Integrated Classes Open Today In Virginia Without Incident

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Racially integrated classes opened uneventfully today in six public schools in Norfolk. They continued without incident 200 miles to the north in Arlington County.

Police kept vigil today at the Norfolk schools and at Stratford Junior High in Arlington, a well-to-do Washington suburb. But again it was a matter of hum-drum performance, of preserving order against threats which never developed.

Integration began for Virginia Monday, under order of federal courts. It started at Stratford. Four Negroes attended public school classes with whites for the first time in the Old Dominion's history. They did it again today.

Uplstate in Arlington, police still were out with riot equipment, but the number was whittled from 100 to about 70.

Most of all, there were no slappings, demonstrations or violence of the type that accompanied integration into Little Rock, Ark., a year and a half ago.

Missiles Warning By Russian

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Malinovsky told the West today its nuclear weapons are outdated. He said the Soviet Union has intercontinental ballistic missiles that can deliver hydrogen bomb warheads with pinpoint accuracy.

The Soviet marshal told the 21st congress of the Soviet Communist party that the West wants to unleash war with nuclear weapons, but this is an outdated means.

"We have more perfected weapons," he continued, "ballistic rockets—long, middle and close range—that can carry their hydrogen charges to any point on earth... to the very point, for they are very accurate."

A summary of the defense minister's review of Soviet defenses was broadcast by Moscow radio.

"If war is imposed on the U.S.S.R.," he said, "the rocket weapons will constitute the fighting force, capable of accomplishing the most important tasks in the air on land and sea."

He reported that the quality of armaments and technical equipment of the Soviet army had improved rapidly in the last few years and that at present the Soviet air force has the most modern means of carrying out military tasks.

The navy also has attained a very high level, he said. "Then he sharply told the United States: 'High schools are written very frequently overseas that the United States Navy is capable of landing troops at any point on our coast.'"

"It appears to me that it would be a good thing for those overseas to give a thought about the vulnerability of their own sea coasts."

His rocket claims echoed Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's opening speech to the congress just a week ago. Khrushchev said the "serial production" of ICBMs had been organized, and added:

"The convention site was changed," Eargle said here Monday, "because the original plan might be misinterpreted."

The association had scheduled its annual meeting aboard the liner Stockholm beginning April 23.

State ABC Chairman William S. Hunt, who opposed the idea, had no immediate comment on the cancellation.

Eargle said the association originally decided on the voyage because the ship would serve as headquarters for the entire group.

Eargle added the association also sought to support North Carolina in its program of bringing passenger ships to state ports (in this case, Wilmington).

Army Truck Convoy Is Detained By Reds In East German Corridor

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Union today held a U.S. Army convoy of four cargo trucks and five soldiers on the East German autobahn within sight of the West German border. The convoy was en route from Berlin to West Germany.

The U.S. Army charged that the convoy had been detained for more than 24 hours with the "obvious intention of creating an incident" on the 110-mile lifeline.

The Red army was handed two stern protests and demands for immediate release.

and was trying to get the trucks cleared into West Germany.

The Soviet army let the convoy pass out of West Berlin on the 110-mile run through Communist East Germany but stopped it at the checkpoint at Marienborn at 1:05 p.m. just as it was ready to cross into West Germany.

The corporal in charge refused Soviet demands Monday night for inspection of the open cargo of jeeps on the trucks. He and his men spent the night muffled in blankets in the trucks.

The men, all personnel of the 28th Transportation Battalion, were listed by the army as: Cpl. Richard C. Masters of West Stockbridge, Mass.; Benjamin G. Peoples of Theodore, Ala.; Elwood F. Johnson, Brooklyn, N.Y.; James E. Cook of Hardeeville, S.C., and Robert E. Love of Plain City, Ohio.

Western officials at the frontier said the Soviets were refusing to allow the convoy to pass into West Germany but were not preventing it from returning to Berlin.

But the Soviet Union brushed off the protests. Negotiations for release of the convoy bogged down.

The U.S. Army unit at the Helmstedt checkpoint, just over the border in West Germany was able to supply the men with hot meals.

The army announced this morning it was in contact with Soviet officials in Berlin and Frankfurt

"They (the Russians) indicated only that they would take our request under consideration," said a U.S. Army spokesman after Findlay Burns, political adviser to the U.S. mission in East Berlin had presented the request.

"Early Attempts To Settle N. C." Book Lovers Club To Resume Meeting

At the Pitt County Historical Society dinner meeting held at the Woman's Club in Greenville, Frank E. Brooks gave the blessing and Herbert R. Paschal Jr. read a paper entitled "Early Attempts To Settle North Carolina."

He said the history of this state began with the attempt of Sir Walter Raleigh and his associates to found a colony on Roanoke Island. Because of Paul Green's great sympathetic drama, everyone is aware of the poignant story of the Lost Colony.

Raleigh's entire effort lasted about six years—1584 to 1590. From then until 1663 the record which would tell of the years between have been lost and the knowledge of what transpired concerning Raleigh's Virginia or the Proprietors Carolina is very limited.

The mystery of the disappearance of the Lost Colony of 1587 was as intriguing to Englishmen of that day as it has been to the generations since.

Paschal told of many expeditions formed with elaborate plans for locating members of the Lost Colony and of settling the region south of Virginia. Some of the leaders of these planned explorations were: Bartholomew Gilbert, Christopher Nichols, Michael Siedmore, Edward Bland, Samuel Vassall, Marmaduke Raynor, John Fory, Sir Robert Heath and George Calvert, and many others who were interested and kept alive this interest in the region south of the James River which the writings of Harriot and Hakluyt, the engravings of John White's maps and scenes by Theodore De Bry made it one of the best known regions of North America to the 17th century Englishmen.

Accounts of the discoveries to the south of the James River settlement were noted and published in England where they were received with great interest. Throughout the 30 or 40 years which followed the disappearance of the Lost Colony of 1587 the English were not allowed to forget this region and explorations around the area and speculation of its resources continued into the 1620's.

There were expeditions but no permanent settlements until Captain Thomas Francis and Col. Thomas Dew were commissioned in December 1685 to make discoveries between Cape Hatteras and Cape Fear. On June 11, 1687 the Virginia Council granted Nathaniel Batts certain unknown privileges for "interest taken in the discovery of an inlet to the southward." A vellum manuscript map made by Nicholas Comberford in the same year entitled "The South Part of Virginia" was produced. Most significant was the appearance on the map of a small drawing of a house located on the neck of land between the Roanoke River and Salmon Creek at the head of Albemarle Sound. The sketch bears the legend "Batts House."

These facts coupled with other evidence have led William F. Cumming to suggest that this house indicates the establishment of the first permanent settlement in the territory that was to become North Carolina in 1661, even as early as 1657 when the Comberford map was drawn.

Paschal continued by saying that the Batts House on the map represents a settlement of many houses and Batts house alone was shown to represent this settlement because he was "the leading man of that region." This contention is based upon the journals and letters of George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends, who visited the Albemarle area in 1672. He referred to Batts once as "who had been Governor" and on another occasion as "the Ole Governor."

Adding, he said that Dr. Cumming's theory, if accepted, would thus mean that permanent settlement of the Carolina region south of Virginia had been accomplished not later than 1657 and possibly earlier. Much of the evidence is circumstantial, and too many gaps have to be bridged by conjecture to make the Cumming theory completely acceptable.

Paschal stated that George Durant in March 1661-1662 received a grant for a tract of land lying on a neck between the Perquimans and Little Rivers from Kilcoacan, King of the Yeopim Indians. This grant was later recorded in the deed book of Perquimans County and is the oldest recorded land transaction in North Carolina.

Monday morning at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Service League ten provisional members were welcomed into full and active membership by the membership chairman, Mrs. Carl Wade. The girls welcomed were Mrs. Charles P. Adams, Mrs. W. H. Chance, Jr., Mrs. Louis Clark, Mrs. George Coffman, Mrs. Marion Gardner, Mrs. Tom Rowlette, Mrs. S. A. Sewall, Mrs. J. H. Tucker, Mrs. C. B. Tugwell and Mrs. M. C. Williamson. Mrs. C. B. Tugwell responded for the new members.

Mrs. Stuart Bost announced the Blind Sale sponsored by the league would be February 12 and 13 at Lautares Bros. Jewelry Store. Workers were secured to help on these two days.

Mrs. Edgar Williford announced that the Bridge-Canasta Luncheon held in January at the home of Mrs. Ray Minges was most successful and commended the workers and chairman, Mrs. C. W. Howard, Jr., and co-chairman, Mrs. William Corbill, Jr. for a job well done.

Mrs. W. A. Wrought announced the Spring term would start at

Thus by 1661 and probably by 1660 a permanent settlement of the Carolina region had been accomplished. After years of grandiose schemes and plans, the job had been done by the farmer pushing out from the Virginia frontier seeking new and richer lands. Paschal concluded by stating that the relentless pressure of the frontier that was to carry settlement to the Pacific in the centuries ahead had achieved what all the king's men could not do.

