Russians Cool To Ministers' Talk On German Issue

LONDON (AP)—The Soviets today gave a chilly reception to Western proposals for a Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany but still left the door open to direct negotiations. An English-language commentator on Moscow radio said the Western notes handed the Kremlin Monday, "do not contain a single more or less constructive suggestion capable of facilitating settlement of questions either of Berlin or of Germany. It all boils down to the same invariable, 'no' the West has been giving us all the time," the broadcaster said. The belief grew in the West that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would press for Big Four summit talks—rather than a foreign ministers meeting—when he receives British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan this weekend. With U.S. Secretary of State Dulles sailing, the Soviet premier is expected to emerge as the coordinator of Allied policy in dealing with the Soviets. He told the House of Commons Thursday night that after his talks with the Soviet leaders, he would visit Bonn and Paris and "perhaps Washington with a view to formation of the Western allied policy." Macmillan leaves for Moscow Saturday to spend 10 days sounding out Soviet leaders on possible grounds for a compromise in the cold war. He is especially anxious to find out what Western concessions the Kremlin is really angling for—without making any commitments on behalf of the Allies. "We must be firm but flexible," he told Commons. Macmillan emphasized that any proposal by Khrushchev for disbandment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was out of the question. "Nothing must be done which would result in the withdrawal of American and Canadian forces from the continent of Europe," he said. "Within that, nothing ought to be excluded." The prime minister emphasized that a firm Allied policy has not yet been formulated. When it is, he said, "great decisions will have to be taken." "We shall have to face in the next period the supreme test of direct negotiations with the Soviet government. It is for that—and it is a grim prospect as well as an inspiring one—that we have to fit ourselves." The United States, Britain and France had suggested the Big Four foreign ministers discuss the whole German problem with representatives of the pro-Western Bonn government and the Communist East German regime sitting in for consultation. The Allied notes made clear they have no intention of giving up their place in West Berlin and rejected outright the Soviet proposal for a 28-nation conference to write a German peace treaty that would isolate and neutralize the divided country. Perhaps significantly, the first Soviet reaction came in a Moscow radio commentary on a beam to North America usually served for propaganda broadcasts. This tactic gave Khrushchev an opportunity to fish for Western reaction without firmly committing the Soviet government.

Test Borings At Hospital

CONSTRUCTION of a half-million dollar addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital is expected to begin in approximately 16 months from yesterday, according to hospital officials, following test borings which will determine the status of the soil. The borings, which were begun yesterday, are being made deep into the ground to determine whether construction is possible. Seven holes are being drilled and the operation is expected to be completed today.

Council Sets 66 Years As Employee Retirement Age

By ALVIN TAYLOR, Reflector City Editor
City councilmen this morning unanimously adopted an ordinance which would require municipal employees to retire at their 66th birthday, except under special conditions. However, councilmen stipulated that employees who are presently beyond their 66th birthday would not be required to retire until next Sept. 1. Three city employees, all in the Police Department are believed to be presently beyond the retirement age. The councilmen took action at a special call meeting today after the item was tabled at the regular monthly meeting last night following a 2-2 deadlock. Mayor S. Eugene West, who had returned from a Florida vacation trip an hour before the meeting began, was not present last night. When the retirement program item was called by Mayor Pro-Tem Wesley Harvey, Councilman W. L. Whedbee moved that the matter be deferred until the March meeting. He was making the motion, Whedbee said, because he felt all councilmen should be present before a decision was made. J. A. Collins seconded the motion. "It's a big move," he said. "We ought to have 100 per cent on this. I, too, would like to have every member of the Council present." Harvey pointed out that the details of the plan had been available to members of the council for 60 to 90 days. "I don't know how long it takes some people to make up their minds," he declared. The mayor pro-tem called for a vote on Whedbee's motion. Whedbee and Collins voted affirmatively and Harvey and Lester Turnage voted against deferring action. The split vote tabled the matter. This morning, Mayor S. Eugene West issued a call for a special council meeting at 9:30. West apologized for not being present at last night's meeting. He pointed out that he had arrived in Greenville at 7 o'clock. He said he consulted with Harvey prior to the meeting and "everything seemed to be all right." "He called later and said everything seemed to be in accord with it but felt like they ought to have the whole council." Neither Whedbee nor Collins voiced objection to the retirement plan this morning. But Whedbee said he felt the employees affected immediately "ought to have some notice." First he thought Jan. 1, 1960 would be a good deadline date, Whedbee said, but after thinking it over "I feel now they should have until Sept. 1." He pointed out that the retirement ordinance would affect the Police Department more than any other. Collins stated he concurred with what Whedbee said. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said he, too, would recommend the Sept. 1 date and the other councilmen concurred. The city fathers unanimously approved a motion by Whedbee that the retirement ordinance be adopted with the Sept. 1 deadline for employees presently affected by the law. Under the plan, as outlined by Bloxam, the retirement program would put the department super-

New $1 Minimum Wage Bill, Soft Drink Tax Offered

RALEIGH (AP)—A $1 minimum wage bill and a measure to place a one cent crown tax on soft drinks were introduced in the House today. Reps. Ed Kemp of Guilford and Frank Snapp of Mecklenburg tossed in the bill to slap a tax on soft drinks. It would boost state revenues by about 10 million dollars a year. The minimum wage measure was sponsored by Rep. Sam J. Burrow Jr. of Randolph. He said it "has more teeth in it as far as enforcing" is concerned than a 75 cents minimum wage bill which was introduced earlier in the session. Burrow's bill would exempt from the $1 wage floor employees with less than four workers. It also would exempt farm workers, domestic help, newsboys, shoe shine boys, caddies, baby sitters, theater ushers, pin boys in bowling alleys, traveling salesmen, students doing part time work, and those whose pay consists principally of tips. Burrow said the State Department of Labor had informed him that more than 200,000 workers in the state are now receiving less than $1 an hour. Gov. Hodges in his biennial message to the General Assembly urged the enactment of a minimum wage of at least 75 cents an hour. Other new legislation included bills in both the Senate and the House reduced the membership of the State Utilities Commission from 5 to 3 and to boost their pay. The changes were recommended by the Commission on Reorganization of State Government and endorsed by Gov. Hodges. Kemp said his bill would permit lawmakers to consider withholding of state income tax "on its merits, and not as a desperation measure to balance the budget." Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission have recommended that a 2 1/2 million dollar windfall feature of withholding be used to balance the budget for the biennium. Kemp said he did not mean his bill to be taken as an opposition to the withholding proposal. "I just think it ought to be considered on its own," he explained. He also refused to tie the measure to spending proposals. "The Appropriations Committee can decide how to spend it," Kemp said. The Utilities Commission reorganization measure was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Frank Patton Cooke of Gaston and Robert L. Morgan of Cleveland and in the House by Reps. Cloyd Philpott of Davidson and George Uzzell of Rowan. The bill would give the Utilities Commission chairman a salary of $12,500 a year and the other two commissioners $12,000 a year. The chairman now gets $11,500 and the other members $11,000. The bill also would give the commission members the same retirement provisions as Superior Court judges which is two-thirds of their pay after they have served a certain number of years. Rep. Steve Dolley of Gaston introduced a bill which would require that witnesses in a civil action testify out of the presence of other witnesses. Dolley explained the procedure is now in the discretion of the trial judge. The Senate passed and sent to the House two bills dealing with civil defense. One would qualify the State Civil Defense organization for more federal funds by putting its workers under the merit system. The other provides for alternate meeting places for county and city agencies in case of enemy attack.

Beck Found Guilty Of Tax Cheating

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—Convicted of cheating on his income tax, millionaire labor leader Dave Beck Sr., 64, spent time behind bars for the first time in his life Thursday night. The former president of the huge Teamsters Union was found guilty on all four counts of income tax evasion—covering $240,067 for the years 1950-53—and two counts of filing false returns. He could receive up to a five-year sentence and a $10,000 fine on each count. U.S. Dist. Judge George Boldt, who set sentencing for Feb. 27, was to hold an appeal bond hearing in Seattle today. Beck's lawyers said the verdict would be appealed "all the way." The one-time laundry truck driver, who prided himself on not smoking or drinking, appeared more shaken at having to spend the night in jail than by the verdict. The portly Beck, nattily clad in a blue suit and polka-dot tie, gripped the edge of a table but showed little emotion as the clerk drew "guilty" six times Thursday afternoon. Later he was heard to remark to a friend he just couldn't understand why he had to remain in jail. When found guilty, his $25,000 bail was revoked. His quarters in the federal section of the city jail were a world apart from his lavish home in the so-called "Beck Compound" on the shores of Lake Washington in Seattle. Just three years ago he was a respected millionaire businessman, international president of the Teamsters Union—considered the largest in the country—and a vice president of the AFL-CIO. The self-made man who had left high school before graduation had even served as president of the University of Washington Board of Regents. Today he is under the shadow of two convictions. Beck was sentenced to not more than 15 years in prison after a 1957 conviction for grand larceny in the embezzlement of $1,900 from the sale of a union-owned Cadillac. The State Supreme Court is scheduled to hear his appeal next March. Beck's big trouble began when he appeared before the Senate Labor-Management Committee in 1957 and invoked the Fifth Amendment more than 150 times. He said then he could probably clear everything up with a few minutes in the court of law. But the balding Beck didn't take the stand here. After the long government case in the three-month trial, the defense rested after calling only one witness—an accountant. His lawyers said Beck wanted to take the stand but was advised against it by his counsel who didn't think the government had a case. The jury of eight men and four women returned their verdict a day after receiving the case. Foreman Warren Hale said only 10 ballots were taken. The first vote came out eight for conviction, three for acquittal and one blank. Beck, who finished a sandwich at his hotel before returning to court to hear the verdict, said en route to jail, "I feel good." He said he was worried, though, about the illness of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Denied access to Beck's documents, the government worked from bank records, hotel ledgers, account books and a dozen other sources. It based its case on Beck's alleged pocketing of expense money and misuse of union funds. It presented 115 witnesses. The defense held that any money Beck received from the union was in the form of loans and, therefore, not taxable. Beck had consolation of a sort. The Teamsters Union said his $50,000 a year pension was from a trust fund, unaffected by any court decision. Approve Zoning Power Extension

