

Tentative Draft Of German Peace Treaty Prepared

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has prepared a tentative draft of a German peace treaty for possible use in a foreign ministers meeting with the Soviet Union.

By contrast with the Soviet peace treaty proposal of several weeks ago, the U.S. provisions would leave the way open for a sovereign all-German government to forge whatever links it wished with neighboring nations and other countries of the world.

The U.S. document—some officials say it is more a statement of principles than a tentative treaty draft—has been proposed to Britain, France and West Germany for discussion.

The Western European Allies were reported today to be cool to the idea of carrying forward plans for a German peace treaty at this time. They apparently feel the more urgent problems are those involved in reunifying Germany.

But U.S. officials emphasize that the Soviet government obviously intends to raise the question of a peace treaty at a foreign ministers meeting, and they want the Western powers to be ready to meet it in some way. It is felt here that when the occasion arises the Allies should be ready to tell the Soviets and the world the kind of peace which they would make with an all-German government.

Present Western planning is based on the idea that the essential first step in solving the problems of Germany is some move toward reunifying the divided country and creating an all-German government.

To this end Western policy planners now meeting in Paris are talking about proposing to the Soviets the creation of a federation to bring East and West Germany under a single political roof.

Over a period of several years the powers of the central federal government would gradually be increased and the powers of the present East and West German regimes would correspondingly decrease.

One possible way to set up a central administration, now being considered, would be to base it on the German provinces or states, called laender. There are 10 of these in West Germany and traditionally five in East Germany where they are no longer recognized.

U.S. officials said the Western powers are not interested in the Soviet approach to a German confederation which would give equal authority to the East German administration with its 17 million and the West German government with its 53 million.

The highly tentative U.S. draft is understood to be based on the principle that when a peace treaty finally is signed, Germany should be given full control over its own affairs and should be free to choose its own course in international relations.

New Army Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today nominated Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer to be the new chief of staff of the Army in succession to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Lemnitzer has been vice chief of staff since July 1957. The White House said Taylor had requested that he not be re-named to another term. His present term expires June 30.

The President reappointed the other top members of the Joint Chiefs as follows:

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His present two-year term expires August 15.

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations for a third term of two years ending in August 1961.

Gen. Thomas D. White, chief of staff of the Air Force for two years beyond next June 30.

The Marine Corps commandant is a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff whenever matters concerning the corps are under consideration. The present commandant, Gen. Randolph Pate, is serving a term which runs until next January.

Clerk Of Court E. J. Dees Dies

E. Johnson Dees, 48, clerk of Municipal Recorder's Court, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital at 12:15 this morning after suffering a heart attack Monday night.

Funeral services will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church Thursday afternoon at 2:30 by the rector, the Rev. John Drake. The body will remain at Wilkerson Funeral Home until the time of the service. City officials will serve as honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Dees, son of Mrs. Margaret Parker Dees of Greenville and the late James Earl Dees, was a native of Laurinburg, but had spent nearly all of his life in Greenville. A graduate of Campbell College, he attended N. C. State College in Raleigh and served in the United States Marine Corps for four years, being discharged in 1933. He had served as clerk of Municipal Recorder's Court since 1944.

Mr. Dees, who lived at 109 Arlington St., was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and the Greenville Moose Lodge. Surviving are his wife, the former Josephine Robertson of Greenville, to whom he was married in 1936; a son, Charles Earl Dees of the home; his mother and two brothers, the Rev. James Parker Dees of Statesville and Samuel Burgwin Dees of Raleigh.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Temperatures will average 2 to 5 degrees above normal through Monday. Warmer Thursday and Friday, colder Saturday or Sunday and warming again Monday. Precipitation will average around one inch, occurring Friday and Saturday.

Hawaiian Statehood Bill Signed By President Eisenhower Today

Macmillan Arrives In Ottawa

OTTAWA (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, on his way to talks with President Eisenhower, today urged the Western powers to frame a united policy on Germany based on "firm principles combined with a readiness to negotiate."

Macmillan arrived by plane from London. Before leaving for Washington Thursday, he will fill in Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and other Canadian officials on his Berlin crisis talks in Moscow with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Macmillan plans to see ailing U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles at Walter Reed Army Hospital before he meets with Eisenhower.

Diefenbaker and other officials were on hand to greet Macmillan, who led off his remarks with a tribute to Canadian Foreign Secretary Sidney Smith, who died Tuesday.

Macmillan said it was generally accepted that East-West negotiations on Germany must take place this summer.

Speaking first in English and switching later to French, Macmillan said he went to Moscow to feel out the ground, and he believed he had attained success.

The British leader, accompanied by Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd, hopes to convince Eisenhower that a summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev can solve the explosive Berlin situation without shooting.

Officials in Washington expressed belief Eisenhower's speech Monday, conditionally endorsing a summit meeting, had greatly improved the atmosphere for the talks with Macmillan. The President agreed to a top level meeting in the summer if a foreign ministers' conference on Germany proposed for mid-May gives promise that the government heads can agree on anything.

Macmillan's visit to Eisenhower will climax the series of conferences he has carried on with Khrushchev, French President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. His aim is to work out a unified strategy and proposals with which to approach the Soviets at the foreign ministers meeting.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today signed the bill to make Hawaii the 50th state.

With the bill's signing, Hawaii could, by taking fast action, get officially into the Union by next July. This would be in time to send members to the present session of Congress, October is more likely, however. It took six months to add Alaska's 47th star to the flag.

Territorial Gov. William Quinn has 30 days after formal notification of the President's approval in which to issue a proclamation of elections.

A primary must be held no less than 60 nor more than 90 days after the proclamation. General election must come no later than 40 days after the primary.

Eisenhower's proclamation making Hawaii the 50th state will come after the election results are officially certified. There is no fixed time limit on the presidential action.

Final congressional action on the admission of Hawaii came March 12 in a 323-89 House vote. The Senate voted 76-15 a day earlier.

Eisenhower got the bill March 13 but used only four of the 10 days he had for signing or vetoing. Sunday's don't count.

In addition to electing a governor and lieutenant governor, state legislators, two U.S. senators and one House member in Congress, Hawaii must vote on three propositions:

1. Shall Hawaii immediately be admitted into the Union as a state?
2. Does Hawaii consent to the exclusion of Palmyra Island from the boundary of the new state?
3. Does Hawaii accept statehood under all other conditions specified in the statehood bill, including land grants and reservations and one House member instead of two?

There will be a second representative after the 1960 census reapportionment.

Rejection on any one of the three propositions would nullify the Statehood Act and leave Hawaii in territorial status, but there was no doubt that all three propositions would be approved.

The territory has been pleading for statehood for half a century and its state constitution is already adopted.

Motor Vehicles Inspection Bill In House Hopper

RALEIGH (AP)—A bill calling for annual mechanical inspection of motor vehicles was introduced in the House today by Rep. Carroll Holmes of Perquimans.

It has the backing of State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt and has been endorsed by the governor's Advisory Committee on Traffic Safety.

Holmes' measure calls for the yearly inspections to be made at state-licensed garages. At the inspections, the brakes, lights, tires, horn, steering mechanism, and windshield wiper would have to be in safe operating condition.

The bill is similar to one killed by the 1957 Legislature and other Legislature's since the state tried an inspection law for one year several years ago.

Other new legislation included bills in both houses to appropriate half a million dollars for port-improvements at Southport. Sen. S. Bunn Frink sponsored the bill in the Senate and Rep. James C. Bowman introduced it in the House.

Sen. Cutler Moore of Robeson tossed in a measure under which highway patrolmen could be provided them in civil or criminal actions arising out of the conduct of their duties. The bill would allow the attorney general's office to defend the patrolmen or permit the employment of outside lawyers for the purpose.

A busy round of legislative committee meetings today brought much discussion on important issues—but little action.

A joint Senate-House Constitutional Committee began its consideration of the widely advertised Bell Committee proposals to revamp the state's judicial system.

It heard Beverly Moore of Greensboro, president of the State Bar Assn., deny that the proposals—advanced by a bar association committee—would deprive the General Assembly of authority over the court system.

"I leave the purse strings with the Legislature," said Moore of the plan which would place in the hands of the State Supreme Court authority to administer a unified court system.

The House Public Utilities Committee heard utility lawyers argue against a bill repealing a law which allows utility firms to put rates increase in effect under bond—before the rates have been approved by the State Utilities Commission.

The House Unemployment Security Commission studied but took no action on a measure which would allow payment of unemployment insurance benefits for an additional eight-week period—in times of serious recession. Members indicated, however, they favored the measure.

Before the Senate State Government Committee, there was debate on a bill authorizing a new legislative building, but a vote was delayed until next week.

The measure to create a commission to plan and supervise building of a new legislative home Tuesday passed the House. Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission have recommended 4½ million dollars for the purpose.

Juliette Lowe Parties Held In Schools

Juliette Lowe parties were held at schools throughout Greenville during Girl Scout Week, March 5-14.

Celebrating the founding of Girl Scouts in the United States, Girl Scout and Brownie troops presented skits that represented skills and interest in the international scope of Scouting.

During the parties each troop offered decorated birthday boxes filled with pennies. These pennies represented each scout's birthday years and were given to the Juliette Lowe Friendship Fund.

Twenty-five troops participated in the celebrations held at the five white elementary schools: Colored troops held their celebrations at Fleming Street, South Greenville, and Eppes High School.

Resolutions Passed By PTA

At last Thursday's meeting the Elmhurst School PTA passed a resolution to go on record as endorsing in principle the Local Initiative Plan Act to raise ten million dollars for the State's schools, and to work individually and as an organization toward the Act's enactment. Dean Leo Jenkins, PTA president, appointed a committee to investigate local feeling concerning the Plan. Members of this committee are Bill Norwood, Hartwell Campbell and Edward Durham.

Also passed as a resolution was a request to the officials of the Little League to stop ball practice on school days at 5 p.m., so that Little League players will have time to do their school work properly.

The organization extended a vote of thanks to the participants in the recent PTA melodrama, "Gold In The Hills," which was performed with great success and increased the treasury by $355.

Recommendations of the Nominating Committee were accepted unanimously for next year's officers. They were as follows: for president, Mrs. Ed Rawl; for vice president, Mrs. L. G. Williams; for treasurer, Bill Norwood; for corresponding secretary, Mrs. Cameron Dudley; for recording secretary, Mrs. Charles King.

N.C. Press Women To Meet

CHAPEL HILL — Jonathan Daniels and Betty Smith are the two main speakers at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Press Women to meet here Saturday and Sunday, April 4 and 5, it was announced today by Jane Hall of Raleigh, program chairman.

Daniels is editor of the Raleigh News and Observer. Miss Smith is author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." She is a resident of Chapel Hill.

The theme of the meeting is "What Constitutes Good Writing?" A record attendance is expected, with about 100 women from North Carolina daily and weekly newspapers coming to Chapel Hill for the sessions.