During the business session Miss Jesse Rountree Moye, president, appointed members from the Society to serve on Pitt County's 200th Anniversary celebration. This is to be a county affair and when plans are formulated these names and others in the entire county will be published.

The resignation of Mrs. Cora S. Powell was accepted with regret. Miss Ruth Coplon was welcomed as a special guest.

Prior to the dinner tomato juice cocktail was served by Mrs. C. R. Townsend of Farmville.

The coffee shop Wednesday morning and urged all workers to be prompt.

Mrs. R. E. Lee, Jr. reported on the Girl Scout activities and said a committee composed of Mrs. Knott Proctor Jr., and Mrs. C. E. Tugwell and herself had decorated for the Girl Scout Tea held in January.

Two layettes were furnished during January. Mrs. W. H. Watson, chairman stated, and Mrs. Stuart Bost reported that three patients had been cared for at the hospital. Four emergency calls were answered during January, Mrs. Milo Smith stated.

Mrs. George Lautares, president of the Service League announced that a wheel chair had been given to the league by Miss Elizabeth Deal and had been put into immediate use. Mrs. Lautares also announced Mrs. C. W. Howard, Jr. had been appointed chairman.

CAMERA ANGLES

IMPACT! Did the photographer have to duck? No, careful staging by Ozzie Sweet produced this dramatic golf shot. The ball is suspended by a thread from a fishing pole. On signal, the girl hit the sand trap and Ozzie clicked. It's one of the tricks revealed in his book "My Camera Pays Off."

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The feat of changing sensitive photo film into the colorful green of currency comes easily to some photographers but remains a mystery to others. Does it require secret ingredients, expensive special equipment, elaborate studios and high-priced models? Or is it a matter of "who-you-know" in publications and advertising agencies?

The country's most prolific cover photographer, Ozzie Sweet of New Canaan, Conn., comes up with the answers in a new book, "My Camera Pays Off." Plainspoken and easy to understand, it is published by Ampho and distributed by Doubleday.

Ozzie probably the most successful present day free-lance photographer, feels that any person of average intelligence can duplicate what he has done, namely: make money and have fun with photography.

Actually, he says, editors are receptive to any pictures they can use whether they are from a famous photographer, a picture agent or an unknown snapshotter. A good picture hurdles all barriers as long as it meets the requirements of a publication or advertising agency.

If there is a secret ingredient for successful photography, it might be plenty of ideas and the imagination and resourcefulness to carry them out pictorially, Sweet reveals.

He contends expensive equipment and elaborate studios are not essential for high class photography. He didn't have them when he started and managed to do all right. They might make the work

Seeking Entry In Wayne School

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A Negro Air Force sergeant made the first bid for integration in Wayne County schools Monday when he asked for re-assignment of his son to an all-white school here.

The boy, 8-year-old Bruce Archer, son of M. Sgt. Fred Archer, has been assigned to the Negro East End School, just off Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

Sgt. Archer asked the Wayne County Board of Education to re-assign the boy, a second grader, to Meadow Lane School, located near the base's Capehart Housing Project where the Archer family lives.

Two school boards, the Goldsboro city board and the Wayne County agency, are involved. The county board controls Meadow Lane, and the city board runs East End.

The Wayne County board said Archer's application "is not properly before us," explaining that under state law a student must be assigned by the board before there can be grounds for re-assignment.

Archer has not yet enrolled his child in school. In his application he said he prefers that the boy attend the school within the district in which he lives. That would be Meadow Lane, a building constructed with federal money but run by the county system. It is the only school in the district.

Rush Ordered In Pension Study

RALEIGH (AP)—Legal repairs to a firemen's pension fund act overturned by the State Supreme Court will be studied by a committee of the North Carolina Firemen's Assn.

The association's executive board Monday set up the new legislative committee and instructed it to do a rush job on bringing back a report.

Apparently the committee will attempt to draft legally sound legislation for a pension fund, for introduction before the Legislature which convenes Wednesday. The defunct pension fund was established by the 1957 Legislature.

Raleigh Fire Chief Jack Keeter, association president, said firemen will "sit tight for a while" on some $200,000 collected in voluntary pension contributions from firemen. If a new pension plan can be created quickly, the funds could be plopped into the new system, he indicated.

Serving on the legislative committee will be Chief Donald Charles and Capt. Berry Gibson, Charlotte; Curtis Flanagan, Farmville; and Curtis Flanagan, Farmville; and Capt. Berry Gibson, Charlotte; Curtis Flanagan, Farmville; and Curtis Flanagan, Farmville.

Sparkman Confident His Housing Bill Won't Be Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) said today he is confident his $2,925,000,000 omnibus housing bill will move through the Senate without reductions.

A measure of similar size was cut last year in an effort to speed Senate passage.

The Banking Committee approved Sparkman's compromise measure Monday after rejecting efforts of Republicans to reduce it and of liberal Democrats to increase funds for slum clearance.

Floor debate on the bill begins Wednesday. Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), assistant majority leader, said night sessions would be held if necessary to get the measure through this week.

The bill, first major piece of legislation on the Senate floor this year, furnishes an early test of sentiment on President Eisenhower's hold the line plea on his budget.

The Sparkman measure goes far beyond the $1,500,000,000 in new money authorizations asked by the President.

Nevertheless Sparkman said he had worked out his proposal in advance with Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.), the Senate's GOP spokesman on housing legislation, and believed it had a good chance to win White House approval.

Capehart would not speculate on this but he told reporters he was not too unhappy about the measure. He said it was far below the figures talked about in connection with government housing programs.

The bill carries an emergency tag because some of these programs are running short of funds. The home building industry has been pushing for legislation, and Democrats believe this may help prevent a veto.

The committee made one important concession to the President in voting to raise interest rate on GI home loans from 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 per cent. The administration said money for these loans has dried up because private lenders will not accept the lower rate. The new rate would be the same as for FHA-insured loans.

Democratic liberals on the committee succeeded in doubling the 17,500 units of new public housing starts Sparkman had originally proposed. The bill also reauthorizes 1,000 carryover units allowing a total program of $1,000. The administration had asked no new housing starts.

Only a small part of the new money authorizations in the bill would be spent in the fiscal year starting July 1. Some will be held over for a dozen years or more.

Typical Teen-Age Success In Song

By BOB THOMAS
(Second of five articles on the teen-age music industry)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Eric Hilliard Nelson looks and acts like any teen-ager. He has long, wavy hair, a straight nose and pouting lip, and he shambles when he walks.

He drives a stock Detroit car, but with a stick shift to give it more go. He dresses in good, casual style. He's interested in athletics and girls, too. At 18, he is not too communicative with adults.

But his fellow teen-agers get his message. When Ricky Nelson gets behind a guitar, he is no longer the shy young man. He strums the chords, screws up his face and moans "My Bucket's Got a Hole in It" or "Don't Leave Me This Way."

The sounds and the rhythms are right out of the mountains and prairies of America—simple, untutored music with no more profound message than unrequited love.

It is with just such songs that Ricky has ascended to the No. 1 spot in the hearts of American teen-agers. He has just collected his sixth gold record (million seller) with "Lonesome Town." His three albums have sold in fantastic numbers.

In 1958, he earned $400,000 without half trying. The majority of this came from record sales. Because he appears on the ABC television show with his parents, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, and brother David, his outside activities are limited. He made only one film, "Rio Bravo," and a few singing appearances—he attracted 47,000 in one day at the Atlantic City Steel Pier.

What does Ricky think of all this? "I don't know," he says in typical style. "I never see any of the money. It all goes in the bank. If I ever need any money, I just ask my parents for some. I have no idea how much I'm making; all I know is that I'm in a 93 per cent income bracket."

The lad didn't start earning big money until he was 8 years old. That was when he and his brother bumped a couple of radio actors off "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" show. The story goes that the Nelson boys heard the Crosby kids performing on the air with Bing and argued, "If they can do it, why can't we?"

For 10 years in radio and then TV, the nation heard and watched Ricky grow up. A year ago, he decided he wanted to sing as well as act.

His acceptance by the teen-agers is testimony of the musical tastes of that vast, demonstrative audience.

One rival record company president was prompted to comment: "I don't understand how a good musician like Ozzie could let his son sing such poor music."

The teen-agers don't agree with his estimate. To them, Ricky can do no wrong.

Pleads Guilty To Extortion Count

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Herbert Strauch, 34, has pleaded guilty to a charge that he tried to extort $100,000 from Sol C. Siegel, production chief at M-G-M.

Strauch, an M-G-M commissary worker, was arrested Jan. 16 while talking to Siegel on the telephone. The FBI said Siegel's life was threatened if he did not pay. A probation hearing and sentencing were set for Feb. 24.

Desire For Change Near-Universal

There remains now on the eve of the opening of the 1959 General Assembly little doubt that the antiquated justice of the peace system of North Carolina will be completely revamped by the legislature.

