

Basketball Coach Replaced

ECC'S HOWARD PORTER . . . Replaced As Basketball Coach This Morning

Messick Appoints Earl Smith New Basketball Coach

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer

Howard G. Porter, basketball coach at East Carolina College since 1946, was replaced today by Earl Smith, his assistant from 1953 through 1958.

Announcement of the change was made this morning by Dr. John D. Messick, president of ECC. Smith's appointment is to become effective immediately, although Porter will continue as a full-time teacher in the college's Health and Physical Education Department and as coach of the golf team.

Porter's 1958-1959 team completed its season last night with a 95-74 loss to Lenoir-Rhyne in semi-finals of the District 26 NAAU basketball playoffs at Hickory. The team returned to Greenville following the game.

Porter would not comment on Dr. Messick's announcement this morning. His reply to each of several questions was, "no comment."

The action by the college was not unexpected, and Dr. Messick said this morning the actual decision to replace Porter was made several weeks ago.

His formal announcement included the comment, "The decision to make the change, in my own thinking, was made several weeks ago. It is not of recent origin and, in that connection, I have decided it would be to the best interests of the institution."

A recent flare-up which resulted in dismissal of two first-team players, Charles Adams and Jessel Curry, from the squad did not figure in the coaching change, Dr. Messick said.

"The recent episode has nothing to do with the change," he declared. "I still stand for team cooperation and loyalty, as well as strict obedience to training rules and line of command."

Adams and Curry were dismissed for "insubordination," according to the coach. They were cut from the squad immediately prior to the North State Conference tournament in which the third-seeded Pirates were eliminated in first-round play by Catawba College, a team which lost twice to East Carolina in regular season games.

Smith, who was in Dr. Messick's office at the time the announcement of his appointment was made, said he was not approached about the job until this morning, Dr. Messick said, however, he was the only person considered as a replacement for Porter. The appointment is not the first Smith has had as East Carolina's head basketball coach. He directed the college's first post-World War II team, during the 1945-1946 season, and had a 16-9 record for the year.

Smith left East Carolina after the 1945-1946 season to become athletic director and head coach of football, basketball and baseball at Campbell Junior College in Buies Creek. In seven seasons there, his teams had a 119-27 record.

Legislators Fly To Charlotte; To See Circus

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—The North Carolina Legislature flew into Charlotte this morning, and will set a precedent tonight by attending the circus in a body.

Almost 300 lawmakers, their wives, guests and state officials were aboard the seven planes which landed at Charlotte Airport between 9 and 10 a.m.

Six planes came in on schedule but a seventh, which had encountered minor trouble before the takeoff from Raleigh - Durham Airport, lagged a bit.

The group was headed by a beaming Gov. Luther Hodges, a white carnation in his lapel buttonhole.

In the only official meeting of the day, both House and Senate were called into noon sessions at the Park Center. The agenda there specified a suspension of the rules and the passage of a single local bill—one from Mecklenburg, naturally.

After their arrival, the legislators were whisked to Owens Auditorium for an official welcome.

Gov. Hodges was the principal speaker on a buffet luncheon program at Myers Park Country Club.

Tonight, Speaker Addison Hewlett and Lt. Gov. Luther Barnhardt will speak briefly at a dinner at the Charlotte Country Club.

Afterwards the visitors will see the world premiere of the 1959 edition of the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus at the Coliseum.

'Pioneer' Scheduled Pass Moon on Late This Afternoon; Cone Is Still On Course

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pioneer IV streaked close to the level of the moon today in America's most successful probe into the mysteries of the farther reaches of space.

The tracking station at Goldstone Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert re-established radio contact at 7:33 a.m. EST and reported the gold-plated cone 192,000 miles out, with its speed down to 4,775 miles an hour.

An hour and a half later, at 9 a.m., new contacts showed a distance of 198,323 miles and a speed of 4,742 miles an hour. The probe was still on its near-miss course past the moon toward a predicted orbit around the sun where Soviet Union claims it already has a satellite.

Revised calculations indicated the space traveler would make its closest approach to the moon at 5:24 p.m., or about 37,000 miles away. Scientists gave themselves a plus-or-minus allowance of 2,000 miles on the distance computation.

At that time the Pioneer should be 239,000 miles from earth. That is more than the distance to the moon itself because of the slight error in flight angle which will carry the Pioneer farther to one side of the moon than the scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had hoped. They had aimed at something inside of 10,000 miles.

The Goldstone station, which had been out of touch with the Pioneer for more than 15 hours at the time of the 7:33 contact, expected to lose touch again around 4 p.m. as the trajectory and the earth's rotation carried the probe below the horizon.

Tuesday's final tracking report fixed the tiny space probe's position at 118,852 miles. This was more than half the 220,000-mile distance to the moon and by far America's deepest penetration into space.

In its dizzying ascent into the unknown, Pioneer IV gradually slowed down. But this is customary. Approximately 17 hours after it was blasted aloft from Cape Canaveral, Fla., shortly after midnight Monday, Pioneer IV had dropped from a launching speed of 24,890 miles an hour to 5,498 miles an hour.

Scientists had reckoned earlier that the 13-pound cone would pass the moon at 2 p.m. today, coming within 35,000 miles of it. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration attributed the revisions to updating of preliminary calculations, not to any malfunction in the probe itself.

The key link in the tracking process is a huge radio telescope on Southern California's Mojave Desert at Goldstone Dry Lake.

There still was an estimate from NASA on just what type of orbit it expects Pioneer IV to assume around the sun, which is nearly 93 million miles from earth.

However, some fairly definite picture is expected before the transmitter goes dead, probably some time late Saturday. Although Pioneer IV appeared to be a spectacular success, it still fell short of the trail blazing accomplishments the Soviets claim for their Mecha probe fired last Jan. 2.

The Soviets say the 1½-ton Mecha came within 3,000 to 4,000 miles of the moon and then went into a solar orbit.

Khrushchev Insists On Own Terms

LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today the Soviet Union will sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany if the West fails to come to terms on an all-German settlement.

Khrushchev accused the West of refusing his proposals on Germany without proposing any alternatives "that a normal human intelligence can agree to."

The Western Allies have refused to recognize Premier Otto Grotewohl's Red East German regime, which never has faced a free election, as a legal government. The West insisted they would not deal with it on Berlin controls that the Russians propose to give up this spring.

The Soviet leader insisted in a 20-minute speech that his government wants only peace—and needs peace to carry out its seven-year economic expansion program.

Khrushchev had just arrived for consultation with his East German Communist allies and a visit to Leipzig's trade fair.

Speaking before a big crowd in a rain, he insisted all the Soviet Union wants is peace. "However much these people rage," he said of Western leaders, "nothing will come of it."

A crowd which the East German Communist radio estimated at "tens of thousands" heard the brief speech without marked enthusiasm. They did cheer and applaud, though, when he spoke of peace.

"In the name of the Soviet Union," he said, "I declare that those people could be reasonable who are responsible for signing a peace treaty. The United States, England, France and all nations want peace. Now the governments should listen to the voice of their people, and the peoples say we want peace, peace, peace."

Khrushchev declared that "only lunatics can seek solutions by war." He made that statement at an airport near East Berlin after arriving from Moscow where he and Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan wound up talks on cold war issues Tuesday.

Khrushchev responded to a welcome from East Germany's Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist party leader Walter Ulbricht. Officially he is here to visit the trade fair in Leipzig, 110 miles from Berlin.

Khrushchev told the welcoming party that a peace treaty with Germany is now "most necessary." His words were relayed by the official East German ADN news agency.

Philippines Ask For Cooperation

MANILA (AP)—The Philippines today asked the Soviet government to order bally crewmen of five detained trawlers to cooperate with intelligence officers investigating their surprise appearance in a remote northern Luzon bay.

The Soviet trawlers, with 82 men aboard, were seized over the weekend in northernmost Luzon. They refused to move to a Philippine naval base farther south until they had instructions from Moscow.

School children, by special act, will attend both the Owens Auditorium and Park Center activities.

It has been 20 years since the Legislature visited Charlotte, site of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. On Feb. 22, 1939, the Assembly arrived at the Southern Railway station here two hours and 45 minutes after leaving Raleigh. It took about an hour to bring the legislators here by plane today.

The 1939 visit was in observance of Washington's Birthday and the Mecklenburg version of the Declaration of Independence. Unlike the visit today, several bills were introduced and passed during the earlier visit. But there was no circus to visit then.

But the 1939 visit here was the

ECC Asks $3.6 Millions More Than Recommended

Requests for $3,657,063 more than has been recommended were presented yesterday to the North Carolina General Assembly by East Carolina College.

Dr. John D. Messick, ECC president, presented the requests at a committee hearing in Raleigh. The total includes $2,811,000 for capital improvements and $846,063 for operation and maintenance, during the 1959-1961 biennium.

The requests are similar to those made by the college in appearances last summer before the Advisory Budget Commission and the Board of Higher Education. They were knocked out of the college's budget requests by one or both of the state agencies before the budget commission's recommendations were presented to Governor Luther H. Hodges and the General Assembly.

Included in the capital improvements requested yesterday by Dr. Messick are an addition to Joyner Memorial Library, estimated to cost $303,000; conversion of Slay and Umstead dormitories to use by women, $117,500; an addition to the Student Union, $373,000; a gymnasium and field house, $1,199,000; an addition to the music building, $247,500; an elementary school building, $336,000; and outdoor athletic facilities, including a football stadium, $235,000. Operation and maintenance funds requested by Dr. Messick include $403,160 for the first year of the biennium and $442,903 for the second year. The funds would permit, he told the committee, secretarial personnel, professors, additional library books and equipment, a nursing school, faculty research, expanded summer school operations, a dean of student affairs, and salary increases for faculty members and other personnel.

In his appearance before the committee, Dr. Messick pointed out that East Carolina ranks near the bottom among state institutions in state expenditures per student.

Macmillan Coming To U.S. For 'Disengagement' Talks

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said today he would consult with the Western Allies on a disengagement in Central Europe.

He told Parliament in a report on his 10-day visit to the Soviet Union that he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "had a useful, and I think, constructive discussion, in private, on this matter."

Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the opposition Labor party, said the most important part of the communique on the Khrushchev-Macmillan talks was "the agreement between the two governments that there is the possibility of an area of Central Europe in which forces should be limited, both nuclear and conventional."

