Won't Be Bluffed Into Summit Talk: Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he believes the Western Allies will have to meet at the summit with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to get any sort of valid agreement on German problems.

But he went on to say that his convictions concerning a summit conference have been known for years and that he never has changed them.

That was an obvious allusion to his statements, as recently as a week ago, that he would go to a summit meeting if developments in the meantime should warrant it.

At another point Eisenhower was asked to explain just what he had in mind when he said last week in a nationwide television-radio address that there must be justification for a summit meeting.

The West will not be bluffed or blackmailed into going to the summit, he said.

Eisenhower thus said anew, although indirectly, that his attendance at any summit meeting will be contingent on progress at an earlier conference of East-West foreign ministers.

The President was asked specifically whether he attaches any conditions to meeting at the summit with Khrushchev and this country's Western Allies.

At the time of Eisenhower's talk with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan there were reports from British quarters that Eisenhower had agreed unconditionally to go to a summit meeting.

Today the President noted that the reply of the Western Allies to a March 2 Soviet note regarding a summit conference has now been coordinated with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But the President did touch on other matters.

DULLES—He will never let anything of substance from the Russians—if we are going to get a valid agreement—then Khrushchev has got to be in the picture.

Eisenhower's news conference was dominated by discussion of the prospects for a summit conference and a settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Without saying so specifically, the President thus indicated that he has given thought to keeping Dulles on, possibly as a foreign policy adviser, even if Dulles' illness should make it necessary for him to resign as secretary of state.

Dulles advised him this morning, the President reported, that he is planning to leave for Florida Monday for a period of recreation and convalescence.

Dulles' doctors, Eisenhower said, are hopeful he will be able to get back into harness in a reasonable time, but so far have given no specific information on whether radiation treatments Dulles has been receiving have checked his cancer.

PROJECT ARGUS—The government will make public later in the day a report on Project Argus—the explosion last September of three atomic devices about 300 miles in outer space.

Asked whether the Argus tests would alter the U.S. position in attempts to negotiate a ban on nuclear testing with Russia and Britain.

Eisenhower said the Argus tests were a new development and that it has taken months to evaluate the results. That evaluation amounted to separating the scientific aspects from the military, the President said.

As for the prospect of a ban on nuclear weapons testing in the atmosphere alone, it still is too early to tell about that, Eisenhower said.

The basic question, he added, is the insistence so far on the right to impose a veto in any agreement negotiated. That has been one of the big stumbling blocks at the negotiations which started last October.

Argument That Reaches Far Afield

Opponents of minimum wage legislation for North Carolina seem to be reaching a little far afield in trying to establish a connection between the state's minimum wage bill and the writings of Karl Marx.

There is little likelihood that such far-fetched analogies will have much impression on the lawmakers or the people of North Carolina. The fact that Karl Marx favored minimum wages certainly doesn't mean that any state which establishes a minimum wage is drifting toward Communism. Stated or implied arguments to that effect hold about as much water as a sieve.

Minimum wage proposals are included in the platforms of both the major political parties of the United States and in the actions by the Congress of the United States and in the writings, proposals and speeches of some of the nation's greatest leaders of modern history. To give Karl Marx all the credit for the minimum wage idea is to do an injustice to many other men whose names live in history . . . and they weren't all Communists or Socialists by a long shot.

A state minimum wage of 75 cents an hour is a reasonable approach to one of the major economic problems of North Carolina today. As the proposed legislation is written, the 75-cent minimum wage would affect some 80,000 Tar Heels now employed, but earning less than that minimum. To be sure it would increase the operating costs of some concerns, but it would likewise provide a boost to the economy at the place it is needed most . . . at the bottom of the ladder.

As the legislators consider the merits of minimum wage legislation, Tar Heels are much more interested in how such a measure will affect the economy of the state than they are that Karl Marx advocated such a thing in his writings many years ago.

Full-Time Secretary Of State Is Needed

With the coming of Spring and the round of conferences ahead between the major Western powers and representatives of the Soviet Union, it becomes more pressing that the United States have a full-time Secretary of State on the job.

Medical reports indicate that State Secretary Dulles is making satisfactory progress in his fight against cancer. He has been well enough for a couple of rides out of the hospital and brief conferences with the President and with the British Prime Minister.

In spite of these, however, there has been no indication Secretary Dulles will be able to return to full-time duty as chief foreign officer of the United States.

The situation in recent weeks has brought two important results. It has thrust a greater burden for foreign policy and foreign affairs upon the shoulders of the President whose work load must be limited for reasons of health. It has also left the nation without the full-time services of a Secretary of State.

It is almost certain now that an East-West foreign ministers conference on the Berlin crisis will be held in Geneva on May 11. Prior to that time there will have to be top level foreign policy discussions between the Western powers, to iron out last minute details before across-the-table discussions with the Soviets. At these, and at the foreign ministers conference on Berlin, the United States should be represented by its Secretary of State.

With each passing day it becomes more urgent that President Eisenhower accept the resignation of John Foster Dulles as Secretary of State, and appoint to that important post a man who is able to carry out the duties of that high office.

Indefinite delay could seriously impair the position of the United States and other Western powers as well.

New Value Attached To 'Research Triangle'

Sponsorship of a laboratory in North Carolina's Research Triangle by the Atomic Energy Commission is certain to increase the importance of the research venture and to enhance the industrial growth potential of North Carolina.

The new AEC laboratory to develop uses of radioisotopes in industrial processes and research will be an important facility in the Southeastern region of the United States. The fact that it is located in North Carolina's Research Triangle surely will attract research facilities of major corporations throughout the nation.

As North Carolina's Research Triangle grows in national importance—which it has every appearance of doing—the area around the triangle will grow in industrial importance as a proving ground for at least a portion of the developments which come from the Research Triangle.

Announcement that the AEC sponsored laboratory will be located in the Triangle is sure to bring about rather quickly allied industry-sponsored projects which will tie in with the radio-isotope research. And as Gov. Hodges pointed out, it is a field which is in its infancy and one which is certain to grow in importance in the years ahead.

The AEC announcement is of utmost importance not only to the Research Triangle of the state, but to North Carolina as a whole as the state strives to identify itself as a leading location for both research and industry.

Contrast In Two Heads Of State

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their handling of their foreign ministers — and their attitude toward a foreign ministers meeting — is a prime example of the difference between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev.

It's a difference which should show up in many ways if the two men have their summit meeting this summer.

Khrushchev treats his foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, like a bookkeeper in charge of small details. Perhaps no president in history ever depended more on his secretary of state than Eisenhower on John Foster Dulles.

It's hard to imagine Khrushchev at a loss for a word or an idea at a summit get-together if Gromyko never showed up. He's already dismissed as a waste of time a foreign ministers meeting before a summit conference.

Dulles has been Eisenhower's strong right-arm in foreign affairs. It's doubtful because of his cancer, that Dulles can go overseas to a summit meeting with the President.

To be sure, Eisenhower, before he goes, will be well-briefed on details by his State Department aides and perhaps by Dulles himself, if the secretary hasn't resigned by then.

But on a minute by minute basis that won't be the same as having Dulles with him. The President respected Dulles' judgment, relied on him, listened, was guided by him.

It's no wonder Eisenhower, contrary to Khrushchev, had until recently insisted that any summit meeting must be preceded by a foreign ministers conference which showed some progress and agreement before the top men met.

If Eisenhower now seems to be attaching less importance to a foreign ministers meeting it may be due more to Dulles' illness than any argument by Khrushchev or influence by British Prime Minister Macmillan.

Besides reliance on Dulles, there's another good reason why Eisenhower should put much store on a foreign ministers meeting as a preliminary to the summit conference. Reliance on foreign ministers to work things out has been a traditional method of Western diplomacy, not summit meetings.

There are broad differences also between the President and the Russian premier.

The chubby, bald, extroverted Khrushchev — if he had been raised in this country — would have been called a pusher. He has been pushing all his life. He is an innovator and an experimenter.

Eisenhower, although he can play slam-bang politics at campaign time, is essentially a traditionalist and a conservative. He is a preserver.

His long and successful military career by itself alone would have been an enormous force in making him a respecter of tradition.

Khrushchev, on the other hand, pushed his way up through the cannibalistic ranks of the Communist party. Once at the top he kept pushing. First, he pushed aside the traditional idolatry lavished on the memory of Stalin; next he shoved aside his co-equals, the other heirs of Stalin, like Molotov, Malenkov, Bulganin, and Beria.

Meanwhile, he was trying to push the world in the direction he wanted — toward communism. He has done it with threats, with arms in Hungary, economic aid to the backward countries, infiltration in the Middle East, and blandishments toward the rest of the earth.

He has butted heads with Communist party big-wigs to send Soviet economic development spinning ahead.

Now he is determined to shake loose the East-West deadlock which has existed in Germany since World War II.

The summit meeting will be a conference between a rambunctious, daring but shrewd man and a conservative who has no revolutionary ambitions but is determined to preserve what the West holds, yielding not an inch to the advantage of the Soviet Union.