Throughout North Carolina there is almost universal agreement that drastic revisions are needed in the Jaypee system. The only points of disagreement center around how the changes should be made and how far-reaching they will be. And even though points of disagreement exist, it appears certain that changes will make the new Jaypee system hardly recognizable compared with the slipshod Jaypee set-up North Carolina has had in the past.

Soon after the Bell Committee on court improvement made its recommendations concerning Jaypee courts, the North Carolina Magistrates Association came forth with its own suggestions for revision of the system; in many cases similar to the proposals for the study committee of the Bar Association. Now that the Magistrates Association has spelled out its legislative proposals, it is apparent that their proposed reform would not go as far as that of the Bar Association Committee. It is questionable also whether the Magistrates' recommendations would remove all the ills of the system that most Tar Heels would like to see removed.

If Jaypee courts of the state as a whole are to be an asset rather than a liability to the overall system of courts in North Carolina, they must be completely revamped from the standpoint of operation, and supervision as well as from the standpoint of qualifications for magistrates and their selection.

The 1959 session of the General Assembly will fail miserably in its duty to the people of North Carolina if it does not completely revamp the Jaypee system and bring it under uniform controls and regulations to assure its making a constructive contribution to the administration of justice in this state.

Model Republic Says 'No' To Women's Vote

It seems uncanny that the little mountain country of Switzerland, long a symbol of peace, freedom and democracy in the center of tumultuous Europe, would in these modern times continue to deny women a voice in politics and the affairs of government.

For the third time since 1920 Swiss males went to the polls Sunday and voted overwhelmingly against giving the women of their republic the right to vote. Moreover, it remains the only European nation which denies women the right to participate in politics.

Such attitude on the part of the Swiss males appears incompatible with the widespread impression that Switzerland is sort of a model republic, retaining its equilibrium in the most troubled times and avoiding great wars which have raged all around it. For decades it has played the role of the epitome of neutrality while at the same time gaining respect from other democracies throughout the world for its own democratic government operation.

And it continues to deny its women a voice in politics.

For Sixty Years, A Leader Of Stature

Greenville lost one of its most colorful and progressive citizens in the death of William Haywood Dail, Jr. who died yesterday at the age of 80.

Haywood Dail moved to Greenville from Greene County in 1898 as a young man of 20, and for 60 years he asserted forceful leadership to promote agriculture, business and education in Greenville and Pitt County. Though his activities had been somewhat restricted in recent years, Haywood Dail probably will be remembered best in Pitt County as one of the leaders in the movement to establish East Carolina College in Greenville, and as one of the founders of the North Carolina Farm Bureau which was organized in Greenville.

Throughout his life he was an outspoken leader for agriculture, education, and progressiveness on the part of local businessmen and local government. His warm personality and his desire for community progress endeared him to many friends, young and old, over a long period of years.

Greenville and Pitt County are much better places because of the untiring effort which Haywood Dail devoted to their progress throughout his adult life. He was a leader of stature whose contribution to community betterment will continue for many more years to accrue benefits to the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County.

Pressure Builds Up At Raleigh

By LYNN NISBET

PRESSURE — Always the day or two before the formal convening of a General Assembly finds Raleigh hotels crowded with the vanguard of legislators, lobbyists and spectators. Usually it is a gala occasion for a happy group of people, renewing old acquaintances and making new friends. The crowd is here, has been since Sunday afternoon, but the atmosphere is more tense than gala. Legislators and lobbyists are serious-mindedly going about the business of soliciting support for the two candidates for Speaker of the House and two for President pro tem of the Senate. They have had no time to play. Both contests are closer than any time in 20 years, and there is too much at stake for monkey business.

Addison Hewlett of New Hanover and Carl Venters of Onslow each came to Raleigh claiming enough votes to assure election as Speaker of the House. Since the Speaker will appoint the committees and channel bills to them, the stakes are high both for members seeking committee assignments and for lobbyists interested in special legislation. The game usually is played by the main rule of winner take all. It is recalled that when Odus Mull won the Speakership in 1941 he so completely ignored the precursors supporters of George Uzzell in committee assignments they formed the Kennel Club (dog house). It is not likely the brush-off will be as severe this time, regardless of who wins, because any Speaker is going to need the help of important leaders in the other camp to keep wheels running smoothly. The losers, however, cannot expect to fare as well as the winners.

SENATE — Lieutenant Governor Luther Barnhardt as constitutional President of the Senate will appoint committees on that side. For that reason the post of President pro tem is far less significant than the House Speakership. It carries considerable prestige and puts the holder in direct line of succession to the governorship. This year the prelate is more important than usual, because of popular belief that election of C.V. Henkel of Iredell over Robert F. Morgan of Cleveland would be a slap at Governor Hodges. That belief stems from the open break between Henkel and Hodges in the 1957 Senate.

Although the Governor has repeatedly said he is taking no personal hand in either race, there is indisputable evidence that his close associates in and out of State government have applied all the pressure they could in behalf of Morgan, and to slightly less degree for Venters in the House. This pressure has been intensified since arrival of the early comers Sunday, and is expected to continue until the final vote in the caucuses Tuesday night.

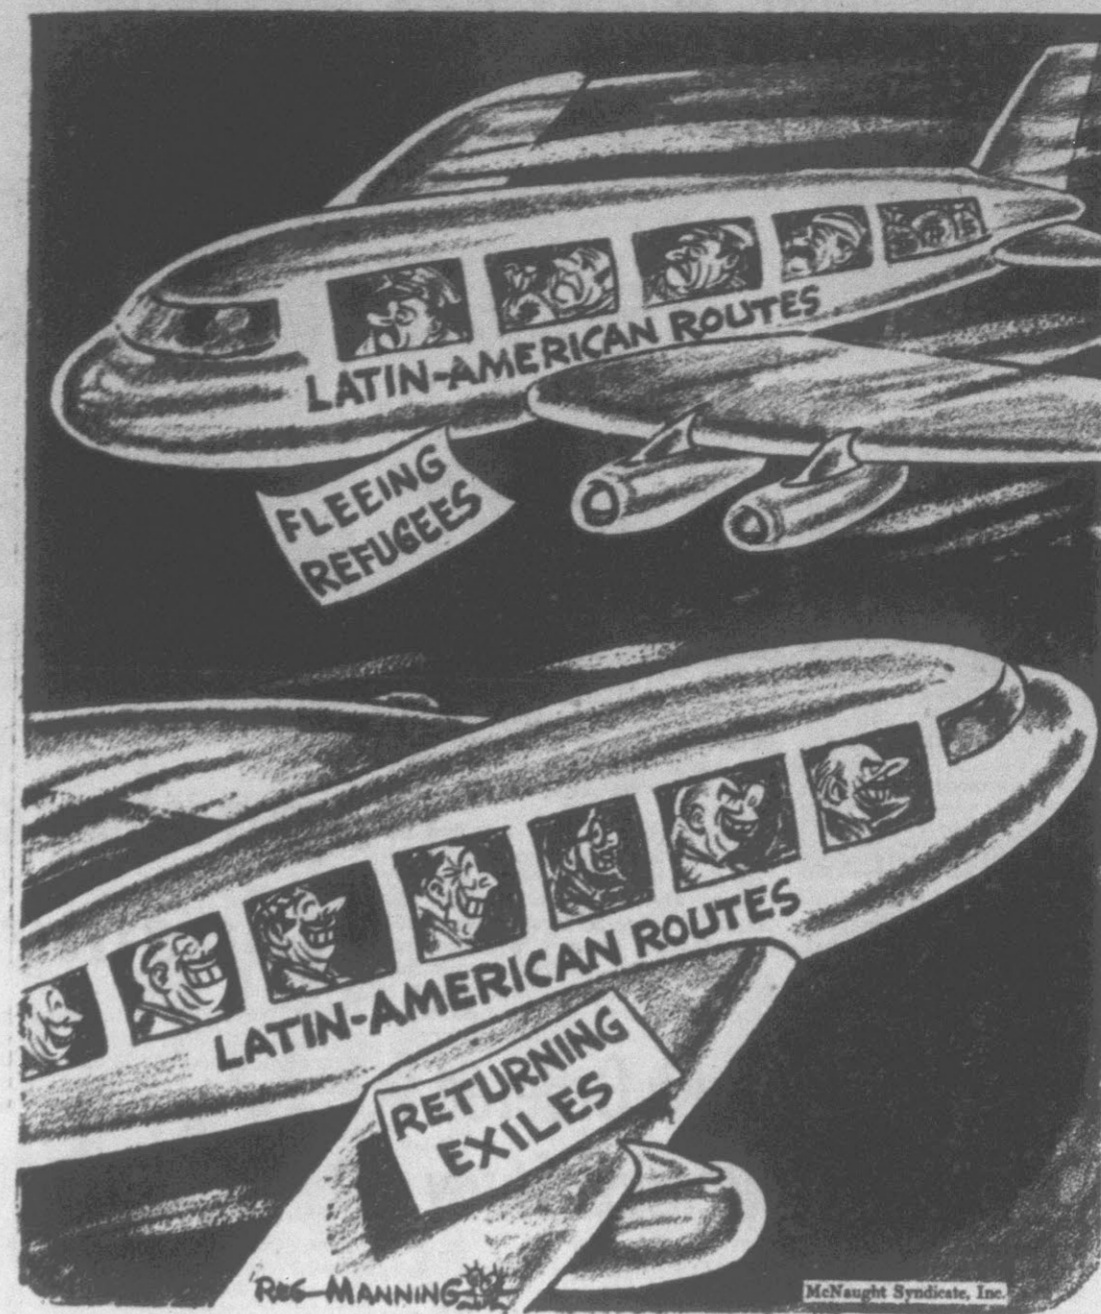

The race is so close for Speaker that Secretary of State Thad Eure, who has watched legislatures closely for 30 years, has had two seating chart plates prepared and has arranged for printers to stay on the job through Tuesday night to print the appropriate chart after the caucus. It's the second time in the eleven sessions he has served as Secretary of State when such arrangement was deemed necessary. The other occasion was in 1939 when a three-way contest resulted in a two vote margin for Libby Ward over Victor Bryant. When the Legislature formally convenes Wednesday at noon each member will have on his desk a seating chart showing the name of the Speaker and the seats to which the other 119 Representatives have been assigned.

