Accelerated Sale Of Savings Bonds In Area Is Praised By Treasurer

MRS. IVY BAKER PRIEST . . . Treasurer Of The United States

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer

Accelerated sales of U. S. Savings Bonds were cited last night as an important phase of an administration program to balance the national budget.

address by State Banking Commissioner Ben R. Roberts and named Ben Weaver of Winston as their 1959 chairman.

Other officers named at the afternoon session include Vice-Chairman Luther Cowan of Aulander, Secretary-Treasurer Roland Modlin of Washington, and Executive Committee members Ed C. Green of Elizabeth City, Ira Cuthrell of Windsor and William R. Flowers of Plymouth.

Commissioner Roberts' address at the business session included comments on the history of banking in North Carolina, proposed legislation affecting banking, and his personal experiences as a bank examiner.

Delegates at the dinner session also heard brief comments a proposed wartime preparedness program by J. E. Paschall, second vice-president of the North Carolina Bankers Association.

Other phases of the program, Mrs. Priest said, are lengthening maturities of the national debt, encouragement of widespread ownership of the debt and flexible monetary policies for organizations such as the Federal Reserve Board.

She cited all four phases as important factors in a program to limit the federal government's role in the nation's financial activities.

The cabinet approved a decree annulling hundreds of teachers' appointments to primary schools.

The cabinet charged that many of the Batista appointments were for political purposes only and that some teachers drew pay for doing nothing.

Okay Increase In Travel Allowance

RALEIGH (AP)—A House Judiciary Committee gave its blessings today to increased travel allowances for legislators while the former comptroller general of the U.S. urged the creation of the post of state comptroller.

Warren said he would not favor a state comptroller unless the comptroller was made a constitutional officer and the state auditor was abolished and its functions transferred to the new official.

Khrushchev told a political rally in the Kremlin that the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France cannot discuss German reunification because "this is a question for the two German states themselves."

Moscow newspapers gave Macmillan the warmest reception since his arrival Saturday.

Radio Signals Raise Hopes For Missing Doctors

LITTLETON, N.H. (AP)—A faint radio message today gave researchers hope that two doctors missing on a plane flight are still alive somewhere in the rugged, snow-covered White Mountains area.

Ground and air search teams today concentrated their hunt for Dr. Ralph E. Miller, 60, and Dr. Robert E. Quinn, 32, in the eight-mile area between Mt. Agassiz and Franconia Notch.

Dr. Karl Steady, 55, a Laconia osteopathic physician and member of the Civil Air Patrol, reported he received fragments of a wireless signal Monday which read: "Agassiz and Notch."

Claim Atheism Taught In Texas Institutions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Some of Texas' most prominent institutions of learning, including Southern Methodist University, were accused Monday of teaching atheism.

A group of four state representatives hinted at a legislative probe as church and education leaders denied or questioned the charges of godlessness.

Reps. Bill Hollowell of Grand Saline, Joe Chapman of Sulphur Springs, Ben Lewis of Dallas, and W. T. Dungan of McKinney made the charges. They said they would ask the Texas Legislature for what they termed remedial legislation.

For two and a half years the nations supporting the World Court have waited for the United States to re-approach its door. Now Secretary Kellogg, a fortnight before the Coolidge administration comes to an end, makes a commendable, if belated gesture, for the resumption of negotiations. By this act he does not redeem the Coolidge administration from its record of faint-heartedness in the matter. It will be left for Mr. Hoover to receive the foreign replies, to take steps which gave us a full place on the World Court bench, and to face the die-hard criticism. But Mr. Kellogg does deserve credit for doing something to smooth Mr. Hoover's path; he does partly wipe away the record of Mr. Coolidge's surrender of the Court in his speech at Kansas City.—N. Y. Two instrumental groups and the majorette squad returned Saturday from Durham, bringing four ratings of superior and two of excellent earned in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest at Duke University.

The entire majorette squad, the clarinet quartet, and the brass ensemble each received a grade of "superior." Only Greenville's and Elizabeth City's squads rated this top award.

Chief Lib Rogers claimed a rating of "excellent" for her rendition of a solo routine. Several contest participants have stated that they cannot remember any majorette receiving the top grade in this division.

Performing as duets, Jane Blue and Frances Cozart received a "superior"; Judy Tucker and Alice Cannon, an "excellent."

Majorettes in the squad number included chief Lib Rogers, and members Jane Blue, Nancy Berryman, Jolinda Brewer, Ruth Jordan, Judy Tucker, Alice Cannon, and Frances Cozart.

Sara Smiley, Clark Brewer, Jim Winstead, and Jan Coward, playing in the clarinet quartet rendered "Fueguereast."

George Patrick, Billy Goodwin, Jackson Williams, Larry Barnes, Steve Humbert, Hilton Benton, and Marvin Buck performed in the brass ensemble. They played "Castilla," a bolero.

Band director, James E. Rodgers, who has trained the instrumental groups, accompanied the students to the contest.

Radio, Television Losing Excitement Provided Top Journalist For Year By Flaming Meteorite

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — When Edward R. Murrow leaves CBS July 1 on a year's leave of absence, television and radio will lose its foremost journalist.

Under the terms of his contract, which has several years to run, Murrow says he is obligated legally and morally to return.

"You're talking to a tired 50-year-old who wants a rest," he told me. "It's an age to enjoy some travel and contemplation if you have the time. That's all there is to my requesting a leave."

Since Murrow did not tell me more, it would be presumptuous to try to read his mind. Yet from a variety of sources other than Murrow, one can gather facts that should bear substantially on his contemplations while traveling.

Murrow, Edward R., fiftyish, reporter. Health: excellent. Personal life: happy; a wife, a son, a farm in Pawling, N.Y., that's a pleasant home. Temperament:

reserved, some say "shy," extremely slow to anger, cool and lucid when the going's rough. Acquaintances: innumerable. Intimate friends: extremely few.

Financial worries: none for the rest of his life. Principal interests: the communication of ideas to people, his craft as a reporter. Principal concern: "I believe this country is in grave perhaps mortal danger."

Achievements: employed by CBS for 25 years, principally as a reporter. Did a hitch as a network executive, didn't like it. His "See It Now" series an outstanding contribution to TV journalism, a classic in its field, the recipient of innumerable awards. "Person to Person" interview series long a popular and commercially successful series. "Small World" conversational series very popular, plans to continue doing some while on leave.

Researcher's comments: Murrow is that rarity in the modern corporate world of togetherness, a loner. It leads one to be viewed with suspicion, alarm and jealousy. One finds numerous instances of men Murrow has quietly helped in their careers. One cannot find an instance of Murrow helping another in the back.

His enemies only charge is that he grew too big.

David Garrick, famed actor who dominated the British stage before his death in 1779, was really David Garrigue, a Frenchman who went to London to sell his family's wine. He gave up wine for the stage in playing Shakespeare's "Richard III."

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A flaming bluish green object streaked over Michigan about 6:30 a.m. today.

State troopers sighted it raveling from east to west. Radio stations had calls from excited persons who also saw the object.

Two operators in the control tower of the Grand Rapids Airport in western Michigan said they believed it was a meteorite.

The operators, John Moore and Robert Boylan, said the object also was sighted at airport control towers in Chicago and Madison, Wis.

"It was a dandy," Moore and Boylan agreed. "The best meteorite we ever saw. It must have been a good sized one because it looked like it was just northwest of Grand Rapids going from east to west. It was shooting off sparks before it appeared to disintegrate."

The sky was clear just before dawn and observers got a good look.

Radio station WHGR in Houghton Lake received a call from a man at nearby Roscommon who said, "It scared hell out of me."

Miles Jacobs of Merritt, Mich., in a call to WHGR, described the flaming object as the size of a small plane flying fairly close to the earth.

Gourmet Cook Says Good Food Can Shatter The Iron Curtain

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

The best way to pierce the Iron Curtain is with a home-cooked American meal, says Myra Waldo, gourmet cook, inveterate traveler, talented wife and cookbook author.

The slight but determined Myra cooked and served an old-fashioned, all-American Thanksgiving dinner for 50 Soviet citizens at the Technical Institute of Food and Nutrition in Moscow two years ago.

"When the meal was over all 50 would have left for America on the next plane, if they could," she says. "They ate as if they had never tasted real food before. They sat down at the table a group of basically antagonistic people and were turned into warm friendly human beings just by one good meal."

Myra and her husband, lawyer Robert Schwartz, spend much of their time traveling and the rest cooking—with interludes of course for attention to business. They've been on safari in Africa, have eaten in native huts in India, always keep their bags packed and their passports in order for a quick takeoff to anywhere.

On the Soviet trip, Myra was determined to show the Soviets how America eats. She took along 200 pounds of canned and packaged foods and then spent weeks getting official permission to cook her long-planned meal. From the packages she produced clam chowder, turkey with chestnut dressing, wild rice, sweet potatoes with marshmallows, cranberry sauce, cucumber salad, pecan and pumpkin pie. She made hot rolls from a packaged mix, whipped up some instant mashed potatoes and produced an angel food cake.

"For people whose principal diet is borshit, this was really something," says Myra. "Soviet food has deteriorated so much that most people live on soup, potatoes and bread. They go on for a week on one pot of soup, adding a little something each day."

Myra says she became a gourmet cook because she was exposed to exotic foods as a child, when she traveled over most of the world with her father.

"By the time I was six I could eat anything except plain food," says Myra. "When I got married my husband shared my tastes. 'I think good cooks could settle most of the world's problems, around the dining table.'"

Benefits Outweigh The Hardships

We can understand the concern voiced by some Pitt Counties since the announcement that the Voice of America will locate its major overseas transmitters at Pactolus and Shelmerdine.

Some questions which are the source of concern for some citizens cannot be answered for weeks or months . . . and some of the questions may never be answered.

