1 Billion Dollar Budget For N.C.

GOV. HODGES SPEAKS TO ASSEMBLY . . . offers balanced budget, no tax increase for 1959-61. (UPI Telephoto).

RALEIGH (AP)—A billion dollar budget balanced with a withholding plan for state income tax collection has been recommended by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission. Record spending of 869 million dollars in state funds over the next two fiscal years was proposed in the budget Hodges presented Monday night to a joint House-Senate General Assembly session. Hodges told the lawmakers that 27 1/2 million dollars in a "windfall" from payroll deduction income tax collection would make unnecessary new or increased taxes.

Although the budget envisioned a record amount of state tax dollars, its overall total of 1 1/2 billion was some 22 million under the budget for the present biennium. This is because federal funds for highway construction are expected to drop sharply in the coming two fiscal years.

Bills to write the budget recommendations into law were introduced in both House and Senate following the governors address. They were sent up by Reps. Clyde Harris of Rowan and Clifton Blue of Moore. House Appropriations and Finance Committee chairmen, respectively, and by Sens. J. William Copeland of Hertford and Arthur Kirkman of Guilford, who head the corresponding Senate committees.

Li. Gov. Luther Barnhardt announced Copeland and Kirkman as the first of his Senate appointments. First meetings are expected Wednesday afternoon for the joint House-Senate Appropriations and Finance committees, which will study the budget proposals.

Hodges did not entirely remove the possibility of a recommendation for a tax increase. He said he might have such a suggestion later, along with specific details of a proposed 10 million dollar incentive fund to help spur local school support.

Improving economic conditions might make it possible later in the session to raise revenue estimates to take care of the school incentive plan, Hodges said. The scheme to match local money with state funds was recommended to become effective the second year of the next biennium.

The pay-as-you-go income tax deduction would be effective next Jan. In presenting a balanced budget, the governor and the Budget Commission counted on a 6.3 per cent increase in revenues from present taxes.

No general pay increase for state employees is provided in the budget. However, two million dollars is included for fringe benefits and selective salary increases. All school teachers would be paid for an extra week a year for work done before the beginning and after the end of the regular school term. This would cost nearly seven million dollars. The budget also proposes two million to raise salary levels for beginning teachers, whose experience ranges from none up to two years.

A total of 561 million dollars is earmarked under the general fund budget for operation of agencies, institutions and the public schools during the biennium. Capital improvements recommended amount to $42,765,000. A total of $262,856,321 from the highway fund was budgeted.

Hodges and the commission proposed that the capital improvements program be financed mainly through bond issues totaling 38 million dollars. More than 25 million would be for construction of facilities at state supported colleges and universities. It also includes 4 1/2 million for a new building in Raleigh to house the General Assembly.

Hodges said the amounts recommended for the general fund operating budget "would appear to provide adequately for all necessary services."

The budget calls for nearly 344 million dollars to operate the public schools, an increase of 26 1/2 million over the current budget. It provides for 757 additional teachers the first year of the biennium and 720 the second year at a cost of nearly 8 1/2 million. The additional teachers would take care of increasing enrollments of about 21,000 a year.

Appropriations totaling $39,657,440 were recommended for the operating budgets of the state's 12 institutions of higher learning. This is an increase of $3,566,189 over present levels. Recommendations for all public welfare programs total $19,251,111.

a gain of $1,372,417. This includes $15,980,660 for the State Welfare Department, much less than was requested by Dr. Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner. Hodges and the commission noted that recommended appropriations would allow "continuation of present levels of monthly payments under all assistance programs" and for "normal increases in the number of recipients."

Other budget recommendations included $55,757,385 for all health and hospital programs, an increase of $4,983,538; and $5,439,336 for natural resources, development and recreation, a gain of $966,912. Increased state help is proposed for operation of community colleges at Charlotte, Asheville and Wilmington. Recommended capital improvements for these colleges total 1 1/2 million.

Of the nearly 253 million proposed in the highway fund budget, about 35 1/2 million would be for maintenance and construction of the primary highway system. The budget proposes to add 25 men to the state highway patrol, add two agents to the state bureau of investigation, create 33 new jobs in the Department of Revenue chiefly to handle the proposed income tax withholding plan, and add five employees to the Labor Department mainly for its industrial safety program.

Desegregation School Suit For Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People filed a federal court suit today seeking to "forever restrain" operation of segregated schools in Mecklenburg County.

It was understood that similar suits were filed simultaneously in Greensboro and Durham, involving schools of Guilford and Durham counties.

The Charlotte suit, brought by three sets of Negro parents in behalf of their eight children, named as defendants the Mecklenburg County Board of Education, the North Carolina State Board of Education and the North Carolina Advisory Committee on Education, plus the individual members of all three groups.

All the children involved in the Mecklenburg County suit had been denied admission to white schools two years in a row.

Thurgood Marshall of New York, general counsel for the NAACP, heads the panel of three lawyers representing the Charlotte area families. Other attorneys are T. H. Wyche of Charlotte and Conrad O. Pearson of Durham.

The suit seeks to restrain the Mecklenburg board from operating segregated schools and enjoin the board from reassigning students on a racial basis; and restrain the state board and the advisory committee from counseling or working in concert with the Mecklenburg board and other school boards for the purpose of preventing desegregation or keeping integration to a minimum.

Both Charlotte and Greensboro Prepare Salute To Lincoln On His Birthday

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation he reunited is paying reverent tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln 150 years after his birth.

President Eisenhower, who has proclaimed 1959 as Lincoln sesquicentennial year, will join about 1,000 others at a memorial banquet Wednesday night, the eve of Lincoln's birthday.

On the anniversary itself Congress will hold a joint session to hear an address by Carl Sandburg, a leading biographer of the Great Emancipator, and a reading of the Gettysburg Address by actor Fredric March.

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin will address an anniversary dinner in Lincoln's home town, Springfield, Ill. About 20 foreign envoys will travel from Washington to attend.

SMART HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Six students at East Haven Junior High School lined up against six parents for a mathematics contest. The students won 55 to 20 for their second victory in two years.

have admitted a limited number of Negroes to previously all-white schools for the last two years. However, the county schools there turned down reassignment petitions of Negro children seeking to enter white schools. Durham city and county schools still maintain a color line in education.

The Mecklenburg suit was brought by Charlton A. Morrow, in behalf of his daughter Priscilla; Charles Hunter, in behalf of his children, Foster and Doris; and Frank J. Boyce, in behalf of his children, Frank Jr., Barbara Diane, Clarence Edward, Jerry Nathaniel and Howard Eugene.

The children want to enter Derrita and North Mecklenburg white schools.

Benson Facing Hostile Group WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson goes before a hostile House Agriculture Committee today to open testimony on the administration's farm legislative proposals.

President Eisenhower's farm message to Congress 10 days ago did not spell out a detailed program, but placed the burden of dealing with commodity surpluses and price supports squarely on Congress.

Eisenhower said the 25-year-old program of price supports and production controls "has not worked." He called this year's five-billion-dollar farm outlay "excessively expensive."

He placed emphasis mainly on abandonment of the present method of pegging government price supports to the agricultural economy of 1910 to 1914—the "golden years" of agriculture when farm purchasing power was high.

In its stead he urged more discretion for Benson to peg price supports to modern standards by using as a yardstick the average market prices for immediately preceding years.

Chairman Harold Cooley (D-N.C.) called Eisenhower's statement "an anti-farmer message." But House Democrats had no immediate alternate program of their own.

College Flunked Nearly A Third LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Almost a third of the student body at Bellarmine College was flunked out or put on probation at the end of the last semester.

The school had an enrollment of 743 and 38 students were failed and 225 placed on probation. The Rev. John T. Loftus, dean of the Catholic school, said the action was in line with Bellarmine's policy of making students' lives up to "academic excellence."

Tornado Strikes Deadly Blow At Heart Of St. Louis; 17 Dead

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A tornado struck a deadly blow at the heart of St. Louis today without warning. Seventeen were known dead. Another 265 were injured, 55 seriously. Numerous persons were trapped in homes and apartments which crumpled under the storm's blows.

The storm took the same path as this city's worst tornado which killed more than 100 in 1927. Men worked throughout the night, searching the fallen bricks, concrete and lumber. The tornado hit at 2:12 a.m. First it hit two suburbs, Brentwood and Crestwood in southwest St. Louis County; then moved northeast into St. Louis. It took its toll in an area bounded roughly by Olive street, Grand boulevard, Newstead and St. Louis avenues. This is a mile west of downtown St. Louis. St. Louis was lashed by torrential rains for hours before the tornado struck. The tornado delivered its hardest blows in a section of tenement houses occupied mostly by Negroes. All but three of 16 bodies taken to the city morgue were those of children under the age of 11. Five dead were from 4802 Delmar Blvd., where 14 were trapped in a three-story house which caved in. Four dead were pulled from the wreckage at 3862 Page Blvd.

On all sides there was tragedy and destruction. One father was pulled from the rubble, his dead son in his arms. Both City Hospital and Homer G. Phillips Hospital were swamped with the injured. Thirteen were dead upon arrival at City Hospital, and four at Homer G. Phillips.

All police and fire equipment was rushed into the area. Streets were barricaded. Live electrical wires curled in the stricken zone. Police patrolled the darkened streets with flashlights. The 575-foot tower at television station KTVI was toppled in St. Louis. It fell across two houses but no one was reported injured.

The 385-foot tower at radio station KXLW also crashed. It fell on part of the station where Bob Hetherington, the general manager, and four others had gone to inspect flood damage. William McAllister was just closing up a filling station when he was caught in the path of the tornado.

There was a terrific glow of light as if a cloud was illuminated and there was a sound like the roar of a tremendous automobile racing its engine," he said. "Within two minutes the sound of the storm had passed and there was a terrific silence." The Civil Defense went into full-scale operation for the first time since it was organized here in 1951.

Brig. Gen. Francis P. Hardaway (Ret.), St. Louis Civil Defense head, pushed coordination of both rescue and rehabilitation work. Eighty National Guardsmen were ordered to stand by. An ornamental tower on the Arena, scene of many of a world's championship fight, was sheared off and a top section of a television tower fell in its parking lot nearby. The storm smashed into a building adjoining the Arena. There a rolling skating rink was wrecked. A newspaper vendor, Guy Gross, 62, was on the street to sell papers in a store club area when the storm struck. "I saw a blue flash of light and I heard a terrible roar," he said. "It shook the ground. There was no any warning and the wind seemed to stay forever."

A brick chimney toppled at McAuley Hall, a Roman Catholic home for women workers where about 150 persons were asleep. It fell onto a separate structure to the rear, killing two maintenance men employed by the home. The area around Busch Stadium, home of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team, also was hit. There a number of persons were buried in the rubble. The ball park was undamaged.

Numerous fires broke out but they were brought quickly under control. Gas mains were shut off after breaks were reported.

Judge Backs Up Censors' Verdict

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—U. S. Dist. Judge T. Whitfield Davidson has upheld the City Censor Board's ban of the Brigitte Bardot movie "And God Created Woman."

He ruled Monday the board had not acted arbitrarily or capriciously in forbidding the movie to be shown. He would not permit the movie to be shown in court. Grover Hart Jr., counsel for Kingsley International Pictures Corp., said he expected to appeal.

MEET TONIGHT The Utilities Commission will meet tonight in Superintendent Leonard Bloxam's office located in City Hall. The meeting will begin at 7:30.

Dollar Day Set For Thursday

Dollar Day, an annual event planned by Greenville merchants, has been scheduled to take place Thursday.

The city-wide affair, during which bargains and liberal discounts are offered to customers, will last one day only. City officials have announced that over 1,000 parking spaces will be made available to handle the expected influx of out-of-town customers. All parking meters will be free, as well as the use of city parking lots.

Employees of business establishments have been requested to park on off-streets, leaving the main parking areas for customers. Extra clerks have been added by many of the businesses in order to accommodate the special trade.

The event, which has been an annual affair of the Greenville Merchant's Association for over 25 years, has been planned this year by the Trade Promotion Committee of the Association. Chairman of the committee, J. G. Proctor has stated that the success of Dollar Day in Greenville in the past has been attributed to city-wide cooperation, and the values offered.

School Board Members Endorse New Proposal

AYDEN — Board members and personnel representing six Eastern North Carolina school administrative units last night gave their endorsement to a proposed incentive fund to assist with financing public schools.

Endorsement came at a meeting of about 125 representatives to a District II meeting of the North Carolina School Boards Association. The delegates represented city school units in Greenville and Washington, and county units in Pitt, Martin, Beaufort and Washington counties.

Also endorsed by the group were state "B" Budget requests which the state Board of Education says will provide "normal progress" in public schools during the next two years.

Both endorsements came after addresses by Faison W. McGowen of Kenansville, secretary of the North Carolina Committee for the Study of Public School Finance, and Principal E. F. Johnson of Ayden, past president of the North Carolina Principals Association.

McGowen termed the incentive fund recommended by the committee as a means for increasing local support of schools. It would "assist and encourage" local units to supplement their present appropriations, he said, rather than having state officials call for legislation to make increased local support mandatory.

The incentive fund is part of a three-point program recommended by the committee and outlined by Governor Luther H. Hodges in his budget message to the General Assembly last night.

Provisions of the recommended program call for amending the School Machinery Act "to make it clear that the governing body may levy taxes for the purpose of supplementing any item in the county-wide current expense budget at its discretion"; retaining the rights of districts to supplement further current expense funds available to the schools by the approving vote of the people; and establishing a $10,000,000 incentive fund for current expense items.

As outlined by McGowen, the incentive fund would be used to match local dollars and would be distributed to counties on the basis of $10 per student in average daily membership. A distribution formula for the fund is built around annual tables of equalized property valuations prepared by the State Board of Assessments. The table of equalized property valuations would determine, McGowen said, how much of the matching dollar the county would provide to get "a full state dollar."

FAISON W. MCGOWEN OF KENANSVILLE . . . Secretary Of Public School Finance Study Committee

"In other words," he said, "a county having an equalized per pupil valuation of $25,000 could get $10 per pupil from state funds by providing $10 per pupil from local funds."

As an example, he said Pitt County could get $10 per pupil by raising an additional $5.16 per pupil, approximately, in addition to what the county now provides. On current valuations, that would involve an increase in the county-wide tax rate of approximately 11 per cent. Provision of such additional funds by counties would be a voluntary maneuver, McGowen said. "The report of the Public School Finance Committee makes no suggestion that the state 'freeze' its present support and pass to the counties responsibilities which the state now assumes or discharges," McGowen said. "In the committee's suggestions there is no compulsion — other than moral — and no legal requirement that any county do more than it is now doing." McGowen added, "In other words, the report proposes to use state funds as an incentive for local support rather than legislation to make such support mandatory." (Continued on page twenty-four)

Cold Shoulder Given Molotov

THE HAGUE (AP)—V. M. Molotov has gotten the cold shoulder from the Dutch. An informant said the Hague government has told Moscow it has changed its mind about accepting Molotov as Soviet ambassador since he was criticized again at the recent Communist congress in Moscow.

Dutch government sources said last month that after an informal Soviet inquiry the Hague had indicated it would not object to Molotov as envoy here. The report incurred the wrath of the Dutch labor press, which labeled Molotov a security risk.

ACL President To Address C-of-C

Members of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce are receiving in the mails reservation blanks for the organization's annual dinner to be held Tuesday, February 24, in the East Carolina College New South Cafeteria.

President W. Thomas Rice of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, Richmond, Va., will make the principal address on that occasion and new officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be formally installed.

Immediate Past President John T. Barnhill announced that the Public Relations and Program Committee of 1958, headed by Dr. James W. Butler, is handling arrangements for the dinner, with assignments as noted: Attendance Promotion and Tickets, Thomas Webb and Donald Eatmon; Program, Bancroft Moseley and James A. Taylor; Civic Clubs, John T. Barnhill; General

Arrangements, George Coffman, Cameron Dudley, Walter Harrington and Herbert Wilkerson. Reservations may be made for the dinner by mail telephone or personal contact with the Chamber of Commerce office staff or any member of the committee. Deadline for reservations is February 16.

President Rice, native of Westmoreland County, Virginia, was educated in the Virginia public schools and is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Rice began his railroading career with the Pennsylvania Railroad Operations department in 1934, and continued with this division until he entered the Army in 1942 for a military assignment in both European and Asiatic theaters. His three-year military service began as a first lieutenant and he rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel when he terminated his tour of duty in 1945. For a while he commanded the Iranian State Railroad. In 1946, Rice entered the service of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad during the month of February, and in September of that year he was made superintendent of the Potomac Yard, promoted to superintendent in Richmond, Va., July 1, 1949, and general superintendent on May 1, 1951.

On July 1, 1955, Rice was named president of the RP&P Railroad, and has been president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad since August 1, 1957. Rice holds directorships and is an officer in a number of rail and terminal companies affiliated with the ACL. He is director of the Transportation Association of America, Association of American Railroads, Fruit Growers Express Company, First and Merchants National Bank of Richmond, Va. and Florida National Bank of Jacksonville, Florida. He is vice president of the National Defense Transportation Association and a member of the Transportation and Communication Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Member of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, and Omicron Delta Kappa, leadership fraternity, Rice is also active in the Richmond, Va. Rotary Club and several national professional societies. He is a member of the Episcopal Church. Rice is married to the former Miss Jacqueline Johnston, and the Rices are parents of a son, John Thomas, 19, a student at VPI, and a daughter, Jacqueline Norma, 9.

Manager Willard T. Kyzer of the Chamber of Commerce said today that members may purchase tickets for guests. Wives of members are invited to join in this annual event.

Open House Held At Parsonage

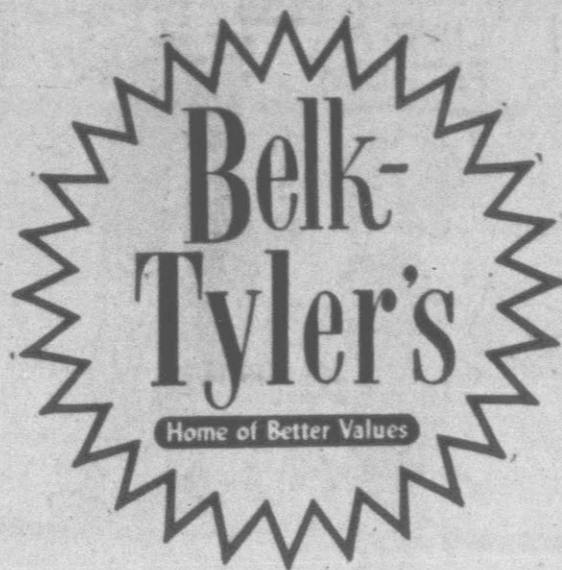

Members of the St. James Methodist Church held "Open House" Sunday afternoon at their new parsonage on Ragsdale Road. Prior to the opening a service of dedication was held. The "Order for the Dedication of a Home" was used. This was led by the minister, the Rev. J. Malloy Owen. The singing of the old hymns of the church by the group present expressed a real thanksgiving to God for a home to be used by those in His service. The parsonage was decorated with mixed flower arrangements and greenery. A Valentine motif was used on the refreshment table. The centerpiece was of red and white carnations. At the front door to greet the guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Owen. Serving alternately were

Mr. and Mrs. Connor Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Sugg, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marston, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Parnell. In the den were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Honeycutt, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ramey, Mrs. Robert Pennell and Mrs. E. B. Sugg Jr. assisted in the bedrooms. Presiding at the register in the study were Mrs. Alton Clapp, Mrs. Lee Ward Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Horton, and Mr. and Mrs. Van Fleming. Assisting in serving were Mrs. E. L. Harrington, Mrs. Leon Cox, Miss Deanie Boone Haskett, Mrs. George Harvey and Mrs. Frank Moseley. More than 200 friends and members attended.