Gaitskell asked if Macmillan felt reasonably certain that this part of the communique would be supported by Britain's allies.

Macmillan replied that "it is one of the matters that, in my view, must be further studied together with all the countries concerned and it is partly one of my purposes to take up that and other questions."

Macmillan said he and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd will visit Paris and Bonn next week and that he hoped to arrange a visit to Washington soon after that at President Eisenhower's invitation. Macmillan, on his return Tuesday, said Britain should "try to give a lead to find a way through."

The London Times commented: "With the American head of state a declining force, the German chancellor an old, unhappy man, and the French president fully preoccupied with other problems, the responsibility falling on the British prime minister to lead the alliance sensibly and yet strongly in the weeks ahead is paramount."

The Liberal News Chronicle said bluntly: "Macmillan arrived back in London from the Soviet Union and straightaway assumed the leadership of the West."

The Daily Telegraph said Macmillan was in a better position than any other Western statesman to assess the Soviet attitude. "The skill and cool good sense he has shown in Moscow puts Macmillan in an enviable position of authority with which to fashion a united policy among the Western Allies," the Telegraph commented.

Macmillan appeared to have gained tremendous prestige as a result of his reconnaissance mission. Even opposition Laborite newspapers gave him a grudging slap on the back.

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, said the prime minister "has done a good job in Moscow within the limits of the present Western policy."

The Daily Mirror, another fairly consistent critic of Macmillan, headlined its report from Moscow by correspondent Malcolm Muggeridge: "Macmillan—the man who broke the ice jam."

'Thank You' By Stick-Up Man At Raleigh Bank

RALEIGH (AP)—A courteous bandit who robbed a Raleigh branch bank of $17,099.03 was the object today of a two-state search.

The stick-up man, his face obscured by a bandanna pulled up to horn-rimmed glasses and a cap pulled low on his forehead, eluded highway patrol roadblocks Tuesday after fleeing with a briefcase stuffed with loot from the Wake Forest Road branch of the First Citizens Bank & Trust Co.

Manager Harold B. Wall said the man held a shiny pistol on him and Mrs. Joyce Jones, the teller, and ordered them to hand over the money.

After getting the money, Wall said, the bandit ordered the two employees to lie on the floor. Then, as he hurried out, Wall said the gunman called, "Thank you!"

Americans In Bolivia Fearful More Violent Rioting Possible

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Some 700 Americans in La Paz gathered outside Bolivia's capital today in fear that the funeral for a victim of Bolivia's anti-U.S. riots might touch off further violence.

State Department spokesman Lincoln White said in Washington that Americans in the capital, including the U.S. Embassy staff, had been moved to the suburbs for better protection by the Bolivian army.

Reinforced police patrolled the tense mountain capital to avert any repetition of Monday's angry outbreak over an article in Time magazine, when rioters stoned the U.S. Embassy and burned at American flag.

A 15-year-old boy killed in the first eruption was to be buried today. The riots claimed a second victim Tuesday night. Police fired to break up a group of demonstrators trying to rush the apparently deserted U.S. Embassy building. A Bolivian dentist standing nearby was killed by a stray bullet. The government said Victor Villegas, a member of the Trotskyite Workers Revolutionary party, led the mob and ordered his arrest.

White denied reports in Washington that the U.S. government had dispatched chartered planes to Bolivia to evacuate Americans. But he said that arrangements obviously had been made for evacuation "if, as and when it seems necessary."

No Americans have been reported injured. Nor have there been any reports of attack on American property other than the embassy and the U.S. Information Service building.

The riots followed circulation of Time's current Latin-American edition quoting a U.S. Embassy official as saying jokingly that Bolivia's economic woes could be cured by splitting up the country. The embassy denied that any official had made such a suggestion. In New York, Henry R. Luce, editor-in-chief of Time, expressed regret that a story in his magazine had "been the occasion for expressions of unfriendliness toward the United States." He said the story "was a factual analysis of Bolivia's economic difficulties."

Luce's statement made no mention of the quote about splitting up Bolivia. Thousands demonstrated in orderly fashion Tuesday against the article. All government and private offices were closed. Top officials, military leaders, veterans and businessmen marched in a civic parade to the Presidential Palace. Police were out in force.

Speaking from the palace balcony, President Hernan Siles said Bolivia had come close to an explosion, but that cool heads had prevailed.

"People who live in plenty might well envy that good sense," he added. The government newspaper La Nacion said the demonstrations had been justified because national sovereignty was at stake, but other papers labeled them a disgrace and warned that such a situation was made to order for the Communists.

"To Make The Best Better" -- Club Motto

By MOYE WATERS
4-H Co. Council President

As a member of the 4-H Club, I am aware of the many opportunities that 4-H has to offer. It is our hope that through this week we will be able to convince you that 4-H is one of the most valuable training organizations in the world.

Our motto "To Make The Best Better" truly symbolizes the ideals of each club member. Through our project work we strive to learn all that we can about new and improved methods in agriculture. The knowledge and training that we are receiving will be a determining factor in the success of our future.

For the past six years I have been a member of the Winterville-Greenville Community 4-H Club. In these six years I have had the opportunity to carry many of the different projects that are offered.

If I were asked to pick the project that I liked best it would be Farm and Home Electric. This project is very interesting to me because I have always enjoyed working with electrical equipment. There is also a nice reward for the person who does the most outstanding work in this project.

Each year two delegates are sent to Electric Congress to represent this county. There you have the opportunity to meet 4-H club members from throughout the state and to share with them the many experiences that 4-H has given you.

This is only one of the many interesting and educational projects that 4-H offers. I have completed projects in Farm-Home Electric, Poultry, Corn, Tobacco, and Baby-Beef. I have also participated in activities such as Health Improvement, Wildlife Conservation, and Safety.

All the information that I have learned through participation in 4-H work has caused me to strive each day "To Make The Best Better."

Heart, Patriotism Are Topics Of Council Meet

Heart Month and Patriotism were stressed at the meetings of the Withia Council No. 42, Degree of Pochontas, at the Woman's Club during the month of February.

Programs of scripture, songs, readings and prayers were used in keeping with St. Valentine's Day and George Washington's birthday.

A Valentine party was held February 10 with the club room decorated with hearts and flowers. Games and contests were held with Valentine prizes and favors for everyone. The dining room table was covered with a lace cloth over red, centered with a large red heart, silver cupid, peppermint carnations and candles. Refreshments of strawberry punch, dainty heart sandwiches, salted pecans and rosettes were served by the hostesses. A gift of $10 was given to Pitt County Heart Fund. In a setting of greenery, flags and cherry trees, games were played and contests with patriotic prizes were held after the February 24 meeting. A reading "Was George Washington Religious?" was given and the group learned that Washington's religion was the kind that could be used every day—and he used it. Refreshments of coffee, nuts, candy and individual cakes decorated with cherries and miniature flags were served from a table covered with a cut work linen cloth and centered with cherry tree, hatchet and candles.

Withia Council observed February as Heart Month but was reminded that every month should be Heart Month "for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

A Solution In Helicopter Service

Efforts by the city of Charlotte to establish feeder helicopter service into the Charlotte airport from the surrounding area has renewed Eastern North Carolina interest in a similar venture to provide better air service in this area.

The woeful lack of adequate air transportation in Eastern North Carolina has for years been a matter of vital concern to many leaders of the area. In the past seven or eight years there have been several unsuccessful attempts to solve the problem through establishing a joint air facility owned and operated by several local governments. Each attempt has ended in failure.

Feeder helicopter service into airports which have regular airline service might be an answer to the lack of regular air transportation in this area. Adequate helicopter landing facilities could be established with little difficulty even in those communities which do not have airports, and workable schedules could be established by such a feeder service.

It Eastern North Carolina is to realize its economic potential in terms of industrial growth, better air service is essential. On numerous occasions, the lack of air service has meant the difference in this area's getting an industry and not getting it.

Those leaders in Eastern North Carolina who have worked so hard over the years in a vain effort to get better air service for this area might well find an answer in providing helicopter service. Certainly it is not beyond the realm of possibility that an alignment of local governments might be arranged to provide such a service in this area on much the same basis as was provided major joint air facility in the area.

After all, many communities could benefit from such a service, and with a number of local government units joining in such an undertaking, the cost to each would be well within their means.

The sooner Eastern North Carolina has more adequate air service, the better off the area will be. And a feeder helicopter service may provide an answer where other endeavors have failed.

Macmillan Becoming Spokesman For West

Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan returns from his visit to the Soviet Union a much more powerful force in diplomatic affairs between East and West than was the case 10 days ago when he arrived in Moscow for talks with Khrushchev.

With Secretary of State Dulles confined to a hospital with cancer, it is quite probable that Macmillan has assumed the position as chief international affairs spokesman for the bloc of free world nations including the United States. It is quite likely that the shift of power for forming Western policy has, for the present at least, shifted from Washington to London.

Full evaluation of Macmillan's new power in international affairs between East and West must await the outcome of his subsequent visits to Washington and to Paris scheduled in the near future. It should be apparent, however, that Macmillan enhanced his own position by securing from Soviet Premier Khrushchev an agreement for a foreign ministers conference on Germany after previous Kremlin rejections of such a proposal.

Such a meeting—probably in April—may go a long way toward avoiding a showdown between East and West at Berlin this spring. If it does bring forth any concrete accomplishments to ease East-West tension, that in itself will further strengthen Macmillan's position as spokesman for the West.

Macmillan's visit to Moscow might well have marked the beginning of a new period in which the foreign policy of the United States and the West may be subjected to greater influence from London than at any time Sir Winston Churchill relinquished the reins of government of Great Britain.

Tricky Timing For Power Play

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviets are a bouncy bunch.

Last Nov. 27 Premier Nikita Khrushchev gave the Western Allies a get-out-of-Berlin-or-else warning.

Last Dec. 31 the United States, Britain and France suggested they and the U.S.S.R. have a Big Four meeting to discuss Berlin and the problem of Germany.

On Jan. 10 the Soviet Union sidestepped that idea by suggesting a 28-nation conference to discuss a peace settlement with East and West Germany.

On Feb. 16 the Big Three answered, brushing off the 28-nation idea, by proposing the American, Soviet, British and French foreign ministers meet.

On Feb. 24 Premier Khrushchev tossed that idea under the bed, saying a ministers' meeting was a waste of time, and suggesting instead a summit conference.