City Councilmen last night approved a proposed local legislation bill which would give Greenville zoning authority one mile beyond the city limits. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said the authority would have no effect on farming operations or farm buildings. The county's legislative representatives would be asked to introduce the bill only if a statewide bill to be introduced in the General Assembly fails to carry. A delegation of property owners in the proposed urban renewal area appeared before the City Council last night to present a petition protesting the selection of their area for reconstruction plans. Represented by Attorney J. W. H. Roberts, a petition signed by 55 property owners in the area was presented asking the City Council to re-consider urban renewal plans for the section. Roberts told the council in presenting the petition that he assumed they would want to discuss it some night when time was set aside for such a discussion. He asked that the group be notified as to when an urban renewal discussion would be held. The council accepted the petition and no further action was taken. The petition read: "We, the above signed being owners of the property located in the area bounded by Albemarle Ave., Fifth St., Ford St. and Spruce St. re-sider and remove this above mentioned area from the proposed urban renewal plans." Councilmen last night also approved paving of Pittman St. from Sylvan Dr. to the end of pavement on Pittman St. The 150-foot section will connect two paved networks of streets in the Tucker Circle-Hillsdale area. They also approved the paving of one block at the east end of E. Fourth St. Plans for paving several blocks of the street have already been approved and work is underway. Councilmen called for a public hearing on the acceptance of Lincoln Park Addition No. 1.

Six From Pitt Among Finalists

Five students at Junius H. Rose High School and one at Ayden High School have been awarded certificates of merit for reaching the finals of 1958-1959 National Merit Scholarship competition. The students are Billy Brown, Mildred Coleman, Dot Davis, Laura Gurganus and Jasper Jones of Greenville and Freddie Skinner of Ayden. Notification of their selection as finalists was received today by Principal O. E. Dowd of Rose High School and E. F. Johnson of Ayden High School. Certificates received by the six students show that they are ranked among the top high school students in North Carolina. Each of them took two college aptitude tests used in National Merit Scholarship competition. About six-tenths of one per cent of high school seniors in each state received certificates this year, with a total of 10,000 reaching the finals. More than 478,000 students participated in the testing program which began last April. Approximately 700 of the 10,000 finalists will be named Merit Scholars this spring. They and the colleges they have chosen will share in $3.5 million in Merit Scholarship funds offered by more than 80 organizations and individuals. Winners of the final awards will be determined by results of judging now being conducted. Mary Ann Bryant of Rose High School and Paul Cox of Farmville High School were 1958 Merit Scholarship winners in Pitt County.

Costello Loses His Citizenship

NEW YORK (AP)—The citizenship of Frank Costello was revoked today by U.S. Dist. Judge Archie O. Dawson. Costello, 63, currently is serving a five-year sentence for federal income tax evasion. The government has waged a long legal battle to strip from Costello the U.S. citizenship it claimed he obtained through fraud and misrepresentation in 1925. Judge Dawson's action paved the way for what is expected to be the government's next move—to deport Costello to his native Italy. The government had tried once before to denaturalize him. The case was thrown out by a federal court in 1936 on the ground that the government evidence was "permeated with the fruit of illegal wire taps."

Report Marshall Condition Same

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall's condition "remains essentially unchanged" today as he fights the weakening influences of age, two strokes and mild pneumonia. Col. George M. Powell, Army physician handling the case, said, "His condition remains serious and the prognosis remains guarded."

Call Meeting On Decreased ABC Fund Shares

Crumbles about decreasing ABC funds turn-over to the county's towns rose to a roar today as Greenville's City Council voted to call a pow wow of Pitt municipalities' mayors to discuss the problem. From the Mayor's conference, Greenville officials hope to work out a change in the county's legislative act which would require by law that a certain percent of the liquor sales profits be distributed among the municipalities. Mayor S. Eugene West proposed the plan at a special call council meeting this morning which followed last night's regular session. He said the funds received from the ABC profits have been steadily dwindling for the past several years. The mayor said he felt if the profits with one-third of the profits with the county getting two-thirds a fair distribution of profits system would be attained. It was pointed out at the meeting that legislation is in effect requiring a distribution of a portion of the ABC profits among municipalities in several counties. Such a law has been passed for Lenoir County. Following the mayor's conference, Greenville officials hope that a meeting can be planned with the county's representatives in the State Legislature to arrange for introduction of a bill bringing about the change. That Greenville's share of the ABC fund has steadily dropped is shown by the turn-over figures for the past five years. In 1953-54 the city received $7,333.76; in 1954-55, $8,909.49; 1955-56, $9,398.60; 1956-57, $3,057.86; 1957-58, $3,791.73. This fiscal year Greenville has so far received $1,676.54. Other incorporated communities have experienced a corresponding drop in liquor profits turn-over. The ABC Board by law sets aside 20 percent of the profits from legal liquor sales for law enforcement purposes. After expenses of the ABC officers are paid the remaining amount is distributed among the municipalities. Smaller ABC profits and increased costs of county ABC law enforcement, along with a rise in state sales tax have been cited as reasons for the decrease in turn-over to the towns. County Auditor Reginald Gray pointed out that the sales tax has been increased from eight and a half per cent to ten per cent. He pointed out this morning that net profits from ABC sales for the year ending June 30, 1952 were $355,996.85. From that came N. C. Sales Tax of $143,786.65 and a reserve for law enforcement of $42,262.04. That left for the county general fund in 1952, $169,786.65. For the fiscal year of 1957-58 the net profits had fallen to $263,249.78. Sales tax was $123,905.55. Only $27,887.88 was reserved for law enforcement from which the municipalities funds come. County general fund turn-over for last year was $111,551.44.

Better Driver Licensing Campaign To Be Staged

State legislators throughout the nation will be alerted to feminine concern over state driver licensing laws as the result of a unique "Ballot for Better Driver Licensing" campaign to be conducted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, according to Mrs. B. V. Todd, national safety chairman.

The General Federation, which numbers more than seven million members in this country, recently adopted a "Passport to Safety" program to alert its members to the necessity for driver license legislative reforms to improve traffic conditions. The "Ballot for Better Driver Licensing" campaign will dramatize this program and express to state legislators the concern felt by women over the traffic accident problem, stated Mrs. Todd.

Printed ballots urging legislative action to improve state driver licensing programs will be sent to each of the GFWC's 20,000 affiliates throughout the country for signature by the members who will forward the signed ballot to their respective state legislators.

"We feel that the time has come to step forward and speak out vigorously for driver licensing laws that will operate to reserve the driving privilege for those motorists willing to accept and live up to the responsibilities inherent in the operation of a motor vehicle," Mrs. Todd said.

Mrs. Barrett Speaks To Club

The Chicora Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Louis Clark on Tuesday. The hostess welcomed her guests, Mrs. James Harvey Ward, Mrs. John Messick Jr., Mrs. R. E. Messner and Mrs. Alton Barrett.

Mrs. Clark introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Barrett. Mrs. Barrett's subject was "Alcoholism Anonymous."

She noted that the A. A. was a fellowship with no dues or fees, not a religion, but a deeply spiritual program. The center of the foundation is in New York City with branches all over the United States.

Mrs. Barrett explained what alcoholism is: a disease, an illness, a physical allergy and a mental obsession. She invited the members to attend the open meeting of A. A. the last Tuesday of each month.

A short business meeting followed. Changes in the year's schedule were corrected. The books were exchanged.

30 Years Ago Today

February 20, 1929

The Music and Art Department of the Woman's Club held its first meeting Tuesday afternoon at the club house. Mrs. T. E. Hooker, chairman of the department, gave a brief outline of the work of the department and asked for the cooperation of each one in making the club a success. Mrs. Knott Proctor sang "Where My Saravan Has Rested," accompanied by Miss Veazey.

The meeting of the Garden Club was held at the Woman's Club building Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. L. P. Spence gave a talk on seed planting, also on pruning shrubs and rose bushes. Mrs. G. B. Chapman gave an interesting talk about her trip to Florida.

Husbands, Guests Honored

Husbands and guests of Mt. Pleasant Home Demonstration Club members were honored at a dinner meeting on Friday evening at the community building.

Red carnations interspersed with red hearts were used as centerpieces on the tables.

Mrs. Kenneth Hathaway, president of the club, welcomed the guests and, after dinner, introduced the speakers for the event, Mrs. Sue May and Sam Weeks.

Using "Family Teamwork" as their topic they reminded husbands and wives present of the responsibilities of each to the other toward making a happier family and "raising better citizens for tomorrow's world."

After this, Mrs. A. C. Rowland led the group in several games.

'No - Iron' Sheets Are Now On Market

By LOIS FREEMAN Ass't Home Agent

Recently, two types of "no-iron" sheets and pillow cases have been introduced on the market. One type has a resin finish, while the other has a non-resin finish.

The following are claims for both the resin and the non-resin finishes: non-chlorine retentive; odor, mildew, and soil resistant; can withstand same water temperatures as regular cottons; and can be washed by hand, machine, or commercial laundry.

It should be noted that the drying methods for the two types of sheets differ. The resin-finish sheet should be tumble dried or drip dried for best appearance. Spinning or wringing out, followed by line drying, is best for the non-resin-finish sheet.

