RECEIVING STATION SITE WEST OF GREENVILLE

Most Land Owners Notified

Voice of America officials today pinpointed the three sites to be used for the new $26 million VOA facilities in this area. Two of the sites including some 3,200 acres are located in Pitt County and the third site of approximately 2,700 acres is in Beaufort County at Leggett's Crossroads.

President Says U. S. Not Planning For Ground War

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the United States has no intention of fighting a ground war in Europe. At a news conference, however, he declined to say flatly that nuclear weapons would be used by American forces in the event the Soviets start shooting.

Eisenhower said he believes the American public is more soberly aware of dangers in the Berlin situation than a lot of people around Washington. A reporter had asked the President if he feels that the people recognize the dangers in Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's demand for the withdrawal of Allied troops from West Berlin by May 27.

The President replied with some asperity that he doesn't ever expect to be in the business of reacting instantly to one of Mr. Khrushchev's wisecracks or whatever the Soviet Premier calls them. The free world is going to use the same democratic procedure that the United States uses in dealing with such problems, Eisenhower said.

Jones' Highway Bill Is Introduced

Rep. Walter B. Jones' bill to reorganize the State Highway Commission will be placed before the General Assembly's House of Representatives today Jones told The Daily Reflector this morning. The bill proposes to raise membership of the commission from 14 members to 12 and to define geographical limits of each of the state's 14 highway divisions, require appointment of residents of each division to the commission, and require each commissioner to hold public meetings at least once a month in his division.

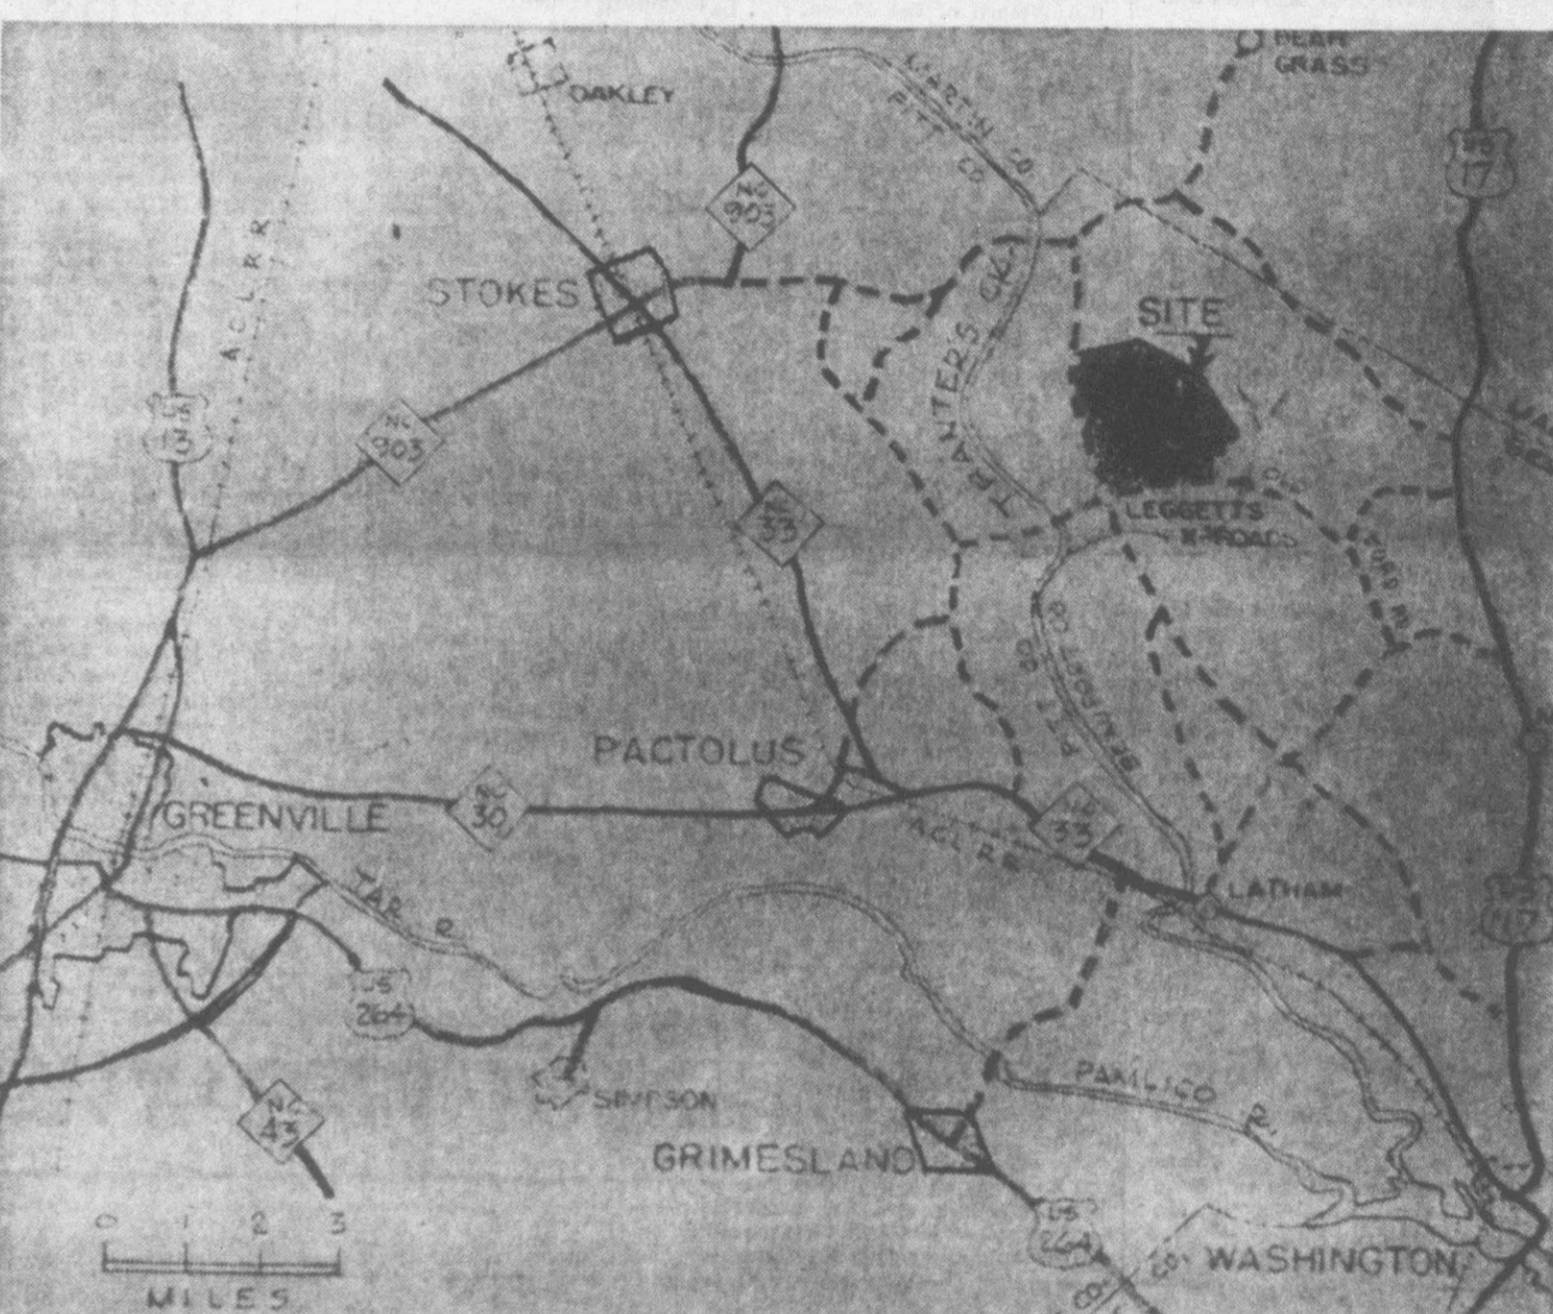

reorganized the highway commission structure. In his announcement this morning, Jones reiterated his previous stand that present commission structure "removes the system from the grass roots." He said, "I have good reason to believe that a good many people think something should be done to give the system back to the people—it is too far removed from the people—and I hope and believe this bill will do that if it is enacted."

Marshall Flown To Walter Reed

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall was flown to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington today for further treatment of two strokes suffered in recent weeks. No announcement was made prior to the flight. He was taken by military aircraft. The Public Information Office said Gen. Marshall's condition had stabilized to the extent that the move could be made.

North Carolina Pulp Company is the largest single property owner involved at both the Shelmerdine and Beaufort County sites according to the area maps. The 485 acre receiver site is located about six miles west of Greenville between the Stantonsburg road and highway 43 and is adjacent to the Smith road which connects the two highways. According to site maps released by the VOA, owners of the property involved in the receiver site are C. P. Pierce, Cape Fear Wood Corp., Ned Smith, Mack Smith, Ann Blair Smith, Julian B. Timberlake and Elba C. Weson.

report their findings to the full board at its next meeting. An expansion project authorized in January for Elmhurst School moved a step closer to completion when the board voted to petition the State's Department of Public Instruction to call for bids on the project between April 15 and April 22. The work will include construction of a new wing at Elmhurst, to house four classrooms and a library.

Make-Up Days

Students in Greenville city schools will make up time lost due to a near-record snowfall in December on April 4, April 11 and May 9. The Greenville City Board of Education approved the Saturday classes last night after they were recommended by Superintendent J. H. Rose. The make-up dates will permit time for classes lost December 11, 12 and 15.

Nasser Assails Premier Of Iraq

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic accused Iraq Premier Abdel Karim Kassem today of adopting a hostile policy toward the U.A.R. and of changing the original course of the Iraq revolution. Speaking to crowds of demonstrators who chanted "Kassem is a traitor," Nasser launched his first direct attack on the leader of Iraq's Communist-influenced government.