On March 2 the Soviets replied formally to the West's Feb. 16 note by agreeing to an expanded ministers' conference while saying they preferred a summit meeting.

This may seem to mean a Soviet retreat and that the heat's off.

Not necessarily. First, the Big Three have to digest the latest Soviet move and give a reply.

They may lay down some new conditions or, if they don't, agree to a ministers' meeting.

The Soviets may toss in new conditions to mess things up.

In short: What looked like a crisis building up to May 27—when Khrushchev wanted the Allies out of Berlin—may still be far from over.

It might seem heartening that the Soviets suggested that the foreign ministers start their meeting in April and talk for not more than three months.

Three months of talk—if everything was kept frozen by both the U.S.S.R. and the West until the talks ended—would carry the world past the May 27 point. But talks so soon by the Big Four's foreign ministers raises a point which didn't appear in the Soviets' note but which they no doubt had in mind: In a conference which might last three months, who would do the talking for the United States? Secretary of State John Foster Dulles? Hardly.

He is in the hospital, fighting cancer, and at this moment no one seems able to say for sure when or whether he'll be back or whether he'll have to retire.

At any rate, almost certainly he wouldn't be ready for talks in April—at least for talks that would go on for months.

Who then would talk for the United States? Some one delegated to act for Dulles.

But such a delegate would be at a tremendous disadvantage and no one knows that better than the Soviets.

If Dulles was still secretary, even though not able to attend the conference but able to run foreign affairs, his delegate would be unable to make a decision or agreement unless it was dictated by Dulles thousands of miles away.

If before such a ministers' conference Dulles retired and a new secretary was appointed, the latter would be at a disadvantage anyway.

It would seem, for one thing, he'd need more than a couple of weeks to prepare himself.

Further, since President Eisenhower's confidence in Dulles has been extraordinary, it could hardly be expected he'd have the same amount of confidence in Dulles' successor.

So the new secretary would have to be second-guessed, probably, by Eisenhower, by Dulles if he was still able to give advice, and Eisenhower wanted his own advice, and by the State Department staff.

At this point the Soviets' agreement to a foreign ministers' meeting may be more cute than cooperative.

Opinions In Brief

"It is appalling to think that the destiny of Europe might depend—as it did twenty years ago—upon so unpredictable and apparently unstable a character as Mr. Khrushchev. As Mr. Macmillan insists, his visit to Russia was a voyage of discovery. He has discovered plenty!"—London Daily Mail.

Strength For Today

IF WE BUT WAIT

In a poem I read recently I encountered the words, "It's always noontime somewhere." Yes, Always noontime. Always sunlight somewhere. We get the picture of God's graciousness going about the world, his sun shining on the good and evil. His rain falling on the just and unjust. The general impression conveyed is that the world, in spite of all its trouble and sorrow, is a place of light. "It's always noontime somewhere." When fortune turns against us or pain comes in to plague us, it is very easy to believe that God has forgotten us. But no. Darkness must follow day. The sun will rise again. "It's always noontime somewhere." The Biblical teaching of the fatherhood of God gives us that security which comes only with the realization that we are members of a great group and that one vastly above us is our Father. Jesus was always trying to get men to see that God would take care of them. We have very little control over the basic factors of our lives. Sunshine, fresh air, the harvest, winter, and the coming to life of the world in the following spring. Here we see God at work. Millions are asleep in some other part of the world as we work. But noontime will be the portion of everyone if he but wait a few hours. "It's always noontime some-

Working Further South

Dear Boss,

You'll be surprised to learn I've been working much of the day in Florida. Or maybe it was the Texas Gulf Coast, or Southern California. (You know how it is, I seldom look out the window or up from my work to verify such things.)

There have been a number of trips into the tropics, too. Interested?

Before going any further, no travel expense voucher is involved; so you can just forget about reaching for a checkbook.

Yessir, Florida, Texas or Southern Cal is nice country at this time of the year. I worked yesterday and the day before in my shirtsleeves and the loosened. Something different from the expected decorum in such a decorous place as a newspaper office.

How did I wind up working in the semi-tropics while the rest of the staff toiled in the Cotanche Street building?

A good question.

A mighty good question! I don't know the answer, really; unless you are willing to ride along with the illogical solution of "magic."

As a matter of fact, my story involves so many inconsistencies that "magic" is the only satisfactory explanation.

Mentioned earlier, where I work resembles that of sun-kissed Florida or some such happy land whose habitants live in Bermuda shorts and short-sleeved, open-neck shirts.

But (and get this!), while all this is going on, our esteemed Woman's Editor can be seen a scant twenty feet from my desk, grimly reading her desk thermometer. Obviously she is on the job in the Reflector building; and some of that typically untypical cold, damp weather is prevailing.

Over the rattle of teletype machines, the sound of a teletypewriter-perforator operating under full steam, the humming roar of the air-circulator and tap-tap of typewriters... over all this, and the distance from her desk to my own balmy clime, I hear (faintly) her voice calling "Schlenz, it's 65."

I should have said MAYBE I hear her calling; because her voice is femininely soft despite trying to penetrate barriers of sound and distance. As often as not, I need must drop my chin of happy thought and walk all those twenty feet to find out the score.

"Schlenz, it's 65," she repeats; and I get the message. Up Greenville-way, on Cotanche Street, in the Reflector building (second floor), where the Woman's Editor presides, it is not as warm as in Florida. As a matter of fact, her personal thermometer confirms her growing suspicions. She is chilly.

So I march back to re-adjust the thermostat.

She is now happy.

I resume my working stance in Florida and bask in the warmth.

Things are going just dandy until the warmth waxeth hot like maybe Acapulco or San Juan del Pinar; which prompts me (when the lady is not looking) to read-just the thermostat to Florida temperatures.

All goes well for awhile, until above the rattle of teletype machines, the clatter of the teletypewriter perforator, the tap-tap of the typewriters and the humming roar of the air-circulator, I can hear over the distance, "Schlenz, it's 65 again!"

So I rise, give the thermostat another quarter-turn and return to my desk for a periodic visitation to the tropics again.

A man sure does get around in the newspaper business.

Doesn't he?

Other Editors Saying... Authority To Use Force

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Would President Eisenhower go to Congress for specific authority to use armed force, if necessary, in the defense of Allied rights in Berlin? He avoided a direct answer in his news conference of Feb. 13, but the apparent answer seems to be in the affirmative, judging by the past.

For example worsening relations between Israel and the Arab states early in the spring of 1956 raised the possibility that the administration would ask authority to use troops in the Middle East. The President on April 4, 1956 said that he would "never be guilty of action that can be interpreted as war until the Congress, which has the constitutional authority, says so."

The Berlin situation would present a case "on all fours," as the lawyers put it. Speaking of Berlin, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on Feb. 13 declared: "Everyone realizes that if anybody starts shooting that would mean the beginning of a war."

The President's answer to the question put him Feb. 13 was: "We have not said we are using force. We are saying we do not abandon our responsibilities." And on Feb. 25, he said, on Berlin: "We are not going to give one single inch in the preservation of our rights and... responsibilities."

State Department "officials" are reported as calling Berlin a special case, in that our rights there are those of a war victor. Even so, specific Congressional support of the President in using force to defend them would evidence national solidarity on the issue. That was true of the Defend Formosa resolution of 1955 and the Eisenhower "Middle East" Doctrine of 1957. In neither case did force have to be used, though it can be argued that the show of it was needed.

The Defend Formosa resolution cleared the House by a vote of 410 to 3. The Senate vote was 85 to 3. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), most vocal of the upper chamber objectors, called the action "an authorization of the power to start a preventive war."

Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R-Vt.), who voted for the resolution, announced on the Senate floor: "In plain English this is preventive war."

The response was much the same to the President's request for authority to use force in the Middle East in 1957. Sec. 2 of the authorizing resolution reads: "If the President determines the necessity thereof, the United States is prepared to use armed forces to assist any such (the East) nation or group of such nations requesting assistance against armed aggression from any country controlled by international communism." A proviso required use of U. S. troops to "be consonant with the treaty obligations" and the Constitution of the United States.

The vote in the House, Jan. 30, 1957, was 355 to 61. The opposition had been chiefly against a closed rule that prevented floor amendments. The Senate vote was 72 to 19 in a roll-call vote of March 5.

If the President should ask again for this kind of blank check, as much reluctance might be voiced as on the previous occasions. But, as before, the vote would probably be heavily in favor of a carte blanche.

Potential Lawyers' Gold Mine

By ELMER ROESSNER

A gold mine for lawyers and tax accountants may have been opened up by the Supreme Court's decisions last week in the Northwestern and Stockholm Valve cases. The decisions give states the right to tax out-of-state corporations on that part of their net income calculated to have come from activities within the state.

The decision was handed down just when most states are in dire need of additional revenues and when many state legislatures are in session. Proposals to levy such taxes have already been made in several states.

There is no doubt that these taxes will be burdensome on most companies doing business in more than one state.

There is another danger. Most states would be tempted to claim a high portion of earnings came from within their boundaries. In the end, a corporation may be asked to pay taxes on considerably more than 100 per cent of its earnings.

These costs and taxes would eventually be reflected in higher prices for autos, appliances and all other goods sold nationally, and in articles sold by mail-order houses and chains.

MORE WORK FOR LAWYERS

Keeping up with state tax laws, as Mr. Frankfurter suggested, will provide plenty of high-paid work for lawyers and accountants. But there is an even richer lode in this mine.

Businesses, big and small, will take steps to avoid these tax liabilities.

Ways to do this will depend upon the structure of various state tax laws. One way may be to separate each state's activities, disposing of interests in each state to local corporations. Another way may be to spin off separate corporations for each state and manage them so that only the central corporation makes more than token profits. Avoiding new state levies, all legal. An auto manufacturer, for instance, might transfer title to its cars only in Michigan, leaving shipping to distributors. And even legal beagle will have a dozen other ways to minimize taxes by distant states.

Now don't you wish you had studied corporation law or tax accounting?

LIGHTWEIGHT CONCRETE SAID TO CUT HOUSING COSTS

A fireproof house that three men can erect in three days has been developed by a Chicago building materials company. It says the house is 20 per cent cheaper to construct than comparable structures.

The basic material is Calcrete, a cellular concrete so light it floats. It serves for walls, partitions and roof. A three-bedroom house so constructed has been opened for exhibition at Pacific, a suburb of St. Louis. It is said to meet FHA standards and could be sold at $2,500 less than a house of standard construction.

