Lawmakers Endorse Eisenhower Stand; Some Question Defenses

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressmen of both parties today supported President Eisenhower's renewed vow that "we will not retreat one inch from our duty" in Berlin.

But some Democrats questioned his assertion that the United States now has an adequate and effective military establishment able to deter aggression.

In his radio-TV broadcast Monday night, the President cautiously opened the door to a summer-time summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev—provided foreign ministers somehow lay the advance groundwork.

Immediate congressional reaction, however, centered on his pledge that the United States would fight rather than yield to the Soviet demand that Allied troops leave West Berlin.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said: "I listened intently to the President's speech. I trust that his judgment of the situation is correct."

The reaction of House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana was typical of Republicans. "The President's speech demonstrates his full realization of the situation and the kind of leadership we need."

Rep. A. S. J. Carnahan of Missouri, a Democratic critic of the President's statements on United States defense, said: "To hear the President say we are in pretty good shape militarily is, of course, reassuring, but I have some doubts as to whether we are in as strong a position as we should be."

"We can not try to purchase peace by forsaking two million free people of Berlin," the President told the nation.

He charged the Soviet Union has "deliberately created" a war threat to enforce its Berlin demands, and indicated appeasement would be worse than use of force.

"War would become more likely if we save way and encouraged a rule of law and order," he said. "Indeed this is the peace policy which we are striving to carry out throughout the world."

On the other hand, he said, "The risk of war is minimized if we stand firm."

Whatever comes, he said, the American people "now have and will continue to have a modern, effective and adequate military establishment."

In general, Congress members of both parties backed Eisenhower's declaration of firmness in the Berlin situation. Republicans welcomed, and some Democrats challenged, his assessment of the nation's military strength.

Eisenhower confidently cited the nation's long-range nuclear bomber force, plus 41 types of missiles either in production or under development, as powerful enough to resist communism's challenge, despite domestic critics who are urging him to spend more for defense.

Dominating Eisenhower's speech, however, were 46 words which appeared to move him carefully measured step along the road to a summit conference with Khrushchev.

Referring to the Allied reply prepared to the most recent Soviet note, he said: "It is my hope that thereby all of us can reach agreement with the Soviets on an early meeting at the level of foreign ministers."

"Assuming developments that justify a summer meeting at the summit, the United States would be ready to participate in this further effort," he added.

Eisenhower's mention of a possible heads of government meeting, along with his fixing of an approximate date, came just three days before Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan was due in town for strategy talks.

Macmillan was reported ready to press Eisenhower for an agreement to convene such a top-level Big Four meeting as the only way to ease European tensions.

The British leader is understood to want a summit meeting regardless of whether a prior foreign ministers conference makes any progress on Germany's future.

Eisenhower implied he disagreed with Macmillan on this. He did not explain what developments he would consider as justifying a summit meeting.

Aides noted that the President in other sections of his speech used such words as "meaningful," "serious," and "sincere" to describe the kind of talks he favors. By using such words, they said, the President was sticking to his insistence that lower-level talks make enough progress to give promise of a successful summit session.

Some acknowledged, however, that Eisenhower had given himself a loophole to move either way. Even if a foreign ministers meeting failed or agreed on nothing but a vaguely worded agenda, Eisenhower could decide it was one of the "developments" he saw as justifying such a meeting.

One prominent Western diplomat flatly predicted on the basis of Eisenhower's remarks that a summit conference would be convened in August.

Conspicuously absent from Eisenhower's address also were his usual words of warning about the worldwide disillusionment that would follow an unsuccessful summit meeting.

Whatever his current thoughts on a summit meeting, Eisenhower made it clear he will not blindly accept Soviet demands.

Speaking of Berlin, he said: "We have no intention of forgetting our rights or of deserting a free people. Soviet rulers should remember that free men have, before this, died for so-called 'scraps of paper' which represented duty and honor and freedom."

Eisenhower turned down the idea of a separate peace treaty with the East German regime.

"We can not agree to any permanent and compulsory division of the German nation, which would leave central Europe a perpetual powder mill, even though we are ready to discuss with all affected nations any reasonable methods for its eventual unification," he said.

Eisenhower sought to picture the United States as open-minded and flexible toward any reasonable proposal the Soviets might advance. But he cautioned against any thought he would accept a proposal, no matter what the pressure, just to demonstrate flexibility that might imperil Allied security.

Nasser And Nikita's Fight Is Out In Open

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The fight between Gamal Abdel Nasser and Nikita Khrushchev was out in the open today after a bitter exchange of words in the struggle for control of Iraq.

The Soviet premier and the president of the United Arab Republic for the first time pulled off the wraps and accused each other of fomenting trouble in the Middle East.

Khrushchev accused Nasser of stirring up trouble in Iraq in an attempt to overthrow the Communist-influenced regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

He proclaimed the Soviet Union on the side of Kassem and warned Nasser that his new policy of attacking communism was "doomed to failure."

Granting a 550-million-ruble ($137,500,000) loan to Iraq in Moscow, Khrushchev told the representatives of the Kassem regime: "You have selfless and reliable friends who are ready to come to your aid any time you are in trouble."

A bitter retort came from Nasser, who until then had confined his attacks on Communists to Arab Reds and had carefully refrained from mentioning Moscow.

"We do not interfere in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union or support a faction of it against another faction," replied Nasser in a statement distributed by his semi-official Middle East News Agency. "Mr. Khrushchev's support of communism in our country is a challenge to the Arab people's will."

Khrushchev and Nasser had clasped hands in hailing the July 14 revolt in Iraq that brought Kassem to power with the assassination of King Faisal and his pro-Western Premier Nuri Said. They joined in proclaiming the revolution a blow at the West.

The strain between Khrushchev and Nasser is the result of the abortive revolt in Iraq last week of army officers sympathetic to Nasser's goal of pan-Arab unity.

Kassem's government in Baghdad coming more and more under the influence of the Iraqi Communists, accused Nasser of fomenting the rebellion. Nasser in turn has mounted a steadily rising campaign against Kassem and his Red supporters.

Khrushchev in Moscow accused Nasser of trying to force Iraq to join the United Arab Republic.

Nasser called this charge a "distortion of fact because we have always announced that our path is Arab solidarity, and in order to achieve this there must be unanimous Arab approval."

Say Strauss Was Picked To Guide Economic Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York's senators said today Lewis L. Strauss was picked to guide the opening of the hearings which may continue intermittently for several weeks.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) urged the Senate Commerce Committee at a public hearing to give quick approval to the nomination.

There is some opposition to the appointment, arising chiefly out of controversies when Strauss was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The Russians expect the time bomb that they will explode eventually will be an economic one," Javits said, adding that because of his experience and background Strauss "understands the challenge of economic warfare."

Keating said President Eisenhower had selected Strauss "as his chief of staff for this trade war."

"Strauss, 63-year-old retired Naval reserve admiral and investment banker, was on hand for the opening of the hearings which may continue intermittently for several weeks.

Keating and Javits were the initial witnesses. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, explained that since Strauss has had long banking and business connections in New York and now owns a farm in Culpeper County, Va., he has asked the New York and Virginia senators to comment.

The two Virginia Democratic senators, Harry F. Byrd and A. Willis Robertson, both replied with letters urging confirmation of Strauss.

Magnuson said his committee plans an investigation of the Russian cold war offensive later.

Magnuson has indicated that opposition witnesses will not be heard until after the Senate's Easter recess, starting March 26.

Hodges 'Not Averse' To Special Session

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges thinks North Carolina can get along during the next biennium without a tax increase, but he says "God bless" the legislators "if they think they need taxes and can find them."

He made this comment Monday when asked about legislative proposals for new taxes. Hodges told his news conference he is proud that North Carolina's proposed budget for 1959-61 calls for an increase of 50 million dollars over the current biennium without raising taxes.

He said he used this as a selling point in his talks last week to industrial prospects while he was in New York City. Most other states, he said, are having to look around for new tax sources to balance their budgets.

Hodges told newsmen he would not be averse to a special session of the General Assembly to handle proposed constitutional revisions if the Legislature feels it is needed.

Leaders of the North Carolina Young Democrats Club have suggested that the issues of constitutional revision and court reforms be put off until a special session next fall.

Hodges said legislative leaders should be able to decide at the regular session.

The governor indicated he thinks the legislators can handle the proposed constitutional changes during the regular session. He said, "I don't agree that the Legislature has more work than it can handle."

Meanwhile, Hodges indicated he will wait until the end of the current fiscal year to appoint a successor to the late Robert M. Hanes of Winston-Salem on the conservation and development board. The terms of six other board members expire in June.

Sub Hunter Falls In Ocean; Crew Saved By 'Prey'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A Navy S2F submarine hunter plane crashed in the Atlantic Ocean last night 25 miles east of Elizabeth City, N.C. A submarine the plane was tracking surfaced and rescued two of the downed airmen. Two others are missing.

The missing men are Lt. (J.G.) G. L. Smith, son of Mrs. Mary L. Smith, of Haverton, Pa., and F. L. Wright, an enlisted man, son of L. A. Wright, Omaha, Neb. The plane crashed shortly after it started a tracking exercise with the Norfolk-based submarine USS Requin.

N.C. Plant Gets Big Army Order

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Western Electric Co. has received a 20 million dollar Army contract to continue production of the Nike-Hercules missile in North Carolina.

Western Electric plants here and in Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Burlington turn out parts for the ground-to-air missile, which is 41½ feet long and weighs five tons. Douglas Aircraft Co. sub-contracts from Western Electric for actual construction of the weapon at its plant here.

Secret Service Concerned About Threatening Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Secret Service is concerned about a man who has threatened several times to kill President Eisenhower.

In a statement for the House Appropriations Committee, the service describes the would-be assassin as a dishonorably discharged serviceman, an alcoholic, a drifter, a prison inmate and a former patient at a mental institution.

The statement, given to the committee in secret session and made public Monday, did not name the man nor indicate where he is now.

The service, which guards the President, told the committee the threats began in 1955. Since then, he served one six-month prison sentence in 1956 for carrying cartridges in a Glenwood Springs, Colo., and spent less than a month in a mental institution in 1957 after attempting to telephone a threat to the President in Baltimore.

Move To Abolish N. C. Civilian Absentee Ballot Is Killed Today

RALEIGH (AP)—Defeat for a bill to abolish the civilian absentee ballot today highlighted a busy round of activity by legislative committees.

While the House Committee on Elections and Election Laws swung the axe on the civilian absentee ballot repeal, the House Committee on Penal Institutions voted for expansion of prison industries.

Meanwhile, a hearing on daylight saving time was held before House Judiciary 1 Committee. After listening to farm and outdoor drama spokesmen argue against the measure, the committee delayed action until Thursday.

While the statewide bill for wiping out the absentee ballot for civilians was killed, the House committee voted a favorable report for a local repeal measure for Graham County.

The bill to expand prison industries last week brought loud complaints from some private industries which said they would face "convict competition" if the measure became law. However, the committee today gave it a favorable report after only brief discussion. The major provision of the bill would require state agencies and institutions to give preference to articles produced by prisoners in industries, as long as standards of price and quality were met.

Rep. Sam J. Burrow Jr. of Randolph, sponsor of the bill to make daylight saving time official through summer months, argued it would give workers an extra hour of daylight.

However, spokesmen for outdoor dramas complained it would make necessary a later starting time and thus cut down family attendance for their shows. Representatives of the State Game and North Carolina Farm Bureau said it would confuse farming operations.

In the elections committee, the vote for an unfavorable report on the civilian absentee ballot measure was divided.

However, those who favored the measure did not ask for a head count and Chairman Harlow Holcombe of Yancey ruled "the eyes have it."

Both Gov. Hodges and the State Board of Elections had urged the General Assembly—as previous boards have done—to abolish absentee voting by civilians in general elections. It was eliminated in primaries years ago.

The elections committee packed off to a five-member subcommittee for further study several measures to amend the election laws.

One of those would change the time for holding primaries from the last Saturday in May to the last Tuesday in June. Several members of the committee objected to moving the primary from Saturday to Tuesday and others objected to changing the time from May to June.

The committee voted a favorable report to a bill to abolish civilian absentee voting in Graham local elections after Rep. Leonard W. Lloyd of Graham made a strong plea for its passage.

Lloyd told the committee that absentee ballots sold as high as $40 each in his county in the last election. He estimated that both parties spent as much as $50,000 in the county during the election.

Lloyd said that out of 732 absentee ballots cast in the election at least 500 were purchased votes. "We've had a terrible experience," Lloyd said. "And it's completely out of control. It's also corrupting our country and is going to lead to some terrible trouble if we don't do something about it."

Lloyd told the committee he promised the Graham folks in his campaign that he would work for a bill to abolish absentee voting in the county. He said he'd like to continue to serve in the House after this session, but "without this bill, I don't stand a chance."

"I'm begging," he told the committee as he urged it to give a favorable report to the bill.

Senate Appears Likely To Join In Extending Jobless Pay Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate appeared likely today to join the House in giving quick approval to a three-month extension of emergency jobless benefits.

But action could be delayed by a battle over fixing permanent federal standards which the state-administered programs would have to meet. Congress is planning to recess March 26 for a 10 day Easter holiday.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said his Senate Finance Committee will meet Friday to consider the extension bill. The House passed it Monday with no dissenting votes.

Son John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) told a reporter he would urge the Finance Committee to tack onto the bill his proposal to set minimum federal standards.

This will have the support of some Democrats on the committee, but they are not expected to succeed in making such changes in the temporary bill.

Some Democrats said privately they believed the three-month extension would work to the advantage of the Kennedy proposal, because it would build up pressure for further congressional action this year. Originally, a one-year extension had been considered.

The House Ways and Means Committee starts hearings on minimum standards legislation April 7.

Byrd has opposed efforts to put through a federal standards bill in the past. The states now have widely varying durations and amounts of weekly payments to jobless persons.

The temporary program was enacted a year ago during the recession. Under it, states can get federal help in making extra payments for a period 50 per cent longer than the state now pays. This means 13 more weeks in most states.

The extension bill would apply only to unemployed workers who have exhausted state benefits and qualified for federal payments by April 1. A revised estimate indicated it would apply to 405,000 workers at a three-month cost of 78 million dollars.

Kennedy's proposal, which has the support of 30 senators, would establish a uniform benefit period of 39 weeks. Most states now pay 26. One pays 30 but some pay as little as six.

It also would fix a minimum benefit equal to not less than 50 per cent of weekly wages so long as that amount is not more than two-thirds of the average weekly wage in the state.

Miss Kay Pate Bride-Elect Shower Honoree

STOKES—Wednesday, Mrs. H. P. Congleton and Mrs. Slade Congleton were hostesses at a floating bridal shower honoring Miss Kay Pate, who will marry John Gray Jr. on March 20. Miss Pate was presented a corsage of white carnations.

In decorating, the hostesses carried out a color scheme of green and white.

Mrs. Slade Congleton greeted the guests upon arrival. Presiding over the register was Miss Patricia Congleton. Mrs. Willis Overton assisted in the gift room.

As the guests arrived they were served refreshments. Mrs. Pate, mother of the bride-elect, poured the punch. Mrs. Blanch Gray served cake. Assisting in serving the mints, nuts and other delicacies were Mrs. Elmer Parker and Mrs. Francis VanDyke.

Mrs. Reginald Gray said the do-goodies to approximately 75 guests.

Imaginary Trip To Japan Told

An imaginary trip to Japan was discussed at the Go Tell Auxiliary of Gum Swamp Church of Belvoir. The group met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Warren.

Audrey Harris, program chairman, gave a dramatization of an imaginary trip to Japan. The theme of the lesson for the month, "He sends to Japan," was read and discussed by Dianne Clark, Ann Brewer, Carolyn Hathaway, J. P. Brewer, J. E. Warren Jr., and Glenn Harris.

Questions of the Bible were asked and each one found the answer and read it to the group. A reading on Missions was given by the assistant leader, Mrs. J. E. Warren.

Steve Little, president, presided over the business session. The next meeting will be at the home of Dianne Clark. All boys and girls, ages 9-13, are invited to attend these meetings.

Fetsch, Hickfang Perform

Dr. Wolfgang Fetsch, pianist, and Paul Hickfang, baritone, both members of the department of music at East Carolina College were guest artists at the Graham Memorial "Petites Musicales" series at Chapel Hill Sunday afternoon. George E. Perry of the College faculty, pianist, accompanied Hickfang.

Fetsch included on his program a number of Chopin selections and compositions by Hindemith, modern composer. Hickfang's songs included works by Boito, Hugo Wolf, and others.

Both musicians are well known to Greenville audiences. During the present school year, Dr. Fetsch appeared in an all-Chopin recital on East Carolina's "Let's Go To College" TV series and in a recital on the campus. Hickfang, soloist this season with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, will be heard in recital Sunday afternoon, March 22, at 3:30 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

Mrs. Harris Club Hostess

The monthly meeting of the Fine Arts Department of the Woman's Club was held in the home of Mrs. W. C. Harris Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. E. W. Barnhill and Mrs. J. C. Galloway as assisting hostesses.

Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house and from a decorated table refreshments of coffee, cake, nuts and mints were served the members and guests.

Mrs. A. A. Hines, program chairman, presented Dr. Elizabeth Utterback from the English Department of East Carolina College as the speaker for the afternoon. For the program Dr. Utterback entertained the group with a number of letters she read from the book "Dear Abby" by Abigail VanBuren.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president, presided over the business session and announced that the May meeting would be a tour of Tryon Palace with a luncheon at the hotel.

Mrs. Congleton Entertains Club

STOKES—Mrs. Slade Congleton entertained the Couples Club at her home Thursday night. Spring flowers decorated the living room where three tables were placed. The hostess served a salad plate with coffee during the refreshment hour.

Receiving the high score were Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Congleton, and low scorers were Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Congleton.

Interior Decorator Speaks

The American Home Department of the Woman's Club met on Friday afternoon at Brown's Furniture to hear Jack Thomas, Interior Decorator. When introducing Thomas, Mrs. R. P. Rogers, program chairman, called him one of the best qualified in North Carolina with wide experience in his field.

Thomas spoke informally, saying he preferred to have a general discussion with questions. He gave many suggestions as to length, fullness of draperies and curtains, and other details.

Thomas stated that in decorating the first thing to consider is the personality of the people that live in the home and what their interest or hobbies are (art, music, sports, etc.). The second consideration is the degree of formality, as a formal room would include a different type of window treatment, both as to material of drapes and their style. "The foundation of a room is the carpet," said Thomas, as that determines what else is done in the room.

Speaking of window drapery, he said each window is a different problem, but one must be careful to get the vertical rectangle effect, never a square effect. He recommended that, with a few exceptions, a valance or cornice should be used. "Most cornices are too short," stated Mr. Thomas, "they should be one-eighth the height of the drapery". "Shape a cornice—take a design from your furniture or drapery design in the room".

"Choice of color is a personal thing," he continued, "but use a color that complements you," not just one you like. Most people are afraid to use color in their homes, he said. "Make your powder room and guest room gay, but make your entrance unusual, even stark." The living room or den should be neither too bright nor stark, however.

Asked about mixing periods of furniture, Thomas said "the only one that cannot be mixed with others is the Victorian." "Lamps today are big—they serve the purpose they are supposed to." "There is a place in every home for a pole lamp". "Mirrors today have frames". "On the mantle shelf, the less the prettier." These were among the comments of the decorator.

He ended his talk by saying, "The Oriental motif in decorating is still good, but the latest in style is the Egyptian or Persian."

The Chairman of the Home Department, Mrs. Ed Ricks, welcomed more than 50 members and visitors at a brief business meeting before the program. The members voted not to hold the Tea Dance for Seniors at the end of this year. The Ways and Means Committee suggested that the Home Department serve a luncheon for the Newcomers Club at their meeting on April 9.

Mrs. Ricks announced that Mrs. Nancy McKethan will speak on "Flat Designing" at the April meeting of the club, and if any member had a favorite hat for which she wanted advice as to decorating she should bring it to this meeting.

HD Club Meets

The Stokes Home Demonstration Club met at the school lunchroom with Mrs. M. L. Wynne as hostess recently. Fourteen members attended the meeting.

Mrs. Willis Overton gave a report on gardening. The home beautification leader, Mrs. Lillian Congleton, gave a demonstration on landscaping, followed by a contest on the identification of shrubbery. The winners were Mrs. Sackie Gurganus and Mrs. Tom Perkins. The hostess served soft drinks, cookies, sandwiches, and peanuts.

30 Years Ago Today

March 17, 1929

Mrs. S. N. Graham and Miss Ward Moore entertained at a lovely bridge party last evening at the Woman's Club, honoring Miss Mildred Lane and Miss Ethel Montgomery, who are leaving Greenville. Bridge was played at five tables. Miss Jacobs of New Bern was given homemade candles for high cut and Miss Lane a bridge pad for low cut. The honorees were remembered with bath powder. Mrs. J. B. Cherry, who recently returned from New York, was presented lingerie pins. A tempting salad course was served.

Pair Wed In Church

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Janie Blanche Edmondson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson of Robersonville, became the bride of Henry Kenneth Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Robertson of Robersonville, on March 15 at the Gold Point Christian Church in the afternoon.
 The church was decorated with two tall candelabra with white tapers intertwined with ivy. The background was of pine, fern, and ivy, set off by an arrangement of white gladioli.
 The Rev. Harold F. Brown officiated. Music was presented by Miss Janice Savage of Williamsport, pianist, and Miss Betty Jean Davenport, soloist, who sang "Because" and "O Promise Me."
 Given in marriage by her brother, Roy Edmondson, the bride wore a gown of lace and tulle over satin styled with an oval neckline, outlined in seed pearls and sequins with long lace sleeves ending in wedding points over the hands. The fitted bodice complimented the bouffant skirt with an apron effect of lace and extending into a sweeping train. Her headpiece was a lace hat with fingertip veil of imported illusion. She carried a white Bible with a white, purple throated orchid surrounded

Miscellaneous Shower Given Future Bride

Miss Alice Flye, who will marry Charles Edwin McGowan on March 29, was honored at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Louis A. Mills and Miss Mamie Williams at the home of the latter on Friday night.
 Upon arrival the honoree was presented a corsage of yellow carnations to wear with her brown wool ensemble. Greeting the guests were the honoree and Miss Williams. A yellow and white color scheme was used throughout the home.
 Guests were invited into the dining room where a floral arrangement of daffodils, bridal wreath and ivy flanked by yellow burning tapers centered the imported white cloth covered table.
 Mrs. Earl Alder, sister of the prospective bridegroom, poured punch. The 30 guests helped themselves to chicken salad sandwiches, bridal cookies, nuts, and assorted meats.
Camp Instructor To Speak
 Wyatt Taylor of Camp Sea Gull will show pictures of camp life Monday night at 8 o'clock at St. James Methodist Church.

Several Games Were Played After Which Miss Flye Opened and Displayed Her Gifts.

The hostesses remembered the honoree with china in her chosen pattern.
Wedding Invitation
 Robersonville—The public is cordially invited to attend the wedding of Miss Cynthia James and Hilton Leggett in the Robersonville Methodist Church on Sunday, March 22, at 3 o'clock.
 Miss James is the daughter of Ben H. James of Robersonville and the late Mrs. James. Mr. Leggett is the son of Mrs. Henry Leggett of Robersonville.
Birthday Dinner
 Sunday, Mrs. L. S. Garris was entertained at a surprise birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Whitehurst. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Stepp, Rockville, Md.; Mrs. W. A. Coffield, Palmyra; Mrs. Don Frank, Williamston; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Butterton, Rocky Mount; and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Phelps, Windsor.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Dollars

By ROSALIE MOORE
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Pitt County budget buyers will find that variety is offered at the local meat counters this week.
 Pork cuts continue to be top red meat values for the money, with beef prices remaining steady. Good buys can be found in all forms of fish products—from now through the Easter season.
 A good supply of vegetables are available for the market basket this week. More turnips, collards, and other leafy greens are appearing from nearby growing areas.
 The most economical buys are potatoes, celery and carrots. Cabbage moved in good volume from Florida, with prices mostly unchanged. Cucumbers, yellow squash, eggplant and green peppers are available with relatively high prices still predominant.
 Eggs are down in price—an excellent time to buy for extra eating and egg coloring for the children's Easter Egg Hunt. Fryers are a good buy at most markets, with heavy hens remaining steady in price, supply and quality.
 Good quality fruits are continuing to be good buys, with apples and citrus fruits offering the best selection at the produce counter. Citrus prices show a slight increase over last week—quality remains high.
 Apples offer much in food value and variety to everyday "meal time" and "in between" eating. There are good quality pineapples, avocados and bananas available.

Essential Facilities Amongst Us

Gradually the full impact of the Voice of America facilities on this area is being made known to local residents.

Not only will the transmitters be the most powerful short wave radio facilities in the nation, but they are also essential to the United States' position in the cold war. More than that, the sites picked for these new facilities are considered by VOA to be the best sites available on the East Coast of the United States for the job they will have to do.

VOA officials made these points plain to Beaufort County property owners who gathered in Washington yesterday at a meeting arranged by Congressman Herbert C. Bonner. The meeting between property owners affected by the VOA site in the Leggett Crossroads area, and officials of VOA after Rep. Bonner received a petition asking that the Beaufort County site be shifted.

The critical location of these new facilities was emphasized by the assertion of VOA officials that after surveying practically all the east coast of the United States, only 38 sites were found which might possibly be utilized. All but 11 of those sites, they declared, had to be eliminated for technical reasons, and only the site in the Pitt-Beaufort area finally received clearance from all the federal agencies which had to be considered in the project.

Because of the power of the new facilities, it was necessary, they said, to consider not only the location itself, but the established communication lines of military and civilian installations, those of government facilities, military and civilian air lanes, power facilities and many other factors.

The shifting of a site only a short distance in any direction could result in a conflict which would not be acceptable, they told the property owners.

The Reflector can sympathize with property owners who will be displaced from their farms by the location of these new facilities in this area. Yet, it must be realized that these new facilities are essential to the long range defense of this nation and probably the rest of the free world as well. Furthermore the property owners, while they will be displaced, will receive a fair market value for the lands involved. They will also retain their crop allotments under the agricultural program that can be applied to other farms when the displaced owners relocate.

From an economic standpoint, the new facilities will have a tremendous impact on this area with the 100 employes it will require and the $800,000 annual payroll they will have.

From an overall standpoint, only five per cent of the total of almost 6,000 acres included in the three sites is cleared land which is now being farmed. This in itself should indicate that the VOA officials have made a diligent effort to disrupt as little as possible the agricultural operations carried on in this area.

As more information is made public about these new facilities, it becomes increasingly apparent that the facilities are essential to the American struggle for survival and further that the sites picked are essential to the installations doing the job they are designed to do.

School Press Staffs Can Afford To Be Proud

Student newspapers of Rose High School in Greenville and Farmville High School in Farmville are to be congratulated on receiving first place awards in their categories in the annual Columbia University Scholastic Press Association contest.

The Scholastic Press Association contest includes high school newspapers from a number of states and entries are judged for excellence by a panel of 30 school press authorities.

Staff of "Green Lights", the Rose High publication, and "News 'N Views", the Farmville High publication, can be proud of the results of their work. Their achievement reflects credit on their work, their schools and their communities.

Varied Opinion As To Progress

By LYNN NISBET

PROGRESS — There is wide divergence in opinion of members of the joint finance committee about the degree of progress made during the past week.

One staunch administrationist said he thinks there may be a majority of the members now willing to go along with the Advisory Budget Commission revenue bill—including the withholding "windfall". On the other hand, two signers of the "substitute" revenue bill offered in the Senate Friday insisted they had assurance of support by 30 or more Senators for all or a part of their proposals.

The bill offered by Sens. Jordan, Williamson, Whitley and others is a combination appropriations and tax measure. It would increase appropriation $31 million over the budget commission bill, of which $34 million, or about two-thirds, would go for raising pay of public school teachers and college faculties. Main tax sources would be on bottled drinks, $27 million, and increasing the tax on whiskey, $10 million. The other $14 million would come from shuffling items in the commission budget.

The joint committee discussed the Everett bill for an almost exemptionless sales tax of two percent and some support was evident. The bill by Rep. J. N. Jordan for removing exemptions in the three percent levy will be discussed this week. That idea has fewer friends.

Opinion of impartial observers is that the legislators are overly optimistic. It takes deep rose colored glasses to see a majority of the committee willing to go along with the administration bill, although quite obviously it is slightly more popular than it was when introduced. Also it appears from the sidelines that sponsors of substitutes are counting on more support than will show up on the final vote.

INSEPARABLE — Although meeting separately and looking at the picture from opposite viewpoints, there is inseparable relationship between the appropriations and finance committees. And there is a lot less evidence that the appropriations fellows will hold the budget line. If the appropriated items are raised, additional revenue must be found. Total membership of both House and Senate is equally distributed on the money committees. In the unlikely event of every member of the finance committee standing by the budget bill, and every member of the appropriations committee voting for increases, there will be stalemate.

Sentiment in the General Assembly is fairly evenly divided, because of the equal membership, as to whether the finance committee should act first and appropriations be limited to the available revenue, or if the appropriations needs should be first established and then funds found somewhere to meet them. Judging from editorial comment in newspapers throughout the state, and expressions of visitors to Raleigh, public sentiment is pro-finance, but by no means unanimous, in favor of establishing needs first.

So it is that while the tax levying group reports substantial progress toward holding the line, and the appropriations group reports progress toward increased pay for teachers and State Employees, with growing support for more capital improvements, the combined net effect is in direction of widening the gap between established need and pre-determined availability of funds.

The big question is how long it will take to narrow that gap. QUOTES — There are some quotations from statements made before legislative committees during the past two or three weeks which are deemed worthy of preservation.

Sen. Willis Hancock: "If county commissioners are ready for office they ought to be ready to assume responsibility."

Col. W. F. Bailey, director of Prisons: "Compulsory idleness is cruel punishment which North Carolina ought not to inflict upon her prisoners."

Dr. A. L. Chestnut, UNC fisheries research: "If we could teach shrimp and oysters to read the laws and regulations a lot of our problems would be solved."

Eric Rodgers, fisheries advisory council: "Commercial fishermen do not have any overriding rights in the waters, but they have economic rights which should be respected."

Col. Bailey again: "No one has ever been guaranteed a right to sell to the State of North Carolina."

Sen. Arthur Williamson: "If a State official appears in the interest of a private or commercial enterprise and not in behalf of the State, he gains an unfair advantage over other interested parties and such an official violates in double measure the laws governing lobbyists."

Sen. Bunn Frink: "The same spirit prevails in Brunswick county as in 1774. Our people resent tyranny from Raleigh as much as their ancestors did tyranny from the King of England."

Baby Food Isn't Likely To Prove Constructive

Feeding baby food to the tough guys in the juvenile section of the Jacksonville, Fla. jail may take a little wind out of a young thug's sails, but it hardly will offer anything constructive toward rehabilitating a youth who has started down the road toward a life of crime.

The baby food menu has been selected by the Duval County sheriff as a measure for keeping the tough young cell occupants in line. It may reduce the jail's meal budget, and it may make some of the occupants a little more cooperative during their stay in the calaboose.

In the long run, however, it will probably leave a worse taste society in the mouths of some of these juveniles than would good food and better treatment by Duval County jailers.

Tangled Picture Of U. S. Ability

By JAMES MACLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Out of the intense soul searching forced on this country by the Berlin crisis have come self-confident revelations about the present and deeply troubling questions about the future.

These revelations—to give a total picture—have had to be fitted together from various statements by President Eisenhower and his top military advisers.

They might prove erroneous in case of war—since the Soviets then would have to be heard from—but here they are:

1. Eisenhower himself last week said we certainly won't fight a land war with the Soviets. They outnumber us on the ground.

"Why in the world would we dream of fighting a ground war?" he asked. "You have got to have other means."

2. Earlier this month Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy said we have "offensive superiority over the Soviets at this time."

3. Since we could not win on land, but have offensive superiority then the only way we could fight a war is with planes using nuclear bombs.

Eisenhower has not ruled out nuclear weapons. McElroy has emphasized American dependence on its bombers.

But Democratic leaders—even though seeming to accept the idea of American superiority at present—question our ability to stay ahead.

They question Eisenhower's wisdom in not putting more money and effort into defense—looking years ahead—since the Soviets are pushing missile development and missiles may make bombers obsolete.

This is the troubling question implicit in their criticism. Even though the Soviets may be afraid to start all-out war now, what happens if and when they gain superiority?" Will they blackmail us into one surrender after another?

Last week the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, which has been quizzing top military leaders behind closed doors, released some heavily censored portions of the testimony.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, chairman of this group and leader of the Senate Democrats, said the military chiefs agreed they had adequate plans and strength to meet the Berlin Crisis.

The Soviets have demanded the Allies pull their troops out of West Berlin and leave it a free city in the heart of Communist East Germany.

But Johnson, apparently accepting the idea this country is in adequate military shape now, said the adequacy applied only to the "immediate situation."

Then, trying to separate what we might be able to do now from what we might not be able to do in the future, he added: "Now and down the road are two different things."

The testimony of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, showed he agreed with Eisenhower we could not cope with the U.S.S.R. on the ground. He was asked if the only alternative to nuclear war is all-out war.

Although all-out war would mean nuclear war, "We must be willing to go all the way down the road," Taylor said. "We can't turn back at any point."

Even Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, appears to accept American superiority at this time. He has spoken of this country's ability to devastate Russia in a war now.

But he seems less confident about the future, saying "there is no question the Soviet Union is ahead of us in the missile field."

"It would seem that the critics of our educational system have forgotten the first principle of education, which is—you can't pour a gallon into a pint measure. No matter what the governments may decree, there are many people who do not have the capacity for learning."

