Favors A United Germany But On His Own Terms

LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev declared today he wants the unification of Germany with "all my body and soul." But he added that the West must agree to what he considers the proper conditions.

Wednesday, Khrushchev has given the impression that he feels he is making headway in the war of nerves on Germany—and particularly Berlin.

Basically, the Soviet position has not changed—but the 64-year-old Khrushchev has been speaking in two tones.

President And Khrushchev Stress Support For Stands

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev are locked in a strange kind of contest—each trying to convince the other his side is united on the issue of Berlin's future.

day and Thursday. Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said this was coincidental and the President has no present plans for a broadcast.

A proclamation of complete bipartisan support came from the four top leaders—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, both of Texas, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House Republican Leader Charles Halleck of Indiana.

Strikers Receive Stern Warning

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge William Y. Bickett today sternly warned against further violence on the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mill strike picket lines.

The 16-week strike flared into violence when the company reopened its plants Feb. 16. Nighttime explosions, rock throwing, car tipping and the beating of a union official have kept this industrial city on edge since then.

Judge Bickett gave 10 of the 19 jail sentences ranging from 10 to 30 days. Others received jail sentences suspended on payment of fines, and others were fined.

The company and the union have been unable to agree on an arbitration clause in a new contract. The union wants renewed a 14-year-old provision calling for the settling of disputes by arbitration.

The 19 were convicted at trials during the week of violating a court order restraining all persons from violence in the strike, and directing that all persons have free entrance and exit from the mills.

George Baldanzi criticized Hodges for sending 140 highway patrolmen to Henderson, N.C., where workers at the Harriet-Henderson cotton mills have been on strike for 16 weeks.

Meanwhile, company officials and Textile Workers Union of America representatives were standing by for possible calls from government mediators.

The governor originally ordered 40 troopers to Henderson when violence broke out after the mills were reopened Feb. 16 despite the continuing strike.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If you're not worried in times like these, you're neurotic, says Dr. Rollo May, a New York psychologist.

Fast-Drawing Georgia Sheriff Wounds, Captures Desperado

TRENTON, Ga. (AP)—Alabama desperado William E. Smothers was shot down and captured today as he attempted to shoot it out with a Georgia sheriff.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Usually reliable reports reaching here say the Soviet Union has placed large orders for ships with satellite nations to free Soviet shipyards for building modern warships.

Fort Oglethorpe, some 15 miles from the capture scene, Hutchings said his bullet shattered the wanted man's left shoulder but that he did not believe the wound was critical.

The sheriff said, "that's him," pulled up and opened the door. "Smothers threw the gun—the same one he took from the patrolman—in the sheriff's face.

Teach Children How To Spend Money Correctly

RALEIGH—Children and money can be among the most difficult problems for today's parents. Since money is required for more things than 25 years ago, it is more important than ever to train children in the wise use of money, emphasizes Miss Mamie Whisnant, home management specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service. Wise use of money requires practice. Children can't practice unless they actually have some money to handle. Allowances may be the answer. The amount depends on the age and need of the child, but he shouldn't be given money in addition to the set amount, except in rare or unusual circumstances. Authorities agree that generally a child learns the use of money best if he is allowed to make his own decision concerning it. He needs guidance, not dominance. This learning of money management takes time and practice. Every individual must learn to take responsibility in handling money.

Members Tell 'What 4-H Means To Me'

By MONROE WATERS
When I was seven years old I joined the Winterville - Greenville Community 4-H Club, of which my mother was a leader. I started out with one project, gardening. Now, six years later, I am carrying six projects. I also attend County Council meetings. I enjoy County Council for many reasons, but I especially like recreation and working with the Extension Agents. Having attended Camp Manteo two years, I hope to go again this year. This is one of the many activities I really enjoy and I think a 4-H'er would not want to miss. The project I like best is gardening. I have carried this project for six years, and have been a county winner for five of them. This is just an idea of what I do in 4-H. It is similar to what other 4-H's do in our county, state and nation. 4-H, to me, has become a way of life. It is doing things with and for people. To each 4-H'er, 4-H is something different; but to all of us, it is working together to "Make The Best Better".

By SUE FLAKE
4-H has meant a lot to me during the past years. I learn a lot at the meetings we have at school and working on my projects. Last Spring our agents wanted some of us to give a Dairy Foods Demonstration. In this demonstration we found the importance of milk and milk products. It was interesting to watch all the girls that met in Greenville that Saturday morning to give their demonstration. During the summer some of the girls were asked to give their demonstration to various groups. Each member of the 4-H Club chooses a project. I chose Freezing. I learned how to freeze different vegetables. I really enjoyed taking freezing as a project, because it will help me this summer and the years to come to prepare food for the family and my future family.

Passively Condoning Corruption

When civilian absentee ballots in any section of North Carolina are bought and sold to the highest bidder during an election, there can be no justification for continuing the source of this evil in the state's election laws.

It is indeed tragic that in North Carolina absentee ballots are sold for about $100 as Rep. Leonard Lloyd

Wisdom From Mouth Of A Babe Is Ignored

Adults as a whole have long been aware of the wisdom which comes out of the mouths of babes. And they have been adamant in their determination not to follow the sound which often emanates from such sources.

A case in point is the offer the little girl in Miami made to President Eisenhower a few days ago. She offered her life's savings—$61—to the President to be used to help retire the national debt.

She had been keeping the money, she wrote the President, to buy a horse, but had come to the conclusion that "our country is more important than luxury." If the nation was going bankrupt, the 11-year-old said, the horse didn't matter much anyway. Here was her $61 for the nation to use, and the President didn't have to worry about paying it back.

That little girl was genuinely disturbed about the rising national debt of this country. She was determined to do what little she could about the problem even if it meant sacrificing her own property, pleasure and a treasure she had long dreamed of.

What a boon it would be to this nation if a majority of our high officials were as concerned about the national debt as that little Florida girl is.

Fast Action On Par-Clearance

By LYNN NISBET
EXPEDITIOUS — However much criticism may be justified for the slow start in getting down to real work by the General Assembly, none of it can be directed at the handling of the par-clearance bill.

It was introduced in the Senate by Sen. John Jordan of Wake and referred to the committee on banking Monday night. By ten minutes after noon Thursday the committee, of which Sen. Sam Bason of Caswell is chairman, had staged a public hearing and reported the bill unfavorably on the floor of the Senate.

Oldtime could not recall another instance of such speech handling of a measure of this type. And not many of them could remember another instance when a committee vote on a bill was taken on the occasion of a public hearing and in presence of the large audience which had assembled.

The issue of par-clearance of checks or charging recipients of the checks an exchange free for cashing them recurs every session. There was nothing new in this year's offering or in the arguments for and against it. That was why the committee, known in advance to be unfriendly to the mandatory par-clearance idea, voted not to continue the hearing, despite protests of the proponents that they had not been given adequate notice.

On face of the record the protest could not stand up, because more than 200 people in some way heard about the hearing and showed up to oppose the bill. A show of hands indicated less than a dozen in favor of it. Obviously the people who want to continue non-par banking are more active than those who want the practice banned. It is the old fight basically between large banks and small banks—and there are more little ones than big ones.

RAILROADING — The hearing session Thursday was voted by newsmen covering it as an outstanding example of experienced manipulators running rings around novices in the art of politics. The opposition to the bill, which means the friends of non-par banking, quite obviously had the situation well organized. They had seen to it their folks were notified of the hearing. Opponents were hopelessly unorganized and unprepared for the concentrated assault.