Needed: Closer Ties To The Public

Rep. Walter Jones has announced his intention to introduce legislation which would strike at the very core of the major fault most North Carolinians have found with re-organized seven-man State Highway Commission.

Rep. Jones' proposal would put the Commission in closer touch with "home folks" throughout the state — where it should be — and afford Tar Heels better access to highway "bosses" when they want to talk about local road problems.

The two fundamental points of Rep. Jones bill would increase the number of highway commissioners from the present seven to 14. It would also define commissioner districts in the statutes.

Both these changes, in our opinion, would be of tremendous benefit to the State Highway Commission and to the people of North Carolina.

When Gov. Hodges proposed two years ago to re-vamp the Highway Commission to a group of seven members with a "state-wide approach" to our highway problems, The Reflector voiced its tentative approval of the plan with certain reservations.

In the two years since the new highway commission has been working, it has become apparent that more and better contact with the individual sections of the state is needed. And to satisfy that need, it must be met at the commissioner level rather than at a lower level in the highway organization.

While Gov. Hodges may oppose such a change in the Highway Commission, it is our considered opinion after observing the operations of the seven-man Commission, that the proposal offered by Rep. Jones should be enacted by the legislature.

It will certainly give the people throughout the state a feeling of being closer to the Commission. It will afford them a better avenue through which to take their highway grievances and problems to a member of the Commission. In the long run, we believe it will enable the Highway Commission to better meet the highway needs of the state as a whole.

While to some degree the new proposal would de-centralized the Highway Commission as it is now organized, that should not prove a handicap. On the contrary, it should prove a distinct asset both to the Commission and to the people of North Carolina. A 14-man Commission would give the governing highway body a better first-hand knowledge of highway problems as the people of the state see them. These coupled with views of the professional highway officials, should enable the Commission to develop what in the long run will be a program of greater benefit to all of the people of North Carolina.

After all, the purpose of the Highway Commission, is to develop and carry out the kind of program which will be of the greatest benefit to the people of the state.

If Title Changes Help, We're All For Them

What's in a name? Well, that all depends on the name, what it's supposed to represent, and what it means in the mind of individuals.

In the case of the county-wide development organization for Pitt County, we count it good strategy on the part of the Commission to change the name which was first given it. We also feel it was wise to change the official title given its full-time director.

From now on, what used to be the Pitt County Industrial Development Commission, will officially be known as the Pitt County Development Commission, omitting the word "industrial." And rather than having the title of "development engineer", L. A. Weston, the full time director of the organization, will have the title of "economic consultant."

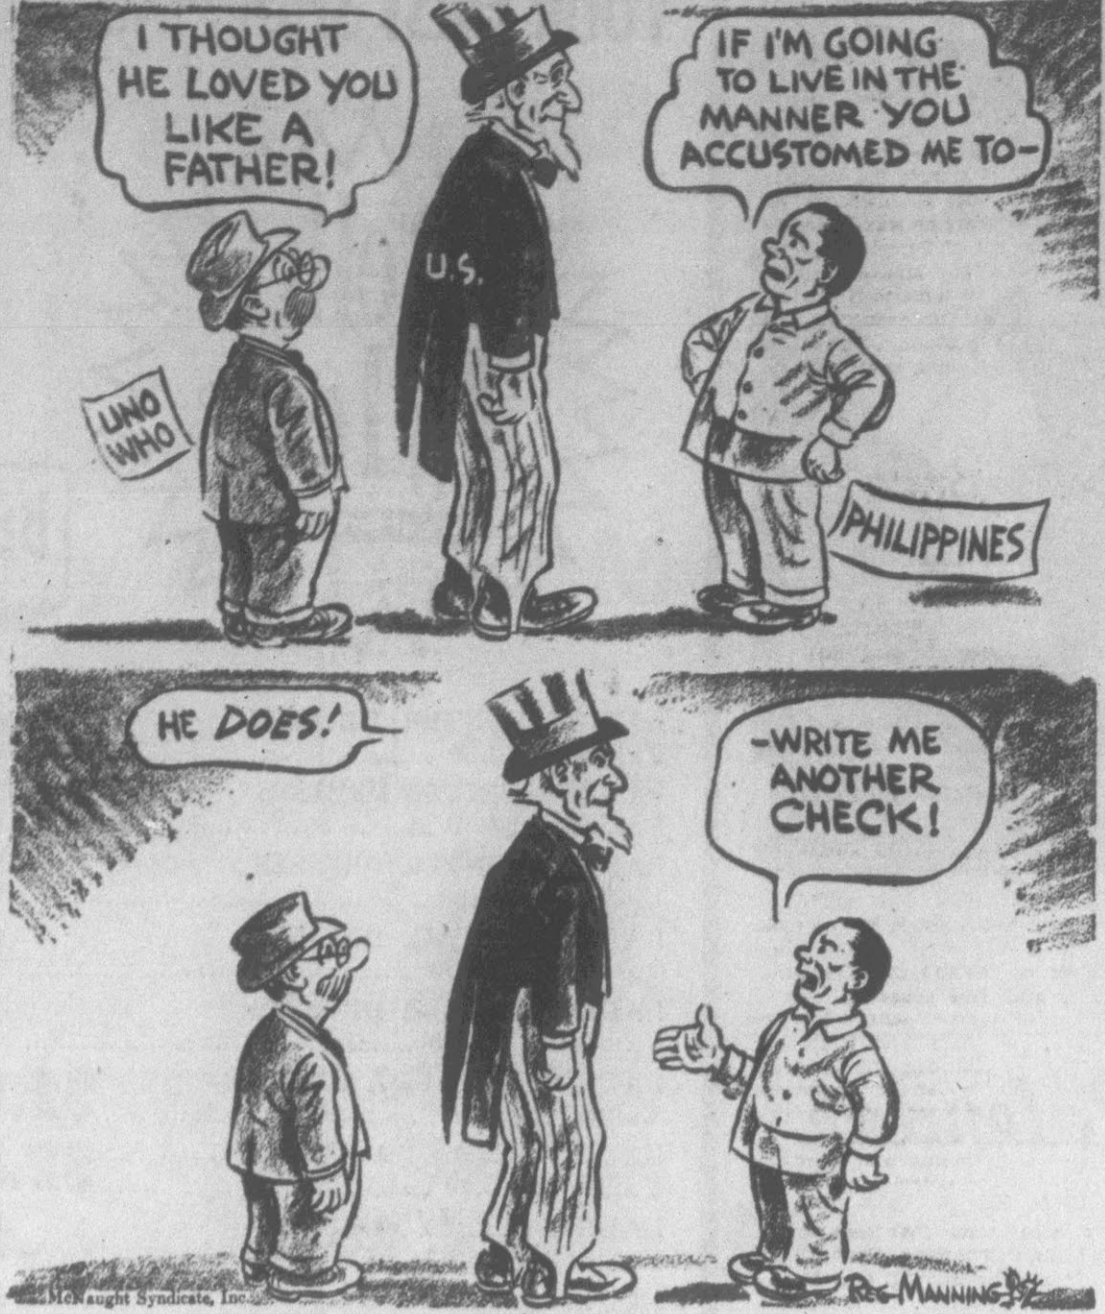

Why these changes in titles which seem to make little difference? The fact is that they may make considerable difference over a long period of time.

In the first place, the county-wide, tax supported development group will not confine its activities to seeking industrial development alone for the county. It will seek to further develop Pitt County's agriculture as well as every other phase of the county's economy. That has been its purpose since the organization was proposed, and there is no more reason for having the word "industrial" in the title than it would be to have "agricultural" or "business" in the official title.

As for the title of the director, people who have been in this business of trying to secure industry from other areas say titles like "development engineer" often make it more difficult for a community's representative to see people in industry he wants to see. Hounded by people trying to convince them to move a plant here, there, or yonder, some industrial executives are much less inclined to give an appointment to an "industrial engineer" than they are to spare a few minutes for say, an "economic consultant."

Though the new titles cut little ice with the people here in Pitt County, if they will help us achieve the goal of greater economic development for Pitt, we're all for them.

Now, What S'Matter With Him?

By DON SCHLIENZ

The Fruits Of Summer

It must have been around one o'clock Sunday afternoon when I pushed myself away from the dinner table at the farm and gratefully loosened my belt two notches.

While that kind of gesture is frowned upon in Society, to my way of thinking it's fitting tribute to good cooks who labor to fill the inner man and would feel unappreciated if you just pecked away at one portion of everything put before you. Too, it's more comfortable.

As usual, the table was loaded with platters, bowls and dishes; and there were so many appetites to be sated the diners had to eat in two shifts.

Anyway, sagging back in my chair, I was reminded anew of how much during winter months the farm dinner table relies on the canning and freezing that is performed in the preceding summer.

Those string beans that formerly filled a sizeable bowl on the table — had been put up last summer. ("I only took out two quarts of 'em for dinner today," muttered a voice at the table, "and I should have known it wasn't enough.") Those beans, were just one example. Some food had come from the freezer, some from the smokehouse, more from quart Mason jars, some from a grocery store. But in the main it was a meal dominated by work done months before.

Being the "city boy" type, this sort of thing is especially intriguing to me; largely because

I've seen some of the effort and strain involved in "putting up" foods during the summer.

My sister-in-law, Thelma (may Heaven protect her pickled green tomatoes), would possibly prefer to see me help during her canning sessions rather than standing by making small talk — but it's safer that way. My Missus occasionally is around to lend a helping hand, and that's how I happen to know the score if not the game.

The really grim part of "putting up" food on the farm is that so much of it must be done in the summer when tobacco is also being put in.

Thelma, as do most farm wives, gets into that act too; up long before dawn, she starts her day with — and our summer days are hot — and in the late afternoon hours she's back in the house working up supper which is immediately followed by preparing foods, jars and lids for the night's work.

Her story is duplicated to a greater or lesser degree in hundreds of farm homes around us. Part of it is based on simple economics of farm life, part of it is traditional, and there's the compulsive element of "we want to eat next winter." But back to the scene.

In no time, the already hot kitchen turns into a sort of steam bath with most of the stove burners going and pressure-cookers hissing. On the screened porch the men of the house may be found preparing the fruit or vegetables (let's say they're snapping beans, because at least that's one field in which I shine).

Often the talk gets around to how it was back in the days when there were no pressure cookers, stoves burned wood, and there wasn't even an electric fan to create a small draft in the sweltering kitchens. It must have been one of the reasons why the good died young.

But this modern farm kitchen ordeal goes on to well after midnight before things are put away and the long, long day is brought to an end; to be followed brief hours later by one more day of summer's work.

The canning - freezing labors carry over into several nights of the week for several weeks. By itself, a lot of work; but simultaneously there is the seasonal tobacco crop also demanding long hours and strenuous effort.

Of course, it must all be easier now than it used to be; but stocking a farm pantry for future months is no part-time job. It does pay off. No doubt about it. I know I'd be bankrupt in no time trying to pay the food

Old School Tie Doesn't Matter

By Lynn Nisbett

SPEAKERS — Addison Hewlett is the fourth alumnus of Wake Forest College to become Speaker of the House of Representatives in recent years, and one of two who obtained all his college education at that institution. The other was O.M. Mull of Cleveland in 1941. Robert Grady Johnston (1935) and D. "Libby" Ward (1939) got law degrees from Wake Forest after taking academic work at Carolina. Ten former Speakers in the past 40 years were UNC men, Harry P. Orie (1929), John H. Kerr (1943), Tom Pearsall (1947) Kerr Craige Ramsey (1949), W. Frank Taylor (1951), Larry Moore (1955) and Kemp Doughton (1957).

Duke University has furnished four Speakers: Willis Smith (1931), Gregg Cherry (1937), Oscar Richardson (1945) and Eugene Bost (1953). Edgar Thayer (1925) graduated from Erskine College and Reg Harris (1933) is an alumnus of VMI, the only two to get their college education outside of North Carolina.

The old school colors have little significance when the chips are down, and it is not recalled that college affiliation figured in any of the previous speakerhip races. Certainly it was not a factor in the recent contest between UNC and WF alumni.

At the same time, it is interesting to note that while the Legislature has had many Harvard and Yale men, and several Rhode scholars, among its members, none of them has been chosen Speaker since current members began voting.

LOBBYISTS — Illustrating perhaps the switch in sources of "pressure" brought upon members of the General Assembly is the fact that the first person to register with Secretary of State Thad Eure as lobbyist was Otis Banks, secretary of the State Highway Employees Association; the second registrant was Clifton Beckwith, secretary of the State Employees Association, and the third was Claude Farrell, field representative of NCEA, the public school teachers organization.

For a number of seasons after the lobby register was required in 1933 the first name to be entered was that of the late Willard Dowell, long time secretary of the State Merchants Association. He took pride in getting his name on first and announcing that his main objective was repeal of the "temporary" three percent general sales tax. Close behind Dowell came names of spokesmen for other groups of taxpayers.

Lobbyists seeking larger appropriations seldom registered, offering as the reason they were rendering public service, rather than working for selfish interests. Criticism of that attitude has brought a change in attitude and in recent years nearly every person who appears regularly before committees or "works" legislators outside the capitol has signed the book in the Secretary of State's office.

It is expected that by the end of this week there will be at least 23 names on the book, qualifying the signers to buttonhole legislators in behalf of pet bills — or against them.

POTPOURRI — The folks at the press table in the House were not surprised when Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland on opening day republished from the supply room an "amendment pad", the ruled table sheets that make it easy for a member to write amendments to pending bills. "You're running true to form," quipped one reporter. "Why not?" replied the Scotland member. "You don't expect me to swallow everything that's offered, do you?"

It was by accident rather than design that Reps. Fred Holcomb of Madison and Jack Palmer of Cleveland got adjoining seats just off the center aisle in the hall of the House. Both are funeral directors. They have promised colleagues they will use discretion in embalming and burying bills.

Newsman have been handicapped during the early days of the session in making full use of the "Buffalo Club", the temporary glass-enclosed work room on the East portico of the capitol. Publicity given the installation of the facility attracted so many visitors, legislators and others, the news folks at times were almost crowded out. One veteran legislator who at first resented the "desecration" of the old capitol building, said it added so much to efficient use of the building, and detracted so little from appearance, he is in favor of making it permanent and building a comparable facility on the West portico for legislative clerks.

Rise Or Fall In Turn Of Events

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time and events between now and 1960 will affect chances of both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the Republican presidential nomination.

The pressure of events, and the two men's responses to them, will almost certainly raise or lower their political attractiveness, at least as compared with each other, before it's time for the Republican nominating convention.

The very nature of the vice presidency ordinarily leaves the holder of that office overshadowed by the White House and with little more to do than preside over the Senate. So Nixon might seem the one least likely to be affected by events and therefore best able to retain what popularity he already has.

Rockefeller's job requires more direct action. The governor's leadership, his administrative ability, his policies and his thinking and therefore his voter appeal will undergo in the next two years both testing and examination.

He can't stand still. His performance as governor of the nation's richest and most populous state will tend to increase or diminish his presidential prospects, since voters of both parties around the country will be watching him.

He has already shown a willingness to stick his neck out. Almost his first action as governor has called forth protests by some voters who would be affected by what he wants; he has asked the Republican-run legislature for a 277-million-dollar tax increase, including a boost in income taxes.

His reasoning: he wants to avoid a deficit in state spending and balance the budget while still providing enough funds to avoid cutting some state social programs, like aid to education and localities. He has a fight on his hands and at this moment can't be sure of winning.

Nixon, whose job calls for little need to stick out his neck, could rock away his time in the Senate, avoiding stands on controversial issues which might cost him popularity.

But Nixon is an aggressive man. He may feel it necessary for him to take sides — or he may feel forced into it as a member of the Eisenhower administration — on issues pending before Congress and involving various Eisenhower programs and policies from civil rights to defense and controlled spending.

Aggressive stands on such issues could boost him or bruise him, particularly since organized labor and business would have an interest in most of the issues.

The President already has given him an assignment which could affect his 1960 chances and lies in the same field — economics — which has Rockefeller involved now.

The President named him chairman of a Cabinet committee to examine the problems of inflation and seek ways to maintain reasonable price stability while sustaining economic growth.

In fact, it was he who labeled it as authentic. Reaction in Washington was instant and vigorous. Said Sen. Symington (D-Mo.): "It becomes more and more clear that some day we will have to stand against the growing Communist aggression. We will never put our defenses in a proper position to take this stand by tailoring our defense to a balanced budget." Others demanded that our defense program be strengthened to meet such threats.

Well, it is true that defenses must be in first-class condition before we can face Russia with a show of strength, but at the same time will not prevent such tragic incidences from occurring again and again. What the U.S. must do is to try to prevent these ruthless attacks in the first place and that can be done simply by providing jet fighter escorts with each U.S. transport or passenger plane that is likely to be attacked.

It might be foolish to advocate a policy of shoot-first and ask questions later, but we are of the opinion that this tough attitude might dampen the spirits of some of those Soviet fly-boys who fatten their averages on defenseless aircraft. Such a protective policy on our part isn't likely to cause a major war, as some miltiquest characters in Washington would have us believe.

There was the question of the transport plane being over Russian territory when it was attacked and shot down. This probably was true, but the State Dept. has a suspicion that the crew may have been misled by Soviet radio signals and lured deliberately over Soviet territory so the Red fighters could have some target practice.

Repeated warnings on our part will not stop the Russians. What will stop them is a dose of their own medicine. We strongly prescribe this for them, to be started immediately.

Other Editors Saying... Caught Red-Handed

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

For years the world has known that Communist planes have been shooting down unarmed aircraft from the West and then strongly denying such crimes. There has actually been very little, except to issue warnings to see that it didn't happen again. But it always did happen again. Chances are these depredations will continue in the future.

But at last the U.S. has proof of a Russian attack on an American plane, proof that cannot be shrugged off. The U.S. State Dept. came into possession of a recording giving a graphic account of how Soviet fighters shot down an unarmed American transport plane last Sept. 2. The U.S. has presented this record-account to the Soviet, but as usual the Soviet ignored the facts and denied information on 11 missing airmen involved in the crash. Six were known to have died in the crash.

The tape recording covers the operation of five Soviet fighter pilots from the beginning of a search for the transport over Soviet territory until after it was destroyed. State Dept. officials refuse to say how they obtained the recording, but labeled it as authentic.

Reaction in Washington was instant and vigorous. Said Sen. Symington (D-Mo.): "It becomes more and more clear that some day we will have to stand against the growing Communist aggression. We will never put our defenses in a proper position to take this stand by tailoring our

Poor Girls Costly

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Why don't more millionaires marry poor but honest working girls? If you go into a drugstore in any business office area in America during a coffee break, you'll find half a dozen AWOL secretaries and stenographers debating.