Trying To Break Our Lease

By DON SCHLIENZ

His Plans Worked Out

It was HIS show.

He'd planned celebrating that big fourth birthday with a party way back when he was about three-and-a-half years old; and the single-minded purposefulness of the boy was remarkable.

And as the months, weeks and days crept by (accompanied by reminders about his birthday party) his plans became more and more concrete.

For example, there came a time when the presents he wanted from his parents were narrowed down to a select and reasonable number; and, after a period of testing and sampling his mother's cakes he volunteered his choice for the party.

The guest list was no problem. His mother had only to ask, and the names spilled forth in a small torrent. That boy had been around on the birthday party circuit.

Knowing him well, I would say the quality of patience is thin in the boy; still, he exhibited a certain amount of control until the final week when he began issuing some verbal invitations with the intimation his party would be "tomorrow."

With that kind of drive and a couple of mothers who accompanied their offspring, the party could only emerge as the household's social event of the year.

Even his younger sister, who would be two years old in a matter of days, proved willing to let brother hog the spotlight. She moved almost unobtrusively through the crowd . . . just as grown up and constrained as anybody.

That night while preparing our Hero for bed there were no pointed references to a coming birthday party . . . which was a switch; nothing about the big day he had experienced; not even a whisper of planning for next year.

It must be that engineering a production like that takes something out of a little boy. I know for sure his mother and father rested much of the following day.

In other springs and summers the writer has cheerfully complained about the labors in first developing, then maintaining a yard about the house. With those mock tears was a marveling at the uplifting of spirits and the invigorating effect of toll out in the open after a busy day in the office.

Yesterday it was proven all over again.

Of course, anything would be a pleasure out of doors on a day such as Tuesday. It had all the earmarks of a good spring day.

Most of the afternoon was spent in a slouch, contemplating four walls for possible column material. And all the while the subconscious was boiling with desire to get out and walk in the sun. Right little work was done.

At home there was a lot of yard-building to be done (we're starting from scratch, this year), and once involved in welding a shovel all the phony tiredness, all the lethargy, all the dragged-out feeling that had accumulated through the weeks and months of inertia were washed away. In short, it was better than the best of tonics.

Unquestionably. But true, too. In other years that same miracle has occurred again and again; and I never fail to marvel. Something more than the expending of nervous energy in office work seems to be a necessary adjunct for relaxed contentment at the end of the day.

Once again, I had to tell about it.

Should we have church unity? Yes, if it does not cost too much. And by this we mean if it does not cost the surrender of vital truths in order to reach agreement.

In order to get together with our fellowmen on any proposal we have to submit to a certain amount of give-and-take. This is as true in the matter of church unity as in any other enterprise. But it is one thing to compromise on policy and something quite different to compromise on principle. Church unity will be fine if it does not cost too much—if it does not cost a compromise of principle.

All too often Christian leaders, when they get together for the purpose of trying to work out the problem of church unity, give up too much in exchange for agreement. On the matter of church government we can afford to give and take a great deal. On the matter of basic Christian doctrine, however, we cannot afford to give and take at all. We may have to accommodate the statement of our belief to the statement of belief made by others, but no compromise on the truth itself.

There is one Lord, one faith. The requirements of the gospel are firm and unyielding. Better have a thousand denominations and sects than to sacrifice any essential doctrine in an attempt to unite the church.

But compromise is not necessary if we go about our task wisely and in the right spirit. We can achieve our highest hopes and lose nothing if we follow the guidance of the truth we profess.

Audrey Enjoys Work

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't want to play Lady MacBeth or be a big fat star," said Audrey Meadows. "I just want to keep working."

"I'm a kind of slap-happy character. I've loved every show I've been on."

And titian-haired Audrey, the China-born daughter of an Episcopal missionary — she used to teach Sunday School — has been a standout in practically every branch of the entertainment field.

She started as a concert singer at 16. She sang and danced in Broadway musicals. She became known as television's brightest, breeziest young comedienne.

After a two-year layoff, she resumed her career as a quiz show performer and guest star. This Friday night she tries a new role, pinch-hitting for Edward R. Murrow.

"I'm glad they had a sinking spell and hired me for this job," she said, cheerfully. "I've always wanted to be a newspaper gal."

"I've been very fortunate in the show I've been on and the people I've worked with," said Audrey, who has a nice trait of always speaking well of the other fellow.

She brings a great gusto to living and enjoys a varied life. Because the only musical instrument she can play is the piano — "with one finger" — she plans to take lessons on the guitar.

"I suffer from the feeling there isn't time to do everything I want to," she said. "But I guess if there were time, that would be complete boredom, wouldn't it? It would be frightening."

Her favorite color is bright red. She says it makes her feel good. She likes to read, water ski, cook and watch baseball and football.

The only thing that bores her is "a closed mind." The thing that attracts her most is "a curious mind."

"So many people today are negative," she said. "I believe in kindness and a faith in something or someone beyond ourselves. If we all practiced kindness on a larger scale, we'd have fewer misunderstandings on all levels."

"I don't believe much in anger or fear."

"The only thing that really makes me angry is the sight of injustice. The only thing that scares me is the elements—hurricanes, lightning, thunder."

"I don't have many social fears. If there is a job I know I can't do, I don't take it." Asked what her epitaph would be if she could write it herself, Audrey grinned and said: "She tried—poor soul!"

Other Editors Saying . . . Strength For Today

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Thanks to the Senate, the headlong and unseemly rush of the General Assembly members to vote themselves $50,000 extra in travel pay has been halted. The Senate voted 23 to 22 to defer action on the bill until the appropriations bill is up for consideration. That would put the matter off until the very end of the session.

The bill passed so carelessly by the House and with complete disregard of due process, to say nothing of the principle of the proposal, would have paid Legislators mileage for one trip home each week.

Our objection to the bill was not so much at the money involved as at the complete disregard of the accepted proprieties which say legislation for immediate personal and pecuniary benefit for those voting is unethical.

Best opinion in Raleigh is that the pay bill will never be revived. But the people of the state would be happier, they would have a higher opinion of the General Assembly, if the Senate had killed the proposal by direct and uncontrovertible vote.

Effect of the delaying action still leaves the bill with some standing. It should have no such recognition. It should be scorned and bootied out for the "give me, give me" personal legislation for members which it is.

Opponents of the measure would have been less vehement if the bill had proposed that the extra travel pay go into effect at the next session of the Legislature. Then it would have escaped charges of raiding the money box to get pocket change.

If a General Assembly can vote itself an extra $50,000, if it can make such a brazen proposal, what would prevent it, with further decline in abiding by the ethics of the thing, from voting itself even greater amounts?

The Senate so far has preserved the honor of the Assembly. Let it look well to see that the cookie jar raiders do not rush again to the attack at some unguarded moment.

For information of Wayne people, Representative Braswell is understood to have voted for the bill in the House. Senator Rose is understood to have opposed the proposal.

Sums management pays into pension funds — despite the fact that workers have "earned" them — are not taxable to workers, although the benefits are taxable when received. However, since benefits are paid in low-income years, taxes are negligible.

To that extent, the bill is fair. A druggist making $125 a week would be on the same footing as a machinist making $125 in wages and fringe benefits, providing the druggist has the strength of character — and the small appetite — to put away something in a retirement fund.

Pressure For A Real 'Gold Mine'

Pressure by a curious coalition of lobbies is making the Simpson-Keogh bill likely to be passed in the current Congress.

This is the bill that would exempt up to $2,500 a year from taxation when self-employed business or professional men put it into retirement funds. The benefits would be taxable when paid.

It's a gold mine. Those taking advantage of it would have $2,500 of income exempt from taxes. That would mean a saving of up to $2,275 a year, since this sum would come off the top, which can be taxed as high as 91 per cent.

When this money was paid back in the form of pensions, taxes would be insignificantly low, since the beneficiaries would then be in low brackets.

There's a persuasive argument for it. It would place self-employed business and professional men, many of whom are far from that 91 per cent bracket, on the same basis with steelworkers, auto workers and other union men with pension deals.

Sums management pays into pension funds — despite the fact that workers have "earned" them — are not taxable to workers, although the benefits are taxable when received. However, since benefits are paid in low-income years, taxes are negligible.

RICH FOR THE RICHLY PAID But the big beneficiaries of the law would be doctors, lawyers and other professional men making $50,000, $100,000 or more a year. To them, the change in the law would mean a net increase of lifetime earnings of one or two thousand dollars a year.

Other beneficiaries would be the insurance companies and other institutions that maintain retirement plans. Thousands of new clients would walk in the door without a dollar's worth of advertising if the bill becomes a law.

Now lawyers, doctors and insurance companies maintain quite a bit of pressure on Congressmen.

Insurance lobbyists are official and registered. They have the fulcrum that almost every Congressman carries to insure himself. It is to his self-interest that each legislator hear them out.