Be that as it may, most Pitt Counties are overjoyed at the announcement that a 26-million dollar facility is to be constructed in the county, and further that it will employ 100 people and have an annual payroll of some $800,000 per year.

Even though it may prove some hardship on a handful of people so far as the acquisition of land is concerned, such an industry in our midst is bound to afford a tremendous boost to the county's economy.

The primary matter of concern for some people right now is whether a considerable amount of farm land will be taken to meet the 5,500 acre requirement for the three units in the plan. Even though the exact areas to be included in the sites have not been made public, it is a good guess that the federal government will take as little productive farm land as possible into the sites.

In the first place the anticipated average price of $50 to $75 per acre for land indicates the officials do not expect to purchase much good farm land. Secondly, we are confident that insofar as possible the federal authorities in charge of the project want to see it carried through with as little interference as possible with the existing agricultural operations of Pitt County.

When the exact boundaries of the sites will be announced no one here knows now. There should be some comfort, however, in the initial announcement which said only 8 or 10 landowners would be affected in the Pactolus area and 30 to 40 in the Shelmerdine area. It should also be realized that out of this total of some 50 landowners, many of them may be affected to the extent of only a very few acres.

Another matter of concern seems to be that Pitt County will become a primary target area in case of enemy attack.

Let's face it. When the Voice of America originates here, we will be a primary target area. In case of an all-out attack, one of the primary targets in any nation would be the radio transmitters which beam its broadcast to other friendly or enemy nations.

But what if we are a primary target area? Should nuclear war come to the United States there will be few communities which would not feel the effects of such a conflict. And, after all we have been for several years in the midst of several important target areas.

For Pitt County as a whole, and even for the small areas immediately affected by the site locations, the advantages of having such a major facility located here far outweigh any disadvantages involved.

In time most of the questions which now concern some people will be answered. We are confident the USIA will release additional information on the facilities as rapidly as possible. Until then we in Pitt County will just have to bide our time and hope that nothing develops to side-track this tremendous industry which has been designated for the county.

Strike Violence Is No Help Toward Solution

Recurring violence in connection with the strike at Henderson textile plants offers nothing constructive in settling the dispute which has idled more than 1,200 workers since mid-November.

Probably most of the workers who hold jobs in the two textile plants prior to the strike are anxious to return to work and their regular paying jobs. Owners of the mills likewise have evidenced their desire to get the plants back into operation.

The bombings, stonings and other incidents of violence which have occurred in Henderson these last few days will make it more difficult rather than easier to settle the issues which prolong the strike.

Those workers who desire to remain on strike against the management of the textile mills are certainly within their rights to do so. At the same time it should be realized that workers who desire to return to their job are likewise within their rights in returning to work. They should by no means be intimidated by acts of violence prompted by those who do not want to return to their jobs until the disputed issues between the union and the management are settled.

While law enforcement agencies of Henderson or the state should not be used to intimidate workers who want to remain on strike, these same law enforcement agencies should use every reasonable means to see that workers who return to their jobs are not intimidated by violence and prevented from returning to their jobs.

The right of a group of workers to strike in an effort to carry their point is generally recognized in American society. The right to strike, however, does not carry with it the right to cause violence or prevent others who want to work from going about their jobs if they wish.

The Cherry Tree Incident—

By BILLY ARNOLD

Million Dollar Headache

Recreation Department Supervisor Gordon Goodman was telling me about the problems he's had with a new jet airplane the department has just acquired.

"The thing cost almost a million dollars," Goodman said. "The only thing is that it's obsolete, you see, and so the officials at Cherry Point let us have it. There were only five of them and they gave them away to departments in the state."

Goodman said that the planes were given to Durham (2), Greensboro, Charlotte, and Greenville. "We were darn lucky to get one."

He shook his head. "But I'm telling you, we've had more trouble since we got it than you could ever imagine."

The plane, painted a navy blue with streaks of scarlet and white in the insignias on the sides is located in the middle of the recreation department grounds at Elm Street Park. Goodman peered at it from the window of his office.

"You see, we felt like this would be a wonderful thing for the kids of Greenville. It would be on display up there and it would be something they could play on and look at and—well, it should be pretty educational, too. It isn't an old plane. It's pretty new. But it's just obsolete by present standards."

"We had a lot of plans. I thought it might be nice to have a rope ladder leading up to the cockpit on one side and a slide leading down from the other side. So the kids could climb up, look around at the dials and stuff, you know, and then slide down. Things like that. Of course, it has to be secured on cement blocks and painted and cleaned up and smoothed off."

He shook his head again, coming away from the window. "But they won't let you do that. When it first came here, we had it up on some shaky cement blocks. The metal had some rough, dangerous places in it; it just wasn't ready to have any kids playing around on it, you know? Well, we put up a fence around it and signs telling everybody to keep off until it was fixed."

He sat down at his desk, made a face at me. "Ha! They ripped up the fence and tore down the signs in one day! I went out there one day, finally, and just told them to get off the plane—there were about 15 to 20 kids crawling all over it, tearing the dials and instruments out of the cockpit—but it didn't do any good. They would get off and get right back on as soon as I turned around to leave."

Goodman grinned sourly. "The thing that irritated me," he said, "was that there were grown-ups on the thing, too. Yeah, they come out here—some of them—and climb up on it and mess with the instruments and things. I think what we're going to have to do is just seal up the cockpit for good, get rid of the plans to build the ladder and slide. The kids and grown-ups are just too destructive."

"I don't know. If something isn't done, they'll tear the darn plane up before we can get it fixed and painted all over."

It just goes to prove that kids will be kids—and so will some adults.

Old Conflict Of Individual Ideas

By LYNN NISREY

INSTITUTE — The old adage that the shrewdness of children often goes unlearned was borne out by the special audit report on the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill released by State Auditor Henry Bridges.

For many years the members of the General Assembly and the news media covering the Legislature have relied upon the assistance of the Institute's daily analyses of bills. More significantly, county and municipal governments throughout the State have depended to large degree upon the Institute of Government suggestions for the organization and operation of their activities.

Nearly all of the young men who have been brought into top positions in State government in the past ten years or more have been alumni of the Institute and have brought the philosophy of that agency into administration of State departments.

Practically all of the commissions studying government reorganization have employed Institute personnel for research, analysis and compilation of reports. On basis of these reports the whole structure of State government has been reorganized.

The report of the audit for the period of July 1, 1956, through December, 1958, contains this significant paragraph: "Due to the lack of internal control, the inadequate records of the receipts, and the loose manner of handling cash, the total amount of receipts could not accurately be determined."

There was a discrepancy of $3,964.22 in ascertained receipts and deposits during the 30 months period. The report notes that Director Albert Coates said he would immediately make deposit of that amount.

INDIVIDUALISTIC — The State has suffered no loss, and there is no suggestion that anybody has diverted money to his own use. It is the old conflict between individual ideas of operation and conformity to established routine policy.

Dr. Albert Coates organized the Institute of Government and for many years operated it chiefly as a private business enterprise. Then it was taken into the University system as an integral activity, with Dr. Coates continuing as director. The State Auditor and the Budget Bureau had somewhat similar difficulty getting Dr. B. E. Dougherty, founder and long time president of Appalachian State Teachers College at Boone, to comply with routine. Something of the same kind of thing happened when State College took over the book store from L. L. Ivey. To less degree it happened in operations of Dr. Leon Meadows as president of East Carolina College at Greenville. (Although Dr. Meadows was convicted on criminal charges, a great many people still doubt he benefited personally or was guilty of anything more than failure to comply with audit and budget requirements.)

Another key paragraph in the audit report says that "as a unit of the University of North Carolina, the Institute is subject to the same laws and regulations in connection with receiving and disbursing funds that govern any other State agency." The auditors found it had not observed these regulations but had been operating on a system of its own, largely inherited from the old private enterprise era. Even if that system might be more efficient, it cannot be tolerated in the overall policy of standardization necessary for a billion dollar State operation.

DISTINCTION — The distinction and significance of the findings of laxity in the Institute of Government stems from the fact of its influence on State government by reason of the infiltration of so many of its alumni and proteges in policy-making positions, and their insistence upon meticulous compliance with regulations in all areas of activity. It is surprising to discover that the Institute does not observe the same rules in its internal operations that its trainees require of other public servants.

Tabulation of amounts collected making up the $3,964.22 not properly deposited range from 14 cents to $108, most of them small items. There is evidence, according to the audit report, that a substantial part if not all that amount was paid out for legitimate purposes, although in "illegal" manner. Suggestion is made that Director Coates make application through proper channels for reimbursement, with recommendation that all claims which are found to be proper expenditures and properly supported may be approved by the University officials for reimbursement. The report concludes with the statement that "since the beginning of our examination considerable improvement has been made in the method of recording receipts, and in the system of internal control."

Why Did Nikita Build A Crisis?

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are three tantalizing questions in Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's willingness to create a crisis over his demand that the Allies get out of West Berlin.

1. Why did he do it picking May 27 as a virtual deadline and Berlin as the place?

2. Is he willing to have a showdown with the West—even if it means war?

3. Is this the only crisis he has in mind for the West—or is it just the beginning of a series?

West Berlin, 139 miles inside Communist East Germany, represents many things which, added up, must provide a big headache to the Soviets.

It is a Western outpost and listening post deep within the Communist world, although its residents give their allegiance to West Germany.

It is a harbor for refugees from Communism. Its gitter is a reminder to East Germans and East Europeans that living standards are higher in the West.

These are all irritating reasons which may make Khrushchev want to get the Allied troops out of the city's Western zone.

If the Allies agreed to that—and right now they talk as if they won't—their grip on West Berlin would crumble.

