East.

Jensen was driven 200 miles back to his home and put to bed for at least 10 days under doctor's orders.

The U.S. team, represented by the Air Force All-Stars, has been unimpressive and Chilean newspapers are complaining.

Observed El Mercurio, largest Chilean newspaper:

"This team is not up to the quality we have been accustomed to expect from a U.S. representative."

The U.S. and Russia meet Wednesday. The game is rated a toss-up.

LSU won only 12 of its first 31 football games under Coach Paul Dietzel. But in 1958 Dietzel coached his team to 10 straight regular season victories. The Tigers were ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press poll.

Pirates Edge Portsmouth Foes, 74-69

By BILL BOYD

PORTSMOUTH, Va. — East Carolina came through with a rather shaky 74-69 basketball win on Saturday night in the Virginia city at the expense of Bynum Motor Sales, one of the top independent teams in the N.C.-Va. area. Time and time again the Bucs found themselves off key in that they were on the short end of the running score 15 times before it was all over.

Jessel Curry, Greenville's Ike Riddick and Charlie Adams supplied most of the offensive power for the Pirates as Curry hit for 21, Riddick with 19 and Adams with 18. Joe Piaster had 11 and Nick Nichols made 5 points.

A sparse crowd of about 850 fans witnessed what almost turned out to be a home team victory over the Greenville visitors. Their big pride was a 6 foot 4 inch product of Woodrow Wilson High School named Phil Robbins. It was Robbins who kept Bynum in the game with his rebounds and fabulous hook shots. Robbins was high man for both teams as he netted 24 big points. He and Paul Wetherbee seemed to virtually needed the all important points to stay up with EC. Wetherbee had 19 for his night's work.

See-Saw Battle

East Carolina took a quick 6-0 lead with Adams, Curry and Riddick all hitting on their first attempts. Then Bynum took over the ball until they dumped six points through and with five minutes gone in the first half the score stood at 6-5. It was again tied 10-10 after seven minutes, and 19-19 after 10 minutes of play had passed. Robbins poured the ball through the hoop fast enough to get 10 of his 24 points in the first 10 minutes of play and after 16 minutes of play Bynum led 29-

Myers Park Chalks Up A One-Sided Victory In High School Swim Meet

Phantoms, New Bern Will Clash

Rose High School's cagers battle New Bern here tomorrow night at the Rose Gymnasium in an important Northeastern Conference ballgame.

For the Phantoms, it will be an attempt to improve their overall 7-3 record.

In conference, Coach Bo Farley's club has dropped only two ballgames, one to Washington and a 70-47 decision to Kingston on January 23.

Tomorrow night's ballgame will be the first for Greenville since that Kingston contest. The Phantoms have been struggling with exams for the past week.

Expected to pace the locals against New Bern will be Joe Moyer, Erikston Duff, Billy Cox, Steve Noble, and Howard Garner, the regular five. Others who will play will be Alan McArthur and James Earl Ward.

Coach Farley said today that he knows little about New Bern.

I suspect they are about the same as we are. I would put them on a par with us and the others, with maybe Kingston and Washington having a little better clubs."

New Bern lost three of its starting five from last year. Two veterans, both tall boys, will bolster the team this year.

"We're in pretty good shape now," Farley said. "For the first time this year. Of course, Merrill Bynum had to drop off the club for good due to high blood pressure, but the rest of the group is in fine condition."

A javay contest will open the night's action tomorrow evening at 6:30. The varsity ballgame will begin at 8:00.

Myers Park of Charlotte had far too much depth and talent for its opposition Saturday and chalked up a one-sided victory in the fourth annual East Carolina College invitational high school swim meet held in Memorial Pool.

The rapidly growing athletic power of Charlotte registered 118½ points to 58 for second-place Raleigh. Greensboro, with 51½ points, and Chapel Hill, with 36 points, completed the scoring in the four team meet.

Although finishing last in team production, Chapel Hill provided the individual start of the meet as Captain Jimmy Jamerson won two first place events and established a new record in doing so. Jamerson swam the 200-yard freestyle in 2:04.6 to lower his own standard in that event. He then broke the 400 yard freestyle mark with a time of 4:37.7.