RUMORS — The rumor factory has been working overtime and has produced almost as many conflicting and contradictory reports as there are "employees" in the factory. One of the most interesting facets of a legislative news reporter's experience is to find how many people know so many things that ain't so. An absolutely factual report that So-and-So had switched allegiance under pressure proved upon investigation to have no foundation whatever in fact or reason.

While voting members of the Legislature have been very busy in behalf of their favorite candidate—or just waiting around to see what might be the best offer in return for support, the lobbyists have been working both sides of the street. Their approach is that no matter who is elected Speaker, we want more money for this service or less tax on this business.

Opinion of one veteran observer is that the lines between more money and less taxes are about as even as those between the candidates.

Ships That Pass In The Night

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Satisfaction Explained

Friend of mine came back from a trip to Myrtle Beach the other weekend looking extremely happy.

"What were you doing down there?" I asked my contented friend.

"Went on a house party," he smiled.

"He ended the matter for a time and our conversation turned to other things."

"Finally we drifted back to the house party."

"How many couples went on the party," I asked.

"One," the friend replied with a dreamy smile.

Another friend, a tobaccoist, says he and some other tobaccoist were returning from the Kentucky market recently.

Driving was a man noted for his regular nips from the spirit bottles. Soon he pulled a booboo in his driving chores.

"Be careful!" one of his passengers shouted.

"The driver threw up his hands. 'My gosh you mean I'm driving,'" he cried.

Word from New Bern is that the restored Tryon Palace will be opened to the public on April 10.

The opening of the $3,000,000 restored palace has been eagerly awaited in the state. It gives North Carolina's coastal area, a fast growing tourist spot, another attraction.

Chairman of the commission's committee on the program for the palace opening is none other than Pitt County's senator, Robert Lee Humber.

The North Carolina General Assembly will be invited to meet in the palace—Wednesday morning April 8 which will be official North Carolina day with dedicatory ceremonies.

State Legislators, their wives and staff members, only to the Council of State and State Supreme Court Justices will be offered free transportation from Raleigh to New Bern and return.

A luncheon will be given for them by the City of New Bern. Gov. Hodges will be the Principal speaker. Tours of the palace buildings and gardens will be arranged for the official party during the afternoon.

On the morning of April 8 the palace will be open only to the General Assembly and Tryon Palace commission members for the formal legislative sessions in the palace.

Tours of other historic spots in the city will be planned for the wives and staff members who accompany the legislators.

The following day, April 9, will be Tryon Palace Commission day, and all events will be by invitation only, because of limited facilities. Tours of the restoration will be taken during the day and admission will be by card only.

There is to be a subscription dinner on the evening of April 9, followed by a candlelight reception at the palace. Details of the events will be announced later.

Beginning April 10, the palace and gardens will be opened regularly to the public every Sunday afternoon from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and each weekday except Monday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. As at other historic houses there will be an admission charge.

Thus what might prove to be North Carolina's top tourist attraction will soon be open to the public. It will be a welcome addition to the many attractions which now bring big numbers of visitors to the state each year.

What we do to improve our court system in North Carolina will be of great value in improving justice to all. The coming legislature will hear much about court reforms. The people of North Carolina one day will go to the polls to speak out on court reform proposals.

We will never reach perfection in ending the recession, but we should work toward forms are practical and needed. We will reach perfection in this matter of meeting out justice. We do not condone in any sense one type of justice for the rich man and another for the poor man. But we all feel it has happened inadvertently or otherwise on many occasions in the history of our courts.

Years Of The Doubts

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — They say there is nothing more awkward than being a teen-ager.

Well, there is something more awkward. It's being in "the in-between age." I mean between 40 and 50.

A teen-ager has at least one consolation — he is growing up. But a man in the in-between age, is he growing at all, is growing down.

It isn't life that begins at 40 — IT'S DOUBT.

It is also confusion. Your in-between-ager is just a crazy, mixed-up kid, trying to find an ego.

The period between 40 and 50 is just a vale of years when one is neither young nor elderly, and can't quite get used to considering oneself middle-aged.

Here is a picture of the typical in-between-ager:

He is not altogether bald but, on the other hand, combing his hair isn't a major exercise with him.

If he does ten deep knee bends before breakfast, he has the bends the rest of the day.

It takes him until noon to feel as good as he used to at dawn. Every time he successfully eats a piece of corn on the cob it is a moral victory for his dentist.

He gets suspicious of doctors. He becomes angry at stenographers because they have never learned to spell words he has not forgotten how to spell.

Promotion — wise, he's in a swamp — too old to be a junior executive, and too young to be a senior executive.

He tries to hide the fact that he no longer has the steam to stay up late by remarking, "Nobody ever said anything memorable after midnight."

He starts listening to his wife. He now and then finds himself agreeing with her — that is, unless she is proposing going out for the evening.

It takes him three martinis at the office Christmas party to say the things to his boss he used to say after one.

He never sees the moon set any more, but he finds himself waking earlier and earlier, for no reason. And lying in bed, he compares the sunrises of today with the sunrises of his boyhood. They are as beautiful, but colder, and the sun seems farther away. It is a yellow sinner.

When he finally gets up, it takes him longer to clear his throat than it used to take him to shave and dress.

But your man in the in-between age is cheered by one thought. Things may get worse after 30, but he won't mind them. He feels he'll be too numb to notice any more change.

Opinions In Brief

"There has been timidity in government in facing up to the problem of wage-push inflation because it has been so generally viewed as one involving conflict between employees and management. This is a fallacious view, since the employee's interest in avoiding inflation and assuring maximum progress is fully as great as that of management." — Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield.

"The great majority of people want the integrity of their money protected, their form of government preserved, their free enterprise system to survive. We must have a national crusade from the grass roots to save our representative democracy. From long experience in the Senate, I can say that the voice of the people will overcome selfish, highly organized minorities." — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (Virginia).

"One way to get through life and never have a fight is to shut up when you're wrong, and likewise when you're right." — Mattoon (Ill.) Journal-Gazette.

"The United States should not try to transplant the American way of life in Asia... (but) should bring its ideals of democracy and liberty to Asia and let them take root in the Asian environment." — Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia.

Quote...

"Bell Telephone Laboratories announced the other day that it is now possible to refine metal to obtain 99.999999999 per cent purity. What do the people at Ivory Soap have to say about that?" — Charlotte News.

Other Editors Saying... Identical Crimes

(Washington Daily News)

This may or may not be a true story. But two men were indicted and charged with identical crimes. One was a rich man, and the other was a pauper. The rich man hired a battery of outstanding lawyers to defend him. The poor man had no counsel to defend him.

When the trial came along, both men were convicted, and both were sentenced to the roads. Before sentences were announced, the lawyers defending the rich man argued that their client had suffered enough. He had lost his social position; he had lost his leadership in the community; the mental anguish he had suffered over the crime was sufficient punishment for him. But the judge would not go along with the argument.

However, the rich man's attorneys entered an appeal. The poor man left to serve his time in prison. When the case reached the higher court, a new trial was ordered for the rich man. When the second trial was held, again the jury found the rich man guilty. But this time the arguments that his loss of social position, of leadership, and the mental anguish he had suffered impressed the judge, and he let the rich man off with probation and fine.

But the pauper was already in prison serving his time. The public immediately began to talk in terms of the scales of justice being tipped in favor of the rich man. On the street corners one might say "the rich man got out, but the poor man got the prison."

By ELMER ROESSNER

The popular idea that the 1953 recession was ended by "built in" stabilizers is more or less chopped to hamburger by V Lewis Bassie, director of the Illinois University Bureau of Economic and Business Research and one of the frequent dissidents to modern economic thinking.