Grace Laffoon of Elkin is president of the Press Women.

Others aiding in arrangements include Mrs. Erma Drum, Shelby; Miss Elizabeth Peele, Charlotte;

Miss Frances Griffin and Miss Virginia Stroup, Winston-Salem; Miss Doris Dale Reynolds, Greensboro; Mrs. Mary Ellen Albare, Ahoskie; Miss Elsie Hamilton, Belmont.

Miss Smith will speak on Saturday, at 2 p.m., at Daniels at dinner, 7:30 p.m. in the Carolina Inn ballroom.

Annual press awards will be made at a luncheon at the Inn, at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, April 5.

Demonstration Shown

FOUNTAIN—Members of the Fountain Home Demonstration Club heard youth speakers when the club met in the home of Mrs. Ruel Dilda for their regular meeting on Thursday.

Miss Mary Agnes Gay and Miss Netty Pate Sumner, who are members of the Busy Beavers Community 4-H Club, were introduced by their leader, Mrs. Alton Moore. They gave a demonstration on Arts and Crafts, using materials which they had prepared for themselves. They stressed the slogan of 4-H, "Make The Best Better."

Showing how to make use of things which one might find around the home, the girls displayed jewelry and candy boxes, coat hangers, ash trays, and "Johnnie, The Handy Doll."

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Albert Bell, and during the business session the group voted to give $25.00 to the piano fund for the Community Building. A request was made that the president make an appointment for the members to attend the cancer clinic as a group for examination.

Reports were heard from various leaders, including the Music Workshop by Mrs. Carlton Gardner, Pitt County Progress Program Awards Night by Mrs. Alton Moore, Heart Fund campaign by Mrs. Sim Weisner, and report from the County Council Meeting by Mrs. Ruel Dilda.

Mrs. Edwin Corbett, home beautification leader, presented the Raleigh—With a new record for length of session, North Carolina's first General Assembly after the pay of members had been raised from $240 to $800 a session had passed into history today. The session rounded out its 70th day at 8 o'clock last night.

J. B. Kittrell, local broker, has been appointed to the board of directors of the North Carolina Division of the Travelers Protective Association.

Dinner Marks 80th Birthday

Mrs. Saphonia Venters Gaskins observed her 80th birthday recently and was honored with a dinner at her home in the Black Jack community.

All eight of her children, Mrs. Jim Riggs, Mrs. Dave Bennet, Mrs. Albert Edwards, Mrs. Fred Mills, Mrs. John Henry Singleton, Mrs. Ruth Gaskins, Glenn Gaskins, and Fumey V. Gaskins, were present.

Mrs. Gaskins has 24 grandchildren, 34 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren. She was presented a corsage of red carnations. Dinner was served in the yard. There were approximately 80 guests present.

Women Voters Meet Tonight

The Greenville League of Women Voters will meet this evening at the City Council room of the Municipal Building. One of the major items of business will be the continued study of the proposals for court reform made by the Bell Committee of the N. C. Bar Association.

A recent consensus of the 14 local Leagues showed that the Leagues in North Carolina are strongly in favor of the major part of the proposals for reform. Mrs. Robert Forney, president, will speak on the advisability of grass roots support which will be the determining factor in adoption of any court reforms and how to make your support of the Bar Association proposals quite apparent to our legislators.

Mrs. S. A. Sewall will deliver the final report of the Committee on Improving and Expediting the Administration of Justice in North Carolina submitted to the 1939 General Assembly. The final report contains a recommendation with respect to solicitors which was not in the preliminary draft.

Also to be discussed is the newly proposed State Department of Water Resources. More than 1100 League members throughout the state are in agreement that this more unified department would make for better administration of the state's water resources development program, and this topic will be up for local discussion this evening.

All old members and any interested persons are invited to attend.

Varied Uses For Eggs

RALEIGH — A slim figure on a slim budget is a good thing to remember. During March Egg Month or any time include this "package from nature" often in your meals.

Miss S. Virginia Wilson, nutrition specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says eggs are recommended for building rich red blood and healthy body tissues.

Use them not only as a breakfast food but occasionally as a main dish for dinner or supper. Two eggs can be served to replace meat in these menus at a lower cost in money and calories. At 50 cents a dozen you would be paying nine cents for your main dish and getting only 150 calories.

Mrs. Goodall Shower Honoree

A floating miscellaneous shower was held Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bullock in honor of Mrs. B. F. Goodall of Bethel.

The bride was presented a pink corsage.

The 45 guests were met at the door by Mrs. E. C. Lewis and introduced to the receiving line. They were then invited to the dining room where a pink and white color theme was carried out.

Guests served themselves to nuts, mints and cheese tidbits from the appointed table covered with a white cloth and centered with a pink and white flower arrangement.

Mrs. L. A. Clark served bridal cakes and Mrs. J. A. Moore poured lime ice.

Mrs. Lynden Anderson directed guests to the gift room where Mrs. Jackie Harris presided.

Mrs. Bennie Bullock invited guests to register and bid the goodbyes.

Institute Set Friday

The Interdenominational Mission Study Institute which is sponsored each spring by the United Church Women of the Greenville Council of Churches will be held on Friday at the Immanuel Baptist Church.

The hours for the morning session will be from 10:30 a.m. until 12:00 noon. At noon a covered dish luncheon will be served. The afternoon session will be from 1:15 p.m. until 2:45 p.m.

Mrs. Keith Holmes, president of the Greenville Council, has announced that a program on the Middle East has been planned. The book, "Middle East Pilgrimage," by P. Park Johnson will be discussed.

Dr. Lois Staton of the Department of Education at East Carolina College will teach the morning classes. At the afternoon session Mrs. E. Allen Striplin, dormitory counselor at East Carolina, will be the speaker.

Women of all denominations are cordially invited to attend the institute.

Here's a final trick: To keep the tuck-in allowance smooth, so it doesn't wrinkle and bunch, roll wrapping paper and push firmly into the space between seat and arms and back of chair. When the cushions is put in place, the paper will be concealed and the tuck-in allowance will stay put.

It is not necessary to use Grade A eggs for scrambling, or in baked products.

Now No Doubts At Home Or Abroad

President Eisenhower in his address to the nation Monday night offered nothing new in this country's position on Berlin.

He did, however, make the previously announced position of the United States in the Berlin crisis officially official.

We are rightfully in West Berlin and we are obligated to protect the two million people of that free city and see that their freedom is maintained.

We will not fire the first shot, but we will defend with military force if necessary the rights provided in the agreement entered into by the Big Four powers at the end of World War II.

We are willing to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the Berlin issue, but only if there is reason to believe the Soviet officials are ready to negotiate in good faith.

What could be clearer to the American people, our allies and the Soviet Union than such a statement?

Coming from the President, the statement should dispell any doubts which may exist at home or abroad that the United States is willing to risk war to maintain its rightful position in West Berlin. Added to that is the official assertion of the President that the United States and its allies have sufficient military strength to meet any military challenge the Soviet Union offers. What's more, this nation will not draw back from using this force if the Soviets resort to military force in the Berlin crisis.

The word War in its full meaning in the nuclear age is enough to make shivers run up and down the spine of every citizen of the free world or behind the Iron Curtain. Certainly the United States does not want war over Berlin. But neither does it want Berlin to become another Munich . . . and President Eisenhower has made it plain the United States does not intend for Berlin to become another Munich.

In such times of crisis as the current situation of which Berlin is the focal point, it is natural to expect conflicting reports of high level determination to do this or that. It is also natural for there to be conflicting reports of the military capabilities of this nation and its allies to carry out this decision or that.

During such times it is essential for the Chief Executive to step in and fit all the pieces together into a concise picture for our own people, our allies, and our potential enemies. That is what President Eisenhower did in his address Monday night. And he did it effectively.

The American people know straight from the Commander in Chief where this nation stands, the problems involved, the alternatives which confront us and the course the United States proposes to follow. Our allies know, and so do the Soviet officials.

While the President's statement of policy may have taken us one step farther down the road toward global conflict, it is much more likely that it marked the turning point which will lead to a peaceful settlement of the Berlin question and the establishment of a more permanent peace throughout the world.

Perpetuating Source Of Election Frauds

How does one justify the action of a committee which in one breath kills the bill that would abolish the civilian absentee ballot in North Carolina, and during the same meeting gives its approval to abolishing the same civilian absentee ballot in one of the counties of the state?

If the civilian absentee ballot is good for 99 of North Carolina's 100 counties, why isn't it good for Graham County as well?

If it is bad for Graham County—where the county's representative says such ballots sold for as much as $140 each during the last election—how can it be good for the rest of the counties?

In effect the House committee on Elections and Election Laws yesterday perpetuated the greatest source of election fraud and corruption in North Carolina by killing the bill that would abolish the civilian absentee ballot on a state-wide basis. They gave new life to the element in our election laws which has caused more dispute and dishonesty in elections than any other one thing.

And yet, at the insistence of Rep. Leonard W. Lloyd of Graham County, the same committee agreed to a bill which would outlaw the civilian absentee ballot in Graham County.

For several decades now the civilian absentee ballot has been a cancerous cell in the election laws of North Carolina, spreading its spores of corruption and dishonesty in elections from one county to another. Time after time the legislature has been called on to cut this cancer before it engulfs the entire body politic of North Carolina. And time and again legislators have blinked at the evil, knuckled to the elements which would use it to perpetuate election frauds, and have blocked any efforts to abolish the civilian absentee ballot.

By giving its passive approval to the civilian absentee ballot, the House Committee on Elections and Election Laws has likewise indicated its passive approval of corruption and fraud in elections throughout the state. For the absentee is the source of more election trouble in North Carolina than any other one thing.

Such action by a committee of the General Assembly is indeed a sad commentary on legislative efforts to give North Carolina better government.

Omitted: Ideas From America

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The one thing President Eisenhower didn't explain to the nation Monday night is what ideas this country has to offer the Soviet Union to avoid a showdown and perhaps war over Berlin.

He used his nationwide broadcast to restate positions he has already publicly explained — on Berlin and American defenses — but he threw in this: That this country does have new ideas to offer the U.S.S.R.

He didn't say what they are. Possibly the Western Allies are not yet fully agreed on what to propose. They may achieve such agreement after British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan confers here this week with the President.

These were the familiar, but main, bases Eisenhower touched:

1. He assured the country — despite Democratic criticism that his economy drive will jeopardize American defenses in the future — that those defenses are not only adequate now but will remain so.
2. He explained why this country is involved in Berlin: That wartime agreements not only give the Allies the right to keep troops in West Berlin but guarantee them free passage of supplies for the troops through Communist East Germany.
3. He repeated what he has said before: This country won't yield to Soviet demands that the Allies get out of Berlin; and it won't recognize the right of the East Germans to stop supplies for the Allied garrisons in Berlin.

Since Berlin is 110 miles inside East Germany, any Allies supplies for the city must pass over East German territory: In the air, by road, or by rail.

