President Terms $3.9 Billion In Foreign Aid Essential To Survive

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for $3,920,000,000 in foreign aid. He said the spending is essential to survival in the face of a "growing Communist potential to launch a war of nuclear destruction."

In a special message Eisenhower cautioned against reckless cuts, lest the United States become "the richest nation in the graveyard of history."

The President said the full amount is urgently needed to thwart "a fanatic conspiracy of international communism" which maintains 6 1/2 million men under arms in about 400 divisions around the world.

Singling out the Soviet drive to force the West out of Berlin, Eisenhower said: "In Europe today the Soviet Union has made demands regarding the future of Berlin which, if unmodified, could have perilous consequences."

"The resolution with which we and our allies will meet this issue has come about in large measure because our past programs of economic and military assistance to our NATO allies have aided them," he said, "to stand firm in the face of threats."

Speaking of the worldwide Red threat against free nations, Eisenhower told the legislators: "Two fundamental purposes of our collective defense effort are to prevent general war and to deter Communist local aggression."

"We know the enormous and growing Communist potential to launch a war of nuclear destruction and their willingness to use this power as a threat to the free world."

"We know also that even local aggressions, unless checked, could absorb nation after nation into the Communist orbit—or could flame into world war."

"The protection of the free world against the threat or the reality of Soviet nuclear aggression or local attack rests on the common defense effort established under our collective security agreements."

The sum requested is about 12 million dollars less than sought last year. It would continue massive military-economic assistance to some 70 friendly nations into a 13th consecutive pre-war year.

Eisenhower's aid requests have been cut sharply in past years. Democrats, urging more spending than the administration plans on some domestic programs and the nation's own defenses, have been eyeing the foreign aid fund as a place to offset some of the increases. Nearly 62 per cent of the new funds Eisenhower asked would go for military programs—military equipment and munitions including missiles and "defense support" as aid to nations which maintain big military forces of their own.

The remainder would go for development help, technical assistance and low interest loans, especially in Asia and the Middle East.

Eisenhower said special aid from one of these funds is needed for West Berlin which he described as "a solitary outpost of freedom back of the Iron Curtain."

"In addition to the firm support which we and our NATO allies have assured West Berlin in the face of current Soviet threat," he said, "it is important that we show our support of its people by continuing our economic assistance to that beleaguered city."

Eisenhower took note of the congressional arguments for shifting funds from foreign aid into other operations.

"When I hear this program described as a 'give-away' or as 'aid to foreigners at the expense of domestic program,' I wonder what sort of America we would have today—whether any funds would be available for any domestic programs, whether all of our substance would not today be devoted to building a Fortress America—if we had not had such a program," he said.

The President said that dollar for dollar, foreign aid adds more to American security than a far greater expenditure on United States forces. He cited as dividends of the program some 250 strategic Air, Navy and Army bases made available by foreign countries, as well as five million men such countries have mobilized to help curb Soviet aggression.

Rejecting the contention that the Soviet has outstripped the United States in military might, Eisenhower called the Soviet Union "the second military and economic power in the world today."

He said Red China, "the other great Communist power," also is demonstrating a ruthless drive for power.

Eisenhower said the next decade will forecast the outcome of the free world struggle against communism.

"The challenge that confronts us is broad and deep—and will remain so for some time," he said.

"Yet our gravest danger is not in these external facts but within ourselves—the possibility that in complacent satisfaction with our present wealth, preoccupation with increasing our own military power, we may fail to recognize the realities around us and to deal with them with the vigor and tenacity their gravity requires."

New Peace Hopes For Henderson

HENDERSON, N. C. (AP)—Prospects for an early settlement of the bitter Harriet Henderson Cotton Mills strike appeared brighter today following a union-management meeting Thursday.

Boyd Payton, regional director of the Textile Workers Union of America, said, "I feel very optimistic over the chances of settling the strike."

John D. Cooper Jr., company president, was expected to issue a statement today. He indicated Thursday headway was made in the union-management conference with government mediators. However, he declined to comment at that time.

Payton said the company submitted a new proposal in a four-page document, adding, "We found ourselves in agreement on much of it. The union made a counter proposal on four of the points. The company is taking our counter proposal under consideration."

The union official said the company's proposal covered the matter of handling arbitration and grievances. The strike was called last Nov. 17 after management insisted that an arbitration clause be deleted from the new contract.

Payton said he would not attempt to explain the proposal, stating that he preferred it come from the company.

"As far as we are concerned it (the strike) can be wound up next week," he stated. "It's just a matter of give and take. The company gave some and we gave some. That's the only way we can reach a settlement. There'll have to be some giving and taking."

In Superior Court, Judge William Y. Bickett sentenced three strikers on contempt of court charges for allegedly violating a court order prohibiting violence at the mills.

Linvel Nelson and Edwin Ellington each received 20-day jail sentences and fines of $150. Clifford Carter got 10 days and a fine of $150. They gave notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Student newspapers in Greenville and Farmville high schools have won first place awards in the annual Columbia University Scholastic Press Association contest, it was announced today.

"Green Lights" published by Junior H. Rose High School in Greenville won a first place in competition among printed newspapers for high schools of 501 to 750 enrollment. "News 'N' Views," published by Farmville High School, won first place in competition among schools of 300 enrollment or less.

Announcement of the awards was made at the opening session of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention in New York. The entries were judged by a board of 30 school press authorities in competition sponsored by Columbia University.

Other papers receiving awards in the category in which "Green Lights" was entered included Hendersonville's "Red and White," first place; Rocky Mount Senior High's "Blackbird," first place; Page (Greensboro) Senior High School's "Pages By Page," second place; Washington High School's "The Pamlicoan," second place; and Taylorsville High's "Alexandrian," fourth place.

Hawaii Statehood Boosters Happy

Supporters of the Hawaii Statehood Bill flash victory smiles in Washington as the House followed the Senate in passing a bill to make Hawaii the 50th state in the union. Behind the Territory of Hawaii flag, left to right, are Sen. Frank Church (D-Ida.), Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) who led the bill to a successful vote in the Senate; Dolores Martin, Honolulu Democratic national committeewoman; John Burns, Hawaii delegate; Sen. Gale W. McGee (D-Wyo.), Mike Cafferty, Insular Affairs subcommittee counsel, and Dan Aoki, administrative assistant to delegate Burns. (AP Wirephoto)

Hawaii Slated To Become A State Within The Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Hawaiian Islands will become the nation's 50th state within the year, Congress answered the territory's half-century of pleading for statehood Thursday with a resounding 323-89 vote in the House. The Senate passed a day earlier with a 76-15 vote.

President Eisenhower gets the bill today. His approval is certain. Presidential secretary James C. Hagerty said the President is delighted.

In four to six months Hawaii could be a full partner in the union. It will take that long to set up elections for the nearly 600,000 people to choose their first state officers, their two U.S. senators and one representative in the House. Hawaii will qualify for a second House seat after the 1960 census.

There is a maximum time schedule set out in the state constitution which the people of Hawaii, tired of waiting, adopted in 1950. The maximum is 180 days between the date the President signs the bill and the date of the general election. The actual time could be less.

Gov. William F. Quinn, 12th and last presidentially appointed governor of Hawaii, said he is inclined to favor a schedule on the slow side. He said he thought that would be preferred by political leaders of both parties to get good candidates in the field. Quinn is a Republican and a candidate for governor. It is up to him to set the election dates.

John A. Burns, Hawaii's Democratic delegate to Congress, said he favors the shortest possible preliminary to the ultimate proclamation of the President formally admitting the islands to statehood. "Hawaiians are tired of living under the shackles of the appointive governor system," he said.

Burns, undoubtedly a candidate for something, has not said which office he will seek. Hawaiians will have other things to vote on, besides officers. They must decide:

1. Whether they want statehood, whistles and motorists' horns. At night there were street dancing, bonfires and fireworks.

Military planes dropped flares at sea off Waikiki Beach, the island's best known resort spot. At Waikiki, throngs jammed the streets to see dancing by Tahitian, Samoan and Hawaiian maidens. Light showers failed to dampen the festivities. Native Hawaiians, who regard rain as a blessing of the Gods, took it as a good omen for the newest state.

Servicemen at liberty joined the thousands crowding the Waikiki area. One serviceman carried a cardboard sign from his neck reading "Maryland welcomes Hawaii" and another had a sign which read "Iowa votes yes."

The largest bonfire was a towering blaze on an island adjoining Honolulu harbor. Logs from many states and foreign countries had been collected for the blaze. In Waikiki, celebration committee workers collected thousands of signatures on a big scroll which will be sent to Congress as a gesture of thanks.

About the moment the Washington vote was taken, 84 foreigners—most of them Japanese—took the oath of United States citizenship in federal court in Honolulu. Novelist James A. Michener said: "You are very, very lucky. You join America at the same time these islands are joining America."

(they voted for it 2-1 in a plebiscite 19 years ago, but they must vote again.)

2. Whether to accept the boundaries defined by Congress. (This excludes Palmyra Island, a tiny, privately owned, coral atoll 960 miles south of Honolulu.)

3. Whether to accept the federal land grants and reservations specified in the statehood bill.

Hawaii consists of eight major islands and a number of smaller ones with a total land area of 6,434 square miles. Hawaii would be the 47th state in size, bigger than Rhode Island, Delaware and Connecticut. In population, Hawaii now outranks Alaska, Nevada, Wyoming, Vermont, Delaware and New Hampshire.

Although 85 per cent of the territory's residents are American citizens, the bulk of the population is of oriental and Polynesian (native Hawaiian) ancestry. In the 1950 census, Caucasians comprised 23 per cent. The largest ethnic group was Japanese, 36.9 per cent.

Opposition melted in the final hours of House debate. House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), long a formidable opponent of Hawaii statehood, issued a statement congratulating a statehood bill. He said the territory will be "an asset to the United States."

Charges of communism in Hawaii played a significant part in the final debate. Rep. John R. Pillion (R-N.Y.) said admission of Hawaii would "actually invite four Soviet agents to take seats in the U.S. Congress."

But Chairman Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities urged the House, as a security move, to "enact this legislation to the end that these people (of Hawaii) will throw off the yoke of those who are strong and powerful."

"There is no question," Walter said, "but that Communist unions have a very strong hold on the economy of Hawaii."

Nor is there question, he said, that Harry Bridges and Jack Hall of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union "exercise influences far beyond the normal, legitimate influences of labor leaders."

But Walter said he was convinced that under the new responsibilities of statehood, the patriotic people of Hawaii would break the hold of these labor leaders "for all time to come."

Introduce Bill To Permit Sale

FARMVILLE—Representatives Walter B. Jones and Frank M. Wooten Jr. of Pitt County introduced a bill yesterday in the General Assembly which would authorize the Town of Farmville to sell its dump site and adjacent lands.

According to the bill, a total of approximately ten acres of land is owned by the town at the dump site and adjacent areas. The bill was referred to the House Committee on Cities, Counties and Towns.

Added Taxes On Liquor, Soft Drinks Sought To Pay Salary Increases

RALEIGH (AP)—A group of senators, led by John R. Jordan Jr. of Wake, today proposed higher taxes on whiskey and a 1 1/2 cent levy on soft drinks to provide pay raises for school teachers and state employees.

Sens. Grady Mercer of Duplin, Adam J. Whitley of Johnston, W. E. Garrison of Lincoln and Arthur Williamson of Columbus joined Jordan in sponsoring the bill which would rewrite much of the budget proposed by Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission.

The bill would provide a 8.4 per cent pay raise for school personnel and 7.1 per cent for state workers.

Jordan expressed confidence that a majority of the Senate favored his proposals. He said a similar bill would be introduced in the House later.

He said his group is not attempting to rewrite the budget but was trying "to correct what we feel are some of the more serious omissions in the present budget" pertaining to public education.

Meanwhile, the Senate unanimously passed and sent to the House a measure to require the vaccination of most Tar Heel children against polio by the time they reach school age. The bill now goes to the House and may be enacted into law next week since similar measures already have won approval of House committees.

The bill, to be effective next July 1, would require parents to have their children vaccinated for polio sometime before they reach six years of age. Only children whose health would be affected and those whose parents have religious objections to vaccination would be exempted.

In addition, the Jordan bill would add $1,840,691 more than Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission recommended for faculty salary adjustments at the three units of the Consolidated University, and $32,071 additional for faculty salary adjustments at other state-supported colleges.

The bill also proposed a $2,948,260 appropriation to provide five days cumulative sick leave for school teachers and principals; and $74,430 to finance a new two-year course in agriculture at North Carolina State College.

These increases plus matching funds for retirement would total slightly over $1 million dollars, and Jordan came up with proposals to raise nearly $1 1/2 million to finance them.