Khrushchev's thinking may go way beyond these things. He may be using Berlin as an excuse to force the Allies into much broader concessions, such as demilitarizing West Germany.

There is something to be remembered about Berlin. Getting the Allies out of there is not something which has just oc-cured to the Soviets.

Stalin tried to force the Allies out in 1948 by blockading the city against supplies from the West. President Truman broke that with the airlift.

From that day to this—as if they had decided to subsidize until they were a lot stronger—the Soviets had not precipitated a frontal crisis with the West in Europe.

They are a lot stronger now, as their Sputniks show. Now Khrushchev may feel able to continue the unfinished work of Stalin who tried the maneuver after another to break the West's will to resist.

Before the blockade of Berlin, Stalin tried to intimidate Greece and Turkey. And just four months before the Berlin blockade, Czechoslovakia was made part of the Soviet bloc by Communist seizure from within.

There can be only guessing now as to whether Khrushchev is willing to go to war over Berlin or if the Allies back down there, whether he'll put the heat on again somewhere else.

There seems a good reason for his being unwilling to take the U.S.S.R. into war over Berlin: he indicated it Saturday when British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan arrived in Moscow.

Khrushchev said then the Soviets are embarking on a great building program and don't want war.

One thing he seems to have accomplished already: he has shaken the Allies on their rigid policy of standing stiff with no concessions.

Already three months before the May 27 deadline—there is talk in the Allied world of some concessions and the need for more flexibility.

By making a demand and setting a deadline Khrushchev has taken the initiative and is keeping the Allies jittery and guessing.

City life would be much more interesting if some company would bring out parking meters with alarm-clock features. When time expired, an alarm bell could clang.

This would help catch cheaters who park overtime, trusting to the law of odds to avoid a parking ticket. But more than that, it would add a bit of fun to otherwise drab city life. Other Editors Saying... Votes Supplant Talk Strength For Today

(Greensboro Daily News)

As the 1959 General Assembly settles down to committee hearings this week, lines are likely to be more clearly drawn and issues sharpened after the vacuum in which House and Senate have been operating since the speakership race was settled.

Governor Hodges delivered his state of the state and budget messages and committee slates were completed.

Even in the initial welter, however, it has become obvious that several study committee reports are in for tough sledding, that Governor Hodges is going to have to fight hard for whatever portion of his program is enacted into law and that budget recommendations are likely to be upset unless compromises are reached somewhere along the line.

As usual, the big battle will rage around money.

Teacher pay is presently at the core of discussions, with recommendations for higher education and several other state services right behind. Whereas the budget recommended by the Governor and the Advisory Budget Commission whittled down requested appropriations in all these areas sharply and proposed no tax change save institution of a withholding tax with its compensatory windfall, a teacher pay increase in line with the State Board of Education's recommendation has already been tossed into the hopper. Bills which would tax soft drinks, eliminate or reduce sales tax exemptions or otherwise bring new revenue have also been introduced. The noticeable sentiment is to do more than recommended and to face up to new taxes as they are necessary to that end.

So far there has been no measure to offer a genuine administration-anti-administration test. Likewise it has been impossible to separate the liberals from the conservatives. They were scrambled in the speakership race. Rep. John W. Umstead, for instance, going with Venters and Rep. John Kerr with Hewlett. The division is more likely to be spelled out between hold-the-liners and break-the-liners. A more definite grouping, could also come when or if a state minimum wage act reaches the floor. On the one hand is Representative Quinn's surprise 75 cents an hour bill, on the other is the proposal of Representative Burrows and others that the minimum wage be raised to $1 an hour.

The honoraries have been named by talking up to now. Of course there'll be plenty of talk through the session, but from here on out those who talk will be called upon to put their votes where their mouths have been. And that has a sobering—absolutely no pun intended—influence.

Suggestions By 'Old Promoter'

By THE OLD PROMOTER

Note: Elmer Roesamer, the usual occupant of this space, is off parading some place and his confere, confidant and critic, The Old Promoter, has volunteered to write today's column.—EDITOR.

City life would be much more interesting if some company would bring out parking meters with alarm-clock features. When time expired, an alarm bell could clang.

This would help catch cheaters who park overtime, trusting to the law of odds to avoid a parking ticket. But more than that, it would add a bit of fun to otherwise drab city life. When a bell rings every parker in the neighborhood would dash into the street. So would every ticket-bearing cop. Each time, there would be a thrilling race between policeman and autoist. If the latter got there first and deposited a coin, he wouldn't get a ticket. If he came in second, he'd win a summons.

Alarms could be timed so that they would play a tune if they went off in the right order. Merchants could arrange to have them play "Easter Parade" during the spring shopping season.

WHY NOT DIRECTORY-SERVE STAMPS? It's several years since the Post Office discontinued directory service. It's as many years that the Post Office has ignored my suggestion that it issue a directory-service stamp.

Meanwhile, business has lost orders and customers, and deadbeats have ducked their debts. It's still a good idea to issue a directory-service stamp, at 20 or 25 cents. Then if a mailer was not sure of an addressee's address, he could affix one of these stamps and the post office would make an effort to find the street address of the intended recipient.

I have similarly been ignored by pen and paper makers who have failed to bring out a rectangular pen in which blocks of frozen food would fit comfortably. Round pens usually require more than the half-cup of water called for by many frozen-vegetable packages.

EASIER-CLEANED PANS, TOO All too few pans are free of dirt traps. Railed edges of pans and handle brackets usually have areas that can't be cleaned with the average kitchen equipment. But this is more the fault of housewives than manufacturers.

If the girls would refuse to buy utensils with dirt traps, manufacturers would produce the other kind.

Even more annoying are narrow, curly spoons on coffee pots. Each one needs a special brush to get out the fat that might spoil your coffee. This, too, is the fault of coffee-pot buyers.

Am I imagining things, or do you too find that there's less ink in ball-point pens these days? What used to be a "lifetime" supply of ink now runs out in three weeks, or less if you have a long name. Retail cartridges have even shorter lives. There used to be a ball-point pen ink for refilling tired pens but I haven't seen it lately. A stationer told me he wouldn't handle it because it cut into his sale of pens!

Lippincott and Margulies engineers report autoists complain that modern fenders often lock into bumpers of cars for and aff. A more serious trouble is the fact that damage are so common that damage to one-quarter of the skin of the car. Many autoists believe that one-quarter fenders have been so designed to increase the repair income for dealers.

But auto manufacturers wouldn't do anything like that! Or would they?

Proxmire Leads Drive To Clip Johnson Wings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A campaign by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) to clip the authority of Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas remained a one-man effort today.

No other senator publicly backed Proxmire's demand in the Senate Monday for revival of party caucuses to direct and control the party leaders. He said Johnson is exercising "immense powers" without responsibility to anybody but the voters of Texas.

Proxmire, who himself once praised Johnson as the second most powerful man in government, said he will discuss in a later speech the implications of Johnson's leadership "and the power it has generated."

Behind the scenes there were other Democrats who obviously agreed with Proxmire that they have surrendered to Johnson a sweeping authority never before so concentrated in a party chieftain. But these Democrats avoided publicly airing their views.

Proxmire himself said in an interview he had been told by some other Senators they were in sympathy with his views. But he said he wouldn't name them publicly.

He said he hadn't discussed his speech in advance with Democratic colleagues because "I felt it wouldn't be fair to invite them in something that might make difficulties for them with the leadership."

In this connection, one Democratic critic of Proxmire who didn't want his name used, quipped that the Wisconsin senator had picked Washington's Birthday to "make his farewell address."

Senators most familiar with Johnson's operations said, however, they expect the majority leader to bend over backwards in public efforts to demonstrate he is being fair to Proxmire and others who may view his leadership as something less than fully satisfactory to them.

Johnson himself was in Texas, confined to his home with influenza. Aides said it was not likely he would have any public comment.

But Johnson was defended by Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore), like Proxmire a member of the liberal bloc, and Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), the assistant leader.

Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), the GOP leader, joining the debate to praise Johnson as an able and dedicated American, took occasion to note that Republican senators meet each week for briefings on legislative plans.

Johnson, who heads the Democratic Steering and Policy committees as well as serving as majority leader, has called only two Democratic caucuses in two years. At each, Proxmire said, the leader delivered a state-of-the-union message and no business was transacted.

Proxmire's chief complaint was that the individual Democrats have no voice in determining which legislation is to be brought before the Senate for a vote.

Johnson operates in such instances with a nine-member policy committee he heads and whose members he appoints. Some Senate liberals feel this group is weighted on the conservative side.

Neuberger accused Proxmire of turning against a benefactor by attacking Johnson, and said that Proxmire had joined in praising Johnson when he was running for office last year. He said Proxmire had "battered up" Johnson and sought favors from him.

Neuberger recalled that he himself had stepped aside so that Proxmire could go on the Senate Agriculture Committee because Johnson had said that would help the Wisconsin senator get elected.

"It seems to me that for the senator from Wisconsin to accept all of the emoluments and benefits offered by the majority leader and then to turn on him after election to a six-year term is something that ought to be called to the attention of the Senate," Neuberger said.

Proxmire replied that it would be a sorry day for the Senate if its members came to feel they were obligated to the party leader because of their committee assignments.

Proxmire denied to a reporter that he was miffed at Johnson because he had failed to land an assignment on the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee. He said he was satisfied with his places on the Agriculture and Banking committees. He added he felt he had been treated fairly by the leadership in these assignments.

Reapportioning Fight Resumed

RALEIGH (AP) — Two North Carolina lawmakers who don't give up easily have asked the Legislature again to reapportion House membership on the basis of the 1950 census.

Rep. Radford G. Powell of Rockingham and George Long of Alamance made their request in a bill introduced Monday night. They have co-sponsored such a bill in four previous legislative sessions and were defeated.