School Board Considers Plans For Two Additions, Expansion

The plans call for cafeteria facilities and additional classrooms at Fleming Street and C. M. Eppes schools. Also included in the plans are proposals for expansion of each of the campuses. Members of the board directed members of a committee, named in January, to investigate proposals for additional land at the two schools, prior to further action by the board. The committee, which includes Joseph M. Taft, Louis W. Gaylord, Jr. and J. B. Kittrell, Jr., were instructed to report their findings to the full board at its next meeting. An expansion project authorized in January for Elmhurst School moved a step closer to completion when the board voted to petition the State's Department of Public Instruction to call for bids on the project between April 15 and April 22. The work will include construction of a new wing at Elmhurst, to house four classrooms and a library.

Utilities Commissioners OK Tie In When Natural Gas Lines Available

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor Greenville Utilities commissioners last night approved tying in to North Carolina Natural Gas lines when they are available in this area. The commissioners also authorized Superintendent Leonard Bloxam to negotiate with contractors who will be constructing the gas lines for the job of constructing feeder lines into the city's system. Action was taken after Bloxam presented figures which showed the utilities would have realized a savings of $56,708.69 over the past five years if natural gas had been available for gas main customers rather than propane-air gas. Utilities bottled gas customers were not included in the figures. Bloxam also estimated that if natural gas is distributed through the mains for the next five years—1959 through 1963—a savings of $77,094.04 could be realized.

mission's approval to become effective. In addition to the savings which the Utilities would realize, customers would be receiving gas with a 1,076 BTU rating when natural gas is available. The present propane-air gas has a 900 BTU rating. Thus, the customer would receive a gas with 20 percent more heating potential than the present gas. To make the tie-in with N. C. Natural Gas lines, the Utilities would have to install 12,900 feet of mains at a cost of $26,720, according to Bloxam. A part of the lines would be run through an area where they would pick up some bottled customers. Bloxam informed the commission last night that, while Greenville Utilities won't serve either of the Voice of America transmitters with electrical service, the local utilities will serve the receiving station. The receiving station, which will be constructed west of Greenville between the Stantonsburg Rd. and N. C. Highway 43, will use a "decent load," the superintendent said. The station will use 300 KW's and it will operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The 300 KW load will vary no more than 10 percent around the clock, the commissioners were told. Bloxam said the proposed rate only needs the State Utilities Com-will serve the Pactolus transmitter and Carolina Power and Light Co. is to serve the Shelmerdine station. Loop feed systems will be required for all three stations. Thus power can be fed in from a second direction if the main lines should break. The commissioners indicated a softened attitude toward the Lakewood Pines water problem and authorized Superintendent Bloxam to contact residents of the area and determine if they would be willing to tap on water lines provided they are installed. As out-of-town water customers, the residents of the area would have to pay a double tapping fee. Bloxam pointed out there are 52 houses presently in Lakewood Pines and adjoining areas, with more than 20 lots on which houses have not been built. The tapping fees would bring in a total of $9,490, he said. In addition another subdivision will soon be opened on the east side of Evans St. Ext. where additional customers would be available. Bloxam said construction of an eight inch main to the area and installation of smaller mains in Lakewood Pines would cost $34,281.04. A main smaller than the proposed eight-inch main which was proposed could be used but Bloxam said he was recommending the eight-inch main with the potential growth of the area in mind.

Mrs. James Worsley reported that at this time of each year a poll is taken to determine which are the best liked TV and radio programs of the year and asked that each member take the ballot from the February National News and complete it and turn it in. She stated that this is the only organization that climaxes the year with an all-membership poll to determine the best liked programs.

It was decided that the annual bridge-canoasta tournament will be held April 10.

The auxiliary voted to help a needy family by sending a supply of food.

Another announcement was that the district meeting will be held in Washington, N. C. on March 31.

The district president, Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, gave a talk on Parliamentary Law and the proper way to conduct Auxiliary meetings.

After adjournment, the hostesses served punch, cookies and nuts during the social hour.

Those Reservations Need Airing

Reservations to the defense budget submitted by President Eisenhower voiced by members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at a hearing before a Congressional Committee should give the American people some indication of the extent to which differences of valid opinion are heard when it comes to fixing expenditures for defense.

So far as the official record is concerned, the Joint Chiefs of Staff had given their approval to the President's defense budget when it was first submitted. But at the request of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, each of the service heads listed his "reservations" to the budget as submitted by the President.

While a statement signed by all the Chiefs declared there were no serious gaps in key elements of the budget, they outlined in their "reservations" what appear to be serious differences between what the budget provides and what these top military men think is needed for the nation's safety.

The really basic differences on defense needs which may exist between the administration and top military officers apparently seldom becomes public knowledge. It is a simple matter of military discipline which applies to all uniformed service personnel from the highest general to the buck private.

He is bound by oath as well as tradition to carry out the orders of his superior officer. In case of the Chiefs of Staff, their immediate superiors are the civilian heads of the various services under the Secretary of Defense, and the Secretary in turn looks to the Commander in Chief.

How then could we expect—officially at least—anything but approval of the Joint Chiefs of the military budget submitted by the President?

But to say that the final determination of the military needs of the nation are determined by the needs of the military services in sheer folly. At best they represent the third echelon of the policy-determining organization, below the President, the Secretary of Defense and the civilian department heads. And while their opinions carry weight in arriving at the final decision on what is needed, their opinions can likewise be completely disregarded by the higher civilian authorities.

All of which brings us to this important question: If final determination of what is needed for adequate national defenses were left to the military chiefs, how much would the defense budget differ from that which has been submitted?

It would be healthy for the nation if the military chiefs had the opportunity to more frequently and more frankly point out to congressional committees and to the public their "reservations" to defense budgets upon which the fate of the nation may well hang.

Activities Aim At Next Year

By LYNN NISBET

POLITICAL — There have been fewer developments on the political front than most prognosticators had forecast for this date. There is plenty of evidence, however, that scouts and strategists are busy in the background preparing for what is expected to be a titanic struggle next year at both state and national levels.

Members of the General Assembly are so deeply involved with their own immediate legislative problems, they are not giving much thought to details of the next campaign — although acutely conscious of the probable effect of legislative action on its results.

Visitors coming from over the state, many of whom have had recent contacts in Washington, report a lot of quiet activity. Main interest is in the races for Governor and U. S. Senator, although belief is general that there may be more than usual interest in the Presidential campaign. Many people think Governor Hodges will have more prominent place in national circles than any recent Governor and consequently might take less interest in choosing his successor. Tarheel Democrats generally do not like the selection of Los Angeles for the convention. They fear it will mean greater loss of prestige for the South and will tend to perpetuate control of Paul Butler or someone of like philosophy as national chairman.

There is presently no support for any third party plan or walkout, despite the deep rooted objection to anticipated platform declarations. Party leaders such as Governor Hodges, Senators Ervin and Jordan, State Chairman Woodrow Jones and others insist that North Carolina and the whole South will fare better to fight for principle within the party rather than from outside.

CANDIDATES — All of the 20 or so potential candidates for Governor which were listed here weeks ago are still "potential". It must be admitted some are less likely to get in the race than seemed probable last fall. Edwin Gill, State treasurer, still acts very much like a candidate. He is getting around for a lot of speeches, many of which sound like tentative platform planks.

Terry Sanford, first come of all the prospects, and John D. Larkins, Jr., latest to practically avow candidacy, are reportedly doing a lot of plowing and planting seed which they hope can be cultivated to produce votes in the 1960 primary.

Sanford is credited with a nucleus of sound strength among the followers of the late Governor and Senator Kerr Scott. He has added support among conservative business men to a degree that disturbs backers of some of the other potentials.

Somewhat paradoxically, Larkins appears to be rallying help from segments which had been more or less conceded to Sanford. It is rumored that tentative negotiations are underway to obtain recognized conservatives and big business men to manage both Larkins and Sanford campaigns. Surface indications are both will have well-filled war chests. At least each of them professes no concern over that item — which cannot be said of some other would-be candidates.

It begins to appear that the gubernatorial and senatorial races may be more entwined next year than usual. Traditionally effort is made to keep them completely separate in theory if not in fact.

Senator Everett Jordan is campaigning hard for re-election and is making hay. He maintains permanently staffed offices at Raleigh and Waynesville and there is seldom a week he does not make a flying visit to the state. Belief that prevailed when he was first appointed upon the death of Senator Scott that he was just keeping the seat warm for Hodges has been dissipated. But — there are a lot of people who still resent his selection and they are diligently seeking a strong candidate against him. Suggestions continue that Terry Sanford might switch to the Senate race. His close advisers feel he has gone too far and made too much progress toward the Governor's office to think of changing courses now.

Scouts covering the Catawba and Potomac valleys, chiefly Charlotte and Washington, report manifested interest in Alton Lennon, seventh district congressman and former Senator, as a contender for Governor or Senator — with the latter more likely. It is known that some of the men most ardently supporting Sanford for Governor are urging Lennon to get in the Senate race. And some of Senator Jordan's folks would like to see Lennon run for Governor.

The name of Mel Broughton, son of a former Governor and Senator and presently chairman of the highway commission, is heard with increasing frequency in connection with the Senate.

CONCLUSION — Inescapable conclusion is that both Governor and Senate races are wide open. There is as much uncertainty now as six months ago as to what names will appear on the board of elections books when filing time ends or who will be rated the pre-primary favorite 15 months from now. The one absolute certainty is that an interesting time is ahead — and it will be more pleasant for sideline observers than for participants in the big races.

Could Be A Year For Local Independence

This just might be the year in which local governments of North Carolina are emancipated from the legislative halls of Raleigh.

In the past few weeks there has developed what appears to be growing support from legislators and other state officials to do something about the unnecessary amount of local legislation handled in Raleigh every two years.

At his news conference this week Gov. Hodges gave his support to a move in that direction. "I am heartily in favor of anything that will cut down the number of local bills," he said.