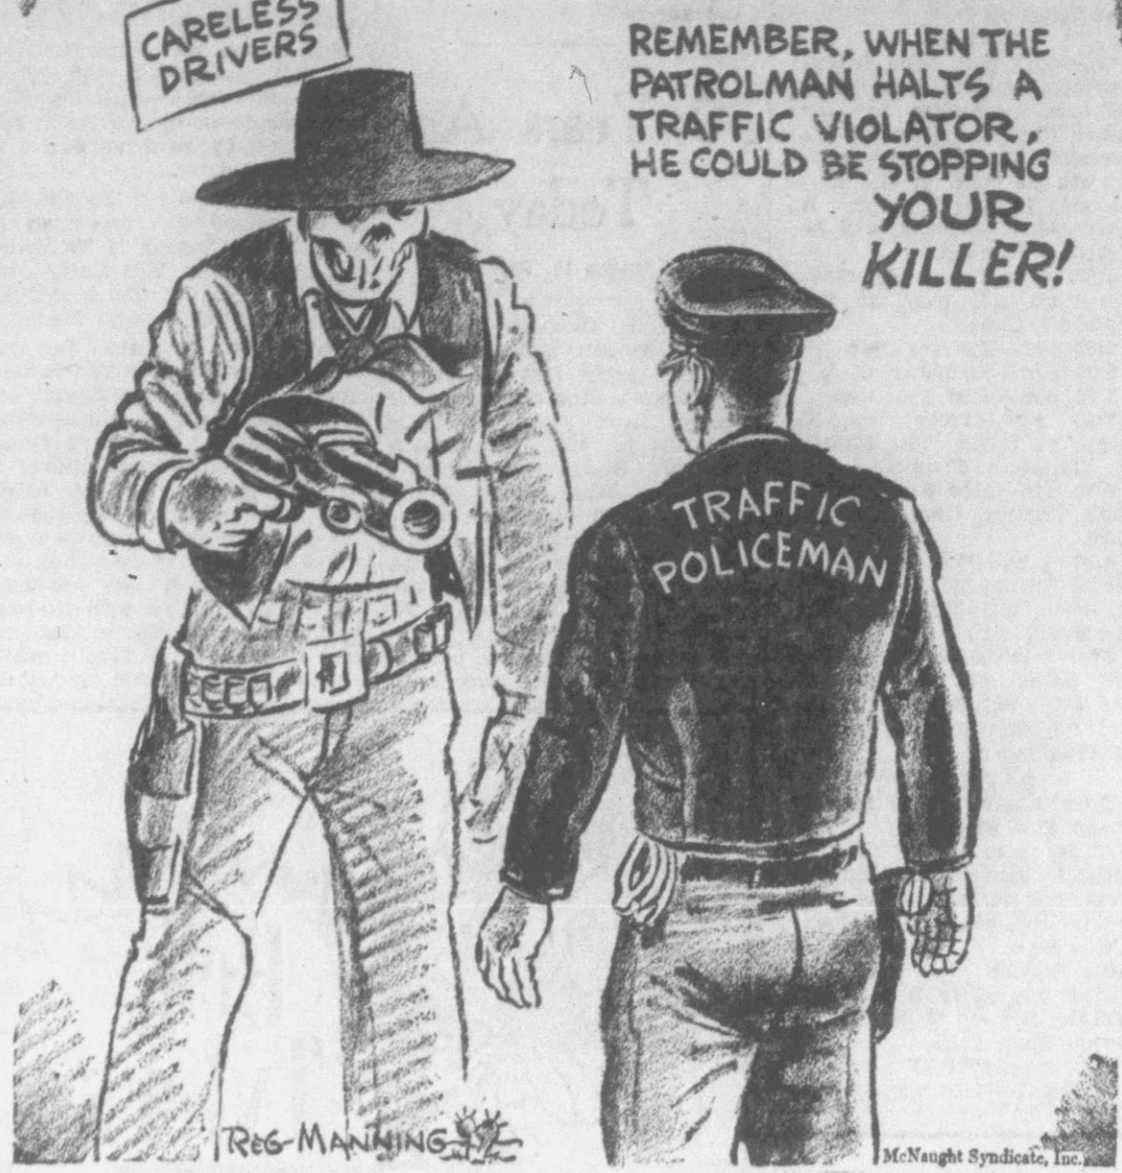

"If Congress would only forget the incessant Republican vs. Democrat struggle for a little while, it might be able to pass the kind of legislation that would better prepare the nation to compete with both inflation at home and competition abroad.

The Lawman—

—MAY BE ALL THAT STANDS BETWEEN YOU AND THE DEADLY "GUNMAN".

By DON SCHLIENZ

As The President Spoke

Time: 9:25 — Six men are seated near a TV set in a rather large room; their attention is only fractionally devoted to Peter Gunn — hearing and seeing only out of the corners of their eyes and ears, so to speak. A number of other men are some distance away, talking, laughing.

9:30 p.m. — A man seated near the set reaches to a dial and turns up the volume as the President begins his opening remarks. He turns the screen an inch or so, to see it better.

9:32 p.m. — One member of a small conversation group shifts his seat to better hear the address. Two others still engrossed in own words.

9:34 p.m. — A newcomer joins the handful of intense listeners and turns up the volume still more; he sits with chin in hand; full attention focused on the President's image.

9:35 p.m. — There are now four men whose eyes and ears are attuned to the TV set. Two partially so. One half-interested spectator strolls up, walks away.

9:36 p.m. — The President is saying something about Russia has said it will sign a separate treaty with East Germany; "That's a real laugh!" rumbles a listener. One leaves.

9:37 p.m. — "Whatcha doin', Don?" chuckles a new arrival. "Just watchin' and listenin'." I reply. He sits down to do the same.

9:40 p.m. — "Negotiate with those guys?" laughs the man next to me. "Ha!" And another pair in the semicircle exchange a few hushed words. The little audience thus far has ranged between six and three; there are now five. One leans forward to hear better against a burst of laughter on the other side of the room.

9:47 p.m. — As Ike begins to itemize U.S. assets for defense, an Air Force officer joins the group. He sits. Listens. There are now as many as twelve, standing or sitting, with attention on the President. A fellow newsman standing on the outer fringe is leaving the room; another man takes his place.

9:50 p.m. — Background noises are now noticeably quieter. Two of the seated men converse in hushed tones; most of the group is eloquently silent. Somebody, in a sort of stage whisper, asked "How long is he going to talk?"

9:52 p.m. — The man next to me is oblivious to any distractions. The conversing pair find much in agreement, they are both nodding. Both whispering. Occasionally someone leaves, but their places are usually soon taken.

9:55 p.m. — Now ten seated, two standing in the TV cluster. All are listening.

9:59 p.m. — The President is obviously in his concluding remarks and a couple get up to go. "Thank you, and goodnight," one quips. But behind the smile you sense a sober understanding of what he heard.

10:00 p.m. — It's over.

"What did he say about Berlin?" laughs one of the little audience.

"I Want You," responds another with the traditional pointing finger.

But the laughs were subdued. The gathering broke up fast. Most headed for the door, to go home.

So did I.

Strength For Today

AUTHORITY OF THE BIBLE

If the Bible is another great book among the fine literature of the world, but nothing more, then much of its teaching is false, for it claims to be the Word of God. The human factor is very prominent in it. It is not a book which has been let down out of heaven, given in a blinding vision of light, delivered complete in every respect. It has grown up amid the agonizing experiences of men and nations. Its teachings have gushed like life blood out of the wounds of the world. Not only does it present to us an amazing historical pageant, but it is different from all books in that it interprets all events in the light of God's sov-

History In Her Names

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty million Americans of Irish descent today will honor St. Patrick, patron saint of their ancestral homeland.

They are very proud—on this day even tearfully proud—of their Irish past although they often know little about it except for one thing: They're sure that, like all Irishmen, they sprang from Vikings.

Their history is written in their names. Hubbard Keavy, a Los Angeles newsman, literary scholar and noted amateur chef, has made a hobby of studying Irish names. Many, he found, reflect Ireland's many foreign would-be conquerors. They are of Norman, Nordic, Welsh, Scottish—yes, even of English origin.

Here are the meanings of some well-known Irish names: Bacon—The live pig. Of English—the saints save us—origin. Ballard—Bald-headed.

Barker—One who stripped trees of bark for the tanner.

Baron—a real baron, or one who put on the airs of a baron.

Bell—From "le bel," meaning beautiful. Originally Norman.

Bowler—the maker of wooden bowls.

Blake—The black, from the complexion.

Boyle—From Bog Hill, the highest part of the bog.

Burke—Of the burg, or borough. Calhoun—Battle-joyful.

Casey—Vigilant, watchful. Collier—The charcoal burner.

Connelly—Faithful to pledges. Cooper—Maker of barrels.

Cosgrove—Son of the public crier.

Crosby—Son of the rhymer. Crane—The rock.

Daily—Holding, or frequenting, assemblies.

Donohoe—A strong warrior. Devalera—Of Valera, an ancient city in Spain.

Faulkner—Keeper of the Falcons.

Ford—The strong. From the Norman, le fort.

Fox—The fox, one of sly or sunning disposition.

Garland—Wearer of a mustache. French origin.

Keavy—Men with long locks, or foot soldiers.

Kelly—Son of a blind hero. Kennedy—Helmet-head.

Kilpatrick—Servant of St. Patrick.

McCawey—Son of a bald man. McGown—Son of the smith.

McGraw—Son of grace, or prosperity.

MacDowell—The black stranger, a name given to the Danes.

O'Brien—From Brian Boru, the great Irish king.

O'Connor—High-willed.

O'Neil—Beautiful, gentle, noble, lovable.

Sullivan—The bright-eyed one. To sum it up, Ireland, as a commentator once observed, is "a country that can read its history in its phone book."

"But how are we fixed on the economic front, where the real war between capitalism and communism is taking place? Other Editors Saying.. Opposition Isn't Enough

(Kinston Free Press)

Governor Hodges' strong appeal to the Legislature Thursday to be up-and doing about court and constitutional reforms was a timely and well-organized challenge to the lawmakers for action.

The Bell Court Study Committee's report on the needs of the judiciary in North Carolina has been before the solons for sometime. It has not been received with the enthusiasm the Governor or Senator Bell would have liked.

The same can be said for the Constitutional Study Commission's report made by Victor Bryant of Durham. Re-districting on a basis of population shifts and other suggested renovations in the 90-year-old Constitution of North Carolina have not been welcomed by many lawmakers so far.

The serious question on court reforms hinges about where administrative authority shall rest—with the Supreme Court or with the General Assembly. The Governor tried to suggest a possible compromise. He sees the need for reform, but he is not wedded to the exact wording of the Bell report. The actual service of better court procedures for the State is the goal, and the solons have a great deal of leeway in bringing it about.

There is urgent need for reform in the lower courts. This Legislature cannot, in the face of the Bell report and the Court Study Commission's recommendations, ignore this fact at this session. It isn't a question of the details of how it shall be done as much as it is a public trust by the people to see that corrective action be taken. Even the magistrates agree that some corrective legislation is needed.

Whether the lawmakers will respond to their duty under the Constitution re-district and re-appportion the representation in the Assembly on the basis of the 1950 population remains to be seen. Other legislatures have not. They have passed the buck to "study groups" time and time again. If current "unpopularity" of constitutional reform suggestions is any criteria, the State is in for more delay.

There is no need for undue haste. The Governor has not advocated it. There is need for court reform and some plan whereby the State Constitution can be brought into line with modern needs. Opposition to ways and means of achieving these proposed reforms is not enough. The people need and should have some action.

This Assembly and its duly elected members cannot escape the need for action by raising a howl over procedures. It is their responsibility. The people expect them to act accordingly.

More Teen - Agers For Market

By ELMER ROESSNER

One reason this will be a great business year is that there will be more teen-agers than ever before. But not more than ever again.

That's because of what experts call the "population explosion."

In 1940, the total number of births in the United States topped 2,500,000 for the first time in history. It has never fallen below that mark and may never again. Here is a table showing the births from 1940 through 1946, together with the ages those babies reach this year:

Year	Births	Age This Year
1940	2,558,000	19
1941	2,710,000	18
1942	3,003,000	17
1943	3,127,000	16
1944	2,969,000	15
1945	2,894,000	14
1946	3,458,000	13

out of the country, but the total number of teen-agers seems certain to be above 20,000,000 this year.

Not only are there more teen-agers now than ever, but they are better customers than at any time in the past.

Among the younger teen-agers, allowances, baby-sitting fees and other earnings provide more than soda money. A man who was paid $1 a week for delivering papers has a grandson who makes $27.50 a week delivering his route.

UPPER TEENS MAKE MORE

Older teen-agers with part-time employment often make substantial salaries. There was some surprise when his 19-year-old son was found to be on Congressman Steven A. Carter's congressional payroll for $11,081 a year while studying law, but it takes a sum like that to raise eyebrows at teen-agers' income these days. Earnings by upper teensters during summer vacations, or after they quit school, often top their parents' incomes.

Consequently, a share of today's advertising for automobiles, tobaccos, hi-fi and television sets, appliances and soft drinks is directed to teen-agers. Whole magazines are devoted to selling fashion apparel and accessories to distaff teen-agers, most of them never even saw a distaff.

Gifts items, jewelry and even furniture is plugged in the teen market. The Lane Company reports that 80 per cent of all cedar chests are sold to males with eyes on girls in their teens or a few years older. A study by E. Mildren Breen, of Shillito's, Cincinnati, showed that the bride is under 20 in 48 per cent of all marriages, and that in 8 per cent of all marriages, the bride is between 14 and 16.

MATRIMONIALY INCLINED

In one senior high school she checked, 90 per cent of the girls were going steady and 10 per cent expected to be engaged before graduation. Most seniors, Miss Breen said, had selected their silverware pattern and many of them had selected their future husbands—without yet letting them know.

TRADEMARK IS SITTING DUCK BEFORE PRODUCT IS SOLD

There's a big gap in present trademark protection, Howard M. Packard, president of Johnson's Wax, complains.

A typical company starts selecting a trademark six months or a year before a product is ready for market, he pointed out. But trademarks can't be registered until the product is placed on sale. In the meantime, the idea for the trademark is unprotected. While Mr. Packard did not mention this fact, if a competitor leans about a trademark before an item is put on the market, he could pirate the mark.

Yale University Student Body Is 'On Probation'

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale University's student body was under indefinite probation today with a warning from school officials that any public misbehavior—such as the weekend snowball melees—would bring immediate expulsion.

Three deans issued the order Monday. It placed the city of New Haven off-limits to any campus social functions. However, except for a curtailment in two freshmen dormitories, there was no ban on any on-campus social functions. Yale is located in the center of the city.

University President A. Whitney Griswold said a study group of New Haven and school officials would be formed to prevent further outbreaks. Griswold made the announcement after meeting with Mayor Richard C. Lee, who once headed Yale's news bureau.

Yale has about 3,900 undergraduates. Forty-one were arrested during last week's trouble, which began with a heavy snowfall Thursday. The snow forced cars to a crawl along the streets between the campus and the city green. Students took the opportunity to bombard the cars with snowballs, and did the same to police when they showed up. Police arrested 24 of them.

On Saturday students again threw snowballs this time at the rear guard of a St. Patrick's Day parade. About 1,000 students gathered on a street that cuts through the campus as police approached. One hundred policemen, armed with night sticks and backed by firehoses, drove the students inside the gates of a residential college. That time 16 students were arrested.

Another student was arrested Monday in a separate incident. A policeman claimed the student shouted an obscenity at him.

The students under arrest, on assorted charges ranging from breach of the peace to resisting arrest and abusing a police officer, will appear in city court later this week.

Griswold apologized for the outbreaks, charging the students with "boorishness." The Yale Daily News, a student publication, has agreed that the students were responsible for the trouble, but also accused the police of brutality.

Some students showed up in classes Monday wearing armbands with the number 14 on them. This was an ironic reference to the armbands worn by Cuban revolutionaries, who took their name and insignia from an unsuccessful uprising on the 26th of July.

ECC Receives Grant For Science Institute

Forty high school students of the sciences in the coastal areas of North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia will benefit from a grant of $5,000 to East Carolina College by the National Science Foundation.

Alan T. Waterman, director of the foundation, has just informed President John D. Messick of the college here that this sum has been allocated to finance an Advanced Secondary School Science Institute for students with high academic standings. The institute is scheduled for June 7-27.

Eligible for admission will be rising sophomores, juniors, and seniors in the coastal areas of the three states. Forty students, 25 boys and 16 girls, will be chosen from applicants on the bases of high scholastic achievement and demonstrated interest and ability in science.

Students who are chosen to attend the institute will receive a transportation allowance and full maintenance for food, housing, and instruction.

Those who are interested in attending the institute should apply to Dr. Frank W. Eiler, associate professor of science, East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C., director of the institute program.