"Why can't I find a tall, dark, handsome millionaire who will marry me and take me out of this world of work and worry?" is the topic.

Every time one of these female desk jockeys snags her nylon hose, or the boss bawls her out because her typewriter can't spell, she asks herself, "Why can't I find me a nice tall, dark, handsome millionaire?"

She never asks for a tall, dark handsome plumber or bus driver. She won't even settle for a short blonde, balding, pot-bellied millionaire.

While this wish can be dismissed as a hopeless dream in most cases, it isn't altogether an idle dream with many office girls. They scrimp and save to go on expensive cruises or to take vacation trips to Mexico or the Bahamas — places where they fondly imagine every palm and pine tree shades a love-hungry millionaire.

And whom do they meet? Vacationing plumbers and bus drivers most of whom, alas, have brought their wives. And the girls come home bitter — and one year nearer to being old maids.

Not long ago I met, a young, tall, dark, handsome millionaire bachelor. I asked him why he didn't marry some poor but honest working girl — a girl desperately eager to make him happy.

"I'd be crazy, too," he replied crisply. "The poor but honest working girl you describe is suffering from a Cinderella psychosis. She isn't looking for a husband. She's looking for a helping hand."

"She doesn't have a romantic urge. She just has an urge to acquire some valuable male real estate without even putting up a real down payment. She wants something for nothing."

"But wouldn't a girl like that make a good thrifty wife?" I asked.

"The man gave a hollow laugh. 'Why, a girl like that would have me broke in two years,' he said. 'She expects an apartment on Park Ave., a winter home at Palm Beach, and a summer place on Long Island.'

"She'd want diamonds, furs, servants, and a new Rolls-Royce every year. She's expected a trip to Europe every year, too."

"Working girls have big ideas about how millionaires live, but their ideas are a generation behind the times. A millionaire doesn't live that way anymore — at least guys with only one million, like me. We don't have that kind of dough."

Well, if you are a poor but honest working girl, there is the true reason you can't find a tall, dark, handsome millionaire to marry you.

He'd like to — but he simply can't afford to. You are too expensive for his pocketbook.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

YOU ANSWER THIS ONE
He had lost his job. The boss paid him through the day and told him to go. He had started payments on a new house. He and his wife had planned many things but they had not been able to put much aside in a savings account.

When he got home and told his wife about it, her reaction was strange indeed. "We are going right on the same as we planned and dreamed. You remember that we had planned to turn in the old car on a new one. We will go tomorrow and complete that transaction." Then she made a list of friends they wished to entertain at dinner. Just a few weeks before she had purchased a new washing machine and dryer. "We shall keep all these things," she said. "The way to meet a situation of this sort is with faith, not with surrender and retreat."

Now these circumstances are related in order that you may ponder them and reach a conclusion. Was the woman wise or unwise? If financial misfortune strikes us, should we order a new car and begin entertaining? Now remember that the woman did not do this on any other basis than that of faith. It was her way of demonstrating that she was absolutely sure everything would come out in the end.

It did in her case and her husband's. Did she pursue a good policy or a foolish one? That's for you to answer.

Big Three And Small Car Field

By ELMER ROESSNER

Each of the Big Three auto manufacturers is trying to decide whether to bring out a small car next year.

As of right now, the chances are strong that the answers will be yes.

The small foreign car has lost its snob appeal. Back in 1955, when only 59,465 smallies were imported, it was a mark of distinction to sport around in one. But with imports of 340,000 little ones last year, buyers are no longer set apart.

But the snob appeal is being replaced by other considerations. The two growing reasons more Americans want small cars are taxes and parking.

Smaller cars beat taxes half a dozen ways.

License fees are lower in states that charge by weight or size. Because of lower value, theft insurance is less. Because they have less glass, property insurance is lower.

The big savings, however, are in gasoline and gasoline taxes. Taxes have been spiraling upward. Now the Federal government seems likely to increase the U.S. gasoline tax and at least 25 states are considering gas tax raises this year. Taxes already make up 41 per cent of the retail price of gas. Since small cars use much less gasoline, costs of both fuel and taxes are lower.

Parking is another money-plus time factor. Small cars more easily find free or meter parking. Differentials are beginning to appear in charges by garages and parking lots. Premium fees are being charged for the land liners and discounts offered for small cars.

NOT ALL ONE WAY
They have disadvantages, however. In Ford's "Buyers Digest of New Car Facts for 1959," both advantages and disadvantages of small cars are discussed, but so many disadvantages of the small cars are cited that the booklet may be embarrassing to Ford if that company ever brings out a small car — which it may very likely do.

Small cars are often damaged by other cars and trucks because drivers cannot always see them; small cars have less of a pickup and hence are hazardous in passing; luggage space is inadequate for touring; engines won't take long, high-speed runs, and small cars, with shorter wheel bases, take more bumps.

The Ford summary concludes with an anecdote about a truck driver who crunched the unseen back of an European car waiting in front of him. "In court, he maintained in all seriousness that such cars should host balloons to advertise their presence. He was acquitted." If Ford makes a small car, will balloons be required or optional equipment? THE COMPETITION AT HOME

There is another reason why odds favor new small cars by the Big Three. American Motors' Rambler and Studebaker-Packard's Lark have been selling well enough to strengthen both companies. Their smallies have been competing with the Big Three no less than foreign cars.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler are reported to have invested $10,000,000 in plans and dies. Just in case they decide to produce small cars. Plans call for six-cylinder cars, with the engine in the rear in GM models and in front in the other two. These cars will have more power and pickup than the usual foreign imports.

Decisions on production will have to be made by the first of April if the new cars are to enter the 1960 market. But there will be no fanfare with the decisions. The manufacturers don't want to disturb 1959 sales which are now picking up considerably.

Dr. Douglass To Speak At World Day Of Prayer

Dr. George A. Douglas, Professor of Sociology and Director of the Danforth Foundation Project at East Carolina College, will be the speaker when the United Church Women of the Greenville Council of Churches gather to observe World Day of Prayer on February 13 at 11:00 a. m. at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Dr. Douglas was graduated from the University of Michigan where he received his A. B. Degree in 1926 and from the University of Wisconsin in 1930 where he received his Master's degree in Philosophy. He also holds a Ph. D. degree from Johns Hopkins University.

A native of Toledo, Ohio, Dr. Douglas has had a wide professional experience in New England, the Middle West, and the South. In New Haven, Connecticut he served as Executive Secretary of the National Religion and Labor Foundation; in Wisconsin he was Professor of Sociology at Lawrence College. For five years he was Head of the Department of Sociology at Alabama College, Montevallo, Alabama. In 1949 he came to North Carolina where at Davidson College he held the position of Professor of Sociology being chairman of the department.

Recent Bride Give Party

BETHEL—Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst, Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. and Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst entertained at an informal hour Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst on Main Street honoring Mrs. Tom Carson, a recent bride. She was presented a corsage on arrival.

The hostesses greeted the guests and introduced them to Mrs. Carson. From the hall they were invited into the living room and den.

The pink and white motif was used throughout the house. In the dining room where the 50 guests served themselves to the variety of party dainties, the table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth laid over pink and centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations interspersed with baby's breath.

Misses Jo Ann Whitehurst, Grace James and Jane Crandell assisted with the serving and directing the guests.

The honor guest received a piece of silver in her chosen pattern, presented by the hostesses.

"Community Meals" Was Theme Of HD Workshop

"Community Meals" was the theme of the workshop held Thursday in the laboratory of the Home Economics Agents' office. Foods leaders from 20 of the 21 Pitt County Home Demonstration Clubs attended the workshop which was conducted by Miss Virginia Wilson, Extension Specialist in Foods and Nutrition.

Mrs. Alton Chapman, a member of the St. John's Club and county foods and nutrition leader, presided over the session, welcoming the group and introducing Miss Wilson. The first part of the morning was devoted to an illustrated lecture and discussion on the importance of good community meals.

The 30 women then divided into committees and actually prepared, served and figured up the cost of a meal suitable to be served to a group of 35. Certain standards, to be met when preparing food for a large group, were observed by the leaders.

Information gathered by leaders at the school will be put into practice in the various communities of the county whenever the need arises. Mrs. Sue B. May and Mrs. Lois Freeman, Home Economics Agents, assisted in directing the workshop.

John Gordon To Discuss Spanish School

John Gordon, a member of the Art Faculty at ECC, will show slides and talk on the school of Spanish Painting as represented in the N. C. Museum of Art on Thursday evening, Feb. 12, at 7:30 in the Community Art Center, located in Sheppard Memorial Library.

This will be the fifth in a series of educational programs centering around the eight schools of paintings represented in the State Museum. The programs are sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society and the Woman's Club. The public is cordially invited.

Gordon has been a member of the ECC Art Faculty since September 1952. He has recently been awarded a prize by the N. C. State Art Society in its Annual N. C. Artists Competition.

His works were shown at the N. C. Museum of Art and the U. of N. C. in January. Currently, he has a One Man Show at Duke University.

Discussing Needs of Health Clinic

HD Club Has Supper Meeting

Red Banks HD Club members, their husbands and guests attended a covered dish supper when they met for their February meeting. Approximately 30 persons were present.

The Valentine motif was carried out in the decorations. The colors red and white were used in the flower arrangements which were placed throughout the room.

E. H. Boyd returned thanks after which Mrs. Karl Hardee, president, welcomed everyone.

Mrs. S. B. Tucker announced that a drive for the Heart Fund would be made on February 22 and plans were made to canvass the community at that time.

The program, "Family Teamwork," was given by Sam Winchester and Mrs. Lois Freeman. They explained how important teamwork is in a home. Their thought was "Every Christian home in reality is a power house."

A recreational period followed and Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr. and Mrs. R. B. Starling led the group in a number of games. Prizes were won by Mr. Hardee, Mrs. Preston Harrington Jr. and Mrs. S. B. Tucker.

The group then sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Lois Jane Hardee played the piano.

League Of Women Voters To Meet

Mrs. R. C. Forney, president of the Greenville League of Women Voters, announced today that a meeting of the board, old and prospective members, will be held at her home, 104 Lakewood Drive, Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

The Greenville chapter of this organization is now at a crossroads where it has to revitalize or must disband. The Greenville League has written and made a complete study of the town and county government and has sponsored non-partisan town meetings on bond issues and special referendums.

A number of radio and TV shows on special legislative questions and non-partisan "Know Your Candidates" programs have been presented. For the last two years the Greenville Chapter has sponsored New York tours of the U. N. as part of its observation of United Nations Week.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan, non-profit volunteer organization that strives for better government through a more active informed citizenry.

Legislation is studied on three levels—federal, state, and local. After a thorough study, a consensus of opinion is often submitted. Anyone in Greenville interested in belonging to this organization is asked to contact Mrs. Forney at

PL 3-7008 or Mrs. Corinne Sewall at PL 2-5779 and attend the meeting Wednesday night.

'Ladies Night' Held By Lions

BETHEL—The members of the Lion's Club entertained in honor of their wives last week at a dinner in the Fellowship Hall of the Methodist Church with approximately 60 guests present for the occasion. There were out of town guests from Greenville, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, and Morehead City.

The dinner was served country style by the women of Circle No. 1 of the Methodist Church.

The Valentine theme was carried out in the decorations. The speaker for the hour, Roy Sandlin of Garner, was introduced by the District Governor, James Crowe of Beaufort. He gave an informative talk on "Lionism and Community Service."

A March Wedding Is Planned

MISS JANIE SMITH . . . is the daughter of Mrs. Lula Smith of Rt. 2, Greenville, and the late Walter Smith. Her engagement to Eugene Hudson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hudson Sr. of Grimesland, is announced by her mother. The wedding will take place in March.

Dr. Lala Steelman Speaks To Members

Dr. Lala Steelman, a member of the Social Studies Department of East Carolina College discussed the topic—"United States and Russian's Relations," at the monthly meeting of the Greenville's Woman's Club on Friday afternoon.

The program chairman, Mrs. Tige Gardner presented Mrs. Ralph Brimley, chairman of International Relations who introduced the guest speaker.

Dr. Steelman compared Soviet Union and the United States' strength in manpower, economic status, consumer products, industrial power and war materials and weapons. Although Russia has increased her production she remains far below the output of the United States in the production of coal, petroleum, machine tools and electrical power. Nevertheless, the Russians predict that they will surpass the United States within the next ten years. The U. S. excels the Soviet Union in everything except in the missile weapon program.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway, Jr., President, opened the business meeting with the club collect.

The secretary, Mrs. J. A. Piver read the minutes of the January meeting and Mrs. Ed Ricks gave the treasurer's report.

Following the reports, the department chairmen were recognized by the president. Mrs. Ed Ricks, chairman of American Home Department announced that her department would have "an Old Fashioned Ice Cream Party" February 13 at 8:30 p.m. at the club house. She stated that each member could invite her husband or sweetheart.

Mrs. P. E. Wells, chairman of the Garden Club, invited the club members to attend the Garden Club Coffee Hour which will be held Tuesday Morning February 17 at 10:00 at the Woman's Club. Following the social hour, John R. Harris, a noted lecturer of North Carolina State College, will speak on the "Culture of Roses".

Mrs. A. A. Hines stated that the Fine Arts Department would meet at her house on Pineview Drive February 10. She reminded the members that Mrs. W. C. Harris will discuss poetry she has composed.

Mrs. Ralph Brimley reminded the group that the ninth annual conference on World Affairs will be held at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill on February 11-12. She requested all people who were interested in attending the conference to contact her and make reservations promptly.

Mrs. Sam Mitchell, Art Festival chairman, informed the ladies that the "Fine Arts Festival was scheduled for the first week in May. She related some of the important events and speakers who would appear on the various programs. She urged the members to reserve that specific week and attend every activity.

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore invited the group to visit the local Art Gallery to see the exhibit of twenty-three East Carolina Art Society members.

Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, chairman of Public Affairs, urged the members to support the bills recommended by the Legislative Council—the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs is an active member. She suggested that each one could contact the local representatives.

The president read a letter concerning a certain TV program. It stated that Miss Chloe Gifford General Federation President, would be interviewed by Edward R. Murrow on February 20.

Afterwards, the nominating committee presented a slate of officers for the coming year and the officers were unanimously elected by the club members. Mrs. Harvey Tripp will be president; Mrs. Sam Mitchell and Mrs. Tige Gardner will be first and second vice president. The recording secretary will be Mrs. Ralph Brimley and Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell will be corresponding secretary. Mrs. H. P. Mitchell will act as reporter and Mrs. J. A. Piver will be historian. Preceding the program, a social hour was held. Refreshments were served by the following hostesses: Mesdames Ralph Brimley, J. B. Spliman, Ell Bloom, John Biggs, R. P. Rogers, C. L. Russ, and C. L. Lupton.

The refreshment table was covered with a white - cut work cloth centered with an arrangement of red and white gladiola. The members and guests were served cherry tarts, open-faced sandwiches, nuts and coffee by the hostesses.

Tea Honors Mrs. Carson

BETHEL — At the Hilma Country Club in Tarboro Friday afternoon Mrs. Wadie Carson, Mrs. James Crandell, and Mrs. Clayton Carson entertained at tea honoring Mrs. Tom Carson, a recent bride.

A pink and white motif was used. The appointed table was covered with a white organdy and centered with artistic arrangements of pink and white carnations and chrysanthemums interspersed with baby's breath and flanked by burning pink candles in silver candelabras.

Mrs. J. C. Wynne, Jr., presided at the register.

Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst greeted the 85 guests and introduced them to Mrs. Carson, the honored guest.

Mrs. William Moody directed the guests to the tea table where Mrs. W. Z. Morton, Jr. poured tea and Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst served cake squares. The guests helped themselves to a variety of party dainties.

Mrs. Harold R. Staton and Mrs. P. L. Blount Jr. said good-byes. The honoree wore a corsage of white carnations.

Cubscout Pack To Hold Banquet

The Cubscout Pack No. 330 of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will hold its Annual Blue-Gold Dutch Supper at Respass Bros. Barbecue Place Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. All Cubscouts and parents of his park are urged to attend this meeting and special program. Those who do not have tickets may secure them from their Den Mothers or purchase them at the door Wednesday night.

Early Rising High Schoolers Learn College Physics

PRE-DAWN PHYSICS—Students at College High School in Montclair, N. J., take notes during a lecture by "Continental Classroom" professor, Dr. Harvey E. White. Class starts at 6:30 a.m.

MONTC LAIR, N. J. (AP)—Before the sun rises, 22 eager teen-agers trudge into a high school classroom here to study physics by staring intently at a glowing television screen.

The youngsters, eight girls and 14 boys, are seniors at College High School. Their 6:30 a.m. daily vigil is necessary because they're enrolled in the NBC television science education program called "Continental Classroom."

With youthful determination, they come to school each morning in car pools and on foot. One young man hitchhikes.

Attendance High
Their instructor, George Placek, says attendance for the TV physics course is better than for regular daytime classes.

"And since we started the class there's been only one tardiness," he says. "The young fellow who hitchhikes had to help change a flat tire for the motorist who gave him a lift."

Aimed particularly at the high school physics teacher, "Continental Classroom" offers college-level atomic physics instruction to anyone willing to turn on their TV set. Some 250 colleges around the country are offering scholastic credits in connection with the program and 5,000 persons are enrolled.

College High, located on the Montclair State College campus and often serving as an observation platform for student teachers being trained at the col-

Bethel Student Finishes Study

RALEIGH — Carolyn Cooper of Bethel is one of 19 Meredith College students who completed work in January for Bachelor of Arts degrees.

Miss Cooper is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas N. Cooper of Bethel and is a 1955 graduate of Bethel High School. At Meredith, she majored in education and was a student teacher during the Fall Semester at Raleigh's Frances Lacy School where she taught the third grade.

Campus memberships held by Miss Cooper while at Meredith included Future Teachers of America, Student League of Women Voters, Philarettian Literary Society and the Meredith College Chorus. She was pianist for the literary society and served as a member of the executive board of the Athletic Association. She was also a member of the Meredith Playhouse and won roles in several college productions.

Miss Cooper and other mid-year graduates will return to the Meredith campus for graduation week-end, May 29 through June 1, and will receive diplomas at that time.

lege, has discovered that with proper assistance the TV course is not over the heads of diligent high school credit to students attending the early morning session, while conducting a conventional physics course for those who do not wish to join the TV class.

All Have Stayed
"Perhaps the most striking evidence of student enthusiasm in the project," reports Placek, "is the fact that although the class is not mandatory and any youngster and any youngster may stop attending and rejoin the regularly scheduled session any time without penalty—not a one has even entertained the idea."

Placek is an articulate, neatly dressed man who also teaches a physics course to State College students.

"This is the most exciting thing that's happened to me since I started teaching," Placek says. "Following each television lecture by Dr. Harvey E. White (of the University of California at Berkeley) we have a half-hour discussion period and clear up any questions."

"Then, we close the books and head for the school cafeteria for breakfast." Regular College High classes don't start until 8:30.

Once a week TV lectures and class discussions are supplemented by a three-hour lab period. Placek reviews previous lecture material and briefs the class on lab procedures. They then apply theory to practice.

Lab Session Held
During one of these weekly lab sessions several students were asked how they enjoyed getting up so early each morning to attend school.

Most said they had trouble at first climbing out of bed with the birds—but now they're used to it. A few even find they're more alert and responsive to lessons than when class is held later.