Chairman Bason, himself a small town banker, announced that he had called a few friends and told them he had tickets for the basketball game Thursday afternoon—and incidentally advised them about the committee hearing that morning.

Another unusual incident at the committee meeting occurred when Sen. Lunsford of Halifax stepped up to the microphone to make a statement to his committee colleagues—none of whom was more than 100 feet from him—and moved for an unfavorable report. The vote was nine to five for the bill, which means against par-clearance. That ratio was disproportionate to the sentiment of the audience but only the 14 Senators had the right to vote.

The par-clearance idea may have a lot of merit or none at all. Merit was not a real issue before the committee at this meeting. The bill outlawing non-par banking was slated to be killed—and it was. After the meeting someone suggested that if Senator Sam Bason ever has to quit banking as a business he could make a good living running a railroad.

CONFEDERATES — The Legislature is expected to give final approval to extending the corporate life of the Confederate Women's Home at Fayetteville until January 1, 1970. Such a bill sponsored by the Cumberland delegation is in the mill.

When the home was established in 1913 for widows of Confederate Veterans it was given a corporate life of 40 years—until 1953. Ten years ago the time was extended to 1960, and now it is proposed to keep it at least ten years more. Eligibility for admission also has been expanded to include daughters as well as widows of Confederate soldiers.

There are 36 residents in the Home and the budget commission, has recommended maintenance appropriations for the next biennium, indicating purpose to continue it at least beyond the presently set deadline. Also substantial improvements are being made on the physical property, by authorization of the 1957 Legislature.

Under existing laws residents of the Home do not receive the regular Confederate widows' pension their maintenance in the institution amounting to more than the pension allotment. A bill is pending in the Senate to permit Confederate pensioners to receive Federal benefits, recently voted by the Congress. Whether this bill will apply to residents in the Home has not been determined.

asserted was the case in Graham County in the last General Election.

The greater tragedy for North Carolina is that proponents of the bill to do away with absentee ballot are not finding backing in the legislature to kill this election evil.

North Carolinians—and particularly the state's lawmakers—have long been keenly aware of election corruption and fraud which is brought about because the civilian absentee ballot is permitted in general elections in the state. Time and again efforts have been made to abolish this unnecessary law. But until now the efforts have proved fruitless.

How long will North Carolina continue to condone fraud and corruption in its general elections?

By not repealing the civilian absentee ballot law the state legislature every two years at least gives it passive, if not active, approval to the dishonest use made of the absentee ballot to swing an election this way or that.

If the absentee ballot ever made any constructive contribution to good government in North Carolina, that day has long since passed.

There should be a sufficient number of members in the General Assembly sufficiently interested in better government for North Carolina to bring about repeal of the civilian absentee ballot law.

Nikita May Also Be Seeking A Way Out

With cautions, careful steps, Soviet Premier Khrushchev appears to be backing away from a showdown with the West over Berlin on May 27.

The ultimatum issued to the West to abandon Berlin by May 27 was issued by Khrushchev in November. Since that time there has been an alternate ebbing and flooding of the tide of international tension over the Berlin situation. In his latest statement concerning Berlin, Khrushchev reasserted Soviet determination to drive out the Western powers. Yet, he said the May 27 deadline could be changed to June or July, and even indicated a much later date would likewise be acceptable to the Soviet Union under certain circumstances.

This development, coming on the heels of British Prime Minister Macmillan's visit to Moscow is certain to enhance Macmillan's position as spokesman for the West in dealing with Russia. It also suggests that Russia may be anxious to abandon its Berlin ultimatum if a route can be found to do so without the appearance of backing down.

Khrushchev's latest statement could be part of Soviet strategy to lull the West into dreams of false security and thus stymie Western preparations for a showdown at Berlin while the Kremlin prepares for a test of strength. We cannot overlook such a possibility, to be sure.

From present indications, however, it appears that negotiations over the Berlin situation may offer an opportunity for both East and West to avoid conflict as well as undue embarrassment on either side. And it also appears that with each passing day each side is becoming more anxious for such a way out of the dilemma which the Soviet ultimatum of last November brought about.

Double Dent In Ike's Cabinet

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — All in all President Eisenhower has had pretty good luck with the longevity of his Cabinet even though he's had practically two Cabinets in six years.

All but three members of the original Cabinet he picked in 1953 are gone. But most of the men who took their places are still there. The one exception is Marion B. Folsom, who succeeded Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby as secretary of health, education and welfare and in turn was succeeded last year by Arthur S. Flemming.

Now, however, Eisenhower's Cabinet may face a double dent.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, a member of the original Cabinet, is fighting cancer and it is questionable whether he will resume his job. Thursday Neil H. McElroy, secretary of defense, confirmed reports he is leaving sometime this year.

It so happens that Dulles and McElroy — next to Eisenhower himself — are the two most important men in relation to American foreign affairs at a time when this country is facing a critical showdown with the Soviet Union over Germany.

McElroy, 54, told a news conference he planned to resign "toward the end of this year." He is going back into private business where he came in 1957 when Charles E. Wilson quit as secretary.

It has been estimated it would take any outsider like McElroy, going into his defense job, at least 18 months to master his problems and reach the point where he could function at his best.

This would be true if a strict outsider were brought in. But there have been reports that Eisenhower will move Donald A. Quarles, deputy secretary of defense, into the secretary's spot when McElroy says goodbye.

Quarles is no novice in the Pentagon. He has been there quite a while, as deputy secretary since May 1, 1957, and before that as secretary of the air force and assistant secretary of defense.

McElroy will be setting no precedent by resigning the defense secretary's job after a limited stay and at a serious moment.

Gen. George C. Marshall was made secretary of defense by President Truman in September 1950, a few months after the start of the Korean War. He stayed in the job one year, and resigned during the war. Truman reached into the Defense Department for Marshall's successor. He picked Robert A. Lovett, also a businessman, who had been Marshall's deputy secretary of defense.

Truman had pulled Marshall out of retirement — the general had been ill — to help out during the Korean War and Marshall told him his stay in the Pentagon might be temporary.

McElroy said Thursday he had told Eisenhower, when the latter appointed him defense secretary in 1957, that he would want to be relieved before the end of the administration.

But Eisenhower told a news conference Wednesday that McElroy has a sense of duty and: "If things get tighter, well, I just don't think he would for- get."

Actually, if McElroy waits till the end of the year to quit, the crisis over Germany may have flattened out.

Besides Dulles, the only members of Eisenhower's original Cabinet still with him are Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Rendering Unto Caesar

This is a story about a machine that has been working full-time for the N.C. Department of Revenue.

Everybody works for "the government" a good many weeks of every year, but not many privately owned machines share this privilege.

It wasn't exactly planned that way. This is the way it came about: Newspaper people will get thirsty, and water coolers alone won't fill the bill but an occasional chilled soft drink give a lift during the day.

At one time, an old refrigerator obtained to keep darkroom chemicals from deteriorating in the heat of summer was also used to cool soft drinks. But the operation was never entirely satisfactory.

Some genius raised the question "Why not a drink dispenser?" and it sounded logical. After a certain amount of hating the idea back and forth it was broached to the boss. In essence, he said "There's enough headaches in the newspaper field.