Eisenhower led up to the mention of new ideas this way:

First, he ruled out any yielding to Soviet demands or threats about Berlin because of obligations to the two million West Berliners, because of principles and agreements involved, and because it would weaken America's world leadership.

Second, he acknowledged that any yielding position might mean war, suggested that war would be even more likely if the United States backed up, and said that if war came the Soviets would be to blame. So, he was still unyielding.

Third, he pointed to negotiations with the Soviets as the one way to avoid a military showdown. Speaking of negotiations, he said:

"We are willing to listen to new ideas and are prepared to present others."

Right there he got off the subject of new ideas, leaving the world and Premier Nikita Khrushchev to guess what he had in mind.

It must be remembered that Khrushchev has a tremendous stake in the Berlin outcome, too: If the Allies don't back down, and he has to retreat to avoid war, he has suffered a major defeat.

But since Eisenhower refuses to budge on Berlin, or as he says, be a party to any permanent division of Germany, it's hard to see what new ideas he could offer that would satisfy Khrushchev, at least on Berlin.

Previously, Eisenhower had brushed off any thought of a summit meeting with Khrushchev unless first, through a meeting of foreign ministers, there was some reason to think a summit meeting would be useful.

Monday night Eisenhower was still putting a foreign ministers get-together preliminary to a summit meeting.

Then he said: "Assuming developments justify a summit meeting at the summit, the United States (meaning Eisenhower, himself) would be ready to participate in this further effort."

Some may read into that sentence — since it omitted direct mention of a need for advance progress — a softening in his attitude and a greater readiness to meet at the summit even if the foreign ministers accomplish nothing.

But elsewhere in his speech he said: "The United States and its allies stand ready to talk with Soviet representatives at any time and under any circumstances which offer prospects of worthwhile results."

That doesn't look like much of a softening.

Mixed-Up Time Of Year

This is one of those pleasantly curious times of the year.

Spring is, almost literally, just around the corner. Yet, winter is still an in-step companion when we stroll down the street.

The mixture of the two seasons is a confusing one.

At night, for instance, you open the windows of the bedroom for "plenty of fresh, early-spring air" — and you sleep under an extra blanket. During the day, you dress warmly in the mornings "to fight off a cold" and you wind up soaking with perspiration when the sun goes down.

Thermometers that you swore by during the prolonged cold spells seem to have lost its electronic mind. Boilers and furnaces which you once had to caress and handle gently to get even a single room war now blast away to make the whole house an inferno.

But, even with all those things, life isn't all bad.

The rose bush next door is sprouting little green leaves as fast as the warm sun and frequent rains will let it. And the noisy sparrows who live in the neighborhood are noisier than ever, and you have to enjoy their wing-dragging struts to attract the attention of other sparrows.

Down the street, somebody's front yard bush is beginning to show signs of pink buds. Across the way a couple of hundred yards, the stuttering sounds of a pair of tractors bounces across newly broken farm land.

And everywhere, there's an awakening in young minds that something different is happening, that cold weather is about gone and says full of warmth aren't far away.

That's the best part of it all . . . to see one of the little people in our neighborhood stop to examine the tender tips of a sprouting flower; or to touch, in an uncommon gentle way, the new green on bushes and trees; or to blow softly on the fuzzy end of a bird's feather; or just to run and jump and play because he's young and the weather's getting right for such things.

Those are the times when you sit back and admit you're not as old as you sometimes think you are, and that there's some goodness still left in the world. You look, for yourself, at the sprouting flowers, and budding bushes and trees, and the birds and you're glad to be alive.

This is surely a confusing time — but it's also pleasant and the curiosities of life itself are more interesting than ever before.

Other Editors Saying . . . NLRB 'Persecution'

(Charleston News and Courier)

Americans who imagine that this country is free of dictatorship have never had any experience with some of the quasi-judicial government agencies. One such agency is the National Labor Relations Board. It has the power to persecute businessmen. And that's just what the NLRB has done since the law creating it was drafted by Lee Pressman, an admitted communist, in the 1930s.

Last week the word "persecution" was used to characterize the NLRB's activities, Frank P. Bennett, editor of The Textile Reporter, a weekly magazine, charged that the NLRB was persecuting Roger Milliken, president of Deering, Milliken & Co., selling agents for 29 Southern textile mills.

The accusation was made in connection with an NLRB citation of Milliken. The citation, resulting from a complaint by the Textile Workers Union of America, alleged unfair labor practices in closing down the Darlington Manufacturing Co.

Mr. Bennett's editorial said: "The board of directors did not close this mill; Roger Milliken did not close this mill; the owners of the company, the stockholders voted to close this decrepit mill."

If an enterprise hasn't the right to go out of business it hasn't any rights at all. Mr. Bennett correctly points out that there isn't any law in the United States that requires a company to stay in business to bargain with a labor union.

Until the NLRB is stripped of its powers, Americans will continue to be in danger of being victimized by dictatorial anti-free enterprise bureaucrats.

370 ACRES OF PARADISE

(Charleston Daily Mail)

Americans are a little inclined to make fun of His Highness, Prince Ranier III of Monaco. His title and his pretensions are so big, his principality so small — a mere 370 acres. There may be a joke here, but if there is it is not on His Highness. When he suspended the Constitution the other day and sent the legislature packing, there was scarcely an objection. And why should there be?

The Monaco treasury has a year's surplus tucked away against that rainy day which never seems to come. In all the kingdom there is no unemployment, no poverty, no taxation, no military conscription, no talk about the need to balance the budget, industrialize the economy or reform the school system. For all we know, there are no schools. And now that the Prince has sent the legislature home, there isn't any politics.

There isn't much of anything, in fact — just 21,000 happy people who have, as nearly as we can tell, nothing to worry about. Why they call their place Monaco is hard to say. Paradise would seem to be a better word for it.

The Rubbery Quality In GNP

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the more important national economic indexes—perhaps the most important single one—has a certain rubbery quality to it.

That's the Gross National Product, familiarly the GNP, compiled by the Department of Commerce.

The GNP is the total of goods and services produced by the economy. On the surface, it would seem that the GNP, divided by the total population, would show the amount of goods and services available to the average person. As it goes up, so should the standard. But—

The GNP is measured in money.

That's where one bit of rubbery comes in. Because of inflation, the value of the dollar is constantly shrinking. Thus, if there was no increase at all in the GNP, it would seem to be plunging ahead because it would carry a higher price tag in dollars.

IN DOLLARS NOBODY USES

To vulcanize this rubber a bit, the Department of Commerce has recently begun giving the GNP in terms of "constant dollars." A constant dollar is an imaginary buck with the buying power that a dollar would have had if there had been no changes.

For instance, the GNP for 1958 was $437.7 billion in 1958 dollars. When the GNP for 1948 was announced 10 years ago, it was given as $239.4 billion. But Commerce, in its new series, says it was $323.7 billion in 1958 dollars.

The cost of maintaining two sets of GNP statistics is one of the least prices Americans pay for inflation.

But there is more latex in the GNP when it is used to measure the standard of living.

DOLLARS A WOBBLY YARD-STICK

Constant dollars can record whether the price of the standard of living is going up or down, but they don't necessarily show that the standard itself is improving or worsening.

Here is some evidence:

In recent decades, the cost of producing wonder drugs has been dramatically reduced. In constant dollars, the total production of these drugs has increased very little. Yet these drugs have increased our standard of living amazingly. They have increased living itself, as well as the standard.

The cost of producing poultry, in constant dollars has been vastly reduced by modern methods and the quality of the meat has been increased almost as much. Around the corner from me, fresh-killed fryers are selling for 29 cents a pound—the equivalent of about 15 cents a pound in the 1930's. The great increases in poultry raising may show very little on a GNP measured in dollars, with prices dropping as production increases. But the increase in poultry has surely stepped up our standard of living. Southern fried style.

There are hundreds of other examples to show that the price tags, even at constant dollars,

Work Before 'Luck'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—People tell Nan Martin, hailed by some as Broadway's actress of the year, she's lucky.

In reply Nan likes to quote a line from the play she currently is starred in: "It isn't luck when God is good to you."

Nan Martin, a vibrantly slender woman with blue-hazel eyes and hair the color time-mellowed ivory, is no sudden Cinderella.

"Nothing wonderful ever happens to you overnight," she said soberly. "There is a long process of hard work before you take the long stride, the big step."

"I've always wondered what makes people stay in the theater. It's a cruel business. It's a brutal business. You have to work very hard to get by in it, and you have to love it very much to stay in it."

After getting off to a good start Nan did give up the theater for a while — but now she feels she's back to stay.

Nan first tried for a footlight career here at the age of 17, shortly after graduating from a Santa Monica, Calif., high school, where she was the only girl student president in the school's history.

Although she earlier had started studying drama with Max Reinhardt at 12, she first won attention here as a fashion model, and was featured on half a dozen magazine covers.

A role in "The Constant Wife" with Katharine Cornell launched her on her way, but then she married Robert Emmett Dolan, a young producer, and she quit to become "a full-time wife."

They moved to the West Coast. "It was a wonderful life," she said. "We had a house by the ocean. I painted, and learned to cook, and had a son. I was very domestic. I even made slippers in needlepoint for everyone I loved."

"Then one day I found I had to go back to the theater. It was burning inside me. So back I came."

She caught the eye of director Elia Kazan. The phone call from him led her to stardom, as it has many others.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
NATURE OF TRUE
RIGHTEOUSNESS

One of the basic teachings of all true religion is that goodness is an inner matter of the heart. We do not bedeck ourselves with righteousness, or, if we do, we make pathetic fools of ourselves. What we do is to open our hearts and let the good that is therein come forth. Better still, as we open our hearts, that immeasurable goodness which comes from God flows into us. Our hearts become what Jesus called that inner well of water springing up unto eternal life.

A hypocrite is a person who plays a part, for the word "hypocrite" comes from a Greek word which means "actor." The people who make a show of their righteousness are hypocrites, and for the simple reason that they are displaying on the outside of their lives that righteousness which should be a silent, pervasive something welling up from their hearts. Certainly all true righteousness has to come out, get to the outside, if it is to accomplish any good. But we spoil the whole of the good life if we make goodness an external matter, if we try to hang it on the outside of our lives. Real goodness is not something which can be hung on. Real goodness flows. It is like a well of refreshing water. It bubbles up out of the life of a sincere person just as water pushes itself up to the surface of the earth.

Real goodness is inside goodness. Beware of the people who attempt to hang goodness on the outside of their lives. And watch out lest you tend to do the same thing yourself.

Opinions In Brief

"Higher wages, lower labor productivity and penalizing taxation handicap American industry at a steadily increasing rate. In the long run, such policies will aid Khrushchev—not Americans."—Battle Creek (Mich.) Enquirer and News.

"By the same token, reform of the corporate income tax structure and of the antiquated depreciation rules would be an economic stimulus and most probably increase the Government's revenue as well."—Wall Street Journal.

