

Greene Board Restates Intent To Call For Bond Vote

BULLETIN

SNOW HILL — A committee representing Greene County Negro parents issued a statement after noon today in which they said they hoped parents of striking students will accept the board of education's resolution concerning the school situation.

"We hope our parents will accept it and we have confidence that the board will correct the conditions as soon as possible," the statement said. "We will do all we can to open school Monday morning."

The statement noted; "We, as a committee, met with the board of education and presented the sentiment of the people to them. In return they read to us a resolution which was adopted by them."

Serving on the committee are: Mrs. Dora Mae Farmer, president of the county-wide Negro PTA; Merritt Olds, Snow Hill, Joe Edwards, Rt. 1, Hookerton and Haywood Williams, Snow Hill.

After the statement was read Mrs. Farmer reiterated a statement she made yesterday in which she said she felt the board is most honest and "I feel it as good as any board in the United States."

A meeting of the Negro group is planned for tonight at the Training School auditorium. Leaders asked that only parents and bus drivers attend this meeting. It was requested that other students not attend.

SNOW HILL—Greene County's Board of Education this morning re-stated its intention to call for a county-wide bond election which would provide funds for facilities listed as needs by striking students of Greene County Training School.

The board's position was outlined in a statement released by Chairman Maynard Hicks after the group had met in an executive session for more than two and a half hours.

According to the statement, the board of education advised Greene County Commissioners two weeks ago that the bond issue would be requested.

Meanwhile, the county's Negro students continued a strike which began Tuesday and which has closed all of the county's six Negro schools. A statement from the board yesterday indicated that the schools would re-open Friday morning, but representatives of parents of the striking students said this morning schools would not re-open until they had a written and signed statement from the board that the requested facilities will be provided.

Included in the requested facilities are a gymnasium, an auditorium, a cafeteria and additional classroom space. The striking students, and the parents' representatives say they are all needed at the Training School, only Negro high school in the county.

Mrs. Dora Mae Farmer, president of the county-wide Negro PTA, said this morning that Negro students regard the presentation of a signed promise from the board as a condition that the schools will be re-opened. She added, "The schools will remain closed until we get some consideration."

"All we want," she said, "is the promise of equal facilities."

Mrs. Farmer and three other Negro adults met with board members had discussed the situation for an hour and 25 minutes in a closed session. She was accompanied by Joe Edwards of Rt. 1, Hookerton; Merritt Olds of Snow Hill; and Haywood Williams, also of Snow Hill.

They told reporters prior to being called before the board, that the striking students "want to go back and we will have no trouble getting them back if the board promises the requested facilities."

The board's position, outlined in the prepared statement released by Hicks, is that it has been engaged in a long-range building program since 1950.

"Since that time," according to the statement, "(the board) had been progressing with the program as fast as monetary limitations would permit."

The statement also included the comment, "The board also restates that within the past two months that both the board of education and the county commissioners have been jointly discussing and thinking in terms of a bond election in order to provide additional facilities in the long-range building program."

"It is still the intention of the board, as it was prior to this incident, to ask the county board of commissioners to call the bond election in the near future, as the board advised the commissioners last first Monday, in order that the facilities might be provided, including those as set forth as needs in the Greene County Training School."

Decision to continue the strike until the board gives strikers a signed statement promising construction was made last night at a meeting of about 400 Negro parents. The meeting was called to relay what was said at Wednesday's board of education meeting.

Hundreds of pupils shouted down Negro school officials when they urged an end to the boycott at the mass meeting of parents and their children here last night. The meeting was suggested by the education board in an attempt to "iron out the problem."

The student leaders emphasized they are not seeking integrated schools. The protest, they said, centers on what they consider inadequate facilities at the county's only Negro high school.

The Negro adults who met with the board today insisted in talks with reporters that the strike is "strictly a local thing." They said the NAACP is not connected in any way. Mrs. Farmer added, "I know the NAACP. They have not been to see us."

A $450,000 bond issue was approved by county voters last November for a new white school. The county has spent $1,165,000 on school construction during the last 10 years. More than half of the amount, according to the board, went for Negro schools.

Crisis Grows As Storied Wabash River Flooding

PERU, Ind. (AP)—The historic Wabash River rose to a new flood crisis today as it swirled onto farmlands in western Indiana, with predicted rain threatening to heighten the seas of water.

The storied banks of the Wabash, marked only by towering sycamores, disappeared under the ice-choked floodwater spreading over vast lowlands as far down stream as Terre Haute.

Rains were expected to start in the flood zones tonight, possibly continuing into Saturday and expected to add new victims to the 1,500 families already chased out of their homes across north-central Indiana—1,000 of them in Peru.

Mild temperatures in the 40s today and into the upper 50s Friday indicated possibility of breakups in the ice jams which contributed to the worst floods at Peru and Wabash since 1913.

Terre Haute looked like the next major trouble spot with a Wabash crest predicted there for Saturday.

A car with an unidentified body inside was found in floodwaters north of Terre Haute.

Gov. Harold W. Handley declared a state of emergency in 13 northern and central Indiana counties and asked President Eisenhower to designate the counties as disaster areas to gain favorable loans for rehabilitation.

Nearly 1,000 families were removed from their homes at Peru when the Wabash burst through sandbags and poured over the two floodwalls at the north and south ends of town Wednesday night. The river level then began to drop.

The floodwaters by-passed a mile-long ice jam between Peru and Logansport and a massive 13-mile jam in the channel between Logansport and Delphi.

National guardsmen patrolled Peru's south side to watch for looting. The Red Cross set up 11 shelter areas but few evacuees took advantage of them.

"People here are so used to these floods that they have a standard procedure set up," explained Robert Tillet, chairman of the local Red Cross Disaster Committee. "They go straight to the homes of friends and relatives."

Most of the evacuation was on foot or by car and truck. Firemen in boats rescued about 50 stranded persons, including one young boy with a broken leg.

A mile-long ice jam about four miles downstream from Peru was cited as one of the major causes of the flood.

Demolition experts studied the possibility of trying to dynamite the jam, but an engineer, R. D. Walker, said he's never seen explosives take out a jam that size.

Ice also was the big problem farther downstream where it was feared conditions would grow worse as jams broke up or melted.

Eighty National Guardsmen joined volunteers in helping to evacuate more than 50 families at Logansport. The river reached 19.5 feet there, the highest mark since 1948, and still was rising.

Another 75 families were evacuated in the Lafayette area, where the Wabash began rising slowly again after remaining at the same level for several hours.

Still farther downstream at West Terre Haute, workers battled frantically to keep pace with the rising waters of Sugar Creek which flows into the Wabash.

"Every time we pile up another foot of sandbags, the creek goes up another foot," said one tired volunteer.

With the help of 30 National Guardsmen dispatched by the governor, the workers stayed a step ahead of the water.

Residents in West Terre Haute were advised to prepare for possible evacuation. Several families jumped the gun by moving out during the night.

Lincoln Termed 'Incomparable' By Sandburg As Thousands Pay Honor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Abraham Lincoln was termed incomparable today while thousands joined in paying homage to his memory in the United States and abroad.

That singular word of praise was voiced by one of the ranking Lincoln scholars, Carl Sandburg, before a joint session of Congress. The white-haired poet put it this way:

"Not often in the story of mankind does a man arrive on earth who is as hard as rock and as soft as drifting fog, who holds in his heart and mind the paradox of terrible storm and peace unspeakable and perfect. The incomparable Abraham Lincoln, born 150 years ago this day, is an approach if not a perfect realization of this character."

Sandburg was the principal speaker at ceremonies in Washington attended by justices of the Supreme Court, members of the President's Cabinet and the diplomatic corps.

Hundreds made a pilgrimage to Lincoln's marble tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery in Springfield, Ill. In a program there the national commander of the American Legion, Preston J. Moore, stated that Lincoln's qualities are sorely needed in this atomic era.

"If the United States will but face up to its task, we can solve the life-or-death riddle of the atomic age," Moore said. "The solution lies in showing to the world that our way of life holds the greatest promise for struggling mankind."

President Eisenhower led a birthday eve tribute to the Civil War President and stated that Lincoln belongs to humanity.

Eisenhower attended a memorial dinner Wednesday night in a Washington hotel. Two former chief executives—Herbert Hoover and Harry Truman—sent letters to be read at the gathering sponsored by the Lincoln Group of the District of Columbia.

President Eisenhower, sharing the speaking program with the Rt. Rev. Richard S. M. Emrich of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, said it was the hope of Americans and of freedom's sentinels everywhere that "the spirit of Lincoln be close at hand as we meet each successive challenge to freedom."

Eisenhower earlier quoted Lincoln in an appeal for governmental economy and a balanced budget.

He made the allusion in declaring Lincoln was against borrowing money and "an overwhelming, crushing system."

A strikingly appropriate observance in Springfield, Ill., where the 16th president first rose to national prominence, will hear a speech tonight by Mayor Willy of West Berlin. Brandt, free leader of a city in a divided country, will speak only a few blocks from where Lincoln made a speech on slavery that contained the line: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

Diplomats from more than 21 countries will be in Springfield, which also is the scene of the traditional American Legion pilgrimage to Lincoln's tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Besides Brandt, speakers include Ambassadors Sir Harold Caccia of Great Britain and Herve Alphan of France.

England itself will be the scene of several anniversary observances. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will lay a wreath on behalf of the British government at the Lincoln statue in Parliament Square in London. Another wreath laying is scheduled in Manchester.

New one-cent Lincoln postage stamps go on sale today in Hodgenville, Ky., where he was born Feb. 12, 1809.

Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky will hang a wreath on the door of the tiny log cabin, Lincoln's birthplace near Hodgenville.

The Lincoln Sesquicentennial Assn., in Los Angeles tonight will hear Allan Nevins, former chairman of the Columbia University history department, speak on "Lincoln and the Sesquicentennial." Nevins is now chief regional research fellow at the Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif.

On the political front, Meade Alcorn, Republican national chairman, announced that GOP speakers at Lincoln dinners this month have been given this theme:

"Emulate Lincoln's example of turning a '58 defeat into a '60 victory."

Appointments

Sen. Robert Lee Humber, Pitt County's freshman senator in the General Assembly, has been appointed vice-chairman of the Senate committee on University Trustees.

The announcement was made in Raleigh yesterday by Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt who announced the members of 29 more committees to complete the Senate's organization.

In addition to the committee on University Trustees, Sen. Humber was also appointed to these other committees: Finance, Agriculture, Conservation and Development, Constitution, Interstate and Federal Relations, Judiciary II, Salaries and Fees.

Superior Rating For Guard Btry

National Guard Service Battery here received a superior rating from the Third Army Command Maintenance Inspection team, Administrative Supply Technician Mayo Allen reported today.

The regular army team, composed of a lieutenant colonel and approximately 12 enlisted men, inspected Greenville's two National Guard units and two Army Reserve units during the day.

"Service Battery for the first time in several years made superior all the way with no major, and only a few minor, deficiencies found," Allen said.

He said Major L. H. Davis, state maintenance officer for the North Carolina National Guard, described the local Service Battery as one of the best units inspected yet. More than 100 units have been inspected so far.

Allen said the Third Army Inspection team made a special notation that the National Guard armory here was "arranged and in better condition than most new ones they had inspected."

The armory houses both Service Battery and Battery C of the 295th FA Bn.

Council Meeting Is Postponed

A meeting of the City Council originally set for tonight has been postponed until next Thursday night.

Instead a meeting of the Planning-Zoning Commission will be held in the council room at City Hall. That meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

State Senators Back Stern Bill On Bomb Hoaxes

RALEIGH (AP)—A group of senators today joined in sponsoring legislation providing severe punishment for persons making hoax bomb calls and even more severe punishment for those convicted of willfully destroying or damaging schools or churches.

Sen. John Jordan of Wake introduced the measure which is in line with legislation suggested several weeks ago by Gov. Hodges.

The bill resulted from a wave of false telephone calls received at schools and other buildings since last November. Only Wednesday three such calls were received in the state and resulted in the evacuation of school children while school buildings were searched.