The number of purely local bills from local governments throughout the state which go to the legislature is absolutely ridiculous. These bills—which constitute a major part of the total legislative load—largely deal with matters which could and should be handled by local governing boards. They go to Raleigh simply because local government boards are not allowed sufficient autonomy in managing their own affairs.

Legislators, if they are mind to, can relieve themselves of the load of local legislation and render a great service to local governments of the state as well. All they have to do is cut some of the strings which require legislative approval for so many actions which should be left entirely in the hands of local government.

Dull Season But For The Budget

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This would have been a pretty dull season in Washington if it hadn't been for the dollar sign. It has given Democrats and Republicans a lot to talk about. Actual legislation passed by Congress so far could be stuck in one eye without making you blink. Things will pick up after the Easter vacation. Meanwhile, budget balancing has provided a lively conversational topic.

Balance the budget, says President Eisenhower, dedicating himself to economy in 1959. It's the way to prevent inflation, he says. And since inflation means you can buy less with a buck, his stand has pretty wide appeal.

Nobody knows that better than the Democrats. They know what it could mean in the 1960 elections if they defied Eisenhower too much, voted a lot more money than he asked, and let inflation milk a few more pennies out of the dollar. So while the Democrats keep talking about how Eisenhower is skimping too much and how the country needs more than he proposed, they're still edgy about leaving themselves open to the Republican charge of being big spenders.

It is easy to see how this can provide plenty of conversation, and it has.

Meanwhile, everybody's dancing on a hair. Eisenhower in his budget provided only a hairline margin between balancing the budget and going in the red. Even that margin depends on some unlikely new taxes and a sharp increase in revenues from other taxes already on the law books. If it works out the way he figured, it will be one of the best juggling acts in history. Eisenhower called for spending no more than 77 billion dollars.

A CAMPAIGN SPEECH

During a recent campaign to increase the building fund of his church, a man who was acting as one of the campaign solicitors approached another member who was an old friend. "Frankly, John," his friend said, when he had heard the request for contribution, "I don't see why I should give anything. I don't attend church any more, or take part in any activities. Why should I give to the church? What does the church do for me?" The solicitor thought a moment. "Well," he replied, "you were almost certainly baptized in the church; you went to Sunday School there; you met your wife in the young people's group; in itself a record for peacetime budgets, and estimated that when the government got through deducting the 77 billion from all the revenue it took in, it would have 70 million dollars left over. But the Democrats look at the 4,700,000 people unemployed and want to extend the special unemployment pay Congress voted last year for the jobless. This would cost another 400 millions, they figure.

Since Eisenhower didn't include this in his budget, the 400 million would upset the balance, knock spending into the red, and add to the deficit carried over from the current year. But that's not all. The Democrats are working on housing, airport aid, help for depressed areas, and other legislation that would cost more than Eisenhower asked.

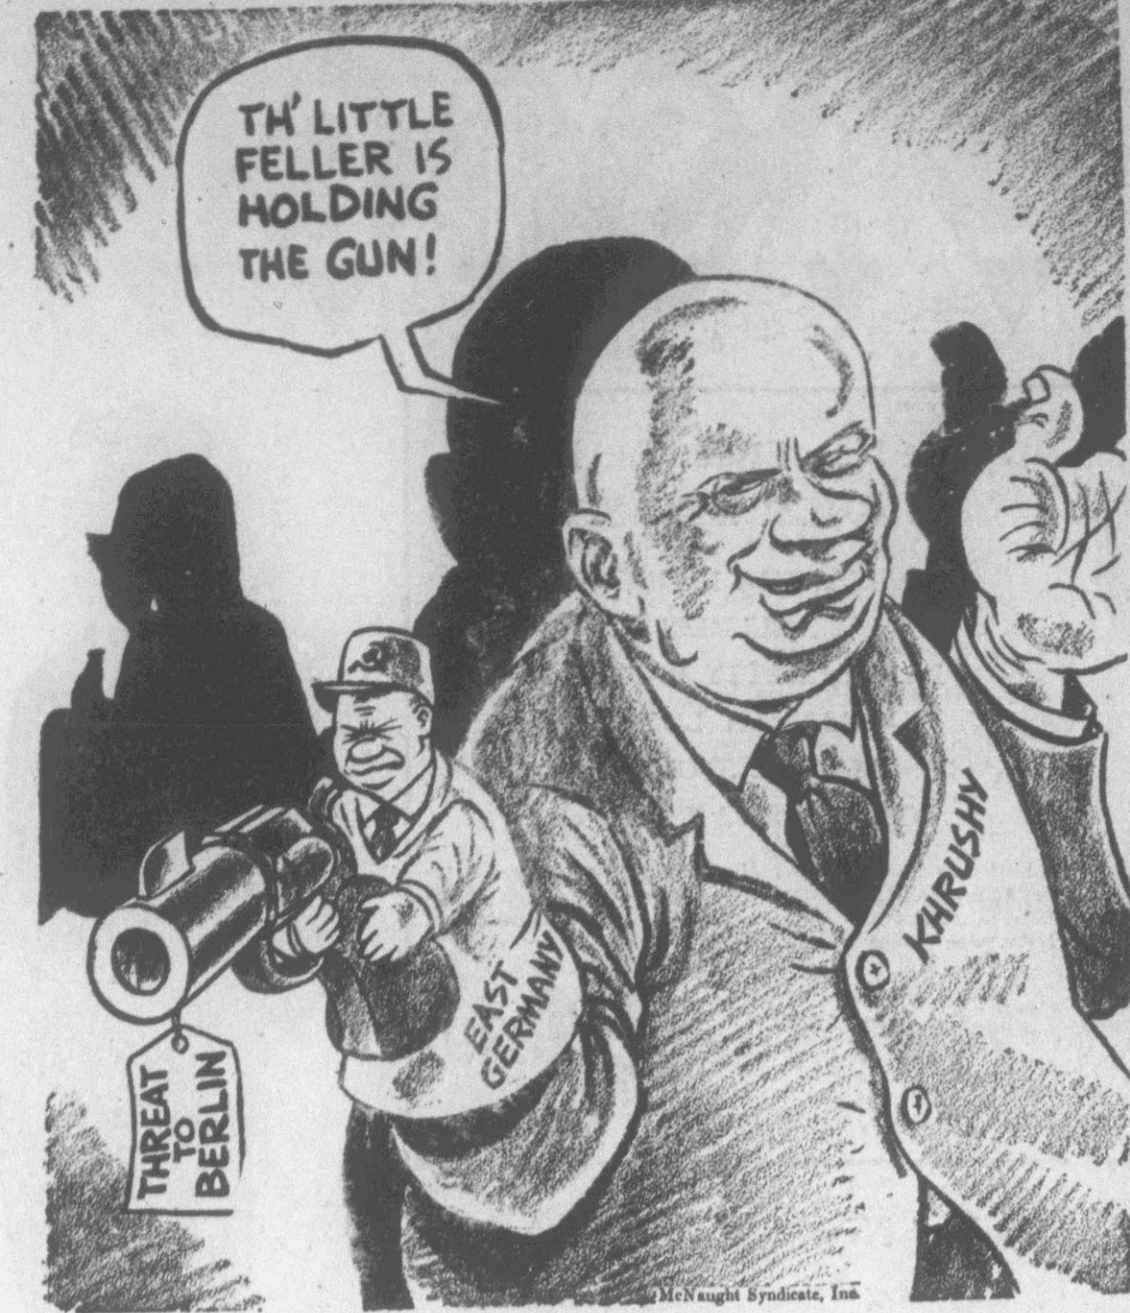

The Democrats also express unhappiness about the money he asked for defense and what looks like a continuing gap in missiles between this country and the Soviet Union. They are making sounds about more money for defense.

The Soviet demand that the Allies get their troops out of Berlin, and the Allies' determination so far that they'll do no such thing, has created a sense of crisis coming up. So it's no wonder Democratic leaders of Congress last week reportedly asked Eisenhower — after he briefed them on Berlin — if he didn't need beefed up defense. Beefing, of course, costs money. Eisenhower reportedly said no, that things were all right. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev could make everybody a little happier, and take some of the heat off the American dollar, if he'd just soften up on Berlin and let the crisis melt away.

you were married there. Your children were baptized there, and still attend Sunday School. Two years ago, when your father died, the service for him was held there. But that's not all. What kind of a community would this be if we didn't have any churches? How much would juvenile delinquency increase without churches? How many young people does the church help start on the right path? "And that's still not all. The church won't quit just because you don't give a few dollars, or even if you stay away. The church keeps right on going — and it's you who had better get back in step again." Said his friend, "I will now! Let me get my checkbook."

Don't Talk To Me—

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Missed Two Farewells

The social life of a newspaperman can be a very unsure thing to say the least. Frequently the unexpected can interrupt even the best laid plans of a reporter. I'm thinking particularly of Billy Arnold, Reflector staffer who journeyed to Raleigh yesterday along with several other draftees for his Army induction physical.

At this writing Billy has not been heard from, and the silence is ominous. In all probability, by the time this is in print Billy will be drawing his first army clothing from warehouses at Ft. Jackson.

But to get back to the subject, Billy, fairly certain that there would be no coming back from Raleigh, decided he would work through last Thursday afternoon and then take a few days off before leaving for the army.

By all rights the last day on the job should be an easy one regardless of where you work. However, last week there were more than the usual number of meetings to be covered by staff members — particularly on Thursday.

So, when it was learned Stabilization Corp. was to have its district meeting here that afternoon, Billy was the only man left to cover it.

"It shouldn't last more than an hour," he was told. Billy agreed that he would have plenty of time to handle the meeting, so at 2 o'clock he took off for the court house.

In the meantime some of the girls at the office had talked up enough money to purchase doughnuts, cup cakes and cookies. The plan was to have a surprise party for Billy on his last afternoon.