Bill Sanford, lanky swimmer from Myers Park, was the only other competitor to gain first place in two events as he captured the 50 and 100 yard freestyle and his 24.5 time in the 50 was a meet record.

The winners from the western part of the state captured five of the eleven events but piled up their biggest amount of points with their squad depth. Greensboro copped four first places but didn't have the depth to match the winners.

Raleigh, winner of the event for the past two years, was the only team unable to gain a first place but the Caps piled up enough points to gain second place.

Olmedo, Buchholz Win Australian Net Titles

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Alex Olmedo tabbed himself as the world's top tennis amateur today with a courageous 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 victory over Australian Neale Fraser to win the Australian national championships.

And Uncle Sam's rising tennis fortunes received a further boost when 17-year-old Earl Buchholz, the St. Louis high school student, won the junior title with a 3-6, 6-3, 8-3 victory over Aussie Martin Mulligan.

Both triumphs capped one of the most successful tennis trips an American delegation has made Down Under. The Yanks also take

Von Brocklin Is Slated To Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Quarterback Norman Van Brocklin is being groomed as the next head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, it was learned today.

A reliable source told the Associated Press that when Head Coach Buck Shaw decides to call it a career, the 32-year-old Van Brocklin, one of the finest passing quarterbacks in the history of the aerial minded National Football League, will step into the job.

According to the best information, the 59-year-old Shaw plans to give up coaching once he gets the Eagles on the winning track. He would have gone back to his thriving business in San Francisco at the end of last season only he refused to bow out with a losing season.

Triple Win For Bobby Morrow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bobby Morrow heads into New York's Millrose Games with a triple win to his credit in his first competition on the boards.

But he's still not convinced he'll ever become to fond of indoor running.

Morrow raced on a board track for the first time in the Evening Star Games Saturday night and came through in great shape — sweeping the sprint series just to prove he's an out-front man on the indoor dashes.

But the 23-year-old Texan from Abilene Christian College made it clear he prefers the wide-open outdoors.

"The crowd here is right on top of you. You can't find a place to warm up — and the boards are hard on your legs," Morrow said before the games in the big Washington National Guard Armory.

Morrow had won three 1956 Olympic gold medals, equaled the world's record at 9.3 in the 100 and won many outdoor titles before testing the hardwood.

He scored his triple victory by capturing the 70-yard dash in 7.2 seconds, the 80 in 8.1 and the 100 in 9.8.

However, he didn't match the U.S. records set by Duke's Dave Sime on the same track — the longest straightaway in indoor track.

Ed Savitsky, Cornell tackle, is the regimental commander of the Army ROTC at the Ithaca, N.Y., school.

This TV Actress Wants To Appear A Bit Dowdy

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — To one male television viewer nearly every actress on the small screen looks very well-dressed. This is the word that women bandy.

A woman playing the role of the wife of a $75-a-week chap deep in debt will look as if she bought her wardrobe on Fifth Avenue. A girl playing the role of a $50-a-week secretary surely bought her dress in Paris.

As far as can be ascertained with a bespectacled eye, about the only woman who manages to look a wee bit dowdy—and so lends realism to her role—is Kathy Nolan.

She is co-starred with Walter Brennan in "The Real McCoy's" (ABC-TV, Thursday evenings), a series that has caught the public fancy and is riding in the top ten. She plays the role of Kate, a young bride who accompanies her grandfather and husband, from the West Virginia hills to the San Fernando Valley in California.

Miss Nolan—looking very chic on a trip east from Hollywood, let's emphasize—was saying the other day that a real thing about "The Real McCoy's" is that they aren't real rich. In fact, they're next door to poor. (Practically nobody in America is really poor any more, either on or off TV.)

Round-Trip Jet Flight Is Fast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new jet airliner flew to New York in four hours and three minutes Sunday, then turned around and flew back against 106 m.p.h. headwinds in six hours and 22 minutes.

The 707 Boeing Jetliner carried 112 passengers and a crew of eight on each flight.

American Airlines' Capt. Hamilton Smith said the winds he bucked on the return trip at times reached 137 m.p.h.

"They were about the worst I've ever faced over a period of time," Smith said after landing at International Airport.