For the most part, the legal and medical lobbyists are unofficial. Many, if not most, of the Congressmen are lawyers themselves. They are instantly subjected to the ideas and opinions of other lawyers. They are members of the club. What the legal profession wants, they want. Doctors, and often dentists, hold a somewhat different though no less effective relationship with Congressmen. They maintain a relationship not unlike a father confessor. A Congressman, being a human (and let's not elect any other kind!) will heed more carefully a man writing a prescription for him than he will a letter from a constituent signed "Indignant," who may not have voted for him anyhow.

Self-employed businessmen, nominally prime beneficiaries of the bill, are of little legislative importance. Most are too busy to make known their opinions. Their self-appointed representatives in Washington carry little weight. No association claiming to represent them as much as 1 per cent of the self-employed people in the U.S.A.

But the power small business lacks in more than compensated for by the special pleaders noted above.

Highway Commission Expected Ask For Extra $19.5 Million For Period

RALEIGH (AP)—The Highway Commission was expected to ask the Joint Appropriations Committee today to approve about 19 1/2 million dollars more than was recommended in its budget for the next biennium.

Vehicles Department outline their spending requests. The State Board of Education and the Department of Public Instruction, which operate the public schools, will put in their requests Thursday.

A Highway Commission spokesman said Tuesday night the additional funds, which were not approved by the Advisory Budget Commission, would be used for construction purposes.

In its "B" budget requests for the biennium, the commission asked for some 20 million dollars, but the Budget Commission approved only about $25,000.

Meanwhile, some members of the Appropriations Committee unceremoniously rebuffed Tuesday on State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine, who criticized the Budget Commission in a talk last week.

Ballentine had told a farm group that the commission authorized an appropriation for tractor equipment for the Agriculture Department, but neglected to make an appropriation for the tractor.

A group of officials interested in preserving the Outer Banks asked the committee to approve an appropriation of $600,000. The appropriation, recommended by the Budget Commission, would be used to make a study and buy land in the Ocracoke Inlet-Cape Lookout area.

The committee also was asked to approve $200,000 for a building to house the Research Triangle Institute.

Ballentine said, "It came from a mixup which occurs in other departments of this government under the new budgeting system."

Rep. Watta Hill Jr. of Durham hinted that Ballentine's statements were made for the sake of publicity.

Ballentine replied, "It was not intended to be a publicity stunt. It was intended to point out what

Rep. J. K. Doughton, a commission member, said the reason was that Ballentine listed the tractor in one budget and the tractor equipment in another budget.

Both items, he added, should have been listed in the same budget. "It was an honest mistake," Ballentine said.

Three-Way Race

RALEIGH (AP) — A three-way race has developed for the 1961 House speakership. Rep. Clyde Harris of Rowan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, announced Tuesday he had decided to enter the race.

Other announced candidates are Reps. Joe Hunt of Guilford and H. Cloyd Philpott of Davidson. Harris said he expects to receive support from Speaker Addison Hewlett's forces in his campaign. He added, "I believe I'll get them all. Maybe more than that."

Hewlett received more than 60 votes in defeating Rep. Carl Venters of Onslow for the speakership.

Hunt said he was already busy rounding up support. He added he was approached several weeks ago by a group asking him to run.

Philpott declared he is in the campaign "to the end" and is seeking votes from supporters of both Hewlett and Venters.

Milkman's Day In Court Has Surprise

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward T. Wesolowski, 47, who thought he had made many friends during his 15 years as a milkman in suburban Northlake, wasn't too sure for a while Tuesday. But there was a happy ending to two surprising events arranged for the milkman. The first surprise stemmed from a practical joke and left him quaking with fear as police took him to jail. He was photographed, handcuffed and taken to the crowded courtroom of Police Magistrate Thomas J. Maloney. As Maloney read the charges against Wesolowski, he brightened and got his second shocker of the day. One of the charges read: "He did willfully and unlawfully distribute and give away many gallons of milk and an equal amount of human kindness without reservation, not accepting gratuities in return, and did promote happiness among unfortunate residents of our community." Many of his customers among the 75 persons in the court room knew he didn't press for payment

Too Late Now To Ask For $8,000

NEW YORK (AP)—Any one of 180 people could have had $8,000 just for the asking, but it's too late now. The money, in $50 and $100 bills, was found in plain unaddressed envelopes by a night clerk at the Hotel Gladstone Sunday night. It was in a work basket next to the hotel safe, where some of the guests keep their safe deposit boxes. The hotel kept the money all day Monday waiting for one of the 180 guests to claim it. When none did, it was turned over to the police.

2 Youngsters Hope Bank Holdup Effort Overlooked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Frank about their prank on a bank, two youngsters hoped to be cleared of attempted holdup charges today. But they wished wistfully it hadn't happened. Little Dan McKay, 9, and big Danny Husk, 13, school boys on Easter vacation, simulated a bank holdup Tuesday seeking some play money. Trouble is, officials of the Bank of America—the world's largest— took them seriously. And a dragnet of 15 policemen and FBI agents took the bank seriously. So, when the youngsters returned home from a movie, they were arrested and turned over to the San Francisco Youth Guidance Center. The charge: attempted bank robbery. "They cried when we surrounded them," said Inspector William Porter. Big Dan's mother, Mrs. Wilma Husk, said "The boys meant no harm, although they shouldn't have done it. "Danny has never been in any trouble," she said. "He hasn't even been absent from school without my knowing it. I gave him a dollar to go to the movie. En route to the movie the boys stopped at the Bank of America Mission branch. The bank had issued some play money as a promotion campaign. The boys said they had lost theirs and wanted more. Little Dan, cleanly dressed in a sweater, jeans and tennis shoes, marched to the teller's window. He solemnly placed a slip of paper on the counter. It said (in Big Dan's handwriting) "Put $100 in sack or we'll blow up the bank, Dan Husk." "Who gave you this?" demanded Filamine Miller, the teller. Little Dan fidgeted and pointed to his buddy. Miss Miller scolded them and said "Get out of here."

Big Dan said he told her it was a joke and apologized. The boys left. Miss Miller reported the incident to J. C. Bonzani, branch manager, who called police. They traced the Husk boy's home address through his school records. "Three policemen barged into the house," said Mrs. Husk. "I was still out shopping and Danny wasn't home yet, but Mrs. Tessie Robbins (a guest) said the officers were very rude. They searched the house, but they didn't show Mrs. Robbins any papers." "When they got Danny and the McKay boy, the kids were scared stiff. Danny kept telling me: 'Mama, they don't believe me and we're telling the truth.'" Little Dan's father, Rufus McKay, a service station employee, said his 9-year-old — one of six children — is "full of mischief" but hadn't been in any real trouble. He said he planned to discipline the lad regardless of what juvenile authorities do.

Wants Drivers Hazard-Trained

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Student drivers, says a safety engineer, should be trained like soldiers, being exposed to hazards repeatedly until they instinctively react correctly. Dr. Earle Hannaford of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. told a safety conference Tuesday that traffic hazards could be simulated in motion pictures showing traffic rushing toward a driving class. Through repeated exposures under non-panic conditions, he said, student drivers can acquire built-in responses for use when the real thing comes along.

Yale Motor Inn Can Keep Name

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Travelers aren't likely to confuse a motel with a famed university, a superior court judge ruled. Both the motel and the university are named Yale, and the latter didn't like the former's use of the name. Judge Philip R. Pastore Tuesday denied an injunction sought by Yale University to prevent the Yale Motor Inn, located in nearby Wallingford, from using Yale in its title. The university brought the suit in August 1957, claiming the inn was using Yale reputation for private gain.

Navy Task Force To Move Across New Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Navy task force of 28 ships will move across the St. Lawrence Seaway this summer and tour 25 ports of the Great Lakes to mark the formal opening of the seaway. Using 1,000 Marines, the ships will practice amphibious landings at five places. Under the command of Rear Adm. E. B. Taylor, the force will carry about 8,000 officers and men, and 1,100 midshipmen from the Naval Academy. Adm. Jerald Wright, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, said Monday the 27-foot minimum depth of the seaway will enable all the ships to reach Chicago. Smaller members of the force will go on as far west as Duluth, Minn. The force, starting from Montreal, will comprise a heavy cruiser, a frigate, 15 destroyers, four submarines and several amphibious vessels and supply ships. The cruiser, the Macon, will be the largest warship ever to enter the lakes.

Simply Enjoys Burglary Career

SEATTLE (AP)—"If I had $100,000, I'd still pull burglaries," a sallow-faced youth said Tuesday as he told how he burgled more than 100 Seattle homes after throwing rocks through the windows. "It just sort of came natural. I used to like to throw baseballs," Walter E. Kinell, 22, told newsmen and police. "I get a big thrill out of it," he said. "I like the stealth and the dark. I could easily be 160 places." Kinell was arrested last November and admitted 103 burglaries. Because he had no prior record, sentencing was deferred for three years. Kinell was arrested Monday night after a burglary which followed his pattern. HARD AT WORK . . . Coach Jim Mallory is to study a way to get out of a ninth inning jam in the above picture. RPI rallied in the ninth inning yesterday but fell short as ECC won 5-4.