Jordan was joined by Sens. J. Carlyle Rutledge of Cabarrus, Archie Davis of Forsyth, Wilbur M. Jolly of Franklin, Wilbur Currie of Moore, James Simpkins, of Wain and W. E. Garrison of Lincoln in sponsoring the measure.

The bill would make the willful destruction or damage—or the attempt to destroy or damage—any church or synagogue or public or private school by explosives or fire a felony punishable by 10 to 50 years in prison.

The making of hoax bomb threats also would be a felony and punishable by a fine of not less than $500 or a prison term of not more than 10 years or both.

Presently the maximum punishment for making hoax bomb calls is 30 days in prison.

Also introduced was legislation to carry out another recommendation of the Commission on Reorganization of State Government. It would vest in the State Department of Administration the responsibility for the management and control of all of vacant and unappropriated land, and all submerged land which the state owns. The bill provides that the department may dispose of such land at either public or private sale with the approval of the governor and council of state.

Under present law, the secretary of state handles the disposition of unappropriated lands and the State Board of Education handles the disposition of submerged land.

The bill provides that no lakes of 50 or more acres owned by the state shall be disposed of but shall be kept for recreational purposes.

The bill was introduced in the house by Rep. Frank Sneed of Mecklenburg and others and in the Senate by Sen. Frank Patton Cooke of Gaston and others.

Honors Awarded Scouts, Leaders

Awards made at the Father-Son Banquet of the Pitt District of the East Carolina Council Wednesday night recognized the achievements of Boy Scouts and Scouters for the year 1958 and saluted the 49th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

The anniversary event, held in the New South Cafeteria of East Carolina College, was attended by 370 persons, and was presided over by Dr. Robert E. Wilfong, Pitt District chairman.

Top single honor for an adult Scouter was the awarding of the Silver Beaver to Erzell S. Webb, Greenville business man, in ceremonies conducted by Wyatt Brown, Webb is a former district chairman and has served the district and council in numerous projects. He is currently a member of the executive committee and chairman of the Council committee on advancement.

Troop 386 of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Greenville won highest honors in unit achievements for the past year. Awards for organization of a new troop, advancement achievements and the attendance prize for 92 persons present at the district court of honor were taken by St. James Methodist Church.

Ogle W. Hoss, chief supervisor of the DuPont Company's dacteron plant at Kinston, made the principal address, pointing up the Scouting training program as teaching boys to accept responsibilities and parents to increase personal interest in their children.

During a Court of Honor, chaired by Erskine Duff, past district chairman, the following award were made:

Troop 15, Bethel Rotary Club, 2 second class, 12 merit badges, and 1 Life Scout;

Troop 340, St. James Methodist Church, 1 second class, 3 first class, 18 merit badges, 2 star Scouts and 1 Life Scout;

Troop 205, Memorial Baptist Church, 15 second class, 3 first class, 36 merit badges, 4 Star Scouts;

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, 1 second class, 16 merit badges, 2 Star Scouts;

Troop 386, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 1 second class, 17 merit badges, 1 Star Scout; and 1 Life Scout; Troop 25, Farmville Rotary Club, 1 first class, 4 merit badges.

The dinner was a project of the District Camping and Activities Committee, headed by James B. Mallory. The Rev. Robert H. Eason of the Arden Methodist Church spoke the invocation.

Mrs. Wright Talks To Club

Mrs. William A. Wright used as her topic "Beauty in the Shade" as she addressed the Lakewood Pines Garden Club which met Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. W. J. Stell Jr.

Mrs. Wright advised the members to select and concentrate on plants which will survive in shade and in shaded areas. She suggested a great number of such plants and scrubs proving that color and beauty can be had almost the year around under trees.

Upon arrival the members were greeted by Mrs. Stell and invited into the dining room where coffee and accompaniments were served.

Mrs. Stell opened the business part of the meeting by welcoming Mrs. Shafer of Stanton, Va., guest of Mrs. T. J. Morris.

Mrs. K. G. Harris, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following slate of officers which was unanimously accepted: Mrs. N. C. Pierce, president; Mrs. R. E. Wilfong, vice president; Mrs. W. M. Reading Jr., secretary; Mrs. A. L. Whitehurst, treasurer.

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club will hold a Spring Garden Fair April 17. Co-chairmen of the affair, Mrs. W. A. Wright and Mrs. H. R. Billie, reported on the special meeting held.

The members were invited to attend the Flower Show School February 23-25 at State College. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. L. Wilkerson.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor Your best beau has probably chosen your Valentine. How about returning the compliment?

The best way we know to a man's heart on Cupid's Day is, as usual, through something delectable to taste.

We have yet to find the man, woman or child who didn't enjoy a sweet meringue filled with a tangy lemon cream. It's not a spanking-new recipe, to be sure, but it does bear repeating.

To suit the day, it's simple to make the meringue an appropriate shape. No special pan needed! This is how we do it. Fold a piece of brown paper (10 inches wide and 11 inches long) in half and cut out a heart pattern. Now line a large cookie sheet with heavy-duty foil. Place the pattern on the foil; mark around the heart with a toothpick, being careful not to cut through the foil. Remove the pattern. Now your heart shape is ready to fill with meringue and bake. Here's the recipe for the shell and the wonderful filling.

LEMON CREAM FILLING Ingredients: 4 egg yolks, 1/2 cup sugar, salt, 1-4 cup water, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup heavy cream. Method: Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; beat in sugar, a dash of salt, water and lemon juice. Cook and stir constantly over hot (not boiling) water until custard coats a silver spoon—about 15 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in lemon rind. Cover and set aside to cool. Whip cream; fold into cooled lemon custard. Use as filling for meringue heart.

COOK'S HELP The heart-shaped meringue shell may be made and baked, covered with airtight moisture-proof wrapping and stored in the freezer. When it is to be served, it should be unwrapped and thawed at room temperature for several hours, then the lemon filling may be added.

METHOD: In a large mixing bowl beat egg whites and salt until foamy. Add cream of tartar and continue beating until whites hold curved peaks. Add sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating after each addition; continue beating until whites are very thick, shiny and hold firm straight peaks. Spoon meringue onto heart pattern marked on foil on cookie sheet, building up sides and scooping out center. Bake in slow (275 degrees) oven 1 hour. Turn off oven; keep oven door closed and allow meringue to stand in shutoff oven 1 hour to dry. Remove and gently peel off foil. Place meringue heart on flat serving dish; fill center with lemon cream filling; chill. Just before serving, outline filling with halved strawberries (fresh or frozen) and arrange fancy-cut slices of lemon and a whole strawberry in center. Tucked-in small green leaves also look pretty in the center garnish.

SWEETHEART PIE—This lemon cream meringue is an easy-to-fix Valentine for your favorite beau. The best way to a man's heart on Valentine's Day, like any other day, is by whipping up something as tasty as this favored recipe.

Beta Club Inducts New Members

Six new members were inducted into the Beta Club at the monthly meeting of the Belvoir-Falkland P.T.A. Monday night, with Earl Lewis, vice-president, presiding. A nominating committee of Mrs. Joe Teel, Mrs. Mac Turner, Mrs. Eason Clark, and Mrs. Fenton Hathaway was appointed to present at the next meeting, a slate of officers for the next year. Mrs. Eason Clark won the door prize, which was an arrangement of gladiola donated by the Beta Club; and the attendance prize was won by the second grade and 10B.

The Beta Club inducted Carolyn Harris, Betty Harrell, Marion Cobb, Frances Edwards, Mary Grace Eakes, and Dora Ann Brown into the Belvoir-Falkland Chapter of the National Beta Club. The purpose, requirements for admittance, projects completed by the club, and the basic ideals of Beta were portrayed through a "Key Ceremony."

The President, Nellie Gwaltney, conducted the program; Allen Harris, Vice-President, explained the four ideals of Beta; and Gail Garretts, secretary, administered the new members and presented to them certificates of membership and Beta pins.

Miss Jeannette Worthington, past president of the North Carolina Association of the Future Homemakers of America, will give the devotional at the annual state meeting of the North Carolina Vocational Association on Saturday in the Student Union at State College.

Miss Worthington, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Worthington of Peaceful Acres, Ayden, is a sophomore at Meredith College in Raleigh, where she is majoring in Home Economics.

Dance Planned

A March of Dimes Dance will be held Saturday night at the Moose Temple beginning at 9 o'clock.

Danny Dennis and his Orchestra will be the featured musicians.

This dance is for all Moose members and any guest, whether residents of Pitt County or not. All proceeds from this dance will go toward the March of Dimes.

Music Training School

A Music Training School planned for leaders of Home Demonstration Clubs will be held Friday at the Ricks Hotel in Rocky Mount from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Rural pastors, church choir leaders, accompanists, and church choir members who are interested are invited to attend, as well as Home Demonstration Club music leaders. The theme of the school will be "Making Music More Meaningful."

Buffet Supper Honors Guests

GRIFTON—Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Bissette entertained Thursday night at their home on Highland Drive at a buffet supper with members of their contract club and invited bridge players as guests.

In the living room and den gladiola and carnations were used as decorations.

As guests arrived they were invited into the foyer for tomato juice, cheese dips and potato chips. In the dining room the table was covered with a lace cloth and held crystal epergnettes with red candles and red carnations. On the buffet was a silver candelabra with red candles.

A turkey supper was served and later cherry tarts with whipped cream.

During the bridge games Mrs. Thurman Williams and C. R. Cobb were highest scorers among the bridge members and received an azalea and a cake respectively. Mrs. J. L. Quinerly and Alton Gardner won the visitor's high.

Other players were Mrs. Cobb, Mr. Quinerly, Mrs. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mewborn, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hardee, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone.

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Harrington, Mrs. T. J. Stocks Jr. and Miss Ramona Stocks left yesterday for Jacksonville, Fla. to attend the funeral of Michael Wayne Harrington.

WCTU Meeting

The Greenville Chapter of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet in the home of Mrs. L. B. Tucker, 920 Evans St., Thursday at 7:30 p.m. All members are urged to be present. Visitors are welcomed.

House-That-Luther-Built Is Shaky

Gov. Hodges' proposed billion dollar "balanced budget" for North Carolina is about as precariously balanced as a house of cards.

The slightest breath from any direction could send it crashing to the ground.

And ere the 1959 General Assembly adjourns, there can be expected some strong winds blowing through the legislative halls in Raleigh. The budgetary house-of-cards-that-Luther-built may very well come tumbling down.

The major balancing factor in the billion dollar budget Gov. Hodges presented the General Assembly was the anticipated non-recurring 27 1/2 million dollar "windfall" that would come in the biennium with the beginning of a withholding system for the payment of state income taxes. Even so, the balanced billion dollar budget has a safety factor of only a few thousand dollars to keep it out of the red.

It is, of course, highly improbable that the budget recommendations of Gov. Hodges will be followed to the letter by the legislature. The recommendations of a governor seldom are. There will be bills asking for appropriations not in the budget proposal, and there will be committee actions which will trim appropriations below those recommended for some projects.

Whether, in the final analysis, the total budget will remain about the same as Gov. Hodges has requested remains to be seen. It is quite possible that before the legislature is through with its money measures, total spending approved for the coming biennium will be considerably above that recommended by the governor.

Certainly North Carolinians can take comfort in the fact that the budget calls for an additional $50 millions in appropriations over the last biennium without an increase in taxes. But where do we go after the next biennium. Certainly taxes enacted to meet a specific need are seldom removed even after the need has vanished. Yet it is just as seldom that new spending, like new taxes, vanishes once it has been approved.

Will the state's economy improve sufficiently to enable present levies to produce enough extra revenue annually to make up for the 27 1/2 withholding tax windfall, once that money has been gobbled up?

After the coming biennium will North Carolina face the need for new taxes to make up for the withholding windfall?

In how many different ways will the economic wind blow between now and the time the legislature nears adjournment? Will the legislators be willing to spend only what the governor has recommended during the coming biennium and no more?

This will be, without a doubt, a turbulent session of North Carolina's General Assembly. If Gov. Hodges' budgetary house of cards stands up, it will be little short of miraculous.