Under their proposal, if reapportionment were carried out, Rockingham and Alamance would have two House members each, while Cabarrus and Pitt counties would be cut from two representatives each to one each.

The Constitution says the General Assembly must reapportion its membership after each census. Powell said, "I still say that until other provisions are made... it's still the responsibility of the General Assembly to reapportion the House."

The Powell-Long bill highlighted brief House-Senate sessions. The North Carolina Little Symphony, played in the hall of the House for about an hour in its biennial concert.

Rep. Tom J. Herbert of Clay introduced a bill which would entitle any resident of Clay over 65 years of age to a permanent hunting and fishing license for the county free of charge. They could keep the free license as long as they lived in the county.

Airline Raising Pay For Pilots

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A new contract calling for a pay raise averaging about $100 a month has been signed by Piedmont Airlines and its 160 pilots.

The 18-month contract was signed last Saturday. The pilots had worked without a contract since last March 1.

Piedmont Vice President H. K. Saunders commented, "We're quite satisfied with the contract and I think the pilots are happy with it too."

Chicago Demos Quite Confident

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrats, who have been running the nation's second largest city for 28 years, appear quite sure today's municipal primary will presage another four years in the driver's seat.

The city is merely going through the motions insofar as the mayoral primary is concerned. There is a little excitement in some of the 50 aldermanic races, but not much. The Republicans appear in danger of losing some of their 11 council members.

Officials predicted a turnout of from 60 to as low as 40 per cent of the city's 1,835,224 registered voters.

The Democrats want to give Mayor Richard J. Daley, serving his first four year term, a big vote to show the party's power. The aim is 75,000 votes.

The Republican candidate, Timothy Sheehan, 49, U.S. Representative in Congress for four terms, says he expects about 130,000 votes. That would be one of the worst showings for a GOP candidate in years. Political observers said it indicated a big defeat for Sheehan at the April 7 election.

Lar Daly, a perennial unsuccessful candidate for city, state and national offices for 20 years, is a candidate for both tickets. No one regards him as even a mild threat.

The primary has two "firsts." It is the first time both major political organizations picked Roman Catholics for mayoral candidates. In the Democratic primary, City Clerk John C. Marcin is opposed by attorney Lemuel E. Bentley, only Negro thus far to seek a city-wide elective office.

N.C. Is Meeting Its Obligation, Claims Auditor

"The state of North Carolina is living up to its obligation of service to the people of the state," according to Henry Bridges, N. C. State Auditor.

Bridges spoke to members of the Greenville Lions Club last night regarding the financial operations of the state. He pointed out that the main sources of revenue are through sales tax and income tax. By way of comparison, Bridges said income tax collections had increased from $743,000 in 1923 to approximately $94,000,000 in 1957. He also stated that sales tax collected increased from $15,000,000 in 1933 to $74,000,000 last year.

Concerning proposed legislation on taxes, Bridges commented that he favored a state withholding tax system. "The present bill would begin the withholding system on January 1, 1960, however, it is possible that the withholding may start as early as July 1959."

Bridges said that if the proposed change in the sales tax law is passed it would greatly increase the revenue collected. "This law," he said, "will reduce the sales tax from 3% to 2%, but will eliminate the commodities which are now exempt from the tax. It would mean 2% straight across the board."

Lion Club president John Biggs announced that an intra-club meeting of all Lions in Pitt county would be held in Greenville next Monday night at the Woman's Club. He urged all members to attend. "Guest speaker for the occasion," he said, "will be E. P. Blair of Vanceboro."

Revival Series Termed Success

A series of revivals held by the Rev. Bobby Jackson in various Free Will Baptist Churches of the Greenville area came to a climax with a revival held at Parkers Chapel FWB Church Feb. 8 to Feb. 15.

A total of 46 people were reported as saved and a great number more went to the Prayer Rooms.

Attendance during the ten services averaged about 360, ranging from 200 opening service to a total of 527 who attended the closing night's service, something never before attained at Parkers' Chapel Church.

The Sunday School attendance at Parkers' Chapel had never exceeded 255 although the year old record had been equalled.

In response to a challenge from the pastor, the Rev. Billy Jackson brother of the evangelist, and the evangelist himself, several church people secured signed pledges from members as well as other people who did not attend Sunday School. A goal of 300 was topped when 357 attended Sunday School.

A Greenville native, the Rev. Jackson left for Houston, Texas by plane for a revival. From there he has a number of scheduled meetings in western, central, eastern and the southeastern United States.

Murder, Torture By Batista's Henchmen

Editor's note—This is the second of three stories on the activities of police and other agents who operated under the Batista regime in Cuba.

By ROBERT BERRELEZ HAVANA (AP) — About a year ago a Havana lawyer obtained a writ for the release of a man held by the national police on a charge of terrorism. He waited at the appointed place and time for the prisoner.

An auto bearing official plates drove up. The lifeless body of his client was pushed out onto the pavement. An impeccably dressed man in his 40s, mustached and pleasant of visage, stepped out. He was the national police chief, Maj. Esteban Ventura.

He told the lawyer: "Here is your habeas corpus."

Apocryphal as that may sound, Cubans familiar with the well-dressed policeman consider the story an understatement on his cruelty.

Maj. Ventura once worked as a butcher. Leaders of the Castro regime call him Fulgencio Batista's chief executioner. They view him as the drum major in a procession of violence that, by Fidel Castro's estimate, killed 20,000 Cubans.

The revolutionary government is seeking his extradition as a refugee from justice. He fled to the Dominican Republic when the Batista regime collapsed Jan. 1.

Ventura ran a tough police force that sat as judge and jury at the 5th and 9th Police Precincts in Havana.

Supplementing his activities were those of the dreaded SIM agents. SIM, the military investigation service, operated a house of horror at the Bureau of Investigation. Prisoners brought to these places readily confessed to revolutionary activities. Many didn't live to repudiate these confessions.

In March 1958, a young magistrate culminated months of private investigation of Ventura by securing a writ for his arrest and imprisonment on a charge of murder. The magistrate was Francisco Alabau Trelles, now of the Cuban Supreme Court.

Alabau Trelles' file on this case shows:

A young naval captain, Alejandro Gonzalez Brito, was arrested by Ventura for complicity in an armed uprising at Cienfuegos, in eastern Cuba, in September 1957. He was beaten and tortured by Ventura, and dragged from prison to prison in efforts to expose the Cienfuegos underground.

Taken to a pier in Havana's outskirts, Gonzalez Brito was alternately beaten into unconsciousness, plunged into the water and revived and beaten again. He died in the hands of his torturers. The body was dumped into the sea.

Ventura's case never reached a civil court. Suspension of civil guarantees was decreed, placing the case before a military court whose action on it is not known. The magistrate was forced to leave Cuba to protect himself and his family.

Maj. Ventura and those involved in this case will have to answer to the same charges some day, Judge Alabau Trelles says.

The witnesses who testified and had to leave the country have returned to Cuba.

One of those accused in the torture and killing of Gonzalez Brito—police Corp. Jose Luis Alfaro Sierra—was arrested, found guilty by a rebel military tribunal and executed last month.

Ventura's chief chamber of operations was the 5th Precinct station on Havana's east side. Political prisoners and others suspected of rebel sympathies were brought to his filthy, dark basement. It has five 10x12 bare cells, with small, double-barred windows, and one smaller windowless cell. All lack beds, faucets or drains. The walls are marked with stains which Castro investigators ascribe to the force of bullwhips or other leather weapons. The walls of the solitary shower stall are marked similarly.

Prisoners were dumped into this basement through three rectangular openings, which also serve as drains, in a street level patio. Agents entered the basement through a secret circular stairway.

This is the story told by Israel Hernandez, 26, a guard at the 5th Precinct station:

Several nights a week Ventura's agents, dressed as peasants, would arrive by auto. They would bring torture weapons to the cellar through the secret entry.

"We never saw shells on the main floor of the building. Soon we would hear muffled screams and cracks of the bullwhips. Nobody upstairs said anything. We all pretended not to hear. Neighbors who could hear never complained. It would have been foolish."

"Later on duty downstairs we could see for ourselves what had been going on."

Out of a force of 140 who were on duty there last December only 40 remain. The others, pointed out by former inmates, have fled the country or been imprisoned. Retained are mostly men who helped bring food secretly and at great danger to the cellar inmates.

Agents also worked over suspects in streets and homes. One case was summarized at the recent trial of several policemen:

The policemen broke down the door at 171 Continental St. last April. They naked two students from bed, stood them facing a wall and shot them. Their money and an automobile were taken. Next day the police took away the furniture and sold it to a second hand dealer.

Even the sacrosanct sphere of the Havana Bar Assn. did not escape the wrath of Ventura's police force. The minutes of a session April 16, 1958 as revealed by President Silvio Sanabria, shows:

Lawyer Jorge Cabrera Graupera was arrested April 12 after obtaining the release, through a writ of habeas corpus, of a political prisoner. The police were seeking the whereabouts of the prisoner when Cabrera Graupera was picked up for questioning. He failed to return home, his family had become worried and the association investigated. It located a badly beaten Dr. Cabre Precinct, through the Ministry of Justice the association obtained his release, but only on condition that he go home and not to a hospital. The lawyer died April 15. An autopsy showed internal hemorrhage.

The association brought the case before the president of the Supreme Court, urging an investigation and punishment of those responsible.

That was as far as the case got. "There is no doubt that monstrosities were perpetrated," says Sanabria.

The association's official news bulletin was not published from July 1957, to January 1959. "Silence was preferred rather than submission to official censorship." Minutes of previous important meetings were published in the latest issue.

The minutes of a meeting Feb. 18, 1958, show that the association unanimously agreed to petition the government to call new elections because it considered the existing regime "a factor of discord and disorder."