Pirates Win Second Of Season, 5-4

Ellen Gets Credit For ECC Victory

East Carolina College's baseball club chalked up victory number two yesterday afternoon at College Field but had to stave off a ninth inning rally before edging past Rensselaer Polytechnical Institution, 5-4.

The Pirates had considerable trouble at the plate but were able to rely on some strong pitching to gain their second win. The visitors from New York outhit ECC seven to five.

Coach Jim Mallory's predominantly freshmen club was able to capitalize on the breaks and got their few hits in opportune time. The Bucs opened the scoring in the bottom half of the second inning when Bob Gilden led off with a walk. Glenn Bass punched a broken-bat single into leftfield and Gilden later scored on Charles Johnson's infield grounder.

East Carolina added two more in the third frame on a couple of walks, two errors and a single by Gary Pierce. The hit gave Pierce a total of four in five times at bat against the northern club.

A single by Al Vaughn and a double by Wally Cockrell produced another run in the fifth inning. The ECC scoring was climaxed in the sixth inning when Doug Watts drove a triple to rightfield and later scored on an error.

RPI got back in the game in the seventh inning when they tallied their first run. Andy Longo opened the inning with a long triple and then came home on Charley Hoffmann's grounder.

The visitors struck across three more in the ninth inning as the ECC defense fell apart. Longo reached first when Cockrell dropped his long fly. Leo Laskowski banged a single and then Al Vaughn muffed Charley Hoffmann's double-play grounder to allow Longo to score from third. Bill Blanchfield popped up but Millard Hulse kept RPI alive by slashing a single to centerfield, scoring two runs. Action was speeded up in the ECC bullpen but Mitchell Moon got Jerry Byko and Jim Meyer to hit a couple of easy grounders to retire the side and preserve the win.

Johnny Ellen, freshman from Gardner, worked the first five innings and pitched scoreless ball and scattered three hits. The strong right-hander had good speed and control. Mitchell Moon, sophomore right-hander, worked the final four frames and gave up all the RPI runs although only one run was earned. Moon was touched for four hits, two being extra-base blows.

RPI used three pitchers and the trio gave up only five hits but had control trouble, walking nine batters. Steve Horn was charged with the defeat. East Carolina journeys to Camp Lejeune Thursday to play in a round-robin tournament. The Bucs will meet Indiana University Thursday, Camp Lejeune Friday, and will then have a double-header Saturday, playing both clubs.

Rose High In Action

Rose High, 1-1 for the season will venture into conference play tomorrow afternoon when they battle Washington High at the latter's home field.

It will be the opening conference title for both teams and should give both coaches a glimpse of the 1959 competition in the Northeastern loop.

Greenville finished with a 11-3 mark last season and were in first place until the final two games of the season which they dropped.

The Greenies lost almost their entire starting lineup from last spring but Coach Farley was real pleased with what he saw in the first two games and awaits the conference season with an optimistic outlook.

Either Ronnie Finch or Merrill Bynum will probably be on the mound tomorrow afternoon for the Greenies. Finch lost a heart-breaker in his opening start. Bynum pitched in relief Monday afternoon and struck out eight batters in his three inning stint.

Bynum has also been Farley's leading batter along with Randy Bass and Steve Noble. Greenville will take a break for the Easter holidays but will swing back into action next Friday against Tarboro.

Lewis Given Ax By Club Owners

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—J. Norman Lewis became the legal representative for the major league baseball players six years ago despite the belligerent opposition of the club owners. Today the New York attorney has lost the job because of his own belligerence toward the owners. Lewis was given the ax here Tuesday at a meeting of the 16 player representatives. They announced they now have more need for a public relations representative—an agency man to handle endorsements and similar matters—than an attorney.

Drysdale Hurls Five Hitter As Dodgers Continue Streak

By JIM KENSIL Associated Press Sports Writer Don Drysdale's "tired elbow" is wide awake.

He never took a rest Tuesday as the 22-year-old Los Angeles right-hander pitched nine shutout innings and the Dodgers upped their exhibition record to 10-3, best in the majors.

The Philadelphia Phils were the victims of Drysdale's 1-0 performance, a five-hitter at Saratoga. The Phils got only two runners past first base after the fourth inning, and although the Dodgers got only three hits, a double by Wally Moon and a triple by Jim Gentile in the fourth inning were enough. It was the first complete spring game by a Dodger pitcher in three years.

When Drysdale flopped at the start of the 1958 season some said it was nervousness before "hometown" fans. Don was born in Van Nuys, Calif., played high school ball there and was a hero in the Los Angeles area before making it with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956. He was 5-5 in his rookie year and 17-9 in 1957 before the Dodgers went West.

Others said it was the absence of Roy Campanella that caused Don to have a 2-8 record on May 27 last year and only 4-9 at the All-Star Game break in July. Don finally got going and ended the season 12-13.

Recently he brushed aside any detailed explanations of his slow '58 start with this statement: "My arm just wasn't in shape. I used to get tired in the elbow. That's where I feel it when my arm isn't strong. This spring I feel I passed that tired elbow stage early."

His record backs up that speech. He has allowed only two runs in 24 innings, has 17 strikeouts and has walked only five batters. Up until Tuesday only Bob Anderson of the Chicago Cubs had gone nine innings, but Milwaukee's Warren Spahn and Pittsburgh's Vern Law made the step along with Drysdale. No American Leaguer has gone the route. Spahn was as sharp as Drysdale, allowing only five hits in a 3-0 victory over St. Louis at St. Petersburg. The 38-year-old left-hander is the highest paid ($60,000) pitcher in baseball because he can come up with the big one. The Braves, only 4-14 in Florida games, needed a shot and the arm and Spahn provided it with the help of a first inning lead off homer by Ed Haas. The Braves broke a five-game losing streak. Law stopped the much-improved Detroit Tigers 3-1 at Lakeland, as Rocky Nelson, the perennial minor leaguer chipped in with three hits, including a home run. One of four hits off Law was a homer by Gail Harris.

Baltimore's shelled Kansas City 11-3 at West Palm Beach. The Orioles, atop the AL spring standings with a 9-4 record, had 14 hits, including homers by Gus Triandos and Willie Tasby.

Washington hung the seventh straight defeat on Cincinnati, 7-6 at Tampa. Frank Robinson hit a grand slam homer in the Reds' sixth-run eighth after the Senators had finished scoring.

The Boston Red Sox' nosedive continued at Phoenix where the San Francisco Giants won 10-4. It was Boston's fourth straight loss after winning 10 of their first 11. The pitching-poor Giants got their customary robust hitting, but more important was seven innings of five-hit work by former Phil Jack Sanford.

Ernie Banks doubled home two runs in an eighth inning pinch hitting role as the Chicago Cubs broke a tie and defeated Cleveland 4-2 at Mesa. Rookie Joe Schaffernoth shut out the Indians on four hits for seven innings.

In a night game at Miami, the New York Yankees landed on rookie Rodolpho Arias of the Chicago White Sox for five runs on seven hits in the fifth inning, the last five in a row. The Yanks won 6-4 and ended a string of 10 scoreless innings by Arias.

Patten Receives State Award For Golfer Of Year

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Walker Cup player Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, one of the nation's top amateur golfers, is the "Golfer of the Year" in the Carolinas.

Patton will receive the second annual Greater Greensboro Open Cup, donated to the Carolinas Golf Writers Assn. by the Greensboro Jaycees, sponsors of the GGO, at the writers' annual banquet here April 9.

The golfer of the year award is for service to golf in the Carolinas. Patton was selected by the golf writers for his contribution to the game during 1958. Last year's winner was Dugan Aycock, Lexington pro.

Patton was one of five nominated for the award this year. Earl Hellen, executive secretary of the GGWA, announced.

Others were Buddy Baker of Florence, S.C., national junior champion; P. J. Boatwright of Pinehurst, executive secretary of the Carolina Golf Assn.; Furman Hayes, Gastonia pro who won the Carolinas Open in '58; and Thorne Wood, Asheboro pro who won the Carolinas PGA in '58.

Patton won the Carolina Golf Assn. amateur championship last year. On the national front he was playing captain of the U.S. Americas Cup team which defeated Mexico and Canada in the annual matches in San Francisco.

White Sox Look For Better Year

By JOE REICHLER Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Al Lopez, who has finished second to the Yankees in seven out of the eight years he has been a big league manager, thinks this may be the year his Chicago White Sox will finally beat New York to the wire.

He thought so last year, and the year before, and the year before that, etc. He was right only in 1954 when his Cleveland Indians had to play at a record-breaking pace to top the Yankees' 103 victory total.

"I think we'll give the Yankees a better run this time," the personable Lopez said. "They got off to a flying start and we did just the opposite last year. In May, they were a mile out in front and we were in last place. With it all, we gave them quite a scare."

