Field Narrowed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—The field of 110 astronauts selected as potential U. S. space explorers has been narrowed to three dozen.

From the 36, a dozen are being chosen through further physical and psychological examinations.

From the 12 will come the nation's first space pilot, for Project Mercury. He will ride a rocket nose-cone into space and back again.

Who the men are is to remain a secret. In Washington, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, the nation's civilian space chief, has explained, "The final selections are a private privileged matter between the examining aero-medical specialists and the volunteers."

The 110 were selected, in the first place, several weeks ago according to requirements established by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's special advisory committee on life sciences.

That group is headed by Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace II, and part of the screening of the 36 has been undertaken at the Lovelace Foundation in Albuquerque.

Ike, Macmillan And Dulles Hold First Talk On Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan began their important talks on Berlin and German problems during a visit today with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

The two leaders and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd paid calls on the ailing Dulles en route to Camp David in the Maryland mountains where the talks will start in earnest later in the day.

The White House said the visit with Dulles was more than a courtesy call. Presidential Press Secretary James Hagerty said he assumed the half hour or so stop at Walter Reed involved "some preliminary discussions" of the desire for a firm Allied stand in the Berlin crisis.

At the rustic retreat in the Catoctin Mountains, about 65 miles from Washington, Eisenhower and Macmillan will plunge into detailed discussions which will keep them occupied through Sunday. Final talks probably will be held at the White House on Monday.

Working with each man were four advisers, including Acting Secretary of State Christian Her-ter and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

During the conferences, they will seek to reconcile conflicting views and develop a unified allied viewpoint for negotiating with the U.S.S.R.

Macmillan, arriving from Ottawa, called for the development of "common policies that combine firmness and reasonableness."

Among the chief Allied leaders—Macmillan, Eisenhower, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French President Charles de Gaulle—there was no evidence of any disagreement on the need for firmness in facing up to the Soviet challenger over Berlin.

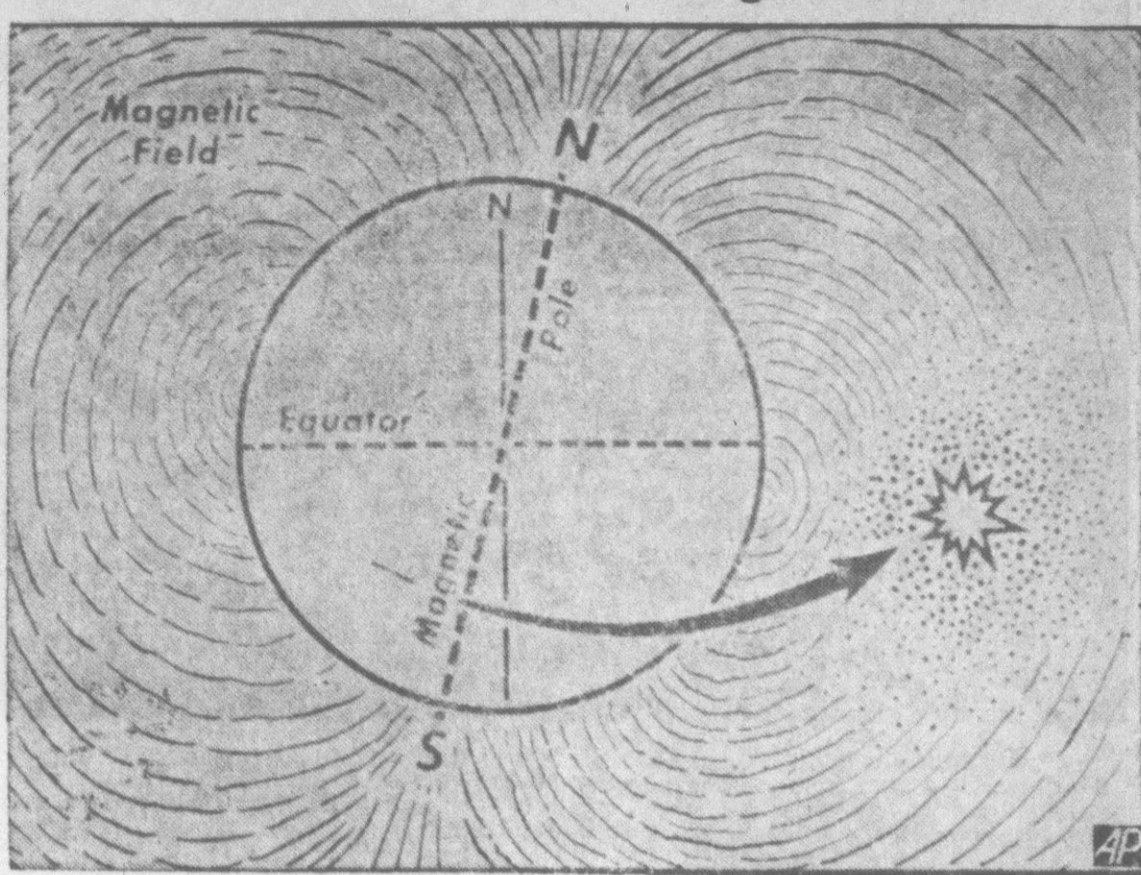

The governments of all four have proclaimed their intention to preserve their rights and their access to West Berlin under the threat of Communist blockade and the danger of war.

The split among the Allies appears to be caused rather by the question of what constitutes "reasonableness" in the preparation of proposals which they may present to the Soviet Union in a foreign ministers meeting in May.

One of the points at issue is a possibility of following up the foreign ministers session with a summit conference.

Macmillan is known to favor promising Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev a summit conference, probably in July, whereas Eisenhower and De Gaulle believe such a meeting should be made conditional on progress by the foreign

High Bomb Vs. Earth's Magnetic Field

This schematic drawing indicates the earth's magnetic field with symbol depicting a nuclear bomb exploding high in space, releasing countless electrons into space above earth's atmosphere. News of three such high-in-space explosions by the U. S. last fall brought word March 19 from Dr. Herbert York, director of Pentagon research, that trapping of these electrons by the earth's magnetic field created a great sheet circling the globe. Another official said these tests were an effort to spread a shield through which missile warheads could not fly. (AP Wirephoto)

Uniform Property Tax Assessment Bills Are Offered

RALEIGH (AP)—Bills to provide uniform assessment of property taxes in the 100 counties of North Carolina were introduced today in both houses.

The identical measure would carry out recommendations of the State Tax Study Commission. One bill would set up a uniform assessment plan, while the other would provide for systematic revaluation of property on an eight-year basis.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed a joint resolution to hold a joint session Monday evening to act on appointments by Gov. Hodges to the State Board of Higher Education.

The House-Senate session would be for the purpose of confirming Hodges' selection of Dallas Herring of Rose Hill and Mrs. Thomas R. Easterling of Rocky Mount for eight-year terms on the board.

On the committee front, approval of a broadening of the state's work release law was voted by the Senate Committee on Penal Institutions.

The Work-Release Bill, already passed by the House, likely will come up for final action in the Senate next week.

The bill would allow the plan to apply to prisoners serving terms of up to five years. It is now limited to misdemeanants serving two years or less.

Winter Prepares For Exit Today

Winter prepared for its exit today and its parting salute was a mixture of snow, gusty winds and cold from the Rockies into northern Midwest areas.

But, with spring due officially at 3:55 a.m. EST Saturday, the weather was in seasonal form in most areas in the eastern half of the country—fairly mild temperatures and showers in some sections. It was a little cool in the far Northwest and warm in the far South.

More rains kept the sun under cover in much of Florida, the so-called "sunshine state." It was the sixth straight day of wet weather in many areas. Forecasters didn't see much hope of dry weather before Saturday.

The rains have disrupted major league baseball exhibition games and other sports events. Floods have forced several families from homes in low lying areas.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, north-west Illinois and north central Kansas.

Strong winds fanned a stream of cold air through the West, spreading snow and rain showers over the mountain states. More than three inches of snow fell at both Lander and Cheyenne, Wyo., and more than two inches dampened Denver.

Henderson Mills Talk Set Today

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Under the watchful eyes of dozens of lawmen, resentful pickets and persistent non-strikers met each other again today as another work week neared its end in the taut-drawn, four-month strike at Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

At 2 p.m. today representatives of the company and the Textile Workers Union of America (TWUA) are to meet for another negotiating session—one which a union leader thinks can lead nowhere because "this company has no intention of settling this strike in a peaceful manner."

The president of the mills, however, said some progress was made at the session with federal and state mediators.

This morning the mediators conferred with Gov. Hodges after which the governor conferred with several state officials including Atty. Gen. Malcolm Seawell, Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt and SBI Director Walter Anderson. Patrol Lt. Dick Chadwick, in charge of the highway patrol contingent at Henderson, also attended.

Federal Mediator Yates Heafner said his group merely reported to the governor on the talks. Hodges' secretary, Ed Rankin, said the meeting with Seawell, Scheidt and the others was merely a regular conference that has become routine since violence erupted at the strike scene.

Thursday night, crowds of strikers roamed restlessly about through the streets, shouting "Scab!" outside the homes of non-strikers. Two dynamite blasts were set off. One was outside the vacant home of a worker who had fired on and wounded another man there whom he saw "trying to light something" Sunday night. The other explosion was not located.

At the police station, an assistant mill foreman, almost in tears, told officers the crowds were stoning homes of non-strikers. "I've got a wife and kids—one of them an epileptic who can't stand a lot of noise," he said tightly. "I'm not going to stand for this. I'll kill somebody first."

Boyd E. Payton, Carolina director for the TWUA, told reporters after Thursday's negotiations that "My optimism is gone. This company has no intention of settling

Claim Valued Information In Sky-High Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—America's spectacular high altitude nuclear blasts produced valuable information for both military men and scientists, officials say.

But they are talking only in general terms about knowledge gained from the three space explosions late last summer which sent a maze made electronic sheet around the world.

After the high-hush tests became known, Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald Quarles told a news conference Thursday:

1. The world's first known nuclear blasts in space helped the national security.

2. The tests advanced the basis of knowledge required to develop antimissile missiles; they produced results that will be used in perfecting radar systems needed to put an antimissile missile on course; they gave information to back up the Nike-Zeus antimissile now under development.

3. The explosions 300 miles above the South Atlantic will help U.S. offensive weapons.

Questions about the "how" of these statements got no answers. Pentagon officials, however, indicated knowledge that certain radio frequencies and electromagnetic impulses would be interrupted by high altitude radiation.

The tests indicated a sort of electronic veil can be thrown around the earth to cut radar and radio reception. This might make it possible to knock out a nation's early warning system by nuclear blasts on the edges of space. Even if the invisible veil lasted only hours, it would be long enough to hide the rapid advance of attacking missiles or bombers.

On the other hand, some sources had suggested a high nuclear blast could release enough radiation to make a dud of an enemy nuclear bomb. But many physicists doubt this is even a possibility.

Nonmilitary results of the tests eventually will be made public. Nine ships of a special Navy task force took part in the secret project known as Argus. They included the aircraft carrier Task Force 43 and four destroyers. The 57-foot-long rockets that jabbed into space with their atomic payload were launched from the converted seaplane tender Norton Sound last Aug. 27, Aug. 30 and Sept. 6. Loaded with electronic devices, the seaplane tender Albemarle recorded the experiments. Space observations on the blasts and their effects were relayed back by the Army's Explorer IV satellite and by Air Force Jason rockets carrying radiation measuring devices.

Quarles said news of the tests had been kept secret for security reasons and to give scientists time to prepare their reports.

The Argus tests stemmed from an idea by Nicholas C. Christofilos, a physicist with the Atomic Energy Commission Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif. His theory was that if high energy electrons were put outside the earth's atmosphere but within the magnetic field, the particles would stay trapped for minutes, days or years—depending on the energy used.

Gore says plan would blind many people. NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) says that nuclear bombs exploded over cities by antimissile defense "would result in total blindness in the eyes of countless persons."

Gore said this was demonstrated by the Argus Project tests in the Pacific, in which atomic bombs were set off 300 miles above the earth.

Rabbits carried in exposed places on ships underneath the bombs in the tests were, in some cases, blinded by severe burns in the retinae of their eyes, the senator said.

For humans, he added, "this would mean total blindness to people from the spot under the explosion."

Gore, a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, spoke at a meeting of the Rotary Club here Thursday.

Soiree Gets Out Of Hand When Not-So-Juvenile Revel Staged

LONDON (AP)—Nearly 200 not so juvenile society delinquents threw a drunken brawl in a London subway train Thursday night, but apparently nobody got arrested.

The revelers included debutantes, models, young Guards officers, university undergraduates and members of titled and socialite families.

The mob swarmed into a compartment of a train in the fashionable Chelsea district, armed with bottles, glasses and 35-cent tickets for a 15-mile, 50-minute round trip.

Bewildered passengers—including an elderly parson—escaped as soon as possible, but not before a homeward bound businessman parked his umbrella, doffed his bowler hat and floored an unruly party boy with an uppercut.

The shouting, fighting and drinking continued from station to station. Subway police chucked out a dozen or so of the unruliest at each station, but some got back into other cars.

At Baker Street the police made a determined assault and chased 50 squealing girls along the platform and up the stairs. Someone pulled the emergency cord. Police struggles with the partygoers held it up at other points.

Survivors who made it back to Chelsea roared out into the street, leaving the train littered with empty bottles and broken glasses.

The determined little band wound its way to an apartment and switched to pajamas.

Neighbors called the cops to stop the noise. The party adjourned to another apartment, and stragglers who caught up were told they couldn't get in without pajamas.

"Let's just strip," said a burly netter, starting to take off her jacket.