"With advertisements, the cost of a single copy of a newspaper would be so high nobody could afford to buy it. And without advertising, the public would be denied the tremendous variety of entertainment, news and cultural programs offered on radio and television. It is true that the public pays for the advertising through the price of the article sold, but the mass production which advertising makes possible reduces the unit price far below what it would be without this stimulus, and advertising cost per unit is often inconsequential. For instance, advertising expenditure on a loaf of bread is less than the cost of the wrapper."—Portland Oregonian.

LONDON HAS BIGGEST FIRE SINCE THE WAR—Firemen battle flames in a block of stores in the London suburb of Ilford Monday night in what was described as the worst fire in the London area since the World War II bombings. Seventy pumps of the London and Essex county fire brigades brought the flames under control after a two-hour fight. No casualties were reported. (AP Wirephoto by radio from London)

Fun Centers Going Up For Touring Families

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Huge family fun centers are abuilding across the nation today to greet the hordes of touring Americans this summer.
They are joining the older forms of such entertainment—the more than 400 traditional amusement parks such as Coney Island, and the 5,000 small kiddie lands that have been built along main highways or adjacent to metropolitan areas since World War II.
Attendance at these two amusement types is estimated to be more than 500 million a year.
The new family recreation centers are hoping to attract from one million to four million visitors a year each, depending on length of their operating seasons.
Patterned in scope after Southern California's Disneyland, each of the new areas now open or rising emphasizes features to stimulate or restore some of the exciting and memorable aspects of local, regional and sometimes national historic lore.
They range in area from 80 to more than 100 acres, with initial investment of from 3 to 10 million dollars.

Included in the new group are fun centers near Boston, Denver, Dallas and Santa Monica, Calif. Here is what this sampling of the movement will offer:
A four-million-dollar Pleasure Island will open this summer on 80 acres at Wakefield, near Boston, and will stress yesteryear in New England.
As one of its projects it will recreate the whaling industry. Whaling boats built in replica in Maine will take visitors over a manmade ocean to hunt for Moby Dick. A 70-foot copy of the storied great white whale will sound and spout, and manmade sharks will threaten the hunters as they cruise to and from Clipper Cove, a reproduction of an old New England whaling port.
Already open near Santa Monica is Pacific Ocean Park. The 10 million dollar development on 28 acres is devoted to a wide variety of marine themes. It is designed to offer both fun and information to all members of the family.
The Dallas Recreation Center is built around the theme: Texas under six flags. Its rides, shows and exhibits will cover the long history of the state's largest state. Example: Car rides between Civil War battle lines.
Magic Mountain, the Denver amusement center, will be set up to let visiting families, among other things, participate vicariously in the old West adventures of the U.S. cavalry, trappers and miners. It will lean heavily on the curiosity of generations brought up on novels, movies, radio and TV versions of frontier life.
But other recreation centers hope to tap this same rich vein. The Massachusetts centers also plans a frontier town where a narrow gauge steam train will carry visitors through outlaw infested hills to a reproduction of an early gold mine, where families can pan for gold. The park developers insist it will be possible actually to find some.
Managements of these, and other family recreation centers elsewhere, say that theirs aren't the traditional amusement parks of ferris wheels and tunnels of love. They say the design and construction of the new style centers combine showmanship and dramatic talents, adding to the old type amusements new features that have nostalgic appeal to the oldsters and novelty appeal to the youngsters.

Selling Funeral Is Set Thursday

GATE CITY, Va. (AP)—Throngs continue to pour into this little town in final tribute to Civil War veteran John Salling.
Funeral services will be held Thursday. The body of the 112-year-old general—the title was honorary—has been on public view since Tuesday at the National Guard Armory.
Salling died Monday in a Kingsport, Tenn., hospital, leaving another Confederate, Walter Williams, 116, Houston, Tex., as the only surviving veteran of the Civil War.
Salling is dressed in the crisp, gray summer uniform of a Confederate general given him last year by the Women's Army Corps. On his chest is an array of medals, most of them from Civil War reunions, he attended in later years.
A handsome bronze medallion in a velvet-lined box, issued by act of Congress, is draped over the lower half of the glistening copper casket.
Protestant services are planned both at the Armory and at graveside at the family cemetery near his home at Slant, Va., 12 miles north of here. Lt. Col. William T. Munsen, an Army chaplain, will conduct the rites.
The Second Army Band is being flown here for the funeral, along with a crack color guard and firing squads, and a dozen military pall bearers. Two Virginia National Guard units will contribute a 50-man honor guard.

Plan TV Network To Link Capitals

VIENNA (AP)—The Soviets are planning a television network linking East Europe's Communist capitals with Moscow.
The Hungarian news agency MTI said work has already started on relay towers 90 feet high to bring Soviet programs to Budapest. This link is to be completed by 1961.
TV relays will also connect Moscow with Warsaw, Prague, and the capitals of Romania and Bulgaria.

Believe Million Watched Parade

NEW YORK (AP)—Police estimate 130,000 persons marched in the St. Patrick's Day parade Tuesday and that there were a million spectators.
It took an hour and six minutes to follow the green center stripe on Fifth Avenue from 44th St. to 96th St.
Skies were clear and blue and the weather was balmy—about 45 degrees—when the parade started.
The mercury gradually dropped to 37 degrees, and brisk winds buffeted the marchers as the parade wore on. Late in the afternoon a sudden series of snow flurries swept the line of march.
At 5:35 p.m., five hours and 31 minutes after the parade began, the last of the marchers, damp but undaunted, passed the reviewing stand.

Welcome New Life Noted In Pre-Easter Sales Trade

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Rising prosperity, a booming stock market and a return to fashions that flatter the female form are putting new life into the nation's Easter retail trade.
So say many of the merchants, bankers and Chamber of Commerce officials interviewed by The Associated Press in a coast-to-coast survey.
"Business is shaping up beautifully," says an executive of a big department store on Chicago's busy State Street. "Easter sales are far ahead of last year."
People are spending with more confidence," said Richard H. Rich, president of Rich's in Atlanta. "Consumers are more confident and seem to be spending more."

Wants To Change His Name Again

CHESHIRE Conn. (AP)—Roger Enidras wants to change his name again.
Enidras, a chef at a prep school here, was born Roger Sardine in Diette, France. He became a U.S. citizen in 1938. Since Sardine is a word often taken lightly here, Roger turned it around and named himself Enidras.
Now he's planning a trip back to France. He asked a judge to allow him to reverse his name to Sardine, so the home folks will remember him.
Most folks here call him Roger Sardine anyway.

Predicts Traffic Over South Pole

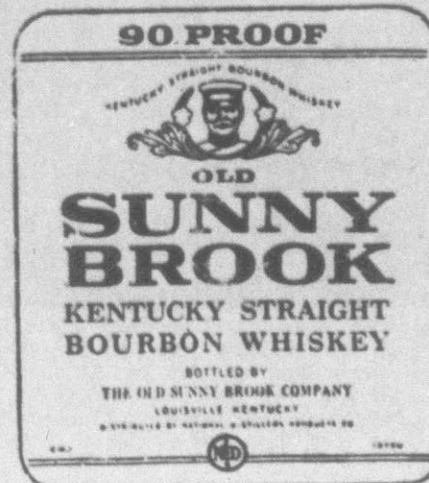

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP)—The Southern Hemisphere is filling up with people and within 10 years they will be flying across the antarctic just as they now do across the North Pole. Rear Adm. George Dufek told a press conference here Monday.
Dufek is returning from his fourth tour of duty in the antarctic.

Judy Will Star At 'The Met'

NEW YORK (AP)—Judy Garland will star at the Metropolitan Opera House starting May 11 when her musical variety show opens a week's engagement to benefit the Children's Asthma Research Institute at Denver.

A Metropolitan spokesman said he could recall no previous occasion when a singer of popular music starred in a performance at the Met.

For Some, Benefits In Electrified Air

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A medical researcher reported today the breathing of electrified air apparently is good for some people with allergic respiratory trouble.

It may be beneficial also to people generally. If extensive tests bear out these indications, air conditioning machinery of the future probably will electrify the atmosphere as well as control humidity and temperature in homes and offices.

Reports on the preliminary experiments were given in a paper before the American College of Allergists by Dr. S. D. Klotz, of Orlando, Fla.

Dr. Klotz said investigators had found that some unknown factor causes allergic people to react even when they are kept in rooms where temperature, humidity and pollen are controlled and atmospheric pressure is watched closely.

These patients reacted to an on-coming storm before the weather change could be detected by instruments. This suggested electrical changes in the atmosphere as a possible factor.

Variations in the electrical charge of the air at Orlando are recorded daily and efforts are being made to determine if they are related to the behavior of people with allergic respiratory trouble, Dr. Klotz reported.

There are constant but slight variations in the electrical charge of the atmosphere, caused by cosmic radiation, solar activity, lightning flashes, ultra-violet light, falling water droplets, and wind-driven dust or snow.

These natural forces knock electrons off some molecules or add extra electrons to other air molecules. The process is called ionization.

Normally, said Dr. Klotz, the air contains about one ionized molecule for every 27 trillion molecules. Usually there are slightly more positive than negative ions.

Relatively simple and inexpensive instruments are available for producing either negatively or positively ionized air.

Dr. Klotz said two German researchers found that test subjects breathed more calmly on negatively ionized air.

Two Philadelphia investigators treated hay fever patients with negative ionized air and produced temporary relief to a mild degree in 63 per cent of the patients, Dr. Klotz said.

Communists And French Police In Major Fight

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—Communist rioters fought with police Tuesday night after losing control of the city administration in this big Atlantic port where they have governed for six years.

Non-Communist councilmen banded to elect Socialist Robert Monguillon mayor by a one-vote margin—giving him 19 votes to 18 for Communist incumbent Rene Cance.

The Communists, sensing defeat, first sought to block the election by sending 250 fanatics storming into the City Hall chamber where the voting was taking place.

Police threw the hecklers out and the fighting spread to the street with 1,000 demonstrators milling about. Four policemen were hurt. Windows were broken in several stores.

District Winner In Essay Contest

RALEIGH—Representative George Uzzell of Rowan and John Umstead of Orange turned thumbs down Tuesday on measures which would change the date for second primary elections.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Harlan Holcombe of Yancey at the request of the State Board of Elections, would move the date of second primary elections from the last Saturday in May to the last Tuesday in June.

Umstead declared: "This bill would disenfranchise the people in institutions of higher learning and medical students who start their internship the first of June."

Uzzell argued: "Why should it be on Tuesday rather than Saturday? Factory workers can get to the polls a good deal easier on Saturday."

Umstead suddenly thought of the farmers. "I'm sure they could get to the polls easier on Saturday," he said, "pointing out that June is also the heavy month for harvesting tobacco."

Uzzell, not to be outdone, came up with still another objection. "June is the starting point of summer vacations."