Westbound flights usually take longer because of prevailing winds. Scheduled flight time for propeller-driven planes on the New York-Los Angeles trip is about nine hours.

An American airlines spokesman said the jet's schedule called for it to make the return hop in five and a half hours.

The round-trip started American's coast-to-coast jet service. The company plans one flight daily in each direction.

National Airlines began the first jet service from New York to Miami Dec. 10. Pan American World Airways started the first jet service by an American company to Europe Oct. 26.

Favor Requiring Anti-Polio Shots

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Directors of the North Carolina Assn. of County Commissioners have given unanimous backing to proposed legislation that would require anti-polio vaccination for all children in the state up to six years of age.

The action was taken by the 17-man board here Saturday. The bill would require the vaccination for every child from two months to six years of age, before the child could attend a public or private school.

Hodges To Speak At Church Meet

DURHAM (AP)—Gov. Hodges will speak here Tuesday to the annual meetings of the North Carolina Council of Churches and the United Church Women.

Some 500 delegates are expected for the two-day council meeting which opens Tuesday morning.

The governor speaks at 10 a.m. in Page Auditorium on the Duke University campus. He will be introduced by the Rev. Robert G. Tuttle of Asheville, superintendent of the Asheville district of the Methodist Church and council program chairman.

Survives Shock Of 115,000 Volts

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — A model airplane enthusiast survived a 115,000-volt electric charge Sunday.

The clothes were burned off Peter Warren 19, who suffered burns over 80 per cent of his body. He was hospitalized in critical condition.

Warren was flying a plastic model airplane controlled by copper wires. The plane struck the power line and the charge coursed down the wires to Warren, standing on moist ground.

His wife, Janis, and their 4-month-old daughter were in a car 100 feet away.

Begin Sessions Of Farm Bureau

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Farm Bureau Federation began its annual meeting here today by splitting up into nine groups to discuss the state's chief farm commodities.

The group meetings will concern federal legislation, and scientific and promotional development of each of the crops.

The discussion groups also will make recommendations to present for action at the close of the meeting Wednesday. The resolutions committee already has decided upon other recommendations to make to the federation.

Today's discussions concerned flue-cured tobacco; cotton; peanuts; dairy farming; grain and forage crops; forestry; vegetable, fruit and potatoes; livestock; and poultry.

Between 400 and 500 farmers from throughout the state participated in the commodity conferences. The tobacco, peanut, cotton, fruit and vegetable sessions were expected to be the most important.

The first general session of the 23rd annual meeting will be held tonight. Federation President W. Randolph Eagles of Moolesfield will preside and deliver the annual address. Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine also will be present.

Other groups meeting included the Farm Bureau Women's Committee and the North Carolina Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co.

Hawaii's Statehood Drive Is Under Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by the admission of Alaska, a congressional drive to make Hawaii the 50th state gets under way today before the House Insular Affairs Committee.

Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton, an outspoken advocate of Hawaii statehood, was called as the first witness.

Rear Adm. K. M. McManes, deputy chief of naval operations, was to present the views of the Defense Department.

The hearings are expected to last only a week or less. They are to be limited to a review and updating of data recorded last year and in virtually every session of Congress since the end of World War II.

President Eisenhower only a week ago renewed his annual plea to Congress to admit Hawaii to statehood. He said it would be unconscionable to delay the action any further.

Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall (D-Colo.) set two weeks as his goal for final committee approval of the bill.

Rep. Leo W. O'Brien (D-NY), the Territories subcommittee chairman who piloted the Alaska bill through the House last year, said the chances are "pretty good" that the Hawaii bill can be passed by both the House and Senate this year. A companion statehood bill is sponsored in the Senate by more than a majority of the members.

Hawaii, once a monarchy and later an independent republic, was annexed voluntarily to the United States in 1898.

Statehood advocates feel that the admission of Alaska set a precedent that makes Hawaii statehood inevitable.

Hawaii has 575,000 population, against Alaska's 212,000. Hawaii, economically more advanced than Alaska, contends it is better able to support state government.

Policeman Knew About Lost Boys

CHICAGO (AP) — A couple dashed into the West North Avenue police station Sunday night waving their arms and shouting.

"Our boy is gone," they cried, then, lapsed into Italian. Omero Fuggiti, 32, and his wife, Louisa, finally managed to report their son, Adriano, 3, was missing.