Laugh Back At 'em

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Did Helen of Troy die? Did Cleopatra count her calories?

We are stirred to these questions by a letter from a reader with a problem.

The letter: "Dear Sir: 'Recently you wrote in defense of fat men. Well, what about fat women?'

"My girl friends criticize me because, according to their standards, I am 40 pounds overweight. But I feel fine and my husband says he likes me the way I am. 'Why do people laugh at fat ladies? What's so funny about them?'

It was signed: "Fat Lady." The answer, of course, is there is nothing funny about fat ladies. They are delightful. Those who laugh at fat ladies, like those who laugh at fat men, are envious idiots.

They don't know what they are missing. You should laugh right back at them, fat lady.

The present vogue for slender dames is only a passing passion, a fad of the last quarter century. It was originated by beanpole male courtiers, many of whom hate women anyway and do their best to make them look ridiculous.

The natural man looks for an angle in everything in life except the ladies. But them he instinctively prefers in the round.

The Turkish sultans, note, concubines in these matters, filled their harems with ladies who were living symbols of padded plenty.

What about Helen of Troy? Does anyone think that a Greek, then or now, would launch a thousand ships to go after a married gal who was built like a fence post?

And what about Cleopatra? It is true that she herself rolled up into a rug in order to get in to see Julius Caesar. But it does not argue she was thin. They had mighty big carpets in Egypt in those days.

And who have the most famous artists and sculptors preferred to immortalize in paint and stone? Chubby lasses, almost always. In the world of the arts—from Venus di Milo to Kate Smith and Mary Margaret McBride—the plump girls have been standard.

A skinny dame has no more secrets than a goldfish. It is the plump dame who is dimpled mystery and holds depths of unplumbed allure.

Let us admire fat ladies, not jeer at them or their girld problems. To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, God must have loved fat ladies—he made so many of them.

The Public Forum

To the Editor:— It was God's plan that we have the different nationalities of people. After the flood, in Genesis, eleven chapters, beginning with first verse through nine, you will find that they were going to build a city and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven. And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower which the children of men builded. When He came down they didn't built it at that time, they were all of one language. He confound their language. The Lord scattered them upon the face of all the earth. Therefore is the name of it called Babel because the Lord did there confound the language of all the earth.

St. Matthew 28:18-20

When Jesus came and gave his life for remission of sin and rose from the grave he told his disciples that all power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

I believe that teenagers will be asking if their soul will be saved by integrating for they have heard more about that, and going to the moon than they have things pertaining to their

Greene Legislator Has Teamed Up Again With Walter Jones

By BUNNY HARRIS
 Reflector Raleigh Bureau
 RALEIGH — Hard-working Rep. Herbert Hardy of Greene is teaming up with Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt again this session to author another piece of controversial legislation.

The two of them, who put through the compulsory liability insurance bill during the 1957 session, are now at work on a bill which would restore the highway commission to its old set-up of 14 members, each representing a different division. Hardy also wants to eliminate the present powers of the director and have him immediately responsible to the division highway commissioners.

Just when this bill will be introduced is still a question, the answer depending on how long it takes Hardy to get his school situation squared away back home. Since Negro students in his county went on strike last month (they have since returned), Hardy's time has been greatly divided between county and state affairs.

"The schools have had to be my major concern during the last few weeks," he said. "We think we're on the way to solving the problem and correcting school inadequacies. As soon as this is done we will get back on the highway bill."

Hardy, whose abundant store of "nervous energy" is such that he stays almost continually on the go and chews gum constantly as a release for pent-up tension, is a man whose influence in the General Assembly should not be discounted. While a chief Carl Venter's support, he seems to have retained his influence and views the speakership race with no regrets: "You have to view it like a ball game. We lost and that's it."

It is natural that he would view politics like a ball game in that he is an ardent sports enthusiast, and this win-or-lose gamble "that gets into your blood" is also carried over into his feelings toward tobacco farming in the little community of Maury in the flat country of Greene, "Center of Tobaccoland."

Now 39 years old and serving his second term in the House—"never been opposed yet, knock on wood,"—Hardy is a tall and lanky man with a healthy outdoor complexion, his hair prematurely gray since his teens. He grew up in Chatham County and received a BS degree in Commerce from the University of North Carolina in 1941.

After serving in World War II (he was later in the Korean War), Hardy and his wife, the former Miss Wilma Fry of Carthage, established residence on the tobacco farm which he had inherited in Greene. He is very active in the Methodist Church, teaches Sunday School and hasn't missed a class since April of 1953.

One thing about his life so far he finds unusual: during his extended travels (mostly in military service), he has visited many mountain ranges—the Himalayas of Asia, the Atlas of Africa, and in the United States the Green and White Mountains of New England, the Rockies in Colorado and the Sierra Nevada of California. But after this legislative session is over he hopes to make his first trip to the North Carolina mountains.

soul's Salvation.

I notice that some of our ministerial associations are asking people to accept supreme court ruling, that it is the christian way of life. Our preachers didn't know any thing about it being the christian way of life, until supreme court declared it, so the people don't have too much confidence in them.

St. Matthew 22 chapter 37 verse through 40:

The greatest commandment: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind," This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophes.

self". He said unto him: Thou hast answered right: This do, and thou shalt live." But he will not to justify himself, said unto Jesus, Who is my neighbor? Jesus answering said, "A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed leaving him half dead, and by chance there came down a certain Priest that way: and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side, and likewise a Levite, when he was at the place he came and looked on him, passed by on the other side. But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed, came where he was: and when he saw him, he had compassion on him, and went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn and took care of him: and on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence and gave them to the host, and said unto him, take care of him: and what so ever thou spendest more, when I come again, I will repay thee. Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves? and he said, He that showed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, go, and do thou likewise.

God never forced any one to be a christian. He made some wish they had done what he said

do. Good people what are you thinking about? I don't care what Your Dr. degree, or, scientist's say. If your soul or my soul or any one else's soul is saved, it won't be by integration. Some of you good Bible students tell me where I can find in the Bible that kind of law. Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel. (St. Matthew 23-24.)

Seeks Pinpoint Cause Of Deaths

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Coroner J. Robert Teabeut says he is trying to pinpoint an unknown malady that has caused scores of unexplained deaths among Negro infants.

The Commercial Appeal Tuesday quoted an unnamed official at City Hospital as estimating that 200 infants between the ages of 3 months and 18 months had died of the disease in 12 months.

Nearly all were brought to the hospital after they became ill.

Teabeut said the deaths have been listed as caused by an overwhelming infection.

Khrushchev Flies To East Germany

LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev left Moscow by plane for Leipzig today to strengthen the prestige of the Communist East German regime for prospective negotiations with the West.

There were indications that the Soviet premier would use the trip to the Red-ruled half of divided Germany to insist once more on summit talks to write peace treaties for East and West Germany.

In London, responsible British sources foresaw the possibility the U.S.S.R. might negotiate a separate peace treaty with East Germany even before the proposed East-West foreign ministers' meeting in April. One authoritative informant said this would create a highly dangerous situation.

East German Communist leaders prepared a warm welcome for the Soviet premier and predicted he would make major policy pronouncements during his stay.

Khrushchev's visit ostensibly is to attend the Leipzig spring trade fair.

An East German spokesman said the Soviet leader would deliver one open-air speech in a stadium holding 100,000 persons.

Khrushchev's program has not been announced, but he was expected to remain over the weekend, with plenty of time for talks with top East German officials.

Moscow sources indicated he would go on to East Berlin. Coming here directly from talks with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, the Soviet premier was expected to give fresh assurances that the Soviet attitude toward Berlin and Germany as a whole has not changed.

The Soviets have shown no intention of backing away from their announced intentions of handing over to the East Germans control over the Allied lifelines to West Berlin and driving the Allies out of that bastion 110 miles inside the Iron Curtain.

The Kremlin sent East Germany a diplomatic note Tuesday minimizing the importance of the prospective foreign ministers conference.

The Soviet note to East Germany was sent also to Poland and Czechoslovakia.

CD Planner Will Address Women

Col. Vachel D. Whatley, area planner for North Carolina's Civil Defense Survival Plan Staff, will speak at a meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday.

The meeting, which will begin at 8:30, will include a 15-minute film and remarks by Col. Whatley on "Radiological Fallout." Women who are interested in attending the meeting but who are not members of the Woman's Club are invited to be present.

Col. Whatley will also speak at a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in the courtroom of the Court House. That meeting, although open to the public, will be primarily for the Pitt County Civil Defense Council and staff members.

The film on radiological fallout will be shown at the Friday night meeting which will also include a discussion, by Col. Whatley, of matching funds for purchase of Civil Defense equipment.

U. S. Treasury Promoting The Dangers Of Inflation

Editor's note: One of the government's biggest problems is financing a record national debt of 286 billion dollars without fostering inflation. This, the second of four articles on debt management, discusses this fiscal dilemma.

By FRANK CORMIER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Treasury is promoting inflation of the money supply just as surely as if it were printing paper greenbacks.

The Treasury doesn't like this, of course, because it could lead to inflation of the whole economy. At the moment, however, it sees no clear way out.

Investor fears of rising interest rates and inflation have made it difficult—if not impossible—for Uncle Sam to borrow needed billions on a long term basis, or even for an intermediate period like five years. As a result, he has had to concentrate on getting short term loans which are much more inflationary.

Many of these loans, which come due in three months to three years, are kissing cousins of greenbacks and they create a paradox.

Uncle Sam has trouble getting less-inflationary long term loans, partly because of inflation fears. So he borrows on a short term basis and thus reinforces the very fears which are compounding his problem.

For Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, this is a bitter irony. Anderson is so vocal a foe of inflation that Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) recently accused him of being obsessed on the subject.

The Treasury chief is acutely aware that he, through his department, is helping to increase the inflation potential he decries. The secretary's dilemma stems from the fact that the banks are the principal source of short term loans.

Anderson has made a point of acquainting a number of recent visitors with the relationship between bank loans and inflation. He has done so in hopes of gaining missionaries for a balanced budget, which he regards as part of the basic solution to his problem.

The secretary begins by asking the visitor's opinion on "monetization of the debt." He has found that a surprising number of government and business leaders are puzzled by the term. In such cases, he launches into a simple explanation.

Assume the Treasury borrows a million dollars from a Washington bank. What is involved?