Utterly Unconcerned Over Showdown Stroll

Just prior to his hospitalization, Secretary of State Dulles reported Western Allies are generally agreed on procedures to follow if the Soviet Union invokes "physical means" to block access to Berlin.

The way we interpret his statement, Dulles implies general accord among our own policy makers and those of our allies that the West is walking toward another one of those famous "brinks".

It kind of reminds one of those traditional Western picture scenes in which the "good guy" resignedly straps on his gun belt and begins that long walk down the middle of the little cowtown's main street. The populace ducks behind wagons, watering troughs or into a convenient door . . . for the "bad guy" who forced this showdown is also coming into town at the opposite end of the street. Boot Hill awaits one of the two.

There's this discrepancy, though: while we may be figuratively walking toward the crucial showdown over Berlin, the significant matter of buckling on a gunbelt seems to have been overlooked. No mobilizing anywhere, no sense of urgency. Just preoccupied with basketball scores, tonight's TV program, the movie schedules, the weather, taxes, spending, inflation, unemployment, debts, murders, traffic accidents and stay-awake contests.

It doesn't add up.

We have spelled out a readiness to accept the price of a major war (the "majorest" war, better describes it) unless the status quo is maintained. The other side has said the status quo will not be maintained and has even set an approximate time when it will be changed.

The gamble is that this country doesn't believe Russia is ready to pay the price of that final showdown . . . will back down or find a way out.

Things are going to get kinda desperate if Nikita Khrushchev doesn't see it that way.

For things have gotten along just so far that WE can't very well back down either.

Trying To Read Between Lines

By LYNN NISBET

CRYSTAL GAZING — A good many people in and outside of legislative circles are studying Governor Hodges' biennial "State of the State" and budget messages from two angles, both against the background of his six-year record as chief executive.

Immediate concern is probable impact upon the State and the degree of success he may reasonably anticipate in having his suggestions effectuated by statute. Another—and in some respects more interesting—angle is looking at the record and the speech as reflected in the crystal ball of prophecy, seeking some intimation of what Luther Hodges may have in mind for his own future.

The constitution as presently written prohibits a Governor being elected to succeed himself. By reason of succession from the Lieutenant Governorship to the high office upon death of the elected Governor, and subsequent election in his own right, Hodges has set a precedent for continuous service during this century. A new constitution is being written to be presented to this General Assembly for submission to the people. It might remove the ban on re-election of a chief executive. Governor Hodges said at a recent news conference he could see advantages in removing that limitation. It is possible that a new constitution could be ratified before the 1960 election.

Under the present constitution he could seek election in 1964 for a new term. There are some who think he might do that. The fact that no Governor has been elected twice since the constitution of 1868 was adopted would not bother Luther Hodges. His record in business and politics indicates he delights in smashing precedents.

CONFIDENT — Governor Hodges told newsmen at his latest conference that he has no apologies for balancing the budget with accumulated surplus and windfall taxes, and providing necessary buildings by bonds. Some business men had criticized this as very poor policy and hardly in keeping with the designation of a "business man governor."

Hodges said he had confidence in the development of North Carolina and he believes that by next biennium the revenue produced by the present tax levies will be sufficient to operate the State government and institu-

Confusion Can Be Compounded

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — You think you're confused? Wait till you read this.

President Eisenhower has protested repeatedly against what he calls the spenders and demands that Congress stay within the 77-billion-dollar budget he sent up in January.

Just as a starter on how things can get mixed up, Congress can ignore his requests for economy and vote for far more money than he asked. On the other hand, in some cases he doesn't have to spend it even if Congress votes it.

And some of what's voted this year may be meant for spending a couple of years from now. There's a big difference between appropriations and expenditures.

The Eisenhower barbs about spenders apparently nettled Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democrats. This week he said that over the past six years Congress appropriated 22 billion dollars less than Eisenhower's budgets asked.

Whereupon Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, leader of the Senate Republicans, announced the Eisenhower administration was getting together the full story including "everything relating to the budget," and that he'd produce it.

It's a good guess that when the two leaders and all the other Democrats and Republicans get through arguing about the figures, not only the general public but perhaps most members of Congress will be more bemused than before.

One expert on government finances told this writer: "When it comes to voting on money problems, Congress is a place where the left hand knoweth not what the right is doing."

He didn't mean anyone was slipping a fast one over on anyone. He just meant things get mixed up.

The House and Senate Appropriations committees were created from the executive branch of the government and decide what's needed. But those committees

Two Heads Not 'Better'

We've had another great inflow of mail concerning old sayings which we are trying to investigate. Many people have sent us their feelings and beliefs concerning the old maxim, "Two heads are better than one."

A Mr. Reginald Motherwell of Fort Worth, Texas, writes: "When I was growing up in the sand-bed section of Texas, which is near the mouth of the Rio Grande, I knew a little Mexican boy who had two heads and his name was Dio. His father kicked him out of the family to drift for himself because one of the heads had red hair. So I disagree with the saying."

Mrs. Henry Gruncher of Kansas, a housewife, tells us, "My husband has two heads and he's an idiot."

Pfc. Richard Weathershurt, stationed at Des Moines, Iowa, writes to say that when he was stationed at Fort Jackson, S.C., he had a sergeant who had two heads. He says further . . . and he had a huge wart growing on the end of one nose, which I suspect was the beginning of another head. I know for a fact that the bum never graduated from the third grade."

A card from Southport, Rhode Island, from a Mr. Gunther Podys says: "I got a dog who has two heads — one on both ends. And he's in bad shape. I suspect that the old maxim is wrong."

Here's one from a Ronald Kennington of Seattle, Washington: "Before I was married, I went with a girl who had two heads.

Phobia After Phobia

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There is very little Maureen Stapleton can't do well on a stage.

And to hear her tell it—there is practically nothing she can do well offstage.

"I can't cook," she said. "I keep having this nightmare of waking up some morning and hearing my husband say, 'How about cooking some coffee and toast?'"

"And I hate housekeeping. My dream house is one you don't have to clean or dust at all. You just take a hose and wash it down."

Miss Stapleton, who has hazel eyes and a shoulder-length mop of midnight-colored hair, has been called the "American Anna Magnani." She is rated one of Broadway's finest actresses, and is noted for her ability to play powerful, emotional roles.

But in real life, Maureen insists, she is weak as water and afraid of practically everything. She was so afraid that for a long time she slept with a knife and scissors under her pillow for protection.

She isn't joking about her phobic fears. They are very real to her.

"What am I afraid of?" she asked. "You name it — literally everything."

"Basically, I guess I just have no faith in the machine age. My husband told me, 'Once they made the wheel, you were in trouble.' And it's true."

"I don't like high buildings. I'm afraid something will fall off of one of them and hit me. I hate planes. I've only flown once. I hate trains and cars, too. So it's kind of tough for me to get through 24 hours."

"But one thing I don't have is claustrophobia. I got off scot free when they were handing that out."

Maureen, a native of Troy, N.Y., worked as a night clerk in the Hotel New Yorker here while waiting for Broadway to discover her. She hit stardom in the Tennessee Williams play, "The Rose Tattoo."

Now she's about the busiest girl in town. She recently finished her first film. She is currently starring on Broadway, and rehearsing a part in a television play.

Besides weight, Maureen says her biggest enemy is time. She'd like to stand still — or march backward.

"I can't stand to have life go on," she said. "That's why I like to stay up and watch the late movies on television. With them it's always 1935."

Quote . . .

"Inherent in the works comprising and supporting this political system of ours are the words 'tolerance,' 'differences,' 'persuasion,' 'compromise,' and 'change.' As aptly pointed out, the Anvil Chorus might well be our theme song for we do hammer out actually a final product which has been forged together from conflicting public sentiment to the complete amazement of virtually the rest of the whole world." — Taylorville (Ill.) Daily Breeze-Courier.

Other Editors Saying . . . This Pair Too Modest

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Within recent weeks, two prominent U.S. communist party leaders have made apologies to their Kremlin masters for their "failures" in America. James Jackson, secretary of the national committee of the U.S. party, and William Z. Foster, boss of the American communist intrigue, each told their superiors the "revisionists" the party is now regrouping for better days.

Jackson, speaking at the 21st congress of the Soviet communist party, told his Russian comrades that "many communists are languishing in the jails of the United States" and predicted the Soviet Union's latest seven-year plan will boost that country to a "height unattainable in the capitalist world."

Foster, in a 5,000-word letter to Red China's Mao Tse-tung, deplored the fact that illness had prevented him from visiting "revolutionary China," attacked the U.S. position of non-recognition of that government, offered his apologies for the decline in membership of the U.S. communist party, and wound up with the statement:

"I have not given up my efforts to get a passport that will enable me to visit the countries of socialism. Incidentally, I hope to get better medical treatment in these countries that I can possibly get here in the United States."

Overlooking the obvious propaganda inserts from the utterances of these two men (what communists are in U.S. jails? The Supreme Court has set aside every conviction under the Smith Act which has been appealed to it, why should they feel called upon to apologize for their failures? They have not failed.

Certainly, the U.S. communist party has lost membership, the Daily Worker is defunct, soap box pinks have lost their following, and no officeholders were elected on their ticket. But the communist party has received more than sufficient compensation for its losses in aid rendered by erstwhile capitalists.

The recent grand tour of the country by the butcher of Hungary Mikoyan poignantly demonstrated the number of corporation heads, bankers, politicians and other American leaders who have succumbed to the enticements, if not the ideologies, of communism.

Failures of the party? It has succeeded beyond the wildest expectations of its founders because it has infiltrated a segment of the population heretofore held to be its most violent antagonist. The Kremlin should have naught but praise for its American agents. They have performed their work well.

Opinions In Brief

"The government does not owe anyone a living. Thrift, security for the future and saving, must continue to be praised in our great country. The federal hand-out system is needed in many cases, and that's why we have it. On the other hand, we must keep its payments at a minimum, for it should never be forgotten that the industrious hardworker, who might accumulate something in life, should not be forced to pay an exorbitant bill for the bums, the lazy, shiftless, or the good-for-nothings who will always put the pressure on the politicians for bigger and bigger handouts." — Canton North Georgia Tribune.

"The Congress, and the Congress alone, has the power of the purse. Ultimately, upon Congress rests responsibility for determining the scope and the amount of Federal spending." — Pres. Eisenhower.

Car Pools Return To Popularity

By ELMER ROESSNER

The car pool that favored transportation organization of the "home front" in World War II, is returning to popularity. Large companies are encouraging them and more and more industrial and office workers are getting together with their fellows.

Companies' interests are these: Pools tend to reduce traffic congestion on highways leading to plants. Congestion frequently causes tardiness; accidents cause injuries and absenteeism. Pools could cut traffic in half or more on arteries leading to industrial establishments.

Pools cut congestion at company gates and parking lot entrances. Employees usually feel they should not be penalized for delays at gates. Congestion increases the number of guards necessary.

Pools reduce the area plants must devote to parking lots.

Among office and store employees, pools from residential areas to bus and railroad terminals also reduce tardiness and help solve the problems of congestion and parking around these stations.

By encouraging car pools to reduce losses of work time and costs of transportation, companies can postpone demands for raises. That's a theory, anyhow.

Employees' interests are these: Car pools reduce gasoline costs (which will be shopped up even higher by impending taxes), and they reduce parking charges where free parking isn't available.

Car pools reduce gasoline costs (which will be shopped up even higher by impending taxes), and they reduce parking charges where free parking isn't available. Car pools enable all but one member each day to leave his car home for uxorial uses. In most cases, they reduce the strain on the members who aren't driving, often an employer benefits as well. However, some people are under more strain as passengers than drivers.

Pool costs are often less than costs of commuting by train or bus. Pools are also time-saving when bus or train service is irregular — but then pool departures are often worse, and sometimes the whole pool must wait while one member stops for a quick one at a tavern.

COMPANY ENCOURAGEMENT

There are other advantages, in theory at least. Pools may encourage friendships among employees and build morale. However, some of the wartime experiences indicate that many members are inclined to sit stumby still, and those who do talk are looking for arguments.