Raymond Maywell, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, said the bill was drafted in answer to the question raised often in the press that May to November is a long time—perhaps too long a time?

But the opposition of Umstead and Uzzell was sufficient to send this bill, and a couple of others having to do with general election laws, to a subcommittee.

Judges for yesterday's district contest were Mrs. W. J. Moyer of Farmville, Principal Sam D. Bundy of Farmville High School and County Agent Sam Winchester.

Other participants were Evann Rowe of Craven County, Joseph Casey of Franklin County, Charles Carawan of Beaufort County and Charles Lamm of Nash County.

Liquor Tipplers Turn To Beer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Liquor tipplers in Oklahoma apparently are quenching their thirst with beer during the state's strict enforcement of whiskey prohibition laws.

A report Monday from the State Tax Commission said beer sales zoomed 25 per cent last month over the same month a year ago.

Oklahoma votes to continue or repeal prohibition laws April 7th. For the past two months whiskey laws have been enforced with bootleg liquor sales sinking proportionately.

Coal Strike Outbursts Bring Out State Police

HAZARD, Ky. (AP)—Reinforced state police units patrolled the hills of eastern Kentucky today in the wake of two outbursts of force in coal strikes which have killed more than 7,000 men.

A massive crowd of strikers swarmed over a coal tippie in nearby Letcher County Tuesday, injuring at least four men, and state police in Pike County broke up a bumper-riding demonstration.

The strikes, called by the United Mine Workers of America in its demand for a $2 a day basic pay raise to $24.25, began March 9. They have spread as contracts expired.

Safety Commissioner Don Sturgill said extra state police units would work the Pike County area and Maj. Charles Crutchfield, state police director, said extra patrols would be in Letcher County.

Roland P. Price, president of the Gem-Elkhorn Coal Co. at Rockhouse Creek, said he would not resume operations immediately.

Price said nearly 1,500 men swarmed over his tippie, throwing company workers to the ground and stoning them. He said one of his men, George Lowe, suffered a fractured neck and was hospitalized.

Price said another tippie worker, George Sexton, was found in a field, dazed by stones thrown at him.

Price's contract with the UMW had expired.

Crutchfield said troopers, estimated at least 200 or 225 cars in a caravan brought demonstrators to the scene.

There were only three troopers near the tippie when the crowd arrived. An additional 12 troopers were rushed in.

Later Date For Primary Dubious

Board Appeals Slash In Budget

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Health has appealed to the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee to restore $2,355,545 which was cut from its budget requests by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer, told the committee Tuesday this sum is "urgently needed for health services during the next biennium."

"We feel our requests are modest and represent one of the soundest investments the state can make," he said.

Dr. Norton pointed out that the $2,355,545 is needed to improve state services and to aid local health departments. Of this, $1,741,830 would be used for increased aid to local health departments.

Health officials cited statistics which showed North Carolina pays only 70 cents per capita per year for public health. Dr. Charles R. Bugg, president of the Board of Health, told the committee. "It is shameful that Georgia, Florida, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina and Mississippi all appropriate more money per capita than North Carolina."

Dr. M. B. Bethel of Charlotte, Mecklenburg County health director, said, "It's getting to the point where South Carolina and Mississippi are saying, 'Thank God for North Carolina.'"

Other than its major product, bananas, Honduras' economy depends mostly on its lumber resources used for the pulp and paper industry.

Nanette Fabray Would Rather Talk About Son

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Somewhere high in Rockefeller Center, NBC officials and lawyers and agents were discussing Nanette Fabray's career on television next season in terms of four big special shows and blank thousands of dollars and so forth.

Down the street in a restaurant Nanette Fabray had pushed aside her scrambled eggs and was showing a fellow pictures of her son, Jaime, aged 5 months.

"Now about this contract," the fellow said.

"Here's a good one," said Miss Fabray, who prefers to be known as Mrs. Ronald MacDougall. "See the way he puts his feet together and lines up his toes?"

"Yes indeed," the man said. "Look, Nanette, as I understand it, you would do four big specials next season and—"

"He weighs 18 pounds now," she said. "He talks, too. Sometimes he says, 'The.' No kidding. Most of the time he just says, 'Da-da-da-da—' but sometimes he—"

Miss Fabray returned to New York for the first time in 16 months with her husband, writer-director Ronald MacDougall, who is here on business connected with his new movie, "The World, The Flesh and the Devil," starring Harry Belafonte. While here she was taping a Perry Como show to be seen next Saturday.

Her appearance on the Como Show will be her first on television in more than a year except for the occasion a while ago when Dinah Shore gave her a shower on her show for—yes, Jaime.

The MacDougalls bought and live in the house vacated by Miss Shore and her husband, George Montgomery, when they moved to a larger home. And there, says Miss Fabray, it's a wonderful life, cooking and entertaining a few close friends and taking care of Jaime.

"I'll tell you why I think I'm so content," said Miss Fabray. "I've had a career before marriage and so I can't feel frustrated, as some women appear to be. By that I don't mean that my career is necessarily finished. But I'll tell you when it would be. 'If my husband ever says to me, 'Nan, come home—' well, I'd just go home. Because home is

East Carolina To Open Diamond Slate Monday

By JOHNNY HUDSON
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina College's baseball team had another busy day on the practice field yesterday afternoon and the roughest is yet to come as Coach Jim Mallory and his club are less than a week away from their opening tilt.

Two games were added to the ECC schedule last week which pushes their opening date to next Monday, March 23. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of New York will offer the first resistance. The touring Northerners will be in Greenville for a two-game series.

Mallory plans to get in a couple more good work-outs before the opening game and a practice tilt with some graduate students is planned for Thursday afternoon.

Weather has been good thus far for the diamond competitors and their pace has been much faster than last year at the same time. The big factor that may swing against the local club in the early stages of the season will be their lack of experience.

Eight front-line men were lost from last season, including three regulars from the pitching staff. Ben Baker, hard-throwing left-hander, is the only returnee from the mound corps, but freshmen hurlers are plentiful and Mallory has been especially high on yearlings Larry Crayton and Johnny Ellen. These two are expected to join Baker in rotation of starting assignments.

Earl Boykin, a big righthander, and Mitchell Moon are also expected to get an opportunity to show their worth. Boykin was impressive in yesterday's workout while Moon has had more success in combatting his control problem of last season.

Al Vaughn continued his hitting spree yesterday by banging a couple of extra base hits. An All-Conference selection last season, Vaughn is expected to have his best spring. Vaughn had his troubles at the plate last season but should have better luck this year.

Approximately 20 freshmen are still on the 30-man squad and will make the Bucs a young club but one filled with potential. At least three may break into Monday's opening lineup.

Mallory would not say who would be his starting pitcher against RPI Monday and Tuesday, but stated that he plans to use two or three in each game.

Baker, the Zebulon senior, may miss the opening games due to a leg injury. The lefty injured his left leg last quarter and has been bothered with it most of the spring. He was on the field yesterday and did throw some.

The Bucs will swing into full action next Thursday as they visit Camp Lejeune for the Easter holidays. Tills with Indiana University and Camp Lejeune are scheduled over the weekend and then ECC returns to Greenville for games with the U. of Delaware on Monday and Tuesday.

Mallory stated that his club may take some lickings in the early games but it would be a chance to gain some experience and the team should be ready when they open their conference play. They open North State play April 10 with a four-game road trip.

College Field on the ECC campus and will get underway at 2:45. Five night games at Guy Smith Stadium have been scheduled for the latter part of the spring and season tickets are expected to go on sale early next month. Tickets will be on sale at various stores in Greenville and will be announced later.

NIT Continues With Upset Trend

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's unbelievable. It's unbelievable."

That's what Coach Joe Mullane of Providence College kept shouting Tuesday night after his "Cinderella" team beat second-seeded St. Louis 75-72 in double overtime to reach the semifinals of the National Invitational Tournament.

New York University also advanced to Thursday's semifinals with an easy 63-48 victory over Oklahoma City. This second game of the basketball doubleheader at Madison Square Garden was strictly an anticlimax to the crowd of 14,289.

Providence, which upset Manhattan 68-66 last Saturday in the last six seconds of play, now is pitted against St. John's of New York while NYU goes against top-seeded Bradley.

St. John's beat Providence 73-55 early in the regular season, but this time, the happy Mullane declared, "we're going to give them a better game."

"Before the game I was really worried about their big boys," Mullane explained, "but the kids kept saying 'Don't worry, coach.'

NCAA Coaches Give Praise

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The four coaches whose basketball teams will compete in the NCAA finals here this weekend undoubtedly are in better spirits today.

For 23 minutes Tuesday they took turns consoling one another in a session best described as an electronic séance.

Reporters at Louisville's elaborate Freedom Hall where the tournament will be played undertook the interview the coaches over a four-way telephone hookup.

Voices of the coaches—Freddie Schaus of West Virginia, Geo. Smith of Cincinnati, Pete Newell of California and Peck Hickman of Louisville—were piped in.

The coaches' opinions of their opening round opponents left no doubt history's four greatest teams will compete.

Then they in turn discussed their own teams and thoroughly shattered the illusion.

The only thing that can be deduced logically from their discussions is that each is firm on two points:

1. My team will not win.
2. I don't think my team will lose, either.

Then the reporters asked: Just whom do each of you think will win?

And with the men who know their teams the best, it was Louisville two to one.

Smith and Schaus picked Louisville because of its home floor advantage.

Newell and Hickman picked Cincinnati and West Virginia, respectively, because those happen to be the teams they play in Friday's opening round.

The Friday schedule has Louisville and West Virginia in the 7:30 p. m. (CST) opener and Cincinnati and California in the nighttime about 9:30.

Texas Considers Bradley For Position

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas Morning News said today Harold Bradley of Duke University is being strongly considered for the University of Texas basketball coaching job.

The News said Bradley was interviewed by the university's athletic council last night and a decision was expected today.

"I've seen a lot of good things," Bradley said, "a lot of things I like."

He told Jimmy Banks of the Austin Bureau of the News he liked the university and that Austin appeared a nice place to live. Marshall Hughes resigned as Texas coach this year after some losing seasons.

Kid Bassey To Battle Moore

By BOB MYERS

Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The featherweight championship of the world goes on the block tonight, with Hogan (Kid) Bassey of Nigeria a slight favorite to retain championship in a 15-round fight with America's Davey Moore.

The site is the Olympic Auditorium, the time 7 p. m., Pacific Standard, and fight fans across the nation, barring the Southern California region, can see it over the ABC-TV network.

It is Bassey's second defense of the crown and it certainly should be tougher and more exciting than the first. That was last April when the little tiger from Nigeria belted out Ricardo (Pajarito) Moreno in Los Angeles' Wrigley Field in three rounds.

Bassey and his English manager, George Biddles, concede that Moore, the top-ranked contender, poses a threat. Biddles says the hard hitting young man from we can take 'em.' And they sure did, didn't they?"