Policeman Robert Star searched through the snow, questioned neighbors, and returned to the Fuggiti home with no lead, but a strong hunch.

He told the Fuggitis: "Quite often a missing child is not really missing. He may be in an attic, or a buggy, or a basement. Let us look." They looked—and found Adriano, cuddled up in the back of a console television set. He was warm and comfy and asleep.

THE 8TH CIRCLE A MASTER MYSTERY BY STANLEY ELLIN

CHAPTER 11

This day, Murray Kirk decided early, was destined for small troubles and many of them. He was convinced when Bruno Manfredi called at two o'clock to announce that their bird had flown. Eddie Schrade had disappeared from his Coney Island address, seemingly into thin air.

"What do you mean, disappeared?" Murray said. "Did you ask around? Did you cover the whole neighborhood?"

"All day, so far. The only character who looked like he might know something is the guy who owns the trap where Schrade was living, and he's not talking. Absolutely nobody wants to talk around here. You should see this place in winter, Murray. It's like the end of the world."

"What about it? You're not there on a sightseeing tour, are you? Do you think LoScalzo's behind this?"

"He could be. He needs Schrade to back up Ira Miller, or he's got no case. Maybe Schrade is the one he's worried about."

Murray pondered this until Bruno wailed, "Talk to me, boy, talk to me. It's cold and lonely out here."

"You miserable coward. Listen, are you near a post office?"

"There used to be one around here. What've you got in mind, Murray, the Brother Frank play?"

"Well, try it," Murray said. "Two postal cards and two letters, and make sure you don't address them so light that they wind up in the dead-letter office."

"Roger and over. Say, who'll be Brother Frank?"

"I will," said Murray, "so write those things to Brother Murray."

The Brother Frank routine was an ancient and familiar one at the agency. Murray skipped his shave the next morning, and a few minutes after he walked into the office with an itching jaw, Bruno arrived carrying a battered valise and a week-old copy of the Chicago paper that he had picked up at the out-of-town newsstand on Times Square.

Bruno's letters and cards with the Coney Island postmark on them had been delivered in the first mail, and Mrs. Knapp had already laid them to a nonexistent M. Schrade at a dummy number in Chicago, padding the valise with sheets of the newspaper, and shaking up the few articles of wear in it to eliminate all traces of Lucy Manfredi's neat hand at packing look no more than ten minutes.

The valise was ready now, and Murray turned his attention to Bruno's letters and cards. Both letters and one of the cards mentioned the wots of the music writing business and asked for money. These were tucked away in the valise. The other card was short and to the point. Dear Brother Murray, it read: I am in trouble very bad and will tell you when you hit New York. My address is the same. The signature was an undecipherable scrawl.

Murray put this one into his coat pocket, then picked up the valise and posed for Bruno. "How does it look?"

"Good enough. Maybe you could use some more wrinkles in that overcoat. Roll it up and sit on it in the cab."

"I'll do that. You didn't put anything with a New York label on it in the bag, did you?"

"No, it's the same old Chicago stuff we always use. And be careful with this guy when you talk to him. He knows I was there yesterday. Don't push too hard."

"You mean, not if I want to come back with all my teeth?"

"That's what I mean," said Bruno.

It was a long ride out to Coney Island, and when Murray left the cab he had the feeling of having arrived in the middle of a ghost town.

The boarding house was as gray and shabby and lifeless as everything around it. It was a huge barn of a place, evidently built at a time when cupolas and fancy wooden trim were the latest things. A sagging porch ran entirely around the house, and when Murray crossed it to ring the doorbell the boards underfoot creaked at every step.

The man who answered the bell was as round and solidly made as a beer barrel, and even more unshaven than Murray. He chewed steadily at the stub of an unlit cigar as he eyed his caller up and down.

"You look for a room?" he said.

"That's what I'm looking for. I'm Eddie Schrade's brother 'm from Chicago. Want to tell him I'm here?"

The man removed the stub of the cigar from his mouth, thoughtfully squeezed it into cylindrical shape, and replaced it.

"We ain't got no Eddie Schrade."

