

UF Money Divided On Pro Rata Basis

Directors Debate Issue Of Sharing

Directors of the Pitt County United Fund, in a four-hour meeting last night, determined to distribute the $88,203.17 collected in its first campaign on a pro-rata basis to the major agencies and community service committees included in the original $120,000 budget.

Action of the board, which followed the United Fund by-laws, but came only after lengthy discussion, means participants in the first Pitt County United Fund effort will receive approximately 71.13 per cent of the amount originally budgeted for them at the outset of the campaign.

It remained a moot question today whether one or more of the major organizations which joined the United Fund this year might undertake subsequent individual campaigns in order to reach their originally budgeted figure.

Dr. John D. Messick, chairman of the UF campaign committee, told the board of directors in his final report, that a total of $88,203.17 was raised in cash and pledges during the campaign.

He praised the efforts of campaign chairmen and workers in the various communities for the total amount of money raised in spite of the fact it fell short of the $120,000 goal which Dr. Messick said, "was unrealistic to begin with, but we were all new in this thing."

United Fund President J. B. Kittrell, Sr. praised the work of Messick and his committee in carrying out the fund-raising program, and the board gave Messick a rising vote of thanks.

"This campaign has been one of trial and error," President Kittrell told the UF directors. "We organized hurriedly last year in an effort to put on our campaign, and we ran into many unexpected problems. In spite of these things, he said, "this campaign has been a tremendous success. Pitt County has done a wonderful job" in raising $88,000 for its United Fund.

Hodges Outlines Program To Assemble Discusses Needs In Education, Development, Welfare

RALEIGH (AP)—A legislative program designed to keep North Carolina growing was delivered by Gov. Hodges today to the final General Assembly session of his term.

He ranged over needs in public education, economic development, health and welfare, natural resources and other fields in his biennial message prepared for delivery to a noon House-Senate joint session.

"Some may think it is too ambitious a program for a governor who is dealing with his last session of the General Assembly," Hodges said. "but I want you to know that my approach... is based entirely upon my desire to do the best I can for North Carolina and its people in the time I have left as governor."

Despite its range, there was little in the program to surprise the lawmakers since it was drawn largely from recommendations of study commissions whose reports already have been made public.

An exception was a proposal to give the governor authority in times of unemployment to extend for an additional 13 weeks the period for payment of jobless benefits. Hodges said this would aid in dealing "with periods of prolonged unemployment such as that experienced during 1958."

The governor left money details of his program for his budget message scheduled for Monday evening at another joint House-Senate meeting.

Thus, he touched only briefly on proposals such as an incentive school support by local governments, a capital improvements bond issue for state-supported colleges and universities, and funds for a new state legislative building. Hodges endorsed all three, and promised more specific attention in the budget talk.

He also left open such topics as pay raises for school teachers and state workers, but said his change should be made in out control system.

In view of this, Hodges said, there should be "strict and impartial enforcement of all laws affecting liquor, wine and beer. If this is not done, we should do away with the (ABC) system entirely."

He recommended that the three member State ABC Board be increased to five members, with a full-time director as its chief administrative officer.

Hodges suggested that membership be cut from five to three on the State Utilities Commission. Hodges also asked that pay and retirement benefits for utilities commissioners be placed on a par with that for Superior Court judges.

Creation of a water resources department, proposed by the Commission on Reorganization of State Government, was supported by the governor.

Hodges said a program is urgently needed to save the Outer Banks as a barrier against the ocean's ravages. He added specific proposals would be made in his budget message.

Hodges told the lawmakers they should give careful thought to changes in the property tax law drafted by the Tax Study Commission, and to recommendation of the Municipal Government Study Commission.

Reviewing the state's economic course for the past two years, Hodges said tax changes written by the 1957 Legislature helped record levels.

At the same time, he said the 1958 recession period helped point the need for authority on the state level to deal with unemployment. He recommended legislation to give the governor "under emergency conditions specified by law" authority to extend the benefit period for unemployment compensation an additional 13 weeks.

Hodges said this would "permit payment of unemployment benefits for as much as 39 weeks at the very time — and only then — when unemployment benefits would be most needed."

The governor praised the Consolidated University of North Carolina for its adoption of pre-admission tests for students applying. (Continued on Page 20)

Nikita Invites Visit By President Eisenhower

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, urging an end to the cold war, today offered Soviet guarantees of Western access to West Berlin if his plan for settling the crisis is accepted.

Confront Russia With Evidence Of Warlike Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today publicly confronted Russia with evidence that two Soviet jets shot down an unarmed U. S. transport plane last September in a warlike attack. Six and possibly 17 American airmen were killed.

The evidence was a graphic tape recording of radio conversations between the two Soviet fighters.

A transcript of this recording was attached to an eight-page summary, issued by the State Department, of its efforts to pry information about the incident out of the Soviet Union.

The CI30 U. S. transport disappeared Sept. 2 on a flight along the Turkey-Armenia border. Ten days later the Soviets reported it had crashed in Armenia. The bodies of six of the 17 Americans who were in the plane were returned to U. S. officials. Under persistent U. S. inquiries, Soviet officials insisted they knew nothing about the 11 other Americans.

Ike Asks Congress Strengthen Civil Rights Laws In Seven-Point Package

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower called on Congress today to strengthen civil rights laws by making it a federal crime to use force or threats of force to obstruct court orders in school desegregation cases.

As part of a seven-point legislative package, Eisenhower said this proposal would give the government a valuable enforcement power to deter mob violence and such other acts of violence or threats which seek to obstruct court decrees in desegregation cases.

The program had been tagged by the President in advance as a moderate one designed not to raise temperatures.

But it may not please either Southern segregationists or Northern liberals of both parties in all respects.

British Prime Minister To Visit Russia February 21

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has accepted an invitation to visit the Soviet Union beginning Feb. 21.

Macmillan will be accompanied by Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and will stay up to 10 days.

Moscow radio broadcast acceptance of the invitation simultaneously with an official announcement in London.

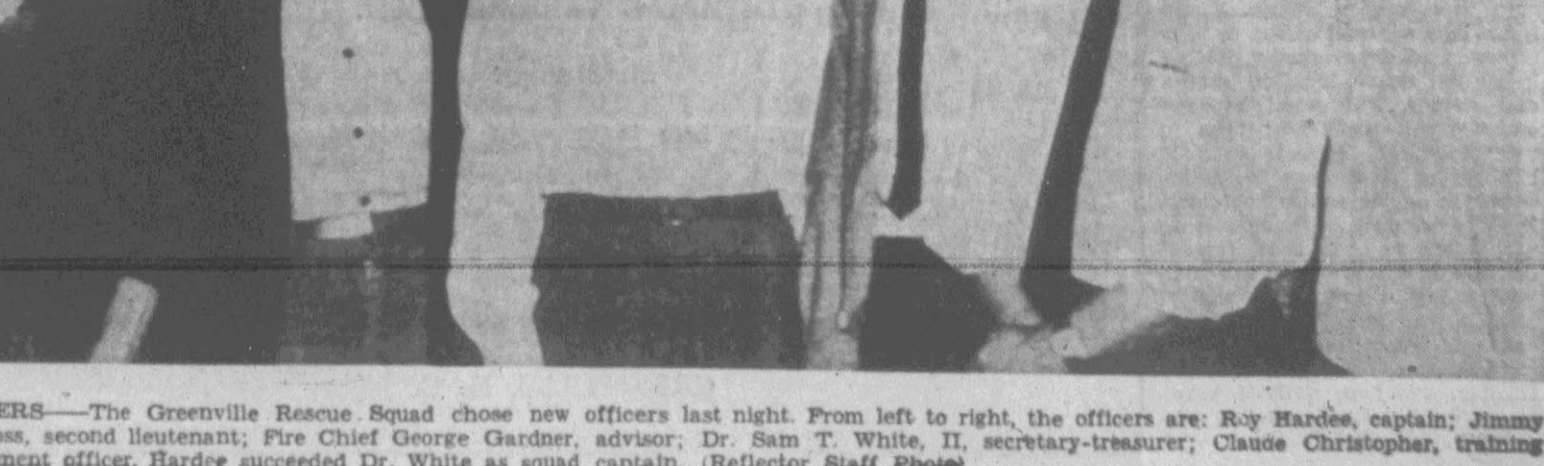

The announcements came only minutes after the departure from the British capital of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for Paris after two days of talks with Macmillan and other British leaders on Western policy including West Berlin's future and German unification.

30 Years Ago Mrs. Johnson Speaks On India Today

Every phase of the tax situation will be discussed at a public meeting at the courthouse tonight. Men well acquainted with conditions in North Carolina will be present. They will tell how oppressive taxes are becoming in some of the counties and offer suggestions for relief. Legislators may not be interested in reduction of taxes at this time, but they can't refuse to listen to the insistent demand of citizens representing thirty counties.

The End of the Century Book Club met on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Ed. Batchelor at her home on Fifth Street. The hostess, after greeting her guests, turned the meeting over to Mrs. M. K. Blount, president. Following the short business meeting Mrs. Batchelor introduced Mrs. Badger Johnson who spoke to the group on the first part of the program on India. Mrs. Johnson discussed the geography, history and people of this complex country. Mrs. Johnson's discussion was on the background of the religions, cultures, philosophy and family life of the people. In discussing the geography, Mrs. Johnson noted the size of India is one fifteenth of the land surface of the earth. The climate of India is much influenced by the Indian Ocean and its location in the torrid zone. It has four mountain ranges, the Himalayas being the most important and the highest. The two seasons are influenced by the winds. The rivers are important because the people live nearest those that do not dry up during the dry season; thus, the larger inland cities are found near such rivers as the Ganges. India has few ports. Bombay, Karachi and upriver Calcutta are the main ones. Minerals are in a rather untouched state, there is much timber and the water power potentialities are tremendous. The chief agricultural products are tea, coffee, spices, cotton and sugar. Their exports are mostly in raw state, due to the lack of industry. The few exports of finished products are mostly hand-made. The people and their history are all intermingled. Each race contributing is part in history and in time becoming amalgamated with the culture and a part of the land. It has been a continuous growth of ideas from the different peoples and it has never really fallen but simply been absorbed. Dated history in India begins in 600 B. C. with Darius' invasion. Alexander appeared in 300 B. C. Each of these conquerors left his mark in passing. The Indian people have taken from each coming in something of value and adapted it to their needs. So one can see the religions, culture and philosophies are all made-up of bits and pieces from history with the English rounding out the picture and mingling the East and West into the India of today. The struggle for total independence began after World War I and continued with much internal struggle and a final petitioning. In January 1950 the Constitution was finally ratified and the Sovereign Republic of India took its place in the modern world.

Mrs. R. B. Lee Gives Program

When the Round Table Book Club met on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. D. L. Moore at her home on East Fifth Street, Mrs. R. B. Lee presented the program, "Folklore in the Blue Ridge." "Folklore may be said to include in its definition," the speaker said, "everything which makes up the body of knowledge, and of material things possessed by the simple illiterate people, created by them and inherited from past generations. The first recorded folklores was the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Dr. Frank C. Brown, organizer of the North Carolina Folklore Society, amassed the largest collection of general folklores in the English language of which 95 percent comes from this state. However, North Carolina holds its folklores in common with the whole English speaking world. "In 1925, Dr. Cecil Sharpe of Cambridge, England, spent months collecting folklores in the mountains around Asheville. He said the folklores of the coves was much more like that of early England than could be found in Great Britain today. He found in the North Carolina mountains many variants of the 5,000 games that make up his collection. "Many folk games which make up the general cultural background of the people of the Blue Ridge Mountains can be collected in any mountain school of that area. Some of these games are ancient and extremely widespread." Following the background and classification of the Mountain Folk Games, Mrs. Lee named many of them which were familiar to the group from childhood. Miss Lella Higgs, pronunciation referee for the afternoon, presented a new word and several common words which are frequently misused. A Valentine motif was used in the dining room where Mrs. J. E. Winslow served Valentine tarts and Mrs. D. S. Spain poured coffee. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Walter Taylor, Mrs. Charles Adams, Mrs. Leonard Bloxam, Mrs. Roberson and Mrs. J. D. McGlohon Jr.

Luncheon Fetes Club Members

BETHEL—Friday, Mrs. J. M. Butterworth was hostess to the Sallie Tucker Book Club at a buffet luncheon. After the 16 guests arrived, they were served grapefruit cocktail before going to the dining room. Of focal interest in the dining room was an artistic arrangement of mixed fruits that centered the appointed table. From the buffet the guests served themselves shrimp creole on wild rice, string beans with armidino sauce, tossed salad, hot rolls, coffee and lemon ice box pie. After the luncheon Mrs. C. G. Garrenton was introduced as speaker for the occasion. Her topic was "The Romance of China." She gave a short history of the origin of china making and displayed a few of her own hand-painted articles. At the conclusion of Mrs. Garrenton's talk and display the custodian concluded the program by exchanging books.

Graham Bowers Given Dinner

BETHEL—Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Mouse entertained at a dinner on Sunday honoring her son, Graham Bowers, on his birthday. Eleven of his friends from Winterville and Ayden and his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bowers and their daughter Cynthia of Durham, were present to celebrate the occasion. A pink theme was carried out in the decorations. In the dining room the table was covered with a pink cloth, centered with a white birthday cake trimmed with pink and flanked by burning pink candles. Graham and his friends were seated at this table where they were served a turkey dinner.

PECAN MINIATURES
Ingredients: 2 eggs, 1 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar, 1/4 cup (unsifted) self-rising cake flour, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup coarsely broken pecans.
Method: With rotary beater (hand or electric) beat eggs rapidly until thick and pale yellow colored. Gradually beat in sugar making sure there are no lumps. Dump flour into a small sifter or fine strainer; sift in gradually, folding in as you do so. Fold in vanilla and pecans. Fill small buttered cupcake pans half full; bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven 10 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove at once with spatula to wire racks to cool. Frost tops if desired. If muffinpan wells each hold 2 tablespoons, there will be about 2 1/2 dozen of the little cakes. Note: If self-rising cake flour is not available, sift together 1/2 cup regular cake flour with 1/4 teaspoon baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt and use.

Sign Points To Less Oppositin

There is significance—political and otherwise—in the fact that a 75-cent-an-hour minimum wage bill was one of the first pieces of legislation popped into the hopper of the 1959 General Assembly.

North Carolina urgently needs a realistic minimum wage bill for an estimated 90,000 workers who still receive less than 75 cents an hour for their labors.

While the man who introduced the minimum wage proposal at Wednesday's opening session was one of those who killed a similar measure in 1957, it may be indicative of a change of feeling among some factions who bitterly and successfully opposed the state minimum wage proposal two years ago. The fact that one of the legislature's chief opponents two years ago has introduced the measure this time would suggest support for a 75 cents minimum wage has increased sharply since the last session.

Basic exemptions in the bill would exclude workers in agriculture and dairying, domestic help, salesmen on the road on commission, persons who receive tips as part of their wages, and employers who hire not more than two people. Even with these exceptions, the bill would boost the wages of an estimated 90,000 North Carolinians. Indirectly, it would likewise boost the wages of some of the people in the group of exempted workers, just as the federal minimum wage laws has tended to boost wages of those not directly covered by it.

North Carolina should have a realistic minimum wage law. And the proposed 75 cent hourly minimum, it seems to us, is a realistic approach for the state to make at this time.