So more and more companies are making bulletin boards available to employees seeking to form travel pools. Some are carrying encouragement a bit further by offering pools choice spots on company parking lots. A California aircraft company offers first choice of space to pools with three or more members, then to pools of two. A few companies advise pool members about liabilities under their state laws; some warn employees that if they charge their passengers, instead of sharing expenses, they may get entangled in laws covering public transportation and be under increased liability.

Business Recovery On Verge Of Another Boom

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The ups and downs of the stock market command more attention today as the business recovery—now on fairly even keel—teeters on the edge of another possible boom to be sparked perhaps by new inflation. The market may mirror each day's quota of news—international, domestic or corporate. But in the background are some cold statistics about the market itself —and also about the state of the U.S. Treasury and the purchasing power of the dollar.

Figures released today by the New York Stock Exchange show how far the recession carried industry in one direction and how far the stock market boom carried stock prices and corporate earnings and dividends in the other. Briefly: prices of many stocks rose to record highs before the business recovery really got off the ground. The average yield on the dividend-paying common stocks listed on the big board dropped to the second lowest figure since 1940 when the statistics were first compiled.

For the first time in 12 years, cash dividends paid on listed common stocks failed to set a new annual high. The majority of companies are reporting earnings lower than in 1957, despite some notable rebounds in the final months of 1958.

This might have sparked more interest in bonds, government and corporate, that yield as much or more. But it didn't. The Treasury learned this to its sorrow when holders of two billion dollars worth of maturing government securities demanded cash instead of the new offerings. Some of these bear 4 per cent interest—a bait the Treasury hasn't had to use for many years.

The long rise in stock prices and the cutbacks in dividends, or their omission altogether, have combined to cause the notable drop in stock yields.

The average yield of the 961 stocks that did pay dividends dropped to 4.1 per cent at the end of 1958, the Exchange magazine reports. This was the lowest since the end of 1945, when it was 3.6 per cent, the only time in the 18 years of official records it has slipped below 4 per cent. (In 1929 unofficial figures put the yield at 3.5 per cent.)

Moreover, at the start of this year there were 94 stock issues paying less than 2 per cent, compared with 27 a year earlier. Only 4 yielded 10 per cent or more, against 79 a year before.

Yield is figured by dividing a stock's market price by the total of cash dividends paid on it in the preceding 12 months.

Included in those paying less in 1958 are 35 stocks making no cash payment that year but which did in the previous year.

That stock prices rose in the past 12 months isn't news. Total dividend figures have been somewhat clouded by the daily news—some corporations were raising dividends or maintaining old rates at the same time that some were cutting or skipping them.

The exchange reports that the see-saw has come to rest at these totals for the 1,086 common issues listed at yearend. Of these 961 paid one or more cash dividends—317 larger ones, 410 the same amount, and 239 less. Included in those paying less in 1958 are 58 stocks making no cash payment that year but which did in the previous year.

Total payments came to $8,711,482,860. This is a drop of $85,779,470 from 1957, or a decline of one per cent.

Largest declines were for shares of textile, mining, railroad, railroad equipment and foreign companies.

Four industries doing the best on the high road with increased payments were: office equipment, shipbuilding and operating, tobacco, and financial.

His Recipe Had 'Sour' Reception

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Attorney William Marsh was pleading in court that his client—Bumon H. Crocker, 59, of Tucson—be given a suspended sentence for passing a bogus check.

Marsh asked Superior Court Judge Herbert F. Krucker to try this recipe:

"A cupful of compassion, half a cupful of understanding, a tablespoon of mercy, a teaspoon of leniency. Add a jigger of Christmas spirit and a dab of holly and shake it judicially. Extend it to the defendant."

Judge Krucker replied: "One to two years in the State Prison."

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP)—The state snowfall record of 282.2 inches set here in the winter of 1949-50 is being threatened.

Through Tuesday, Houghton reported a total of 209 inches—a mark not reached in the record year until Feb. 19.

Robeson County Also Famous As Likely Chittlin' Center Of World

By PENN GRAY
The Lumberton Robesonian
Written For The Associated Press

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Robeson County, watered by Lumber River, "capitalized" by Lumberton, and inhabited, among others, by the Lumbee Indians, is famous for something else. Fairmont is the probable chittlin' center of the world—not from a production standpoint, but from a consumption angle.

Strangers are inclined to take the whole thing as a joke, but Fairmont Hotel is the home office of a formally (more or less) organized social club established with the sole aim of demolishing chittlin's. Its membership of 100-odd dedicated souls meets (an average of about 65 attend) each first Monday during the season which is only somewhat shorter than that for oysters.

Formal programs are taboo; nobody wants culture, just chittlin's. The name of the organization is "Robeson County Chittlin' Strutters Association." Derivation of the "Strutters" is somewhat obscure, but probably derives from pride of accomplishment, and the term has been applied to chittlin' fanciers from time immemorial. Fancifully, it conjures an image of a group of grown-up boys prowling about, pounding their chests and proclaiming the fact that they have eaten as low on the hog as is possible when no pig feet are available.

Chittlin's are no new thing and are enjoyed privately by rustics all over, but it remained for gregarious Robeson to organize the business. As long as 20 years ago the late Mark Prevatte of Fairmont (the club at its last meeting presented his sons a brass plaque in memory of his founding of the club) invited friends, through the cold months, to join him in the dish. The word got around, and the crowd grew and it became an occasional Dutch supper affair at Hotel Fairmont.

Some five years ago came organization and the setting of dues which guarantee five meetings a year. The thing was spontaneous. Mark Prevatte was first president. Since then, Lumberton attorney Robert McIntyre, Fairmont auto dealer Herb McCollum, Fairmont trucker Wilbur Jones, and now Lumberton Police Chief Melvin Harris have headed the group. Former State Rep. Wayland Floyd acted as secretary for years.

The menu is standard: 140 pounds of chittlin's, some fried, some stewed; collard greens; baked sweet potatoes; corn bread; cole slaw; coffee; apple pie. No deviation is permitted.

A few members, however, declare that the collards are in excess, and they blame any sleepless night on the greens, never on the chittlin's. When a doctor has forbidden consumption of the principal delight, he's partially ignored; the stewed ones are considered harmless and the ban is removed by the addition of just a touch of vinegar to cut the grease.

Membership cards are issued and proudly exhibited. They depict a hog of noble proportions, with the words "Robeson County Chittlin' Strutters Association" stamped on his flank.

It's a matter of record that using the card for identification will get a check cashed quicker in a strange community than will a wallet full of more conventional lodge cards—possibly on the theory that there's no use arguing with a man who has guts enough to eat chittlin's.

Levity and the condescending leer are the cross the membership must bear, but members offend and realize that the uninitiated are down-the-nosing a delight of which they have no knowledge, a delight which includes a gathering of friends from the farthest reaches of Robeson (and the state).

And it's a fact that the Strutters are a real power for inter-city goodwill. They gather from every community in the country, drawing together for occasions on which the only argument ever was a bitter one over whether to have a ladies' night. The motion was utterly defeated.

Legislators, public officials, doctors, lawyers, lawmen, newsmen, salesmen, storekeepers, undertakers, the young and the old and the in-between all sink to a common level for the struts. And County Coroner Dennis Biggs is

Stokes-Pactolus Picks Its Valentine Queen

By SHIRLEY WHITEHURST
Stokes-Pactolus Reporter
Stokes-Pactolus High School students have selected Senior Shirley Whitehurst as the school's Valentine Queen.

The queen was selected by popular vote of the student body from a group of eight girls. Second place winner was Dale Coward of the ninth grade and Rita Bullock of the eleventh grade.

She was crowned Saturday night at a Valentine Dance sponsored by the Stokes-Pactolus chapter of Future Homemakers of America. Donald Hardison, FHA sweetheart, conducted the coronation ceremonies.

Other contestants were Phyllis Barnhill of the ninth grade, Fredricka Andrews and Jo Anne Bullock of the tenth grade, Rosalie Tripp of the eleventh grade, and Brenda Heath of the twelfth grade.

Fund-raising proposals and plans for attending a district rally were discussed by members of the Beta Club at their meeting Thursday.

Members of the club voted to hold a bake sale at Stokes and Congleton Store February 14, beginning at 9 o'clock. In addition to those plans, the club tentatively agreed to have all its 13 members attend a district Beta Club rally in Jamesville on February 27. Mrs. Rosa Hunnings, chapter sponsor, will also attend the rally.

First and second year typing students are engaged in a contest to see which class can finish time-writing assignments first. Progress of each of the groups is marked by simulated racing cars on the bulletin board.

Losers in the contest will be hosts at a party for the winners.

OUCH!
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Tucson police were a bit redfaced about this report. Stolen: one loudspeaker, taken from the fender of a Tucson police department patrol car.

Members of the Senior Class are conducting their annual stationery sale. Proceeds will be used to finance the annual Senior Trip to Washington, D.C., tentatively scheduled for April.

Likely To Keep Censorship Role

RALEIGH — The power to enforce a law banning pornographic literature will very likely remain in the hands of reluctant sheriffs who said recently they would be pleased not to have the job.

It will certainly remain in the sheriffs' hands if Representative Tom Dill of Edgecombe and I.T. Valentine of Nash have their way. Both young legislators, responsible for the bills passage in the 1957 Legislature have indicated that they think the sheriffs are probably doing a fine job enforcing the law and at any rate are in the best position to do it.

The sheriffs earlier said they would like to see a censorship board established to take over the odious duty.

Valentine said he doesn't feel a board of censors would answer the problem. He expressed the fear that such a group could become too rigid and "remove some objects of art because that art might be offensive to a few."

Valentine admitted that it is difficult sometimes to draw the line between art and pornography, and that a law banning pornographic literature is difficult to enforce. But he said the sole responsibility does not rest on law enforcement officers. In the final analysis, if warrants are issued against persons suspected of breaking the law, the responsibility rests on the court, he said.

The Nash representative added that he doesn't know of an actual case where warrants have been issued but expressed the belief that the law has led to "voluntary action."

Dill agreed with Valentine that a board of censors would fail to provide an answer. Beyond that point he had very little to say. This session, he indicated, he will turn his efforts toward other matters.

Gunn Starting New Style Among Television Serials

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — "Peter Gunn" is starting a new fashion in television serials.
In its story line the NBC-TV weekly series (Mondays, 9 p.m. EST) is routine, run-of-the-mill private eye. But a couple of ingredients have been added that are creating "Peter Gunn" fan clubs among the cool younger set.
The ingredients are (1) jazz and (2) sex. Before (2) impels alarmed parents to drag Jane or Junior from the set, it should be said that it's pretty harmless stuff. Gunn, played by Craig Stevens, smooches around some with a beautiful blonde played by Lola Albright.
By far the most important ingredient of this series' popularity, however, is jazz. The show's producer, Blake Edwards, credits 50 per cent of the program's success to its live, original music.
The composer and director of the music is a young fellow from Alliquippa, Pa., named Henry Mancini who came to town the other day and modestly said, "Blake Edwards has set up an extraordinary combination of moods in 'Peter Gunn.' When you stop to analyze it, you can't find the boundaries where the music stops and the show takes over."
His modesty is commendable but unnecessary. If some of the excellent music he composes for many Peter Gunn scenes were silenced, some of the situations and lines would fizzle into the sound of corn popping.

The musical motif of the series is sparked by the fact that Gunn is forever hanging around a jazz spot called Mother's, of all things, where Miss Albright is employed as a singer.
The songs she sings are recognized pop numbers. Mancini composes all other music heard on the show, a total of 10 hours for 39 weeks—which, he agrees, is a great deal of original music.
He doesn't begin composing until a show has been filmed. Then his music is scored into the film. Frequently there are stretches of two minutes or so without a word of dialogue when music alone builds and sustains mood.
"It's a struggle to stay fresh and original every week," Mancini says, "but as long as the show can go, I can go."
It appears that the show will go a long time with its steadily increasing audience. And now various producers have plans in the works for five other network TV series using a similar musical formula.
Is jazz really that popular? "The jazz audience is not a vast one," Mancini said. "It's specific and special. We've reached it—and beyond it into a larger audience by associating jazz with story and characters."
Olga is the Teutonic name for a "holy woman."