I don't want to get involved in selling soft drinks." He had a point.

But something else he said sounded promising. . . that the employees might have a machine installed and run it themselves.

So in the days that followed we thought and talked. In renting a machine there would be some gradually accumulating profits; not much, because sales would be limited to just among ourselves, but over a year profits would mount up. After all, they were intended to show some modest returns.

What to do with that money? Couldn't split it up, because not everybody would be buying drinks; too, some changeover in personnel would be inevitable during a year.

So we would give it away to a charity during the Christmas Season. That way we'd have the drinks we wanted easily available, and there'd be no haggling over what to do with the profits. It seemed a good answer.

The drink dispenser was finally installed with firm understanding The Daily Reflector wasn't connected with it in any way. It was put in the composing room, where only employees would be apt to enter.

By virtue of having an honest face, I acquired the money-handling chores.

This arrangement worked out pretty well, and after a few months' try-out it seemed that instead of paying rent on the machine, our charitable impulses would in the long run be better served by buying. So arrangements were made, and a slightly higher monthly payment out of the machine's take was in order.

By pennies and nickles, the hoardings in my cigar box began to add up. It was slow. Not much profit in soft drinks.

But the revenuers heard about our little operation! A bill for thirty dollars worth of licenses was brought to my attention just about the time a payment was due on the vending machine.

It almost cleaned out my cigar box.

A few weeks later there was word that a sales tax collection was anticipated. But first another dollar for the "business" to be properly registered.

The cigar box is building up weight again, but some offhand estimates of what the sales tax is going to take are pretty grim. Suffice it to say, there won't be much left to count.

As is self-evident, our drink machine is a very small "business". (More properly one could call it a "convenience".) But if you project our drink dispenser business into a larger operation, and proportionately hike the tax load, it makes one wonder how (or why) some retailers keep going.

Of course, ours was a "non-profit" set-up to begin with. And it looks as if the revenuers were making sure it would maintain that status.

The Daily News is not attempting to single out any segment of the citizenry. What we are stressing is the fair and equitable bearing of the tax load and the responsibility of those who owe taxes, under the law, paying them. Poor as North Carolina is, are Tar Heels as poor as Revenue Commissioner Currie's figures make out? The responsibility is for individuals and corporations to file and for revenue officials to dig into the filings if there is any doubt as to accuracy or justification.

Had To Stop Growth

By KENNETH ISHII

TOKYO (AP) — When Yoshimitsu Matsuzaka was born 23 years ago, his parents gave thanks to the Gods for sending them a son.

Yoshimitsu was a big boy, and his proud parents watched him grow. They worried only a little at first when the boy complained of occasional headaches.

But Yoshimitsu grew, and grew, and grew.

Soon his parents' pride turned to alarm, for Yoshimitsu became like a clumsy giraffe, and was about as useful. His height shamed him, and from the sixth grade on he often stayed away from school because was so different from other boys.

Nothing, it seemed, would stop his growth.

By the end of 1956, when he was 20, Yoshimitsu was 7 feet 2 inches tall — and still growing. He weighed 215 pounds but was so skinny and weak he spent most of his time in bed.

Operation Ended Growth Yoshimitsu was taken to a hospital where doctors diagnosed his trouble as gigantism, the abnormal growth of a person's body due to a malfunction of the pituitary gland.

Yoshimitsu has since stopped growing. But he is now 7 feet 6 inches tall and may be the world's tallest living man. He weighs 264 pounds.

Dr. Kentaro Shimizu, a neurosurgeon at Tokyo University Hospital, performed an operation on Yoshimitsu last year to remove an excess of eosinophilic cells in the pituitary gland which control a person's growth. After the operation, his bones hardened and stopped growing.

Yoshimitsu, a gentle, easy-going boy, now works as a handyman at the Shunkai Mental Institution in Yokohama.

"I used to be terribly self-conscious about my height," he said in a recent interview, "but I am not bothered by it any more."

"Of course, there are disadvantages, such as having to stoop when going through doorways, and in getting clothes to fit me."

Going out in public has its problems, too. "I have to ride taxis when I go out," he explained. "I can't ride buses, except when they are almost empty. Not long ago I made the mistake of getting onto a bus that was already partly full. I began getting more crowded at each stop until I got so tangled up I ended up on a fours."

Yoshimitsu laughed at the recollection. "Tires Easily Yoshimitsu has an I.Q. of 100. He eats no much more than the average Japanese. But he tires easily which disqualifies him from sports.

Shunkai supervisors hope eventually to find a useful vocation for Yoshimitsu. Said one: "We had thought of training him to become a painter because he can reach high places that others can't. But this seems doubtful because he isn't likely to become strong enough to keep his arms lifted for any length of time."

Dr. Shimizu says his findings indicate the tallest case ever of gigantism was reported in the United States in 1937 at which time the patient, an 18-year-old was 8 feet 3 1/2 inches.

Shimizu said he didn't know whether he can reach high places after 1957, or even whether he is still living.

Yoshimitsu ranks second on this list. "But Yoshimitsu doesn't care about being famous. 'I want to live a normal life and be part of society,'" he said.

Opinions In Brief

"This country won't a revolution against overwhelming odds and became a nation because a good percentage of its citizens felt an almost religious devotion to personal liberty and principle of government and private property ownership that make it work. The system which evolved needs no apologies—it should be shown by its deeds in every category of human judgment—spiritual, cultural and material." —Industrial News Review.

"Neither the Administration nor Congress can control spending because nobody can control the budget." —Wall Street Journal.

SAFE DRIVING TIP

Backing into a curbside parking space on a busy street requires a sharp look-out through the rear window for approaching traffic.

Often in crowded districts the driver following you does not know you are going to park, the Chicago Motor Club points out, so be sure to signal him.

Don't forget that when backing into a parking place, the left front fender of your car will jut into the adjoining traffic lane. Wait for an opening before starting the rearward swing.

A Field Of Commercial Bribery

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is a rising resentment against most commercial bribery. In the last decade, many states have strengthened their laws against it. There have been a number of arrests of buyers who accepted kickbacks for favoring certain suppliers.

The Federal Trade Commission has cracked down on companies who have bribed retailers with special discounts, or extra advertising allowances or paid demonstrators.

But in one field commercial bribery flourishes openly. In fact, it is boisterous about.

In this field chambers of commerce, civic groups and even cities and states offer bribes to businesses to transfer operations, or to start new operations, in their regions.

The sobornos offered by the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico are perhaps the best known, though not necessarily the most generous. They consist of tremendous tax advantages.

They have the virtues of being offered only new plants, and of retarding a desperate economic situation on the island. The Puerto Ricans won't bribe away a plant already established in your town, but they will probably offer a proposed new plant a better deal than your chamber of commerce can put up.

THE CURRENCY

Mainland communities, unable to offer income tax advantages, try to attract businesses to move in with exemption of most or all property taxes, land and building free or at nominal rents, financing at low interest rates; water and power at low rates, and considerable entertainment.

Some offer a "favorable labor climate" which means that the local boys aren't organized and that the local constabulary takes a dim view of out-of-town organizers.

These mainland bidders, unlike their Puerto Rican competitors, don't confine themselves to proven plants. In fact, they favor those with established payrolls and markets.

Two business executives have recently shown the courage to speak out against this form of commercial bribery.