They didn't lose their poise when St. Louis took an early 18-9 lead. Neither did they get flustered in the last minute of regulation play when Len Wilkens, their southpaw star, fouled Pete McCaffrey. Pete made good on both charity tosses, and St. Louis took a seemingly winning edge, 61-58. Wilkens himself slipped in the tying basket with 34 seconds left.

It was 65-65 in the first overtime when the Friars got a break. They lost the ball on a bad pass out of bounds with 47 seconds left. But Big Bob Ferry, who led St. Louis with 29 points, missed a shot with only three seconds to go.

Ferry did put St. Louis ahead 68-67 on a three-point play in the second overtime, but the Chiefs took an 11-2 lead, but the Chiefs Egan then earned two free throws to put the Friars in front for good at 69-68. With 16 seconds remaining Ferry got his 12th basket to make it 73-72. Egan however, again dunked two free throws with 10 seconds left to set it up. Wilkens scored 30 points and Egan 29 to pace the Friars.

Oklahoma City made only one threat in the second game. NYU took an 11-2 lead, but the Chiefs pulled up to 28-26 just before the end of the half. The Violets quickly opened an 11-point lead in the second half and were never headed.

St. Petersburg, Fla. today.

With Don Larsen sidelined with a shoulder injury and an unknown quantity when he returns, the Yankees are left with only two sure-fire starters — Whitey Ford and Bob Turley.

The Senators defeated Pittsburgh 4-1 Tuesday in one of the three exhibition games played as rain idled most of the clubs for the second day. In other games, Boston beat San Francisco 6-1 and Cleveland thumped Chicago's Cubs 10-5.

Washington owner Calvin Griffith, apparently willing to part with his bullpen ace in order to bolster other areas, has been holding out for a better offer from Yankee General Manager George Weiss.

So far the Yanks have offered shortstop Fritz Brickell (.266 at Denver last year) and outfielder John Reed (.309 at New Orleans), both rookies. Weiss is expected to add first baseman Frank Leja (.263 at New Orleans) to the bundle when the execs meet at St. Petersburg, Fla. today.

Yanks May Have More Trouble In 1959 Season

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Casey Stengel's dislike for Frank Lane, real or fancied, doesn't preclude him from agreeing with the Cleveland general manager on one point.

The New York Yankees, both agree, will run into more trouble this year than they ever encountered before.

Not that Stengel doesn't think his world champions won't repeat. He thinks his club is good enough to bring him his 10th flag in 11 seasons but he does not anticipate anything resembling the runaway of last year.

"We played bad ball during the final two months of the season last year," said Casey, "and we were lucky to have such a big lead. Also we were lucky that none of the other clubs had a sizeable winning streak or that no club but ours has a 20-game winner."

Stengel tabs the Indians and Tigers as the clubs most likely to give the Yankees the most trouble.

"Cleveland has a good new team," he said. "There's nothing wrong with their outfield. They have at least two good infielders. Their catching is young but good. The pitching staff also is young and can fool you."

"Detroit looks real good. They got outstanding pitching and those two relief pitchers from Cleveland (Ray Narleski and Don Mossi) should help. The question is their hitting. Boston has the hitting but it's up to the pitchers who didn't do so good last year. Chicago has speed and defense but they've got no first baseman and they're depending a lot on John Callison in the outfield."

Stengel said his team was set except for shortstop where he hopes Bobby Richardson can fill the bill until Tony Kubek returns from the Army sometime in May.

"It's the same team except for Kubek," he said. "There's nothing wrong with it. The pitchers are ready. (Bob) Turley, (Whitey) Ford and (Art) Ditmar have looked very good. So has (Ryne) Duren. I just don't know how to line them up."

Only Don Larsen's status is doubtful. The big right-hander hurt his right shoulder while pitching against St. Louis Sunday. The pain disappeared but the rear portion of the shoulder was sore Monday morning and Larsen has been ordered to rest his arm for several days.

(Next — St. Louis Cardinals)

Hyde allowed the Pirates' only run but pitched strongly in relief of Chuck Stobbs, who blanked Pittsburgh for the first five innings. Roy Sievers gave Washington all the runs it needed with a two-run homer in the first.

Frank Sullivan, who pitched six innings, and reliever Herb Moford limited the hard-hitting Giants to four hits. Ted Lepcio homered for the Red Sox, who boosted their exhibition record to 8-1, best in both leagues.

Cleveland's 13-hit attack including Woody Held's homer, was too much for the Cubs, who got home runs from Ernie Banks, Lee Walls and Bobby Thomson. Five runs in the last two innings won it for the Indians.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Golf's touring pros get the feel of the Lakewood Country Club course today in practice rounds for the $15,000 St. Petersburg Open championship.

The 72-hole tournament starts Thursday. One hundred and fifty golfers are scheduled to step to the tee. The field will be cut in half for the final 36 holes following Friday's play.

Most of the tournament pros will be in the chase for the $2,000 first prize won last year by Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa.

Among the entries are the three leading PGA money winners of 1958 — Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa.; Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif.; and John McMullen of Fair Oaks, Calif.

Sports Camp Set At ECC

East Carolina College will sponsor a Sports Camp during the 1959 summer term, the camp program to be of two periods of one week each.

Head Baseball Coach James B. Mallory will be camp director, with Miss Mavis Mitchell director of girls' activities and Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of ECC health and physical education department, as co-ordinator and advisor.

First week of the Sports Camp will be from June 14 through June 20, with the second period from June 21-27. Boys and girls from ages 13 through 18 are eligible to register, and deadline for registrations is May 20.

Mallory has announced that the East Carolina Memorial Gymnasium will be camp headquarters for the activities on schedule, and campers will have dormitory rooms assigned them.

Four instructional periods of two hours each will be held daily, with boys' activities including instruction in baseball, basketball, track, tennis, and swimming with co-recreational events, while girls will have instruction in swimming, team sports, dancing, archery, and golf.

Assistants on Coach Mallory's staff will include Head Basketball Coach Earl Smith and Track Coach James O. Miller, and water safety instructors with three men and three women aiding in various phases of this program.

Delany To Hit Books Not Boards

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—Ron Delany, the speedy scholar from Ireland, will hit the books and not the boards of Friday's indoor track meet at Cleveland.

The champion miler's cancellation drew angry protest from the meet sponsors but got support from an Amateur Athletic Union official.

Either way, Delany said Tuesday night he is sticking by his withdrawal from the Cleveland K of C meet because of "study commitments."

"I definitely will not run," said the lean, ascetic-looking Villanova student shortly before he won his 34th successive outdoor mile.

Asked if his cancellation would make him liable to suspension, Delany said "I don't know. If the Cleveland AAU doesn't consider it a justifiable reason, I can't help it."

To boost attendance the club also plans special nights when a fellow and his date or a whole family will be admitted for the price of one ticket, booster nights and music by top college bands.

Greenville's Rose High will open their 1959 baseball schedule this Friday afternoon with a non-conference game at Wilson.

The Phantoms finished in second place of the Northeastern AA standings last spring but Coach Bo Farley may have a job in retaining this slot as only five veterans are back and one of these may not be able to see action due to a knee injury.

The Rose High diamond slate includes 16 games with 14 coming against conference competition. The local club will open their home schedule here next Monday with a return game with Wilson. They open conference play against Washington there on March 26.

Rose High Baseball Schedule March 20—Wilson, there; 23—Wilson, here; 26—Washington, there.

April 3—Tarboro, there; 7—Roanoke Rapids, there; 10—Elizabeth City, here; 14—Jacksonville, here; 16—Kinston, here; 21—New Bern, there; 24—Jacksonville, there; 28—Tarboro, here.

May 1—New Bern, there; 5—Elizabeth City, there; 8—Washington, here; 12—Kinston, there; 15—Roanoke Rapids, here.

There will be a softball meeting Thursday night at 7:30 at the Elm Street Park. The purpose of the meeting will be to lay the plans for the summer Industrial Softball League. Anyone interested in playing in the league is asked to attend.

Hawaii's Delegate Is Also Big Demo Political Wheel

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — A one-time policeman, milkman and liquor store proprietor has emerged as Hawaii's No. 1 Democratic party political figure.

He is John Anthony Burns, serving his second term as Hawaii's lone delegate to Congress.

He'd like to become one of the new state's first senators, but hasn't yet decided whether to run.

Congressmen of both political parties have described as courageous and statesmanlike his part in the strategy that won statehood for both Alaska and Hawaii.

Burns decided upon entering Congress in 1957—after Hawaii's first Democratic election sweep in decades—that the success of statehood bills for Hawaii and Alaska depended on keeping them separated.

At the risk of adverse political reaction at home, Burns agreed that the practical political situation demanded that Alaska go first.

It was a bitter pill for Hawaii to swallow. Hawaii had been petitioning for statehood longer than Alaska and felt a proprietary interest in the 49th star.

But Burns resisted all urgings despite charges by his political enemies that he was a traitor to the Hawaii statehood cause.

"I had faith in the intelligence of the people of Hawaii," Burns said. "I believed they would understand the reason for what was being done."

With Alaska in, and Hawaii still out, Burns was re-elected to a second term last November.

Burns, nearing 50, is a lean six-footer with gray hair fringing a bald spot. Through regular exercise he has managed to maintain the physical trim achieved during 11½ years on the Honolulu police force.

Burns was born in March 30, 1909 in Ft. Assiniboine, Mont., the oldest of four children of an

Governor Disclaims 'Shell Game' Words

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges declared Tuesday night he has never said or suggested that the "shell game" be used to force proposed court reforms upon the people.

He made this comment after Superior Court Judge Frank Armstrong issued an eight-page mimeographed statement in which he strongly assailed the court reform proposals of the Bell committee.

Copies of Armstrong's statement were placed on the legislators' desks. In it he said "since it is apparent that the people of North Carolina do not want their prejudicial system destroyed by the recommendations of the Bell committee, this committee proposes to use the 'shell game' on people by asking for a constitutional amendment, and then, step by step, get them enacted into law."

Armstrong's statement said Gov. Hodges had been quoted in an article in the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel as saying that in a shell game "the important thing is to keep your eye on the pea. Therefore, instead of presenting all of the recommendations at one time, let's go before the General Assembly and ask for just one thing; let's ask for a constitutional amendment which will empower the Legislature to reform our court system. At later sessions we can undertake the step-by-step job of getting the specific reforms recommended by the Bell committee."

Hodges said he wanted to make it clear that he had never made such a statement. He added, "I have never said or suggested that court improvement be handled as a 'shell game' with the General Assembly or with anyone else."

"As the General Assembly knows," Hodges said, "I have made every effort to present and discuss the court improvement program as objectively, factually and as openly as possible — and without any prejudice."

Specify Outlay For Next Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, approving more U.S. funds for the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, has specified they are to come out of next year's budget.

The action, by unanimous vote Tuesday, would wreck President Eisenhower's hopes of a balanced budget for the year beginning July 1. The President had asked for the funds for the current fiscal year, and had included the spending in the deficit of nearly 13 billion dollars he forecast for the fiscal year ending June 30.