Both types of sheets and pillow cases are priced moderately higher than regular sheets. However, when the laundry is done at home, the consumer will note a saving in time and energy, since the sheets do not require ironing. They also remain neater for a longer period of time than regular sheets. If a commercial laundry is used for the resin-finish sheets, the homemaker will enjoy a dollar and cents saving, since she has to pay for "fluff" drying only and will not incur the additional cost for ironing.

Fabric News For Spring
Cotton hopsacking and cotton knits are very much in the limelight. Hopsacking is shown in prints or muted plaid colors, solids, and stripes. Cotton knits come in an even greater variety of patterns and textures—screen prints, paisleys, plaids, stripes, rib cords, and block designs.

Noteworthy also are the cotton sharkskins; and heavy cottons, such as giant houndstooth check for spring coats. Returning are the familiar fabrics—osnaburgs, huck weaves, and heavier oxfords which can be considered for sports or beach coats.

Coordinated schemes will be shown in both adult and children's wear—texture against texture, and prints, stripes, and plaids with solid colors. The younger set will be seen wearing coordinated groups of slim jims, capris, jamaicas, and shorts. The predominant coordinated sets in women's wear include jackets, skirts, and blouses. Many sports and casual clothes will be reversible jackets, coats, and wrap-around skirts. Some fabrics, such as piques, novelties, and clip dots are being shown reversible.

There is a colorful array of oriental cottons inspired by around-the-world travel themes. Brilliant colors, oriental prints, and novel patterns and textures are shown. Eastern-inspired silhouettes, plus lush touches of embroidery, beading, frog buttons, and obi sashes, create exciting new fashions.

Color should not be omitted from the cotton fabric story for spring and summer. The pink family is of first importance, with hot pinks, cherry pinks, jewel-like ruby tones, magentas, fire-cracker reds, raspberry, and carnation shades most often seen. Blues are highlighted in brilliant turquoise, true blue, and exotic peacock. There is new appeal to the greens, with high style acid green, citron, pale absinthe, and light avocado shown. For sunlit hours, the sunny yellows include oriental bright yellow, sun gold, as well as topaz and sophisticated grapefruit.

In contrast to the brilliant tones, there is much interest in the subtle shades of bronze, copper, and curry. Neutrals also include coffee bean, string, and honey blonde.

Laundrying Tips
There is no need to separate wash-wear cottons from others that are not wash-wear, so long as they are similar items—colorfast and soiled to about the same degree and the washing machine is not overloaded.

Tests show that there is no critical water temperature for washing wash-wear cottons any more than there is a critical temperature for washing untreated cottons. Therefore, hot water temperatures, as found in the average home, should be used for laundering white and colorfast wash-wear cottons. Hot water is more effective for washing because it releases dirt more quickly, removes odor, and dissolves detergents rapidly.

Most cotton wash-wear finishes perform equally as well when tumble dried as when drip dried. In fact, wash-wear cottons often have a better appearance after tumble drying than they do when handled by the drip-dry method. Chlorine-resistant finishes are now on the market in volume, particularly in whites and light-colored fabrics likely to be subjected to bleaching. It is no longer necessary for the consumer to accept a light-colored fabric which cannot be bleached by the usual methods.

It is imperative, however, for the consumer to check hand tags when making a purchase, since this is the only way she will be able to tell whether or not the fabric is chlorine resistant.

For labels stating "Do Not Use Chlorine Bleach," the homemaker should use a powder (sodium perborate) bleach, since this bleach does not contain chlorine and will not turn the garment yellow.

Gold Star Mothers, Fathers Given Banquet

AUXILIARY HONORS . . . The Ladies Auxiliary to the Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7052, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was hostess at the banquet Wednesday night.

Wednesday night 18 Gold Star Mothers and Fathers were honored at a banquet at the Eighth Street Christian Church by members of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7052 to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mrs. C. B. West Jr., president of the sponsoring organization, was mistress of ceremonies.

Dr. H. Glenn Haney, pastor of the church, pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

Mrs. West called attention to the silver flower bowl which contained gold mums and to the silver holders which held gold candles. "The bowl was won by the local auxiliary for having the best Americanism project in the State and the candlesticks for having the best flag observance program in the State," explained Mrs. West.

"Another project of which we are proud is the National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., where widows and orphans of deceased veterans are cared for. North Carolina has a cottage there. The auxiliaries and posts throughout the State cooperate in building and maintaining it," she continued.

"The motto is 'Honor the Dead by Helping the Living.' We try to do that in all our projects," concluded Mrs. West.

A message was read from State Commander Wesley Cullipher who was unable to attend the affair.

The local commander, E. J. Casstick, spoke briefly on the fine spirit of cooperation which exists between the Auxiliary and the Post.

Don Casey of Grifton, second district commander, brought greetings from the district as did Mrs.

Bob Bland of Kinston, second district auxiliary president.

Ford McGowan, commander of the American Legion, Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, past president of the American Legion Auxiliary, and M. E. Cavendish, Pitt County Service Officer, participated on the program. # Home Accessories Need Attention

RALEIGH—"Carefully arrange accessories in your home to emphasize their beauty," says Miss Pauline Gordon, house furnishings specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Avoid a crowded, cluttered look. Use only a few accessories which are related to your furniture groupings.

Consider size of your room, amount of pattern used in other furnishings, and how grouping can look distinctive and important.

Miss Gordon stresses the importance of studying the design of arrangements. Balance—formal or informal—is necessary for a pleasing effect. Emphasis is important in design. Decide how much importance may be given to each part or to the grouping.

If a fireplace is a focal point in a room, the arrangement must be planned with that in mind. A picture window overlooking a beautiful view should be played up by arranging the furnishings for maximum beauty inside and out.

'Professional Look' Secrets

RALEIGH—For a "professional look" with the "just right" touches, try sewing the new packaged dress, advises Miss Julia McIver, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Buttons, bows, collar, snaps, needles, thread and bias bindings are included in the package. The inexperienced seamstress has everything to complete the dress in a minimum amount of time.

The pattern is printed on the wrong side of the material and premarked for darts, seams, etc. Total cost . . . $2.25 to $4.95.

Miss McIver says, however, this type of package is available mostly in children's clothing. The fabric and pattern are originals.

That Fatal Misstep Seems Nearer

Tension over divided Berlin which appeared to ease off slightly several weeks ago, now is growing again with another Khrushchev threat of war if the Allies do not abide by Soviet demands that they abandon West Berlin.

While the Soviet leader put his threat in terms of the Allies using force to get through East Germany to Berlin, it is obvious that the Allies either must have supply lines to West Berlin, or they must abandon it to the puppet East German Communist government.

And it should be equally obvious there is much more at stake in this crisis than the mere occupation of West Berlin by Allied forces.

The Soviet Union has issued an ultimatum to the Western powers to abandon territory which was agreed to in treaties between the Soviet Union and the Allied Powers at the close of World War II. If, in the face of the Soviet threat the Allies abandon Berlin, it will be only a short time before the Kremlin demands that other areas of freedom likewise be given over to Communist control.

The Western Big Three must decide now whether to call the Russian bluff and risk war, or put their tails between their legs and leave West Berlin to the Communists.

It is not a pleasant situation. Certainly war is to be avoided at all costs. But would it be avoided by the Allies giving the Soviet Union's puppet government control of West Berlin?

Would not such a spectacular gain without a fight only whet the Soviet appetite? Would it only lead to other demands upon the Allies by the Kremlin? Sooner or later the West would have to defy the Soviet demands or else forfeit its freedom.

The deepening crisis over Berlin has been taken pretty much in stride by citizens of the United States. For the most part the citizenry—and perhaps our leaders too—have viewed it as a bad dream, another stroll along the brink of war in which we will avoid the abyss by some quick step at the last moment.

What the step will be or how we will take it, we don't quite know; but we just assume when the final hour comes we'll do the right thing and avoid catastrophe.

Well, maybe . . . . But then, maybe the law of averages is catching up with both East and West as they have courted along the brink of war these last few years. Sooner or later one will make a misstep at the last crucial moment, and both will fall into the bottomless pit of conflict.

Much as we hate to admit it to ourselves, it possibly—just possibly—could be at Berlin in May.

Legislature Continues To Hold The Strings

The need for greater local government autonomy in North Carolina becomes apparent every two years when the legislature meets in Raleigh, just as it is apparent on the local government level year in and year out as elected officials go about the business of transacting local government affairs.

Legislators, burdened with important state-wide problems and state-wide legislation which needs attention, find themselves also loaded down with hundreds upon hundreds of local bills which also must be given attention.

The vast majority of these bills have to do with matters which more properly should be handled by local governing boards. But these boards find themselves unable to act because of strings which require legislative approval for such things as changing salaries and fees, appointing certain officials and many other matters which should be entirely within the scope of local governing boards.

Such legislative strings on local government are foolish, needless and uncalled for.

The 1959 session of the General Assembly is less than three weeks old. Yet more than half the bills introduced so far have to do with local matters. Probably 90 per cent or more of these have no interest or effect at all outside the immediate local area from which they were introduced. Yet they take the legislature's time, and the fact that such bills are required impedes the operation of local government.

Elimination of the necessity for all this local legislation would prove a boon to the efficient operation of local governments as well as to the legislature. Though proposals have been made to eliminate the necessity of petty local matters being sanctioned by legislative action, they have not proved effective in practice. The legislature continues to hold the strings and red tape which keeps local government tied to it . . . and tied too tightly for the good of either the state or local governments.

If the legislature would relieve itself of one of its biggest headaches—that of unnecessary local legislation—it has merely to give local governments of the state the autonomy they need and deserve.