Coming as it has so early in the 1959 session, the minimum wage proposal should receive early consideration by members of both houses of the General Assembly. Though it should not be acted on hastily, neither should it be allowed to gather dust in committee until the pressure of legislative business builds up toward the end of the session.

There will be much opposition to the proposal before it is acted upon, but it is a measure which is sorely needed in North Carolina and one which the legislature should enact into law during its current session.

Allies Stood Firm In Another Test Of Will

Soviet authorities apparently are determined to provoke an incident over West Berlin even prior to the deadline they have given for Allied abandonment of the free portion of that divided city.

Firm refusal of the United States and its allies to give in to the Soviet demands were strengthened by the fact that Soviet border guards were not allowed to inspect the cargo of four army trucks detained for three days within sight of free West Germany.

Though the incident was the most serious since the Moscow ultimatum issued in November, the fact that Soviet officials finally backed down without inspecting the cargo of the trucks may be indicative of Soviet back-down from its previous harsh demands upon the West.

Clearly the Soviet demand to inspect the cargo of the trucks is in conflict of the agreement reached after the Berlin blockade of 1948-49. The Soviet demand that the Allies abandon divided Berlin is also in conflict with agreements originally reached on occupation of the divided German capital.

The truck incident, while it may lead to more serious incidents in the future, may well have been another test of Allied determination to hold firm to their rights in Berlin. And in this latest test, the Allies showed no signs of retreating from their position.

So Far, Claims Can't Be Proven

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans and Soviet citizens—so long as there's no war—have the luxury of arguing without immediate danger of having to prove their rival claims to progress in the field of intercontinental missiles.

The Soviets have made the biggest claims: that they have ICBMs in mass production — if that's what Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev meant when he said "serial" production — and have made them accurate enough to pinpoint them on a target. But it would all be a nightmare argument if war came anytime soon.

For instance, the only way Americans could tell whether the Soviets were speaking truly would be to wait to see if a flock of ICBMs not only landed here but landed on the button.

The argument gets a little cloudy because of what seems to be—although maybe it isn't—contradictions in testimony before congressional committees by Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy.

On Jan. 29 he agreed with Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) that two years from now the Soviets might have many more ICBMs than the United States.

He said: "It is not our intention to match them missile for missile in ICBMs in the next two years."

But Tuesday he said that by December the United States will have roughly as many war-ready intercontinental ballistic missiles as the Soviets. This time he said he was talking about accuracy and reliability of missiles in place and ready for firing.

He said this country will have newsprint, which went from $88.50 a ton in 1948 to $135, and labor, against the fact that revenues could not be increased to pay for it.

McElroy said that in total war-making potential the United States is now clearly ahead of the Soviet Union. This is the opposite of what the Soviets say.

After this Malinovsky statement, McElroy and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told newsmen they don't believe the Soviets' new claim to having the West out-gunned with hydrogen missiles that hit on pinpoint.

McElroy dismissed Malinovsky's statement as a "normal kind of statement in a war of nerves." Twining said flatly he didn't believe the Soviet boast.

How About A Friendly Game?

By JIMMY ELLIS

Hoppe Gave It Respect

The man who did as much as anyone to make expressions like "eight ball in the side pocket" respectable, is dead.

Willie Hoppe passed away Sunday in a Miami hospital, far away from the smooth, green-covered pool tables where he won his fame. He was 71.

Actually, Willie Hoppe's death has no real personal effect. Our paths never crossed, and I'm not at all certain I have seen him on television.

But, the news that he has passed on has stirred a bunch of memories. I guess I've heard of Willie Hoppe most of my life. Anyone who has ever picked up a cue stick, chalked the tip of it and won more than one game of pool must be in the same situation.

In the days when I was a habitue of poolrooms — when long-range missiles can hit a target anywhere on earth right on the nose.

He said: "If the Soviet Union can launch a rocket hundreds of thousands of kilometers out into outer space, it can launch powerful rockets with pinpoint accuracy to any part of the globe."

Tuesday Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Malinovsky told the West its nuclear weapons are outdated. He said the Soviet Union has intercontinental ballistic missiles that can deliver hydrogen bomb warheads with pinpoint accuracy.

After this Malinovsky statement, McElroy and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told newsmen they don't believe the Soviets' new claim to having the West out-gunned with hydrogen missiles that hit on pinpoint.

McElroy dismissed Malinovsky's statement as a "normal kind of statement in a war of nerves." Twining said flatly he didn't believe the Soviet boast.

Mostly Bitter Taste

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Shirley Morabito has tasted 700 medicines in the last three years — and never felt better in her life. In fact, she hasn't missed work a single day because of illness.

Trying out pills and potions destined for other people is the unusual career of Mrs. Morabito, a medical gourmet with one of the most educated palates in the wonderful world of drugs.

She is chief taster for the Charles Pfizer Pharmaceutical Co.

"It is endlessly fascinating," said Mrs. Morabito. "The taste test is the last step in research. No matter how beneficial a new medicine may be, it has to taste right today to win public acceptance. If people won't take it because they dislike the taste, it can't do them any good."

There are only four basic tastes — salt, sweet, sour and bitter. But they can be masked with thousands of different blend flavors.

Unfortunately for mankind most medicines, new or old, have a bitter taste.

The average person can detect a bitter taste in one fifth of an ounce of caffeine mixed in a quart of water. Mrs. Morabito can detect the same amount of caffeine mixed with 25 quarts of water.

But Mrs. Morabito doesn't depend on her own fine palate. What suits one person may not suit another. So she has assembled and trained a test panel of 10 expert coworkers to help her.

The problem of taste in new children's medicines is even more critical. To assist her in field testing these she has a juvenile jury of some 600 children of company employees.

Both color and taste play a big role in the psychology of medicine.

"Most everyone seems to dislike a brown-colored medicine," said Mrs. Morabito.

"Older people often like a mint-flavored medicine. Children prefer fruit flavors. They like red and orange colors, and they like medicines with a cherry or orange flavor. But the color and taste must match. If you gave them a blue medicine with an orange flavor, they wouldn't like it. It would confuse them."

More things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail.

The more you like your fellow man the easier it is for you to hold your job. The biggest single reason for dismissals in the business world is this: "He couldn't get along with other people."

If you're looking for the perfect weekend guest for your country place, don't overlook Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. He tells friends that washing dishes on vacation is his idea of "sheer recreation."

Speaking of vacations, someone overheard this remark: "The major trouble with this world is that the average woman wants a little more out of life than the average man can afford."

We brag about our cleanliness, but it is estimated that there are still 8 1/2 million U.S. homes without private bath or shower.

one-half million kilowatts of capacity a year to 1965. During the same period, this country will be adding some 13 million kilowatts annually. Thus, even if the Soviet goals are reached (and she has frequently fallen far short of them in the past) U. S. power capacity and use will be far higher. Chalk that achievement up to private enterprise, in its industrial competition with communism." — Industrial News Review.

"The whole nation suffers from an attitude that has been summarized by the world 'softness.' It affects our politics, our diplomacy, our employer-employee relationships, and most of all, our families and schools. The 'soft' approach probably is the correct one for certain problems though it would be difficult to name them. Without any doubt, however, it is completely wrong in matters of the home and school involving children." — Florida Times-Union (Jacksonville, Fla.).

"During 1958 alone, the U. S. installed over 15 million kilowatts of generating capacity—almost a third of the total installed capacity in the U.S.S.R. The Soviet Union plans to add an average of about seven and to work regular employees at time and-a-half rates for short periods than it is to hire new people train them, pay for fringe benefits and then ladle out severance, pay later—to say nothing of paying penalty unemployment insurance rates for higher discharge rates.

SHARES OF INCOME
One series of figures underscores doubts that labor is pricing itself out of the market. Commerce Department data show that of total personal income in 1957, labor got 71.9 per cent. Preliminary figures indicate labor got only 69.6 per cent in 1958. In 1956, it got 71.2 per cent.

On a short-term basis, labor's share appears to be dropping slightly. Last year's divvy was more than one point below that in 1953, generally regarded as a lovely boom year, when labor got 70.5 per cent.

However, labor's share has risen considerably over the long term. It got 58.7 per cent in 1929; 63.0 per cent in 1939; and 66.0 per cent in 1949. These percentages include employers' contributions for Social Security and other fringes. That's the best kind of pay, you know. No taxes.

But all of the evidence does not give a definitive answer to the question of whether labor is pricing itself out of the market. And there will be no sure answer until some means is found to read employers' minds.

The truth is probably that some employers are reluctant to hire more people because they are afraid of direct and indirect costs; that more employers are more willing to buy labor-saving machines than more manpower; but that no employer will ever hesitate to hire when labor got 70.5 per cent.

Of course, it may be cheaper

Specific Action Largely Waits

By LYNN NISBET

ATTITUDES — Members of the Legislature, particularly the Representatives, have been so much concerned about committee assignments they have not discussed specific legislation. Many of them say frankly they are waiting for Governor Hodges' budget message Monday night and a chance to study the Advisory Budget Commission appropriation and tax recommendations before making up their minds on just what they will support. Enough has been heard in conversations among the legislators around hotel lobbies to justify some general predictions.

Almost certainly there will be substantial increase in the public school appropriation, mainly for teacher pay raises. It is highly doubtful that the teachers will get the full increase requested. Other State employees also will get a boost in pay, but indications are it will be three to five per cent instead of the ten per cent requested.

There has been evidence of more sentiment in favor of expanding the community college, technical and institute and vocational training center programs than for enlarging the big college and university centers. If more money is appropriated for hospitalization and other welfare programs there will be accompanying requirement for closer screening of recipients of these funds, to the end that persons who really need help will get adequate assistance and free-riders and moochers will be removed from the rolls. Several members are determined about that point.

TAXES — The plan to withhold State income from payrolls in the same manner Federal taxes are now deducted, apparently is favored by majority of the members. Tentative support is conditioned upon devising a workable scheme that will not oppress taxpayers by double payments in one year or burden employers with expensive book-keeping duties. There is strong minority sentiment against the whole idea.

There is practically no chance for the sales tax to be extended to basic foods and medicine, but many of the fellows are looking for some other caps that might be closed. There is considerable support for a crown tax on bottled soft drinks, and less than anticipated opposition to a special package tax on cigarettes.

Feeling is general that the present gasoline tax is high enough. Two or three members suggested that restrictions on exemptions from the road gas tax should be tightened — perhaps requiring separate funds into which farm and marine exempted taxes should be placed for special purposes.

RETICENT — Some of the legislators have been reluctant to discuss money problems at all. This attitude was summed up by one man who said he is waiting for specific bills to be introduced before taking a stand. From what he has heard he is disposed to go along with the administration budget measure, but he said "I'm not going to buy a basket of apples until I'm sure there ain't a rotten one in the middle."

On many of the government reorganization recommendations the members have not formed opinions. Most of them are taking the Missouri attitude and will have to be shown that the proposals represent genuine improvement.

COURTS — With about two-thirds of the membership now lawyers the court reform bills and constitutional amendments are expected to have hard going. The average layman is slow to interfere with "lawyer business," or to change entrenched practices. Some of the legislators have protested the great number of changes in governmental procedure being sponsored by the administration. Some revisions might be necessary to keep up with the times, they say, but it is hard for them to believe that everything has been all wrong through the years — including courts, highways and schools.

There is so far very little evidence that the supporters of this or that Speaker or President pro tem will become cohesive voting blocks. The general attitude seems to be that each member will vote on every issue when it arises without regard to how "the leader" of his faction might suggest. Warning has been sounded, however, that attempt on the part of the administration to drive too hard might well result in opposition being organized to some degree.

Being Squeezed Out

(The Columbia State)
In the last ten years 218 daily newspapers in every state except Vermont, Delaware, Montana, South Dakota, Rhode Island and Iowa, have suspended publication either by outright quitting, merging with others or retreating to the weekly status, as shown by a roundup of U. S. News and World Report.

The casualty list includes some of the best known names in journalism—the Chicago Daily News, the New York Sun, the Boston Post, the Birmingham Age-Herald, the Brooklyn Eagle and others.

The reasons given for the demise of so many newspapers is rising costs in every phase of expense, such as the cost of newsprint, which went from $88.50 a ton in 1948 to $135, and labor, against the fact that revenues could not be increased to pay for it.

Other Editors Saying ... The Cottage In The Glen

(Wall Street Journal)
Familiar to most Americans is the insurance-ad image of the happy retired couple. The man and his wife, silver-haired and healthy, sit smiling in front of the little white cottage that snugles in the glen.

We've got to admit that this idyl sounds pretty good. Most jobholders, in fact, are probably planning the ways and means to enjoy the leisure it takes a lifetime to earn. A comfortable retirement, furthermore, certainly isn't impossible to arrange. Insurance payments, other savings and perhaps a company pension should provide a man with care-free contentment in his autumn years.

And on top of that there is Social Security. This Government-sponsored retirement plan was instituted to provide a "floor of protection" against destitution in old age. But like so many other welfare measures, it has become a political plying whose rapid growth thus far is dwarfed only by its projected growth in the future.

The boost in Social Security taxes on January 1, from $94.50 to $120 (maximum), is just a hint of what is to come. By 1969 the tax will be up to $216, an increase of 80 per cent in the next 10 years. The original law in 1937, incidentally, called for a maximum tax of $30. The Government, it would seem, believes that by 1969 the cost of living will have risen more than seven times what it was in 1937. But with a "liberal" Congress in power this may turn out to be a conservative estimate.

The nation's "liberal" lawmakers, who have voted additional Social Security benefits in every election year since 1950, appear to be gaining even more steam. Some spenders even now are touting a costly plan to provide "free" hospital, medical and surgical care for the 12 million aged now eligible for Social Security. And they are touting this proposal even though the whole Social Security system is now operating in the red.

Simple economics tells us that as the Government goes merrily along raising Social Security rates as well as other taxes, the individual's ability to provide for his future privately is proportionately diminished. That is bad enough. And we suggest that when individual responsibility has been submerged in collective irresponsibility, the image of the cottage in the glen will also go glimmering.

"Labor is pricing itself out of the market," is a statement you hear on every side these days. It's a plausible statement.

American exports have fallen; one reason is that goods made by highly paid American labor cost more than similar goods produced with low-paid labor abroad. Many American workers shoot away as much on pinball in a day as a Japanese or Italian makes.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents reports a "great reluctance to add people to the payroll."

Government statistics are impressive. Average weekly earnings in manufacturing industries in December were $88.04 for another new high, yet unemployment returned above the 4,000,000 mark.

There's no easy answer to the question: "If wages were lower, would employment have been higher?"

NAGGING STATISTICS
In December, 1957, the average weekly industrial wage was $82.74. Unemployment was 3,374,000.

In December, 1958, the average wage was $5.30 higher and unemployment was 734,000 higher.

Did labor, in forcing wages up, price almost three-quarters of a million people out of jobs?

On the surface, that seems a logical explanation. But dig a little deeper and you shove up some doubts. The average week in manufacturing in December, 1957, was 29.9 hours. In December, 1958, it was 40.2 hours. If labor really were pricing itself out of jobs, why were manufacturers willing to pay the even higher overtime rates, as it appears they did?

Of course, it may be cheaper

Opinions In Brief

"Farmers made such bumper crops last year it seems they should reciprocate to some extent for past favors by subsidizing the Government." — Jackson (Miss.) State Times.

"Julius Vern and Buck Rogers! Visionaries, not prophets, for they knew not the truth of which they spoke." — Plainview (Tex.) Herald.