He figured on getting 27 million dollars during the biennium from the soft drink tax, more than 10 million from boosting the present 10 per cent state whiskey tax to 17-23 per cent; 10 million from junking the proposed school incentive plan; $1,750,000 from the proposed withholding plan of collecting state income taxes, $616,000 by junking plans to move the State School for the Blind in Raleigh to a new campus and from junking a plan for a new legislative building—the $616,000 represents the amount set aside to pay interest on bond issues for the project; about two million dollars from transferring money the governor and Budget Commission recommended for pay raises to beginning school teachers to a general increase for all teachers.

Jordan said the plan to raise the pay of young teachers only "is not well-founded in that it ignores the veteran career teacher who has given many years to teaching and who intends to remain in the profession." He said the 8.4 increase would give the beginning teachers almost as big a raise as the governor proposed.

Asked about the Bonn government's attitude, Von Eckardt said it had always regarded the Macmillan trip as useful, but now it regarded it as having been "extremely useful."

The British prime minister admitted on arriving in Bonn Thursday that the Western powers are "still a long way" from their goal of finding a policy to counter the Soviet threat to drive them out of West Berlin.

With U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles ailing, Macmillan has taken over the role of roving coordinator of Western strategy. He is flying to the United States next week for conferences with President Eisenhower.

The Soviets kept up their hot-and-cold propaganda.

Awards winners in the category in which "News 'N' Views" was entered included Ahsokie High's "Murfreesboro High," first place; and Norwood High's "The Rambler," second place.

William F. Landis is faculty advisor for "Green Lights" which has won several previous awards in the Columbia Scholastic Press competition. Jimmy Ferrell is faculty advisor for "News 'N' Views" which entered the competition this year for the first time.

Underground Is Giving Up Arms

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground, today began surrendering the arms with which it won independence for Cyprus from the British.

The arms turn-in had been awaited since Britain, Turkey, Greece and the leaders of the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities agreed Feb. 19 on a plan to make the island independent.

Macmillan, Adenauer Find Full Agreement On Berlin

BONN, Germany (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer have reached full agreement on Berlin, the German question and European security, a German government spokesman said today.

The statement came after Macmillan and Adenauer wound up their talks at a morning session of more than two hours. Only an interpreter was present.

Macmillan arrived Thursday from talks with French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris. He goes to the United States next week for conferences with President Eisenhower.

Apparently the French and West German governments overruled any ideas the British may have had to ease the Berlin crisis by proposing a wholesale withdrawal of troops from central Europe.

Macmillan obviously sought to quiet West German fears that his recent mission to Moscow had raised the prospect of "disengagement" as an Allied policy.

Bonn press chief Felix von Eckardt told a news conference that the two heads of government were agreed on the procedures in the coming weeks.

"No differences exist," he said. British Foreign Office spokesman Peter Hope concurred.

The agreement followed a period of considerable German concern and misgiving over Macmillan's visit to Moscow.

Some West German sources had indicated privately there was fear Macmillan might give way on some points other Western partners regarded as vital without getting anything from the Soviets in return.

Asked about the Bonn government's attitude, Von Eckardt said it had always regarded the Macmillan trip as useful, but now it regarded it as having been "extremely useful."

The British prime minister admitted on arriving in Bonn Thursday that the Western powers are "still a long way" from their goal of finding a policy to counter the Soviet threat to drive them out of West Berlin.

With U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles ailing, Macmillan has taken over the role of roving coordinator of Western strategy. He is flying to the United States next week for conferences with President Eisenhower.

State Bank Announces Opening Trust Dept. Beginning April 1

State Bank and Trust Company of Greenville announced today it will open a trust department beginning April 1.

John T. Marston Jr., State Bank president, said final approval of the proposal to begin operations of a trust department for the bank came yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the board of directors.

Marston also announced today that B. B. Sugg Jr. of Greenville has been named vice president and trust officer of the bank and will head the new trust department. Sugg will begin his new duties with the bank on April 1.

"We have long recognized the need for a trust department to give complete banking service to customers of the State Bank and Trust Company and the people of the area served by the bank," Marston said in making the announcement. "We have recognized the need, but we have not established a department until we were confident we could secure the services of a well qualified man to head up this important banking function."

"From the standpoint of education, business experience and background, we feel Mr. Sugg is well qualified to fill this post. We feel that State Bank and Trust Company is fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Sugg for this position."

Sugg, a native of Greenville, is a Certified Public Accountant and a graduate of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He attended Greenville city schools and graduated from Davidson College.

For 25 years he has been a member of the firm of Star Warehouses of Greenville and for a number of years associated himself with the accounting firm of Hilton-Sheffield and Hilton of Norfolk, Va.

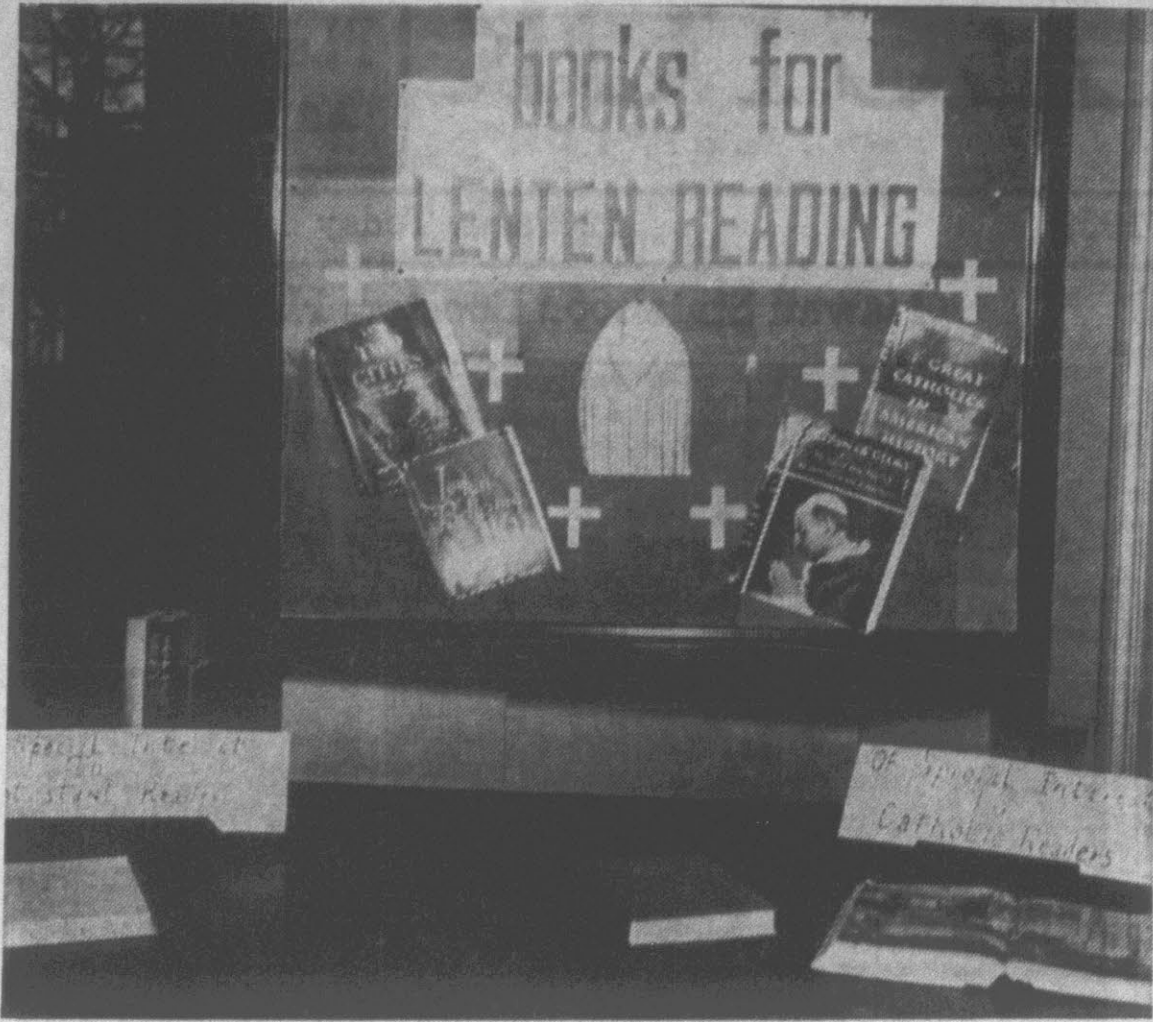

Long active in civic and business affairs of Greenville, Sugg is a past president of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce, a past president of the Lions Club, and serves as secretary-treasurer of the Tar River Port Commission. He is a past president of the East Carolina Warehouse Association and a member of the board of governors of the Bright-Bell Warehouse Association. He has also served as a member of the board of directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

A member of the Eighth Street Christian Church in Greenville, he has served as a member of the official board of the church and as a teacher of the men's Bible Class.

He is married to the former Miss Sarah Barnes of Kinston and Refreshments were served by Mrs. Magnolia Everett and Mrs. James L. Hardee.

The door prize was won by Mrs. S. B. Tucker.

30 Years Ago Today

March 13, 1929

The committee today announced selection of the queens to represent Greenville at the Eastern Carolina Exposition and Automobile Show to be held at Farmville during the week of April 8. They are: Seniors Queens—Misses Mary Lou White, Catherine Smith, Florence Taft, Maybelle Bammers and Virginia King; Junior Queens—Alice Lee Blow, Mary Elizabeth Coppege, Jane Evans Rowlett, Elizabeth Gates and Jane Forbes. The pulchritude of the city is embraced in the selection of both senior and junior queens.

Pair Celebrates 49th Anniversary

BETHEL—Sunday Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Whitehurst, Sr. celebrated their 49th anniversary by serving a turkey dinner and having as their guests their sons and their wives and all of the grandchildren except two, Miss Jennie Whitehurst a student at Salem College and Buddy, her brother, who is attending Military Academy at Atlanta Ga.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst and two children, Joe Annie and Bob; Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst, school and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Whitehurst and daughter, Lou.

Good Grooming Is Necessary

RALEIGH—Is good grooming a lot of bother? Or is it something you practice as regularly as you brush your teeth?

Good grooming concerns every part of your appearance, points out Miss Mary Em Lee, clothing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

It is what people see first and remember the most. A lot of "fixing" for that special occasion will not help as much as the constant care day-in and day-out.

Be a better looking, better feeling person—include good grooming your daily schedule.

Bridge Clubs

BETHEL—Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Howard Keel entertained six members of her bridge club and two visitors, Mrs. Bill Johnson and Mrs. Samuel Keel.

During the first progression, popcorn and bottled drinks were served.

At the end of play, Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews received a telephone pad as a prize for winning high score and Mrs. W. M. Mizelle was presented a lint brush as consolation prize.

Sugar cookie cups filled with cream were served by the hostess.

Couples Club

When Mrs. Clifton Everett entertained the Couples Bridge Club, her home was decorated with arrangements of mixed spring flowers. Three tables were set for play. At the end of the progressions, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Whitehurst were awarded prizes for winning high scores.

A sweet course consisting of Jello and German chocolate cake was served.

Mrs. Andrews Hostess

Seven members and one visitor attended bridge when Mrs. L. L. Andrews entertained recently. Mrs. Robert Weeks was the afternoon guest.

After the third progression Mrs. W. E. House was awarded high score prize and Mrs. Walter Wade Carson won low score prize.

Apple pies with whipped cream and hot coffee was served by the hostess.

Boys Girls Differ In Imaginative Play

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
By the time children are about three years old it's possible to observe a difference in the play of boys and girls. Especially is this true in dramatic and imaginative play. Recently I watched a group of three-year-olds in a nursery school.

The girls played at being mothers, nurses, teachers, neighbors. They carried out a multitude of domestic jobs. They cooked food, served meals, cleaned house, cared for children, washed, ironed, dressed up to go out, etc.

The boys, too, liked to pretend to be grown up. But the little boys' notion of a grown up man seemed to be the driver of a car, a policeman, a milkman, maybe a mechanic. The children didn't have as much experience with these jobs as did the little girls with household tasks. The boys knew them only as spectators, while the girls knew the feminine jobs intimately and had often been urged to take part in them at home.

An interesting discussion was raised in this nursery school. If at this tender age children are already identifying themselves with adults of the same sex why was it that so few boys ever played father roles? The boys apparently thought of grown men as workers, as drivers of machinery, but seldom as fathers.

Was it because the children saw so little of their fathers that they seldom thought of them as men? True, in this hectic world of ours many fathers come home after the children are in bed and leave before much has happened in the morning, and some of these men spend mighty little time with the children over the weekends. But on taking a closer look at the children in the group the teacher knew this wasn't true of all the fathers of these children. There was Lester over there playing at being a policeman. The teacher knew Lester's father to be a warm devoted parent who did many things with his child and yet Lester never identified with him in his play.