Reaction Among The Legislators

By LYNN NISBET

CONSTITUTION — As members of the Legislature have had time to "look at" but not thoughtfully study recommendations of the Constitutional Commission diverse reactions are noted. The article on courts had been given more advance publicity and naturally attracted first interest of lawyer members. Opinion generally has been favorable, with several members suggesting that the Bell committee ideas and the commission recommendations might be combined in the final draft to the benefit of both. The lawyer legislators, anxious for some reform in court procedure, were almost unanimous in hoping that no fight would develop between the sponsors of the two reports.

Next to courts in manifestation of interest was the article on education, especially the public school system. There was some perturbation at deletion of the requirement for a general and uniform system of public schools. It was noted by a number of the legislators that the commission took a new tack on this point. They said they had known many statutes to be thrown out because they did not conform to the constitution, but this is the first time they heard of the constitution being changed to conform to a statute. Reference was made to explanation that the change was made to make the constitution fit the "Pearsall Plan" school laws.

Surprise was voiced in the House Education committee that the constitution group had not conferred with Dr. Charles F. Carroll, State superintendent, about the public school sections. Dr. Carroll said he had one brief telephone conversation. He added he hoped to have an opportunity to appear before the committee considering the bills.

SCHOOLS — School people are more immediately concerned about temporary legislation than about long range constitutional matters. Top item, of course, is teacher salaries. The budget bills recommended no general salary raise except for the first three years, but three or four independent salary increase bills have been offered. The main fight in this area may be on the question of whether the increase will come entirely from State appropriation or through mandatory participation of local units. If that issue develops it will array the big counties against the small ones.

and most of the administration and legislative leadership hopes to avoid that. Other matters on the public school front requiring State-local cooperation deal with inspection of buildings and insurance. (The State school house insurance division now carries more than $260 million insurance on property in 96 of the 174 administrative units.)

The Federal government gets into the picture, too, through implementation of the National Defense Education Act. A good many thousands of dollars of Federal money will be available to North Carolina under this act only if the State and the local units cooperate with matching funds. The continuing problem of pupil transportation has raised its head again. A bill has been introduced by Rep. Max Childers of Gaston to require bus hauling of rural children within one-half mile instead of the present one mile from the school. Bills have been prepared and may hit the mill anytime to require State financed transportation for all pupils on equal basis, whether they live inside or outside of incorporated towns and cities.

NEW TAXES — The concern manifested by many legislators over the school situation leads to conclusion that more money will be appropriated than recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission. That will mean new taxes from some source. There has been surprising support indicated for removal of food exemptions from the general sales tax — although it cannot be claimed that this idea is popular with majority of the legislators. There appears much more readiness to accept a tax on cigarettes and soft drinks than was evident two and four years ago. Here again while the increased sentiment is noticeable it is still limited to a minority of the membership. There is stubborn opposition to the principle of withholding State income taxes from payrolls, and even more to the proposed use of the "windfall" to balance the current budget.

Attitude of the legislators seems to be that a lot more money will have to be raised than the budget revenue bills would provide, but there is so far no semblance of agreement on where it will come from. Veteran members have suggested that the tax fight will not take shape for three or four weeks, and it will be honey when it does develop.

Not Much Left For The Homesteader

By DON SCHLIENZ

Highly Promising Signs

It's been a slow sort of process, but there is a change in the air. Awareness sort of sneaked up on me the other morning when driving to work . . . the morning sky was full of light.

And there was still daylight about when driving home, too. That was different. For a long time, it seems, I've been going to work in a gray murk and driving home with the car lights lit.

Piece by piece, other scattered little things noticed in passing have been put together into a promising pattern.

For instance . . . I haven't worn a topcoat for well over a week; the rain hasn't been turning to sleet; the water on the streets hasn't been turning to ice. (Yes, I know it was cold this morning.)

Something else: the rye grass seed I scattered over much of our yard last fall is greener than ever, and I suspect some seed that had lain dormant through the really cold months has sprouted. Certainly that sparse green fuzz looks thicker.

Too, it seems I can recall some evidence of leaf buds on a few of our harderier plantlife outdoors.

Then there's the matter of setting-out-shrubbery-time. Just the other day my Missus was collecting cuttings and rooted things to put in the ground. She has an instinct about the timing for such things. And while she dug holes with a shovel I was given the chore of putting future shrubbery in the ground and replacing the soft moist earth with my hands. It felt good.

Still another clue to indicate winter has just about run its course:

Early this week my parents had a letter from members of the family in Michigan. Weatherwise it sounded grim. Snow (on the level) was four feet deep . . . drifts must have been bad . . . and where streets and walks had been cleared the stuff was piled up as high as your head and higher. Seems it's been a bad winter. A sudden thaw, they saw, would flood a lot of cellars. To sum it up, they are heading South for some warm sunshine. They've had enough.

Later, we heard another Michigan member-of-the-family is also talking a brief visit down this way.

All of them are veterans of "real" winter weather, and you know if their fortitude is wearing a bit thin, then Old Man Winter likewise has just about shot his bolt.

One more signpost to what all this is leading up to:

Baseball players are warming up in their training camps.

Everything is pointing to one wonderfully inevitable conclusion.

Winter's nearly over, and spring is just around the corner.

Other Editors Saying . . . Rep. Barden's Labor Bill

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

If the present session of Congress does not enact some type of corrective labor legislation, it certainly won't be from a lack of bills offered. Several measures have already been introduced, including proposals by Sens. John Kennedy of Massachusetts and Carolina, Now House Labor Committee Chairman Graham Barden of North Carolina has offered legislation dealing with the labor issue. The bill was one of two Barden placed before Congress.

How will Barden's proposals fare before the House and Senate? Several sections of his legislation were expected to be controversial, including one that prohibits a union from spending anything for political purposes except funds voluntarily donated by members. The labor committee chairman is being realistic about his bill's chances, however. "No piece of legislation as all-encompassing as this could get through Congress without some efforts at amendment," he admitted. The consensus was that both Barden's bills have rough roads before them, even if they were to make the grade in Congress. His second bill, amending the Taft-Hartley Act, would cut out secondary boycotts, organizational picketing, and restore jurisdiction in both federal and state courts over the "no man's land" area where the National Labor Relations Board does not operate. The board sometime ago established a set of criteria which limited the NLRB's jurisdiction over labor troubles in small business. A Supreme Court decision held this field was primarily the labor board's jurisdiction, and that relief could not be obtained in the courts.

"We merely restore jurisdiction in this field to the state and federal courts," Barden pointed out, in regard to his second bill. But sections of his legislation is bound to be opposed by organized labor, which is a powerful influence in Congress. "The bill I have introduced, if enacted, will wrest the control of these corruptly run unions from gangsters, hoodlums and racketeers," Barden maintained.

Barden's bill setting out union member "rights" in effect is a proposed mandatory constitution for labor unions. Unlike the bill covering the same field that was introduced by Kennedy and Ervin, Barden's legislation dictates what unions must do. The Kennedy-Ervin bill says what they shall not do. It really isn't important, these differences, except to the extent that they get the job done. An overhaul of the labor situation in the U. S. is long overdue. Certainly the unions are going to oppose violently anything that puts clamps on them. This opposition shouldn't deter Congress from doing the job.

Professor Has Selling Advice

By ELMER ROESSNER

A college professor recently stood up before a group of auto dealers and told them how to sell cars.

The points he made are recorded here because they may be of value to vendors of other big ticket items, such as washers, stoves, freezers and pianos, as well as car dealers. The professor is Dr. Kenneth B. Haas, professor of marketing at Hofstra College, Long Island; the car men constituted the forty-second annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers Association. "A salesman sells benefits or value of a product, the price being secondary and often important," Dr. Haas said. But, he added, "Too many salesmen evidently don't know how to sell. There are too many low pressure auto salesmen. . . in our midst. There are too many order-takers with nothing but price to sell. But you can't sell price."

MAKE COST A SALES POINT

But because many salesmen cannot sell benefits, and because many prospects are extremely sensitive about price, Dr. Haas suggested this formula:

"Bring up cost; figure up cost; play up cost."
Many shoppers say, "I suppose your car is all right, but it's entirely too high." The thing to do, Dr. Haas suggests, is to beat him to the punch. As soon as the hello's are done, the salesman should say, "Chances are, Mr. Smith, you buy the car that costs you the least money to do the job. Isn't that right?"
By bringing up cost, the salesman steals the prospect's thunder and saves his time and his own, the professor said.
"When you bring up cost, you need a fast and accurate method of figuring," he went on. "It must be fast, because several minutes of fumbling with figures will mean a conspicuous delay at a crucial time. It must be accurate, because it is embarrassing and unfair to be forced to present a larger amount on the order than you had on the estimate without a good reason for doing it."

EASIER SELLING

"Therefore, bring up cost, figure up cost and then play up cost! When you have established your total cost in his mind, come back to it time and time during the sales presentation."
When cost is played up, he said, the salesman should have "no bickering or arguing, no defeat over cost, easier selling, more successful sales, more satisfied buyers."
Dr. Haas had a suggestion on how to handle the "looker," the prospect who says he wants to look around before making up his mind. The salesman should say:
"When you look at other cars note carefully if they have these features (touch each item as you talk). I think it economical to

Tailor Sounds Off

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—America's best-dressed men today aren't its movie stars or television idols—but its business executives.

The tired business man got this surprise pat on his well-attired back from Pat Caruso, a tailor.

"The business executive today is highly style-aware," said Caruso. "Years ago he would wear anything. Now he knows exactly what he wants. Some even draw sketches of the styles they prefer."

Professional athletes, also are more clothes-conscious, and the best-dressed among them are the jockeys, who also rate as the wealthiest of athletes. The reason: Most jockeys have to wear custom garments or buy children's wear.

"But very few people in public life dress well," said Caruso. He added: "What can you do with a politician?"