For the next year, Eisenhower submitted a budget precariously balanced on the assumption that Congress would provide increased gasoline taxes and postal revenues, actions that now seem unlikely.

But the Senate Committee, approving the proposed $1,375,000,000 increase in the U.S. subscription to the International Monetary Fund, specified it shall come out of the new budget.

Claim 'Planned' War On Unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, has asked a House Labor subcommittee to look into recent attacks on textile, hosiery and garment union organizers.

William Pollock, president of the union, said the attacks were "part of an expertly planned campaign to wipe out old, established unions."

He made public a letter he wrote Rep. Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) in which he reported recent beatings of Sol Greene, of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union in Teaneck, N.J.; Robert Dixon Beame, of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers in Franklin, N.C.; and Boyd E. Payton, of TWUA, in Henderson, N.C.

As to the situation in Henderson, he said:

"This is a lockout of 1,200 Harriet and Henderson Cotton Mill workers who are asking only for renewal of a standard-type agreement which has been in effect 14 years."

"The moves made by the company executives in Henderson are part of a carefully planned pattern. They are identical to those which precipitated an attack which destroyed one of our long-established local unions in Winston-Salem, N.C., last fall."

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR

BY C.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 19

Bonita Damo kept to her cabin on our first week out of Cape Town. I was thankful for her absence, since it gave her no chance to witness Peter Spenser's slave-driving when I returned to stand my watch.

Not the captain's hard discipline passed the bounds of decorum (save for a single instance, when he sent me aloft in a squall, with three daring members of my watch, to save a topsail). But there was no missing Spenser's intention to break my spirit — to prove, for all his crew to see, that I had fallen from grace and must swallow my humiliation to the last drop.

Ten days' sail from Cape Town, the ship rolled lazily in a dead calm.

At the captain's command I had put out three of our longboats to kedge us on our way; the crews were still cursing at their oars, their backs drenched in sweat and their spirits drooping. With the stealthy pounce of darkness, I called the hands aboard and ordered a jury anchor dropped off the larboard bow.

Spenser was topside now, glaring at me as he sawed the side. I helped the last man over his side. Prepared as I was for his next order, I felt the goose flesh rising along my arms as he barked it. "I'll take over in Mr. Douglas's cabin."

I hesitated an instant at the companionway, wondering if I should risk thanking him for the message — if only to know I knew (quite as well as he) that we were about to part company. Discretion prevailed, as I saw there were other ears about. The chill had left my blood when I knocked on Sir Luke Metcalf's door.

To my surprise, I could even feel resigned to the thought that I would be dropping into one of those longboats by morning (with only Tom Hoyt as an ally) to fetch Cape Sainte Marie, the southernmost tip of Madagascar, as best I could.

Sir Luke lay in his bunk, with a vinegar-soaked cloth across his eyes as a defense against the cloying heat. One hand gripped a cutlass; he was slashing the air at intervals, as though dismembering an invisible enemy.

Tom Hoyt sat well out of harm's way, his eyes sleepy, his mouth drawn down in a familiar quirk. Spenser was a bluenose, and our grog had been under lock and key since he took command.

After I closed and barred the door, Metcalf bounced to his feet. "You take off tonight, lad," he said. "Tom agrees you won't get a better chance."

"It's a ten-mile scull to land," I said. "Can't Spenser fetch us closer?"

"Spenser's itching to put the island behind us," said Sir Luke. "Believe me, he can't drop you soon enough."

"May I say the feeling's mutual, sir?"

Metcalf whirled the cutlass about my head so closely I felt my hair rise.

"You've held your temper, Mr. Douglas. I don't blame you for damning this subtlety — but we could take no chances on your motives."

"Will Spenser leave the longboats in the water?"

"He should, curse him; it'd make your departure seem more natural. Unfortunately, he's too finicky a seaman for that. He knows this calm will last till morning — but he says it's too great a risk even if he must kedge again tomorrow."

"Tom and I can't lower away without rousing the watch."

"There'll be no need. He's brought the largest boat under the stern and moored her to the rudder post. She'll float directly below this cabin, on a painter. All you need do is drop down the rudder chains when you go on watch at midnight. I looked through his periscope at the longboat, already bobbing in the windless swell. She was a stout vessel; in addition to her paired sweeps there was a mast beneath the thwart, and a fair-sized triangle of sail. Even without a breeze we could be in the shadow of Cape Sainte Marie by dawn, with Port Dauphin a few hours to the east.

"So I'm a bear with a sore ear, deserting my post," I said. "My shipmates may well believe the story. So, I hope, will Red Carter. How do we explain Tom's departure?"

"Tom is your friend," said Sir Luke. "He won't let you take this risk alone."

"Don't fret over me," said Hoyt. "The gentlemen of the coast can always use another surgeon."

"Don't fret over anything," Sir Luke put in. "You're a stranded buccaner as of tomorrow — ready to show your prowess. Chin up, man — it's a part you can play easily."

"Consider the deed done," I answered crossly. "Just don't lecture me further."

"Remember my agent's name in Port Dauphin?"

"Like my own."

"Prove it!"

"Emile Potin," I said. "Tall as a whooping crane — and looks like one. Has a tatch hut at the south end of the roadstead, and four native wives. He trucks vegetables for ships that call at the harbor. He also has a foot in the corsair's camp, and will arrange a meeting with Carter. For a price he'll even supply a coasting pinnace. Have I left out anything?"

Sir Luke took a scabbard from beneath the bunk and sheathed his cutlass before he tossed it into my arms. "You've forgotten nothing, lad. Just get back your courage, and the battle's won."

"If we'd had time," I said, "I'd call you out for that."

"You will to live, then," he said in a gentler tone. "Get your sleep before the watch changes. I'll lecture you no more."

The four-hour tour of duty that straddled midnight has its own rewards when the sea is quiet. To-night both ship and ocean were motionless when I came on deck. Captain Spenser, who had been smoking a pipe on the captain's bench, heaved to his feet at my approach. Even in the misty light I could not escape the stab of contempt in his eyes. It was quite like the man to stay at his post, though he knew well enough that his first officer had the deck.

"All's well, Mr. Douglas," said Quill from the shadow of the afterhouse. "Boats in chocks, and no promise of a breeze."

"Carry on, sir," I said — and took the place Spenser had vacated.

When I had made sure I had the deck, I inspected the wheel, lashed it down, and sent the helmsman to his hammock. An order of this sort was contrary to Company rules, but it was essential that I clear the area before Tom Hoyt joined me.

Hoyt and I had agreed that he would come on deck about eleven, ostensibly to smoke a pipe with me; he would bring cutlasses, pistols, and other gear we would need for our journey. To pass the time, I made a double circle of the decks, pausing to chat with each man on watch.

Hoyt was not on deck when I returned from my second round, though the hands of my timepiece hung a little past eleven. Even with his iron nerves, it was hard to believe he had overslept his rendezvous. I was on the point of going below to rouse him when I heard the slap of a bare foot in the companionway. Matt Quill came wading into view, clad only in his drawers and carrying a nightcap wadded in his hand.

I watched him curiously as he fumbled his way amidships, said something to the men on watch there — then turned to ascend the quarter-deck. Sniffing the air for a telltale sign of rum, I could hardly believe that he had found the key to Spenser's locker.

"Wake up, Mr. Quill," I said. "You aren't due until four. Did you undersleep tonight?"

"No, Mr. Douglas," he said. "It's just time you went below."

"Have you lost your mind, man? I've a good two hours left."

"Sorry," he said. "You haven't ten seconds."

We were eye to eye when he spoke. The wadded nightcap had dropped to the deck, to reveal the short-nosed pistol beneath it. The muzzle of the gun was already hard against my chest.

When Dick Douglas is told, "You might call it mutiny; march, if you please," what can he do? Continue C. V. Terry's rousing story of terror on the high seas tomorrow.

Cite Causes For Union Fall-Off

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union blames recession layoffs and increasing automation for a loss of nearly a fifth of its membership and an operating loss of more than 2 1/2 million dollars last year, shown in its annual report.

UAW Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey reported Monday that due to loss of almost 300,000 members, expenditures exceeded income by $2,373,298 in the general fund.

The dues-paying membership was reported at 1,026,050.

Wall Street Journal Achievement Award Won By Asheboro Student

Jackson A. Henley, East Carolina College senior, received the Wall Street Journal, Student Achievement Award at a convocation of the Social Studies Department at the college Tuesday night. The award was presented by Dr. James H. Stewart, professor of economics.

The Wall Street Journal Achievement award at the college includes a subscription to the Wall Street Journal and a suitably inscribed silver medal. It is made annually by that newspaper upon the recommendation of the professors of courses in economics in which the Journal is used.

Henley, an outstanding student during his four years at East Carolina College, graduated from the Asheboro High School and will receive his A. B. degree as a Business Administration major this spring. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Henley of Asheboro, where his father is a well-known businessman.

In addition to achieving an excellent record in the Business Education and Social Studies departments, Henley has been outstanding in the AFROTC. He currently serves as Deputy Group Commander and achieved the standing of Distinguished Cadet last fall, the first step toward a full commission in the U. S. Air Force. Other AFROTC honors include winning the academic star several times and being awarded the Sons of the American Revolution medal.

Playhouse To Stage 'Hansel And Gretel'

Musical Mailman Known For Having Happy Route

"Hansel and Gretel," one of the most popular of folk tales among children, will be presented by the East Carolina Playhouse in three performances for school children of Pitt County Friday, March 20; Monday, March 23; and Tuesday, March 24.

The play is one of a series of annual dramas for young people given each spring by the college dramatic club. The Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women is sponsor of the annual production.

Edward E. Lancaster, as Hansel, and Connie Erwin of Roanoke Rapids, as Gretel, will appear in the leading roles of the children lost in the forest and captured by a witch, played by Barbara Wilson of Greenville.

Three settings were designed and executed by Playhouse members. The gingerbread house with trim of sugarplums and lollipops, the woodcutter's hut, and a scene in a forest will provide the background for the action of the play. Incidental music and dancing by the Forest Fairy, played by George Parrott of New Bern, have been planned to add interest to the production.

The cast includes also Sue Lassiter of Four Oaks, as Trudi the cat; Elizabeth Smith of Fountain, as the children's mother; and other taking minor parts.

Arrangements for the "Hansel and Gretel" production have been made by Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, president of the local AAUW; Mrs. Ellen Fleming of the East Carolina faculty, in charge of attendance and seating; and Patsy Baker of Greenville, president, and Dr. Joseph A. Withey, director, of the East Carolina Playhouse.

Performances on the campus will take place in the McGinnis auditorium Friday at 2 p.m. for Greenville school children and Monday at 1 p.m. for Pitt County children. A performance at the Eppes School in Greenville is scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Spelling Lesson Failed To Pass

Describes Suit As Smear Case

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—A legislative spelling lesson failed to win a passing grade Tuesday from Idaho's Republican Gov. Robert E. Smylie.