"Today only fools and men with selfish axes to grind refer to women as the 'weaker sex.' Women have proved they can do almost anything a man can do, and many things no man would attempt. What male in his right mind, for instance, would dare to stay home day after day with a bevy of small children?" — Dallas Times Herald.

Negro Slave Was First N. C. Poet

"The first North Carolina poet was a negro slave, who managed in sixteen-eight years, to have three volumes of poetry published."

These were the opening words of Mrs. C. A. Bowen, who gave a talk to members of the Chatham Book Club on "North Carolina Poets."

She was referring to George Moses Horton (1797-1883) who, at seventeen while peddling fruit and farm products in Chapel Hill, aroused the attention of students and faculty at the University of North Carolina with his genius for versifying and his desire for learning.

"For a small fee he composed love poems for the students, which they wrote down because he had not yet learned to write. His interest in reading and rhyming was stimulated by the hymns which he heard at revival meetings and, also, by the Bible which he heard read," said Mrs. Bowen. She mentioned that Richard Walzer was doing research on this illiterate slave poet and was planning a biography on Horton.

Mrs. Bowen spoke briefly of Mary Bayard Devereaux Clarke, a native of New Bern and the first person to edit a collection of North Carolina poetry which appeared in 1854. Though a writer in her own right, her works were considered pleasant but unimportant. She also called attention to John Henry Boner, Edwin Wiley Fuller, Henry Jerome Stockard and Benjamin Franklin Siedd, all of whom gained recognition in the poetic field.

John Charles McNeill, Mrs. Bowen described as a "rare gifted soul". Born near Laurinburg and reared on his father's farm. He gave up his law practice to devote himself to writing and became the first winner of the Patterson Cup in 1906, awarded by the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society for excellence in literary production. Mrs. Bowen read several selections from "Lyrics From Cotton Land."

"Thad J. Stem, Randall Jarrell, Zoe Kitchaid Brockman and Ann Blackwell Payne have all done noteworthy work in contemporary poetry," Mrs. Bowen commented, "as well as our own Lucy Cherry Crisp." She related how Miss Crisp turned to writing as a pastime during a long convalescence period and read several poems as proof of the quality of her work.

In concluding her talk, Mrs. Bowen told of the remarkable events in the life of 80 year-old James Larkin Pearson, whom Governor Umstead made the official Poet Laureate of the State of North Carolina. With one year's schooling and the help of the only four books in his home, the Bible, Almanac, a Methodist Hymnal and a small dictionary; Pearson began to write poetry at the age of ten.

In his early years, he had a few poems published but it was not until "Homer in the Garden" was brought to the attention of Upton Sinclair, that he was "discovered" by the New York Times.

Another poem, "Fifty Acres," was copied and recopied the world over. It was used in many anthologies and got him an invitation into "Who's Who in America."

"John Larkin Pearson," said Mrs. Bowen, "was inured to poverty and hardship but, through it all, never lost his sense of humor as is quite evident in his advice to would-be poets: 'Don't be a poet if you can possibly help it. It is the poorest paid profession in the world. If you are rich and have no poor kin-folks, you might try it awhile just for fun. But don't depend on it for a living. However, if you have such an overwhelming urge to be a poet that you can't control it and it won't let you rest day or night—then go ahead and be a poet and take the consequences.'"

A short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. Luther Bowling, before Mrs. Percy Upchurch, program chairman, introduced the speaker. Books were exchanged and absences noted.

The meeting was held at the home of the hostess, Mrs. R. W. Stark, who was assisted by Mrs. Frank Bendall in serving dessert with coffee and nuts.

Children's Home Society 'Adopted' 10 Years Ago

Can you "adopt" an adoption agency?

The Junior Woman's Clubs of the state proved that it is possible to do just that. Ten years ago they selected the Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc. as a state-wide project to raise money for the Society.

No 99 Junior Woman's Clubs throughout the state, including the local Greenville Jr. Woman's Club, actively support this 56 year old adoption agency which gives free services to parents, babies, school-age children and couples seeking adoption.

Receiving no tax funds, the agency secures half of its support from United Fund contributions. Additional support comes from friends of the Society.

Throughout the year The Children's Home Society's project chairmen of the clubs arrange for members to provide baby transportation. Babies are brought from all over the state to the Society's Receiving Home in Greensboro.

As an additional service to this adoption agency, each week Juniors drive the babies to doctors for medical care. Mrs. Mack C. Stocks project chairman of the Greenville Jr. Woman's Club, is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Hoyt Naron, president of the local club, points out that voluntary community service is an important part of the work of the Junior Woman's Clubs. Club members from the president to the newest member, participate in community service or administrative work.

Effective volunteer service is given by the Juniors through community education on adoption. They provide newspaper, radio and television publicity to acquaint the public with safe adoption practices. In addition, members arrange for speakers or adoptive programs for clubs, distribute adoption literature and present visual displays, such as parade floats, store window displays, and fair booths.

Juniors offer nursery support to the Society by assisting with nursery furnishings and presenting clothing and other gifts to the 160 babies who are under the care and protection of this adoption agency. At least once each year club members visit the Receiving Home in Greensboro to see the babies they help.

Memorial and honor gifts and bequests are also made to the Children's Home Society by individual women's clubs.

In United Fund towns Juniors give clerical assistance and participate in publicity work. Through their efforts, the first Carolina Babies' scholarship was awarded to Miss Kathleen I. Hasty of Winston-Salem. This scholarship was made available through the Junior Woman's Clubs of the state under a program begun last year.

Miss Hasty, a caseworker at the Children's Home Society, is presently studying under the graduate program at the School of Social Work of the University of North Carolina. Mrs. John Benson of High Point state advisory committee chairman, has announced that the Junior Woman's Club having the best club participation for the Society will receive the W. Y. Freyer Trophy. On the basis of club competition, this trophy will be awarded after February 1, 1959.

Members of the local club's Children's Home Society committee are Mrs. Mack C. Stocks and Mrs. H. L. Lewis.

Lefse Lovers Are Opinionated

By FRITZ WITTI LAKE PARK, Minn. (AP)—If the lady next to you at dinner appears to butter her napkin, carefully roll it up and then calmly proceed to munch away at it, don't write her off as nuts.

She's probably eating lefse. And if it isn't homemade, there's a good chance it came from Art Carlson's lefse plant in this west-central Minnesota community of some 800 persons.

"What is lefse? (It's pronounced LEFF-sa.) Well, the ingredients are simple — mashed potatoes, flour, some shortening and a dash of salt—but that's where the arguments start. Searchers for "real" lefse are equally as demanding as seekers of the "true" martini, and each has his own ideal.

"The secret's in rolling it out and baking it. You have to do it all by hand and it has to be done just right," says Art.

The mixture of potatoes, flour and shortening is rolled out to the size of about a one-foot, paper-thin pancake and then baked lightly on a dry griddle.

Some say thin as a quarter, others thin as a dime and still others, so thin you can see through it. The baking must be right—too long, it gets hard and brittle, like flatbread; not long enough and it's doughy.

Just right, it's thin and pliable, off-white in color with lightly browned spots. It has a neutral taste, with just a touch of potato flavor.

"And there's only one way to eat lefse—with plenty of butter," says Art, a jovial man who obviously has eaten his share in 57 years.

But, he would get argument there too. Lefse is spread with many things, from jam to peanut butter or maybe buttered and sprinkled with brown sugar or sugar and cinnamon.

It's usually eaten as a bread and, among Scandinavians and others in the know, finds its perfect partner in lutefisk, a codfish delicacy.

Carlson, serving his second term as mayor of this community, is a man who talks fast and continuously and, when he talks about lefse, he talks big.

He has a right to. His plant puts out about as much lefse as any single place in the world—including Norway where it originally comes from.

FOLDING FOOD—Art Carlson looks over a batch of lefse folded in traditional triangular shape as employe holds one before folding. Lefse is a Scandinavian pancake. Potatoes are the main ingredient.

Bridge Clubs

BETHEL—Mrs. James A. Manning was hostess to her bridge club Thursday with seven members and one invited guest, Mrs. William E. House, present to take their places at the two tables set up in the living room where indoor gardens were used to decorate.

Between progressions the hostess served congealed salad and punch.

At the end of play Mrs. Sam Keel was awarded high score prize.

Wednesday Afternoon Club Meets Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Vance Bunting entertained six members of her bridge club and two visitors, Mrs. J. L. Brown and Mrs. W. M. Mizelle.

Between the second and third progressions she served a salad plate with coffee.

At the end of play Mrs. F. F. Pollard was presented a prize for high score and Mrs. J. L. Brown received a prize for low score.

Couples Club Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Taylor honored eight members of her bridge club recently.

At the conclusion of the game Abbot McWhorter and Mrs. J. L. Gurganus were awarded a prize each for high score winning.

At the conclusion of the game cherry pies topped with whipped cream and hot coffee were served.

Mrs. Rowletta Entertains Mrs. Frances Rowletta was hostess to her bridge club in her home on James Street last Thursday. During progressions Mrs. D. O. Speir won high score and was awarded a prize.

Refreshments consisting of chocolate chiffon pie, cheese straws, cereal balls and hot coffee were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Carson Wins Mrs. Ralph Carson was presented a prize for winning high score when Mrs. James Crandell was hostess to seven members of her club and one invited guest Thursday night.

Refreshments consisting of pecan pies topped with cream and coffee were served between the second and third progressions.

Wallpaper Is Program Topic

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. E. G. Lang entertained the members of the Clio Book Club at her home in Brookgreen.

Mrs. W. J. Stell, president, introduced Mrs. C. C. Abernathy, Mrs. S. E. Coffman and Mrs. George Wilkerson as guests for the afternoon. After a short business meeting, Mrs. Lang introduced Mrs. Sam Northrop as guest speaker. Mrs. Northrop chose as her subject "The History and Romance of Wallpaper."

Wallpaper, Mrs. Northrop stated, is indeed a fascinating subject. It was used as far back as 200 B.C. in China. She traced the historical background of wallpaper from its beginning to the present era, bringing the past with all its high living into the present day.

She showed many patterns that are timeless in their beauty and creative atmosphere.

A salad course was served by the hostess and books were exchanged.

General Motors Corp. Is Said Target Of New Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources say a federal grand jury in New York has been investigating General Motors Corp., already the subject of a probe by the Justice Department's antitrust division.

The source, asked why the subpoena had been issued for the records Wednesday if the grand jury has been in session for several weeks, said "these things take time."

er the New York Journal-American reported the Justice Department is preparing an antitrust suit against GM. The Journal-American editor, Leslie Gould, said the suit will seek to force GM to drop at least one of its five automobile divisions and General Motors Acceptance Corp., its financing affiliate.

Housing Bill Survives 2 Efforts To Cut It Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—An omnibus housing bill, surviving two major Republican efforts to cut it, moved toward final Senate action today.

Further efforts both to increase and to decrease the bill's size lay ahead, but Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.), author of the measure, predicted its passage without further change.

The only change made in the bill Wednesday cut 150 million dollars off the program of direct government home loans for veterans, halving the 300 millions the Senate Banking Committee had voted.

But Democratic leaders accepted the change, in the expressed hope it would make the measure more palatable to President Eisenhower, and it was adopted by voice vote.

The House meantime voted 310-89 on a separate bill to provide the full 300 millions for direct GI loans despite a protest from Rep. Charles Halleck (R-Ind.), GOP leader, that "budget busters are on the move."

The House bill, limited to veterans' housing, also would increase the maximum interest rate from 4% to 5 1/2% per cent on home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. The idea is to attract more lenders' money for the program. The same provision is in the Senate bill.

Halving of the direct loan program in the Senate bill cut its total to $2,775,000,000 for a variety of programs, most of them extending for a period of several years.

Earlier, on two key votes, the Senate:

Defeated 58-32 a $1,800,000,000 Republican substitute bill. Seven Democrats and 25 Republicans supported the substitute; 51 Democrats and 7 Republicans opposed it.

Rejected 50-37 a GOP move to eliminate the 35,000 new public housing starts and 16,000 carry-over units from the bill. Thirteen Democrats and 24 Republicans were for this; it was beaten with votes of 43 Democrats and 7 Republicans.

The bill carries $2,100,000,000 for slum clearance and urban renewal programs, as well as substantial funds for college dormitories and classrooms.

It also meets some emergency needs, among them an increase in the almost depleted FHA loan insurance authority. Ten billions of new authority are provided.

Sponsors contend the measure will give a needed boost to one of the country's largest industries.

Another

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Taking his cue from South Dakota, a Utah lawmaker has come up with a bill to place the skull and crossbones on all tobacco products sold in this state.

State Rep. Wallace A. Peterson, a Salt Lake Democrat, said the measure would be formally introduced today in the State's House.

The measure would add the legend, "Contents of this package contain poisonous ingredients."

Peterson, a nonsmoker, said he had modeled the bill after one passed recently by South Dakota's Senate.

Senators seeking to cut it contend it would end any chance of a balanced budget.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.) and a group of other senators plan today to try to step up the slum clearance program in the bill to a 450-million-dollar annual rate. Sparkman's measure calls for 350 million annually over six years.

Sens. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) and Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) said they would try to strike from the bill the increased interest rate on GI home loans. They say that this would lead to a general rise in interest charges.

Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.), Republican spokesman on housing legislation, said he would make some more efforts to trim the bill.

Kinston Pastor Will Address Graduates

Vice President Has Ribs Broken

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon is nursing two broken ribs, but he's not letting them get him down. Nixon fell on his back Tuesday night when he slipped on the sleet-covered sidewalk in front of his home.

Nixon said at a reception Wednesday night the injury was painful but he joked about it and said he had never before had such thoughtful treatment from his daughters, Patricia, 12 and Julie, 9.

Lights Came On For All, But—

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Fourteen years ago World War II came to an end, and they turned the lights back on all over the world.

In Seattle they forgot.

The lights outside the portal of the Lake Washington floating bridge were blacked out on Pearl Harbor day. Wednesday, the chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee pointed out someone apparently had forgot to turn them on again.

LONDON (AP)—West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt took off by jet-liner for Canada and the United States today.

Plan Inactivate Engineer Unit

Plans to inactivate the 392nd USAR Engineer Company were announced today by Lt. Col. Beverly Brockdorff, Greenville Area Commander for Army Reserve activities.

The heavy equipment company includes three officers and 45 enlisted men, all of whom will be absorbed by other units in this area, Colonel Brockdorff said. The unit is commanded by Captain John H. Hagans of Wilson.

According to Colonel Brockdorff, the planned inactivation is in keeping with reorganization of all Army Reserve units. Such units, he added, are being formed under the "pentomic" concept of organization now in effect in the active Army.

The area commander paid tribute to the 392nd by saying, "The company has always been known for its high morale, proficiency and community spirit. It has had capable leadership from Captain Hagans."

Collision In Fog Kills Woman, 6 People Injured

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—An automobile pulled out of a side road and collided with a milk delivery truck in heavy fog today, killing a 76-year-old Bessemer City woman and injuring six persons.

Mrs. Elizabeth Croft was killed. Injured were five members of her family, and the driver of the dairy truck, Robert G. Duncan, 22, of Gastonia.

The driver of the car, Max Croft, 38, was injured critically. Less seriously hurt were his mother, Mrs. Bessie Croft, 40; his sister, Mrs. Avalie Owens, 22; his mother's sister, Lessie Wiggins, 43, and his cousin, Jerry Croft, 2.