WARY OF PROPOSITIONS Robert L. Wolf, director of area development for the Ohio Power Co., told the Great Lakes Industrial Development Council that "extraordinary tactics" are employed by states outside the Great Lakes region in attracting new industry with "questionable results."

Frank L. Willis, treasurer of Eberhard Faber Pencil Co., told the American Management Association that manufacturers should avoid "free deals" and the "entertainment sell" offered by groups seeking to attract industry to their towns.

Mr. Wolf complained that competitors were frequently able to get expansion funds easier or quicker than his company.

He said that in addition to gifts of lands and buildings, and tax exemptions, the management of small, high-risk industries with poor financial histories often expect a community to provide both equity and working capital. Even sound, large industrial companies often ask for community financing.

He also warned that distressed communities, unable to raise money to lure new industries, would seek state and Federal funds. This, he said, can lead to socialization of credit.

Mr. Willis said "free deals" often may prove costly in the long run. He advised industrial explorers to beware of "the entertainment sell" by local committees, as you are likely to end up with a poorly located plant as well as a hangover."

His own company moved from Brooklyn to Wilkes Barre two years ago. This was done, he said, to get space for an efficient one-story plant on a seven-acre site. Such a site would have been prohibitively costly in Brooklyn.

BUSINESS MERGERS BRING STRANGE INTERGRATIONS Sigurd Anderson, Federal Trade Commissioner, listed these strange bedfellows in corporate mergers in the last few years:

A malt producer and a manufacturer of transformers; a manufacturer of undergarments and a hotel construction company; a manufacturer of fuel system accessories and a maker of fishing lines; a textile manufacturer and a metal-working machinery company; and a tire manufacturer and a motion picture producer.

Tar Heels, State Tangle In ACC Tournament Finale

By KEN ALTYA

RALEIGH (AP)—There's no NCAA tournament pressure in tonight's Atlantic Coast Conference tournament finale between North Carolina and N.C. State.

North Carolina's Tar Heels beat Duke 74-71 in last night's semifinals and clinched a berth to play against Navy in the last game of a Tuesday night triple-header in the Eastern NCAA playoff at New York.

All the Tar Heels have to do tonight is show up against State, 66-63 winner over Virginia in its semifinal test.

State, serving the third year of a four-year probation the NCAA imposed for a basketball recruiting violation, is ineligible for the post-season play.

But there will be another kind of pressure—as there always is when these rivals meet. In two regular season games they met with one of the clubs ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Back in January Coach Everett Case had his State Wolfpack on top when they lost a 72-68 overtime decision here. A month later the game was played at Chapel Hill and this time North Carolina was No. 1. Frank McGuire's team again won, 74-67, but dropped games to Maryland and Virginia in its next two outings.

Currently North Carolina has the fifth spot in the ratings and N.C. State is 10th.

State was in a similar spot regarding the NCAA meet four years ago. The Pack whipped Duke by 10 points in the tourney finals, but stayed home while Duke went on to New York and lost to Villanova by a point.

North Carolina and State present contrasting lineups. State starts four seniors and a junior, including 6-8 John Richter, conference scoring and rebounding king.

North Carolina uses three juniors and two sophs as its starters. The Tar Heels "Mr. Inside" and "Mr. Outside" were prominent in the conquest of Duke. Lee Shaffer, 6-7 junior, scored 23 points with his great work around in close and corralled 11 rebounds. Soph York Larese hit 19 points. Another soph, Doug Moore, limited Howard Hurt, the top Duke scorer, to 7 points.

Carroll Youngkin's 21 points and 18 by John Frye, 14 in the last four minutes, were Duke's best. North Carolina raced from behind 10-5 to lead 39-28 at the half. Duke went 10 minutes without a basket in the mid stages of the first half.

After pulling up to within a point early in the last half, Duke again went cold, scoring only two baskets in eight minutes.

State gave the sellout crowd of 12,400 a charge with a belated drive to edge Virginia. A layup with 2:45 left by Bob MacGillivray put State in front 60-58. They never lost the lead.

Virginia, hot from outside early in the game, grabbed an early 22-14 lead, then fell behind at the half 39-35.

The score was knafged seven times in the last half before MacGillivray took charge.

Four men hit in double figures for State, George Stepanovich and Richter heading the parade with 16 each. MacGillivray was one behind.

Paul Adkins, with 19, and Herb Busch, with 16, were the Cavalier leaders.

Top Football Trophies Go To Perry, Emory

Bobby Perry of Greenville and Ed Emory of Lancaster, S.C. took top football honors at the annual East Carolina College Football Banquet held at the new ECC cafeteria last night.

Perry, a senior and All-Conference halfback, was awarded "The Most Valuable Player" trophy and also the trophy for "The Outstanding Senior."

The 165 pound Greenville native returned from service in time to play in ECC's opening game this past fall and immediately became a big factor in the Buc's return to the winning trail.

Ed Emory, rugged 215-pound guard, received the trophy for "The Best Blocker." The South Carolina native is a junior and was an All-Conference selection last season.

Ercel Webb, local golfer, was the guest speaker of the evening and was introduced by Reynolds May, Dr. J. D. Messick, president of the college, gave the closing remarks and Dr. Leo Jenkins presided over the banquet.

The banquet opened a weekend of off-season football activity. The ECC squad climaxed their winter drills with an annual battle against the old grads this afternoon at College Stadium. Randle Coach Jack Boone gave recognition of the football squad and also presented the senior awards. Boone cited to the large group that only six boys were lost from the squad. The head coach noted that their presence would be missed but it was a change from past years when as many as 22 varsity men had been lost by one way or another.

Seniors receiving awards last night were Charlie Bishop, Lee Atkinson, Tommy Nash, Randle Holmes, Perry Pearson, and Bobby Perry. Pearson was a tackle, Holmes an end, and the other four were halfbacks.

Dan Spain presented the Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity, award which went to "The Most Valuable Player." Gordon Sturm awarded the Pitt Theatre Trophy which went to "The Best Blocker," and Dr. Grover W. Everett presented the Dr. F. E. Lansche Trophy to the outstanding senior member of the squad.

Praise for East Carolina's athletic program was accompanied by a challenge to citizens of the area to do something about providing better stadium facilities for football contests here, in the address of Ercel S. Webb, principal speaker at the dinner.

Webb cited the Greenville-Pitt County area's good fortune in having the college in this community, noting its "assets to the culture, academic, sports and economic life of the citizens of this area."

The speaker acclaimed the "courage, ability and drive of Dr. J. D. Messick, as college president, in providing leadership for East Carolina."

Turning to the values of athletics in training in good sportsmanship, physical fitness, and mental alertness, Webb had words of praise for players and coaches at the college, noting also that the coaches also assume an active role in civic and community projects.

In the closing portion of his address, Webb said that as East Carolina steps up its athletic program, it must keep in mind the need for better facilities for spectators who attend athletic events in larger numbers, and "a better stadium is one of the college's needs."

Webb was presented by Reynolds May, Greenville business leader and sportsman.

Concluding the program, Dr. Messick urged players to become aware of the opportunities for improving play in competitive sports and participation in all phases of community activities.

Kluszewski Says Back Is Ready For Job Ahead

By JIM KENSIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

Ted Kluszewski, as famed for his big back as his big bat, says he's in shape and ready to be the Pittsburgh Pirates' regular first baseman.