An imaginative young teacher had a bright idea. She looked over the play equipment in the room keeping part of the playroom.

"How," she said, "Can a child dramatize a father here? There is nothing but scarfs, jewelry, hats to dress up in."

Next day she added some new play material. She brought in a razor (without a blade), a pipe, some neckties, a tool box and an old pair of pants and a man's hat.

The results were very interesting. In a few days boys were playing at father and the girls accepted them as such.

"This old iron won't work—you're the Daddy, Steve, come fix it," and Steve, with an old hat over his ears, lugged the tool box over to the iron.

As Steve fixed Susan's iron he said: "This damfool iron's no good. Throw it in the trash and I'll buy you a new one."

Mrs. Copeland Gives Program

Mrs. D. M. Copeland, home beautification leader, spoke on the importance of knowing the various types of shrubs at the Home Demonstration Club meeting at Pactivus Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Copeland stressed the importance of placing trees and shrubs in the correct place: such as shade, background, balance and enclosure or separation.

A contest was conducted in the naming of different varieties of shrubs and trees.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. B. Satterwaite.

Mrs. John Langley presided at the meeting and Mrs. Paul Davenport lead the devotion.

Chapter To Meet

The Major Benjamin May Chapter D.A.R. will meet in the Chapter House in Farmville Saturday, March 14, at 2:30 o'clock. Hostesses will be Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. Margaret Parley.

Mrs. Spivey Honored At Retirement Party

Mrs. R. L. Spivey, of Farmville, was recently honored by personnel of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company at a retirement party, following 20 years of service with the company. The event was held at the Silo Restaurant in Greenville.

Upon her arrival, Mrs. Spivey was presented an orchid corsage by Miss Peggy Barbour, District Service Representative of New Bern. Guests were greeted and served tomato juice cocktails and hors d'oeuvres by Willis Marshall, District Commercial Manager of New Bern, who acted as Master of ceremonies for the occasion.

Following a number of congratulatory speeches, guests were seated at a dining table centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and red carnations interspersed with fern. The menu consisted of grilled steaks, tossed salad, onion rings, hash, potatoes, baked potatoes, and rolls, served with coffee.

Mrs. Spivey was awarded a retirement pin, presented by Jack Havens, Vice-President. She was also remembered with a gift certificate presented by C. J. Logan, Frank Harrington, manager of the Greenville district, presented her with a life membership plaque in Telephone Pioneers, and Mrs. Spivey was also the recipient of a number of gifts from the guests at the conclusion of the evening.

Attitude Is Unseen Ingredient

RALEIGH — "An attitude is an unseen ingredient."

"You are not born with your attitudes, but they are acquired," says Mrs. Corrine J. Grimesley, family relations specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Attitudes are influenced by the people you associate with, the place you live and ideas received from parents.

A "wrong" attitude is called prejudice . . . or the fact that you are down on something you are not up on."

Wrong attitudes cause deep hurts, build resentments and create hatred. Fights and wars are the results.

Can you let your child grow up with wrong attitudes? Their thinking is shaped—it is within your power to raise a generation that is free from hate and bitterness.

AFTERNOON TEA

New cookie bars!

Assorted Sandwiches
Prune Coconut Bars
Tea with Lemon or Milk

PRUNE COCONUT BARS

Ingredients: ½ cup butter, ½ cup light brown sugar (firmly packed), 1 cup sifted flour, 1-3 cup light brown sugar (firmly packed), 2 tablespoons corn-starch, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons prune juice (water in which prunes were soaked), 2-3 cup chopped pitted soaked prunes, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1-4 cup orange juice, 2-3 cup blanched almonds, 2 eggs, 1 can (3½ ounces) flaked coconut.

Method: Cream butter and ½ cup brown sugar; mix in flour until crumbly. Pat rich mixture into baking pan (9 by 9 by 1-3-4 inches) having it come up about 1 inch around edge. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 20 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Mix 1-3 cup brown sugar, corn-starch and salt; add prune juice, chopped prunes, orange rind and orange juice. Cook and stir constantly until thickened. Stir in almonds; spread over baked mixture. Beat eggs until thick; mix in coconut. Spread over prune mixture. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 25 to 30 minutes or until coconut is lightly browned around edge. Cut into bars when cool and remove from pan. Store in tightly covered container after bars are cold.

Luncheon Fetes Club Members

BETHEL — Mrs. Walter C. Whitehurst was hostess at a buffet luncheon honoring the members of the Round Dozen Book Club and Mrs. S. C. Whitehurst who was guest speaker for the occasion Wednesday.

The hostess greeted the guests at the door and invited them into the living room. After all arrived, they were directed into the dining room. The table was covered with an imported cutwork cloth and centered with an artistic arrangement of Dutch iris and tulips. From this table the guests served themselves to a delectable luncheon.

Mrs. Robert Davis introduced the speaker, Mrs. Whitehurst, who chose for her subject "The Life of Harriet Derr Lanbach," mother of Dr. Frank Lanbach, a famous Literacy Evangelist and writer.

Mrs. Whitehurst stated that the subject's life was of Christian service and compassion which extended to everyone in her community who needed her help in anyway, played a big part in influencing the career of her famous son in his line of missionary and evangelistic work.

Patient Circle Holds Session

On Tuesday night The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Son met in the home of Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell. The meeting was opened with the Prayer of The Order.

The Bible Study was conducted by Miss Mamie Chandler, Director of Methodist Student Center. Miss Chandler used for the study the Gospel of John, which she described as the Book of Christian Doctrine and the Witness to Truth. She concluded the study by reading the 17th Chapter of John.

Mrs. Shackell presided over the business session. Gratifying Committee reports were submitted.

It was announced that a Bake Sale would be held on Saturday, March 28. The proceeds to be used in the Social Service Work of the Circle.

Hostesses, Mrs. Shackell, Mrs. Harvey Dail, Mrs. Virginia Perkins, Mrs. Charles Blanchard, Mrs. E. L. Baker, Mrs. A. R. House, and Mrs. Cora S. Powell, served refreshments with the St. Patrick's motif.

Shirt Dress Starts New Jewelry Mode

COLLAR PINS . . . Pairs of pins in graduated sizes add just the right accent to new shirt-waist collar.

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NOW THAT the shirtwaist dress is established as the top fashion hit for spring, and summer, 1959, the question is—what kind of jewelry to wear with it?

CHOKER . . . Eight strands of graduated color in beads, crystals and pearls give a new dressy look to the classic shirtwaist dress. Bangle bracelets repeat color.

Fashion changes have kept the jewelry designers in a dither for the last few seasons. They had just turned out millions of three-yard strands of beads to wear with the late and unlamented chemise when along came the Empire style, and everything had to be changed. Big, ornate brooches and dangling earrings were the prescription for this phase.

Now waistlines are back to normal and the shirt dress is tops, so jewelry does another about-face. As a matter of fact, designers are having a field day dreaming up new ways to change the look of the basic shirtwaist with switches of jewelry.

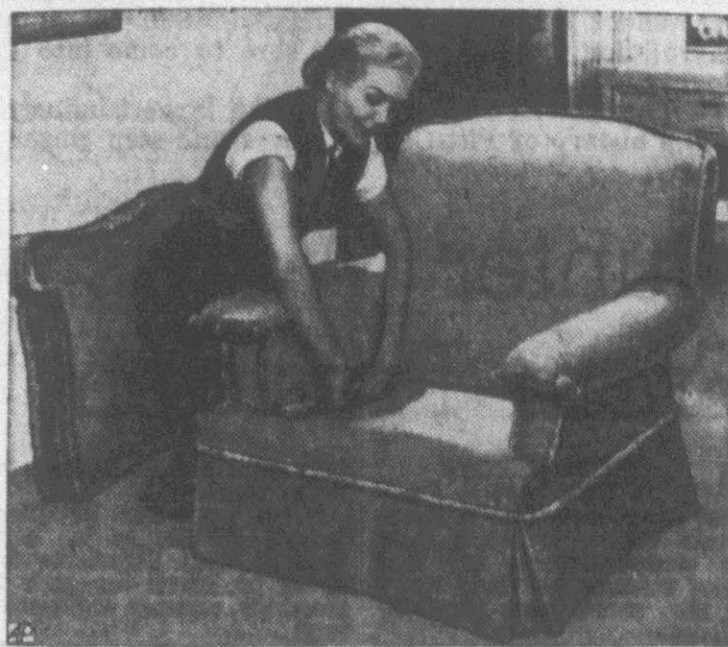

To dress up a simple shirt dress, nothing is more effective than a jeweled choker necklace of multiple strands, worn close about the throat, with bracelets to match. Another effective choice is the bib necklace, made of half-a-dozen graduated strands of beads, pearls or fake jewels. The idea is to fill in the V of the open-collar neckline with an effective splash of coordinated color.

Plain bangle bracelets, worn several at a time in different harmonizing colors, dress up the bare arm look beneath a push-up cuff.

New and popular also are big shirtwaist pins and matching earrings. Fasten the pin to the belt. Or add a feminine touch to the jeweled choker necklace of multiple strands, worn close about the throat, with bracelets to match. And quickly adopted by their big sisters.

New Tricks Make New Slipcovers A Cinch

PROFESSIONAL TOUCH: Use new shortcuts for slipcovers.

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor
If your upholstered pieces are beginning to look a little tired, you can work wonders with new slipcovers. They are easier than ever to make, with a few quick tricks from local sewing center experts.

The first rule is to buy everything at once: fabric, trimmings, zippers, thread, pins and so on. Be sure to get dressmaker's chalk—it's important for the new pin-fitting technique.

To pin-fit a slipcover, cut sections roughly to size. Then pin sections to chair along seam line, working with fabric right side out. Pin sections together. A basting thread will help keep gathers even at front of arm and around curve in back.

Mark seam line with chalk; then trim away all seams evenly to one inch. Next take pieces off and remove pins. If you are using fringe or corded trim, stitch this along right side of fabric, on chalk lines. Then turn pieces wrong side out and, using the stitching line for the fringe as a guide, stitch sections together. This technique will insure smooth seams and a good fit.

Church Women Sponsor Supper

A chicken and barbecue supper, proceeds from which will go to building a new parsonage for the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Holiness Church, will be held Saturday.

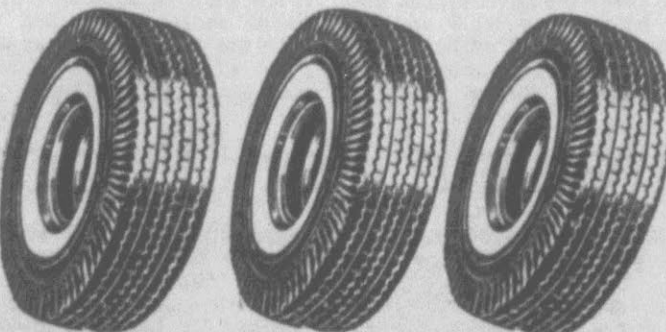

The Women's Auxiliary of the church are sponsoring the supper between the hours of 5:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. in the Chicod High School cafeteria.

Following the supper there will be an auction of quilts, aprons, cakes, pies and other articles assembled by the auxiliary.

Fresh grapefruit sections make a different and interesting garnish for a chicken salad. Sprinkle the sections with a little paprika for color.

Jones Bill Certain To Have Effect

There is a much better than even chance that the Highway Commission re-organization bill introduced this week by Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt will go a long way toward bringing the State Highway Commission back into a position much closer to the people of the state.

The re-organization bill proposed by Rep. Jones may not be passed by the General Assembly. Nevertheless, the fact that it has appreciable support both in the legislature and among the people of the state is sure to have an effect upon the Highway Commission as it now is constituted.

Since the re-organization of the Highway Commission into a seven-man body two years ago at the behest of Gov. Hodges, there has developed, particularly in the East, considerable dissatisfaction with the arrangement. The main objection that highway affairs under the new arrangement are too far removed from public feeling is both widespread and justified.

Rep. Jones' bill for re-organization calls for four major changes:

1. To increase membership of the Highway Commission from the present seven to 14 members.
2. It would define the geographical limits of each of 14 highway divisions in the state.
3. It would require that one resident of each division be appointed to the Highway Commission.
4. That each commissioner hold a public meeting at least once each month in his division.

The new re-organization bill is being opposed by Gov. Hodges, and it can be expected the governor will seek all the legislative strength he can muster against the bill. Even so, the governor several weeks ago indicated he would not be adverse to increasing the number of highway commissioners. The major reason for the administration opposition to the Jones bill apparently is the fear it would eliminate the so-called "state-wide approach" to highway problems the new seven-man organization supposedly brought about.