Other economists have told us that there are automatic brakes to economic runaways; that if large numbers of workers are laid off unemployment benefits will restore their purchasing power, ending the downhill roll; that if farm prices drop, government purchases and loans will restore farm purchasing power and all will be well again.

During the recent business unpleasantness, many were convinced that the increase of government spending, plus reduced collections of taxes, about equaled the $30 billion decline in the gross national product from the third quarter of 1957 to the first quarter of 1958.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING UP Governmental outlays did increase sharply. "No doubt some 1958 projects were of an anti-recessionary character," Dr. Bassie wrote in the Illinois Business Review. "The upsurge in highway building, for example, was stimulated by Federal funds made specially available. But this stimulus was specific to the situation and is properly a Federal rather than a state and local contribution."

Various other Federal programs have been cited as helpful in ending the recession, which indeed they were. But with the exception of transfer payments, none were automatic stabilizers, according to Dr. Bassie. "Transfer payments" is the economists' trade name for unemployment benefits, old-age pensions, veterans' aid and other devices by which money is transferred from people's pockets to those whom the government thinks need it more.

Dr. Bassie notes these four types of spending which were generally regarded as automatic brakes on recessions but which were, in actuality far from automatic.

1. Increases in defense spending. These "began with Sputniks; it took several months to reverse the downward movement underway and subsequently the disturbances in Lebanon and Quemoy added fuel to the fire. Military considerations were decisive in this area."

2. Housing. Building was stimulated "by actions taken to make terms easier to home buyers and to make funds available for mortgage financing. The actions taken in this area were ad hoc and could not be automatically repeated on other occasions."

3. Farm aid. "Price supports are more generally thought of as part of the regular stabilizing mechanism. This program was originally conceived as an anti-depression measure to protect farmers against falling nonfarm income." But personal income was back to record highs by the third quarter of 1958. Dr. Bassie points out, adding, "Large increases in government purchases of farm commodities were due, therefore, not to falling income but to record production."

4. Pay increases of government employees. These, Dr. Bassie points out, were not automatic, but the result of special legislation. "They are primarily the result of well-known lags in bringing government compensation into line with rising incomes in the private economy."

These views are refreshing and they serve to remind that while there are some built-in recession brakes, the things that stopped the recent skid were not these brakes, but other ones applied at the spur of the moment. SCANDALOUS LIMERICKS TO SPARE, ANYONE? Many house organs carry want ads for the benefit of their employees. Perhaps one of the more unusual ads is this from "F.Y.I." an organ for Time-Life employees.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
LOOK LONG AND PONDER
How much is a billion dollars?

Let us put it this way: If a man had been given one billion dollars the day Christ was born and he and his descendants had spent one thousand dollars a day every day from the year one of the Christian era until the year 1959, the billion dollars would still not be expended. In fact, descendants of the 1959'ers would have to go on spending one thousand dollars a day for almost eight hundred years before the billion dollars was depleted.

In other words, it takes about 2740 years to spend a billion dollars at the rate of one thousand dollars a day.

But why bring that up? Because in adding to billions upon billions spent for public services in this country, we are spending also about forty-two billion dollars for armament.

If we spent forty-two thousand dollars a day for 2740 years, we would just about use up forty-two billion dollars. And this amount we are spending every year for armament which will soon be obsolete, and for equipment and services which by no stretch of the imagination can be called creative in character.

Are we insane? And if so, how insane? Yet everyone would say that the nation must keep armed to defend itself against criminal aggression.

This is not a plea for pacifism or even for a reduction in armament. It is only stated in order that we may look into the sinful heart of man and appreciate how great that sin is.

No Neurotics Wanted For Pioneering In Space Flight

By RAY CROWLEY
WASHINGTON (AP) — If you want to go pioneering in space, you must first convince the government you are not an oddball. No neurotics wanted—that's the word.

There had been talk that a neurotic—or even a psychotic—might be just the man to go into orbit. A Ph. D. suggested that a schizophrenic, being wrapped up in himself and withdrawn from the world, might not mind the isolation, cramped quarters and boredom of life in a space capsule.

The suggestion has been vetoed by space authorities. Air Force Brig. Gen. Don Flickinger, a medical expert who is helping select future space travelers, explains, "A voyager among the planets must be 'stable, calm and confident.' Moreover:

"We must reject those who, although able to give a good account of themselves, do so primarily to prove something to themselves or the world. They are uniformly fairly bad risks."

So candidates for the job of Mercury astronaut — 110 possible ones already have been selected by the government's screening machinery—face tough tests. All the resources of psychology will be used to make sure the winner is on the beam.

The tests will be so rugged that millions would flunk. Let us consider two examples out of the past:

Case No. 1—Charles Darwin. As a young man, Darwin didn't do very well at Cambridge University, failed at medicine, and wasted time following the hounds. But there were no psychologists or personality questionnaires in his day. So in 1831, he got a berth as a naturalist aboard H. M. S. Beagle, bound on a five-year journey around the world.

On hands and knees on the shores of the Cape Verde islands, he studied the habits of cuttlefish. He dug up the bones of extinct animals on the pampas of South America, and wondered at the marvelous variations in the finches of the Galapagos.

Back home in England, he spent more than two decades molding an enormous array of facts into his great theory of evolution. This theory revolutionized the outlook of much of mankind on all living things.

But Darwin was not a well man. Aboard the Beagle, he was seasick. After the voyage, he was plagued the rest of his life by mysterious headaches, stomach trouble, anxiety and self-doubts. A modern doctor would diagnose the case as psychosomatic. Obviously, he was not the type for a space capsule.

Case No. 2—Isaac Newton. Among other stupendous mental feats, he worked out the laws of motion and gravity. These are the laws that will govern space ships.

He was, however, not normal. In the first place he had an unhappy childhood. This fact alone is enough to alert any psychologist. He was quarrelsome, suspicious, secretive and once had a nervous breakdown.

He would show up for his lectures at Cambridge with clothes untidy and hair uncombed. It is said that even if the hall were empty he would go ahead and deliver the lecture anyway. Wordsworth described him as

ACL President Will Speak To C-of-C Feb. 24

W. Thomas Rice, president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, will be the principal speaker at the Greenville Chamber of Commerce dinner, February 24, the local chamber officials announced Monday.

Plans for the dinner are now being developed, and ticket sales to the event will begin within a few days.

The organization's dinner meeting is being arranged by the Chamber of Commerce Public Re-

Johnson Wants Business Advise Economic War

NEW YORK (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson proposes that the United States set up a committee of businessmen to give advice on strategy to defeat the Soviet Union's world economic challenge.

The Texas Democrat says he is confident the United States will win any economic duel.

Addressing 300 New York state newspaper publishers and editors at a dinner last night, Johnson called for a full-scale congressional investigation of trade and foreign aid policies in the face of trade competition from the Soviet Union.

"Right now," he said, "we should be planning bold, imaginative programs to open up new markets."

Describing Nikita S. Khrushchev as a "hustler," Johnson said the Soviet premier is constantly searching for new trade outlets in "the deadly business of taking over chunks of the world real estate for communism."

"There is no reason why we can't beat him at this game," the senator declared.

Johnson answered questions after his prepared speech.

One answer: "By and large, the Soviet empire is ahead of us in the missile field."

On another question, he called the peaceful integration of schools in Norfolk and Arlington Va., "a real tribute to our system."

"And I think that will happen all across our land if we just will it that way," he added.

Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the dinner will be held in the new South Cafeteria at East Carolina College and that members of the trade association, wives of members, and members of business organizations affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce are urged to plan to be present for this affair.

President Rice has had an active career in railroading and engineering since his college graduation and was elected to the presidency of the ACL railroad, one of the nation's top railway systems, upon the retirement of C. McD. Davis of Wilmington about a year ago.

Textiler Says Jumped Gun On Wage Increases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The president of the nation's largest textile chain says several Southern textile companies are jumping the gun in announcing wage hikes.

Spencer Love, president of Burlington Industries, asserted in a statement at Greensboro Monday that the increases are "premature and precipitative."

Love, who last fall urged a $1.25 federal minimum wage, maintained wage hikes are unjustified at this time "because of the low operating margins under which we work, because of obvious uncertainty with regard to the extent of the recovery trend in the industry and because of the seasonal aspects in that our spring, 1959 prices are all set."

A similar view was expressed by Robert T. Stevens, president of the J. P. Stevens Co. He said he does not believe wage boosts "will become general throughout the industry at this time." Stevens added that "further study is essential" before such action is taken.

Earlier Monday, two more firms announced pay increases, effective Feb. 15, for their wage-hour employees. They are the West Point Manufacturing Co., of West Point, Ga., which operates seven plants in Alabama, two in Georgia and one in South Carolina; and Callaway Mills of LaGrange, Ga., which has nine plants in Georgia.

Neither company specified the amount of the increases.

Cannon Mills of Kannapolis announced Saturday it is raising its hourly wage Feb. 13 from $1.12 to $1.25. The company employs about 20,000.