Dick Stuart, who took Klu's job last season, says if he plays regularly and hits 30 homers the Pirates will win the National League pennant.

Rocky Nelson, a minor league phenom who has flopped six times in the majors, says he'd like to help the Pirates in some category.

Manager Danny Murtaugh ain't sayin'.

But it's a safe bet that one of these three first basemen is the man Murtaugh is expecting to make up for the batting power Frank Thomas took with him to Cincinnati. The right-handed Thomas, traded for left-handed pitching strength, homered 35 times for the Pirates and had 109 RBI.

The Pirates, as well as the other 15 major league clubs, opened the exhibition season today in Florida and Arizona.

And at Ft. Myers, Fla., where the Pirates entertained Milwaukee, Braves Manager Fred Haney was to take a good look at Casey Wise and Chuck Cottier.

They are two of seven assorted infielders seeking the second base job left glaringly vacant when Red Schoendienst was hospitalized with tuberculosis.

Haney placed Wise and Cottier on the traveling squad, one of two equal Brave training units.

Other exhibition openers today were Cincinnati vs. Chicago White Sox at Tampa, Philadelphia vs. Los Angeles at Sarasota, St. Louis vs. New York at St. Petersburg, Chicago Cubs vs. Boston at Mesa, San Francisco vs. Cleveland at Tucson, Baltimore vs. Kansas City at West Palm Beach and Detroit vs. Washington at Orlando.

Douglas will play England's Michael Davies for the championship. Davies beat Antonio Palafox of Mexico 6-1, 6-2 in the finals.

Delany Celebrating Anniversary In Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Ron Delany celebrates an important anniversary tonight, but Hungary's Istvan Rozsavolnti wants no part of it. In fact, he'd like to spoil the celebration.

Delany, Ireland's Olympic 1,500-meter champion, won his first indoor race in the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square Garden exactly four years ago.

Ron was a Villanova freshman then and he upset Tom Courtney in the 1,000-yard run. Courtney, of course, later won the Olympic 800 meters for the United States.

Since then Delany has won 36 consecutive indoor victories, 30 of them at the mile.

Big Ten Wants Rose Bowl Play

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—The Big Ten has cleared its decks for continuing in the Rose Bowl football game.

By a majority vote believed to be 6-4 or 7-3 the conference, which has won 12 of the last 13 Pasadena New Years Day classics, flashed the green light for continuation beyond the 1960 game.

The exploratory ballot was taken by faculty representatives and athletic directors in their annual spring meeting Friday. The matter now must go before each Big Ten faculty council for certification and then be voted on officially in the conference's meetings at the University of Michigan, May 21-23.

The vote of sentiment makes way for the Association of Western Universities, successor to the Pacific Coast Conference and the Tournament of Roses Committee, to issue a formal Rose Bowl invitation. It is believed this has not yet been done because the Big Ten first had to clear the air on how it stood.

"We presume that the AWU and Tournament of Roses stand ready to negotiate a new Rose Bowl contract," said Asst. Big Ten Commissioner Bill Reed.

The PCC served notice on the Big Ten last August that its indefinite term Rose Bowl contract would expire because the PCC dissolves officially this June 1. The 1960 game will be played under a contractual trusteeship of the PCC.

The AWU consists of Southern California, Washington, UCLA and California.

World Shotput Mark Endangered

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The world shotput record was endangered today as champion Parry O'Brien and challenger Dallas Long, freshman at the University of Southern California, competed in the same meet.

The two were feature-O'Brien in the open division and Long in the collegiate—at the Southern Pacific AAU track and field meet at East Los Angeles Junior College.

A week ago Long, from Phoenix, Ariz., electrified spectators—and O'Brien—with a throw measured unofficially at 63 feet 4 inches.

O'Brien quickly changed into a track suit and got off a putt of 64 feet and better.

Neither could be considered as a record because the terrain sloped at the point of landing. O'Brien holds the accepted world mark of 63 feet 2 inches.

VMI Is Team To Beat In Final Day Of Swim Meet

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—Host Virginia Military is the team to beat today, the final day of the Southern Conference swimming championships.

With 6 of the 15 events remaining, the Keydets, defending champions, had 56 points to 48 for surprising Virginia Tech and 42 for The Citadel, figured to win the title.

Next in line were Davidson, 33 points; William and Mary, 23, and West Virginia, 15. Furman, George Washington and Richmond did not enter the meet.

VMI and Virginia Tech each took three of Friday's eight events. Tech was strong in the one-meter diving. The Gobblers' John Blondell finished first and teammate Vance Lyman was second.

The only double winner was Bob Grossman of Virginia Tech in the 100-yard breaststroke and the 200-yard individual medley.

ASSISTANT COACH—A high school coach, Charlie Knox, 27, of Elwood City, Pa., has been named assistant football coach at Wake Forest College.

He succeeds Jim Hietikko, who resigned to enter private business. Knox was graduated from Juniata College in Pennsylvania.

Redl Earns Draw And Mild Rhubarb In Ten-Rounder

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A fight that didn't have much significance stirred up a mild rhubarb today.

Stefan Redl, a stocky, 5-5 welterweight from Passaic, N.J., and unbeaten Eddie Jordan, a skinny 5-10 newcomer from Brooklyn, battled to a draw in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden last night. Jordan rallied strongly to gain the tie.

The verdict made Redl and his manager, Carl Duva, howling mad. It made Jordan happy.

Duva was so burned up after the decision was announced that he tore across the ring, hollering with every step:

"Where's the commissioner? What kind of a decision is that?"

Somewhat calmed down later, Duva said he planned to protest to the commission Monday but not over the decision.

"I'm going to protest the handling of the fight by Referee Al Beri," he said. "I'm not going to protest the decision although Redl won decisively. Every time the referee broke them he threw Redl across the ring."

Beri, who had warned both fighters several times to stop holding, left quickly after the fight and couldn't be reached for comment.

He voted for Jordan, 6-4. Judge Artie Schwartz had Redl ahead, 7-2-1. Judge Bill Recht had it exactly even, 4-4-2 and four points for each. The AP card had Redl in front, 6-4.

Most of the 2,500 fans who paid to see the $5,000 cheered the vote for Jordan, a sub and a 7-5 underdog. Eleven of 14 boxing writers thought Redl won.

The draw was a good break for the 23-year-old Jordan, subbing for injured Gaspar Ortega. The bout marked his Garden and national television debut and the result stretched his unbeaten record to 16 and three draws. Redl's record is 22-3-1.

Writers Back Weaver's Stand

RALEIGH (AP)—The Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Assn. has backed up Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver, saying he has conducted his office "with unselfish dedication and under the most delicate circumstances."

The 108-member group approved a resolution stating Weaver "has struck with the laudable courage of his convictions to uphold the finest principles of intercollegiate athletics, always in-keeping with the code of true sportsmanship."

The sports writers passed the resolution at their annual ACC Basketball Tournament Week luncheon meeting.