"I say, steady on, old girl," said her escort, a Guards officer.

She steadied.

Once more the police rolled up in answer to neighbors' complaints. Again the party moved on, but its further route was not chronicled.

"I had a funny feeling something would go wrong," complained Maureen (Biddy) Lyle-Purdy, 24, a half-sister of Lady Sordale and the organizer of the soiree.

Hospital Board Keeps Officers

Officers of the Board of Trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital were re-elected to new one-year terms at the trustees' annual meeting this week.

Officers re-elected include Chairman Jesse R. Moye of Greenville, Vice-Chairman W. A. Allen of Farmville, Secretary Carson R. Jones of Falkland, and treasurer David A. Evans of Greenville.

Committees selected for the year include Executive Committee: Jesse R. Moye, W. A. Allen, W. I. Bissette, Carson R. Jones and Walter L. Stroud; Finance Committee: David A. Evans, J. B. Congleton, Jr., W. Leslie Eiks, S. C. Ives and Jesse R. Moye; Auditing Committee: J. Ed Waldrop, J. B. Congleton, Jr., and C. M. Smith; and Building and Grounds Committee: Wayland L. Hunsucker, Mrs. J. P. Davenport, Sr., Bruce Strickland, McAlvin Turner, L. C. Venters and Arthur Williams.

At the meeting, the trustees also heard a report from Administrator C. D. Ward on increases in hospital business during the past year. Ward also compared statistics of operations with statistics from past years.

Thursday night, crowds of strikers roamed restlessly about through the streets, shouting "Scab!" outside the homes of non-strikers. Two dynamite blasts were set off. One was outside the vacant home of a worker who had fired on and wounded another man there whom he saw "trying to light something" Sunday night. The other explosion was not located.

permitted last night's action by the board provides that court action may be taken against funeral directors and others not complying with the laws.

Board Chairman R. L. Martin, Dr. Charles Fitzgerald and Dr. Mills were named members of the board's Budget Committee, which will prepare a tentative budget for 1959-1960 fiscal year operations. The committee's report is to be submitted to the Board of Health for action prior to April 15 when departmental budget requests are to be submitted to the Board of County Commissioners.

Employment of Inez Chandler as a public health nurse to replace Doris Parker was authorized by the board. The new nurse is to begin her duties April 1.

Approval for employment of the new nurse was granted after salary increases were approved for three other nurses who are presently in the same classification. The increases will bring salaries paid the nurses up to minimum levels established by the North Carolina Merit System Council.

The board rejected requests for employment of a part-time psychologist for the Mental Health Service and for employment of a bacteriologist. The proposal for a part-time psychologist was turned down because it would require a rate of pay higher than established appropriations for the job, and the proposal for a bacteriologist was rejected for lack of funds.

Dr. Fitzgerald told the board, however, that his laboratory would be available on an emergency basis for use in culture work and other functions of a bacteriologist.

All members of the board were present for the meeting. They are Chairman Martin, Dr. Fitzgerald, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, D. H. Conley, Snodde Edwards, Vance Bunting, and S. Eugene West. Dr. Mills, secretary to the board, was also present.

This School Fire Will Be Planned, Children Safe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Fire! The school's on fire!

A cry to rip at a town's heart, to bring hysteria and heartbreak. Next month an old school building—a regular fire trap—will go up in flames while firemen stand by and watch. They'll put the torch to it themselves.

What happens then could save your child's life. This will be one school fire that was planned ahead of time. Flames will roar up drafty open stairways, through transoms. They'll lick through wooden floors in a three-story school considered a potential death trap—a school a lot like those still filling with youngsters five days a week in some places.

Fire experts from over the nation will be watching the unusual experiment. It was born after Chicago's tragic school fire last Dec. 2 killed 91 persons, mostly children.

The Los Angeles Fire Department wants to see just what happens when flames sweep through an old building. The firemen also want to try various ways of stopping the fire.

For that purpose, they're installing automatic sprinkler systems in some sections, also thickers transoms and doors in some classrooms.

Inspections this year, touched off by the Chicago fire, showed many fire hazards in Los Angeles private and public schools. Some were easily corrected; some have caused buildings to be condemned. The test building, Robert Louis Stevenson Junior High School, was abandoned because of foundation flaws. It is more than 30 years old.

"Operation school fire," starts April 11. At least 14 separate fires, sealed off from one another, are planned.

Fire officials feel it will take much of the guess work out of school safety precautions.

They think, too, it will help them save lives when somebody shouts: "The school's on fire!"

Three Girls Rob Wife Of Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wife of Pulitzer Prize-winning author Edgar Ansel Mowrer was thrown to the ground Thursday by three teen-age girls and robbed of her purse containing $17.

Mrs. Mowrer, who is 67 and also a writer, suffered a broken nose and a sprained wrist. She was released after treatment at a hospital.

Mrs. Mowrer said she was walking along a bridge path in the rear of the Shoreham Hotel when she was accosted by three Negro girls.

She said the girls shoved and tripped her and she sprawled headlong. They fled after grabbing her purse.

Neighbors called the cops to stop the noise. The party adjourned to another apartment, and stragglers who caught up were told they couldn't get in without pajamas.

"Let's just strip," said a burly netter, starting to take off her jacket.

"I say, steady on, old girl," said her escort, a Guards officer.

Begin Planning Dedication Mental Health Wing

Preliminary planning for dedication of the Pitt County Health Department's mental health wing was begun last night by members of the county Board of Health.

Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville is scheduled to be principal speaker at the ceremonies. No date for the dedication has been set, although the board tentatively agreed to hold the ceremonies sometime during the month of May.

In line with the proposed dedication, the board passed a resolution requesting the Board of County Commissioners to appropriate funds for a bronze plaque signifying that the wing was constructed in memory of the late Dr. Walter C. Humbert.

The board also gave its approval to a change in the county milk ordinance, adopted in 1955, which will permit sale of fortified Grade A skimmed milk within the county. The amendment stipulates that milk referred to is that to which 2,000 U. S. P. units of Vitamin A and 400 U. S. P. units of Vitamin D have been added to each quart by a method approved by the State Commissioner of Agriculture.

The amendment also provides that assays of vitamin content in such milk are to be made at least once every six months, at the expense of processors. Copies of the assays are to be submitted to the Health Department.

Also approved by the board was a request from Dr. Georgia V. Mills, health director, that state Vital Statistics laws be enforced in the county. The action provides that signed death certificates must be presented to either Dr. Mills or the Health Department's deputy registrar for vital statistics in return for a burial transit permit.

Under existing laws, no body is to be removed from the county, cremated, buried or otherwise disposed of without a burial transit

Gardening Today

By JOHN G. DUNCAN

"How much will it cost?" These five words are used as much or more than any group of words in the English language. And upon the answer given determines the flow of business.

After your house is built, if you are like most people, you have to think quite a bit before you buy anything for the yards or grounds around the house. The cost, of course, depends on what you want. Not only what you want, but patience, and patience depends upon age (in most cases). The young can wait, the old don't want to, and the rich don't have to.

If you start your planting with a few shrubs or trees of the small sizes, the cost, of course, is less. Plan it out in steps—so much this year—so much and so on until you have what you want. In this way the cost is spread over a period of time.

For an immediate effect, larger and more costlier shrubs or trees are used. Immediate in the sense the picture is more advanced. Smaller and freer shrubs may seem lost around a home, but in a short time they will fit the need. Of course, the picture can be painted, all but the mellow of time, by use of large specimen trees and shrubs.

A few small shrubs and trees that in time will give the desired effect seem to be the logical start. If you want the work done by a landscape contractor or nurseryman, tell him how much you want to spend and let him help you in putting this money to its best use.

Recent Bride Feted

Mrs. William Crenshaw, a recent bride, was guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. F. R. Atkinson Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Crenshaw was presented a white corsage and a gift of china in her chosen pattern.

The 45 guests were welcomed by Mrs. B. C. McGee and introduced to the receiving line which was composed of Mrs. Marguerite Vanderlock Crenshaw, Mrs. Willie Stotts, Mrs. Donald Eastmon, mother of the bride, and the honoree, Mrs. Crenshaw.

Guests were invited into the dining room by the hostess where a pink and white color theme was used.

Coffee and tea were poured by Mrs. Gordon Goodman and the guests served themselves to pink and white petits-fours, dainty sandwiches, mints and toasted nuts. The appointed table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered by a pink and white flower arrangement.

Assisting in serving was Miss Ann Elizabeth Atkinson and Miss Joanna Goodman.

Spring Revival

The Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church will begin its Spring revival Sunday night. The revival will continue through March 28. Rev. Jack Paramore will be the guest evangelist. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.

Clubs Hold Joint Meeting

Mrs. Herbert Hadley and Mrs. Morgan Fambrough entertained their respective book clubs at the home of the latter recently.

Mrs. Fambrough's club, the Glio, held a short business meeting in the music room. Miss Jane Hadley, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. S. Best. In the living room Mrs. J. A. Collins Jr. presided over the business meeting of the Lector club. After the business meetings, both clubs joined to hear Mrs. J. B. Spelman give a review of Max Shulman's "Rally Round the Flag, Boys."

At the conclusion of the program books were exchanged. Then the guests were invited into the dining room where a crab creole, salad and coffee were served. Mrs. W. J. Stell and Mrs. J. A. Collins Jr. presided over an appointed table decorated with spring flowers and shamrock.

Special guests for the afternoon were Mesdames W. J. Bundy, W. F. Young, R. H. Gaskins, W. R. Perkins and J. L. Winstead.

Nineteen students copped first, second, or third place ratings Tuesday at Rose High's Science Fair. These fifteen winning projects competed with approximately 400 projects to win.

Joe Upchurch and George Hazleton won first place in the physics division with their electrical discharge tube; Andrew Kilpatrick, in the biological division with photomicrography; and Anne Briley, in the chemistry division with a project on hydrocarbon.

In the junior division, judges chose six winners, but designated no first place titles. Winners and their projects included Sara Oakley, an anemometer; George Van Norwick, distillation; Judy Tripp and Janice Laughter, electroplating; and Buddy Bass, Hero's Steam Engine.

Stuart Ficklen's electromagnet and Lanny Smith's Tesla Coil also won in this division.

The following projects placed second in their divisions: Jimmy Jenkin's crystals, chemistry; Lawrence Behr's Tesla Coil, Physics; and Nell Davis' photosynthesis exhibit, biology.

Two projects tied in each category for third place, as follows: Jane Reynold's color scheme work and George Mayo's radio transmitter, physics; Sally Ross Simpson's fertilizer experiment and Gene Davenport's on mouthwashes, chemistry; and Steven Humbert's "Regeneration of Planana," and Eddie Harrington's "Hydra," biology.

Dr. Grover Everett and J.G. Boyette, from East Carolina College's Science Department, and Farmville High School's science teacher judged the school fair. Judging criteria included creative ability and scientific thought, thirty possible points each; and thoroughness, skill, clarity, and dramatic value, ten possible points each.

Science teachers required all of their students to submit a project to the fair. Approximately 112 of all the exhibits belonged to the junior division; Odell Welborn's physical science students submitted those.

Welborn sponsored a junior division for last year, but this is the senior division's first year. He states that this year's fair is much better than last year's.

The science instructors plan to make the school fair a yearly project.

The 18 Rose High winners will receive award pins at a presently undesignated meeting of the Science Club.

On April 3, all first and second place winners in the senior division and the six junior fair winners will enter the District Science Fair, East Carolina College. Dr. Everett directs this fair.

Each district contestant will receive a certificate of participation, and each winner, a seal of merit. The three junior division winners in each category will receive a medal.

District winners will advance to the North Carolina State Fair, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, April 17 and 18. This state's winners will compete with those from other states in the National Science Fair, Hartford, Connecticut, during May, 1959.

District, state, and national judges will use the same system judging that the judges for the high school fair used.

Buys 13 Minutes Of Radio Silence

RIPLEY, Tenn. (AP)—A business man who doesn't like rock 'n' roll music bought 15 minutes of radio time Thursday and devoted almost all of it to silence.

James W. Porter began his quarter-hour on Station WTRB by shattering several records and then proposing a "National Can the Racket League." Announced Porter:

"Friends, are you tense, nervous, jittery? Chances are you are overturned. You may have tried other stations without success, but now we offer you an amazing new discovery—instant silence."

Thirteen minutes of silence followed except for two breaks to reassure listeners their radios didn't need repair.

John Stewart, WTRB manager, said telephone callers were 100 per cent against the silence.

Wrote Of Fears For His Life

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—One month before he died in a blazing gun battle, Barney Silva wrote a letter saying he feared for his life.

"I, Barney Silva, consider this man, John Sorin, a direct threat to my life," were his words.

Silva and Sorin shot each other to death early Wednesday in the home of Sorin's cousin, Dorothy Chesler, 30, of Hollywood.

Sorin, 47, had gone to the house to urge his cousin to return to her husband. An argument started when he found Silva there.

Silva's letter, intended as a will, was written Feb. 16. Silva's widow, Leola, 37, submitted it to Superior Court Thursday.

Full name of Roman emperor Nero was Lucius Domitius Ahenobarbus Claudius Drusus.

Money Worries, Robbed A Bank

KRUM Tex. (AP)—Charles Roy McCrory, 19, worried because his sharecropper family's tractor was repossessed, robbed the Farmers & Merchants State Bank here Thursday without a gun.

An alert Texas highway patrolman arrested him an hour later as McCrory filled the gas tank of a pickup truck he used as a getaway vehicle.

Police who followed highway patrolman Claud Hogue into the filling station at his radio summons pulled $1,865 from the vehicle's glove compartment. Krum is about 35 miles northwest of Dallas.