For this effort, the association's quarters were raided and documents seized. Sanabria and Jose Mario Cardona, then association president and until recently prime minister of Cuba, were jailed but released unharmed.

First Adams, Now Curry Dismissed From ECC Squad

East Carolina College, third-seeded team in the North State Conference basketball tournament which opens tomorrow, dropped another first-team player from its squad yesterday.

Forward Jessel Curry of Portsmouth, Va., was dismissed from the team by Coach Howard Porter prior to yesterday's afternoon practice session of the Pirates. Guard Charlie Adams had been ordered to leave the squad Saturday night.

Both of the players were dismissed, Porter said, for insubordination. He added that violations of team training rules were not involved.

Adams and Curry were both reported from the East Carolina line-up Saturday night during the team's final game of the regular season. Adams was dismissed from the squad during the halftime intermission while Curry was suspended for the remainder of the game, which East Carolina lost, 65-59.

Curry was reported Sunday to have quit the squad as a result of the suspension, but the Senior forward denied the report last night. Porter confirmed this morning that Curry had been dismissed and his scholarship had been revoked. Adams' scholarship has also been withdrawn.

Porter would not elaborate this morning on the insubordination ruling. However, both players are said to have violated instructions given to them prior to Saturday's game. Both were removed from action during the first half of the contest.

Both players have been suspended previously. Curry, an all-conference selection last year, was dropped from the squad during the 1947-1948 season, but was permitted to return. Adams was dismissed following East Carolina's February 14 game with Elon, but Porter said he returned to the squad with the permission of other players.

Adams, who played freshman basketball at the University of North Carolina in 1944, has been the team's scoring leader most of the season and paced the Pirates in a late-season drive when they won 10 of their last 12 games, including seven consecutive victories. In 20 games this year, of which the Pirates won 13, Adams scored 339 points to rank among conference scoring leaders with an average of 16.9 points per game.

Curry, who started the season as a reserve despite his selection last year as an All-Conference and All-NAIA District 26 player, had averaged 11.4 points per game this year. He enrolled at East Carolina last year after completing a tour of military duty which he began after playing freshman basketball at the University of Kentucky.

Either Adams or Curry had been high scorer in 13 of East Carolina's games this year. Adams holds the team record for highest number of points in a single game this season, with 27 points against Atlantic Christian on February 5.

Adams will be replaced in the starting line-up for tomorrow's opening tournament game by Charlie Lewis, while Curry will be replaced by Denny Bowes. Lewis is a freshman from Kinston and Bowes, also a freshman, is from Burlington. Neither has seen much action this season, although they are rated as top prospects.

A third reserve player, Don Smith of Portsmouth, Va., is also expected to start for the Pirates in tomorrow's first-round tournament game with Catawba. He will replace Senior forward Nick Nichols who received a facial injury in Saturday's game with Atlantic Christian.

Christians will be able to see some action tomorrow, but Porter said he would "like to give him the extra day (of rest) if I can."

Nichols dressed for yesterday's practice but was not permitted to scrimmage although college physician Dr. C. P. Irons said he did not have any broken bones as a result of a scramble in Saturday's game.

Although designated as a starter, Smith may see only limited action tomorrow. He sustained a severe bruise on his left hip in Saturday's game and required assistance in changing to street clothes after the contest. He was at practice yesterday, however.

Other members of the starting team in the tournament action will be guard Ike Riddick and center Joe Plaster. Both have been members of the first team throughout the season.

Despite the line-up changes, the loss of Adams and Curry, and the injuries to Nichols and Smith, Porter said this morning that he does not believe the Pirates' chances of winning the tournament have been diminished.

So far as losing Adams and Curry is concerned, Porter said, "I think the team morale is better and our team play is better. We will be a little short on experience, however."

Porter views tomorrow's opening-round game against Catawba as "a very tough assignment," although ECC beat the Indians twice during the regular season by scores of 95-66 and 88-76.

He said this morning, "They gave us a very good time at Catawba (which the Pirates won 88-76). At that time, however, their boy (Harold) Medford was in the same shape Nichols is in now. He had suffered a broken nose and was playing with a face mask which hampered him. I look for them to be somewhat improved."

The ECC coach is sticking by his indirect prediction that Western Carolina College, regular season champion, will win the tournament. He has not said directly that the Cats will win, but he was quoted Sunday at the North State Conference meeting as saying, "I figure that a good big team is better than a good little team and Western Carolina is bigger than the rest of us."

He added this morning, "Nobody knows what will happen in the tournament, however. Some teams get hot in a tournament and others don't play up to expectations, all of which makes some predictions look silly."

"I expect we will have improved team play in the tournament. That's the way it looks in practice and that's the way it looked in the second half of the Atlantic Christian game."

The Pirates, down 10 points at the half of the Atlantic Christian game Saturday, came back strong in the second half to pull within two points of the Bulldogs before losing by six points. The revamped line-up of Lewis, Bowes, Smith, Plaster and Riddick played almost all of the second half of the ACC game.

In addition to the five players designated as starters, Porter will carry Senior Dennis O'Brien Junior, Harold Simson, Sophomore Jimmy Hall and Freshman Dave Starrett to the tournament. None of them has seen much action this year.

Porter reiterated that neither Adams nor Curry will be permitted to rejoin the squad despite the lack of experience of some team members. He added that neither of the pair has requested reinstatement.

Top-Seeded Phants Open Tourney Against Tarboro

The Northeastern Conference tournament begins here tomorrow night at East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium, with a pair of tilts between Roanoke Rapids and Jacksonville, Greenville and Tarboro.

Opening round action will continue tomorrow night at the gym, featuring matches between Washington and New Bern, Kinston and Elizabeth City.

Tar Heels Sink To Third In Poll

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky, a team that gets up when the chips are down, is back in the No. 1 spot in the national college basketball rankings.

The 1950 National Collegiate champions turned in a couple of important victories last week to regain first place in "The Associated Press weekly poll of sports writers and broadcasters" which they had lost when they dropped a game to Mississippi State two weeks ago.

First they belted Vanderbilt 83-71 to wipe out their first defeat of the season, then they handed Auburn its first defeat, 65-56.

Although Kentucky is only third in the Southeastern Conference, those victories kept alive the Wildcats' hopes of again getting into the NCAA tournament, which they won last year.

Kentucky got some aid from an unexpected source in returning to the top. North Carolina, leader in Greenville, which finished the regular season in a two-way tie with Kinston for top place in the tourney, drew the No. 1 seeding in the tournament. Kinston is second-seeded.

Washington and Roanoke Rapids were tied for third place in the loop and had to draw for that position in the tourney. Washington won.

On Friday night at 7:00 the Kinston-Elizabeth City winner will battle the Roanoke Rapids-Jacksonville winner and the Greenville-Tarboro winner will clash with the Washington-New Bern winner at 9:00.

A consolation tilt between Friday's losers will be played at 7:00 Saturday and the championship game will be played at 9:00.

Winner of the Northeastern Conference tourney, of course, will represent the league in the State AA playoffs.

Paolo Rosi Says He's Through With Lefties

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fifth-ranking Paolo Rosi, his right eye battered and his left badly cut, today challenged Champion Joe Brown for his lightweight boxing crown — and simultaneously vows "no more southerners!"

Rosi won a disputed decision over lefthanded Flash Elorde of Manila in a fast, slashing 10 rounds Monday. But he emerged with three cuts about the left eye, puffs below and above the right eye, and a new respect for lefties.

However, the 135-pound New York Italian expects to be ready to fight again in two months. He said the cuts aren't as bad as they look.

His manager, Cy Cresci, said he would send a challenge to Brown's manager, Lou Viscusi, today. Viscusi recently said the winner between Rosi and unranked, 132-pound Elorde seemed the logical challenger.

Rosi won Referee Frankie Carter's approval 100-94 and Judge Eddie James' 98-97. Judge Jack Donny scored it 96-93 for Elorde. So did many in the crowd of 4,434 who paid $16,927.50 gross and $14,983.18 net.

John Thomas Is Now 'Grounded'

BOSTON (AP) — John Thomas, Boston University's track answer to moonshot attempts by scientists, is grounded as far as major indoor competition is concerned this year.

The lanky 17-year-old freshman set a world's high jump record of 7'1 1/4 Saturday in the AAU Championships in New York.

Except for an appearance in the Bu - Tufts freshman meet March 14, Thomas plans to rest until moving into outdoor competition.

"That was his last big one of the winter," Bu Coach Doug Raymond said.

"We are being pressured from every direction — Chicago, Cleveland, New York A. C., Texas — but John is still a boy," Raymond said. "It is our duty to protect him for the future."

Thomas' jump Saturday surpassed the 7'1 1/4 outdoor record by Yuri Stepanov of Russia in July, 1957.

Harris Wants Another Chance

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Roy Harris, heavyweight from Cut and Shoot, Tex., who lost to champion Floyd Patterson on a 12-round technical knockout last summer, wants another chance.

Harris said, however, that he would train differently this time.

"If I had been in as good condition as I ordinarily am I would have beaten Patterson then," Harris said Monday night.

"I worked too much and too hard although trainer Bill Gore didn't want me to," he added.

Harris was here to attend the Texas Golden Gloves Tournament.

Olmedo Lauds Savitt, And Takes Easy Win

By ED CORRIGAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "That Savitt," murmured National Indoor Tennis Champion Alex Olmedo today, "he is a very tough fellow."

"Those balls he hits are so hard to follow when you play him indoors."

But Olmedo, the Peruvian-born ace of the American Davis Cup team, saw "those balls" enough to defeat Savitt 7-9, 6-3, 4-6, 5-7, 12-10 Monday in the final of the National Indoor Tournament.

"Now," continued Olmedo, "I am going back to school at Southern California."