"However, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon are exceptions."
"What about Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller?"

A look of sorrow crossed Caruso's face but he maintained a discreet silence. It is an open secret among custom tailors that New York's multimillionaire chief executive patronizes a store featuring ready-made clothing.

The custom industry now suffers more from a shortage of fine tailors than customers, Caruso says.

"It takes 10 to 15 years to become a good tailor," said Caruso. "I first picked up the needle at the age of 9 in my father's shop in Italy. In this country nobody wants to work that young. You can't go to college and then start to be a tailor."

"We have to import our tailors."

Here are a few other observations he made:

"In Europe they laugh at the Ivy League look. They say it looks like it was sprayed on."

"A man can be well-dressed with a wardrobe of a dozen suits. But he has to buy three or four a year to keep it up."

"The things a man needs most to look well in clothes are a good tailor and a flat belly."

"The British used to be the world's best-dressed men. But most Englishmen today aren't well-dressed. They have fine fabrics but not enough good tailors."

"The best-dressed men in the world now are probably wealthy South Americans. They are the male peacocks today."

"Most doctors don't dress well. Their cars look better than their clothes."

Quote . . .

"The real objection to picketing by labor unions arises from the fact that it is, in its ultimate application, a form of mob violence. Truly 'peaceful' picketing is not mob violence, but when peaceful picketing is not effective in enforcing labor union demands, too often it is transformed into violent picketing and that is what the President is talking about. He is right in saying that something should be done about it." — Dallas Morning News.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PAY-OFF
As I write this article, I am looking at the picture of an old man, dead now for some years. He often told me how, when he was a boy, he was attacked by a bull, rolled over the ground, and finally thrown over the fence with both legs broken. He lay for some hours before he was found. As he lay there, snakes three times crawled over him. The terrified lad promised God that if he were spared, he would give his life to religion. And he did.

Do you regard this as an unworthy barter between an injured boy and the Most High God? Well, maybe it was a barter, and there are better things in the religious experience than a barter, but we must judge such matters by their result. If the boy had grown up and as a man became a slavish religionist, would that have been bad? But what really happened was that he became a most happy and influential worker in Christian projects. He never regretted his choice of life work, and while no one knows the mind of God, it would appear pretty evident that God did not regret the choice either.

The things which lead us into right pathways are of secondary value compared with the fact that we enter such pathways and walk joyfully and creatively in them. That's the pay-off.

JANUARY RETAIL SALES $1 BILLION OVER 1958

Total retail sales in January were $16,340,000, up better than a billion dollars over January, 1958, according to Commerce Department figures. Every major group of stores except the furniture and appliance group made gains; in that group the decline was less than 1 per cent.

Good Response To Bill On Sales Tax Exception Cut

RALEIGH (AP)—A Buncombe County legislator says his bill to eliminate virtually all items now exempt under North Carolina's sales tax has met with good response in the Legislature.

"I've talked with quite a few members," Rep. J. Y. Jordan Jr. said, "and they are favorable to the idea."

Now he wants to hear what the taxpayers themselves think of his proposal. He said, "I would like to hear from them. If state services are to be provided we will need more revenue. That's inescapable."

Under Jordan's bill introduced Thursday, sales to government units, and the $80 maximum on auto purchases would be the only exemptions from the 3 per cent sales tax.

He said the sales tax changes would bring in $1 1/2 million dollars annually.

"It would give us the money to meet our needs without bond issues and without having to use a windfall from the withholding tax," Jordan added.

He said pay raises for school teachers and other state employees, and an increase in the State Highway Patrol also could be provided.

The present sales tax law contains some 38 exemptions, including food.

Jordan said he advanced the same idea during the 1957 Legislature "but I didn't introduce a bill because we found out we were in a better financial position than we are now."

In other legislative developments Thursday:

The House received legislation which would extend the work-release law to felon prisoners serving terms up to five years.

A bill offered by Rep. Leonard Lyon of Graham would lighten the penalty for drivers convicted of speeding in the 55-75 miles per hour range. Under his proposal, suspension of license, now automatic after the second conviction, would follow after the third conviction. After the second offense, a warning letter would be mailed.

Two Senate committees gave their approval to civil defense bills, including a measure which would be a step towards making cities and counties in the state eligible for matching federal money to help pay salaries of certain civil defense workers.

Discussion at a Senate - House Appropriations Committee meeting raised the possibility of placing illegitimate children in institutions. They are now provided for under the federal-state aid to dependent children program.

Panama Crowds Defy President

PANAMA (AP)—An orderly crowd of thousands early today defied President Ernesto de La Guardia Jr. and installed 11 new city councilmen for the Panamanian capital.

The crowd seized control of City Hall Wednesday after the black-jacking of a radio commentator who accused the council of mis-handling city funds. The council refused to resign, and the president said he had no legal power to remove it since the councilmen's elected four-year terms do not end until next year.

De La Guardia has appealed for the people to wait until an investigation could be made of the financial charges.

Leaders of the popular movement announced a general strike would be called if necessary to put the new council in full control.

The march on the municipal building Wednesday came after office hours and there was no violence. Leaders of the demonstration constituted themselves as a "Revolutionary Municipal Junta" and said they would run the city until the council was replaced.

Thursday the crowd around city hall alternately diminished and grew but remained orderly. All municipal offices except the courts stayed shut.

Treat Machine With Respect

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The big recording machine looms impressively in the dispatch room of the local safety building.

It is treated with the respect due an electronic brain, as witness this roughly-penned sign one police officer taped to the top:

"Do not push any buttons.
"Do not turn off any switch.
"Do not turn tape by hand.
"Do not breathe on machine.
"Salute as you pass by."

Maintain Peace For 75 Years

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crafton celebrated their 75th wedding anniversary Thursday and almost had their first argument.

Crafton, 93, is a retired railroad man. Mrs. Crafton is 89.

A reporter asked, "Have you ever had an argument?"

"None," he said.

"Not even a little one?"

"None."

"Who is boss in the family?" the reporter asked.

"He is," she said.

"She is," he said.

With an argument looking them in the face, Crafton quickly smoothed it over.

"We both are," he said.

Peace returned.

Atlas Explodes In Test Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A burst of white light high in the sky early today marked the explosive ending of an Atlas ICBM after a three minute flight.

The powerful war rocket shattered to bits in a spectacular firework display over the Atlantic when an undetermined malfunction occurred, the Air Force announced.

The 80-foot missile was blazing at full steam on the start of what reportedly was a 4,900-mile flight test when it burst apart.

The surprise blowup broke an impressive string of seven successful launchings in the last five months for the huge missile that carries U.S. hopes of catching the Soviets in the space race in the near future.

Atlas No. 21 rose precariously with a brilliant flash at 12:38 a.m. and appeared to be performing smoothly as it looped over and darted toward the southeast.

Debris rained in all directions as the rocket exploded shortly after the 300,000 pound thrust twin booster rockets burned out and dropped away. The main sustainer engine still was burning brightly.

The cause of the failure was not known immediately. No announcement was expected because of the security aspects of the military shoot.

Since the last explosion Sept. 18, the "Big A" scored a series of triumphs highlighted by the first 6,325-statute mile intercontinental range shot Nov. 28 and the satellite success of Dec. 18.

Bible Club Will Sponsor A Film

The Bible Club of the Junius H. Rose High School is sponsoring a film, "Great Discovery," on Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of St. James Methodist Church.

The story of this feature length motion picture, which features Colleen Townsend, combines two messages of salvation and Christian education. The saying that truth is stronger than fiction can be applied to this history of a young American girl. All interested persons are extended an invitation to attend.

Early Greek explorers gave the name of "Libya" to all northern Africa. Later it became the name of the single kingdom of Libya.

Events Twisted By Imaginations

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Here's what a pair of vivid imaginations can do to a set of facts.

Two 10-year-old boys rushed to police in suburban Darby. They said they saw four men beat a man in a white apron, throw him in the trunk of a car and drive off.

A little police checking brought out the facts. First, there were only two men, Angelo De Natale, 23, a mechanic, and his shop foreman, John Romanchick, 33. Second, they hadn't tossed a fist in anger.

Third, they were road-testing a customer's car and De Natale crawled into the trunk to check for noises.

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be" would be bad advice today. Its general acceptance would set American economy back a hundred years.

Sixteen Guarantees Of Red China Commune

Editor's Note - "What more can one want?" the director of a commune asked after reciting 16 cradle-to-grave benefits accorded its members...

Farmville Upsets Chicod; Stokes-Pactolus Ekes Win

Farmville upset top-seeded Chicod last night, 42-41, in the Pitt County semi-finals to advance to Saturday night's select circle in the boys division. Stokes-Pactolus, defending champion and favorite in the girls bracket, fought off a late rally to edge Griffon, 64-61.

Bulldogs opened strong and jumped into a 6-0 lead. Stokes' rangy forward, Lillie Turner, pulled the Blue Jays out front late in the first period and by halftime had built up a 38-31 margin.

Coach Elbert Moye's Red Devils pulled the first upset in the boys bracket as they finished in strong fashion to nip the pre-tournament favorites by a single point.