The TV physics course has become so popular in the Montclair area that parents are now invited to attend the class by appointment.

The College High experiment is also receiving considerable support from New Jersey industrial firms. A complete set of textbooks recommended for the course have been granted the class by one group, and Keuffel & Esser Co. of Hoboken has provided the class with a giant seven-foot demonstration slide rule.

GROWING INSTITUTION
ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — When Ohio University opened here June 1, 1809, there were three male students and one instructor. None of the three students graduated. Ohio University now has about 7,000 students.

In seasons when they are not harvesting, farmers in Norway and Sweden tie sheaves of grain on high poles to feed migratory birds — strictly a humane custom.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Unemployment Rise Is Disturbing Economists

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — Unemployment is on the rise again. Weather is usually blamed for this in January and February. But this time the business situation itself is playing a role and disturbing some economists in and out of government.

If the rise in the number of those looking for work could just be blamed on the twin facts that in most of the nation this is no time to be working out of doors and that many who found temporary jobs in the various phases of the pre-Christmas spurt in trade and industry are out looking again, we wouldn't be worrying.

But there's a new element: the failure of employment to hit as fast a recovery pace as those of industry output and sales.

To some extent this also is traditional. First increases in production are usually met by restoring full work weeks for those who had been on shorter work schedules.

And usually, as in this case, employers have used the period of recession to cut overhead fat and operational frills, and to build up efficiency.

But the lag this time is more pronounced than in the two previous postwar recoveries.

That's because this time there's another factor: increased productivity.

This means that the big business spending boom of recent years for better plants and more efficient and all but automated equipment is now paying off. Industry currently is able to turn out more goods per man hour of labor than it did before its spending and building boom. So it can increase output without adding much to payroll.

Still another factor is that the total labor force is beginning to grow faster now than a few years back—meaning the total of jobs must increase if unemployment rolls are to be held down.

What to do about the new situation brings many suggestions. Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers, thinks the government should help. Specifically he proposes increased consumer buying power (in large part from higher wages, including the minimum wage Congress sets) and federal aid to areas where unemployment is a problem.

On the other hand, Dr. Ralph Robey, economic adviser to the National Assn. of Manufacturers, contends that business will get right back into the recession soup again if the increase in productivity leads to exceptional wage increases. His idea is that increased labor costs will offset productivity gains and lead to another general price rise which could halt the recovery in its tracks.

The staff of the Federal Reserve Board takes an in-between stance. It notes that modernization spending has increased productivity, thus cutting out some jobs. But it also notes that increasing labor costs, including all the fringe benefits, makes management cautious about hiring new workmen until new orders make it imperative.

The staff, however, confirms that the current business recovery hasn't brought about as much of a rebound in employment as the two previous ones did. It finds few instances of rehiring of workers other than for seasonal reasons since last September.

But the unemployment problem isn't nationwide. Joblessness has concentrated largely in the durable goods industries. And that is where rehiring has been more sluggish this time than in the earlier slumps.

In most other segments of the economy the employment picture is much brighter.

Last Rites Held For Sylvia Fay Styron

Sylvia Fay Styron, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney M. Styron of Portsmouth, Va., died at her home early Sunday morning. She had been an invalid all her life. Funeral services were conducted at the Wilkerson Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 by the Rev. Willis Wilson, pastor of Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church. Burial was in the Bethel Cemetery.

Surviving are her parents; a brother, Roger S. Styron of the home; a sister, Jeanne E. Styron of the home; the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Nina O. Dixon of near Bethel; and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. J. J. Tunnell of Greensboro; and a number of uncles and aunts.

Search Ended

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Carlos Lince Jr., 14, ended a six-month, 6,000-mile search when he stepped off a plane Monday night into the arms of his weeping mother whom he had not seen for eight years.

The blond, curly-haired Carlos also met a half-brother he had never seen, B. K. Pullen, 18. Mrs. Margie Pullen Lince Hill of Crystal Springs, Miss., met the plane from Los Angeles and kissed Carlos at Molsant International Airport.

Mrs. Hill said she would try to have her daughter, Lucia, 11, returned to America. Lucia is in Bogota, Colombia, with her father, Capt. Carlos Lince Sr., an airline pilot there.

Carlos ran away from the home of his father and stepmother in Bogota last July. He wandered through the South American jungle 15 days before making his way to the American consul at Panama.

Young Carlos was brought to the United States by Roy Aldridge, an American policeman in the Panama Canal Zone.

Referendum Will Decide Burley Market Quotas

RALEIGH (AP) — Marketing quotas on burley tobacco for the next three years will be decided in a farmer referendum on Feb. 24.

Any grower who produced burley in 1958 will be eligible to vote, according to Administrative Officer H. D. Godfrey of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office. In addition, growers who placed their 1958 burley allotment in the soil bank or conservation reserve can cast a ballot.

If two-thirds of the voting burley growers approve, marketing quotas, acreage allotments and price supports at 90 per cent of parity will be in effect for the 1959 crop. An unfavorable vote by more than one-third of the growers would throw out quotas, allotments and price supports.

Hodges' Budget Provides Major Improvements For East Carolina

East Carolina College will be able to anticipate new construction, new employees and higher salaries for some of its faculty if budget proposals presented last night by Governor Luther H. Hodges win final approval.

The college would get $1,618,300 for permanent improvements, 814 new employees and a total of $122,045 for faculty salary increases under the Governor's recommendations. Money for the permanent improvements would not come from current appropriations, however, but from a bond issue the legislature was asked to present to voters of the state.

Included in the improvements outlined by the Governor are a 500-man dormitory, for which the state appropriation would be $225,000; an addition to Flanagan Building, $334,000; renovation of North Dining Hall, $135,200; an addition to Graham Building, $96,800; an addition to the infirmary, $78,100; improvement of the campus electrical system, $100,000; and expansion of the campus heating plant, $189,200.

Employees who would be added to the college faculty and staff during the 1959-1961 biennium under the Governor's proposals would be determined by his requests, without any additional appropriations being added by the General Assembly. The total number, 814 persons, is uneven because of the prospect of part-time help being added.

The Governor's request for funds to give East Carolina money for faculty salary adjustments would make available $53,680 during the 1959-1960 fiscal year and $68,365 during the 1960-1961 fiscal year. Governor Hodges' request is about $80,000 below the total recommended by the Board of Higher Education.

A capital improvements program recommended by the Board of Higher Education, which would have given East Carolina $3,021,500 over the next ten years, was not recommended by the Governor. However all of the permanent improvements recommended by Governor Hodges were in the Board of Higher Education's recommendations.

Among items struck by the Governor from the Higher Education Board's recommendations were renovation of dormitories for use by women, air conditioning for Joyner Memorial Library, and additions to the music building, the new classroom building, the library, physical education facilities, the student union, the maintenance shop and warehouse, and the laundry.

Also eliminated from the board's recommendations were a new elementary school building, a home economics building and a home management house, outdoor athletic facilities, and a second dormitory for 500 students.

Governor Hodges' budget recommendations represent recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission which receives requests from all state institutions and agencies.

According to preliminary available information, the budget commission did not recommend establishment of a School of Nursing at East Carolina. It was not mentioned in Governor Hodges' budget message to the legislature.

Although it was not recommended, the question of funds for the nursing school is expected to be placed before the General Assembly. Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville has said he would present a bill calling for the school, and funds to support it, if the budget commission did not include it in recommendations to the Governor.

Rep. Frank M. Wooten Jr. and Sen. Robert L. Humber, both of Greenville, have also pledged their support of a measure to establish the school.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
 Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 24 cases in Municipal Recorder's Court Monday, 12 of them involving motor vehicle and traffic law violations, the others ranging from public drunkenness to wife-beating and possession of illegal whiskey.

Thomas P. Fleming, Grimesland, who is charged with operating under a license restriction and failure to stop at a red traffic light, failed to answer when his name was called. An instant capias was issued for him.

John F. Baker, R-1 city, driving drunk, 90 days, suspended on payment of $100 and costs, and the judgment provides that he shall not operate a motor vehicle for 12 months.

Speeding: Ivey T. Mohorn, Ronoke Rapids, paid costs; Eugene J. Robertson, East Carolina College, costs; Clayton A. Gray, costs; John W. Turange, 2015 Elm Street, not guilty; Clarence E. Briley, 201 Church Street, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs, and he is not to drive for seven days; Howard C. Bodkin, 207 East Fifth Street, $5 and costs; Lloyd M. Williams, 1225 Evans Street, not guilty; Calvin C. Edwards, 615 Oak Street, costs; Eleanor A. Burnette, 118 Park Drive, costs.

Gambling: Bennie R. Harrell, 1114 Evans Street, Luther Purdy, 824 Evans Street, and Milton L. Dixon, 114 North Library Street, each paid $5.

Louis W. Harper, Negro, possession of illegal whiskey for sale, six months, suspended on payment of $100 and costs. The court placed him on probation for two years (and he is not to violate any law in two years), and not possess any intoxicants of any kind.

Levi Green, Negro, 1716 South Greene Street, 60 days on the roads.

Drunk: Earnest Ebron, 1409 West Sixth Street, failed to appear and an instant capias was issued for him; Carl Anderson, Negro, R-1 city, $16; Jasper Banks, Negro, R-1 city, $16; John A. Atkinson, Negro, 607-B Pamlico Avenue, $16, 1959 crop. An unfavorable vote by more than one-third of the growers would throw out quotas, allotments and price supports.

Elect Officers At Ayden Meet

AYDEN — Three Martin County men were named last night as officers of District II of the North Carolina School Boards Association for the next two years.

H. B. Gaylord of Williamston was named chairman of the group, succeeding G. Earl Trevathan of Fountain. Other new officers are R. A. Haislip, Jr., and J. C. Manning.

Joseph S. Moyer of the Pitt County Board of Education and Joseph M. Taft of the Greenville City Board of Education served as members of a committee which nominated the new officers.

Election of the new officers took place at a meeting last night of district representatives at the Ayden Elementary School. In addition to naming the officers, the Billy climbed inside the dryer for a look around. John shut the door and turned on the motor.

Mrs. Sargent came running, rescued Billy unharmed, spanked John and set about rewashing the clothes that had been in the washer.

Thieves Break Into Rural Store

Thieves broke into J. L. Naney's Store on U.S. 258 north of Farmville during the weekend and took money, chewing gum and cigarettes.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said the thieves broke a window to gain entrance to the building. They took around $10. in quarters, $2 in nickels along with the gum and cigarettes.

The break-in was investigated by Deputies Loyd Manning and Gerald Davis and City-County Identification Officer Walter Thomas.

Annual expenditures for civilian health and medical services in the United States are estimated to be about $94 a person.

Hodges Basing Capital Improvements On Bond Issue

RALEIGH (AP) — A 29 million dollar bond issue is the key to the program of capital improvements recommended by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Spending of $45,374,149 for new buildings, repairs and additions to old ones, land purchases, and other capital improvements was included in the budget which Hodges presented to the General Assembly Monday night.

"Far Hiel voters would have to approve the 29 million dollars worth of bonds which would finance the major share of the improvements budget. It would be the first statewide bond election since 1952, when an issue of 50 million for school construction was approved.

Hodges and the Budget Commission recommended that another nine million in bonds be issued by the Legislature, without a vote of the people.

The remaining $4,765,000 for capital improvements for agencies and institutions supported by the general fund would come from the unspent portion of a revolving fund created by the 1957 Legislature.

The money for another $2,609,149 worth of improvements would come from special funds, such as the highway fund and receipts to the Wildlife Resources Commission.

The largest item among these would be $1,507,200 for new facilities to enable the Prison Department to house growing prison population.

In addition to recommending millions for educational purposes and for mental hospitals, Gov. Hodges and the Budget Commission asked for money to build a new home for the Legislature and to launch a strong program to save the Outer Banks.

They earmarked 4 1/2 million dollars for the Legislative structure, which was recommended by the Commission on Reorganization of State Government. Purchase of a site would come from another $725,000 allotted to the Department of Administration for land purchases.

The sum of $600,000 was set aside for efforts to preserve the Barrier Islands of the Outer Banks from ravages of the sea and hurricane destruction. A survey to determine conservation measures would require $200,000, and another $400,000 would go for purchase of land. State ownership of the coastal bank would make it possible to get federal funds to help in restoration work.

In trimming down capital improvements requests which totaled nearly 90 million dollars, the governor and budget commission axed completely some ambitious projects. These included:

Department of Archives and History, $2,732,495 for development of historic sites.

State Art Society, $1,361,800 to expand the state's art museum; State Library, $1,195,000 for a new library building.

The State Ports Authority received $203,400 for improvements at Wilmington and Morehead City Ports. It had asked $1,624,800.

The Agricultural Experiment Station at North Carolina State College asked for $1,070,300 worth of work. The budget group approved $100,000.

The Medical Care Commission got exactly half the one million dollars it had asked as state aid for hospital projects in the next two years.

Although many projects proposed for state parks were rejected, a total of $172,000 was recommended for development of a seaside park for Negroes at Bear Island in Onslow County.

Despite the 29 million proposed for state-supported colleges and universities, the institution's requests were cut sharply. The budget makers took note of long-range building needs mapped by the State Board of Higher Education, but said: "We feel that at the present time the state can undertake to provide for only a part of these projects."

Elsewhere in the educational field, the budget provided 1 1/2 million on a matching basis for building at Asheville, Charlotte and Wilmington community colleges; the State Board of Education received $1,491,000 for equipment at industrial education centers; and $2,520,500 was set up for the State School for the Blind and Deaf, the major part of it for moving the school from its present location bordering the North Carolina State College campus.

Following are the figures for the various mental hospitals:

Raleigh $801,500; Morganton $519,900; Goldsboro $559,600; Goldsboro Training School $1,252,000; Butner Hospital $1,800,000; Butner Training School $2,225,000;

Caswell Training School $300,500.

These are recommended amounts for institutions of higher education:

University of North Carolina—University at Chapel Hill $4,983,000; Division of Health Affairs $1,056,800; State College in Raleigh $5,998,200; Woman's College in Greensboro $722,500.

East Carolina College $1,618,300; A&T College, Greensboro, $1,104,400; Western Carolina College $1,378,800; Appalachian State Teachers College $1,578,400; Pembroke State College $46,000; Winston-Salem Teachers College $335,500; Elizabeth City State Teachers College $290,500; Fayetteville State Teachers College $154,000; North Carolina College at Durham $191,700.

Her Voice Lowered In Sleepless Ordeal

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Jo Warner a shapely blonde disc jockey, says "I'm thinking of giving a male choir and singing bass when I'm done with this."

Jo, 22, is heading into the eighth day of a no-sleep stint at the microphone. She hopes to last until noon Friday, when she'll have racked up a record 240 hours of non-stop broadcasting.

"I feel great now," she said Monday night, after rounding out 154 hours. "I was losing my voice. It's back now, but it's gone down about an octave."

Jo is doing her stint for the March of Dimes. She works for KYTE, a station that is on the air 12 hours daily.

She stays awake the full 24 hours, spinning records in the window of a local music store. When KYTE is off the air, she switches to long-playing records. Her mike is hooked to a public address system in front of the store.

"I'm under the constant care of a local physician and also have my own private nurse," says Jo. "This is something I've wanted to do for a long time. I'm not out to prove anything. This isn't one of those women-versus-men bits. This is just something I've kind of thought would be fun to try."

"I followed the marathon in New York pretty closely. You know, when Peter Tripp went 200 hours. It just happens I've got a boss who'll listen to any kind of promotion. He went for this and it's really been swining in Pocatello."

How did she feel?

"Well, I was extremely tired at first. And now I'm just — well, I'm numb now."

Will she make it to the 240-hour mark?

"I don't think I will.

"If I go 240 I'll wind up at noon on Friday. I'd like to go 220, but I want to be all rested up for Saturday?"

Saturday? That's Jo's wedding day. She's to marry Benny Farah 21, another KYTE disc jockey, in the local Faith Lutheran Church.

Will Give Program For Foreign Languages Week

In observance of National Foreign Languages Week, the department of foreign languages at East Carolina College will present a program on the "Let's Go to College" series over Station WNCN — Channel 9, Sunday, February 15 at 1:05 p.m.

Instruction in French at the elementary level will be demonstrated by a class now in progress at the Elmhurst School in Greenville.

February 15-21 was set aside by a proclamation from the White House to bring to public attention a serious deficiency in foreign-language ability in this country. The program broadcast by East Carolina will be based on the national theme "Languages — Key to Brotherhood, the One Door to Tomorrow." Several faculty members of the department of foreign languages at East Carolina will take part in the program. They will discuss briefly work now in progress at East Carolina in French, Spanish, German, and Russian.

Pupils now taking French at the Elmhurst school will appear on the program. Their class activities will demonstrate the teaching of a foreign language by Michele Ganis from France, a student at East Carolina. She is one of a group of student teachers at the college who during the past few years have conducted French classes in the elementary grades in Greenville schools.

The televised program for National Foreign Languages Week is being arranged here by Robert R. Morrison, faculty member of the department of foreign languages.

Mace Missile Is Going Overseas

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Mace missile, highly mobile, almost jam-proof and capable of skirting radar, is going to U.S. troops in Germany in the spring to replace the Matador.

The Martin Co., which built both missiles, said the Mace is a much improved version of the Matador—first operational guided missile delivered to the Air Force and now in front-line service in Germany, Korea and Formosa.

Exact operational ability is classified but Mace, like Matador, is a surface-to-surface missile with a range of more than 650 miles and a speed in the neighborhood of 650 m.p.h.

Germanium, not discovered until 1886, is a metal from which transistors are made. Chief sources are the U.S. and England.

Brigitte Wasn't His Strong Point

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Mayor Jean Louis Vigier of Paris was visiting Phoenix. Someone asked Mayor Jack Williams of Phoenix what he and the visiting mayor would talk about.

"Maybe, Brigitte Bardot," someone ventured.

"Bridget at Bordeaux?" Mayor Williams asked. "Is that a bridge on the River Seine?"

LATIN REVELRY — "The Dance of the Hours" is the name of this ornate float which took part in the traditional carnival parade along the sea at Viareggio, Italy.

Bandit Proved Thorough In Robbing N. C. Branch Bank

STONY POINT, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's first bank robber of 1959 showed a real penchant for thoroughness in the North-western Bank's branch office here Monday—he not only grabbed all the bills in sight but took all the coins.

Harold Sigmon, victim of the stickup that netted nearly $5,000 in the mid-20s and of average height, strolled into the branch just before the 1 p.m. closing time. Sigmon, the office's only employee, was checking out the day's receipts.

He said the gunman whipped a red bandanna around the lower part of his face, pulled out a pistol and threw a cheesecloth bag on the counter, ordering Sigmon to fill it.

"I crammed in stacks of twenties, tens, fives and ones and one fifty-dollar bill he saw in the drawer," Sigmon related.

At this point, the bank employee said he informed the gunman that "I had a wife and two kids at home and didn't want to get hurt."

Sigmon said the robber spotted some coins in the cash drawer and demanded them. The only thing he left was a check.

"Then he told me to go stand in the corner by the vault with my face to the wall," Sigmon recalled.

"He said, 'if you turn around while I'm in this building, you're a dead man; furthermore you stay in that corner until at least three minutes after I'm gone.'"