The milk truck was owned by the M. A. Rhyme & Sons Dairy of Gastonia.

The accident occurred on the Gastonia-Bessemer City highway, two miles from Bessemer City.

James D. Bullock Funeral On Friday

ROBERSONVILLE—James D. Bullock, 43, died at the Ward Clinic in Robersonville at 10 p.m. Wednesday following a heart attack suffered on Saturday.

Funeral services will be held at Crossroads Christian Church, near Robersonville, Friday at 3 p.m. by Rev. P. E. Cayton, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. R. L. Topping, pastor. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery in Williamston. The body will be carried from the home to the church one hour prior to the service.

Mr. Bullock, son of James A. Bullock of Crossroads community and the late Rowena Wynne Bullock, was born and spent his life in Martin County. He was a farmer and a member of Crossroads Christian Chapel.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Leona Rogers Bullock; two sons, Gene and James Bullock of the home; two daughters, Mrs. J. D. Whitaker of Crossroads and Faye Bullock of the home; his father, and two sisters, Mrs. Jim R. Fulford of Crossroads and Mrs. Delbert Davis of Hampton, Va.

Noted pianist-statesman Ignace Paderewski loved to play bridge. He had a bridge table installed in the official railroad car he used as Premier of Poland.

College Band To Present Annual Concert Friday Night

The East Carolina College Concert Band will present a varied program when it appears in its annual concert here Friday night Feb. 6, on the McGinnis Auditorium at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Directed by Herbert L. Carter of the college faculty, the band will play selections ranging from classic to modern compositions. Popular numbers and solos by talented student members of the band will contribute to the attractiveness of the program.

"March, opus 99", an original work for band by the contemporary

Russian composer Serge Prokofiev will provide a spirited opening for the concert. Charles Simon Catel's "Overture in C", a work exemplifying the elegance and clarity of late Eighteenth Century music, will follow.

Included also will be Rimsky-

Korsakov's "The Czar's Bride Overture", in an arrangement by Dr. A.A. Harding, and the "Syrian Choral and Overture" composed by Jean Filieul and arranged by L.W. Childester. The Filieul work uses as thematic material a number of Arab folk songs.

Jack Pindell, Junior from Raleigh, will appear as soloist with the band in a performance of Mozart's "Concerto in B Flat Major", K191. This selection will be played by a small band of twenty-four members.

Oldtimer Says 'Wild West' Theme Is Hokum

HE WAS THERE—Homer Grigsby, who was a cowhand in the 1880s, says TV Westerns have it all wrong. He saw a gun drawn only once, and that by a greenhorn who'd been reading novels.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—An old cowhand who rode Arizona's range for 74 of his 90 years sums up his opinion of current TV Westerns with one word: Hokum. "These modern writers would have people believe most of the old-time range riders were all gun-slingers and no-goods," complains Homer (Uncle Dick) Grigsby. Uncle Dick, who is retired but raises calves in the backyard of his Phoenix home just to keep his hand in, says the oldtime cowboys didn't have time for the erocted shenanigans shown on TV. The only time he ever saw a gun drawn, recalls Uncle Dick, was by some greenhorn who came West "filled up with ideas from those novels written back in Chicago."

Couple Try Sell Twins For $500

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A former airman from Michigan and his British-born wife tried to sell their 8-year-old twin boys for $500, but the prospective buyers were probing juvenile officers. Police Wednesday filed charges against Clark Dean Stillion of Brighton, Mich., and his wife, Rosemarie, both 24. Two juvenile officers posing as a married couple, purchased the boys, complete with bill of sale, with marked money. Stillion said he had been unable to get a job since his release from the Air Force. Both he and his wife were jailed. "We were doing it for the good of the children," sobbed Mrs. Stillion after her arrest Wednesday. "It would have torn my heart completely, but it would have meant giving the kids a home and the things they needed." The twins are Thomas James and George Frederick Lewins, children of Mrs. Stillion by a former marriage. "We never wanted to leave our mommy," Thomas told reporters. "But mommy and daddy said we had to, that we would have a better life."

Family Playing Safe; Construct Air Raid Shelter

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Ralph and Joyce Armbrister live in a frame house here with their three children and do just about the same things that other American families do.

With one exception, that is. The Armbristers have spent the last two years creating a special survival shelter in the brick house next door where Joyce's uncle lives.

It's an area about 10 by 7 feet in a brick-walled fruit storage room. The family has equipped it with three bunks, a pantry of canned foods, 12 gallon jugs of drinking water (refilled every few weeks), a canned heat stove, battery radio, rifle, shotgun, ammunition, matches (the latter two in a milk can to keep out moisture) and other equipment.

"We even have a crowbar to use in case we have to pry our way out," Mrs. Armbrister adds. The shelter would be used, of course, in case of enemy air attack.

On the chance a nuclear raid makes food scarce, the Armbristers have put animal traps in the shelter. There are also sleeping bags, blankets, vitamin tablets and games for the children.

They chose the uncle's house because its brick construction would probably offer greater blast resistance than the Armbrister house, and because it can be reached quickly from their home.

However, Mrs. Armbrister says: "We feel we should have plenty of advance warning of a coming raid because of the radar installations the nation has been developing."

She is chairman of the local Parent-Teacher Assn.'s Civil Defense Committee, and the Armbristers are convinced other American families should also be planning for the possibility of an attack.

"I'm scared," says Mrs. Armbrister. "Aren't you?"

Jones Named To Rules Committee

Representative Walter B. Jones of Farmville was named yesterday as a member of the House Committee on Rules for the 1959 North Carolina General Assembly.

Jones is one of 25 persons named to the committee first to be announced by Speaker of the House Addison Hewlett of New Hanover County. Other members of the committee, which will be headed by John Kerr of Warren County, include Herbert Hardy of Greene County and Sam Whitehurst of Craven County.

In State Senate action during yesterday's opening session, Pitt Senator Robert Lee Humber of Greenville became the first man other than President Pro-Tem Robert Morgan to introduce business before the body. Humber introduced a resolution calling for the Assembly to attend dedication ceremonies at Tryon Palace on April 8 and to hold a one-day session in the restored colonial capitol.

A resolution similar to Humber's was introduced in the House of Representatives by Sam Whitehurst of New Bern. Both resolutions were referred to rules committees.

Commission To Meet Tonight

Members of the Pitt County Development Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Commissioners' Room of the Court House.

The meeting will be the first for the commission with Leonard A. Weston, who began duties this week as the group's development engineer. Weston is formerly of New Smyrna Beach, Florida.

Chairman Leonard P. Bloxam will preside.

FALSE ALARM
A box alarm from First and Evans St. which brought fire trucks out last night proved to be false. The alarm was sounded at 11:12 p.m.

Initial cost of the aircraft in a modern jet fighter wing is $122 million compared with the $22 million cost for a World War II fighter wing.

Old Mine Continues Rely On Muscle, Mule Power

MULE POWER—Ed Mydler hooks up a mule in Du Bois Coal Co. Mine No. 6, the oldest active coal mine in Illinois. The crew of 29 miners produce about 100 tons a day.

By DAVID C. BEEDER
DU BOIS, Ill. (AP)—Picks and shovels, old fashioned lanterns and mule-powered coal cars still are standard equipment in the Du Bois No. 6 mine, the oldest in Illinois.

The 300-foot deep mine has changed little since it was dug in 1865 to supply fuel for steam locomotives.

Mules drag loaded coal cars to the shaft head. An ancient steam boiler provides power to bring the load to the surface. There is no modern machinery and no electricity.

Miners work by the glow of open-flame carbide lamps which are hooked to their helmets. A worker's a miner by day and a pick and a shovel are their only tools. They bring up about 100 tons of coal a day.

"We can't afford to convert to machinery," bookkeeper John Waligorski said. "It would cost a million dollars to put machinery in this little mine."

Waligorski is secretary-treasurer of the miners' cooperative company which operates the Du Bois mine for owner J. W. Schwind, a retired farmer with land holdings in the southern Illinois area around Du Bois.

Under the cooperative plan, the 29 miners employed in No. 6 are paid a salary based on mine earnings. Officers of the cooperative are elected annually. Waligorski works as a miner by day and a bookkeeper by night.

"We make a profit but we put most of it back in the mine," Waligorski said. "We are just able to hold our own."

The mine operates in winter only. In summer the miners work as farmers. Six mules provide motive power for the mine railway. Getting them into the shaft is tricky work because the brutes are nearly as big as the shaft opening. The animals have been trained to take a sitting position and remain docile while they are maneuvered through the opening. Once in the pit they seem content.

Waligorski and his miners believe they have one of the safest mines in the country. "There are no gases; we have a firm top and no slides," he said.

Auto Dealer Is Charged With Removing Data
CHARLOTTE, (AP)—A Charlotte auto dealer has been charged with selling new autos from which the manufacturer's suggested retail price stickers had been removed.

The complaint was filed Wednesday against Brown A. Mangum under the Automobile Information Disclosure Act, which was passed last year by Congress.

Assistant Dist. Atty. William J. Waggoner said he believes the case is the first brought under the act.

Mangum is accused of aiding and abetting in the removal of manufacturer's labels from eight 1959 model cars before the cars were sold. The cars involved were Volkswagens and Karman Ghias. The federal act requires that labels must remain on a car until it is delivered to the buyer. Violations call for a $1,000 fine, a year in prison, or both.

Mangum was released under $500 bond pending a preliminary hearing Feb 11.

After New Mexico Became United States Territory, President Abraham Lincoln presented Pueblo chiefs and governors with ebony, silver-headed canes to signify their authority.

Thirty-Nine Pupils Earned Honor Roll

Thirty-nine students have been named to Junius H. Rose High School's Honor Roll for the first semester.

The honor students represent approximately six per cent of the school's total enrollment of 610 students, according to Principal O.E. Dowd. In addition, Dowd said 57 students, approximately 9.5 per cent of the total enrollment, were named to the third marking period Honor Roll.

Three of the semester Honor Roll students won their places by making 1's on all subjects. They are Sophomore Jean Crawford and Seniors Dot Davis, Catherine Moore, Kathryn Oakes and Larry Crawan.

Others who were named to the semester Honor Roll for making 1's and 2's on all subjects include: Ninth grade: Carolyn Churchill, Peggy Harrell, Linda Little, Dalton Owens, Jimmy Eatman, Jimmy Jenkins, Peggy Stubbs, Joe Gaston, Billy James, Sammy Mayo, Judy Thilpen, Shirley Harrell, Johnny Reynolds and Theresa Wilson.

Tenth grade: Donna Bisette, Rick Sauve, Sharon Bailey, Ruth Clark, Emily Stancill, Steve Marcereau, Ben White, Bill Wade, Mary Lou Berry, Linda Gaskins, Melinda Coleman and Craig Worthington.

Ideal Secretary's Real Goal Is Burlesque 'Girl Of Year'

By HAL R. COOPER

LONDON (AP)—A year and a half ago a somewhat mousy little doll named Shendah Pearce won a newspaper contest for the title of London's ideal junior secretary. As it developed, she was only kidding.

Recently a brand new cupcake, blonde and beautiful, with a nice dancing talent and a good singing voice, turned up in the case of the Windmill girl revue theater. Didn't look like Shendah, but—divested of her typewriter, shorthand notebook and all but a bare minimum of attire—it was.

"I always intended to go on the stage," explained Shendah, now 17½. "I just took the secretarial job while learning to dance and getting my teeth and hair fixed."

"How did I win the contest? Well, I just gave them the answers I thought they wanted, and it worked. My real ambition even then was to be chosen Windmill girl of the year."

The Windmill never hires featured singers or dancers. These have to come up from the chorus. In addition to singing and dancing, the girls must know how to act. All are expected to take turns at doing the nude poses which provide a background for the stage action.

The girl of the year, chosen annually by the audience, gets a loving cup and a raise in pay. The girls start at $33.60 a week—Shendah got $18.20 as a secretary—and can earn up to $84 if they stick around and build up some seniority.

What does mother think about her little girl coveting around in front of all those bald heads? "Why, she thinks it's wonderful that I was able to get the job," said Shendah. "We're a sporting and broad-minded family. After all, daddy's a bookmaker."

It is the Windmill's proudest boast that it ran straight through the London blitz in World War II. At one point, it was the only theater open nights. Its motto, in fact, is "We Never Closed," inevitably rendered by the wag as "We Never Closed."

Wrong Body Is Sent Grieving Couple In S. C.

The Lemor News-Topic Wrote for The Associated Press LENOIR, N. C. (AP)—The eerie, mysterious, wavering lights of Brown Mountain still intrigue visitors to North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains.

Down through the ages this phenomenon has puzzled mountaineer and mineralogist, slave and scientist.

Four young scientists now believe they have the explanation for the weird lights.

They are William Happer, Morehead Scholarship physics major of the University of North Carolina; his brother, Ian, a student in the accelerated program at the University; their roommate, Heiner Hamke, an exchange student; and Edward Miller, an electrical engineer major at Cornell University. All are from Lenoir, except Heiner who is from Hanover, Germany.

For many years the long mountain range and its lights have given rise to weird stories and legends. Considered by geologists to be among the oldest in the world, the mountain, except for a few acres belonging to individuals, is owned by the federal government.

Their jaunts have often taken them in the vicinity of Brown Mountain where they chatted with an old-timer, Ernest Perkins, who lives in the region on the original grant of his forebears and is as familiar with folk tales and legends of Brown Mountain as he is with the palm of his hand.

From Perkins they obtained their first clue. He related that high on the mountain there is an area that is clearly haunted—a place where cattle refuse to go to graze though it is open land with abundant grass.

The young men deduced there must be a swamp on top of the 2,800-foot mountain. They knew that in marshes decayed vegetation creates methane gas which is near or below zero in most areas from sections of the country today, with the season's worst storm in the central Colorado Rockies and a fresh blast of icy air moving into the Midwest.

Eerie Lights Of Brown Mountain Is Still Source Of Interest To Visitors

Along the crest runs the dividing line of Caldwell and Burke counties. On the south flow branches of John's River. On the northwest, north, and northeast are Upper Creek and Wilson Creek.

There are many theories regarding the lights, varying from deep superstition to involved explanations of authorities, a few of whom have dismissed the fluorescence, casually attributing it to cars and trains.

Strangely enough, the modern hypothesis of the four youths coincides with the old idea of the hill folk who call the lights "will-o'-the-wisps" because of the apparent resemblance to flickers on the moors and swamps in the Old World.

Intensely interested in physics, geology, botany, mineralogy, and other sciences, the Happer brothers have hiked hundreds of miles over mountains and valleys of western North Carolina.

Their jaunts have often taken them in the vicinity of Brown Mountain where they chatted with an old-timer, Ernest Perkins, who lives in the region on the original grant of his forebears and is as familiar with folk tales and legends of Brown Mountain as he is with the palm of his hand.

bubbles to the surface of the water, oxidizing, forming lights known as "swamp-fire" or "Will-o'-the-wisps." The rising, vanishing flares which appear above the mountain were similar to typical formations of methane and other exotic gases, they believed.

When the Happer brothers declared to townsmen that there must be a swamp on the mountain they found them skeptical.

Firm in their supposition, they decided to search the summit during their recent holidays and enlisted the assistance of Heimer and Edward.

Following a forest trail from a nearby hard-surfaced road, the boys took a car to the top and then hiked along the area for about three miles.