There can be no doubt that the provisions in the Jones bill would give North Carolina a highway organization much more sensitive to public feeling toward the state's highways. At the same time it would not destroy the position of a professional director for the state's highways and the professional highway staff.

It would, in our opinion, afford the state a commission with a "statewide viewpoint" equally as good as the present seven man commission, and at the same time give the commission much closer contact with citizens throughout the state. It would overcome many of the shortcomings of the state's Highway Commission as presently constituted without placing in jeopardy the overall highway program of the state.

VOA Announcement Removed Uncertainty

With the announcement of the exact locations of its new facilities in Pitt and Beaufort Counties, the Voice of America has answered the question most often asked hereabouts since the initial announcement that the facilities would be located in this area.

The announcement brought relief to many property owners who found that their land was not included in the site locations. Also it brought concern to some owners whose land is included in the three sites.

By and large, however, the VOA steered away from cleared farm land in designating the locations for its sites. Some cleared land is included, but it represents only a small percentage of the total of 5,900 acres which will compose the three sites. The vast majority of the land included in the sites is woodland.

The fact that two of the sites are located within Pitt and the third is adjacent to Pitt in Beaufort County leaves no doubt about the economic impact the facilities will have on Pitt. In addition to the $26 million to be spent in constructing and equipping the facilities, the 100 employees they will require on a permanent basis and the estimated $800,000 annual payroll for the most part are sure to come into Pitt County.

Thus the newest and one of the largest industries in the history of Pitt County moves one step closer to reality.

Blunter Words From President

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, who in recent weeks has had to depend more on himself than at any time since entering the White House in 1953, sounds more emphatic, blunter.

This showed at his news conference Wednesday. At his meetings with congressional leaders last weekend he reportedly was very much in charge.

The two men he leaned on most are now out of the picture. Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's chief of staff in the White House, and his resignation last summer was a great cushion against the burdens of the presidency.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, now ill with cancer, had an extraordinary relationship with the President. He was Eisenhower's eyes and ears in foreign policy and much of the time his spokesman.

Now far more of the presidential load has landed on Eisenhower's shoulders, along with its many irritations. And Eisenhower is responding with a show of vigor.

In times past, if you attended one of his news conferences and didn't have to concentrate on taking notes, your mind was apt to wander as Eisenhower rambled through generalities that lacked a sharp edge.

Not Wednesday. He still got wound up in long, involved sentences which often scrambled subject and predicate, but he made points that did have an edge.

Perhaps it was out of exasperation with congressional Democrats, who have been calling on him to pump more men and money into the armed forces, that he finally said in effect:

There's not going to be a land war in Europe; and if the Allied troops there can't cope with whatever is done by the far more numerous Soviet troops, then the whole situation has passed beyond the point of limitation.

He didn't volunteer any statement that if war could not be limited to land engagements then nuclear weapons might have to be used. But under questioning he indicated he was not ruling out the possibility of nuclear war.

This might have been intended to make the Soviets think soberly before they tried any adventures around West Berlin. But, since it might also make American Allies in Europe edgy, he must have thought of that, too, before he spoke.

It was tough talk. But Eisenhower's attitude on the crisis Premier Nikita Khrushchev cooked up on Berlin has been increasingly, although not blatantly, tough.

Perhaps the best sign of his bluntness came when he was asked what he thought of Khrushchev's proposal that maybe the Berlin problem could be solved by letting Soviet troops join Allied troops in West Berlin.

At first, almost as if from force of habit, Eisenhower launched out on an explanation with a generalized moral tone.

He said this country would consult in the most democratic way with its allies in framing an answer to the Soviet demands about getting out of West Berlin and leaving it a free city.

Then, as if impatient with himself for not getting to the point on the question about Khrushchev's proposal, Eisenhower wound up by saying: "Now, as I have said, I don't think much of it."

Opinions In Brief

"Now that the Army has a new device that can see in the dark, maybe they'll use it to find out who's doing all that whistling." — New Orleans States and Item.

"Life of the Senate Rackets Committee was extended for a third year; may live long enough to see a law passed." — Memphis Press-Scimitar.

"A national magazine has come up with a survey of what women think is most important in a good husband. They rated: 'good friend', 41.6 per cent; 'good lover', 33.1 per cent; 'good father', 18.1 per cent; 'good provider', 7.2 per cent. This finding indicates that diamonds are not a girl's best friend. Further, it may imply that old hardworking Sam or Joe (or Reginald or D'Arcy) should quit spending so much time mulling moala, hold hands more often, and make with the calf eyes. Come dinner time, of course, the statistics may shift." — Birmingham News.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THE DIVINE VOICE

The little child Samuel was lying awake in his bed at the side of the altar in the Temple of Jerusalem. Near him the old high priest, Eli, was sleeping soundly. Suddenly there was a voice saying, "Samuel, Samuel."

The child hurried to the bedside of Eli, but Eli denied that he had called the boy. Three times this occurred. The third time, Eli knew that the Lord was speaking and he bade the child reply, "Samuel, for thy servant heareth."

Then came a fearful message. Eli, official representative of the Lord in Israel, should have been able to hear the message, but Eli had grown physically fat, intellectually dull, and what was most to be deplored in a high priest, spiritually insensitive. The Lord spoke to the little child, and had Eli been the divine servant he should have been, he would have heard the voice and received the message. But Eli was beyond hope; not because he was a bad man for he was not, but because he was an indolent, self-centered, careless, no-account person. The child was alert, and he heard the Lord speak, and knew what the Lord said. Most people get out of touch with God because they grow careless, indolent, and indifferent to spiritual realities. Only the spiritually alert hear God when He speaks—and He speaks now just as He always did.

The Kindhearted Pirate

By JIMMY ELLIS

Why He Is In Delaware

One of the problems facing North Carolina's 1959 General Assembly is what to do for, and with, public education.

Operation of the schools is already the state's biggest business. It takes a larger bite out of each tax dollar than any other phase of state government.

Despite that, educational administrators, teachers and laymen interested in public education have long said that more must be done. They claim the state must do more immediately to put North Carolina's educational operations on more of a par with those of other states.

The administrators, teachers and laymen point particularly to salaries and other school conditions. The best that can be said for them, they claim, is that they are "bad," when compared with what other states have.

A potent place of supporting evidence for those arguments has been inadvertently advanced by a friend. The word "inadvertently" is used because what he said is contained in a personal letter to a Greenville resident.

The writer has no objection to publication of the letter in whole or in part, but he will not be identified other than to say he is a graduate of a North Carolina college and a former teacher in a North Carolina city. He now lives and teaches in Delaware.

A portion of his letter includes these statements:

"After you left, I thought, 'I'll bet I sounded awful to you and your friend.' I shouldn't brag so much, but we do have a good school system."

"Here are some of the things I feel we have ahead of North Carolina:

"1. B.S. salary, $3,600 to $5,900; $400 more for masters; $400 more for masters plus 30 hours; and $400 more for doctors."

"2. Full-time nurse and visiting teachers."

"3. Free courses at the University of Delaware for Delaware teachers."

"4. All teachers have one free period each day (I have two, counting a small study hall)."

"5. Paid vacations."

"6. Ten days (annual) sick leave, accumulative to 40."

"7. Ample supplies (and) equipment, janitorial and secretarial help."

"8. Good students — from 50 per cent to 70 per cent attend college."

"9. They help you find good summer jobs. I make $100 a week running this club swimming pool."

"10. Administrators accept you as equals. The relationship between administrators and teachers is excellent."

He goes on to say, in the letter, that he could list "more of the things I feel we have ahead of North Carolina, but I won't." He does say, however, he would prefer North Carolina.

"Actually," he wrote, "if I could, I would love to return to North Carolina. My Dad has an old farm and about 500 acres that has been in the family since 1791. He and I have some beef cattle. He has retired."

"If I could afford to, I would love to teach school in North Carolina and have some farming on the side. As it stands now, I would lose about $3,500 a year and work twice as hard teaching."

"When you see your friend, tell him I didn't mean to kick North Carolina. I'm just bitter because I can't return to my heritage. . . . As I see it, a young person is foolish to fight the battle of teaching in North Carolina when teaching can be enjoyable in other places."

In what seemed to be a sort of side thought in his letter, he mentioned that the school in which he teaches has 13 faculty members who attended East Carolina College. He also said "more" were on the way.

Actor's Private Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Lockhart, one of America's all-time great actors, appeared in hundreds of films, but the public knew very little about him. He died two years ago, but he is still much alive in the thoughts of his actress daughter.

"Many people didn't know it, but father also was very active as a songwriter," said June Lockhart, currently starring as the young mother in the TV network "Lassie."

"He wrote 60 or 70 songs, among them 'The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise.'"

"Father was very versatile, talented and kind man. He was a doer and a giver, and he gave more of that thing that is most precious to all of us — time."

"When he was young and poor he didn't even have an overcoat. My mother, who was also in the theater, noticed this and sent him one in trouble. He never laughed off a job, no matter how small."

"In the household he was boss. There was no doubt of that. But he had great humor."

"We had a very full relationship as father and daughter, and nothing that should be done was left undone, and therefore I did not grieve too much when he died. We had done so much together. We were very close."

With June Lockhart herself it has been pretty much a case of "like father, like daughter." She is blonde and blue-eyed, witty and pretty, warm-hearted and wonderfully likeable because she is still wonderfully natural. June never has had an acting lesson — and never needed one, since she was born to the theater. She made her professional debut when she was eight as Mimsey in the Metropolitan Opera's "Peter Ibbotson."

Her role as the ingenue in "For Love or Money" made her the toast of Broadway in 1937.

SAFE DRIVING TIP

For maximum safety and to prevent loss of braking power, motorists should avoid driving on flooded pavement whenever possible.

According to the Chicago Motor Club, there are four common sense rules for driving through flooded areas:

1. Note whether other vehicles are getting through.
2. Make sure the driver immediately ahead of you is reasonably sure of getting through before starting your own attempt.
3. Drive in low gear through the water and maintain an even speed. Lurching in water may cause flooding backward.
4. Once through the water, ride the brake pedal for 20 feet and release it with a pumping motion. If the brake is depressed too long, the brake lining may be damaged. But if friction is not used to help dry the brake drums, braking power may be faulty for several blocks.

Waste Persists In 35-Hour Week

By ELMER ROESSNER

One dramatic idea probably did more than any other to sell John Maynard Keynes' economic philosophy to the Western world.

It was the idea that unemployment was an avoidable waste of an economic resource.

The thought had been approached many times in the past. Others had felt that leaving a million men idle was as wasteful as letting thousands of tons of water flow over a man without harnessing it.

But Lord Keynes (pronounced Kayus) argued that the waste of manpower was avoidable. Just as added investment capital would make it easy to build a generating plant at a dam, so would more capital create more jobs.

The thought was electrifying. Economists, politicians and others dreamed that if the millions of unemployed were put to work, there would be more goods for everybody to share — pork sausages, homes, automobiles. And Lord Keynes offered ways by which he said it could be done.

PRINCIPLES ACCEPTED

His theories are said to have had great influence in shaping the New Deal, and they certainly were greatly responsible for the Full Employment Act.

The truth that unemployment is a waste of manpower, and that every person loses some share of total production as long as any able person is without work, is accepted by both political parties and by people on all economic levels.

Unemployment now hinders us. The unemployed total in mid-January was 4,724,000 and while it may have decreased since then, it is still pitifully high.

The AFL-CIO has a solution: Reduce the work week to 35 hours.

That, it argues, would provide jobs for the 4,000,000-plus unemployed.

FLAW IN PLAN

So it might.

But it would not end the economic waste. Instead of wasting the skills and talents of 4,724,000 men and women, we would be wasting about one-eighth of the productivity of the total labor force of 67,430,000.

Halj Babian, editor, writes in New York University's Economic Affairs newsletter:

"Better looks, machinery, automation — these are at the base of labor displacement. Now, is it not true that 'spreading the work,' overmanning our machines and cutting down on the work week would result in as much underutilization of resources as having 5,000,000 unemployed?"

"Is it not true that America can be greater, stronger and a better place to live in if we produce as much as we possibly can? Since the entire physical value of the U.S.A. comes to only about $20,000 per American family, is it possible that we have too little production, and not too much as George Meany tells us?"

Dr. Babian blames both labor and management for the failure to train employees for new work before they were displaced by machines. Since neither has handled the problem, he concludes: "Unfortunately, it is precisely this difficulty that forever leads us to the halls of government to find the resolution of our problems. As we continue this process decade after decade, what then will become of the traditions that we as a society value the most?"

INSURANCE COMPANIES HOLD $3.3 BILLION IN U.S. STOCK

Life insurance companies' holdings in common stocks has been a matter of considerable interest. Because these companies buy for interest and income, and do not trade for quick profits, their holdings tend to stabilize the market.