Cartographer To Speak On Work

J. L. McClain, chief cartography training officer for Army Map Service, Washington, D. C., will visit East Carolina College February 18 and 19. On February 18 at 7:15 p.m. he will address the Gamma Theta Upsilon Fraternity on cartography work in Government agencies, and specifically on cartographic work in Army Map Service.
This visit, Mr. McClain's first to the campus of East Carolina, will permit geography majors to learn at first hand about cartography work in the Government. Army Map Service, a branch of the U. S. Army, is the largest mapping agency in the world with a total employment of over 4,000.
The department of geography at East Carolina College is one of few college departments selected for training cartographers for employment with Army Map Service.

George Earp's Name Chosen By Lincoln

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — There aren't many men around anymore who can claim, like George Earp, that their names were chosen by Abraham Lincoln.
George, now a healthy and alert 94 years old, is a first cousin of famed frontier Marshal Wyatt Earp and once was a deputy under Wyatt.
George told reporter Tom Osterloh of the Joplin Globe Wednesday how he got his name from the 16th president of the United States.
George Earp's father the Rev. John Douglas Earp, first met Lincoln in Kentucky where both were employed splitting rails. They became good friends and later moved to Illinois at the same time.
The Rev. Mr. Earp then moved to Lamar, Mo., and became a circuit preacher for the Southern Methodist Church.
Lincoln was president when Earp was imprisoned on charges he supported the Confederacy. The President ordered him released.
Later, a group of ministers were jailed on similar charges and the Rev. Mr. Earp went to Washington to seek Lincoln's aid in freeing them.

Earp's wife had just given birth to their ninth child, a boy, on Dec. 13, 1864.
"Our new son has not yet been named," Earp told the President. "Would you select a name for him?"

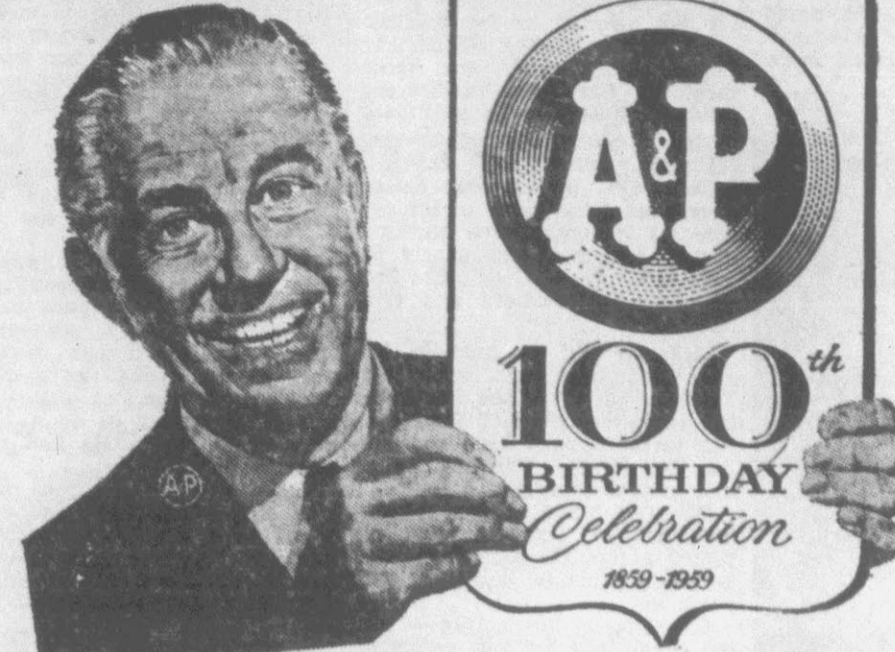

Lincoln's reply: "Name him George Washington."
George Washington Earp had a burning ambition to be a cowboy. Cousin Wyatt had built a reputation as a peace officer and George joined him in Dodge City at the age of 18.

But Wyatt decided Dodge City was too rough for George and sent him to more civilized Garden City, which had more than one street and more frame buildings. There, George became a cowboy.
In the spring of 1885 George helped organize and survey the new town of Ulysses, Kan. At 21 he was appointed postmaster there and at 23 he was elected mayor and constable.

George was appointed U. S. marshal in Wichita in 1893, educated himself in the law and for many years worked in the field office of the U. S. Revenue Service. In 1933 he moved to Joplin and worked as a tax expert until his retirement four years ago.

Britain Prepares To Give OK To Cyprus Peace Plan

LONDON (AP) — Britain appeared ready today to clinch an early agreement with Greece and Turkey aimed at bringing peace and independence to Cyprus.

The foreign ministers of the three nations met for 3½ hours Wednesday night discussing details of an accord that would end 81 years of British rule over the East Mediterranean island.

Turkish Foreign Minister Fatih Rustu Zorlu, on emerging from the dinner with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Greek Foreign Minister Evangelos Averoff, was asked if he expected a settlement to be reached.

"We hope so," he replied.

The three were to meet again today.

Zorlu and Averoff flew to London from Zurich immediately after their prime ministers agreed there on principles of a constitution to make the disputed British island colony a republic.

Averoff and Zorlu were pressing the British for an early meeting of all three governments—possibly attended by the three prime ministers—to seal the agreement finally. It was not known how, or at what point, the Cypriots themselves would be consulted.

No date was mentioned so far for the meeting or for an independence target. The British Parliament must ratify any settlement. The Greek and Turkish parliaments also must be consulted.

The blessings of Archbishop Makarios, exiled Greek Orthodox primate of the crown colony, strengthened the hands of the government leaders toward ending a dispute that has cost nearly 600 lives in Cyprus—142 of them British, including soldiers and civilians.

Makarios told newsmen in Athens Wednesday night the Greek-Turkish pact "lays the foundation for an immediate and final solution to the Cyprus issue considering that Cyprus will become an independent sovereign state."

Makarios made no specific recommendation, however, that his people accept the agreement, but he was smiling as he talked with newsmen.

The Cypriots themselves — both the Greek and Turkish communities — greeted the peace pact signed by the Athens and Ankara governments with a feeling of relief tempered by disappointment that their full aspirations were not met.

Still to be heard from was Col. George Grivas, 60-year-old leader of the Greek Cypriot underground EOKA who from mountain hideouts has waged a guerrilla war for nearly four years against British rule. However, the elusive Grivas has pledged allegiance to Makarios, who was banished from the island by the British in 1956 for refusing to denounce EOKA's terrorist campaign.

The Belgian Congo in Africa produces an estimated 60 per cent of the free world's supply of uranium, reports the National Geographic Society.

One Man Wages Inflation War

HARTSVILLE, S. C. (AP) — Banker Lee M. Wiggins is conducting a one-man campaign against inflation.

"An old friend needs help," reads the legend on a small box he is handing out occasionally. Inside is a 1923 silver dollar.

The Atlantic Coast Line railroad chairman has sent these startling comments on inflation to the state's members of Congress, to some of his other friends in Congress, to some editors and economic writers, and to some friends on the New York Stock Exchange.

Accompanying the dollar is a folder reading:

"This is a virgin silver dollar. It has never been in circulation. For over 35 years it has been lying in the vaults of the U.S. Treasury.

"This silver dollar in appearance is strong and vigorous. Actually, it is and has been in declining health for a number of years. Although it has done no work in the 30-odd years of its existence, it has lost about one-half of its ability to do a day's work or to buy goods and services.

"This dollar is ill from a disease called 'inflation.' The further spread of this disease may destroy it. Effective remedies are well known. They can be administered only by the American people.

"As a responsible citizen, you are one of its 'doctors.' The strength and vitality of this old friend can be saved with your help."

The former newspaper publisher has sent out about 40 of these folders and their accompanying dollars.

The city of Tel Aviv began in Israel as a small garden on the side of a hill. Tel Aviv means "hill of spring."

Two Administration Goals Given Start In Legislature

RALEIGH (AP) — The administration-backed campaign to get a new home for North Carolina's Legislature and to create a state water resources agency is gathering momentum.

Bills to carry out the proposals were introduced in the General Assembly Wednesday.

One measure would create a seven-member commission to acquire a site for a legislative home plan the building, and oversee its construction. The proposed state budget provides for an appropriation of 4½ million dollars for the legislative building.

The other bill would create a new state department of water resources. All state activities dealing with water problems — now scattered among several state agencies — would be placed under the new agency. A seven-member water resources board to be named by the governor would administer the department.

The Study Commission on Reorganization of State Government recommended the new water department and legislative building.

The legislative pace was stepped up with the completion of committee appointments in the Senate. This cleared the way for the Legislature to get down to business. Committees already have been named in the House.

Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt appointed 30 Senate committees. He named Sen. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg to head the Senate committee likely to consider legislation dealing with the court reforms. Bell, an attorney, was chairman of a committee of the North Carolina Bar Assn. which studied the state's court system and recommended reforms.

Among other legislative action Wednesday:

Reps. John W. Umstead of Orange and Bedford Black of Cabarrus introduced legislation which would: (1) Change the name of Butner State Hospital to Murdoch Hospital in honor of the late Dr. James W. Murdoch, who was general superintendent of state mental institutions; (2) Change the title of the mental institutions' general superintendent to the commissioner of mental health; and (3) Enable all of the institutions to admit mentally ill epileptics. At present, epileptic patients are treated only at the Raleigh hospital.

Rep. Radford Powell of Rockingham offered a bill affecting out-of-state hunters who hunt only on commercial shooting preserves. They would be required to purchase only a $5 special license, plus a 25-cent fee to the seller. At present, out-of-state hunters have to buy a $15.75 nonresident license.

It was their first meeting in eight years. Mrs. Hill was divorced from Carlos' father and remarried. Mrs. Hill said she will take her 14-year-old son to her home at Crystal Springs, Miss., and try to obtain legal custody of him. (AP Wirephoto)

East Carolina Cagers Defeat Catawba For 4th In Row

SALISBURY — Buffered by the 25-point performance of guard Charlie Adams, East Carolina College razed Catawba here last night, 88-76, to capture its fourth consecutive North State Conference win in a row.

Adams led his club's scorers, but received ample aid from teammates Jess Curry, who got 19, and Ike Riddick, who got 18. Both Curry and Riddick also turned in outstanding floor games and did most of the maneuvering which enabled Adams to score.

Woody Helfrich, Catawba's All-Conference forward, scored 26 points to steal high honors from Adams, but was unable to pull his club into the winner's position.

The victory was East Carolina's 12th of the season against six losses.

Crusaders Tops In Rebounding

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Rebounding often is the difference between a winning and a losing basketball team.

So it's only natural that Belmont Abbey, unbeaten in 15 games against collegiate competition this season, has the two top rebounders in District 26 of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics.

And the Crusaders, as a team also lead the district in rebounding with an average of 56.7. The top rebounders are Danny Doyle with an average of 13.9 a game and John Von Bargen at 13.5.

High Point College is leading in team scoring with an average of 83 points a game for 16 games, and High Point's Danny Sewell is leading in individual scoring with 390 points for an average of 24.3 a game.

Second in scoring is Don King of Appalachian at 20.4 points a game. Cagl Short and Charles Gallagher of Newberry are third and fourth. Short is scoring at a 19.6 clip and Gallagher stands at 19.5. Dick Whitis of Lenoir Rhyne is fifth at 17.7.

Here are some other figures from the district's weekly statistical report:

Bob Lynch of Newberry is leading in field goal shooting percentage with 39 of 59 for 66 per cent. Bill Reece of Lenoir Rhyne leads in foul shooting with 63 of 69 for 91.3 per cent.

Western Carolina is the top defensive team, allowing its opponents an average of 52.2 points a game.

es. In conference play, the Bucs are 9-4, which is good enough to secure for them fourth place in the standings. It also sets up a mathematical possibility of ECC finishing in a tie for second place, should the Pirates have everything their way during the last three weeks of action.

An Early Lead Coach Howard Porter's quintet grabbed an early two-point lead in the first period of play and never allowed the Indians to head them. By halftime, ECC had secured an eight-point spread. Immediately after the third quarter began, the Indians—sparked by Helfrich—cut the Buc lead to three points.