A hour went by and Billy didn't return. The newsroom crowd began to get fidgety. Another 30 minutes passed and still no Billy, then another 30 minutes. Finally at 4:15 someone decided it was time to check on him and Womans Editor Peggy Smith walked to the court house.

The meeting was still going on, Billy told her, and it didn't show any signs of abating. Go on and have the party without him.

Peggy came back with the sad news. By then it was quitting time and so the cookies, doughnuts and cup cakes were stored away.

But that wasn't all. Seems Billy, who completed his college work with the winter quarter, was also a member of the East Carolinian newspaper staff at the college. It also seems the college paper staff had had a similar idea. Thus, sometime during the afternoon, Katherine Johnson, editor of the East Carolinian, called to have Billy steered toward the college. They, too, were having a surprise party for him. Of course, Billy proved as inaccessible to the East Carolinian staff as he was to the Reflector news staff.

The missing staffer of both papers finally returned to the Reflector newsroom around 5. He seemed pretty philosophical about missing the two parties, but then as one former soldier-turned war correspondent he would be attending a party every Friday night for quite a few months to come. GI parties, I believe, they are called in the army.

I don't know what happened to the East Carolinian party, but folks at the Reflector had doughnuts, cup cakes and cookies with their coffee for a couple of days afterwards.

"There have been attempts in recent years to curtail freedom of the press. The idea behind this action is that an ignorant public is much easier controlled than a well-informed citizenry. Certain government officials, in most cases appointive rather than elective, have taken it upon themselves to decide what is good for us to know and what is not, in regard to their particular departments." — Bernice (La.) News-Journal.

"If government employment remains an island of security-conscious men and women, let American business make every effort to attract young people with the courage to take a chance and the confidence to succeed. Trifle as it seems, it is nonetheless true that this great nation was neither conceived nor built by persons demanding sick leave and insurance programs. And as frightening as the thought is, it is also true that America can never meet the challenge of communism if its citizens prefer job security to the opportunity to make a million dollars." — Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.

"A New York business writer reports that a new style in suits may start men on a buying spree. Not, however, until what clothing they now have is pretty well gone." — Raleigh Times.

"We must keep the door of opportunity open in agriculture, and we cannot do this through more and more government spending, which always means more and more controls, more and more regimentation." — Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson.

Other Editors Saying . . Risk It . . Go Home!

(The Charlotte Observer)

Despite the contradictory statistics and the most-repeated jokes, the typical American husband goes home after work — hurriedly and expectantly. It is, after all, a place to go and, besides, after eight hours of organized futility, home has a certain appeal.

Pools, all of us, — How are we to know that the wifely greeting will be a burst of tears? — That Junior has wrecked the car? — That Susie has trocked her way to a "D" in Latin? — That the power company is threatening to cut off the electricity unless Reddy Kilowatt gets his bi-monthly due?

You can't go home again — not tranquilly. Home is too often a house beset by travail. And yet — You rush home. And sooner or later, before the night is ended — Junior offers convincing testimony that the wreck was a gross improbability. — Susie persuades you that a "D" was well above average.

Corporations Clobbered In 1958

By ELMER ROESSNER

Last year total labor income was $246.2 billion compared with $247.1 billion in 1957. That's a drop of less than two-fifths of one per cent.

In the same time the next income after taxes of 2,219 leading corporations dropped from $15.8 billion to $13.9 billion. That's a decline of 12 per cent. Figures in this paragraph are gleaned from the March letter of The First National City Bank of New York.

In short, while labor took a licking, the corporations were clobbered.

The bank remarks that the earnings of corporations were actually higher than had been anticipated. The decline in the first half of the year was much graver than in the second.

Only a few industrial groups showed a gain last year, and the largest was registered by 13 tobacco product manufacturers in 42 per cent, and 40 iron and steel companies, 30 per cent less than in 1957.

Other large declines included 20 nonmetal mining and quarrying companies, down 27 per cent; 81 petroleum production and refining companies, down 25 per cent; 37 nonautomotive transportation equipment companies, down 23 per cent; 14 metal mining companies, down 21 per cent; 113 class I railroads, down 19 per cent; 55 textile products companies, and 16 shoe and leather companies, down 17 per cent.

"Within most of the industry groups, the changes among individual companies were extremely uneven," the bank observes. "Reports of some companies showed sales and earnings establishing new peaks, despite the general business recession and the downward trend in the totals of their industry groups. Others fell far behind 1957 results and suffered deficits."

It added that further analysis shows a remarkable recovery

Author By The Dozen

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A boyish-looking ex Army officer virtually unknown to the public is making a strong bid to become America's best-selling author.

"I never bothered to learn to parse a sentence in school," dryly remarked John D. MacDonald. But he now earns more in a year than Edgar Allan Poe earned in a lifetime, and is creeping up fast on Erskine Caldwell and Mickey Spillane.

This one-man fiction factory became an author by accident. But he has turned out 38 books and some 500 short stories, novelettes and serials—a total of more than 15 million words—since 1945. His books have sold some 14 million copies in 10 countries. MacDonald, 42, who emerged from the war as a lieutenant colonel, first turned to his typewriter in 1944 when he was stationed with the Office of Strategic Services in Ceylon.

"The only kind of letters you could get through censorship then made pretty dull reading," he recalled. "So, instead of a letter, I wrote my wife a short story.

"She sold it to a magazine for $25, and I decided right then that it looked like an easy way to earn a living."

But it didn't turn out to be so easy. In the four months of his terminal Army leave MacDonald wrote 800,000 words—the equivalent of 10 books — and lost 20 pounds.

"It was pretty horrible stuff," he acknowledged, "but it taught me my trade. At times I had 50 short stories in the mails at once.

"When they came back rejected and crinkled, I used to iron the pages flat to save the trouble of retying them and send them out again. Later, I burned them all."

He started clicking in 1946. MacDonald, who is tanned and wears a graying crew cut, lives in Sarasota, Fla. He writes on almost any topic.

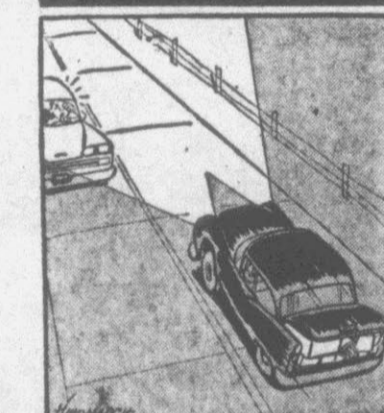

He is so prolific that once he had four books published on successive days.

His latest novel, a story of hinks in an American art colony in Mexico, took him 20 months. It gave him a lot of trouble. But during this same period he turned out four light suspense novels.

What qualities make a writer? "If you're not by nature an omnivorous reader, forget about being a writer," he said. "The one thing that all writers I know have in common is that they are all compulsive readers."

"Secondly, a writer has to be an iconoclast. If you believe all that you are taught, read or told, you will have too standard a mind to become a writer. "You will lack an individual viewpoint of your own. This a writer must have."

SAFE DRIVING TIP

Always dim your headlights when another car approaches.

If the oncoming motorist fails to dim his lights, do not retaliate by shining your lights in his eyes. The Chicago Motor Club points out that this will blind both of you temporarily and may cause a head-on collision.

Instead, flick your lights off and on. This will let the other driver know his lights are impairing your vision. If he still refuses to dim his lights, there are three things you should do: Reduce your speed, pull up close to the right edge of the road as possible, and keep your eyes on the right edge of the roadside pavement to escape as much glare as possible.

COUNTY COUNCIL PRESIDENT . . . Mrs. Wilbur Worthington presided during the Pitt County Home Demonstration Clubs session yesterday morning.

Civil Defense Representative Speaks To Woman's Club Members

"Fallout Protection" was the topic used by Colonel Vachel D. Whatley, a representative from the North Carolina Civil Defense Headquarters, when he spoke to the Woman's Club.

Colonel Whatley described fallout as tiny pieces of dust and debris, which are made radioactive by nuclear explosion. When a hydrogen bomb explodes, tons of small particles of dust are sucked upward—high in the air—and help to form a mushroom cloud from which radioactive matter spills out near the explosion. Most of it is carried by the wind and is very harmful until it decays.

The speaker told the club members how they could render service to the community and to their own families in case of fallout.

A film showing how to protect your family in case of fallout was shown by Mrs. Peggy Reid of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Colonel Whatley was introduced by June H. Euse, chairman of Civil Defense for Pitt County.

Mrs. W. E. Rosevear, chairman of Civil Defense for the Woman's Club, was in charge of the program.

Following the program Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. presided over the business session. Various committees gave their reports.

The Home Department chairman, Mrs. Edward Ricks, invited the members to attend the meeting on March 13 at Brown's Furniture Store.

The Garden Club chairman, Mrs. P. E. Wells, announced that a Camellia Show will be held at the Woman's Club on March 20.

The club voted to give a good citizenship award to the girl who was chosen the best citizen of the senior class of June Rose High School. Details of the award will be announced by Mrs. H. H. Bryant, chairman of the committee.

Mrs. Harvey Tripp read copies of letters sent the legislators and Governor Hodges concerning the safety program which the General Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring.

Mrs. H. P. Milstead requested that club members send telegrams and letters to our state representatives concerning the bills that the N.C.E.A. are sponsoring.

Mrs. Tige Gardner reported progress of the Litterbug Campaign.

Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. and Mrs. Harvey Tripp were elected delegates to the N. C. Federation convention to be held in Pinehurst in May.

Preceding the meeting, a social hour was held in the Sally Southall Cotton Parlor.

Guild Meets

The Wesleyan Service Guild of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church met at the home of Misses Lillian and Margaret Purvis Monday night. Mrs. J. H. Waldrop reviewed the book, "The First Easter," by Catherine Marshall.

After a brief business meeting, the Guild members held a social hour during which time refreshments were served by the hostesses; Mrs. Marguerite Crenshaw, Mrs. Polly Dial, and Misses Margaret and Lillian Purvis. The home was decorated with spring flowers, and the Easter motif was carried out in the refreshments.