The valise dropped from Murray's hand. He pulled the postcard from his pocket and read it with bewilderment. "Are you kidding?" he said. "He told me right here was the address."

When he held out the card the man took it and read it front and back, his brow knit with concentration. Then he handed it back to Murray.

"He used to live here. He don't live here now."

Murray said: "Darn, that's a nice touch. A while day on the train because he puts up a holler for me, and then he takes off some where. Well, where can I find him?"

The man hesitated. It was barely perceptible, but it was there, nevertheless, and it was all Murray wanted to see. "I don't know where he went to. What's it my business?"

"Maybe it's not. Maybe he just figures I'll walk around the streets and look for him. This is a big town for that kind of deal."

The man surveyed the wasteland beyond his porch. "It's a big town, all right," he agreed.

Murray thought this over, rubbing his jaw slowly. "Well, whatever Eddie expected me to do I can't go around like this. I must look like hell. Is there a barber-shop near here?"

"Next block down. Across from the subway."

Murray picked up the valise, half turned away, then turned back. "Say, would it be all right to leave the bag here meanwhile?"

"Stick it in the hall, if you want. Nobody'll touch it."

The barber was a good one, a deliberate worker who stepped back to study the effect after every few strokes of the razor, and Murray had no objection to that. The landlord would have all the time he needed to open the valise, examine everything in it, and verify the credentials there. Of course, that also gave him time to phone Schrade if he wanted to, but that was in the lap of the gods. Everything that could be done had been done.

When Murray got back to the boarding house the man was still working on the cigar stub, but his mood had considerably softened.

"You know," he said, "first I figured you didn't look anything like Eddie, and then I figured maybe I'm wrong. Anyhow, all of a sudden, it came to me where he moved."

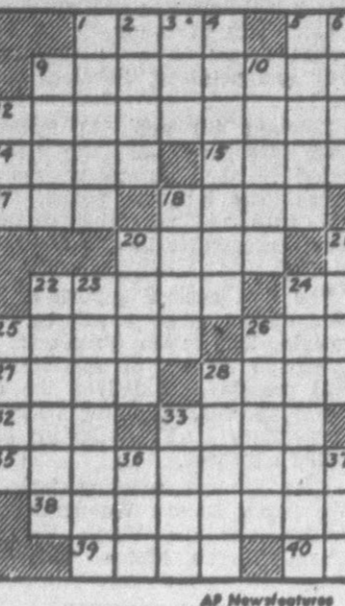

Murray said: "Man, you just saved my life. I was all ready to head back to Chi on the next train."

"Well, you don't have to. And maybe I can save you even another train back here. Did you know Eddie walked out of here owing me twenty bucks?"

Murray had anticipated a figure nearer fifty. He paid the money, got the address, and left, feeling that he had just earned Arnold Lundeen a net profit of thirty dollars.

Korean War Sedition Trial Starting Today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Powell sedition trial, only court case of its kind to come out of the Korean War which Congress never declared, begins today with selection of a federal court jury.

Chief U.S. Dist. Judge Louis E. Goodman is presiding. The case has taken almost three years to reach trial stage. John W. Powell, 39, his wife Sylvia, 39, both of San Francisco, and Julian Schuman of New York were indicted April 29, 1956.

Powell published a magazine in postwar Shanghai. The China Monthly Review. He kept it going after the Chinese Communists came to power with his wife and Schuman as associate editors. All three returned to the United States in 1955.

They are charged under the Sedition Act of 1917 with conspiring to obstruct the war effort and incite mutiny among U.S. forces by circulating copies of the magazine in the United States. The government says the conspiracy consisted of publishing charges that the United States waged germ warfare and obstructed truce negotiations. This was conspiracy, says the government, because the defendants knew the reports to be false.

Powell was born in Shanghai but educated in the United States at the University of Missouri. During World War II he worked at the office of War Information in Washington and in China. His wife, the former Sylvia Campbell of Pendleton, Ore., was a post-war UNRRA worker in Shanghai.

Schuman, Boston-born, was a radio correspondent in Shanghai before he joined the Review's staff.

Defense efforts to obtain evidence and other maneuvers have delayed the trial. First the defense, led by Los Angeles attorney A. L. Wirin, sought to bring Chinese witnesses to the United States. The Red government refused to allow this unless the United States would sign a mutual legal assistance agreement.