Quick retaliation by Adams, Curry, and Riddick shot the spread back up to 12 points and ECC sailed into the final period of play with certain victory under their belts.

Coach Porter commented this morning that his club did a "very good job against a tough team." He pointed out that Joe Plaster, ECC's 6-8 starting center, fouled out of the tilt with 12 minutes still showing on the clock. Don Smith—a 6-5 junior—filled in at Plaster's position and Nick Nichols, a senior starter, began snaring both his and Plaster's share of the rebounds.

Smith, of course, has been sick. Last night's appearance was his first for ECC in three weeks. Porter praised the Virginia boy's showing and said that "if he continues to improve and round into shape, he'll be a big help to us from here on out."

Rounding out ECC's scoring were Nichols with 9, Smith with 6, and Plaster with 11.

By THE ASSOCIATE PRESS Five North State Conference basketball teams see action tonight.

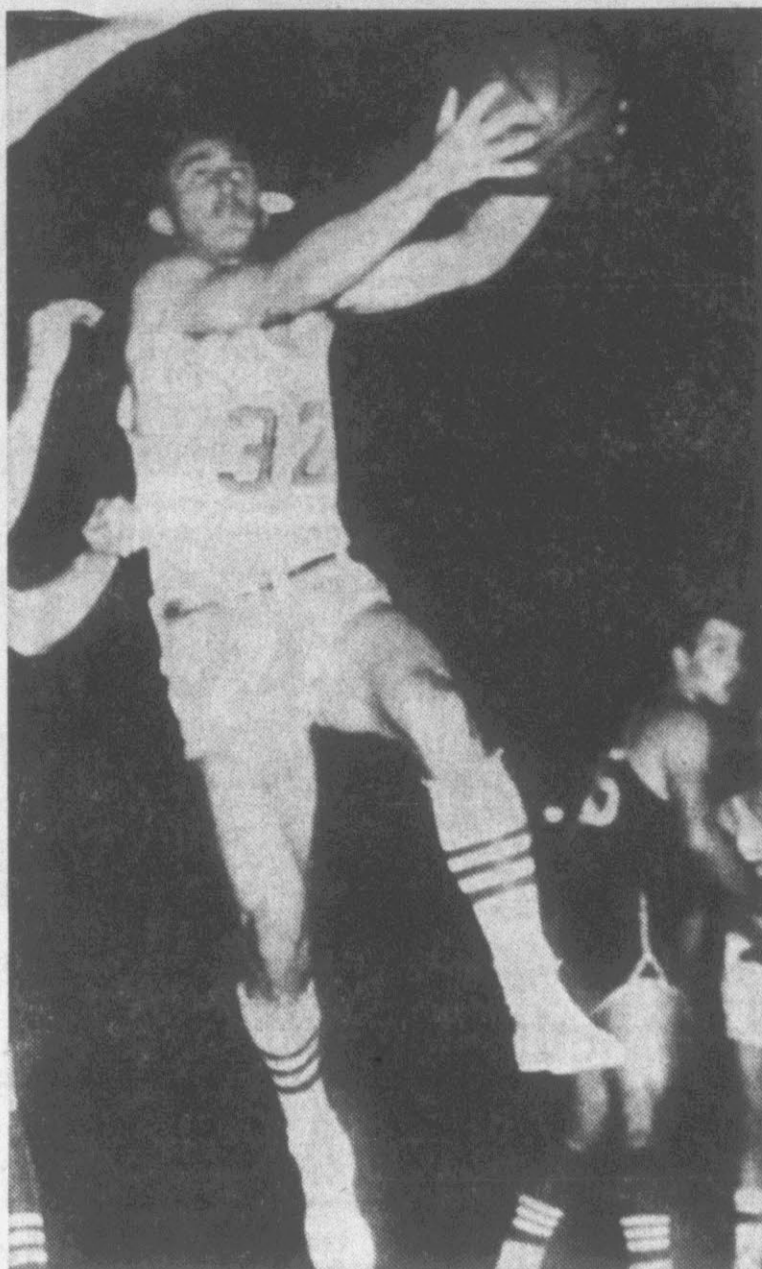

The schedule calls for Appalachian at Elon, Guilford at Lenoir Rhyne and High Point at Wofford of South Carolina's Little Four.

Non-conference Belmont Abbey, undefeated in college play, is at Pembroke.

North State leader Western Carolina dropped High Point into a tie for second place with Lenoir Rhyne in an 82-62 win Wednesday night. Swede Frauson led Western Carolina with 21 points.

East Carolina dumped Catawba 88-76 for its fourth straight conference victory. Charlie Adams hit 25 points for the winners.

ECC Swim Team Plays Host To Southern Conference Champs

East Carolina's swimming team plays host to Virginia Military Institute—the Southern Conference champions—at the ECC pool, Friday night at 8:00.

The match will be open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Both the Pirates and the invaders from Virginia are unbeaten this year except for losses to the same club—the University of North Carolina.

of Georgia, the University of Miami (Florida) and Emory College in its last three matches.

The VMI meet will be something of a grudge match, according to Pirate Swimming Coach Ray Martinez. The Bucs defeated VMI two years ago and practically spoiled one of the most successful swimming seasons recorded at the Virginia Institution. That was the same year, of course, that ECC captured the NAIA national championship.

The following year—last year—VMI turned the tables on the Bucs and administered to them a good thrashing.

Says Martinez: "This will be a sort of revenge match for both clubs. I suspect. This one will break the 1-1 tie between the two teams."

Martinez, who came to ECC in 1957 and built one of the most impressive swimming teams in the Southeast from scratch, claims to have one of his best teams at present.

or competition as Georgia and Miami and Emory substantiate his feelings. His club, however, has run into difficulty since winning the NAIA title two years ago. One ECC athletic official commented recently, "some of the schools we used to swim are running away from us like mad. We've contacted some big schools—I mean big ones—looking for competition, and they won't touch us with a hundred-foot pole."

ECC still has several matches remaining on its schedule after the VMI meet. Among the competition will be an affiliate of Duke University and a return match with Miami (in Greenville).

The Pirates' only losses this year have come from unbeaten North Carolina. And one of those tilts was a close one.

Leading the way for the Bucs tomorrow night will be a pair of undefeated strokers, Bob Sawyer and Jack McCann. Sawyer, who has only been beaten by one man since he began swimming in collegiate competition (UNC's National Champ Charlie Krepp), has not been topped this year in the backstroke. McCann, whose specialty is the breaststroke, is also unbeaten.

Tommy Tucker, another ECC standout, has finished second to McCann in every match this year and is undefeated by outside competition.

Jake Smith, a junior who transferred to ECC from Campbell last year, is also expected to help pace the Buc attack. Martinez labeled Smith's swimming, "extraordinary."

Martinez' divers—Ken Midyette and Glenn Dwyer—are performing better this season than ever before, he says. Midyette, of course, captured the national title at the NAIA meet two years ago. Dwyer has been operating in the shadow of his teammate for the past two seasons. In the Miami meet, last week, Dwyer defeated his teammate for the first time and ECC piled up points, finishing 1, 2 in the event.

Joe Brown Is Easy Winner Over Young Johnny Busso

See Chance For Boost In Rating

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina's Tar Heels, hoping to boost themselves into top place in the national rankings, go against Coach Bones McKinney's Wake Forest Deacons at Winston-Salem tonight in the Atlantic Coast Conference headliner.

A lot of fans hope the game won't be a repeat performance of the semi-freeze affair at Chapel Hill, Jan. 8. North Carolina won 44-34.

"We have something in mind for tonight," said McKinney. "I'm not saying we'll try to run with them, and I'm not saying we're going to hold the ball."

The nationally second ranked Tar Heels, beaten only by Michigan State, will be after their 11th conference win. If they get it, they will assure themselves of at least second place in regular season ACC standings.

The exact one-two placings will be decided between North Carolina and North Carolina State at Chapel Hill next week. The conference champion, of course, will be determined in the March tournament.

In other games tonight, Clemson takes on Furman of the Southern Conference and Virginia entertains VMI, another SC club. There was no ACC action Wednesday night.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Joe Brown, an aging fighting machine that hasn't started to creak, beat young Johnny Busso with comparative ease Wednesday night, then said he wanted another fight real soon.

The world's lightweight champion, defending his title for the sixth time in two years, declared he would meet Busso again "or anyone Manager Lou Viscusi lines up," but he just wanted action.

"I get rusty when I'm inactive," said the skinny little Baton Rouge, La., Negro, who hasn't been very inactive except that he tried an overweight fight with Busso in Miami four months after his last defense of the title—and lost.

But Brown showed no effects of inactivity as he whipped Busso by a wide margin.

Referee Jimmy Webb scored it 148 for Brown, 131 for Busso; Judge Ernie Taylor, Brown 147, Busso 138, and Judge Bill Cornelius 149-140 Brown.

A crowd of 11,033—the largest ever to see a fight in Texas—watched the little dark destroyer throw a blasting right that knocked the strong young man from New York through the ropes in the ninth round. Throughout the fight Brown kept his right working overtime. Busso's face was a bloody mask at the finish.

Busso's nose bled from the third round on, smearing Brown's trunks with bright red. Brown also cut Busso's cheek with a stinging left hook and he had one of Busso's eyes almost closed in the last round.

Busso pressed the fight until the late rounds when he appeared to be a most weary youngster. The crowd paid $61,155 — more than $8,000 under the record set by the Brown-Kenny Lane fight last July here — and with $40,000 from television, total receipts came to $101,155. Brown got 40 per cent and Busso 20.

Brown weighed 134 pounds while Busso was a fraction under 135.

Expecting A New Grid Conference

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Athletic Director Tom Hamilton of the University of Pittsburgh says it is "quite likely that a new national college football conference will be formed."

Hamilton made the statement at a luncheon Wednesday before the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. He declined to estimate how soon such a conference will take shape.

Among the teams reported interested are Pitt, Penn State, Army, Navy, Notre Dame, Syracuse, Southern California, UCLA, California, Washington, the Air Force Academy and possibly Stanford.

Jensen Refuses Contract Offers

BOSTON (AP)—Jackie Jensen's refusal to accept two contract offers today was blamed on stubbornness and "the Williams things" by Bucky Harris, general manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Jensen, 1958 American League most valuable player, reportedly is seeking $40,000.

Though the Red Sox never announce salary figures, Jensen made approximately $27,500 last season. He has mailed back unsigned contracts estimated at $32,500 and $35,000.

Sluggar Ted Williams, Jensen's outfield mate, is ticketed for upwards of $125,000 for the second straight season.

"Jensen doesn't own this ball club," Harris said. "The Williams thing is causing the trouble."

Harris referred to Williams' salary and the publicity given to his signings.

"He (Jensen) has set a figure and he is being stubborn about it," Harris said. "Jackie's a fine boy and I like him, but he is stubborn."

"He'll find that others can fight, too."

Bucky indicated he felt Jensen would sign the second document because it was closer to the figure Jackie had specified.

But Jensen has been quoted from his West Coast home as saying "it wasn't what I asked for and I mean to get it."

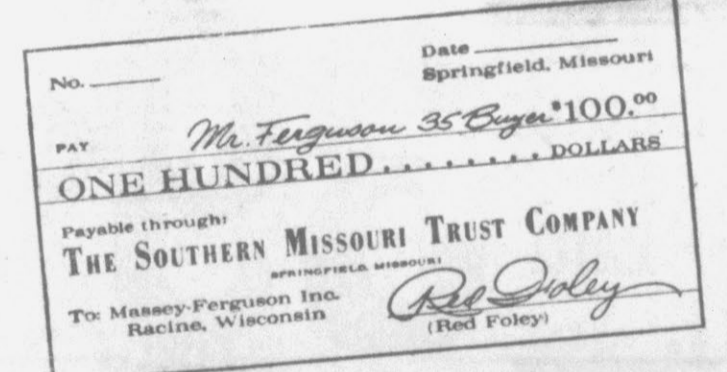

Dom DiMaggio, former Sox outfielder, was reported to have told Jensen: "Don't let them get you cheap. You weren't named most valuable player by accident. Your value is up now."