Dr. Eiler has announced that plans for the summer course of study for high school students are now in progress. Instruction, he said, will be provided in physics, chemistry, biology, and the earth sciences, including physiography, meteorology, and mathematical geography.

Nine instructors will participate in the work of the institute. Dr. Eiler stated they will be members of the faculty at East Carolina College and visiting professors from other schools. The program of courses and the roster of teachers will be announced in the near future, Dr. Eiler said.

Dr. Eiler joined the department of science at East Carolina College last September. Before coming to Greenville, he was connected with the Alabama Education Foundation. He holds a doctorate from Columbia University.

'Real Happy' In His Award For Heroic Rescue

ALBUQUERQUE, N.C. (AP)—An 18-year-old University of New Mexico freshman said he was real happy about being awarded the Young American Medal for bravery.

But William Joseph Steury didn't know what else to say about it.

"I've never been a hero before," said Steury who was announced the winner of the honor Monday for saving the life of the Rev. Wayne Piety, 62, when the minister fell through the ice of a lake near Bluffton, Ind. Feb. 21, 1957.

Steury, then 16, was a junior at Bluffton, Ind. High School at the time.

"I took my girl out to Kunkel Lake, near Bluffton, and we started walking around," he said of the day the accident happened.

"While we were walking around the lake I saw this fisherman fall in the water. I got a rope and walked out on the lake to help him while my girl went back to the road to get help.

"I walked out there thinking I'd pull him out with the rope. But when I got there, the ice started cracking and I thought I'd go in."

"I tried to pull him out but the ice cracked and I couldn't get enough of a foothold to pull him out. I just couldn't budge him." Steury, selected from a field of 23 nominees from 10 states, the District of Columbia and Hawaii, will be presented the medal by President Eisenhower at the White House.

Mayor Confesses Tale Of Robbery 'Invented'

GREENSBURG, Ind. (AP)—Mayor Sheldon Smith of Greensburg shamefully admitted Monday night he slashed himself with a razor, then invented a story about being cut and robbed by three men.

The 39-year-old mayor said he made up the story "to explain the loss of the money and hide the shame of being taken through one of the oldest confidence games, the pigeon drop." The missing $7,178 belonged to the city.

When asked for details of the slashing and confidence game, Mayor Smith said, "I'm too ashamed to talk about it."

In the pigeon drop, a confidence man tells his victim he has found a large amount of money and will share it if the victim will put up some money as a show of good faith.

Prosecutor Richard Garvey said the mayor's admission ended the case. He said Smith would not be prosecuted.

Earlier Monday Smith returned the $7,178 and said "moral responsibility" led him to borrow money to repay the city court funds.

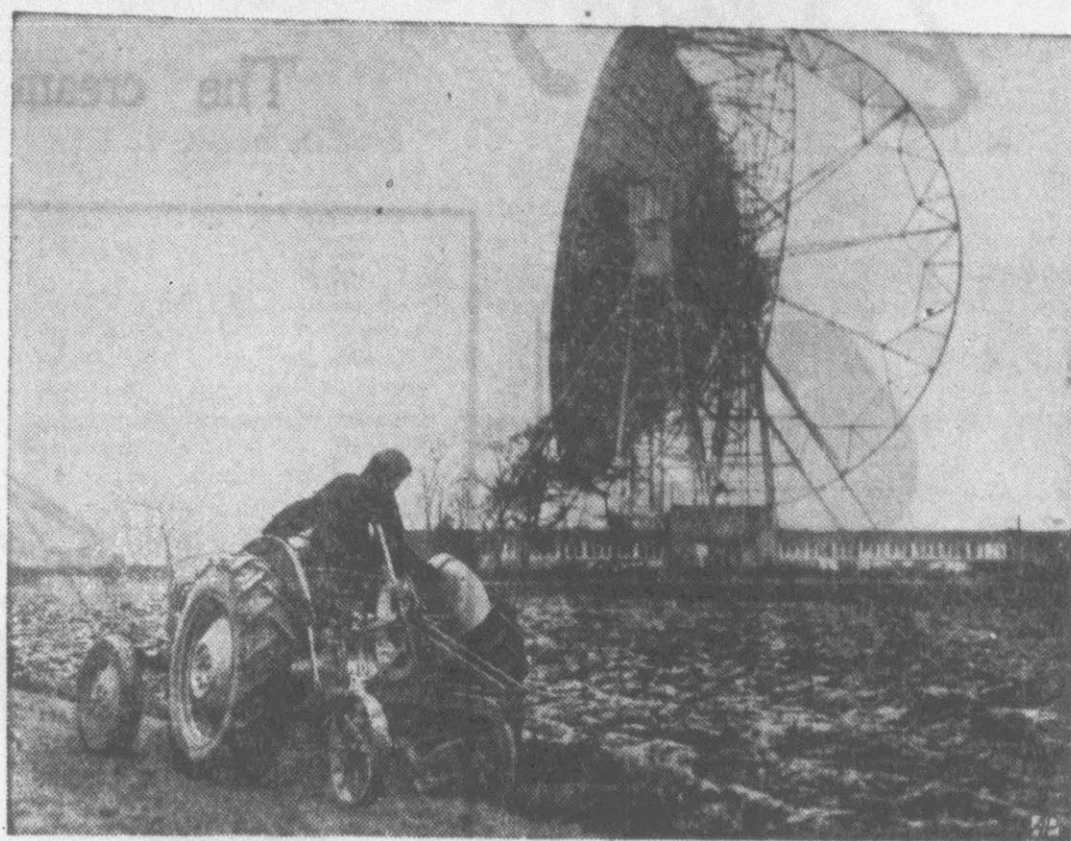

Smith, who also serves as city judge, had accumulated the money since 1957, but had not deposited it. The exact amount was determined in an audit by the state board of accounts.

Garvey said Smith told him he became "so concerned that an innocent person was suffering the loss of freedom that he decided to unveil the mystery." Smith had identified Forest Hollars, 40, Dayton, Ohio, as one of the three men who attacked him.

Smith's original story was that he had been lured to his private office the night of Feb. 21 on the pretext of filling out an income tax return. He said two of the men held him while the other methodically slashed him with a razor blade.

Beginning: An ABC On Filing '58 Income Tax

Editors note — Still puzzled about some points in your federal income tax? You may find the answers in this and succeeding articles which explain the subject in simple, understandable language. Today's installment, first of five, deals with filing procedure and the income you must report.

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — This is an ABC on filing your 1958 income tax return. The deadline is midnight, April 15.

Claim all the exemptions and deductions you're entitled to. They'll reduce your tax.

Report only taxable income, not the nontaxable kind. There's a difference, explained later. Example: Social Security benefits are nontaxable.

Other things to remember:
1. Attach to your return all the W-2 receipts given you by employers for tax withheld from you during 1958.

2. Many people from past years have refunds coming to them but can't get them because the Internal Revenue Service doesn't know who they are or where they live. You have the instruction sheet which IRS is supposed to send every taxpayer. It is full of information.

It also has the tax-table and tax-rate schedule for figuring your tax unless you're one of those with under $5,000 income who uses form 1040A and lets the IRS figure the tax for you.

Who must file a return? You must, whether or not you owe tax, if you were under 65 in 1958 — this includes children — and had taxable income of $600 or more.

A person over 65 — you could have reached 65 as late as Jan. 1, 1959 — must file a return if he had taxable income of $1,200 or more, whether or not he owes tax.

If you had income but it was under the amount required for filing — and if tax was withheld from you — you are entitled to a refund. But the only way you can get it is by filing a return and claiming it.

As noted above, a child who had $600 or more taxable income must file a return. The parent is responsible for seeing to it that this is done.
There's an exception to the rules listed above: a self-employed person must file a return and pay a self-employment tax (really a Social Security tax) if his net earnings were $400 or more in 1958.

Examples of the difference between taxable and nontaxable income:

1. John Jones, 66, received $1,000 in Social Security benefits, plus $400 interest on his bank savings. Total income: $1,400.

But Social Security benefits are not taxable and are not to be reported as taxable income. So Jones had only $400 in taxable income: his bank interest.

But a person over 65 doesn't have to file unless his taxable income was $1,200 or more. So Jones doesn't have to file.

2. Tom Smith, World War II veteran, is under 65 but earned $6,000 last year. Part of the time he was out of work and received $120 in unemployment compensation. He also received a government pension of $300 for injury resulting from his active service in the armed forces: total income: $6,420.

But unemployment compensation and that kind of government pension are nontaxable and don't have to be reported. So Smith's reportable, taxable income was $6,000.

Here are examples of taxable income which must be reported:

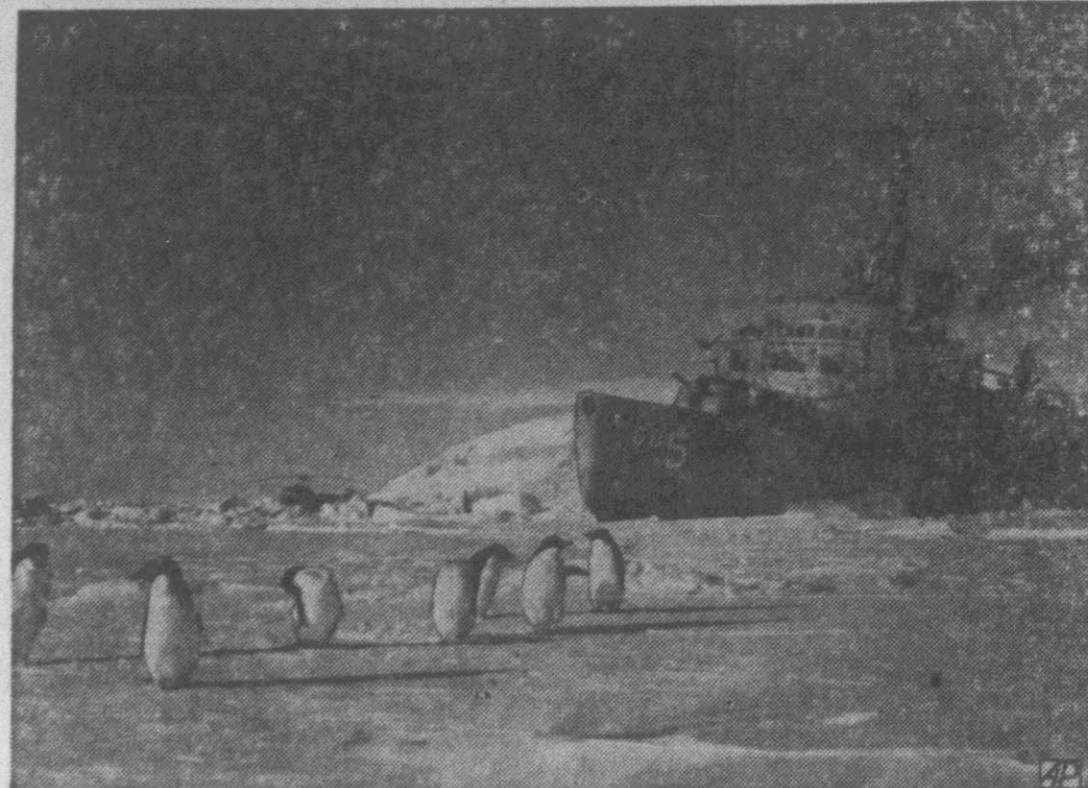

Wages, salaries, rents, bonuses, fees, interest on savings accounts and U.S. savings bonds, dividends from stocks (so-called dividends from building and loan associations on savings accounts are actually interest and must be reported as such), tips, gambling winnings, commissions, profits from sale or exchange of property, strike benefits paid by unions, profits from a farm, business or profession, income from estates or trusts, severance pay.

Here are examples of nontaxable income which doesn't have to be reported as income:

State or federal Social Security benefits; unemployment compensation paid by a state (although supplemental unemployment benefit payments from a company-financed supplemental unemployment benefits fund are taxable income); public assistance payments to the blind; life insurance proceeds paid because of the death of the insured (unless the policy was transferred to you for a valuable consideration); gifts in money or anything of value for which you performed no service; interest on state and municipal bonds; subsistence and rental allowances to members of the armed forces; veteran benefits from the Veterans Administration to veterans and their families; disability pay and pension pay received by veterans for service connected and nonservice connected disabilities.

Be sure: if you have doubts about your income — to whether any part of it is taxable or nontaxable — to call or visit your nearest IRS office.

Tomorrow: Which form should you use?

Kept Log During Wait For Death

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two children wrote notes to their mother.

Then Gerald Ray Glass kept a log of events of the few minutes preceding the time when he and his children lost consciousness and died of carbon monoxide fumes in the family car.

The notes penciled by Glass said:

"It is now five minutes to eight. The engine is idling and the motor has been on 10 minutes. 'I am beginning to get sleepy. My heart is speeding up and pumping fast. My eyes are droopy but otherwise normal. We're talking about God and heaven.'"

Sheriff's deputies did not reveal the contents of the children's notes but said the sense of each was that the children agreed with their father's plans for their deaths.

Dep. Coroner James O. Butler ruled that Glass killed his only children—10-year-old Jerry and 8-year-old Arlene—and took his own life Sunday night.

Butler said notes found in the car indicated the 34-year-old aircraft company electrician was despondent. He declined to elaborate.

Neither friends nor relatives give a motive for the deaths. Mrs. Glass said there had been no trouble between her and her husband. They had been married 12 years.

"I just can't believe it's my husband and children," she repeated over and over. "It must be a mistake."

The Glass family had only recently moved into a new medium-priced home and have not yet had a telephone installed.

Neighbors said Monday night that Mrs. Glass had been given sedation and put to bed.

When the bodies were found in a lonely spot near suburban Homewood Monday, Glass still clutched the tape which Butler said he had used to bind a garden hose to the car's exhaust and lead it into the car. The carbon monoxide fumes did the rest, Butler added.

Arlene was found on the front seat beside her father, her dolls on her lap and other toys beside her.

In the back seat lay Jerry's body, his school books at his side. The car apparently was parked soon after Glass left home Sunday night reportedly to take the children skating.

Mrs. Glass spent a worried, sleepless night before reporting her family missing Monday morning.

Police Chief E. L. Scott of Homewood found the grim scene when he noticed the car parked in the lonely spot for several hours.

The ignition key was turned on, the gas tank empty.

Can Measure The Fat And Lean

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Jack Sprat and his wife might welcome two new methods of measuring fat and lean.

Of particular value to the swine breeder are the "back fat probe" and the "lean meter," according to University of Wisconsin meat specialist Robert W. Bray.

The "lean meter," developed by Purdue University, has a small needle wired to a meter. Impulses from the needle, thrust into the hog's back, make the meter register depth of fat.

Cheaper to use is the "back fat probe." A small, painless slit is made in the hog's back, and a small ruler is inserted to measure depth of fat over the seventh rib, an area indicative of the average fat covering the hog.

Help Asked For Future Doctors

CHICAGO (AP) — Tomorrow's doctors are finding out careers.

Dr. John A. D. Cooper, assistant dean of the Northwestern University medical school, says the ability of other professions to offer greater inducements for fellowships and research assistantships is one of the reasons for the loss.

"Medicine," he said, "has no equivalent source of subsidy for its students."

Dr. Cooper urges that steps be taken to shorten the medical program and grant higher professional and economic status to the physician in specialty training.

The longest game in major league baseball was played between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920. The game ended in a 1-1 tie after 28 innings.