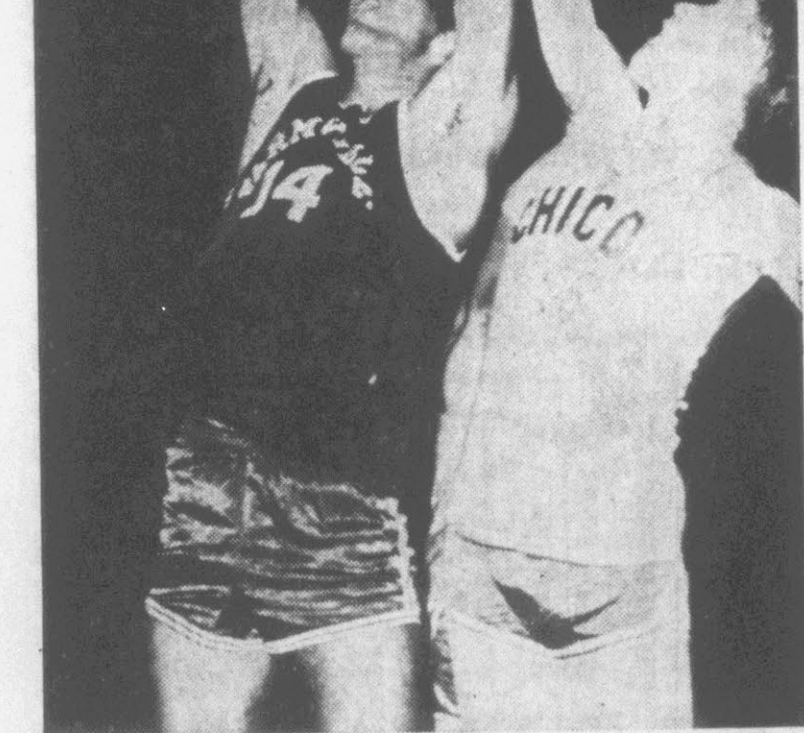

Stokes moved into a 13 point lead midway the third period but the Bulldogs got hot just like they had in their opening game and cut the lead to three points by the end of the third period, 54-51.

Chicod had one more opportunity but failed and Farmville controlled the ball in the final seconds of the game.

Winterville gained the semi-finals with a hard-earned 58-46 win over Belvoir. Bucky Waters, lanky center, is the big point-getter for the lofty club as he hit 24 against Belvoir.

Gray, the lanky forward, was high man for the winners with 15 points. J. S. Flake, who did an outstanding job rebounding for Farmville, was next with 11. Jones had 10.

Mighty Miler..... by Pap'

Brian Hewson, England's European 1,500-meter champion, has an established reputation as a miler. The 25-year-old blond tailor from London has run the mile under four minutes on two occasions and boasts four outdoor victories over Ron Delany, 1956 Olympic 1,500-meter champion. As great a runner as he is, Hewson learned that he was trying the impossible when he elected to repeat his triumph over Delany on the boards after one brief workout on an indoor track. Delany is a master of board track running with a string of 26 straight mile triumphs to his credit, and this experience was too much for Hewson to overcome a couple of days after he had flown in from England for his first board track race.

the arms to take the turns properly. That experience in Boston will do me a lot of good. I know I'll do better next time. I believe I can get Ron before many more races. Hewson also learned that another hazard exists in indoor arenas—the smoke-polluted air. The British ace had reeled off a 58.8-second first quarter and a 1:59.4 half mile, a record-making pace, and then faded in the latter stages of the race where he usually uncorks a strong finishing "kick." It wasn't making excuses for his failure in his American indoor debut but he did admit that he had difficulty breathing in the late stages of the race. Hewson has a style of running that should quickly adapt itself to indoor tracks so there is a distinct possibility that Delany's indoor mark of 4:03.4 for the mile will be bettered. Either by Hewson or by his forcing Delany to fellows showed me how to hold a new mark.

Jesus Teaches the End of the Age ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

As Christ and His disciples left the temple, one called His attention to the fine building. Jesus answered him, saying that of the great building 'there shall not be left one stone upon another.'—Mark 13:1-2.

Jesus Teaches the End of the Age

CHRIST EXHORTS HIS PEOPLE AND ILLUSTRATES HIS TEACHING WITH PARABLES

Scripture—Matthew 25:31-46; Mark 13:1-37.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL I HAVE thought that this lesson might be difficult for the younger classes and might make them feel apprehensive of the future. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that teachers introduce it to both younger and older classes by mentioning that all ages 'understand the fact that, as probably never before in modern history, the question in the minds of everyone, and being asked by many, and written upon by some of our outstanding statesmen, economists and scientists, is: 'What does the future hold?'

MEMORY VERSE 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me.'—Matthew 25:40.

'over against the temple.' and Peter and James and John and Andrew 'asked Him privately, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?'—Mark 13:3-4.

Thinks Lincoln A 3rd Party Man

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Poet Carl Sandburg says he thinks if Abraham Lincoln were alive today, he wouldn't be a member of either major political party. "In fact, he would likely favor a new party. There is so little difference between the present two," Sandburg said. The famed biographer of Lincoln was here for a series of lectures.

Another fuse blows. Or your lights dim when the refrigerator starts to run. Or you can't find a place to plug in a lamp or appliance. Or your TV picture shrinks when lights and appliances are in use. If these are familiar signs to you, your home's wiring system needs a check-up! Older homes (and many new homes, too) are out-of-date electrically—need a bigger main switch panel, more circuits, more outlets, more switches. CHAPTER 33

"I'm still telling you, you're both fakers," Eddie Schrade said to Murray Kirk and Bruno Manfredi. "How could George know something that ain't so? You're not working for him. You got nothing to do with him. Now go away before I let out a holler and really make trouble for you. You hear me? Get out of here, both of you!"

Murray took the tape recorder from Bruno, placed it on the table, and opened it. "Eddie, you've got one more chance coming to you. George Wykoff didn't want to see it my way, but I convinced him I could get a straight story out of you. That's what I'm trying to do now. If you come clean, you're out of it altogether, and Ira Miller has to answer for himself. Just talk into this thing, and when George hears it he'll know what side you're on. Go ahead, it won't bite you."

Schrade looked at the recorder and seemed to gather courage. "Who are you from?" he demanded. "That Lundeen, isn't it? You think George Wykoff would send anybody out to make people talk into this thing? What kind of fool are you trying to make out of me?"

"Eddie," Murray asked pleasantly, "do you know what George Wykoff looks like?"

"Sure, I know what he looks like."

"And Billy Caxton, his chauffeur. Do you know him?"

"No, I know him. I know him. I see him around."

"All right, Eddie, take a look out of your window and tell me what you see around now."

"What for? What are you trying to do now?"

"I'm trying to do you a favor, Eddie. Take a look out of that window and you'll see what I mean."

"You think I'm so stupid?" Schrade said, but he sidled along the wall toward the window, and then cautiously turned to look out of it. When he saw Wykoff sitting out there in his limousine he fell back with a gasp, his eyes starting out of his head, his arms flailing out blindly. When Murray caught hold of him it was like supporting a sack of flour that had been punctured, its solidity oozing out of it in a steady stream.

"Now will you talk, Eddie?" Murray asked.

Eddie talked.

They waited in Murray's car — Murray and Ralph Harlingen — across the street from the Gothic pile where the Millers lived, and shortly before nine they saw Wykoff enter the building. A few minutes later a cab pulled up and disgorged the district attorney, Felix LoScalzo. He paid the driver, pulled himself through the door the way a swollen cork is drawn from a bottle, and walked into the building. He was hatless, and his overcoat was thrown over his shoulders like a cape.

"Always the ham," Murray said, and then as Harlingen was about to push open the car door he said, "No, wait a minute. Let them get settled upstairs first. I'll run smoother that way." He patted the tape recorder on his lap. "You sure you know how to handle this thing?"

"Yes."

"And you know how the stuff in the briefcase is arranged. It's all in order."

"I know that," Harlingen said. "Look, will you stop worrying about me? I told you once that when I had something to work with I knew what to do with it. Now I've got something to work with."

"Yes, but it won't be like any courtroom you ever saw," Murray warned. "There's no ground rules, nobody presiding, nobody to appeal to. And there're three characters up there."

Harlingen laughed. "Let's go," he said, "before you confound me."

The nurse opened the apartment door, and did not seem surprised to see them there. "Here is more," she announced over her shoulder, and Pearl Miller behind her said, "Oh, how nice! It's like a party, isn't it? And Ira never told me a thing about it."

She trotted ahead of them into the living room. "Ira, dear," she said anxiously to her husband, "here's more company, but you never told me anything about it, and there's nothing in the house for them. What am I going to do?"

"Do?" said Ira Miller, and the expression on his face intrigued Murray. There was no surprise in it — of course, Wykoff would have passed along a warning about this encounter at the first opportunity — but only a polite gravity, a frowning concern at this invasion of his household. It was a look Murray recognized from his previous visit here. The look of a man who had hoped to settle down for the evening with a good book and a well-worn brier, and who finds, instead, that he must play host to some well-meaning but uninvited guests. "There's nothing to do, Pearl," he said cheerfully, and patted her shoulder. "Don't you worry about it."

"But coffee?" Pearl Miller looked around at the assemblage in the room. "You would like some, wouldn't you? And I do make such good coffee." She put her fingertips to her mouth, and when her sleeve fell back Murray saw that the bandage was gone from her slashed wrist. "I do make good coffee, don't I, Ira?" she asked uncertainly.

"The best." He steered her toward the door, an arm around her waist. "Now you go in the kitchen and Hilda will help you make it. And you tell her to keep the dog in there. You know George doesn't like him around."

Through all this, LoScalzo had sat sunk in the deepest armchair in the room, his big body relaxed, his eyes veiled and watchful. In his own way, Murray surmised, LoScalzo was as good a poker player as Miller. He knew that something was going on, and he was willing to sit and study his cards with an expressionless face until he knew what. Then he would be ready to get into the game.

Harlingen walked over to the piano which stood at the far end of the room. He placed the tape recorder on the piano bench and laid the briefcase next to it. He looked, Murray thought to it, like a college instructor warming up for a lecture. And when he introduced himself his voice had a staid professional quality. "And now," he said, "let's get down to cases. My client, Patrolman Arnold Lundeen—"

LoScalzo came to attention. "Hold it, counselor. I've already warned your man here—"

Harlingen interrupted him, "against any intimidation of my witness, and I now repeat that warning to you. Don't let zeal get the best of you. Whatever song and dance you want to display, bring it before the bench."