All the money was recovered, police said. Dist. Atty. Robert Caldwell Jr., who filed charges of armed bank robbery against the pleasant-mannered robber, said the charges may have to be modified because McCrory had no gun.

McCrory, smiling and joking with his captors, told them he handed a note to Mrs. Ruth Hilliard, cashier of the bank, which read:

"I want to borrow $2,000 for two years. Give me all your $5, $10, and $20 bills. My looks is my security."

"When she put her hand into the drawer," he laughed, "I thought she was going for a gun and she nearly scared the living daylight out of me." McCrory said he stayed up late Wednesday night trying to figure a way to get money to regain a tractor that had been repossessed. He said he farmed near Boyd, in adjoining Wise County, with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McCrory. He said he decided then to rob the Krum bank.

An Absurdity In Dictating 'News'

It is ridiculous indeed for the government to seek to expand to news casts the "equal time" regulation governing radio and television stations in their allotment of free time for political candidates, or controversial issues.

Under the FCC "equal time" regulation a station cannot give free time to one candidate to express his views without providing his opponents an equal amount of time to express their views or reply to challenges. Such a rule in itself is fair, reasonable and equitable.

But the recent ruling which says this same philosophy must also apply in the presentation of the news over radio or TV is utterly ridiculous. It cannot and should not be tolerated.

In the last presidential election, for example, there were at least a half-dozen candidates for the presidency. In their coverage of the campaign radio and television stations—and newspapers also—devoted most of their news attention to the candidates of the two major political parties. They were the ones in which the vast majority of the people were interested. Most of the other candidates few people ever heard of anyway, and if they had it wouldn't have made any difference.

If the "equal time" regulation is to apply to news casts it will mean one of two choices for radio and television—either they will have to cease any coverage of politics or they will have to devote about all their air time to candidates.

Obviously neither course is practical. Furthermore, the gesture toward imposing the "equal time" regulation on radio and TV news broad-

Buck-Passing In Passing Laws

By LYNN NISBET
BUCK-PASSING — The General Assembly is notorious for passing laws adding duties to State offices without making appropriations for the additional work. It also has a tendency to pass local governments an increasing share of the work required for State department statistics.

A Senate committee was discussing a Judicial Council bill that would require clerks of superior court to furnish the Chief Justice more complete reports on court terms for criminal cases. Presently the clerks furnish such information to the Attorney General, while sending civil statistics to the Chief Justice. Question was asked why the two State agencies could not exchange information.

Sen. Spencer Bell, chairman of the committee which spent three years studying courts, observed that his group found that many of the reports were inaccurate and inadequate, largely because clerks in most instances did not have staff or time to handle the details. The committee gave the bill a favorable report. If it passes it will add work to the clerks of court offices in every county—and make the job at State level easier.

Similar objection was raised to another bill permitting probation officers to bring violators into superior court in the county where apprehended, rather than in the county where the original probation was entered. The probation folks said it would save them a lot of trouble and expense. Sen. Wilbur Jolly suggested that it also would impose expense and hardship on the defendant who might have to transport witnesses across the state. The bill was amended to permit any judge on his own motion to transfer the case, and to make such transfer mandatory if requested by the defendant.

STATE LANDS — Everybody knows that the State of North Carolina owns a lot of land. Nobody knows just how much or just where it is located. Total acreage involved in State owned forests and parks, campuses at State supported correctional, educational and hospital institutions is extensive. This acreage is small in total area to the aggregate acreage of marsh, swamp and water-bottom lands for which title is vested in the State.

The Department of Administration has solicited and obtained co-operation of the State Bar Association in a program of title-checking to ascertain and tabulate State holdings in each of the 100 counties.

This is the first time such a statewide check-up on land has been undertaken. There have been other tabulations for limited areas. Unfortunately, much of the previous investigations had little value because results were largely ignored by succeeding administrations. For example: It was stated last year that there had never been any survey or analysis of State owned property made. Then Secretary of State Thad Eure, clearing out an old file case cluttered with material accumulated before he took office 22 years ago, found a list of State-owned real estate in Wake and adjoining counties, which had been compiled in the early 1930's—and forgotten or ignored ever since.

The main reason for ascertaining what real estate is owned by North Carolina is to determine what use should be made of it, if it should be sold for private development or held for possible future needs of the State.

MANAGEMENT — A bill sponsored by the Government Reorganization Committee is pending in the Legislature to give the Department of Administration almost complete control over management of State-owned lands—including of land for any State agency. The bill would not change present requirements that no State lands can be sold without approval of the Council of State and signature of the Governor on the deed.

Some officials and members of boards charged with responsibility for operating agencies and institutions fear that provisions of the bill may leave them in the dark about land deals affecting them until they read in newspapers accounts that the deal had been consummated.

A good deal of publicity has been given the fact that budget recommendations for removal of the school for the blind in West Raleigh had not been discussed with trustees of that institution. As some officials interpret the bill there is the fact that the trustees of the school for the blind were not consulted about the proposed abandonment of the present plant and building another some miles away. A member of the Board of Agriculture said "If it can happen to them, it could happen to us—and we don't like it."

It is hardly conceivable that such action would be taken. But there is the fact that the trustees of the school for the blind were not consulted about the proposed abandonment of the present plant and building another some miles away. A member of the Board of Agriculture said "If it can happen to them, it could happen to us—and we don't like it."

casts is, in our opinion, an abridgment of the right of a free press guaranteed in the constitution.

Television and radio have, in our opinion, done a conscientious and objective job of covering political news in the past. We do not believe they have used their news casts to benefit this candidate or that. They have presented political news fairly and on the basis of its merit.

For a federal regulatory agency to step in now and dictate what news must be carried and how it can be carried by these mass communication media is indeed a threat to the very foundation of our democratic government.

An Old Law Left Bad Taste, And It Lingers

A good many people in North Carolina will agree with the assertion of Motor Vehicle Commissioner Scheidt that a mechanical inspection law for the state is inevitable.

A great many more people, however, would also point out that a compulsory mechanical inspection law in North Carolina still is a long way in the future.

Why such an attitude on the part of safety conscientious Tar Heels?

Simply because the state had a mechanical inspection law almost a decade ago that was completely unsatisfactory. It lasted one year and was promptly killed by the legislature. Since that time the people of the state and the legislature, have been dead set against compulsory inspection of motor vehicles. They have the idea that any new law concerning mechanical inspection will be as bad as the first one North Carolina had.

Justified or not, such an attitude prevails in North Carolina. The bad taste left by the old law prevents a new, practical law on mechanical inspection from being passed. And it probably will be years yet before the recollections of the inconvenience caused by the old law fade sufficiently to pave the way for passage of a new mechanical inspection law for motor vehicles.

Obviously such a law would enhance the highway safety program of the state. It would remove mechanically unsound vehicles from the highways, reduce accidents and the accompanying property loss, injuries and fatalities. All of these things most North Carolina favor.

But they still cannot be themselves to endorse another law which would require mechanical inspection of motor vehicles.

North Carolina's experience with mechanical inspection for motor vehicles is a vivid example of what can happen to a good idea when it is written into a poor state law . . . and how the poor law, once put into effect, may impede progress for a decade or more.

Fullbright Voice Is Heard Again

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright held his tongue for a short time after becoming chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But now he's in good voice again.

The 53-year-old Democrat from Arkansas has been for years perhaps the most constant and biting critic of the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy.

His particular target used to be the now-ailing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. But since Dulles had to step aside, perhaps permanently, to fight cancer, Fulbright has offered no direct criticism of him.

But he is still banging at the administration.

A few criticisms give a sample of his style: Last year he called on President Eisenhower to abandon "sugar-coated half-truths" that have made us "fat and immobile in the past five years." Again, last year, he urged a sweeping revision of American foreign policy to stop what he called a "drift to disaster." He called our foreign policy "inadequate, outmoded and misdirected."

The chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee is one of the most important and powerful in Congress. For a brief period after becoming chairman Fulbright remained fairly mild, limiting himself more or less to suggestions.

One of his suggestions once got him in bad with former President Truman. That was in 1946 when the Republicans won control on Congress and Fulbright suggested Truman resign.

In his mild period this year Fulbright cautioned his fellow senators who were demanding drastic action in the Berlin crisis that the President has the "basic responsibility — and authority — for our foreign policy."

He added "No football team can expect to win a game with every man his own quarterback."

He did express hope that President Eisenhower and the State Department would stand up against Republican political pressure in picking ambassadors. And he even suggested to the administration whom it should name secretary of state if Dulles couldn't return. He proposed the job go to Under Secretary Christian Herter.

But the Senator, who had been a football player, president of the University of Arkansas, and a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, picked up speed as the weeks passed and he settled down in his job as chairman.

Although Eisenhower has been very critical of even one more summit conference with Premier Nikita Khrushchev, last Saturday Fulbright proposed summit conferences should become a regular thing, held "maybe twice a year."

He said "maybe one of these days" will come to have a little confidence in one matter and a little understanding.

Two nights later Eisenhower, in his nationwide broadcast, made headlines around the world by expressing willingness for a summit conference this summer if first the foreign ministers show signs of progress to make a summit worthwhile.

Fulbright also proposed eventual pullback of Western and Soviet troops in Europe — after negotiations, of course. Pullback has been called by another name: disengagement.

The idea of disengagement previously had been ridiculed by Fulbright's fellow Democrat and expert on foreign affairs, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The words pullback and disengagement have become for some people synonymous with retreat and appeasement. But Fulbright has said disengagement shouldn't be confused with appeasement. He said he sees no particular virtue in the "status quo."

Wednesday Fulbright let go at the administration in his old style. He said his handling of foreign aid indicates it is "unaware of the depth and scope of the Soviet challenge."

He said "I believe that the people of America will rise to the needs of our situation if they are clearly told what is at stake."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
QUITTERS NEVER WIN

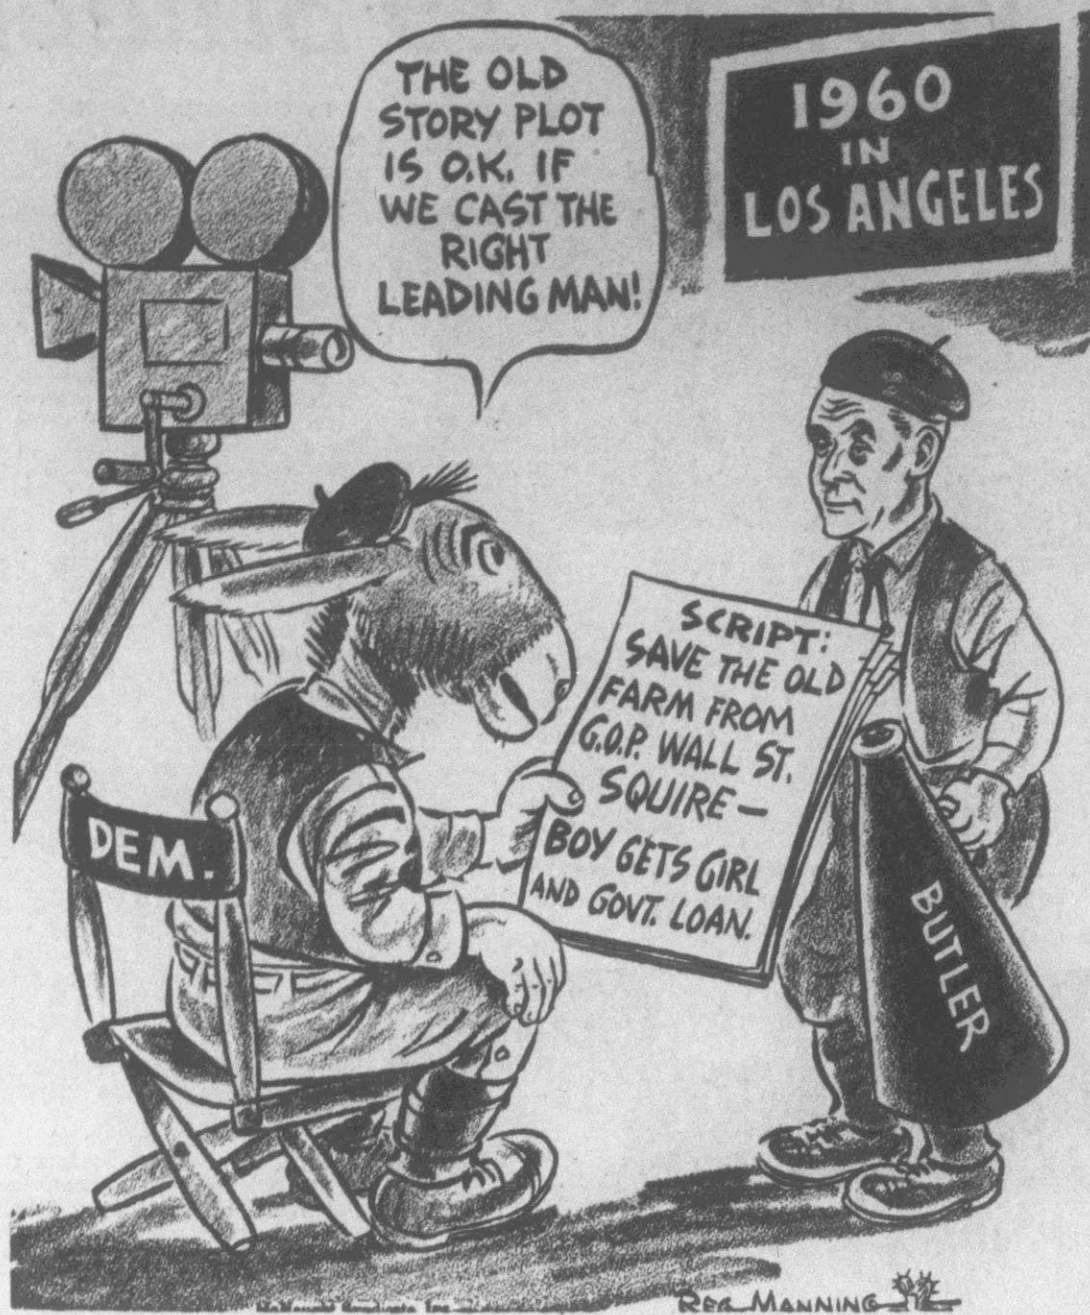

A sage of the last century, the Swiss philosopher Henri Frederic Amiel, once wrote, "He who does not advance, falls back; he who stops is overwhelmed, distanced, crushed. He who ceases to grow greater, becomes smaller; he who leaves off, gives up. The stationary condition is the beginning of the end — it is the terrible symptom which precedes death. To live is to achieve a perpetual triumph."