Cover poached eggs with cheese rabbit; to serve, lift the eggs onto toast rounds and pour the sauce over.

Plans for Home Demonstration Week to be held in May were discussed yesterday morning by the Home Demonstration Club members who attended the County Council meeting. Approximately 80 Pitt County women met at the Home Demonstration auditorium.

Among the plans suggested were window displays, going to church as a body, placing flowers in churches to observe the proclaimed week, and visiting persons who might be interested in becoming a home demonstration club member. A tea for the purpose of prospective members will be held.

A music training school, under the direction of Mrs. Alton Gardner, was conducted. The songs introduced by Mrs. Gardner will be sung at all club meetings during the remainder of the year.

Mrs. Brantley Speight reported on the World Affairs Conference which she attended in Chapel Hill recently.

Mrs. Marion Biggs showed an educational cancer film to the group prior to a buffet luncheon. The Home Demonstration County Council president, Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, headed the March meeting yesterday.

Jane Hall To Give Program At Gallery

Jane Hall of Greenville and Raleigh will be guest speaker at the Community Art Center tomorrow night at 7:30. Her program will be on the Dutch School of Painting.

She will show slides of paintings she saw in the great Dutch Art Museums, as well as the slides of the Dutch Paintings in the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Miss Hall, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Hall of Greenville and the late Mr. Hall, was born and reared in Greenville and is a graduate of the Greenville public schools and East Carolina College. She has served as trustee of the college, being appointed by the late Gov. Scott. Miss Hall is a staff writer for the News and Observer.

When the N. C. Museum of Art was established and she was appointed Art Editor for her paper, she applied for and won in 1957 The Ogden Reid Fellowship for a year's study in Europe. She writes a Sunday column for the N&O titled "Hall Marks" which is largely devoted to art and art activities in N. C., although it occasionally deals with other cultural aspects of N. C. cultural life. In addition to her Sunday column and handling coverage for the N. C. Museum activities, she also does general feature writing. Currently Miss Hall is serving as vice president of the North Carolina Press Women.

The program Thursday evening is the sixth in a series of Art Education programs sponsored by the East Carolina Art Society and the Greenville Woman's Club. The public is cordially invited. The gallery will be open at 7 o'clock to enable guests to see the Art Faculty Show.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Theme Varies, But Khrushchev Goal Is Same

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every few days now Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev comes up with a new proposal for dealing with the Berlin crisis. His record is impressive for imagination in fast diplomatic footwork. Sometimes he even seems to contradict himself. But in the midst of the confusion, which he may deliberately seek in order to obscure the real issues, one fact stands out clearly. He is still pursuing his original purpose, announced just four months ago, to try to force the Western powers to give up their position in West Berlin. This showcase of Western Democracy and prosperity in the heart of Communist East Germany is an irritant. He may be willing to risk war to remove it. In the ultimate showdown, most Western officials are convinced Khrushchev will pull back before plunging the world into war. But they also think he will go very close to the brink if he has to in order to test Western determination to hold fast in Berlin. Khrushchev's latest maneuver came in a speech at Berlin Monday. He said then that the Western powers might keep small garrisons of their forces in West Berlin if they agreed to make that city a "free city" and if a Soviet garrison was also stationed there. This suggestion seemed to reverse the line he had taken in a note to the United States, Britain, France and West Germany on Nov. 27, when he first made his "free city" proposition and talked about demilitarizing West Berlin. That was the second move in a series which began Nov. 10, when Khrushchev announced that the Western powers must get out of the German city and said that the Soviet Union intended to turn over its occupation functions in East Berlin to the East German Communist regime. The announcement immediately raised the specter of a new Berlin blockade. As a result of diplomatic exchanges since that time, there is now conditional agreement on an early foreign ministers conference to deal with German problems. There also is the prospect of a summit meeting later in the year, bringing together Khrushchev and President Eisenhower along with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle. Khrushchev's real purposes in all these maneuvers are a subject of continuing debate among Western leaders. Many American and other Western officials say that Khrushchev seems to be aiming not only at destroying Western protection for Berlin but also at bringing it eventually under Red rule. But some experts here and in Western Europe are intrigued by other possibilities. They say that insisting it would not pull its troops out, officials argue, Khrushchev in effect has simply offered to let some of them stay there—if they stayed on his terms. His reference to troops, however, has been subjected to two other less talked about interpretations. One is that in seeming to meet a Western objection to his plan he was simply trying to create confusion. The other interpretation is that Khrushchev wanted to provide himself with an escape hatch. Officials who suggested this possibility said that if the crisis gets too hot and he wants to find a way out some months from now he may use his troop proposal in some modified form as a basis for saying that he was prepared all along to agree to Western forces remaining in Berlin. From this starting point he might then come up with a formula for Berlin's future which the West would at least find negotiable. But long before that the Western governments, facing the virtual certainty of a foreign ministers meeting by mid-May, will have to come up with clear policy decisions of their own.

Draft Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) led a last-ditch fight in the Senate today to limit extension of the peacetime draft to two years instead of the four urged by the administration. His chances appeared slim in the face of unanimous approval by the Senate Armed Services Committee of the four-year extension and previous House passage by a top-heavy vote. Senate leaders had planned to push the bill to a vote Tuesday night, but they postponed action until today when Morse came up with a long floor speech opposing the measure. Pending at the time was a proposal by Sen. Francis Case (R-SD) to set up a presidential commission of six civilians and one military member. It would study the draft and other military manpower issues and recommend any needed changes to Congress by Jan. 31, 1961. Morse told the Senate that Congress was being stamped into "ultimatum-type legislation" because of the Berlin crisis.

Home Ec Dept. Director Will Speak At Meet

Dr. Bessie McNeil, director of the department of home economics at East Carolina College, will be among featured speakers at a workshop conducted Thursday, March 12 in Kinston by District Ten of the North Carolina Congress of Parents and Teachers. The theme will be "Strengthening the American Family." Nine of the eastern counties of the state will be represented at the meeting, which will take place at the Fairfield Recreation Center. They are Hyde, Beaufort, Pitt, Carteret, Craven, Jones Lenior, Onslow, and Pamlico. Mrs. J. H. Spotsnki, director of District Ten, is in charge of the program. Dr. McNeil will be one of four speakers who will discuss the workshop theme at a meeting scheduled for 10 a.m. Her topic will be "Achieving Togetherness in the Family." Other speakers, all from Kinston, will be the Rev. Douglas Bell of the Gordon Street Christian Church, and Rev. Marvin Vick of the Queen Street Methodist Church, and Rabbi Jerome Tolochko of the Synagogue.

Debate Investing In Two Liners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some congressmen want the federal government to invest 100 million dollars in two commercial passenger ships. They argue the ships could be used as troop carriers in war. Sen. Henry Dworshak (R-Idaho) disagrees. "In these days of 1,500-mile-per-hour planes, missiles with speeds of thousands of miles per hour, and fast submarines with missiles, a 30-mile-an-hour ship might just as well be standing still," Dworshak says.

Careless Flying Charged Pilot

NORRKOEPING, Sweden (AP) — A Swedish air force pilot has been charged with careless flying in a supersonic jet fighter. A police report says the pilot came close to colliding with a Scandinavian airliner about 6,000 feet above the airport at Norrkoepping last Jan. 19.

Students Of 18 Counties In ECC Typing Contests

East Carolina College is beginning this week its annual spring typing contests for high school students in Northeastern North Carolina. During this week and next, a series of 18 county contests are being administered. Approximately 600 students chosen from the 3,000 students who are enrolled in typing courses in the county schools will compete.

The annual contests are sponsored by the East Carolina College department of business with the purpose of improving standards of work among young typists. Co-sponsors of this year's events are the Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi and Chapter 861 of the Future Business Leaders of America, student organizations in the college department of business, and the College Office of Public Relations and Foundations. Alton Finch, faculty member of the department of business, is chairman of the typing contests. Paige Parker of Kinston, a graduate student of business, is acting as chairman for Pi Omega Pi. William Batts of Rocky Mount, a senior business student at the college, is FBLA chairman.

1,000 Baptists To Meet Friday

One thousand Baptists from the 48 churches of the South Roanoke Baptist Association will gather in Greenville at McGinnis Auditorium, Friday, at 7:45 p.m. for an Evangelistic Rally which will signal the beginning of the Simultaneous Evangelistic Crusade of 19-millions Baptists throughout the country.

March 15 to April 26 will find revivals held in churches in seven Baptist groups throughout the United States and Canada. The churches of the South Roanoke Association will hold their meetings during the weeks of April 12-26. The Evangelistic Rally in Greenville will be comprised of members from 48 churches. They will be led in singing by a 200-voice choir combined from the choirs of these churches, and led by Mr. Joe Stroud, head of the Department of Church Music of the Baptist State Convention. The Chowan College Choir will provide the special music led by Mr. James Brinson. Chowan College is one of seven Baptist colleges in the state and is located at Murfreesboro.

Rev. Albert E. Simms, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, Newport News, Va., will bring the Evangelistic Message, and Rev. Earnest Russell, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dunn, will speak on the plans.

Each participating school in these counties will enter one contestant for each five students enrolled in typing classes. Two types of tests will be administered—one for advanced students and one for beginners.

Commuter Bus Runs Into Crowd

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A bustling intersection in downtown Pittsburgh became a scene of horror Tuesday as a commuter bus jumped a sidewalk and plowed into a crowd during the evening rush hour.

Two persons were killed and 16 were injured, four seriously. The Brentwood Motor Coach Co. bus was approaching a knot of waiting passengers at Smithfield Street and Forbes Avenue when it veered out of control. The driver said his air brakes failed.

The bus climbed the curb, cut down a fire alarm pole and a street light then tore into the crowd and nosed against a plate glass display window of Kaufmann's department store.