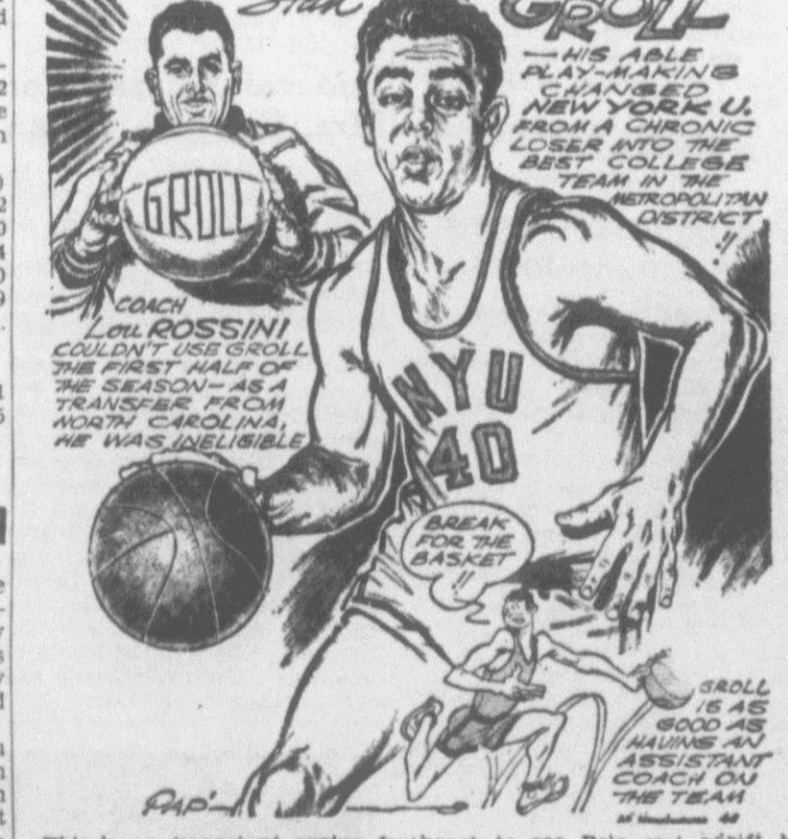

They elected Jim Anderson, Greenville, S.C., News sports editor, as their new president. Other new officers:

Vice presidents, Wilton Garrison, Charlotte Observer; Joe Blair, University of Maryland sports publicist; Johnny Martin, Anderson, S.C., Mail; Dick Turner, University of Virginia sports publicist; and executive secretary, Dick Herbert, Raleigh News and Observer sports editor.

Before passing its resolution, the group heard ACC President Mortimer Caplin of the University of Virginia say that conference faculty chairmen appreciated the work of Weaver. Caplin is the Virginia faculty chairman.

The action came after North Carolina Basketball Coach Frank McGuire told his alumni Weaver was "prejudiced." McGuire's remark was an outgrowth of Weaver's ruling on a fight during the North Carolina-Wake Forest basketball game at Winston-Salem.

This is an important spring for Pete Burnside. The 28-year-old southpaw feels that it is high time he made the grade in the big show and is making a determined bid to stick with the Tigers. Pete has his work cut out for him because Detroit is loaded with pitching talent this Spring. At least, Burnside will be ready for a fast start following his highly successful efforts in winter baseball in Puerto Rico where he won nine games and posted 103 strikeouts to shape up as just about the best left-hander in action there.

Burnside is all the more determined to make the grade with Detroit because he wants to prove that the San Francisco Giants gave up on him too soon. Pete had three trials with the Giants following impressive minor league performances, but he flunked out. One thing is certain, Burnside had his share of opportunities to stick with the Giants. It must have broken Charles (Chub) Feeney's heart to see Pete cast adrift by the Giants. Chub is vice-president of the Giants and a Dartmouth graduate. Burnside was signed by the Giants in 1949 after he was graduated from Dartmouth. Feeney made quite a to-do about the Giants' snaring the star pitcher from his old school, and nothing would have pleased him more than to see Burnside develop into a star with the Giants.

Burnside won 11 games for Phoenix last season to help the club win the Pacific Coast League pennant. He fanned 113 batters in 152 innings and showed improvement in his control, something much desired in the past. Pete could be one of those late-developing southpaws. Many a lefthander has just found himself in the late twenties—even early thirties, and gone on to many winning seasons. Pete Burnside is the "dark horse" of the candidates seeking Tiger pitching berths.

On The High School Front: A Panelist ... Safety ... Parade

By CATHERINE MOORE
Teenage Writer

Conducting one panel discussion and serving on another panel, Coach Odell L. Welborn journeyed to Houston, Texas, recently for the 27th Annual Convention of the Southern District, American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The delegates met February 24-27.

Welborn served as chairman of the School Health Section, a part of the overall theme of the convention—"Fitness for Leadership in the Space Age."

Along with eight others, Welborn also served as a panelist Thursday morning. The group discussed "Contributions of Health Education to Fitness for Leadership in the Space Age."

Safety Student Speaks
Wednesday morning, George Tukesbury, representing one of the United States' insurance companies, spoke on highway safety to the student body. He described himself as a national student of safety.

Tukesbury drew a laugh from the group when he told them that he had heard that a speaker should "stand up and be seen, speak up and be heard, and sit down and be appreciated."

The speaker later stated the purpose of the forthcoming demonstration to conduct a laboratory test on safety. Two students, a faculty member, and a city policeman would drive the specially-equipped test car.

Before going outside, Tukesbury admonished the students to drive safely. He told them, that according to his figures, in the future automobile accidents would kill seven of the group hearing him then, permanently injure 20, and temporarily injure 230. He stated that as speed goes up, their chances of living, in case of an accident, go down.

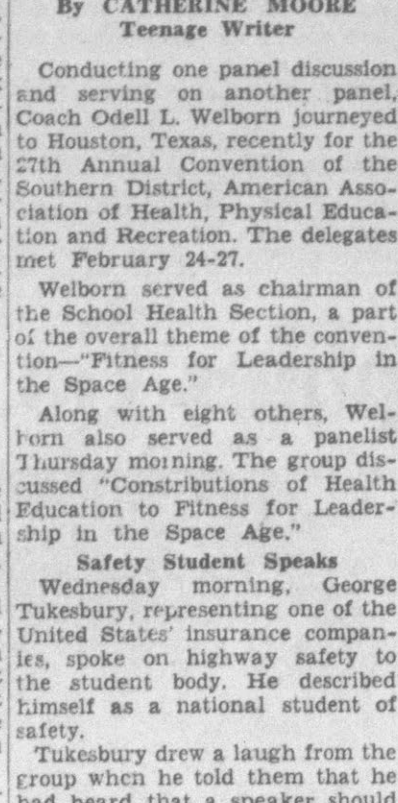

Howard Garner, Student Cooperative Association president, drove first, chalking up a reaction distance of 14 feet, 10 inches; a breaking distance of 20 feet, 5 inches; and a total stopping distance of 35 feet, 3 inches. All of these beat the averages—for his speed of 20 miles per hour—reaction distance of 22 feet; breaking distance, 22 feet; and total stopping distance, 44 feet.

Sara Smiley, senior, drove the same. The paint marks marked her distance of reaction, 16 feet, 8 inches; breaking distance of 22 feet, 3 inches; and total stopping distance, 38 feet, 11 inches.

As Coach Roland B. Farley, the faculty driver, started toward Elm Street, Tukesbury stuck his hand out the window, showing crossed fingers, and announced over the public address system of the car, "We never worry when we have a faculty member at the wheel!"

Coach Farley's distance included reaction, 25 feet, 11 inches; breaking, 46 feet, 11 inches; and total stopping, 72 feet, breaking the average for his 30 mile-per-hour speed of 33, 50, and 83 feet, respectively.