The Treasury gives the bank a piece of paper—a government security—which says Uncle Sam has borrowed a million dollars and will repay in so many years at a fixed rate of interest. Because the worth of this piece of paper is vouched for by Uncle Sam, it assumes real value and is listed among the bank's assets.

On the liability side of the bank's ledger is written an offsetting entry. The bank sets up a new deposit of one million dollars against which the government can write checks to pay its bills.

Anderson asks, where did the bank get this million dollars? Did it take the cash out of someone else's account and give it to the Treasury?

The answer is that it got the Pool Resources For Telescopes

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Members of the Assn. of Universities for Research in Astronomy have agreed to pool their resources to develop a program to put telescopes in space.

The association is constructing a major observatory on Kitt Peak, 40 miles southwest of Tucson, for cooperative use by astronomers and major universities with astronomy departments.

A spokesman said AURA officials have long been intrigued with the idea of space telescopes which they say would permit them to get better, clearer pictures of distant stars.

But he said such a development is many years in the future after many engineering problems have been solved and that the Kitt Peak project is still the group's major undertaking.

Bolivians Prove Volatile People

By BEN MEYER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Nobody gets mad in this country when somebody says "Let's give New York back to the Indians."

With the volatile Bolivians, it's different. If a U. S. magazine quotes a U. S. Embassy official as wishing that the country ought to be abolished, then riots break out.

There is a saying in La Paz, about 12,000 feet up in the mountains, that water boils quickly there, and so do tempers.

Bolivia has had a history studded with troubles. It once formed a part of the Inca empire and was seized by the Spaniards in 1538. The natives were killed or put in practical serfdom.

Rich mines once made Bolivia a source of wealth, and of speedy population growth. Potosi, a mining town founded in 1545, rose to a population of 160,000 in 1650—was once the largest city in the New World. As mines gave out, its population fell to 8,000 by 1825.

Independence came to Bolivia in 1825, and the country has been fighting much of the time since. In a war with Chile, Bolivia lost 1955, cash and checking deposits have increased 3 1/2 per cent while the national product has advanced more than 7 per cent.

The picture could change for the worse this year, however, if the Treasury continues to do most of its borrowing on a short term basis. The "greenbacks" could get out of hand.

Accountants Sue Hedy Lamarr

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two accountants, sued actress Hedy Lamarr Tuesday for $15,997 they say she owes them.

Jack A. Sain demanded $8,997 for work by which he said Miss Lamarr got an $89,970 deduction in her 1950 federal income tax return.

In another suit, Robert J. Mason said Miss Lamarr owes $7,000 for accounting services performed from 1950 to 1952 by himself and a partner, Eli G. Gold.

Builder Built On Wrong 3 Lots

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—City Council rescued an embarrassed builder Tuesday who missed his building sites by two blocks and constructed three houses on city-owned property.

After a round of chuckles and wisecracks, council voted to accept an offer of $1,800 from the Karen Corp. for three lots.

"He turned right when he should have turned left," Councilman L. L. Layton speculated about the mixup. Mayor W. Fred Duckworth said it appeared there was nothing to do but "bail him out."

Build Launchers For 'Minuteman'

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force is building launching facilities at Edwards Air Force Base on the Mojave Desert for Minuteman missiles that have a range of up to 10,000 miles.

The Corps of Engineers will open bids March 19 for construction of two deep pits from which the ICBMs will be fired. Total cost will be about $1,770,000.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—"If you teach a boy he comes from an animal, he'll act like it," said a sponsor of a bill to bar teaching of evolution.

Lenoir Ryhne Drubs East Carolina In NAIA Playoff

Bears Win By 95-74 Margin

HICKORY — East Carolina, showing the effects of losing a couple of their top stars, finished their 1958-59 basketball season last night with a 95-74 drubbing by Lenoir Ryhne in the opening round of the NAIA District play-offs.

The Bucs used a patched up lineup and were never able to give the Bears much of a contest. Paced by rugged Joe Ladd, Lenoir Ryhne got off to an early lead and held it throughout the game.

Ladd and All-Conference guard, Tommy Sellari, pushed the Bears out front 42-24 at halftime and they were never in serious trouble as they moved into the district finals tonight.

The Bears pushed their lead to as much as 29 points in the final period and were able to substitute freely. The Bucs were never able to gain the form which carried them to a 12-5 record and a win over Lenoir Ryhne in their last regular season meeting.

Ladd hit 10 of 15 field goals attempts and was high scorer for the winners with 24 points. Three of his teammates hit in the double figures also. Bill Reece hit for 19, and Dick Whitis and Sellari had 15 each. The Bears finished the night with 39 of 83 shots for a 47 per cent average.

Don Smith, lanky sophomore forward, led the Pirates scoring attack with 20 points. Joe Plaster, Ike Riddick, and Nick Nichols chipped in the scoring column with 18, 14, and 10 points, respectively.

The Pirates hit 31 of 82 shots for 38 per cent.

Tickets may be purchased from any ECC coach, football players, or at the Athletic Department. They are also available at Cliff's Restaurant and at Hollowell's Drug Store.

West Carolina, Lenoir Ryhne Tangle Tonight

SPINDALE, N.C. (AP)—The tall Catamounts of Western Carolina take on Lenoir Ryhne's Bears here tonight for the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics' District 26 basketball championship.

The winner gets a crack at the NAIA title along with 31 other teams in Kansas City later this month.

Both North State Conference teams had easy times advancing to the district finals Tuesday night.

Western Carolina, winner of the North State Conference tournament, overpowered Wofford of South Carolina's Little Four, 74-58, at Cullowhee.

Lenoir Ryhne enjoyed a comfortable lead all the way to whip East Carolina, 95-74, at Hickory.

With Harris Pryor feeding off the fast break, Western Carolina rolled to a 41-29 halftime lead over Wofford. The Terriers were unable to narrow the margin to less than nine points during the last period.

Five Catamounts hit in the double figures with Pryor high man at 20 points. Bill Barbee was tops for Wofford with 14.

Lenoir Ryhne, hitting with 47 per cent field goal accuracy, moved out in front of East Carolina by 18 points at the half. After pushing up the margin to as much as 29 points in the final period, the Bear starters gave way to substitutes.

Playmaker Joe Ladd led Lenoir Ryhne scoring with 24 points. He was followed by teammate Bill Reece with 19.

Don Smith collected 20 points for East Carolina.

Sizzling Hoop Whips Gonzales

MONTREAL (AP)—Australian Lew Hoad, smashing cross-court placements with crisp accuracy, whipped Pancho Gonzales 6-3, 6-4 Tuesday night in the feature match of Jack Kramer's touring professional tennis show before 6,501.

Hoad combined with former Davis Cup male Ashley Cooper to down Gonzales and Mal Anderson, another Australia, 8-5 in the doubles.

Cooper crushed Anderson 9-7, 6-4 in the second singles set.

ECC Footballers Returning To Practice Field Today

East Carolina gridlers returned to the practice field today following a hectic morning of registration for the spring quarter.

Coach Jack Boone and his husky squad wind up winter drills this week and will meet an Alumni team Saturday afternoon to climax the drills.

James Speight, All-Conference halfback in 1957, quarterback Ralph Zehring and end Howard Beale will return to the club today. The three, all starters, missed winter drills due to student teaching assignments. They may see some action in Saturday's game.

The Pirates will work out for the remainder of the week and, according to Boone, should be in good condition for the Alumni game. Injuries have been few in the winter camp and everyone is expected to be available for duty.

Lee Atkinson, spokesman for the Alumni club, stated this morning that the grads now have a 30-man squad. "We still haven't heard from a lot of the former players but I feel that we will have a large squad," stated the former ECC halfback.

The Alumni may get some aid from several Wingate Junior College stars who plan to attend East Carolina next fall. Included in the Wingate fold is Sonny Baysinger, Junior College All-American halfback. A Concord native, Baysinger is headed for the Pirate Den next fall.

Game time is set for 2:00 Saturday and tickets are still on sale by the Varsity Club and may also be purchased at the gate. A capacity crowd is expected.

Ex-Champ Jimmy Carter Injured

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former world lightweight boxing champion Jimmy Carter was struck and seriously injured Tuesday night by a hit-run motorist, police reported.

Attendees at Central Receiving Hospital said the 35-year-old ex-champion was in a semi-conscious state and unable to give any details of the accident.

He was discovered by neighbors a block from his home. Investigators said evidence indicated he was struck by a driver who then drove off in a heavy fog.

Carter won the lightweight crown May 25, 1951 by stopping Ike Williams in 14 rounds at Madison Square Garden. Lauro Salas took it away from Carter by decision in May, 1952, only to lose it back to Jimmy in October of that year — also by decision.

Two years later, on March 5, 1954, Paddy De Marco defeated Carter in 15 rounds. But Carter came back once again and re-won the title the following November by stopping De Marco in the 15th at San Francisco.

Wallace (Bud) Smith finally deposited Carter for good by outpointing him over 15 rounds at Boston.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Warren Spahn says he is going to win 20 games again this year. And when he says it you can bet that he will.

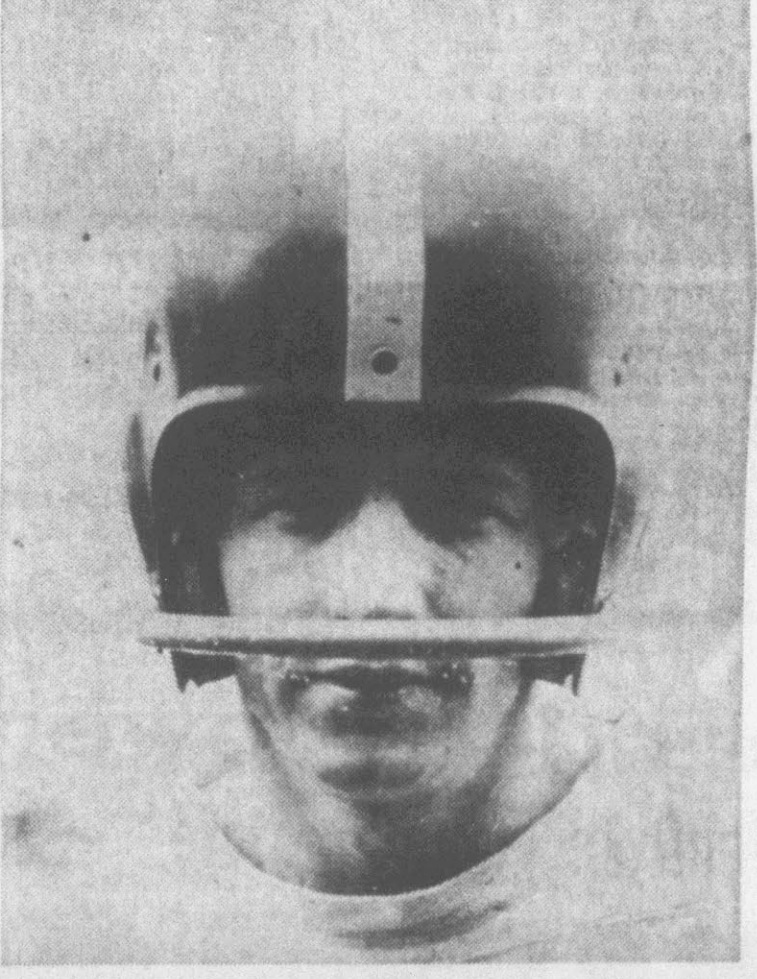

"The more you talk with the lean lefthander from Milwaukee, the more you realize why the guy with the big bent nose and the big bent curve is the greatest pitcher in the National League, perhaps in both leagues. No one has a more intelligent approach to his trade.