As of December 31, insurance companies held $1,678,000,000 in common stock and $1,646,000,000 in preferred. In addition, they owned $1,796,000,000 in foreign corporate securities.

All this, large as it is, is but about 5 per cent of the companies' total assets of $107,419,000,000.

Jesus Undergoes Trial

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 14:53-15:15.

After Christ's betrayal by Judas He was led before the chief priests and elders, who had sought for witnesses against Him. Their testimony was false and they didn't agree together. —Mark 14:53-59.

Jesus held His peace when He was questioned by the high priest until He was asked, "Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" He answered, "I am." The priest then accused Him of blasphemy. —Mark 14:61-64.

Peter followed Jesus, and a maid accused him of being one of His followers. As he denied it, he heard the cock crow twice. Remembering Jesus' words, he went away weeping. —Mark 14:67-72.

The priests had so influenced the people against Jesus that when He was before Pilate, who asked them what he should do with Him, they cried, "Crucify Him." —Mark 15:11-14. MEMORY VERSE—John 15:14.

Jesus Undergoes Trial

THE RELIGIOUS AUTHORITIES OF CHRIST'S DAY CONDEMN HIM TO DEATH

Scripture—Mark 14:53-15:15.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
WE ARE now studying that tragic story of how Jesus Christ, son of God, was tried—five times, according to Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, editor of Peloubet's Select Notes. The events occurred on Thursday, and Friday, April 6 and 7, A.D. 30.

"The first trial, illegal, was late at night before the Jewish authorities. To make it legal, they had to go through the trial again after sunrise. Christ was then taken before Pontius Pilate. Pilate could come to no decision, but he found an opportunity for sending Him to Herod. Christ was then brought back for final trial before Pontius Pilate." —Peloubet's Select Notes, page 69.

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that the younger children might be asked about the court or courts in their home town. The very small ones may not know about them, but the teacher might, in simple language, tell them about courts of law which try those who are accused of crime.

They should be told too that in most countries every effort is made to give fair trials, so that no innocent person may be punished. This is justice, and it may sometimes go astray, but not often. In Jesus' trials "the chief priests to be guilty of death." —Mark 14:63-64.

Now Peter was beneath in the palace of justice, and one of the maids of the high priest looked at him and said: "And thou also wast with Jesus of Nazareth." But Peter, beloved and honored by Christ, denied it.

"He went out into the porch and the cock crew." —Mark 14:67-68.

"When another said: 'This is one of them,' he again denied it. 'And a little after, they that stood by said again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Galilean, and thy speech agreeth thereto. But he began to curse and to swear, saying, I know not this man of whom ye speak.

"And the second time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jesus said unto him, Before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny Me thrice. And when he thought thereon, he wept." —Mark 14:69-72.

In the morning the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes. They bound Christ and carried Him before Pontius Pilate. The chief priest accused Him of many things, "but He answered nothing." —Mark 15:1-6.

Pilate found Christ innocent of all that was charged against Him. However, on a feast day he aland all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put Him to death." —Mark 14:55. But even those who were willing to bear false witness against Him could not agree together, Mark tells us.

One witness said: "We heard Him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands." That was a lie, since we know from a previous lesson that Christ said the temple would at some time be destroyed, but not by Him.

Jesus answered nothing to these accusations, and the high priest asked Him, "Answerest Thou nothing?" Jesus still said nothing, and the high priest again asked Him, "Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?"

Jesus said: "I am: and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." —Mark 14:60-62.

"Then the high priest rent his clothes, and said, What need ye any further witnesses? Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned Him, 'Art Thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?'"

HIRSHBERG

WORDS FOR THE WIND, an anthology of his latest poems; and Christopher Herold, nonfiction winner with his biography of one of the most fascinating women who ever lived, Madame Destael, which he called MISTRESS TO AN AGE...

We can note several interesting points about these awards. First, not a single one has made the best-seller lists. Second, all the winners hail from the far West—none is either a southerner, a northerner or an easterner. Malamud is an English professor at Oregon State College, Roethke is on at the University of Washington, and Herold works for the Stanford University Press. Which brings us to our third point—none of them is a professional writer, in the sense that he makes his living by writing and nothing else... And finally, we'll note that the fiction award didn't go to a novel, as it has in the past with one exception (a collection of stories by Faulkner in 1951)—which means that the judges didn't think much of the novels that were written last year, despite their number which was considerable...

Conclusion
We can't resist speaking of bestzellers, since we've called your attention to the fact that no N.B.A. Award winner was one... Still topping the list in fiction is DOCTOR ZHIVAGO, by Boris Pasternak. LOLITA, by Vladimir Nabokov, is running a healthy third. Both books, as we've pointed out before, were written by Russians—showing that American readers have quite an interest in what their political enemies write. Though Nabokov, we'll hasten to add, now is a U.S. citizen—but the view of his adopted country that you get through his heroine's eyes is far from complimentary... Anyway, we've finally finished them both, and will conclude, for your information, that DOCTOR ZHIVAGO is well worth reading and not as rough going as some people have said it is—it tells a good story about real people, along with a lot more. LOLITA, on the other hand, reminds us of an apple with a beautiful, smooth, ruddy skin and rot at the core—and we'll ask wishing that such lovely writing could have been expended on a subject that deserved it better...

From Yale

A. Whitney Griswold, Yale's President, has an article in this week's Saturday Review, called "American Education's Greatest Need," that we recommend to all intelligent U. S. citizens. Widely published when he presented it as a speech recently condemning the effect of big-time athletics, his real message is an appeal for the return of the liberal arts as the basis of our educational structure... "I hold," says Griswold, "that for our schools, colleges and universities to unite in a concerted effort to restore the integrity and the continuity of the liberal arts curriculum for which they are jointly responsible, would transmute... the impulse that would set the whole train of progress in motion..."

whereof she speaks. This is a delightful and unusual way of presenting recipes, bringing a new slant to cooking and making it a real art. Kirsty not only loved to cook, but also was a great enthusiast for the out of doors, the birds, flowers and animals. This is a book which young and older cooks or would-be cooks would thoroughly enjoy reading. If you happen to be a recipe collector this is a must.

There are very few Kirstys in the world today, especially in America. As a young girl I was fully acquainted with such a person as Kirsty having lived in Scotland until nine years of age. We lived at what is known as the "Foothills" but many times we went on picnics and holidays into the hills or Highlands, the beauty of which can hardly be described just by the telling.

It surely is a land rich in lore and legends as Kirsty relates. The recipes the author includes in her book are very familiar to me through my beloved mother, who was a wonderful cook and when I retire from the business world, I hope to be able to try out some of her recipes and also the ones Kirsty gives us in this book. This is good reading for everyone, even the husbands. My husband was intrigued by quite a few of the recipes, including the salad dressings, the dandelion wine, and the Haggis. My favorite is the wedding cake, a glorified fruit cake.

I know this is delicious and keeps well, as this is the type of fruit cake or wedding cake the Canadians make and I heartily recommend it for anytime during the year. I could go on and on but suggest you get the book and see for yourself and also add it to your collection.

Oppenheimer's Name Dropped

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The school board for this community decided Thursday night that Woodrow Wilson would be a better name for its new high school than J. Robert Oppenheimer.

When the Bristol Township board decided last year to name the high school after the famed scientist, often called the "father of the atom bomb," the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars raised a hue and cry. In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission denied Dr. Oppenheimer security clearance, although affirming his loyalty to this country. The commission, during lengthy hearings, had asked him questions about alleged Communist associations in his younger days.

At a meeting attended by 400 people Thursday night, the board voted 4-2 to rename the school after the World War I president.

Dr. Oppenheimer, now director of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N.J., declined comment on the decision.

When he first learned the school was to be named for him, he had said it was "a nice kind of honor."

The 101-mile Morris Canal was built in 1831 from Phillipsburg to Jersey City, N.J. It operated until 1924.

Charge Actress Lied In Court

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A federal grand jury says actress Liz Renay, ex-gambler Mickey Cohen's girl friend, lied about Cohen's finances.

The jury, investigating Cohen's sources of income for possible income tax violations, indicted Miss Renay Thursday on five perjury counts. The indictment accuses her of falsely saying she arranged for a third party to make loans of $2,000 and $3,500 to Cohen, and that Cohen repaid them.

Miss Renay was released on $1,500 bail.

Cohen served three years in federal prison after conviction of income tax evasion in 1952.

The Sport Scope

by Johnny Hudson

Coach Ray Martinez started swimming at East Carolina College in 1954 and the Pirate head tutor has rapidly made ECC into a water power. The fame has come in five years and more looms in the future.

Martinez came to Greenville from New Orleans, Louisiana where he was employed as assistant director of the Red Cross in that area. His coaching experience had been limited to AAU and high school teams. All this work was done on a volunteer basis.

Firm Believer of Mechanics

Martinez introduced the water sport his first season here and immediately made it known that physical condition and mechanics of the body were part of his sound philosophy.

After four years in the coaching business, Martinez can look back and label his work as a big achievement. East Carolina has shown phenomenal improvement in the water sport and now own respect as one of the powers of the south.

Martinez did not produce a team exactly overnight as their first season of competition resulted in only one win in eight meets. The following season they compiled a 6-4 mark and during the 1956-'57 winter reached their peak with a 8-2 record. That same year they went on to capture the first NAIA swim meet which was held in the midwest, a swimming paradise.

Dr. Charles DeShaw took over the coaching reins in 1957-'58 and compiled another creditable record as Martinez took a leave of absence to work on his Doctors Degree. This season he returned and the Pirates welcomed him with a 4-5 record against the top teams in the South.

Pirates Are Handicapped

East Carolina journeys to Muncie, Indiana next Monday to compete in the third NAIA Swim Meet. They have topped first and fourth in the other two meets but the Bucas have been at a handicap and gaining a high spot this time may be more difficult than ever.

No scholarships are given to ECC for swimming while every other school on this year's schedule and the majority of the clubs in the NAIA meet have scholarships for such a program.

Despite this important factor, ECC has a tough team and Martinez attributes this to the boys. "We have been lucky to get the boys that we have as most of them could have gotten scholarships to other schools", states the head coach. Hard work and patience have also meant a great deal in the building progress.

Midwest Has Powers

The Midwest seems to boast the top section among swim powers in the small colleges. North Central of Ohio captured the NAIA event last season and rate as favorites once again. They lost six men by graduation but brought in twelve outstanding freshmen. They are undefeated and boast one of the strongest teams in the nation.

Detroit Tech, Western Michigan, Central Michigan, and Southern Illinois boast strong clubs and will offer stiff resistance to the Ohio team. ECC is also tabbed as a "darkhorse" by the NAIA officials.

Martinez will carry thirteen men to the meet, including eleven swimmers and two divers. The team members will be forced to aid in the expenses of the trip as the budget does not cover the charges.

Freshmen Are Needed

The ECC coach failed to make any prediction concerning the national meet but stated that he felt his club would make a good showing and was sure that they would know that East Carolina was present.

In closing the discussion, Martinez brought to light the home schedule for next winter. It includes UNC, U. of Georgia, Florida State, U. of Florida, U. of Emory, U. of Miami, and VMI.

East Carolina has had trouble in finding a schedule in past years. No other school in the North State Conference has the sport and Davidson, Duke, Clemson, and many other schools have failed to swim ECC again after losing. ECC had little trouble in defeating VMI this season. The Cadets recently swept the Southern Conference title.

Martinez cited the need of freshmen for another strong club. "We lack depth and we lose a couple of top swimmers this year." He also pointed out that it was hard to bring a boy here without being able to offer him a scholarship.

ECC Indoors

Rain and bad weather drove Coach Jim Mallory and his basebalers indoors yesterday afternoon.

Most of the evening was devoted to skull practice but the club did work indoors for a short period of time. With good weather prevailing, the team will return to the practice field today.

ECC has been played in past seasons with bad weather but earlier this week Mallory had praise for the practices thus far.

Giant's Mays Is Injured In Game

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

Associated Press Sports Writer
Hopes of the San Francisco Giants for the 1959 National League pennant may have suffered a serious blow Thursday. Willis Mays, star centerfielder and hitter, suffered a gash in his right leg that will keep him out of the lineup for at least "three or four weeks."

Mays received a bone-deep gash that required 35 stitches sliding into home plate in the sixth inning of an exhibition game against the Boston Red Sox at Scottsdale, Ariz. He said he ripped his leg against the shin guard of Sammy White, Red Sox catcher.

Back in April 1958, a somewhat similar mishap happened to the Giants. Monte Irvin, star outfielder whose slugging helped the Giants win the 1951 flag, suffered a broken ankle sliding into third base in an exhibition against the Cleveland Indians at Denver. He was out for several months and the Giants didn't repeat as NL champions.