It is a good thing for us all to be reminded once in a while that no matter how much or how little we have accomplished, we still must keep on trying to accomplish more. As we get older, in fact, we are likely to realize how much we accomplished yesterday does not really matter greatly. What matters is how much we are willing to try to do today.

During World War II the doctors discovered the interesting fact that many wounded soldiers who got up and walked around recovered faster than those who stayed in bed. Life means motion; and the person who still keeps going is the one who is living and really getting something out of life.

A sign on the wall of the local high school reminds the youngsters daily of this important principle of living: "Quitters never win, and winners never quit."

The Publicity Chairman

Some clubs appoint "publicity chairmen"; others simply ask someone to write up a report on the meeting "for the paper". But however casually the selection is made, the job carries with it more responsibility than ordinarily meets the eye.

For in effect the publicity chairman's job is to earn favorable recognition for his or her organization from the community at large or a sizeable segment thereof.

Big business firms hire experts in that same field. They call them "public relations experts", and public relations has in itself become a big business. Their importance is reflected by the fancy prices they command for services rendered. Publicity chairmen among the clubs operate in a smaller field, but their role is largely the same; and their value is largely overlooked.

The basic working item for a publicity chairman is his or her organization's meetings. Some reflect a great deal of diligence on this, others miss the boat. I cite some instances of missing the boat. For instance, there are occasional write-ups concerning a meeting held a week or two weeks ago; and the writer wants it printed right away. Which, of course, raises the delicate question of how old news stories can be and still be news.

Then there's the matter of names. The writer may have a story to tell and "Mrs. Jones" did this, and "Mrs. Smith" said that. But no first names mentioned anywhere . . . which wrecks a good deal.

Another handicap editors sometimes encounter is the absence of "Miss" or "Mrs." preceding a name.

As for the basic format of writing up a club meeting, the thing to keep in mind is that the story is not being prepared for members of the club but for thousands of potential readers who may, or may not be interested depending largely on whether the story has something of interest to them.

Of course writing in the first person is not for news stories. "He" did it, "She" said it, "They" plan to do it; but never "I," "We" or "Our."

People who mail or bring contributions to a newspaper office may be sometimes dismayed at the "re-write" job done on their work. They shouldn't be; not really. For not only was the news of sufficient value to warrant carrying the story, but someone took the time and effort to present it in accepted journalistic form.

All this isn't—the usual way things work out for us; I'm just underscoring the occasional things editors encounter, to illustrate that the publicity chairman's job is no cinch.

Newspapers, everywhere, rely heavily on the dozens of conscientious souls who credibly hold down the unfamiliar and part-time role of club public relations officer.

It isn't an easy row to hoe.

Other Editors Saying . . . Hope Springs Eternal

(Waynesboro News-Virginian) Sports fans being what they are, there are some people who imagine that for six dark months a year television offers merely pictures of empty baseball parks. For such folk there is a lifting of the heart these days.

The arctic blast still are sweeping around the fabled battlefields, Yankee stadium, Braves field, etc., but in the sunny spots the liniment in flowing, muscles are unknicking, the brash kids are trying to jar a few old birds loose from their perches and take over.

Shortly that most fascinating of all statistical tables, the box score, will reappear in the news pages, and life once again will begin to take on a definitive look.

Labor and management will go on endlessly arguing wages and profits. Government will mire itself as always in debate and sheer blather. But in the ball park you'll get action — and a result. Not a bad antidote for the uncertainties we live with in so many other realms.

EARN WHAT YOU WANT (Orangeburg (S.C.) Times and Democrat)

regard people as people and not as geese to be plucked, he may say:

"While you're in our state, you'll want to be protected against thieves and swindlers. You'll want protection against being overcharged in certain places.

"You'll want to use the highways, the streets and the parks. You'll want a public ambulance if you are injured. You'll want treatment in a hospital. You'll want the right to use our courts if you are wronged.

"You'll want pure, not polluted, air. You'll want safe drinking water, pure milk, clean food. You'll want fire escapes on your hotel, you'll want the people who cook and handle your food to be certified free of disease."

A BARGAIN, YET Then he may continue: "All these things cost money. At $3.50 a day, these services are a bargain."

You may protest: "But when I'm in your state I'll be paying taxes on gas and cigarettes. On the price of everything I buy there will be some built-in taxes."

"True," he may reply, "you pay some taxes, but not enough. Even at $3.50 a day, we risk losing money on you. Next year the rate may go up to $5.50."

There will be some trouble where people commute across state lines every day. Perhaps states can set up monthly commutation tax rates, charging commuters only 40 per cent of the regular rate because they won't need those services at night or during weekends.

Fantastic? Not a bit. HIGH COURT DECISION The United States Supreme Court, in the Northwestern and Stockholm Valve cases, recognized the right of states to tax out-of-state corporations when they do business in the taxing states. This ruling did not cover

Walks In His Wake

By HAL BOYER

NEW YORK (AP) — R isn't easy to follow in the footsteps of a famous father.

But at 24, Richard Zanuck has taken his first big stride.

His dad, Darryl F. Zanuck, has supervised more than 1,000 films, three times won the Irving Thalberg award, Young Zanuck, vice president of his father's independent company, has just finished producing his first picture.

Dick, a short athletic man whose best mustache makes him look younger than his years, is aware of both the perils and privileges of his name.

"I realize the chances of my doing what I'm doing now would be a lot smaller if I weren't the son of Darryl Zanuck," he said. "But I haven't experienced any resentment on the part of others. There would be if I abused the opportunities, or if I didn't do a good job."

Dick is reasonably sure he did do a good job in his initial venture as a producer. He brought the picture in at $1,250,000 — some $100,000 under budget—and shot it in 27 days, five under schedule.

"It was an enthusiastic group, down to the last man," he said. Dick isn't a bit bashful about admitting he sought the elder Zanuck's help.

Dick has worked in every branch of the movie industry. "I can't remember ever wanting to be in any other field," he said.

"I was raised around the studio and started selling newspapers there when I was 8. I also worked on the labor gang, in the story department, and in the advertising department."

Dick expects to stick to the producer's role, and has no present desire to direct.

Young Zanuck is strongly optimistic of film's future, feels certain the advent of pay television will boom it tremendously.

"There is a lot of gloom in the industry," he said. "It is sad to see, but I don't know what it is all about. There is too much fear."

"Pictures today — The big pictures—are turning in the biggest grosses in history. The biggest need of the industry is to make more pictures for the present audience—which is the younger generation."

"Seventy-five per cent of movie fans are under 21. A lot of people lose sight of that."

Jesus on the Cross

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 23:18-49

On a feast day, a man was to be released from prison. Pontius Pilate wanted to release Jesus, but the multitude wanted it to be Barabbas, a murderer. They repeated that Christ should be crucified.—Luke 23:18-21.

Pilate said he had found no fault in Jesus, and would therefore chastise Him and let Him go. The crowd insisted that Barabbas be released and Jesus die, and finally Pilate let them have their way.—Luke 23:22-24.

As Christ was led away, those guarding Him "Laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus."—Luke 23:26.

In the crowd following Jesus were many women who were weeping. Jesus turned to them, saying: "Weep not for Me, but weep for yourselves."—Luke 23:27-28.

CHRIST ASKED HIS HEAVENLY FATHER TO FORGIVE HIS EXECUTIONERS

Scripture—Luke 23:18-49

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. WE ARE about to study once again an event which took place in and near Jerusalem, 1929 years ago, which has exercised a great influence over every aspect of human life...

years later," says Dr. Smith. Two other men, "malefactors" or criminals, were led with Jesus to be put to death. They, too, were to be crucified, one on His right and one on His left.

The cruel, heartless soldiers parted His raiment and cast lots for it. They mocked Him, saying, "He saved others; let Him save Himself, if he be Christ, the chosen of God."

Over His head they put a placard reading "This is the King of the Jews."

MEMORY VERSE

that an innocent man is sent to prison or to execution. It is not, however, a common experience. "As they led Him (Jesus) away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus."

Him, but the other rebuked him, saying, "Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation? And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds; but this Man hath done nothing amiss."

The catastrophe that Christ prophesied "was the destruction of Jerusalem that would occur 40 years after His death."

Can we who read this tragic story forgive all those who hurt us as Christ did? At least we can try to follow His example with His help.

Award Contracts For New Men's Dormitory At ECC

Contracts totaling $1,524,440 have been awarded at East Carolina College for the construction of a new dormitory for men students. Vice President in charge of business affairs F. D. Duncan has announced.

Work on the new residence hall is expected to begin within the next month, Mr. Duncan stated. Construction of the dormitory at East Carolina was made possible through a loan from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The building will provide accommodations for 520 men students. Located on the Southeast Campus, it will be adjacent to Paul E. Jones Hall, also a dormitory for men students, which is now under construction. Both buildings were designed by Eric G. Flannagan of Henderson, architect, and in external appearance will be identical.

Contracts for the new dormitory have been awarded as follows:

Debaters Argue Education Plan

WINTERTVILLE — The debating teams from Brawley High School, Scotland Neck, and Conetoe High School met at Robinson Union School, Winterville, March 17 to debate the question, "Resolved, That the United States Should Adopt the Essential Features of the British System of Education".

Speakers on the affirmative representing Conetoe High were Lucy Hill, Benjamin M. Jones and Minnie Ruffin. The opponents from Brawley High were Esther Jones, Lillian Moore and Otto Whittaker. The affirmative team won. Pamlico-Albemarle Schoolmasters Club sponsored the debate.

Certificates were presented to the winning team and best speaker by principal of Robinson School J.W. Maye. Best speaker awards went to Benjamin Jones, first place, and Ester Jones, runner-up.

Prior to the debate on March 2, a debate clinic with Dr. Jim Poindecker of the English Department was held at Eppes High School, Greenville.

The negative team from Robinson Union School won over Brawley High of Scotland Neck. Bessie Moore was judged best speaker of the affirmative team of Roper. J. W. Ward presided.

general contractors, William Multhead Construction Co., Durham, $893,700; plumbing, the Onslow Plumbing Co., Jacksonville, $66,445; heating, the Willford Plumbing and Heating Co., New Bern, $566,848; and electrical work, the Carolina Electric Service, Henderson, $57,447.

The dormitory, Mr. Duncan explained, will be constructed with built-in furniture. Only chairs, springs, and mattress will need to be purchased in order to equip the building for use by students.

Bids for work on the new dormitory were opened here February 19. Entering bids were fourteen general contractors, twelve plumbing firms, eleven heating firms, and fifteen electrical firms. Bids were reviewed by officials of the college, the state Budget Bureau, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Whooper Crane Migration Soon

AUSTIWELL, Tex. (AP)—Down in the marshes of Blackjack Peninsula on the Gulf of Mexico one of America's tallest wading birds paused in its feeding from time to time, raised its head and trumpeted a whooping, haunting call that could be heard for miles.

Further down the peninsula a pair of whooping cranes engaged in a stately dance, circling, bowing and leaping from side to side with white wings outspread.

These antics signal that the magnificent birds, now almost extinct, will soon start their 2,000-mile flight from their winter home at the Aransas Wildlife Refuge to Buffalo Park and another nesting season in Canada's North-west Territories.

They will begin leaving in early April, in pairs and families. They probably will leave at night, but the urge to travel may strike in the daytime.

They fly so high nobody will see them unless they come down to rest and feeding on acorns and crayfish.

The whooper population is now 39 the largest since annual counts were started in 1938. Three times since then it has been down to 23.

The flock of 32 that spent the winter here includes 23 adults and nine young hatched last summer near Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories — the biggest crop of whooper chicks in 21 years.

Another young bird stopped off for the winter at Mingo National Wildlife Refuge in Missouri.

Six cranes are in captivity: one at Brackenridge Park, San Antonio, Tex. and five at Audubon Park, New Orleans.

Radar Signals Are Bounced Off Planet Venus

WESTFORD, Mass. (AP)—An 84-foot dish antenna here has beamed a radar signal 28 million miles to the planet Venus and caught its echo five minutes later.

The 56-million-mile round trip transmission, in February 1958, consumed 10 cents worth of electricity for a 300-kilowatt signal but analyzing the data that came back today nearly half a billion calculations on an electronic brain at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It cost thousands of dollars and months of time.

Scientists at the Lincoln Laboratory project operated by MIT for the Air Force called the feat a notable step in space exploration. They said it permitted the first measurement with great accuracy of inter-planetary distances—an essential to future navigation in space.

The signal—bouncing off Venus, man's nearest neighbor beyond the moon, was disclosed Thursday night with a telegram from President Eisenhower offering congratulations upon a "notable achievement in our peaceful ventures into outer space."