There they reported, they found their idea confirmed. The mountain, instead of being one low long range as appears from a distance, they discovered, is composed of two ridges, with a central area being concave, containing a 40-50-acre basin between the ridges. In the valley is typical marsh growth of tupelo trees, grasses, and reeds. The basin has only one opening, a neck where the water drains, creating a large waterfall which forms the headwaters of Carrol Creek.

It is the theory of the youths that the lights which appear at intervals are more apt to be seen after rainfall when the marsh is full of water and in summer when heat hastens decaying processes. Methane gas, they explain, is "the swamp smell" associated with marshy places and is very evident on the mountain.

The uranium rush of three or four years ago rekindled interest in the lights. Mark Goforth of Lenoir, who has done much timbering in the region, says there was seldom a day that there weren't several seekers on the mountain with Geiger counters. Some found deposits of uranium which has led many people to believe its incidence perhaps causes the lights.

In the early part of the century interest with lights was so intense that the late Rep. E. Y. Webb of Selby persuaded the United States Geological Survey to send a geologist, D. B. Serrett, to Brown Mountain to make observations in 1913. Following his search he declared them to be nothing more than train headlights shining across the mountain range from other heights.

Two weeks later Indians found him in the forests of San Blas Island off the coast of Panama. He lived with them more than three months. They eventually took him to a missionary who turned him over to the American consul in Panama Nov. 8.

Police were told that neither the father nor an aunt in Miami, Fla., wanted the boy.

"He has never had the friendship and affection he craved," says Roy Aldridge, 28, a policeman in Cristobal, Panama, who brought Carlos to this country recently. "He's intelligent. Given the chance, he could really make something of himself."

An American citizen, Mrs. Lince now 32, was traced to Lincoln, Neb., but there the trial was lost. Carlos has a home offered him. Aldridge's stepfather, H. F. Abney of Los Angeles, plans to adopt him if possible. Abney, too, is a policeman.

But the boy, more than anything else, wants to find his mother.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An unwanted American boy, who fled the Colombian jungle, rather than live on in loneliness, is here on a wistful quest.

Carlos Telmo Lince Jr., 14, not quite an orphan, seeks the only person who can fill the void in his heart: his mother. His search could be hopeless.

He was only 7 when Mrs. Carlos T. Lince decided in 1952—one year after they had moved there from Los Angeles—that she could not go on living in Bogota, Colombia. She disappeared. If she ever sent back word, it never reached Carlos and his sister, Lucia. Lucia, 11, lives with their father, a Colombian airline pilot who has remarried.

Carlos went to a military school in Bogota. Lonely and friendless, he tried repeatedly to get away. The third time he ran away, last July 15, he made it.

He wandered in the tropical wilds, looking for something. What he didn't know. Coconuts and wild berries and vegetables kept him going. Occasionally he shinned up

Stock Exchange Seats Keep Growing In Value

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—If you have a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, you can get 108 per cent more for it today than a year ago. So why are seats being sold? Has the growth of the mutual funds helped send prices soaring?

Chief reason over the years for offering a seat for sale has been the death of the owner, and next old age or crippling illness. In times of extremely dull markets, however, a seat holder may want to get out of a poor paying business, or the brokerage firm of which he is a partner may not need that many seats any more.

An official says that the chief reasons for buying a seat are that someone in the securities business wants to be a member, or someone likes the business and wants to get into it, or that one of the member firms has so much business it needs more persons privileged to do business on the floor. These reasons weigh heaviest at times of high turnovers, like the present.

Mutual funds play an indirect role. They aren't listed or sold on the Exchange. A broker needn't be a member of the Exchange to sell them.

But the funds themselves give members lots of business. As they

Seagull Winters At Fish Market

BELMAR, N.J. (AP)—A seagull named Alphonse has been wintering here among the fishheads and tails for a dozen years.

Every summer Alphonse goes off to the north, but each fall for the last 12 years he returned to Ollie Klein's fish market where he lives off handouts snatched from Klein's fish.

Independently, the Securities and Exchange Commission keeps a close eye on the whole affair. The Federal Reserve Board decides how much or little trading can be done on margin and how much must be done in cash.

There are several types of members. The commission broker acts for his own firm. The $2 trader helps out-of-town members or other brokers when they are very busy, and gets a fee for it. A third trades on his own account—this type has been dwindling, and there are few left.

The specialist makes a market in a particular stock, executing orders when the market price reaches the figure specified by a stock buyer or seller. Finally the odd lot broker acts for houses handling stock deals of fewer than 100 shares.

You pay a lot these days for a seat. But, as it is well known, there actually are no seats on the floor. You stand while you work, or maybe lean a little on a counter. But with the market the way it is today, you get precious little rest.

No Comment On Reported Offer Of Judgeship

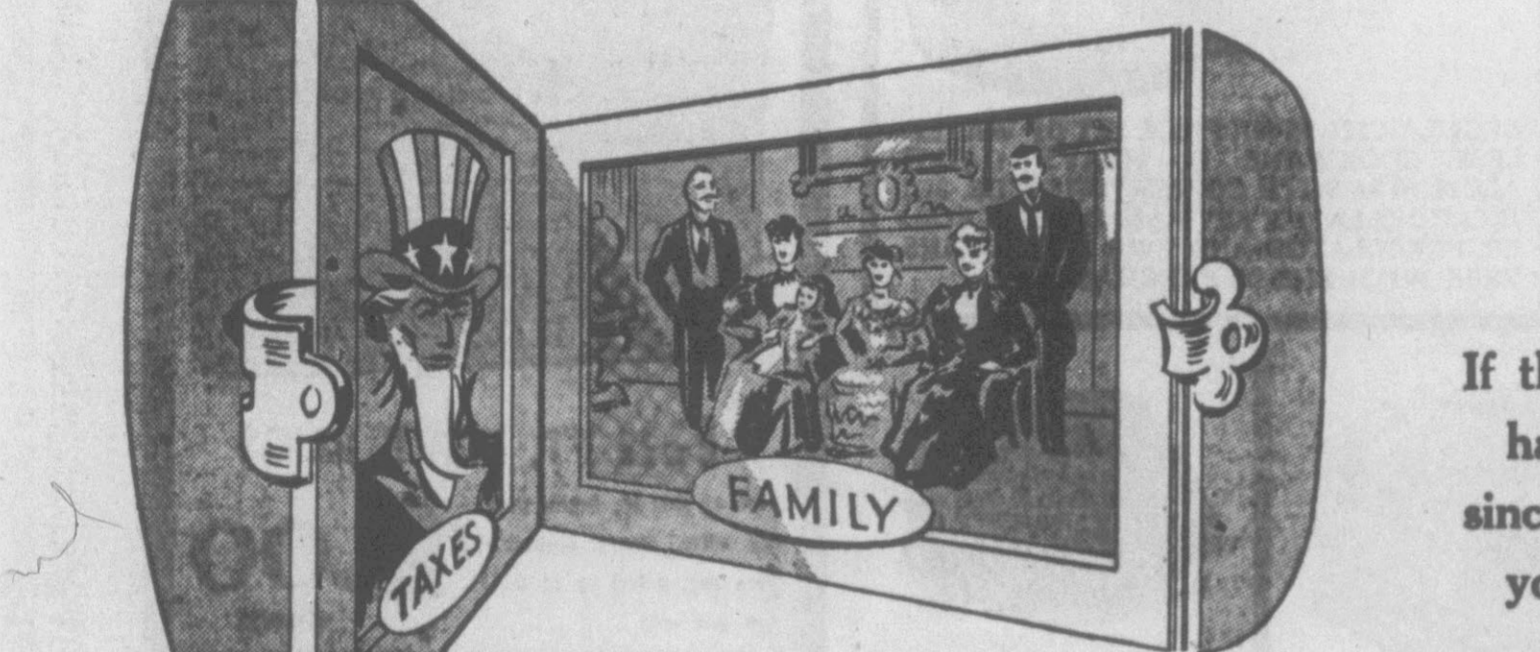

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges and House Speaker Addison Hewlett of New Hanover have declined to comment on a report that Hodges offered Hewlett a Superior Court judgeship.

One legislator, who asked that his name not be used, said Hewlett was offered the judgeship and turned it down. Acceptance would have taken him out of the speakership race.

Hewlett was chosen speaker Tuesday night in a close race with Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow, an administration stalwart in the 1957 Legislature.

The judgeship in Hewlett's judicial district became vacant last week when Gov. Hodges appointed Judge Clifton L. Moore of Burgaw to the State Supreme Court. Rudolph I. Mintz of Wilmington was appointed by Hodges to succeed Moore.

Prison Term For Setting Blaze

CLINTON, N.C. (AP)—Lawrence Daughtry, 28, has received a 4-7 year prison sentence for setting fire to his father's oil company here Dec. 7.

Daughtry was sentenced Wednesday by Superior Court Judge Clarence W. Hall after pleading guilty to arson, which carries a maximum sentence of 40 years.

The blaze destroyed four large tanks, a truck and several buildings at the J. F. Daughtry Oil Co.

Rugged Rebounder. by Pap

The Musketeers of Xavier University, Cincinnati, will be back to defend their National Invitation tournament championship in Madison Square Garden, so the Metropolitan fans and "experts" will have another look at Joe Viviano. It would be worth their while to take a good look at this court mechanic, one of the best basketball players in collegiate ranks. Last year, the experts voted Hank Stein the Most Valuable Player in the Musketeers' upset N.I.T. triumph when the sharp-shooting forward piled up 90 points in the tournament. They overlooked the workman-like job done by Viviano. Stein is back with the Musketeers and the flashy forward is being touted as an All-America. Viviano? Well, he's right up there with the leading scorers and rebounders. He's doing the solid job, making the right plays at the right time. If Viviano has been overlooked by the experts and fans, the same is not true of his coach, Jim McCafferty, and his teammates. Viviano was voted the Musketeers' most valuable player after the 1957-58 season and received the McCafferty Trophy for his all-around contribution to his team's success. A rugged 205-pounder standing 5-foot-6, Viviano is a tremendous rebounder. He snarls rebounds from taller players who are capable of out-jumping him several inches. He times his moves perfectly. His hands are big and sure. He doesn't appear to be fast because he moves with a smooth, effortless gait much like Joe DiMaggio when the great Yankee outfielder was sliding under a long fly to center. His style is deceptive and ability to pace himself fools opponents as well as the fans. Equally important, is the fact that Viviano doesn't make mistakes and seems to keep one play ahead of the opposition. It's almost like having an assistant coach out there guiding the team. Just watch Joe Viviano work.

Belvoir-Falkland Wins Two Against Snow Hill

BELVOIR — Coach Charlie Bill Move employed a half-court press with his patched-up lineup Tuesday night and upset Snow Hill 67-62 to give Belvoir-Falkland a clean sweep in a non-conference doubleheader. The local girls led all the way to post a 64-46 victory. Move, his team hampered all year by scholastic problems and injuries, saw two more of his starters become question marks for the rest of the season in the hard-earned victory. Jerry Lett, the team's top scorer was lost early in the game due to a wrist injury. Roy Smith, sophomore forward, was also lost in the late stages of the game with an ankle injury. The extent of the injuries were unknown Wednesday morning. Snow Hill had defeated the Eagles in their initial meeting by 28 points, 74-46, but were unable to cope with hustle and determination of Move's "never-give-up" club. James Joyner, "Mr. Playmaker" who has turned into a consistent scorer, led the scoring parade for the winners along with Smith. Both registered 14 points. Jerry Wooten and Cobby Deans were close behind with 12 and 11 points respectively. Joe Jenkins, pint-sized sophomore who was just promoted from the junior varsity, also aided in the victory cause with eight points. The two clubs exchanged the lead most of the first half but Hugh Taylor's jump shot gave the visitors a 29-28 margin at intermission. The lead was short-lived, however, as Wooten, the hard-working center, hit eight points in the third period while Belvoir outscored their foes 23-14 and build up a 52-43 lead. Dan Warren led a final quarter spurt for the loser's but it was all in vain as the Eagles were not to

Improved Phantoms Set For Return Match

With a 7-2 conference record and a steadily-improving ball club on his hands, Greenville High School Coach Bo Farley looks forward to tomorrow night's contest with New Bern in a "better frame of mind than when we met them earlier." The Phantoms, who had a rough time of it in the first few ball games of the season, have snowballed into one of the top contenders for the Northeastern Conference crown during the past several weeks. "We've looked considerably better in the last few ball games," Farley said this morning. If our shooting holds up I think we'll be all right this year. That's what has made the difference for us recently." Farley's club, which started out the year as one of the tallest and one of the lowest-scoring clubs in the conference, has sprung forth lately with several scores in the 70's, an improvement of over 30 points in some instances. Leading his outfit in accuracy throughout the year has been a senior guard, Joe Moye, who averages better than 14 points per game. Farley has used Moye as the nucleus of the first unit and it is only in the past few weeks that the surrounding ball players have begun to score consistently along with the 8-3 senior. Farley has also shifted his lineup slightly during the recent ball games. His first unit, now, includes Moye and Howard Garner at guard positions, Billy Cox and Steve Noble at forwards, and 6-5 James Ward at center. Greenville walloped New Bern 63-58 in a close contest on the Phantoms' home court on January 27—a contest which New Bern was supposed to win by seven points, according to New Bern oddsmakers. When the two clubs clash tomorrow night on the Bears' home court, the hosts will undoubtedly be trying to make up for that let-down loss. The odds have shifted since that first meeting, giving Greenville a position as favorites by 10 points. New Bern will be trying to turn the tables on Farley's up-and-coming outfit. Cliffe Rowe, who tossed in 15 points against the Greenville club in the January 27 contest, is again expected to pace the Bruins.

Following the New Bern tilt tomorrow night, Rose High will go on the road to Elizabeth City, and Washington before returning to their own gymnasium for their final home game of the year with Kinston. The Elizabeth City and Washington jaunts are expected to be the locals' toughest games since their rise to strength, due to the fact that the games will be road games and the fact that the opposing clubs will have a home-court advantage. Washington, of course, will rank the toughest of the two clubs for Greenville to defeat. The Pam-Pack hold one of the two victories racked up against Greenville thus far this year. And, symbolically, Washington ranks the no. 1 club in the loop at present and Kinston follows in second place, Greenville is third. The final two weeks of play in the Northeastern Conference, coming up now, may see a three-way battle between Kinston, Washington, and Greenville for the regular-season title. At any rate, Coach Farley feels a little better-equipped to enter the two clubs for Greenville to

Old North State Rivals Clashing At East Carolina's Gymnasium Tonight

Flanagan Wins Disputed Verdict

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Del Flanagan's flair for setting off controversies pushed him into the middle of another dispute today. The St. Paul welterweight gained a decision over New Orleans' Ralph Dupas in a televised 10-rounder Wednesday night, but some people weren't convinced. One of them was Jimmy Perreault, whose judge's scorecard had Dupas winning. Referee Johnny Stanton and Judge Dick Delaney scored it Flanagan. "This is the worst," said Dupas' manager, Angelo Dundee, "sometimes you expect to get hurt on a hometown decision but you can live with it when the fight has been close. This one was Dupas from start to finish." Dupas added: "How do they score fights here? I threw four punches to one, I was on the offense all the way, Flanagan didn't do much fighting, and they give him the decision." It could have gone either way, but it did not appear to be a gift. Flanagan fought strongly through the early rounds, lost momentum in the face of Dupas' fast-moving

Atlantic Christian and East Carolina, two of the oldest rivals in the North State Conference, clash tonight in Memorial Gymnasium in what shapes up to be another top-flight game for East Carolina followers. The Bucs, a revamped club, have taken six victories in their last seven outings and will rate as strong favorites in tonight's meeting with their smaller visitors. Coach Howard Porter stated last night that he had no idea what the Wilson visitors might throw at his club. ACC has employed a full court zone press defense often this season but it is doubtful that they will try the same thing against the fast-breaking Pirates. The Bulldogs have

Another Setback For Phantomites

Coach Algie Faircloth's Greenville Junior High School Phantomites suffered a 71-45 licking last night at the hands of AAA Wilson. The ballgame was the fifth of the year for Greenville and moved their record to 3-2. Several of the Phantomite opponents have been AAA clubs. Next game of the Greenville schedule will be played Friday night, here, against New Bern at 7:00 p.m. in the Junior High Gymnasium.