Boston Globe baseball writer Bob Holbrook quoted Jensen in a phone conversation as saying: "There is no trouble caused by Williams' contract. His business is his business and I'm not interested in what Ted is making or what he will make. I feel that the salary I'm asking is fair. I sent the second contract back, and I think I'm worth more. I won't budge."

Jensen has been the league's most prolific runs batted in man over the past five years. Only once since he came to the Red Sox has he driven in fewer than 100 runs.

Comedian Jimmy Durante was a photographic engraver before entering show business.

meeting, which will be held at 3 p.m. in the new South Cafeteria on the campus.

Approximately 450 representatives from the 90 North Carolina counties which now have students on the campus will make up the Council as it begins its work. Membership will be open to those who wish to join.

The Student Government Association will work with Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins in formulating a program of activities and getting it under way. Directors of the Council will be chosen from student members of the group.

Objectives of the Council now being discussed include explaining the college program to businessmen, legislators, and others interested in education; recruiting students, especially those wishing to prepare for careers in education; seeking aid in the establishment of scholarships for students; encouraging greater interest among alumni groups; and working toward improvement of scholastic standards.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College, discussing the Council, commended the plan of organizing a group of interested students desirous of building a better program at the college. "The plan," he said, "is a wholesome and an ambitious one. This group of students working for the general good of the college will be able to further the development of the school in many ways."

"I hope," he added, "that one of the major objectives of the Council will be the recruitment for enrollment at East Carolina of students of high academic standards."

'Complete Commitment' Theme In Religious Week

Major events of Spiritual Emphasis Week at East Carolina College brought to the campus Sunday through Wednesday, Feb. 8-11 for a series of assemblies and informal discussions a group of speakers outstanding in the fields of religion, education, business, and military service.

The theme for the week was "Complete Commitment. . . So What!" Programs were arranged by a committee of students working under the direction of Cleveland J. Bradner, Jr.

The Rev. W.W. Finlator of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh, principal speaker of the three-day observance, delivered a series of five major addresses in which he related the topic of "Commitment" to religious life. At a meeting Monday afternoon sponsored by the college department of education, Dr. Arthur Wenger, President of Atlantic Christian College, discussed religious commitment as it applies to teaching responsibilities. Chaplain R.C. Archer of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, Goldsboro, spoke at a noon meeting Tuesday to cadets of the Air Force ROTC at East Carolina. His topic was "Spiritual Commitment and the Military Service."

P. Carter Williams, Raleigh architect and designer of East Carolina's new South Cafeteria, applied the theme of commitment to business responsibilities at a Tuesday afternoon meeting sponsored by the college business department.

Early morning devotional meetings led by Mr. Bradner and the Rev. John Drake of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville, and breakfast meetings arranged by the YWCA and the YMCA began each day's activities. Three performances of Graham Greene's "The Potting Shed," a mystery drama with religious implications, began Wednesday night. This performance was followed by a panel discussion led by James H. Warren, assistant professor of speech and religious drama at Scarritt College, Nashville.

For Two Bits, His Life Story

SEATTLE (AP)—For a single quarter, a bidder at the King County coroner's auction Wednesday bought the poignant life story of Joseph Herman, naturalized American.

It came in a plain manila envelope containing the scraps and leavings of a lifetime hoard of personal documents.

Item—on Sept. 2, 1909, Stanislaus Herman, New York City, paid to Hamburg-American Lines $116.18 for the rail and steamer passage of Joseph Herman 11, from Tilisit, East Prussia, to Des Moines, Ia.

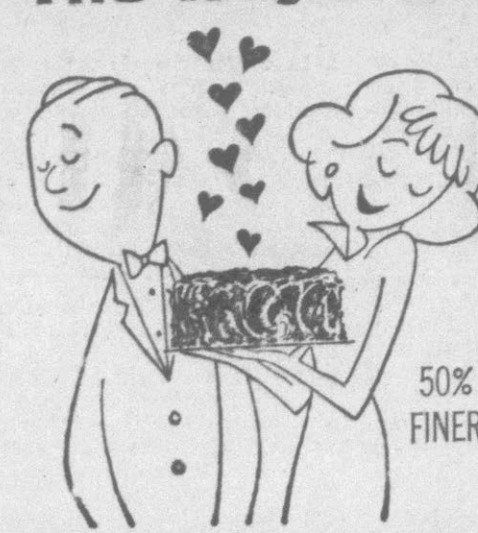

Item—in October 1918, Pvt. Joseph Herman, 20, was discharged honorably from the Army of the United States and notified he had a claim against the government for injuries suffered in line of duty. Item—in April 1933, a scrap of a letter over the illegible name of a woman tells Joseph Herman, 35, she is sorry he is out of work and that his back still hurts. Item—on June 7, 1943, Pvt. Joseph Herman, 45, was discharged honorably from the Army of the United States. Record: military offenses, none; military skills, none.

Item—in July 1953 Joseph Herman, 55, laborer, was discharged from Firlands Sanitarium, Seattle, with arrested case of tuberculosis and told he couldn't work hard anymore. There is one final official document—on June 7, 1954, deputy coroners were called to a downtown Seattle hotel to pick up the body of Joseph Herman, 56, suicide.

Warren To Lead Panel Discussion

James H. Warren, assistant professor of speech and religious drama, at Scarritt College for Christian Workers, Nashville, Tenn., is visiting East Carolina College today to participate in activities of Spiritual Emphasis Week. Tonight he will lead a panel discussion on the religious implications and the artistic values of the East Carolina Playhouse production of Graham Greene's "The Potting Shed."

Mr. Warren spent his early life in Greenville and attended East Carolina College during 1943. He is the son of Mrs. B. S. Warren, 409 Maple Street.

The discussion tonight will follow the first of three performances at the college of the mystery drama with religious implications by Graham Greene. Panelists will include the Rev. W. W. Finlator of Raleigh, principal speaker at Spiritual Emphasis Week, and Dr. James Poindexter and Ovid W. Pierce of the college English department. The performance of the play will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Warren majored in drama at the University of North Carolina, where he worked with the Carolina Playmakers. Later he received the master of arts in theater and radio from Northwestern University and the master of arts in religious education from Scarritt College. He has done special work at Union Theological Seminary and Columbia University in New York.

He is a member of the Religious Drama Committee of the National Council of Churches in the Religious Education Division.

Dr. Browning At Chicago Sessions

Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the department of business education at East Carolina College, is participating as a speaker Thursday and Friday of this week in programs presented in Chicago at professional meetings of business education organizations.

As chairman for North Carolina of the International Society for Business Education, Dr. Browning acted Thursday morning as leader of one of the three panel discussions which compose the program of the convention.

The topic was "Bringing the World into the Business Classroom through Weaving World Understanding Into the Social Business Area."

Dr. Browning will also attend meetings of the National Association for Business Teacher Education and will take part in a forum on "Administrative Problems in Business Teacher Education."

Free After Four Murder Trials

EL DORADO, Kan. (AP) Warren Applegate is a freeman after being tried four times on a charge of murdering his baby daughter. An all-male District Court jury Wednesday found him innocent in the 1954 death of 16-month-old Dana Applegate. He had been charged with putting arsenic in a soft drink bottle and causing the child's death. Applegate was convicted in his first trial, but won a new trial on appeal. The second and third trials ended in hung juries. The aircraft worker lived in a trailer court at Douglass, Kan., at the time.

Commendable Staging Of Broadway Success

By MARY GREENE

The East Carolina Playhouse, opening last night a series of three local performances of "The Potting Shed," gave a commendable performance of Graham Greene's play, a Broadway success of 1957. "The Potting Shed," third major production of the college dramatic club in the 1958-1959 term, was chosen for presentation during Spiritual Emphasis Week at the college because of its religious implications.

A drama of mystery and suspense, described by Time magazine as "not a who-done-it" but a "what-done-it," "The Potting Shed" deals with the efforts of James Callifer to discover the secret of his past and with the conflict between rationalism and faith in the lives of members of the Callifer family.

Not an easy play for an amateur to perform, "The Potting Shed" held the interest of its first-night audience. Contributing largely to the success of the production were competent direction by Dr. Robert T. Rickert of the English department, excellent acting by principals in the cast, rapid pace as the play moved toward its climax, and an intelligent interpretation of the problems involved in the drama.

Merle Kelly of Raleigh played with understanding and emotional force the role of the central character, James Callifer, a man estranged from his wife and family and groping into his past for the reason why his life and character are incomplete. Kelly was particularly effective in the scenes where he pleaded with his mother for love and understanding and for an explanation of the mystery of his boyhood and in that where he at last received an answer from his uncle, a priest.

Delano Driver of Richmond, Va., as the uncle, an alcoholic priest who has lost his faith, gave an intelligent and moving performance. This young actor, who has been connected with about fifty plays staged by the Playhouse has in the opinion of the reviewer the finest talent and the best sense of the theatre of any student actor who has appeared in college productions in recent years.

Sylvia Ruston of Laurel, Del., as Arne Callifer, the precocious, enterprising child detective who helps her uncle solve his problems, deserves special commendation. Leigh Dobson of Edenton in the minor part of the priest's housekeeper, again indicated the ability which in far different roles she displayed earlier this season as Tweenie in "The Admirable Crichton" and as the wife of Willie Loman in "Death of a Salesman." Playhouse productions.

Shirley Dixon of Grantsboro as James's mother played a difficult role well. But her make-up and costuming in making her appear too young detracted from her interpretation of the role.

Mary Margaret Kelly of Salisbury, whose most outstanding work in previous college productions has been as designer of sets, gave a dignified and quietly forceful performance as James's wife.

Others in the cast included William A. Haislip, Jr., of Portsmouth, Va.; William Faulkner of Rocky Mount; John L. Hudgins of Greenville; Derry Walker of Raeford; and Elizabeth Smith of Fountain.

One of the most satisfactory aspects of the production was the rapidity with which the play moved along. The "two hours' traffic" of the stage was really two hours. In a play in which much of the interest depended on the building of suspense, there were no delays or tiresome waits between acts.

The reviewer objected to the use of background music. The acting was good enough to achieve desired effects. The volume of the recordings sometimes obscured the voices of the actors. Especially in the powerfully emotional scene in Father William Callifer's home, the music proved a distraction rather than an artistic advantage.

Scenery designed by Charles Worrell of Goldsboro and Rose Marie Gornto of Wilmington provided a suitable background for the drama.

Last night's performance was followed by a discussion of the meaning and significance of the play. Panelists, with Cleveland J. Bradner, Jr., director of religious activities at the college, as chairman, were James H. Warren, professor of religious drama at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. James W. Poindexter and Ovid W. Pierce of the college English department.

"The Potting Shed" will be presented tonight and Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the McGinnis auditorium. Friday a scene from the play will be given at State College, Raleigh, as a program feature of the Contemporary Arts Festival there. Final performance will take place in the high school at Roanoke Rapids, Feb. 19.

MILK BAR FOR LITTLE ORPHANS—Fred D. Scott of Nashville, Tenn., helps a diner with unsteady legs find a place at the milk bar he built for his orphan pigs. Their mother died soon after they were born. Scott found hand-feeding too burdensome. And so he put pigs in the trunk of a junked automobile and built the milk bar with planks and soft drink bottles. (AP Wirephoto)

Few A-Students Are Car-Owners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What makes Sammy's car run? Sammy does, and it plays heck with his grades.

As in the high school classroom and cars don't mix. Neither do Bs. But Cs and Ds do. And flunkies are the biggest car-owners of all.

These views, certain to get the razzberry in certain elect grease pits are those of William Condit, Belmont High School vice principal. He offers these observations: High school boys are joy-riding right out of an education.

A teen-ager's stock with the girls may go up when he gets a car, but his marks will go down.

The car-owner may wind up quitting school—or at least athletics—to get a job so he can keep the thing perking.

Social pressures on boys nowadays are strong, Condit concedes, any a teen-ager feels he's nobody without wheels. But there's consolation for some in an Idaho study he cites as typical.

Not a single straight-A student questioned owned a car.

Only 15 per cent of the B students owned cars.