Radar signals were bounced off the moon 13 years ago. The moon is less than a quarter million miles from the earth.

The Lincoln Laboratory radar on Millstone Hill went into operation in October 1957. The big antenna tracked the first Sputnik and numerous satellites since.

The first radar contact with Venus was made Feb. 10, 1958 and another two days later. The signal was sent out for nearly five minutes. Traveling at 186,000 miles per second, it took approximately 2 1/2 minutes to reach Venus and the same time to bounce back to earth. The scientists estimated the signal that came back had only one ten-millionth of the original power.

End Pre-School Clinic Session

Representative Student Teachers Attend Annual Session In Asheville

Wesley Ann Fisher of Charlotte and Coleman A. Gentry, Jr., of Greenville, chosen as 1968 "Representative Student Teachers" at East Carolina, had a delegation at the annual convention of the North Carolina Education Association in Asheville this week. Gentry is state president of the Future Teachers Division of the NCEA.

In North Carolina colleges with teacher education departments, selection of an outstanding man and woman as representative student teachers has been for several years a project of the Department of Future Teachers of the NCEA. Among criteria for the choice of the Fisher and Gentry were professional competency, academic superiority, and understanding of educational aims.

Jay Lloyd Allen of Rt. 1, Four Oaks, and Gail Cox of Rt. 2, Graham, were selected as alternates.

AJ East Carolina Gentry is president of the Student National Education Association, and Miss Fisher is chairman of the Teaching Careers Committee.

Other East Carolina students attending the Asheville convention are Clinton Davis of Edenton, president-elect of the Student NEA at East Carolina; Delano Wilson of Winterville, candidate for the presidency of the NCEA Division of Future Teachers; Mr. Allen; Phyllis House of Robersonville; Jacqueline House of Plymouth; Ruth Lineberger of Rt. 1, Wallace; and Wayne Forbes of Macleasfield. They will be accompanied by Emma L. Kooper of the English Department, member of the Advisory Committee of the NCEA Future Teachers Division.

They fly so high nobody will see them unless they come down to rest and feeding on acorns and crayfish.

The whooper population is now 39 the largest since annual counts were started in 1938. Three times since then it has been down to 23.

The flock of 32 that spent the winter here includes 23 adults and nine young hatched last summer near Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories — the biggest crop of whooper chicks in 21 years.

Dog Track Fans Won't Give Up

By GUNNY HARRIS Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Rep. Norwood M. Answell is still hopeful that Currituck's dogs will run again. He appeared before the House committee on local government Thursday to present a piece of local legislation and was asked by Chairman Ed Kemp: "Do you suppose to send up any legislation this year on dog tracks?"

"I do, sir," said Answell with dignity.

This put Rep. J. Y. Jordan of Asheville in a reminiscent mood, recalling the time he served on the Dog Track Investigating Commission and in the course of his duties visited Currituck.

"The county seat is no more than a wide spot in the road with a filling station on one side and a grocery store on the other," Jordan told the committee. "But it has there a modern courthouse—air conditioned—that would do justice to Guilford or Buncombe."

Answell pointed out that Currituck taxpayers didn't have to pay a cent (through taxes) for the courthouse. "It was all paid for by the dog tracks."

He is hopeful that his new bill will somehow have a better chance of survival than the one last session.

It will be state-wide again but new provisions will provide that 10 per cent of the proceeds go into the state treasury, 10 per cent equally divided among the 100 counties and 7 1/2 per cent will remain in the county in which the track is operated.

College Chapel Choir To Present Oratorio In Special Program

In a special pre-Easter program, the Chapel Choir of East Carolina College will present Sir John Stainer's oratorio "The Crucifixion" March 24, at 6:30 p.m. in the Austin auditorium. The program will be open to the public.

The choir of fifty voices will sing under the direction of Dorothy Hayes, junior from Durham, and Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang of the music faculty. Soloists will be August Laube, baritone, an alumnus of East Carolina and a teacher of music in the J. H. Rose High School in Greenville, and Dr. Hjortsvang, tenor.

J. Herbert Joyner, Henderson senior, will appear with the Chapel Choir as organ accompanist. Cleveland J. Bradner Jr., director of religious activities at the college, will conduct a brief devotional service.

Coaches Favor Home Court Team In NCAA

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The home court advantage is expected to do more for Louisville than Oscar Robertson for Cincinnati, Jerry West for West Virginia, or a bear-hug defense for California in the NCAA basketball showdown opening at massive freedom hall tonight.

Louisville (19-10) meets West Virginia (23-4) in the semifinal opener at 8:30 p.m., followed by Cincinnati (25-3) vs. California (23-4) at 10:30.

The winners play for college basketball's tastiest plumb Saturday at 10 p.m., following a consolation game between tonight's losers. Capacity crowds of about 18,500 will attend each session.

Despite the general feeling among the coaching fraternity that the home court assist will be minimized by tournament pressure, the odds-makers have made the home-standing Cardinals the favorite.

This although Louisville has the poorest record of the semifinalists, has no one to match All-Americans Robertson and West, and has a defense that's hit-and-miss compared to California's "make-em-for-everything" style.

The Cardinals are the only at-large entry lined up against three solid conference champions in a tournament regularly dominated by league teams. No at-large entry has won since CCNY in 1950. On a point basis, Louisville is quoted at 5 1/2 over West Virginia and Cincinnati 5 over California. All four teams were in top shape after final workouts with only Cincinnati due to play short-handed. Mike Mendenhall, regular backcourt man, is ineligible for the NCAA competition as a four-year player.

This didn't stop George Smith's Bearcats from spilling top-ranked Kansas State 85-75 in the Midwest regional final at Lawrence, Kan., last weekend. Cincinnati, champion of the Missouri Valley Conference, scored its other Lawrence victory over TCU 77-73.

Louisville, which lost seven of its first 12 games, created the biggest stir when, after bouncing Eastern Kentucky in the first round, it blasted defending champion Kentucky 76-61 and powerful Michigan State 82-81 to win the Midwest regional.

West Virginia, unless in four previous NCAA tournaments, also has won three straight — from Dartmouth 82-68, St. Joseph's (Pa.) 95-92, and Boston U. 86-82. The latter win nailed the Eastern regional title for the Southern Conference perennial coached by Freddie Schaus.

California, riding a 14-game winning streak, bagged its third straight Pacific Coast Conference title before whipping Utah 71-53 and St. Mary's 66-46 in the Far West regional at San Francisco.

Bradley Rated Favorite In Final NIT Tilt

By TED MEIER NEW YORK (AP) — Bradley was made the early favorite today to beat St. Johns of New York in their Saturday afternoon championship game of the National Invitational Basketball Tournament.

The top-seeded Braves, fourth ranked nationally, and the New York Redmen reached the final by whipping NYU and Providence respectively, in Thursday night's semifinals before a sellout 18,496 at Madison Square Garden.

Bradley blew a 10-point lead in the second half, but pulled out a 59-57 squeaker over NYU. St. Johns routed Providence, the Cinderella team of the tourney, 76-55. Bradley holds a regular season 71-66 victory over St. Johns and it is primarily on this basis that the Braves are favored to repeat their 1957 victory in the NIT final.

As Chuck Orsborn, Bradley coach, put it: "We know what St. Johns is all about." Joe Lapchick, St. Johns coach, declared "Bradley looks like a giant." Bobby Joe Mason and Joe Billy McDade helped the Braves win the 1957 net title and this is another factor in making Bradley the choice.

NYU fought from behind all the way after Bradley got off to a quick 9-0 lead. Mike Owens was high for Bradley with 16 points, but it was McDade's good defensive job on NYU's Tom Sanders that drew praise from Orsborn.

"That hook shot of his that broke the tie was a thing of beauty." Altogether McDade finished with 10 points, nine rebounds and two assists. Russ Cunningham wound up with 18 points, 15 in the last half.

Providence made a gallant stand in the first half, rallying to take the lead twice at 16-15 and 18-17 and to tie twice at 20-20 and 22-22, but then the wicking hour struck. A free throw and basket by Dick Engert broke the tie. Providence never threatened again.

Big Lou Roethel, with 22 points sparked St. Johns. Lennie Wilkens starred for Providence with 17 points.

The Bradley-St. Johns game will be nationally televised (NBC). NYU and Providence will play for third place.

MUNCIE, Indiana — East Carolina College made their 4-5 season record against strong competition look good yesterday as the Buccaneers copped three firsts in the opening six events of the NAA Swim Meet, which is being held at the Ball State Teachers College Campus.

In taking three firsts and a second, East Carolina emerged out front in the fourth NAA Meet with 37 points. North Central of Ohio, defending champions and undefeated, were only one point back with 36 and Detroit Tech was in third place with 22 points.

After the top three, the closest club only had 12 points to send ECC, North Central, and Detroit into the final six events to fight it out among themselves.

East Carolina set the only record of the opening day as their 400-yard relay team set a new NAA mark of 3:40.2, beating the old mark of 3:41.5 set last year by North Central. Members of the team were Jake Smith, Jim Meads, Tom Carroll and Bob Sawyer.

Bob Sawyer regained the backstroke title which he lost last season as he finished with a time of 2:19. The Greensboro native had finished first in 1957 but was second last season.

Ken Midyette was the other first-place finisher for the Pirates as he registered 347 points in the one-meter diving event. Team-mate Glenn Dyer was his closest competitor as he finished second with 333.75 points.

Jake Smith was the other point-getter as he finished second in the 50 Yard Dash.

The final events which will be held today are 200 yard Individual Medley, 100 yard freestyle, 300 yard breaststroke, 440 yard freestyle, three-meter diving, and the 400 yard Medley Relay.

Coach Ray Martinez stated last night that his club did "quite well." Jimmy Meads and Jake Smith, a couple of free-stylers, were sick yesterday but both came through. "We could have done a little better if Meads (Jim) and Smith (Jake) had been at full strength," stated Martinez.

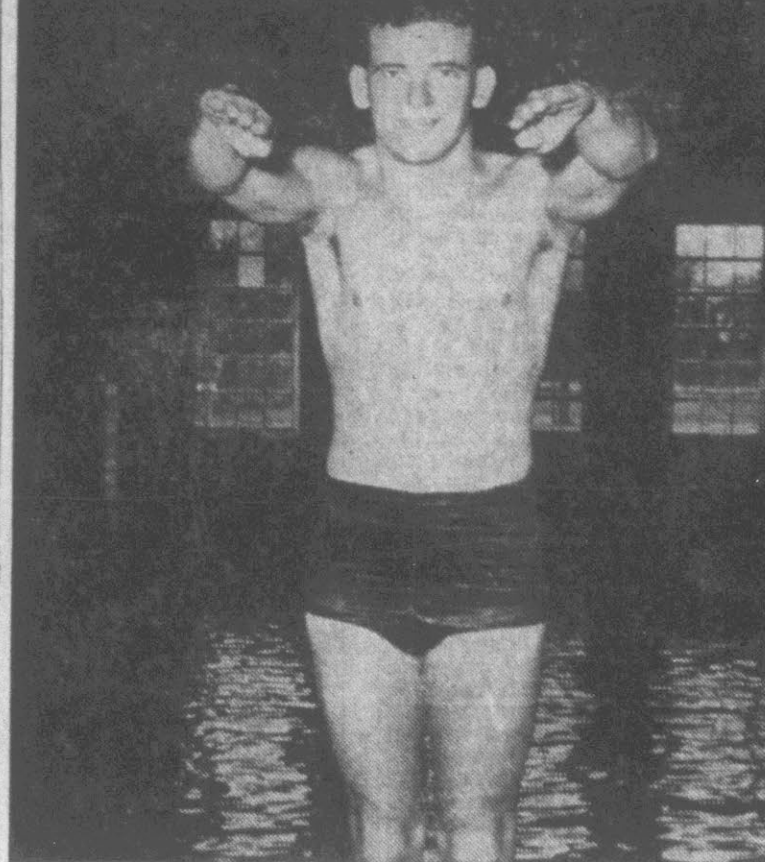

Martinez failed to predict the outcome of today's competition but pointed to the 400 yard relay and the three-meter diving as two important events.

North Central, the pre-favorite and defending champion, continued to rate as the "team to beat," mainly on the strength of their depth. The Ohio club is loaded with men in each event and that could be the determining factor. Detroit Tech was rated as second in the field of eleven top teams but has fallen into third place in the opening day events.