"The biggest asset a pitcher can have is confidence," said Spahn today. "When I'm out there on the mound, I make up my mind I'm the best pitcher in the league. And that I'm as good, if not better than any hitter that comes up to face me. A pitcher has got to be a little arrogant out there. He's got to believe in himself. He's got to think, 'I can get this guy out anytime.'"

In 14 seasons with the Braves, Spahn has won 246 games. In nine of those he's won 20 or more

CHUCK GORDON . . . Gordon will be at a guard berth this Saturday for the varsity when they take on the Alumni at College Stadium.

WINGATE STAR . . . Sonny Baysinger, All-American Junior College halfback will give the Alumni a helping hand this Saturday. He is headed for ECC next fall.

Valdes Calls It A Title Fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Nino Valdes, self-acclaimed professional heavyweight boxing champion of the world, meets upset-minded Charley Powell tonight in a 10-round clash of sluggers.

Valdes is favored to beat the ex-San Francisco 49ers pro football player and snap his five fight winning streak.

But at least four boxing figures openly give Powell a good chance. One, trainer Lou Gross, flatly predicts Powell will take Valdes. Sideline with Gross were Charley Goldman, who trained Rocky Marciano to the heavyweight championship; Joe Netro, co-manager of Carmen Basilio; and Miami Beach's Angelo Pastrano, corner man for Basilio.

Valdes' manager, Bobby Gleason, says the fight is considered a championship match. "If Nino loses, we're ex-champions."

If Valdes loses, he also will be an ex-top contender for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight crown.

"Patterson is a commission-made champion," Gleason said. "How did he get the title anyway? In 1956 he defeated Jimmy Walls, Alvin Williams, Hurricane Jackson and then was awarded the title by beating Archie Moore."

"Since then he defended his so-called title by beating Jackson again, Pete Rademacher and Roy Harris. You won't find Valdes' name on his record."

Powell's upset hopes ride on his power, demonstrated in 14 knockouts in 24 fights and his style.

NCAA Tourney's Choices Pending

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer

The NCAA basketball tournament, strictly a cliffhanger special with nine berths to be filled in the next six days, can see its vacancies whittled to seven tonight.

But unless the right combination turns up, it can have two more backyard playoffs and even more suspense on its hands.

The Ivy League and the Yankee Conference come front and center-court with the NCAA hope of Ivies' Dartmouth and Princeton and Yankees' Connecticut and Maine on the line.

Dartmouth and Princeton share the Ivy lead with 12-1 records with one game remaining — Dartmouth at home against Brown and Princeton on the road at Penn. both tonight. If both win, the tie will be resolved in a playoff on Yale's neutral court Saturday night.

Connecticut (7-2) can nail its 10th undisputed Yankee title in 11 years with a victory over Rhode Island tonight. Falling, the UConn drop back into a first place tie with idle Maine (7-3) — and another playoff.

The NCAA already has a triple first place tie to settle in the Border Conference, with Arizona State U., New Mexico State and Texas Western involved. Of the other remaining tournament berths, competition is so close that playoffs may be needed in four more circuits before the 23-team field is set for next Tuesday's full-scale opening.

Of the nine, the only certainties are an at-large berth from the eastern section (Boston Univ. may get that if it beats Providence Thursday), and the winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament on Saturday.

There's still a chance for ties and playoffs to settle berths from the Pacific Coast, Skyline, Mid-American, and Missouri Valley Conference races now led by California, Utah, Miami (Ohio), and Cincinnati, respectively.

Ironically, the longer the NCAA's conference berths remain unsettled, the longer the 12-team National Invitation Tournament opening March 12 must wait to get its last two entries. The naming of St. Louis, third-place team in the rugged Missouri Valley Conference, brought the NIT total to 10 Tuesday. It is no secret that the NIT is holding its last two spots for also-rans in the Missouri Valley (Bradley unless it catches Cincinnati) and the Skyline (Denver or Utah state or Brigham Young, unless Utah is caught).

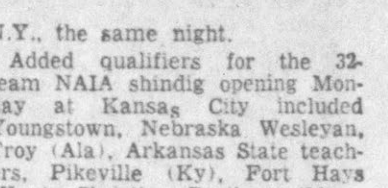

The 32-team NCAA small college field was completed Tuesday night with playoff victories by Wittenberg (Ohio), over Akron 70-62; and Hofstra (N.Y.), over Drexel Tech (Pa.) 70-64. Wittenberg joins the Mid-East Regional at Evansville, Ind., starting Friday and Hofstra goes into the Eastern Regional at Garden City, N.Y., the same night.

Added qualifiers for the 32-team NAIA shindig opening Monday at Kansas City included Youngstown, Nebraska Wesleyan, Troy (Ala.), Arkansas State teachers, Pikeville (Ky.), Fort Hava (Kan.), Christian Brothers (Memphis), Westminster (Utah), Pacific Lutheran, Culver - Stockton (Mo.) and Whittier.

Among the major schools, it was generally warm-up night Tuesday night for three teams headed for tournament play. Texas Christian's Southwest Conference championship closed out league play with an 81-63 romp over Baylor, but St. Mary's West Coast A.C. titleholders lost to Santa Clara 67-66. It was St. Mary's first conference defeat and also ended the Gaels 13-game winning streak. Providence, an NIT team, made it 18-4 for the season with a 79-44 whipping of Siena.

Southern Methodist took second place in the Southwest, downing Texas A&M 70-66 and Texas Tech, behind the 20-point scoring of Gerry Myers, nailed third, 80-69 over Arkansas. Texas salvaged something from a woeful season, beating Rice 63-54 and ending a 13-game losing streak.

Xavier of Ohio, the defending NIT champion that went sour, snapped a seven-game losing streak by topping Miami of Ohio 82-78.

Spahn Says He Will Win 20 This Year

By JOE REICHLER BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Warren Spahn says he is going to win 20 games again this year. And when he says it you can bet that he will.

"The more you talk with the lean lefthander from Milwaukee, the more you realize why the guy with the big bent nose and the big bent curve is the greatest pitcher in the National League, perhaps in both leagues. No one has a more intelligent approach to his trade.

"The biggest asset a pitcher can have is confidence," said Spahn today. "When I'm out there on the mound, I make up my mind I'm the best pitcher in the league. And that I'm as good, if not better than any hitter that comes up to face me. A pitcher has got to be a little arrogant out there. He's got to believe in himself. He's got to think, 'I can get this guy out anytime.'"

In 14 seasons with the Braves, Spahn has won 246 games. In nine of those he's won 20 or more them." As for the alarmists who are beginning to write his obituary, Spahn said: "They said I was washed up eight years ago. I'll never fool myself. When I can't do it any more I'll be the first to know it."

games. But he's nearing 38 and there are those who say he won't win 20 any more. Only Cy Young, Ed Plank and Grover Alexander won 20 or more after 38.

"There's no reason why I shouldn't win 20 this season," said Spahn. "What the difference between this year and last year? One year? I don't feel old. I'm in good physical condition. My arm and legs feel fine.

"I've got the advantage of being with a good club. Also I've got the best catcher in baseball in Del Crandall.

"The old man (Manager Fred Haney) knows what I can do and he goes along with me a little bit longer. That helps a lot.

Spahn wants to rack up more victories than any National League southpaw. Only Carl Hubbell with 253 and Eppa Rixey with 266 have won more. Spahn also wants to be the first pitcher since Lefty Grove to win 300.

"I still have 54 to go for 300," he reminds you. "I aim to get

CHAPTER 7

In a sense, I reflected, Sir Luke Metcalf's life and mine had run parallel, to a point.

I had cut down no competitors en route to my first captain's berth. Yet, like Metcalf, I was the son of a seafarer — and had taken to salt water as easily as a petrel to its nest. Like him, I had risen in the Company from able seaman to bosun to mate. At that milestone our paths had parted. I had been content with my first master's license, more than willing to finish my law studies between voyages. When Anne Sinclair had entered my orbit, I had vowed to bid the sea and its manifold temptations a long, sad farewell the moment we could marry. Sir Luke had followed stormier courses.

It was he if I could believe Company gossip who had fermented the Sultan's War in Arabia — with the result that our sea lanes had been cleared of pirate dhows for years on end, while the corsairs fought ashore. It was he who had smashed his rivals in the Company one by one — until the posts on his choosing were firmly in his grasp.

I could not doubt that some of his rivals had died at his orders, if not at his hand. Others had been driven to bankruptcy or suicide. Still others, like the legendary Jothan Carter, had turned pirate in Madagascar, to fight him to the death. All in all, he had earned his place in the knightage by means no less forthright than Sr. Henry Morgan himself had used.

When Metcalf returned to his study he was bandbox-clean in a canary-yellow coat of the finest velvet, with silk stockings and breeches to match, and a short clubbed wig. As he welcomed me to his house a second time, the flourish of his long, aristocrat's hand would have graced a king's ante-room. I kept my own mask in place, feigning an urbanity I did not possess.

"You'll forgive me, I hope, Mr. Douglas," he said. "In my calling we must use masquerades to suit our purpose. This is the popinjay garb I wear in society. My costume at McLane's was more comfortable."