Sigmon said he remained in the corner three minutes, then called officers, who set up road blocks in the area.

Apparently no one saw the robber, who was dressed in blue coveralls, leaving the branch.

North Carolina had eight bank holdups last year but all of them have been listed as solved.

The robbery here was Alexander County's first in 25 years. A quartet of bandits killed a cashier and wounded another employe in an unsuccessful holdup attempt here in 1933. The four were caught, convicted and executed.

Rotarians Told Utilities' Rates In Lower Range

Charles O'H. Horne Jr., member of Greenville's Utilities Commission, told local Rotarians last night that contrary to what some people may think, Greenville's electrical rates are in the lower range of those of municipal and private power companies serving Eastern North Carolina.

In an address illustrated by charts and graphs, Horne showed a comparison of electrical rates of Greenville with those of Duke Power Company, Virginia Electric and Power Company, Carolina Power and Light Company, and municipal systems of Wilson, Kinston, Rocky Mount, Fayetteville, Elizabeth City, Washington and other cities in this area.

Greenville's domestic rates, he said, are "well down in the low range in comparison with the rates of these other private and municipal power companies." With the graphs, he pointed out that Greenville's electric rates fall about mid-way the range of rates for municipal electric operations of the area, and that Greenville's rates are lower than both those of VEPCO and Duke companies while higher than those of CP&L.

While its rates are competitive, Horne told his audience, the Greenville Utilities Commission each year plows back into municipal operations of Greenville almost $600,000 annually in the way of cash turnover to the city, retirement of indebtedness, and expansion and replacement of electric, sewer and water facilities.

By comparison, he said, if the local electric system were owned by a private power company, the company would pay to the city in taxes approximately $12,000 to $15,000 annually in taxes.

During a brief business session, Rotary President Elmer Browning appointed Charles White, Ercell Webb and Harding Sugg members of a nominating committee to present the club a slate of officers for the coming year.

Some Praise, And Some Dissenters

RALEIGH (AP)—Favorable expressions and some objections were voiced Monday night by Tar Heel legislators after Gov. Hodges presented his tax-spending recommendations for the next biennium.

"I was delighted to see no new taxes were recommended," said Rep. Cloyd Philpot of Davidson. "It is a go-forward program."

The budget is balanced with a proposed withholding plan for collection of state income taxes. Under the withholding plan, Hodges said the state would receive an estimated 27½ million dollar windfall from taxes.

Rep. Watis Hill Jr. of Durham said the windfall would not amount to that much. He added, "There's got to be a minimum of six months' forgiveness, so that shoots the 27½ million in the head."

Hill asserted his immediate reaction to the governor's budget message was that the windfall should be used for permanent improvements, primarily higher education, and that money required to balance the budget should come from taxes on some commodities.

Without saying which commodities to tax, Hill declared, "We ought to have the courage to face at least part of the problem and not put it off until the next session."

Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange said he would favor new taxes over the windfall. He added, "The only things I don't like about it is that 27 million dollars we might get in what they call a windfall."

Rep. Clifton Blue of Moore, chairman of the House Finance Committee, said Hodges "outlined a fine program for the advancement of North Carolina." He said his committee would want to take a close look at the pay-as-you-go tax plan.

Rep. John Kerr Jr. of Warren said the withholding plan's windfall feature "can only happen one time. What would the Legislature do two years from now to do to balance the budget?"

Sen. Claude Currie, a former Senate Finance chairman, said the budget was "a good hold-the-line program."

Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus praised Hodges' message, saying: "It seems to me it would be the easiest to carry out of any program I have ever heard a governor give the Legislature."

SONS PERISHED—Howard R. Boyd, 29, comforts his wife Martha at jail in Chattanooga, Tenn., shortly after their sons, Stephen Edward, 3, and Jimmy Lee died in a fire which swept their two-room home. Police said the boys were padlocked in the house while their unemployed father looked for a job. Mrs. Boyd was away, working as a waitress. Boyd was held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. ## Brazil Seizing Red Propaganda

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The government is seizing Communist propaganda sent into Brazil from the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

Custom officials are picking up Red publications found in shipments, and police confiscate all that slip through.

Distributors of the Czech Spanish-language magazine "Problems of Peace and Socialism" said they intend to challenge the confiscation in the courts. Soviet magazines being picked up include "New Times" and "Trud."

Unplanned Trim For A Long Hair

BARTOW, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. C. L. Anderson, whose hair hadn't been touched by scissors in 12 years, got an unscheduled bob.

She reached for a bottle of vinegar to rinse her 42-inch-long locks after she finished giving herself a shampoo. By accident, she grasped a bottle of pine oil floor cleaner. Her hair was a sticky mess before she realized what had happened.

She consulted several beauty parlors but none of the preparations they recommended would remove the pine oil. At last she gave up and submitted to the shears. Now her hair is two inches long.

A leopard cub and one giraffe is worth five tigers. The bargaining session began with each zoo director eading a list of his surplus animals, and of his needs. After that the officials gathered in little huddles to do business.

"We've been trying to sell it. But there were no takers. She's just not compatible with our two young elephants so I thought I'd give her away."

The trading indicated that it takes 24 baboons to trade for one camel, a pair of kangaroos equals

Fresh Approach Advised In Teaching Of Languages

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The traditional methods of teaching foreign languages must be junked and an entirely new approach adopted.

That is the gist of a set of recommendations being made to more than 5,000 junior and senior high school principals. They are expected to have far reaching effects in the public schools.

The recommendations came from the Committee on Curriculum Planning and Development of the National Assn. of Secondary School Principals. The association is in convention here.

"What we need," the committee said, "is a complete change of emphasis from learning about the language to learning the language itself."

To bring this about, it urged that foreign language programs be made available to call capable and interested students, starting in the seventh grade if possible. The study of one language would continue for a minimum of four years; six if possible. The courses would be elective, not required. Emphasis at the start would be on learning to converse in the language. Grammar, direct translation and reading and writing the language would follow later.

Grammar and the ability to read will come easily and naturally if adequate time has first been spent in learning how to hear and speak the language, the committee said.

Tape recordings, films, slides, records, and foreign language newspapers and magazines should be used to the fullest extent, the committee said. The foreign language should be the language of the classroom at least 90 per cent of the time and "above all the foreign language must not be mixed with English."

Principals who heard the plan outlined Monday were generally enthusiastic, but they had two bothersome questions: "Where are we going to get the teachers? And how are we going to fit this into an already crowded schedule—what goes out if this comes in?"

The teacher supply is likely to be the single biggest obstacle. To make the program effective nationwide, many more teachers must be trained and many of those not teaching will have to be re-trained.

The committee said it makes no great difference what foreign language is taught, just so it's taught long enough and effectively enough to give the student a real working knowledge of it.

Still No Trace Of Lost Family

SILVER LAKE, Minn. (AP) — All seven members of the Earl Zrust family vanished Dec. 29 and haven't been seen since.

Disappearance of the building contractor, his wife and five children has the 600 residents of Silver Lake worried. Mayor Joe W. Gehlen said no one here knows what's happened to the Zrusts.

Zrust is 30; his wife, Carolina, 28; and their children are Sandra, 10; Susan, 8; Terry, 5; Douglas, 3; and Russell, 2.

The Zrusts left without locking their home. Only the car and some heavy clothing were missing. The rest of the clothes and all household furnishings remained. Utilities were not shut off.

Zrust's widowed mother, Christine Zrust, said she had no idea where the family could have gone. Neither did the George Stachowiaks, parents of Zrust's wife.

The family had a winter fishing house on Lake Miller Lacs. Investigation showed, though, that no one had been to the shack.

Silver Lake is about 40 miles west of Minneapolis.

Congresswoman Draws A Line

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Jessica Weis (R-N.Y.), a new congresswoman, tells a story about her first day in Congress.

As she walked on the floor, she says, a House attendant suggested she remove her hat. She complied. As she was about to slip into her seat, someone else suggested congresswomen do not wear gloves. Slowly, Mrs. Weis removed her gloves.

Then she announced: "If they tell me to take off just one more thing, I'm going to fight."

Thinks Inflation Is Real Villain

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Anthony Pizza, assistant county prosecutor, believes the dwindling value of the dollar is responsible for a rise in complaints about husbands running around with other women.

With purchasing power curtailed, he theorized, money spent in philandering is reflected quickly in the family budget and the wives become suspicious. Maybe, he ventured, "the amount of chasing is about the same as always."

The first public power supply system began in England in 1901.

Would 'Abolish' Political Rivals

WASHINGTON (AP)—Early in the session, Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) found a moment when not a single Republican senator was in the Senate. Quickly he proposed Congress abolish the Republican party.

Ever since, Republicans have been waiting for their chance. Recently Minority Leader Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.) noticed that all Democrats were gone and announced he would propose abolition of the Democratic party.

But, just then, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) rushed in, calling, "I object."

Mighty Kentucky Given Reversal; Marquette Also Handed Setback

By BEN OLAN Associated Press Sports Writer Kentucky's tournament picture was hidden behind a cloud of uncertainty today following a stunning reversal by Mississippi State on a night of basketball upsets that also saw Marquette's 15-game winning streak go by the boards and unexpected developments in the Big 10.

Kentucky, the defending NCAA champ and top-ranked in the Associated Press poll, succumbed to Mississippi State 66-58. The setback, the Wildcats' second in 20 games, dropped them into third place in the Southeastern Conference.

Monday night's result gave Mississippi State an 8-1 SEC record to 2-2 for Kentucky. Auburn, which beat Florida 93-71, heads the conference with 10-0.

However, because Auburn is on NCAA probation and a state law in Mississippi prohibits competition against teams having Negro players, Kentucky may find itself in the unique position next month of representing the conference in the NCAA tournament despite a third-place finish.

Although all of Mississippi State's remaining games are away from home, none of its future opponents—Tulane, Georgia, Louisiana State, Florida and Mississippi—is over the 500 mark in conference competition.

Off its performance against Kentucky, State should win each handily. State took the lead in the eighth minute of the first half and never relinquished it. Bailey Howell had 27 points for the winners before fouling out with 4:24 left.

Marquette was the victim of a second half uprising by DePaul. Trailing 47-44 at the intermission, DePaul broke open the game after Jim Fleming put it ahead 69-57. The setback was the second in 19 games for Marquette. DePaul is 9-5.

Indiana blew a golden opportunity to deadlock the Michigan State for the big 10 lead. The Hoosiers raced to a 17-0 lead over Illinois, but the fighting Illinois roared back with a 55 point second half to win 89-83. Indiana now trails Michigan State by one game. Illinois' league mark is 4-5.

Wisconsin won its first Big 10 game and snapped a nine-game losing streak by turning back Purdue 91-86.

Auburn extended its unbeaten streak to 28 games—17 this season—with a 61.7 field goal percentage. Florida was no match for the Tigers, who pulled ahead 8-7 on Jim Fippe's layup and remained in front.

Last minute free throws played an important part in other Southeastern Conference games. Two by Dave Denton enabled Georgia Tech to nip LSU 64-63, four by Lenny Japlan gave Alabama a 71-65 triumph over Georgia, two by Jim Henry in the final 15 seconds pushed Vanderbilt to a 64-62 success over Tulane and Tennessee's overall superiority at the free throw line nudged it to a 85-82 victory over Mississippi.

In the Southern Conference, VMI surged from seven points behind in the closing moments and beat Davidson 64-60, and Furman edged William and Mary 71-70.

Elsewhere, Ray Lewis dropped in six straight free throws near the end as Oklahoma defeated Nebraska 64-58 in the Big Eight; Dale Ball scored 29 points to lead Rice to a 68-62 triumph over Arkansas in the Southwest Conference; North Texas State hit 50 per cent from the field to whip Houston 62-56 in the Missouri Valley and Notre Dame, with co-captains Tom Hawkins and Gene Duffy combining for 47 points, trounced Army 76-60.

Oregon rallied in the second half and defeated Washington State 61-54 in the Pacific Coast conference and Seattle overwhelmed Xavier of Ohio 88-69.

Villanova made the National Invitation Tournament selection committee look good by trouncing St. Francis (Pa.) 80-69. The Wildcats (15-4) and St. John's of New York (13-4) were the first teams chosen for the March 12-21 tourney in Madison Square Garden.

Still Top Three In Cage Ratings

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. Associated Press Sports Writer Kentucky, North Carolina and Kansas State still are rated the top three teams in college basketball in the new Associated Press balloting but Kentucky wears the honor somewhat dubiously after its 66-58 loss to Mississippi State last night.

The sports writers and broadcasters participating in the weekly accounting based their selections on games through last Saturday. As a result, only Michigan State dropped from the top 10.

The Big Ten Spartans skidded down to 12th place after an 85-81 loss to Purdue on Saturday. Bradley, St. Louis and West Virginia moved up one place in the rankings, making room for Mississippi State in tenth place.

Kentucky drew 42 of 101 first place votes and accumulated 855 points. North Carolina had 18 firsts and 762 points and Kansas State 10 and 656. Unbeaten Auburn remained ahead of Cincinnati in a close race for fourth.

That "can't miss" stamp placed upon Ron Fairly by competent baseball observers may cause the 20-year-old St. Paul outfielder to press when he reports to the Dodgers for spring training. Gene Mauch, a former Dodger who managed Minneapolis, saw Fairly with St. Paul and was so impressed that he predicted that Ron could make the grade this spring. Others were so impressed with his poise and ability that they predicted he would move right in to the Los Angeles outfield.

This Is The Way Stengel Tells It

By FRANK ECK AP Newsfeatures Sports Editors It was midnight in Leone's as Casey stepped to the bar. I had to leave. Had sinus trouble in 92 humidity and remembered Casey Stengel's tirade about athletes who had bad watches.

One for the cab was all Casey said he'd have. He owed it to the New York press photographers for the honor they paid him. His only complaint was the heavy plaque they gave him. It meant he'd have to take a cab to his $50 a day suite overlooking Central Park South.

"You fellows don't know how old I am" Casey began in an exclusive interview. (After all he had only 11 listeners and 10 were photographers without pencils or camera.) "I'm going on 69. And I'm going to manage for two more years. I go a good pension coming."

Feeling Grows Joe Brown May Lose His Crown

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—There's a feeling lightweight champion Joe Brown may reach the end of the road here Wednesday night in his sixth title defense.

Brown, the aging Negro from Baton Rouge, La., meets a fellow who already has given him a licking—Johnny Bussio of New York.

Bussio proved too strong when he decided Brown in a non-title fight at Miami Nov. 4. He wasn't even shaken.

Brown has claimed that had the fight gone 15 rounds he would win. That's something Bussio would dispute.

Bussio says Brown's age—he's 33 to Bussio's 24—is against such a claim.

The fight will be televised at 10 p.m., EST.

Brundage Says America's Athletic Status Slipping

MILWAUKEE (AP)—America, says Avery Brundage, is "slipping into a secondary position in the world of sports."

The only way to reverse the trend, says amateurism's staunchest advocate and severest critic, is to start teaching children in kindergarten "to play for fun and not for money."

Brundage spoke in an interview Monday night after the male and female athletes-of-the-year banquet sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Miller Herb Elliott of Australia and tennis star Althea Gibson of New York received the Frederick C. Miller memorial trophies for being named the world's foremost athletes of 1958 in the annual Associated Press poll.

Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, told a crowd of 600 the selections of Elliott and Miss Gibson by the nation's sports editors "should dispose of this myth that an amateur is someone not good enough to be a pro."

But, later, the Chicagoan discussed what he called "a sad state of affairs."

"In the last Olympic games," he said, "we were outclassed in

Musial Signed For $100,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial signed another $100,000 contract with the St. Louis Cardinals Monday, then admitted that his time in major league baseball is running short.

Musial, seven times the batting champion of the National League, told reporters, "I would like to play another year for sure."

He added quickly that he hoped to play two more years if possible. A reporter reminded the trim, 38-year-old veteran that never before had he indicated that age was overtaking him.

"Well, I guess when a man nears 40 in baseball, he just has to admit time is running out," Musial replied.

Signing of his contract at the brewery of Cardinal owner August A. Busch Jr was only formality for Musial.

Busch said Musial will get the same salary he drew last year. At an estimated $100,000 that makes him the second highest paid player in baseball and top salaried man in the National League. Boston's Ted Williams reportedly makes $125,000 a year.

half of the sports on the program. Australia won 35 medals and we won 74. On a per-capita basis, they did 16 times as well as we did and they're not the only ones."

Brundage, 70, declared: "We haven't won a long distance race over a half mile in any international competition in many years, 25 years or so I would say."

"Russia alone had 800,000 trained gymnasts three or four years ago when I visited there. You couldn't find 800 in the U.S."

Cisco Andrade Is Hoping For Break

NEW YORK (AP)—Everything happens to Cisco Andrade except good luck.

Twice the lightweight from Compton, Calif., thought he had fought his way to a shot at the title. Twice it was denied him.

Twice he has been sidelined by discouraging ailments that were enough to make him think of quitting the ring. Each time he hung on.

When he boxes Frankie Ryff of New York in a Friday bout at Madison Square Garden he hopes he finally will get a real break.

The last time Andrade was in New York—in 1955—he whipped Orlando Zulueta, the clever Cuban. That was supposed to lead to a championship match. Instead, it was Zulueta who got the chance two years later. When he beat ex-champ Jimmy Carter at Chicago in 1956, the Cisco Kid thought he was going to land a fight with the new titleholder, Wallace (Bud) Smith. Instead, Joe Brown got the chance and the title, Joey still has it.

Andrade's sharpest pains, however, have been physical. In 1956, his left elbow pained him. He went to a San Francisco specialist who removed bone chips.

Bantams Signed For Title Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Now that it's official, matchmaker George Parnassus says World Bantamweight Champion Alphonse Halimi will meet Mexico's Jose Becerra in a title fight here about the first of May.

Halimi's manager, Philippe Filippi, announced Monday in Paris that he has accepted an offer by Parnassus, who staged the Halimi-Raul (Mighty Mouse) Macias title scrap in Los Angeles in 1957.

Neither the Halimi camp nor Parnassus disclosed terms.

Brundage replied: "They swear they are within the amateur rules. You hear rumors and stories about them paying their athletes, but so far we have no proof."

Told of Elliott's suggestion that Australia reimburse its Olympic athletes to the tune of a half day's pay for each day's training, Brundage said:

"You can't make a champion with a subsidy. It takes diligence and hard work. That's why Elliott got where he is. Anyone who says you can wear yourself out by three or four hours of training a day is silly."

Promoter Likes New York For Patterson Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Boxing promoter Bill Rosensohn likes New York in June.

But he admits he'd change his tune for Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum bubbling over with paying customers for the heavyweight title fight between Champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson.

"The Coliseum could be arranged to seat 120,000 for the fight and that's what makes it attractive," Rosensohn said Monday after inspecting the stadium.

But he added: "I have qualms about Los Angeles' ability to draw."

"There is the factor that no fight in the city's history has grossed as much as $250,000."

Rosensohn has visited New York, Indianapolis, Minneapolis and Las Vegas, Nev., where he sounded out civic and government officials on the heavyweight battle. He leaves Wednesday for inspection tours of San Francisco, Milwaukee, Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Parker 'Batting' For Bill Rigney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Hospitalized Bill Rigney temporarily turns over the managership of the San Francisco Giants today to Coach Sully Parker.