Three of the screaming victims were flung through the window. Several others were trapped under the bus.

One of those killed was Sam Hood, 40, a reporter and art critic for the Pittsburgh Press.

Also killed was Mrs. Sally Flynn Strait, 54, of nearby Baldwin. She was head cashier at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The stunned bus driver, Jay Lane, was treated for minor injuries and released on $10,000 bond pending an inquest on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Lane was so distraught he was re-admitted to a hospital shortly after midnight suffering shock. Ten other injured were detained in three hospitals.

Claims Matt Dillon Is Really The Author

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—Matt Dillon, the hero of "Gunsmoke," is basically a fellow named John Meston, said Mrs. Meston the other day.

Looking amazed, Meston retorted, "You never said that before. I never thought about it." "Well, I have," said Mrs. Meston, the former Bette Ford, who attained fame as one of the most popular woman bullfighters in Mexico before she retired to become the wife of the creator and author of "Gunsmoke."

"Matt Dillon is John Meston," said comely, lark-eyed Mrs. Meston. "John simply found him at home. This is purely a feminine opinion of Dillon, of course. But I think there's a gentleness about Dillon that comes straight from Meston."

"He walks through life, unafraid. Things never worry him. He takes things in stride and always in hand. That's Dillon—and that's John. They even resemble each other physically."

It's true, Meston admitted, that he is often stopped on the street and mistaken for James Arness, who plays Marshal Dillon in the CBS-TV weekly series (Saturdays, 10 p.m., EST). Meston, like Arness is tall, husky, sandy-haired. Yet Meston says he had nothing to do with casting Arness for the role.

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP)—Two B47 jet bombers missed collision by inches Tuesday. As they banked steeply at 30,000-foot altitude to avoid each other, the wing of one clipped a radio antenna from the tail fin of the other.

Both planes remained aloft and later landed safely at southwest Idaho's Mountain Home Air Force Base—after circling for hours to exhaust their fuel. Each six-jet craft carried four crewmen, and none was injured. All were stationed at Mountain Home.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Bert Harrison reported to his parole officer on schedule but was arrested as a parole violator. Police charged he stole an automobile and a typewriter on his way to report.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—The Seventh-day Adventists church reports that its American members gave $464,546,312 to the church in the last 10 years, $105,957,516 more than the $358,588,798 given in the previous 84 years.

The suspicion that some writers of TV westerns grew up in Brooklyn and never rode a horse does not apply to Meston. Colorado-born, he's a good rider and can rope a calf.

Although he loved the West, Meston was graduated from Dartmouth, studied in France and was working on a Ph. D. thesis at Harvard when World War II came along. The subject of his uncompleted thesis was the influences of 17th Century French symbolism on contemporary British and American writers.

After army service he joined CBS radio as a story editor. There, with Producer Norman Macdonell, he created "Gunsmoke." Since the popular success of the TV series, it's sometimes forgotten that the radio "Gunsmoke" series continues rolling along on CBS radio (Sundays, 6:30 p.m., EST). On April 26, in fact, it starts its eighth year on radio. Meston still has a supervisory hand in the scripts.

Meston says that when the series began "we were determined to try to avoid every cliché or rule of the Grade B movie westerns. We tried to do the opposite in everything—plot, language, character."

"I've tried to avoid making Dillon a typical western hero. My aim is to make him a fallible human being. As that, he's been out-talked, out-drawn, out-shot, out just about anything you can name. It's not easy. But we keep trying."

The Mestons are sailing for Europe where he'll spend a year writing "Gunsmoke"—and a biography of his wife.

End advance for Pms Wednesday.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Rep. Helen Wells of Torrance County rose in the New Mexico House to speak for a bill that all community property should go to a surviving widow in case of a man dying without leaving a will.

She said: "This is a good bill. I don't feel like arguing about it. So if you gentlemen will just agree with me, there will be no argument."

There was no argument. The bill passed unanimously.

Many Bills Are Being Introduced To Safeguard Reporter's Relationship

By KENNETH WHITING Associated Press Staff Writer

"I think reporters for newspapers, radio and television should have the same safeguarded relationship with news sources as lawyers have with clients and doctors with patients," an Illinois lawmaker said before introducing a bill in the state Legislature.

The proposed law, by Rep. Michael Zlatnik (D-Chicago) is part of a widespread move to extend protection to reporters who refuse to name the source of the news they gather.

Proposed new laws or amendments have been introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives and at least 10 state Legislatures in the wake of the widely publicized Marie Torre case.

Miss Torre, a radio-TV columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, served a 10-day jail sentence for contempt of court. She declined to name the source of comment about entertainer Judy Garland she used in a story. The publicity spurred attempts to detail just how far a newsman may go in protecting his sources.

Four separate bills are pending in New York state, some of Miss Torre's trial and conviction.

They provide that (1) no newspaper, publisher, editor or reporter could be compelled to disclose the source of information committed confidentially; (2) persons who gather, publish, broadcast or televise news could not be punished for criminal contempt for refusal to disclose news sources; (3) newspaper, radio and television personnel could not be compelled to testify or disclose sources at any proceedings of any court or government agency and (4) news reporters would have immunity from disclosing sources only if they had pledged secrecy to the source and the information could not have been obtained without such a pledge.

Twelve states already have laws which are generally similar and two of them, Pennsylvania and Ohio, are considering revisions to extend such protection to radio and TV reporters.

The first state to provide legal protection for newsmen was Maryland in 1896. Similar statutes are in effect in Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, California, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Montana, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Just last week a trial judge reaffirmed a reporter's right, under the California law, to refuse to reveal the source of a newspaper story.

Fred Sorri, reporter for the Peninsula Herald of Monterey, invoked this section of the state's civil code in declining to answer a question at a perjury trial.

The California Supreme Court previously upheld the constitutionality of the law.

Besides Illinois and New York, new measures have been dropped into legislative hoppers in Iowa, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Utah.

State Rep. Eyo A. Lucchina (D-Barre City) said the bill he sponsored in the Vermont Legislature was designed to aid newsmen in obtaining information particularly from government agencies. He said some news sources are drying up because of the possibility they may be named later as informants of reporters.

U.S. Rep. Francis Dorn (R-NY) has introduced a bill in Congress which would provide national coverage. It would exempt newspaper radio and TV reporters from being compelled by federal courts to disclose their sources except in cases affecting the national security.

Another point which arose in connection with the Torre case is whether the identity of news sources involves press freedom as established by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The newspaper trade publication "Editor and Publisher" took note of this in an editorial Feb. 14.

It said in part: "It is contended by some that freedom of the press is involved in this issue. Perhaps it is. People, including newspapermen, can still write what they please within certain legally defined limitations. There is no prior restraint on publication. But it seems to us there is a conflict when people (reporters) are punished for not revealing who told them something even though the information as reported is correct.

"No other profession is expected to put into print for others to read everything it can learn that is fit to print and of interest to the general public, and thereafter to stand responsible in the courts for its accuracy. There are many times when the public interest requires publication of information even though the source cannot be identified."

Scotland Yard Hunting Jewels

LONDON (AP)—Flying squads from Scotland Yard raided the homes of two London gang leaders early today but no trace was found of Lady Norah Docker's missing $420,000 worth of jewels.

The two underworld figures had been spotted in Southampton Monday night a few hours before the jewels were stolen in the port city from the Dockers' parked Rolls Royce.

Homes of suspected fences also were raided. The detectives prodded furniture, poked around the floorboards, tapped the walls, peered up chimneys and dipped into water tanks. There was no sign of the missing baubles.

A London insurance firm offered a $42,000 reward. Lady Norah and her millionaire third husband, Sir Bernard Docker, left the two boxes of jewels and his briefcase in their silver and blue Rolls on a Southampton street while they had dinner Monday night. When they returned the jewel boxes and the briefcase was gone. The car was still locked the windows intact and there were no fingerprints but the Dockers'.

Detectives were convinced the robbery was the work of a gang of specialists that had tailed the couple for months.

"Norah is terribly upset," said Sir Bernard. "Now she is practically down to the jewelry she stands up in—about 15 to 20 thousand pounds worth."

Ladies In Class Bring Difference

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Things are different now in the naval architecture classes at University of Michigan.

The men no longer tell salty stories, and they outdo themselves in being polite.

Prof. Harry Benford says, "I used to begin my class sessions by saying 'Men, today you will—' Now I begin by saying, 'Ladies and gentlemen.'"

Pretty red-haired Judy Robinson of Monroe, Mich., was the first to break in the exclusive male circle. Now a senior, she broke down barriers in the Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering Dept. for Susan Ott of Dearborn, Mich., and Darlen Pinner of Libertyville, Ill., who are sophomores.

"I was scared to death at first because the fellows pretended to be rather unhappy about my being here," says Judy. "But I guess I've been accepted by now for they elected me, appropriately enough, purser of the Quarterdeck Society."

As a freshman, Judy joined a sailing club and became interested in naval architecture. Susan figured the only way she'd ever get a sailboat would be to build one. Darlen liked math and physics and figured it would be appealing to be a boat designer.

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR BY C.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 13 Sir Luke was shouting for my company, so I went unwillingly to the cabin.

quite sure. Perhaps you'll explain your own remark. "Are you implying I'm afraid because I'm forced to give you carte blanche and lurk in this cabin?"

historic bird. With only a jib to hold us on course, the Pilgrim Venture had begun to roll heavily.

"I don't blame you for disliking a hole-in-corner life," I said. "But this is my ship — and she'll sail by my rules. From tonight there'll be no sofa aboard beside yourself."

"I'm including my mates in that, and my doctor." I snatched the jug from Tom and dragged him from the bunk. "To your cabin," I said sternly. "Get what sleep you can."

With fresh sheets to steady her, the Venture was a living ship again. Dropping from the shrouds, where I had helped to lash the last eyelid to the yards, I found time to join Quill in the lee of the fo'c'sle, where I took his report.