But 41 per cent of the C students had cars, and 71 per cent of the D students. And what of the failing students? A spectacular 83 per cent owned cars.

Students usually find their car upkeep and operation costs much higher than they expected.

"It's almost beyond comprehension why parents allow it," Condit says.

He grants there are cases where students need cars. But parents should think it out carefully, he believes, before giving their son the green light.

Some Scientists Studying Russian

BRECKSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Some of America's top scientists have gone back to school to learn a slightly revised version of the three R's — reading and 'riting Russian.

The students are chemists and physicists at the B. F. Goodrich Co. who attend school after working hours so they may learn to read Russian scientific journals in the original.

Four Officials At Conference In Raleigh Today

Four Greenville officials are attending a Public Works Conference at N. C. State College in Raleigh today and tomorrow.

Attending are Kenneth Beatty, superintendent of public works; Gentry Mills, superintendent of streets; C. A. Hollida, city engineer and City Manager Leonard Bloxam.

Bloxam will give a paper entitled "Utility Cuts and Utility Locations" during the conference. Other subjects to be discussed are: street construction and maintenance, sidewalk construction and maintenance, garbage disposal, garbage collection, emergency organization in public works.

CHAPTER 28

"You'll never get another partnership offer like this as long as you live," Bruno Manfredi told Murray Kirk. "Jack Collins is loaded right now, and he's got money behind him, too. He'll pay whatever you want for a half share. You wouldn't throw away a deal like that, just to put the squeeze on me now. Not you?"

"You knew me when I didn't have a dime," Murray said. "From then to now have you ever caught me lying to you?"

He waited while Bruno stood there unhappily arguing this out with himself. And he kept his face impassive when Bruno said: "Okay, I'll go with you. But it's no ten-cent job. I want a thousand bucks for it, and I want the check before I walk out of here tonight."

"Five hundred," Murray said, but when Bruno stubbornly shook his head he said, "All right a thousand. But you'll have to work for it."

"How?"

"First of all, get out to Staten Island and rent a car there from one of those Drive-It-Yourself places. Nothing flashy. If you can get something plain black, so much the better. Then make a couple of runs past Wykoff's house. Try it through the tunnel and Bayonne, and then try it with the ferry, and see which way you make better time. Do it around nine at night, because that's when we'll go out there. Tuesday night around nine, Wykoff should be in then, because they show the $64,000 Question at ten, and he'll be watching it."

"In?" said Bruno. "What do you want him in for?"

"Because that's how we get in. The other thing you have to do is get yourself an outfit. Some kind of high-class workman's outfit, because you'll be a repairman for Staten Island Utilities. You'll need identification cards and a receipt book, too, so have Mrs. Knapp arrange for that at the print shop."

"And then?"

"Then you stay away from here. If you've got anything to say, call me at K. at home; I'll tell her to let you in. Just in case, Tuesday, you pick me up in front of Luchow's restaurant at eight. If I'm not there, keep going around the block, and whatever you do, don't get yourself a ticket while you're rigged up like that."

"Luchow's?" Bruno said. "The condemned man ate..."

"You're a cule kid," Murray said. "What made Jack Collins decide to move back to New York? Did they run him out of California?"

"He leaving before they can. This scandal magazine thing is going to bust wide open. Criminal libel and a couple of other things. Would you want to hang around and take a rap for that, if the magazine loses out?"

speed.

"Which way do we go?" Murray asked, and Bruno said, "It takes about the same both ways. I figure we'll go by ferry so you can brief me while we're crossing, and we can make the run back through the tunnel in case somebody's tailing us. You can't shake anybody off when you're on a ferry. But why did I have to rent this job? What was wrong with my car?"

"Nothing, except that yours has Queens County plates. Suppose somebody takes a look and starts wondering why a Queens car is on a repair job out in Staten Island?"

"I didn't think about that," said Bruno.

"No, you were home on a four-day vacation with pay."

Bruno shrugged. "Jack Collins called long distance last night," he said. "He won't be calling you. He's flying in right after the holidays to talk things over. I told him it's better that way."

He knows where to find me," Murray said.

"I hope so," said Bruno.

The ferry was almost empty when they made the crossing, and the sound of it—a slow thumping of engines, a rhythmic splash of water against the hull—gave Murray the feeling that he was, for the time being, infinitely far removed from the overpowering noise and pressure of the city. That was the thing about boats, he reflected. While you were on them there was nothing you could do but mark time.

He said to Bruno: "Here's the way we'll work it. You're on an emergency call from the utilities company, because there've been complaints about power failure in the neighborhood. When you're in the house telling Wykoff about this, see if you can't get five or six feet down the hall opposite the French doors there. I'll keep an eye on you from outside, because there's a window looks right through those doors. If things go wrong, take off your cap and scratch your head, and I'll head back to the car, but try not to let things go wrong. Your big job is to get down to the cellar and get the fuses out of the box, so that the alarm is cut off. Then give me a count of a hundred, put everything back, and get away. Make a good front all the time, though. Give them a receipt for the call, look official, don't try anything offbeat. You have any idea how a repairman would do it?"

"Right here in my pocket. I filled in some of the book to show I been on a couple of jobs. And I got a box with some tools in it on the back seat. But what happens if Wykoff calls back the utilities company while I'm there, to see if I'm on the level. Any guy who spent all his life ducking subpoenas knows all the tricks we do. How do you figure to get around that?"

"Easy. When we land at St. George, pull up someplace where there's a phone and I'll show you."

In the first available candy store Bruno leaned against the open door of the phone booth while Murray dialed.

"Staten Island Utilities," said the woman's voice at the other end of the wire. "Emergency service. What is it?"

"Look," said Murray plaintively. "my name is Waggoner, and I love out here on Shore Lane in Duchess Harbor. There's something funny happening to the power around here. The street lights keep going off, and it's very annoying. Can't you people—"

"The street lights?" the woman said. "We haven't been getting any complaints about that, sir. If there was any failure on the line it would show up here. Are you sure you aren't mistaken?"

"Of course I'm sure. I'm telling you in plain language that something's wrong with the lights around here, and I want a man out to fix them. You have my name and address, young woman. Take my word for it, I am not in the habit of playing practical jokes!"

The woman's voice now bore the weary resignation of one who has listened too often to unwarranted complaints from lunatic consumers. "Very well, we'll send a man out as soon as possible, Mr. Waggoner. It may take a little while, but he'll be there."

"He'd better be," Murray said, and hung up.

"You know," Bruno said admiringly, "you just sounded like the most miserable crab on Staten Island. What that poor dame must think of this Waggoner, whoever he is—"

"He's got a house near Wykoff's," Murray said. "Come on. Now we move fast."

Bruno wants to know if it's true what they say about your hair turning white if you're scared enough. Continue Stanley Ellin's detective mystery here tomorrow.

Not One Russian In Russia, Ohio

RUSSIA, Ohio (AP) — Not one of the 1,000-or-so inhabitants of this 106-year-old community can claim Russian blood. French immigrants settled the area, and a veteran of Napoleon's army named it Russia because of a resemblance to that country.

Even the village's name is spoken with a French accent. Residents pronounce it "Rooshee."

Tobacco Barn Is Destroyed By Fire In Night

A tobacco barn on the Washington Highway was destroyed by fire last night along with 10,000 tobacco sticks.

Greenville firemen who were called to the scene said the blaze apparently originated from a field of grass which was burned off during the afternoon.

The barn was located on a farm owned by A. M. Moseley and operated by Bennie Mills. Firemen were called around 9:45 p.m. The barn was beyond saving when they arrived.

Another rural call brought a Greenville fire truck to a dwelling owned by Joe Duke and occupied by Horace Joyner about two and a half miles south of Falkland yesterday afternoon.

Fire had developed around a chimney but the blaze was out when firemen arrived.

At 12:20 this morning a truck was sent to Brown Furniture Store where a record player had shorted. There was no damage.

Day Of Prayer Services Friday

World Day of Prayer will be observed tomorrow morning with services at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church beginning at 11:00 o'clock.

Dr. Paul A. Douglass, professor of Sociology at East Carolina College and director of the Danforth Foundation Project, will be the speaker for the occasion.

The board of directors of the Merchants Association approved the request of the United Church Women of the Greenville Council of Churches that business houses follow their usual custom of closing from 11:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon for the World Day of Prayer services.

Mrs. Keith Holmes, president of Greenville branch together with Mrs. H. M. Bryant, vice-president and general program chairman, and the Christian World Relations Committee, namely Mrs. S. B. Underwood Jr., Mrs. F. D. Duncan, is in charge of arrangements for this service.

Obsolete Airplane Installed At Elm Street Park

UNDER COMPLETION at Elm Street park is an obsolete jet airplane, donated to the local recreation department by Cherry Point Air Base. The plane, which is being smoothed over and re-worked for safety purposes, will be located at the park for Greenville youngsters to play on and for educational purposes. Recreation Department supervisor Gordon Goodman said today that the plane is not yet ready and that "It will take about two weeks to finish painting and finishing it." Goodman stated that kids and some adults have done "right much damage" to the plane already and tamper with the equipment until it is completed.

Crime Prevention Program Given At School By Exchange Clubbers

In connection with the National Crime Prevention Program, the Exchange Club of Greenville presented a program at the Eppes High School Wednesday afternoon.

Exchanges Charles Cobb and Tom Finch delivered addresses to some 500 students, outlining the growing problem of crime in the nation, and asking the youth to rally in a fight to decrease the crime rates.

Cobb noted that mental and emotional problems, which can be noted very early in a child's life, are a major cause of the child resorting to crime. Without proper treatment and evaluation and guidance, they turn to crime because of a feeling of rejection by society. He appealed to the students to seek adult aid and guidance when their problems seemed too heavy, and not bury them within themselves, or seek outside help that is not skilled in handling the problems.

Finch in his message to the audience at Eppes High School, said:

"During the short time I am talking to you, 315 Americans will be struck by a major crime. This does not include petty crimes of traffic violations, etc., but rather, crimes of rape, murder, larceny, breaking and entering etc. Rate of crimes has increased 11 percent during the past nine months. At the present rate this will mean 2,800,000 major crimes in the next year.

"In money, crime costs $128 for each person in the United States, or $512 for each family of four.

For every dollar we spend on education, crime costs us $1.11. It costs us not only money, but loss of life, property, and happiness. What can we do about this problem? We appeal to you, the youth of today—our leaders of tomorrow!"

Assault Complaint Referred Solicitor

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges office says union demands for an investigation of an alleged assault on a labor organizer in Franklin have been referred to the district's solicitor, Glenn W. Brown.

The governor's private secretary, Ed Rankin, said the solicitor is responsible for investigating and prosecuting any law violations.

Brown said Wednesday night he had not received copies of union telegrams sent from the governor's office.

He added, however, that he would order an investigation "in the event I am requested to do so, or in the event that facts which are brought to my attention would cause me to feel that an investigation is necessary."

At Franklin, Sheriff Harry Thomas said he planned no investigation himself into the reported beating of Robert Dixon Beame, 53 of Greensboro.

"The man wasn't hurt in this county," he declared.

Beame, hospitalized in Chattanooga, Tenn., charged that he was beaten by four men in Franklin Tuesday while trying to unionize workers at a Burlington Industries hosiery plant.

Telegrams protesting the alleged attack and demanding an investigation were sent by union leaders to Hodges, North Carolina Sens. Sam J. Ervin and B. Everett Jordan, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the Senate Labor-Management Investigating Committee.

Rites Friday For Mrs. George Little

Mrs. Rena Fleming Little, 82, widow of George H. Little, died in Durham at Watt's Hospital at 10:35 Wednesday morning after six weeks critical illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Friday afternoon at Pactolus Baptist Church. Burial will be in Little Family Cemetery, near Pactolus. The pastor, Rev. Walter L. Jones, will officiate the services.

Mrs. Little was a lifelong resident of the Pactolus community and a member of the Pactolus Baptist Church. Her husband died in 1940.

She is survived by a son, William F. Little of Pactolus; a daughter, Mrs. Mae L. Dickinson of Durham; a sister, Mrs. W. E. Warren of Williamston; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.