Several other mills, most of them in the Spartanburg-Greenville, S.C., area, also announced hikes.

Love said he is in favor of increasing the federal minimum wage to $1.25 an hour because "it would be on a basis fair to all."

His reasons: "Everyone would be forced to act."

"It would give everyone time and opportunity to make merchandising plans in formity. . . He added that "Burlington will continue to maintain its policy of keeping its wage levels in its various fields among the highest in the industry. . ."

Virginia's School Integration Start Causes Little Stir In Rest Of Dixie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The start of racial integration at seven public schools in Virginia apparently didn't cause much of a stir among Southern political leaders.

Reactions were as varied as the feelings among the people of the region, with deep South states still determined to resist and the governor of one border state pleased that some progress was being made toward school integration.

Generally, there was little to indicate that the end of massive resistance in Virginia might have any marked effect on other states determined to maintain the South's traditional way of life.

Gov. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina said public schools in that state would remain segregated.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas said he remained "unalterably opposed to forcible integration from any source."

Heber Ladner, Mississippi secretary of state, said "It is a sad commentary when the states cannot govern their own educational programs, which was the intent of the founding fathers. To me, to have the U.S. Supreme Court force upon the sovereign states a concept so foreign to our American way of life is one of the most dangerous developments in this century."

On the other hand, Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky said he was pleased that the people of Virginia "have now decided that some progress ought to be made in the direction of integration."

The governor continued: "They have to live with it and it is something we ought not to object to because it is past due. I am glad to see Virginia take its place with Kentucky and other states in integration. That is the contribution toward democracy which we must make. The step Virginia has taken will be helpful in having other states adopt some similar course of action."

Faubus disagreed. He said he did not feel that the admission of Negroes to public schools in Arlington and Norfolk presaged defeat of the anti-integration movement.

"Virginia has passed a student aid law such as we have under consideration here," Faubus said at Little Rock. "I think perhaps this is the best way to fight." He added he did not think Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia has quit.

In Louisiana, State Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the joint legislative committee on segregation, said he felt that "a much more vigorous use of state executive power, in Virginia's case, would have prevented the token integration in that state."

Sam Engelhardt, Alabama state Democratic chairman, said he was certain the Virginia move "doesn't indicate any weakening on our part. And we must face these things realistically—in Alabama there would be bloodshed."

He said this would be true in any section of the state "and we're just not going to integrate, period."

However, the Rev. Martin Luther King, who led the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott by Negroes, said that peaceful integration of schools in Virginia showed that such a transition could be made without violence.

King said predictions of violence often invite such acts. He expressed hope that leaders in other Southern states would follow the example of the Virginia governor by refraining from predicting trouble.

At Tallahassee, Fla., State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey credited Virginia's orderly transition to integrated schools at Norfolk and Arlington in part to the impact of several months without schools.

He said the repeal of the compulsory attendance law and the provision for state grants to parents who wanted to withdraw children from integrated schools had served to lessen tensions.

But the governor of South Carolina said it was "apparent that those not interested in the education of all the citizens of Virginia have used a technicality to force integration."

"Fortunately, we have removed such technicalities from our constitution and statutes," Hollings said. "We can only have an efficient educational system under the segregated pattern, and we shall continue to provide this system."

South Carolina does not require a public school system, as does Virginia, nor does it require attendance at the schools it maintains.

Now It's Easier To Fight Fires

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—It's getting easier to fight fires at the new Prudential Insurance Co. skyscraper. But there's still a way to go.

Last week firemen had to climb 24 flights to put out a small blaze. Since then elevators for the first 10 floors have been installed. So Monday firemen had to walk only five flights to put out small fire on the 15th floor.

At Tallahassee, Fla., State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey credited Virginia's orderly transition to integrated schools at Norfolk and Arlington in part to the impact of several months without schools.

He said the repeal of the compartment of fire. He said it is a sign that the city is moving toward a more modern fire-fighting system. "Relax. Sit back and enjoy your ride."

But it is posted now in a taxi bus in a police paddy wagon.

ECC Blasts Appalachian, 94-60, In 'Revenge' Sweep

Race To Seventh Conference Win

By JOHNNY HUDSON
East Carolina, rapidly making shambles of the North State leaders, turned on the steam in the second half last night to blast Appalachian 94-60 and capture fourth place in the conference.

Led by the fast-breaking attack of Ike Riddick, East Carolina turned a five point halftime lead into a quick 13 point margin in the second half to race to their seventh conference victory.

Riddick, the Greenville junior, was the spark in the second half slaughter as he hit 15 points, all coming on the fast break. Ike shot only once in the first half and failed to scratch.

Jessell Curry hit a jump shot and minutes later Charlie Adams hit a 18 footer to put ECC out front 6-4 and they were never headed. Nick Nichols, the team captain, kept the nets full in the first half and also controlled both backboards to keep the Pirates out from all the way.

Plaster hit a tip-in with about four minutes to go in the half to give ECC their biggest margin of the first half, 33-17. Appalachian made their only spurt of the game in the closing minutes of the first half as Ansel Glendinning and Willard Swift hit two match for the scoring power of the Bucs.

Appalachian will move over to Wilson tonight for a game with the Bulldogs and then this Thursday ACC and ECC meet head on here. It will be the first encounter of the season for the arch-rivals.

Cooper Tabbed Boxer-Of-Month

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Henry Cooper, who won the British heavyweight title Jan. 12 and then demanded a $140,000 guarantee to fight Floyd Patterson for the world championship, today was named boxer-of-the-month by the National Boxing Assn.

Cooper's 15-round decision over Brian London elevated him from seventh to third in the NBA's heavyweight ratings behind Patterson, Sweden's Ingemar Johansson and Cuba's Nino Valdez.

Patterson and Johansson signed last week for a title fight, but no date or site was announced.

The NBA kept Tony Anthony of New York as its No. 1 contender for Archie Moore's light heavyweight crown despite Anthony's upset loss to Reuben Vargas Friday night. The NBA said Vargas fought as a heavyweight. He outwitted Anthony, 186 to 177.

Two newcomers — welterweight Dennis Moyer of Portland, Ore., and bantamweight Freddie Gilroy of Ireland — broke into the rankings this week. Moyer used a victory over Mexico's Gaspar Ortega as a springboard into the No. 8 position among welters and Gilroy's triumph over Peter Keenan landed him in the 10th slot among bantams.

Baseball Training Starts Early

Major League Schedule Is Advanced For Early Start

By FRANK ECK
AP News Features Sports Editor

Spring training for major league baseball players will be a bit different this time. All of the healthy ones, except those doing a six-months bit in the National Defense Service and the stubborn holdouts, are expected to be in uniform and working out by Feb. 28. Three will have full squads on hand by Feb. 23.

For the past few years the latest reporting date was March 1, but that's changed now because the American and National League seasons open one week sooner. President Eisenhower probably will throw out the first American League baseball with new league president Joe Cronin's signature on it in Washington where Baltimore takes part in the April 9 inaugural.

In the National League Cincinnati plays host to Pittsburgh on the same day. On April 10 all teams in both leagues are scheduled to play except Washington and Baltimore. They have the 10th open in case of a rainout on the 9th.

With the season starting earlier than usual, the Florida and Arizona exhibition seasons are moved up. That means earlier reporting dates for the athletes. All teams open their exhibition activity on Saturday, March 7.

Several clubs are holding instruction camps for farm team players and untested rookies who could be added to major league rosters before opening day. But the first National League regulars will continue to train at Vero Beach, Fla., but most of their exhibitions will be played at Pate Park, Sarasota where 10 are scheduled.

The world champion New York Yankees have eliminated their instruction school this year but will again use Miller Huggins Field, St. Petersburg, Fla., for workouts beginning Feb. 19, and Al Lang Field for exhibition.

Twelve teams will train in Florida, four in Arizona.

Wildcats Remain At Top Of Poll

By ED CORRIGAN

Powerful Kentucky continued to roll along in first place in The Associated Press basketball poll today.

The Wildcats, proud owners of a 17-1 record, compiled 890 points for a comfortable 88-point margin over North Carolina.

Adolph Rupp's club attracted 42 first place ballots out of the 104 votes cast by the country's sports writers and sportscasters.

Only one team dropped out of the top 10. That was St. John's which was ambushed twice during the week on a road trip. The Redmen from Brooklyn had been in seventh place. They dropped all the way down to 15th.

St. Louis is the newcomer to the top 10. The Billikens — one of the teams that decided St. John's moved into ninth place.

Noisy Welcome For Davis Cup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After five long and frustrating years, the Davis Cup Monday night returned to United States soil and a simultaneous brass band welcome.

And with amateur tennis' loftiest bauble came the smiling, slender University of Southern California student who made the Down Under victory possible—Alejandro (Alex) Olmedo.

The USC band blared a fight song as Olmedo, non-playing captain Perry Jones and other members of the team stepped off a plane from Hawaii.