Then the defense got the government to send Wirin to China to interview witnesses. He returned saying he could produce a thousand witnesses, including scientists.

Latest legal snarl has been the defense attempt to subpoena certain American documents connected with the Korean War which it said would bolster the defense case.

U.S. Atty. Robert H. Schnacke said, meanwhile, that while the United States was capable of waging germ warfare during the Korean War no materials or weapons left the country.

Asks Grassroots Water Interest

WILMINGTON (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan has called for a grassroots campaign in North Carolina to stimulate interest in water resources development.

He told the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce at a weekend meeting:

"We have a general lack of access to the sea. This may seem like a strange statement, but it is correct when consideration is given to the fact that there are relatively few places along North Carolina's long coastline where commercial water traffic can get into the mainland."

The senator said the state was being neglected in its fair share of the federal water project money. He criticized President Eisenhower's proposed budget which does not include construction funds for Tar Heel water projects.

He stressed the importance of water resources development, saying such work will be a major factor in determining future growth in agriculture, industry and tourist trade.

Sauerkraut Not Favorite Dish

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — Sauerkraut — often hailed as the Germans' most popular dish — trailed far behind in a recent poll of favorite foods.

Economic report, a publication of West Germany's Federation of Industries, said 16 per cent of those polled preferred a variety of sausages, frankfurters and hamburgers.

Soups followed with 13 per cent, fresh vegetables, rice and spaghetti with 8 per cent and potatoes with 7 per cent.

Sauerkraut brought up the rear with only 3 per cent.

'Moving Men' Proved Thieves

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — The couple both worked. Neighbors didn't think it unusual that two men in a pickup truck should haul away most of the furniture. Moving men, obviously.

But John D. Stolsheck and his wife told police the men were burglars. They valued the loot at more than $1,200.

Major Clean-Up Task Is Started

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) - Residents of this northwestern Pennsylvania community faced a formidable clean-up task today as ice-choked French Creek returned slowly to its banks.

A citizens committee named by Mayor George X. Simonetta estimated damage from the city's record flood would run to five million dollars.

Demolition experts will continue to blast openings in two huge ice jams which kept about 10 per cent of this community of 25,000 under water for five days.

An estimated 2,000 persons fled their homes after French Creek rose to 62.5 feet - 5 1/2 feet above flood stage - when a sudden thaw and heavy rains caused a number of streams in western Pennsylvania to spill their banks last week.

Some of the refugees have moved back into their homes. Others preferred to stay with relatives or in a special evacuation center set up in a junior high school.

Problems facing the evacuees included lack of heat, broken power lines and frozen water pipes.

Since the end of World War II, motor vehicle registration in the U.S. has doubled.

Port Terminal Road Resident Plaintiff In Case

The Bobby Harrington named in a story in Friday's edition of The Daily Reflector as the plaintiff in an assault charge against an East Carolina College football player is a resident of Port Terminal Road.

Justice of the Peace Luther D. Moore of Greenville said Friday that Harrington had taken out a warrant charging Melvin Riff of Fairmont and EOC with assaulting him January 17. Moore said the incident reportedly took place at the Bel-Air Club on Hooker Road.

Riff was a freshman fullback on the 1958 East Carolina football team. He has reportedly been suspended from classes at the college as a result of the incident.

No date for hearing the charge has been set, Moore added, because of Harrington's condition. Moore had originally planned to hear the charge last Tuesday, but postponed the hearing at Harrington's request.

Struck, Killed By Passing Car

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Six-year-old Stephen Floyd Arnold, one of a group of children waiting for a school bus two miles south of Fayetteville this morning, was struck and killed by a passing car.

Malcolm P. Jones of Rt. 2, Elizabethtown, identified by officers as driver of the car, said young Arnold was "tagged" another child in play and then ran into the road.

Jones said he swerved his car into a bank and that it turned over but that he could not avoid striking the lad. Jones was not hurt. Coroner Alvin Clark set an inquest for Feb. 2.

Came To Dinner And Found Four People Dead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Katherine Haiges came to dinner Sunday she found her hostess and three other people dead from carbon monoxide fumes.