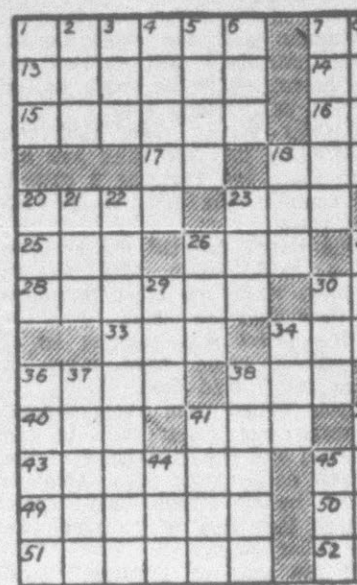

"Mr. LoScalzo," said Harlingen imperturbably. "I have now been warned. In return, let me say that if I were to bring my information before the bench you would wind up looking like the biggest damn fool in town. To save yourself from that, let me put on my song and dance first, and reserve judgment until afterward. This whole thing will take ten minutes, and I assure you that I won't make one statement during that time which isn't backed up by evidence I will place in your hands here and now. Is that fair enough?"

He had roused LoScalzo's curiosity, Murray saw, and then wisely he did not allow LoScalzo time to put curiosity aside. Without waiting for an answer, Harlingen drew the binder of Wykoff's records from the briefcase, and Wykoff's eyes were instantly riveted on them.

"If Ralph Harlingen isn't on guard, the roles of the players in his cat and mouse game can easily be reversed. Stanley Ellin's best-selling crime novel comes to a climax tomorrow."

Reports Movie-Making Easy After TV Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I never realized making a movie was so easy," says Jane Wyman, doing her first in four years.

Looking as pert and pretty as the day she left, the Oscar winner ("Johnny Belinda," 1948) is making "Holiday for Lovers" with Clifton Webb.

Only those rare souls without TV sets would ask where she has been. She has been making films for the home screen, of course. She did three years of it, then took another year to recover.

"I never did get ahead," she sighed as she recalled her hectic TV days.

When the show ("The Jane Wyman Show") went on the air, I was already two weeks behind schedule. For the first year, I was always racing a deadline with never a chance to catch my breath. It was a scramble for three years."

She finished her last season early in 1953. The show was dropped because of anemia ratings—"they moved us into the last half-hour opposite Playhouse 90; it was too late at night to get an audience."

Jane was just as happy to get off the treadmill. For the first time in her busy life, she took a breather.

"I just did nothing, and it was glorious," she said. "Well, not quite nothing. I went East and caught the Broadway shows. I've been back to New York three times and did the Perry Como show twice."

"I've learned to fish and I love it—went up to Colorado and came home with the limit. And I've been able to start painting again."

She became so enamored with the leisurely life that she closed up her Hollywood home and moved to Lido Isle, 60 miles south in beautiful Newport Harbor.

Now she has a painting studio on the waterfront. It was all her agent could do to pry her loose for "Holiday for Lovers." But she finds making a feature movie incredibly easy after the TV grind of three days' shooting per half-hour film.

Cat Just Enjoys Axle-Perching

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — A cat with a penchant for perching on car axles is under observation at the Detroit dog pound.

Police noticed the cat when Mrs. Louise M. Stamenoff pulled up to a station and told an officer "I've been riding around in my car with this cat on my axle for over an hour. He keeps meowing under there. It's annoying. People are stopping and staring at me."

Cat psychology failed, so the police resorted to other means. They squirted the cat with a hose. He jumped off Mrs. Stamenoff's axle and climbed up on the axle of a police ambulance.

Dog pound attendants donned heavy gloves and went in after the cat. They got him.

Calling Tobacco Plan Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Harold Cooley (D-NC) of the House Agriculture Committee plans hearings in flue-cured and burley tobacco areas on a new price stabilization plan.

A House Agriculture subcommittee heard details of the plan Thursday. Cooley said dates of local hearings will be announced later.

The new plan would alter present formulas so that price support rates would be based on 90 per cent of old parity, which was in effect before 1948.

Parity is a yardstick the government uses to keep farm prices in line with farm costs. Under current parity, tobacco prices keep pace of inflationary trends.

The new plan, supported by Fred Royster, general manager of the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn., would insure tobacco supports at no less than 1958 levels unless farm costs drop.

Royster said the new plan would allow stable prices while reducing leaf production. He said it had general favor in flue-cured areas. Cooley said he wanted to find out for himself.

N. C. Schools Adding 24,000 Pupils A Year; To Keep Up, Money Needed

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — It would appear that Tar Heels will have to reach deep into their pockets simply to keep up with the growth in the public schools.

A new survey issued by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction shows that school enrollment is increasing at the rate of approximately 24,000 students a year. The "war babies" are now in high school pushing up enrollment there, only to be outnumbered still by increases in the elementary schools.

This means that the state even to "keep up" will have to provide approximately 800 new teachers a year. Multiply this by the modest (and less than recommended minimum) salary and you come up with nearly two and a half million dollars that will have to be paid for new teachers alone.

The report shows that North Carolina is working hard and making progress in providing adequate facilities for this constantly growing school population. But the problem is still a matter of "catching up" rather than "keeping up."

During the current school year 4,000 students are enrolled in less than adequate facilities. Of these, nearly 2,000 are attending school in temporary quarters not owned by a board of education and located away from a school campus. There are more than 37,000 students being taught in temporary or improvised quarters such as corridors, stages, libraries and auditoriums.

At the same time, another 4,200 students are attending school on a "double-shift" basis, all of them in city administrative units. Here, however, there is a decrease in numbers over 1957-58.

Although 1,525 classrooms are scheduled for completion during the current school year, the cumulative shortage plus increased enrollment will produce a total classroom shortage of 3,361 at the beginning of the 1959-60 school year. Not reflected in these figures is the need for such facilities as libraries, lunchrooms, auditoriums and gymnasiums.

The number of vacant teaching positions is attributed in part to the classroom shortage. During the first month of the current school year 66 such vacancies existed—42 due to a shortage of teachers and 24 due to lack of classroom accommodations. However, the number of teacher vacancies seem to be steadily decreasing.

The survey also shows a decrease in the number of "brand new" teachers entering the state's public schools — facts that are especially pertinent now in that recommended pay raise before the 1959 General Assembly would boost beginning salaries. As far as small salaries are concerned, the report shows that local units are spending more local funds to supplement their teachers' pay. Salary supplement has risen from 35.84 per cent in 1956 to 41.29 per cent in 1958. There is still a significant difference between county and city schools. In the county, 20.37 of the teachers received supplements as compared with 81.29 teachers in the city.

Heavy Action In Havana Casinos

HAVANA (AP)—The action was lively at eight Havana casinos which were allowed to reopen Thursday night.

The tables in six luxury hotels and two nightclubs were given 30-day permits by Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime. The rebels closed down all gambling when they took over.

Casinos which catered to small-change players are to remain closed. Authorities say they don't want poorer Cubans losing their money gambling.

R. J. Reynolds Reports Sales Over $1 Billion

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Sales and earnings for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. totaled $1,146,556,796 (b) in 1958, an all-time record.

Officials reported Thursday it was the second year in a row that sales have gone past the billion dollar mark.

Net earnings reached a new high of $78,326,190, an increase of 22.1 per cent compared with $64,160,000 on sales of $1,053,325,579 in 1957. Dividends totaling $39,247,997 also were the largest in the company's history.

the ratio between men and women still remains one to five.

Nervous Bandits Wreck Getaway Car, Captured

KERSHAW, S. C. (AP)—The Bank of Kershaw was robbed of about $20,000 in a holdup just before noon Thursday. Less than a half hour later, officers arrested three men and recovered the money along a highway six miles from here.

The three nervous bandits wrecked their auto in the getaway. Their loot, bills in $1 and $20 denominations, was scattered over quarter-of-a-mile area around the wreck site.

Sheriff D. E. Hilton said James W. Dease and J. L. Shuman, 32, were caught at the wreck scene. Dease's 17-year-old brother, Billy Eugene, was flushed from a nearby patch of woods, according to the sheriff.

None of the three was injured. Shuman and the elder Dease, both from Rock Hill, carried on the holdup while the youth waited in the car, Hilton said.

Cashier W. C. Cook said two men came into the bank just before noon, one carrying a sawed-off shotgun, the other a .38 caliber pistol.

One bandit leveled the shotgun at a bank teller, Mrs. C. F. Mobley, while the other threatened Cook with the pistol.

"His pistol was shaking so, I thought I could have taken it from him," said Cook.

Cook turned over about $13,000—mostly one dollar bills—to the gunman and the remainder of the $20,000 came from Mrs. Mobley.

The bandit, Cook said, complained that most of the cash was one dollar notes.

"I did that on purpose," said Cook. "I know how to manipulate these matters."

The gunman ordered four bank customers into a vault and struck one customer, a Negro, on the head. His head was cashed, but his condition was not serious.

All the money was recovered.

Protect Shark From Swimmers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Would the Aquarium people permit underwater swimmers to enter the tank and feed the shark?

That was the question asked by the Young Women's Christian Assn. It wanted to show off skin diving techniques to get publicity for its adult classes.

Heck no, the Aquarium people replied. They said the shark, not used to swimming around with people, would get so frightened he'd dash toward the glass and bash his brains out.