Cubs Have Pitching Duty Awaiting Pair

Jerry Kindall, who hit .229 at Fort Worth, with 16 home runs and 65 RBIs, is back for another trial at second base. Don Eaddy, shortstop, recently was discharged from service. Bob Will heads a quartet of new outfielders. The others are Lou Jackson, Charlie King and Bill Phillips. Morris Thacker, a former New York Yankee farmhand, is regarded as a good bet to land a catching berth. In 88 games with Fort Worth, he batted .293.

Don King Keeps Scoring Title In NAIA District

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-one points a game is the best scoring average being recorded in District 26 of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics and it belongs to Appalachian's Don King. King built up the average by bucketing 315 points in 15 games. Dick Whittis of Lenoir Rhyne is second in the scoring race with an 18.5 average, followed by Marshall Perkins of Wofford, 17.6, Bill Sullivan of Presbyterian, 15.4, and Rick Howe of Appalachian, 15.3. In the rebounding department Belmont Abbey's Danny Doyle is tops, averaging 14.1 rebounds. Presbyterian's Sonny Wells holds the lead in field goal percentage. He's hit on 31 of 50 shots in 10 games for a 62 per cent showing.

Auerbach Fined For His Conduct

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Celtics Coach Red Auerbach has been fined $100 by National Basketball Assn. President Maurice Podoloff for his actions in St. Louis in a game against the Hawks Jan. 20. Auerbach was ejected from the game after drawing two technical fouls and engaging in a violent argument with rookie referee Norm Brucker. When pelted by fans as he left the St. Louis floor in the third period, Auerbach started up into the stands but was restrained by Boston players. St. Louis went on to defeat Boston 119-114.

Found: A Boxer Who Concedes Lost Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — Found: One fighter who admits he really lost a decision. His name is Rudell Stitch. The only time Rudell (that was his father's name) appeared in New York he fought Isaac Logart at St Nicholas Arena. He had beaten Logart in Louisville earlier in the year. This time the decision went to Logart although the referee and one judge had it 5-4-1. "It was close but he took the last round and won it," said Stitch Wednesday at Madison Square Garden. "It was a fair decision." The 26-year-old welterweight from Louisville doesn't intend to let Gasnar Ortega make it that close when they meet Friday at the Garden. Stitch has done most of his fighting in his home town where he is a church elder. To feed his family of four boys and a girl, he doesn't depend entirely on boxing. Rudell works for a meat packing company. Stitch's record is 17-4 for 21 fights, with nine knockouts.

Talks Could Hinge On Accepting Of One Idea

GENEVA (AP)—The future of the East-West conference on suspension of nuclear weapon tests may hinge on Soviet acceptance of one simple idea—a scientific instrument knows no politics.

After three months of negotiations, the conference of delegates from the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union remains in a deadlock.

A Soviet demand for sweeping veto rights over all inspection and control arrangements designed to police a test ban never will be accepted by the United States and Britain, conference sources say. The Soviet Union fears that without a veto, the other two atomic powers would gang up on it.

The Western delegations understand this Soviet fear. They explained, however, that a veto would make any agreement to suspend tests meaningless.

A government accused of snatching an atomic or hydrogen explosion could veto the sending of an inspection team into its territory or veto the findings resulting from an on-the-spot investigation. The country even would be able to strike an accusation against it from the records.

What avenues are left open for the conference? Can some safe way be found to give some sort of parity between East and West? Can a system be worked out whereby inspection would be automatic and uncolored by political considerations?

The American and British delegations feel it might be possible to make control of a test ban depend basically on the readings of such instruments as seismographs. Standards might be set up so that inspections would take place automatically when a specified number of instruments in control posts recorded a suspicious disturbance.

As one source explained, the instruments themselves would not lie. They would go on year after year recording disturbances in all parts of the world.

Calls For Return To Old Principals

NORFOLK (AP)—Robert Cox of Chapel Hill, N.C., national president of the Jaycees, told a Norfolk meeting last night that the nation needs a return to the principles he said made it great.

These are work, competition and cooperation, Cox said. He asked "where is the United States going?" and commented that "something for nothing attitudes" are sapping the nation's strength.

Cox said the United States belief in the dignity of man is what separates the country from other nations and governments and commented that the United States must have strength within before it can have strength without.

Police Use Movie Camera To Convict Drunk Drivers

CINCINNATI (AP)—The man who gave his name to the Kinsey reports on human sexual behavior is dead but the work he and his associates did will go on in 13 more books.

Dr. Wardell B. Pomeroy, director of field research for the Institute for Sex Research at Bloomington, Ind., said the projects are already under way. Dr. Pomeroy was co-author with the late Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey of "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male" and "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female."

Dr. Pomeroy, who joined the Kinsey studies in 1943, said the prospective new books include: Development of sexual patterns in children; a collection of data on how early attitudes and information are acquired and how these factors affect patterns of sexual behavior among adults.

Drugs and sexual behavior; the effect of the use of narcotics, marijuana and alcohol on sex habits.

Institutional sex adjustment; a study of sex adjustment made by males and females in prisons, mental hospitals, boarding schools and the armed forces.

Sex law; a comprehensive study of statutes and laws concerning sex in the 49 states and an analysis of the development of state and federal laws.

The department began making movies of persons arrested for drunk driving last summer. So far 36 films have been made.

The films have helped obtain 32 convictions for drunken driving. The remaining cases are awaiting final action.

The "movie set" used by the police is a narrow passageway in the police station.

Police Lt. Kenneth C. Yeazel is director, cameraman and sound engineer. The camera is focused on the hallway, sound equipment is adjusted, floodlights turned on and the film is rolled as the suspected drunken driver comes "on-stage."

The script seldom varies. The driver is asked to pronounce: Episcopal, and electrically.

If he gets by those tongue-twisters, he is given a run-through on:

"No Room On Jury For The Woman"

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—It wasn't hard to understand why the woman was excused from serving on the jury being selected for a murder trial.

She said she had no objection to the death penalty but would never agree to life imprisonment because she has claustrophobia, a fear of closed-in places.

LIGHTS, ACTION, CAMERA—Efforts of a drunk driving suspect to walk a straight line are recorded in sound and film by the Tucson Police Department. Camera is mounted in wall.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The Tucson Police Department is in the movie business, but the department's "film stars" don't get paid.

Usually they wind up paying. The department began making movies of persons arrested for drunk driving last summer. So far 36 films have been made.

Cuban Police Claim American Confesses Plot To Slay Castro

HAVANA (AP)—The National Police early today announced that a former U.S. Navy pilot had confessed to a plot to kill Rebel Leader Fidel Castro.

A statement from National Police headquarters said Alan Robert Nye, 31, had admitted he was promised $100,000 by the chief of the Batista Air Force, Brig. Gen. Carlos Tabernilla, if he killed the rebel chieftain.

Nye, who says his home is in Whiting, Ind., but who gives Coral Gables, Fla., as his last address, was arrested in Oriente province by Castro's men Dec. 26, five days before former President Fulgencio Batista gave up the fight against the revolution and fled to the Dominican Republic.

Tabernilla fled at the same time, to the United States.

There was no immediate indication what action the revolutionary government would take against Nye. He is being held in the Central Havana jail at National Police headquarters and has been allowed to see U.S. consular representatives and American newsmen.

In talking with newsmen Monday, the American denied that he had come to Cuba to assassinate Castro and insisted he came to help the rebels. The police statement today said he had made his confession voluntarily and had been well treated by the revolutionary police.

Nye told newsmen he left the U.S. Navy in 1954 and became a reservist. He said he had worked for the Douglas Aircraft Co. in Patuxent River, Md., and for the agricultural air service spraying outfit in Florida.

WHITING, Ind. (AP)—The mother of Alan Robert Nye today discounted a Cuban National Police report that her son had confessed to a plot to kill Rebel Chief Fidel Castro.

Mrs. Helen Lynch, mother of the 31-year-old former U.S. naval pilot, told The Associated Press: "Don't you believe what the Cuban police are saying. They get very excited over nothing. They have made up a story. I'm positive my son is innocent."

Digs Music Of The Past

MUSICAL ARCHEOLOGIST—Elisabeth Waldo holds an aboriginal rattle made of tortoise shells and deer hooves. Beside her are a Tarahumara Indian violin made of cottonwood, a one-string Seri violin, a resonator, rasping stick and Toltec rattle on top of basket.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Attractive, charming Elisabeth Waldo is a musical archeologist.

While other students of the past dig for the bits and pieces of an ancient city and try to fashion a picture of what it looked like, she collects the musical instruments of aboriginal cultures and uses them to recreate the sounds of ancient music.

For years she has done intensive research in the music of the Indian Americans. The results of her experiments with—among other instruments, a one-string Seri Indian violin, a Tarascan whistle, a ceramic rattle from a Toltec tomb—have now been put down in recorded form. The effect is eerie, compelling, rhythmic and strange all at once.

The recording of her first selection of aboriginal melodies is called "Maracatu." She already is at work on a new venture in lost music.

"I think that as we learn more about these mystical musical forms we gain added confidence in our own cultural heritage," Miss Waldo says. "Over a period of centuries the native music of the Americas took shape, yet we just now are beginning to appreciate its great artistic value and its entertainment potentials."

In re-creating the music so it can be played by a modern musical ensemble, with the aid of the ancient instruments, she attempts to transport herself as composer and arranger into a period of history 500 or more years ago. To do this she has sought musical clues in ancient manuscripts, in traditional dances and songs handed down from generation to generation in the jungles and from folklore authorities.

Miss Waldo admits that it's hard to imagine delicate music as part of a barbaric culture but she insists that this was the case.

"The Apache one-string violin decorated in charrutose and producing a soft tone seems out of keeping with the reputation of cruelty these people had. In composing and arranging the historic melodies I almost forget the bad qualities of the people in my admiration for their musical outlook."

The most primitive music she has discovered is that of the Seris, the inhabitants of Tiburon Island in the Gulf of California. One of their lullabies, with just three notes, is a haunting melody.

"Some of the music is intended to reach the spirits and you can tell it," she says.

All of Miss Waldo's interest in music is not directed toward the buried past. She is a concert violinist and, in private life, the wife of the director of the Southwest Museum. She plunged into putting down the varied musical forms of history because she feared they would be lost forever if merely handed along vocally.

Doctor Tells Bob Hope Slow Down

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bob Hope will be taking things easy for a while under orders from his doctor.

The 54-year-old comedian has a blood clot in his left eye, causing blurred vision.

Hope's doctor said Wednesday rest and treatment would speed quick improvement. All other tests show Hope to be in good shape, he said.

On the doctor's advice, Hope canceled a charity show appearance scheduled for tonight in Miami. His television show for next Tuesday has already been filmed. He doesn't have another coming up until March.

More Than Two Dozen Probers Seek Cause For Modern Airliner's Wreck

NEW YORK (AP)—Why did the ultramodern airliner with 73 persons aboard crash seconds away from its landing strip at La Guardia Field?

Was it mechanical or human failure, from the ground or in the cockpit, that sent the American Airlines turbo-prop crashing into the icy waters of the East River shortly before midnight Tuesday?

More than two dozen probers seek the why of the tragedy.

Only eight known survivors—including the copilot, flight engineer, and a stewardess—may be able to provide some on-the-spot clues. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered.

The best bet appeared to be the copilot, Frank Havacek, 33, of Wilmette, Ill. But he lies critically injured in a hospital, thus far unable to be questioned.

Only 4,000 feet from its assigned runway and apparently making a routine landing at more than 100 miles an hour, the craft would have touched down on the strip in about another 30 seconds.

Some of the questions: Was there a mechanical failure in the airliner, one of six sleek, four-engine giant Electras put into service by American just 11 days before? The pilot gave no indication of trouble.

Did the pilot, Capt. Albert H. De Witt, 59, of Decatur, Ill., a veteran of 30 years and seven million miles with American, come in too low? Was it a possible failure of altimeter instruments? De Witt was killed in the crash.

Was De Witt's age a factor? He was due to be retired next May when he would have reached 60. But he had passed his physical with flying colors.

Was he the victim of a sensory illusion often experienced by pilots coming over water in the dark, causing them to think they are higher than they are?

Also, another airliner reported experiencing a sudden down-draft in the area near the time of the crash.

Joseph O. Fluett, chief safety director for the Civil Aeronautics Board, said the plane, flight 320 from Chicago was "fairly well aligned with the runway, possibly a bit to the right." Fluett heads a team of 25 investigators.

Runway 22 is sort of a "back door" to the airport's instrument landing strip. It has a localizer beam, which will warn a pilot if his plane is too far right or left.

But it doesn't tell him anything about the altitude. Visibility was about two miles—more than adequate—as the big silver craft roared toward the river. The ceiling was about 400 feet in the rain and fog, considered safe for a landing.

If the wind had been different, the plane would have been offered the "front door," Runway 4, used by pilots landing in the opposite direction.

In addition to the localizer beam this runway has a glide path indicator to tell pilots whether they are coming in too high or too low.

Wants Govm't Buy Old Flags

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam would become a big customer of United States flags next summer under a proposal of Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W. Va.).

Bailey wants a law to provide for the collection and disposal of flags having 48 stars which are held in stock July 4 by sellers.

Under a bill offered by the West Virginian, the federal government would pay a fair value for the flags, which will be replaced with those having a 49th star representing the new state of Alaska.

Manufacturers, jobbers and retailers selling 48-star flags after July 4, the date the President proclaimed for use of the new flag, would be subject to a $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Bailey said he has no idea what his bill would cost the government, but added he believes the value of 48-star flags will be low at that time.

The bill, he said, would not affect individual owners nor prevent displays of the 48 star flag for educational, historical or similar purposes.

Destruction of the old flags by the government, Bailey said, would assure against misuse of the flags.

For instance, he said, he would not want to see Old Glory converted to mops or other cleaning use.

Under a bill offered by the West Virginian, the federal government would pay a fair value for the flags, which will be replaced with those having a 49th star representing the new state of Alaska.

Trio Found Fame In A Single Recording

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Three fresh-faced young men stepped up to the microphone. They were dressed identically in Ivy League pants and open-necked striped shirts. They plunked two guitars and a banjo and started crooning: "Hang down yer head, Tom Dooley..."

The youthful crowd of 6,000 in Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium loosed a roar of approval.

"Pore boy, you're goin' t'die."

Cheers shook the great hall. This was the signal of acceptance for three bright fellows who are riding the teen-age music boom to early fortunes.