J. B. Cannon, Greenville police officer, drove last, besting the 40-mile-per-hour distance averages of good teacher.

They told the club that a teacher must have physical vitality, mental vigor, moral discrimination, a wholesome personality, helpfulness, knowledge, and leadership.

Betty Bryant, Virginia LeConte, Lynda Hunning, and Alvane Bass spoke on these various qualities that a teacher should have.

Dance Honors Basketers
Last night students attended a dance given in honor of the 1958-1959 basketball team. The players and their dates were admitted free. Prior to the dance, the mothers of the team gave a supper for the boys and their dates.

Teachers Entertain Students
Miss Carolyn Matthews, girls' physical education instructor, and Rita Mann and Sylvia Beasley, physical education student teachers, during last quarter, entertained all of Miss Matthews' classes February 26 at the Alumni House at East Carolina College. Approximately 75 girls attended.

Each class gave a gift to their own student teacher. Miss Mann received jewelry; Miss Beasley, perfume and jewelry.

The classes also presented Miss Matthews with a copy of "Leaves of Gold."

Mrs. Rachel Welborn also attended.

reaction, 44 feet; breaking, 88 feet; and total stopping, 132 feet with his 26 feet, 4 inches; 82 feet, 3 inches; and 109 feet, 11 inches, respectively.

Guests included S. G. Gibbs, city police chief; Officer Cannon; Claude Kidd, insurance company representative; and F. P. Cade, Grover Tice, and W. K. Chapman.

P.T.A. See Parade
Members of the high school Parent-Teacher Association viewed a "Parade of Progress" Thursday night. Most of the school clubs and activities participated.

Billy Cox and Donna Day Bissette announced the program. Junius H. Rose, superintendent of city schools; Orren E. Dowd, high school principal; and Betty Lane Evans, Miss North Carolina, head of the parade; each spoke briefly to the audience before taking their places in the reviewer's stand.

Humor showed up early in the program when Billy announced that Mr. Rose was entering followed by Mr. Dowd. No one had informed him that the two had switched positions.

Later Donna Day gave the mike a hard whack when it insisted on cutting on and off while she and Billy were talking.

Billy really added the spice to the program, however, when The Green Lights staff entered. Saying his line, "These students can smell a story a mile away," before the preceding one he was at a loss for another line and so ended with "They can really smell!"

Representatives from practically all of the school's organizations and athletic teams, as well as the homecoming queen, and Mr. and Mrs. School Spirit, paraded before the spectators and reviewers.

P.T.A. Hears Panel
Tuesday night four members of the Future Teachers of America discussed the characteristics of a

Jayne Mansfield Plans Drop Dizzy Blonde Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — No more the dizzy blonde for Jayne Mansfield.

"All the studio can see me in comedies," Jayne complains. "In my earlier career, I did serious roles almost entirely. I studied drama at the University of Texas and UCLA. One of the best pictures I did was a little movie called 'The Burglar,' which was a drama."

Jayne would also like to play Las Vegas, where she and Mickey Hargitay sold out the Tropicana for eight weeks. At $25,000 per week, she figures there's no other way they can make so much moola so fast.

"But the studio won't let me go," she said. "They say they have other plans for me. One of them is to go to Australia to publicize 'The Sheriff of Fractured Jaw.'"

Can Australia take it?
Debbie Reynolds is making the break from comedy. Of course, it won't be until four pictures hence, but she'll get there. After her heavy schedule of comedies, she will play a drama opposite Tony Curtis in "The Rat Race."

"It's the first dramatic part I've ever had, and I want to study for it," she says. "Comedy comes easy to me, because that is my nature. So I need time to prepare for a drama."

Anthony Quinn was asked if he would have any part in possible plans to perpetuate the production company of his father-in-law, Cecil B. De Mille.

"No, I was just an employee when I directed 'The Buccaneer,'" he replied. "I don't think anyone will be able to re-create the type of picture he did. He was the original and only. When he died, the mold was broken."

"I think that was the trouble with 'The Buccaneer.' It should have been an Anthony Quinn picture or a Henry Wallace (the producer) picture. Instead, it tried to be a De Mille picture, and no one could get away with it but him."

Firemen Answer 36 Fire Alarms

Packhouse Burns On Pitt Farm

A packhouse on the Old River Road was burned to the ground shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Greenville firemen who were called said some hay and farm equipment were lost with the barn.

The farm is owned by Media Teel and operated by Art Luther Clemons.

Firemen went down nearby buildings to keep the flames from spreading. However, they said the packhouse was beyond saving when they arrived.

Shortly before 7 p. m. a truck was sent to the home of David Dixon at 1110A Cotanche St. when a stove overheated. There was no damage, firemen reported.

Three Charged With Assault

Three persons were charged after the Rescue ambulance was called to the Airport Rd. last night to transport a man with head and arm injuries to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

GREENVILLE'S WEST END CIRCLE . . . major link in belt line around and through sections of the city. (Police Department Photo)

FIRST ST. . . will serve as feeder for business district.

Traffic Is A Continuing Problem

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

It's no secret that Greenville's older streets are woefully inadequate for the ever increasing volume of traffic which they must handle.

The city's thoroughfares, including Evans St., were laid out in the days of the horse and buggy. Those who developed the town never dreamed that Greenville would grow to the size it is today and if they had been told of a horseless carriage, it would have brought only an incredulous laugh.

So, room enough for two buggies to pass on business streets with a hitching area along each side, together with an adequate sidewalk was sufficient for Greenville's early days.

In residential areas even less street right-of-way was needed. After all, only a few horse drawn vehicles passed along the residential streets in a day's time.

But the years passed by and as the 20th century came on the scene, Henry Ford began mass producing his Ford automobiles. It brought a new way of life for the American public.

But it also laid the groundwork for king size traffic problems to be solved by thousands of municipalities, large and small, across the nation.

Greenville is no exception. In fact local officials, as the wrestle with the ever increasing traffic flow, wonder if Greenville doesn't have worse problems than its neighboring towns.

The city's business area streets had reached a point where adequate movement of traffic was becoming impossible when city officials decided in 1952 something had to be done.

So they instituted a system of one-way streets which, though they brought howls of protests from some citizens, solved the downtown traffic problem for a time.

Now, says City Manager Leonard Bloxam, police traffic counts indicate that if it weren't for the one-way system in the downtown area, traffic which moves through the area simply couldn't be handled.

"It would be such an utter state of confusion you would have to throw up your hands," he declared.

Apparently nothing could be done to obtain more width along Evans.

"The futility of it all is that the sidewalks are not wide enough to allow you to take any for the streets," Bloxam said. And the buildings along business streets can't be moved back to make additional right-of-way room.

"We are stuck unless you spend considerable money acquiring fronts of buildings to put additional widths in the streets."

However, city planners are now working on projects which will alleviate problems when the one-way streets become inadequate.

"The salvation of the business district will be sufficient width feeder streets and adequate off-street parking," Bloxam declared.

The day could come when all parking would have to be abolished on Main St. and the shopper's autos parked in off-street lots.

The city now has an adequate off-street parking program with five metered municipally operated lots scattered about the business area. Even though present off-street parking is adequate, the situation will be reviewed as the area's needs change, according to Bloxam.

As for adequate feeder streets, city officials are gradually widening certain streets at critical spots. Thus a pattern has been set at Tenth and Cotanche Sts. where an additional lane has been added for block on Tenth. On Evans curbs have been moved back on several blocks to set a possible future pattern.