Modern Homemakers Want Closets, Lots Of Them, In House

BY MRS. AMELIA S. CAPEHART
County Negro Home Economics Agent

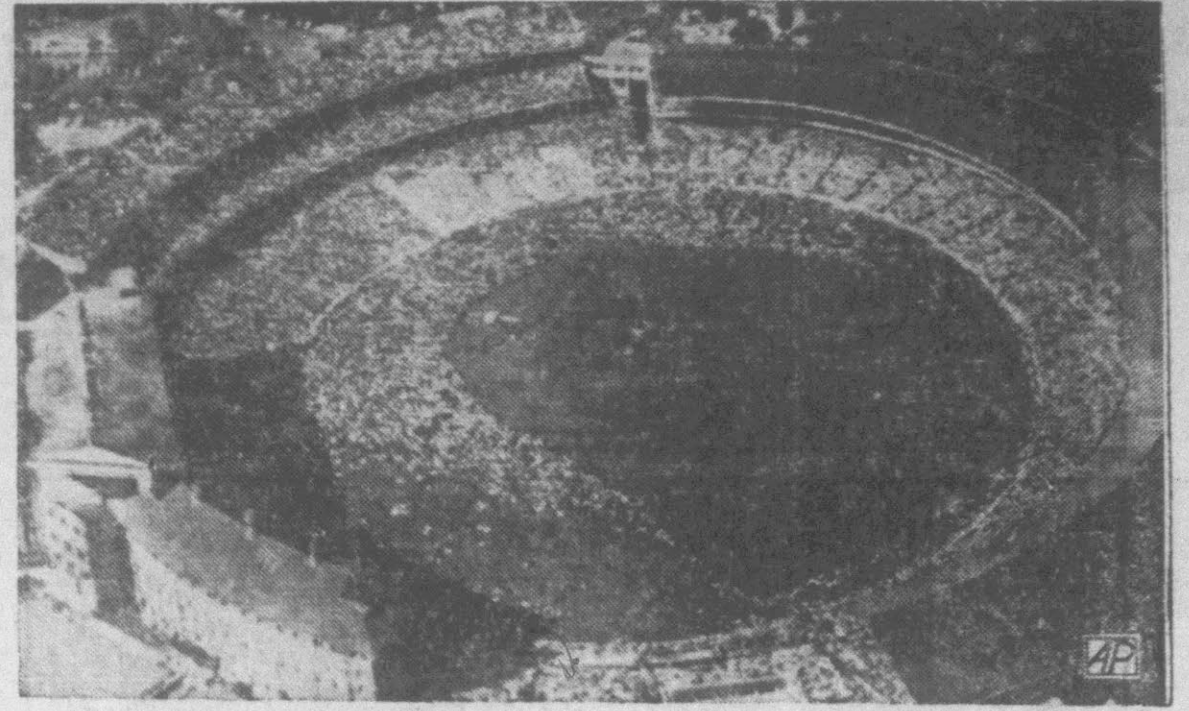

Satisfactory plans for any livable home provide for adequate storage. A place for everything and everything in its place make the rooms of a house more comfortable and easier to keep clean. Modern homemakers are not satisfied with closets that are merely places to hang things. She wants closets to be well arranged so that they help keep clothing in good constitution and make it easy to get garments out as to put them away. Ventilation is especially important in clothes closets to help keep clothing free of odors and in humid areas of the country to keep mold from developing on them. Air may be kept in circulation by a window or by opening in the top and bottom of the door. In all clothes closets, but especially those in which winter clothing is stored during summer months, it is desirable to have doorways equipped with rubber or felt gaskets and a tread. This makes it possible to shut the door really tight in case it is necessary to fumigate against moths. Fittings For Closets It pays to plan carefully details of closet fittings. Rods, hooks, and trays that are well located make it easier to keep clothing in good condition and to keep the closet in order. Rods take care of practically all clothing on hangers. Usually this will include all dresses, except those for infants, all skirts, blouses, trousers, and coats. There should be enough hooks in a closet to accommodate nightgowns, pajamas, slips, aprons, overalls and other garments that do not belong on hangers. Children play coats and jackets and men's work clothes are generally kept on hooks. Hooks should be within easy reach of the doorway, but not any closer than five inches. There should be a minimum allowance of four inches between the top of a hook and the bottom of the shelf above it. For the clothing of small children, hooks should not be above a child's eye level. Coat Closet Every farm house needs at least two coat closets — one for good wraps, another for work clothes. If there are children in the family it is a big help to have a closet for their play clothes as well. Coat closets should be placed near entrances, but not so close to them that doors interfere with access to the closet. The desirable location for a closet for good wraps is one that is near the entrance commonly used by the family in leaving or returning home. A closet for chore clothes should be near the door used when coming in from the barn and the field. It will be more convenient, too, if the work closet is near the bathroom or a washroom. A rack made of slats to keep muddy boots off the floor of the closet is desirable. This should be removable so that the floor underneath may be cleaned. A ventilated chest either in the closet or the rear entry also makes a good storage place for shoes and boots. Bedroom Closets At least one closet in every bedroom is the rule for modern homes. Ideally, there is a separate closet for each person; or if two must share one closet, a separate rod is suggested for each.

The shallow reach is convenient for removing articles. Two feet of rod length is about the minimum to allow for each person. The tops of both the rods and hooks should be at least 63 inches from the floor, a good height for the garments of most adults. A temporary closet is a solution to clothing storage when there is not a clothing closet built in the wall. Old wardrobes, painted the same color as the walls, may be used. There are various other ways of providing needed space. These closets must be built and planned to fit a given individual's needs. Here again, the wall space, as to size and shape, must be given first consideration. Garment bags, shoe bags, hat boxes, laundry bags and other boxes for storage are usually considered closet accessories. They are the answer to a multitude of problems. Closet accessories are necessary to give protection to the clothes and keep them neatly segregated where you can always get your hands on them. You can easily find the right container for each type of clothing. Whether you buy the ready made accessories or make them yourself, try to keep in mind a definite plan as to color and design lineup. Choose a fabric that will harmonize with the color scheme of your room. When all are made of similar material the closet has the desired assembled look. Save hat, shoe and suit boxes that you have gotten at the store. These may be painted, covered with paper or material and used in your closets. It is a good idea to put a clue to the contents on the outside of each container. For example, a sweater may be pictured on the outside of a sweater box. NEAREST YET MOSCOW (AP) — Western and neutral diplomats in Moscow today said they believe the world is closer to a summit conference than at any time since efforts last summer to get Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Western leaders together at the United Nations. The state of Louisiana was admitted to the union in 1912. W.C.C. Claiborne was governor.

BIGGEST CROWD HEARS BILLY GRAHAM—A crowd estimated at 140,000 to 150,000 people hears American evangelist Billy Graham's final Australian sermon in the gigantic Cricket ground stadium at Melbourne. Officials said it was the largest crowd Graham had ever drawn, even surpassing meetings in London and New York. It was the first time in history that the public was allowed to stand on the grounds on which the 1956 Olympic games were held. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Melbourne)

Counterfeiters See Banner Year WASHINGTON (AP)—It's been a banner year for counterfeiters — but don't blame the recession. It's just human desire, says the U. S. Secret Service. Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman, in testimony made public today by the House Appropriations Committee, said an upsurge in counterfeiting in 1958 has caused his agents serious concern.

Medical, Dental Group Approves Program Change

Changes in programs for examination and immunization of pre-school children who will enter first grade next fall have been approved by members of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society.

The new plan eliminates pre-school physical examinations and immunizations in the schools, as has been the custom. In the future, the physical examinations and immunizations will be completed either by private physicians or at the Health Department.

According to Dr. Georgia V. Mills, Director of the Pitt County Health Department, who outlined the changes, "An important reason for the change is to avoid making the child's first contact with school an unpleasant one."

She added that parents will be given physical examination forms for their children at orientation meetings at each school.

Approval of the changes was given at the medical and dental society's regular monthly meeting, which also included addresses by Dr. Doris Howell and Dr. John McCain.

Dr. Howell, a member of the Pediatrics Department of Duke University School of Medicine, discussed "Anemias of Infancy and Childhood". She pointed out methods of diagnosis and also discussed recent research.

Dr. McCain of Wilson outlined the scientific program to be presented at the June 25-27 meetings of the Seaboard Medical Association. The association, composed of practicing physicians in Eastern North Carolina and Tidewater Virginia, will hold its annual meeting at Nags Head.

Gangland Style Death For Him

CHICAGO (AP)—Hyman (Heinie) Wainer, a prohibition era bootlegger who survived gangland shootings and who also escaped death in a bomb blast a year ago, was slain Monday night — in a gangland style shooting.

Wainer, 54, an ex-convict and liquor store operator, was shot four times in a parking lot at the rear of 3279 Lake Shore Drive, a plush North Side apartment building.

Police said an unidentified neighbor reported a man about 35 years old ran from the lot after Wainer was killed. Two bullets penetrated Wainer's chest from the back. He also was shot in the right arm and right shoulder.

Wainer staggered into the apartment building and was taken to the 10th floor apartment of Miss Evelyn Goodman, a secretary in his liquor store. Miss Goodman, who called police, said Wainer had been living in her apartment for three years.

Wainer died in a patrol wagon on the way to a hospital. Miss Goodman said Wainer did not tell her any details of the shooting. Police said she could not give any motive for his slaying.

Wainer escaped a death plot on March 15, 1958, when a black-powder bomb in a coffee tin exploded under the hood of his car.

Home Of Irish?

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—How in the name of St. Patrick can Notre Dame be called the home of the Irish?

A question like this is a natural reaction to the school's football lineups over the past several seasons.

But Notre Dame has approximately 5,300 students who do not play football. And of these, at least 20 per cent can trace their ancestry back to the Emerald Isle.

The most common last name on campus is Murphy. Forty-two students answer to it, as well as four faculty members and the director of public information.

There are 125 undergraduates whose names begin with O'. Among them are 20 O'Connors and 19 O'Briens.

Some parts of the student directory read like the tax rolls at Dublin. No less than 37 Sullivans are listed, along with 31 Ryans, 26 Kellys and a dozen Burkes. And if ever they should form a band, perhaps one of the half-dozen McNamaras could lead it.

Woman Is Being Tried For Slaying Of Murdered Lover

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—What the state will seek against Mrs. Connie Nicholas for the slaying of her married lover outside the apartment of his younger woman friend still was a mystery today.

The state challenged and removed three prospective jurors on the opening day of Mrs. Nicholas' first-degree murder trial Monday when they said they couldn't vote for the death penalty.

But Dep. Prosecutor Judson F. Haggerty told a newspaper the action didn't necessarily indicate the prosecution would press for the supreme penalty for the 42-year-old, twice-divorced secretary.

She is charged with the fatal shooting of Forrest Teel, 54, in his white Cadillac outside the apartment of Miss Laura Mowrer last July 31.

Eight jurors tentatively accepted by the state were in the box as the trial resumed today.

Mrs. Nicholas maintained an air of quiet composure through most of Monday's session. But she wept quietly the first time Haggerty used Teel's name in questioning jurors.

Earlier she had told newsmen she was nervous, but optimistic. She was pale from her long stay in a hospital recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills she took in a suicide attempt after the shooting.

In addition to asking each prospective juror if he could vote for the death penalty, Haggerty made sure jurors would not be influenced by Teel's "position of great responsibility in the business life of this community."

Teel was executive vice president of Eli Lilly & Co., big Indianapolis pharmaceutical manufacturing firm.

The state is expected to attempt to prove that Mrs. Nicholas bought the small revolver with which Teel was shot with the intention of killing him. She has said she bought the gun for protection on a planned trip to California, and that she shot in self defense when Teel struck her.

Missionaries Hurdle The Language Obstacle

By TOM HENSHAW AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The missionary had spent many months among the Meo people of Indo-China, trying to interpret the scriptures to them in their own language. But he had yet to find the word or phrase that adequately described the key Christian concept of salvation.

JUNIOR SIZE — Among the spring offerings for little girls is this attractive bonnet of gently gathered and fringed silk print ribbon. Hat by Mr. John.

True, he knew the word "pang" meant to save and, for want of a better one, he had been using it. But "pang" was a fairly common Meo word that somehow failed to put across the deeper meanings of salvation.

Then one day a Meo woman fell from a bridge into a swollen stream. The missionary, jumped in and pulled her out.

"Ah," said a watching Meo, "you 'tse' her."

"You mean I 'pang' her, don't you?" asked the missionary.

"Oh, no," said the Meo. "You 'tse' her. That means you saved her by putting yourself in the same danger."

"What better way is there of describing how Jesus died to save mankind?" says Dr. Eugene A. Nida, secretary for translation of the American Bible Society. "Just that one word made a big difference in attitude of the Meo people toward Christianity."

The Meo missionary is only one of many devoted workers around the world engaged in the immensely difficult task of translating and interpreting the scriptures in obscure languages.

"One might think that the more primitive the people, the simpler their language would be," says Dr. Nida. "That is not true."

"For instance, the Nur language, spoken in the Sudan, has 14 distinct basic vowel sounds. Each of those has three units of length. They may be spoken

Lots Of Seafood But Spread Out

HONOLULU (AP)—There's a lot of food in the ocean, but a scientist says the chances that you'll get to eat much of it are slim.

"It'd be better to mow your lawn and eat the grass," advises marine biologist Albert J. Bernatowicz. "And cheaper."

The University of Hawaii scientist pointed out that a column of water one yard by 100 feet would contain only about 3-4 of a pound of vegetable matter even though the oceans catch far more solar energy than does the earth.

breathily or not. There also are nine tonal patterns. That adds up to about 750 different vowel sounds, each of which can change the meaning of a word."

In Mixtec, a Mexican Indian language, the word "ruhu" with the first syllable uttered in a low tone and the second in a high tone means "to fear." But the identical word with each syllable spoken in a high tone means "to kiss."

One of the most difficult jobs that confront translators is that of entering a language area cold. Where do you start? Dr. Nida explains:

"Pay close attention to the first words they say to you. Chances are those words are a greeting. But be careful. There may be separate greetings for men and women, or even for older men or married women.

"Get them to examine your equipment and talk about it. Pretty soon you'll get the phrase 'What is this?' Then you try the phrase on some of their things. Pretty soon you'll have a good vocabulary of their nouns.

"Then try to get their expression for 'What's he doing.' You can do this by doing something odd yourself. It's almost a certainty that someone will ask 'What is he doing?' Then, you can ask the same question of them."

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR BY C.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 18

Our lunch had been excellent—a fresh-roasted fowl, a fruit basket spilling over with guava and nectarine, the finest of Dutch cheeses, and wine of a famous Spanish vintage.

"I trust you've enjoyed this day as much as I, Richard," said Bonita Damao. "It's a time I'll not forget," I answered, truthfully enough.

"Have these hours at Blomfontein helped to solve your problem, Richard?"

It was the opening I had awaited—but I was careful not to seize it too eagerly. "To my mind," I said, "it's the time the East India Company and I dissolved our contract."

"After your years of service?" "I've captured their vessels for many voyages," I said, with what I hoped was a believable savage note. "I've saved their cargoes from the Malabar pirates, and outwitted the Mogul. Yes, and fought off the corsairs from Madagascar on a dozen runs to the Cape. If this is your reward for loyalty, I'll sing another tune hereafter."

Bonita was looking at me with real concern. "This morning you said you'd return to the Pilgrim Venture. Have you changed your mind?"

"Not at all. I'll need transport to carry out my plan. I'm not sure I can confide it."

"See you keep this one," I warned her. "I mean to go ashore, once we're off Madagascar. If we call at Fort Dauphin, I may jump ship there. Or steal a longboat and set my course for Cape Sainte Marine. I'll take Tom Hoyt with me, if he'll come. Otherwise I go alone."

"To join the buccaneers?" "Yes, Bonita—to turn gentleman of fortune."

I had expected her to recoil at the words. Instead, she leaned forward and took my hands in hers. "Is this your revenge on the East India Company?"

"I won't be the first deposed captain to join the renegades."

"Whose flag will you fight under?" "Red Carter's, if he'll take me," I said. "Is there any better?"

Again she drew in her breath, as though my remark had pleased rather than startled her. "Somehow I never thought you'd go this far," she murmured.

"Don't pretend you approve," I told her. "I felt you should see me as I am."

"I'm honored by your frankness," she said. I could not yet understand why she seemed almost happy at my decision.

"You grasp my reasons?" "Of course, Richard. A man has a right to revenge."

"Will you think of me in Goa?" "Constantly," she said—and her hands were still warm in mine.

"Perhaps I've no right to ask this much," I said. "But I'll hope to visit you there—when I'm rich enough to quit the brotherhood."

"Try me, Richard," she said. "You'll find we've a tolerance that's lacking in Glasgow."

"Of course you'll be wedded to your cousin by then," I said. "He'll probably show me the door."

"I might put off the wedding," she said demurely. "If I've another suitor in prospect."

It was a forthright statement, with no hint of mockery. Startled though I was, I found I could reply in kind. "Does that mean you'd wait—for me?"

"What else could I mean? Must you pretend to be stupid?"

Still refusing to release her hands, I leaned forward to look deep into her eyes. She returned the look without flinching, her lips curving in a half-smile.

"Hasn't this coquetry gone far enough, Bonita?"

"I meant every word," she said. "Did you?"

"Will you let me prove myself someday?"

"You'll have a chance to prove yourself," she said. "That much I'll promise you."

"I'll hold you to that vow," I said—still wondering if I had dreamed the last words.

"Naturally, I must be wooed before I'm won," she said in the same calm tone. Her lips were still smiling, but the eyes above them were grave enough.

"I think you can do both—once you break free of your pious mold."

Granting her a degree of independence I had not thought possible in a mere female, I could not believe she would dare to bait me this far. I put one question more, if only to test that conviction.

"D'you know what you've just promised me, Bonita?"

"The eyes that had been so tranquil blazed with temper. "You said you'd prove yourself when you had the chance. Don't play with me, Richard."

"I want you to be mine, with all my heart and soul," I said. "But I'll speak no words of love until I'm worthy. Which means, in this case, that I must first settle my score with the Company."

"That I can understand perfectly."

"There's hope for me, then?" "More than hope," she told me—and I was certain she was teasing, now I had told her all I could. "Meanwhile let's pray my father keeps my betrothed in Lisbon."

even glad of those solitary days on bread and water, since I needed a chance to brood over my future. With the picnic at Blomfontein behind me, I could see that I had behaved badly.

I had no right to tell Bonita of my plans. It had been an even more glaring fault to open my heart to her—to say nothing of the impossible promises I had made.