He vetoed a bill passed by Democratic majorities in both houses of the now-adjourning Legislature. It read:

"The correct name of the Democratic party when not abbreviated is as spelled in this sentence. The spelling 'Democrat' is correct only when used to designate or refer to an individual member of the Democratic party."

Smylie said people should have the right to call a party by any name they prefer. Besides, he added, the bill might abridge the right of free speech.

Special Guest Of Shrine Club

Recorder Lester Gillika of the Sudan Temple will be a guest at tomorrow's meeting of the Pitt County Shrine Club.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Cinderella Restaurant. Jimmy Wells, Roy Alcock and Fred Rogers will be in charge of the program and President J. W. H. Roberts will preside.

Factors That May Affect Choice Of Tax Form

EDITOR'S NOTE—In preparing your federal income tax return, you may have the option—depending on your income—of which form to use. But it's important that you pick the right one, as this second of five articles on income tax questions makes plain.

By JAMES KARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Which form to use in making your 1958 income tax return: the small punchcard 1040A or the longer, four-page 1040?

Most people, because they fit the requirements and it's easy, will use 1040A. Some of them, for special reasons, will prefer 1040. The rest must use 1040.

Remember: a very important change since last year permits more people to use 1040A.

Last year only those with less than $5,000 income could use it. This year people with up to $10,000 income can use 1040A.

You can use 1040A only if you fit this rule:

If your income was under $10,000 and tax was withheld from all of it except for no more than $200 in interest, dividends or wages. If that doesn't apply to you, you must use 1040.

Things to keep in mind before deciding to use 1040A:

If you use it, you must take the standard deduction of about 10 per cent for all personal expenses which are deductible like interest on the house mortgage, state taxes, charitable contributions, and so on.

Anyone with such deductions greater than 10 per cent of his income will usually lose money using 1040A. Instead, use 1040 where, although you'll have to itemize your deductions in order to claim them, you can claim all you're entitled to.

There are certain ways of reducing your tax by using 1040 that you can't use if you file your return on 1040A. For instance:

You can't on 1040A (but can on 1040) deduct for sick pay paid by your employer. Nor can you on 1040A claim to be head of a household, a special status which gives you a smaller tax than you could obtain filing as a single person.

You can't on 1040A (but can on 1040) claim credit for retirement pay. You can't use 1040A at all if during 1958 you paid an estimated tax on your income.

Everyone who got dividends on stock of most domestic corporations can knock off the first $50 of them. You can do that on both 1040 and 1040A. On 1040 you work out the $50 deduction on page 3, Schedule A.

On 1040A you simply write in the amount of dividend payment you have left after subtracting $50, but—there's another break on dividends that you can get on 1040 but can't on 1040A.

This is it:

After you've deducted the first $50 of your dividends you can deduct from your tax four per cent of the value of the dividends above the first $50. There are places for doing that on 1040. There's no place for it on 1040A.

This year the Internal Revenue Service is particularly checking on expense accounts. On both 1040A and 1040 you're asked if you charged business expenses to your employer and whether he paid you for them.

If you got back from him all you paid out of your pocket for expenses, and no more, that's all. But if your expenses were less than the boss paid you for them, the difference is income and must be reported as part of your income.

You have to report that difference as part of your income as "excess reimbursement" on line five, page one of 1040. You can't do this on 1040A. Therefore, in this case you couldn't use 1040A.

Also on 1040A you can claim your exemptions.

If you use 1040A—and your income was under $5,000—you can figure your tax by using the tax-table on the back of the instruction sheet which the Internal Revenue Service sends every taxpayer. If you don't have it, get it.

But if your income was under $5,000 and you're using 1040A, you don't have to figure your tax. If you don't want to, just answer the questions, send it to your local IRS director and let him figure it out.

Then he'll send you a bill if you still owe some tax or a refund if he finds you paid too much tax during the year.

If your income was over $5,000 but under $10,000—and you're using 1040A—you must compute your own tax from the tax-rate schedule on the instruction sheet.

In this case, if you find you still owe tax, you must send your IRS director a check. If you've overpaid your tax in 1958, he'll send you a refund.

If you have to use 1040 but your income was $5,000 and your deductions were under 10 per cent—if they were, of course, you don't have to itemize them—you can figure your own tax by using the tax-table on the instruction sheet.

But if your taxable income was $5,000 or more—whether you use 1040A or 1040—you must figure your own tax from the schedule which fits your case in the instruction sheet.

Delivered Baby Watching TV

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. James Smith delivered her own baby while watching an old movie on television in her living room.

"I'm feeling fine," she said Monday, two days after the event. "I plan to have all the rest of my children that way."

Mrs. Smith, 38, has three other children, all born in a hospital. She watched George Raft in "Lucky Nick Cain" throughout her labor while her husband slept in the next room. She woke him by pounding on the wall and presented him with an 8½ pound boy.

"Boss" W.M. Tweed, Tammany political leader in New York City, was convicted of fraud and sentenced to 12 years in prison in 1874.

Mrs. Capenart complimented the former members for the good work done in obtaining enough interested former club members for a club in the Bynum community. She also welcomed the 12 new members for the homemakers program. Reports were made on the recent banquet and training school.

A workshop on clothing construction was directed by the Home Agent.

The following Bynum club members will attend the State Council meeting in Raleigh March 25: Mrs. Amanda Jones, Mrs. Mattie Jefferson, Mrs. Mamie Davis, Mrs. Lillie Daniels, Mrs. Fabbie Parker and Mrs. Carrie Dixon.

The next meeting will be held April 10 at the home of Mrs. A. P. Bynum.

Rev. W. L. Jones, pastor of Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, announced that the official board will meet at the church Friday night at 7:30. Mr. Jones will officiate at the 11 a.m. services Sunday and preach his pre-Easter sermon, "The Third Day Will Come." Regular services will be held Sunday. The public is invited.

Boys Club Work Told To Legion

Organization and operation of the Wayne County Boys' Club was explained to members of Greenville Post 39 of the American Legion at a meeting of Legion members last night.

Executive Director Jack Hussey, Board of Directors Secretary F. W. Stanley Jr., and Program Director Troy W. Pate Jr. of Goldsboro traced development of the Wayne County Boys' Club at the meeting. Their appearance before the Legion was the second in a series of meetings at which Boys' Club activities were discussed.

Hussey, a former Coastal Plain League baseball star, told the group, "There is a need for a Boys' Club in any town. Every city has its juvenile delinquency problem and no single agency can cure it. However, in Goldsboro, we feel we are on our way in providing wholesome activities, with community effort and community organization behind us."

Pate, a graduate of East Carolina College, outlined the Wayne club's inside and outside programs, including recreation and special events for boys between eight and 18 years of age. Stanley, a Goldsboro businessman, traced development of the Wayne County Boys' Club from its beginning in 1946 to the present time.

The speakers were introduced by J. H. Rose, program chairman for the evening. Commander Ford McGowan presided.

Expected Select New Town Clerk By End Of Week

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners are expected to complete work this week on selection of a town clerk to succeed G. Cooper Grizzard whose resignation becomes effective March 31.

Grizzard, clerk since mid-December, resigned earlier this month when it was found he did not meet existing requirements for residence within Farmville's municipal limits. He was appointed to the office as successor to Cleveland Paylor who resigned in December to become office manager of a Greenville construction firm.

Mayor Charles S. Edwards said yesterday the board has received several applications for the position and expects to make a final decision by Friday.

Begin Hearing Evidence Today In Capital Case

Pitt County Superior Court today began hearing evidence in trial of a 23-year-old Greenville Negro charged with raping a seven-year-old child.

Facing the capital charge is Theodore Walton of 1301 West Third St. He was arraigned January 27 when he entered a plea of not guilty.

Walton is accused of raping Cynthia Anne Fleming, also Negro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Fleming of 1207 West Third St. The child was placed on the witness stand this morning.

According to police reports of the alleged assault, the child was said to have been assaulted at the home of Walton's sister, where Walton lives, on January 4.

A jury for the trial was drawn yesterday afternoon. Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, Jr., is being assisted in prosecuting the case by Eli Bloom, solicitor of Greenville Municipal Recorder's Court. M. E. Cavendish is Walton's attorney.

Judgments handed down by the court yesterday included: Leander Beamon, Negro, Route 2, Farmville, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, six months suspended for two years upon payment of $10 and costs, and good behavior for two years.

James Otis Haddock, Route 1, Vanceboro, operating a motor vehicle without proper equipment no lights or turn signals, $10 and costs.

Thomas Knight, Jr., Negro, Ayden, assault with a deadly weapon, jury verdict of not guilty.

Wilbur Phillips, Negro, Route 2, Ayden, public drunkenness, $10 and costs.

Robert Bruce Cox, Ayden, public drunkenness and public nuisance (two counts), 30 days on each count, to be served consecutively.

William Henry Payton, Negro, Winterville, forgery and uttering a forged check (three counts), 18 months on each count, to be served consecutively and to begin at expiration of a 2-to-3 year sentence imposed in Edgecombe County on a charge of forgery.

Bloom attended the University of North Carolina. He is married to the former Etta Feldman and they have one daughter. Bloom was born in Weldon and he has lived in Greenville for the past 30 years. The Blooms reside at 205 Harding St.

The two men were the second and third candidates to file for the May municipal elections.

Prior to yesterday, Charles M. King, a newcomer to local politics, paid his filing fee as a candidate for City Council.

Under a change in the city code, voted on by local citizens since the last election, a mayor will be elected by popular vote in the May 5 election. Four city councilmen will be elected from a separate slate of candidates.

Prospective candidates have a little more than two weeks in which to file for the election. The city code provides that candidates must file 30 days prior to the election.

This year the deadline will fall on April 4, a Saturday.

Severely Injured In 36-Foot Fall

Winston Cargile, former Robersonville businessman, fell 36 feet and was seriously injured Friday afternoon while working on a water tank at Portsmouth, Va.

In the fall Cargile broke both legs, his pelvis, his right arm and crushed one foot. He was taken to the De Paul Hospital in Norfolk.

Cargile moved to Portsmouth last fall with his wife and small son.

Mrs. Cargile is the former Miss Alberta Parkhurst of Robersonville.

TOASTMASTERS CLUB WILL MEET TONIGHT

The Toastmasters Club will meet tonight at 7:30. Persons interested in attending may call Jim Lee at PL 2-7444 or Tommy Finch at PL 2-7664.

Purpose of the Toastmasters is to train its members to speak in public and think on their feet.

Scout Committee Meets Monday

The Pitt District Committee of the Boy Scouts of America will meet on Monday night at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

According to Dr. Robert E. Wilfong, District Chairman, the meeting will begin at 7:45 p.m. and adjourn at 9:15. The attendance of all committee members is urged at this meeting, he said.