They are Dave Guard, Bob Shane and Nick Reynolds, who call themselves the Kingston Trio. The name is an accident—"We started out when the calypso craze was on, so it sounded like a good idea."

Nor, despite their hit with the backwoods ballad of the doomed Dooley, are they hillbillies. Dave and Bob grew up in Honolulu, Nick is from Coronado, Calif.

Unconcerned By Ava's Impact

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The wife of tennis star Tony Trabert says she isn't concerned over reports linking her husband with movie actress Ava Gardner.

"Tony is very upset," said Shauna Trabert, a former beauty queen here. "He just wrote another letter hoping everything was all right and hoping I would understand which I do."

Australian newspapers have described Trabert as Miss Gardner's latest romantic interest.

Trabert is in Australia with a professional tennis troupe. Miss Gardner is there making a picture.

They didn't get enough to finance the wedding but they paid for their marriage license with 300 pennies.

Try Rail Welding System Abroad

CLIFTON FORGE, Va. (AP)—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway is trying a new method of rail welding developed in France which it expects will lower maintenance and provide a smoother ride on "ribbons of steel." It is called aluminotermic rail welding and engineers say it can be applied to old track in place.

Engagement Was A Little Short

ENID, Okla. (AP)—After their engagement Dean Jane Spickelmer of Enid and Charles Tobias Bensinger of Midwest City, Okla., decided to save their pennies for the wedding.

SURVIVOR—Seven-year-old Joy Ann Taylor cuddles her doll in her hospital bed at Kings Mountain, N. C., and she is unaware that her parents and a sister were killed in an auto crash. Joy and her brother Jerry, 15, survived the two-car collision near Kings Mountain, but her father and mother, T-Sgt. and Mrs. Mack Taylor, and sister were among the five persons killed. The Taylors were en route from Chamblee, Ga., to Sparta, N. C. Their automobile was hit by another car traveling at high speed. (AP Wirephoto)

Accident Death Rate Is Lowered

CHICAGO (AP) — Accidents killed 91,000 persons and injured more than nine million others in the United States in 1958, but the death rate was the lowest on record.

The National Safety Council said the accident death toll of 91,000 compared with 95,307 in 1957, a drop of five per cent. It was the lowest toll since 1954 when ac-dents claimed the lives of 90,032 persons.

One of every 19 persons in the nation suffered a disabling injury last year, the council said, for a total of 9,100,000 persons injured.

The death rate from accidents dropped to an all-time low of 52.5 deaths per 100,000 population. The previous low was 55.9, set in 1954. The 1957 rate was 56.

The financial loss, including both fatal and non-fatal accidents, was 11 billion 900 million dollars in 1958, the NCS said. This figure covered wage losses, insurance and medical expenses, production delays, damage to equipment and damage to property in traffic mishaps and fires.

The traffic death toll of 37,000 kept the highway the leading spot for killing accidents. But this figure declined 1,702 from the 38,702 total in 1957, it was a 4 per cent decrease.

In 1958, deaths per 100 million miles of travel by motor vehicles hit a new low of 5.6 per cent. The previous low of 6 per cent was in 1957.

The new record was set despite a 3 per cent travel increase.

The council estimated there were drops last year in such other major categories as the 27,000 killed in homes, 13,300 on the job and 16,500 in public clear of motor vehicle fatalities.

Falls caused 18,500 deaths, burns

6,500, drownings 6,300 and firearms 2,450.

Camouflage For Downed Airmen

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Wright Air Development Center here has developed a multi-colored parachute canopy which can camouflage a downed airman from the enemy or signal his position to air rescuers.

It has four color sections: white, desert tan, vegetation green, and orange, for repeating him against his background.

Minimum Wage Bill Prospects Await A Verdict

RALEIGH (AP) — Has legislative opposition to a state minimum wage bill lessened in the last two years?

The answer will come when the General Assembly considers a bill introduced Wednesday by Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus calling for a 75 cents hourly minimum wage.

The House and Senate received a joint resolution inviting the lawmakers to hold a one-day session April 8 at restored Tryon Palace in New Bern.

Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt, who presides over the Senate, appointed a 15-member Senate Rules Committee, which voted to set up three new committees. Barnhardt suggested the new committees handle legislation on higher education, local government, and constitutional revision.

Under Quinn's bill, the minimum wage would not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1960. Farm workers, domestic servants, salesmen on commission and a number of other classes of workers would be exempt.

Quinn said his measure has the support of Gov. Hodges. He added Hodges had read it and was well pleased.

Rep. George Uzzell of Rowan sent up a bill which would prohibit unwarranted cancellation of auto liability policies by insurance companies.

The weather was so bad — drenching rain and dense fog — that the President's private plane had to make an instrument landing at Moody Air Force Base at Valdosta, Ga., 67 miles southeast of Humphrey's plantation estate here. The ceiling was about 400 feet — 200 more than the minimum safe level — and the ground visibility was about one mile.

Eisenhower was forced to abandon original plans to land at Spence Air Force Base at Moultrie, Ga., which is only about 35 miles from the Humphrey place. Spence has no instrument landing facilities, and it was fogged in.

As it was, the presidential plane had to circle above the Moody base for about a half hour before the fog there lifted sufficiently to land. Fifteen minutes before the landing in a wind-lashed rain the ceiling was only 100 feet and visibility a half mile.

HALF MILLION DOLLAR FIRE—These smoking ruins were left by a six-alarm fire that destroyed the southeastern regional automotive parts depot of the Rambler-American Motor Co. at Atlanta. Damage was estimated at half a million dollars. The depot supplied automobile parts to dealers in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, eastern Tennessee and the Carolinas. (AP Wire-photo)

President Begins Georgia Holiday

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Vacating President Eisenhower, who had weather trouble and a rough flight getting South, hopes for sunny skies and a crack at quail hunting or golf today.

The weatherman predicted a brightening picture for this piney woods region. It was pretty dismal when Eisenhower arrived from Washington late Wednesday for a visit until Monday with George M. Humphrey, former secretary of Treasury.

The weather was so bad — drenching rain and dense fog — that the President's private plane had to make an instrument landing at Moody Air Force Base at Valdosta, Ga., 67 miles southeast of Humphrey's plantation estate here. The ceiling was about 400 feet — 200 more than the minimum safe level — and the ground visibility was about one mile.

Eisenhower was forced to abandon original plans to land at Spence Air Force Base at Moultrie, Ga., which is only about 35 miles from the Humphrey place. Spence has no instrument landing facilities, and it was fogged in.

As it was, the presidential plane had to circle above the Moody base for about a half hour before the fog there lifted sufficiently to land. Fifteen minutes before the landing in a wind-lashed rain the ceiling was only 100 feet and visibility a half mile.

An Eisenhower aide aboard the plane said the latter part of the flight from the capital was the roughest in six years of traveling with the President.

Eisenhower, however, was in a cheerful mood on stepping from his plane.

"Where is your Georgia sunshine?" he inquired with a chuckle. "It looks like you're having a little rain here."

That was putting it mildly. Despite a big blue and white umbrella raised to protect him, the President was rain-whipped by the time he got to his closed car.

He was met at the airport by Humphrey and another old friend, William E. Robinson of New York, board chairman of Coca Cola. Another New Yorker, Barry Leithead, head of Cluett-Peabody, flew with Eisenhower from Washington.

It still was raining when the President and his party reached the Humphrey plantation. After dinner Eisenhower and his three companions played bridge.

This is the President's sixth

February visit in a row to Thomasville as Humphrey's guest. Last year Eisenhower arrived right after the area's first snow in a half century.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Because the city needs revenue, officials decided to swallow pride and honor an irate citizen's checks.

The first one read, "Pay to the order of the thieves of City Hall, $13.50 for water from a bunch of crooks."

A second one for $9.75 was made out to, "The crooks of City Hall, for a few drops of water and over-charged sewer tax."

Bullet Disposed Of Pretty Kitty

READING, Mass. (AP) — "Look, ma, what I found..." said Eric Viland, 12, as he ran into the house petting an animal.

Mrs. Ernest J. Viland took one look, hustled her son and the animal to the back yard and called police.

Police shot the skunk through the head before there was any damage.

Common Logic Helps Her Sales

BALTIMORE (AP) — A woman selling reference books for children was demonstrating how her product makes a boy think for himself.

She showed 4-year-old Frederick Spinning a picture of three small birds, one with an open beak, and one larger bird.

"Which bird gets the worm, Freddie?" she asked.

"The bird on the end of the row," Freddie replied. "He's the biggest."

She made a sale.

Mickey Has His Private Reasons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Cohen has his own grounds for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury investigating his financial affairs.

"It might incriminate me, and besides I don't trust you," the former gambler told U.S. attorney's aide Robert Jensen Wednesday. Cohen had just refused to give the jury his address.

Cohen was excused with orders to return for another session in two weeks. The jury is trying to find out where the pudgy ex-convict gets his money and whether he owes any income tax on it.

Somebody Else Using Battery

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — When his car failed to start Wednesday, motorist Joseph Movak lifted the hood and found a penciled note that read:

"Thanks for the use of your battery. I had to use it because mine went dead, and I had a long walk ahead of me, so I took yours."

GOES AND GOES AND GOES ON A GALLON!

Biscayne 4-Door Sedan shows the Fisher Body beauty of Chevrolet's lowest priced series for '59.

CHEVY'S NEW HI-THRIFT 6

More miles are back in a gallon of regular-grade gas—up to 10% more—and Chevy's new Hi-Thrift 6 engine puts them there. It also gives you more "git" in the speeds you drive the most.

Here's an engine that always seems able to coax extra miles out of a tank of regular-grade gas. In fact, if you're one of those drivers who keep tab on things like gas mileage, you'll soon see for yourself that this new Hi-Thrift 6 gets up to 10% more miles a gallon.

Another thing you'll like about this 135-h.p. 6 is the extra pep it gives you for passing and climbing hills. This is due to higher torque at normal speeds.

It may be hard to believe anything that looks and moves like this '59 Chevy can be such a stickler for economy. But—whether you pick the Hi-Thrift 6 or a vim-packed V8—this is just one more reason Chevy's the car that's wanted for all its worth. Stop by your dealer's and see.

The smart switch is to the '59 Chevy!

CHAPTER 20

It took George Wykoff time to find words, and when he did they came out choked with black rage. "You miserable, double-talking money," he said to Murray Kirk. "Who do you think you're fooling around with? You think I'm so stupid I'd believe you took Lundeen's case to prove he's guilty and get his girl?"

"No," said Murray.

"No. But it's all right to kill time with. If I ask you about it again, you tell me the same thing, and we go around and around that way. Is that it?"

"Yes."

Wykoff stood up threateningly, and Mitchell Dowd came to his feet almost at the same moment. He laid a restraining hand on Wykoff's arm. "Listen to me, George," he said. "Either you get hold of yourself, or I walk out of here right now. You've got to consider my position, too."

Murray felt an old familiar knot tighten in his belly. He had estimated from the start that Dowd's presence was his surest safeguard, because Dowd was obviously a man who wanted no part of violence. Not, at least, if he might be a witness to it. Without his company anything could happen, and, according to Bruno Manfredi's somber philosophy, it probably would. It came as a relief when Wykoff pushed aside the restraining hand and sulkily said:

"What're you making such a fuss about? You think I want to get you mixed up in some trouble? You're worse than a woman."

Dowd's face reddened. "Maybe I am, but I've got sense enough to see you're not getting anywhere this way. Why not come to the point? You want Kirk to drop this case, no matter who's behind Lundeen or what he has up his sleeve. All right, put it to the man that way, and see what he's got to say about it. He's no fool."

"Thanks," Murray said. "Only I'm not so smart either. What's George here got against Lundeen?"

deed?"

Wykoff said with venom, "He's making trouble for Ira Miller, that's what. No, don't go giving me the fishy eye, Kirk. If you don't know who things stand between Ira Miller and me you better find out quick, because it ain't any joke. I'm not talking about somebody just happened to work along with me, y'understand. Ira Miller is like my kid brother. He's high class and his wife is high class, too. They're the finest people I know in the world, and they got enough trouble without you pushing them around like Ira says you did. That means all I want is to comb you out of their hair, and between you and me, I don't care how I do it!"

It was said with a savage intensity that left no doubts about what he had struck a fine vein to explore. He laid his hand over his heart. "That gets me right here, Wykoff. But if you don't see me crying, it's because I already met Ira Miller. If you want my honest opinion, he is hardly what I would call the kid-brother type."

"Who wants your opinion? What do you know about it, a professional sneak like you?" Wykoff held up a trembling forefinger. "Let me tell you something, Kirk. In my whole operation there was just one man who could run a losing book and get away with it. Right in the middle of town, in the fattest district I had, Ira Miller ran a loss for me one year after another, and I never blinked an eye! He was into me for fifteen, twenty thousand dollars, and it didn't bother me, because that's how it is with us two."

"No one ever double-crosses George Wykoff, Kirk. No one y'understand? If anyone else ran a losing book like that he knows what would happen to him. Only Ira Miller could do it, because when he said it wasn't his fault I knew he was telling the truth. The bets went bad, the cops kept pushing for bigger graft, that's how it went. My own accountant knew every book in the organization inside-out used to say to me, 'Ira's running in hard luck, but he's strictly on the level.' And he didn't have to tell me. You think when it comes to a showdown between Ira and your cop that Ira ain't on the level? You better think again!"

"So now you know something, don't you? And if you got any brains, Kirk, tomorrow you'll tell this Lundeen to take a jump for himself. I don't care who's in back of him or why. You do what I say."

"That's a fine proposition," Murray said. "What do I get out of it?"

"Your neck. What more do you want?"

"Oh, some way of backing out of the case. Take those records you were talking about. If you look them up right now and give me evidence that Miller paid off Lundeen, I'm in the clear. That's the kind of thing the people I'm dealing with would understand."

"Yeah?" Wykoff said coldly. "And what makes you so sure the records are right around here?"

"Where else would they be? You wouldn't keep them in a bank vault where they could be impounded, would you? You wouldn't turn them over to somebody who could bring the income-tax people down on you like a ton of brick, would you? What's the odds they're right under your mattress while we're talking here?"

Wykoff regarded him curiously. "You been wasting your time," he said with unwilling admiration. "I could have used somebody like you in my business. Well," he asked Dowd, "what do you think? You think it's all right?"

"I don't see why not," Dowd said.

"But you'll have to take my word for it," Wykoff warned Murray, and when Murray looked doubtful he said, "You got a lot of gall, Kirk, the way you take over. All right, Mitch here can look at the books with me and back me up. Will that suit your royal highness better?"

"The date was May third," Murray said.

There was no mystery about where the records were kept. The door he heard opened was that of the room directly across the hall; the sound that followed was that of a wooden drawer being creakingly pulled out. It was the purloined letter all over again, he reflected. Put it under everybody's nose, and it would be the last place they'd look for it. He smiled at Joe, who leaned on the bar watching him warily. "Take it easy soldier," he said. "Can't you see the war is over?"

He got up and strolled to the window, humming the theme from "I Can't Get Started." It was snowing. The first real snow of the winter, and where else but out in the wilds of Staten Island. In the winter, he thought, he and Ruth Vincent would head up to the mountains for the skiing. If she didn't know how to ski, so much the better. He himself was the world's worst skier.