Daniel Doyle, 65, a retired railroad employe, was sitting in a car in the basement garage. The gas tank was empty and the motor had stopped, but the ignition was on.

Doyle's wife, Cecelia, 55, was still alive when Miss Haiges, 23, finally managed to get into the house with the help of a neighbor who had a key.

But the Doyle's daughter, Marie, 24, who had invited Katherine to dinner, was dead. So were Ernestine K. D'Estel, 68, and Joseph Gately, 27, the others who lived in the two-story row house. Mrs. Doyle was in critical condition.

St. John J. McBride of the homicide squad said: "It has all the earmarks of a suicide with an unfortunate aftermath."

Again Proposes Migration Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal for a federal loan program to aid unhappy Negroes to move away from the South was renewed today by Rep. George W. Andrews (D-Ala.).

His bill would authorize relocation loans to any Negro living in a state which practices racial segregation to enable him and his family to move to any state without such segregation.

It would set up a three-member human resettlement commission appointed by the President and authorize transportation and relocation loans up to $1,000, repayable within 10-20 years at 2 1/2 per cent interest.

Sens. John Sparkman and Lister Hill, Alabama Democrats, said they like his measure.

"I have supported legislation of this character in the past and I shall continue to support it," Hill said.

Sparkman said he strongly favors Andrews' bill.

Andrews has introduced the bill in the last two Congresses. It has never reached the House for a vote.

Two More Banks Join 'Billion Dollar' Ranks

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Two more banks have joined the list of those with more than one billion dollars in deposits to bring the nation's total to 20.

And merger plans announced or under study would make some of the largest financial institutions even bigger.

The recession didn't halt the growth of most of the giants. The nation's largest, California's Bank of America, reports deposits up eight per cent from a year ago, to cross the 10 billion dollar mark for the first time.

But the recession did leave its mark on some banks in the hard hit industrial areas. The National Bank of Detroit reports deposits off 1 1/2 per cent, and that dropped it from eleventh to thirteenth place in the list. The Cleveland Trust Co. had a similar deposit decline but held onto 18th position.

The two newcomers to the billion dollar list are the California Bank, Los Angeles, and the First Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

That gives California five on the list, and Pennsylvania two — the other being Mellon National Bank & Trust of Pittsburgh, which moved from 12th to 11th place.

New York City still holds first place with eight billion-dollar banks.

Three of these are involved in merger proposals. Manufacturers Trust, fourth in the nation, is talking of combining with Bankers Trust, now number seven (it was eighth a year ago). And Guaranty Trust, still ninth, proposes to merge with J. P. Morgan & Co., which is not on the list. The merger would put the resulting institution into fourth place — but only if the Manufacturers Trust and Bankers Trust union didn't materialize.

Merger talks among West Coast giants are also under way, so that the whole picture may change this year. All mergers involving national banks, however, must be approved by the comptroller of the currency. And so the question of big banks getting bigger may be well to the front in coming weeks and months.

Tagging behind the Bank of America now are four New York banks: Chase Manhattan, First National City, Manufacturers Trust and Chemical Corn Exchange. In the sixth spot is the Security-First National of Los Angeles. Then come Bankers Trust of New York and First National of Chicago, which changed places in the past year.

Chicago's Continental Illinois is in the tenth spot, right behind Guaranty Trust of New York. When Pittsburgh's Mellon moved up, Irving Trust of New York took its place as 12th. After Detroit's National comes New York's Hanover in 14th spot.

American Trust of San Francisco moved up to 15th, changing places with Boston's First National.

Another San Francisco giant, Crocker-Anglo National Bank, held onto 17th, while reporting a 10 per cent rise in deposits. Cleveland Trust in eighteenth position is followed by the California Bank, Los Angeles, with the biggest deposit increase.

Dr. Ben Friedman, one of the U. S. Army's top physicians was born in Russia in 1904. But he is a legal resident of Texas.

Man Accused Of Assaulting Wife

James Walter Morris of Greenville, 33, has been charged with assaulting his wife during the weekend, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning.

Morris, who lives near Gallop-way's Cross Roads, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the sheriff said.

He will be tried in County Court. Morris is accused of striking his wife with an axe, although she was not seriously injured, according to the sheriff.

Deputies made the arrest.