"See that you do," he said thickly. "I've had no cause so far to doubt your seamanship. I'd like to leave a favorable report in Cape Town."

"I've spoken your mind," I told him. "The matter's ended so far as I'm concerned."

"What are you saying, man?" "We took a wave amidships. He was gone when the ship rode away."

"I closed the door carefully, realizing he was too far gone in rum to think clearly. Forgetting that he was travelling incognito, he had reverted to his own identity — or, rather, to the favorite role of Company tyrant. On my side, I had half forgotten his plan to demolish me at the Cape. Tom Hoyt (throned like a sultan in a bunk, with his head swathed in a wet towel) threw me a wink when he noted my anger."

"How can I be sure you'll even call at the Cape, now you're love-sick? For all I know, you'll set a course for Goa and make yourself her paramour."

"You might have come about." "With that gale abaft, sir? We'd have broached to."

"Don't take our distinguished passenger too literally, Dick," he said. "If you ask me, he's jealous. Or are you denying you spent an agreeable hour today with the senhora?"

"My fist clenched — but I remembered myself in time. Tonight, with all his evil brought to the surface by too much drink, I could see Metcalf for what he was — a martinet who accepted no opinion but his own, a destroyer who was happy only in the act of killing. In the past such talents had served the East India Company well. Tonight, having no logical target, he had lashed out at me — without rhyme or reason, like a cornered serpent."

"The mate was right, of course. Even the Venture would have foundered had she come broadside in that sea. In any event, there was no time for further questions. A wave had just curled above the afterhouse, to fall with thunderous impact on our stern. With that crash, I heard one of our rails rip clean away — and caught Mozo's shout of pain above the keening of the storming chains."

"What's that mean?" "At the moment, sir, I'm not unwise eating or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritations — making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. "Can you hold her steady, Mr. Quill?" "Easy, Cap'n — now we're running into the eye." As the mate had said, we would enter the dead-calm center of the gale in a few more moments. The respite would be brief: since she would drift there, the Pilgrim Venture would soon cross the circular path of the storm — where we could do no more than hold a course again.

Made Nitro In His Home Lab

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A high school sophomore who dabbles in rocket fuels had something in his home lab that might have given him a good start toward the moon.

James E. Juster Jr., 15, an amateur scientist, asked his chemistry instructor what he would get if he mixed a certain batch of chemicals. The instructor told James it sounded like nitroglycerine.

A demolition squad from Ft. Lee removed a quart of the stuff from Kuster's laboratory.

LOADED FIND

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Finding what he thought was a cap pistol on his way home from school, 8-year-old Terry Marlow twirled it cowboy fashion and snapped off a couple of shots as he walked. He took a third shot in his bedroom at home and blew a hole in the floor. Police found no evidence that the first two shots harmed anyone.

Star actor of stage and screen, Thomas Mitchell, was first a newspaper reporter.

Success-Studded Career Of Robert D. Hanes Is Ended At Age Of 68

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The success-studded career of Robert D. Hanes, former president of the American Bankers Assn., ended Tuesday night. He died at the age of 68 in a Winston-Salem hospital.

Hanes, who once turned down the presidency of Chase National Bank of New York to stay in his native state, had been in poor health for several months. The nature of his illness was not disclosed.

The retired president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., the Southeast's largest banking concern, gained prominence in a half dozen fields.

Hanes, one of eight children, all of whom distinguished themselves, stood out in the business world as a director of 12 different companies.

He served with the Economic Cooperative Administration in 1949-51, first as chief of the Belgium-Luxembourg Mission, then as head of the Frankfurt Mission, and finally as economic advisor to the high commissioner for Germany.

The Winston-Salem native entered World War I as a first lieutenant and came out a major. A graduate of the University of North Carolina and Harvard's Graduate School of Business Administration, Hanes served as both a senator and representative in the North Carolina General Assembly.

An active Methodist and civic leader, he devoted much of his time to activities as a member of various state boards and commissions.

He joined Wachovia in 1919. He became a vice president a year later and was named president in 1932. He held the post until his retirement 25 years later.

During this period, he was offered the Chase National Bank presidency but declined it in order to remain in North Carolina.

Hanes was a director of Southern Railway, P. H. Hanes Knitting Co., Hanes Dye and Finishing Co., R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Security Life and Trust Co., Borden Mfg. Co., Chatham Mfg. Co., Piedmont Natural Gas Co., Colonial Stores, Piedmont Publishing Co., publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal, the Twin-City Sentinel and operator of WSJS radio and television stations; Thomasville Chair Co., the Charlotte News, and Carolina Power & Light Co.

Hanes was a strong supporter of educational programs in the state. He was a founder and president (1946-49) of the North Carolina Business Foundation, a trustee of the University of North Carolina, the Morehead Foundation, Salem College and Winston-Salem Teachers College.

He also served as a director of the North Carolina State College Textile and Engineering foundations.

The North Carolina Citizens Assn. named him Citizen of the Year in 1954 and in 1956, the Newcomen Society of North America honored him for public service contributions.

His fellow bankers elected him president of the North Carolina Bankers Assn., in 1936. Eight years later, he was chosen to head the American Bankers Assn., the only North Carolinian to hold the office.

Hanes was born in Winston-Salem Sept. 22, 1890, the son of John Wesley and Anna Hodgkin Hanes.

Two brothers and a sister preceded Hanes in death. They were Dr. Frederick Hanes, who headed the department of medicine at Duke University; Alexander S. Hanes, who was a member of the State Highway Commission; and Mrs. Lucy Hanes Chatham, wife of the late U.S. Rep. Thurmond Chatham.

Surviving Hanes are the widow, the former Miss Mildred Borden of Goldsboro, a son, Frank Borden Hanes, and a daughter, Mrs. Meade Willis Jr., both of Winston-Salem; three brothers, John W. Hanes of New York, president of the Ecusta Paper Division of Olin Mathieson Corp., and former undersecretary of the Treasury; James G. Hanes, former president of Hanes Hosiery Mills; and Ralph P. Hanes, president of Hanes Dye & Finishing Co.; and one sister, Mrs. Robert Lassiter of Charlotte.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Lou Costello Proved A Natural Comedian

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A game little guy named Lou Costello has been erased from the movie scene. He'll be missed.

Lou was a show business natural. Nobody could explain why he was so funny. He was no intellectual, no student of human foibles. His material had no subtlety nor polish. Indeed, much of it had been worked over and over by a generation of burlesque comics.

But when Lou did the routines, they seemed funnier. For one thing, he had in Bud Abbott a straight man who had no superior. And the public seemed to recognize Lou for the natural he was—an abnormally funny man.

As far as can be judged, Lou Costello had no enemies. Even Bud Abbott, with whom he sometimes feuded, couldn't stay mad at him for long.

The reason was that Lou was completely outgoing. He was generous to a fault—which was all right when the money was flowing in, but brought him trouble later. He lacked complexity. When he worked, he worked hard. When he played, it was the same way.

In their heyday, he and Bud had a card game going at all times on their movie sets. The second that the director said "cut! print it!", the two comics would hustle back to their game. They played for high stakes, and for keeps.

That was when the money was flowing in fast. After they made "Buck Private," they shot to the top of the movie popularity polls. Filmed on minor budgets, their movies made millions for Universal. And A&C staged a sit-down strike until they were cut in on the millions, too.

The big money continued for a dozen years. But it managed to go out as fast as it came in. Once Lou told me he and Bud had earned 1 1/4 million dollars a year for over a decade, yet neither had been able to save a nest egg.

Where did it all go? Over 90 per cent went to taxes, the rest to writers, agents, lawyers, etc. And Lou was always an easy touch for unlucky oldtimers.

When the job started getting more scarce, Lou made his toughest decision: a final split with Bud. Perhaps he could do better as a single. A long series of illnesses had left him in poor health, but he couldn't afford to retire.

He made several appearances on the Steve Allen show and starred in a movie. Last fall, he was proud that he broke the Las Vegas attendance record at The Dunes. He was as funny as ever, but strangely restrained. Few realized that Lou was then a sick man, but still playing the clown because he had to.

Many Making Money In The 'Bull' Market

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Big and little persons and institutions have been making money in the bull market in stocks. (And some have lost, too). To make money actually in hard cash you've had to sell something you bought for less.

But some count their gains—on paper—by just sitting tight. Here are two case histories—one involving 2 1/4 million dollars and the other the story of very little persons indeed.

The little ones are five years old. They got their General Electric stock by being born on a very lucky day—for them. And they've been lucky since.

The big one is the Ford Foundation. It stated as one aim its wish to diversify its investments. It bought some other common stocks with the proceeds. Its annual report shows what has happened to them in 12 months.

The foundation bought 40 different kinds of common stock at a total cost of $2,290,900. When its fiscal year ended the stocks had a market value of $2,655,218. This comes to a paper profit of $354,318, or 16 per cent. Which is a nice year's return on any investment.

Peeking into the foundation's portfolio, the New York Stock Exchange reports that the five blocks with the highest market value when the foundation closed its fiscal year were 2,100 shares of U.S. Steel; 350 shares of International Business Machines; 1,800 shares of General Electric; 600 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph; and 1,300 shares of International Nickel.

The increase in market value for these during the 12 months ranged from 6 per cent for GE to 37 per cent for Big Steel.

But the foundation apparently made its biggest paper profit percentage on its holdings of 800 shares of Florida Power & Light, whose market value climbed 54 per cent.

Each child now has shares with a market value of about $1,200.

The moral is: It pays to pick a good day to be born.

The Ford Foundation also was lucky, in the sense that Henry Ford I gave it a lot of stock in his motor company. Early in 1956 the foundation sold some of this to the public.

Irish Danced To A Bohemian Band

CLEVELAND (AP)—Sure and it was a sad day for the Shamrocks of Cleveland.