Cotanche from Second to Third was widened several years ago which it is hoped will set a future pattern for that through street.

The city is also in the process of opening First St. from Greene to Woodlawn Ave. which will give another feeder street for the business area and also give through traffic a route around the business section.

Something else which might help on local streets, but which has not met with much success so far locally would be set back lines.

"Many cities and communities have met with much success with these set-back lines in that as building conditions change new buildings can be moved back to make more right-of-way available for streets," Bloxam says.

How about the future? Will streets now being opened in rapidly expanding new areas of the city present similar problems to today's in years to come?

There might be problems, but the city now is able to plan new areas they open, through its subdivision ordinance.

Plats or maps of new subdivisions must be submitted to the Planning-Zoning Commission for approval and then to the City Council for final approval before they can be developed.

The Planning-Zoning Commission came in to being in 1947 — only 12 years ago — with subdivision ordinances being adopted a few years later.

Prior to that time anyone who wished to develop property within or adjacent to the city, could open the streets in any pattern and make them any width he wished.

Now the city can require subdividers to provide adequate through rights-of-way and to conform with a general over all city street pattern.

If the city continues to grow as it has a major four-lane boulevard could be developed through the new residential areas simply by following present highway bypass rights-of-way.

Already, new residential sections have engulfed the bypasses in section, although when they were built only a few years ago they were in rural areas.

The boulevard would follow the N.C. 11-U.S. 13 and the U.S. 264 bypass to the old 264 east of Greenville. That much of the route already has adequate right-of-way for four lanes. Then there has been talk of someday constructing a bridge east of the city from the 264 bypass intersection to take traffic across the river.

The day when such a route will be a reality might not be as far in the future as one might think. A part of it is already four lane, from the new Memorial Drive bridge west of Greenville to West End Circle. Work is now underway to convert the present N.C. 11 from West End Circle to the South 11 Theatre (at the U.S. 264 intersection) into four lanes.

Greenville is enveloping the bypass system so rapidly that Bloxam feels it will be only a matter of time before another highway bypass system will have to be constructed beyond the present one. Such a system would probably have a 200-foot right-of-way instead of the 100-foot width used in the present system.

It wouldn't be the first time that Greenville had outgrown its bypasses. It was little more than 20 years ago that E. Tenth St. was opened by the state highway department to take U.S. 264 traffic off Fifth St. With the end of World War II business and residential area grew up along the route and within a few years the new bypass was built. Now several subdivisions have been opened beyond that bypass.

An important part of the city's street planning will be what the State Highway Department will do in future years as far as roads leading into and around the city are concerned.

The state has made up long range plans for the future and they are to be presented to the City Council and Planning-Zoning Commission Monday morning. The city will offer its approval or suggestions for improvements of the preliminary plans.

That and other plans which the city has for its interior streets will become a part of over-all plans for the future.

Immediately after the installation sermon Dr. Allen will conduct the Act of Dedication with the minister making his response and the congregation re-affirming their loyalty and support.

The boy apparently was playing on the back steps of his home when he fell into the open pail. He was found by his parents five minutes later, head down in more than a foot of water.

Ex-Sen. Guffey Dies In Night

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, a Democratic stalwart during the New Deal era, died Friday night of a heart ailment at the age of 88.

Guffey, a power in Pennsylvania politics for decades, had lived in Washington since losing his Senate seat in the 1946 Republican landslide.

He died a few hours after being taken to Doctors Hospital. Relatives said he had been having heart trouble for the past two weeks.

Guffey, who made politics both a hobby and a career, never married. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, and four nephews.

Born near Pittsburgh on Dec. 29, 1870, Guffey began his rise to political prominence in 1912 when he took a gamble that paid off.

Breaking with his uncle, Col. J. M. Guffey, veteran Pennsylvania Democratic leader, Guffey backed his former Princeton University professor, Woodrow Wilson for the presidency.

Wilson won both the nomination and the election and Guffey became a power in the party.

Now His Wife Is Against Him

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Last week jeweler Richard Paulisch asked juvenile authorities to protect him against three of his teenage sons. He accused them of throwing rocks at him.

The boys, 13, 15 and 16, were taken to Juvenile Hall. The next day, Friday, his wife Wilma, 46, packed her bags and left home with their three other children, 6, 11 and 13.

Now she has filed for a divorce, charging her husband with extreme cruelty and asking custody of the six children. Paulisch described his three elder sons as "incorrigible hoodlums."

The three sons taken to Juvenile Hall were released to their mother's care pending a court hearing next Thursday.

Former Premier Of Japan Dies

TOKYO (AP) — Ichiro Hatoyama, 76, crippled former prime minister who helped restore Japan's postwar diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, died today of a heart attack.

Hatoyama, prime minister three times from December 1954 to December 1956, died at his Tokyo home before a doctor could arrive after he had suffered severe chest pains.

He had been in poor health since he suffered a stroke in 1951. It left him partially paralyzed and with a slight speech impediment.

In 1956 he made a sudden trip to Moscow and returned with a World War II peace agreement, signed a short time later in Tokyo. A formal treaty is still pending.

Hatoyama was considered a firm friend of the West.

The ailing politician was instrumental in forming the Liberal-Democrat party in 1955 from two quarreling conservative factions. It still is the ruling party in Japan under Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi.

Hatoyama sat out World War II in the mountain resort of Karuzawa.

In 1946 he was elected Japan's first postwar premier but was purged by U.S. occupation authorities as he was about to take office.

His removal was based on pre-war writings praising Italian dictator Benito Mussolini. Years later Hatoyama said they were ghost written.

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR BY C.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 10 Sir Luke was down on the passenger list as Horace James, a gentleman of property stricken during a tour of his colonial holdings. His doctor, we were told, had prescribed a voyage to India to cure his agues. He had engaged one of the two best cabins aboard, with a sliding panel that opened to my own. Senhorita Damoa's quarters were across the wardrobe — a large airy cabin with a second door that led to the quarter-deck itself.

name of Hans. A veteran of the Indian Ocean, he could also be trusted to handle a watch in easy weather. If I mention these preparations in some detail, it is only because of their bearing on future events. For the present, I was truly pleased with my crew — and positive that the Pilgrim Venture would prove as happy as she was well founded. When we left McLane's slip at last, on a bright morning in July, with an outgoing tide to speed our passage and a spanking summer breeze on our quarter, I was among the most contented of mortals. It was only when we were standing out to sea that I recalled it was considered bad luck to begin a sea voyage in ideal weather. Most mariners prefer to go from storm to clearing skies, on the theory that a bad start means fair sailing ahead.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSBERG March usually is dull because people always wait for the weather to break and so often it doesn't. One thing we'll guarantee, though — it will be balmy at the end of the month because it sure has come in like a lion. . . . Aside from Easter on the closing Sunday, we'll note the following: Girl Scout Week begins the 8th, and the Camp Fire Girls were founded on the 17th. St. Patrick's Day — not that one thing has anything to do with the other — Speaking of St. Patrick, from Macmillan comes news that Mr. Nigel Fitzgerald (an old Italian name) of County Mayo has just written a murder mystery called "Midsommer Malice," concerned with doings of a theatrical company in the Irish town of Cahermore. Publication date — you've guessed it — is March 17. . . .