Parker is to serve until Rigney is well enough to go to Phoenix, Ariz., for spring training.

Vice President Charles S. (Chub) Feeney said no manager will be needed for the first several weeks, but that Rigney designated Parker as No. 1 man.

Rigney and his wife, Paula, were injured early Sunday when their car crashed into a power pole in nearby Berkeley. He suffered a broken jaw and his wife a broken hip.

Their condition was reported improved and good at Kaiser Hospital in suburban Walnut Creek.

Hockey League Adds Greensboro

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP)—The City of Greensboro, N.C., owner of the newest franchise in the Eastern Hockey League, has until May 1 to post the necessary entrance fee and bond.

The league, meeting here Monday, officially accepted Greensboro as the loop's second Southern member along with Charlotte, N.C.

Greensboro's arena commission will soon select an operator for its lease for spring training.

The league operated with six teams this season. It said it expects to operate with at least seven next year.

Alexandria Schools Quietly Integrated Today

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Nine Negro children entered three previously all-white public schools in this historic Southern city without incident today.

They were admitted under court order, and backed by a display of police force but there was nothing to indicate any need for the guard.

Alexandria thus became the third Virginia community to accept integration since the collapse of the state's "massive resistance" program and the failure of last-ditch court efforts to obtain delay.

Seventeen Negroes in Norfolk and four in Arlington County, adjoining Alexandria, previously had been admitted to junior and senior high schools. Seven of the nine in Alexandria were the first to get into former all-white elementary schools.

Five youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 11, walked quietly into Ramsay Elementary School.

Two others entered Theodore Picklin Elementary in the downtown section. Another two were admitted to the Hammond High School.

Authorities had prepared for the possibility of a disturbance but nothing happened.

Between 80 and 65 police were deployed at the three schools.

Alexandria, with an estimated population of about 95,000 has a school population of about 14,000 of whom 1,800 are Negroes.

Both Arlington and Alexandria are Washington suburbs. Many of their residents work in the nation's capital.

The Alexandria integration went into effect as a fourth Virginia area was put under court pressure. In Harrisonburg, U.S. Dist. Judge John Paul arranged to hear a plea for the immediate reopening of Warren County High School at Front Royal.

The Warren County school, the only high school in the county, was the first Virginia school closed under now-invaliated Virginia laws seeking to avoid integration. Its closing was enforced after Judge Paul last year ordered admission of 22 Negro pupils. They had been sent to high schools in other counties.

A commission of legislators appointed by Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. meets Wednesday to start work on a long-range plan designed to stop or at least keep to a minimum the racial integration of Virginia's schools.

Admission of Negroes to the three Alexandria schools raises to 10 the number of schools in the state with mixed classes.

Five Negroes ranging in age from Kathryn Turner, 11, a sixth grader, to her first grader brother Gerald Tucker, 6, are entering William Ramsay Elementary School, just completed in September. Ramsay is well to the west of what is known as old Alexandria.

OLD AND YOUNG AT GENERAL ASSEMBLY—R. Bruce Etheridge, 80, rep. from Dare County, may or may not be telling pretty young Mary Ann Swindell, 14, about the good old days but he would be the one to know. Etheridge is the oldest member of this year's General Assembly. Mary Ann, who comes from Cary, is a House page this year. (UPI Telephoto)

Van Doren To End Teaching Career

By DICK VALERIANI
NEW YORK (AP)—"Nothing is too difficult for students."

For 39 years, this teaching philosophy guided Mark Van Doren at Columbia University.

Now, at 65, the gray-haired English professor has decided to close his teaching career. He said Monday he will retire this June—but only from teaching.

Despite the urging of colleagues to remain, Van Doren is retiring three years before the mandatory age, he said, to be "free to do more writing and, when I feel like it, not do anything."

"I have always loved teaching, but it takes a great deal of time and energy and I haven't had enough of either to devote to writing," he said.

The time he did have for writing produced first-class results. His "Collected Poems" won a Pulitzer prize in 1940. He has written literary criticism, biography, short stories and novels.

His first play, "The Last Days of Lincoln," is set for Broadway production next season.

Van Doren, like his late brother, Carl, is a Lincoln expert. There is a trace of the Lincolnian in his slender, wiry frame and wrinkled features. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1914.

Van Doren recalled that his students have always been the same—"very serious and very good."

"We try to look at our subject straight in the face and discern some truth," he said. "A teacher and student can help each other discover what each thinks and understand if they approach their subject with honesty and preciseness."

A number of his students went on to achieve their own measure of distinction. They include Thomas Merton, Clifton Fadiman, Mortimer Adler, Jacques Barzun, Lionel Trilling, Henry Morton Robinson, among others.

Van Doren also has been singled out as a family man. In 1937, he and his son, Charles, who won $129,000 on a television quiz show, were named "father-son team of the year."

The professor said he and his novelist wife, Dorothy, will spend much of their time after June at their country home in Cornwall, Conn.

"I am not sure more leisure will mean more poetry; it might mean less," he said, "but I want to try it anyway."

Pre-Registering For Spring Term

Pre-registration of students for the spring quarter of the current school year is in progress at East Carolina College this week, Feb. 9-13.

All students now attending the college and planning to enroll for the spring quarter are holding consultations with their faculty advisors and planning their schedules of classes in advance.

Those who will enter East Carolina at the beginning of the quarter as well as those who have pre-registered will officially enroll at the college for their spring courses Wednesday, March 4. Class work will begin Thursday, March 5.

Final examinations in winter-quarter courses will be administered February 24-28. An interim of three days during which no classes will be in session will be used by instructors to prepare grades for the office of the college registrar.

The spring quarter at East Carolina will close with commencement exercises for the Class of 1959 Sunday, May 24, at 6 p.m. This year for the first time at the college the exercises will be held out of doors in the College Stadium.

The summer session at East Carolina will begin Monday, June 8. The session will be divided into two terms as follows: first, June 8-July 14, and, second, July 15-August 20.

Blue Flash Of Light, Loud Roar Accompanied Storm

By DON ROTH
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—"I saw a blue flash of light and I heard a terrible roar. It shook the ground. There wasn't any warning and the wind seemed to stay forever."

Thus newspaper vendor Gay Gross, 62, described the tornado which smashed St. Louis early today. He was on a street in west-central St. Louis hoping to sell a few papers to late tavern patrons when the storm hit.

It was in this general area where a number of persons were trapped in buildings which collapsed.

"The lights went out and everybody was pretty calm for awhile," said Lula Kuehner, a waitress.

She works in one of the many taverns, cafes and night clubs in the Bohemian area, called by St. Louisans "our Greenwich Village," where the twister first hit the hardest.

A few minutes after the storm hit, said Mrs. Kuehner, excited people rushed in shouting that there was tremendous damage "just down the street."

Patrons of taverns poured into the streets to see if they could help.

Zeb Williams was sitting in his room in the top floor of a three-story rooming house when the storm struck in that section.

Still shaking, he told a reporter "I heard the wind and I got up and I went to put on my pants when all of a sudden I was blown out the window."

Williams dropped into soft ground nearby. He only had a few scratches, and declined medical attention.

A priest gave the last rites to a woman who had been pulled by police from the rubble of a nearby building. The stunned priest said "I don't even know if she was dead. It's all happening so fast. I just couldn't tell."

A weary policeman looked at one shaky building. "We don't dare go back in there. It's going to fall," he said.

Two delegates from Pitt county recently attended the 11th Annual Dairy Short Course, held at A. & T. College, Greensboro.

Attending from Pitt were Mrs. Madeline H. White, Cherry Lane community; S. C. Mills, Haddock community; and J. M. Goode, Pitt county Negro Agricultural Agent. Scholarships for the delegates were sponsored by the Pitt County Farm Bureau. Over 100 farmers and homemakers attended the dairy short course from counties over the state.

Some of the program highlights were: Discussions, demonstrations and lectures on increasing profits by the prevention and control of mastitis; improving milk quality by proper use and cleaning of milking equipment, factors affecting quality milk, opportunities to sell milk for manufacturing purposes and breeding efficiency. Also lectures on situations and trends were made. During the short course milk breaks were held frequently.

No Prosecution, No Making Up
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Actress Joan Davis isn't going to prosecute her ex-fiancee for assault and battery but she says there's no reconciliation.

She dropped the charges against Harvey Stock Jr., 30, a real estate salesman Monday.

The 46-year-old comedienne had accused Stock of clouting her with a rabbit punch outside her desert home here two weeks ago. She said she had nothing to gain by going ahead with the prosecution.

Two Policemen Are On A Spot

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two Charlotte policemen using the names of John Doe and Richard Roe in a court action were on the spot today.

They could refuse to identify themselves, which would mean dismissal of their suit aimed at throwing out a City Council order banning the city policemen's union.

Or they could reveal their identifications and risk dismissal from the police force because of union membership.

At a hearing Monday, Superior Court Judge Susie Sharp told union attorneys Doe and Roe must show up under their own names today or she would toss their case out of court.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees, the two officers and the new defunct police local are asking that the city show why an injunction should not be issued against the council ban.

Tree Farms See Growth Record

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP)—A total of 2,998 tree farms were added to the 18-year-old American Tree Farm System in 1958 to establish a new record of growth, says American Forest Products Industries.

Chief Forester James C. McClellan of the industry organization says the farms gave the program an income of 3,481,543 acres, bringing the year-end totals to 13,935 certified tree farms covering 48,429,451 acres. He predicts the program will add four million acres this year.

Sec. Dulles Enters Hospital For Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles, walking slowly but smiling, checked into the hospital today for a hernia operation. The secretary entered the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center at 10:28 a. m., EST. He was met by the hospital commandant, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton. Heaton, a surgeon who will do the operation, told newsmen he expected it would be done either Friday or early next week. Heaton said it would take about two weeks for Dulles to recuperate from the operation. His ailment, kept secret for more than a month, was disclosed by President Eisenhower Monday night as Dulles asked and got a formal leave of absence. It imposed two big questions. Will Dulles, who will be 71 on Feb. 25, return to his post? Will the West, with an ailing Dulles or without him at all, revise its just-a-borning policy toward new Soviet threats and demands on Germany? Both Dulles and presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty sought to give assurances on those questions. Dulles said he would be gone for "a few weeks" only. Hagerty said Dulles would not only return but would represent the United States in any talks with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis. Dulles' ability to shrug off illness and put in a grinding day is almost legend. But on Capitol Hill there was less optimism about Dulles' power to snap back completely from his third illness in as many months. And the State Department, driving to develop a solid-front Allied response to the Soviets, pondered the effect of the absence of a chief who likes to do most of the heavy work himself. Under Secretary C. Douglas Dillon took over as acting secretary. Under Secretary Christian Herter, who outranks Dillon, will relieve him Sunday, upon return from a South Carolina vacation. Dulles' disclosure came about nine hours after he returned from critical talks with top leaders in London, Paris and Bonn. He had made the trip wearing a truss to ease a left inguinal (groin) hernia. He had also taken along medication for a persistent inflammation of the colon. It was these two—the hernia and the inflammation—which led him to Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the same hospital at which he underwent surgery two years ago to remove a cancerous portion of his lower intestine. Hagerty said there was no evidence of any recurrence of the cancer. Dulles met with Eisenhower Monday night in the President's living quarters on the second floor of the White House. Then Hagerty made public Dulles' letter to the President. Aides said Dulles' hernia was discovered by his doctors Jan. 4, when they examined him at his home for a virus infection. The secretary met the next day with Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, but he canceled plans to fly afterward to Ottawa for talks with Canadian officials. He rested at home for a few days to get over the virus, but nothing was said about the hernia. Last Tuesday, after being fitted out with a truss, he took off for London, Paris and Bonn. It was typical Dulles stoicism. The colon inflammation, which still hangs on, first struck him in Mexico City last Nov. 30. He swore his aides to secrecy, went through with his part in the inauguration of President Alfonso Lopez Mateos, made a speech in San Francisco and then—five days later—checked into Walter Reed. In December he left the hospital to go direct to a meeting of Atlantic Pact nations. Reaction to the news of Dulles' new illness was uniformly sympathetic. From Capitol Hill came such expressions as: Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee—"My deepest sympathy." Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee—"I hope that he soon can assume full command again." Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.)—"We join with countless thousands who wish him speedy recovery. His country needs him." The British press banneted the news with such headlines as "Dulles quits" and "Dulles out of action." The conservative Daily Mail said "critics as well as friends will sympathize" and praised his handling of the Berlin problem. The Daily Express called Dulles "the iron dictator of American foreign policy."

Hawaiians Want Shark Repellent

HONOLULU (AP) — A major concern of scientists in Hawaii—and the Hawaii Visitors Bureau—is not how to get a man to the moon but how to keep sharks away when he takes a dip in the sea. To solve the problem, scientists are studying the behavior of two sharks captured alive. One is in an experimental pond, the other in a shallow concrete tank. The idea is to learn what attracts a shark to its prey. Once this is known, it should be possible to devise a more effective shark repellent. The office of Naval Research is sponsoring the $20,000 program. It is being conducted by Albert L. Tester, professor zoology at the University of Hawaii. Interest here is more than that of pure science. A 15-year-old boy was attacked and killed by a shark recently only a mile off shore while surfing with two companions. Since then, a determined campaign has been started to rid Hawaiian waters of sharks. Bounties have been offered for sharks captured. The two captive sharks will be given a variety of tests devised to study their hearing powers. One of the tests involves high and low frequency sound waves transmitted by a hydrophone. In another, a mechanical bell system will ring at feeding time to test conditioned reflexes—similar to the famous Pavlov saliva test with dogs. Tester says these are only a part of the program he plans. He says the field is wide open because comparatively little is known about sharks. Except that they can—and sometimes do—kill human beings.

Search Atlantic Area For Plane

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Coast Guard aircraft flew out again today in search of a twin-engine private plane which may have been ditched in the Atlantic Ocean somewhere off the coast of the Carolinas. Two men were reported in the Beechcraft Bonanza when it took off Sunday for a flight to Philadelphia. One man was tentatively identified as Mr. Buckley of Haverstown, Pa., member of a family engaged in the aircraft overhaul business. Distress calls from the plane were picked up at 6 p. m. Sunday by a jet aircraft and relayed to the control tower at Charleston, S.C., Municipal Airport. The plane then was flying at 15,000 feet. With his wings icing up, the pilot asked and received permission to descend to 10,000 feet, then 3,000. Thereafter, contact with the plane was lost. Results were negative in an aerial search yesterday. Heavy fog kept surface craft out of the search but they were expected to be able to join today. ## Tiny Indiana Railroad Keeping Very Busy And Is Making Money

By RAY SHAW. CORYDON, Ind. (AP) — A railroad president nodded toward his line's single locomotive. "We're unusual for this business. We don't owe anybody, and our stockholders, customers and employees are happy." The Louisville, New Albany and Corydon Railroad is small — only eight miles long — but it's making money while most railroads are having troubles. The railroad has assets of a quarter million dollars. "We work hard at making money," said Bill Buchanan, president and general manager of the railroad. "The only way to run a railroad is for profit." The railroad hauls freight for this Southern Indiana town of 3,000. Some of the town's two dozen small industries located here because the railroad sold or leased its land at low prices for plant sites. The L. N. A. and C.'s tracks wind north to Corydon Junction, where it transfers outgoing goods to Southern Railway or Southern switches off cars to be brought to Corydon. Most of the freight is furniture built in Corydon, grain for surrounding broiler farms, gasoline or building material. The line's operation is simple, and hasn't changed greatly since it was founded 75 years ago. "We're probably the only railroad in the country that shuts down for lunch and weekends," Buchanan grinned. The railroad's only rolling stock is a 6-year-old diesel locomotive named the "Betty Sue" and an ancient track car used by section hands. All box cars are leased from larger railroads. A 30-year-old steam engine was scrapped when the diesel was bought. "We were the first railroad in the country to be completely dieselized," Buchanan bragged. Only 14 employees are needed to run the railroad and a truck line it owns. Last year the railroad handled 1,592 cars, an increase of 517 over 1956. The truck line handled an additional 3,460 tons of freight. The town has one other truck line but is not served directly by a major railroad. Buchanan, whose business suit is a suede jacket and worn flannel trousers, likes to apply the railroad industry's problems to his own operation. "Most railroads are in trouble because they priced themselves out of business. When they raised rates to trucks, they raised rates to make up for the lost revenue. Then they lost more business." "We give good rates and service," he said. "Railroads and truck lines should get together and quit fighting over rates," Buchanan said. "There's plenty of business for both."

Federal School Aid Plans Meeting Varied Complaints

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower ran into bipartisan complaints in Congress today that his five-year school aid program doesn't go far enough fast enough. Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky) said that as top Republicans on the Senate Education and Labor Committee he will introduce the administration's bills. But he said he does not believe Eisenhower's proposals "will meet the needs for elementary school construction."

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming made public details of the administration program Monday. It proposes a five-year plan of helping finance school and college construction at a cost to the government of about 2½ billion dollars. But the spending, on a bond retirement basis, would be spread over about 25 years. Cooper was expected to discuss his views with Eisenhower in a call at the White House.

Sen. Pat McNamara (D-Mich) who has proposed a two-year program of a billion dollars annually for school aid, said in a separate interview he regards the administration's program as "totally inadequate."

Sen. James E. Murray (D-Mont) chairman of a subcommittee considering school aid bills, called the administration's program a "legislative monstrosity" he said was "designed not to help education but to help bankers."

Flemming, disputing that, contended that all the pending school aid proposals would require deficit financing, which would mean government borrowing "at interest rates comparing to interest rates on school bonds."

"The damning thing about the administration proposal is that it sidesteps the problem which should be met head-on," Murray said in a statement. "It will take $5,500,000,000 to construct more than 140,000 classrooms needed right now."

Flemming said the five-year program he proposed would make possible three billions of public school construction and two billions of college projects in addition to what was built without government help.

As submitted to Congress Monday the Eisenhower program would call for federal aid to needy school districts—up to a maximum of 85 million dollars a year—to pay half the cost of bonds and interest to finance needed public schools. This would cost about two billion dollars over 25 years.

A college and university aid program would provide up to 25 million dollars a year for debt retirement assistance on construction of housing and academic facilities. Total cost was estimated at half a billion dollars in 25 years.

The aid for public schools would help cover both principal and interest. That for colleges would be limited to principal payments.

Cooper said he regards the college program as a good one but does not think the elementary school construction proposal is adequate.

McNamara said what Eisenhower is proposing might have been sufficient 10 years ago but the shortage of classrooms is much more acute now. He noted also that the administration offered no federal help in increasing the pay of teachers.

"We need much more direct relief to the states than is proposed," he said.

Murray is sponsoring a bill which would make available $1-100,000,000 the first year in grants to the states which they could use for school construction and increases in teachers' pay. These grants would be stepped up each succeeding year until by the fourth year they had reached a permanent level of $4,700,000,000 annually.

Castro Social Revolution More Difficult Than War

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro's Cuban families. A team of soil experts will determine what acreage can be converted to rice, tobacco and coffee crops. Agriculture Minister Humberto Sorí Marín wants U.S. Point 4 aid in this project to diversify crops. Cattle raising and dairy production are integral parts of the program.

Thus Castro hopes to have his country produce the food for which she has been spending millions of dollars annually, mostly from the United States.