"I have no big plans. Naturally, I'll play all the tennis I can during the summer. But I'll decide when and where I play, no one else (referring to Davis Cup Capt. Perry Jones).

"I also am not thinking of turning pro. If I have a big season and help win the Davis Cup again, naturally, I'll listen to offer."

So that's the way things stand right now for the collegian who almost single handedly won back the Davis Cup from Australia.

He didn't say anything about that "killer instinct" which he is supposed to lack. Jones has said that Alex has a tendency to let his opponent get away when he has him all wrapped up.

Matter of fact, that's just what happened with Savitt. Had Alex not let the big oil salesman off the hook after being at set point in the first set, he would have run the match out in a hurry. Instead, it lasted just short of three hours.

In the 12th game Alex was leading, 6-5. He had Savitt 30-40. One more point and the set was his. But Savitt, 31, pulled it out and went on to break Alex in the 15th game.

Olmedo raced through the next two sets with no trouble. Then came the fourth set. He was like a tiger. He broke in the ninth game, and it looked like curtains for Savitt.

But again he let him get away. Dick broke through in the 10th and 12th games and they went into a fifth set.

This one followed service down to the 21st game when Alex broke. He held his own delivery in the 22nd game and that was it.

"I was up and down," said Savitt, "and you can't win that way."

'Fast Company' For Crusaders

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Belmont Abbey, perennial ruler of the small college basketball roost in North Carolina, is stepping into fast company.

The Crusaders are to meet Evansville College in the first round of the NCAA college division regional tournament at Evansville, Ind., March 5.

The college division is for small college teams. Winners of the various regionals around the country will vie for the national title. That tournament also will be in Evansville.

Belmont Abbey has won 19 and lost only one this season against college competition.

THE 8TH CIRCLE A MASTER MYSTERY BY STANLEY ELLIN

CHAPTER 36 When Murray Kirk broke the news to Mrs. Knapp that he was entering into a law partnership with Ralph Harlingen, she took it with surprising calm.

"Well, I'm sure you know what you're doing, Mr. Kirk," she said. "And, of course, Mr. Collins will be a very good man to have in charge here. Mr. Conny always thought highly of him. And I understand that he's done very well on the Coast, too. When will you be leaving?"

Then Murray realized that to her there never really was a Frank Conny, a Murray Kirk, a Jack Collins. There was only an Agency, and its undisturbed efficiency was all that mattered. So doth efficiency, he mused, blight a soul.

"I don't know," he answered. "Collins will be coming in next week, but then there're papers to be drawn up and so on. It may take a month or so. Why?"

"Because there are a great many details to attend to, Mr. Kirk. There's a great deal of correspondence on your desk. Would you mind taking care of it before you go home for the day?"

"I'll do that. Meanwhile, Mrs. Knapp, have one of the men get some big, empty boxes from the lab—you know, those cartons that the photographic paper comes in—and tell him to bring them to my office. And there's a list of more or less newsworthy clients you had made up. I'd like that, too."

"Why?" asked Mrs. Knapp. "It was the first time she had ever questioned one of his instructions. He was, he saw, no longer on top of the case."

"Because I'm in the mood for it," he said shortly. "So let's get with it, Mrs. Knapp."

It was slow work checking the files against the names on the list. When he was finished with the job and had two boxes well laden he called downstairs to McGuire, the building manager, and learned that the building had no furnace. Never did have, in fact.

"No, sir," McGuire said, "we pipe in our heat from the New York Steam Company. Mr. Kirk I'm surprised you didn't know that." From his tone he was clearly gratified that there was something that he could instruct a tenant on. "If you want to get rid of that stuff, best thing to do is find some place with an incinerator. Or send it down here, and we'll give it to the disposal man when he comes around."

"Thanks," Murray said. "I'll find an incinerator." If he had any doubts about it, the note of rising interest in McGuire's voice settled them completely. And there was always the fireplace at the St. Stephen.

But as it turned out, whoever had built the fireplace hadn't allowed for the burning of such odds and ends as Murray crammed into it. The tapes sizzled and smoldered; the films sent out a smoke that shrouded the apartment in an acrid fog. It was only when all the windows had been drawn up and the door opened and held in place by a book that a proper draft swept up the chimney. Then Murray squatted down before the fire and fed handfuls into it, blotting out vain regrets as he did so.

Near the bottom of the load was a set of photographs, and one of them caught his eye. It showed in excellent detail the wife of a hapless polo player and the muscular young man who was her interest of that month caught by the photo flash during a moment best veiled in darkness. Murray studied the picture with interest, marveling at the way a woman could wear a look of total insouciance at such a disastrous time.

Ruth Vincent had entered the room so quietly that Murray looked up at her dumfounded as she stood there, the same Ruth who had stood there a week, a lifetime before, yet somehow different. The he scrambled to his feet, realized with angry embarrassment that he was still holding the picture, and pitched it into the fire.

"I'm sorry, Ruth said. "I knocked, but you were so busy that you didn't hear me, and I just walked in. I didn't know you were pasting up your album."

"How long have you been here?" "Long enough to have memorized the details of that picture. Who was it? Anyone I know?" "Hardly. It isn't anyone I know, either."

"Oh, Murray, stop looking like that. Don't you know I'm teasing? Really, you can go in that. When people walk in without invitation to insult me, it's too much. Now you tell me whether I'm teasing or not."

"You'd better be, Murray, we had the play at school, and Ralph was there. I had a long talk with him afterward."

"That's nice. How did the play go?" "What difference does that make? I'm trying to tell you that I had a talk with Ralph, and he told me all about what happened. I mean, about you and Arnold, and about the partnership—did you ever hear Ralph once he gets started? He goes on and on. I would have been here before this, if he hadn't taken so long about it."

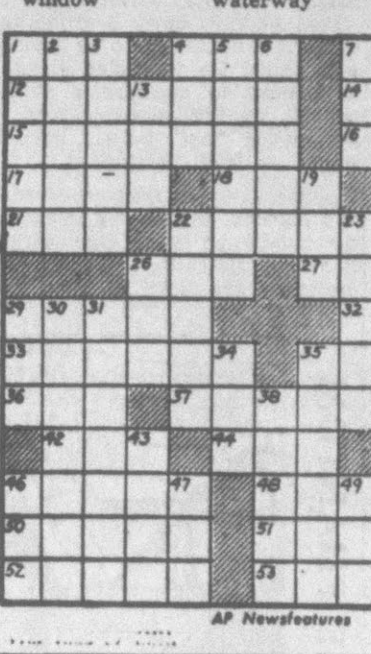

"Here for what?" "Murray, listen to me. What happened that night between us—you were right about me then, don't you know that? You were

More Indians Than In 1759

CINCINNATI (AP)—There are more Indians in the Cincinnati area now than 200 years ago. D.L. Mahoney, director of the Cincinnati office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs said there now are 350 Indians in the area. The Indian population in 1759 consisted only of those persons living in seven or eight cabins at the mouth of the Little Miami river.

Plan 'Living Theatre' Course For Television

"Living Theatre," a televised course of study offered by East Carolina College, will begin March 2. Sixty half-hour lectures covering developments in the world theatre from primitive times to the present are scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday over Station WITN, Washington, N.C. Channel 7.

Dr. Robert T. Rickert of the college department of English will act as instructor of the course. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota with a major in speech and the theatre and holds the master's degree in drama from the University of Miami and the Ph.D. from the Shakespeare Institute, University of Birmingham, England.

He has had extensive experience as a teacher and in the theatre. He taught for a year in the University of Miami, working in the drama department under Fred Koch, Jr. In Miami he directed the Gesu Drama Guild, the Miami Beach Little Theatre, and other community groups. He then went to the University of Florida, where he taught and acted as technical director in the field of drama. From 1955 to 1957 he held the position of Educational Advisor in the Strategic Air Command in England. In the fall of 1958 he joined the staff at East Carolina, where he teaches speech and acts as associate director of the East Carolina Playhouse.

"Living Theatre" will be offered as a credit course on the junior level. Qualified students who complete requirements will receive three quarter hours of credit for extension work at East Carolina. Other adults may take the course on a non-credit basis. Further information may be obtained from Director of Public Relations Ralph Brimley, East Carolina College.

Predicts Man In Orbit In 2 Years

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rocket expert Willy Ley predicts a man, probably a Soviet citizen, will be put in orbit around the earth within two years.

The German-born scientist said a manned station will be established in space about six to eight years from now.

He told Los Angeles State College students Monday that American scientists will not send a human into orbit until every phase of getting him back to earth has been solved. He did not indicate whether he thought the Soviets would show equal concern for space pilots' safety.

Could Destroy City's System

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—If everyone in this city flipped their light switches at the same time, the chairman of the Electricity Supply Committee says, it might take months to get all the lights working again.

Chairman Bhiku Ram Jain said the full load on the capital's electrical system is 200,000 kilowatts. But fortunately no more than 74,000 kilowatts is used at any one time.

The city hopes for additional electric power when the Bakhra Nangal Dam begins production next year.

Dyed Cement In Highways Tried

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The latest idea in highways is dyed cement. They're talking of different colored highways to help drivers through confusing intersections and road forks.

The proposal was outlined to reporters by Douglas McHenry, president of the American Concrete Institute, holding its convention here.

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—A 2-year-old Peoria boy about a month ago picked up a lighted cigarette and smoked it. Next day he wanted another. He got it.

Now the little tot, Lawrence Smith, smokes five cigarettes a day. His mother, Mrs. Lawrence Smith, says she is worried because she can't break him of the habit.

"I've tried," Mrs. Smith said. "But Lawrence cries and cries until he gets his cigarettes. He wants his 'smoke.'"