Lopez firmly believes his club is better than it was last year and he is willing to make a sporting wager the White Sox won't get off to the same miserable start.

"I think we have more power and I'm sure we have better pitching," he said. "Jim Wilson has retired but Barry Latman will more than make up for him. He pitched well for us in the tail-end of the season last fall and he's big, strong and cocky."

Latman joins veterans Billy Pierce (17-11), Dick Donovan (15-14) and Early Wynn (14-16) as the club's big four. Ray Moore, Bob Shaw, Gerry Staley, Don Rudolph and Tom Quatman round out the staff.

"For the first time in years the White Sox have three outfielders who conceivably can play every day," Lopez said. "Jim Landis, in center, is now an established star. He was hitting .180 last July but hit around .350 after that.

"Al Smith, our right-fielder, was bothered by a bad leg all last year. He now is sound and has looked good. Johnny Callison is our left fielder. He has had less than two years experience and he's only 19 but we think he will hit."

With Sherm Lollar heading a three-man catching staff that will include Earl Battey and either John Ramon or Les Moss, Lopez has no problems there.

Jones Traded To Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sad Sam Jones, St. Louis Cardinal right-hander, is being traded to the San Francisco Giants for two left-handed sluggers, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

The 33-year-old Jones, whose 2.88 earned run average was second only to the Giants' Stu Miller's 2.47 in the National League last year, might be the answer to the San Francisco club's admitted pitching needs.

The newspaper said that outfielder Willie Kirkland, powerful but inconsistent hitter for the Giants, seemed to be headed East in the deal.

The other slugger, it said, would be either first baseman Bill White or outfielder Leon Wagner.

"The Cardinals want White and Wagner but Giant owner Horace Stoneham feels Wagner, who batted .317 in 74 games last year, is too good a prospect," the Chronicle said.

"Others in the Giant family believe Wagner, an uncertain fielder, is more expendable than White, who can also play the outfield."

White played in only 26 games last year and hit .241. Jones set a league record when he struck out 225 for the Cards in 1958, erasing the club's all-time record of 199 strikeouts by Dizzy Dean in 1933.

Northern Clubs Have No Wins Against ACC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlantic Coast Conference baseball teams haven't tested each other yet but most of them are showing promise in early season games with non-conference squads.

Three ACC clubs got into action today in a home game with victories, all came out with victories. North Carolina's Tar Heels, who have all but three of their starters back from last year, edged Connecticut 8-7. N.C. State whipped Dartmouth 7-5 and Duke pulled out a 5-4 win over Colby College.

South Carolina opens its schedule today in a home game with Kentucky, while State again takes on the touring Dartmouth squad. Conference play gets under way Friday when South Carolina entertains Maryland and Clemson hosts Virginia.

North Carolina, which lost the 1958 ACC title in a playoff with Clemson, had its hands full with Connecticut. The visitors, trailing 5-1 after four innings, rallied for five runs in the fifth, driving starter Ben Harding off the mound. With the score tied 7-7 in the eighth, shortstop Harold Workman smashed a long liner to right centerfield. He circled the bases and scored before the ball could be retrieved.

North Carolina State had to come from behind with three runs in the fourth and another trio in the fifth to defeat Dartmouth. Neal Eason and Stacy Wells each hit twice for the Wolfpack. Southpaw Jim Overby, who struck out nine, got credit for the win.

At Durham, a double by Charlie Dunlevy in the seventh inning pushed across the tying full with runs against Colby College. The visitors had gone ahead 4-3 in the fourth with three hits and two walks off Duke starter Butch Williams. Lefty Bob Byers took over for Williams and pitched one-hit ball the rest of the way.

Cornell Seeks New Coach

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Cornell, a soft touch in Ivy basketball, searched today for a coach who would spark the Big Red to the top of the league's totem pole.

Royner Greene, who once turned out the best basketball team in Cornell's history, resigned Monday night because "tensions had piled up in the last two years," when his teams twice finished sixth.

Greene said he would like a change, but was undecided whether to enter business or continue in athletics.

During his 13-year tenure, Cornell won 168 games and lost 145. His 1950-51 club had a 20-5 record, best in the school's history, and his 1953-54 squad captured Cornell's first Ivy championship in 30 years.

This year's team was 8-15.

Baker Is Out

Ben Baker, only veteran pitcher on the East Carolina College baseball squad, was counted out of the Pirates plans this morning or at least for awhile.

Baker, hard-throwing left hander who has been the work-horse during the past two seasons, received a knee injury last quarter and has been slow to respond to treatment.

The Bucs were expected to leave for Camp Lejeune tonight and the Zebulon southpaw will not make the trip. "It will leave quite a burden on the rest of our pitchers," stated Coach Jim Mallory.

Word from Camp Lejeune this morning stated that Springfield College, Eastern Conference champions last season, would be at the Marine Camp for the round-robin baseball tournament beginning tomorrow.

With Springfield, a strong club in the NCAA play-offs last spring in the tournament, ECC's playing schedule may be altered. Coach Mallory said this morning that they (ECC) would still meet Indiana University on Thursday and then play Springfield on Friday. The ECC coach also pointed out that they would be in a doubleheader Saturday but was unsure of the opposition.

Larry Grayton, freshman southpaw, is expected to be ECC's starting choice against Indiana. Mallory was expected to follow with Johnny Ellen and Earl Boykin on the mound.

Track Star Is Injured

BOSTON (AP)—Boston University freshman John Thomas, the world high jump record holder, will be sidelined eight to 12 weeks with a foot injury suffered in an elevator mishap.

The track career of the 18-year-old sensation was nearly ended Tuesday when his left foot got caught between an elevator and the shaft in a BU building where he is employed part time.

Thomas, who became the first athlete to jump seven feet in four days before registering his world mark of 7 feet, 1 1/4 inches, suffered three cuts and bruises, but escaped broken bones.

The DEADLY LADY of MADAGASCAR

BY C. V. TERRY

CHAPTER 25

Night had fallen when the Pilgrim Venture dropped anchor in Ringo Bay. Though there was a great stir of feet overhead, Tom Hoyt and I were confined to quarters until morning.

When we went ashore at last, it was in a longboat with four of Mozo's watch at the sweeps. Before we went topside, the Negro blindfolded us — and the blindfolds remained in place until we stood in the pirate king's presence.

Red Carter's stronghold was situated near the southern tip of Madagascar, not far from Cape Sainte Marie. Bored on three sides by beetling hills and a belt of rain forest, Ringo Bay was completely hidden from the sea, thanks to a narrow estuary, whose mouth was smothered in jungle. Finding the entrance without landmarks was virtually impossible; sailing its dog-leg channel was a task to try any captain's seamanship.

Once the roadstead was entered, protection from bad weather and enemy telescopes was virtually assured. To the south and west, high, rock-ribbed headlands offered added protection. Red Carter had finished what nature began by planting masked batteries on the hunch-crowned heights — with each gun muzzle trained dead on the harbor mouth.

Members of the buccannier fleet were always at anchor here — in the act of disgorging cargo, licking recent wounds, or careening on one of the several broad beaches that fringed the roadstead. Carter's warehouses stood just above the high-water mark. His countinghouse occupied the end of the longest of several piers that marched, on spider-leg pillings, into the very heart of the bay.

The pirate king's own abode stood apart — on a headland at the southern end of the harbor. Its own beach spread like a tan rug to meet the tide, and acres of palm groves surrounded it. Like the other structures on Ringo Bay, it was more than a dwelling. In this case a deep moat and drawbridge gave added protection, along with an outer wall of crushed stone and a star-shaped barbican that flanked the gate.

As I have related, Tom and I were led blindfolded to the portico of his lair before we were permitted our first glimpse. When Mozo took the blindfolds from our eyes, we found ourselves standing on a rattan matting in the midst of a wide veranda. I knew instantly that the figure facing us across a trestle table was Red Carter.

He was well over six feet in height, with the shoulders of a bullock and a leonine head that sprouted fire-red hair in all directions. His locks were a scarlet blizzard; his spade-shaped beard seemed a deeper red, and bristled when he spoke. The eyes were a mild china blue. I would learn how quickly they could darken when passion seized him, how they could shower forth visible sparks on the object of his wrath.

When he heaved to his feet, he seemed to tower above us both; when he held out a hand to each of us, I could feel myself grow smaller within my own skin. He was naked, save for a pair of nankeen drawers — and his bare feet, gripping the planking with each gnarled toe, were made for a ship's deck. The voice (even when he did no more than purr) could have outshouted a hurricane, just as the massive body could have outridged it.

"Welcome, lads," he said. "Don't tell me who's the sawbones; let me guess."

He flattered with laughter when his fist tapped Tom Hoyt's chest. "We can use you at once, Dr. Hoyt; the Merry Andrew is just back from the Celebes, and there was a bumper crop of surgery aboard. But sit down now, both of you — where I can study you."