High tariffs will protect the Cuban producer and help achieve his goal of economic independence, Castro says.

Unemployment is still another major problem.

A recent United Nations survey said that of a working force of 2,204,000 Cubans, only 1,592,000 have permanent jobs. Of these, 864,000 receive between $30 and $70 monthly. Sugar cane workers average from $30 to $40 a month on an average of five months work a year.

The Batista government last year fixed a minimum wage of $75 a month, but authorities say it was never enforced outside the Havana area.

As commander in chief of the revolutionary army, Fidel Castro also has the job of reorganizing the military and police forces. Observers consider this task the most delicate. In Latin America these elements traditionally are the incubators of splinter groups, dictators and liberators.

As of now, the revolutionary chieftain has the vast majority of Cubans behind him. They mob him wherever he goes and cheer him wildly, especially when he rises in defense of the war crimes trials and executions which have drawn criticism from abroad.

His vigorous defense of the poor farm folk, both militarily and economically, has raised him in stature among the people to a level possibly unprecedented in Latin America history.

Sees Little Profit In Exploring The Planets

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Large-scale exploration of the planets—some of which are but "the chemical dungheap of the solar system"—wouldn't be worth the cost, astronomer Heinz Haber said Monday.

Haber, here for the 10th anniversary of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base, is a former member of the school's faculty.

"Astronomers and astrophysicists have amassed numerous data about the physical and chemical make-up of the alien worlds in our solar system so that we can say with a fair degree of probability that none of them is equipped to be of absolutely vital interest in terms of human affairs," Haber said.

"The other planets are the chemical dungheap of the solar system, and it is not likely that we shall find truly earth-shaking scientific novelties in the masses of noxious chemicals that constitute the outer shells of the planets."

But, he said, space exploration could result—"Outside the defense and propaganda domain," in communications relay satellites, the development of worldwide television networks, and above all, the study and eventual control of weather and climate.

Glennan said he doesn't believe the Soviets have sent a man into space yet and said it is a "most difficult thing—a real challenge."

He added, however, that exploration of the planets "could be justfied primarily in terms of international reputation of this country."

Dr. T. Keith Glennan of Washington, head of the National Aeronautical and Space Agency said this country will launch more than 40 big rockets this year. He said the space probes or satellites will be used for training some of the 12 men to be selected as this country's first space men.

Dr. Hubertus Strughold, professor of space medicine, told reporters man-carrying rockets will probably be sent 20,000 to one million miles from the earth's surface by 1970.

He said the school here will be for various purposes.

Billy Graham On Australia Flight

HONOLULU (AP)—Sun-tanned and rested, Billy Graham left Monday night for a five month religious crusade in Australia and New Zealand.

The 40-year-old evangelist spent three weeks in Hawaii recuperating from a nervous disorder in his left eye which doctors ascribed to overwork and strain.

Graham said that his eye was much improved.

"It's about 75 per cent of normal," he said, "and far better than I'd hoped for. It gives me no pain."

Graham said he had been confined to bed for two or three days with a virus infection but that he was over it.

He will begin his crusade in Melbourne next Sunday and will conduct meetings there for five or six weeks.

After a two-week rest, he will go to New Zealand for religious meetings in Auckland, Christchurch and Wellington, and then return to Australia for services starting in Sydney about April 15. He plans to return to the United States about July 15.

He described his Hawaii vacation—mostly spent golfing, swimming, deep sea fishing and relaxing on the beach—as the "best rest of my life."

His wife, Ruth, who spent three weeks with him here, left Sunday night for their home in North Carolina and their five children.

"Saying goodbye to her was the hardest thing to do," Graham said. "It was a wonderful honeymoon."

Law Reported Changed To 'Fit' Fidel Castro

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's revolutionary government reportedly has lowered the presidential age limit from 35 to 30—thus opening the door to Fidel Castro, 32.
Presidential Palace sources said the Cabinet decree changing the constitutional provision was contained in a special issue of the official gazette Monday night.
Dr. Osvaldo Dorticos, a legal expert for the provisional government, said the change was not made to benefit Castro specifically.
The revolutionary hero has denied he wants to be president, but various leaders of his movement consider him the logical choice. He and Provisional President Manuel Urrutia have said the country should be ready for elections by June 1960.
Constitutional provisions normally can be changed only by a Constituent Assembly. But since the overthrow of President Fulgencio Batista on Jan. 1, the revolutionary forces consider themselves the "source of law" and the provisional government changes the constitution by decree as it sees fit.
On the labor front, Havana's vital tourist trade was threatened once again by a nationwide strike of restaurant and hotel workers called for Thursday to protest the government's continued shutdown of the gambling casinos.
Rancano estimated 10,000 musicians, cabaret artists and other casino employees had been laid off because the rebels closed the gaming houses when they took over.
War crimes executions continued with the firing-squad killing in Bayamo of three Batista soldiers on charges of hanging rebels. In Santa Clara, a former army captain convicted of war crimes also was shot. These brought the unofficial total of executions to 292.

More Textile Firms Have Announced Wage Boosts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
More Southern textile chains have announced wage boosts in what the Textile Workers Union of America calls a movement that "will sweep the South in a matter of weeks."
J. P. Stevens & Co., Dan River Mills of Danville, Va., and American & Efrid Mills said the amount of the wage increase had not been set, but he said the increase would bring the firm's wages "fully in line with other mills."
He said a report of a 4 per cent increase was incorrect, adding that the raise would be as much as necessary to bring wages in line with those paid by other firms.
The company has seven mills in Mount Holly, two in Whitwell, one in Maiden and five in Albemarle. It formerly operated a mill in Gastonia but it has been sold.
President William J. Ervin of Dan River Mills said his company will work out the amount of the increase and the effective date "as soon as possible."
Stevens said its decision to boost the minimum wage was prompted ed by the Senate Commerce Committee's approval of a 10-point program aimed at strengthening the textile industry.

The committee action, a Stevens spokesman reported, "leads us to believe that something affirmative will be done to arrest the decline of U.S. textile manufacturing in recent years."
John Edelman, TWU's Washington representative, said Monday that the union's recent organizing activity was partly responsible for the wage boost movement.
His prediction that the movement will become industry-wide was backed generally by Ervin.
The first pay hike announcement was made two weeks ago by Cannon Mills of Kannapolis, N.C., which employs about 20,000.
It said it would raise the wage minimum by 13 cents to $1.25. Several other textile chains followed with similar announcements.
Earlier, J. Spencer Love, president of Burlington Industries, Inc., had recommended that the present minimum wage law be raised by Congress from $1 to $1.25.
He said the increase in the federal law would be binding on all textile operators and would prevent low wage companies from enjoying a competitive advantage.
Burlington disclosed last week that "some time this year a wage raise will be made" for its employees.
If West Virginia's jagged border lines were pulled into a straight line, it would equal the distance from New York City to Tulsa, Okla.

Jail Locked To Keep People Out

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Granville's jail is locked up tight — to keep people out.
Mayor Edison Rupp booted eight transients out of the seldom used jail Monday after they had become rowdy in a local restaurant.
Legally, the jail cannot be used for prisoners. State fire laws require a jailer when a jail is in use and Granville has no such person.
Vagrants and transients had been using the two-cell jail. Police here use the county jail in nearby Newark.

Offers Hypnosis As Lie-Detector

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Harry Arons of Newark, N.J., who teaches hypnosis, says the technique can be used as a lie detector.
Arons, who just completed a course in hypnosis for doctors, dentists and psychologists at Southern Methodist University here, said the procedure is this: A suspect is hypnotized and a posthypnotic suggestion is placed in his mind.
Then, after he wakes up, he will react with a specific mannerism every time he tells a lie. His eye will twitch, he will pull an ear or rub his head, for instance.

Hollings To Attend Civil Rights Hearings

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Gov. Ernest F. Hollings will go to Washington for hearings on civil rights legislation, and he hopes to persuade three other chief executives from Dixie to make the trip with him.
Hollings said he would state South Carolina's position on the proposed legislation at Senate subcommittee hearings beginning March 18. No date has been set as yet for the appearance.
The 37-year-old chief executive added he was trying to contact Govs. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, Ernest Vandiver of Georgia and Albert Patterson of Alabama to ask them to attend also.
This move, he said, would be part of a "continuing effort" to line up a permanent organization of Southern governors for concentrated action in matters affecting the South.
Hollings said he would also attend House subcommittee hearings and added it "may be appropriate" to take the state's attorney general on the trip.
While there are many local problems, the new governor observed Monday at his second press conference, "The most important . . . is still that of maintaining our Southern way of life — segregation."

tion."
Hollings said he didn't know whether his views would have any influence on Congress, but said he was inclined to accept the invitation from Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) to appear before the congressmen.
Hollings declared that the Civil Rights Commission is "unnecessary" as far as South Carolina is concerned.
"We have had no civil rights cases that would come under the commission in South Carolina. And over the nation I don't believe we've had more than two cases, one in Georgia and one in Alabama," he said.

Wanted Rag Doll In Corner Stone

MILWAUKEE (AP)—When officials of Children's Hospital planned the dedication of a new wing they decided one of the things to be placed in the corner stone would be a rag doll.

The number of Americans at work dropped by 1,267,000—from 63,973,000 in December to 62,706,000 in January. The monthly joint report of the Commerce and Labor Departments attributed the job decline to seasonal factors such as release of extra Christmas season workers in stores and post offices, and further curtailment of outdoor work.

SEAL HUNT

A two-week old harp seal, or whitecoat. These harp pups are main objectives of annual Newfoundland seal hunt.

Carrying gaffs and knives, sealers leave ship for treacherous ice and hunt begins.

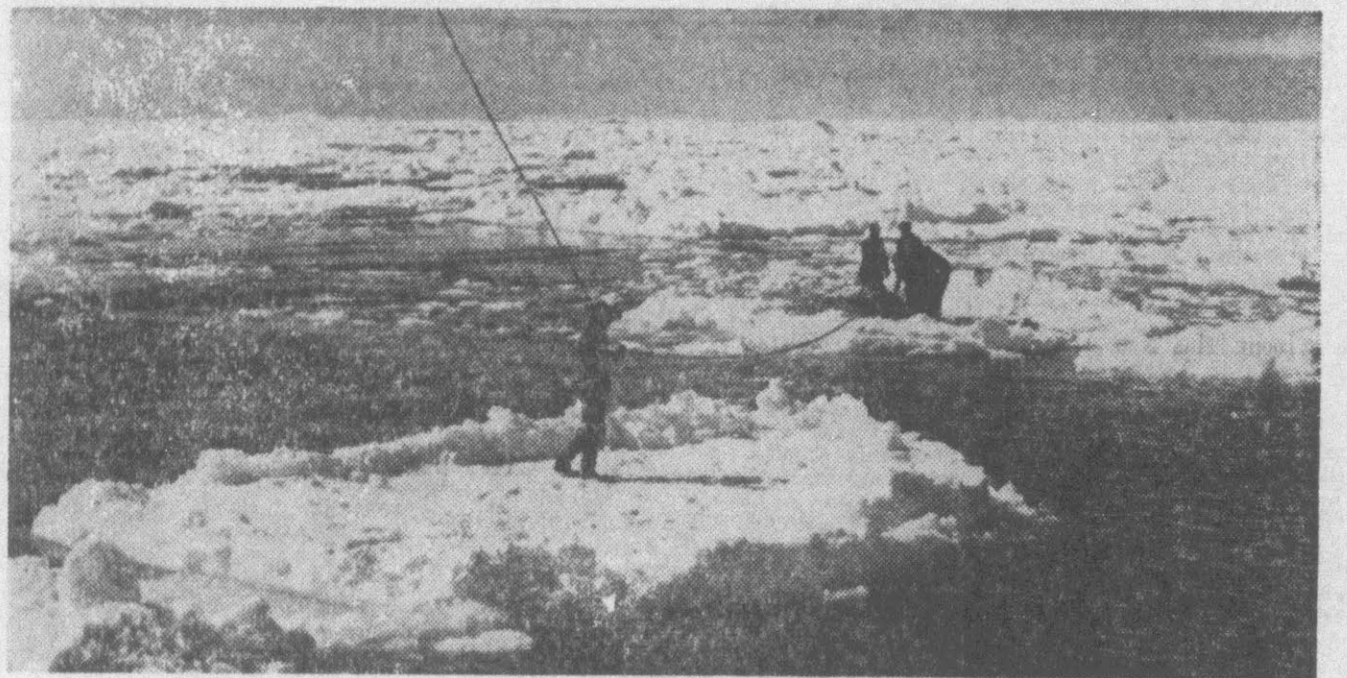

First mate aboard a sealer, with years of experience at sea.

A biting Arctic wind nipped at the watchful faces of the men lining the rail of the sturdy wooden motor-vessel as she breasted the long Atlantic swell off the bleak, north-east coast of Newfoundland.

The ship's iron-clad bow shouldered aside floating sheets of ice, as she cut in toward the coast and the ice-fields. Then from the lookout in the crow's nest came the familiar call: "Old and young ahead!" Out on the rugged, broken surface of the ice were small, distant shapes that moved uneasily. Gaffs in hand, the men dropped down to the treacherous surface. Newfoundland's annual seal hunt had begun.

The seals on the ice were hair seals, largely of two types: harp and hoods. The sealers were chiefly interested in getting their haul of the harp pups, or whitecoats, which are taken for their skin and blubber. The skins are used in making fancy leather articles, while the seal oil is used in soap and as a burning oil. Current annual kill runs around 150,000 seals.

Footing is not too sure, but work goes ahead. A load of pelts is winched aboard the ship.

After the day's hunt on the bleak ice, the sealers wait to board their ship.

Sailor sells seal flippers in St. John's. They're considered a delicacy.

ON THE HOUSE

WEEKEND'S WORK—New ceiling materials can easily be installed in the average room over one weekend. The reigning Mrs. America, Mrs. William Giesse of Cleveland in private life, shows how easy they go up.

By ANDREW C. LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Put together a steady ladder, a stapler, a couple of boxes of tiles and a weekend — and you can have a new ceiling in the attic, the basement or any room in the house.

The word tile once was used to designate a product made of fired clay or some other hard, tough material that could be broken but not dented. These days it is used loosely to describe many different items, ranging from a drain tile, which resembles a short length of pipe to a selling tile, which is anything but a hard, tough material. In some cases, the tile—possibly to get away from the misnomer—is called a panel.

It is because a ceiling tile or panel is of fibrous, porous quality that it has such excellent value—entirely aside from its decorative purposes. It absorbs sound and so prevents noise from bouncing around a room. This is true with even the ordinary fiberboard type of ceiling tile, although the modern acoustical tile has even greater sound-deadening qualities.

Prisoners Meet The Press To Offset Publicity

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The 28 cellmates of Tank D at the county jail held a press conference Monday. They wanted to offset the "bad publicity" of their protest demonstration Sunday.

From the way it looked in the paper, prisoner spokesman Don E. Reed complained to reporters, "they'd think we were throwing a riot for no reason at all. What are our mothers going to think?" Sheriff Arvid Owsley pooh-poohed the demonstration. Just a lot of noise, he told the newspapers, because the prisoners didn't like Friday night's soup.

Monday, the inmates asked for equal time with the press. Owsley agreed.

It's not just the quality of the food they're getting, the prisoners said, it's the quantity—not enough.

There are two million male physicians in the United States, plus 12,000 women physicians.

Wide Variety

Once available only in white and ivory, and in 12 x 12 squares, the tiles now are available in a wide variety of striking designs, color schemes and sizes to harmonize with all types of room furnishings.

It is wise to purchase the tiles at least a day or two before you plan to begin the installation. Open the cartons and leave them in the room where they will be put up. This permits the tiles to become acclimated to temperature and moisture conditions so that they will not unduly expand or contract within the 24 hours or so after being attached. Mix panels from two or more cartons for the best blending of finishes rather than working from one carton at a time.

Before putting up the furring strips—to which the tiles are stapled—measure the ceiling area carefully for width and length. This establishes the total number of tiles to be used. For example, if the ceiling measures 102 inches in width and 128 inches in length, and the panels are the 12 by 12 size, it is established that eight panels are needed for the width with 3-inch borders. By the same token, ten panels are needed for the length with 4-inch borders.

Wide Borders Best
In this instance, the borders are somewhat narrow. Since narrow borders are not generally considered desirable, it is advisable to subtract one panel from the width and one from the length. This leaves a wider border—seven panels for the width, with 9-inch borders, and nine panels for the length, with 10-inch borders. The furring strips are then nailed in place so that the edges of all tiles fall on the wood and do not hang in the air.

Placing the tiles in simple, even rows is the quickest and most popular way of installing them. But you can get more interesting effects by putting up the tiles in staggered patterns rather than with continuous joints. This is done by starting alternate rows with half-tiles.

Stapling is preferred over nailing because it virtually eliminates any chance of damaging the panels while putting them up. Most tiles come with special tongue-and-groove arrangement. One type, for instance, has a so-called "lightning joint" that allow the tiles to be fitted together quickly and easily and keeps them in automatic alignment.

House Built By Students Sold; Earned A Profit

CLINTON, Okla. (AP)—Carpentry student in Clinton High school not only learn to do a job — they do it profitably.

Under the guidance of vocational instructor Jack Hefner, 30 students will finish their sixth home this spring in as many years — and they expect to sell it, as they have the other five, for a profit.

The newest home, in a fashionable Clinton residential area, will have 1,150 square feet of living space, plus carport and enclosed storage space.

Hefner says profits from construction of the first five houses averaged about $1,000 each. The last home, completed in May, 1958, sold for $15,000.

"Our price for the finished product," Hefner points out, "is very much in line with the cost of the same house constructed by union craftsmen."

Profits from the home-building projects have been used to buy a pickup truck for the vocational carpenetry class, power equipment and tools for various class activities, such as picnics for boys who have worked on the projects.

The class members, ranging from 15 to 19 years of age, do all the wood-construction work, including finishing inside the houses. Concrete work, brickwork, plumbing and electrical wiring are done by local contractors.

Union carpenters in Clinton have endorsed the home-building program and permit advanced students from Hefner's classes to enter the trade as second-year apprentices.

Homes aren't the only construction projects taken on by Hefner's students. In the nine years he has been at the school, his classes have built a brick-and-glass industrial arts shop building at Clinton High School, the high school auto mechanics building, a lunchroom at a grade school, put catwalks, seats and a press box in the stadium, installed science tables and equipment at the high school and helped in construction of a kitchen and lockers at another grade school.

The carpenetry students work about six hours a day, Monday through Friday, on their projects, including some classroom time. Hefner explains that he works textbook theory into the actual construction work.

Cancer Research Material Safe In Costly Blaze

NEW YORK (AP)—Material on government-subsidized research projects escaped damage in a half-million-dollar fire in a chemistry building at Fordham University.

Firemen fought the explosion-dotted blaze on the Bronx campus for an hour to bring it under control Monday. A student laboratory assistant was treated for smoke poisoning.

The salvaged material pertained to cancer research projects for the National Institute of Health and the Air Force and an undisclosed project for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. William O'Connor, chairman of Fordham's chemistry Department, said total loss probably would reach about $500,000, including $250,000 worth of scientific equipment.

The injured student was Frank Monahan, 20, of Greenwich, Conn., a junior.