I spoke the thought that had been in my mind from the start. "Why didn't you introduce yourself at once? It would have been far simpler."

"Would you have fought so well had you known it was but a fencing match?"

"Forgive my stupidity, Sir Luke," I murmured, "but why so elaborate a ruse in my honor?"

"The men you mistook for footpads meant business. So did I. Had you surrendered your purse without a fight, I'd have had no part of you. Nor would I be offering you a place under my command if you'd fought me a whit less bravely. The moment our blades crossed, you knew I'd win. Yet you dived to the end, with every trick you had, and asked no quarter. I can use that brand of courage, Mr. Douglas." He dropped into a facing armchair and poured himself a tot of rum. "How much did McLane tell you?"

"Only that I'm to command the Pilgrim Venture on a voyage to Madras."

"I'm glad he stopped there—the man's tongue has a way of running on. The London office told you our other ports of call?"

"They said we'd visit at the Canaries, then proceed to the Cape."

"Can you handle a ship in the Atlantic trades?"

"Captain Greene of the Resolute thought so," I said modestly. His hand slapped my knee. "And so do I — now. For a time I considered using Jeremy Greene on this voyage. But he hasn't your knowledge of the Monsoon Sea." He paused and studied me narrowly. I knew he was gauging the effect of his compliment. "Port Dauphin's our first landfall after Cape Town. How well d'you know that roadstead?"

"Well enough — though I've only called there to fill my water casks." "Finish the voyage for me," he said. "I'll stop you if you err."

"From Madagascar we proceed to Goa, and thence to Madras. There'll be cargo for both ports."

"Correction, Mr. Douglas. We proceed to Madras. At Port Dauphin you and Dr. Hoyt will jump ship."

"I'm afraid I don't follow, sir."

"You will in a moment. That I needn't add, is a detail I have not confided to Bob McLane. Nor does he know I'll be aboard the Venture — under a disguise, of course." Metcalf paused again. "Are you beginning to follow me now?"

"Not too well."

"What d'you know of the Madagascar pirates?"

"Only that they're a thorn in the East India Company's side."

"You haven't visited the island since they took over?"

"When I last sailed in those waters, they were safe as the North Sea — if you carried enough cannon to frighten off the dhows. I hear things are quite different, now the heirs of Morgan have changed their base."

"You state the case too mildly," said Metcalf. "So far as the Company's concerned, conditions there are intolerable. I'll go further: if these buccaner nests aren't burned out soon, we'll cease to show a profit."

"You astound me, sir," I said. "Actually, I had heard the same story in London — but I was eager for his point of view."

"As you know, our charter was rescinded two years ago, for poltical reasons. We continue to function in the Orient — simply because there's no other power that can maintain order there, including the British Crown. Eventually, I'm sure, our charter will be renewed by the King — if we can really drive the French from India and keep our sea lanes open. I'm not sure which goal is the more important. For term, I'm leaving the French to finish their task to smash the Madagascar pirates — simply because I'm familiar with their dodges."

He was on his feet, lifting his fist again and again to drive home a point. "D'you know of the Speedwell, Mr. Douglas?" he asked, whirling upon me.

"I was at Clydeside when she was building for the Scotland Company," I told him. "I'm sure I'd remember her hull today."

"She vanished without a trace on her first trading voyage to the Orient. A year later we set out one of our own vessels, the Speedy Return, to search for her — and she, too, disappeared off Cape Sainte Marie. We've reason to believe that both ships were taken by the outlaws."

"What of their crews?"

"Wiped out, to the last man. Jack, Gentlemen of fortune take a few prisoners."

I said nothing, the coldness of his recital discouraged speech. The scandal of the Speedwell's disappearance — to say nothing of the rescue vessel — was small change in Company gossip. In sober truth, they were but two among many losses. These days even when our Indianmen sailed under escort they dared not skirt Madagascar en route to the Cape of Good Hope. Instead, they sailed far to the east of the island — a ruinously expensive delay that often meant weeks in the doldrums. Despite the precaution, the convoy captain expected to lose one or more ships to the buccaners, who were past masters at picking off stragglers in the open sea. On the rare occasions when a convoy risked the Madagascar run, the enemy swarmed out en masse with every gunport blazing — and chose his prizes almost at will.

I began to see what I was heading into.

Frown On Plans To Visit Pope

LONDON (AP)—A British Protestant organization today wrote Queen Mother Elizabeth that it doesn't like the idea of her calling on Pope John XXIII next month.

The Protestant Truth Society said in the letter that the visit "would be inconsistent with your position as mother of the Queen who has declared herself by oath to be a faithful Protestant." The Queen Mother plans a six-day visit to Rome April 20-26 on her way back from the African tour.

Typhoon Damage In Island Group

HONOLULU (AP)—An estimated 400 homes were destroyed and coconut, breadfruit and banana crops knocked out for at least a year last week when the worst typhoon in 44 years hit the Manuan Islands in the Samoa group.

Delayed dispatches from Pago Pago, the capital of American Samoa, to the Honolulu Star-Bulletin say 50 m.p.h. winds flattened three villages and injured many people but caused no deaths.

FAST FILLS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dissatisfied with the time and effort it takes to fill individual communion glasses for large congregations, the Rev. James O. Duncan, pastor of the Hillside Baptist Church here, has obtained a patent on a mechanical dispenser that can fill 80 communion glasses at once.

Salt used to melt ice on sidewalks can be injurious to trees. Sand is better.

Private Plane Crash Fatal To 4 Persons

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A single-engine plane, trying to break out of heavy clouds, went into a spin and carried four prominent Cherryville residents to their deaths in a remote section of Davidson County Tuesday.

The plane, which had contacted the Charlotte CAA tower moments earlier for directions, "fluttered a bit and exploded just before hitting the ground," a witness said.

The occupants were Ben E. Rudisill, 42, president and treasurer of the Carlton Yarn Mills at Cherryville; his wife, 37; Jack H. Scott, 35, general sales manager of the three Carlton mills; and Mrs. F. D. Quinn Jr., wife of the general manager of the Dora Yarn Mill at Cherryville.

The plane crashed on the Clay Palmer farm about 15 miles southeast of here. Wreckage was scattered over a 400-yard area. Officers said the bodies were about 100 yards apart.

Both Rudisill, who owned the plane, and Scott had commercial pilot licenses. It was not determined who was at the controls.

The four were returning to Cherryville from Chapel Hill, where the two women had attended a conference at the University of North Carolina. They had flown to Chapel Hill Tuesday morning.

Officials at Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport tower said the pilot had radioed at 3:57 p.m. that he was lost in heavy clouds. At 4:08, he reported he was in a spin. Then there was silence.

"We didn't have time in those 11 minutes to locate the aircraft," a tower official said. "The pilot sounded confused ... We advised him to try to get visual contact with the ground."

"He said he was starting to break out of the clouds. Then he said he was in a spin. That was the last we heard."

Rudisill, who frequently flew on business trips from a landing strip near the Carlton mill, was a member of the board of directors of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute. He was a past president of the Combed Yarn Spinners Assn.

The Rudisills are survived by three sons.

Mrs. Quinn was the mother of five children.

Scott is survived by his wife and three children.

Rocket Hobby Is Termed Almost Beyond Control

ASHEVILLE (AP)—The safety director of Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., says "the backyard rocket fad has grown to such an extent that control is almost impossible."

So, W. E. Albright has come up with these safety steps for the do-it-yourself rocketeer:

Make sure you aren't breaking the law by firing rockets.

Get competent advice before carrying out experiments.

Set up barricades and other protective devices.

Locate rocket ranges away from populated areas.

Keep rocket propellants in an isolated area under lock and key.

Remember that "what goes up must come down." Determine where your rocket will fall and recover each one fired.

Albright made his suggestions at a meeting here Monday of the federal safety section of the Southern Safety Conference.

Survey Study

Results of the State Highway Commission's 1959 Secondary Roads survey in Pitt County will be studied here Friday morning by members of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and highway officials.

Secondary Roads Officer Harold Makepeace will conduct the meeting, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. in headquarters of the commission's Second Division.

In addition to Makepeace and the commissioners, division and district highway engineers, and Makepeace's assistant, Bill Ingram, will attend the meeting.

Second Division personnel began a new study of rural roads in Pitt County in January which is expected to be completed in time for preparation of new secondary roads plans prior to July 1. Results of that study will be the basis for Makepeace's discussions with the commissioners.

FOUR-A-WEEK NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Southern Baptists added an average of four new churches every week during 1958—a total of 201. The denomination also won 407,892 converts during the year, to bring total membership to 9,206,758.

There are more than 30,000 teenage members of rocket clubs in the United States.

Death Calls Final Cue For Comic Lou Costello

By JAMES BACON
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Death called the final cue for chubby comedian Lou Costello while, by coincidence, Bud Abbott watched a TV movie of the team's famed "Who's on First?" routine.

"Tell me, why was I watching that picture at that particular time? I never watch it. After all, I've seen it a thousand times," Abbott, who had seen little of his old sidekick since their split-up in 1957, cried Tuesday as he told how he received the news of Costello's death at 53.

A heart attack — his second within a week — took Costello's life only minutes after he had sent his wife home from the hospital with a wisecrack to cook dinner for the couple's youngest child.

He turned to a nurse and said he wanted to be rolled over on his side.

"I think I'll be more comfortable," were his final words.

Thus ended the comedy career of a modern day Pagliacci who clowned through a personal life filled with illness and tragedy.

In the decade from 1943 to 1953, Costello suffered six serious illnesses—four of them rheumatic fever attacks — and the tragic drowning of his only son, Infant Lou Costello Jr., wandered into the family swimming pool in 1943.

Abbott and Costello performed their famous "Who's on First?"

Predicts Adoption Of Changes By Baptists

RALEIGH (AP)—The chairman of a committee which recommended a new framework of operations for the Baptist State Convention predicted today the changes will be adopted.

"We have reason to believe that the convention will adopt our report just about as it is," said the Rev. James S. Potter of Raleigh, chairman of the special committee of 25.

The report, released Tuesday, will be presented to a special session of the convention here May 5-6. The committee's recommendations resulted from a two-year study.

One of the proposed major changes calls for a new system of budgeting for the convention's manifold activities based on "program budgeting" rather than the present percentage plan.