The Irish folk here had a big shindig Tuesday night for the Shamrocks, launching a new season in the Gaelic football conference. Mick Delahunty's band from the Ould Sod was to play.

But Delahunty's boys never touched an instrument. Singer Carmel Quinn explained the band learned that an okay from the International Musicians Union was good only in New York.

College Choir Sings For Local Audience

The East Carolina College Choir, appearing last night in its annual "home" concert, sang before an appreciative audience in the Wright building on the campus.

The program followed a tour of towns in North and South Carolina during which the ensemble presented eleven concerts in high schools and churches.

The group of forty-eight talented student vocalists performed last night under the direction of Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang of the department of music. Shelby Jean Grady of High Point, pianist, was accompanist.

Selections chosen for the concert, including numbers by composers from the Sixteenth Century to the present time, gave a pleasing variety to the program.

The opening number, Palestrina's "Exultate Deo," was followed by sacred selections by Fr. Joseph Schuetky and Friedrich Niedt and the German chorale "Praise to the Lord," in an arrangement by F. Melius Christiansen.

Composed for double choir, the second group of songs for the evening, included G. C. Wagner's "Blessing, Glory, Wisdom and Thanks" and Charles Wood's "Hail Gladdening Light."

Patsy Roberts of Farmville, soprano, pleased the audience as soloist in an unscheduled number "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," with flute accompaniment by Larry Grissom of Henderson. Patricia Jones of Farmville was pianist for Miss Roberts.

Geoffrey O'Hara's "Guns," a number of spectacular contrasts, had as soloist Ronald Knouse of Winston-Salem, bass. Jane Murray of Roxboro acted as director of the choir in the spiritual "Deep River."

The closing group of songs included the lilt "A Good Doy for Singing" by Frank Cookson; "Echo Song" by Orlando di Lasso, a number for voices on stage and off stage; and the Jugo-Slav dance "The Kolo" by Smith Aschenbrenner.

On the gay side, and presented as encores, were Fox Reeve's "Boogie Blues," a rhythmic and entertaining selection presented with Miss Murray as director, and the novelty number "Tamale Joe" by Allen Richardson, sung with piano, bass violin, and percussion accompaniment.

Officers of the College Choir are John Savage of Goldsboro, president; Jane Murray of Roxboro, vice president; and Kenneth Ginn of Goldsboro, manager.

Helping Hand To A Political Foe

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—John B. Martin, Republican National committee member from Michigan, got a helping hand from Gov. G. Mennen Williams, a Democrat and long-time political foe.

Martin's car was stuck in the snow in downtown Lansing Tuesday. The Governor, coming from a meeting, saw Martin's predicament and with three others got behind the car and pushed it free.

"Just charge this up to the Republican State Central Committee," Williams said to Martin.

Spain ceded the Philippines to the United States on Dec. 10, 1989.

Hawaii Statehood Bill In Both Houses Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Statehood for Hawaii, an issue in Congress for 40 years, burst into full flame today as both Senate and House prepared to take up the bill.
With passage apparently assured, the big question was whether chamber would win the race to act first to add a 50th star to the flag.
In the Senate, the Hawaii admission bill is co-sponsored by 56 senators, more than a majority.
In the House, Chairman Leo W. O'Brien (D-N.Y.) of the Territories subcommittee predicted a margin of 100 votes for the bill.
The House Rules Committee cleared the way Tuesday for House consideration of the measure under procedure allowing six hours of general debate in addition to time spent considering amendments. Action may come Thursday. The Senate arranged to take up the measure after disposing of a draft extension bill.
In remarks prepared for the opening of Senate debate, Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) pictured Hawaii as the "diplomatic state." Jackson is chairman of the Senate Territories subcommittee which held hearings on the bill.
"Here the Occident and the Orient have met in a climate of mutual trust, understanding and respect," he said.
Jackson said the Hawaiians, on their islands, have created the same "miracle of unity in diversity" that has been accomplished on the mainland among Americans of English, Dutch, Irish, German, Swedish and other national origins.
Jackson said the state of Hawaii will represent in the Pacific what West Berlin stands for in Europe—freedom.
"Wherever men endure as slaves, as puppets, as the dispossessed and the disinherited, Hawaii will be a star of hope," he concluded.

Optimist Club Official To Be At Local Meet

FALKLAND—An elderly Falkland resident was found hanged in her home around 4:30 yesterday afternoon.
She was identified as Mrs. Leona Moore Parker, 79.
Coroner Withers Harvey ruled the death a suicide.
Mrs. Parker was found by her son, Frank Parker Jr, with whom she lived.
Investigating officers said she was found in her room hanged with an electric iron cord. She had apparently stood on a stool about three feet high.
Two notes were found at the scene.
Officers said Mrs. Parker had been in declining health for some time and she suffered from a heart condition. She had been hospitalized about two months ago.
Deputy sheriffs assisted the coroner in making the investigation.
Mrs. Parker was a Pitt County native and spent all her married life in the Falkland community.

Goodman Talks Livestock Care

Farmers who expect to make a profit from swine must give them attention and interest, Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman told members of the Pataolus Ruritan Club Monday night.
Goodman was guest speaker at the club's regular meeting. In his talk, he pointed out steps farmers should take to improve livestock profits.
Program Chairman D. R. House introduced Goodman. President Jimmy Whichard presided at the meeting which was attended by 19 members.

Found Bootleg In His Closet

Charlie Harris, 37-year-old Negro of 1311 W. Third St., was charged by ABC officers with possession of non-tax-paid liquor for purpose of sale yesterday.
Chief ABC Officer J. M. Ward said four gallons of illegal booze were found in a bedroom closet of the house.
Harris was released under $200 bond for trial next Monday.

Some Comfort In Being Sick; Boy Was Saved

Fourteen-year-old Dee Lois Fordham of 112 Summit Street has been confined to her bed this week with a heavy cold—but there's a measure of comfort for her in being sick.
She got the cold by risking her life to save a three-year-old neighbor Saturday afternoon.
Dee Lois jumped into a deep drainage ditch off "A" Street to pull little Gary Hall from beneath rising Tar River. The child was completely submerged at the time of the rescue.
Gary tumbled into the ditch while he and a five-year-old sister were playing in the back yard of their home at 603 "A" Street. Dee Lois, who was caring for them and the eight-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Hall, had gone into the house to check the baby at the time Gary fell in the ditch.
When she returned to the yard, Gary was out of sight beneath water in the ditch. Dee Lois stripped off her shoes, jumped in the ditch and found the boy struggling on the ditch bottom. She pulled him out.
According to Dee Lois' mother, Mrs. M. L. Fordham, the Rose High School freshman narrowly missed pneumonia as a result of the incident. She is expected, however, to be out of school the remainder of this week.
Three-year-old Gary, who apparently swallowed a considerable amount of water, was sick for "a couple of days," but is now improved. His father said this morning he has apparently recovered from a cold he got as a result of falling in the water.

Woman's Death Is Ruled Suicide

FALKLAND—An elderly Falkland resident was found hanged in her home around 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

'Baby' Nuclear Weapons Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baby-sized nuclear weapons for use by foot soldiers may now be part of the U.S. arsenal.
Without any elaboration, the Atomic Energy Commission disclosed Tuesday that it has developed or is trying to develop nuclear weapons with a wallop of only one ton of TNT.
Such a weapon, only 120,000 as powerful as the first atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, presumably would be designed for infantry use similar to the anti-tank bazooka gun.
The AEC mentioned the baby-sized weapons in a report listing for the first time specific explosive yields of the 19 test shots during last fall's "Hardtack" series in Nevada.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. James Parker

FALKLAND—Mrs. Leona Moore Parker, 79, died Tuesday afternoon at her home in Falkland.
Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel in Greenville. Burial will be in the Falkland cemetery. The Rev. Phillip Corey, Presbyterian minister of Fountain, will conduct the service.
Mrs. Parker was a native of Pitt county and had spent all her married life in the Falkland community. She was a member of Great Swamp Primitive Baptist Church in Greenville. She was the wife of James F. Parker who died in 1943.
She is survived by a son, J. Frank Parker of Falkland; two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Moore of Falkland, and Mrs. Laurie Ellis of Winterville; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Bill To Abolish N. C. Absentee Ballot Introduced 'By Request'

RALEIGH (AP) — Bills to repeal the highway commission, to abolish the civilian absentee ballot in North Carolina and to provide blood tests for drunken drivers landed in the legislative mill today.
Rep. Harlan Holcombe of Yancey introduced the absentee ballot repealer in the House. He noted it was "by request" to indicate he does not personally favor the measure.
Rep. Woodrow W. Jones of Pitt was joined by several other House members in introducing his long-promised bill to do away with the present seven member State Highway Commission and return to a 14-member commission.
Sen. Cutlar Moore of Robeson tossed in the blood tests measure which has the backing of State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt. It provides that if a test showed the presence of .15 per cent or more evidence that the person was under the influence of alcohol.
The bill also provides that if a person arrested for drunken driving refuses to take a blood test, the Motor Vehicles Department could suspend his driving license for one year. The person losing his license would have the right to appeal.
Senate Judiciary II extracted the teeth from a bill which proposed heavy fines and long prison sentences for persons making hoax bomb calls. The weakened bill approved by the committee would leave such offenses in the misdemeanor category, subject to punishment in the discretion of the courts. The committee removed provisions for fines of not less than $500 and up to 10 years imprisonment. Making the offense a misdemeanor would mean punishment of up to two years in prison.

Rites Thursday For Ann Howard White

Ann Howard White, 28, died at her home, 1608 East Fifth Street in Greenville, at 5:30 Wednesday morning. She had been ill the past six months.
Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. J. Malloy Owen III, assisted by Rev. John Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.
Ann Howard, daughter of William H. White of Greenville, and the late Lillian Hooker Wall, spent her life in Greenville and was a member of St. James Methodist Church.
Surviving are her father; a brother, Dr. W. H. White Jr., of Norfolk, Va.; and her grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. White of Greenville.