'Rembrandt' Sketches A Report On TV Programs

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Our man Rembrandt came to us highly recommended as a chap with knowledge of history and the expressive arts who wanted, for some reason, to be a television reporter. Sent fishing on an interview expedition, he turned in the following report:

To the hotel suite of Gian Carlo Menotti, whose opera, "The Medium" will be performed on "Omnibus" (NBC-TV) next Sunday (Feb. 15, 5 p.m., EST).

Menotti gracious. Discussed with him some of his previous operatic works, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," etc., etc. He said he staging "The Medium" for "Omnibus" Sunday. Hopes the stage set will have an elevator for one scene. On March 8 NBC-TV will present a two-hour production of his opera, "Maria Golovin," which was sung at the Brussels World's Fair.

Menotti said that opera on stage has to amplify all the emotions to carry beyond the orchestra pit, but opera on TV must be close-up, intimate. He believes all contemporary operas performed in America should be sung in English. Note he doesn't mean traditional European operas.

Traditional opera, done from the stage, looks ludicrous on television and in movies, he said, adding it was like serving a sardine on a huge silver platter.

On to interview with Walter Millis, noted military historian. Next Sunday he will narrate "Remember the Maine and to Hell with Spain," an account of the Spanish American War on "John Hopkins File 7" (ABC-TV, 11:30 a.m., EST). Sunday the 61st anniversary of the sinking of the Maine.

Millis, distinguished looking, gray-haired gentleman, said his narration will be illustrated with contemporary photographs. An experienced newspaper man, he expressed doubt there was much of a story in him personally.

Disagreed with him. Believe he interesting man, Spanish-American war interesting though depressing little war. Suggested to him his book, "The Martial Spirit," best history of that war. Also recommended Millis's most recent book, "Arms and Men," a history of U.S. military policy.

"It's not surprising there's not much interest in the Spanish-American war these days," Millis said. "There have been too many big wars since."

On his Sunday program, he said, he draws no moral but simply tells the story of the war that so many people have forgotten.

Brief Terror As Tornado Strikes

By JIM VAN VALKENBERG

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—"I was in a tornado once before and I knew this was one as soon as I heard it coming. I shouted to my wife, 'Grab the kids and head for the basement.'"

So Charles Tibbs described the terrifying moment in which a tornado roared through his block near Busch Stadium, the home of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team.

"I grabbed one of our children and my wife the other," he said. "But we didn't make it to the basement."

The storm crashed through a row of brick apartment houses across the street from Tibbs' home. It blew out the windows of his place. None of his family was seriously injured, only dazed and shaken.

Police credited cab driver Bill Purcell, who lives in the same block, with saving the life of a motorist by warning him to stay in his car which was covered by downed electrical wires.

Purcell said a car came along, drove over the wires and they curled around it like snakes.

"Boy, it was dark—but when that car hit the wires it lit up like a flare," Purcell said. "I yelled that if he got out he was a dead man."

A policeman helped Purcell to convince the motorist of his danger. Linemen arrived eventually and made the area safe. The driver went on.

His Dog Stuck In Tank, He Sues

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP)—

The owner of a dog that got stuck in a septic tank is suing the tank's owner and several John Does for $12,600 damages.

Edwin C. Sears, a Menlo Park dog breeder, charged in a Superior Court suit that the tank, hidden in bushes behind Dr. George H. Neumayr's summer home west of Menlo Park, was "carelessly maintained."

His champion Irish setter Hunter's Sun vanished into the tank and was not found for five days, Sears stated.

He wants $5,000 in general damages $5,000 in punitive damages, $2,000 for loss of the dog's stud services, $500 in veterinary fees and $100 he paid to the man who extricated Hunter's Sun.

THE 8TH CIRCLE A MASTER MYSTERY BY STANLEY ELLIN

CHAPTER 24

The lobby of the St. Stephen had long since been deserted by banqueters when Murray and Ruth entered it. A few charwomen swung mops back and froth over the marble floor and paid them no attention.

ed and her teeth clenched, but not succeeding. "I'm so cold," she gasped; and when he got an arm around her, her weight sagging against him, he could hear her teeth chattering.

Half-dragging, half-carrying her, he got her into the bathroom, shoved open the door of the stall shower, and turned on the hot-water tap full force. The water jetted down in a blast of steam. He felt the scalding pain of it on his arm from a remote distance, turned on cold water to lessen the heat, and pushed Ruth under the shower, holding her there, supporting her with one hand, forcing her head down with the other, while the steaming spray drenched him blindingly.

It was rough treatment, but effective. When he finally turned the water off and released her she leaned back weakly against the wall of the shower, but with fatigue and not sickness now, her chest heaving, her skin no longer that terrifying ashen gray, but colored by the glow of returning warmth. Like that, her hair in dark, dripping strands, her garments plastered wetly to her body, she was far more disturbing to Murray than he had bargained for. And wasn't she herself aware of that?

Apparently not. Because when he said brusquely, "How do you feel now?" she made a wry face, obviously ashamed of her weakness, and just as obviously not concerned with the appearance she made before him. "Better," she said. "Almost human."

"Should I call the doctor? There's one right downstairs." "No, I really am better. Just a little weak in the knees, that's all." Her lips quirked in a pale smile. "You must think I'm pretty much of a mess, don't you?" "Maybe I do," he said, and turned away from her stricken face to take a bath sheet from its rack and hand it to her. "I guess you can be left to yourself now. Get out of those things and wrap up in this while I dig up something for you to wear. I'll wait for you inside."

He left her holding the bath sheet, looking after him with a clouded expression, and the expression was with him when he went into the bedroom to change his own soaking-wet shirt and underwear.

He drew a cigarette from a pack on his dresser and lit it, the taste bitter in his mouth. He wondered if he were coming down with something the way he felt. The sensation of chill permeating him must have been what Ruth had gone through before.

In the living room he went to work at the fireplace. He was lifting a log when Ruth's voice came from behind him. "I must be getting home," she said, as if there had never been any question about it in the first place. "What do I do about clothes? My things are soaping."

So that was that, Murray saw. The party was over, the time had come to say good-bye and not au revoir. "There's some stuff in the bottom drawer of my dresser—sweaters and skirts—and a pair of fancy mules that'll do for shoes. They belong to a friend," he said, hoping to draw some response to this, no matter how tart. "They'll probably fit well enough. And you can use one of my coats." She remained indifferent. "All right. How long would it take to call a cab here?"

"You won't need any cab. I'll drive you home." "I'd rather you didn't." "I'd rather I did. There's a certain hard-boiled gentleman who may be taking a close interest in you."

"I don't think so," Ruth said.

"You mean you don't believe so." "That's right. I don't believe so." Murray said evenly: "And you still think I'm playing on Wykoff's side. In spite of what you saw tonight."

"What does it take to convince you?" he asked. "Do I have to bring you the evidence against Arnold wrapped up in a pink ribbon?"

"You could never do that," she said. He gave up then. There was no longer any chance of penetrating the wall she had built around herself, no sense battering himself against it when every blow only seemed to reinforce it. So he drove her home in silence, her answer to him the final words spoken between them.

When he returned to the apartment the first ray of light of dawn was showing at the windows. Ruth's blue dress lay in a heap near the stall shower, the high-heeled slippers, their toes curling as they drier, near it; the newspaper he had been reading in the tub the evening before—a hundred years before—neatly folded on the sink.

He swept everything together into a damp bundle, baled them together and flung them into the disposal can in the kitchenette. Then he went into the bedroom and picked up the phone.

It took Mrs. Knapp a long time to answer, and when she did her voice was thick with sleep. "Mr. Kirk," she said dully, "there's nothing wrong, is there?" "No," Murray said, "but I won't be getting to the office until very late. Meanwhile, I want you to assign a couple of men to keep an eye on Miss Vincent. Ruth Vincent, have you got that? It's protective service, but she's not to know anything about it. Take care of that as soon as you get in. Oh, yes, and you can close the file on Lundeen. Conny-Kirk's finished with the case."

"We are?" Mrs. Knapp sounded puzzled. "Then who do we charge Miss Vincent's expenses to? Isn't she—"

"All I said was that Conny-Kirk is through with the case. But I'm taking it over on my own now. Any expenses in regard to it can be charged to me. Not the office, a personal account right here at the hotel. Just charge it all to Murray Kirk."

To Murray's plan, Bruno Manfredi responds: "It isn't every day I get such a wonderful chance to get beat up and put in jail. But I wouldn't want to take advantage of you, Murray. Do somebody else the favor." Continue the story here tomorrow.

'Crackdown' On Girl-Whistling

BANGKOK Thailand (AP)—Thai authorities have clamped down on street-corner dandies who hang around Bangkok's theaters and coffee shops whistling at the girls.

Suspects Island 'Garden Of Eden'

BEHREIN, Persian Gulf (AP)—A British archeologist believes Bahrain may have been the legendary Garden of Eden. Dr. Geoffrey Bibby told a news conference it was "overwhelmingly likely" the Persian Gulf island was once the city of Dilmun mentioned in an ancient epic as the original abode of Adam and Eve.

He cited the Gilgamesh epic, which refers to Eden as a desert spot made fertile through a God-given spring. Bibby said a Danish archeologist had confirmed that Bahrain became fertile several thousand years ago following a period as a desert.

Ask To Intervene In Pipeline Plan

RALEIGH—North Carolina Natural Gas Corporation Monday filed a petition with the North Carolina Utilities Commission to intervene in a hearing on a pipeline project application previously filed by Public Service Company of N.C. Inc.

The proposed project, contends the petitioner, "may prevent adequate development of natural gas utility service in eastern North Carolina, and particularly in northeastern North Carolina."

Public Service, in its earlier application, sought authority to build transmission lines into the northern border counties of Granville, Vance, and Warren.

Volney H. Kyle, Jr., Executive Vice-President of N. C. Natural, which is now constructing a $22 million gas transmission system in south-central and eastern North Carolina, is commenting on his company's proceedings, declared:

"We do not oppose Natural Gas service into new areas anywhere; however, we do feel no new pipeline should be constructed which will block the present needs and future development of industry, and gas utility service generally, in eastern North Carolina."

Maintaining the Public Service project would do just that, the intervention request states: "North Carolina Natural Gas Corporation has an interest in and responsibility to these areas, and intervenes for the purpose of objecting to any action which does not consider the long-range future needs of North Carolina as a whole..."

Ike Voices Belief U. S. Planes Lured Across Borders

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today voiced belief that some American planes have been lured across Iron Curtain country borders by false radio signals.

Eisenhower told a news conference that American pilots have strict orders not to play a fox and hunt game by flying along Soviet borders in order to gain intelligence information.

He went on to say that American planes sometimes crossed the border due to navigational errors. And, he added, he believed Soviet radio signals once in a while may have drawn U. S. planes over Soviet or satellite territory.

But for American planes to do anything to cause Soviet fighters to scramble in defense is strictly against orders, he said.

He said Eisenhower's 150th news conference since he took office six years ago. He touched on these other matters:

DULLES—The President praised ailing Secretary of State Dulles as the most valuable man he has ever known in the foreign affairs field. Eisenhower said that despite Dulles' new illness he looks for no delay in negotiations between the Western Allies and the Soviet Union regarding Berlin.

School Board ...

McGowan pointed out that the committee which studied public school finance made no recommendation for reduction in the state's responsibility for schools.

In that connection, he quoted a portion of the committee's report which states, "In the provision of additional funds for public education, we recommend that there be no reduction in the responsibility of the state or replacement of state support by support from any other unit of government."

"The dimensions of the need will require increased support from both the state government and the local government," McGowan also said. "We have had a cooperative plan of public school finance in North Carolina since 1911. This plan should be continued with increased state and local support of our schools."

Change Address To Australia

SYDNEY (AP) — A California lawyer, his wife and four children have come to Australia as migrants and full-time chicken farmers.

They are Edwin Saunders, his wife, and their children Linda 11, Donna 5, Robert 3, and Theresa 11 months.

"I had a general law practice in Los Angeles, but chicken raising has always been my relaxation," Saunders said. "I raised 10,000 chickens in my spare time at Sonoma, near San Francisco."

Her Pinup Boys Are Heavy Brass

KEARNY, N.J. (AP)—Mrs. Joseph Bersey's scrapbook is filled with pictures of soldiers and sailors—the leading generals and admirals of World War II.

She began collecting autographed pictures of them after she wrote Gen. Eisenhower in 1945 sending him a four-leaf clover and he sent back a signed photograph and a letter. She has 44 pictures now and sends a Christmas card to all her "gallery."

Has Ancestors All Around Him

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — It'll be no surprise if Zane Edward Cargile gets just a little spoiled.

Born here recently, he has four grandparents, four great-grandparents and two great-great-grandparents. Eight of them live in his hometown Hobbs.

Parable Again Grows Talents

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—A minister put the "Multiplied Talents" idea to work, and it paid dividends.

Rev. Max Hickerson, pastor of Central Christian Church, used the scriptural backing in Matthew 25: 14-30 to induce his congregation to multiply a dollar into whatever they saw fit. The members backed him by increasing $250 to $1,000.

One man brought in $45 by spending his dollar for white gloves. He sold them and invested his money in more gloves until he came up with the contribution.

Wrong Number, The Judge's Car

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Circuit Judge Harry Mundt asked the man who had pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated for his license number.

The man said he didn't remember but the car was just outside. He looked out the window and began reading off a number as Judge Mundt took it down.

Suddenly Judge Mundt reared back, stared at what he'd written and declared, "why, that's my number."

The man apologized and the judge said he was certain it was an honest mistake.

Boy Charged

A 10-year-old boy was arrested yesterday by police in connection with two breaking and entering charges. The boy was charged with breaking and entering the Carolina Dairy, Washington Street, and Central Service Station, 200 West Fourth Street. Damage in both instances was estimated at $300. No theft was established.

Little Arabic Is Taught In U.S.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Instruction in Arabic is offered by only 23 out of an estimated 1,300 American institutions of higher learning, survey based here shows.

Prof. Menahem Mansoor of the University of Wisconsin Department of Hebrew and Semitic Studies conducted the survey. He pointed out that Arabic is the tongue spoken daily by more than 65 million persons of the Middle East and the sacred language for 250 million people of the world.

Council Brakes Traditional Sale

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—Going out of business sales may soon be scarce in this city.

The City Council voted down a jewelry store's petition to hold such a sale because it thinks too many stores neglect to go out of business after the sale.

for government jobs. Eisenhower said, but they always are secondary considerations.

Asked about reports that Meade Aicon, Republican national chairman, had vetoed selection of Henry Labouisse to head the International Cooperation Administration, Eisenhower replied emphatically that no one has any right of veto over his selection of any man for a federal post.

SCHOOLS — Eisenhower was told that some people feel he added that the Navy will provide the ship just as soon as the private group completes plans on financing the project.

There had been no official word previously on this project, but the San Francisco Chronicle said last week there were plans by the People-to-People Health Foundation to use a Navy hospital ship as a medical school in a yearlong tour of Southeast Asian countries. The Chronicle said 3 1/2 million dollars would be raised from private sources to finance the project.

ECONOMY — Eisenhower emphasized once again how important he feels it is to preserve the integrity and soundness of the American dollar. He set forth his views anew on that when asked for comment on whether more emphasis should be placed on greater spending to keep this nation's economy ahead of the Soviet Union's.

Having to levy taxes to make up for the withholding windfall. He said he has no apology to make for presenting a budget including 50 million dollars in new appropriations, without any increases in taxes. I think it's wonderful,"

At the same time, the governor said he "would not hesitate a minute" to ask for new tax money to put into effect a proposed 10 million dollar incentive fund for public school support.

The trend of the economy in the next two or three months will determine whether he will go back to the lawmakers with tax proposals to finance the fund, Hodges explained.

Hodges Defends Reliance On Tax 'Windfall' In Balancing His Budget

RALEIGH (AP)—Use of a 27 1/2 million dollar "windfall" from a withholding income tax collection plan to balance the state's budget for the next biennium was defended today by Governor Hodges.

"I'd rather have the money in hand, but I see nothing wrong with it," Hodges replied to a news reporter who asked if the governor felt such budget balancing was "good fiscal policy."

Hodges asserted that North Carolina's climbing economy, spurred on by industrial development, may register gains in the next two years to eliminate the possibility of the 1961 Legislature to a state job he can fill vacancies in the office.

It also provides that for such jobs the governor may appoint acting officials under the following circumstances: (A) during the physical or mental incapacity of the regular office holder; (B) during the continued absence of the regular office holder; and (C) during a vacancy in an office and pending the selection of a person to fill the office.

Bills Introduced To Carry Out Reorganization Plans

RALEIGH (AP)—Five bills to carry out recommendations of the Commission on Reorganization of the State Government were introduced in the House today.

Reps. Frank Sneed of Mecklenburg, Cloyd Philpott of Davidson and George Uzzell of Rowan sent forward the five bills. One would allow the governor to fill vacancies in state jobs on a temporary basis in certain cases.

Meanwhile, plans were made for the entire membership of the General Assembly to be briefed tomorrow and Thursday on details of the billion dollar budget which was presented to the Legislature last night.

On Wednesday afternoon, the lawmakers will hear a discussion of spending recommendations made by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission. D. S. Coltrane, the state's budget officer, will lead the discussion. On Thursday, the legislators will hear from James S. Currie, commissioner of revenue.

The Reorganization Commission recommended that the two turnpike authorities be abolished because there is now virtually no prospect of the construction of the turnpikes which they were created to build. The Carolina-Virginia Turnpike Authority was set up to build a scenic toll turnpike along the Outer Banks from the Nags Head area to the Virginia line, and the North Carolina Turnpike Authority was created to build a turnpike from the Gastonia area to the vicinity of Mount Airy.

Little Arabic Is Taught In U.S.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Instruction in Arabic is offered by only 23 out of an estimated 1,300 American institutions of higher learning, survey based here shows.

Prof. Menahem Mansoor of the University of Wisconsin Department of Hebrew and Semitic Studies conducted the survey. He pointed out that Arabic is the tongue spoken daily by more than 65 million persons of the Middle East and the sacred language for 250 million people of the world.

Parable Again Grows Talents

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—A minister put the "Multiplied Talents" idea to work, and it paid dividends.

Rev. Max Hickerson, pastor of Central Christian Church, used the scriptural backing in Matthew 25: 14-30 to induce his congregation to multiply a dollar into whatever they saw fit. The members backed him by increasing $250 to $1,000.

Wrong Number, The Judge's Car

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Circuit Judge Harry Mundt asked the man who had pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated for his license number.

The man said he didn't remember but the car was just outside. He looked out the window and began reading off a number as Judge Mundt took it down.

Suddenly Judge Mundt reared back, stared at what he'd written and declared, "why, that's my number."

Boy Charged

A 10-year-old boy was arrested yesterday by police in connection with two breaking and entering charges. The boy was charged with breaking and entering the Carolina Dairy, Washington Street, and Central Service Station, 200 West Fourth Street. Damage in both instances was estimated at $300. No theft was established.

for government jobs. Eisenhower said, but they always are secondary considerations.

Asked about reports that Meade Aicon, Republican national chairman, had vetoed selection of Henry Labouisse to head the International Cooperation Administration, Eisenhower replied emphatically that no one has any right of veto over his selection of any man for a federal post.