With Mays out of the game the Red Sox scored five runs in the eighth — four of them unearned.

Eliot Through With Coaching

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — What prompted Ray Eliot to quit as University of Illinois football coach with 17 seasons behind him? "A guy has to quit sometime," he said today.

"The last few years, I took a look at myself and said 'How far do you go coaching and how do you end,'" explained Eliot, dean of Big Ten football coaches.

Eliot, 52, a bespectacled, bald man who switches from serious discussion to a quip in a flash, Thursday resigned as coach, effective after the 1959 season, to become assistant Illinois athletic director.

off Paul Giel for a 7-4 victory, their fifth straight.

Pitchers Herb Score and Mike Garcia of Cleveland, both plagued by injuries last year, saw action in the Indians' 6-5, 10-inning victory over the Chicago Cubs at Tucson.

Score's three-inning stint was sharp. For Garcia, who underwent an operation to correct a back ailment, his showing was unsuccessful.

Score, making his second appearance, pitched the first three innings and held Chicago hitless. Garcia was touched for five runs and nine hits in the next two innings.

Carroll Hardy's single on the 10th drove in the winning run for Cleveland. Pitcher Moe Drabowsky of the Cubs injured his right thumb when he fouled off an inside pitch. He is expected to be sidelined about two weeks.

In other games the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-4 at Tampa and the New York Yankees edged the Baltimore Orioles 10-9 in 11 innings at St. Petersburg.

Five games were rained out. They were Milwaukee vs. Philadelphia at Clearwater, Chicago White Sox vs. Los Angeles at Sarasota, St. Louis vs. Detroit at Lakeland, Washington vs. Kansas City at Melbourne and Pittsburgh "B" vs. Cincinnati "B" at Tampa.

The Reds broke a 4-4 tie with five runs in the seventh inning, bunching three hits, four walks and a wild throw at the expense of losing pitcher Don Rowe. Frank Robinson led the Cincinnati attack with a pair of doubles.

Billy Gardner's error with the bases loaded in the 11th inning enabled the Yanks to pull out their victory after the blow an 8-1 first-inning lead. Pitcher Duke Maas capped the opening frame with a grand-slam home run. Mickey Mantle returned to the Yankee lineup after nursing a sore right shoulder and delivered his first hit of the spring.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Kentucky's Wildcats, seeking an unprecedented fifth championship, open defense of their NCAA basketball title tonight as 16 of the nation's best major college teams begin play in four regional tournaments.

Although Kentucky got into this year's tournament because champion Mississippi State declined to represent the Southeastern Conference, there are those who say Adolph Aupp's crew is capable of going all the way. Mississippi refused to enter because its all white team would have to play against Negroes.

Kentucky is not a great team by comparison with some of Hupp's outfits. But it lost only two of its 25 games and was ranked second in the final All-America poll. The team is led by All-America Johnny Cox, only starter from last year's champions.

Kentucky plays Louisville, an at-large selection with a 17-0 record, in the first game of tonight's doubleheader at Evansville, Ind. Michigan State (18-3), champion of the Big Ten, meets Marquette (23-4) in the second.

Kentucky and Michigan State are favored to tangle Saturday night in the Mid-east regional. Here's how the other three regional tournaments stack up:

East at Charlotte, N.C. — West Virginia (26-4) vs. St. Joseph's of Philadelphia (22-3) and Navy (17-5) vs. Boston University (19-6).

West Virginia, having overcome its jinx of losing in the preliminary round four straight years, and Navy, which eliminated well-regarded North Carolina, are favored.

Midwest at Lawrence, Kan. — Texas Christian (19-5) vs. Cincinnati (23-3) and St. Joseph's (19-6) vs. St. Louis (17-5).

NCAA Tourney In Charlotte

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A West Virginia basketball team accustomed to high national rating and Navy's virtually ignored Middies are favored to survive the semifinal round of the NCAA Eastern regional tournament here tonight. St. Joseph's of Philadelphia is West Virginia's foe in the 7:30 p.m. opener. Navy takes the Coliseum court two hours later against Boston University.

Saturday action starts a half hour earlier. The first round losers meet for third place, with the winners following for the right to join three other regional tournament champions in the national semifinals at Louisville next Friday.

Navy has a 17-5 record, but fashioned most of it outside the national spotlight. Coach Ben Carnevale gave a tipoff on his club's possibilities last week when he called it his best all-around squad in 15 years in the profession.

The Middies made their mentor look good by drubbing North Carolina, No. 1 in the nation a month earlier, in the first round of Eastern competition in New York three nights ago. Sharp shooting, smart ball-handling and a tight defense marked the performance.

West Virginia, No. 10 in the final Associated Press national poll, has won the last five Southern Conference championships. The Mountaineers have won 26 of 30 and feature an All America performer, junior Jerry West. His scoring, rebounding, feeding and sharp defensive play have assured the lead from Cabin Creek, W.Va., of a place among the school's finest in a history replete with stars.

St. Joseph's, 22-3 for the season, has five men averaging in double figures. Three of them are juniors. The Hawks have won their last 12 games. Two of their losses were to St. John's of New York, the other to Kansas State, the nation's No. 1 team.

Center Bob Clarke, at 6-9, is the tallest player in St. Joseph's history. He's led the rebounding and averaged better than 12 points a game. The team ranked 14th in the final AP poll.

Boston University, with a 19-6 record, has a young, well-balanced club. The Terriers' biggest man is 6-6 soph Ed Washington whose three foul shots in the last 20 seconds beat Connecticut Tuesday night in New York to qualify B.U. for play here.

Jamesville In Class A Finals

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Beaufort plays Jamesville and Kernersville faces St. Pauls tonight in semifinal games here of the State Class A high school basketball tournament.

After their game was tied 44-44 at end of regulation play, freshman Ray Hassell of Beaufort made good on a one-and-one free throw situation to down Jonesville 48-47 Thursday night.

Jamesville rallied in the fourth period to defeat Nantahala 56-43 and will face Beaufort in the 9 p.m. game.

Kernersville and St. Pauls, foes in the 7:30 p.m. contest, won first round games Wednesday night.

Bill Gardner had 19 points and J.C. Griffin 18 for Jamesville. Nantahala's top scorers were Ken Solesbee, 21, and Tod Bateman, 17 points.

Robinson May Fight Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson today pondered over an offer of a guaranteed million dollar gate for what may be his last fight—a battle of champions with Archie Moore in Yankee Stadium in September.

The bid was made by promoter Bill Rosenbloom in a conference with Robinson Thursday. He said he plans to follow it up with it up with a talk with Moore, the 42-year-old light heavyweight champion.

His Homemade Cathedral Towers Over Six Feet Tall

By NED CLINE
Concord, Tribune Staff Writer
Written for The Associated Press

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — As a boy on his father's Davidson County farm, M. M. Smith wanted to build something for himself, something different.

Now, more than 50 years later, he has completed his life-long dream. It is a homemade cathedral which towers over six feet tall on one side of the living room of his home off Old Salisbury Road, near Concord.

Smith, an elevator operator, has devoted more than one full year to his handiwork. He estimated, without hesitation, that he has spent approximately 10,000 hours of his free time on the project. This totals slightly more than 416 full days.

But to make it even more unique, Smith didn't have a workshop full of modern tools. He used a wood rasp and a secondhand pocket knife which he bought for 11 cents 12 years ago.

The greying, 65-year-old Smith started his cathedral 14 years ago after carving numerous canes and lamps. His pattern was his own idea and he made changes as he worked.

The cathedral, a priceless possession for Smith, contains more than 8,000 pieces of wood and as many different varieties as he could get.

Some of the wood was bought, some came as a gift, and still other pieces were torn from old furniture in the Smith household. He even obtained wood from several foreign countries.

"It took a lot of time to build," the proud Smith explained point-

Named To Post At FHA Rally

By SHIRLEY WHITEHURST
Stokes-Pactolus Reporter

Ann Whitehurst of Stokes-Pactolus High School was installed as reporter for the Pitt County organization of Future Homemakers of America at the FHA Spring Rally Tuesday in Grifton.

Thirteen members of the Stokes-Pactolus FHA chapter attended the rally, accompanied by Mrs. Sarah Perkins, advisor, and Mrs. William Howard Crandell. The delegates included Gail Bullock, Shirley Whitehurst, Mable Peaden, Rosalie Wynne, Ann Whitehurst, Rosalie Tripp, Johnnie Mae Wynne, Barbara Knox, Fredricka Andrews, Ernestine Sutton, Carolyn Whitehurst, Edith Nelson and Sybil Crandell.

Members of the girls' and boys' basketball teams were honored last week at supper by the Ruritan Club.

Billie Angle of the girls' team and Donald Hardison of the boys' team received Most Valuable Player awards. Other members of both teams and cheerleaders were presented monograms and bars.

Principal Walter Latham of Bethel High School was guest speaker.

Seniors and Juniors are hard at work on term papers due the first week of April. The papers are being written as projects in U. S. History and Senior English.

ing to the finished product as he relaxed on his sofa. "but I'll put it in competition with any one like it (if there is another) anywhere in the United States. I'm really proud of it."

The decorative cathedral, equipped with electric lights and a speaker from Smith's kitchen radio, contains miniature figures of biblical characters and animals and it is topped with a foot-high steeple.

Pointing to his one stiff leg, Smith noted that he had ample free time because of the handicap. But still he admitted that he crawled from his bed many a night to work on his project. "I can just concentrate better at night when everything is quiet and there's no one to bother me," Smith said.

Each tiny piece of the cathedral is fitted perfectly in place and painted with care. The size of the pieces of the carved structure range in size from blocks several inches square to round sticks less than half the size of a pencil.

The many glowing colors highlight the modernistic design of the creation. Each different shape of wood is painted a separate color. Steps leading to the central section of the cathedral are painted in mixed colors to illustrate a striking likeness to stone. "They're (the steps) all wood," said Smith. "and I painted them myself." He also paints a little in his spare time.

After finishing the project Smith was still not completely satisfied so he built two accompanying pieces which flank each side of the main cathedral. One of these pieces is lined with velvet and serves as a jewelry case. Smith hauled out his trusty knife and smiled as he stroked the side where a handle had been broken off.

"I bought this knife from a fellow who brought coal to my house 12 years ago," he explained. "The man dropped the knife in some hot coals and I guess he figured it was no good so he sold it to me cheap."

"For 11 cents, I've certainly got my money's worth," Smith observed, casually yet with pride.

Good Songs Still Written: Cole

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Good songs are still being written in this rock 'n' roll era, but the public rarely gets to hear them.

So says Nat King Cole, who has been riding high in the popular music world for 20 years.

"It doesn't take talent any more to become popular," the singer told a news conference Thursday. "It takes connections and push."

"They don't build performers like they did in my day. (Cole will be 40 Tuesday.)

"The young kids (popular with the rock 'n' roll set) don't owe their thanks to the public. They owe them to the jukebox operators."

"Jukeboxes and the record companies—they're the ones that are killing us off. A guy with good songs, where's he going to take them?"

Cole, who describes himself as "a man with musical integrity," says he may have a partial answer.

"My next album is going to be all new songs." It was cut last summer and scheduled for the market in May while Cole is on a South American tour.

"This has never been tried before in the commercial market," Cole said.

Cole observed: "The kids are controlling the radio today. But they don't buy as many records as they think they buy. Album sales are 75 per cent of the record business. The young adults buy the albums, not the kids."

It's the young adult market Cole will be aiming at in his new album. Songs were picked from the 50 to 60 new numbers he sees weekly.

Salary Appeal

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Board of Higher Education has put in a request for $3,645,000 for faculty salary increases at state-supported colleges during the next biennium.

L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, a board member, told the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee Thursday that "our salaries compare favorably with existing salaries in the Southeast, but are below the median for the entire country."

The committee also heard the board plead for more money for the state's four community colleges, an entrance test program and special grants to summer schools.

Officials of the community colleges, presenting their own cases, requested an additional $575,000 in state funds to match bond issues approved for the community colleges in Charlotte, Asheville and Wilmington.

The Board of Higher Education and state-supported colleges asked that the committee restore their budget requests turned down by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Briefs were submitted requesting a total of $58,766,726 in operational money for the colleges for the 1959-61 biennium. The Budget Commission had recommended $53,323,336.

Buried Alive For Ten Minutes

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Sam Scott, 42, of nearby Robstown, was completely buried for 10 minutes Thursday when a cesspool he was digging caved in on him.

His nephew, Wayne Muckelroy, 20, Robstown, frantically clawed loose sand from Scott's head until it was cleared. Oxygen was fed him through a tube and mask until the crushing sand could be dug away.

Scott was freed after 95 minutes and discharged from a hospital after treatment for an ear slashed by a shovel during rescue efforts.