He swiveled my way at last, with an intent stare. "I'm also glad to welcome your shipmate aboard, Doctor; judging by my daughter's report, we can use him, too."

I forced myself to meet the im-plish chint-blue eyes when he turned my way again. He had fallen silent, as though daring me to unlock my thoughts. The exchange with Tom had been deliberate, I saw; he was giving me time to sort my impressions.

"What are you thinking, Mr. Douglas?" he asked me abruptly. "That I bear small resemblance to my daughter Bonnie?"

I spoke up, as boldly as I could. "When we met in the New World, sir — I took her for a Portuguese lady. I haven't changed my view."

"Your judgment does you credit, lad," he said. "Bonnie's both a lady and a sailor — I've seen that since she could walk. Will you serve with her if the prize money's right?"

I had not expected so prompt an offer. In a way, it was reassuring — yet it troubled me, too, in a fashion I could not define.

"I'm her man, if she wants me," I said. "That's why I'm here."

"And you, Dr. Hoyt?" Tom shrugged. "I'm a surgeon who loves his trade," he said. "This seems a likely place to practice it."

"Will you each take ten shillings until you've proved your worth?" I calculated swiftly, remembering the strange arithmetic of piracy well enough. Half of each prize cargo went to the corsair's owner (in this case, the pirate king himself). Set shares were given to the skipper of the vessel, and to each of his mates. Depending on seniority, seasoned members of the crew were granted one-fifth of each hundred pounds of value there after — share and share alike, until such as the dog had his just deserts. Finally the apprentices scrambled for what was left, to the tune of ten pounds per hundred.

Piracy (like any trade) paid its real rewards at the top. If the prize was rich enough, a skipper (or even a mate) could retire on the profits of a single voyage.

London was said to be full of such ex-rascals, rolling like lords from coach to club in their green old age, full of strange tales from a deeded past.

A man of spirit (I faced the fact calmly) could rise swiftly in such company if he put his morals behind him.

"The berth's mine, sir," I said. "And mine," said Tom. "Will you take our mark today or later?"

"Now, since you gentlemen are agreeable," said Carter. "I'm putting the Pilgrim Venture to sea again tomorrow."

I sucked in my breath, hoping my face was still a mask as the knife gleamed in one of his massive fists. The steel had appeared as though by magic. With his free hand Carter took inkpot and parchment from a drawer. When the sheet was unrolled, I saw it was a set of articles, not too different from the contract each sailor initiated before a voyage (or marked with his cross if he was unable to write). The brethren of fortune have their own rituals. I was aware that the present articles must be marked with special ink.

The ritual was a simple one: I am proud to say I stood without flinching while Carter's blade slashed downward, pricking the skin of Tom's forearm and my own, smearing our thumbs in the spurt of crimson, and affixing the thumb-print to the parchment, below the spot where we signed our names. This was the blood oath.

I am told it is a ceremony older than pen or ink — a vow few men have broken and lived to boast of the breaking. I had expected to take it in more ominous surroundings — or by candle at midnight, perhaps — on deck with a file of shipmates watching.

I glanced at Tom, who was still staring at the pucker of red on his wrist — and was glad to observe that his face had gone white. When Carter broke out a demi-john and gave us each a tot of rum, Tom downed his glass at a toss. I sipped at mine, careful to keep my thoughts veiled.

Our position seemed secure. It was easy to infer that Bonnie Carter's report on us both had been excellent — and that her judgment had been accepted.

Dick Douglas is going to find out that Bonnie Carter's report on him is not what he's expecting it to be. Continue "The Deadly Lady of Madagascar" here tomorrow.

Save Large Part Of TV Earnings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Beaver and his brother are saving almost a third of their television earnings.

The two made their annual court appearance as minors to report on their savings Tuesday. They are Jerry Mathers, 10-year-old star of the "Leave It To Beaver" series, and Tony Dow, his 13-year-old sidekick.

Superior Judge John Gee Clark ordered last year that 15 per cent of their earnings go into a savings account. Tuesday he raised this to 20 per cent.

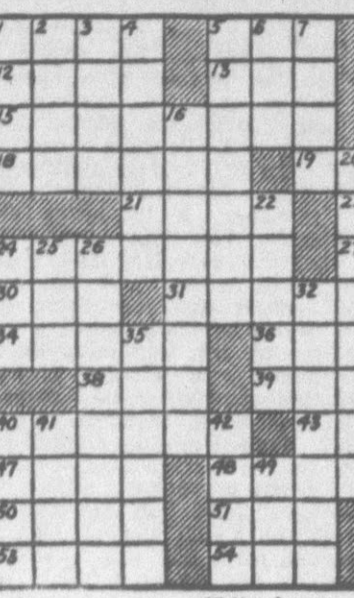

Tony's mother, Mrs. Muriel D. Dow, and Jerry's father, Norman Mathers, who is head counsellor for the Los Angeles school system, reported they have actually been saving 30 per cent of the boys' earnings.

Jerry makes $550 a week, Tony $500 a week.

Sherry Prefers Roles In Clothes, But Has To Eat

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—George Jean Nathan wrote in his book on burlesque that Sherry Britton has "an allergy to clothes." Now Miss Britton would like it thoroughly understood that she has overcome her allergy.

Next Friday (March 27, 8 p. m., EST) she will be seen in "A Girl Named Daisy," one in the new "Elery Queen" series on NBC-TV.

From the neck up Miss Britton has an I. Q. of 157 and small, classical features rather like those ascribed to Helen of Troy. From the neck down she has attributes, too.

As Miss Britton explained it, her alleged allergy to clothes has been transformed into a slight allergy to the art of taking 'em off. She demonstrates her art occasionally in nightclubs these days only to pay the rent and the grocery bill while her mind lingers on loftier ambitions in television and in the theater.

"My problem is one of identification," she said. "I've appeared in 30 plays and television dramas. It's years since I worked in a burlesque theater. The last time my name was associated with burlesque was at Carnegie Hall where I narrated 'Best of Burlesque'—and received wonderful notices without taking off even a glove."

Miss Britton said that she didn't read for her role as a carnival codd dancer in the Friday "Elery Queen" program. A codd dancer, she explained, sitting perfectly still, is a girl who wiggles her hips.

She finds it ironic that every time she has tried out for the role of a strip-teaser on television she has been turned down. Why this should be she cannot imagine.

Mulling it over, we imagine it's because her features are cameo, her expression as fresh and innocent as that of a well-bred ingenue from suburbia.

On occasion Miss Britton has tried to obtain television roles under an assumed name, she said. Each time she has been assured of the job—and each time her true identity has been discovered.

After a Mike Wallace television interview some time ago she said that she received "numerous wordy letters from viewers asking me why I keep on showing my body for a living when I could be doing something else."

"The answer is that when I go broke I have to go back to stripping. Six times I've quit and six times I've gone broke—and then I have to go back to it to earn a living."

Sues To Recover Her Tax Money

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Rosalind Russell is suing to recover $15,476 which she says the government collected in overpaid taxes.

She contended in her suit, filed Tuesday, that maintaining residences in both California and New York was a legitimate business expense in 1953. She was appearing at the time in the Broadway stage production "Wonderful Town."

Her taxable income that year was $275,000, she said.

Work Release Bill Needs Only Formal Ratification

RALEIGH (AP)—Only formal ratification remains before North Carolina's newly enacted work release law for prisoners will become effective, probably later this week.

The administration-backed bill, debated before it received House approval, was enacted Tuesday when it sailed through the Senate.

Felon convicts serving sentences up to five years will be eligible for the broadened work release plan. Under it, a prisoner may serve his time behind bars at night and on weekends and work at a regular job during the daytime.

The 1957 Legislature approved a work release plan, but it applied only to certain misdemeanant prisoners. Because of its provisions, only a few prisoners have been placed under the plan.

Sponsors of the new law argued it will bring more eligible convicts under the program.

Prison Director William F. Bailey said, "I'm hoping the flexibility provided in the new law will make it more useful."

Other legislative highlights included:

The House Committee on Manufacturing and Labor heard arguments for and against minimum wage legislation. The committee postponed a vote on two bills, one of which calls for a 75 cents hourly minimum wage and the other for a $1 hour minimum.

The Senate State Government Committee gave a favorable report to a House-passed bill which would create a commission to plan and supervise construction of a proposed new legislative building. Gov. Hodges and the Advisory Budget Commission have recommended 4½ million dollars for the building. The appropriation is included in the budget measure now before the Appropriations Committee.

House Judiciary 2 Committee applied the axe to a proposal to give a third chance to motorists before licenses are suspended for speeding convictions.

A total of 654 new personnel would be added to the public schools under a bill introduced by Reps. Charles A. Hostetler of Hoke and Killian Barwick of Pasquotank. The cost would be $6,180,910 during the next biennium. The new personnel would include 300 teachers to relieve principals from teaching duties.