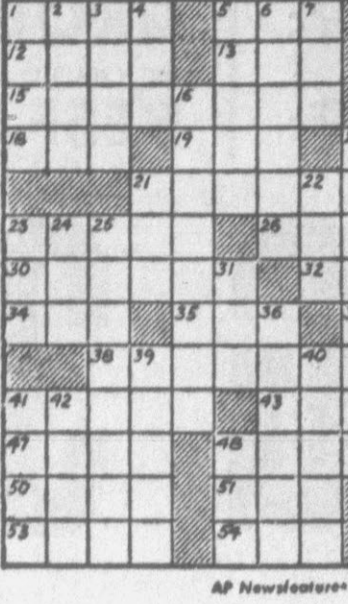

Dowd said behind him, "No question about it, Kirk. Miller made a pay-off to Lundeen May third just the way he said he did."

"Well, all right," said Murray. "Well have a drink on that."

He traveled back to the St. Stephen in Billy Caxton's limousine. Dowd had offered him a lift to Manhattan, but Wykoff had curiously said, "No, Billy's waiting to take him," and that had settled it. Caxton, it turned out, had been briefed before the departure. Just

"Of course," said the lawyer, "but don't you realize that this is my working day?"

Cotrath hung up in anger. At 3 a.m. next morning, he phoned the attorney.

"This is Sgt. Volrath," he said. "This is my working day. Now what did you want to know about that accident?"

NOTICE OF SERVICE OF PROCESS OF PUBLICATION NORTH CAROLINA PITT COUNTY

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT
 VERTIE MAE HARRIS, Plaintiff
 vs.
 GEORGE HARRIS, Defendant

To: George Harris
 Take notice that a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed in the above entitled action. The nature of the relief being sought is as follows: Divorce upon the grounds of two years' separation.

You are required to make defense to such pleading not later than the 14th day of March, 1959, and upon your failure to do so the party seeking service against you will apply to the court for the relief sought.

This the 14th day of January, 1959.

SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

The undersigned will offer for sale to the highest bidder on the terms mentioned below at the courthouse door in Greenville at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, February 14, 1959, those parcels of real estate which are shown on that certain map of the property of the late Mrs. G. W. Shuff which is recorded in Map Book 4 at page 6 of the Pitt County Registry, excepting Lot 28 as appears thereon which has been heretofore conveyed, which land was conveyed to the late Miss F. Shuff by H. L. Lewis and wife by deed recorded in Book W-22 at page 477, which said land is known as the East Haven Subdivision.

The land will be sold as an entire tract and not in separate lots.

The sale will be made upon the following terms, to-wit:

- 80% of the amount of the bid in cash;
- 1 note for 20% of bid, payable one year from its date;
- 1 note for 30% of bid, payable two years from its date;
- 1 note for 10% of bid, payable three years from its date.

Interest to bear six per cent notes from their date, payable annually, and secured by a deed of trust upon the property with the usual powers of sale.

Said sale being made subject to those restrictive covenants appearing in Deed Book A-25 at page 588 of the Register's Office for Pitt County.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

A map of this property may also be seen at the office of the undersigned and shows thereon and includes in the sale thirty building lots.

This January 27, 1959.

State Trooper Knows His Roads

OXFORD, Conn. (AP)—State Trooper Stanley Sobieski knows his roads and can prove it.

While chasing a stocker driver at high speeds over some back roads, Sobieski suddenly stopped, turned around and headed in the other direction.

He turned down a side road and took a short cut to a highway. There he came out on the road in front of the speeding car. The driver, George Rzeszutek, 24, was booked for driving with his license under suspension and driving an unregistered car.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market shrugged off news of anti-trust investigations of big business activity as mixed, with fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Most leading stocks showed slight changes.

GM was off fractionally in the motor group which showed scant change.

Lukens Steel was up well over 2. Raytheon rose 2 points or better. American Telephone gathered strength gradually, showing a gain of about 2.

Magna and Kennecott were 1-point gainers. Fractional gains were recorded for Anaconda and Phelps Dodge.

Gulf Oil, ahead a fraction, was an exception in a group which showed moderate losses for Royal Dutch, Texas Co. and Standard Oil (New Jersey).

Penn. Texas and Avco were active gainers among the lower-priced issues. Graham-Paige eased and Weibull declined fractionally.

General Tire, Goodyear, Lorillard and Southern Pacific were ahead around a point apiece.

U.S. government bonds showed an easier tone.

Weather Plane Down In Atlantic

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — A U.S. Superfortress weather plane and its crew of 12 were missing today and presumed down in the stormy mid-Atlantic.

The big four-engine aircraft had only fuel enough to stay aloft until 3 a.m. today.

The search centered about 300 miles northwest of Bermuda where a Japanese freighter reported it saw a burning plane crash Wednesday morning in the Atlantic. Although the freighter said the plane appeared to be a single-engine craft, the four-engine B50 should have been in the general area at the time.

Coast Guard planes and Navy flying boats scanning the area said conditions were foul with 40 mile-an-hour winds, rough seas, and visibility down to 1 1/2 miles.

Names of the 12 men aboard were withheld until next of kin were notified.

The big Hurricane Hunter, attached to the 59th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Bermuda's Kindley Air Base, set out at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday on a daily flight over the North Atlantic collecting weather data. It was due back at 7:38 p.m.

The Superfortress was last heard from at 8:22 a.m.—18 minutes before the Japanese freighter radioed its report of seeing a plane crash and disappear on hitting the water.

The Coast Guard Cutter Mackinac, based in Bermuda, was racing to the position and was due on the scene this morning. The Aircraft Carrier Tarawa and six accompanying destroyers, which were on maneuvers in the North Atlantic, were ordered to join in the search.

Confront Russia .. Varied Backgrounds In Cast Of 'Caine Mutiny'

They were exercising. There was no indication the pilots actually had shot down a real aircraft.

The State Department documents disclosed that Murphy read part of the "attack" article to Ambassador Meshnikov last Nov. 13, the same day Meshnikov refused to listen to the recording.

"After Murphy finished reading the reports, Meshnikov asked Mr. Murphy whether what had been read was fiction," the document said.

Murphy then handed Meshnikov the photographic copies of the articles and told him the United States government regarded the case with extreme gravity.

Murphy also told Meshnikov there was no intention on the part of the U.S. plans to enter the Soviet air space, and that the operation of Soviet radio beacons in the area might easily have caused a navigational error on the part of the American pilot.

"Mr. Murphy said that the United States government wished a settlement of this case," the report continued. "He emphasized that our men had been killed, that there were certain rules of conduct in the civilized world, and that the U.S. government hoped the desired information regarding the missing men would be promptly forthcoming."

Meshnikov promised to tell his government of this, but no response was forthcoming from Moscow.

The summary reported that Nixon took up the question with Mikoyan Jan. 7. It said that, after Nixon pressed Mikoyan for information, the visiting deputy replied "that the Soviet government had given all the information it had. He said that there was no sense in their trying to hide anything and wondered why the Americans were so suspicious about this."

Dulles questioned Mikoyan about the missing 11 crewmen on Jan. 16. Dulles said that, if the Soviet Union really wanted to improve its relations with America, this was a good starting point.

The documents said Mikoyan replied the Soviet Union "had done all that it could."

Some Sidelights In The Assembly

By LYNN NISBET
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — In nominating Eugene Simmons for reading clerk in the Senate, Sen. Henry Grady Shelton of Edgecombe stated he was a tobacco auctioneer—"and also speaks English." Question was raised whether the Senate reading clerk is an office, within purview of the statute against dual office holding, which might jeopardize Simmons' place on the Board of Conservation and Development. The Attorney General's office informally ruled there is no conflict.

Reunited After Turns In Jail

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—For the first time in a week and a half, an Indianapolis mother and father are together with their family again.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Robbins, who were taking turns going to jail, were tearfully reunited when Mrs. Robbins, 35, was freed from the county jail Wednesday.

She had been there since Sunday, serving her shift in an unusual every-other-week sentence imposed because the couple failed to pay for their delinquent son's keep for a private correctional institution.

Juvenile Court Judge Harold N. Fields had sentenced the Robbinses to spend alternate weeks in jail until they pay $21 weekly support for their son in White's Institute, a private correctional school near Wabash, Ind. Robbins, 36, was locked up the first week.

Judge Fields lifted the sentence after a hearing at which the mother and father agreed to make some payment for their son's tuition and to cooperate with the court.

The couple, who have six other children, will return to court for a decision on just how much they can contribute to keep the boy out of jail.

James J. 12, in the private institute, charged with theft, the boy was sent there to avoid contact with older offenders in a state reform school.

Driver Killed In Flaming Wreck

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte man died in the flaming wreckage of his automobile early today after a two-mile chase by pursuing county police.

Officers J. P. Smith and E. J. Lutz said they saw a car driven by Edward J. Jobb run through a stop light shortly after midnight. They chased it.

The fleeing motorists' car failed to make a curve, missed a bridge, struck two telephone poles and burst into flames as it came to rest several hundred feet from the road. The officers pulled Jobb from the car and he was taken to Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Directors Debate

The major agencies undertaking independent campaigns to raise the portion of its budget which the United Fund would not be able to meet. It was pointed out that contracts between the major agencies and the United Fund give the agencies the right to conduct independent campaigns if the United Fund fails to meet its quota.

After considerable discussion of various suggestions, the board voted to follow the original provision whereby the amount collected for the United Fund, less fixed expenses, would be distributed among the participating agencies on a percentage basis according to the original budget.

The $88,203 collected by the United Fund in cash and pledges represents approximately 73.27 of the original goal of $120,381. After deducting expenses of the organization, it will mean that participating community service committees will receive approximately 71 per cent of their originally approved budgets.

In some instances it will mean that individual township community services committees will be eligible to receive from the Pitt County United Fund amounts almost equal to and in some cases more than the people of the township contributed to the total United Fund campaign.

An example is Arthur Township which reported $273 in cash and pledges in the UF campaign. On the basis of receiving approximately 70 per cent of its per capita share originally budgeted for community services, Arthur would be eligible to get approximately $700 from the Pitt County United Fund.

No Indications Of Sub Activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says it has made no verified sightings of Soviet submarines within about 500 miles of American coasts.

In a carefully phrased statement, the Navy also said there have been no indications of extensive Soviet sub activity in the South Atlantic.

The navy would not expand on the statement. This left uncertain whether the sightings mentioned referred only to visual sightings or included contact by listening devices and electronic or magnetic detection systems.

Had Impression It Was Planned

HELMSTEDT, Germany (AP) — The drivers of a U.S. Army convoy held by the Russians for more than 50 hours said today they got the impression the Soviets had deliberately set up the incident in advance.

Specialist Ewold F. Johnson of Brooklyn, N.Y., acting as spokesman for the four drivers, said he couldn't explain their feeling, but "we got the impression it was prearranged."

"Within minutes of arriving at Marienborn we realized trouble was brewing up," he told a news conference at this Iron Curtain border town. The conference was held before the drivers and their four trucks resumed their interrupted journey from West Berlin to East Germany.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero of Stockbridge, Mass., the convoy commander, had returned to Berlin.

Soviet border guards halted the convoy Monday at the Marienborn checkpoint because Masiero had refused to permit an inspection of his cargo of broken-down jeeps. The convoy was released without an inspection late Wednesday after strong U.S. protests, including one from President Eisenhower.

East Germany Frees Americans

HERLESHAUSEN, Germany (AP) — Communist East Germany today released U.S. Army pilot Richard Mackin and four other American soldiers held in East Germany for several weeks.

Mackin, a 27-year-old American from Washington, D.C., parachuted into East Germany Dec. 3 after he got lost and his small plane ran out of gas.

The four soldiers are Elwyn Bell of Hill City, Kan.; Kenneth G. Carlson of San Leandro, Calif.; James W. Hayes, of Baltimore, Md., and Melwyn Hampton whose hometown was not given.

The four disappeared in Berlin during November and December last year.

The release was negotiated between the American Red Cross and the East German Red Cross, after the U.S. State Department negotiate with the East German regime.

The five crossed into West Germany at this frontier post on the border of Communist East Germany shortly after noon. Mackin looked pale. He wore Army fatigues and a felt cap. He said he felt fine.

Earns Doctorate At Pennsylvania

Thomas J. Haigwood, associate professor of industrial arts at East Carolina College, has completed work for the degree of doctor of education in industrial arts at Pennsylvania State University. The degree was conferred at recent graduation exercises at the university.

Dr. Haigwood has been a member of the East Carolina faculty since September, 1956. Before coming to the college here, he taught in the Sparta, Laurinburg, and Charlotte high schools in this state.

A native of Wilkes County, N.C., he is a graduate of Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone and received the master's degree in education at State College, Raleigh.

Dr. Haigwood holds the position of secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina Industrial Arts Association. At East Carolina he serves as a member of the Fine Arts Committee of the college. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, honorary education fraternity.

Mitchell Called To Defend Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell was recalled today to defend the Eisenhower administration's labor control bill against charges that it goes too far.

"You have opened wide a Pandora's box," Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) told Mitchell as they argued the respective merits of their bills before a labor subcommittee Kennedy heads.

The senator said controversial changes in the Taft-Hartley law proposed by the administration would invite efforts at still further changes. That, he said, could mean "eventually you will get no reform bill at all."

Mitchell contended that a measure limited to provisions in the Kennedy bill would be only a partial answer at best to the problem of controlling racketeering by some labor unions.

Kennedy in turn replied that some provisions of the administration bill would penalize honest union members. Mitchell disputed that.

The Phoenix, Ariz., Chamber of Commerce reports there are 3,700 real estate agents in the vicinity of the city and the Valley of them Sun. That's one agent for every June 30.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House takes up today extension of the draft. Approval is expected after considerable debate.

The bill, backed by the Pentagon and by the House Armed Services Committee, would extend Selective Service authority until 1963—four years beyond the presently scheduled expiration date, June 30.

Possible Sequel To Old Romance

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Among the visitors in the desert resort is England's Lady Beatty. Among the resort's notable residents is Frank Sinatra.

But whether the singer and the 36-year-old British beauty will stage a sequel to their romantic interlude in England last fall remains to be seen.

"No comment," said Lady Beatty when she arrived here Wednesday and checked into a hotel for a week's stay. "No comment," echoed Sinatra, whose home is a short distance away.

The American-born Lady Beatty was divorced a year ago by 53-year-old Earl Beatty. She and Sinatra were constant companions at London social functions last fall.

Two Fleets Join For Maneuvers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ships and planes of two U.S. fleets will join forces late this month for a major training exercise in the Mediterranean.

The Navy, announcing this today, said four aircraft carriers and about 40 other major warships will take part in the operation which will last from Feb. 25 to March 1.

Farm Town Is Now 'Loveland'

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP)—Most of the time, Loveland is a little farm town (pop. 9,000) close to the canyon gateways of the mountains and the sugar beet fields of the high plains.

But at this time of year it becomes Colorado's "Sweetheart Town," and the accent is heavy on hearts and flowers.

Postmaster Fred Brewer says from 75,000 to 80,000 valentines, stamped with Loveland's special cupid drawing and verse, likely will be mailed before Feb. 14.

A valentine is mailed in an outside wrapper to the Loveland Post Office. A clerk strips off the wrapper, stamps the envelope with the "Sweetheart Town" brand and sends it on its way.

This year's decoration shows the Loveland cupid in cowboy hat, boots and chaps aiming his bow at a branding iron — an L surrounded by a heart. Between bow and heart is this verse: "Here is that bow and arrow lad. Our mountain buckaroo; And from his Loveland stompin' ground, A valentine for you."