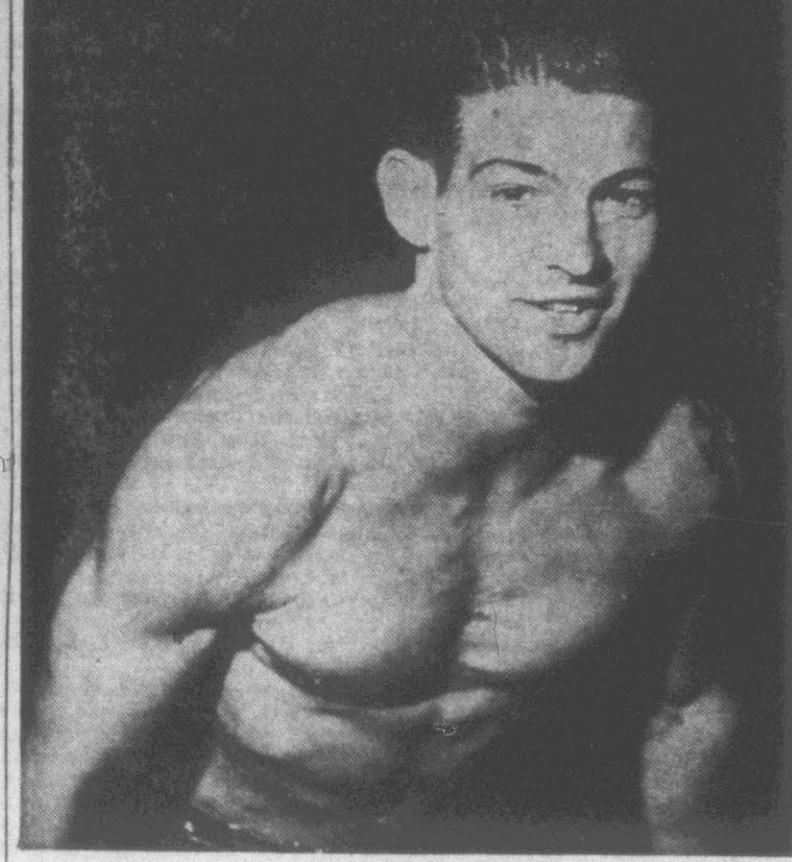

In today's events, Martinez plans to use Tommy Carroll and Tommy Tucker in the 200 yard Individual Medley. Barney Adler and Jake Smith will compete in the 100 yard Free-Style. Jack McCann and Bob Connolly in the 200 yard breaststroke, and John Ledford and Bob Connolly in the 400 yard Free-style. Ken Midyette and Glenn Dyer will again carry ECC's hopes in the diving event and Bob Sawyer, Jack McCann, Tommy Tucker, and Jimmy Meads will compete in the 400 yard Medley Relay.

Bucs Edge Grads In Practice Tilt

Larry Crayton, Ben Baker, and Johnny Eilen combined talents yesterday afternoon to pitch scoreless ball as East Carolina defeated an All-Star club 5-0 in a practice game.

The three hurlers gave up only four hits and had the game under control most of the way. Crayton and Eilen are freshmen while Baker is a senior and only veteran on the pitching staff.

Bill Altman, pint-sized centerfielder, led the winners batting attack with a couple of hits.

The defense of the ECC team drew special praise as infielders Al Vaughn, Hubert Castalow, and Jimmy Martin turned in good fielding plays.

Mac McPherson, former Pirate pitcher, hurled good ball for the losers. The Wilmington native got some help from Tommy Sailer but not until the game was out of reach for the grads.

Infielders Bill Boyd, Bob Lewis and Jerry Stewart—all former EC players—turned in good performances along with third baseman Bob Moore (who has signed a pro contract).

The outfield also consisted of former ECC players—Bob Miller, Joel Long and Charlie Bishop. Gene Bowen handled the catching for the grads.

East Carolina opens their season next Monday touring Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of New York.

Rain Continues To Mar Play In Citrus Loop

By JACK CLARY Associated Press Sports Writer The Cincinnati Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers finally will get together tonight for their hastily scheduled exhibition game after spending Thursday playing hide-and-go-seek with the weatherman.

The fifth straight day of rain on Florida's Gulf Coast caused the sudden shift. The Reds originally were slated to meet St. Louis at St. Petersburg Thursday and the Dodgers to entertain Baltimore at Sarasota. Rain washed out these games.

The brass of both teams decided they had better get in some playing time or lose the conditioning edge gained so far. The Dodgers found Havana to be dry and the Reds said "Let's go."

Los Angeles arrived in their private plane Thursday afternoon. The Reds, in a commercial airliner, were turned back to Tampa by foul weather. The Dodgers wound up playing an intra-squad game.

The two teams still wanted to go through with the game today despite other schedule commitments. Los Angeles had the Chicago White Sox at Tampa and the Reds, were to meet the Phillies at Clearwater.

With the weatherman predicting more rain today, the teams left enough men in each camp to go through with the game if it should clear. The rest of the Cincinnati squad was to take off today in the Dodgers plane, sent from Havana.

The Phillies-Detroit, Yankees-Milwaukee, Pittsburgh - Kansas City and Washington - Chicago White Sox also were rained out of Florida games Thursday.

In Arizona Tom Brewer and Murray Wall combined for a 2-1 Boston Red Sox victory over the Chicago Cubs. The pair allowed the Cubs four hits, one Bobby Tomson's home run.

Dave Hillman just missed being the first pitcher to go nine innings this spring. He allowed Boston only four hits and two walks in eight innings.

The San Francisco Giants belted five home runs to outslug the Cleveland Indians, 9-6. Giants' shortstop Andre Rodgers hit two as part of a perfect day at the plate.

Four of the Giant homers were off Herb Score, making his third start of the exhibition season. Minnie Miñoso and Woody Held homered for the Indians.

The Baltimore Orioles announced that $100,000 bonus baby Dave Nicholson will go to the team's Odessa, Tex. farm club in the Texas League. He was tabbed as "the most improved rookie" in Baltimore's camp by manager Paul Richards.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Touring pro golfers were ready to take another stab at getting the $15,000 St. Petersburg Open under way today after being thwarted Thursday by a steady downpour which left the Lakeside course virtually one big unplayable lie.

If play can be started today the 71-hole tournament will run through Monday instead of Sunday.

Probably the most thankful for the day's delay is Gary Player, the South African who performed so sensationally over here last year. He won one event, tied for first in two others, losing the playoffs; was second in the National Open, and crossed nearly $22,000 in this country in 1958.

Player made a flying trip from Johannesburg by way of London to arrive in time to open his 1959 competition in the United States here, and he just can't get adjusted to the time change.

He kept dropping off to sleep while holding a daytime conversation with a friend, who finally asked what was wrong.

"It's 5 o'clock in the morning in South Africa," Player said apologetically. "I just don't feel right. I don't expect to be right for about three weeks. I don't believe I'll do well here at all."

Bengals Boast Strong Pitching Lack Power

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Tiger Manager Bill Norman is making sure he's not going to make the same mistake his predecessor, Jack Tighe, made last year.

A year ago at this time, Tighe, breathing optimism, proclaimed the Tigers 50 per cent improved and predicted they would catch the Yankees. Less than three months later, the Tigers were in last place and Tighe was replaced by Norman.

If Norman has caught the flag fever this year, there are no symptoms. On the contrary, he became slightly annoyed whenever the word "improved" is mentioned in connection with his club.

"Let's face facts," Norman said. "The Tigers finished fifth last year, only four games out of seventh. You can't talk about being a contender until you've become a solid first division club."

"Sure, we improved," Norman added, "and I am optimistic about finishing in the first division. But we've got our work cut out for us. Don't forget, the other clubs have improved, too."

The trade with Cleveland that brought relief pitchers Ray Narleski and Don Mossi will strengthen the staff, Norman said, "and the trade with Washington that landed third baseman Eddie Yost and shortstop Rocky Bridges will help the club defensively."

Norman's pride and joy is his pitching, led by starters Jim Bunning, Frank Lary, Paul Foytack and Billy Hoelt. Herm Wehmeier and George Sisco will be spot starters and Tom Morgan will be the early reliever. Left-hander Pete Burnside, acquired from San Francisco, has made a good impression, as has right-hander Gerry Davis, a 26-year-old rookie who won 17 and lost five at Charleston last year.

"I've got good pitching," said Norman, "but I lack power and don't have the fastest team in the world. I'd also like to improve my bench. Osele Alvarez can play second and Coot Veal can play short. I'm experimenting with Larry Osborne, at first baseman, in the outfield and at third."

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR

BY C.V. TERRY

CHAPTER 21

"Look on the bright side, Dick," said Tom Hoyt. "Think of the time we've saved tonight."

"Will you stop talking nonsense, you dunderhead?" I said.

"You're the dunderhead, lad," Tom said. "We planned to go ashore tomorrow and seek out the gentlemen of fortune. Now the gentlemen have come to us — to say nothing of the lady."

Tom had spoken in his usual whisper — but the words echoed through my brain as they stung my laggard wit alive. In that flash of perception the pattern of tonight's events came clear — including the part I would soon be playing.

The knowledge we must give a flawless performance in this drama of life and death (that a single dropped cue or misread line could spell our doom) did not feaze me unduly. After all, we had been well rehearsed — and would have, it seemed, a friendly audience.

"Are you sure Bonita Damao's one of them?"

"Answer that for yourself," said Tom.

Once the query was voiced, there was but one possible response. I remembered her laughter aboard the Star of Bengal when she had just missed scraping our paint in the Narrows. I saw Bonita again on Front Street, with Quill as her worshipful escort. I recalled her prowess at the wheel in the Canaries, her boast that she could match a man at swordplay. All these things had seemed alien to the daughter of a Portuguese merchant. They fitted a pirate princess like a second skin.

"She's outwitted us nicely, it seems," I remarked, not too bitterly.

"I'd say she played the game fairly," answered Tom. "Assuming, of course, that she swallowed your story and expects us both to take the oath of brotherhood. Beginning now, we must play by her rules."

"Meaning we must join all the way — or lose in our hands?"

"And our lives," said Tom.

There was no time for more; both of us had heard the key in the lock. Tom thrust out his hand and clasped mine briefly. Then we turned to meet whatever fate might offer.

The opening door revealed a brightly lit wardrobe and the wildest disorder. Expecting to face Matt Quill, I was startled to find the Negro on the threshold. Mozo's grin, and the fact he was unarmed, did much to lessen my dread.

"You may come out, senoras," he said. "The ship is all ours."

"What does this mean?" I thundered. Regardless of that grin, it seemed sound tactics to bluster. "I'm not used to pistols at my back. Nor does Dr. Hoyt take kindly to a gag."

"A thousand pardons — but it was captain's orders."

"Not Captain Spenser's, I gather," said Tom.

The Negro's massive shoulders shook with laughter. This time there was no mistaking his change of attitude. Before tonight he had seemed only a handy deckman, ready to bow and scrape on order. Now he was an obvious officer, as such he addressed us both as an equal.

"Captain Spenser is no longer among the living, Dr. Hoyt," he said. "Nor is Matt Quill. Tonight we've had two changes of command."

"Can we got topside now?" I asked.

"Of course, my friend. The new captain expects you on the quarter-deck. If you'll go up now, he'll tell you everything."

The first sound I heard topside was the slap of canvas, as the Pilgrim Venture, rolling under the lazy puffs of wind, just failed to put herself in motion. Save for that one mournful noise, the ship was oddly quiet, though the barefoot crew, moving like busy cats on deck and in the rigging, seemed to be everywhere. A closer look told me that the men had never been better disciplined.

Hans (the Dutch bosun) and Jack Ketchell were in charge amidst-ship, making sure the planks were swabbed clean; the loyal hands, I gathered, had fought bravely and well before they were cut down. Two bodies still lay side by side on a hatch — and Tom Hoyt (as befitted his calling) moved forward to examine them.

"Spenser and Quill," he said.

"What does this mean?"

The captain had been made decent, with a British standard wrapped about him in lieu of a shroud; as we stood by, a sailor came up with a bolt of black cloth, which he tossed over the fallen mate. This, I saw, was the pirate flag — the so-called Jolly Roger, with a death-head rampant and crossed bones beneath. Quill, I thought numbly, would go to his rest in the proper winding sheet.

"How did he die, Mozo?" I asked.

The Negro paused, with a foot on the quarter-deck ladder. "Captain Spenser was a good hand with a cutlass," he said. "I feared Quill had met his match — but he was in command. They had no choice but to cross steel."

"Is this, too, a pirate custom?"

"But of course, Senor Douglas," Mozo said. "When we take a prize, the master is always given a chance to defend himself. We'd already offered to put Captain Spenser and the others ashore — but they said they'd fight for the ship rather than surrender it."

The Negro turned to the still figure of Spenser and clicked his heels in a respectful salute. "He was a hard man, and a righteous one. When he'd bested Mr. Quill, the others were disposed of and he bore grave wounds. He fell on his sword, rather than yield, when his wounds would not let him fight again."

"Were you ready to take him on?" I asked curiously.

"Not I — our next-in-command." The Negro lifted his massive shoulders in a shrug. "It's as well Spenser died by his own hand. No man born of woman has crossed swords with a Carter and lived."

"Did you say Carter?"

Mozo smiled at Tom and me. "I am forgetting myself, gentlemen. She told me to fetch you straight to the quarter-deck." He sprang up the ladder in a bound, then stood aside so that Tom and I might follow.

"Holla, senoria."

I have brought them both. What had gone before had prepared me in some measure — but I felt my senses reel when Bonita strode into view. She was all in black: boots of cordovan leather, black tights of the finest China silk, a leather jerkin that half covered her thighs and was secured by a broad leather belt from which a cutlass hung. Her hair was gathered in sailor's kerchief, and a broad-brimmed sombrero was set jauntily above it. It was a costume of sorts, but she might have worn it always — and she could have passed easily for a wiry, eager, gay.

"Join me, please," she said. "And try not to look so startled."

There was something almost carefree in the way she welcomed us to her deck, settled on the captain's seat, and — throwing one knee across the other — smiled into our blank faces. Looking back on the moment, I am sure it was her sang-froid that troubled me the most.

"Who are you?" I demanded in a choked whisper. The question was as inane as my hushed tone — now I knew Bonita Damao was a pseudonym.

"I'm Red Carter's daughter," she said calmly.

Red Carter's daughter. The word were a gale, whipping the last cloud from my seaskick brain. The captain of the ship (to say nothing of Sir Luke) itself had been of first importance to that gentleman of fortune. So important, he had sent his daughter aboard with the conspirators.

Tom's eye caught mine, with a wordless message. I pulled myself together, aware of the game we must play if we meant to save our skins.

"What's going to happen to Richard and Tom when Red Carter's daughter finds out they're in the employ of her sworn enemy? Continue the story here tomorrow."