The House received eight bills to carry out recommendations of the State Municipal Government Study Commission. Introduced by Rep. Frank M. Woolen of Pitt and others, the bills generally cover planning and zoning powers for counties and municipalities.

Searchers sifted through the ruptured interior of a meat packing plant today looking for two workers believed missing in a freak disaster which claimed five lives.

Five workers died Tuesday when an ice house atop the seven-story brick building collapsed. It ripped huge holes in each floor in its dive to the basement. Sixteen other workers were injured.

Tons of rubble and meat were piled at the base of the building. The stinging aroma of ammonia was prevalent as the searchers continued their task.

Company officials said they are fairly certain the missing men are buried in the debris and presumed dead. They were identified as Claud Wilkinson and James McIntosh.

Scores of lives were saved when seconds elapsed before each floor section gave way. Workers said they heard muffled rumbles similar to an earthquake and scurried to safety.

A coffee break may have saved additional lives. Officials said there was no way to determine how many of the plant's 1,100 workers were in the building at the time.

Ironically, one of the victims, Ronnie Porter, was an off-duty fireman working on his day off.

He said there was no special significance in his visiting the Soviet Union, that "it happens to lie on my route."

BUILDING MOOD

GREENSBORO (AP)—North Carolinians were in a building mood last year. The Commerce Department's field office here reports 10,190 new dwelling permits were issued the first 10 months of 1958, a 28 per cent increase over the same 1957 period.

The Jones Act in 1917 granted American citizenship to inhabitants of Puerto Rico.

Junior Honored For Many Industries, First At Ayden School Quarter Has Been 'Glorious'

By FRANCES BOOTH
Ayden School Reporter

Elizabeth has been chosen "Citizen of the Month" at Ayden High. Elizabeth is a member of the Junior class and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Bennett. She is a member of the annual staff, Future Homemakers of America, and the Ayden High School Chorus.

NEW YORK (AP)—For many industries the first quarter of 1959 is bowing out gloriously. The outlook for the spring months is bright.

But many economists today are taking a gloomy view of business this summer.

Fear of major labor troubles is in the forefront of their thinking. But that isn't all.

For the industries that have been sparking the business recovery in recent months will have to have help from other sources, if the momentum is to carry much farther. And these other sources show little signs of contributing more than they are now.

Biggest gains just now over a year ago are in the hard goods industries. This is partly due to their being the most depressed a year ago. It is also due to a widespread drive to get ready before labor troubles break—whether in strikes, higher prices, or both.

Hedging against strikes is pronounced in the metal industries. Steel mills expect to ship one-fourth more steel this first quarter of 1959 than in the last three months of 1958. Just when the buildup of stocks by their customers will end, they can't foretell too accurately. The week by week increase in orders has slowed a bit.

But steelmen are counting on a good spring pickup in demand from other quarters such as construction. They hope for a continuing good or better demand for autos during the spring. This could tide the steel industry over nicely till the end of June when its union contracts expire.

But strike or no strike, few now expect steel demand to be heavy this summer.

Hedging against the threat of strikes in the copper industry this summer still continues. Demand for copper is also boosted by labor troubles in various foreign mines. Demand for copper is often tied closely to demand for steel.

Tin has been enjoying a boom for much the same reason. Users of tinplate have been laying in stocks—in fear of a possible steel work stoppage.

The auto makers have been turning out more cars this year than last. Auto dealers report selling more cars, too.

But the industry has been humming while building up dealers' stocks. Detroit is reported ready now to tailor production closely to sales.

So that leaves it up to the consumers. If they buy, auto production will go on at a good clip, and more steel will be bought.

Consumer spending has held up well, but there are few signs that it will turn into a spree as in 1955.

Some think this will also be true in housing. Home building has topped year ago figures, but signs of a further increase are few. And more home building would be a strong factor if the economy's recovery pace is to increase.

Another needed boost would come from business itself, if it decided to increase its spending for plant and equipment significantly. Indications are that spending will pick up some later this year—but only a bit.

Four skits from the junior play, "The Red Spider," were given in chapel on Friday. The skits were enjoyed by all.

Writers and waitresses for the Junior-Senior Banquet were announced on Friday. Head waiter is Ted Norris. Other waiters are Rob Roy Turnage, J. D. Willoughby, Donald Carmon, Tony Blackwell, and Dennis Mills. Head waitress is Connie Coward. Head waitresses are Sue Fort, Terry Gwyn, Shirley Garris, Vickie Hardee and Jackie Harrington.

Two birthdays were celebrated by surprise parties on Friday. Mrs. Carolyn Howard, French teacher at Ayden High, was given a party by her French I students. David Jackson was honored on his 18th birthday with a get-together at the Jay-Cee Park on Friday night.

helping because the divorce rate, lately so high, is beginning to go the other way, he said.

"There are many kinds of love, from the brotherly love we first experience as children to romantic love in the 'growing love' we learn after living many years with a person," Dr. Duvall said.

Often, he said, a person who believes he is romantically in love is really looking for the answer to some desire he has, a hope or dream or just his love of love.

The most common type of romantic love results from a desire to play a particular role in life and the belief that the loved one will play along, he said. This system works satisfactorily unless a mistake is made about the other party's willingness to play the correct part, he added.

"The safest way to select a mate," Dr. Duvall said, "is to look for someone with whom we think we can unite in the enterprise of building a home and a family."

They Call It Love, But May Be Playing A Role

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP)—People who believe they are in love are often really trying to play a certain role in life, a professor of social science and religion told Winthrop College students yesterday.

Dr. S. M. Duvall was principal speaker for Sociology Forum and the Winthrop Christian Assn.'s Marriage Conference. He is a professor at George Williams College in Chicago.

"The practice of selecting one's own mate is a recent idea of Western culture," he said. "Fortunately, we have found guides to help in making this important decision for ourselves of how to tell if it is really love."

PAHOKEE, Fla. (AP)—A farmhand scaring blackbirds from a cornfield with powerful firecrackers was killed Tuesday when a box of "giant salutes" exploded under his arm.

Deputy sheriff Frank O'Connell said Lawson Wilkes lived about five minutes after the blast. A spark from Wilkes' pipe apparently blew into the box, setting off all the explosives at once.

Wilkes was walking down rows of corn ready for harvest. He carried the box of firecrackers under his arm, lighting them one by one from his pipe and hurling them around the field.

Bird-Scarer Is Blast Victim

So the things needed to take up the slack if the metals boom ends—plant and equipment spending, increased inventory buildup, a bigger boom in housing, a spanking increase in auto buying — aren't sure things as the pleasant first quarter ends.

Life On Tropical Isle Has Faults To Four Airmen

By GENE KRAMER

GERHALA ISLAND, Sulu Sea (AP)—How would you like to live six months on a tropical island complete with a comfortable cabin, radio and refrigerator and your own white beach at the doorstep?

Four U.S. airmen here aren't exactly overjoyed.

Among the drawbacks are poisonous snakes and giant lizards. An abandoned leper colony is nearby. But the airmen say the worst thing is monotony and loneliness.

"I've come to the conclusion you can take this exotic stuff and give it to somebody else," said Sgt. John C. Coleman, 26, of Towanda, Penn. "I've had my fill of just basking in the sun."

"We have a life of boredom and waiting to go home," echoed Sgt. H. O. Jones, 27, of Cairo, Ga., dressed in the uniform of the day—a bath towel around the waist.

Coleman and Jones are stationed for six months on this British island four miles off Sandakan, North Borneo, with Airman I.C. David Pair, 23, (Route 1) Double Springs, Ala., and Sgt. John R. Overstreet, 29, (Route 1) Durant, Okla.

They belong to the 1370th Aerial Photomapping Group in the Philippines and are not permitted to discuss their mission. Sources in Sandakan say they are manning a ground locator station in a U.S. Air Force project connecting surveys of Borneo and the Philippines to produce the great accuracy needed for missile-age maps.

Every few days the men are called on their radio to operate equipment atop a hill from which they can see both Borneo and the Philippines Sulu Archipelago.

Otherwise, it's a life of playing cards, cooking the food brought in monthly by a Navy ship, boating, swimming and fishing.

"We trawl but haven't caught a thing yet," said Coleman. The Americans discovered after they arrived Dec. 15 that Berhala is the site of a leprosy station. In World War II the Japanese had a prison camp here.

A few weeks after the airmen got in, authorities burned buildings of the former North Borneo Leprosarium near their cabin.

Big day of the week is Monday, when the airmen climb aboard a lighthouse keeper's boat for the four-mile journey to Sandakan. They mail letters and buy odds and ends.

The first successful cotton mill in the United States was established at Pawtucket, R.I. in 1790.

REPAIR JOB

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—In municipal court on a charge of driving an unsafe automobile, 19-year-old Harold Hedges produced snapshots showing his car had been reconditioned from grill to back bumper since his arrest. He got off with $13 in court costs and a compliment from the judge on a "minor miracle" in repair work.

The market averages were bolstered considerably by a 4-point rise of Du Pont.