Mrs. Smith, a divorcee who works as a waitress, said she is going to take her son to a doctor to find out why he likes to smoke cigarettes.

Mrs. Smith, who said she doesn't smoke, said she believed Lawrence picked up the habit from the baby sister she employs, for the little fellow.

The mother tried to substitute candy cigarettes for the real thing. But it was no go.

"He just threw them aside and screamed until he got real cigarettes," the mother said. "Once I tried giving him raw tobacco, thinking the taste might break him of the habit."

What happened? "It had no effect," Mrs. Smith said.

Lawrence doesn't light the cigarettes he smokes. That's a job for either his mother or the baby sitter.

"There's a danger from fire if he lights his cigarettes himself," Mrs. Smith said.

Lawrence is careful with the ashes. He even carries an ash tray in his tricycle.

Last Dictator In South America Is Fighting Revolution Led By Priest

Editors note—Alfredo Stroessner rules as the lonely strongman of Paraguay, the last dictator in South America. Associated Press correspondent Jose Maria Orlando after a visit to Asuncion, gives this report of life in the country.

By JOSE MARIA ORLANDO
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—South America's only remaining dictator, Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay, is fighting a war of nerves led by a youthful Roman Catholic priest.

Stroessner's land-locked country of 1 1/2 million people is a land of fear and suspicion, gradually becoming more isolated in a continent where dictatorships have gone out of style.

Thousands of refugee Paraguayans are openly plotting Stroessner's overthrow.

One of the best known revolutionaries is the Rev. Ramon Talavera, 35, who says, "Some church leaders might disapprove of what I am doing, but in fighting injustice and tyranny I'm within God's principles."

The priest came to Uruguay last November after being expelled from Paraguay for preaching against Stroessner's strongman rule. Proclaiming a "National Liberation Front," he has appealed to other refugee Paraguayans here and in Argentina to join his crusade against the 44-year-old dictator.

Father Talavera, son of a wealthy rancher, says his revolt was born while serving as a chaplain in a Paraguayan jail where political prisoners were kept. "I saw men beat up, or with the burns of an electric wire inexpertly used."

The Stroessner government has accused the priest of Communist leanings but he insists: "I'm not a Communist, I'm a Christian as are most of the Paraguayan people. In our Christian hearts, there is no place for an atheist doctrine like communism."

Stroessner, son of a German settler and a Paraguayan mother, rose to power five years ago at the head of a military coup.

The lives of his subjects—overwhelmingly Roman Catholic—mean a mixture of Spanish and Indian stock—are sealed off from the outside world by a vetted censorship. Newsmen who send out dispatches the government doesn't like know they will be called in and possibly expelled.

Stroessner dislikes being called a dictator. Outwardly he acts the role of president, dresses mostly in white linen suits and only occasionally dons his general's uniform. He has an escort of only half a dozen policemen.

The old cobbled streets of his capital—Asuncion—clatter in the daytime. The cigar-smoking Indian women, riding their small native donkeys while selling fruits and chickens, mingle with the latest model American cars.

But when night falls, the streets are deserted—shrouded in fear and suspicion.

At no time does anyone publicly say anything against the government. Even foreign diplomats glance over their shoulders while discussing the regime.

"Gen. Stroessner is a great man," said a drugstore clerk. "He is doing very much for the people."

"President Stroessner is the savior of Paraguay," commented a middle-aged housewife.

Stroessner, a professional soldier, appears to have a firm grip on the internal situation.

Opposition factions look to the outside for help in overthrowing the regime—spurred by the anti-dictator campaigns in Cuba and Venezuela.

An earlier blow to Stroessner was the overthrow of Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron, his close friend.

Now thousands of Paraguayan refugees—some estimate the number at 150,000—are poised in Argentina, planning a revolution in their homeland. There are unconfirmed reports of raids already made from Argentine bases along the border.

Mothers Argue School Paddling

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A group of mothers meet with Shelby County school officials today to air their complaints against a school principal who paddled 11 student strikers.

General Sessions Judge Willard Dixon ordered the informal conference after the mothers requested he issue assault and battery warrants against John Barnes, principal of Bartlett High School.

Barnes has admitted firmly applying a maple paddle to the seats of 11 boys and said "There are still seven or eight to go." He said the paddlings "nipped in the bud" a direct challenge to school authority.

The trouble started, Barnes said, when he carried out his threat to shut down a drink machine if it continued to be jammed with slugs. He estimated about 20 boys tried to organize a student boycott of the school lunchroom and when that failed, left the school without permission.

Barnes gave the boycott leaders two choices: take seven licks with the paddle or bring their parents to school. He said 11 of them have preferred the licks so far.

Reuther And Other Labor Leaders In Uneasy Truce

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders emerged with an uneasy truce today after a revolt led by Walter Reuther against AFL-CIO President George Meany's one-man direction of federation policies.

It wasn't exactly clear who had won. But Reuther and other leaders of the former CIO felt their votes would be reflected more in the policies of the merged, 14-million-member organization.

For one thing, it looks now as if the Washington meeting of the AFL-CIO is planning to underline America's unemployment problem will be along more spectacular lines as urged by Reuther. It probably won't be the mass march of unemployed Reuther first proposed, but it will likely be more of a show than the strictly legislative conference of union officials Meany advocated.

The revolt had boiled for a week behind the scenes of the annual winter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council. It began when Meany—head of the old AFL—chided Reuther—head of the old CIO—for holding a session of the Economic Policy Committee while Meany was delayed in Washington by a cold. Meany was reported angry at Reuther's unemployment march project.

Reuther, chairman of the economic committee, retorted that Meany had never attended economic policy meetings. Anyway, the red-haired Auto Workers Union chief said, as chairman he should have a relatively free hand at mapping economic policy, at least in the committee stage. Reuther said if he couldn't run the economic committee, he might as well quit the post.

Reuther was backed by James B. Carey, No. 2 man in the federation's CIO faction. The meeting got so hot that Meany ordered Carey to leave his seat. The scrappy Carey refused.

Meany, Reuther and other high federation officials failed to resolve the conflict as two secret breakfast meetings. A showdown session was held Monday night. Meany declined to comment afterward. Reuther told newsmen: "Nobody ever talked about busting up anything—there are misunderstandings now on things where there were misunderstandings before."

In another important development, the executive council authorized Meany to challenge Teamsters President James R. Hoffa by chartering a truck-drivers local in Puerto Rico.

The Teamsters, with 160 members already on the Caribbean island, have created considerable stir with organizing plans to which Gov. Luis Munoz Marin and the Catholic Church have expressed opposition.

Previously the AFL-CIO had avoided any direct clash with the Teamsters, the federation's biggest union until it was ousted more than a year ago on corruption charges. Progress of the AFL-CIO trucking local in Puerto Rico will be watched closely to see whether it impels the federation's leadership to similar anti-Hoffa moves on the mainland. The AFL-CIO Council also authorized a boost in the per capita assessment on affiliated unions, raising the toll per member from 5 to 6 cents a month. This will yield about $800,000 by next September for increased organizing activity.

Art Exhibition Now On Display

An exhibition of oil paintings by Rachel R. Howell of Goldsboro, senior at East Carolina College, is now on display in the Austin building on the campus. The art show, sponsored by the college department of art, will be open to the public through Friday of this week.

The paintings chosen by Miss Howell for her senior exhibition include portraits, abstractions, and landscapes.

At East Carolina she is specializing in art and English. At present she is completing three months of student teaching in the Rocky Mount city schools. She is scheduled to receive the bachelor of science degree at the close of the winter quarter, Feb. 27. On March 4 she will enroll at East Carolina as a candidate for the master's degree in art.

Spotlight On Ladies In 1959 Oscar Race

By JAMES BACON
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The spotlight was on the ladies today in Hollywood's annual carnival of Oscars.

For the first time in years, there was no clear-cut favorite among the nominees for top actress. Not a tinted hair separates these five:

Elizabeth Taylor (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof); Susan Hayward (I Want to Live!); Deborah Kerr (Separate Tables); Shirley MacLaine (Some Came Running); and Rosalind Russell (Auntie Mame).

With the men, the story is different. David Niven and Spencer Tracy were established as odds-on favorites with Niven given a slight edge in the early betting. Niven was nominated for his role as the pathetic woman molester in "Separate Tables" and Tracy, up for his third Oscar, was nominated for his one-man show in "The Old Man and the Sea."

Tony Curtis and Sidney Poitier, who went through "The Defiant Ones" handcuffed to each other, are expected to cancel each other out of the running by their well-matched performances.

The fifth male nominee is Paul Newman for "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

"Gigi," already winner of awards from the Screen Producers Guild and the Screen Directors Guild, is expected to repeat in the Academy Awards as best picture come April 4.

But competition from the other nominees will be stiff. They are "Auntie Mame"; "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"; "The Defiant Ones"; and "Separate Tables."

In the supporting categories, the nominees for the men are: Theodore Bikel (The Defiant Ones); Lee J. Cobb (The Brothers Karamazov); Burl Ives (The Big Country); Arthur Kennedy (Some Came Running); and Gig Young (Teacher's Pet).

The supporting actress nominees: Peggy Cass (Auntie Mame); Wendy Hiller (Separate Tables); Martha Hyer (Some Came Running); Maureen Stapleton (Lonely Hearts); and Cara Williams (The Defiant Ones).

An oddity was Alex Guinness, last year's top acting Oscar winner, being nominated for the best screen play — "The Horse's Mouth."

As usual, the omissions caused almost as much talk as the nominations. Conspicuously missing were Ingrid Bergman for "Inn of the Sixth Happiness" and "Indiscreet"; Cary Grant for "Indiscreet"; Marlon Brando for "The Young Lions"; Jean Simmons for "Home Before Dark"; and Frank Sinatra for "Some Came Running."