Van Cliburn's Music Has Been Silenced

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time since he was 3 years old, Van Cliburn's piano is silent.

The blond, bushy-haired 24-year-old Texan is under doctors' orders to stay away from a keyboard for two months, while the middle finger of his right hand heals from an operation. Then he will be allowed to practice only lightly for another month.

A complete rest is distasteful to Cliburn. He has practiced daily for 21 years, four hours a day before concerts. Now, after the operation on an abscessed fingertip, he is restless to resume his heavy schedule.

"The fact that I can't play is more injurious to my morale than the pain I sustained," the pianist, clad in pale blue pajamas and a blue plaid robe, remarked at the Hospital for Special Surgery.

Despite his weakness, he has kept busy in his private eighth-floor room, from which he can look northward at barges moving slowly along the East River.

Now he has a chance to watch television — "Something I never had much time for before."

"I've done a little reading, too," he reported. "Poetry, for the moment—poetry more than prose." A favorite is Lord Byron.

On his bed lay an orchestration of Samuel Barber's "Capricorn Concerto," and he had just finished playing a Metropolitan Opera recording of Barber's opera "Vanessa." Among the books piled on his table was "Olin Downes on Music."

An abscessed finger is more serious than it may sound, and Cliburn's physician has ordered him to rest in the sun when he is released from the hospital.

"Every concert is only postponed," he replied, smiling, to a question about cancellations. "I don't believe in cancellations. Never close the door, you know."

"I have received several invitations to play with my good hand—some pieces like Ravel's 'Left Hand Concerto'—but the doctor thinks I should rest."

One major regret was postponed.

ing a concert trip scheduled in the Soviet Union next month—the country where he became famous by winning the Tchaikovsky piano contest last April.

Cliburn thinks his finger became infected while he was clipping his nails—a necessary chore for pianists — and he apparently cut the one nail at an odd angle.

"I've had lots of sore fingers before, and played in spite of them," he remarked. "In fact, one finger was split down the side the night I won the competition in Moscow. But this one was so bad I could hardly play."

The five physicians who worked on his half-hour operation Feb. 27 had one unusual difficulty, due to his constant piano-playing — cutting through a callus one-eighth inch thick on his finger.

"I'm going to have a terribly tender hand," Cliburn predicted. "Not just from inactivity, but because I have to soak it every day."

Now Cliburn's major concern is waiting to see if the nail will grow back. He has the fingers of his other hand crossed on that.

Adds To Record Of Imprisonment

DETROIT (AP) — Leon W. Hartent, who says he has spent 69 of his 83 years behind bars, has been given another three years in jail.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank A. Picard sentenced Hartent Thursday for attempted bank robbery.

Bank guards grabbed Hartent when he walked into the National Bank of Detroit and handed a teller a note asking for $1,000.

His Poor Luck Begins To Turn

DETROIT (AP) — Kermit Schell's luck has taken a turn for the better.

Schell, a factory worker, had his car demolished in an accident several months ago. His wife, Ruth, was hospitalized for a major operation two months ago.

Two weeks ago, Schell, 50, was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer.

Thursday, Schell was awarded $2,500 first prize in the employee suggestion program at the auto plant where he works. He suggested a new plan for painting auto fenders.

Has Formula To Correct Guess

CINCINNATI (AP) — Want to know how to win those guessing contests—how many beans in a jar, etc.?

Julia Colan of suburban Norwood has a formula.

Julia guessed within six ounces the correct weight of a big side of beef displayed here.

How?
"I took my age, 11, and put my grade in school in the middle," she said. "Then I subtracted the six from the 11 to get the ounces."

Her estimate: 161 pounds, 5 ounces.

Julia won 161 pounds, 11 ounces of beef.

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR

BY C. V. TERRY

CHAPTER 15

"Does my seamanship pass muster, Richard?" Bonita Bamao asked me teasingly.

"I'm aware of your skills, Senhorita Bamao," I said. "But this is still my deck, and I'm giving the orders. And I'll tell you more — Quill's confined to quarters tomorrow for yielding his place at the wheel to you. I need him too badly tonight."

Bonita accepted the rebuke calmly. "Mozo will live," she said. "I could see Dr. Hoyt knew his business. That's why I slipped out — I felt I could be far more useful topside."

"You won't be needed now," I said shortly. "You can go below and put on dry clothes."

"Don't send me away, please," she said. "Let me ride out the storm here."

"Must I remind you that you're soaked to the skin?"

"There's nothing I like more, Richard," she took a step forward just as another of those mountain-high combers smashed down on the afterhouse roof and creamed greedily across the deck. For an instant, before the ship rode free, we were waist-deep in red boiling surge. She clung to the wheel spoke as she laughed at the threat receded. Thanks to her additional weight on the rudder, the Pilgrim Venture shook off the inundation without even slowing her driving pace.

"Well, Captain?" she said triumphantly, with her arms still locked in mine. "Can you deny you need an extra hand?"

There was no further question of her right to remain. It was I who set our course (making no attempt to fight the storm, but running with its fury until the wind had blown itself out). But it was she who helped to hold the kicking rudder steady. And it was Bonita who was the first to interpret the message of the dawn, written in red above a mangrove forest in Africa, a scant five miles beyond our harbor bow.

"The weather's moving inland, Richard. We'll have smooth sailing when the watch changes."

Her reading of the sky was accurate enough. In full daylight the gale-torn sea subsided to gentle rollers and our wind gauge steadied into the northwest quadrant. With a lee shore, our most pressing need was sea room. After I had sent the new watch to spread main and topsail again, our danger was behind us. Had the blow lasted another hour, we might have been smashed beyond repair in the sullen maze of mangrove.

Now, with all sails taut and a glassy sea beneath our outwater, we made westing until we were out of sight of land and firmly on our course.

"You're a sailor, Captain Douglas," said Bonita. "I guessed as much when we left New York Harbor. This morning I'm sure of it."

"I've survived worse blows," I told her. "So, I gather, have you."

"I told you that yesterday," she said. "I'm glad you believe me now."

"We needed two men at the wheel," I said. "Otherwise we'd have broached to a dozen times."

"So I was as useful as a man," she murmured. "I suppose that's the ultimate in compliments."

I took the wheel away, forcing her to unlock her arms from mine. This time she yielded gracefully enough.

"The fact remains you're a woman," I said. "Otherwise we'd have broached to a dozen times."

"So I was as useful as a man," she murmured. "I suppose that's the ultimate in compliments."

man," I said.

"Don't hold it against me, Richard."

"I can't have you giving orders from my quarter-deck. Not if I'm to retain command. Quill must be punished for permitting it — even for a moment."

"You're right, of course," she said.

I studied her carefully as she moved toward her cabin door. Yesterday, when we had told our life stories on this same deck, I had felt she was without guile. I was not half so pleased by her apparent yielding this morning — though there was no mistaking the note of contrition.

"I'll enter your tour of duty in my log," I told her. "You'll get full credit for helping to save the Pilgrim Venture. But I'm forced to report Quill's breach of discipline, too. In those circumstances I can hardly invite you to visit this deck again."

"You're quite right, Captain Douglas. I accept the rebuke," she had hesitated, with one foot on her door sill.

"You can be useful in another way, if you will," I said. "What do you know of nursing?"

"My father maintains a sailors' hospital at Goa," she told me calmly. "I've worked there often."

"Will you be Dr. Hoyt's assistant? He has more than he can handle now: we're bound to have scurvy cases before we clear the tropics. Can you handle those as well?"

"Of course, Captain. Is this a form of penance?"

"Call it that, if you wish," I said. "It's also a rare boon for my crew."

"You've been on deck a long time," I said. "Shouldn't you go off watch for a while and rest?"

Her chin lifted; I saw she was laughing, and could not decide if chagrin of defiance had prompted her mirth.

"I'm stronger than you think, Richard," she told me — and went into her cabin with her pride unshaken. Once again I had been left with the last word — and the conviction that I had scored the emptiest of victories.

Quill accepted his punishment (three days in quarters, on hard-tack) with a shrug and a crooked grin that seemed part of the fellow's features. Nor did he offer a reason for giving up the deck, beyond a stubborn insistence that Senhorita Bamao could manage a wheel better than any sailor aboard. Far from endangering our safety, he added, he had made sure we would hold course while he was engaged in imperative business forward. When I suggested (in a lowering rage) that he should have summoned me, he merely shrugged again and refused to defend himself further.

Had Quill been less than a first officer, I would have hit back in earnest; most masters would have considered twenty lashes and a keel-hauling a minimum punishment.

The fact remained that the girl had managed the ship like a veteran — and it was common knowledge in the fo'c'sle that she had remained on the quarter-deck until dawn as my assistant helmsman. In those circumstances I was willing to accept a fait accompli, pray for fair weather to the tip of Africa, and hope that Bonita would take to her nursing duties as well as she had to ship handling. My fears on the score were soon laid to rest. From her first visit to the sick bay, she was a true angel of mercy — one who met with polyglot, rough-grained crew on equal terms and spoke its several languages perfectly. Naturally, it was an added bond that many of the men had sailed on her father's vessels. Several, I discovered, had been her shipmates on other voyages, when Senhor Damoza had permitted her to stand watches at his side.

Mozo, as we had expected, was up and about within a week; long before our first gunnery practice he was able to handle the wheel again. The others, for the most part, were not so fortunate. This, together with the drowning of Mr. Lawson during the storm, left us a big short-handed — and yet, thanks to favoring winds, we held to our log.

As for Sir Luke, his spirits improved with each day's sailing. We rehearsed our plan of action again and again, whenever we had a moment alone. During my hours off watch we pored over charts of the Madagascar coast, from Fort Dauphin to its northernmost capes, until I could have recited each known anchorage from memory.

Sometimes, when he could steal a half hour from his sick bay, Tom Hoyt joined in these councils of war. But it was evident Sir Luke set small value on the doctor's intelligence, and intended that I should be the leader of this mission to the enemy's stronghold.

as well as she had to ship handling. My fears on the score were soon laid to rest. From her first visit to the sick bay, she was a true angel of mercy — one who met with polyglot, rough-grained crew on equal terms and spoke its several languages perfectly. Naturally, it was an added bond that many of the men had sailed on her father's vessels. Several, I discovered, had been her shipmates on other voyages, when Senhor Damoza had permitted her to stand watches at his side.

Mozo, as we had expected, was up and about within a week; long before our first gunnery practice he was able to handle the wheel again. The others, for the most part, were not so fortunate. This, together with the drowning of Mr. Lawson during the storm, left us a big short-handed — and yet, thanks to favoring winds, we held to our log.

As for Sir Luke, his spirits improved with each day's sailing. We rehearsed our plan of action again and again, whenever we had a moment alone. During my hours off watch we pored over charts of the Madagascar coast, from Fort Dauphin to its northernmost capes, until I could have recited each known anchorage from memory.

Sometimes, when he could steal a half hour from his sick bay, Tom Hoyt joined in these councils of war. But it was evident Sir Luke set small value on the doctor's intelligence, and intended that I should be the leader of this mission to the enemy's stronghold.

EOKA Emerges After 4 Year's Struggle

(Editors Note: With peace re-set off a land mine on a mountain road. The look more like young clerks, accountants, students, electricians, lawyers or farmers — which in fact they once were. But the four-year war they fought in EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground, to free Cyprus from Britain was tough and ruthless. A total of 393 killings were attributed to EOKA. More than half the victims were Greek Cypriot civilians marked as traitors to the cause of Enosis, the union of Cyprus with Greece. EOKA did not win Enosis. But on the advice of its leadership it accepted the plan for eventual independence for Cyprus. The hatreds born in the struggle washed over into intercommunal fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots that took another 115 lives. All in all, including those killed by British security forces, the war left 601 dead and 1,260 wounded. On the face of it, EOKA was battling hopeless odds. Its own hard core centered in the mountains probably never numbered more than 50 men, although the line of communication and part-time adherents ran into thousands. Against them, Britain threw in as many as 30,000 of its best troops. How did EOKA do it? The answer is Col. George Grivas, a Cyprus-born retired Greek army officer with the pseudonym of Digenis, who formed the underground, led it and has now dis-

Cast Is Chosen For 'Bus Stop'

Alice Anne Horne will play Cherie, the showgirl "chanteuse" from Kansas City, in the Greenville Little Theater production of "Bus Stop," scheduled for three performances April 15, 16 and 17 in Austin Auditorium.

The original Broadway role was played by Kim Stanley, and later by Marilyn Monroe in the film version of the William Inge comedy. The role of Bo, the cowboy who pursues her, whether she will or no, will be played by Bob Whiting.

Other members of the cast are Ruth Copland as Elma, Faye Leggett as Grace, Del Driver as Sheriff Will Masters, H. D. Rowe, as Dr. Lyman, Mahlon Coles as Carl the bus driver, and Jay Robbins as Virgil.