Entertainment Can Be Informing Information Can Be Entertaining

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertainment can be informing—and information can be entertaining. Look at some of the offerings on the television networks Sunday (all times Eastern Standard):

Psychoanalysts are forever interviewing people, so it should be informative—and entertaining—to hear an outstanding analyst, Dr. Karl Menninger, being the subject of an interview for a change: On "Wisdom" over NBC Sunday at 2 p.m.

At 2:30 on CBS Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts and Arthur Larson, former aide to President Eisenhower, are among those debating the question of "Can Democracy Meet the Space Age Challenge?"

Changing its time for this Sunday only, "Meet the Press" interviews poet Robert Frost at 4:30 on NBC. At the same hour on CBS Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic will demonstrate how composers through the ages have employed wit and satire in their works.

Eavesdropping is one of the most entertaining pastimes for some humans, and wiretapping is the scientifically informed method of accomplishing it. "The Big Ear" on "Kaleidoscope" at 5 p.m. over NBC is an examination of wiretapping and its implications.

On "Small World" at 6 over CBS Edward R. Murrow leads Noel Coward, James Thurber and actress Siobhan McKenna into a discussion of wit and humor in the theater today. At the same hour on NBC "The Bell Telephone Science Series" repeats "The Unchained Goddess," showing how scientists study, analyze and forecast the weather.

Calvary Baptist Announcements

Following the morning worship service at the Calvary Baptist Church Sunday the congregation will attend a ground-breaking ceremony on the future site of the new church.

The KYB Club will meet at the Church Sunday at 6:45 o'clock. This group consists of children in the age range of 5 to 11.

The Evangelistic service begins at 7:30 p.m.

Assignments for the weekly visits will be given Tuesday night at 7:15 to the church members.

Mrs. Milton Anderson of 1114 Evans Street will be hostess for the Cottage prayer service.

The Church Prayer service will be held Thursday night 7:30. The young people of the church are asked to meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of the minister.

Each servicable freight car on American railroads now travels an average of about 47 miles daily.

Bethany F. W. B. Announcements

"Youth for Christ" will be the topic used at the Bethany Free Will Baptist Church when Dr. Karl Leysameyer speaks Saturday night.

Dr. Leysameyer survived the Nazi Ordeals and escaped from the Russian Communist firing squad and prison.

The fateful problems of the Atomic Age will also be discussed. World Communism, its strategy and the secret of its success, and the challenge of a solution (Jesus Christ) will be among the topics discussed.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

There are places named North Pole far south of the Arctic Circle.

Construction Industry Shows Recovery Signs

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The weak sister in the construction industry shows signs of perking up today.

A modest increase in business spending for new plant and equipment is getting under way. Most of it may be for new machinery to cut rising labor costs. But some of it will be for enlarging factories or building new plants.

The construction industry as a whole isn't suffering. Total spending last year rose to a new high, the notable increases being in home building and government projects.

These two, especially public construction, are expected to carry the ball this year. But even a modest assist from industry will be appreciated as an aid to the general business recovery.

Predictions on 1959 spending by business for capital goods are based on two things:

1. The Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission query corporate executives on their plans. These intentions now add up to 32 billion dollars for this year, a 4 per cent gain over last year's recession-hit outlay of 30½ billion, but still well below the 1957 outlay of 37¼ billion.

2. The National Industrial Conference Board asks leading manufacturers what sums their directors have actually approved for expansion. This shows now that appropriations are rising and would indicate that sometime in the future the actual money will be spent.

There's a catch to both these prediction methods. Businessmen can change their minds. Plans can be shelved or increased. Appropriations can be held up or fattened.

Directors change their minds if the current profit situation turns sour, or if general conditions indicate that earnings will be slipping. Then added physical plant may look unneeded, although new tools to cut costs may retain their old allure.

Or, the recovery could pick up speed, and business spending increase more than the predicted per cent, if higher profits can be sighted.

Businessmen have poured nearly 132 billion dollars into new plant and equipment in the last four years. In the 1955-57 period this was one of the big factors in the general boom. The sharp cut-back in 1958 was a chief reason for the recession being so steep.

The amounts industry spent were: 28½ billion dollars in 1955, more than 35 billion in 1956, more than 37¼ billion in 1957, and 30½ billion in 1958.

Out of this have come the new factories and more efficient machinery that has caused the amount of goods produced per man hour of labor to rise. And this is seen as a leading factor in the continuing high unemployment.

Some of the biggest gains expected in such spending this year are: 27 per cent for transportation other than rail (the railroads expect to spend just the same as last year); 8 per cent by the non-food goods industries (all but food and beverages expecting to spend more); 7 per cent by the durable goods industries (all of whom expect to loosen the purse strings a little).

The real increase in such spending, however, is expected to come in 1960 and 1961, when today's unused industrial facilities should be fully employed.

Four Strong Men Stole The House

CROYDON, England (AP)—The Croydon cops are looking for a two-bedroom house and the four strong men who stole it.

The aluminum, prefabricated model was on exhibit at a local housing development. The quartet of workmen skillfully took it apart, stowed it in a big truck and drove away. The contractor's only consolation was that the thieves left the brick foundation.

Twenty editors of "The Pilgrim's Progress" appeared between 1678 and 1695.

Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, one of Tactical Air Command's newest, will join with other TAC units throughout the globe in observing the 13th birthday of this world force this Saturday. There will be no gay parties, parades or other celebrations to mark the occasion. Tactical jet flying and pilot missions will go on as usual for the Fourth Tactical Fighter Wing, Brigadier General Joseph H. Moore, Commanding.

TAC was born and assigned to the Army Air Force on March 21, 1946, with headquarters at Drew Field, Tampa, Florida. The years saw TAC continue its growth until today it ranks as one of the Air Force's major striking arms.

Linked with its expansion in recent years has been its development of the Composite Air Strike Force which quickly proved its value last year as a quick-striking mobile powerhouse by its stunning deployment of selected units and planes to the Far and Middle East. With the development of in-flight refueling techniques TAC received the necessary boost to speed up their world mobility ca-ability. Handling these Strike Forces is the 19th Air Force, quartered at Seymour Johnson and commanded by Major General Henry Viccello.

Last year Seymour Johnson added the F-105 Republic Thunderbolt to the national defense picture. The base's 335th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Commanded by Lt. Col. Robert Scott, became the first unit in the Air Force to receive the world's deadliest and fastest jet fighters. The F-105 has speeds in excess of 1200 miles per hour.

One Vote Makes Him A Candidate

CHICAGO (AP)—One vote in a primary election, it appears, has transformed an electrician into a candidate for mayor of suburban Highland Park.

In the March 3 primary Mayor Robert S. Cushman, a lawyer, got 3,527 votes for re-election. There was one write-in vote, for Daniel A. Vetter, the electrician.

Vetter Thursday filed a statement of candidacy that will put him on the ballot in the April 21 general election.

Duke, Duchess Aided By Deputy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, driving from Boulder City to Las Vegas, lost their way and were rescued by a sheriff's deputy.

The duke flagged down a sheriff's car and this conversation ensued: "I say, officer, could you direct me to the right road to Las Vegas?" "Sure. Say, you're the Duke of Windsor, aren't you?" "Well, yes, I am. You see the duchess and I were en route to the Desert Inn and we're not certain of the road."

"That's all right, sir; just follow me."

They followed the officer's car 20 miles to the hotel entrance and were greeted by applause from a gathering of 150 in the lobby.

Left Her Estate To Uncle Sam

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Uncle Sam is the beneficiary of the estimated $60,000 estate of a Russian immigrant woman.

Executor Jerome G. Auer said Mrs. Jennie Silverman told him to leave the money to the government.

"She said this country had always treated her well and she wanted to show her appreciation," he added.

Mrs. Silverman died of a heart attack March 6 at the age of 75.

FORMAL CONGRATULATIONS HONOLULU (AP)—

The Hawaii Legislature has voted formal congratulations to Japan's Crown Prince Akihito and Michiko Shoda on the imperial household's announcement of their engagement.

The Legislature approved Thursday a resolution creating a committee to choose a gift for the prince and his bride.

Hunt For Eerie Dreams Might Have Been Fatal

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — A toxicologist's report today may determine whether a University of Redlands biochemistry student died from the effects of a hypnotic drug last Tuesday.

Michael Hawks, 18, died shortly after he was found in a coma amid test tubes and vials in his dormitory room. Chemicals discovered in the room were identified tentatively as mushroom crystals, mescaline and lysergic acid, all of which produce hallucinations.

Young Hawks was described by relatives as "very curious about the effect of mushrooms on people, and interested in dreaming in color." Although he was a freshman he was so advanced in chemistry he was enrolled in third year classes.

Deputy Coroner Edward Doyle has confiscated a tape recording on which Hawks appeared to describe eerie dreams. Chief of Police Stanley Bowen said it has been established that the young man conducted experiments with drugs on at least five university students.

Bowen said investigators found a notebook with entries by Hawks which, coupled with conversation on the tape recordings, indicated one of his subjects had experienced hallucinations for a period of more than six hours.

Police said other tape recordings contained a philosophical dissertation on colors, believed to have been recorded by Hawks, and a recital of reactions to hypnotic mushroom poisons.

A university spokesman said Hawks was warned in January to discontinue his experiments.

Mushrooms which cause visions have been known to man since the dawn of history. Mexican Indians use six varieties to heighten the ecstasy of religious ceremonies.

NCEA Installing Prexy Tonight

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. L. Stacy Weaver, president of the new Methodist College at Fayetteville, will be installed tonight as president of the North Carolina Education Assn.

The NCEA is composed of public school teachers and administrators. Dr. Weaver, a former high school principal at Durham, has moved up through its ranks.

The new vice president will be Miss Lois Edinger of Chapel Hill, educational television teacher.

Speakers at tonight's banquet session will be Dr. Ruth A. Stout of Washington, president of the National Education Assn., and Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction.

The three-day meeting concludes Saturday.

The Resolutions Committee noted in its report Thursday that "there is little interest in the association's legislation program. The committee said a ground swell of public opinion is needed if education is to move forward in the state.

The report was adopted by the 2,000 delegates with one change. A section recommending that a supervisor shall be paid more than any teacher was amended to read that this shall be done provided the supervisor has a master's degree and seven years experience.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill told the group Thursday night that renewed interest in education will raise the teacher's prestige.

Extra Funds Plea Is Given Ovation

RALEIGH (AP) — It's a rare thing indeed when a legislative money committee gives an ovation to anyone who has asked for additional appropriations.

But this happened Thursday after Rep. John W. Umstead Jr. of Orange and others had completed making their plea for more money during the next biennium for the state's mental hospitals.

Members of the Joint Appropriations Committee and an audience of about 150 persons applauded Umstead, chairman of the State Hospitals Board of Control. Sen. J. William Copeland of Hertford, Senate Appropriations Committee chairman, introduced Umstead as "the man who has done more for mental institutions than anyone before him."

Umstead appealed for additional appropriations of 8½ million dollars above those recommended for the mental hospitals during the 1959-61 biennium by the Advisory Budget Commission.

"Before the end of 1959," Umstead said, "we will have added 600 children to the 100 already on the waiting list" for admission to mental hospitals, "to say nothing of those under six years old who are coming up."

His requests included: (1) 4½ million dollars for a new training school in Western North Carolina for 600 children; (2) two million for a hospital and admissions building at the State Hospital at Goldsboro; (3) $1,200,000 to house an additional 450 children at Butler Training School; (4) $300,000 to build classrooms for 42 mentally retarded children at Caswell Training School; and (5) about $550,000 for increased operating expenses.

Umstead termed classroom facilities at Caswell Training School "a firetrap." He said the state hospital at Goldsboro "is the only one of our hospitals without modern facilities and equipment."

Charles Waddell of Asheville, president-elect of the State Assn. for Retarded Children and father of a retarded child, urged that funds be made available for a Western North Carolina Institution. Many parents he said, are unable to afford 1½ or two-day bus trips to Butler to visit their children.

As the age of 103, Mrs. Bonny is voluntarily undergoing a series of tests for heart research at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation.

The broken hip occurred eight years ago—when she was "just a youngster" of 95.

Aged 103, She's Aiding Research

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—When she was "just a youngster" Mrs. John Ann Bonny of Elk City, Okla., was hospitalized for a broken hip.

She's back in a hospital here but it's nothing serious this time.

As the age of 103, Mrs. Bonny is voluntarily undergoing a series of tests for heart research at the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation.

Bus Rams Auto, Four Are Killed

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—A Greyhound bus, northbound in a rainstorm, hit an automobile near here today. The four occupants of the car were killed.

Eight of the 41 bus passengers were taken to a hospital. None was reported seriously hurt.

The dead were identified as: Sanford D. Bodrow of Newark, N.J.; Ernest W. Davies, 22, Atlanta, who carried a recent Army discharge and had no street address in his papers; Norman Lichter, 20, Newark, N.J.; and Barry Jacobson, 18, Newark.

The car had a New Jersey license. Lt. Henry Randall of the Highway Patrol said the car pulled from a side road on the west side of the four-lane highway and across the southbound lane into the path of the bus.

The car was crushed nearly flat by the impact, Randall said. Jacobson, who was driving, was thrown under the rear wheels of the bus.

Injured were Margaret E. Rich, Sandusky, Mich.; Anna Rublig, Bay City, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cary and Anna Martin, all of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Cooper of Buckhead, Ga.; and Richard A. Newman, 63, Jacksonville, driver of the bus.