All had been mentioned in pre-season predictions.

Plane Is Landed On Faulty Wheel

CHARLOTTE (AP) — An Air Force jet made a successful landing here Monday despite a malfunction in the nose wheel.

The pilot of the F86, 1st Lt. John Gaylord, 27, of Shelby, noticed the nose wheel indicator light was not working when he left Donaldson Air Force Base at Greenville, S.C. He was en route to Sioux City, Iowa.

He and Lt. Duane Oswald of Iowa, who was in another plane, radioed the Air National Guard here for clearance to land. Gaylord said they chose Charlotte because it is ideal for instrument conditions that prevailed at the time.

He used an emergency procedure to lower the wheel and it held up in the landing.

ECC Problems Told Students

East Carolina College officials are keeping students informed about college problems through a series of regularly scheduled campus radio broadcasts. President John D. Messick and Vice President Leo Jenkins began Feb. 16 a series of weekly talks which will continue through the school term.

Broadcaster's originate in the studios of WWWS-AM, campus station, and are now being taken by carrier current to three of the campus dormitories. Equipment for other dormitories and for the College Union has been purchased and will be installed upon arrival on the campus.

Brazil Sending Woman Envoy

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil is not only getting a woman ambassador, she is sending out one of her own.

President Juscelino Kubitschek has approved the nomination of Odete de Carvalho E. Souza, a career diplomat as envoy to Israel. Brazil's agreement to the appointment of Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce as U.S. Ambassador to Rio was announced Monday.

Anderson Says Atomic Problem Is In Leadership
RALEIGH (AP)— State department heads who want increased spending during the next biennium begin their parade before the legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee today.

State Budget Officer D. S. Coltrane said Monday night "They just about all want more money" than was recommended for them by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Two exceptions, Coltrane said, are the State Department of Conservation and Development and the Revenue Department. He added, "They are prepared to rest their case."

Scheduled to appear were: Supreme Court, state auditor, attorney general, Bureau of Investigation, adjutant general, and Council of Civil Defense.

The State Board of Public Welfare, whose request was slashed by the Budget Commission, is scheduled to appear before the Appropriations Committee Wednesday.

Floor Fight Shapes Up In ABA Session

CHICAGO (AP)— A floor fight appeared likely today as the governing body of the American Bar Assn. meets to consider a resolution calling for clarification of laws dealing with internal security and communism.

The ABA's 246-member House of Delegates deferred action on the controversial resolution Monday after its opening passages were read.

The measure, approved last Saturday by the ABA Board of Governors, cites criticism of several Supreme Court decisions dealing with subversion and Communist activities in this country. While it refrains from direct attack on the high court, it asks that Congress clarify laws dealing with those subjects.

At least two lawyers appeared ready to fight passage of the resolution.

Arthur J. Freund of St. Louis objected to immediate consideration of the 30-page resolution because many delegates had not had a chance to study it.

"I oppose it because, as worded, it is a document not worthy of this organization," he said.

Albert E. Jenner of Chicago told newsmen after the meeting that he thought some changes should be made in the wording. He said he was in favor of enforcement of both state and federal statutes against subversion.

The internal security resolution has aroused widespread interest because of published news stories that similar reports prepared but never passed by the NBA House of Delegates led to the resignation from the ABA of Earl Warren, chief justice of the United States.

Canada Scrapping Costly Jet; Objections Raised
OTTAWA (AP)— The Canadian government's decision to scrap the Arrow jet interceptor has caused a furor throughout the country and promises to be a hot political issue for months to come.

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker told Parliament Friday the government is abandoning the Arrow in favor of a U.S. anti-aircraft missile system. Two-thirds of the cost of the missile program will be paid by the United States.

Opposition leader Lester Pearson at once demanded a "complete and comprehensive" parliamentary examination of Canada's defense policy.

Some 14,000 workers for A. V. Roe (Canada) Ltd., builders of the Arrow, have been laid off. Avro suppliers employ an additional 15,000 persons whose jobs are now threatened. This could severely aggravate Canada's unemployment problem, already a sizzling political issue.

There have been cries that discontinuance of the Arrow program will cause trained workers, scientists and technicians to disperse, dealing a severe blow to the Canadian aircraft industry.

There are complaints that Canada must now depend to a large extent on U.S. goodwill during years of integrated U.S.-Canadian defense production. Canadian military leaders have warned this integration will be a long, hard process.

The Arrow, or CF105, is a supersonic jet interceptor designed to replace the CF100 jet now in service with the Canadian air force. The government had already spent 400 million dollars developing the plane. Only five were actually built. It was estimated it would cost an additional 380 million to give the RCAF 100 Arrows.

Diefenbaker told Commons the plane could not have been operated.

Rites Set For Mrs. Ilene F. Sutton
Mrs. Ilene Florence Sutton, 57, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday at 8:45 a.m., after several weeks of declining health. She was born in Lenoir county, daughter of the late Jim and Cora Hardee Savage. In 1917 she was married to the late Bennie Sutton, who died in 1935. For many years she was nurse in Ladun Long Island Home, N. Y. After retiring, due to illness, she made Greenville and Hookerton her home. She was a member of Hookerton Christian Church.

Funeral services will be held in the Greenville Funeral Home Chapel Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. Rev. Mr. Crowder of Hookerton, will officiate. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Surviving are one son, Bennie Carl Sutton, Hookerton; one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Griffin, 2801 Jefferson Dr., Greenville; two grandchildren; two brothers, James Savage, Greenville and Marion Savage, Kingston; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Perry, Greenville and Mrs. Cecil Davis of Durham.

Optimists Club Organizing Here

An organizational meeting for a local Optimist Club, a boys' work group, will be held tomorrow night at the Silo Restaurant beginning at 7 o'clock.

One of the organizers, Carl Knott, said a meeting was held last week which 23 interested persons attended. Twenty-five members are needed to charter such a club.

Knott, M. E. Cavendish and Aubrey Taylor are leading local efforts to organize the club. It will be under the joint sponsorship of the Wilson and Rocky Mount Optimist Clubs.

Knott said Albert Thomas, president of the Wilson Optimist and Parker Helms, president of Rocky Mount's club will be present tomorrow night.

Knott emphasized that the Optimist primary project is working with boys. The organization's slogan is "Friend of the Boy."

Knott pointed out that there are 44 Optimist clubs in the state. In the east there is one in Jacksonville in addition to the Wilson and Rocky Mount clubs.

If it is organized the club group would have weekly supper meetings.

Boiler Troubles Interrupt Court
Pitt County Superior Court was put out of commission yesterday by a burned-out boiler in the Court House.

The court was adjourned for the remainder of the week after hearing seven uncontested divorce cases in the first session of a two-weeks civil term. Judge Henry L. Stevens ordered the adjournment after being notified of the boiler failure.

Work began yesterday afternoon on dismantling the old boiler, preparatory to installation of a new heating unit. Pitt County Commissioners authorized replacement of the old heating system at their January meeting, but expressed hope at that time the old boiler would hold out until warmer weather.

County Auditor H. Reginald Gray said this morning the new heating unit has been purchased and will be installed as soon as the old equipment is removed. He added that county officials anticipate having the new unit in operation by the end of this week.

Uncontested divorces which were granted before adjournment yesterday went to Peggy R. Clark from William Kenneth Clark, Charlie Dixon from Carrie Lee Nobles Dixon, H. L. Harris from Ollie Mae Harris, Vella Dixon from Ralph Dixon, Andrew D. Moore from Josephine Moore, Charlie Tyson from Irene Tyson, and Jarvis Arthur from Margaret S. Arthur.

Last Rites Held For Ira Bruce Roebuck
ROBERSONVILLE— Ira Bruce Roebuck, 54, died early Sunday morning in Norfolk General Hospital. He was a Mason, a member of the Christian Church and a tobaccoist.

Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock with Rev. Wilbur Wallace officiating. Burial was with Masonic rites.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ernestine House Roebuck; one son, Bruce Edwin of Williamston; five sisters, Mrs. Garland Bullock, Greensboro, Mrs. Opia Bass, Momey, N.C., Mrs. Hilson Everett Hamilton, Mrs. Alton Whitely, Vanceboro, and Mrs. Elliott Barnwell Robersonville, four brothers, A. UNC Trustees Start Fight For New Money

RALEIGH (AP)— Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina have started the ball rolling in an effort to get increased appropriations of nearly $9,900,000 for the next biennium.

The campaign was started at a meeting of the trustees here Monday. William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, declared "we shall not be able to maintain the level of excellence and quality" unless the increase is approved.

Rep. John W. Umstead Jr. of Orange, a trustee, said heavy legislative backing will be needed to carry out the campaign.

The Consolidated University had requested an increase of $11,800,000 for operations of its three units during the next biennium. This was above the amount during the current biennium. Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission recommended an increase of only $1,144,268 in the budget presented to the Legislature.

The increased appropriations being sought include $3,889,823 for faculty salaries.

Police Probing Thefts From Parked Cars
Police are investigating a series of thefts from automobiles which occurred in the city during the past few days.

Karie Lee Buck, of Chocod, reported yesterday the theft of four hub caps from his 1956 auto, valued at $17.71. The hub caps were stolen from his car while it was parked at the Greenville Moose Lodge between 5:00 and 10:00 p.m., Monday.

Rodney Holmes, of 1015 Fairfax Avenue, told police he parked his auto in the Evans Street municipal parking lot Sunday night to attend a movie. When he returned to his car, he discovered a tire and jack missing.

Joseph A. Baker of 1806 Dickinson Avenue reported two fender mirrors, valued at $15, stolen from his auto Saturday night, as it was parked at the above address.

Detectives are handling the cases.

The largest officially recorded hailstone was 17 inches in circumference, reports the National Geographic Society.