"I feel very happy indeed to be back in the United States and happy we bring the cup back," said Olmedo, a Peruvian citizen.

It was just a few days short of a year ago that Jones accepted the Davis Cup captaincy with the pledge: "We are not going to Australia with the idea of losing."

Jones said it may be some time before the United States loses the international symbol of tennis superiority. He added:

"We're going to take full advantage of our championship to spread the Gospel of tennis throughout the United States. We're going to develop more interest in the game and from that interest more and better youngsters who'll play the game."

With Jones and Olmedo were Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio; Chris Crawford of Piedmont, Calif.; and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis.

Ham Richardson, who teamed with Olmedo for the doubles victory in Australia, had returned earlier.

Brennan Through With Coaching

By JOE MOSSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Terry Brennan, victim of the great firing at Notre Dame, said good bye to football Monday night, marking the end of one career and the beginning of another.

At 30, Brennan announced he is through with coaching and will join an investment banking firm office in Chicago in April, shortly after his term officially ends at Notre Dame.

More than 400 friends, paying $10 a plate at a dinner party, turned out to honor the former Irish coach whose dismissal four days before Christmas touched off a national controversy.

Although the party had no reflection on Notre Dame's action, no university officials were present.

George Connor, former Irish star and an organizer of the affair, said "All we're trying to do is wish Terry well. This is our way of showing him that we think he's a great guy."

Connor said he telephoned Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh and the president of Notre Dame extended to Brennan his best wishes.

Shortly before the dinner, Brennan held a press conference and he announced he was through with football.

Brennan, a former star half back for the Irish, disclosed he had rejected offers of head coaching jobs from six colleges.

"I've proven I can coach a football team," he said. "There are uncertainties in coaching. I feel I have a better future in business."

"Never is a long time," said Brennan when asked if he would ever return to coaching. "but my mind is made up. I have to think of the future."

Brennan, at Notre Dame five years, was succeeded by Joe Kuharich, coach of the Washington Redskins. He said he holds "no bitterness towards Notre Dame. I wish them luck next season and the seasons to come."

At the dinner, Brennan was presented with an expensive gold wrist watch inscribed: "Terry, good luck as time goes by."

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State's head football coach, retired to Brennan a shillelagh which he and Brennan had exchanged beginning in 1954 when both men became head coaches.

North Carolina Athletic Director announced Monday these six stations will carry the Feb. 18 game: WTVF, Durham; WECT, Wilmington; WNCT, Greenville; WBTV, Charlotte; WFMY, Greensboro; and WBTV, Florence, S.C.

Woolen gym contains only 4,800 seats, which would be filled by students for a game of this importance.

North Carolina defeated State in overtime in their first meeting in Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum before a sellout crowd of 12,500.

Oscar Seeking Another 'First'

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, seeking to become the first college player in history to win the scoring title in both his sophomore and junior seasons held a comfortable 2.5 points a game lead over his closest competitor today.

The Bearcats' star scored 27 points Monday night in his team's 84-71 victory over Tulsa. But coupled with his 44-point performance against Wichita Saturday night, Robertson's season averaged moved to 32.9.

Jim Hagan of Tennessee Tech is second with 29.4 followed by Leo Byrd of Marshall with 28.6. The records include Monday night's games.

Chicod Boys Clinch First Place In Basketball Race

WINTERVILLE — Chicod's sharp-shooting varsity cagers tripped Winterville's boys, 61-50, here last night to clinch first place in the Pitt County Conference's basketball race.

Coach Leroy Pittman's crew pulled away after a close first half race with the Wolves and pushed its lead to as much as 14-points at one time in the late minutes of play.

Halftime score was 29-26. The 50 per cent shooting of the Chicod squad accounted for much of the advantage piled on by the winners. Phillip Smith, the Chicod leading scorer this season, snared 16 points. Raymond Fornes took high honor with 18.

Coach Pittman credited the victory to his club's effort "as a whole." He also pointed out that his club's rebounding was particularly good against the much-taller Winterville outfit.

"We just out-manuevered them, out-shot them and rebounded well enough to keep control of the ball," he said, summing it up.

It has been Chicod's shooting percentage throughout the season which has secured first place for the club. At one time during the season, the red-hot cagers hit 75 per cent of their shots in one half (against a non-conference team) and ran up a 68-17 halftime lead over Vanceboro.

"It's been that way all year," Pittman said today, "and, of course we've been lucky, too."

Winterville's girls team saved face for the hosts, topping the visitors 70-43. Cayton scored 36 and Nichols added 26 to pace the home team to its victory.

Record-wise, now, Winterville's boys are 11-3 in conference and Chicod is straddling the league lead with a 10-1 mark. The Winterville girls are 10-4.

Senators Intrigued By Two Outfielders

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Washington Senators have invited two outfield hopefuls to their spring training camp at Orlando, Fla.

If the minor league records of these newcomers—Leonard Tucker and Dan Dobeck — mean anything, it should prove to be a mighty interesting experiment.

Tucker, with six years of minor league experience, is technically on the Chattanooga roster. But the Senator's brass is so intrigued by his hitting potential they invited him to demonstrate his talents.

Tucker three years ago batted .404, slammed 51 home runs and drove in 191 runs in the Class B Southwestern League.

Dobeck recently was discharged from the Army. In his first season of professional ball he hit .340 in a B league, after being signed from Western Michigan College. He reported to the Nats' spring camp in 1956 and impressed everybody with long ball hitting ability.

Dobeck will be a candidate for centerfield along with Jimmy Deling, recently acquired from Detroit, and Bob Allison, rookie up from Chattanooga.

Allison is the one considered most likely to make good. He has the reputation of being a good hitter, a fine defensive outfielder, and a speedy runner. In 150 games with Chattanooga, he batted .307.

Manager Cookie Lavagetto, who has been having trouble at second base, will inspect three newcomers at that position. Ronnie Samford, acquired from Detroit, apparently has the inside track.

Samford had a fine year at Charleston, W. Va., where he was named the team's most valuable player, batting .301 in 151 games.

Johnny Schaive, who hit .294 at Chattanooga, also looks like a fairly good prospect.

The other aspirant for the regular keystone job is Dick Harris, uscon of Bucky Harris, former Washington manager who recently succeeded Joe Cronin as Boston Red Sox general manager. Young Harris batted .256 at Charlotte with nine homers and 61 RBIs.

There is no hot-shot among the new pitching contingent. Garland Shifflett, righthander, won 13 and lost 11 at Charlotte. He's been up before as has righthanders Ted Abernathy and Dick Meas, as well as southpaw Ralph Lumentl.

ESTRADA PALMA, Cuba. (AP) Fidel Castro Monday night pledged housing and agrarian reform programs for Cuban peasants starting at the rate of two million dollars a month.

the country and declared that the trouble is foreign interests are used to having whatever they want.

The revolutionary leader told 5,000 sugar cane cutters and coffee field workers here in the Sierra Maestra Mountains the funds initially would come from money saved by the disbanding of Congress after the overthrow of Fulgencio Batista.

Castro appealed again for volunteer teachers to instruct the children of the mountaineers. He said the response so far has been good. More than 100 have come to Sierra Maestra, he reported, predicting the number soon will reach 500 and possibly 1,000.

Charges Agents Forced To Retire

DUNN, N.C. (AP)—C. S. Coats a former Alcoholic and Tobacco Tax Unit agent, says he's asked the Treasury Department to investigate "a conspiracy to violate the civil rights of honorable and dedicated men of many years of service."

ROBERSONVILLE — John Gray Taylor will serve as president of the Robersonville Chamber of Commerce for 1959.

Nicholson Jr., of Charlotte, said in reply to Bennett's statements: "We've heard this before. Those things were completely investigated."

Castro told the farmers to keep open their trenches because they might have to use them again to consolidate the revolution. There was no elaboration. Coming here to keep a promise he made before the overthrow of Batista, the rebel chieftain appealed for patience from the land-hungry peasants.

THE 8th CIRCLE A MASTER MYSTERY BY STANLEY ELLIN

CHAPTER 18

"You don't know these people, do you?" George Wykoff said to Murray Kirk. "This is Mitchell Dowd, my lawyer. This is Mrs. Dowd. Her name is Mona. Did you ever hear of a song about 'Oh, Mona?' I was telling her about it, but she says she never heard it. What'll you have to drink?"

ern. It was strikingly like the Harlingens' apartment. "Very nice," Murray said. "It's got real class." "That's on account of Mona," Wykoff said. "She did the whole thing from top to bottom. Sixteen rooms and thirty thousand bucks worth of stuff in them, and my baby girl here handled the whole deal. She made it a real show-place. Didn't you, baby?" he asked Mona.

Class. "I'd rather talk business," Murray said. He did not try to conceal his impatience. "Ah, there's plenty of time for that," Wykoff told him. He placed a hand over his belt buckle and patted himself there. "Fact is, y'understand, my stomach is a little bit shot, and the doctor laid it on very heavy about my not doing any kind of business until I digested. Anyhow the $64,000 question comes on TV pretty soon, and if we start talking we'd only have to stop then. I don't miss that show, no matter what. What I figured, we could get in a couple of rubbers up to the show, and then afterward we talk turkey. You know, I only been playing bridge for a little while, Kirk, but I am absolutely sold on it. Here is the one game in the world you can play for no money at all, and still get a kick from it."