Women (as I had learned by extensive trial and error) are docile only if they are handled roughly—and I was aware that I had mooned over her that afternoon like a love-sick calf.

Yet even as I admitted my errors, part of my mind rejoiced. Come what may, I told myself, she knows your true feelings. Someday she may realize why you acted as you did under the pepper trees.

She may even learn why you left her—when you yearned with all your soul to remain.

"You take off tonight, lad," Richard is told, and his peril-ridden mission to Madagascar begins in earnest tomorrow.

Dr. Brock Chisholm, former director-general of the World Health Organization of the United Nations, said here Monday toxic warfare can be even more deadly than biological warfare.

He told delegates to the 14th annual Health Education Conference that 40 to 100 per cent of the population of the United States could be destroyed in six hours by a nation that has no army, navy or air force.

It could be done, he said, by a country that had biologists skilled enough to prepare the toxins—poisons.

"Such a country," he added, "could prepare the toxins, get 100 volunteers to bring two pounds each to the United States, and drop this toxin dust on the 100 main population and military centers. The people in these centers would be dead within six hours."

Rep. Woodard A Friend To Farmers And Brides

By BUNNY HARRIS - Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — When jovial Rep. Jonn Raynor Woodard runs for public office the Northampton representative can just about campaign sitting still.

Almost any time of the day or early evening you're likely to find a group of farmers sitting around the pot-bellied stove of his honest-to-goodness cracker barrel country store at Conway, where a man can buy anything from peanuts to plows, shoes to groceries.

Serving a 10-mile radius of the store in predominantly rural Northampton, Representative Woodard and his brother actually have combination farming-mercantile interests that reach over into the realm of night big business. Because the store, though truly country-style, is surrounded by warehouses and yards of heavy farm machinery of such variety that the farmer seldom needs to go farther than Woodard's for his basic needs.

This is the core of Woodard's life, but gives no hint to one of the more interesting facets of his personality. A robust man with an exceptionally fine voice, he is in great demand as vocalist at weddings, funerals and revivals, an activity that he loves and to which he gives his time gladly.

But while he is a friend of brides by virtue of singing at many a wedding, there was one bride once who wasn't so sure—his own. Woodard married the former Miss Bernice Norris while working in Cheraw, S. C., back in 1933. The two of them eloped to Chesterfield and Woodard's boss was so insulted at pot being invited to the wedding that he fired him—this right in the heart of the depression.

Undaunted, Woodard and his bride headed back to Conway, N.C., but when they reached Hamlet Woodard got off for a snack. He was still standing on the platform when the train pulled off and his wife feeling herself abandoned, went into a panic. Sometime later, having caught the train at the coboose, Woodard leisurely sauntered into their car. At the moment she wasn't speaking; since then she's made sure he'd never forget it.

Woodard, born and raised in Northampton, received a B. S. degree from Wake Forest College in 1930 and from graduation until 1940 taught math and science at Fair Bluff (it was during a summer vacation that he worked in Cheraw and married). In 1940 he BOSTON (AP) — Peter Bent Brigham Hospital reported today that a kidney transplanted from Jimmie Coxe, 47, to his identical twin, Jim, is functioning well.

Both men were reported in satisfactory condition.

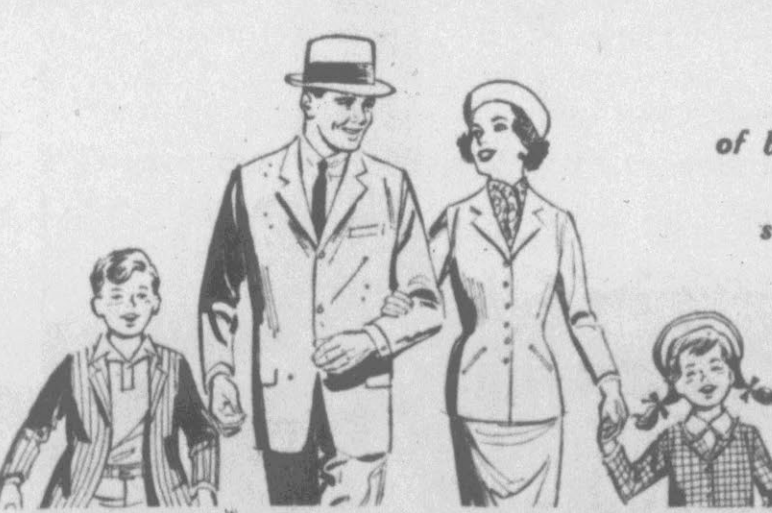

Jim required the well kidney because his own kidneys are diseased. The Coxes are from Kansas, Mo.

The six-hour transplant operation in which the healthy kidney was taken from Jimmie's body and placed in that of Jim, was performed last Thursday.

The operation involving the Coxes is the 11th at the hospital.

READYING the REDSTONE

UP SHE GOES! With help of comparatively new "A frame" erector, a Redstone missile is hoisted into position on the Fort Sill range.

Erection of the Army's giant Redstone missile — once a job accomplished only with a 90-foot boom crane — is now a comparatively easy job at Fort Sill, Okla.

Missile crews are using a new lightweight erector developed by the Army. Consisting of two frames — 35 and 50 feet long — the new lightweight erector uses cables to pull the missile to upright position. Hydraulic jacks with lugs "catch" the missile as it is raised and put it on the launching platform.

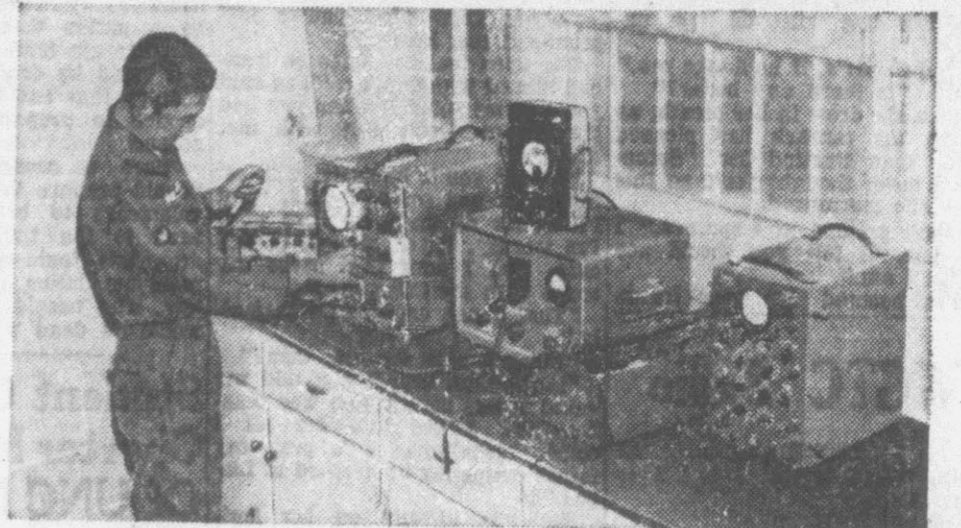

Fort Sill crews are also fueling the missile as part of their training. First comes alcohol and then liquid oxygen. The latter is manufactured on the spot and gives the missile a frosty coating.

The Redstone is a highly accurate, liquid-propelled supersonic missile with a 200-mile range. It cannot be fired at Fort Sill because of range limitations.

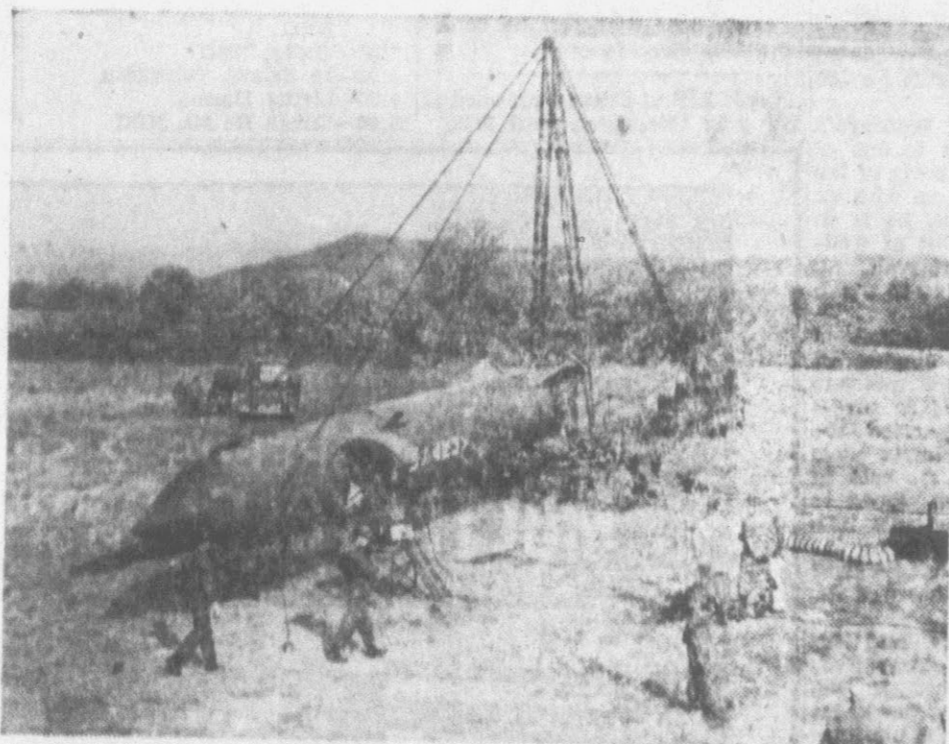

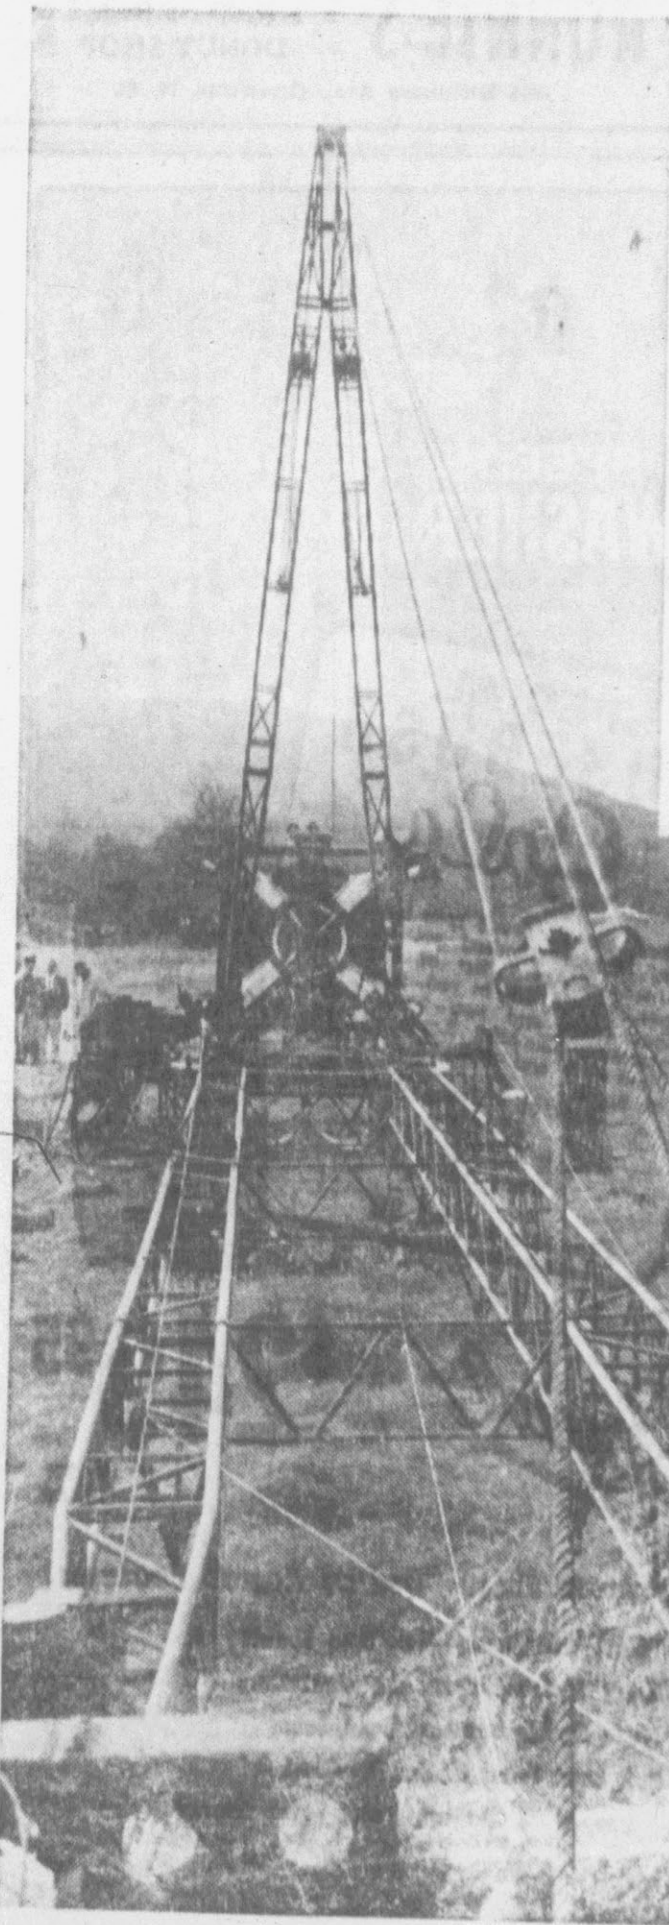

With a self-contained guidance system, the missile follows a pre-planned ballistic trajectory to the target independent of outside influences.

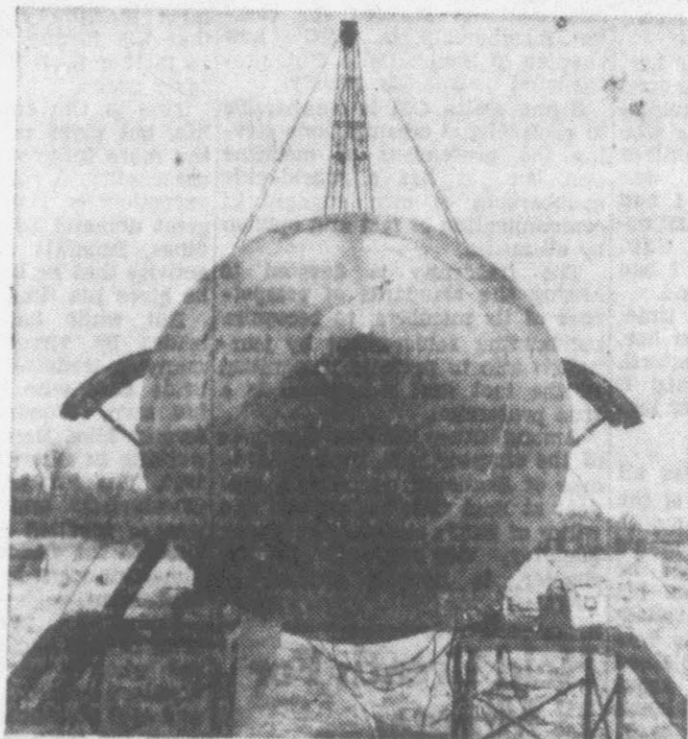

Four Army ordnance technicians run a procedural check on ordnance check-out equipment for the Redstone missile.

Sp4 Thompson Kiura, in laboratory, runs a check on Redstone missile test equipment using oscilloscope and multimeter.

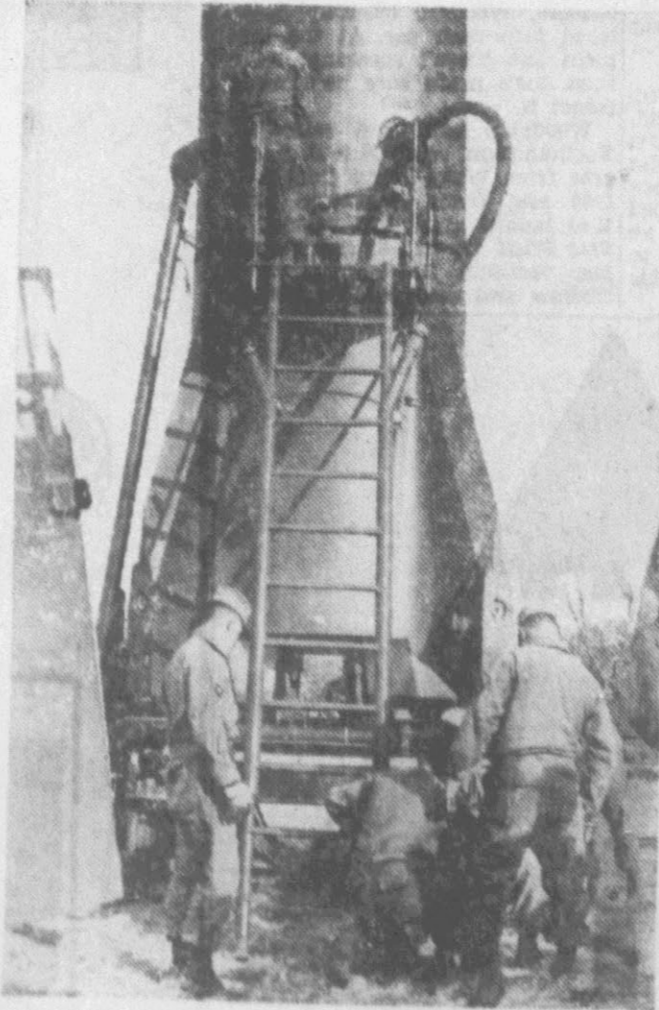

1. Troops of the 209th Artillery Group work on the Redstone before the "A frame" erector, in background, begins to hoist missile.