Defining A Dependent For Filing Your Income Taxes

Editor's Note: Each dependent you can claim shrinks your taxable income by $600. So it's important for you to know just whom you're entitled to list on your federal return. The following article, fourth of five stories on the income tax, gives you the ground rules.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—In filing your 1958 income tax return, be sure you take a $600 exemption for every dependent you can justly claim. For each it means $600 off your income before what's left is taxed.

Who's a dependent? He could be your own child, a relative, or even a friend. But the rules are different for different kinds of dependents.

You can claim as a dependent your own child, adopted child or stepchild if he got more than half his support from you in 1958 and even if—provided he was under 19—he had $600 or more income of his own.

If your under-19 child had that much income he would, of course, have to file his own return and claim his own $600 exemption. But—

Since he was under 19 and got more than half his support from you, you could still claim him as a dependent on your return, take a $600 exemption for him, and not even have to include his income in yours.

Further: That child wouldn't have had to live with you in 1958, so long as you provided more than half his support. For example: You may have been separated from your wife and the child may have been living with her.

But if you had a child 19 years or older, you could not claim him as a dependent, even though you provided more than half his support, if he had $600 or more income—unless he was a full-time student.

If he was over 19, was a full-time student, and had $600 or more income, he'd have to file his own return, claiming a $600 exemption for himself. But if you provided more than half his support, you, too, could take a $600 exemption for him on your return by claiming him as a dependent.

(Note: If he had a regular or only a part-time job and went to night school or took a correspondence course he would not be considered a full-time student.)

No child—except the taxpayer's own—can be claimed as a dependent if he had $600 income, regardless of his age or status as a student. And you can't claim for a dependent an extra $600 exemption because he was blind or over 65.

(Note, this, too: If your child, stepchild, or adopted child received a school scholarship, it is not considered in figuring whether you provided more than half his support.)

Support, in the case of a dependent, includes money spent on food, shelter, clothing, education, medical and dental care, entertainment, transportation and other necessities.

But some things you can't include as part of the cost of support for a dependent. For instance: Buying him an automobile or buying life insurance on him. Nor can you include as support money spent to pay a dependent's taxes.

As mentioned above: You can claim as a dependent a friend who lived in your house the entire year, who had no income of his own that amounted to $600 or more, and who got more than half his support from you. But a paid servant in your house can't be claimed as a dependent.

As for relatives you want to claim as dependents:

You can claim as a dependent a person related to you—the kind of relationship is given below—if he did not have $600 or more income and got more than half his support from you. Such a dependent relative, unlike the dependent friend, would not have had to live in your house during the year.

For example: You may have provided more than half the support for your widowed mother who is living with your sister.

But note this: When anyone is trying to determine whether he had enough income to require his filing a tax return, there are certain kinds of nontaxable income which he does not have to report or include. Example: Social Security benefits, life insurance proceeds, armed forces family allowances, and so on.

When you as a taxpayer are trying to determine whether you provided more than half the support for a person you wish to claim as a dependent, you must balance it against the total support he got from all other sources.

That means: If your 66-year-old mother got $1,000 from Social Security and $30 for babysitting, you would have had to spend more than $1,050 on her support in order to claim her as a dependent because in this case her Social Security benefit would have to be included. The Social Security would not have to be considered part of her support if, for instance, saved it.

These are the relatives you can claim as dependents if the other requirements are met:

Your child or his child (a legally adopted child is considered your child; your stepchild but not his child; your brother; sister; half-sister; stepbrother; stepsister; your parents; grandparents but not foster-parents); your stepfather or stepmother; a brother or sister of your father or mother; a son or daughter of your brother or sister; your father-in-law; your mother-in-law; son-in-law; daughter-in-law; brother-in-law; or sister-in-law.

One thing more: You can claim as a dependent only a person who is a citizen or resident of this country or a resident of Canada, Mexico, the Canal Zone of the Republic of Panama.

And this: A parent can not under any circumstances claim as an exemption a married child who filed a joint return with his or her spouse, even though you provided more than half that child's support.

You can claim a $600 exemption for a dependent who was born or died during 1958—provided that the test for claiming such a dependent, as outlined above, was met during that part of the year in which he was alive.

Tomorrow: Figuring your deductions.

Prison Products Bill Squeezes Through In Its Second Reading

By BUNNY HARRIS
Reflector Raleigh Bureau

RALEIGH — Rep. Bucky Harris of Wake would like to clean up a bill pertaining to prison-made products by eliminating some of the soap.

He was probably the strongest opponent to a measure which raised heated discussion on the House floor and called forth such time-honored phrases as "competition to private enterprise" and "rehabilitation of the fallen man."

The bill, introduced by Representatives James C. Galther of Transylvania, Marcellus Buchanan of Jackson and John Umstead of Orange, liberalizes present legislation dealing with the disposal of prison-made products. Under its provisions state agencies would be required to purchase the products at prices approximately in line with those on the competitive market. With this marked assured, the prisons department could expand its program.

Representative Buchanan told the body that the present prison program is limited, dealing mainly in soap, paints, metal products and signs. The products are disposed of through state agencies, producing an estimated annual income of around $800,000.

Buchanan maintained that the prison industries are providing valuable training which can be carried over into civilian life and cited figures showing that only 12 per cent of those engaged in prison industries return. The percentage of repeaters for the prison population as a whole is 67 per cent, he said. Only 400-500 men out of 11,000-12,000 are engaged in prison industries.

Representative Harris of Wake asked: "What skill do they learn in a soap factory?"

With this question he opened fire on the entire bill by declaring first, that one paid civilian superintendent, with the assistances of two prisoners, "make all the soap that is made." He asked: "Is this rehabilitation?"

(Rep. Clyde Harriss of Rowan earlier stated that the largest amount of income from prison industries is derived from the manufacture of soaps and from printing.)

"My theory is that the prison industries want to make a profit so that we can eventually take the prison department from the highway fund, switch it to the general fund and let it support itself," Harriss maintained. He argued that some state institutions and programs should not be self-supporting but should remain the obligation of the people.

"If this bill were for purposes of rehabilitation, we should rise to support it," he said. The manufacture of soap producing a quarter-million-dollar profit "is not rehabilitation," Harriss argued.

Many of the legislators were disturbed about the "broad scope" of the bill which they maintained would permit the prisons department to go into any type of industry. Rep. Ed Kemp of Guilford asked: "Isn't it true that under this bill the prison could set up an industrial empire? They've got the labor."

Rep. Harriss of Rowan, one of the major defenders of the bill, asked: "Where are we going to get the money? He pointed out that the state spends several mil-

Music Students Of 7 Schools To Present Concert

Music students in seven Pitt County schools will present their annual choral and band concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus.

Dr. Carl T. Hjortsvang of the ECC Music Department will direct choral selections by students from Ayden, Belvoir-Palkland, Griffon, Stokes-Pactolus, Chicod, Farmville and Winterville. The group will sing seven numbers.

Band music will be directed by William Glasgow of the Farmville High School Band, and Boyd Elliott of the Ayden - Winterville High School Band and the Griffon High School Band.

The choral and band groups will rehearse Monday evening and Tuesday morning in Wright Auditorium. The Tuesday evening concert will be open to the public.

mutilated or defeated. It will effect business, yes sir. But it's small, exceedingly small, and boils down to the state buying from itself."

The bill was passed on its second reading. A motion for suspension of the rules and passage of the bill on the third reading was withdrawn by Representative Buchanan and the bill was carried over to Friday's calendar.

FLORENCE-MAYO TOBACCO CURERS ARE 5-10 TIMES SAFER

These 4 great Florence-Mayo Curers are 5 to 10 times safer than independently-spaced gas curers lacking burner safety controls. In fact, such inferior units have caused hundreds of barn fires in the past 6 years. BUT with an F-M gas OR oil curer you get automatic safety at the burner—5 to 10 times more safety!

FLORENCE-MAYO FIRST LINE GAS CURER

Has 100% safety at the burners. Used from Florida to Virginia and in Canada. Has never burned a barn. All F-M Gas Curers are engineered to use LP, Propane or Natural Gas.

FLORENCE-MAYO LOW PRICE GAS CURER

Magic-Automatic Lighting. Both 50% safer and 50% easier-to-operate than independently-spaced burner gas curers. Easiest on the market to install. F-M gas curers are more economical than competitor's independently-spaced burner gas curers.

FLORENCE-MAYO OPEN FLAME OIL CURER

Automatic safety valves make unit safer than any competitive gas curer lacking burner safety control. Curing costs $12 to $15 per barn.

FLORENCE-MAYO JET OIL CURER

The automatic oil curer with safety controls at the burner. Thermostat located outside of barn. Burns low-price No. 2 oil. Curing costs $12 to $15 per barn.

She Hit Captor On Head With Hammer

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP) — Elma Baldwin, scared but spunky, hit her ex-convict captor on the head twice with a hammer in an effort to free herself and her three children.

The story of the six hours she and her children were forced to spend with their kidnaper, Richard Arlen Payne, was related Thursday night by Mrs. Baldwin via telephone to reporter Don Marsh of the Charleston Gazette.

Payne was captured at a state police roadblock here.

"I knew if I was going to do anything," said Mrs. Baldwin, "I'd better do it before we left South Charleston."

She told this story:

I was pretty scared. He'd threatened to torture and kill the children. I didn't know what was going to happen. We stopped at a service station in Spring Hill.

There was a hammer under the front seat and I whispered to my oldest boy to hand it to me when I made a signal.

I motioned with my hand and the boy gave me the hammer. We were stopped at the service station then, getting gas, but the attendant wasn't paying any attention to us.

I hit him with a hammer, hard, in the back of the head. Then I hit him another lick in the forehead.

It made a deep cut in his head and it bled a lot.

It didn't seem to make him too mad. He took the hammer away from me and said I couldn't hurt him. He said he'd been hit in the head so much it didn't make any difference.

Then we drove out on Davis Creek, past Ruth and on into Lincoln County. I got lost after that. I had no idea where we were.

I kept trying to talk to him. I wanted him to take his mind off the children.

We drove around over back roads all night. I was afraid to go to sleep. He didn't sleep either. Actually, he was real nice to us.

Mother And 3 Children Unharmed; Abductor Held

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Mrs. Elma Baldwin and her three youngsters were back in their bungalow today, unharmed but exhausted. Their kidnaper was back behind bars just eight days after he got out of prison.

Sallow, heavy-lidded Richard Arlen Payne, 23, was booked for kidnaping at Kanawha County Jail shortly after midnight. That was six hours after Payne, with his four hostages still in the car, was captured at a state police roadblock at Logan, 70 miles south of here.

Payne shot twice at a trailing police car before surrendering.

Talking freely and calmly with reporters, Payne said flatly: "If they send me back to the pen, I'm going to kill Post. They can't keep me from him in there. I just hope he's ready for me."

Payne did not go into detail as to the cause of his pent-up passion against Post. Thursday Post told a guard at the penitentiary he had no idea what Payne had against him.

In jail, Payne stuck to his story of why he kidnaped the 29-year-old mother and her children from their home in nearby South Charleston Wednesday night.

He said he wanted them as hostages to force the release of his one-time cellmate, Burton Junior Post, 31, from the penitentiary so that he could kill Post.

Payne said he had planned the kidnaping for about two weeks but didn't select the Baldwins as his victims until he went to their home—three doors away from his house—and gained admittance on the pretext of wanting to use the telephone.

"I regret only that I was caught before I got Post," Payne said. "I was going to get his head and sort of preserve it. He's an enemy of my existence, and I hate him." He described his feeling to Post as "hatred at first sight."

Payne gave that motive for the kidnaping in a weird note addressed to Gov. Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia. The note threatened torture and death to the children if Payne's demand for Post's release was not met.

Payne left the note in the Baldwin home when he drove off in the family car with Mrs. Baldwin and Susan, 5; Danny, 7; and Kenneth, 10. The husband and father, John H. Baldwin, 30, was left behind, tied and gagged.

Despite the threats in his macabre note, Payne did not harm his captives. "I couldn't have killed them after I got to know them," he said later.

"It was the most horrible experience I ever had," Mrs. Baldwin said. "I guess it could have been worse though. After all, he was nice to all of us and never tried to hurt us."

In fact, Payne came out second best with Mrs. Baldwin. Before the kidnap car ever got out of South Charleston Wednesday night Mrs. Baldwin whispered to her older son to slip her a hammer from beneath the seat. She hit Payne two solid blows on the head with it.

"It didn't seem to make him too mad. He took the hammer away from me and said I couldn't hurt him. He said he'd been hit in the head so much it didn't make any difference," Mrs. Baldwin related.

Said Payne: "She had a lot of spunk, as you know from the hole in my head."

He was treated at a South Charleston hospital for a deep head cut before police brought him across the Kanawha River to Charleston and jail.

Jaycees Endorse Cases Heard In Committee Plan Superior Court

The Committee of 100 plan for attracting industry received the support of the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night.

Members of the club voted unanimously to support the organization of such a committee and to assist in any way we can in establishing this committee.

The action was taken after Jaycee President John Hardy reported that the club's board of directors had voted support of the industry efforts and recommended that the club give similar approval.

An organizational meeting for the Committee of 100 is planned for next Tuesday night.

Club members also heard from Mac Moore, president of the Goldboro Jaycees who has announced as a candidate for vice-president from the 11th Jaycee district.

He will be running against Marvin Baldeore of the Ayden Club. Baldeore had appeared before the Greenville club at a prior meeting to ask local support.

Members approved the sponsoring of a barber shop quartet singing concert for May 2. The concert will be staged by a Greensboro group.

Charles Horne presented a talk on Greenville Utilities rates. He compared Greenville rate with rates of other Eastern North Carolina towns. Horne is a member of the Utilities Commission.