While we win, but I got to say the whole tab if we lose. That's how I am. I hate to think I might be costing somebody money because my game is off or something. "That's how I am too," Murray told Mona as she opened her purse. "It's all right, I'll pay the tab for both of us." His one consolation had been the discovery that she was not as sleepy as she looked. Even so, Murray reflected, at about two dollars a minute it was high-priced consolation. Now Mona looked at him with what might have been surprise. "Well," she said on a rising note, "aren't you the real good sport?" When Wykoff and Dowd went off down the hall in the direction of the television set she lingered to apply fresh lipstick, and Murray politely lingered with her. "You play a solid game," he said. "Too bad we didn't get a few breaks." "Oh, that," she studied her handiwork in the mirror of a small jeweled compact. "They cheat all the time, you know. Didn't you catch on?"

Just Not A Good Day For Judge

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) — It was not the judge's day. Upon preparing to open Lowndes County Circuit Court Monday Judge John D. Greene Jr., found that his high-backed swivel chair was broken. He started to gavel the court into session but he had left the gavel at home. So he used a tack hammer. It was difficult to charge the grand jury because he had a severe cough and cold. Some jurors were absent because of illness, one had just undergone surgery and another asked to be excluded because of his age he was 90. Some of the jurors who did show up complained that it was raining and they couldn't find parking places.

Cattfish Cole Is Jailed In S.C.

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—James (Cattfish) Cole, the North Carolina Ku Klux Klan leader who touched off a minor uprising among Lumbee Indians last year, was jailed here Monday night. The charge: posing as a private detective. Officers said Cole and a companion, James F. Mulligan, had ignored warnings "not to follow folks around" without state-issued private detective licenses. They declined to identify the persons Cole and Mulligan were allegedly trailing. The itinerant preacher from Marion, S.C., was sentenced to 18-24 months on the roads last March for inciting Indians to riot at a Klan rally near Maxton, N. C. Klan crosses had been burned near Indian residences several days before the rally, which was broken up by a group of shouting Lumbees firing shotguns and rifles. Cole was freed under $3,000 bond pending the results of an appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Addressed Grifton Banquet

HERBERT C. BONNER, Congressman, was guest speaker at the Grifton DSA Banquet. He told the group, "The motto of 'service' is never out of date."

Wins Grifton ...

our recognition of the achievement of whom we honor tonight, can be genuine and complete only as we continue the work begun. There work may take many forms. There ample service for all. The supply never runs dry.

Touching on each of the phases of service and its meaning to this country, he said, "It is interesting—and I think significant—that in a generation when corporations have become larger, when automation and machines have seemed to take over so much of the routine of industry, we have witnessed two major developments in business. One is the growing realization of the interdependence of our economy, and the other is that our executives are men first, and that their caliber as men ultimately determines the kind of service they give—the kind of service the public receives."

Bonner said, "In our time, when we are wanting survival of freedom more than anything we could possess, we as citizens have to make sure that our American economic system is responding to that challenge.

"The motto of 'service' is never out-of-date."

Moving into the realm of religious service, Bonner said, "Is just going to church or is just making a donation the kind of service that makes us a Christian nation? Are we fundamentally prepared to recognize that, in the world that we live in, we have to contribute to those who do not have in order to maintain a balance of economic power around the world? This requires the care—the intelligence—and the will to serve."

Nature Talk For Rotary Clubbers

With a verbal exhortation to preserve the glories of nature, as found in the Great Smoky Mountain forests, and a pictured presentation of the grandeur of mountain vistas, peeps at beauties of nature, known only to the likes of mountain trails, Jerry Howell, sophomore at Duke University, Durham, shared his enthusiasm for nature with the Greenville Rotary Club at its weekly supper meeting last night.

The speaker had taken pictures on the heights of the mountain region. The pictures covered periods from dawn to dusk, from spring through winter, from lowlands to the peaks.

Out of respect for recently deceased Greenville Rotary Club Charter Member Haywood Dall, Charter Member J. B. Kittrell gave a brief eulogy. Then followed a moment of silent prayer.

With a series of incidents, he traced the character of loyalty, enthusiasm and optimism of Haywood Dall. Outside of his business, Mr. Dall's interests centered in Rotary, East Carolina College, the Farm Bureau, good roads and friends, declared Kittrell.

Rotary members were honorary pallbearers at Mr. Dall's funeral this afternoon. Committee Chairmen James W. Butler and Howard McGinnis reported on progress and plans for the Rotary District Conference to be held in Greenville.

Guests of the club last night were Leonard Bloxam. A special guest was Bill Taylor, winner of the recent Junior Chamber of Commerce "Man of the Year" Award.

Visiting District Rotary Governor Jesse Moye of Farmville and Gwen Merritt of Ayden were visiting Rotarians. O. R. Tearce was program chairman. President Elmer Browning presided.

Freezing Rain Over County

Pitt County was getting a thin sheet of potentially dangerous ice today as a freezing rain fell throughout the county. The Greenville Utilities Weather Station reported the highest temperature yesterday was only 32 degrees with the lowest last night 28 degrees.

At 8 a.m. today the thermometer stood at 29 degrees and a drizzling rain was falling. The slow rain with signs of sleet was still falling at noon today and could mean dangerous conditions on the highways.

The Tar River stood at the five-foot level which is the approximate normal depth at Greenville.

Firemen were called to the Junior High School band room around 1:30 yesterday afternoon when spot lighting under control when firemen arrived.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night a box alarm brought trucks to 114 W. Fourth St. when fire developed around a defective chimney. There was minor damage.

The dwelling was reported owned by Walter Hudson and occupied by Stonewall Simpkins.

Dulles Flies To Europe Today Hunting Proposals By Allies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles flies to Europe today, apparently in a bid for Allied support of some sort of counter-proposal to the Soviet Union on the German problem.

What Dulles has in mind, if indeed it is in final form, remained to be seen. It appeared he has a number of ideas to try out on the top officials at London, Paris and Bonn.

Dulles and a small party of selected advisers head first for London, going next to Paris and then to Bonn. In all, Dulles will be away for about a week.

At the State Department, meanwhile, high-ranking officials of the four Allied governments start drafting a reply to the Soviet Union's Jan. 10 note.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), soon to be chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, conferred with Dulles Monday night on this and other matters. After the hour-long conference at Dulles' home, Fulbright informed newsmen:

"The secretary told me that he was considering very seriously the question of counter-proposals, of what can be done."

Fulbright said that was the response he got when he told Dulles the West should do more than simply reject Soviet demands, that some counter-proposals should also be made. The senator said he did not suggest any himself.

But he added that one proposal discussed was an old one, to create a buffer zone several hundred miles wide through Germany. Under it, Soviet and Allied troops would be pulled back a considerable distance from both sides of the Elbe River.

Dulles then, according to Fulbright, held forth on the problems of leadership in the West. He told Fulbright that no matter what course the United States set for itself, it had to be cleared in some way with America's allies. The Soviets on the other hand, "have only themselves to consult."

Dulles appeared to have his hands full. Despite denials, there seemed to be considerable disunity among the four Allies about how to meet the new Soviet pressure.

In two notes, Nov. 27 and Jan. 10, the Soviet Union announced it was handing East Berlin over to the puppet Red regime of East Germany and demanded (1) allied withdrawal from West Berlin, and (2) a 28-nation German peace conference.

The Allies were unanimous in rejecting the whole Soviet gambit. But disputes are evident on what comes next. France's President Charles de Gaulle, for example, is said to oppose any meeting with the Soviet Union before May 27, something of a Soviet deadline for giving East Berlin to the German Communists. Britain is reported opposed to any renewal of supplies to Berlin on the ground, should another blockade be imposed.

The situation facing Dulles added up to everybody being sure about what they are against, but nobody being quite convinced about what they are for.

Enameling Art Discussed For Lions' Meeting

At the Greenville Lions Club's supper meeting last night, Mrs. J. G. (Donna) Tabar spoke about the process of enameling surfaces of various types of metal.

The arts and crafts specialist explained that enameling is an ancient art and is a process of applying a coat of glass over metal, then heating the glass until it melts and fuses with the metal. She showed numerous examples of enamel work she had done, which varied in size from small pins and earrings to large plaques.

Pete Eaton, Duke University student, formerly of Greenville, was a guest of the club last night. Marvin Buck was welcomed as a new member of the Lions Club. President John Hassell presided.

The January report of the case worker for the blind, read at last night's meeting, showed that 51 persons were given eye examinations; glasses were recommended for 10; an artificial eye for 1, and for 4 there was no recommendation for improvement of vision. Eight persons were removed from the classification of blindness, and five operations were performed.