WALT DISNEY'S BIG CARTOON SHOW "CINDERELLA" IN COLOR

Can't Forget
ROCKLAND, Mass. (AP) — The tugboat skipper who cut loose two barges and helped rescue eight persons when an American Airlines plane plunged into the East River at New York two weeks ago can't forget the horror. "I should have saved more. I should have saved more," Capt. Samuel R. Nickerson moans in his sickbed in his home here. The 57-year-old seafarer, worn out by the rescue efforts and the 30 sleepless hours that followed while investigators fired questions, was discharged a few days ago from Goodard Hospital in Stoughton. He needs rest and a strict diet to control a severe case of bleeding ulcers. His wife says he can't shut out the memory of the passengers he saw swept away in the darkness.

School Dental Clinics Planned
FARMVILLE — A series of dental clinics for Farmville school children, suggested by the Farmville School District Committee, has been approved and endorsed by the community's two dentists. Principal Sam D. Bundy said today that Dr. Paul E. Jones and Dr. W. C. Mercer have volunteered their services in annual examinations of children in grades four, seven and ten. The clinics are designed primarily for students who do not visit dentists regularly. Bundy said the program will include school children to have at least four dental examinations in his school career, the first coming at pre-school clinics. Under the proposed plan, the principal said children in the selected grades will visit the dentists' offices in groups and parents will be advised of examination findings. Schedules for the clinics will be fitted into work schedules of Dr. Jones and Dr. Mercer.

Says Big Labor Is Obstructive
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Henry Ford II has accused big labor of slowing down America's economic progress. The Ford Motor Company president said labor is thus "thwarting the very improvement in productivity and the increased economic growth that it says it wants." He said labor might be controlled by legislation similar to the Sherman Antitrust Act, which controls business power and size. Ford's speech Thursday night was part of a Yale University lecture series. Ford said organized labor is obstructing a "new productive explosion in the American economy." "In terms of unfettered power," he said, "it is the strongest single center in the American economy. It is using that power not to increase the growth of the American pie, but to cut out a larger share for its constituents."

Wants Speeches To Be Spoken
WASHINGTON (AP) — Too many unspoken speeches find their way into the Congressional Record "like a thief in the night," says Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.). Although he admits his chances are slim, Curtis is pushing for adoption of a resolution which requires that all speeches appearing in the record actually be spoken and that they appear in the same form as spoken.

Would Further Prohibit Favors
WASHINGTON (AP) — Free or cut-rate ocean cruises should be prohibited for anyone on the federal payroll, including members of Congress, says Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.). Williams, in introducing a bill to this effect Thursday, noted that U.S. railroads and airlines already are barred by law from giving special rates to public officials.

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. Charlie Stocks
Mrs. Emma Loftin Stocks, 63, died in her sleep early Friday morning while visiting at the home of a niece, Mrs. Marion Claybrook, near Ayden. Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Sunday afternoon at 2:30 by Rev. Clifton Rice, her pastor, assisted by Rev. Floyd Cherry, pastor of Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. Mrs. Stocks, daughter of the late Zeb and Magnolia Haddock Loftin, spent her life in the Ayden community. She was married to Charlie Stocks of Ayden, and he died in 1942. She was a member of Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church. Surviving are two sons, Walter Stocks of near Maury and Charlie Stocks of Ayden; a daughter, Mrs. Wilma Hudson of near Grimesland; 12 grandchildren, and six brothers, Ernest W. Heber, Jasper Glenn, Roy C., and W. C. (Dock) Loftin, all of Ayden, and A. A. (Floyd) Loftin of Kinston.

Eisenhower Pleased By Reception In Acapulco

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — President Eisenhower, feted lavishly and pleased by a warm reception, turns to a final round of talks today with Mexico's President Adolfo Lopez Mateos. Eisenhower's two-day goodwill visit to this tropical resort on the Pacific Coast ends tonight. He planned to fly overnight to Augusta, Ga., for a weekend of golf, or direct to Washington if the Augusta weather is bad. Eisenhower and Lopez Mateos exchanged pledges of international friendship when the U.S. President arrived Thursday. Then they talked informally aboard the Mexican chief executive's yacht, the Soltavento, during a four-hour cruise. When they came ashore late in the day, spokesmen announced they had discussed the proposed Diablo Dam, a 100-million-dollar structure which would be built and financed by the two governments on the Rio Grande border about 12 miles from Del Rio, Tex.; Mexico's coffee industry; its production of lead and zinc and Mexican concern about competition between its cotton crop and that of the United States. Neither White House press secretary James C. Hagerty nor the Mexican spokesman would provide any detail on the discussions. They indicated there might be a formal statement after further talks at Eisenhower's hotel late today. As for the Diablo Dam, Eisenhower is understood to have told Lopez Mateos that his administration—after years of considering whether to go ahead—now has decided to ask Congress for the funds needed to join Mexico in the project. Eisenhower got a rousing welcome on his arrival at Acapulco and another enthusiastic reception when he motored through the heart of the city to board the yacht. He drew more cheers when he was the dinner guest of the Mexican president at the Mirador Hotel. Among the guests at the presidential table was former British Prime Minister Anthony Eden, who retired in January 1957 because of ill health. It was his first public appearance since coming to Acapulco last Dec. 17 to convalesce and work on his memoirs. He and Eisenhower have been friends since World War II days. Eisenhower was to be host today to Lopez Mateos at both lunch and dinner. The evening affair will be at another of Acapulco's fashionable night spots, the Ski Club.

Booster program for rocket motors—more than two billion dollars. Manned space-flight program—200 million dollars. Efforts to build a 1 1/2 million-pound thrust engine of a single chamber—200 million dollars. The costs were listed Thursday by National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials appearing before a Senate space subcommittee. NASA and its companion military agency in the Pentagon, the Advanced Research Projects Agency, are spending 450-500 million dollars this year and will need 800 millions or more next year, testimony showed. And Dr. T. Keith Glennan, NASA head, added: "Don't be surprised if NASA alone costs a billion or more a year after two years. Space program costs this year and next will be propelled by the planned launching of 30 satellites and some 140 probing rockets, Glennan said. On the plus side of the space ledger, Glennan said experts estimate the value of advances in meteorology and communications stemming from the satellite program will be in the billions of dollars. Glennan's top deputy, Dr. Hugh Dryden, told the senators the race for outer space is an expensive game that only big nations can play. "If the United States doesn't go ahead," Dryden said, "the Soviet Union will. Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), head of the subcommittee considering the authorizations for space spending, said: "We have no choice as to supporting a major space program since we are already in the space age." NASA's director of space flight development, Abe Silverstein, told the subcommittee: "Unless we move ahead now and vigorously, with a sense of urgency, our space program for the years ahead will be inadequate to meet what others are doing." Describing NASA's program at considerable length, Silverstein said it plans to place satellites in orbit 22,000 miles above the earth—where they will remain "stationary" because they will have the same 24-hour cycle as the earth. He said three of these motionless moons properly spaced would make possible worldwide communications by signal relay from one to the other. Silverstein disclosed that two new rockets, Vera and Centaur, will be used in future space probes. They were classed as "advanced boosters" and will be three-stage rockets capable of orbiting 7,500-pound satellites 300 miles above the earth. Glennan said the NASA schedules calls for 15 experimental satellite launchings this year and the same number in 1960. Forty probing rockets will be fired into space this year and about 100 next year, he added.

Local Nat'l Guard Units To Become 'Firing Batteries'

Both of Greenville's National Guard units will become Field Artillery firing batteries under reorganization plans announced today. The units are presently organized as a firing battery and a service battery in the 295th Field Artillery Battalion which has headquarters in Washington, N.C. The service battery now here will move to Washington under the reorganization. According to Captain Lon Taylor, administrative-supply technician for the battalion, the changes will result in a "slight increase" in personnel for the two Greenville units. No major personnel changes are expected, however. Captain Taylor said Greenville's units will be designated, under the reorganization, as Battery "A" and Battery "B." Battery "A," which will be equipped with 105 mm. howitzers, will be commanded by First Lt. Charles Camp and Battery "B," which will be equipped with 155 mm. howitzers, will be commanded by Captain Norman Harris. Battery "A" will have an authorized strength of 54 enlisted men and three officers, while Battery "B" will have an authorized strength of 60 enlisted men and three officers. Warrant Officer Mayo Allen and Master Sergeant Paul Jewett will continue as full-time, administrative-supply technicians for the two units. According to Captain Taylor, the changes are tentatively scheduled to become effective April 1. He added that present plans call for both units to be equipped with self-propelled weapons, but that until those weapons become available the units will continue to operate with towed equipment. The changes are part of a general reorganization of the North Carolina National Guard which has resulted in all state Guard units becoming a part of the 30th Division. Prior to the reorganization, the 295th Field Artillery Battalion was a part of IV Corps Artillery.

Reports 'Irregularities' In Their Funds-Handling

RALEIGH (AP)—State Auditor Henry Bridges reported today the discovery of "certain irregularities" in the handling of receipts and disbursements by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. Bridges, in a special audit report, said that the auditors had found that the institute's receipts were not being properly recorded, nor deposited in accordance to state laws, and second, disbursements were being made in an illegal manner. The institute, which is an agency of the University of North Carolina, serves in an advisory and training capacity for state, county and municipal governments. "Due to the lack of internal control," said the report, "the inadequate records of receipts, and the loose manner of handling cash, the total amount of receipts could not be accurately determined." It added that Albert Coates, director of the Institute, had "assumed full responsibility for (1) the procedures and acts of all personnel in connection with all cash received which was not deposited, and (2) all cash disbursements made from these funds." It added that in view of the law requiring immediate deposits and "since receipts... in the amount of $5,064.32 have not yet been deposited, it is necessary for the amount to be deposited immediately. Mr. Coates has agreed to make this deposit." It added that after this deposit has been made, Mr. Coates may present claims to the proper university officials. That portion of the claims which are found to be proper expenditures and properly supported, may be approved by the university officials for reimbursement.