"Bus Stop" is the third production of the season for the Greenville Little Theater. The drama group produced "Man Alive" in November, and scored a success with "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" in February. The forthcoming play will be under the direction of Claude Garren.

Stolen Kiss Has A 5-Day Price

CINCINNATI (AP)—Miss Hattie Tubbs told the court Thursday a stolen kiss was distinctly unwelcome.

Miss Tubbs, 23, testified in Police Court she was walking past a cafe when James Booker, 20, a stranger, stepped up and kissed her soundly.

Booker was charged with assault and battery. Asked why he kissed the woman, he said, "I donno." "How much for the great lawyer?" asked prosecutor R. E. Cors. "Five days," answered Judge R. E. Shannon.

ingly good. Up to five couriers would carry one message — and banded it. "Looking back on it," a British intelligence official mused after Grivas called off the battle early this week, "he was ruthless, absolutely fearless, and a good organizer to the nth degree. In fact, he was the sort of chap you would want on your side if you had to do the same thing."

Grivas was 56 when he landed from Rhodes on the west coast of Cyprus the night of Nov. 9, 1954. Retired from the army in 1944, he had led a fanatically right-wing band in Greece after the war and gotten a name for hardness and efficiency.

He was called to Cyprus to organize a militant force to support Archbishop Makarios of the Greek Orthodox Church in his campaign for Enosis.

He immediately began to search for potential leaders in the Cyprus youth movement, discarding as he went along those with inadequate hardness or zeal. By the time his campaign opened, on April 1, 1955, he had around him a band of tough young men forming EOKA's inner core, and a second echelon of couriers, paymasters, quartermasters, recruiters and informants.

In the years that followed, EOKA had successes and some near disasters. By mid-1956, British intelligence was beginning to break through.

Even so, 1956 was the year that Field Marshal Lord Harding, the British commander in chief here, awoke one morning to find a time bomb in his bed. In March 1957, when EOKA appeared to be near defeat, with many of its top men dead or captured, British accepted a truce. But essentially, EOKA survived because it won almost complete support from the island's 400,000 Greek Cypriots, and because of its excellent organization and deadly discipline.

"We are all EOKA," the Greek Cypriot mayor of Nicosia once proclaimed. On hundreds of occasions British troops would rush within minutes to the scene of a killing, only to find that the killers had vanished, furnished with escape routes by the populace. In the mountains peasants fed EOKA men and hid them.

Grivas broke his organization down into mountain gangs, village shooting groups, and two killer squads which worked on order for specific targets, squads waiting for "targets of opportunity," couriers, leaflet distributors, propagandists and the like. Arms were smuggled in from the Greek mainland or stolen from British depots on the island. Explosives were stolen from mines.

Except for the mountain work, who directed the warfare and carried out ambushes, it was a part-time organization. A villager might perform an EOKA mission one day and go back to his crops the next. Students were used extensively. Practically every schoolboy between the ages of 12 and 17 was active one way or another.

Communications were surpris-the messages got through. To arrange a truce, the British in Nicosia could get a letter to Grivas within three hours. Truces were called four times and their effect always was instantaneous throughout the island.

Grivas had some talented and tough lieutenants to help make the organization work. They were not hard-liners — all had respectable and some had brilliant scholastic records.

Grivas himself was a stern and intensely suspicious disciplinarian. He showed no gambling or amorous adventures in his group. He has not yet emerged in public. He probably will go to Greece for the future.

But on March 9, 18 days after the independence agreement was signed in London, EOKA leaflets, spread as mysteriously and swiftly as ever, told Greek Cypriots Digenis was ordering the struggle to end. He called on them to work in peace for the new republic.

That morning, Nicosia burst out in celebration of relief and joy. The London agreement, to which Greek Cypriots were lukewarm, had been signed. Archbishop Makarios had come back from exile. But it really hadn't been over — not until their hero, Digenis, said so.

Bell Disagrees On One Suggestion

RALEIGH (AP)—Sen. J. Spencer Bell of Mecklenburg liked what Gov. Hodges had to say about the Bell Committee's court reform proposals, but he disagreed with Hodges on the method of selecting district judges.

Hodges, in a message Thursday to a joint House-Senate session, endorsed a uniform court system for the state. For the most part, he sided with the committee proposals in the area where they conflict with recommendations of a study commission on revision of the state constitution.

Bell said Hodges' endorsement of the committee's proposals "was fine. I liked it very much." Hodges supported the Bell Committee recommendations that rule-making powers over the courts should be vested in the State Supreme Court. A constitutional study commission proposed that it remain in the Legislature.

Hodges told the Legislature he would prefer that elections be held to pick district judges which would replace all judges below the superior court level in the Bell Committee proposals. Hodges said he was willing to leave the matter to the Legislature.

The committee proposed that the district judges be appointed.

Bell also said he was willing to let this point be decided by the Legislature. He added, "We're perfectly willing to put the pros and cons before the Legislature and let it decide."

Hodges also endorsed recommendations for changes in the state constitution and urged action to insure legislative reapportionment to keep House and Senate seats in line with population.

In addition, he proposed two constitutional changes of his own. Consideration should be given, Hodges said, to removing the one-term limit on North Carolina governors, and to replacing veto power over legislation in the hands of the governor.

Cites Difficulty Of Space Age

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Because government contracts finance the missile business almost completely, "The paper work needed to meet legal requirements is intricate, complex, and confused beyond imagination."

Sentenced For Starting Blaze

ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — A judge has sentenced the son of a prominent Lake Elsinore family to six months in jail for starting one of California's largest brush fires with an incendiary bullet.

Jerry H. Stewart, 21, was also fined $150 and placed on three years probation by Judge Stanley S. Root.

The fire, which took one life, swept 66,000 acres in three counties in the Cleveland National Forest Area last Dec. 14-17.

NOTICE
STATE OF NEW YORK
SUPREME COURT
COUNTY OF ONTARIO
In the Matter of the Application of ALBERT J. CATLIN, Petitioner, for an Order dissolving his marriage with MAGGIE FOSKEY CATLIN, Respondent.

To MAGGIE FOSKEY CATLIN:
Take notice that a petition has been presented to this Court by ALBERT J. CATLIN, your husband, for dissolution of your marriage on the ground that you absented yourself for five successive years last past without being known to him to be living and dead, and that pursuant to an order of said Court entered the 16th day of February, 1959, a hearing will be had upon said petition at the said Supreme Court, Trial Term, at Canandaigua, New York on the 4th day of May, 1959, at 10:00 in the forenoon or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard.

Dated, Geneva, New York, February 16, 1959.

Late Winter Storm Is Easing Up In Northeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A severe mid-March snowstorm which hammered the Northeast, crippling normal activities and leaving a heavy death toll, tapered off today.
The late winter storm, worst of the season, dumped more than a foot of snow in sections of New England and New York state. Light snow fell during the early morning in the extreme Northeast as the intense storm moved out into the Atlantic.
At least 24 deaths were attributed to the storm, which earlier had lashed areas in the Midwest.
Most of the deaths were attributed to heart attacks suffered while shoveling snow.
The storm was indirectly blamed for the deaths this morning of seven persons including five children, in a fire in snow-bound Easton, Maine. A father, five of his six children and one man perished in the blaze that destroyed their home in Easton, about 10 miles from the Canadian border. Firemen, hampered by huge snow drifts, arrived too late at the burning home of John Hersey to save the victims.
Huge cleanup jobs confronted the storm-battered sections. Strong winds which whipped the heavy snow covering into huge drifts slowed snow removal.
Falls ranged up to 22 inches in New Hampshire and Maine. The covering at Caribou, Maine, measured 34 inches, and was 26 inches at Rumford, Maine.
New York state, which was hit by a covering up to 18 inches in some places, was lashed by strong winds during the night, especially in eastern areas. Travel in many sections was halted. Six deaths in New York were blamed on the storm.
Similar conditions were reported in many parts of New England, but most roads were open and plane flights were scheduled to resume.
The white covering averaged up to 10 to 12 inches in sections of Pennsylvania and New Jersey and up to 14 inches in western Maryland.
The storm deaths included two lobster fishermen lost in a small boat off Islesford, Maine. Other deaths were reported in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Ohio.

DR. C. J. BRADNER will be guest evangelist at the Red Oak Christian Church Revival to be held March 15-20 at the church. The services will begin each night at 7:30. Rev. Howard James is pastor of the church.

Debt Payments Inspired Inquiry

RALEIGH (AP)—Police said today payments of debts put them on the trail of a polite, clean-cut Raleigh youth who is charged with the $17,000 holdup March 3 of a branch bank here. Bobby Earl Smith, 23, is in Central Prison Hospital while officers seek to account for some $3,000 of the money he is accused of taking. An insurance salesman and part-time college student, Smith told police he drank rat poison shortly before they arrested him Thursday at his home in a fashionable residential section. He was rushed to Rex Hospital for a stomach-pumping operation, then was transferred to the prison hospital. He waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the April 6 term of federal court. Bond was set at $50,000.
Police Capt. R. E. Goodwin reported that some $11,500 of the money has been recovered. He said, "we can account for about $2,500 more. That leaves about $3,000 unaccounted for."
Goodwin said Smith "spent some of the money to pay off debts and made a down payment of $1,000 on a new sports car."
A number of bad check charges had been filed against Smith in recent weeks, Goodwin reported. He said that on the day of the bank holdup Smith appeared in City Court and paid off one of the bad check debts.
The Wake Forest Road branch of the First Citizens Bank was robbed by a man in a dark band, armed with a shiny pistol, who said, "Thank you," as he left the bank.

Opposes Prison Industry Output

RALEIGH (AP)—A legislative bill to expand products produced by North Carolina's prison industries has been labeled a step toward state socialism. Armistead Martin, Raleigh lawyer, told the House and Senate Committees on Penal Institutions Thursday that the measure is a "mandatory prison use law... a real advance toward state socialism."
Under the bill, state agencies and institutions would give preference to prison-made products when purchasing supplies provided prices and standards of quality were met.

Royal Yacht Is Evading Storm

MANILA (AP)—The Royal yacht Britannia maneuvered in the South Pacific today in a valiant effort to keep Prince Philip out of the clutches of a tempestuous South Sea belle named Sally.
A tropical storm of that name was kicking up the ocean between Hong Kong and the Solomon Islands, next stop on the Commonwealth tour of the husband of Queen Elizabeth II.

Russians Seize Japanese Boats

TOKYO (AP)—The Soviets reportedly seized two Japanese fishing boats and 32 crewmen Thursday between Japan's northernmost island, Hokkaido, and the Soviet-held Kurile Islands.
The Japanese coast guard said Soviet patrol boats arrested the Senso Maru and Koryo Maru about 13 miles off Shikotan Island, largest of the Kuriles.
The Soviet Union has now seized five Japanese vessels and 33 fishermen this year. Last year the Soviets captured 547 Japanese and 79 boats.

Moscow radio in a Japanese language broadcast warned that any fishing boat within 12 miles of a Soviet coastline would be captured.

GRIP BOX
RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Richmond city employees are getting an opportunity to air their gripes. The personnel department is asking them to say, in unsigned replies, what they think of their boss, their work, their salaries and whether they are proud to work for the city. It is an experimental morale survey.

Good News For Mussolini's Son

Vittorio Mussolini, son of Italy's late Fascist leader, joyfully embraces his daughter Adira, at Florence, Italy, after a military court there acquitted him of a charge of deserting the Italian air force in World War II. Mussolini came back to Italy voluntarily from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to stand trial. He had been living in exile in South America. He claimed he was unable to return to his war-time unit from Germany after going there on a furlough following his father's downfall. (AP Wirephoto via Radiophoto)

In A Flutter

NEW YORK (AP)—Flag makers are in a flutter.
With the admission of Alaska to the Union, the flag manufacturers began turning out 49-star versions of Old Glory at top speed to have a big supply on hand when the new flag became official July 4.
Now with Hawaii about to become a state also, the manufacturers are in a dither over the possibility that a 50-star version will be needed even before those with 49 can be used.

Scouts To Visit Camp Lejeune For Two Days

Negro Explorer Scouts and 14-year-old Boy Scouts will be given opportunity to tour the large Camp Lejeune Marine Corps reservation, Saturday and Sunday, in connection with the Negro Explorer Rendezvous.
Registration for the rendezvous ended yesterday, with 76 of the 85 places being filled. The remainder of the vacancies are expected to be filled, however, by late registrations.
Among the highlights of the program will be Tank and Helicopter demonstrations, and swimming in an indoor heated pool.
Boys on the rendezvous will be sleeping in heated barracks.
The Explorers are to arrive at the base for registration by 10 a.m. tomorrow.
The Scouts will depart for home after church services Sunday morning.