American Agricultural Chemical was ahead 7 points.

Zenith was up about a point and Thiokol around 2.

Brunswick-Balke was a head about a point. A continuation of recent gains was made by Ruppert, Minute Maid and Polaroid, all of which added fractions.

Great A&P was steady.

Robison slipped 1/2 to 1 3/8 on a big block of 21,000 shares, later paring the loss. Philadelphia & Reading lost another point.

General Tire, Raytheon, Allied Chemical and Merck rose about a point each. American Telephone was off around a point.

U.S. government bonds were steady.

'B' Allotments In Effect On 71 Cotton Farms

Choice "B" cotton allotments will be in effect on 71 of the 1,641 cotton farms in Pitt County during the coming growing season, SCS Manager Walter Hasty said today.

The "B" farms will grow 505.7 acres of cotton including the 40 percent increase in acreage allowed for that group.

There are 8,270.5 cotton acres in Pitt County.

Farmers this year were given a choice of the "A" plan which allowed them to plant the normal allotted acres or the "B" plan which gave them a 40 percent increase in acreage.

However cotton grown on "A" farms will be supported at 80 percent of parity while cotton grown on "B" farms will be supported at only 65 percent of parity.

Appropriations Body Gets Big Setback In House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan House vote for increased spending has given President Eisenhower a major legislative victory but may cost Republicans in Congress some 1960 campaign ammunition.

With heavy Democratic and Republican support, the House late Tuesday approved a $2,557,492,944 supplemental appropriations bill after handing its Appropriations Committee one of its worst setbacks in years.

The principal victory for Eisenhower lay in inclusion of 100 million dollars for the foreign aid development loan program. He had asked 225 millions but the committee had allowed nothing.

In addition, the House increased funds for eight other agencies for the remaining three months of the present fiscal year, though not as much as Eisenhower had asked.

None of the spending will directly affect the 77-billion-dollar budget Eisenhower has proposed for next year.

As the bill went to the Senate, it allotted $177,880,500 more than the committee had approved but still was $207,551,532 below the total requested by the President.

Extra money added to the committee's usually violate recommendations were the 100 million for the Development Loan Fund, $50,000,000 for defense education programs, $100,000 for the Recreation Resources Review Commission, 2 1/2 million for the District of Columbia, $4,306,500 for in-patient veterans, $554,000 for out-patient care of veterans, $2,100,000 for the Treasury Department, 18 million for the Post Office Department and $20,000 for the Narcotics Bureau.

Much of the added money was asked to pay for salary increases Congress voted last year.

Although the money for the Development Loan Fund fell 125 million dollars short of what the

Driver Ran Into Parked Vehicle

Police were called to Fifth and Elm Sts. last night when a car being operated by a 16-year-old girl collided with a parked vehicle causing heavy damage.

Police stated the car driven by Miss Sandra E. Jackson, Route 2, Greenville, was headed east on a streetcar in front of 1703 E. 8th St.

The second vehicle, parked by Douglas Yonque, a college student, was owned by Mrs. R. E. Yonque, 700 Prince St., Laurinburg.

Police said Miss Jackson stated she did not see the parked car until she struck it.

Two passengers in the Jackson car were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and treated for minor cuts, it was released.

Investigating officers estimated the damage to the Jackson car at $500 and placed damage to the Yonque car at $200.

No charges have been preferred pending further investigation by police.

As a result of a minor collision yesterday afternoon, police have charged Mrs. J. H. Langston, 2300 E. 3rd St., with failure to stop for a stop sign.

Police placed damage to the Langston car at $300. James S. Wells, 1501 Elm St., was listed by police as operator of the second car. Officers listed damage to his car as being about $50. The collision occurred at Fourth and Billmore Sts.

Recover Missing Farm Equipment; Man Is Charged

Two pieces of farm equipment taken from farms in the Fountain and Farmville areas have been recovered and a Wilson County man arrested, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson announced today.

Placed under arrest was C. R. Shelton of Rt. 1, Wilson. He was charged with larceny, the sheriff said, and released upon posting $800 bond. He will be tried in the April term of Superior Court.

Recovered were a bottom plow taken from the farm of C. R. Gaynor of Rt. 1, Fountain and a stalk cutter reported missing from a farm owned by Marvin Horton of Tarboro and located on U.S. 258 north of Farmville.

Sheriff Tyson said the missing items had been placed up for sale in Goldsboro where they were recovered.

She had been critically ill for the past seven weeks. Graveyard services will be held at the Wiggins family cemetery near Vanceboro Thursday afternoon at three o'clock by the Rev. Mrs. Anderson was born and reared at Rocky Mount and was married to Mr. Anderson of Pitt County in 1920. She had her home near Vanceboro for the past six years.

Surviving are her husband; five daughters: Mrs. Lemuel Lane of Vanceboro, Mrs. Myrtle A. President had sought, it was the amount agreed upon as "realistic" by his House leaders.

The fund is used to make loans to friendly foreign nations for economic development under the foreign aid program. The loans are repayable mainly in foreign currencies but members who oppose them claimed little if any ever would be repaid in any kind of money.

Rep. John J. Rooney (D-NY), offered the amendment giving the fund 100 million dollars. Only a handful of Midwestern Republicans and a bloc of Southern Democrats opposed it on the final 183-

Bill Is Killed Off In Insurance Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Insurance Committee today killed off a bill which was described as a step to put the state in the insurance business.

Rep. Thomas H. Woodard of Wilson, himself an insurance man, laced into the measure which would, in effect, allow the state to act as self-insurer for bonding its employees against money losses by dishonesty.

"This is a bad bill," said Woodard, "it puts the state in further competition with private industry. Pretty soon the state will be practicing law, too."

There was a round of other committee activity before the House and Senate convened.

The House Commercial Fisheries Committee turned over to a subcommittee a measure, already passed by the Senate, covering the taking of seafood for personal use. A controversial section would allow the taking of oysters for personal use on Tuesday and Fridays during closed season. Commercial fishing interests have opposed the measure.

The House Welfare Committee approved a plan to permit splitting of monthly welfare payments into two installments. The Senate already has passed the bill.

"If a mother can get half the welfare aid at the beginning of the month and half in the middle, it would make it more likely her children would eat at the end of the month," Dr. Ellen Winston, state welfare commissioner, explained.

The bill before the House Insurance Committee would have created a fidelity and surety section under the state property insurance fund, providing a reserve against loss by dishonesty of state employees.

Funds would have been obtained by cancelling present fidelity and surety policies on their anniversary dates and by charging state departments pro rata shares of the premium.

Quotable Quotas

RALEIGH — Frank Crane, commissioner of labor, said the 80-90-000 workers who would benefit by the minimum wage act have no organization and no spokesman "except the collective conscience of the people of North Carolina."

Rev. W. W. Finlator, president of the N. C. Council of Churches, said "you cannot isolate wages; they belong to everybody because they are spent in the channels of trade."

J. A. Glover of Nashville, also speaking for the Council of Churches, said "one out of every ten men is a leader; the other nine follow women." He was proud to be following some 350,000 women in maintaining his position in support of the minimum wage bill.

W. W. (Tea) Taylor, speaking against the wage bill, said it is so foreign to the "concept of individual liberty under law, it is inconceivable that it will be enacted in North Carolina."

Taylor also said that wages is "another name for price." The cost of wages must be considered along with the cost of raw materials as a business charge. To say that every employee is worth the same wage is comparable to saying that every bushel of potatoes or every suit of clothes has the same value.

Blucher Ehringhaus, speaking against the bill, said he did not presume competence to judge whether it was Christian or non-Christian, nor did he question the motives of anybody. He emphasized the economic and political elements.

Several speakers wondered why domestic and farm workers were exempted. Was it, they asked, because authors of these bills employ domestic servants and do not want to stir up a fight with powerful farm organizations.

Easter Lily Tag Day Sales Set Saturday

Greenville Jay-C-Ettes will direct the Easter Lily Tag Day Saturday as the second phase of a fund-raising campaign to aid handicapped children and adults in this area.

The Pitt County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, which sponsors the Pitt County Orthopedic Clinic, raises its funds through the annual sale of Easter Seals and lily tags. Co-sponsors of the local clinic are the Lions Club, which has charge of the Easter Seal mail campaign, and the Jay-C-Ettes.

The orthopedic clinic, held every fourth Friday each month, is financed mainly by the crippled children's division of the State Board of Health. Voluntary contributions provide orthopedic shoes, braces, walkers, summer campships, hospital transportation and x-rays.

The local clinic actually serves a six-county area and provides diagnosis, treatment, corrective surgery and necessary appliances for the crippled child and adult. The term "crippled" includes those with deformities of many kinds such as cleft palates, epilepsy, muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy. As many as 100 patients have been registered at the clinic in one day. In connection with the orthopedic clinic a speech and hearing clinic has been in operation in Pitt County for the past two years. The clinic has the services of a trained speech therapist.