2. The "business end" of the 69-foot Redstone before the giant is pulled into position.

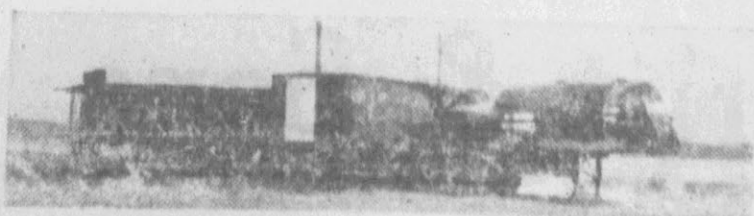

3. The erector equipment which lifts missile into position. Vertical "A frame" is about 35 feet long, and horizontal "H frame" is about 50 feet in length. Bottom of missile can be seen at far end.

4. Fueling process is ready to begin as experts make last-minute preparations before alcohol is added to Redstone during training exercises.

5. Redstone missile, erected in field by men of the 209th Artillery Group (Redstone), gets a load of alcohol as part of the fueling process. Liquid oxygen is later added to the giant.

Iraq's Arab Sheiks Suffer Crushing Defeat In Revolt

Editor's note: AP Correspondent Stan Carter was the first American newsmen to reach Iraq after the abortive revolt against Premier Abdel Karim Kassem last week.

By STAN CARTER
MOSUL, Iraq (AP) — Iraq's landowning Arab sheiks have suffered a crushing defeat in Mosul that may hasten their final dispersion into the desert.

The palace of the paramount sheik in this city of minarets on the banks of the Tigris is blood-stained, scarred by gunfire and gutted by looters after the failure of last week's rebellion against Premier Abdel Karim Kassem. Sheik Achmad Ajil Alldaywar, a handsome figure in flowing tribal dress, is absolute ruler of 60,000 Shammar tribesmen in Syria, Iraq and Saudi Arabia. He is believed to have escaped into the desert while his followers fought from room to room defending the palace. With him may have gone virtually all of his power in the economic and political structure of the country.

It appears in Mosul that the rebellion was the work of sheiks, wealthy merchants, sympathizers with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, and ambitious officers—divergent forces with the common aim only of overthrowing Kassem. "The wealthy were behind the plot," said a French priest at a Dominican Roman Catholic monastery surrounded by mud-walled dwellings of the poor. "They were afraid they would be dispossessed. They were going to lose some of their land because of the agrarian reform law. They took up arms against the government and now they will lose all." The battalion commander whose forces restored order for the government claimed that Col. Abdul Wahab Shawaf, who led the revolt, was an opportunist encouraged by Sheik Ajil, lesser sheiks and wealthy city merchants who also are absentee landlords of farmland tilled by the peasants. They are said to have been provoked to force by the government's attempt to put into effect an agrarian reform law issued by Kassem two and a half months after last summer's revolution overthrew the monarchy. Redistributing of land is a major project of Kassem, who says the reason for overthrowing the monarchy was the urgent need for improving the lot of the incredibly poor masses.

For centuries most of Iraq's farmland has been owned by landlords who took up to nine-tenths of the crop. The reform law limits ownership to 600 irrigated or 1,200 unirrigated acres. It provides for redistribution of the balance to peasants, with the owners to be repaid over a 20-year period. In recent weeks the leftist Baghdad press had been complaining that authorities in Mosul province, in the northwest corner of the country, were dragging their feet in putting the law into action.

The Shammar tribe of nomads in central Arabia marched with the Hashemites against the Ottoman Empire in World War I. After the British installed Hashemite King Faisal I as ruler of Iraq, Shammar sheiks became extremely influential politically and economically. Gradually many of the tribe settled on farmland on the fringes of the desert, but thousands still roam with herds of camels from west-east Syria through Iraq and down into Saudi Arabia.

The tribe is still a law unto itself, with hundreds of lesser sheiks acting as judges of the first instance and the paramount sheik the final, supreme judge.

Achmad Ajil, who succeeded as paramount sheik when his father died a few years ago, is a young looking, dark skinned man of about 40 and extremely wealthy. The tribe owns hundreds of thousands of acres, some of it in his name, some in the name of the tribe. Achmad Ajil also owned big warehouses and factories in Mosul. He divided his time among his Baghdad and Mosul palaces and with his tribe in the desert. A foreign acquaintance says he bought tractors, plows, combines and other modern equipment to improve the lot of the tribe.

But when threatened by redistribution of land which might lead to the shattering of the tribal system, he ordered thousands of his tribesmen to Mosul to participate in the revolt. Kurdish tribesmen from the northeast, who are less dominated by their sheiks, arrived in Baghdad on Kassem's side. Soldiers turned on him and killed him after he was wounded in a bombing by Iraqi air force planes. Pro-Kassem city dwellers, already organized into a volunteer militia, were joined in the mop-up of the rebels. Estimates of the dead run as high as 2,000.

Most of the Shammars faded into the desert. A large number were said to have been killed by pro-Kassem villagers. Achmad Ajil was first reported killed and his body hung from the heels on the bridge over the Tigris but a government spokesman says he is believed still at large.

A Bit Of Surprise For Pres. O'Kelly

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Sean Thomas O'Kelly of Ireland will be receiving a bit of a surprise this St. Patrick's Day and be after giving one of his own, he will.

From President Eisenhower himself O'Kelly will be getting, 'twas reported, the news that the White House was designed by a son of Dublin, James Hoban by name.

The White House staff has been researching it, they say, and it will be dropped, as casual as a Donegal air, into today's Eisenhower-O'Kelly palaver at the summit.

And fine news it will be to the first Irish president ever to visit the new sod. O'Kelly let it be known on arrival at New York Monday. He felt right at home.

There's a grand parade, from the airport to Hoban's White House, with Irishmen of all nationalities marching and cheering, and there's also a fine sign, three stories overhead, written in

Space Provided An Organ-Player

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP)—Frank B. Netherland, 22, has always loved theatre organs. So when a North Carolina radio station wanted to sell one, Netherland bought it. He took it down, shipped it here and reassembled it. Trouble was, it wouldn't fit in his home. A theatre gave him space and he drops in regularly to play.

Gaelic. "Cead mile failte," the sign says. "One hundred thousand welcomes."

As to Hoban, he walked off with the prize for the best looking White House design. He pocketed $500 and, in the 1790s, that wasn't Killarney dew.

Hoban finished the work Oct. 18, 1792. But then the British burned it down in 1814 and he had to go and do it all over again. He stayed faithful to the original facade, and why not? It is the likes of the Duke of Leinster's house in Dublin.

But Sean O'Kelly has a surprise, too. According to an old Irish source, the most reliable kind, he will scatter shamrocks on the grave of George Washington Parke Custis in Arlington National Cemetery.

Custis, the son of the stepson of America's first president, was a Protestant of English descent. But never was a man so fond of the Irish or the Irish cause. No man of his time in Arlington, Va., could forget the sights of Custis marching in his coat of green on St. Patrick's Day.

In 1844, Custis declared: "Years after my mortal body shall have been layed in the bosom of our common mother, some honest Irish heart may come, and dropping a shamrock on my grave cry 'God bless him.'"

Two years ago, the National Capital Parks Service started planting shamrocks on the grave. And now comes Sean Thomas O'Kelly, with shamrocks and an "honest Irish heart."

Tugwell Named To Committee

Clarence B. Tugwell, executive vice president and secretary of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greenville, has been appointed to the 1959 Veterans' Affairs Committee of the United States Savings and Loan League. The appointment was announced today by C. R. Mitchell of Kansas City, Mo., president of the league, a nationwide trade organization of the savings and loan business. The Veterans' Affairs Committee, organized in 1949, analyzes methods of improving housing programs designed to assist veterans in achieving home ownership.

Invites Former 4-H Members

All former 4-H Club members are being invited to a county-wide supper meeting to be held at Respass Bros. Friday night at 7 o'clock.

County Agent S.C. Winchester said plans will be made at the meeting to organize a Pitt 4-H Club Development Council. As members of the council former members will assist 4-H clubs throughout the county with their activities. Such an organization will be a new approach to 4-H work, Winchester pointed out. He had heard of no similar organization in 4-H work "at least not in North Carolina."

Acting as temporary chairman for the meeting will be Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville. Jones is a former 4-H Club member himself and he is presently on the board of directors of the State 4-H Council.

Robert N. Wood, public relations officer with the FCX organization in Raleigh, will also be present. Sponsoring the supper is the Pitt County Farm Bureau. "We urge all former 4-H members to attend this important meeting," Winchester said.

Sales Meet Was Odorous Affair

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The sales meeting of a typewriter firm at a hotel turned out to be a stinking affair.

Ed Valentine took what he thought was a prize in a sales contest.

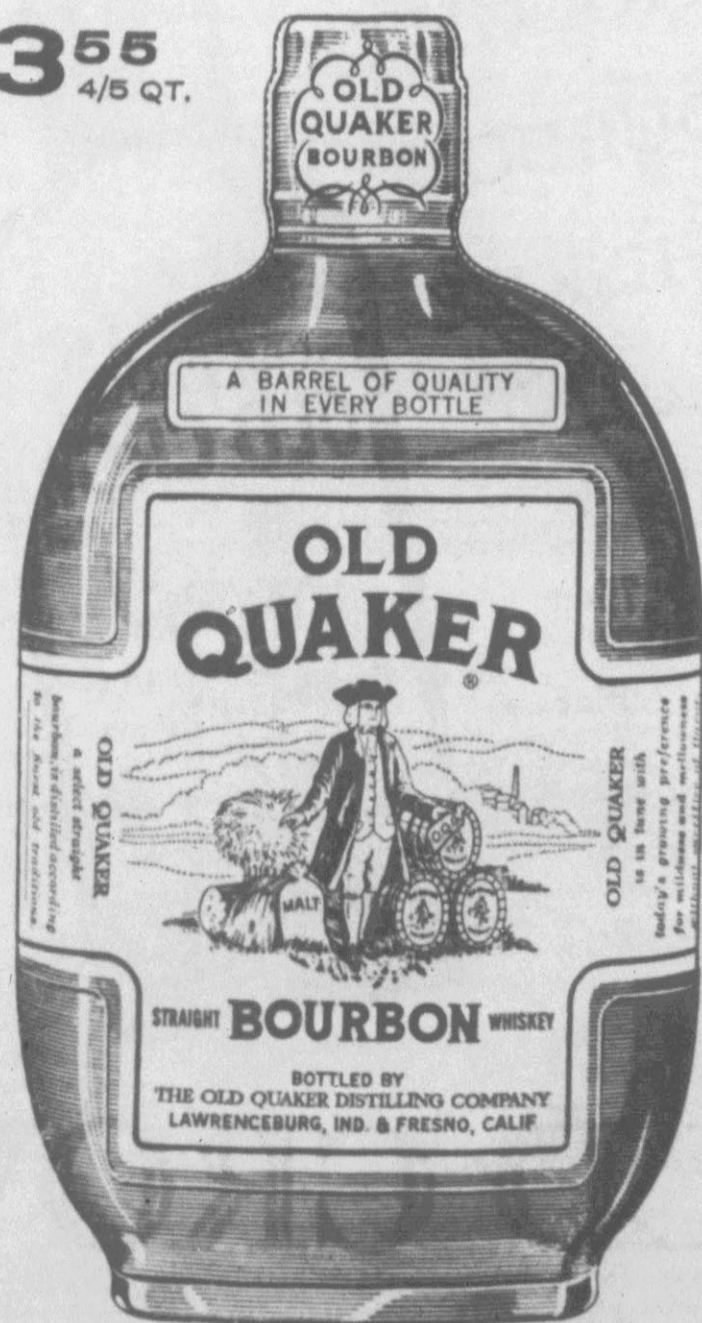

The skunk got nervous and smelled up the place. That broke up the meeting. The odor wafted into the air conditioning system, forcing temporary evacuation of five floors of the hotel as well as the dining room and lounge.

Girl Believed To Have Been Slain By Grandfather

Robersonville — Joyce Long, 18, a Robersonville High School senior, was shot and instantly killed at her home near Everetts, Saturday morning.

Martin County Sheriff Raymond Rawls said the high school cheer leader was shot with a 12 gauge shot-gun by her 80-year-old grandfather, J. Henry Long.

Judge William J. Bundy has signed an order admitting Long to the State Hospital in Raleigh for observation.

Following the shooting, Long critically wounded himself with the shot-gun. No motive could be found for the shootings.

Sheriff Rawls said Miss Long was chased from the house by her grandfather and cornered behind the barn. She was shot once in the chest and then shot in the back.

The elder Long lived with Miss Long's family.

After killing his grandchild, Long went inside a shed and turned the weapon on himself. The sheriff said his first shot went through the top of the shed without finding its mark. The second attempt blew off part of his lower jaw, but again, the major portion of the shot went through the roof of the shed.

Doctors state barring complications Mr. Long will recover.

Miss Long is survived by her parents, Willie and Swannie Wynne Long; two sisters, Mrs. Wade Gardner of Williamston and Kathy Long of the home; two brothers, Willie Long, Jr. of St. Louis and James of the home.

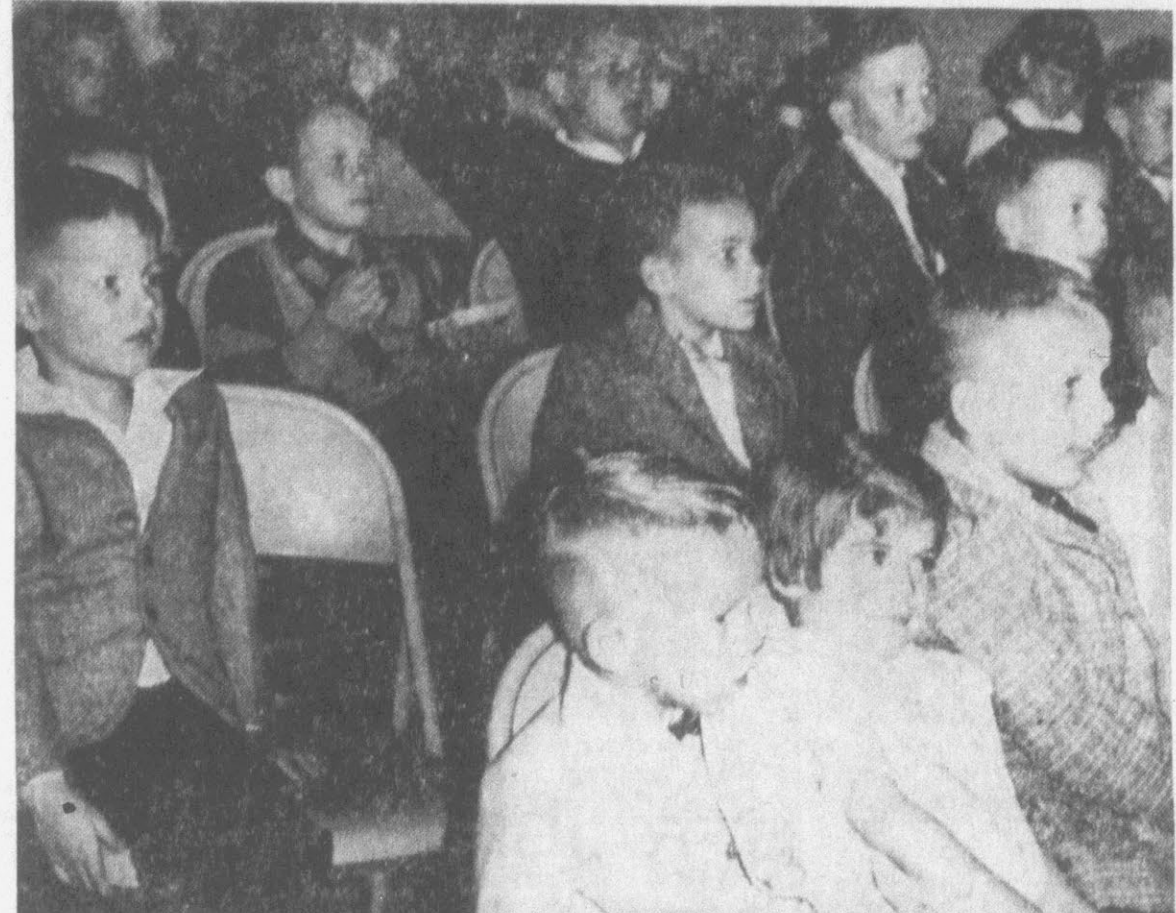

Funeral services were held at 10 o'clock Monday afternoon in the Ross Roads Christian Church with the Revs. Raleigh Topping, E. Clayton and John Thompson officiating. Interment was in the Woodlawn Cemetery.