The committee said the budgeting proposal is a key to the program. Under it, funds would be allocated to the dozens of State Baptist agencies and institutions on the basis of formal budget requests in dollar terms. At present, allocations are made on a percentage basis of the convention's receipts.

The committee said the new system of budgeting would provide more flexibility and encourage giving "because our people will see better where the money is going."

The committee recommended that increased planning and operation control be vested in the convention's General Board. Other major changes proposed were:

Reshuffling of major bureaus of the convention's operating structure, based on studies made by a management firm.

A revised method of choosing the members of the convention's general board.

New directions for church-supported educational and social services aimed at upgrading some junior colleges to senior status and setting up more local homes for the aged.

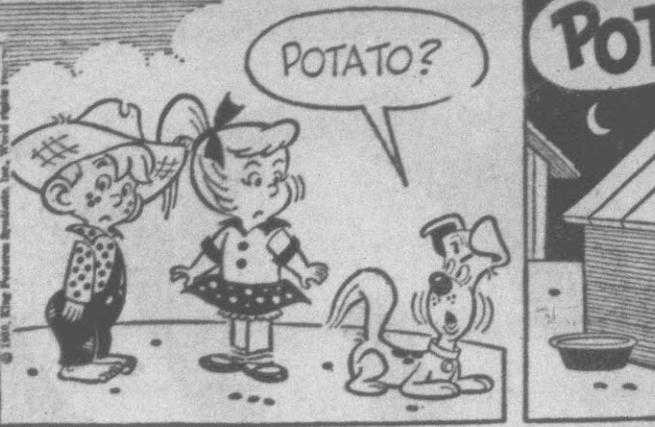

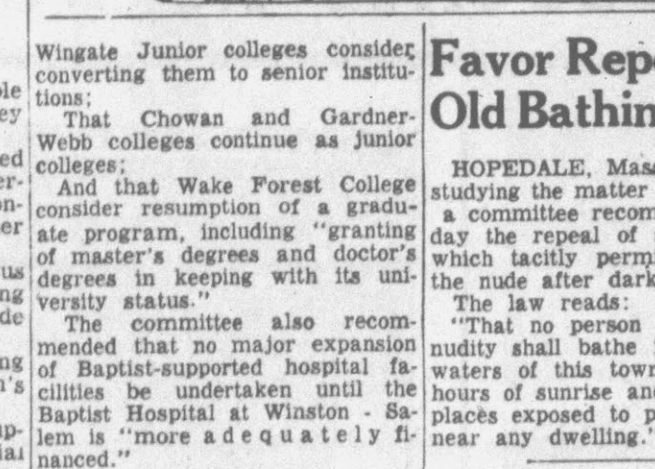

The Rev. Mr. Potter said the committee's report is designed "to enable the convention to accelerate and expand its services to North Carolina Baptists."

At present, the Baptist population in North Carolina is 850,000. The committee predicted it will be 1,400,000 by 1980.

The committee proposed the following recommendations for the seven Baptist colleges:

That trustees of Mars Hill College proceed to convert it from a junior to a senior college;

That trustees of Campbell and

Favor Repeal Of Old Bathing Law

HOPEDALE, Mass. (AP)—After studying the matter for two years, a committee recommended Tuesday the repeal of a town bylaw which tacitly permits bathing in the nude after dark.

The law reads:

"That no person in a state of nudity shall bathe in any of the waters of this town between the hours of sunrise and sunset or in places exposed to public view, or near any dwelling."

The committee also recommended that no major expansion of Baptist-supported hospital facilities be undertaken until the Baptist Hospital at Winston-Salem is "more adequately financed."

Not One Lion In Dallas, But Six

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Residents in a northeast Dallas area told officers they heard what sounded like a lion roaring and thought possibly a mountain lion had moved into a wooded area.

Police found, instead, six African lions.

They were in cages, however. Earnest Ingraham of Maco, Ga., had parked the caged lions there while awaiting a date to put on a show at a local shopping center.

Missionary Airplane

NEW YORK (AP)—A $16,000 appropriation has been made by the foreign missions board of the United Lutheran Church to buy an airplane for use by 10 missions in Liberia, where the church now has 46 missionaries at work.

United States lumber production for 1958 was an estimated 32 billion board feet.

Mediators Strive For Henderson Strike Settlement

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Government mediators were to continue working today on settling an explosive 16-week strike at Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

They said they would hold separate meetings with management and the union to search out new approaches to the key issue in the tense deadlock—arbitration.

State Highway Patrolmen arrested two picketing strikers for throwing rocks this morning as workers arrived at the North Henderson Mill. Police said the scene was calm at the South Henderson plant.

Police said the rocks were tossed at cars carrying workers inside North Henderson Mill gates. No one was injured, and names of the two arrested were not immediately available.

Highway patrol reinforcements, sent in Monday night when strike violence threatened to erupt out of control, kept sullen crowds in check Tuesday when the mills opened and closed for the day.

Two incidents were reported Tuesday night as violence flared anew. Mrs. Joe Powell, a non-striker, reported to police that a back glass in her car was smashed while it was parked in her yard.

Police reported a window in a mill employee's home was shattered by a tiny metal ball. The ball apparently was shot from a slingshot in a moving car, police said.

Meanwhile, 12 strikers were scheduled to appear before Superior Court Judge William Y. Bickett to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court. They were cited for violating a restraining order prohibiting outbursts around the mill gates. Testimony in the cases began Tuesday.

Three other men were set to appear Vance Recorders Court convictions of strike-connected violence. Suspended road terms and fines were dealt the trio in connection with assault charges three weeks ago.

Boyd Payton, Carolina director of the striking Textile Workers Union of America, called Tuesday's negotiation session "the most productive meeting to date."

He said mediators suggested several new approaches to the arbitration issue, but added he was unable to elaborate.

The workers struck Nov. 17 when management refused to include an arbitration provision in a new contract. Such a provision has been in TWUA-company contracts for the past 14 years.

Arbitration is the sending of worker and management disputes to a disinterested person for a solution.

John D. Cooper Jr., company president, reopened the plants Feb. 16.

Since then crowds of strikers formed near the plant gates daily to taunt returning workers as they entered and left the mills.

The taunts turned to rock throwing and car tipping, and about 40 highway patrolmen were sent in. When the situation threatened to get out of their control Monday, Gov. Hodges ordered in the extra reinforcements of about 100 additional troopers.

The show of force checked any further demonstrations Tuesday. Three men were arrested, but all were for isolated outbursts of cursing and rock throwing.

All three arrests were made at the firm's South Henderson plant where highway patrolmen and the angry mob met head-to-head Monday.

Reckless Drivers Sent To Hospital Emergency Room

Two college students, convicted in Municipal Court Monday of motor vehicle law violations, must spend Saturday evenings in the hospital emergency room vestibule for the next five weeks.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee made that a condition for suspending a six-month jail sentence imposed on John S. Wooten and David E. Holland, both of East Carolina College.

Holland was convicted of careless and reckless driving and speeding. Wooten was convicted of aiding and abetting careless and reckless driving and speeding.

Each of the two youths was ordered to surrender his driver's license for 12 months. They are not to operate any motor vehicle for 12 months nor ride in any motor vehicle except a public conveyance for 90 days.

In suspending the six-month sentence, Judge Whedbee ordered each of the students to present himself and remain in the vestibule of the emergency room entrance at Pitt Memorial Hospital from 3 p.m. Saturday until 1 a.m. Sunday for the next five weeks.

State Highway Patrolman J. B. Surles testified that the car in which the two were riding reached speeds of over 100 miles per hour as he chased it on S. Evans St. last Friday night.

Testimony was that Wooten's car was speeding on South Evans when it was spotted by a patrolman. Wooten was driving a 1957 Ford Mustang when the patrolman began the chase. The car slowed up somewhat at the bypass and the passenger (name unknown to police) jumped from the car and landed safely. When the patrolman ascertained that the man was unhurt he resumed the chase after the fleeing car. It crashed the red light at 14th and Evans Street, turned to the left and disappeared. Later the officer found that Woot-

Pembroke Asks No Extra State Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — The Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee, accustomed to getting requests for more money, did a double take Tuesday.

Dr. Walter J. Gale, president of the Pembroke State College, told the committee he was satisfied with his recommended budget for the next biennium.

"I have no complaints. I brought no brief, no charts, I speak for my entire administrative staff — me," he said. "The chairman of my board is probably fishing. The only reason I came here today was because I was afraid some of you legislative characters I know might try to prune my budget."

Three other state-supported colleges requested capital improvements and operating expenses totaling five million dollars above the amounts recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission for the 1959-61 biennium.

The requests were:

- Dr. John D. Messick, East Carolina College, $2,811,000 in capital improvements, $943,563 in operating expenses.
- Paul A. Reid, Western Carolina College, $668,000 and $344,945.
- Dr. W. H. Plemons, Appalachian State Teachers College, $1,500,000 and $193,016.
- East Carolina's request included $1,199,000 for a gymnasium.

Other major improvements requested included $150,000 for a football field at Appalachian and $668,000 for a swimming pool and student union additions at Western Carolina.

In other legislative developments:

- The House Manufacturing and Labor Committee held a hearing and postponed a vote on a bill to forbid union membership for workers in city, county and state government. Labor spokesmen spoke out strongly against the bill by Rep. Frank Sneed of Mecklenburg.
- The House received legislation to put into effect higher assessments by blue-cured tobacco farmers to support Tobacco Associates Inc. Farmers voted last fall in favor of raising the self-assessment from 10 cents per acre to a limit of $1 per acre.
- The House Committee on Penal Institutions approved a bill to expand the work release law to include felon prisoners serving sentences up to five years. Under existing law, certain misdemeanors

Board Of Health 'Goes To People'

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Health is so dissatisfied with its recommended budget for the next biennium that it has taken its complaint to the people.

The board issued a long statement Tuesday in which it said the public health budget recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission is "inadequate to meet the increasing needs of our people."

The Budget Commission recommended appropriations of $6,064,377 for the board during the biennium. This is $15,000 less than the board requested in its A budget.

Paul A. Reid, Western Carolina College, $668,000 and $344,945.

Dr. W. H. Plemons, Appalachian State Teachers College, $1,500,000 and $193,016.

East Carolina's request included $1,199,000 for a gymnasium.

Other major improvements requested included $150,000 for a football field at Appalachian and $668,000 for a swimming pool and student union additions at Western Carolina.