Convicted Of Buying Murder Of Her Daughter-In-Law, Awaits Sentence

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—A jury that reduced Elizabeth Duncan to tears when it convicted her of buying the murder of her daughter-in-law returns today to decide the punishment.

It has two alternatives—death in the gas chamber, or life imprisonment. But Mrs. Duncan still has a plea of innocent by reason of insanity to be settled before any sentence can take effect.

The 54-year-old defendant, smiling and optimistic when the jury filed in to announce its verdict Monday, took the first-degree murder conviction calmly at first. She turned to her 30-year-old attorney son, who sat at the counsel table beside her with his head bowed.

"Don't worry too much, Frank," she said.

It was Frank's pregnant bride, Olga, 30, whose murder she was convicted of plotting.

Then she was handcuffed and led back to her county jail cell. There her composure cracked.

She broke down and cried. She sobbed repeatedly to her son and her attorney, S. Ward Sullivan: "I can't understand how the jury could do that to me, because I didn't do it."

Frank Duncan had nothing to say. He had sat beside his mother through the four-week trial. Testifying for her, he said he could not believe she would harm Olga, even though she had tried to break up their marriage.

The prosecution charged that Mrs. Duncan, fiercely jealous of her daughter-in-law, offered $5,000 to two minor criminals, Augustine Baldonado, 26, and Luis Moya, 29, to get rid of the Canadian-born nurse.

Baldonado and Moya confessed kidnapping Olga from her Santa Barbara apartment last Nov. 17, strangling her and burying the body in a shallow grave beside a country road. They led police to the grave Dec. 21. Each is awaiting trial on a plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

Mrs. Duncan testified that Baldonado and Moya had been blackmailing her and that she had nothing to do with plotting the murder.

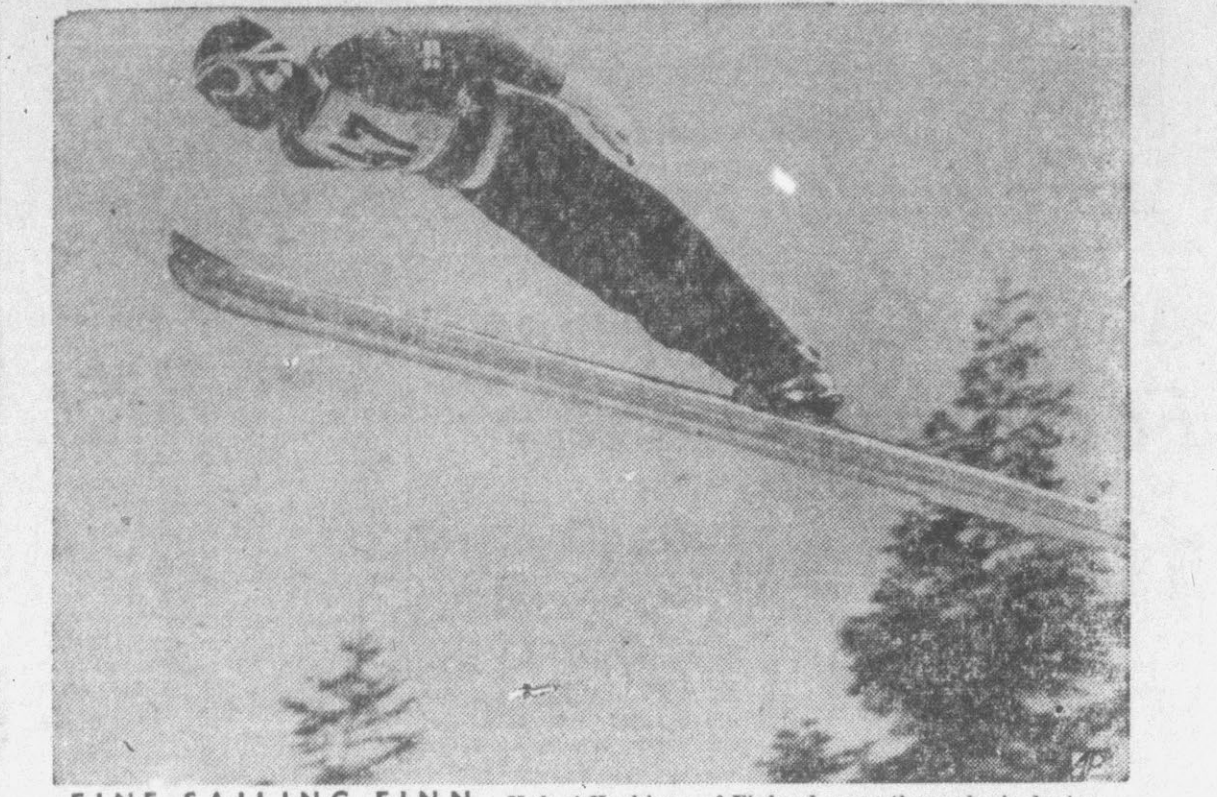

The jury of eight women and four men reached its verdict in four hours, 51 minutes.

Mrs. Duncan's serene conduct in court as the verdict was read was in sharp contrast to her angry outbursts during the trial. She called Dist. Atty. Roy Gustafson a liar on several occasions.

Defense attorney Sullivan said it may take two days before the question of penalty is given to the jury to decide. The prosecution will present testimony to support its demand for the death penalty and the defense will offer evidence in an effort to get Mrs. Duncan off with a life sentence.

When the penalty is determined, Mrs. Duncan's plea of innocent by reason of insanity will be taken up.

Paddling Ruled Not 'Assault'

GREENSBORO (AP) — An assistant high school principal who paddled a student for "being out of school and disrespect to his administrators" was found innocent Monday of assault with a deadly weapon.

County Court Judge William Poteat threw out the charge against Harry Clendenin but advised him to "be a little more fair" in future cases.

Clendenin said he called Ronald Smith, a Junior at Bessemer High, into his office Feb. 19 and hit him five times with a small wooden paddle. Smith, according to Clendenin, had skipped classes the day before and had been disrespectful when questioned about his absence.

Clendenin's attorney maintained that teachers are not criminally liable for administering punishment under such circumstances unless it results in permanent injury.

Solicitor Percy Wall told Judge Poteat he did not contest this point but felt Clendenin may not have been fair with the boy.

The youth's father testified his son had a cold the day of his absence and he had told him to stay home.

Growing Population To Bring Big Changes, Says Dr. Jenkins

America's population is increasing by several school classrooms each hour, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice president and dean of East Carolina College, told Optimists last night.

Dr. Jenkins said the nation's population is increasing by 8,000 each day.

The college dean said citizens are living in an age of automation. Thus people are having more and more time for leisure activities and recreation.

"People must prepare themselves for inevitable change," he declared. "Whether we like the new age or not we are going to have to live in it, so we ought to be able to roll the ball and not panic."

Individuals must adjust to a changing world, he said.

Temporary Optimist Chairman Carl Knott said 26 members have filled out the charter enrollment form for the club.

Plans were made last night to ask the Optimist field representative from St. Louis, Mo. to attend a formal meeting in three weeks.

At that time new club officers will be formally installed and the field representative will institute the club.

Knott said a nominating committee will be appointed next Monday night and the committee will report a week later. Thus the election of officers will be held at the meeting on March 30.

To be elected will be a president, first vice president, second vice president, secretary-treasurer, sergeant-at-arms and a four man board of directors.

Seven new prospective members were present at last night's meeting. The group held a discussion period concerning club projects and there was a question and answer period on the Optimist organization.

Representatives from the Rocky Mount and Wilson clubs were present to assist with the meeting.

Merchants Told To Keep Eye On N.C. Assembly

The Executive Vice-President of the North Carolina Merchants Association, spoke to the Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association, Inc. last night at their monthly meeting.

President J. A. Taylor presided over the meeting and introduced the speaker, Thompson Greenwood, of Raleigh.

Greenwood urged the merchants to pay more attention to what is going on in the Legislature. "Let your Legislator know what you are thinking," he stated also that in addition to the Association's personnel, the N. C. Merchants Association has obtained the services of a law firm to oppose legislation that the association regards as harmful to merchants and to support bills that are helpful.

Greenwood also mentioned that the State Association has an active Legislative Committee studying bills introduced, among them the States Withholding Tax, Sales Tax Measures, Minimum Wage and House Bill 205. He added that House Bill 205 would require any N. C. institution receiving "any part" of its financial support from the State to buy a long list of items "only from the State Prison Department. State Prison is manufacturing various janitorial supplies, etc.

Membership Committee Chairman W. H. Taft reported two new members; Mike Kachmer's Garage and Leder Bros, Inc.

To close the meeting a film of "The 1958 Santa Claus Parade," which was sponsored by the Association, was shown by E. T. Clark.

RESCUE BUILDING GETS SIGN—Firemen Ray Smith, J. Z. Garris, Alton Vincent and Claude Christopher (top) install a sign on the new Greenville Rescue Squad building. Raised Dividend Rate Announced

State Bank and Trust Company of Greenville today announced an upward revision of the dividend rate on its stock effective during the first quarter of 1959.

The new dividend rate will be $1 per share per year, payable quarterly at 25 cents per quarter on the 29,000 outstanding shares.

In February of this year the bank announced a 10 for 1 stock split on its 1,000 outstanding shares, and then issues a 100 per cent stock dividend following the split. The number of outstanding shares of stock was increased from 1,000 to 20,000 shares and the par value of the stock was reduced from $100 per share to $10 per share. At the same time the bank's capital account was increased from $100,000 to $200,000.

President John T. Marston, Jr. said the new dividend policy represents a 25 per cent increase in the cash dividend rate on the bank's stock. Prior to this year the cash dividend rate was $16 per year on the 1,000 shares of outstanding stock.

The first quarterly dividend for 1959 will be payable to stockholders on April 1, President Marston said.

Averaged $24.21 For Feeder Pigs

An average price of $24.21 per hundredweight was posted at the Pitt Livestock Development Association's third feeder pig sale yesterday.

Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman said pigs sold weighed a total of 30,940 pounds and they sold for a total of $3,925.77. There were 199 feeder pigs placed on sale.

Top price for the 40 to 65 pound pig group was $16.50 per pound while top price for the 66 to 125 pound group was $23.50.

There were also nine commercial bred gilt sold at the end of the sale and they brought an average of $61.23 per hundredweight.

Goodman described yesterday's sale as being "excellent."

The next sale will be held at the livestock arena on the fairgrounds May 18. Goodman said sales are to be held on the third Monday of each odd month.

Real Fire For City's Firemen To Practice On

Greenville firemen, during their regular drill period tonight, will set fire to a house in order to practice more effective methods of fire fighting.

The house, located on the corner of Roosevelt Ave. and 6th St., was given to the fire department yesterday by Hoover Taft and Dr. M. B. Massey, co-owners of the dwelling.

The small house was heavily damaged by fire a year ago and was to be torn down in order to erect a new structure.

The public is asked not to attend this fire drill due to the traffic problem involved. Fire department vehicles and personnel must be able to move at a moment's notice to any point in the city should another fire break out.

MINOR DAMAGE

A car driven by Mrs. Carolyn Annette Dunn, 20, of 12 Vance St. and a truck driven by Willie Lee Miley, Negro, of 1611B W. 3rd St., were involved in a collision yesterday at the corner of 9th and Clark St.

Police estimated the damage at $35. No arrests were made.

County Officers Pick Up Escapée

Zeno Smith, a 34-year-old Negro who escaped from the Lenoir County Prison Camp about a month ago was picked up last night by two Pitt County officers.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said this morning Smith was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Duke Andrews and Constable Joe Joyner at the home of relatives near House Station. Smith has been returned to the Lenoir County camp.

According to the Sheriff, Smith is serving a two-year sentence for forgery, imposed by Pitt County Superior Court.

Last Rites Set For Mrs. Bettie Moore

Mrs. Bettie Lewis Moore, 94, died Monday afternoon at 2:30 at her home in Greenville, at the home of her son, Herbert R. Lewis, after two months' critical illness.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Wilkerson Chapel. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Elder William Barnes, Primitive Baptist minister of Saratoga, will conduct the service, assisted by Elder Albert Lewis, Primitive Baptist minister of Tarboro.

Mrs. Moore was a native of Pitt County and spent nearly all of her life in the Farmville-Macleanfield community. She was the daughter of the late Luther and Artimissa Horton Joyner, and for the last 20 years had made her home with her children. She was a member of Tyson's Primitive Baptist Church near Farmville.

Her previous husband, Thomas K. Lewis, died in 1903. Four sons and a daughter survive this marriage. Walter Lee Lewis of Farmville, Hugh Lewis, Red Oak, Oliver L. Lewis, Macleanfield, and Herbert R. Lewis of Greenville, and Mrs. Thad Everett of Fountain. Also surviving are five step-children, Charlie Lewis of Farmville, Albert Lewis, Tarboro, Mrs. Mary Page and Mrs. Ruth Vajns, Elm City, and Mrs. Martha Gardner of Macleanfield; 38 grandchildren; 135 great-grandchildren; and 21 great-great-grandchildren.

Cases Heard In Superior Court

Judgments were handed down in 14 cases called yesterday in opening sessions of a one-week trial term of Pitt County Superior Court.

Judgments returned by Judge Henry L. Stevens, Jr. included: Kenneth Elmon Allen, Route 1, Fountain, speeding, $25 and costs; John Dennis Hull Jr., Farmville, forgery and uttering a forged check (two counts), prayer for judgment continued for two years upon payment of costs and good behavior.

Lonnice Jones Jr., no address listed, breaking, entering and larceny, nine months; Sylvester Hines, Negro, Route 1, Fountain, breaking, entering and larceny, plea of guilty to aiding and abetting breaking, entering and larceny, four months.

Henry Junior Staton, no address listed, rape, nol proos with leave; George W. Gorham, Negro, 107 North Reade St., forgery and uttering a forged check, nol proos.

Carris Lee White and Julius Lewis, both Negroes of Farmville, breaking, entering and larceny, nine months each; Bobby Wayne Boykin, Route 1, Sims, speeding, $25 and costs.

Alfonza Elliott, Negro, Farmville, larceny of auto, two-to-three years, and driving after license revoked, 16 months to be served concurrently; Alfred Frederick Wood, Route 1, Vanceboro, speeding, $10 and costs.

Thurman Matthews Jr., 405 West 13th St., Greenville, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting dangerous and serious wounds not resulting in death, jury verdict of guilty of assault with a deadly weapon, 18 months.

Include Pitt In Road Projects

Bids on 30 highway projects, including one in Pitt County, were called for Monday by the State Highway Commission.

The Pitt County project is for 3.77 miles of grading, paving and structures on a county road from Sharp Point east to N.C. 43. Contracts for the Pitt project and others in the group will be let March 21 and low bids reviewed by the Highway Commission April 3.

J. S. Rollins Dies On Monday Night

BETHEL—J. S. Rollins, 83, died Monday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jessie Spruill of Oriental. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Spruill and Mrs. Taylor Pugh of Oriental, and Mrs. D. L. James of Greenville; three sons, J. G. Rollins of Dunn and G. A. Rollins and James Rollins of Bethel.

Mrs. J. E. Cannon Rites Wednesday

AYDEN—Mrs. Mary Alice Cannon, 78, died Sunday at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville. She was the wife of J. E. Cannon of Ayden.

Funeral services will be held at the Britt Funeral Chapel Wednesday at 11 a.m. by Rev. H. G. Haney. Burial will be in the Ayden cemetery.

Mrs. Cannon was a life-long resident of Pitt County and a member of the Ayden Christian Church.

Surviving in addition to her husband are three sons; Leon, James E. and Clyde, all of the home; one sister, Mrs. G. H. Pittman, Falkland; one grandson.

What's in store for stocks?

That's never easy to answer, we admit. But with the help of our Research Department in New York, we've just put together a two-hour answer that should make a lot of sense to any seasoned investor.

If you'd like to hear it—a thorough-going discussion of basic trends in our economy, a series of specific suggestions to meet various situations and objectives during the months ahead—then don't miss our Stock Market Forum.

We're holding it on Thursday evening, March 26th, in the City Court Room, City Hall, starting at 8:00 sharp.

Bullish or bearish, we think you'll find these two hours well spent, think they should prove extremely helpful to even the most experienced investor.

There's no charge connected with the Forum, of course, but admission will be by ticket only.

If you'd like to come, simply call and tell us you'll be there, or just mail us the coupon below.
